Tax break for 'Muckland' a responsible gamble

One of the most widely discussed subjects around Manchester these days is the prospect of a mammoth shopping mall coming to Buckland. Indeed, things have progressed so far that for many citizens and officials, the sole remaining concern is which of two development partnerships will win the race to break ground. This, of course, results from the competition between Manchester and South Windsor for the millions of dollars in taxes that will ensue.

The overriding assumption is that a mall is desirable, whether it is the one proposed by the Bloomfield-based partnership that includes Bronson & Hutensky or the one proposed by New York-based John Figuerra and his cohorts.

As General Manager Robert Weiss and the developers are quick to point out, large-scale development expands the economy, creating jobs and providing uncounted benefits to the area where it occurs. And as residents of this area have proven time and again by shopping elsewhere, malls draw big money.

While these facts have controlled the discussion, the question of whether malls are desirable for reasons other than economic has been almost forgotten. During a brief visit to Westfarms last Sunday, we learned that the only intelligent way to answer it is to join in a final forlorn cry for no mall at all, then give up and look for the best deal Manchester can get.

BECAUSE OF ALL THE CONCRETE that had been poured, it was "hard" to find Westfarms from Interstate 84. Then, after spending 20 minutes avoiding fender-benders while locating a parking space, entering the inner sanctum was like landing on another planet.

Manchester Spotlight
James Sacks, City Editor

Teenagers wearing high school letter jackets and too much bright lipstick crowded around the plastic waterfalls, smoking cigarettes with contrived nonchalance. Young mothers wheeled baby carriages from store to store. Children screamed about what they wanted to buy next as their overseers tried to keep credit cards in order. It didn't take long before a breath of unprocessed air was essential to relieve the non-dizziness and the sameness of it all. The eastbound interstate came as a welcome relief.

Whether it is Bronson & Hutensky's plan for Winchester or Figuerra's plan for his unnamed "regional center" that reaches fruition, Manchester's mall will be a wasteland, a smaller Westfarms. But the economic argument will trample over the social one — and perhaps it should, since that's the way almost everyone but the Pleasant Valley Neighborhood Association wants things to end.

The old tobacco fields will eventually disappear under a mass of concrete, no matter which plan is followed. The site that doesn't house a mall will probably end up as condominiums or an industrial park.

The difference is that if Winchester wins out, parking lots resembling the Great Plains may be all Manchester gets by way of taxable property until there is an alternative proposal for FIGUERRA'S 285-acre site.

THAT IS PRECISELY what justifies the town administration's willingness to gamble by putting all of its weight behind Figuerra. Besides helping the developer, the tax deal suggested by General Manager Weiss for the Manchester site could give the town some control over the construction. That could mitigate a few of the mall's potentially awful tendencies and mean a net gain in taxes.

In Weiss's reasoning, the Winchester site is far more conducive to development than the Hartman Farms property, Figuerra's chosen site. If Figuerra loses, Manchester faces the prospect of continuing to get minimal tax revenues from the undeveloped or sporadically developed land for years to come, he said this week.

By negotiating a treaty with Figuerra, Weiss said, Manchester would force the forlorn taxes to be used for infrastructure improvements and demand their completion within a certain time. Additionally, he said, "We can throw in some aesthetic requirements."

Winchester offers little when compared to the Figuerra plan, the manager said. The argument that a hotel-convention center on the Manchester site would offset the tax imbalance of Winchester is not "large enough to drive a Mack truck through," in the view of one member of the Democratic majority on the Board of Directors.

Because winning a mall for the Hartman property is the town's best economic bet, the

Richard M. Diamond, Publisher
Douglas A. Bevins, Managing Editor
James P. Sacks, City Editor

