Steven Akin is in need of a bone marrow transplant to battle leukemia. He met his brother and sister for the first time at an emotional airport gathering Thursday. Akin's siblings underwent the initial tests to determine if they can save his life.

Long lost children may save father

HOUSTON (UPI) — The long-lost brother and sister of a young father who needs a bone marrow transplant to battle leukemia underwent initial tests Friday to determine if they can save his life. Doctors at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute took blood samples from Barbara Davis and John Davis, siblings of Steven Akin, who has been suffering from leukemia since 1983. Akin, 24, met his brother and sister for the first time Thursday at an emotional airport gathering. He was given up for adoption in Amarillo, Texas, in the early 1960s with his twin sister and another sister, who now lives in Houston. Adoption records in Amarillo showed two other siblings were left in foster care in Chicago in 1957. Publicity about his search led to Barbara, 28, in Green Bay, Wis. She said her oldest sister, Lillian, 31, had died three months earlier of cancer, but that she knew of a younger brother. Akin spent Thursday night with Barbara, John, 23, of Schiller Park, Ill., and his twin sister, Sandra Campbell, 24, of Bay City, Texas. A hospital spokeswoman said they had a happy, old-fashioned family visit. Earlier tests on Campbell, who was raised with Akin, and the sister who lives in Houston showed

Islamic terrorists take credit French embassy aides kidnapped

By David Zenon United Press International
BEIRUT, Lebanon — Three French Embassy workers were kidnapped Friday and the Islamic Jihad terror group announced it carried out the abductions to retaliate for a French-Saudi Arabian arms deal opposed by Iran. In south Lebanon, Israeli forces raided a Shiite Moslem village, killing at least one person one day after storming at least eight other such towns and killing at least 23 people, including two members of a CBS News camera crew. Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres in Jerusalem rejected condemnation of the killing of the newsmen, saying the journalists were standing among hostile guerrillas. CBS called for further investigation.

French Vice Consul Marcel Fontaine was abducted by two bearded gunmen as he walked to work in Beirut Friday, witnesses told police. Two other French Embassy workers were abducted in a separate incident. "These abductions represent our discontent with the shameful relations France has with countries of the axis between the countries of Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Jordan and Egypt," a caller, identifying himself as a spokesman for the pro-Iranian Islamic Jihad organization, told a western news agency's Beirut office. "The liberation of the French hostages is conditional on the annihilation of the Franco-Saudi contract to exchange Mirage planes for Saudi oil and a halt to France's direct and indirect intervention in the war between the Islamic Republic of Iran and the regime of (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein," said the French-speaking caller. There was no immediate confirmation that France has agreed to provide Mirage warplanes in exchange for Saudi oil. A French embassy official identified other two kidnapped employees as chief of protocol Marcel Carton, 62, and his 34-year-old daughter Danielle, a secretary at the mission's cultural section. Friday's kidnappings brought to six the number of foreigners who have disappeared in mostly Moslem west Beirut since March 14. Jeffrey Vernon Nash, a 60-year-old British scientist, was kidnapped March 14. Brian Levick, 59, a British oil executive, was abducted March 15 and Terry Anderson, 37, Middle East man-

Arkansas teachers knock test

By Tommy D. Yates United Press International

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Thousands of school teachers, angered at having to take a test instead of giving one, vowed to play hooky Saturday from an unprecedented state-required examination for recertification. Up to a third of the state's 24,000 teachers may boycott the test that will be given at 276 schools around the state, said Peggy Nabers and Little Rock, president of the Arkansas Education Association, the teachers' organization that has opposed the test vigorously. A National Education Association spokesman said the Arkansas test would be the first statewide examination for practicing teachers. Numerous states now test incoming teachers.

The developer of the test has said one person in four is likely to fail. Nabers said. "Those who fail run the risk of being branded incompetent for the rest of their lives," she said. The state Board of Education has established a passing score of 70 percent. The tests will be graded by out-of-state firms with results due by June 1. The test covers functional academic skills in reading, writing and mathematics. Teachers and about 4,000 administrators, who are not expected to boycott the test, will have four hours in which to complete the examination. Those who fail will be provided in-service training, classes and other assistance in improving their skills. They will be retested within a year's time and must pass by 1987 or lose certification. Teacher testing was mandated in 1983 by a special legislative session. Private school teachers, certified teachers who are not now in the classroom and teachers who move to Arkansas from other states were not included in the 1983 law, but were added by a law passed last week by the state Legislature.

