Consumers feel confident

Credit bureau sees merry Christmas

By Horihor Krishnan
United Press International

DALLAS — A Dallas-based national credit reporting service insists consumers are so confident about the economy this year they are preparing for a register-ringing merry Christmas — and credit ratings couldn't be better.

The assessment comes from Chilton Corp., an agency that keeps credit histories on some 70 million people or about a third of the country's population.

"The consumer is feeling comfortable; he is not worried about his job, his personal income is going up faster than inflation, his savings are adequate and he feels he can go ahead and borrow and not worry about paying it back," said Van A. Smith, president of the agency.

"Retailing is very strong and the numbers we are seeing are running stronger than the 5 to 12 percent reported in newspapers. We are running at least 10 percent stronger. But overall we are up 18 percent on the number of credit reports ordered by our customers. It has been like this for at least six months and we see no weakening of the trend."

"I have recently talked to major banks and retailers and they tell me their delinquencies are lower than in the past three or four years, quite a lot lower. That means people's credit ratings are good."

Chilton, a leading indicator of retail activity, said the high levels of credit reports issued in August and September showed increased consumer spending plans for the holiday season.

"Consumer confidence and liquidity remain high," the company said in its latest financial statement. "We anticipate that retailers will enjoy a very strong holiday season."

Every new application for credit means more money for Chilton. A typical credit report Chilton supplies to a credit grantor earns for the agency an average of $1.65 per report. It goes as high as $15 to $20 a report when sought by mortgage companies which require detailed information.

"It's hard not to be optimistic when you are doing 18 to 20 percent better than last year," Smith said. "This is our record year for revenue, no question about that. Next year will beat this year."

Chilton, founded in 1877 by Jim Chilton who began by helping Dallas merchants see whether local farmers were paying their bills, is now the largest credit reporting service in the Southwest and the third largest in the nation. It employs more than 1,800 people in 34 states. Today it supplies some 35 million credit histories annually.

"If interest rates go down, housing will become stronger next spring. I'm getting forecasts both ways about interest rates. But we are looking for them to stay where they are right now. New sales of homes bring follow-on business like refrigerators, draperies, carpets and other durable items."

Chilton's expansion plans include acquiring markets in Kansas City, St. Louis and Detroit.

Smith predicts fewer companies in the future will extend credit through their private credit divisions.

"But more and more smaller merchants will be accepting bank and other debit cards. There will be as much or more credit extended in the future but it will be done by fewer lenders. As users get more sophisticated, the need for fast, accurate credit information will grow."

"We are not in the business of invading anyone's privacy or granting or approving credit to a customer. We only supply the basic information and it is up to the grantor to approve or reject the credit application."

On Friday night, the hijackers released five Pakistanis and the only two Iranians on the plane, honoring a pledge to free passengers if allowed to make a public statement.

Although IRNA early Friday reported there were 66 hostages aboard the plane, after the eight were released the news agency said the number of hostages aboard the plane at 7:30 p.m.

The hostages still being held included two of six Americans aboard when the airliner was seized Tuesday on a flight from Karachi to Islamabad by five Arabic-speaking hijackers.

The terrorists have demanded the release of 21 convicted terrorists jailed in Kuwait for a series of bombings against U.S. and French installations there in December 1983.

"The reason for our action was for the pleasure of God and secondly to help our innocent brothers, who have been slanderously and oppressively accused by the Kuwaiti regime," the hijackers' said in a statement reported by IRNA.

"We are determined to the point of attaining martyrdom to help our innocent brothers and free them. We will not make the slightest retreat from our position."

Iran has said there were 166 people aboard — including the hijackers — when the airliner was seized. According to the Iranians, more than 100 have been freed, most of them women and children.

The hijackers said they executed four passengers, including two Americans, believed to be officials of the State Department's Agency for International Development.

The other two were a Kuwaiti national and a man whose nationality was not known.

State-run Tehran radio, however, said five hostages had been slain.

Hijackers kill four, free eight

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Terrorists holding a hijacked jetliner in Iran released eight hostages Friday after announcing they had slain four passengers, including two Americans, and vowed to unleash "a great epic" of violence unless their demands were met.

Gunfire sounded about 4:30 p.m. local time inside the Kuwait Airways Airbus A-300 parked on an isolated strip of runway at the Mehrabad Airport in Iran, IRNA, the official Iranian news agency, reported. More than 12 hours later, it was not known if anyone was killed or wounded in the shooting.

"There are still soldiers and ambulances around the plane, but everything looks calm," an official in the Mehrabad control tower told United Press International by telephone about midnight local time.

On Friday night, the hijackers released five Pakistanis and the only two Iranians on the plane, honoring a pledge to free passengers if allowed to make a public statement.

Republicans name 18 incumbents to House chairmanships

By Mark A. Dupuis
United Press International

HARTFORD — House Republican leader R.E. Van Norstrand appointed 18 incumbent legislators Friday to assume House committee chairmanships when the GOP takes control of the Legislature in January.

Van Norstrand selected 11 men and seven women to serve as House co-chairmen of the committees, which also have a Senate co-chairman. The committees decide which bills go to the full House and Senate for action.

Unlike several of their Senate counterparts, all of the House chairmen are incumbents who were re-elected to the House in November. Nine of the Senate chairmen were elected for the first time this year.

Republicans will take over almost all of the Legislature's committee chairmanships from Democrats because the GOP won majorities in both the House and Senate in this year's election.

Seven of the new House chairmen will take over committees on which they now serve as ranking members, the top committee post for members of the majority party. Democrats will assume ranking member positions in January.

One Republican House member, however, will lose a chairmanship with the start of the new legislative session.

Rep. Dorothy K. Osler of Greenwich will move from chairman to ranking member on the Program Review and Investigations Committee.

