Fire chiefs say troubles won't go on

By Alex Girelli
Herald Reporter

There will be no more disputes like the one that occurred between Manchester's two fire departments last week at a house fire on Adams Street, the chiefs of both departments said at a surprise news conference Tuesday night.

The chiefs were joined in that assertion by Manchester Mayor Barbara Weinberg and by Walter Joyner, president of the Eighth Utilities District.

The news conference, for which there was no advance notice, was held in a small room in Lincoln Center minutes before the Board of Directors convened its regular meeting at 8 p.m. in the hearing room nearby.

"As far as I'm concerned another incident like this one will not occur under my command," said Harold Topliff, chief of the Eighth District Fire Department.

Town Fire Chief John Rivosca called the incident "unfortunate" and "isolated" and said the citizens of Manchester will find "full cooperation among the troops."

The confrontation between the two departments occurred during continually strained relations between the town and district over the issue of fire protection in the Buckland area, which is within the district's jurisdiction.

The district plans to build a second fire station to serve the area within 500 feet of a town-owned station built when Buckland residents were petitioning to join the district.

Weinberg said at the outset of the news conference that the March 26 confrontation at 277 Adams St., in which a town deputy fire chief struck a district volunteer firefighter in the culmination of tense exchanges, was an isolated incident in the midst of a professional relationship in which both departments consistently consider the health and welfare of town citizens.

She said that two hours afterwards, both departments were cooperating in fighting a grass fire and that more recently town firefighters from the Buckland firehouse stationed themselves in the district firehouse when district firefighters were occupied fighting a fire.

District President Joyner said the chiefs have assured him and Mayor Weinberg that "it will never happen again."

"We are sorry that (Town Deputy Chief William) Griffin is receiving a reprimand for this," Joyner said.

In an April 1 letter made public at the conference, town Chief Rivosca wrote to Griffin: "I must strongly object to your behavior in reaction to being jostled and verbally abused by an Eighth Utilities District firefighter. I can understand how your emotions got the best of you after being ignored and abused during the course of events at the scene, but the striking of another individual cannot be excused."

The letter was released along with a report from Rivosca to General Manager Robert B. Weiss on the events at the fire, a sequence which began when a police dispatcher mistakenly sent the town fire department to a fire that was in the district.

According to Rivosca's report to Weiss, it was a couple of exchanges between Assistant Chief Paul Gworek of the district department and Griffin that preceded the incident in which Griffin struck Raymond Fredericks, a district firefighter, as Griffin was leaving the scene.

Rivosca said in the report that his son, town firefighter John Rivosca Jr., pulled Griffin and Gworek apart after Gworek grabbed Griffin.

Japan moves fast to appease critics

By J. L. Battenfeld
United Press International

TOKYO — The Japanese government, facing deteriorating relations with the United States over a mounting trade imbalance, said today it will send a special envoy to Washington to explain its policies to U.S. officials.

The Foreign Ministry announcement came as top officials criticized a bill passed by a U.S. Senate committee, saying it is "discriminatory" and liable to harm overall relations between the two allies.

A ministry official said Reishi Teshima, deputy foreign minister for economic affairs, will leave Thursday for Washington "to explain the Japanese position to the U.S. administration and Congress in view of recent moves in the Congress."

The hasty dispatch of Teshima, the Foreign Ministry's ranking trade official, followed increasingly aggressive protectionist measures by the U.S. Congress and unusually blunt Japanese reactions.

Japanese officials accused Congress of ignoring their efforts to foster more open trade and said they were doing their best to ease the escalating conflict.

The latest irritant in relations between the trading partners was a bill passed by the Senate Finance Committee Tuesday calling for retaliatory steps if the $27 billion U.S. trade deficit with Japan is not reduced.

Chief Cabinet Secretary Takao Fujinami, the principal government spokesman, said the bill "is not only a discriminatory bill singling out Japan but also a threat to the entire free trade system itself."

"The government of Japan strongly hopes, for the sake of good bilateral relations between Japan and the United States as well as for the development of world trade, that the bill will not pass the U.S. Congress," Fujinami said.

Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, who has been trying to balance U.S. demands against pressure from Japanese manufacturers and their political backers, told reporters the congressional actions were "very severe." Kyodo news service said.

The committee voted 12-4 to enable Reagan to restrict enough Japanese imports to compensate for the 25 percent increase in automobiles Japan is expected to sell in the United States in the next year. The legislation would give the president one year to persuade the Japanese to eliminate "unfair trade practices."

The actions also were criticized today by Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe on the floor of the Diet, Japan's parliament.

"I extremely regret that the U.S. Congress still does not understand the efforts and achievements shown so far by Japan," he said.

Senior officials said Tuesday Nakasone had promised concessions to the United States in the telecommunications field, but he has come under sharp criticism from leaders of his Liberal Democratic Party who say he acted without consulting political and business leaders.

Nakasone, who plans to announce a new trade package next week that will meet many of the U.S. demands, ordered a meeting of senior government and ruling party leaders Thursday to rally support for the steps.

The United States is seeking improved access to Japanese markets, particularly in the fields of telecommunications, electronics, forestry products, medical equipment and pharmaceuticals.

A group of teachers from Cheney Tech in Manchester wave signs this morning on their way to picket the Capitol. The teachers were demonstrating to draw attention to union contract talks, which have been stalled since last July 1.

By Susan Vaughn

HARTFORD — Several hundred instructors from the state's 20 vocational schools conducted a one-day walkout today and picketed in front of the Capitol to draw attention from legislators to their stalled union contract.

All the schools — including Howell Cheney Regional Vocational Technical School in Manchester — were closed officially at about 9 a.m. by Education Commissioner Gerald Tirozzi. Students who had arrived at school as usual had to be sent home.

More than 30 instructors from Cheney Tech formed a picket line in front of the school this morning prior to leaving for the Capitol at about 9 a.m.

With hundreds of teachers picketing outside, Gov. William A.

O'Neill told reporters at the Capitol in Hartford that the strike was illegal and the state would seek an injunction ordering the teachers back to work.

"It's an illegal strike, they're breaking the law by striking," said O'Neill, who said he would meet with union representatives. "I would hope that they would go back to work and get this issue settled."

"It's breaking the law, whether it's one day or a week or an hour," said O'Neill, who added that he would leave it to the State Board of Education "to look seriously" at possible disciplinary action against the strikers.

Some 1,030 teachers from state vocational schools are represented by the state Vocational Federation of Teachers, Local 1797, which is affiliated with the Connecticut Federation of State Teachers and the American Federation of Teachers, said union Vice President Ronald Tabellione, who was at the picket line at the Capitol.

Cheney Tech principal Lawrence Terardi told the Herald this morning that he would like to talk to the press but had been ordered not to. He referred questions to the state Department of Education.

The state education representative could not be reached for comment.

The teachers have been working since last July 1 on an extension of the previous two-year contract, which went into effect in July 1982, Tabellione said. In December 1984, the union membership overwhelmingly rejected by a 5-1 ratio the state Board of Education's offer of a 5 percent pay raise in each of two years, Tabellione said.

Tabellione said the purpose of today's demonstration was to "get sympathy from legislators." But he said that the teachers were not trying to hamper the negotiation process, which has been going on since last April.

The negotiators for the union and the state Board of Education met as recently as Tuesday, Tabellione said.

One of the major problems for the vocational teachers' union, said Tabellione, is that their contract does not allow binding arbitration. The contracts of the other 36,000 teachers in the state do permit arbitration, he said.

The two-year contract package offered the vocational instructors in December was "totally unacceptable in view of 1985 being declared 'The year of the teacher' by Gov. O'Neill and Education Commissioner Gerald Tirozzi."

Post-April Fool's Day 'joke' doesn't amuse town family

By Nancy Pappas
Herald Reporter

For Bob Cormier of Llandave Street, April Fool's Day arrived two days late. So far, the practical jokes played on him have cost the family $50 — and a lot of frustration.

This morning, Cormier, owner of East Coast Carpet & Maintenance, arose at 3 and picked up two assistants at 4 in order to arrive at Willington by 5 a.m. Unfortunately, the estate where he was to clean 10 carpets, three couches and five chairs simply did not exist.

When he arrived back in Manchester, Cormier's phone began ringing incessantly. Within an hour, he had received 11 calls from people asking to buy the Pontiac Trans Am or the extra-large pool table they'd seen advertised in this morning's Hartford Courant.

But the Cormiers don't own a pool table or a Pontiac. And they never placed those classified advertisements in the Courant.

"I can't imagine who would play such nasty jokes on us," said Cormier's wife, Darlene. "But it's someone who knows us. They gave our unlisted phone number in the ad. They gave our correct names and address to the paper. Somebody's gone to a lot of trouble to do this."

The money Cormier would have made from the work in Willington — approximately $900 — is sorely needed, said Mrs. Cormier. Timothy Cormier, who is five months old, had stomach surgery in Manchester Memorial Hospital last month. The family's health insurance is only paying about 80 percent of the baby's medical expenses.

"This really hurts," Mrs. Cormier said.

The strange events began Monday, on April Fool's Day. "I got a call and the guy asked if we would go to Willington. He said he has an estate and he would like some work done," said Cormier.

It sounded like an enormous job — about 10 rooms of carpet to be cleaned, a large tile floor to be stripped and waxed, and a large amount of furniture to be shampooed.

"The guy wanted to know if I could get there Wednesday. If not, I'll get someone else," he said. And he wanted me there by 5 a.m.," Cormier said.

None of this seemed particularly suspicious to Cormier, who says that commercial accounts frequently set such deadlines. "And he was asking all the right kinds of questions, like what we charge per square foot, and so on. For a while, I even thought it was a competitor, trying to check out my prices."

The man, who gave his name as Henderson, gave specific directions to the estate on Parsonage Road. But he would not give a telephone number. "He said he was on the road a lot, and there wouldn't be anyone at the home where we were going to do the work. I started wondering then. But we needed the work, so I accepted on his terms."

Cormier and two assistants went out to Willington this morning and drove around for an hour trying to find the home. Then they returned to Manchester between 6:30 and 7.

The State Police in Stafford Springs — who double as town police officers in Willington — later confirmed that the Henderson home at 92 Parsonage Road does not exist.