Botha orders slaying probe

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — President Pieter W. Botha Friday ordered an inquiry into the slaying of 18 black mourners by police and an opposition leader rejected the official version of the bloodiest racial clash in the country in 25 years. A woman who died in a hospital early Friday became the 18th fatality of Thursday's violence in Langa, about 15 miles west of the southern coastal city of Port Elizabeth, where police fired on a crowd of 3,000 to 4,000 blacks. Law and Order Minister Louis le Grange said 19 policemen fired 43 shotgun, rifle and pistol rounds when they were attacked by blacks armed with stones, sticks and fire bombs. But survivors told newspapers and the Black Sash civil rights group that the crowd, which was going to a funeral for a youth killed in recent riots, carried no weapons and police fired without warning, shooting people as they fled.

Gorbachev reply is likely

MOSCOW — Finland's prime minister said Friday Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev will reply in a "good and unambiguous way" to President Reagan's invitation to hold a summit meeting. Finnish Prime Minister Kalevi Sorsa said Gorbachev did not tell him if he would agree to meet Reagan. "He is going to answer Reagan's letter in a good-mannered way," said Sorsa, who was in Moscow as chairman of the Socialist International Disarmament Consultative Committee. "He who writes the letter gets the answer." Reagan told a news conference in Washington Thursday that chances were "good" for an early summit.

No link to death squads

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — U.S. Ambassador Thomas R. Pickens said Friday there was absolutely no evidence linking the Salvadoran defense minister to death squads, as charged by a former intelligence officer. Col. Roberto Santivanez charged in a series of interviews Thursday that the Salvadoran army

Attendants cross the line

NEW YORK — More than two dozen flight attendants broke ranks Friday with striking ground crew workers and reported to work at Pan American World Airways, hitting the airline's hopes of restoring more flights to service. Members of the Independent Union of Flight Attendants reported for flights from New York on the first full day testing whether they would comply with their union's call for them to return to work, said James Arey, a Pan Am spokesman.

Iraq uses poison gas

Thirty-three Iranian soldiers were being treated in Western Europe Friday for severe burns and lung injuries caused by chemical weapons, indicating a resumption of Iran's illegal use of poison gas in its 4½-year war with Iraq. "Some were in severe pain and were just crying out for Allah, they were a shocking sight," said one witness who saw eight of the soldiers arrive on an Iranian 747 cargo plane at Schwechat airport in Vienna, Austria.

Medical conglomerates take lumps in 'Mindbend'

By Jim Lewis United Press International

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Best-selling novelist Robin Cook casts aside subtlety in his latest suspense thriller, "Mindbend," and takes a scalpel to what he considers the bloated and greedy health industry conglomerates.

"I think it's frightening," Cook said in an interview. "It is the most serious problem that has faced American medicine without exception."

Committee rejects ban on free air

By Mark A. Dupuis
United Press International

HARTFORD — A legislative committee Friday killed a bill that would have prohibited service stations and other gasoline retailers from charging motorists for air.

The Transportation Committee voted 13-9 to reject the bill that would have prohibited gas retailers from charging for air by installing such devices as compressed air compressors.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Eugene Migliaro, R-Wolcott, would have prevented retailers from charging for air after business hours and imposed fines of $15 per day for charging for air at any time of the day.

In general, state law now requires gas retailers who sell 10,000 gallons of fuel or more a month to provide free air to motorists during the hours the business is open.

Opponents of Migliaro's bill said that to prevent retailers from charging for air after business hours could prompt retailers to remove air hoses at night and make air unavailable during those hours.

Island bought as bird refuge

NORWALK (UPI) — A national wildlife refuge was created Friday off the Connecticut coast with the federal purchase of Chimon Island, a major heron rookery and one of the three largest wading bird colonies in the Northeast.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service officially acquired the deed to the 70-acre island 1.5 miles off the coast of Norwalk in ceremonies attended by Reps. Stewart B. McKinney, R-Conn., and Bruce Morrison, D-Conn.

The Nature Conservancy had purchased the island to protect the bird colonies from development until $1.4 million in federal funds became available.