The committee is one of only a few that have one chairman from each party and under a rotation system the House chairmanship will go to a Democrat for the next two years.

The committee chairmen will receive an additional $2,000 a year over the $13,000 annual base pay for legislators. Ranking members receive $1,000 above the annual base.

Van Norstrand, a Darien lawmaker who will become House speaker when the GOP assumes the majority next month, chose two veteran lawmakers to chair the busy budget-writing and tax-writing committees.

Rep. Otto Neumann of Granby, a four-term legislator, will chair the Appropriations Committee, and Rep. Linda Emmons, a five-term lawmaker from Madison, will chair the Finance, Revenue and Bonding Committee.

Other committee chairmen are: Gerald Patton of Milford, Banks; Marilyn Roche of Wilton, Education; and David Anderson of Sprague, Energy and Public Utilities; Jack Tiffany of Lyme, Environment; Loren Dickinson of Berlin, General Law; and Mae Schmilde of Newtown, Government Administration and Elections.

Also, James Fleming of Simsbury, Human Services; Morag L. Vance of Trumbull, Insurance and Real Estate; Frank Turck of Stonington, Internship; William Wollenberg of Farmington, Judiciary; Francis X. O'Neill Jr. of Guilford; and Alex V. Meyer of Easton, Planning and Development.

Assistant majority leaders receive $2,000 more a year than the base salary.

Vincent Chase of Stratford, Regulations Review; and Elinor F. Wilber of Fairfield, Transportation.

House Republicans also have selected nine assistant majority leaders. They are Robert Farr of West Hartford, Pauline Keizer of Plainville, Martha Rothman of Ridgefield, Frank Esposito of Norwalk, Richard Foley of Oxford, Carol Herskowitz of Southbury, Paul Karbowski of East Haven, John Zagaj of Meriden and Sidney Hubbrook of Westbrook.

Connecticut In Brief

Unemployment claims up

HARTFORD — The state's insured unemployment rate dipped slightly in the latest reporting period, although the number of claims for unemployment benefits rose. The state Labor Department said Friday.

The Labor Department said seasonal conditions pushed the number of claims for benefits up by 2,200 to a weekly average of 24,792 for the two-week period ending Dec. 1.

The insured unemployment rate, which represents continued claims over a 13-week period, stood at 1.2 percent, down from 1.3 percent in the previous reporting period and 2 percent last year, the department said.

Bus line plans garage

HARTFORD — A Rhode Island company will design and manage the construction of a $39 million bus garage and maintenance facility for the state-owned Connecticut Transit bus line, officials said Friday.

Gilbane Building Co. of Providence, R.I., was selected from 29 companies that submitted proposals for the project, the state Department of Transportation said.

The company will be responsible for engineering, design, site preparation and management of construction of the garage, which will be built in Hartford's North Meadows and have space for 300 buses.

Milner leaving for parley

HARTFORD — Mayor Thirman L. Milner will travel to Senegal and Liberia to attend the first meeting of the World Conference of Mayors, a group he helped found.

Milner was to depart Saturday and is expected to return Dec. 15 from the trip. The conference was founded during the 10th annual National Conference of Black Mayors, which was held in St. Louis earlier this year.

Parkway adds weight limit

HARTFORD — The state Traffic Commission has widened restrictions on the vehicles that can use the Merritt and Wilbur Cross parkways connecting Connecticut and New York, officials said Friday.

New regulations adopted by the commission allow vehicles with combination plates and weighing up to 7,500 pounds to use the parkways. The previous weight limit was 4,000 pounds.

The state Department of Transportation said the new regulations were designed to increase restrictions in use of the parkways, which are not open to commercial vehicles.

Reaction caused fatal blast

SIMSBURY — A report by an explosives expert concluded Friday a "runaway reaction" was the probable cause of an Aug. 15 blast at Easting-Bickford Industries that killed three workers.

The workers were making a high temperature explosive called PXX in a 100-gallon vat when something went wrong. The blast demolished the isolated building in a restricted manufacturing and explosives storage area, hurling debris and remains of the workers hundreds of yards.

Tremors were felt a mile away from the 60-acre plant and 200 residents in the area were evacuated after the blast and resulting fires sent up a black cloud of smoke and debris.

Dr. Robert W. Van Driest, a Pittsburgh scientist and explosives expert, was hired to investigate the unexplained blast and the company made portions of his final report public Friday.

Jury indicts terrorists

NEW HAVEN — Suspected terrorist Susan Lisa Rosenberg was being questioned by a policeman and her attention was drawn to another officer standing nearby.

"Tell him to put out the cigarette or we'll all be blown up," she said. They were standing next to 740 pounds of unstable dynamite.

The incident was related in an affidavit that led to a federal indictment Thursday by a grand jury in Camden, N.J. The 11 count indictment charged Rosenberg, 29, and Timothy A. Blunk, 27.

College system picks president

NEW BRITAIN (UPI) — Trustees for the Connecticut State University Friday named Dallas K. Beal of the State University of New York as the new president of the four-campus, 23,000-student system.

Beal, currently acting executive vice chancellor at SUNY, will succeed James A. Frost as chief executive officer of the largest system of higher education in Connecticut.

Beal will become president June 1, 1985 after working with Frost during a two-month transition.

"We evaluated 67 applicants in a nationwide search to find a successor," said Lawrence J. Davidson, chairman of the trustees. "We feel that Dr. Beal presented the diversity of collegiate experience that will provide our Connecticut State University with dynamic leadership."

Beal's appointment followed a six-month search for a successor to Frost retiring after 12 years as executive director of the system, including Central Connecticut at New Britain, Eastern Connecticut at Willimantic, Southern Connecticut at New Haven and Western Connecticut at Danbury.

