Backing likely for complex in Buckland

By Susan Vaughn
Herald Reporter

Developer John Finguerra is seeking strong support from Manchester officials for a massive commercial-industrial center off Buckland Street.

And judging by the initial response from about 35 officials and politicians who saw the plan this morning at a meeting at Manchester Country Club, he's going to get it.

The plan calls for a 265-acre mixed-use development with a major shopping mall at the center of the property, which is zoned Comprehensive Urban Development.

Finguerra described the property as the "best piece of real estate in the Hartford area."

"If we get the support from Manchester, it will give us the strong impetus with major department stores," Finguerra said during a presentation of the plans.

Finguerra made it clear today that he is in direct competition with the Winchester Mall proposed nearby on the Manchester-South Windsor town line. "There is only room for one center," he said.

The developer, who is based in Brooklyn, N.Y., said that he and his partners are committed to Manchester and hold purchase agreements for major portions of the property. He said he anticipates a closing this year on the Red Rock Golf Course property and on the center portion which will house an 800,000-square-foot mall.

The center portion is now owned by Rapid American Corp. Finguerra recently purchased 10 acres of nearby residential property on Buckland Street.

The developers have negotiated with a major financial institution which will back the shopping center, Finguerra said. He declined to name the institution.

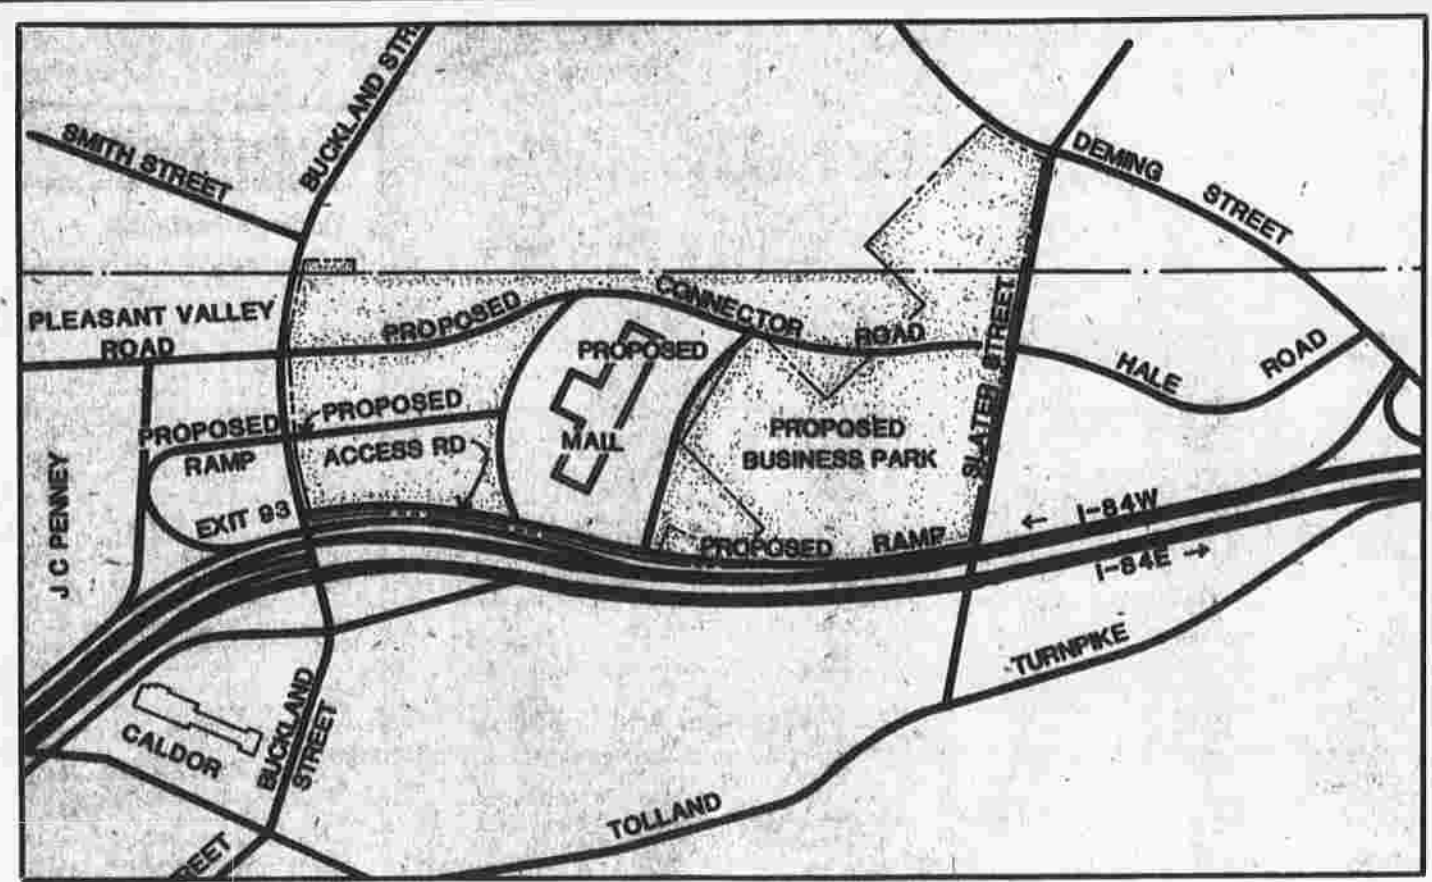

Several years ago, Finguerra was associated with the proposal to build a similar center, known as Buckland Commons, on nearby property. Plans for that development were scrapped in 1981.

Mayor Barbara Weinberg said at the meeting that she is excited about the possibility of the development. "We are prepared to move swiftly ahead to enable it to come to Manchester," Weinberg said.

She cited the high visibility of the property off Interstate 84 as a factor in attracting major retail stores to the development and said the mall would create jobs in Manchester.

Town General Manager Robert Weiss said the town would benefit with an "attractive development which will be aesthetically pleasing." He cited tax revenues and more jobs.

Weiss also said the town has proven its ability to work with a

This map of a major proposed regional commercial and industrial center in the Buckland area of Manchester emphasizes its accessibility to two major interchanges of Interstate 84. Plans for the center were unveiled today by developer John Finguerra and his partnership. The center would occupy 265 acres north of I-84, between Buckland and Slater streets and the South Windsor town line. The first phase of the development would be a 800,000-square-foot, two-story mall, as shown in the center of the shaded area of the map.

Plan could mean taxes, jobs

Developer John Finguerra details plans for a massive office and retail complex this morning at a meeting with town officials at the Manchester Country Club. Finguerra, based in New York City, is a partner in a group that wants to develop 265 acres in the Buckland section of Manchester.

The shopping mall and office center proposed for a 265-acre site near the Manchester-South Windsor town line would generate $1 million in property taxes for the town and $100,000 for the Eighth Utilities District, according to a description of the project provided town officials and community leaders at today's meeting.

The development would become Manchester's largest single-property taxpayer, the developer claims.

The regional center would also create 2,500 construction jobs in Manchester and another 2,500 permanent jobs, according to the description.

In addition, the center would spur further revenue-producing development in the area that could generate an additional 2,000 full-time and 500 part-time jobs, the developers claim.

"This land is the last large remaining piece of undeveloped business property in Manchester," development partner John Finguerra said in the description.

"With its prominent frontage along the reconstructed Interstate 84 and easy access to and from interstate, this property is potentially the finest piece of undeveloped commercial-industrial real estate in southern New England," Finguerra said.

Finguerra said construction of the center — which would include a shopping mall, hotel, office space and industrial parks — would

First big storm of winter closes schools early

The Northeast's first significant winter storm this year swept through the Manchester area this morning, leaving hazardous driving conditions and forcing schools to close early.

By 8:30, the storm had deposited more than an inch of snow on area roads. Manchester and Andover schools announced they would close early and Bolton schools did not open at all.

Forecasts called for snow to fall steadily through the day, with up to five inches' accumulation expected.

Although the Manchester Highway Department reported no trouble after trucks spent the morning sanding and plowing, motorists found town roads and highways treacherous. Traffic was slowed to a crawl in some spots.

Manchester police reported scattered fender-benders throughout town this morning. No accidents with serious injuries had been reported at press time.

In Manchester, public schools were scheduled to close two hours early, according to Assistant Superintendent Wilson E. Deakin Jr. East Catholic High School closed at 11:30 a.m. and Howell Cheney Technical School at 12:40 p.m., officials said.

The district superintendent's office announced that Andover Elementary School would send students home at 1 p.m. RHAM junior and senior high school students were excused at noon. Coventry schools also announced early closings.

State police reported no emergency calls on Interstate 84, formerly the I-84 extension. Donato Ratazzi, Bolton public works foreman, said traffic was slow but steady, with the town highway crew out clearing and sanding the roads since early this morning.

Electrical power in area towns was unaffected by the snowfall this morning, Northeast Utilities spokesman said.

A Manchester Taxi dispatcher reported a run on taxi service this morning, with delays averaging 15 minutes in Manchester and 40 minutes in Vernon.

Meanwhile, state forecasters said the accumulation could get heavier depending on the route of a southern storm system moving toward the northeast.

State Department of Transportation officials said the snow began falling in the pre-dawn hours in western and southern sections of the state and by 6 a.m. precipitation had started in the entire Greater Hartford area.