But Cormier must pay his two workers for the time spent on this wild goose chase. He has to pay for gas in his equipment truck, and for gas in the car of one of his workers.

"The guy wanted to know if I could get there Wednesday. If not, I'll get someone else," he said. And

Bone buffs laud find

FAIRFIELD (UPI) — The chance discovery of several human skeletons buried beneath a backyard has convinced local history buffs that the site is a hidden Indian burial ground.

The chief state medical examiner's office in Farmington ruled the bones discovered last week by a town work crew are human and "very old." Beyond that, anthropologists will have to make a determination, a spokesman said Monday.

Responding to a request from the Fairfield Historical Society, First Selectwoman Jacquelyn Durrell halted excavation work behind the Oswald House, where the remains were found.

State Curator Christopher Nevins said the bones probably are the remains of pre-colonial American Indians and the site could be a burial ground.

"This is a logical site for a burial ground. This was once a knoll bordering a freshwater marsh. This is what we'll base our thinking on as we move forward," he said.

Public works heavy equipment operator Richard Knutson found the first bone as he started excavating for expanded public library parking behind the Oswald House.

Knutson and co-workers spent an hour sifting through the dirt, and found dozens of bones and bone fragments. The pieces were dry and brittle, and "fell apart when we picked them up," he said.

Israel frees prisoners from Ansar camp

By David Zenlon
United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli troops entered a Shiite Moslem village in southern Lebanon today, rounded up more than 300 people for questioning and took some prisoners, security reports from the scene said.

United Nations officials said the Israelis entered the village of Chehbiyeh shortly after 6:30 a.m., rounded up the men and began searching homes and shops.

"Many were taken prisoner. We still do not have exact numbers," a security source said quoting reports from southern Lebanon.

The same source said more than 100 prisoners were released by the Israelis on their way to Sidon from the detention camp at Ansar which the Israelis are dismantling as part of the military withdrawal from southern Lebanon.

Lebanon. The Israelis, however, have already transported another 1,200 of Ansar inmates to a new detention camp inside Israel. They are suspected of involvement in attacks on Israeli troops in southern Lebanon.

The fighting in Sidon began more than 10 days ago after a revolt within the "Lebanese Forces" Christian militia against President Amin Gemayel's pro-Syrian policies.

A unit of U.N. troops from Ghana was in the village, 10 miles east of the port of Tyre, he said. There were no immediate reports of violence or casualties.

The search coincided with the dismantling by the Israeli army of its Ansar prison camp in preparation for its withdrawal from southern Lebanon. In Beirut, the Cabinet was summoned for its weekly meeting as some 300 Lebanese troops awaited orders to move into Sidon in an effort to halt intense fighting between Christian and Moslem militias.

Military sources said fighting which has killed more than 63 people, including 30 Palestinian refugees, and left thousands homeless, continued in the port city throughout the night and most of this morning.

The Israeli army set up the camp in Ansar after it invaded Lebanon in 1982 to oust the Palestine Liberation Organization and most of the original detainees were Palestinians. The sprawling facility is being dismantled as part of Israel's ongoing withdrawal from Lebanon.

An army statement said the 1,200 would remain incarcerated because they "took an active part in activities against Israel," and their release at this time could endanger Israeli Defense Forces and Lebanese citizens.

The inmates shouted, "Khomenei, Khomenei, God is one," as they were transferred, invoking the name of Iran's Shiite leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomenei.

The transfers and releases are part of a move to dismantle the camp as Israeli troops withdraw from southern Lebanon, which they invaded in 1982 to oust the Palestine Liberation Organization.

In Beirut, Gilles Peyrolles, 32, became the seventh Westerner to be freed after a spate of kidnappings this month, ending a weeklong detention by a leftist group of Christians and Moslems — the Lebanese Armed Revolutionary Forces.

Four Americans, two French diplomats and a U.N.-employed journalist are still missing. A Dutch Jesuit priest was found dead Sunday near where he was abducted in the Bekaa Valley 14 days earlier.

"The inmates shouted, 'Khomenei, Khomenei, God is one,' as they were transferred, invoking the name of Iran's Shiite leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomenei."

The trucker's trucker

John Chamberlain has a serious case of white-line fever. The Westminster, Md., trucker has logged more than 2 million miles without an accident and was named trucker of the year by the American Trucking Association.

Vice President George Bush presented the award, a silver cup, to Chamberlain and Chamberlain gave Bush a toy truck.

"He seemed very excited about it because he could give it to his grandson," Chamberlain said.

The 45-year-old driver for Giant Food Inc. says a good attitude is the key to his perfect record. "I have respect for my equipment, my company, the trucking industry," he said. "You gotta care a lot. Practice also is vital. If you don't stay with it like an athlete, you have a tendency to wander off. If you find yourself doing something wrong, you work at it so it doesn't happen again."

Chamberlain said he hopes to log another million perfect miles before he retires. "I will be glad to try to finish my career without a driving accident," he said. "It would be super if I could."

Diplomat for hire

Jeanne Kirkpatrick, who just quit as ambassador to the United Nations, will have a busy and profitable career on the lecture circuit. She signed an exclusive contract with an agency for a series of speaking engagements.

Don Walker, president of the Harry Walker Inc. speakers bureau, said her fees will rank with those of the most sought-after speakers in the world today, including former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who gets about $20,000 a shot.

"Of the 50 speaking engagements we plan to fill during the first year, we have already booked Dr. Kirkpatrick for 40 within a matter of only 10 days," Walker said. "The forums include corporations, trade associations, universities and community groups throughout the United States as well as overseas."

Also, the former ambassador was expected to switch her political affiliation from Democrat to Republican at a news conference today. Republican leaders have been trying for a long time to get her into the fold in name as well as in spirit.

Semi-retirement for Prince

The forecast for Prince's purple rain is low and far between. With a typical air of mystery, Prince has announced through his manager that he will not be touring for "an indefinite number of years" after Sunday's concert in the Orange Bowl in Miami.

His manager, Steve Fargnoli, said, "I asked Prince what he planned to do. He told me, 'I'm going to look for the ladder.' So I asked him what that meant. All he said was, 'Sometimes it snows in April.'"

On Prince's new studio album, "Around the World in A Day," scheduled for April 22 release, there is a song titled "The Ladder" that Prince co-wrote with his father. The current "Purple Rain" tour has taken Prince and the Revolution to more than 30 cities and been seen by more than 1.6 million people.

Directors amend law on noise

By Alex Girelli
Herald Reporter

By a vote of 2 to 1, with one abstention, the Board of Directors Tuesday night changed the anti-noise ordinance approved last month to provide that trash collections will not be exempt from its restrictions until after 6 a.m.

Directors Stephen T. Penny and Kenneth Tedford unsuccessfully held out for a provision that would have allowed trash collectors to pick up trash at schools and in industrial zones as early as 5 a.m. without having to stay within the noise limits set by the ordinance. Tedford and Penny, both Democrats, voted against the amended measure.

VINCENT DIANA, RIGHT, ADMINISTERS THE OATH TO THOMAS H. FERGUSON

GOP's Ferguson joins board

Thomas H. Ferguson swore Tuesday night to support the Town Charter and to discharge the duties of a town director to the best of his abilities. Then he took a seat beside his Republican colleagues to participate in his first Board of Directors meeting.

Ferguson, 27, did not speak during the three-and-a-half-hour meeting. But he did join in casting votes, none of them divided along party lines.

The directors suspended their rules of procedure to hear a letter of resignation submitted Tuesday by Peter DiRosa, whose seat Ferguson assumed — both figuratively and literally — at the board after the oath was administered.

Director James Fogarty, board secretary, read the letter of resignation in which DiRosa said once again that he has not abandoned politics. "I will follow with great interest, your work," DiRosa said to his former fellow directors.

"Referring to a quotation by Mark Twain, he said, 'The reports of my death are greatly exaggerated.'"

Weinberg asked General Manager Robert Weiss to prepare a letter for her signature thanking DiRosa for his work as a director. She said only those who have served as directors know the amount of work that is involved.

Republican Director William Diana said that DiRosa, in addition to being a fellow director, was a friend. "He can be proud of his work and his accomplishments on the board," Diana said.

DiRosa resigned as a result of conflicts with some of the leadership of the Republican Party, particularly Republican Town Chairman Curtis Smith.

Local 991 contract is approved

The Board of Directors Tuesday night approved a contract agreement between the town and a municipal employees' union that will give about 100 public workers a 7 percent increase in pay over each of the next two years.

The contract with Local 991 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees also provides for a 6 1/2 percent pay increase retroactive to July 1, 1984.

The contract also calls for an increase in the employees' meal allowance from $2.50 to $3.25, establishment of a dental insurance plan effective Jan. 1, 1986, and the upgrading of two union positions.

In other business Tuesday, the directors:

- Voted to sell Russell A. Reiss and Leonard M. Lazar a lot in the Buckland Industrial Park for $125,000. The two men, who own the General Digital Corp. of East Hartford, plan to build a 21,756-square-foot facility for the manufacture of computer parts and systems.
- Voted to condemn 13 parcels to provide easements for reconstruction of a trunk sewer from the Porter Street area to downtown.
- Authorized town General Manager Robert H. Weiss to sign an agreement with the state for the reconstruction of Vernon Street and Vernon Street West.
- Agreed to award Gary Rautenberg of 129 Hemlock Street $5,759 for damage to his property that resulted from a sewer backup in February.
- Agreed to award Varsha Choksi of Glastonbury $2,784 for damage to her car sustained in a collision last year with a town-owned vehicle.
- Revised the job description for a working foreman in the Building Maintenance Department.
- Approved an additional appropriation of $60,000 to the police budget that will be funded by charges for special services.
- Appropriated $63,000 to the town's General Fund for social service aid. The state will reimburse the town for 98 percent of the cost.
- Appropriated $1,732,799 for the Porter Street sewer reconstruction project. The state will pay for 85 percent of the cost of the project.
- And tabled action on a proposal to allocate $7,250 to the town's fire reserve fund for the rehabilitation of a rescue truck.

Multi-Circuits is subject of complaint at meeting

Complaints about the operation of the Multi-Circuits Inc. plant on Harrison Street — a perennial problem for the Board of Directors — surfaced again Tuesday night.