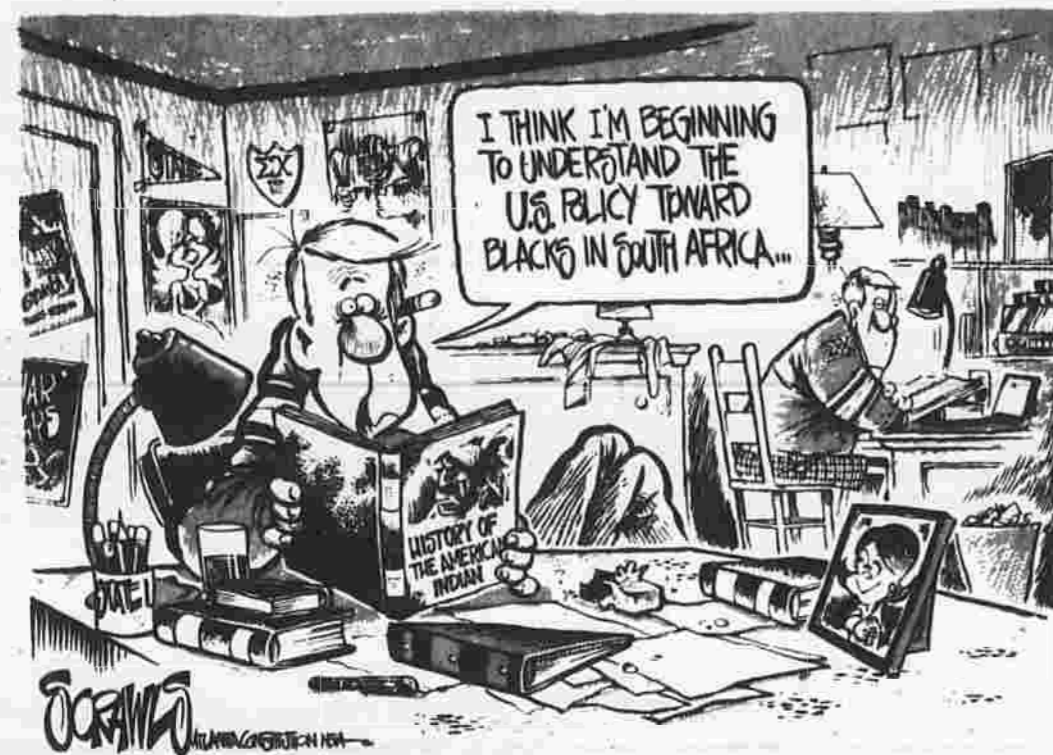

board has little reason not to endorse the incentives. Combined with the lawsuit filed against Winchester by the Pleasant Valley group, the tax breaks could give the Manchester mall a slight edge. (The suit tells us why malls are as bad on the outside as they are within.)

BUT THERE IS NO QUESTION that the delay, the tax breaks, and some speedy proof that Figuerra is as good as his word will be needed if his group is to have a chance of defeating the one that includes Bronson & Hutensky. That was indicated by the announcements this week that G. Fox and Sage-Allen want to locate in Winchester. No doubt they are confident that a judge will favor the developers when the Winchester suit reaches court.

Whatever happens in the competition, the resulting mall will help employment, make shopping easier and keep money east of the Connecticut River. And thankfully, like malls elsewhere, Manchester's will be isolated from the rest of town.

On the other hand, although the mall probably won't attract a horde of muggers, car thieves and child molesters, there will be problems like air pollution and traffic jams. And worst of all, there will be the malaise ensuing from yet another incentive for teenagers and shoppers to imitate one another.

Footnote: Perhaps Figuerra can be spared the gimmick of conducting a naming contest for his mall in the Manchester schools. Possibilities include "Muckland" in honor of Winchester, and "All Man" to commemorate the surrealistre race for tax dollars.

Religion in America

The 'religious subculture'

By David E. Anderson

Recent statistics from the National Council of Churches show that mainline Protestant denominations continue to show membership declines and one parish development expert thinks he knows why.

A new religious subculture is developing in the United States, according to Lyle Schaller, a parish consultant, prolific author on church growth and staff member of the Yekfellow Institute, Richmond, Ind., with characteristics that sharply differentiate its churches from traditional denominational membership.

Writing in a recent edition of "The Lutheran," the official publication of the Lutheran Church in America, Schaller pinpointed four major characteristics of what he calls an emerging subculture that separates it from other religious bodies:

• In the new subculture, "one's personal experiences, rather than the promises of God, constitute the central validation of one's faith."

• The centrality of word and sacrament, characteristic of traditional denominations, has been supplemented by word and music.

• A theology of glory overshadowed the theology of the cross.

• A far greater emphasis is placed on the immanence of God rather than the transcendence of God.

Schaller also found that most of the congregations in the emerging religious subculture maintain very loose or no denominational affiliations and even when affiliated often use names that do not reflect denominational membership.

"Frequently," he said, "such churches are built around the attractiveness of a magnetic preacher who possesses a strong personality. Long pastorates are rare. Members often declare their basic loyalty is to the pastor, rather than to the parish or denomination."

Those attracted to churches "This marks a reversal of a long-term American trend in which the children tended to be theologically more liberal than their parents," Schaller said.

Schaller also found that the religious subculture is attractive to women.

In the typical mainline Protestant denomination, 60 percent of the adults at worship are women. In the churches of the new subculture, the ratio is often closer to 55 percent women and 45 percent men — much closer to the general population breakdown of 53 percent women to 47 percent men.

Schaller said the subculture's emergence raises questions for Lutherans and others, including whether they should remain "confessional," copy the word and music format to increase attendance and risk denominational loyalty for success.

Those questions he left unanswered.

within the subculture, Schaller argued, see their membership in the churches "as a way station for the individual on a religious pilgrimage, not as a destination."