The DOT had more than 600 men and women out in trucks and plows and reported no major highway condition problems.

First Cheney mill apartments to be ready soon

By Susan Vaughn
Herald Reporter

Eighteen units in the Ribbon Mill Apartments complex in Pine Street in the Cheney Historic District will be ready for occupancy by Feb. 1, according to the developer.

The apartments are the first to be rented among several hundred planned for three former Cheney silk mills. The Ribbon Mill complex will have 102 units when reconstruction is complete.

Laurel Nichol and Jim Rubin, who are handling the rentals for First Hartford Realty Co., said they have been deluged with calls about the apartments and have already obtained certificates of occupancy for six. The company has not yet advertised or set up a model apartment or a rental office, Rubin said.

Most of the interest in the units has been generated by the sign in front, Rubin said. "There has been a lot of enthusiasm, so we're encouraged," Rubin said. About 33 more one and two-bedroom units will be ready by the end of February, Nichol said.

The completed units are in the south wing of the apartment complex, which formerly housed the Manchester Modes garment factory.

Rents will begin at $450, Nichol said.

The apartments is a classic example of the natural architectural features of the old mill, such as exposed brick and pine beams, and floor to ceiling windows as well as include carpeting and all new appliances, she said.

The units will also have an indoor heated swimming pool which was built in the old boiler room and an exercise room.

The apartments are not considered low-income even though the project was sponsored by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The remainder of the complex should be ready for occupancy in March and April, Nichol said.

The other two apartment developments in the Cheney district are the Clock Tower Mill on Elm Street, which is currently undergoing conversion into 185 apartments, and the Weaving Mill, in which 244 units are planned.

ADVISOR ROBERT MCFARLANE climate ripe for dialogue

U.S. wants Mideast talks with Soviets

By Norman D. Sandler
United Press International
WASHINGTON — The administration appears to be aggressively pursuing a thaw in U.S.-Soviet relations by reviving discussions of arms control and trade and agreeing for the first time to hold talks on the volatile Middle East.

McFarlane said the United States "for years" has expressed an interest in trying to resolve regional disputes with the Soviets, and the Middle East "has been a part of that from the beginning." "These talks to discuss disagreements don't represent any change in our position at all," McFarlane said in a Cable News Network interview.

Kocsis wants to know why town nixed minority applicant

By Kathy Gormus
Herald Reporter
Members of the Human Relations Commission pressed a Manchester official Wednesday to explain why the town recently failed to hire a minority applicant for a position after she had qualified as one of the top five candidates.

Critic is subject of criticism

A frequent critic of the town's hiring practices came under fire from a member of the Human Relations Commission Wednesday night for his claim in a letter to the Herald that the town "finds ways not to hire minority candidates."

OPINION

A spectacle can be a healthy thing

Recently the paramedics of the town's Advanced Life Support system gave vital assistance to a Manchester woman when she was about to give birth to a baby in a delivery she knew would be complicated and potentially dangerous. The paramedics and everyone else connected with the system derive a great deal of satisfaction from any success the system has in saving lives. When a success like the one involving the emergency delivery comes along, it is inevitably mentioned at the next meeting of the Emergency Medical Services Council with an exchange of congratulations.

Sometimes, along with the expression of satisfaction come some mild expressions of frustration that the system does not work perfectly in every case. It never will, of course; that's the nature of an emergency system. An emergency system deals with the unpredictable and sometimes with the unpredictable.

IN THE MOST RECENT CASE, the concern lay in the fact that the paramedics, whose early presence at the scene was extremely important, would have been there 10 minutes sooner if the emergency number "911" — instead of "operator" — had been dialed by the patient's husband.

The couple is new to Manchester and the man apparently did not know or did not remember in the midst of his anxiety that Manchester has a 911 emergency phone system. Many towns in Connecticut do not.

The brief mention of the case at the latest EMS Council meeting sparked a general discussion about why some people do not dial 911 in a medical emergency. There were almost as many opinions as there were people present, but the opinions seemed to fall into two broad categories.

ONE CATEGORY OF OPINION was that people are not aware of the ALS service, or are not aware of the number that summons it, or don't remember the number when they need it. The cure recommended was more education, more reminders, more exposure to the number 911 wherever possible (posted beneath all stop signs, stuck onto all telephones, for instance).

Manchester Spotlight
Alex Girelli
Herald Reporter

Surprisingly, it has been noted more than once at EMS Council meetings that not all physicians are aware of the number.

The other category of opinion held that people do know about the Advanced Life Support system and do know that the number for it is 911. Both the system and the number have been well publicized.

Those who hold that opinion, a minority, feel that some people do not dial 911 because they do not really want to surrender control over the degree of response to their emergency.

ONE MEMBER SAID SPECIFICALLY that some people do not like the idea that a piece of fire apparatus may be among the vehicles that appear at the scene of a medical emergency. If that is true, it is ironic. Paramedic service was popularized by the television program "Emergency" in which the service was part of a fire department and in which fire apparatus was often in the background — it not the foreground — of the action.

The argument advanced is that when someone in a medical emergency assesses the scope of his problem, he wants to tailor the response to his own perception of how serious the situation is. The patient wants to avoid what he fears will be a spectacle. If that is so, it is too bad. It should be easy to familiarize people with the fact that there is an emergency medical service and to cement the number 911 in their memories. It will be harder to educate people to the need for a given degree of response.

Fire apparatus now report to fewer calls than they did previously. The protocol, or operating procedure for the service, is constantly being evaluated and adjusted. But no matter what, the response must not be tailored to a patient's perception of what is decorous.

ONE PARAMEDIC AT THE MEETING made it clear that there often are times when he appreciates some extra muscle at the scene of an emergency.

He was referring to the firefighters who come on the fire apparatus and are physically equipped to overcome the problems of moving a patient down steep stairs, through narrow doors, and around tight corners.

A couple of others at the meeting pointed out that the tension or drama of a medical emergency is built in. Any emergency vehicle arriving at a home or public place with lights and siren blaring draws attention. The ultimate alternative is not to admit there is an emergency. The consequence of that alternative is obvious.

A reporter who covered the meeting confessed later that he had a peculiar thought as he listened to the discussion and looked around the table. "If I were to have cardiac arrest," he thought, "this would be an ideal place to do it. Where else would I find, within a few yards of where I am sitting, three physicians, three registered nurses, four or five paramedics, and the owner of an ambulance service."

"I'll take all the response I can get, spectacle be damned."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

United States dragged heels on famine aid

WASHINGTON — Why did it take two years for the Reagan administration to discover that the famine in Ethiopia was a disaster that transcended its political hostility toward the Marxist regime in Addis Ababa? Like many bad decisions made in Washington, this one was produced by committee. Here's what happened.

In 1982, officials of the Agency for International Development became convinced through reports from the field, that a dangerous situation was developing in Ethiopia and the Sudan. An inter-agency task force was set up to deal with the humanitarian crisis, with no thought of immediate political profit. The NSC man, the sources said, took the line that the Marxist regime in Addis Ababa should either take care of its own mess, get help from its Soviet backers or make strategic concessions before it got U.S. aid. Only a few courageous officials expressed opposition.

The NSC REPRESENTATIVE repeatedly quoted from intelligence reports that chronicled the Ethiopian government's indifference to the suffering of its starving people. Wattering pointed out that the Marxist regime hadn't even given its own hunger commission the money and vehicles it needed to carry out its assigned mission. As one task force member recalled, "The NSC pointed to the failures of the Ethiopian government to support the relief effort... and to the fact that the Ethiopians were providing facilities to the Soviets." None of the sources argued with the NSC man's facts, or with his presentation of the views of an agency whose middle name, after all, is "Security." They simply thought Wattering was being callous in a situation that cried out for humane action. As it happened, the NSC's coldblooded calculations were wrong about driving a bargain with the Marxist regime. Addis Ababa was even more coldblooded, and refused to make concessions to obtain U.S. aid.

MEANWHILE, THOUSANDS — perhaps millions — are suffering because of this macho poker game between the NSC and the Ethiopian government. For almost two years the NSC argument carried the day, and the massive U.S. relief effort that could have saved countless lives never occurred. The NSC finally folded its hand. "They backed down rather reluctantly when it became clear that our efforts to pressure Ethiopia were failing and that millions of people would die," a source said. By then it was too late for many Ethiopians. Footnote: Wattering, who now works at the CIA, declined to comment.

Banking blues
Three out of five bank failures are due to either incompetence or criminal misconduct by the bank's managers or employees. In the case of Penn Square's collapse in 1982, it was a case of mismanagement on an almost incredible scale.

A peek behind the scenes of this financial tragedy, which almost dragged down some of the most premier banks in the country, was offered recently in a court document filed against Penn Square's former executives by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. The FDIC had to make the biggest payoff in its history to the bank's insured depositors.

Your bank may offer toasters to depositors — and automatic overdrafts on checking accounts at usurious interest rates. But Penn Square's friendly officers OK'd several overdrafts of more than $1 million, including one of $20 million. Many of these overdrafts were — if you can believe it! — borrowers whose earlier loans were delinquent.

However, during the next three weeks our pleasure turned to embarrassment as we watched our town's tree grow dimmer as each week passed. At first, we noticed only that a string or two of lights had gone out. By the next week, though, we realized that not only had these lights not been replaced or repaired, but that still more lights were out and the tree that had looked so beautiful now had, only one pitiful string of lights remaining lit around its base.