Park Street resident Charles Bruder, who owns a house at 41-43 Holl St. near the company's circuit-board manufacturing plant, asked the directors during a meeting in Lincoln Center to intercede with the Zoning Board of Appeals. The ZBA gives Multi-Circuits carte blanche to do what it wants despite agreements the firm has made with the town, he charged.

Bruder referred to an agreement Multi-Circuits made to limit its expansion when the town sold the former Park Division garage at Harrison and East Center streets to the company.

Bruder said it took 14 months to complete the agreement and that part of it was designed to limit expansion to 1,000 square feet. He said the ZBA had permitted the company to expand by 750 additional square feet on the grounds that a hardship was involved.

He said that now the firm has been permitted another 240 square feet for a boiler room.

"Referring to a quotation by Mark Twain, he said, 'The reports of my death are greatly exaggerated.'"

Weinberg asked General Manager Robert Weiss to prepare a letter for her signature thanking DiRosa for his work as a director. She said only those who have served as directors know the amount of work that is involved.

Multi-Circuits is subject of complaint at meeting

Complaints about the operation of the Multi-Circuits Inc. plant on Harrison Street — a perennial problem for the Board of Directors — surfaced again Tuesday night.

Park Street resident Charles Bruder, who owns a house at 41-43 Holl St. near the company's circuit-board manufacturing plant, asked the directors during a meeting in Lincoln Center to intercede with the Zoning Board of Appeals. The ZBA gives Multi-Circuits carte blanche to do what it wants despite agreements the firm has made with the town, he charged.

Bruder referred to an agreement Multi-Circuits made to limit its expansion when the town sold the former Park Division garage at Harrison and East Center streets to the company.

Bruder said it took 14 months to complete the agreement and that part of it was designed to limit expansion to 1,000 square feet. He said the ZBA had permitted the company to expand by 750 additional square feet on the grounds that a hardship was involved.

He said that now the firm has been permitted another 240 square feet for a boiler room.

Directors to discuss buying former church for shelter

By Bill Vingello
Herald Reporter

The Board of Directors may decide later this month if town officials should begin the process of purchasing a former church on Main Street for a permanent shelter for homeless people.

A shelter search committee presented the directors Tuesday night with three resolutions that would allow town officials to purchase the former church at 466 Main St. — one of two Main Street buildings that town and church officials have been eyeing as possible shelter sites.

The first resolution would simply allow the town to purchase a building for a shelter. The second would allow town General Manager Robert B. Weiss to apply for a grant and the third would name the town's Human Services Department as the agency responsible for developing plans for a permanent shelter.

The directors said during their meeting Tuesday in Lincoln Center that they will discuss the resolutions at a special meeting planned for later this month. A date for the meeting has not yet been set.

Directors of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches said earlier this week that they favor the former church over the other possible site — the former Gammons Hauglund Co. building at 395 Main St. — because it is more accessible and is larger. The estimated costs of buying and rehabilitating the church building are also estimated to be less, said James Meek, vice president of programs and finance at MACC.

MACC CURRENTLY SHELTERS homeless people in town in different area churches and operates a soup kitchen, partly with funds from a $53,000 grant from the state Department of Human Resources.

Under the terms of the first resolution drafted by the shelter committee, the purchase of a shelter site would depend upon the town securing an $88,000 grant from the state Department of Housing to cover two-thirds of the cost of purchasing and rehabilitating the building.

The town would use the money to provide housing for people on low to moderate incomes. Director of Human Services Hanna Marcus said at a shelter committee meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The remaining one-third of the funds needed to purchase the building would be generated by MACC.

MACC has already applied for a $150,000 grant from the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving.

After the town purchased the building, it would then transfer the deed to MACC which, according to the proposal, would operate the shelter on a "continuous basis."

THE TRANSFER WOULD probably include a clause specifying that MACC could use the building only for sheltering and feeding the homeless so as not to jeopardize the grant, officials have said.

The resolution also states that MACC would be permitted to seek funds from the town each year to "offset any anticipated operating deficits of the emergency shelter."

Weiss estimated that MACC would require between $15,000 and $25,000 annually from the town.

According to a recommended timetable developed by the shelter committee, the plan submitted by the developing agency — the Human Services Department — under the terms of the third resolution must include a description of the area, information about nearby streets and available utilities; a list of any families and businesses to be displaced by the project; a description of the property to be purchased and local zoning information.

Members of the shelter committee reported Tuesday afternoon that zoning in the area would permit a homeless shelter at either 466 or 395 Main St.

The timetable suggested that the plan then be submitted to the local planning agency and housing authority for comments.

The plan would then go to a public hearing and finally to the Human Services Department for modification and approval, according to the timetable.

Estimates released

Town officials have released estimates on the cost of purchasing and renovating for a shelter the former Gammons Hauglund Co. building at 395 Main St. and a former church at 466 Main St.

The estimates and projected revenue sources are as follows:

Costs

Purchasing costs: 466 Main St., $132,000; Gammons, $133,000.

Rehabilitation costs for temporary occupancy: 466 Main St., $28,320; Gammons, $38,750.

Permanent rehabilitation costs: 466 Main St., $31,510; Gammons, $57,845.

Soup kitchen operating costs: 466 Main St., $65,090; Gammons, $114,540.

Total capital expenditure: 466 Main St., $257,120; Gammons, $344,140.

Initial capital required: 466 Main St., $188,000-$263,000; Gammons, $188,667-$263,667.

Future capital requirements: 466 Main St., $6,868,120; Gammons, $80,473-$155,473.

Revenue projections

Department of Housing grant: 466 Main St., $88,000; Gammons, $88,667.

Hartford Foundation for Public Giving grant: Both between $75,000 and $150,000.

Local fund-raising: $25,000 in either case.

Penny charges report is not complete

By Bill Vingello
Herald Reporter

Deputy Mayor Stephen T. Penny Tuesday night criticized Manchester's General Manager Robert B. Weiss after hearing the town shelter search committee's proposal to try to purchase a building for a homeless shelter in Manchester.

Weiss was a member of the committee, which also comprised several directors and human services officials.

Penny said that when the board appointed the committee at its last meeting, he had asked that the members complete a comprehensive report detailing alternatives from which board members could choose in making decisions on sheltering homeless people.

"When can I expect to receive your report?" Penny asked Weiss, glancing at his watch.

Penny said the committee had been appointed to complete an objective report. But he charged that the committee's report Tuesday night had been "determined by an administration limited to site acquisition and year-round operation."

"We're further down the road than any of us thought we would be," he said.

Responding to the charge, Weiss said that he had understood that the town would have to rely upon the volunteer services of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches to operate a shelter and that MACC is only interested in operating a year-round shelter.

He said he would be willing to answer any written questions from members of the board.

"We carried out what we understood to be our assignment," Weiss said in an interview after the meeting.

He said he thought that the board had appointed the committee to investigate alternative locations for a shelter — not alternatives to a shelter.

Committee Chairman Eleanor Colman said she apologized to the board if members thought that the committee had not acted properly, and that more specific directives would have been helpful when the committee was appointed.

"I want to know what you want," Colman said to Penny as she was leaving the meeting in the Lincoln Center hearing room.

Penny said after the meeting that he called the state's "game" in sheltering the homeless.

He said the state turned the decision of how to best shelter the homeless over to municipalities, and then appropriated funds to act in the process.

But the restrictions that accompany the funds leave the municipalities with a limited number of decisions, he said.

Weiss said that the directors have yet to clearly answer one fundamental question before they can make any definite decision on the shelter.

"Do they want to fund a year-round shelter or don't they?" he asked.

THE COMMITTEE SUGGESTED that the entire process be completed within 17 days.

The town has been instrumental in providing shelter for the homeless for three years. The first shelter was the Bennett Junior High School building on Main Street, now a housing complex for the elderly. Then it was moved to the East Side Recreation Center.

For the past year, MACC has been providing overnight shelter for the homeless, moving them from church to church each month while officials seek a permanent shelter.

Crestfield challenges labor board ruling

By Kathy Garmus
Herald Reporter

The Crestfield-Fenwood nursing home will challenge a National Labor Relations Board recommendation that would set the stage for the start of contract negotiations with a health-care workers' union, the attorney for the nursing home said Tuesday.

Hartford attorney Alan I. Scheer, who is representing the management of the Vernon Street home, said that challenges to the hearing officer's recommendations will be filed with the five-member labor board in Washington, D.C.

In a report released last week, hearing officer Mark W. Engstrom recommended the dismissal of objections filed by the nursing home to certification of the New England Health Care Employees Union, District 1199, as the bargaining agent for some of the home's employees.

The objections centered around a move last summer by District 1199's parent union to disaffiliate from a union that represented retail and wholesale store employees. In a Feb. 11 hearing on the objections, Scheer contended that the disaffiliation was carried out illegally and that Crestfield-Fenwood employees were confused as to what union they were actually voting on.

Workers at the home voted 46 to 40 on Dec. 6 to have District 1199 represent them.

Larry Fox, secretary-treasurer of the union, said Tuesday that union leaders would meet with members today to discuss what action to take. Fox said he wanted negotiations to start as soon as possible.

A 12-member union negotiating committee has already been selected, he said.

"We're hoping that they'll sit down and negotiate," he said.

Fox said he had talked with Scheer about the union's desire to begin negotiations as soon as possible. Asked about the conversation, Scheer expressed surprise, then refused to comment on whether any union official had contacted him.

Scheer said contract negotiations would be inappropriate "while these questions are outstanding," referring to plans to challenge the hearing officer's recommendations.

If certified, District 1199 would represent nurse's aides, dietary workers, housekeeping and maintenance employees at the 155-bed home.

The December election was the second attempt by the union to organize workers at the nursing home. A bid in September 1983 failed by a 67 to 58 vote.

In both instances, the union charged that the home's administrators engaged in unfair labor practices by firing several employees active in the union drive and harassing union supporters.

A hearing on two unfair labor practice complaints filed by the union has been scheduled for April 17. One of the complaints stems from the firing of two nurse's aides in December. The other alleges a pattern of harassment of union supporters by nursing home administrators.

Area Towns In Brief

Selectmen open trash bids

BOLTON — The Board of Selectmen Tuesday opened bids from three area trash disposal firms vying for the town trash disposal contract.