The Connecticut Coastal National Wildlife Refuge was authorized by Congress in October and will eventually include Sheffield Island off Norwalk, Falkner Island near Guilford and Milford Point.

The islands and Milford Point harbor in the mouth of Housatonic River are the last "relatively undisturbed" areas off the Connecticut coastline, the Wildlife Service said.

The total 150 acres of wildlife habitat contain several species of birds, including terns, piping plovers and heron. Some 125 species have been recorded in the areas and about 40 species breed there.

Obituaries

Elmer J. McCollum

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Funeral services will be held Saturday for Elmer J. McCollum, executive director of Hometown Publications, who died Wednesday at St. Vincent's Medical Center. He was 63.

McCollum was born in Bridgeport and was a lifelong resident of the city.

He served the past 16 years as director of Hometown Publications, which publishes five weekly newspapers: The Trumbull Times, The Easton Courier, The Monroe Courier, The Huntington Herald and The Stratford Star.

He also was a managing editor of the former Connecticut Sunday Herald and was a reporter with The Bridgeport Post.

McCollum is survived by his wife, Theresa Doan McCollum; a son, Arthur McCollum of Bridgeport; a daughter, Mrs. Maryanne Gilormino of Bridgeport; a brother, Paul Daymonde of Bridgeport; five grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

Services will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday in the Louis A. Abriola and Son Funeral Home, East Washington Avenue, Bridgeport. Burial will be at the convenience of the family.

Headlines on the Dear Abby and Dr. Lamb columns were inadvertently reversed on page 18 of Friday's Herald.

The last sentence of a story on the Eighth Utilities District in Friday's "Manchester in Brief" section was incorrect. It should have said that the district will begin using regular commercial and passenger plates on district-owned vehicles, to be issued free by the state Department of Motor Vehicles.

Teacher pact in doubt

HARTFORD — The fate of the four-year teacher's contract remained unclear Friday, with teachers split over the salary adjustments which primarily benefit newcomers and those at the maximum scale.

Some Weaver High School teachers have scheduled a meeting Wednesday to determine if there is enough support among their colleagues citywide to challenge the pact.

The division was evident after a private meeting of the union membership Thursday. It was the first time leaders of the Hartford Federation of Teachers Local 1018 explained the contract terms to the full membership.

Several teachers hailed the higher salaries and fringe benefits, while others called it an insult to those in the middle of the pay schedule.

Victim's family sues

HARTFORD — The family of Catherine Manfredi has filed a $5 million wrongful death suit in Hartford Superior Court against her cardiologist husband, accused of the slaying.

James A. Armentano, representing the woman's estate and her relatives in Pennsylvania, said the court put an attachment on Dr. Russell F. Manfredi's home in West Hartford.

Judge Mary R. Hennessy also issued a restraining order that bars Manfredi from divesting himself of his interest in a private medical group at Hartford Hospital where he worked until his arrest March 9 on the murder charge.

The civil suit was brought by Margaret Billings Jones, sister of Catherine Manfredi and administrator of the dead woman's estate, Armentano said.

Woman held in killing

NEW HAVEN — The wife of a dentist was arraigned Friday in the slaying of her stepmother who was found stabbed and beaten to death in the couple's fashionable apartment.

Evelyn Pitts, 60, was arraigned before Superior Court Judge Robert Reilly on a murder charge and was held in lieu of $100,000 bond. She was taken to the Union Avenue lockup and was to be transferred Friday evening to the state's facility for women in Naugatuck.

Police began searching for her soon after the body of Beatrice Eaton, 83, of Hamden was found in the ninth-floor living quarters Pitts shared with her husband, William H. Pitts, in the Talt Apartments overlooking the New Haven green.

Tax-cut plans coming

HARTFORD — Gov. William A. O'Neill said Friday he will unveil his proposals for additional state tax cuts amounting to about $40 million some time next week.

O'Neill said it has taken longer than he originally anticipated to develop the proposals "because we are trying to put together a tax package that we feel is the most important."

The tax cuts would be in addition to a clothing tax exemption already enacted and effective April 1.

Mother wants to live

MILFORD — The family and friends of a mother of three suffering from a rare and mysterious heart and lung ailment have made a public plea to help pay for a potentially life-saving transplant operation.