Dim town tree reflects council

To the Editor:

On a cold, crisp night in early December, my family and I gathered, in response to the call of our town's leaders, on the front lawn of the Coventry town hall for the annual Christmas tree-lighting ceremony. It was a pleasant and festive evening. Santa Claus arrived on schedule and played his role extremely well, the high school band was excellent, and the tree looked beautiful.

My children proudly added the decorations they had made to the tree and, following refreshments, we returned home pleased with the appearance of our town hall (thanks to the Jaycees' work on the exterior) and its tree.

However, during the next three weeks our pleasure turned to embarrassment as we watched our town's tree grow dimmer as each week passed. At first, we noticed only that a string or two of lights had gone out. There's no proof of discrimination

To the Editor:

Frank Smith's letter of Jan. 14 raises serious doubts as to his intentions. Just listing the number of minority applicants for town positions in the past few years is misleading. Nowhere does he offer any proof that these people were qualified and rejected because of race or sex. Why doesn't Mr. Smith give an example of a candidate who actually felt discriminated against?

It is just this type of unsubstantiated rhetoric that has given Manchester the reputation of being a "racist town." It also led to the recent suit which cost the taxpayers several hundred thousand dollars in court costs and legal fees.

Manchester has made tremendous efforts to hire minorities. The fact that we have not had great success does not mean that the effort is not there. To lower standards would be detrimental to both the town and its employees, of all races and sexes.

Indeed, when citizen after citizen cannot cite even one significant achievement that the Olmstead council has made after a full year in office, why should we be surprised that they cannot even maintain the lights on our town tree for only three weeks?

What a sorry commentary this is on the condition of our town government! We can only hope that the lights will be turned on again next November when our citizens "throw the switch" at the polls.

By the week before Christmas these, too, had disappeared and Coventry's town tree stood in embarrassingly stark and darkened contrast to those in surrounding towns.

Letters policy

To the Editor:

The Manchester Herald welcomes letters to the editor. Letters should be brief and to the point. They should be typed or neatly handwritten, and, for ease in editing, should be double-spaced.

The Herald reserves the right to edit letters in the interests of brevity, clarity and taste.

Avery's plan advances

Selectmen fill recreation panel

By Sarah Posselt
Herald Reporter

BOLTON — The Board of Selectmen Wednesday appointed a new Recreation Commission by filling six seats that had remained open for more than six months. Those appointed include leaders in the four major youth sports organizations and one person each to represent men's and women's recreation programs.

All six will serve with Recreation Director Ronald M. Avery, who recommended them to selectmen. Avery, appointed last month, also holds a seat on the commission.

In a set of proposed guidelines Avery submitted with his nominations Wednesday, he recommended the commission be allowed to expand to 15 if other volunteers come forward.

The present commissioners, who will serve until June 30, are Claude Ruel of the Youth Soccer League, Charles Bossidy of youth basketball, Clifford Scorsio of the Bolton Football Association, John Dietz of youth baseball and softball, Ilana "Loni" Youssan to represent women's sports and Gil Boisneau for men's sports.

Selectman Carl Preuss cast the only vote against the appointments after failing to persuade the board that the commission members should have 18-month terms.

Avery said he will begin to operate the commission by the guidelines he submitted to selectmen to replace a sketchy statement of purpose selectmen adopted when they appointed the first recreation commission in 1983. Avery said he hopes the selectmen will eventually adopt the new guidelines formally.

In a written introduction, Avery said the lack of structure in past commissions, which have existed informally for years, brought chaos to efforts to coordinate town recreation programs.

Avery's new guidelines are the result of consultation with all the newly appointed commission members, he said last week.

Avery's draft includes an objective, "to implant firmly in all the participants from the community the ideals of good sportsmanship, honesty, loyalty, courage and respect for authority."

The document also says that all who work for or play in town-sponsored recreation programs "shall bear in mind that the attainment of exceptional athletic skills or the winning of games should be secondary, and the molding of future citizens is of prime importance."

Avery said last week that the youth sports organizations should be allowed to run their own programs, with the commission set up to enforce compliance with the guidelines and to act as liaison between sports and town officials in financial matters.

Among the duties of the commission as stated in Avery's guidelines is to ensure that staff, equipment and facilities are shared equitably among sports and between men and women, young and old.

Zoners hear request to expand small house

BOLTON — The Zoning Commission has received a second request from resident Joseph Carter to allow him to put an addition on his two-room house on Boston Turnpike.

Carter appeared before the commission last month with the same request, but was asked to bring a plot plan of the property, which he did Wednesday night. The property is a non-conforming one-acre lot in a business zone and contains a three-family house and three house trailers in addition to Carter's house.

Commission members said they had no problem with Carter's plan for an addition, as it would not be too close to the lot line. They expressed concern, however, about the number of units in an underzoned lot and the effect expansion might have on the septic system.

Commission member Thomas Manning pointed out that the addition might bring the house closer to conformance with the regulations which require homes to have at least three rooms.

Action on the matter was delayed because David Mix, acting chairman, told Carter that the commission members needed more time to check the regulations and consult with zoning officer H. Calvin Hutchinson about the proposal.

The commission also discussed proposals for zoning regulations amendments which will be scheduled for public hearings soon. The commission approved a budget request of $1,000 to be submitted to the Board of Selectmen for the coming year.

Board OKs window bid

BOLTON — The Board of Selectmen Wednesday approved the lowest of four bids received to redesign and replace the windows at Bolton High School.

The vote was unanimous and clears the way for the Public Building Commission to sign a contract with Alma Construction Co. of Vernon. The cost of construction will be $58,647 and architectural fees are $5,000. The total cost is nearly $4,000 less than the $68,000 set aside for the project in the 1984-85 town budget.

The remaining money will stand as a contingency fund should unexpected costs arise. Work is scheduled to begin after school closes in June and is to be complete by the end of August, according to architect Alan Wiedie. Wiedie will supervise the project, which was designed to make the high school more energy efficient.

The school administration has said it intends to seek receive partial reimbursement from the state.

Permit fees will increase

BOLTON — Selectmen approved a recommendation from town Building Official H. Calvin Hutchinson Wednesday to raise building permit fees.

Selectmen did not say when the new fees will take effect. They will seek Hutchinson's advice before setting a date.

The fee for a project that costs up to $200 will rise from $3 to $5. The fee for a project between $200 and $600 will rise from $4 to $6.

The fee for a project costing between $600 and $1,000 will rise from $5 to $7, with an additional $7 charged for every additional $1,000 in building costs. After the first $1,000 of value, the fee will rise $7 even for a fraction of $1,000 in additional costs.

Democrats caucus

BOLTON — The Democratic Town Committee will meet Wednesday to hold a caucus to select candidates for town election in May.

All registered Democrats living in Bolton are eligible to make nominations and vote in the caucus.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7:15 p.m. at Community Hall on Bolton Center Road.

Zoo seeks aid
BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — State lawmakers have become acquainted with Bridgeport's Beardsley Zoo through a promotional packet aimed at securing state funding for the 62-year-old attraction.

Mayor Leonard S. Paoletta has appealed to Bridgeport area lawmakers for support, and officials distributed a briefing package to legislators that calls for development of the zoo into a major tourist attraction.

Freaky hand, squeaky contract

By James Jacoby

Right-angled suits are a little like a full moon on an autumn night — they can be mind-boggling. Thus South preempted five clubs over the weak two-heart bid by East. West doubled cheerfully and led the king of diamonds. His cheerfulness quickly turned to gloom.

Dealer was John Wignall of New Zealand, playing a match last November against Luxembourg in the World Team Olympiad. Wignall ruffed the opening lead, saw a glimmer of hope. He could make his contract if he could ruff a heart with dummy's singleton club. Perhaps the weak two-heart bidder had originally held the A-K-Q of hearts and a void in clubs. He did need to keep West off lead, so he led the heart jack from his hand. Sure enough, East had to win the trick and, wonder of wonders, he had no club to lead. The contract was on life, but it's fate is still not secure.

In the qualifying rounds of the World Team Olympiad last fall, a total of 1,910 matches and 38,300 deals were played. Fortunately for the contestants' peace of mind, very few of those deals included eight-card suits.

House committee plans limited review of primary

By Mark A. Dupuis
 United Press International

HARTFORD — A special House committee assigned to review a contested Waterbury election hopes to decide today whether to hold its own record of absentee ballots used in the general election, a panel member said.

The committee decided Wednesday to limit its review of a contested Waterbury election to the general election balloting only. The committee on Contested Elections denied a request from attorneys for Republican Gloria S. Bogen to extend the probe to the Democratic primary in the 3rd Assembly District.

The three-member committee was created by the House to look into a complaint from Bogen over her two-vote loss to Democrat Joan V. Hartley in the Nov. 6 general election.

Bogen's attorney Russell L. Post sought to have Chief State's Attorney Austin J. McGuigan testify about a criminal investigation by his office into the handling of absentee ballots in the primary.

Post asked the committee to investigate the primary because children, who were dropped from a second story window, and also broke the fall of a woman with Thayer's help. The fire claimed four lives.

Woodcock proposes new 'lemon law' bill

By Susan E. Kinsman
 United Press International

HARTFORD — Rep. John J. Woodcock, D-South Windsor, who authored the state's "Lemon Law" for new-car buyers, has proposed extending some of the same protections to those buying used cars from dealers.