"One result is these congregations often embrace persons from the entire ecumenical spectrum," he said. "Former Catholics, Lutherans, Methodists, Baptists and Presbyterians are present in substantial numbers."

Another result is a high turnover, and he cited one study that referred to such turnover as "the rotation of saints."

Among the members of these newer churches, according to Schaller, few adults were born into them and even among those that carry denominational affiliation, only a tiny proportion of new members were reared in the denominational family.

"Perhaps the most interesting characteristic of the adults attracted to these churches," he said, "is that many claim to be theologically more conservative than their parents."

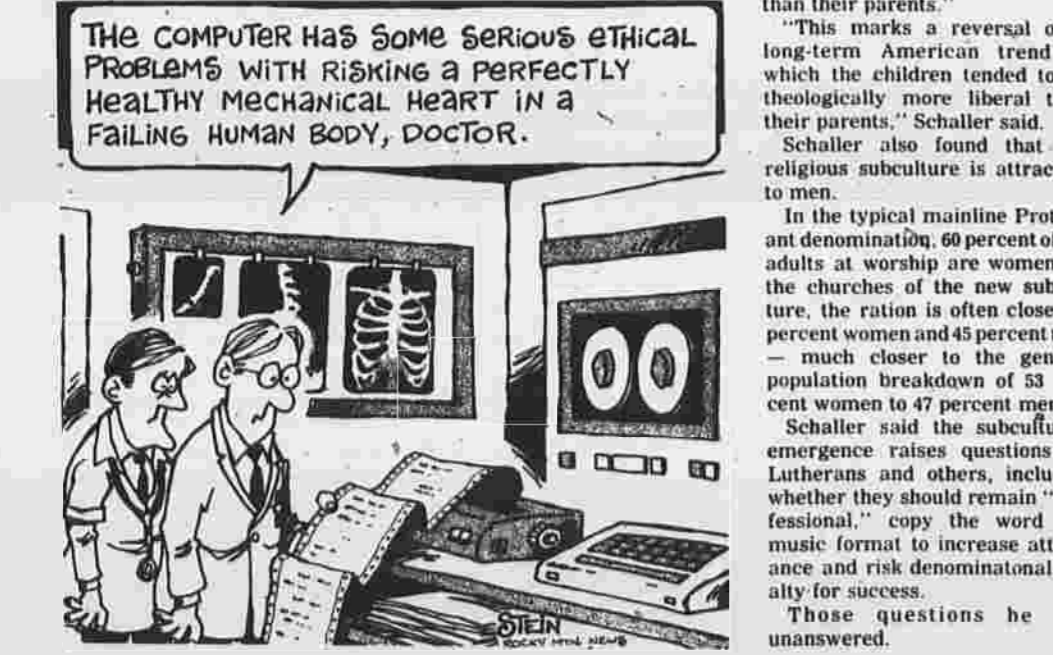

"This marks a reversal of a long-term American trend in which the children tended to be theologically more liberal than their parents," Schaller said.

Schaller also found that the religious subculture is attractive to women.

Experts are flying blind

Khomeini still puzzles us

WASHINGTON — The United States is still harvesting the bitter fruit of its dependence on the Shah of Iran in the years before his 1979 overthrow. Having failed to cultivate contacts in the ranks of Ayatollah Khomeini's Islamic revolution, U.S. intelligence has been flying blind in Iran for the past six years.

The most capital illustration of this ignorance is the State Department's latest efforts to discover whether the 85-year-old mullah is dying, or likely to survive indefinitely. An accurate answer is obviously important to any plans for dealing with post-Khomeini Iran and its impact on the entire Persian Gulf region.

But the State Department's experts on Iran simply aren't getting reliable information on which to base their advice to the president's policy makers.

In fact, they have just received two reports on the state of Khomeini's health. They came from two sources considered equally dependable — and the reports are contradictory.

ONE REPORT SAYS that Khomeini is in the pink. The other says he's on his deathbed.

When asked for an evaluation of the two conflicting reports, a State Department analyst gave his associate Lucette Laguardo an answer worthy of the Delphic oracle. "My own feeling," he said wryly, "is that Khomeini is healthier than Chernomko."

Another source remarked with some exasperation that Khomeini "has been 'dying' for six years," and noted a recent flurry of rumors that the ayatollah has lapsed into a coma.

What makes the two contradictory reports particularly puzzling is that both of them apparently relied largely on the same evidence to reach their conclusions.

For example, the source who thinks Khomeini is on his last legs laid emphasis on the fact that he had failed to celebrate his 60th birthday for his sixtieth anniversary of the Iranian revolution earlier this month. Instead, the ayatollah's son read a lengthy speech in his father's name.

But a check of the news showed that Khomeini was celebrating his 60th birthday last year, and in fact has rarely if ever shown up in person for the event.