"It's overwhelming. It's been a heavy strain on my family," said Andrew Pace Friday of the fundraising drive. His wife, Micki, has been given little chance of survival without heart and lung transplants.

Micki Pace, 38, suffers from primary pulmonary hypertension, which constricts the artery that brings blood from the heart to the lungs. There is no known cure for the ailment.

Governor signs bill

HARTFORD — Gov. William A. O'Neill has signed legislation to tighten state inspections of amusement park rides, the governor's office said Friday.

The bill will have amusement park licenses valid for a calendar year instead of the current system where licenses run from May of one year through April of the next. The bill is effective Oct. 1.

Asbestos removal set

HARTFORD — The state Bond Commission Friday authorized $1.2 million for the first phase of a project to remove asbestos from two buildings at Southern Connecticut State University in New Haven.

The funds, approved unanimously and without debate by the commission, will be used for design work needed to remove the asbestos from the health services lab and Busby Library at Southern.

Young Strangers make music

By Nancy Pappas
Herald Reporter

Sean Doherty and his friends write hard rock tunes about girls with "love-fires" in their eyes.

They have played to a full house at the Agora Ballroom in West Hartford.

Their band, Stranger, recently won a regional competition at the Flamingo Club in Newington, and their rock video will be aired soon on cable television's MTV.

They go to concerts with their own "roadies" — that is, a crew to help set up the equipment before the shows.

But when the group took a break during a recent Friday-night rehearsal in Doherty's home in Coventry, his mom still came in to pass around the juice and cookies.

That's because Stranger — a professional band with a growing reputation for fine, original music — is comprised of four Manchester and Coventry teenagers, still living at home and attending school. The senior members of the group are just juniors in high school.

THOSE FOUNDING MEMBERS are Doherty, 16, and Chuck Forest, 17, of Coventry. They began playing together in the eighth grade. After several years of jamming, they were joined by Ron Pinney, who's now 19, and Steve Maxwell, now 18, both of Manchester.

The name Stranger was chosen in September 1983. "We liked to say, 'We are stranger than you,'" said Doherty. Actually, by today's rock industry standards, the members of Stranger are not particularly strange. They favor jogging shoes and white socks, narrow jeans and leather jackets. They don't go in for makeup, purple hair or safety pins through the ears. "We are definitely not punk," said Doherty.

Still, the shoulder-length hair they have chosen cause quite a bit of comment, particularly in Coventry.

"Let's put it this way, I'm the only one who looks like this at my school," said Doherty, who attends Windham Technical High School in Willimantic. He shook his long hair, and showed the one dangling earring he wore. "We're not copying anyone. It's just the way we want to look."

STRANGER IS ONE of the few young bands in the area performing original compositions, said the band members. The four members compose the melodies, devise the harmonies and write the lyrics together. But originality is a distinction that can be a disadvantage.

"Most of the bands around are doing Top 40s, or they're doing copy-cat sounds, where they ape a particular group," said Pinney, who works third shift loading trucks for UPS, and attends University of Hartford's Hart School of Music. "That's fine for them. They get more jobs than we do, because mostly the Connecticut audiences want to go somewhere and dance to tunes they've heard before."

But for a group doing entirely original music, there are few concert and club dates available — except in large cities. That's why the group has decided to leave Connecticut when Forest and Doherty graduate from high school in June 1986. They will head for either New York or California, and try to find bookings — probably doing opening acts for major stars.

It's the way a lot of younger groups break into the business, they explained. They have opened at the Agora for the Connecticut band, Crier.

"A lot of times, big names start bringing a young band with them to open each night," said Pinney. "That's what we want to be doing."

THEY ALSO WANT to cut a record. The two songs they wrote are now getting air time on a few radio stations. "Love Call" and "Pretty Girls on Main Street" were recorded on stereo cassettes at Amphion Recording Studios in Rockville.

"But to do a whole record there wouldn't make any sense," said Maxwell. "We could do it ourselves, we certainly have enough original material to record. But we would have no way to distribute it."

In the meantime, Stranger is preparing for a concert at Coventry High School in April, trying to get radio stations interested in playing their two recorded songs, and waiting for their rock video to appear on the Basement Tapes segment of MTV.

"We're kind of like anxious to get going to really go for it," said Forest. "But the families, they're really supportive. Everyone in my family plays an instrument. They're really glad that I've gotten into this in such a heavy way."