The apparent lowest bidder was Waste Disposal Systems of Manchester, at $77,988 for one year or $84,484 for three years. Bids were opened at a board meeting in Community Hall.

The selectmen are scheduled to review the bids and award the contract Monday night at 8 p.m. at a special meeting at Community Hall.

G&B Trucking & Sanitation Co. of Tolland bid $105,350 for one year or $329,458 for three years. The Manchester-based Sanitary Refuse Co. bid $115,200 for one year or $359,949 for three years.

Board rejects insurance bids

BOLTON — The Board of Selectmen voted Tuesday to reject the only two bids submitted for providing town insurance.

They will invite other firms that picked up bid forms but never bid to submit bids for a new May 1 bidding deadline.

First Selectman Sandra Pierog told selectmen at Tuesday's regular meeting that the Insurance Review Board, which opened the bids Monday, found both bids inadequate. The two bidders were Goodwin, Loomis & Britton Inc. of Hartford and Volunteer Fireman Insurance Services Inc. of Wyoming, R.I.

Pierog said her recommendation to extend the deadline was based on a letter from one of the two firms that said the bid would have been more complete if the company had had more time to prepare it.

On her advice, selectmen voted to invite only those firms that already have the forms to submit bids the second time around.

The delay will force the Board of Finance to estimate the amount to include in the insurance budget for the new fiscal year that begins July 1. Except for the insurance budget, the finance board's budget deliberations are nearly complete.

At Pierog's recommendation, the selectmen voted Tuesday to propose a $50,000 insurance budget for fiscal 1985-86, a figure Pierog said she projected from increases experienced by other towns. Insurance premiums are costing the town just under $34,000 in the current fiscal year.

Pierog's estimate for next year is subject to the finance board's approval and the approval of residents at the annual town meeting May 13.

Cases reported in Illinois

Officials probe milk contamination

By Susan Kuczko
United Press International

CHICAGO — More than 500 cases of food poisoning from Salmonella bacteria could have been caused by infected cows, contaminated milking machines or foreign substances in the cartons, health officials investigating the outbreak say.

Authorities said the number of reported incidents of food poisoning had risen to 579 by Tuesday night with 304 confirmed cases.

Salmonella is usually not fatal but can be especially serious for small children and older and infirm adults. Symptoms are cramps, diarrhea and heavy vomiting.

The tainted milk appears to have been properly pasteurized, but the cause could have been infection in the cows, contamination in the milking machines or the wax lining of the cardboard cartons, said Mary Huck, spokeswoman for the Illinois Department of Public Health.

The outbreak, confined largely to the Chicago metropolitan area, stretched as far north as Rockford, Ill., and as far west as Scott County, Iowa.

None of the poisonings appeared to be serious.

"We don't have any reports of anybody in critical condition," Huck said Tuesday, adding that the poisoning is normally not fatal but its symptoms can last up to 10 days.

Officials from the federal Food and Drug Administration and the Atlanta-based Centers for Disease Control assisted officials trying to find the cause of the poisoning, which is limited to Bluebird brand 2 percent milk sold in Jewel Food Stores, Huck said.

The milk, which was sold in one-gallon cardboard cartons and carried a March 29 expiration date, was produced by Hillfarm Dairy in west suburban Melrose Park.

More than 200 cases of the bacterial infection, which has an incubation period of six to 72 hours, over the weekend, and Scott County health officials say they are waiting on confirmation for two more cases. Three of the people remain hospitalized, officials said.

Four cases of Salmonella have been reported in the Rockford area this week, said Virginia Hartzluk, director of communicable diseases for the Winnebago County Health Department. None of the cases was serious.

Three Scott County, Iowa, residents were infected with the intestinal bacteria, which has an incubation period of six to 72 hours, over the weekend, and Scott County health officials say they are waiting on confirmation for two more cases. Three of the people remain hospitalized, officials said.

Civil rights group says children shot during unrest

By Brendon Boyle
United Press International

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — An anti-apartheid group released a report accusing South African police of firing indiscriminately on children as young as 5-years-old during violent unrest earlier this year.

In another development, police said Tuesday that a 1-year-old infant burned to death when black militants firebombed a shack at Veeplaas, near the southern coastal city of Port Elizabeth.

A hearing on two unfair labor practice complaints filed by the union has been scheduled for April 17. One of the complaints stems from the firing of two nurse's aides in December. The other alleges a pattern of harassment of union supporters by nursing home administrators.

"An extraordinary picture emerges of children being shot at quite indiscriminately — just in passing, as it were," Harris said.

Many of the affidavits tell of adults and children being shot from moving police armored trucks as they played or moved about their gardens.

"My son, T, who is 6 years old, went outside to fetch water," one parent said in the report. "When he was outside, I heard shooting. I rushed outside and saw T falling down. I saw that he was full of blood. I looked up and saw a Hippo (armored truck) going around the corner."

Other affidavits told of 5-year-old children being shot as they played, or death vigils being broken up by police entering

Cap wants Soviet apology

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who has already insisted Moscow apologize for the killing of an Army intelligence officer, said today compensation for the family of the victim is "absolutely required."

"We think it's vital there be some form of compensation for Mrs. Nicholson," Weinberger said of the wife of slain Army Maj. Arthur Nicholson.

"There's no way you can compensate a family like that in any material way. But on the other hand they have been deprived of parental and other support and some kind of compensation for such a brutal act seems to me to be absolutely required."

Weinberger, in an interview on "ABC's Good Morning America" program, stepped up his criticism of the Soviet Union and said it was important that those responsible "aren't rewarded" as was the fighter pilot who shot down a Korean Air Lines passenger plane in 1983.

OPINION

And now there's a third option for Sen. Weicker

It's time to update and revise our advice on what Sen. Lowell Weicker is doing about his political career.

The reason is the rebirth of an old idea which, we are told reliably, tempts him strongly. We'll call it the emergence of Option 3.

First, we'll admit to assuring readers for the last two years that Weicker is the likely Republican candidate for governor in 1986. We have been confident in that belief, based on information we still trust. We have dismissed Weicker's repeated outbursts about wanting only to "go ahead" with the job in Washington and leave the political decisions for later.

Please don't misunderstand. We remain convinced that a Weicker campaign for governor next year is very possible. Congressman Stewart McKinney, a longtime Weicker watcher and ally, is sure it will happen, as he told us the other night in New Britain. Paul "P. J." Mamroti, a former New Britain mayor and now part of the "in" crowd at the White House as a frequent consultant to President Reagan, is equally sure and probably delighted at the prospect of Weicker's leaving the capital.

We have been persuaded, however, that Weicker really has not made up his mind. His indecision as the weeks go by is making his chief advocate, GOP state Chairman Tom D'Amore,

Capitol Comments

rather anxious.

BUT WEICKER HASN'T DECIDED on going for governor because that is just one of three ways he can move. Right now it is Option 1. The others are further down the road.

Option 2 is seeking a fourth term in the Senate in 1988. Weicker, by his own inclination, may say he has had enough of the Senate. For now, though, a bid for re-election must remain as a choice.

Option 3 — the one that is moving up in Weicker's future — is running for the Republican nomination for president in 1988.

Weicker mounted a campaign for president in 1979 but called it off a few weeks later when he found that he could not count on even a favorite endorsement by his home-state GOP. Now, we are told on excellent authority, he is seriously considering it again — this time with a state party organization more friendly to him.

He, of course, says only that he is keeping all of his options open. That was his answer when we called him at his home last Saturday, interrupting his lunch to ask for comment on our information. At least he didn't develop a coughing spell or hang up. And Weicker can be short when he is annoyed.

For all of his reluctance to talk about his plans, Weicker has three political action committees on the books already. One is national in scope, one is based in the state and the other is his Senate committee. John Becker of Greenwich chairs the state PAC. Together, the three committees constitute the potential for a great springboard if the senator chooses to use them that way, for a presidential bid in 1988.

ONE TIDBIT OF INFORMATION Weicker offered during our telephone conversation was that he intends to stick with the Republican party. When he could not be sure whether he could get the GOP nomination for his third Senate term in 1982, Weicker flirted openly with going independent and running anyway. But that is history now. The senator is often critical of his party and some of its leaders, including Ronald Reagan, but he says he will remain within the fold.

Richard M. Diamond, Publisher
Douglas A. Bevins, Managing Editor
James P. Sacks, City Editor

He is, in fact, working to develop an image as a moderate. He is part of a clique in the Senate of Republicans who are not comfortable with the Reagan brand of conservatism. And Weicker continues to make a conscious effort to move away from the strictly liberal end of the GOP spectrum, where he has sometimes been pegged.

He is also hopping on issues where the potential for building a nationwide constituency is present. Anyone watching Weicker, in shirtsleeves, conducting a Senate subcommittee hearing at the University of Hartford last week could see him in action. The overflow crowd of students and administrators was typical of any regional GOP event. And Weicker was nobody's man but theirs in denouncing Reagan proposals to cut back on student loans.

The senator's style, in fact, has been to go against the grain when he disagrees with the GOP administration. His critics say he has mastered the art of grabbing headlines that way. Weicker insists he calls the shots as he sees them. It is a practice that enhances his reputation for independence — a commodity he has found rewarding at the polls.

And if things go well enough for Lowell Weicker in the year ahead, Option 3 could easily become Option 1 — without necessarily ruling out the gubernatorial run in the short haul.

Will dispute at fire scene happen again?

Manchester residents have been told that it won't happen again, but we're not so sure.

A week after a town-Eighth District altercation at the scene of an Adams Street house fire, officials on both sides of the dispute acknowledged that both the town firefighters and the Eighth District firefighters were at fault. Town Fire Chief John Ryngaert reprimanded Deputy Chief William Griffin for attacking an Eighth District firefighter, and Eighth District Chief Harold Topfiff said he is considering disciplinary action against Deputy Chief Paul Gworek for his role in the events which led to the attack.

The reprimand of Griffin is appropriate. More severe disciplinary action, even though the physical assault of another person would seem to warrant it, would accomplish nothing.

A reprimand of Gworek would also be appropriate. Although there are differing accounts of what he did at the scene of the fire, it is clear he did little to control the actions of the firefighters under his command, some of whom abused town firefighters by shouting profanities.