THE KHOMEINI-IS-DYING source recited unverifiable rumors that Khomeini has prostate cancer and has had several heart attacks. The Khomeini-IS-OK source cited equally unverifiable reports that the ayatollah hasn't had a heart attack in years.

Perhaps most infuriating of all, though, were the contradictory interpretations given to Khomeini's most recent appearance on television. One source said Khomeini looked terrible; his face was puffing and his movements were those of a decrepit old man. The other source said Khomeini's face wasn't puffing at all; he looked generally healthy and that he moved, if not like a spring chicken, at least like a reasonably fit old buzzard.

All of this leaves the State Department on the horns of a dilemma. Should it find new sources in Iran? Or just buy them new television sets?

Kirk kabab

Democratic National Chairman Paul Kirk is still being skewered and broiled by slow-burning elements of the party. He managed to alienate them by his roughshod election campaign and his actions since.

First, Kirk infuriated party leaders by rejecting their choice for vice chairman. Then he angered moderates hoping to appease Southerners by setting a black woman backed by labor, Sharon Pratt Dixon, elected treasurer over William Crotty, the wunderkind Florida fundraiser.

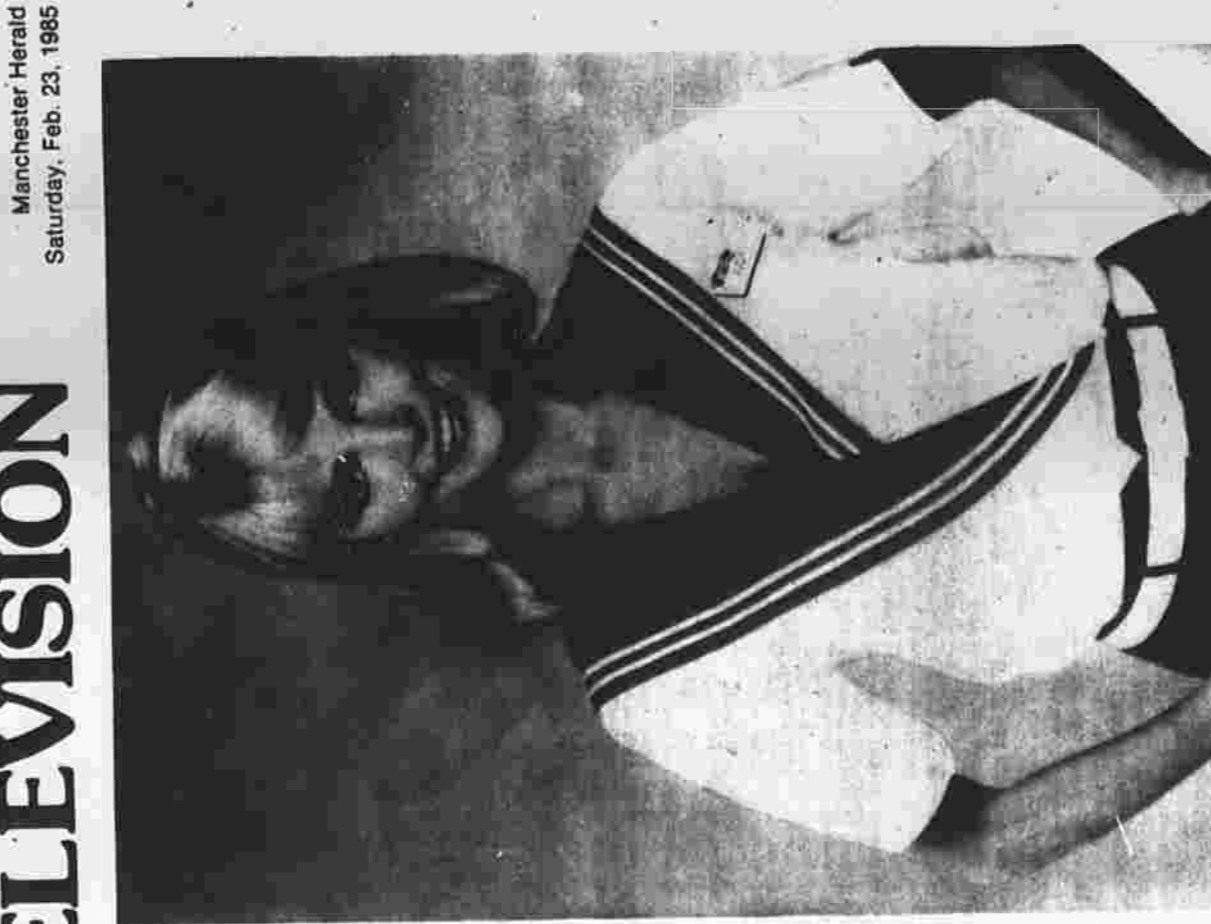

Kirk then tried Westerners by urging Crotty to run for finance chairman against California's Duncan Garrett. When Crotty refused to run against his friend, Kirk pressured Garrett to withdraw. This left no candidates, effectively obliterating the post, which made the party's money-tree shakers furious.