None of the members think of themselves as young. "We've been at this a long time already," said Doherty. "Not just in the group, I mean. We've all been playing since we were little. When I was about 3, I turned over my Hot Wheels and began beating on the wheels and seat with a couple of pots and pans. That was my first set of drums."

Ohio replaces S&L supervisor

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Saying he wants a more experienced person to supervise the reopening of 67 state-chartered savings and loan associations, and restore Ohio's shaky financial system, Gov. Richard F. Celeste Friday replaced S&L superintendent Thomas Battles.

Celeste named Robert B. McAlister, a Columbus attorney and veteran of Ohio Democratic politics, to take over as the new superintendent. Celeste called McAlister "a seasoned, can-do attorney whose steady hand will guide the reopening of the state-chartered savings and loan system."

Battles, appointed in January and in charge during the recent closings of the state-chartered S&Ls, will return to his former position as legal counsel to the Division of Savings and Loan Associations, the governor said.

Federated Savings Bank in Cincinnati opened Friday. The state Commerce Department said it would probably be Monday before more S&Ls would begin regular business or limited withdrawals.

Five other closed thrifts had opened without authorization and were ordered to close by Kenneth R. Cox, director of the Commerce Department.

Another of the closed savings and loans, Scuto Savings Association, reopened as Scuto Bank, and was absorbed by its owner, the Society Corp. of Cleveland. It is insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

A top Ohio organizer for Sen. George McGovern's 1972 presidential campaign in 1972, McAlister served as the Celeste administration's attorney during last year's congressional redistricting court battle.

Ex-PBA chairman quits airline job

NAPLES, Fla. (UPI) — Former Provincetown, Boston Airlines Chairman Edwin J. Putzell Jr. resigned from the airline's board of directors, PBA confirmed Friday.

PBA also announced it had fired George Kean, the company's vice president for marketing.

Putzell did not say why he left the airline. He became chairman of PBA in November when former chairman and chief executive officer John Van Arsdale Jr. resigned.

Van Arsdale's resignation came after the Federal Aviation Administration shut the company down for alleged safety violations and stripped Van Arsdale of his pilot's license.

Putzell, who joined the board when PBA became a public corporation in 1982, served as chairman until Tampa millionaire Hugh Calverhouse assumed control of the airline in February.

Traveling abroad easier, more bearable this year

If you are among the 6 million Americans planning to travel to Europe this year, you'll be competing with a record number of travelers heading from every part of the United States to the same places over. Get on your mark, get set, and go!

The State Department estimates it will issue 5.14 million passports in 1983, up from a fall 1982 record of 4.8 million. The future is starting to get in the long lines of people already waiting for their passports to be issued — and spring is still to come.

If you apply for your passport at your local post office or courthouse, you must add time for your application to reach the Passport Agency. You might be one of the lucky ones, but don't bet on it. The strength of the dollar — which is encouraging bargain-basement to join the adventures — is a factor not to be underestimated.

A new passport costs $35 for 18 or older, plus a $7 application fee. Passports issued to applicants under 18 cost $20. If you're a first-timer, you must appear in person, either at a Passport Agency or at a local post office or court. If you're renewing and were issued a passport within the past eight years, you can request to receive your passport by mail, and you need not pay the $7 application fee.

One bit of good news is it has been some time since you've had to stand in line at a passport office. A one-bit of good news is it has been some time since you've had to stand in line at a passport office. Make your reservations now, urges the European Travel Commission, headquartered in New York, as well as industry experts.

Exotic locations, along with the obvious areas, beckon the advertisements over many years are catching up to vacationers under the impetus of our powerful dollar. But whenever you go, your first step almost surely will be the American embassy or consulate.

Many of you still think that U.S. government will bail you out of legal difficulties, cash your checks, lend you money. It will be an unpleasant surprise to you to discover the truth is far from this — although consular officials try to help. The fact is, our representatives abroad are compelled to operate under specific restrictions and can't go beyond strict limits.

You can't get money at an embassy, for instance, although it will be an unpleasant surprise to you to discover the truth is far from this — although consular officials try to help. The fact is, our representatives abroad are compelled to operate under specific restrictions and can't go beyond strict limits.