Woodcock Wednesday proposed a crackdown on used car dealers and automobile repair shops he claimed contributed to nearly 8,000 complaints last year.

He suggested 60-day warranties on used cars with fewer than 36,000 miles and 30-day warranties on those with more mileage. He said his proposal was modeled after laws in New York and Wisconsin.

Woodcock also proposed the state strengthen its law against odometer tampering, including a mandatory 90-day jail sentence for second offenders.

The bill sent a clear message to those used car dealers who regularly engage in these unscrupulous practices that the State of Connecticut means business," Woodcock said.

Woodcock's third proposal was a "ghost car program" to test the "diagnostic honesty of repair garages," whereby a state car with a specific problem is sent to garages where complaints have been made.

"The question is will that $3 curdler adjustment turn into a $100 repair bill," said Woodcock, who modeled his proposal after successful programs in California and New York.

"A ghost car out in the marketplace... would be a psychological and actual deterrent to those who tamper with a consumer's car," Woodcock said.

He said the proposals would help make a dent in the nearly 8,000 complaints filed with the state Department of Motor Vehicles last year.

Woodcock said Democrats and Republicans could work points with middle-class voters by championing the consumer bills.

"Republicans are singing a different tune in 1985. They are very concerned about the middle class and what their problems are," Woodcock said.

Torrington branch gets legislative reprieve

By Susan E. Kinsman
 United Press International

HARTFORD — The Torrington branch of the University of Connecticut has another year's lease on life, but it's fate is still not secure.

The legislature's Education Committee has promised to expedite its study of whether the branch should be closed, as recommended by the Board of Governors for Higher Education.

Sen. M. Adela Eads, R-Kent, co-chairman of the committee, promised Wednesday the committee would make its recommendation on the future of the campus by March 15, and give supporters and opponents "a chance to vote it up or down."

Gov. William A. O'Neill Wednesday signed into law a bill to keep the University of Connecticut's Torrington branch open for at least another year, after the state Senate voted 28-8 for the amended proposal.

"The campus "will have another year to prepare for the Legislature to decide" its fate, O'Neill said.

It was the first bill O'Neill has signed since the Legislature convened last Wednesday.

Earlier, the Senate accepted grudgingly two House amendments and sent the bill to O'Neill's desk. Majority Republicans said they were forced to accept the amendments because of a Thursday deadline on the fate of the campus.

The Legislature was required to act by Jan. 17 to change a decision by the board of governors to close the campus Aug. 31.

Rejecting the House amendments, or adding more, would have required additional work by the House and there was no guarantee it could be completed before the deadline expired, said Senate President Fro Tempore Philip Robertson, R-Cheshire.

Bills introduced by Fuscas would limit spending, hike aid

By Alex Girrell
 Herald Reporter

A resolution and 17 bills on a wide variety of subjects have been introduced in the General Assembly by state Rep. J. Peter Fuscas, R-Marlborough, whose district includes Voting District 3 in Manchester.

The proposed resolution seeks a constitutional amendment to limit state expenditures to 98 percent of anticipated revenue and to require a three-fifths vote of each house of the General Assembly to increase taxes or levy new taxes.

Under the proposed resolution, the tax limitation would not apply to money needed to pay interest and principal on state general obligation bonds and the limit on spending could be exceeded when there was an affirmative vote of three-fifths of the members of each house.

Two of the proposed bills would affect the state succession tax when an estate passes to a surviving spouse. One would provide for an unlimited exemption from the succession tax and the other "substantial increase" in the exemption. Present law limits the exemption to $100,000.

Other tax-related bills would eliminate sales tax on meals costing less than two dollars, or on meals costing less than one dollar, and on clothing for children under age 16. Another would eliminate the real estate conveyance tax of one-half percent on real estate transactions.

Other bills introduced by Fuscas would:

- Raise the drinking age from 20 to 21 effective July 1, 1986.
- Require two marker plates on vehicles, with the front plate having two sets of numbers, one of the sets in mirror image so that it can be read in the rear view mirror of another vehicle.
- Provide for seizure of contraband and of boats, automobiles, and aircraft used to conceal or possess contraband.
- Provide that resident state troopers not be counted in the authorized manpower of the state police force, that the number of state troopers not be limited by statute and that when a law requests a state trooper one be assigned in a reasonable time.
- Allow the state to provide community-based services to Medicaid recipients in order to reduce the need for institutionalization.
- Require public identification cards for public assistance recipients.
- Establish a state properties review board to approve land transactions by the Department of Transportation.
- Establish a six-member board to oversee projects and expenditures by the Department of Transportation to issue permits to municipalities allowing the use of vehicles whose axle weight exceeds allowable limits provided the gross weight remains within allowable limits.
- Provide an additional $5 million for town aid for roads and require that such aid be distributed

FUSCAS' PROPOSAL is one of several before the General Assembly to increase funding for local road and bridge repairs.

Gov. William A. O'Neill Monday announced a plan to use $100 million of the projected state budget surplus to set up a trust fund from which towns and cities would be paid $25 million annually over the next five years for road and bridge repair. Funds would be distributed by a formula that includes both population and the number of miles of roads in each town, under O'Neill's plan.

Sen. Richard Johnston, R-Wethersfield, last week proposed a 10-year program under which $45 million a year would be distributed to towns in a bid through a combination of grants and low-interest loans.

All three proposals would supplement the approximately $25 million a year now distributed to towns and cities under the town aid program.

Auditor says housing authority has to explain overruns

By Alex Grell
Herald Reporter

Members of the Manchester Housing Authority were given a detailed explanation Wednesday night of an audit of the authority's operations in the two years that ended Sept. 30, 1983. They learned that the authority staff will have to explain the reasons from some budget overruns during the period.

Arthur D'Amato, accountant for the authority, said he agreed with findings of the auditors that it would have been a better accounting practice to increase the budgets when it appeared they were too low in certain categories than to allow the overruns.

He said that in some cases unanticipated expenses came to late in the budgeting process, but in others it would have been possible to modify the budget in time.

D'Amato and Carol Shanley, executive director of the authority, said during the authority's meeting that they foresee no difficulty in explaining the expenditures to the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, for which the audit is regularly conducted.

IN THE FISCAL YEAR that ended Sept. 30, 1982, the overrun was $65,866 in a budget of $422,000. In the next year it was $30,000 in a budget of $475,000.

In the 1982 fiscal year, the overrun was pushed up by the costs incurred when three employees — including the executive director — left their jobs.

In another matter affecting past years in the accounts for the Spencer Village complex, in that case, the town contributed $17,000 for development, but the accounts show that it owes $5,000 as a contribution for land.

The matter has been on the books for about six years and no Board of Commissioners has wanted to approach the town about it.

Allan Thomas, legal counsel for the authority, suggested that the authority approach a member of the Manchester delegation in the General Assembly to introduce special legislation to erase the $5,000.

The auditors also recommended that the authority invest all Section 8 subsidized rental money not needed immediately so that it would earn interest. D'Amato said that has already been done.

The audit showed that at the end of the two-year period the authority had an operating reserve of $176,819. Two years earlier, it had had only $40,000, an amount D'Amato said was too low.

THE AUDIT indicated that in the two-year period, $779,078 had been paid to landlords as the federal subsidy for rents under the Section 8 program.

D'Amato told the Board of Commissioners that various subsidies may be "nickel away" in the coming years and it would be wise to keep operating income up.

He said it may be necessary to develop new policies and procedures as a result.

The authority has a first-come, first-served policy for filling vacancies in housing for the elderly. Commission members said the priority would have to be applied within income groups so that all the vacancies would not be filled by those who qualify for the largest rent subsidies.

Richard Schwolsky, a member, suggested surveying the first 50 people on the waiting list of 230 to see if they are automatically distributed among income categories.

Executive Director Shanley reported that four of 14 houses recently rehabilitated for rental are still vacant. She said one problem in choosing tenants is that the incomes of some have increased since they were placed on the waiting list and they are no longer eligible.

In other action, the authority members decided to seek emergency modernization funds from HUD to solve a problem of basement flooding in Westhill buildings that have about 100 apartments in them. It is expected to cost about $11,000 to study the problem and design the repairs.

The warrant was issued after Fultz admitted to police that he broke into a Bretteon Road home Dec. 12 and took $200 worth of bi-centennial quarters and silver dollars, police said. Police said Fultz also admitted to breaking into cars on Sanford and Crosby roads that same night to look for cassette tapes.

Police have applied for a warrant for another suspect in the three break-ins.

Fultz admitted his involvement in the break-ins after being questioned on an earlier burglary on Overlook Drive, police said. At that time, a police officer noticed that Fultz had a fresh cut on his right hand, police said.

Police knew one of the burglars at the Bretteon Road home cut himself while breaking a window to enter the house, police said.

Teen faces charges

A 16-year-old Manchester resident was arrested on a warrant Wednesday charging him with breaking into a house and two cars last month, police said today.

Peter Paul Fultz Jr., of 89 Weaver Road, was charged with second-degree criminal mischief, second-degree burglary, two counts of third-degree burglary, fifth-degree larceny and three counts of sixth-degree larceny. He was released on a $2,000 non-surety bond and is scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court on Wednesday.