They're accustomed to having one of their own in this vital party position.

Belatedly trying to soothe at least some of the ruffled feathers, Kirk then appointed Crotty to the non-elective post of "chairman of the executive committee of the National Financial Board of Directors." Crotty now has the difficult task of trying,

"The only thing that keeps him going is the prospect of seeing those new-found HONEYMOONERS' episodes."

Books

Vietnam, Hitler books show war as man's great folly

Dau, by Ed Dodge (Macmillan, 288pp., $12.95)

It would be nice to report that Ed Dodge's novel is another strong Vietnam first-book in the tradition of Phil Caputo's "A Rumor of War" or Michael Herr's "Despatches". Unfortunately, it is not. "Dau," "pain" in Vietnamese, is a valiant effort to use a novel to focus on Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder. For that, Dodge is to be commended.

But reading "Dau" is almost like reading the ingredients on a box of cake mix. The usual items are there: a black soldier, an Indian soldier, an intellectual soldier, a conscientious objector, etc., but they never cohere. When it comes time to bake the cake, it doesn't rise.

The characters are shallow. They fit in and out before the reader understands them. They are headlines rather than stories. Even the protagonist, Air Force Sgt. Morgan Preston, is little more than a sketch.

Preston, who went into the service instead of college, supposedly cracks under the strain of seeing his friends destroyed by the war. He becomes psychotic. The author intimates this is all part of PTSD.

Maybe, but not everyone who suffers from PTSD is psychotic and not every Vietnam-era psychotic suffers from PTSD. Dodge makes no effort to make

Feb. 24, 1985

Over the past years you have made some valuable friends who are more concerned about your welfare than you may realize. The times ahead will reveal how much they care.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Conditions you have no control over might cause you to alter your plans today. If you're flexible, all will still work out well. Major changes are in store for Pisces in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Joint ventures must be managed with great skill and intelligence today or you could come out on the losing end. Move cautiously.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Strive to self-orient today because if you depend too heavily on others, and they are unable to assist you, you could end up in a negative fashion today. This may create complications that can be avoided.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're most apt to help others today if you feel you are doing so of your own volition. When demands are made of you, you might act gratuitously but, by the same token, others are depending on you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Generally you enjoy social situations, but today, if you attend a gathering where someone you don't like is present, you might treat everyone coolly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 19) Grasp the opportunity to become involved in a situation you think you can handle better than your friends. You can do so factually without offending pals.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Be realistic regarding the goals and objectives you set for your self today. Avoid establishing targets your common sense tells you are out of reach.

A guaranteed weight-reducing exercise consists of pushing oneself over the table before taking second helpings.

Bridge

Seeing is believing

By James Jacoby

As a recent successful political leader said, "You ain't seen nothing yet!" Those words could certainly apply to today's bridge deal, where a remarkably fortuitous lie of the cards allowed a ridiculous slam to come limping home. North-South bid the slam because they knew they were doing badly in a short seven-bid Swiss team match. Declarer was Harold Feldheim of Connecticut and dummy was played with the ace. Club was ruffed in dummy and the last diamond led. As East finally trumped with the ace, South shed his losing heart.

Go with the times. Don't sweep troubles under the rug. Put 'em in the ace, discarding a heart from dummy.

After the heart opening lead (an obvious choice, dictated by the bidding), declarer won in dummy with the ace, cashed the diamond ace, on which he shuffled a heart, and ruffed a diamond. When the diamond queen appeared, a slight change in declarer's plan was required. Next he played the club ace, discarding a heart from dummy.

HARTFORD — Gov. William A. O'Neill, who suggested this week that Chief State's Attorney Austin J. McGuigan should resign, said Friday he is willing to meet with the prosecutor to discuss the matter. McGuigan said this week he wants to meet with the governor to tell his side of the story concerning an ongoing controversy that prompted O'Neill to suggest Wednesday night that he resign as the state's chief prosecutor.

O'Neill, who returned this week from a vacation in Florida, said McGuigan had requested a meeting before he left on the trip. "To be very honest with you I completely had slipped my mind. However, if he wants to meet with me I'd be happy to meet with him," O'Neill said.

After the first half-hour, I took my ever-present paperwork and settled down in the kitchen, leaving the shelter in their more than capable and caring hands.

It was a quiet night. Most of the men came in early, wadded down the hot casseroles (Larry brought one of them with him), and then cleaned up in the bathroom sinks.

By the time he had found him, it was late and very frankly, the last thing I remember is the loud sound of voices as Larry and Bob and the late-comer sat down at a table.

At 6 a.m., Larry and Bob had lights and coffee and the cleaning lady. As I drove down the still chilly street on my way home, I passed one of the older men I had talked to last night.