Beal, 58, has been acting executive vice chancellor since July at SUNY's central administration offices in Albany, N.Y. He had been president of the State University College at Fredonia, N.Y., a part of the SUNY system, since 1972 and earlier served as its vice president for academic affairs and dean of professional studies.

During his presidency, Beal was credited with leading the college's transition from a teacher education institution to a college with degree programs in professional fields.

A native of Newcomerstown, Ohio, Beal earned his bachelor and master's degrees from Ohio State University and his doctorate in education from Columbia University Teachers College.

He is chairman of the national committee on communications technology of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities and chairman of the SUNY Task Force on Teacher Education.

Yale strike supporters plan rally

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — Supporters of a white-collar union that suspended its 10-week strike against Yale University will gather Saturday for a rally expected to attract people from throughout the Northeast.

Participants will address issues raised by Local 24, Federation of University Employees, in its contract dispute with Yale, and particularly the issue of comparable worth.

The issue is of concern to universities, clerical workers, and women all over the country, said Barbara Richards of the Community Labor Alliance, one of the groups sponsoring the rally.

Clarence Pendleton, the head of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, recently described "comparable worth" as "the loneliest idea since LennyTunes came on the screen." But the concept has been endorsed by Catholic bishops in a draft letter on various social topics, including the economy.

Richards said the strike has been destructive on the local level.

"Over time a strike like this one does irreparable damage to the community," she said. "It's hard on families and children, small businesses and banks. It's devastating to the local economy."

The union, whose membership is 82 percent female, struck Yale Sept. 26 when the two couldn't reach agreement on their first contract. Yale has since offered $18.25 million over three years as opposed to the union's demand for a $26 million pact.

The workers returned to work Tuesday in a tactical move to avoid striking over the Christmas holidays when the campus would be virtually empty.

At Saturday's rally, a crowd estimated between 2,000 and 3,000 will hear speakers like author Michael Harrington, a professor at Queens College, N.Y.

The rally will take place on Beechke Plaza.

Court seals wiretap information

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — State Attorney Arnold Markle took the last step Friday to seal the information in a $7.2 million wiretap suit brought by 1,215 claimants against the city and police.

U.S. District Judge Warren Egington accepted Markle's proposal to seal all information obtained through the wiretaps prior to January 1975. It would prevent disclosure without prior court approval. The plaintiffs had asked for the information to be destroyed. It was obtained and used for the 1970 trial to settlement of Black Panther radicals accused in the street-slaying of Alex Rackley, 24, a shoeless illiterate the Panthers believed to be an informer.

Markle had refused to destroy records involving the unsuccessful prosecution of Black Panther Chairman Bobby Seale and defendant Ericka Huggins.

John R. Williams, attorney for the plaintiffs, said the wiretaps from 1964 to 1973 were not limited to radicals but crossed all segments of the population. He said they were orchestrated by local police and several FBI agents.

The agreement reached in federal court Friday ended the last of the legal snags to settlement of the complex suit. Earlier, New Haven agreed to pay $1.7 million to cover its liability and that of departmental officials.

Navy preparing to launch 33rd fast-attack submarine

GROTON (UPI) — The U.S. Navy prepared to launch its 33rd fast-attack submarine Saturday, named in honor of the steel-producing city of Pittsburgh and the first equipped with vertical launch missile tubes.

The 688-class submarine will slide into the Thames River at General Dynamics' Electric Boat shipyard during 8:45 a.m. ceremonies. Demonstrations were planned outside the shipyard gates by nuclear protesters objecting to the submarine's name and the nuclear weapons it will be equipped to carry.

George Seweyr, former assistant Navy secretary for shipbuilding and logistics and now an executive vice president of General Dynamics, will deliver the keynote address.

Seweyr's wife, Carol, will christen the submarine with the traditional bottle of champagne and a non-traditional bottle of Iron City beer.

"The city of Pittsburgh and Iron City beer share a rich heritage," said Harvey Sanford, Pittsburgh Brewing Co. president and chief executive officer.

"To everyone in western Pennsylvania, Iron City beer is an indigenous part of Pittsburgh. This is an exciting occasion for our company and city," he said.

Pittsburgh Mayor Richard Caligiuri will not attend the ceremonies, but has extended his best wishes to the crew who will also give a commemorative can of beer. An estimated 160 city residents, including the local president of the Navy League, will be among the thousands of guests at the launching.

Outside the shipyard, members of the War Resisters League and Pittsburgh's Thomas Merton Center said they would protest the nuclear weapon despite forecasts for temperatures in the 20s.

"We were outraged because we are opposed to nuclear arms and we don't want them putting the name of our dear city on one of those weapons," said Joseph Hughes, a spokesman for the Thomas Merton Center.

The USS Pittsburgh is the first submarine and the fourth Navy ship to bear the name. The others were a Civil War gunboat, a World War I armored cruiser and a World War II heavy cruiser that earned two battle stars in the Pacific.

It is the fourth fast-attack submarine launched this year.

Manchester In Brief

Food workers reject pact

Newly unionized school cafeteria workers have rejected a proposed contract with the Board of Education, sending negotiations back to the starting point, Assistant Superintendent Wilson E. Deakin said Friday.

The cafeteria workers rejected a proposed three-year contract reached between their leadership and the school board three weeks ago over the issue of wages and health care benefits, he said.

When asked if the union and school administration were far apart on the terms of a contract, Deakin replied, "Very."

The school cafeteria workers voted this spring to join Local 991 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. The union also represents about 200 clerical workers, school custodians and public works employees in Manchester.

Nelson Foss, a custodian at Verplank School and the newly elected president of that union, was not available for comment Friday.

Deakin said he would report to the school board Monday on the union's rejection of the proposed contract.

Drunk driving targeted

With holiday parties coming up, the week beginning Monday has been designated "National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week," according to a proclamation issued by Manchester's mayor.