The warrant was issued after Fultz admitted to police that he broke into a Bretteon Road home Dec. 12 and took $200 worth of bi-centennial quarters and silver dollars, police said. Police said Fultz also admitted to breaking into cars on Sanford and Crosby roads that same night to look for cassette tapes.

Plan could mean taxes, jobs

Bloomfield and Indianapolis, Ind. That development, which would be known as Winchester, hinges on the South Windsor Planning and Zoning Commission's approval of a zone change from rural residential to commercial for the 93-acre site that straddles the South Windsor-Manchester town line.

Unlike Figuerra's proposal, most of that mall would lie in South Windsor.

"In the project description, Figuerra said the Manchester site has better access and visibility than that on which Winchester would be built.

"My group has the site that will lead to the best overall development of the area," he said. "And my group has a site already zoned for a shopping center."

The 265 acres are zoned Comprehensive Urban Development, in which a shopping center is permitted.

Figuerra, apparently addressing the complaints of some Manchester officials when the Winchester plans were announced, also said, "Manchester will get a lot of headaches and few benefits from the Winchester Mall."

John A. Dussault

John A. Dussault, 47, of 64-4 Rachel Road, died Wednesday at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

He was the husband of the late Edna (Bunce) Dussault. He was born in Hartford Nov. 3, 1937, and had lived in Manchester since 1962. Before he retired, he worked at the Hartford Insurance Co. He was a member of St. Bridget Church, Manchester.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two sons, Jeffrey A. Dussault and John A. Dussault Jr., both of Manchester; two sisters, Mrs. George (Ruth) Woodard of Vernon and Mrs. Norman (Linda) Latulippe of Manchester; and a brother, Raymond E. Dussault of Newton.

The funeral will be Saturday at 8:15 a.m. from the Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., with a mass of Christian burial at 9 a.m. in St. Bridget Church. Burial will be in Mount St. Benedict Cemetery, Bloomfield. Calling hours are Friday from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Memorial donations may be made to St. Bridget Church, Manchester.

"Be firm, you're in charge."

This was one of many pointers from instructor Laura Boutillier to her 22 students in a Red Cross course for baby sitters 10 to 15 years old. The three-session course took place at the Super Stop & Shop community room.

Many of her student sitters said they'd never baby-sat before. Others, especially the older students, had experience, however.

Boutillier, head of Uling Junior High School's home economics department and this year's Connecticut Home Economics Teacher of the Year, explained many of the responsibilities, pleasures, potential income and ways to avoid problems while baby-sitting.

The final session of the course included a training session with real live babies and small children, accompanied by their mothers.

Members of the Junior Women's Club, which has sponsored several baby-sitting courses including this one, brought their children. Sitters changed diapers, held babies and got acquainted with both mothers and children.

SITTERS PAID close attention to the diapering lessons as the older sitters changed babies with paper and cloth diapers.

"Baby-sit your baby so you don't get sprayed," Boutillier said, placing a diaper over the baby who was being cleaned in the diaper-changing lesson.

This tip was among many hints presented in the class. Some tips concerned far more serious issues. "Never hit a child, even if the parents tell you you can," the teacher said after one of the experienced sitters said a mother had given her such permission. "Hitting is not the best discipline."

The teacher also warned against going to the home of strangers without an adult or older sitter for the first interview.

Sitters were assigned to come up with ways to make simple toys for small children by using paper-towel rolls.

"Make holes for a flute to play," said one. A telescope and tower castles were among other student suggestions.

When asked what he would reply to the question on expected pay, one sitter responded, "I usually get $1.25 an hour but I will take what you want to pay."

The teacher liked this answer because it suggested a price, pay, hours and duties should be set before starting to work, she said.

Besides Boutillier, other instructors for the course were: Manchester Fire Department paramedics Ken Cusson and Dan Hupper and firefighter Jimmy LaPine.

The Red Cross materials for study, discussion and record-keeping cover a wide range of subjects to help make youngsters responsible babysitters, including: Growth of children at various stages, a description of the job, checklists for tasks, safety problems, dealing with crying, fear, anger and aggression of babies and small children, touring a house with a parent for potential hazards and possible emergency measures, and a questionnaire for parents.

While some students turned up their noses at the sight and smell of a messy diaper, all paid attention as they watched students clean babies and put on paper and cloth diapers.

One baby continued to cry during the change. Then the teacher picked her up, held her upright until she was quiet and content.

"Talk to her," the teacher said as she patted the baby. "Calm her before putting on her tights."

Then, the sitters took turns holding babies and playing and laughing with toddlers.

Mom has only memories when couple forgets a will

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you discussed the importance of leaving a will. May I add this:

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Two years ago we lost a beautiful daughter and a handsome son-in-law in a house fire. They had no children and they left no will. According to Michigan law, if a couple has no will, the surviving spouse inherits everything the couple possessed.

Since it was established that our son-in-law died last, everything he and our daughter left went to our son-in-law's nearest of kin — a no-good bum who couldn't wait to sell everything he fell heir to.

We got nothing — not even the few personal items we had given our daughter. This hurt me so deeply I had to be hospitalized. All this could have been avoided if our daughter and her husband had left a will.

Abby, please tell your readers to make a will — regardless of how young they are, or how few possessions they have.

We are now urging our own children to have wills drawn up. Nobody should ever have to experience what we went through.

STILL MOURNING: DEAR MOURNING: Please ac-

I'm sure other young mothers have come up against the same problem.

DEAR MOMMY: The man is not "supposed" to pay for the baby sitter. But if he offers, it's all right to accept. (Do not ask him in advance.)

Consider making a deal with other young mothers in your neighborhood — sit with their children, and in return they can sit with yours.

DEAR ABBY: Please settle something for me, once and for all! Everybody tells me I am wearing my rings wrong. I think I'm wearing them the way they should be worn, with my engagement ring on the inside. My reasoning:

When I became engaged, the engagement ring was placed on my finger. When I married, the wedding band was placed on my finger right next to it, and that's the way I have worn them.

So, why do people tell me I'm wearing my rings "wrong"?

RING PROBLEM: DEAR PROBLEM: My wedding band should be worn on the "inside" — nearer to your heart.

Magic man passes tips on tricks to students

By Margaret Hayden
Herald Reporter

"It's magic if you've fooled your audience," Dan Sclare told his 10 students. "Now, practice with your coin."

It was the first of six weekly, 45-minute classes for children in a magic course sponsored by the Greater Hartford Jewish Community Center at its new facility in Oakland Commons.

Sclare, a school teacher in the South Windsor public school system, pursues magic as a hobby and a profitable sideline. He said he performs at birthday parties and other special occasions.

Eight boys and two girls in the class carefully followed his instructions, pretending to pass a coin through a table. The first lesson concentrated on using cards and coins. Students learned how to switch a coin from one hand to the other and to hide it for a later part in the trick.

Future lessons will use handkerchiefs, scarves and large balls which the students will bring to class.

Proper training can help elderly improve memory

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 64-year-old female. I feel fine and am in good health, retired and loving it. However I have a problem remembering things. I go into the other room for something and when I get there, I have forgotten what I went for. I think of something while doing the dishes, and by the time I dry my hands I have forgotten what it was.

Some nights, after going to bed, I think of different things and repeat them over and over in the hope of remembering them. The next morning I know I wanted to remember something but can't remember what it was.

Am I losing my mind? I understand that there is a vitamin that helps to improve memory. Which one is it? I am extremely concerned about this and feel that if I don't do something, it will only get worse.

DEAR READER — With the current concern about effects of age on the mind, one would think children never forget their books, left a coat behind or forgot anything. I'm afraid that is not the case. Youth is not a guarantee of having a good memory and getting older is not necessarily associated with a decrease in memory.

What do the child and the older person have in common? Most often, they both lack concentration. A child has learned to concentrate yet is easily distracted, while you may be "woolgathering" partially because you are retired and don't have the same degree of responsibility you once had. You may improve markedly not by taking vitamins, but by training your memory and improving your concentration.

People usually do not have significant changes in brain function until their late 70s or 80s. Then they usually retain verbal memory, and many of them have memory functions that are as good as those of young people who were tested the same way.

Acetylcholine is important in brain chemistry regarding impulses that are related to memory. However, one can't count on getting it into the brain by taking lecithin, choline, vitamins or minerals. This is why recent studies have used a pump to gradually infuse acetylcholine directly into the brain in the hope of alleviating Alzheimer's disease.

Yes, aging does cause changes in the brain, but most of the people who have significant changes also have some medical disorder — and I don't mean Alzheimer's, which has been over-emphasized. I have discussed some aspects of changes in the brain with aging in The Health Letter 14-2, The Aging Mind, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Recent studies show that metabolism is decreased with mild amounts of atherosclerosis (fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries) or very mild high blood pressure (which is detected by a PET scan). All of this suggests that brain slowing and dysfunction can be related to disease. The studies also suggest that the things one does to prevent heart attacks and strokes — such as eating a proper diet, controlling weight control and blood pressure, and not smoking — also may be very useful in preventing changes in the brain with increasing age.

Experts link cosmetics to problems with skin

By Patricia McCormick
United Press International

NEW YORK — If your complexion itches, stings, develops bumps or redness or otherwise seems not quite right, perhaps you should eye your cosmetics.

In a capsule, that's the message from Dr. Patricia G. Engasser of Stanford University Medical School as delivered at a seminar sponsored by the American Academy of Dermatology.