Town has chance at sewer aid

By John Leaver Scripps Leisure Newspapers

WASHINGTON — Manchester still has a chance to receive federal help with a $20 million sewerage treatment plant, despite President Reagan's threat to withhold support, according to Manchester Director Stephen Cassano.

Cassano, one of five Manchester officials attending the National League of Cities meeting this week in the nation's capital, said the government has ordered the city to build the plant, but now doesn't want to help pay for it.

"To have the federal government mandate it without the funds is inconsistent. We can't do it," said Cassano during an interview this morning.

Manchester officials heard some good news this weekend, however, when they learned that Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., has introduced a bill that would require the government to continue paying for sewerage projects until at least 1990, said Cassano.

"We would be finished by 1990," said Cassano. "Even if no federal money were on the way, city officials would be forced to find some way to finish the project, he said."

The government's originally offered to pay 75 percent of construction costs when Manchester applied for federal money to pay for the project. Now the offer has been cut back to 55 percent.

The state has agreed to pay 15 percent of building costs, leaving Manchester faced with picking up 30 percent of the cost, said Cassano — if Chafee's bill is approved.

General Dynamics' woes mount

By Gregory Gordon United Press International

WASHINGTON — Assistant Navy Secretary George Sawyer, weeks after discussing a job in 1983 with the General Dynamics Corp., approved negotiation of a non-competitive nuclear submarine contract with the firm, a House panel said today.

Sawyer, who later went to work for General Dynamics, failed to fully advise the Navy's general counsel of the timing of his employment discussions with the company when he had accepted a legal opinion that he had "complicated" Sawyer's contacts with the firm, including accepting a free plane ride to St. Louis to meet with General Dynamics' top brass March 25, 1983, were divulged as the panel convened to hear testimony from company Chairman Raymond Campbell on Tuesday.

Law enforcement sources have said a federal grand jury, conducting a sweeping investigation of the company, is considering whether Sawyer may have violated conflict of interest laws in accepting the contract, was to spend his day lobbying from one end of Pennsylvania to the other — meeting with lawmakers on Capitol Hill and delivering a joint pitch with Reagan later in the day at the White House.

Should Reagan prevail Tuesday when the House votes on whether to authorize the money he has requested for 21 more MX missiles, the final showdown will come Thursday with a similar vote on whether to appropriate the funds. As Reagan worked what his spokesman described as a "full-

White House says act 'unwarranted'

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (UPI) — A Soviet guard shot and killed a U.S. Army officer attached to the U.S. military liaison mission to East Germany in an incident President Reagan said was an "unwarranted tragedy."

The Army was identified early in Washington, administration officials said the U.S. mission in Berlin filed a protest to the Soviet Union over the shooting and the Soviet Embassy in East Berlin responded to the protest.

The U.S. Army in Europe, based in Heidelberg, announced the incident but gave few details. "According to the information received by the U.S. Army in Europe on Sunday, March 24, a Soviet guard shot and killed a U.S. Army officer of the U.S. military liaison mission to East Germany," the statement said.

The army identified the man only as a member of the U.S. mission, headquartered in Potsdam, East Germany, outside Berlin. West Berlin sources said he was a major and had been shot in the chest.

The statement did not say where the shooting took place but the West German news service DPA said it happened outside the town of Ludwigslust, near Schwern, where a number of Soviet military installations are located. "Soviet officials are discussing the seriousness of the incident with the Soviet authorities," the announcement said.

At the State Department, a spokesman said, "We are aware there was a fatality and we are looking into it and working on it. He said he had no details and could not explain why the announcement was made today and not Sunday."

The United States, Britain and France, under post-war agreements with the Soviet Union, have military missions in East Germany.

Nicholson's mother-in-law, Elva Vincent, of Cambridge, Md., said her daughter, Karen, informed the family of the death Sunday night.

Vincent said Nicholson was a liaison officer for the United States, France, German and Britain and had served in the army for 16 years. The couple had an 8-year-old daughter.

"Four more years, he would have retired. They were going to move back to the United States this summer," Vincent said.

"His desire whenever he died, whatever his age, he wanted to be buried at Arlington (Cemetery) in Washington. Whenever the body is released by the Russians, and the preparations are made, he'll come to Arlington," she said.

An American spokesman said the body would be brought to West Berlin later today.