"The Christmas and New Year's holiday period is a particularly appropriate time to focus national attention on this critical problem because more drivers are on the roads, more social functions are attended and more traffic collisions occur," Mayor Barbara B. Wemberg said in the proclamation.

Between 45 and 55 percent of the more than 50,000 drivers killed in auto accidents each year are legally drunk, according to the proclamation.

Increased public knowledge about the problem of drunk driving could prevent some accidents, the proclamation says.

Cosponsors of the event are ComputerLands, Comprehensive a division of United Personal Computer Corp., Quinnipiac College, Texas Instruments and Kronenberger Design.

Fire auxiliary picks leaders

COVENTRY — The Coventry Fire Department Auxiliary has elected its officers for 1985.

Joyce E. Carilli-Bellard was re-elected president. Roseanne Elkins was elected vice president and Jennifer Ray was elected secretary. The auxiliary selected Sharon Chesters for treasurer and Pamela Sewell for financial secretary.

Wish fund promoted

Coventry residents are being encouraged to send a holiday greeting to their neighbors in an advertising publication instead of mailing cards.

Proceeds from greetings in the Broadcaster will be donated to the Coventry Clergy Fuel Fund through the Christmas Wish Fund.

The fund was set up by clergy as a way of raising money for local people and programs.

Yearly donations in the past have averaged about $600.

Storage Tank Mishap

Schematic diagram of storage tanks at Union Carbide plant in Bhopal, India where 25 tons of deadly methyl isocyanate gas escaped into the air killing more than 2,000 people.

Graphic analyzes the possible causes of the gas leak in the Union Carbide plant in Bhopal, India, which resulted in the deaths of more than 2,000 people. A $15 billion damage suit was filed against the company Friday in federal court in Charleston, W.Va. The suit contends the company was negligent in the construction and operation of the Bhopal plant.

Union Carbide neighbors uneasy

By Dennis C. Milewski
United Press International

DANBURY — The death toll was still climbing in India when antiques dealer Arlene Holt started praying for the victims and businessman John Ravetto thought about calling his broker.

A deadly cloud of poison gas killed 2,000 people living near a pesticide factory in Bhopal, India, and the tragedy had led to shock, sorrow and stock market speculation far away in suburban Danbury.

Union Carbide, a giant corporate neighbor, was blamed for the accident and residents like Holt and Ravetto wondered Friday what it might mean for Danbury where the company chose to build its isolated world headquarters.

"It was just horrendous. Words cannot express such devastation. It's so heart-rending, so soul-wrenching it hurts just to think about it," Holt said of the accident, which also injured thousands of people.

Union Carbide has a moral obligation to compensate the families of the victims and tighten safety measures in its plants all over the world, said Holt, who owns the Things and Things antiques shop near Union Carbide.

But she also worried that Danbury might suffer because of the company's financial losses and possibly face layoffs among Union Carbide's 2,500 employees in the city.

"Who is to say who is to blame?" she said. "It could affect the town almost as bad as 2,000 lives. It would be devastating. Money can't replace a human life, but an accident is an accident."

Ravetto said the gas leak in Union Carbide's Indian plant meant a possible windfall for those willing to gamble on the company's stock offered at bargain prices.

"I went down 9 1/2 points yesterday and I'm thinking of buying some. I'm a true capitalist," said Ravetto, vice president of Advanced Satellite Communications Systems.

Manchester police lodge charges

Police were holding a Manchester youth Friday night on charges of first-degree robbery and second-degree larceny, police said.

Walter Missouri, 17, of 129 E. Rachel Road, was held on $25,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court on Wednesday.

Police could provide no further details Friday night.

Police charged an Ellington woman with resisting arrest early Friday morning after she bit a police officer while being arrested for driving while intoxicated, police said.

Katherine Tolisano, 21, was charged with interfering with a police officer and driving while intoxicated. She was released on a written promise to appear in Manchester Superior Court on Dec. 18.

According to police, Tolisano lost control of her car shortly after midnight and ended up in the front lawn at 342 Adams St. She was stopped after she tried to drive her car back onto the street, police said.

Police said she failed sobriety tests given to her on the scene, and as two police officers attempted to handcuff her, she bit one of them on the arm.

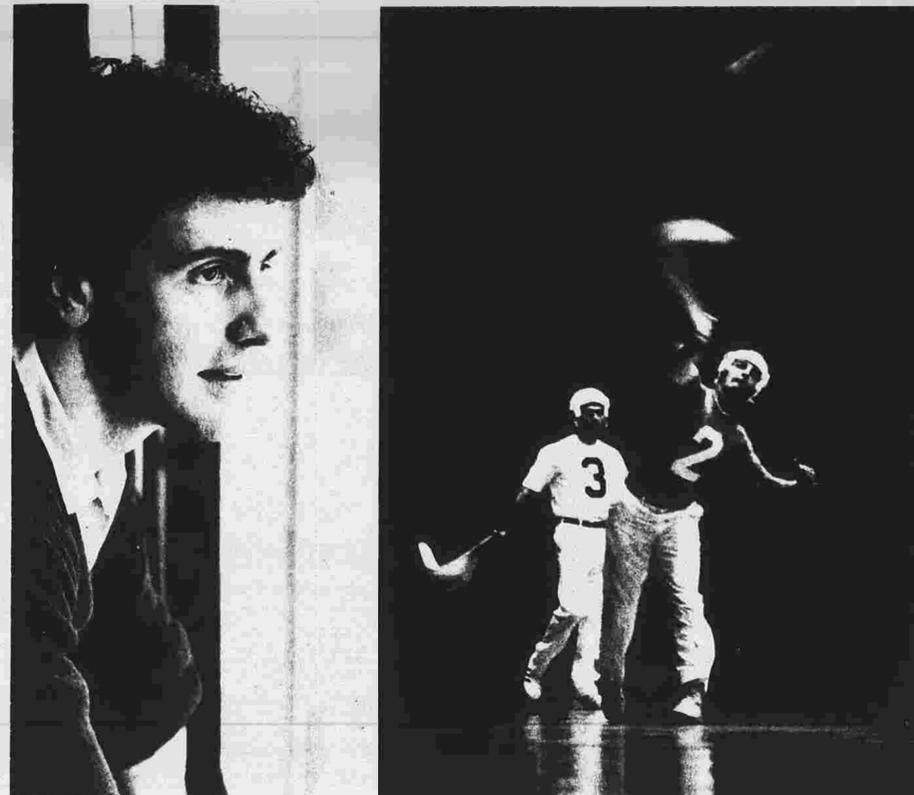

Two men turned themselves into police Friday night after warrants were issued charging them with assault, police said.