She estimated that dermatologists now trace about 8 percent of reported allergic reactions and skin irritations to cosmetics, including hair products such as permanent waves.

Engasser noted that the actual percentage of reactions to cosmetics "is probably much higher" than anyone knows because people rarely report such difficulties to a dermatologist.

"They discard the product, switch to another brand and that's it," she said.

"If consumers reported such problems more frequently, dermatologists could help manufacturers make considerable improvements in the safety of such products."

ANOTHER REASON FOR the gap between actual reactions and the reported incidence is that it is hard to pin down precisely which ingredients in the product are causing trouble.

"Some 4,000 ingredients commonly are used in cosmetics made in the United States, and the precise effect of each ingredient on skin is not yet known," Engasser said.

"However, we rapidly are approaching the point where we will be able to use computers to better diagnose which ingredients in a product are causing a patient's problems."

The most common skin problems caused by cosmetics are allergic reactions. They go down on the medical record as "allergic contact dermatitis."

Engasser said products most often reported as causing skin reactions, in order of frequency, are permanent waves, hair dyes, moisturizers, shampoos, eye shadow, mascara, bath soaps and detergents, underarm deodorants, cleansing cream, lotions, liquids or pads.

Culprit ingredients — those most often reported as causing dermatitis — in order of frequency are:

• Fragrances, preservatives, p-Phenylenediamines of PPD (found in permanent and semi-permanent hair dyes), propylene glycol (in lotions and creams)

• Toluene sulfonamide-formaldehyde resin (in nail polish) and lanolin and lanolin alcohol, both of which are found in many skin care products.

IF YOU THINK YOU are having an allergic reaction or irritation from cosmetics, Engasser suggested:

• See a dermatologist who can perform tests to identify the irritation source. Take along the box of the product or the part that contains a list of the product's ingredients.

• Keep on the lookout for other products that contain the ingredient the doctor diagnoses as causing the dermatitis.

Engasser said for several years, the cosmetics industry has been working with the FDA to review cosmetics ingredients for their toxic effects.

Results of those studies, she says, ought to make the diagnosing problems simpler as well as lead to the manufacture of safer cosmetics.

In 1982, the Food and Drug Administration received 247 consumer complaints regarding skin problems with cosmetic products.

And in a four-year period ending in 1982, according to Engasser, manufacturers received 34,722.

IN A RELATED SEMINAR report, a dermatologist from Cleveland Clinic Foundation, Cleveland, Ohio, said occupational skin diseases have become a leading cause of lost work days, and the problem is increasing.

Dr. James S. Taylor, head of clinic's industrial dermatology section, blamed widespread use of toxic chemicals in manufacturing and in agriculture.

Second, when the plight of these Ethiopian Jews became known, no one in Israel asked, "Can we afford to help them now?" They immediately set to work figuring out how to do it.

Third, to understand the enormity of the task, you should know the following: 1. Most Ethiopians arrive in Israel malnourished and need immediate medical attention. 2. Most are orphans, their parents having died in the famine. 3. They are without knowledge of modern civilization. They must be taught how to live in a society with electricity, toilets, eating utensils, etc. 4. The cost to Israel of absorbing these immigrants is reported by the New York Times to be $25,000 per person.

Brutus, this week's featured pet, is a handsome German shepherd cross, who is waiting for someone with a big heart, big house and big yard, to adopt him. He enjoys a brief outing with Dog Warden Richard Rand.

Adopt a Pet

Name spawns awe, but 'Brutus' is kind

By Barbara Richmond
Special to the Herald

It was love at first sight for an East Hartford couple who came to the dog pound Monday to check out Speedy, last week's featured pet. Needless to say, Speedy went home with them.

The couple said their dog of 10 years died and they were lonely. Speedy is a terrier cross, about 6 months old. He wagged his tail right into the hearts of the couple.

This week's featured pet is just the opposite from Speedy. He's a very large dog. Dog Warden Richard Rand said he thinks he's a shepherd cross. Rand has named him Brutus. He said the dog isn't aggressive, but he's very strong.

Brutus was picked up on Oak Grove Street on Jan. 9 and he will be ready to be adopted on Friday, if not claimed by his owner by then.

A shy male German shepherd was the only other tenant at the dog pound earlier this week, besides two others that were being picked up by their owners.

The shepherd was taken into protective custody when it was discovered he had been left tied in a coal bin in a North End home and the owners had moved out.

Rand said he will be ready to be adopted at the end of this week. He said he has had someone already express interest in adopting him. The dog will need someone to be very loving to draw him out of his shyness.

The dog pound is located on town property off Otcott Street. Rand is at the pound daily from noon to 1 p.m. He can also be reached by calling the pound, 645-8642 or by calling the police department at 646-4555.

There is a $5 fee to adopt a dog. The new owner must also have the dog licensed.

British railroads struck

LONDON — Thousands of railroad workers went on strike today in central and northern England, disrupting rail services for much of the country in a 24-hour walkout linked to the 10-month-old coal strike.

Rail services in the east Midlands, Nottinghamshire and south Yorkshire were hardest hit, with inter-city trains from London to the northeast and Scotland canceled.

The staff at one London station also walked out, affecting commuters to London from the south. The strike forced thousands of commuters onto the roads, already affected by Britain's harshest winter in years. Long traffic jams were reported on many routes into the capital.

Sharon jury back to work

NEW YORK — The jury in Ariel Sharon's $50 million libel suit against Time has ruled in a paragraph about the massacre of Palestinian refugees.

The six-member jury today continues deliberations on the second part of the three-part verdict that could give Sharon complete victory in his landmark lawsuit.

The jury returned a partial verdict Wednesday, saying Time defamed Sharon in the disputed 1983 paragraph.

"One down, two to go," said Sharon's attorney, Milton Gould. "Gen. Sharon and I are delighted."

Campaign to immunize starts

WASHINGTON — In an effort to prevent unnecessary illness, a national medical society wants doctors to make sure adults are as well protected by immunization against disease as children are.

The 40,000-member American College of Physicians said there are safe and effective vaccines available for seven diseases that can be prevented: tetanus, diphtheria, measles, rubella, hepatitis B, influenza and pneumococcal pneumonia.

Yet, the college said at a news conference Wednesday, many adults are not protected against some of those diseases, particularly influenza and pneumococcal pneumonia, which killed 25,000 Americans annually.

"Immunization isn't just kid stuff," said Dr. Robert Moser, executive vice president of the Philadelphia-based doctors organization. "We want every physician to get in the habit of routinely considering what vaccines would protect patients against these diseases."

Dr. Anthony Fauci, director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, said the medical community has lagged in applying to adults the immunizations principles that have wiped out many childhood diseases.

Photos spur FBI action

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — The FBI and several out-of-state police departments have joined the effort to identify photos of children seized at the apartment of the man accused of abducting a California boy 21 months ago.

The National Center for Missing and Exploited Children in Washington said it had received about 300 calls since the photos appeared on national television.

Police have identified four of the photos seized last week when David R. Collins, 35, of Buffalo, N.Y., was arrested and 12-year-old Bobby Smith of Long Beach, Calif., was found.

One photo was of a 12-year-old girl who lives on the first floor of the apartment building where Collins and Smith were found last week by police investigating a fatal crash involving the suspect's car. The photo of Nicole McGee was apparently taken several years ago, police said.

The other three pictures identified were of Collins himself, the son of a Massachusetts man, and the boy's girlfriend, the boy and girl were never missing persons and the man, Gordon O. Hatfield, 58, of East Bridgewater, Mass., said he did not know how Collins got to the photo. The two were childhood friends in Buffalo, N.Y.

84 housing tops '83 surge

WASHINGTON — Builders started 2.1 percent more housing units in December, capping a year that saw 1.74 million housing starts, the Commerce Department said today.

The slight increase in December starts was the second consecutive month of improvement, following a revision that turned November into a positive 1.2 percent gain instead of the originally reported 0.7 percent decline.

The new housing activity last year was 2.3 percent better than 1982, housing's first year of recovery from the 1982 recession, and the best year since 1979.

The housing industry's strength, even through the slow-down in the second half of last year, has been a boon to the entire economy. While builders were not as active in the second half, both starts and sales gave up little ground as mortgage rates began to slip in the late summer. The benchmark annual rate of starts based on December activity was 1.587 million after seasonal adjustment.

Airplane crash kills three

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn. — Three people were killed early today in the crash of a twin-engine airplane in the parking lot of the East Tennessee State University Memorial Center sports complex during a snowstorm.

Authorities said the plane crashed nose first shortly before 1 a.m. EST, killing the pilot and two passengers instantly. There were no survivors.

The bodies of two men were recovered and a search continued for the third body. A police department spokeswoman said the names of the victims were being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Inaugural costs covered

WASHINGTON — Raising $4.2 million from ads during the broadcast of gala, organizers of the four-day tribute to President Reagan now say they will be able to cover the $12.5 million cost of the inaugural celebration.

"We weren't certain whether we could raise the money, but we're convinced we'll be able to now," because of the sale of 60 seconds of air time to 14 companies for $200,000 each, Inaugural Committee spokesman John Buckley said Wednesday.

The committee paid $2 million for the purchase of two hours of prime time viewing Saturday on ABC to carry excerpts from star-studded gala honoring the presidential vice president.

One-minute commercial time was then sold at a rate more than double what was paid.