Although both the town and Eighth District officials are sharing the blame and promising that such incidents won't be repeated, we are concerned that nothing has been done to defuse the situation which led to the inexcusable events of last week.

Unanswered in the investigations of the altercation is the question of how the Manchester Police Department dispatched the wrong fire department to the Adams Street fire. The town's fire chief calls it an "excusable error," which it may be. But dispatchers should have a foolproof system to determine the exact location of an emergency call.

Also unanswered is the question of how the two fire departments cooperate in fighting a fire. There is no evidence that last week's altercation hampered firefighting efforts, and there is agreement on both sides that firefighters cooperated fully in working to contain and extinguish the fire. But the breakdown in command outside the burning building could have led to loss of life or property. The town and the Eighth District need a formal agreement on working together, and the two departments should train and practice together. Joint drills would be a good idea.

But the biggest threat to recurrence of the nonsense of last week is the continued political game-playing by the elected and appointed officials of both the town and the Eighth District. Town attempts to interfere with Eighth District plans for building a firehouse, and Eighth District moves to "take" land for a firehouse driveway, are not the way to settle a long-standing feud.

Why must you always 'SHARE' something with me? Why can't you just TELL me something?

The last chance to get it right

To the Editor:

Students entering kindergarten in the Bolton school system in 1988 will graduate from Bolton High School in the 21st century and the third millennium of our common era. These students are already with us. The question for us is not whether we must educate them for life in the new millennium. We must. The question is "What will life in the 21st century be like for Bolton High School graduates and what kind of schooling will prepare them to make the best of it?"

The Board of Education that is elected this year, and the one that is elected in 1987, will write the policies and approve the curriculum which will shape the school system in the 1988-89 school year and beyond. This is the last chance to get it right.

The 21st century will be one of constant change. It will be a time of unparalleled prosperity for society and unparalleled insecurity for the individual. There will be a Republican society, where citizens will have to decide questions of greater importance for survival and greater technical complexity than today. The citizens will need to be able to understand the issues and make sound judgments. People will have less responsibility for meeting their own basic needs, but, as our families and other institutions break down, more responsibility for their own happiness.

Consumers will have a greater and more confusing range of choices. They will need to be able to understand detailed information about products and services. They will need to know how to play, how to keep fit and healthy. The available jobs will be primarily in highly-creative intellectual work, unskilled service work, and crafts. Workers will change jobs and careers frequently, even if they continue to work for the same company. They will need to quickly learn new skills, new concepts, and new jargon.

Class structure based on family ties will have disappeared, but the economic class structure will be even more stratified, with a shrinking middle class and more people either rich or poor.

That is what life in the 21st century will be like. Students in the Bolton schools are not now being prepared for it. In my recent report to the Excellence Committee of the Bolton Board of Education, "BHS 2001," I describe the problem with the comprehensive high school as it exists in Bolton, and then the kind of schooling that is needed. I maintain that the best education for the best is the best education for all.

Many elements of that best education are available at BHS and one can get a very good education there if one chooses. How many students do? The elimination of electives, except for the choice of a foreign language, is essential, along with the elimination of vocational training, for the best to be realized in Bolton.

Finally, everyone likes to talk about the personalization of education at Bolton High. This word has two meanings which must not be confused. To the extent that the program is personalized, students are permitted to debate their own education. It is the method of instruction that must be personalized, not the program.

Everyone learns in a different way, and teachers must be familiar enough with each student to personalize instruction. This is Bolton's great strength, and the reason why the program I have described will work here. That is my thought.

P.S. Copies of "BHS 2001" are available in all Bolton school libraries and Bentley Memorial Library.

Plerog's actions disappointing

To the Editor:

After reading the two views (the Republican and the Democratic) of the recent Sandy Plerog controversy, I would like to offer a third, that of a voter.

Although I did vote for Sandy in the last election, I do view her CONNSAVE endorsement with a degree of skepticism. It is easy to see the view that Sandy was merely concerned with the welfare of her constituents. It is equally easy to interpret her endorsement as a "political maneuver."

If Sandy's motives were indeed purely benevolent, her actions do cast doubt on her ability to act as a team player. The issue she was approached by CONNSAVE to support is important. There was, however, the opportunity for the selectmen, as a group, to show their collective support of this issue.

In my opinion, Sandy should have brought this to the attention of the other selectmen, and should have solicited their approval. The CONNSAVE endorsement should have been by the Bolton Board of Selectmen, not just one member.

Bolton's politicians deny partisan politics. Here was a perfect (but lost) opportunity to prove it. Sandy's actions were disappointing.

KGB defector helped destroy Iran communists

WASHINGTON — A true spy story worthy of John LeCarre can now be told. It's the tale of a rising young KGB agent who defected to the British and brought about the bloody extinction of Iran's communist Tudeh party a few months later.

The central figure in this story of intrigue and betrayal was Vladimir Andreyevich Kuzichkin, a 37-year-old KGB major operating out of the Soviet embassy in Tehran, Fars, in the language of Iran. Kuzichkin had been recruited at 28 into Directorate S, the most secret of all the KGB directorates and the one responsible for espionage, sabotage and assassination around the world.

Assigned to Tehran in 1977, Kuzichkin helped lead several communist efforts to overthrow the Shah. None succeeded. But when the Ayatollah Khomeini's Islamic fundamentalists seized power early in 1979, Tudeh leaders, with prodding from Kuzichkin, declared their unswerving support for the revolution.

Khomeini never really trusted the Iranian communists, but he used their administrative expertise in middle-level government positions, just as he accepted Soviet KGB advisors to help his own intelligence service.

DESPITE TWO PROMOTIONS while in Tehran, Kuzichkin grew disenchanted with the KGB. In early 1982, he contacted the British and became a double agent. He was given a radio for transmitting secret reports to his new bosses.

In June 1982, things got too hot for Kuzichkin, and he defected to the British. We don't know how, whereabouts from June until October, but in the latter month he was finally spirited to London for extensive debriefing by British intelligence.

It was a stunning coup for the British — the first known defection of a staff officer in Directorate S. Any like any clever defector, Kuzichkin had brought along his "passport" to the West: two trunkfuls full of documents on the Soviets' total domination of the Iranian communist party.

Some of Kuzichkin's documents detailed Soviet Tudeh plans to overthrow Khomeini — by assassinating him, if necessary.

The British showed a talent for manipulative treachery that would have made George Smiley blush. They secretly turned the information over to Khomeini.

Khomeini put the purloined KGB information to deadly use. Late in 1982, he began a ruthless crackdown on the Tudeh party. In January 1983, Radio Tehran was boasting of widespread executions of Tudeh members — as many as 22 in a single day.

In May 1983, Khomeini took a leaf from Stalin's primer and produced Tudeh party leaders to confess publicly that they had been spies for Moscow. The party's secretary-general, Nureddin Kianuri, outdid himself, claiming to have spied for the Soviets since 1945.

On May 4, Khomeini summoned Soviet Ambassador Vili K. Boldyrev and gave him a list of 18 embassy personnel who had been identified as KGB agents. They were given 48 hours to leave Iran.

The Soviets didn't have to ask who was responsible for their diplomatic embarrassment and the Tudeh party's disaster. They knew it was Kuzichkin.

The KGB had clearly been stunned by Kuzichkin's defection. They treated it with absolute silence — no claims of kidnapping, no protest to the British, no demand to speak with the defector. The KGB apparently hoped that Kuzichkin would keep his mouth shut if he were not subjected to public pressure. But Kuzichkin didn't keep quiet. And the result was an impressive triumph for the British secret service in their diplomatic war with the Soviet-directed communist party in a key Middle Eastern country.

Footnote: A British Embassy spokesman said, "We don't discuss intelligence matters of this kind."

U.S./World In Brief

Terrorists hit Jordanian Embassy

ROME — Arab terrorists fired a bazooka rocket at the Jordanian Embassy in a residential district today but missed the embassy and hit an adjacent apartment building, police said.

No one was injured in the attack. A man arrested by police as he tried to run away told officers he was a Palestinian belonging to the Black September organization that is hostile to King Hussein of Jordan.

Police said the man identified himself as Mimmour Ahmad, born in 1965 in the Sabra-Chatila Palestinian refugee shanty town complex on Beirut's southern outskirts.

Fuad Bitar, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization's office in Rome, said the evident aim of the attackers was to "sabotage the Jordanian-Palestinian agreement to seek a negotiated solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict."

Rightists call to nullify elections

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Rightist leaders, charging fraud and army meddling, have called on authorities to nullify an upset election victory by President Jose Napoleon Duarte's party.

Roberto d'Aubuisson, leader of the far-right Nationalist Republican Alliance, and Raul Molina Martinez of the National Conciliation Party sent a petition to the Central Election Council Tuesday demanding the vote be overturned.

The council earlier released the first official results of the legislative and mayoral elections, giving Duarte's moderate party a clear majority in all eight provinces from which results were available. Another six provinces have yet to report.

Council President Mario Samayoa, who accused the rightist leaders of "treason to the fatherland," said the three-member panel must vote today on the petition. The other two council members represent the parties of d'Aubuisson and Molina Martinez and could overrule Samayoa to nullify the election.

Car bomb rocks Irish courthouse

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — A car bomb exploded today outside the courthouse in the town of Newry, killing two people and injuring nine, police said.

Witnesses said a police Land Rover, that took the full force of the blast as it backed into the courthouse yard, was engulfed in flames. Two people — one of them a police officer — were dead on arrival at the hospital, a Belfast police spokesman said. Nine others suffered minor injuries and shock.

The car exploded without warning shortly before the magistrate's court was due to convene for the day, he said. There was no immediate claim of responsibility.

The attack came five weeks after the outlawed Irish Republican Army killed nine police officers in a mortar bomb attack on the police station in Newry, 35 miles southwest of Belfast.

Parents want gunman punished

DETROIT — An angry crowd gathered around the school where a gunman held three second-graders captive for four hours and called for immediate punishment of the suspect who suddenly freed his hostages and surrendered.

About 200 neighbors and parents Tuesday chanted, "Kill him! Kill him!" as the man was put in restraints and carried out of the Loving Elementary School on Detroit's north side. "Give him to us," shouted others.

The Detroit Free Press identified the suspect as Alvin Sanders, 19, of nearby Hamtramck, but a police spokesman refused to confirm the report. The man was being held on suspicion of felonious assault.