Daniel Jourdain, 17, of Bloomfield, was charged with second-degree assault and was released on a $1,000 non-surety bond. Joseph LaFlamme, 19, of 77A Rachel Road in Manchester, was charged with third-degree assault and was released on a $250 non-surety bond.

The men were charged in connection with a Nov. 30 fight at the Manchester Parkade, police said.

Both men are scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court on Wednesday.

Irun! Jai-alai player calls Manchester home

— 144 — in 1980, and was a five-time French national amateur champion in the mid-1970s.

This year, because of the strength of the Hartford roster, he's playing early games, where he is one of the dominant players. The top players play later in the evening.

And a fan's catcalls don't faze him. "Just 30 minutes before play began on Nov. 27, he said he didn't feel any pre-game jitters, either."

Wearing the jai-alai player's uniform — white pants and sneakers, red belt, and a colored jersey — he sat in an office which adjoined the players' locker area. Nearby, one could hear men getting ready for the night's play.

He considered the jitters question a moment. "No, I'm too old now to be nervous," he said, breaking into a smile and shrugging.

HIS ACCENT IS FRENCH. His hometown, St. Jean de Luz, is in the Basque region of southwest France. He is the son of a retired forist.

Irun first started playing at age 10. He

The Nassiffs make players into pals

In September 1983, jai-alai player Pierre Irungary — Irun to his fans — had plenty of company. His parents and a handful of relatives from St. Jean de Luz in the Basque region of France spent several weeks visiting.

For the last four years the Wetherell Street resident introduced them to was Fred and Therese Nassiff of Manchester.

The Nassiffs, who own Nassiff's Sports Co., 991 Main St., have often opened their home to jai-alai players. They've entertained them at holiday times such as Thanksgiving, when players might be alone. And they've helped some — such as Irun — find housing.

The players drop by their sporting goods store. Many buy their shoes and other athletic equipment there.

That's how Therese Nassiff, a native of Lebanon who speaks fluent French, first met many of the French Basque players.

"They're just nice young people. We just happen to like them," said her husband.

"We think a lot of those guys," she agreed.

Mrs. Nassiff has become quite a jai-alai fan.

"She's the only person I know who can lose her shirt and come out singing," her husband kidded.

For the last four years the Nassiffs have been regular jai-alai goers. Mrs. Nassiff discusses the game with ease.

"I'd never even heard of jai-alai until I came to Connecticut," she said.

Irun is obviously a favorite.

"We consider him like a son," she said. She enjoyed entertaining his family when they visited.

"They're a wonderful family," she said. "A nice, refined family."

She enjoys Irun's personality.

"He bubbles. He talks to everybody."

Just that day, she said, she had walked with him over to Michael's Jewelers on Main Street. On the way back, he'd noticed the woman who runs Wilton's setting up her window.

"He knocked on the window. That's the way he is — always happy," she said.

During a light moment at home, Irun, right, kids with fellow jai-alai player and roommate Pablo Aramayo. The pair plunked a soccer ball into the cesta — the basket players use.

Wet soles caused calm soul

I am sitting in a perfect stranger's living room in Manchester, and I'm soaking my feet in a plastic pail.

The person next to me is soaking her feet, too.

So is the person on the couch and the person beside her.

No, this isn't some new tor-worship cult. Nor are we exploring some new way to commune with the spirits.

This is a party.

And what I'm doing is having a foot-cial. Yes, that's foot-cial. A sin facial, except that it's the feet — not the face — that are being treated.

My friend Pat tells me it is extremely fashionable. Frankly, I hadn't heard of it before Mary Beth suggested it the other night on the spur of the moment, and, on the spur of the moment, I accepted.

Frankly, I've never really worried much about my feet's beauty before. As feet go, they're so-so. No truck driver has ever slowed his rig down to whistle at them before, but then again, no one has ever called them ugly either.

They're your basic feet. They keep my legs from ending up in two little stumps. They're there. That's about all I can say about them.

And I have never spent much time worrying about their appearance before. In fact, my feet are probably right up there with my elbows on the list of Body Parts Which May Be Safely Ignored.

My father, on the other hand, was extremely strict about bare feet when I was growing up. Bare feet were forbidden inside our house. This was not a matter of safety. This was strictly aesthetics. He hated the looks of bare feet.

He once told me he had a crush on a girl when he was growing up. Then she took off her shoes one day. That was it. End of the crush. She had fat ugly toes.

This story didn't impress me at all. I grew up not caring about my feet, except to cover them with slippers in my father's presence.

THAT WAS, of course, long before I discovered that you can actually buy almond-cream lotion for your feet if you want. This you apply after you put on the estrogen foot cream around your cuticles, and, this you do after you soak in the hot water with two different cleaning and softening solutions for 20 minutes.

The woman who is leading the foot-cial is explaining the marvelous benefits of all this gunk we're slathering on our feet.

She wants us to buy it, of course.

Mary Beth and I are trading foot conversation back and forth. We are both commenting on the fact that we wish we could have secret foot baths installed under our desks at work — this all feels so good.

