Many assail plan to visit Nazi graves

By Helen Thomas United Press International

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. - Jews, veterans and Congress members Friday assailed President Reagan's plan to visit a cemetery for German soldiers as 'offensive," but a spokesman said Reagan is upset that his "sensitivity to the Holocaust" is under

The announcement that Reagan would tour and lay a wreath at Bitburg Cemetery in Germany on May 5, three days before celebration of V-E Day, the end of World War Two, evoked outrage from Jewish and American veterans groups. Reagan has declined suggestions he visit Dachau, a Nazi death camp, during his visit to Europe for the European Economic

"Visiting the grave sites of one's former enemies is an act of grace," said Nathan Perlmutter, national director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'Nai B'rith. "Doing so while bypassing the gravesites of the victims of that enemy - especially so brutal an enemy - is insensitive."

Rabbi David Saperstein of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations agreed, saying, "I think this was a judgment of a grievous error. It is offensive to those who care about the American soldiers who died and those who care about the millions of Jews and non-Jews" who were victim of the "Nazi genocidal Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., said a presidential visit to the German war cemetery "would be a very unfortunate misplacement of priorities." "The impact of your visiting Germany without paying homage to one of the war's most tragic aspects will not go unnoticed," he wrote Reagan in a letter. Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes quoted Reagan as saying that he has "a long and deep emotional sensitivity to the Holocaust. While we remember the past with deep sorrow, we must look to e future with a firm resolve that it will never happen Speakes told reporters that Reagan's schedule is under review but stressed that he still intends to visit Bitburg, which was the staging area for the crucial

"Battle of the Bulge" and does not intend to change his plans despite the criticism. But veterans who were at the "Battle of the Bulge" hoped Reagan would change his mind. "By his visits to the gravesites at Bitberg ... he is perceived as honoring not those who fought for peace and freedom but those who died for conquest and oppression," said Clarence Bacon, the American Legion's national commander. Asked if Reagan was upset over the reaction to his scheduled visit to the cemetery, which holds the graves of German dead of the two world wars, Speakes replied: "The president is concerned that anyone would question his sensitivity to the holocaust. Yes he is Speakes said that the suggestion that Reagan tour the cemetery and later join in a picnic with the families of both the U.S. and German solidiers was made at the suggestion of West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

Other sources said that some White House aides were aware that the cemetery tour would ignite a Speakes said that Reagan views the trip "as an opportunity for the spirit of reconciliation, economic prosperity and cooperation.

Harry W. Reinhorn, founder of the Crime Watch program in Manchester, stands in front of one of the Crime Watch signs in his neigbhorhood on Spring Street. There are six organized Crime Watch neighborhoods in Manchester and Reinhorn would like to see more. He sees it as an effective tool to curtail burglaries and other crime in neighborhoods.

Neighbors unite to battle crime

"It's people looking after people," is the way Harry W. Reinhorn describes the Crime Watch program he started in What began as a reaction to an assault on a family in Reinhorn's Spring Street neighborhood three years ago has now grown into six neighborhood Crime Watch areas in town. The first Crime Watch neighborhood was a kind of outgrowth of gypsy moth infestation, Reinhorn said. When the neighborhood developed a commor bond to fight the gypsy moths by spraying, Reinhorn said he asked himself, "Why can't we unite to fight The purpose of Crime Watch, which

Fire victims relocate

Two businesses which sustained damage from a fire last week in a Loomis Street warehouse have been relocated in an adjacent building according to warehouse owner Robert Regius The companies temporarily displaced are New England Woodworking Co. and Dawn Enterprises, a flooring company.