Dioxin-laced Times Beach folds

TIMES BEACH, Mo. — The governor has effectively dissolved the city government of Times Beach, the dioxin-poisoned community that became a symbol of the nation's hazardous waste problem.

City aldermen Tuesday voted 4-0 to legally put the small St. Louis suburb out of business. Gov. John Ashcroft signed an executive order approving the action.

Ashcroft said Marilyn Leister, former mayor of Times Beach, would be asked to serve as trustee for the city, overseeing a federal buy-out of the community and permanent relocation of residents.

Reagan meets allies on budget plan

WASHINGTON — President Reagan takes stock of his legislative priorities today with Republican congressional leaders before they head out for Easter vacation.

The president also keeps up his revolving-door schedule of foreign leaders today when Lord Carrington, the NATO secretary general, pays a visit to the Oval Office.

Earlier this week, Reagan met with Sudanese President Jaafar Numeiry and Turkish Prime Minister Turgut Ozal. Colombian President Belisario Betancur is due at the White House Thursday.

With Congress taking an Easter recess Thursday, Reagan was expected to discuss with the GOP leaders whether he will go along with their bid for a no-growth defense budget. The president wants a 1 percent increase in Pentagon spending and has not budged, at least publicly.

Convict makes bloody escape try

By Ralph Wokley
United Press International

SALT LAKE CITY — Prison officials refused to reveal if they had details of how a heavily guarded convict planned to escape after he shot his way out of the county courthouse, killing one man and wounding another.

The shooting began Tuesday when a woman slipped a gun to Ronnie Lee Gardner, 24, in the basement of the courthouse when he arrived with Utah State Prison guards for a hearing on charges he killed a bartender.

It ended on the courthouse lawn when Gardner, still handcuffed, snatched at the waist and bleeding from a bullet wound in the shoulder, surrendered to encircling police officers by flipping his gun into the air.

Two people were shot by the suspect, one fatally, and one man was briefly taken hostage, officials said.

Both Gardner and the wounded man were hospitalized in serious condition.

Police Chief Bud Willoughby said a case containing men's clothing was later found under a sink in a woman's restroom in the court building but he declined to reveal its contents.

"Obviously, they were trying to put an escape together," he said, referring to the woman accomplice, but would not say if the suitcase revealed any clues as to how the couple planned to get away.

Gov. Norm Bangert promised an investigation into security measures for transporting state prison inmates and Utah prison officials insisted there were no security slipsups that allowed Gardner to make the escape attempt.

"All policies and procedures were followed, all precautions were taken," Utah State Prison Warden Kenneth Shulsen said. "It was a situation impossible to predict."

The escape attempt began when Gardner got out of a prison vehicle in the courthouse basement and a woman slipped him a gun and he started shooting. Chief Sheriff's Deputy Charles Shepherd said.

The convict, classified by authorities as a habitual criminal, wounded bailiff Nick Kirk in the abdomen but was shot in the shoulder by one of the prison guards, Shepherd said.

Gardner then rushed into a room containing court records where he fatally shot attorney Mike Burdell in the face. The attorney "just happened to be in the area," Shepherd said.

Gardner ran up a flight of stairs, grabbed a worker filling a vending machine, stuck a gun in his ribs and said, "start walking." The worker was able to break away and flee back inside.

The suspect was quickly surrounded by police in the front lawn area of the building.

He hesitated for three or four seconds, then ultimately threw the gun up in the air. Deputy County Attorney Richard McKelvie said.

Darcy Perry, 34, Gardner's girlfriend, was arrested about six blocks away as an accomplice and her sister was also taken into custody for questioning, authorities said.

Gardner was on his way to a hearing on charges he murdered a Salt Lake City bartender in a robbery several months after he escaped from prison guards during a physical examination at a hospital last August.

Gardner has been serving prison sentences for aggravated robbery, burglary and attempted escape.

Carter urges action in Mideast

By Helen Thomas
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Former President Jimmy Carter says his successor's reluctance to take an active role in any Middle East peace process is allowing the Soviet Union and Syria to exert a greater influence in the region.

In a wide-ranging interview Tuesday with United Press International, Carter also said President Reagan has not exercised the power of U.S. diplomacy in world trouble spots and is more inclined to use military force.

"I hope he does not promote his new book, 'The Middle East: Insights into the Middle East,'" Carter said, Reagan's sitting back and relying on the status quo and the attrition of Israeli troops.

The question of talking to Palestinians was resolved in the Camp David pact, Carter said, because Egypt and Israel agreed to allow them into the negotiating process as a delegation from the occupied territories or as part of an Egyptian or Jordanian delegation.

"The Jordanians and Egyptians are highly frustrated at the unwillingness of the Reagan administration to follow up on what they consider to be quite a significant group of concessions made in the Jordanian-Palestinian negotiations."

Reagan has been more willing "to put troops in an area, rather than go to the negotiating table," Carter said. "President Reagan almost non-existent, thus allowing has not put the exercise of diplomacy and negotiation in the forefront of his effort to address troubled areas of the world."

Carter, whose foreign policy successes included the 1978 Camp David Middle East peace accords, urged Reagan to follow up on the initiatives of Jordan's King Hussein and Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak to bring Palestinians into the peace process.

Although the United States has a policy of not negotiating with the Palestine Liberation Organization unless they recognize the existence of Israel, Carter said Reagan could talk to a Jordanian-Palestinian delegation, which Hussein is urging, or designate an envoy to do so.

"My hope is that he will eventually accede to a request by Mubarak and Hussein to play a more active role," said Carter.

As a result of our misadventure in Lebanon," Carter said, the U.S. presence in the Middle East is almost non-existent, thus allowing Syrian and Soviet influence to increase there.

"We've become the enemies of almost all in the Middle East," Carter said. "A vacuum has been created by this loss of prestige... and (Syrian leader Hafez) Assad is sitting back and relying on the status quo and the attrition of Israeli troops."

Champs, Philly having a party

PHILADELPHIA — Rollie Massimo looked in need of a nice warm bed from all the celebrating he and his Villanova team did after winning the NCAA basketball championship.
Even after flying from Lexington, Ky., to Philadelphia International Airport Tuesday, busing to Center City and boarding a flatbed truck for a 10-block lunch-hour parade through downtown streets, he found his umpteenth "second wind."
"Before a crowd that packed JFK Plaza for a rally honoring the Wildcats, the bleary-eyed coach began his speech.
"It's really a pleasure and an honor for me and my team... my eyes lit up and his voice suddenly rose in volume... TO BE THE CHAMPIONS OF THE NATION."
"They did it," Massimo said. "They shot 79 percent (from the field). I told you when we left school on Wednesday that we were going to have a heckuva party. They did a heckuva job and they won the national championship."
"This win wasn't only for us — the players and the coaches and our families — but it was for Villanova University and all you people and the city of Philadelphia."
Police estimated a crowd of between 25,000 and 30,000 welcomed the Wildcats home in grand style after their stunning Monday night 66-64 upset of top-ranked Georgetown from the hands of Philadelphia.
"Isn't this something?" Massimo said after the one-hour parade and rally ended. "It's mind-boggling. I thought we'd just have a pep rally on campus. But to see the people here is a great thing for Philadelphia and Villanova."
The Wildcats prominently displayed the NCAA championship trophy, passing it from the hands of tournament MVP Ed Pinckney to Chuck Everson to assistant coach Marty Marbach.
The crowd, ranging from Villanova students with their faces painted with cats' paws, to curious office workers, held up signs that read "Cats Look Maahvelous," "Cinderella — the Shoe Fits" and "Georgetown is the Apple Fool."
Hundreds of happy students ran behind the truck on its journey through the streets.
At a jam-packed rally, the crowd warmly welcomed Massimo, his staff and players and long-time trainer Jake Nevin, confined to a wheelchair with Lou Gehrig's Disease but wearing a title-game net for a necktie.
"Whoop, Philadelphia," Pinckney said. "I definitely want to

Georgetown victim of history

By Fred Lief
United Press International

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Georgetown point guard Michael Jackson understood the terms all along.
Sunday, the day before Villanova rocked Georgetown 66-64 for the NCAA championship, he talked about the Hoyas' place in college basketball history.
"This was after Georgetown visited St. John's, 77-59, and Redmen coach Lou Carnesecca likened the Hoyas to the outstanding teams of yesteryear at San Francisco, Kentucky, UCLA and Indiana.
"I don't think we can compare ourselves with those great teams," Jackson said. "We must be concerned with Villanova, because if we lose we will not be compared with those other teams."
There is no question that Georgetown lost. There is question as to how Georgetown will be regarded.

The Hoyas have been to the Final Four three of the last four years. They entered the tournament ranked No. 1 and were aiming to become the first school to win consecutive championships since UCLA repeated in 1973.
At a time when national titles are harder to come by than in the early '70s, Georgetown's accomplishments are all the more impressive. Scholarship reductions have prevented schools from stockpiling talent. Blacks have made their way into athletic programs in the South. New conferences have formed and talent has been dispersed.
The Hoyas went 35-3 this year. They posted their early schedule with the likes of Hawaii-Loa and Southern Connecticut, but spent the season in the Big East Conference, arguably the toughest there it is.
They turned pressure defense into a lethal art. They combined the muscle of Patrick Ewing in the pivot with the elegant perimeter play of Bill Martin, David Wingate, Reggie Williams and Jackson Under coach John Thompson. Discipline and dedication became the team's insignia.
Monday night Georgetown ran into a team riding a star — a super 'Nova' at that Villanova shot 79 percent from the floor, best ever in an NCAA Tournament. In the second half the Wildcats made 9-of-10 shots from the field and 19-of-23 from the line. They hardly could have done better with radar.
Yet, against a very sound team playing astonishingly well, the Hoyas lost by 2 points, claiming to the finish. A lesser team confronted with such a Villanova squad may have been blown out of the Ohio border and lost by 20 points.
"We might not have won the ballgame," Ewing said. "But I still think we're number one."