I am hoping that I don't swish water on this perfect stranger's living room rug. I am also wondering what the perfect stranger's husband must be thinking about the fact that at least six females are sitting there, soaking their booties in his living room, and giggling their heads off.

Mary Beth is sold on the almond cream. Frankly, I think the stuff makes my feet smell like two Almond Joy bars. I have never wanted to take a bite out of my feet before, and I don't want to start now.

It's the pine-scented stuff I'm mad about.

It makes me think of camping trips and pine cones and Christmas tree farms and ...

I plunk down my $6.48.

Now, just in case you stop by the office, and there's a hint of pine cones in the air, go ahead. It's OK.

Tell me your feet are gorgeous.

Suitor sees widow when it suits him

DEAR ABBY: Six months ago I met a charming gentleman through mutual friends. He's 49 and recently divorced for the second time. He's a retired and quite well-off. I'm a 47-year-old widow in comfortable circumstances. He calls me every day, comes over in the evening to watch TV, plays cards, has coffee and talk, but he has never taken me out, stopped inviting him to dinner because he never reciprocated. We see each other only during the week - never on the weekend. He says he doesn't like to "make plans" - meaning for dinner or a movie; he prefers to things to be spontaneous.

Dear Abby Abigail Van Buren

He loves to garden and is very handy at fixing things. He sprayed my front and backyard for weeds and worked on my Kimball organ. I do not chase after him. I never call him and never ask him what he does when he's not with me. He acts like he's very fond of me, and I think I'm falling in love with him. I love being with him, but I want to go somewhere!

He told me his second wife wants him back, so he's probably seeing her on the weekends. (I never ask.) Abby, do you see any future in our relationship? Why do you think he's never taken me anywhere? And how can I find out where I stand with him?

PUZZLED IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR PUZZLED: If there's a future in your relationship, it's not in the immediate future. He doesn't take you anywhere because he's either too cheap to spend the money, or he has a commitment with someone else, which is probably why you never see him on weekends. Don't be available for coffee, conversation and cards every evening. Be "busy," and if he keeps calling, pin him down for a dinner date or a movie, and see what happens.

DEAR ABBY: A charitable organization I have worked for is honoring me at a dinner in my 47th year of service. I have only one son. He is over 30, married and has a nice family. I invited him to come to the dinner, but he refused, saying, "No. Those affairs bore me."

He lives very near to where the dinner is being held, so I told him he could skip the dinner and just come for the presentation. He refused.

The chairman of the dinner committee called my son and asked if he would please come and say a few words in my behalf. He was also turned down with, "No. Those affairs bore me." The man was shocked, as he knows how generous I have been to my son and his family over the years.

All my friends and relatives are coming. What should I say when they ask me why my son didn't come to see me honored? HURT IN LOS ANGELES

DEAR HURT: Look them straight in the eye and say, "He was invited, but he said, 'No. Those affairs bore me.'"

Don't feel that you should cover up for your son's inexcusable behavior. You're not the only parent who ends up with a selfish, thankless child.

DEAR ABBY: Recently you had an inspirational piece in your column pointing out the fact that many men who became multimillionaires started out with nothing. (I Paul Getty and Conrad Hilton, to name two.)

I am reminded of the story about the grandfather who said to his 14-year-old grandson, "Why, when I was your age, I went to work in a store for $10 a week, and in less than six years I owned the place!"

"That can't be done today," the child replied. "They have cash registers now."

Ed Sheils of Arvada, Colo., reads through his growing stack of correspondence in his fight with Sears over his son Danny's death. Danny Sheils was killed nearly a year ago when the Sears bunkbed fell on him.

An anguished father crusades for safety

By Brad Smith United Press International

That has been Sears' official and unwavering position, the beds are safe and nothing need be done. One of Sheils' letters found a receptive audience in Rep. Tim Wirth, D-Colo. One of his staff members went to a Sears store in Virginia to look for himself and agreed with Sheils.

The child (Danny) would likely be alive if he had contained four retainers with instructions indicating that the retainers must be in place on both beds at all times. The bed set was sold in 1983, identical twin just 2 years old. The date was Dec. 28, 1983, not long after the family had moved to Colorado from Providence, R.I.

No one is sure exactly what happened, but Danny and his twin, Timmy, were on the floor beneath Danny's new bed. The mattress and support board somehow fell on Danny's throat. He suffocated.

Sheils is convinced the death was preventable. He wants to be sure no other child dies the same kind of death.

Sheils' adversary is Sears, Roebuck and Co., the company that sold the bed under the "Brown Bedroom" name. Sears would not comment, but Danny recall or modify beds already sold.

"We'd hate to pick up a newspaper and see that this happened to another child somewhere," Sheils says. "We'd like to warn everyone."

There apparently were at least two other incidents involving the collapse of a push-up bed. Sears support board in a Sears Brawley bunk bed. No one was seriously injured and neither apparently was exactly the same as the Sheils case. Sheils thinks there might be others that have gone unreported.

Cynics might say he is building a case to push for a large cash settlement from Sears. Sheils says that isn't true, and points to the fact he has taken no legal action in the case, although he has talked to an attorney.

"I think Sears would prefer it if we filed a suit and just shut up," he says. "We want to force the manufacturer and Sears to correct the beds. We don't want a settlement."

Flip 'em the bird! The University of Texas campus has been converted into what some say would be a set for the remake of the movie, "The Birds."

Thousands of migrating grackles, blackbirds, starlings and cowbirds have taken up temporary residence around dormitories, creating a noisy chatter.

"We have to put our books over our heads at night when we walk," says a student. A freshman from Houston, said Thursday.

Bird expert David McKeely, hired by UT to study the birds, said, "There are 40,000 grackles and 3,000 pigeons going to the bathroom simultaneously."