Pearson honored MHS a winner despite loss

By Bob Papetti
Herald Sports Writer

Although it went in the books as a 56-44 victory for visiting East Hartford High, Friday night's final home game of the season at Manchester High contained winning elements throughout Clarke Arena.

Yes, Manchester High was outscored by 12 points during in the last 10 minutes. On a point total basis, the home-standing Indians were losers. But as noisy as it sounds, in every other way, the Manchester team was a champion.

Outmanned and overmatched in virtually all fundamental and especially god-given talents, the Indians summoned forth an all-out effort from way down deep to nearly upset one of the top ten high school teams in Connecticut.

"I'm so proud of these kids," said a teary-eyed Doug Pearson, who coached his final home game of an 11-year career at Manchester High. "As a coach, there's nothing more I can ask from them."

"I don't feel we lost," added Pearson, who was honored by his peers before the game. Manchester, now 8-6 in the CCC East Division and 10-9 overall, including 10 in the first half, was strayed from Prince Tech in Hartford Tuesday night before advancing to the Class LL state tournament.

Manchester's Russ Anselmo (14) has control of the basketball as he finds himself under tight guarding from East Hartford's John McKeone (35) Friday night at Clarke Arena.

NBA roundup

HARTFORD (UPI) - Larry Bird collected 34 points Friday to power the Boston Celtics to their 115-103 triumph over Chicago, extending the Bulls' road losing streak to 11 games.

Chicago, which has not won since Feb. 12, has dropped four straight contests. Kevin McHale had 24 points for Boston while Robert Parish, returning from an ankle sprain, scored 23. Danny Ainge had 15 points and Dennis Johnson finished with 13.

Rookie Michael Jordan led the Bulls with 28 points. Dave Corzine, playing in his 394th straight game - the NBA's second longest streak and Orlando Woolridge each had 18 points.

Boston, 45-12, never trailed after taking the lead midway through the first quarter. The Celtics used 17 points by Bird and 14 from Parish to take a 53-46 halftime lead.

Chicago, 25-29, cut Boston's lead to 56-51 early in the third quarter when Wes Matthews followed a 3-point basket by Bird capped a 9-3 run with 7:05 left in the quarter.

Jordan's basket with 1:22 remaining sliced Boston's lead to 109-105. But after the Bulls missed a shot that would have cut the lead to 2 points, McHale completed a lay-up and Cleveland was able to put the Celtics in command.

The victory completed a three-game sweep for Boston in Hartford. The Celtics survived a late Atlanta comeback to post a 113-105 triumph over the Hawks, snapping a five-game losing streak.

New York, 19-37, got 22 points and a game-high 12 rebounds from Pat Cummings and Darrell Walker Friday night to power the Philadelphia 76ers to a 119-99 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

Detroit played without Isiah Thomas, sidelined with a bruised thigh, and Kelly Tripucqua, who has been out for two weeks with a sprained ankle.

Chicago, 25-29, cut Boston's lead to 56-51 early in the third quarter when Wes Matthews followed a 3-point basket by Bird capped a 9-3 run with 7:05 left in the quarter.

Jordan's basket with 1:22 remaining sliced Boston's lead to 109-105. But after the Bulls missed a shot that would have cut the lead to 2 points, McHale completed a lay-up and Cleveland was able to put the Celtics in command.

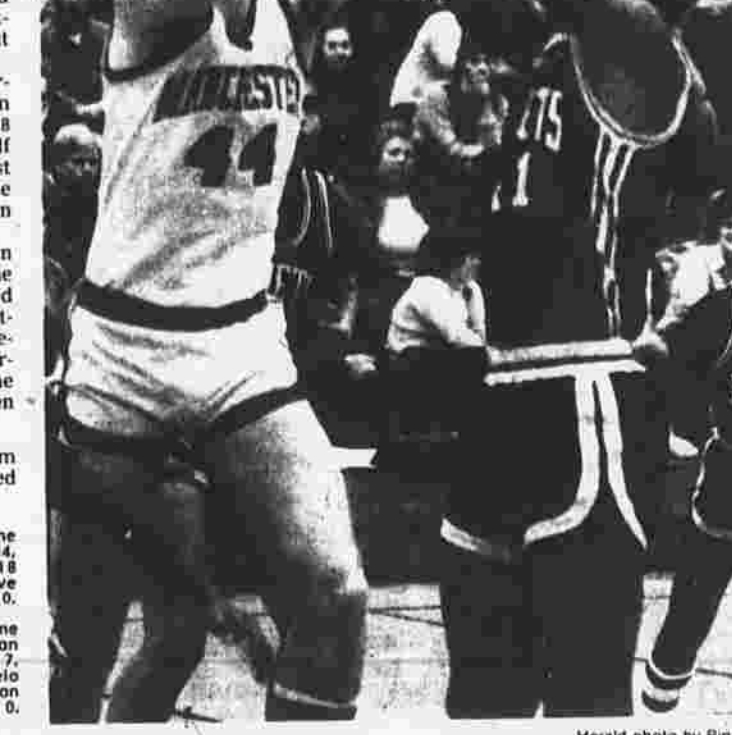

The victory completed a three-game sweep for Boston in Hartford. The Celtics survived a late Atlanta comeback to post a 113-105 triumph over the Hawks, snapping a five-game losing streak.