Bill to stop franchise moves approved

WASHINGTON — The sponsor of a bill passed Tuesday by the Senate Commerce Committee said the measure giving the NFL power to block teams from leaving their hometowns "re-establishes order out of chaos" in professional sports.
The bill, approved 10-6, would give the NFL and several other professional sports leagues limited antitrust exemptions in the areas of franchise movement and revenue sharing, and allow individual leagues to establish guidelines for restricting owners from moving their teams.
If it finally becomes law, the measure would apply to the NFL and U.S. Football League, and basketball, hockey and soccer leagues — but not baseball.
Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., who sponsored the bill along with fellow Missouri Sen. Thomas Eagleton, a Democrat, said the legislation "re-establishes some order out of what has become chaos" in professional sports leagues.

Farrow, a former champion on the junior circuit and three-time singles champion in N.C.A. Division II, was the first real surprise of the tournament, taking No. 3 seed Andres Gomez to three sets before losing, 7-6 (7-3), 4-6, 6-3.

Hawks' Savard escapes suspension

NEW YORK — Chicago Black Hawk center Denis Savard is going unpunished for abusing a referee, and has his victim to thank.
In the aftermath of Friday night's 5-1 tie with the Winnipeg Jets in which Savard shoved referee Ron Hoggarth, the Jets asked that Savard be suspended. The Hawks star is immune to such a measure, however, because Hoggarth failed to eject him and issue a suspension at the point of infraction, a league official confirmed Tuesday.

NCAA final was tuned in

NEW YORK — At least 50 percent of the operating televisions in Philadelphia Monday night were tuned to the NCAA championship basketball game to see the hometown underdogs, Villanova, upset Georgetown 66-64.
The overnight Nielsen ratings for six cities showed the game had an average 22.2 rating, but avid 'Nova fans in Philly distorted the number, said a spokeswoman for CBS, which broadcast the game nationally.
Without Philadelphia, the overnight averages for New York, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles and San Francisco indicated that 19.1 percent of the households with televisions were watching Villanova's victory over the defending NCAA champions.
About 20 percent of the televisions which were actually on — the Nielsen share — were tuned to the game.

Sutton to coach Kentucky hoop

Arkansas basketball coach Eddie Sutton will guide Kentucky next year.
Sutton, who was mentioned as a possible successor to Hall but was not interviewed until Monday, was offered and accepted the job just before Monday's NCAA tournament title game in Lexington, Ariz., where he built a basketball tradition that yielded nine straight NCAA appearances and an average of 23 wins a year.
That offer came and the 49-year-old Kansas native accepted, leaving the Razorbacks' tradition he created for a Kentucky tradition that was built before he was born.
"This is the only job I'd ever take," Sutton said Tuesday after it was announced he was replacing Joe B. Hall on the Wildcats' bench.
Hall, who compiled a 297-100 record in 13 seasons after replacing the 42-year coach Adolph Rupp, said the program should continue to prosper with Sutton at the helm.
"In stepping down, I didn't want to let the program down, but with Eddie, I see nothing but great days ahead," said Hall, 56.

That offer came and the 49-year-old Kansas native accepted, leaving the Razorbacks' tradition he created for a Kentucky tradition that was built before he was born.
"This is the only job I'd ever take," Sutton said Tuesday after it was announced he was replacing Joe B. Hall on the Wildcats' bench.
Hall, who compiled a 297-100 record in 13 seasons after replacing the 42-year coach Adolph Rupp, said the program should continue to prosper with Sutton at the helm.
"In stepping down, I didn't want to let the program down, but with Eddie, I see nothing but great days ahead," said Hall, 56.
Sutton, who was mentioned as a possible successor to Hall but was not interviewed until Monday, was offered and accepted the job just before Monday's NCAA tournament title game in Lexington, Ariz., where he built a basketball tradition that yielded nine straight NCAA appearances and an average of 23 wins a year.

Connecticut In Brief

Firm moves on PCB oil
 EAST HARTFORD — Officials at Pratt & Whitney say they are working quickly to remove PCB-contaminated oil from some company machinery.
 George J. Clampa, an assistant regional counsel with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, said Tuesday the jet engine manufacturer could face criminal or civil action and could be fined for every day it continues to use oil machines that contain the carcinogen.
 PCBs or polychlorinated biphenyls, is a toxic chemical that can cause liver and reproductive disorders if it is inhaled, ingested or touches the skin.
 Pratt & Whitney has acknowledged it is allowing employees to work on machines that contain oil with concentrations of PCBs that exceed the federal limit of 50 parts per million.
 Phillip Giaramita, a company spokesman, said the firm is working as fast as possible to clean out machines contaminated with PCBs. The company says it has provided workers with protective clothing and containers for the oil. The machines of the 1,000 machines the company has surveyed so far, 122 contaminated with PCBs above the federal limit are still in use. All the machines are scheduled to be cleaned, he said.

Panel spares liquor commission

By Mark A. Dupuis
 United Press International
 HARTFORD — A legislative committee has rejected the idea of abolishing the state Liquor Control Commission and voted instead to study the agency and related liquor issues.
 The General Law Committee voted 16-3 Tuesday in favor of a substitute bill to do the study in place of the original bill to eliminate the commission and shift its duties to the Department of Consumer Protection.
 Under the bill, which goes to the Appropriations Committee for funding, the study would be done by the General Law Committee and involve the structure, authority and other aspects of the commission.
 Rep. Loren E. Dickinson, R-Berlin, said Streeter, who said her goal in seeking to abolish the commission was to step up the commission's enforcement of liquor laws.
 Streeter said the commission now devotes 90 percent of its time to licensing and other functions not strictly tied to the enforcement activities she thinks it should stress.
 However, she said commission officials and several lawmakers said the agency is locked into that pattern by existing laws and a study might show that there need to be prompted to step up enforcement activities.
 Charles Kasmer, secretary to the commission, said the agency is willing to cooperate with a study "in any way we can."
 In other action, the General Law Committee killed a bill to allow the liquor commission to find out where people charged with drunken driving and admitted to the pre-trial alcohol education program were drinking before their arrest.
 Kasmer said the commission wanted the names of the places — but not the drivers — to see if any patterns developed with specific establishments serving intoxicated drivers in violation of state liquor laws.

Hospitals win round in vote on cost care

By Lyda Phillips
 United Press International
 HARTFORD — Legislative committee approval of two bills has dealt a serious blow to the state's Hospital Association.
 The Legislature's Public Health Committee Tuesday voted 8-7 in favor of a bill to deny the Commission access to information on patients' health care fees and 11-4 for a bill to eliminate the so-called peer grouping of hospitals.
 The commission was charged in a law passed last year to develop a prospective payment system for deciding what hospitals will receive from insurance companies and similar bill payers starting Oct. 1.
 The prospective payment system, a complex and hotly debated topic, the commission will have to rely on each hospital's historical costs in setting the fees hospitals will receive for specific patients.
 Without the access to patient records, the commission will have to rely on each hospital's historical costs in setting the fees hospitals will receive for specific patients.
 Albert May, a spokesman for the hospital association, said he was pleased with the committee's approval of the two bills, which now go to the Senate for action.
 While he said the hospital association is in favor of establishing set fees, "I don't think it's fair to group hospitals and compare them for efficiency."
 Peer grouping, he said, would penalize more efficient, lower-cost hospitals by lumping them in groups with hospitals that do not have such tight cost controls.
 "With the advent of the prospective fees in October, May said hospitals will have to try to keep their costs below the established fees.

Six-year-old Mariela Jimenez of Riobamba, Ecuador, is held by her mother Adola on their arrival at Logan International Airport in Boston earlier this week. Born without part of her jaw and left ear, she will undergo reconstructive surgery at Cardinal Cushing General Hospital in Brockton, Mass.

Goodwin named to board

HARTFORD — Gov. William A. O'Neill nominated a former chairman of the Legislature's Education Committee and a former member of the Bridgeport school board to serve on the State Board of Education.
 O'Neill submitted the names Tuesday of former Rep. Dorothy C. Goodwin, D-Mansfield, and Aronella L. Collazo of Bridgeport to the Republican-controlled Legislature for confirmation.
 Goodwin would succeed June K. Goodman of Danbury, a Democrat whose nomination was rejected by the Senate, and Collazo would succeed Republican Roberto Fuentes of Stamford, whom O'Neill declined to reappoint.
 The nominations met with positive reaction from Republican legislative leaders, who decried the Democratic governor's renomination of Goodman in a state downs on minority party representation on state boards and commissions.
 Goodwin, 49, a former University of Connecticut administrator, served in the House for 10 years and was co-chairman of the Education Committee from 1979 until her retirement last year. She was a chief architect of the state's Guaranteed Tax Base program of grants to equalize spending on education from town to town.

Fires deplete DEP account

HARTFORD — The State Fire Control Officer Peter M. Babcock said the Department of Environmental Protection's general fire account will continue to be drained with only a little rain forecast for the next week.
 Babcock said Tuesday that last week's severe rash of forest fires — the worst in 20 years — depleted DEP resources.
 The account, used to pay forest fire related expenses but not state employee salaries, was budgeted at $111,000. But the cost of fighting the fires last week and during October are estimated at about $170,000, said Babcock.
 Fires last week scorched an estimated 900 acres statewide, with the worst in the under-200-acre Naugatuck Valley where one fire claimed about 300 acres in Woodbury and Middlebury and another burned about 225 acres in the Mattatuck State Forest in Waterbury and Plymouth.
 These fires cost the state about $90,000 based on the estimated cost of $100 an acre to fight forest fires, Babcock said, and about 70,000 of that will be charged to the general fire account.

Elderly to receive prescription help

HARTFORD (UPI) — A bill which would allocate $13 million a year to help about 300,000 low-income elderly and disabled people pay for prescription drugs has cleared one legislative committee but faces an uncertain fate in another.
 The program would co-pay for prescription drugs on a sliding scale. Participants would pay a $20 registration fee to help defray the costs of the program, bringing the net cost to the state to about $10 million.
 The Legislature's Public Health Committee unanimously approved the bill Tuesday and sent it on to the Appropriations Committee, which must act on all spending bills.
 Rep. Paul Gionfriddo, D-Middletown, said, "People are really in need and need help. They're paying $250 a year for prescription drugs now. Many run substantially over that" to arrive at the average.
 "Obviously those people who are most in need pay the most," he said.
 Under the bill any single person age 65 or older with an income of $15,000 or less would be eligible for the program. For married couples, the income cutoff would be $18,000.
 The committee also approved an amendment introduced by Rep. Benjamin N. DeZinno Jr., D-Meriden, that would require the prescriptions to be filled at Connecticut pharmacies. DeZinno is a pharmacist.
 The bill also allows people 18 to 64 who are collecting Social Security disability payments to participate in the program and allows for substitution of generic drugs.
 Gionfriddo said supporters of the legislation are "just going to give it a real shot in Appropriations and be open to negotiations."