Saturated fat threatens the heart

DEAR DR. LAMB - All my life, I have heard doctors recommending that people eat chicken and fish and less beef and pork. I'll agree on fish, since it contains little or no fat, but chicken, oh, if you skin a 3-pound chicken, you'll find almost one pound of fat on it. Now, one-third of that chicken is not good for your health. If you cut away this fat and discard it, I find - but who skins a chicken?

When any animal contains one-third of fat, I say forget it. I'd agree that eating rabbit, squirrel, fish and all wildlife might reduce heart problems to a minimum, but let me not tell you that chicken will also do this. A wild chicken is harder on one's blood than center-cut pork roasts or the tougher grades of beef, such as brisket, neck or shoulder, which have more muscle than fat. What say you?

DEAR READER: It is a question of how much fat, but what kind of fat. The fat in poultry is only about one-third saturated. Saturated fat is the kind of fat that is most likely to cause high cholesterol levels and fatty-cholesterol deposits in arteries. About half of the fat in beef is saturated fat, and beef contains one very little polyunsaturated fat. Chicken fat is a little less than one-third polyunsaturated fat. Pork fat has a little less saturated fat than beef.

Hens and older chickens so have a lot of fat, but the edible portion of a fryer chicken, when raw, is only about 5 percent fat by weight. That is about the same as the separate lean or very lean portion of round steak. The cut of poultry also makes a difference. Two

The fryer breast with the skin is less than 2 percent fat, and much less if you take the skin off after you have baked it.

You are right that wild game is usually much leaner than domestic meats. Grass-fed beef is leaner than lot-fattened beef, but the American public doesn't like these leaner and tougher types of meat.

You should like the kind of person who would cook in ways to avoid fat in a diet. It is a good practice to control weight and to help avoid heart disease, so I'm sending you The Heart Letter, part of a heart medicine program for Weight Control, offered by the American Heart Association.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My mother is in her 80s and has a heart condition. She has had three or four in 24 hours is fat, and Nitrostat will abort or prevent anginal pain.

DEAR READER - It shouldn't be surprising that a medicine that is commonly used to prevent or relieve heart pain (angina). Its use is limited to three tablets a day. It is not a heart medicine, but a heart medicine, if the pain is that bad, the patient needs to see a doctor immediately. The use of these or four in 24 hours is fat, and Nitrostat will abort or prevent anginal pain.

Company brings new twist to plays on the Scriptures

The Hartford Stage Company is presenting a most unusual and enjoyable production - John Russell Brown's new version of The Mystery Plays. De Brown is associate director of the National Theatre of England and professor of theater arts at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, N.Y. He has published many works about Shakespeare.

"Mystery" was the medieval word for work and working people created these plays. Sometimes they were called "miracle plays." They were a popular form of entertainment from the late 13th century through the 16th century. They were performed throughout Europe and England during holy days by townfolk on makeshift stages, wagons or whatever was available. Every village or city jealously guarded its scripts - one reason why so few exist today.

In this production the company has chosen seven stories: The Creation and Fall (Adam and Eve), Cain and Abel, Noah and the Flood, The Nativity, The Shepherds and Flight into Egypt, Five men and one woman make up the company: Christopher McCann, Yusef Balois, Peter Cross, Michael Butler, John Renshew and Angela Bennett. Only Christopher McCann, who portrayed God, did not switch roles.

The versatility of the cast was immediately apparent in the ease with which they changed characters. It is fascinating to listen to the speeches. Once your ear becomes used to the language, it's not difficult to understand, especially with such skilled people delivering the words. A short glossary in the program helps, but the meanings soon become clear anyway. Several of the enactments were full of humor. For instance, when Noah fulfills God's instructions to build an ark and fill it with creatures of the earth, he and his sons have to convince his nagging wife to board the ark.

Rita Kenway is the theater and music reviewer for the Manchester Herald.

Center Stage

Rita Kenway

In keeping with the tradition of makeshift stages, the main part of the set is a square high platform on a star-shaped floor. Changing cloth coverings or sliding crude upright pieces of wood make this basic piece serve the many scene changes.

Costumed musicians Michael Moody, David Nelson, percussion instruments, and James M. Spalding, recorder, assily and harp. The trio deftly provided a medieval feeling using imaginative music composed by Amy Rubin for this world-premiere production.

The Hartford Stage provides a most informative playbill. Playgoers are urged to arrive early enough to read the article by Dr. Brown about the rediscovery of the Mystery Plays. Another opportunity to learn more about the plays is at 8 p.m. when Dr. Brown and Mary B. Robinson, director, will give a free lecture on the subject.

This production continues through Dec. 22. Call the Hartford Stage at 527-5151 for more information.

Thoughts

God was in Christ. What needs to be said isn't said. When religion makes people afraid, it is probably from those who were the objects of religious persecutors or from those made suspect through learning of the records of history. The problem of evil among people is without immunization in kind. Religious zealots have come from the strangest places!

Therefore what needs to be said is, aberrations, faults and the Bible's term, sin, comes from people not God. Sin is good or He is in God. People who violate their neighbor in the name of God dishonor Him and serve another despite what they say. The Christian faith comes to the underserving and proclaims, "God was in Christ," for you, I fear, and gathers people by the friendship God established Himself with the records of history. The problem of our sin in his body on the tree - so that we might die to sins and live to righteousness." (1 Peter 2:24).

"Live as free men," (1 Peter 2:16), but do not use your freedom as a cover-up for evil. Live as servants of God. All this comes by way of a message that seeks to influence and make safe people for good. When "God was in Christ" is sought to be enforced by sword, state, whatever or whoever, it is no longer of God but of men. What men say and do including myself frightens me sometimes. But what God has done, and still does overwhelms my senses.