Senate Finance head sees revenue hike

By Joseph Mianoway
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Congress may not call it a tax hike, but the head of the Senate Finance Committee says lawmakers will try to raise money in some form this year, including extending a 16-cent-a-pack cigarette tax.

Appearing today on ABC's "Good Morning America," Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., said, "I just have a hunch that when we finish drafting the budget in the Senate, we're going to have some taxes as part of the component," he said.

Packwood, chairman of the Finance Committee, said the taxes would most probably appear in the form of "user fees" charged by the government.

"Those are all taxes (but) you can call them user fees," he said.

Although Senate Republican leader Robert Dole has ruled out any new tax increases as part of a deficit-reduction plan, Packwood predicted Wednesday that Congress would boost some federal fees and block a scheduled cut in the cigarette tax.

Asked whether it is likely Congress will approve something to raise revenues, but not call it a tax hike, Packwood told a meeting of wire service reporters, "Clearly yes."

"Will it be a tax increase?" he asked rhetorically. "I don't think that decision will be arrived at until we've gone through about another eight to 10 hours of meetings among the Republican senators, thrashing out for ourselves the 60 or 70 programs. How many shall we cut? Will we cut? Can we cut? Are the votes there to cut them? How big a deficit limitation will the president take?"

"We haven't even gotten to the last resort yet," he said.

Packwood added that he believed the Democratic controlled House would begin to push for a tax hike to head off some of the more severe spending cuts. "I can picture them demanding that," he said.

On the cigarette tax, Packwood said, "If I were betting — and this is just a hunch because we haven't even addressed ourselves to that task — my hunch would be the tax will be extended. It won't be raised. It won't be lowered, but it will be extended."

The tax, raised to 16 cents per pack in January 1983, is scheduled to go back to 8 cents in October. The Reagan administration estimates the 16-cent levy will produce $5.2 billion in fiscal year 1985.

With Congress considering dramatic spending cuts to reduce the annual federal deficit of about $200 billion, there is some sentiment in Capitol Hill that lawmakers could not let the tax drop.

Packwood, however, said that if the Senate does not change its rules, any move to extend the tax "could be filibustered to death." "The tax has been most vocally opposed by tobacco state senators such as conservative Jesse Helms, R-N.C., the chairman of the Agriculture Committee."

Packwood also said he expected there will be increases in some fees charged by the government — loan insurance charges for government-backed mortgages, for example. The administration is reported to be weighing increases in such fees as part of a money-saving step.

"I think there will be some fee increases in some areas," he said. "I know which they are yet."

Packwood said the most important thing for Congress was to reach the goal of cutting the deficit by about $50 billion in the new budget.

Calm returns to Jamaica after 2-day riot

KINGSTON, Jamaica (UPI) — Security forces maintained air and land patrols today after two days of protests over fuel price increases left four people dead at the height of Jamaica's tourist season.

The worst unrest on the Caribbean island in four years, which forced tourists to stay in their hotels as police clashed with protesters who blocked roads with burning tires, was reported to have subsided by late Wednesday.

In Kingston, the site of much of the violence, residents said helicopters occasionally flashed lights on deserted areas while military jeeps patrolled the empty streets.

Banks, post offices and businesses were closed Wednesday and public transportation was halted in Kingston, but the official news agency JAMPRESS reported some restaurants in the downtown area were beginning to reopen.

By early today, roads in the northern tourist areas had been cleared of burning debris and reopened to traffic, the news agency said.

Police said four people were killed and 16 others were injured in the two days of unrest, which began Tuesday after the government announced a 20-percent fuel price hike.

Tourism officials said the rioting was "aimed at disrupting the tourism industry."

Some airline flights were canceled but there were no reports of a mass exodus by tourists. The Jamaica Hotel and Tourist Association said some Americans were canceling vacations on the island.

The association urged protesters to refrain from disturbing visitors.

The official Jamaica Broadcasting Corp. said hundreds of vacationers and Jamaicans had been stranded at the airport in Montego Bay, where Air Jamaica employees, who were on strike, were pressuring for a 50-percent salary hike.

The broadcast reported a similar strike at Kingston's Norman Manley International airport, but the Tourist Association denied the second strike.

Prime Minister Edward Seaga Wednesday called

Barricades and burned debris are cleared from the streets of Kingston, Jamaica Wednesday under the supervision of Jamaican Army personnel following a day of rioting over increased fuel prices.

on the demonstrators "to return to normal life" and warned that "security forces will take all necessary steps to see that normalcy returns as quickly as possible."

Michael Manley, a former prime minister and leader of the opposition People's National Party who had supported the demonstrations, also urged an end to violence that pitted protesters against police, who reported 30 arrests.

In the largest confrontation Wednesday, police used tear gas to disperse some 400 people who attacked them in Kingston, the commercial Radio Jamaica reported, but gave no other details.

The fuel price hikes, which included the rise in the price of a gallon of gasoline by 35 cents to $2.20, resulted from the island's struggling economy, which has seen its currency plummet nearly 50 percent in the past year.

House leader sees spat over military

By Elaine S. Povitch
United Press International

WASHINGTON — House Republican leader Robert Michel says Congress is going to be hard-pressed to get the budget from the budget that President Reagan proposes, especially in military spending where the president hates to trim.

"But I don't want to minimize it. It's still our most urgent of problems," Michel said.

Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker predicts interest rates will fall if Congress cuts spending $50 billion from the $225 billion deficit in fiscal 1985.

But Michel said Congress might not be able to cut $50 billion in fiscal 1985, especially if Reagan does not reach that goal in his spending plan.

"We're going to do the best we can," Michel said after a meeting with Stockman.

"If Mr. Stockman would like to have something in the range of $40 (billion) which we ought to try and achieve," he said.

Emerging later from a meeting with Senate Republican leader Robert Dole, Michel said he came down to just a few votes on the MX missile and the controversial weapon figured in the arms talks, the House might be convinced to make some kind of a tradeoff — votes for the weapon in return for a reduction in military spending — but not a total defense spending freeze.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger scheduled a visit to Capitol Hill today to talk about the military budget. Weinberger reluctantly agreed to slice just $8 billion from his budget proposal for fiscal 1985, still giving the Pentagon a hefty increase in spending.

Major attack foreseen

Vietnam intensifies forces in Cambodia

ARANYAPRATHET, Thailand (UPI) — Vietnam has ordered tanks and more troops into battle against Khmer Rouge forces in the largest element of Cambodia's three-party rebel coalition, intelligence sources said today.

Vietnamese and Khmer Rouge troops exchanged mortar and small arms fire for a fifth straight day as Hanoi put new troops into action against the communist rebel bases in the rugged Phnom Malai region near the Thai border.

There were no immediate reports of casualties today. Two Khmer Rouge soldiers were reported injured in fighting in the area Wednesday.

Military intelligence sources said about 1,600 Vietnamese troops had been pulled out of the captured Khmer Peoples National Liberation Front base at Ampil and sent to fight the Khmer Rouge in the Phnom Malai area south of Aranyaprathet. They also said Soviet-built tanks were ordered into action.

The sources said Hanoi appeared to be pushing its forces for a major attack on Khmer Rouge bases opposite the Thai village of Non Sao-eh — 12 miles south of Aranyaprathet.

That officials reported that 20 Vietnamese soldiers intruded into Thailand Wednesday and clashed with Thai rangers at Obok Pass in Buriram Province. Supreme Commander Gen. Arthit Kamlang-ekArthit, in a Thai Army radio broadcast, said the Vietnamese were retreating after a 10-minute fight. No casualties were reported.

Ten Thai soldiers were killed and 19 were injured during a Vietnamese incursion in the same area earlier this month.

Vietnam's current dry-season offensive, which began in November, had been concentrated against the Khmer People's National Liberation Front. Since the capture of the Liberation Front headquarters at Ampil last week, Vietnam has turned to the Khmer Rouge.

But fighting continued around the captured Liberation Front bases.

Sporadic shooting also was reported at Ampil Wednesday. There were no reports of casualties.

Intensive fighting was reported Wednesday at scattered locations along the Thai-Cambodian border, including Nong Samet, which was the largest Liberation Front base until it was overrun by Vietnamese troops on Christmas Day.

The Liberation Front said two of its soldiers were killed and four were wounded in the fighting in Nong Samet, 24 miles northeast of Aranyaprathet.

The Khmer Rouge, which routed Cambodia from 1975 until the Vietnamese invaders installed the Heng Samrin regime in 1979, has an estimated 30,000 troops. It is the only communist member of the Cambodian government in exile.

Also in the coalition are the Khmer Peoples National Liberation Front with 15,000 men, and followers of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, with about 5,000 troops.

East sextet wins rugged duel from MHS

By Bob Popelli

BOLTON — They were turning them away 15 minutes before the opening face-off. The parking lot was full at least a half hour before that.

All this fuss for a high school hockey game between two teams with losing records?

Understandable if the skating squads don't the arch-rival squads of East Catholic and Manchester.

And the 350 lucky fans that jammed the stands of the Bolton Ice Palace Wednesday night were treated to a rugged duel of the classic nip-and-tuck fashion.

East nipped Manchester, 5-3, as the Eagles' Rob Tedoldi tucked away a shorthanded goal during a 5-on-3 situation at 8:17 of the third period.