New York, 19-37, got 22 points and a game-high 12 rebounds from Pat Cummings and Darrell Walker Friday night to power the Philadelphia 76ers to a 119-99 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

Detroit played without Isiah Thomas, sidelined with a bruised thigh, and Kelly Tripucqua, who has been out for two weeks with a sprained ankle.

At Philadelphia, rookie Charles Barkley scored a season-high 29 points, and grabbed 18 rebounds Friday night to power the Philadelphia 76ers to a 119-99 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

Detroit played without Isiah Thomas, sidelined with a bruised thigh, and Kelly Tripucqua, who has been out for two weeks with a sprained ankle.

Manchester's Brian Spano (44) and Hornets' Garbert Russell (24) clash hands as they fight for basketball in the early action at Clarke Arena. Spano outscored Russell, 11-10, but Hornets won the game, 56-44.

This Weekend

Whalers home twice on weekend
HARTFORD - The unpredictable Whalers are home for another back-to-back weekend, hosting the Los Angeles Kings tonight at 7:35 and the St. Louis Blues Sunday at 2 p.m.

Despite an encouraging 3-1 record since the All-Star Game on Feb. 12, the Whalers haven't won in Hartford since Jan. 5. Snapping a record-tying home winless streak of eight games (6-7-1) is the most immediate concern.

Hartford, which beat the home-standing Winnipeg Jets and New York Rangers this week, is now a stunning 3-0 in its last four road games. With 22 games left, the Whalers sport a 20-17 record for 47 points, 13 behind the Boston Bruins.

UConn hosts Georgetown today
HARTFORD - With a second stunning upset win over No. 7 ranked Syracuse under its belt, University of Connecticut men's basketball team will face a bigger obstacle today as it entertains No. 2 Georgetown at the Hartford Civic Center at noon.

The Hoyas, defending NCAA champions, stand second in league play at 11-2, 24-2 overall. Earl Kelley, No. 1 free throw shooter in the Big East, had 21 points in the Husky win over Syracuse. Steady Ray Boston added 18 and Ivan Frederick 14.

Georgetown is led by All-America 7-foot center Patrick Ewing and a leading rebounder in the conference. Bill Martin, Reggie Williams and Michael Jackson are also key contributors for the Hoyas.

Georgetown won the first meeting between the schools at the Cap Centre in Landover, Md., 73-66.

East Catholic faces St. Bernard

NEW HAVEN - East Catholic gets a third shot at unbeaten St. Bernard in Hartford County Conference Basketball Playoff Tournament tonight at 6 p.m. at the New Haven Coliseum.

Bird powers Celtics past the Bulls

HARTFORD (UPI) - Larry Bird collected 34 points Friday to power the Boston Celtics to their 115-103 triumph over Chicago, extending the Bulls' road losing streak to 11 games.

Chicago, which has not won since Feb. 12, has dropped four straight contests. Kevin McHale had 24 points for Boston while Robert Parish, returning from an ankle sprain, scored 23. Danny Ainge had 15 points and Dennis Johnson finished with 13.

Rookie Michael Jordan led the Bulls with 28 points. Dave Corzine, playing in his 394th straight game - the NBA's second longest streak and Orlando Woolridge each had 18 points.

Boston, 45-12, never trailed after taking the lead midway through the first quarter. The Celtics used 17 points by Bird and 14 from Parish to take a 53-46 halftime lead.

Chicago, 25-29, cut Boston's lead to 56-51 early in the third quarter when Wes Matthews followed a 3-point basket by Bird capped a 9-3 run with 7:05 left in the quarter.

Cosmos call it quits

RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) - The New York Cosmos, once the cornerstone of American soccer, announced Friday they will discontinue playing in the Major Indoor Soccer League and will not be a member of the North American Soccer League.

It was completely and totally surprising, said Johnson in a phone interview Friday. Milten led Friday afternoon to join the Blues in Buffalo for that night's game. When the Milles home was finally reached by phone, Mrs. Greg Milten relayed a depressingly curt message. "Rig is gone," she said.

The sudden shock of a job transfer will soon pass for Johnson and Milten. St. Louis is in first place in the 1984-85 season. The 29-year-old Luta was particularly spectacular in the 1984-85 season. The first team NHL All-Star, the All-Star Game MVP and co-winner as the Hockey News MVP, along with a guy named Gretzky.