Thank you for letting me share thoughts with you this week, the Herald, and others involved. We live in a great nation where Jews, Christians and others live together free to speak, write, and worship. It's a grand Republic to which we cherish and need to preserve lest we become subjects of fear, repression, and sad to say a problem of evil ourselves. C.W. Kahl Zion Lutheran Church

NFL roundup

49ers' Walsh has options available to him

By Ian Love

Even when Bill Walsh has problems, they're the kind other coaches in the NFL would like to have.

Though the San Francisco coach will be fielding a battered team when his 49ers face the Minnesota Vikings Saturday at Candlestick Park, he is not without options.

day's game because of nagging injuries.

"Though the 49ers are thinning in Week 15, the 49ers are not without solid replacements. Walsh has decided to start veteran linebacker Jack Reynolds in place of the injured Fahnhorst.

Wide receiver Sammy White and running back Ted Brown walked out of camp this week after Coach Les Steckel lambasted the two in front of teammates because they quartermen Joe Montana a rest tomorrow.

"We would like to see Matt (Cavanaugh), the club's backup quarterback, play," Walsh said. "But only if we have some momentum and control in the game. Then Matt and some other players will get in."

While San Francisco can begin to ponder the playoffs, Minnesota will be lucky to get through the regular season with its team intact.

Wide receiver Sammy White and running back Ted Brown walked out of camp this week after Coach Les Steckel lambasted the two in front of teammates because they Both were injured and watched the first half from the press box before leaving.

Both players will miss Saturday's game, but Brown has come to an agreement with the team, while White remains a holdout.

In the other game Saturday, the Buffalo Bills are at the New York Jets.

On Sunday, it's Atlanta at Tampa Bay, the New York Giants at St. Louis, Cincinnati at New Orleans, Cleveland at Pittsburgh, Green Bay at Chicago, Miami at Indianapolis, New England at Philadelphia, Seattle at Kansas City, Houston at the Los Angeles Rams, Washington at Dallas and San Diego at Denver.

which doesn't make the task any less difficult. The Patriots must win their remaining two games and the Los Angeles have to lose their last two.

Denver needs a victory Sunday over the San Diego Chargers to be assured home-field edge against the Raiders should the Broncos face Los Angeles in the wild-card game.

A St. Louis triumph would extend the chaos into Week 16 with all four clubs still owning legitimate Super Bowl hopes.

The formula for reaching the playoffs is simple for New England on Monday night.

In the NFC East the co-division leading Dallas Cowboys and Washington Redskins square off in Irving, Texas, while the third team sharing the top spot in the division, the New York Giants, travels to St. Louis to take on the Cardinals. St. Louis, 4-6, trails the trio by one game.

A victory by New York over St. Louis would automatically put the Giants and the winner of Dallas-Orleans, Cleveland at Pittsburgh, Green Bay at Chicago, Miami at Indianapolis, New England at Philadelphia, Seattle at Kansas City, Houston at the Los Angeles Rams, Washington at Dallas and San Diego at Denver.

NEW YORK - Danny Sullivan, 34, a former New York City cab driver, was named Friday to replace Al Unser, Sr. on the CART Indy car circuit, finished in a fourth place with his new teammate Rick Mears in the 1984 PPG points standings.

Balestrero leads at Sun City

SUN CITY, South Africa - Steve Balestrero of Spain, taking advantage of Nick Faldo's poor showing on the back nine, Friday carded a 1-under 71 to grab a 2-stroke lead after two rounds of the $1 million Sun City Golf Challenge.

Faldo, of Britain, blew a 3-stroke lead coming into the last seven holes of the second round with bogeys on the 12th, 14th and 17th over the 7,033-meter, par 72 Gary Player Country Club course.

Kratzert-Morse combo in front

LARGO, Fla. - Bill Kratzert and Cathy Morse birdied four of the last five holes Friday to take a three-shot lead at the halfway point of the $550,000 Mixed Team Golf Classic with a 36-hole total of 10-under-par 134.

Three teams were tied for second at 7-under-par 137 - Craig Stadler and Lori Garbusch (68-69), Tim Norris and Sandra Palmer (71-68), and Larry Mize and Martha Nause (70-67).

Bunched another shot back at 138 were Mike Donald and Vicki Alvarez (69-69), Donny Hammond and Kathy Pate (71-67), Curtis Strange and Nancy Lopez (72-66) and Jerry Bate and Curtis Reynolds (68-69).

Thomson retains Seniors edge

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. - Australian Peter Thomson held on to a three-stroke lead in the $225,000 PGA Seniors Championship Friday despite shooting a 1-over-par 73 for a 4-under 140 at the midway point of the final event of the season on the PGA Senior Tour.

Golf instructor Bob Toski also fired a second-round 73 and held on to second place with a 143 total. Tying for third at 146 were Orville Moody and Art Wall. Moody's even-par 72 was the day's lowest score. Wall had a 76.

Cavs say goodbye to Huston

RICHFIELD, Ohio - The Cleveland Cavaliers finally waived goodbye to embattled guard Geoff Huston, and filled the roster spot Friday by activating forward Lonnie Shelton.

Huston, who had been in Cavs rookie coach George Karl's doghouse since training camp, reportedly was bought out of his two-year guaranteed contract worth $425,000, and that his salary will no longer be counted toward the $3.6 million salary cap to which every NBA team must conform.

Polynice to miss Duke game

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. - Virginia center Olden Polynice, whose acquittal by an honor code panel brought protests from students and alumni, went into hiding Friday and will miss the Duke game Saturday, officials said.

In a note delivered Friday to Coach Terry Holland, Polynice, a 6-foot-11 sophomore from New York City, said he was "really upset" by what happened and "the lies" his parents had read about the honor case in a New York newspaper.

"I have to get away from everything for a few days to think and make some decisions and mainly to just try and work things out," Polynice said in the note, which was released by the school.