Health workers OK pact

WINSTED (UPI) — Registered nurses and technicians at Winsted Hospital approved a new three-year contract Tuesday with pay raises as high as 25 percent after a walk out was threatened for today.
 Chief negotiator for the hospital's 93-member union, Mary Lou Millar, said employees ratified the agreement 85-0.
 The 50 registered nurses and about 40 technicians have been working without a contract since March 22 when the previous agreement expired. The union voted 79-12 on March 23 to reject the hospital's latest offer and said it would strike if no settlement had been reached by today.
 Millar, of Connecticut Health Care Associates, District 1199, said the union achieved its main goal of higher salaries for workers at the top of their pay scales.
 She said the top pay for a nurse will climb from $22,000 to $26,600 under the new contract. Top pay for technicians will increase from $23,300 a year to $27,600, she said.
 Barbara Peters, a nurse and chairwoman of the bargaining unit represented by Connecticut Health Care Associates, District 1199, said the increase put the nurses' earnings "in parity" with other nurses in the area.

 Although you prefer to operate independently, you will do quite well in partnerships in the year ahead. Valuable alliances will be established for a specific objective.
 ARIES (March 21-April 19) Avoid teaming up with anyone today who thinks in petty terms. You need associates who can inspire you to do things on a grand scale. Major changes are in store for Aries in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.
 TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Results will be rewarding today in career situations where you exercise your own judgment. When you rely on the advice of others, you could go astray.
 GEMINI (May 21-June 20) When socializing with pals today, say nothing complimentary about a mutual friend who isn't present. Your remarks will be repeated and distorted.
 CANCER (June 21-July 22) Lady Luck will be supportive of your efforts today in situations where you are unselfishly trying to help others, as well as yourself.
 LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you expect tolerance and consideration from people allied with you today, you must make it a point to overlook the little things they do that annoy you.
 VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be hesitant to spend dollars today if it can earn you more. A little seed money might be required to prime the pump for something large.
 LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Listen to the thoughts and suggestions of companions today but don't discount the quality of your own ideas. Chances are your judgment is keener than theirs.
 SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Something you play a minor role in may prove beneficial today. Lady Luck will do the heavy lifting.
 Look at it this way: If you never made a mistake, consider the folk who'd be out of work who are now employed to correct things you goof.

Bridge

One is wrong, the other isn't
 By James Jacoby
 Let's talk about a conservative bridge game. Today's auction actually started with three passes. We might have to wait until the next century to find a cast of characters that would pass on those cards in the first three positions. But that is what happened.
 North did open in fourth seat. And previously limited South bid four hearts. That is not a bad contract. He needs to find some cards right, or guess them right.
 Declarer won the opening lead with dummy's ace. The favorable location of the K-J of hearts enabled South to draw trump in two leads. Now what? It appears that there are some guesses to be made in the black suits. I find this deal interesting because there is no way that a wide-awake declarer should go set, no matter what his guess is on the high-card position of the first black suit. He attacks. He needs to make just two assumptions: East would have opened the bidding with two aces in addition to the heart K-J, and West would also have opened with two aces in addition to the diamond K-Q.
 Suppose declarer leads a spade to dummy's jack, losing to East's queen. Back comes a spade to West's ace, but now declarer knows that the club ace is with East, and he will hope that East does not have the club queen. Declarer will lead South pass. Suppose instead that South plays a club to dummy's king, losing to East's ace. Now he is certain that East can't hold the spade ace, and South will play the spades correctly.

BUSINESS Generic drug controversy goes on

Your Money's Worth
Sylvia Porter

COMPETITION: The brand-name pain reliever Darvon (65 mg.) costs about $7.25 for 30 capsules, while its generic equivalent (propoxyphene hydrochloride) sells for $4.25 — nearly half the price.

COMPETITION: 100 capsules of Nitro-Bid (2.5 mg.), prescribed for relief from pain due to angina, costs a whopping $17.50, while its generic equivalent (nitroglycerin) goes for $8.75 — exactly half the price.

COMPETITION: 15 grams of Aristocort cream, used to relieve redness, swelling, itching, and discomfort of many skin problems, sells for $7.90, while its generic equivalent (triamcinolone acetonide) is $4.85.

COMPETITION: 100 capsules of Librium (25 mg.), a well-known tranquilizer, sells for a huge $28.20, while its generic equivalent (chlordiazepoxide HCl) is roughly one-fourth the price.

COMPETITION: 100 capsules of Librium (25 mg.), a well-known tranquilizer, sells for a huge $28.20, while its generic equivalent (chlordiazepoxide HCl) is roughly one-fourth the price.

COMPETITION: 100 capsules of Librium (25 mg.), a well-known tranquilizer, sells for a huge $28.20, while its generic equivalent (chlordiazepoxide HCl) is roughly one-fourth the price.

relentless. But the brand-name manufacturer is protected from the competition by a 17-year patent, during which time this manufacturer reaps enormous profits.

That prompts the key question: Are you paying too much for prescriptions and over-the-counter drugs? We, America's consumers, spend $25 billion a year on medications, usually marketed by the big brand-name companies. But we could be saving an estimated $4 billion if we would buy generic drug substitutes whenever they are available.

A new book, "How to Save Dollars with Generic Drugs" (William Morrow, still paperback, $8.95) by Dr. Max A. Fern and Betty Fern, probes into this issue and tries to explain why more consumers aren't purchasing generic drugs.

"We unfortunately associate the word 'generic' with food products sold in supermarkets, where it means something of less quality for less money," says Dr. Fern. A pharmaceutical industry executive for 20 years, Dr. Fern adds: "This is not so with a generic drug, which by law must be therapeutically equal in all respects to the brand name version."

Despite the high savings at stake in generics, when we are buying drugs for our health — perhaps a matter of life or death — we do tend to buy the brand names. The familiarity of the names, pounded into us by extensive advertising, plays a major role.

Another reason for consumer distrust of generics is that physicians have been conditioned to write the brand name on a prescription pad. In this instance, the reasons are both habit and the widespread promotional campaigns by the big pharmaceutical firms.

So it comes down to you and your preferences. If you want to purchase a generic equivalent, whenever possible tell your doctor or pharmacist that is what you want. In more and more states, a pharmacist can now offer to fill your prescription with a generic, unless your doctor writes on your prescription form that the brand prescribed is "medically necessary" or "must be dispensed as written."

Your pharmacist can also help you to choose over-the-counter generic drugs, such as aspirin. A fact that is not well known — but nevertheless a fact — is that 80 percent of all generic drugs are put out by the same drug companies that manufacture the brands. The companies that put out products under their own generic label do not always market their own, though; but the pharmacist can determine the manufacturer merely by looking at the package label.

It's not an uncomplicated matter, no matter what the claims of each side. Brand names and generics — it really is up to you to learn the facts, then decide whether you want to save on the difference.

Bath Iron gets arms deal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Bath Iron Works of Maine has scored a victory in becoming the Navy's choice to build the first of a new class of guided missile destroyers, dozens of which will join the fleet in the next decade.

The Navy decision Tuesday was certain to be a blow to Bath's two competitors for the contract, particularly Todd Shipyard of Los Angeles, which had waged a major campaign for the Arleigh Burke-class destroyer. It argued it would keep the West Coast shipbuilding business alive.

Ingalls Shipbuilding of Pascagoula, Miss., a division of Litton Industries, also wanted the contract. Ingalls and Bath are building the Navy's new $1 billion Aegis guided missile cruiser.

Known officially as the DDG-51, the 466-foot ship will be a multipurpose 5,000-ton destroyer with an emphasis on anti-submarine and anti-air warfare. It will carry the advanced Aegis defensive radar system.

The Navy plans to build at least 50 of the vessels, possibly more, at a cost of tens of billions of dollars. Seventeen of them are to be built by 1990, the Navy said.

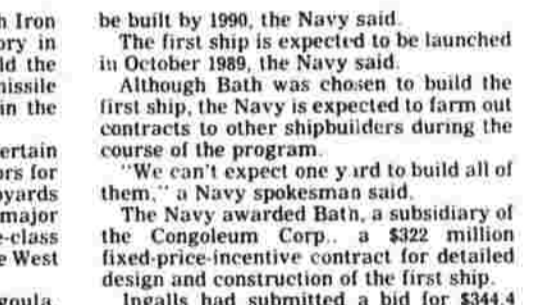

The first ship is expected to be launched in October 1989, the Navy said. Although Bath was chosen to build the first ship, the Navy is expected to farm out contracts to other shipbuilders during the course of the program.

"We can't expect one yard to build all of them," a Navy spokesman said. "The Navy awarded a subsidiary of the Congoleum Corp., a $322 million fixed-price-incentive contract for detailed design and construction of the first ship, Ingalls had submitted a bid for $394.4 million and Todd had asked for $413.5 million, the Navy said."

The Navy had begun design studies on the ship in 1980 and had narrowed the field of competitors from seven to three by April 1983.

The Arleigh Burke could become the largest class of surface warships built since World War II and is intended to replace guided missile cruisers and destroyers that will be retired during the late 1980s and early 1990s, naval analyst Norman Polmar said.

Darien firm buys brewery

DARREN (UPI) — Sundor Group Inc., a specialty beverage company based in Darien, has acquired Latrobe Brewing Co., Pa., brewers of Rolling Rock Premium Beer.

The purchase price was not disclosed Tuesday, although Sundor announced James L. Tito, a third-generation member of the Tito brewing family, would continue as executive vice president and chief operating officer.

Sundor Group is affiliated with Sundor Brands Inc., the nation's largest producer of refrigerated fruit punch products sold under the "Sunny Delight" name.

Sundor Group has proposed it combine with Latrobe Brewing to form a single company called Sundor Group Ltd.

Sundor and Latrobe, both privately owned, did not release sales or earnings for 1984.