The deal can be dissected in two separate segments. The most obvious is Milten for Luta, goalie for goalie, a fairly even-up proposition. Both are excellent netminders, with solid careers already under their belts.

The 27-year old Milten was the Whalers' MVP last year. The 29-year old Luta was particularly spectacular in the 1984-85 season. The first team NHL All-Star, the All-Star Game MVP and co-winner as the Hockey News MVP, along with a guy named Gretzky.

Diane Dixon sets 440 world record

Connors sidelined by first-year pro

LA QUINTA, Calif. (UPI) — Top seed and defending champion Jimmy Connors was routed in the quarterfinals of a $75,000 Grand Prix tennis tournament Friday by first-year pro Greg Holmes.

The 21-year-old Holmes needed just 62 minutes to beat the 32-year-old Connors, 6-0, 6-3. Holmes overpowered Connors with booming serves throughout the brief match and was able to break Connors' serve three times in the first set.

Also upset in the quarterfinals was No. 3 seed Aaron Krickstein, who was beaten by unseeded David Fate of Las Vegas, Nev., 6-1, 6-6, 6-1. That match lasted just 55 minutes.

Connors, who switched racquets earlier this year, dumping a model he had used for 18 years, made no excuses for the loss.

"He won. I lost. It was just one of those days," he said. "He played very well. I certainly could have played better, but I didn't. So it's time to go home."

Saturday's game is scheduled for national television with kickoff at 1:30 p.m. CST.

Flutie passed for more than 10,000 yards during his career at Boston College, including more than 3,500 on his way to the Heisman last season.

Saturday's game is scheduled for national television with kickoff at 1:30 p.m. CST.

Critics put General Dynamics' dinners at public expense

LOWELL WEICKER
wants an apology

By Gregory Gordon
United Press International

WASHINGTON — General Dynamics Corp. billed taxpayers for a testimonial dinner for Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., a $1,300 dinner for a group including two House members in Tijuana, Mexico, and meals and plane rides for other members of Congress, sources said Friday.

Besides Weicker, those hosted by the company included Reps. Don Proun, D-Fla., and Bill Lowery, R-Calif., who were treated to dinner in Tijuana, and Rep. Floyd Spence, R-S.C., who rode in a company plane to Columbia, S.C., to participate in a military dedication ceremony.

In each instance, government sources said, the company claimed reimbursement from taxpayers.

The full extent of General Dynamics' largesse to members and their staffs could not be determined, however, because numerous of the company's entertainment and travel vouchers each year are left blank, absent the names of guests or recipients, the sources said.

Most congressmen entertained from a $1 million "travel account" established at company corporate headquarters in St. Louis were members of committees or subcommittees dealing with defense matters, the sources said.

Money from the same account paid for meals and entertainment for Pentagon officials as well. In many instances claims were submitted to the Navy, the sources said.

GENERAL DYNAMICS DECLINED IMMEDIATE comment on the latest disclosures, but has repeatedly denied that it billed taxpayers for entertainment expenses. Weicker said he thought the Navily, 1981, dinner for him in Connecticut was a political fund-raiser and expressed anger that one of the largest employers in his home state charged taxpayers about $1,000 for the affair.

After learning of the billing from ABC's "20/20," which reported Thursday on some of the latest revelations in the sweeping General Dynamics controversy, he demanded an apology from General Dynamics. An aide said Weicker also alerted the general counsel of the Navy, which paid General Dynamics for the dinner to the incident.

Edward LeFevre, General Dynamics' vice president for government relations, replied in a letter to Weicker Thursday that the dinner "was not a political fund-raiser but was organized as a campaign effort" for honored guests in conjunction with the commissioning of U.S.S. Ohio Trident submarine.

LeFevre said guests confirmed "there was no solicitation for political funds either before, during or after the dinner."

The dinner was hosted by P. Takis Veliotis, then general manager of General Dynamics' Electric Boat Division in Groton, Conn., and now a fugitive from a federal indictment. Veliotis has triggered nine investigations with a series of allegations against the firm from his native Greece.

Cardigan

The seventh earl of Cardigan, who led the charge of the Light Brigade in the Crimean War, got tired of pulling his sweater over his head. So, according to tradition, he designed the sweater jacket with buttons that has carried his name down through history.

WEICKER PRODUCED A LETTER from Veliotis written two days after the dinner that said, "As I mentioned to you when you arrived, I am writing to each person that attended and am urging that they join me in financially supporting you in your campaign efforts."

Weicker asserted in a statement that "the dinner held Nov. 11, 1981 was funded by me for my 1982 campaign."

Ladies' bicycles were originally designed to be ridden side-saddle. The big problem was they were so hard to balance no one wanted to ride them.