"That was the game," said East coach Vic Russo. "Tedoldi is as good a sniper as we've got, and it was nice that he ended up with that breakthrough."

Nice, indeed. The tally came with East clinging to a 4-3 lead and two Eagles in the penalty box serving concurrent elbow infractions. Defenseman Pat Barrett, who played his best game of the year according to Russo, broke up an attempted Manchester slapshot at the blue line and then poked the puck ahead to a streaking Tedoldi.

The slick centerman churned down the right boards and fired a 15-foot wrist shot to the left corner of the net past stunned goalie Ian Blood.

The marker insured victory for the Eagles, who broke a five-game losing streak after winning their first three. East, now 4-5, hosts Fairfield Prep Saturday night at 8:10.

Manchester, which slipped to 3-4, faces South Winslow High at the Hartford Arena Saturday night at 8:10.

Indiana's coach Wayne Horton was probably just as disappointed that his club failed to get off a shot on goal during the two-man advantage.

"We just ran out of wind," said Horton, who skated only 10 players, two forward lines and two defensive pairs. "I had to, in a game like this, be explained."

Though East went with three lines, and it makes a difference in the legs."

"But I'm proud of my team, overall," added Horton. "This is the first time that I can remember holding East under double figures."

In a surprising move of strategy, Russo started freshman goaltender George Jordan over incumbent Steve Cavallo. "Just to shake it up, a change of pace, a breath of fresh air."

Jordan, in his second start of the season, stopped 18 of 21 shots and was especially clutch in the middle period, when the Indians made a pressure-packed comeback after falling behind, 3-1.

"He made some big saves when we needed them," lauded Russo, who indicated that Cavallo would remain his number one netminder.

The teams traded power play goals in a rough and tumble opening period that saw eight minutes in penalties assessed to each side. East tallied first at 5:25, when Barrett cranked an onspeed shot from the right circle that snuck between Blood's pads for his second goal of the year. Kevin Hutt and Jason Hanford assisted.

The Indians evened it up on an unassisted backhander by Bill Fleming, who tallied his eighth marker on a doorstep shot that rolled past Jordan's left pad and dropped over and in.

The Eagles evened it up on an unassisted backhander by Bill Fleming, who tallied his eighth marker on a doorstep shot that rolled past Jordan's left pad and dropped over and in.

The Indians rallied just 50 seconds later when prolific scorer Bobby Blake took a crease feed, deked Jordan to the ice, and then flipped a backhander upstairs for his 22nd goal of the campaign. Fleming and hustling Doug Matthews notched assists.

East countered with some rough stuff ("it was our best game from the standpoint of hitting people," Russo) but also needs to be challenged.

Another last-minute Lakers' lead evaporated as the Boston Celtics emerged again as last-reef heroes with a 104-102 victory Wednesday night over their west-coast rivals.

"It was very, very disappointing," said LA coach Pat Riley after his team failed to score in the final 1:36. "It was a great game and we tried to control it, but we couldn't."

With the game tied at 102-102, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar missed a 12-foot jumper. James Worthy missed the tap-in and Boston's Robert Parish controlled the rebound with 15 seconds remaining.

After taking a time-out, the Celtics worked the ball up to Larry Bird who dumped it inside to Kevin McHale. The 6-foot-11 forward banked in a six-foot jumper with two seconds left for the winning points.

"McHale made a great shot with the pressure on him and it went down," he said. "He made it and we didn't," Riley said.

Basketball transfers is as common as waking up

ITEM: Anthony Moye leaves UConn basketball team Big deal. It happens every day, twice on Sunday. Just check Wednesday's Hartford Courant and you'll see that Matthew Bruce, a 6-6 freshman from Babylon, N.Y., has left the University of North Carolina basketball team and plans to enroll at St. John's.

Blasphemy.

Moye's transfer to the University of Hartford is a simple case of a disgruntled player, unhappy over lack of playing time, deciding to look for greener pastures elsewhere.

Face it, whom was Moye going to beat out? Uh, uh. Terence Warren? Nope. Terry Coffey? Not here, either.

Moye, 6-2, 235-pound freshman guard, was caught in the numbers game. And he wasn't going to make an Impact in the Big East — unless breaking a hardwood or two is making an impact. At 235 pounds, he had to lose at least 40 pounds to be an effective player in the conference.

A big deal?

Georgetown has had transfers, Ray Knight (Providence) and Anthony Jones (UNLV) the most prominent. Indiana's Bobby Knight has lost a few in his day.

One, you'll recall, was a guy named Larry Bird.

Manchester's Bobby Blake (12) has the puck on his stick and gets ready to fire shot behind East Catholic goalie George Jordan (35) in scholastic hockey action Wednesday night at Bolton Ice Palace. Blake had a goal and as assist but the Eagles prevailed, 5-3.

Manchester's Bill Fleming (99) is checked into the boards by the combination of Dick Freni (10) and Mike Flannery (12) of East Catholic in early action Wednesday night.

McHale's shot horrifies L.A.

BOSTON (UPI) — For the Los Angeles Lakers, the show at Boston Garden Wednesday night was their own. Kevin McHale (32) was hammed in by Los Angeles' Magic Johnson (32) and James Worthy (42) in early action at the Boston Garden. McHale hit bank shot with one second left for 104-102 Celtic victory.

Bird, who had 19 points and 11 rebounds, said Boston wants the victory, but also needs to be challenged.

"It's always good to meet a good team, and when you get a challenge, it's good to beat it," he said.

Boston coach K.C. Jones said the play is designed for McHale but it was crucial that Bird have the chance to use his creative passing.

"The idea was to get the ball into Larry's hands and he did a heckuva job getting it into Kevin," said the Celtics coach.

McHale, who finished with 10 points, had netted only 3-of-12 shots from the floor before his game-winner.

"We have a saying on the Celtics. 'Sometimes you get the bear, sometimes the bear gets you,'" McHale said. "Well, it had me in a headlock until that last shot."

"K.C. called my number and I thought, 'Oh boy, OK, now concentrate,'" McHale said. "And I did. Afterwards, I told K.C., 'Thanks for helping out a struggling man.'" It was the first meeting between the two teams since last year's championship series.

"We knew he'd hit one sooner or later," said Bird. "The play was designed for Kevin to go one-on-one and he took his time and hit it for us."

Abdul-Jabbar led Los Angeles with 23 points as the Lakers, 26-14, lost their third straight game. Dennis Johnson paced Boston with 20 points while Parish added 19 for the Celtics, who improved their record to 33-6.

The Lakers lost their third straight game, fourth in their last six, and saw their road record fall to 10-10.

Nets 122, Hawks 99

At Philadelphia, Moses Malone scored 34 points and Julius Erving added 23 — 21 in the first half — to lift the 76ers to their 13th straight victory.

Nets 100, Bulls 94

At East Rutherford, N.J., Otis Birdsong scored 20 points, a coming in the fourth quarter, to lead the Nets. Michael Jordan scored 27 for Chicago.

Nuggets 115, Warriors 107

At Denver, Calvin Natl scored 19 of his 27 points in the second half to help the Nuggets hand the Warriors their ninth straight defeat. Alex English added 22 points for Denver. Purvis Short led Golden State with 27.

Bullets 103, Jazz 101

At Salt Lake City, Greg Ballard hit a 22-foot jumper at the buzzer to lift the Bullets. Utah has erased Washington's 82-64 lead entering the fourth quarter, tying the score 101-101 on Durrell Griffith's 25-point field goal with two seconds remaining before Ballard hit from just inside 3-point range.

Suns 98, Mavericks 95

At Phoenix, Ariz., Maurice Lucas scored a season-high 28 points and pulled down 10 rebounds to lead Phoenix in the franchise's 70th victory.

Clippers 98, Rockets 88

At Los Angeles, James Donaldson, making his first start in 24 games, responded with 23 points and 13 rebounds to lift the Clippers. Marques Johnson added 20 points for Los Angeles, which has won five of its last six.

It's just part of major college basketball.

How dare!

Listen, high school coaches are not so naive to NOT know what is going on with their players.

And if you don't think so, then you don't know the score.

High school coaches would make excellent Hollywood gossip sheet columnists.

They know who on their team is doing what with whom. They could keep a social calendar of what's going on in school.

To think the Wilby coaches didn't know what their players were doing?

AW, emon.

wrong in regards to the firing if it can be shown this was the first time the players used the swimming pool after practice.

Then the coaches couldn't be held at fault.

But the depth of their knowledge is still to be determined. It has not come out, yet.

If this was the first time, then the coaches cannot be held accountable.

There is a limit to a coach's liability, if he/she was unaware of circumstances beyond his/her control.

College basketball roundup Wolfpack falls under a rock

Maybe a word of warning at halftime would have helped. Caution - Falling Rocks Ahead.

"We were up by 15 points, then nothing," said North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano. "It was like an avalanche."

The Wolfpack never did make it out of the debris, losing 66-76 to No. 7 North Carolina Wednesday night in an Atlantic Coast Conference game at Chapel Hill.

"You saw two games out there tonight," Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith said. "State dominated us for 25 minutes and then we had a sensational comeback to win."

North Carolina trailed 38 with 16:58 left before the Tar Heels' defensive pressure buried the Wolfpack. A short hook by Steve Hale put Carolina ahead 60-58 with 7:01 left.

The Tar Heels were characteristically strong at the line in the clutch, making 14 straight in the last four minutes.