Although the cost of the damage was estimated earlier by Regius at $200,000, he said this week that it was not as extensive as he had originally thought. Most of the damage was in the roof of the building. He said it will take a few weeks to get the insurance estimates, but he expects the building repair can begin after the appraisals are done. The warehouse was filled with flammable liquids, some of which exploded in the fire which occurred on April 1 about 6:30 p.m. No one was

BOLTON - A group of 13 residents, including has formed a committee to promote the proposed library-media-computer center at Bolton High

The group met April 2 and elected Board of Finance member Raymond Ursin chairman. Other members of the Library Media Center Advisory Committee are Board of Education members T. Dye Hooper, Pamela Z. Sawyer and Michael Parsons and school board chairman James H. Marshall; school board candidate Thomas A. Manning, residents Robert Lessard, Fred Boothroyd, Joseph Lorenzini and Richard Hein; former Selectman Ernest Shepherd and school superintendent Richard E. Packman. Residents defeated the proposed $820,000 LMC in a referendum last November. Plans call for construction of a 7,000-square-foot addition to the high school to house a larger library and a computer laboratory. A news release from the group calls it "the own's Library Media Center," emphasizing that the facility will be made available to town groups evenings, weekends and on school vacations The committee will meet again May 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school library.

'Fifties Dance' tonight

Tickets will be available at the door tonight fo the "Fifties Dance" being held at the Elks Lodge, 30 Bissell St., for the benefit of the March of Dimes. There will be dancing from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. to music of the '50s by WGAF. Donations are $10 per person. There will be wine, cheese and snacks. A prize will be awarded to the best dressed "fifties" couple. Raffle tickets

Attorney General Joseph 1 Liberman said that immunity does not extend to the board.

Oil heir indicted in fraud

NEW YORK — A Connecticut heir to a Texas oil fortune and a Florida president of two West Virginia mining companies have been indicted on charges they defrauded two banks in New York of $13.5 million, authorities said Friday.

Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau said John A Grambling Jr., 34, of Darien, Conn., and Robert Libman, 51, of North Miami, Fla., fraudulently represented that they owned stock and other assets to get loans from the Manhattan branches of the Bank of Montreal and the Colorado National Bank. Both men surrendered Thursday after they were indicted.

Farrakhan to visit Wesleyan

MIDDLETOWN - Louis Farrakhan, the controversial leader of the Nation of Islam, is expected to accept strict security demands and appear this month at Wesleyan University, school officials said Friday Wesleyan officials said they spoke with Farrakhan's office and expected him to appear as scheduled April 26. Farrakhan's secretary also said he would speak on the campus at the invitation of a black student group, Ujamaa. A letter officially accepting Wesleyan's stringent security measures, however, had not been received by the university, officials said. Security restrictions include that Farrakhan's bodyguards, called the Fruit of Islam, not be armed and that the speech be open only to the Wesleyan community. Farrakhan's own security personnel also will be barred from searching students, although a metal detector will be used. Yale admits it wasn't first

About 1,000 spectators in each of two seatings heard the preludes performed in a two-hour concert by Harvard organist John Ferris and Charles Krigbaum of Yale on a restored instrument whose replacement value was put at $750,000.

Teacher must pay student

HARTFORD - The state Department of Labor has ruled an East Hartford man who runs a siding school must pay a former student for work performed for the man's private company. The complaint was filed by Paul Bordonaro, who charged he performed free work on Barone's Protect-A-Home Inc. projects. Sal Guzzardi, director of the department's Regulation of Wages Division, said Barone used Bordonaro to put up siding on jobs in East Granby and East Hartford. Wealthy heiress will testify

HARTFORD - A Bacardi rum family heiress will return to Connecticut and testify against an Argentine dog handler she claims stole $1.1 million in jewels and furs, state prosecutors said

The disclosure came before a Superior Court hearing when attorneys for Clemente Luis Gerez, 30, argued a charge of first-degree larceny should be dismissed because Gerez tried to return the valuables to his wealthy employer. Hartford State's Attorney John M. Bailey informed the judge that a New York attorney representing Rasalia Gomez Del Campo Bacardi, 47, said her client will press the case against Gerez, who handled Bacardi's show dogs.

THE RISLEY RESERVOIR ON LAKE STREET AS IT APPEARED LAST OCTOBER

Too often, scenic attractions are buried by development or allowed to deteriorate. Sometimes, they simply disappear.

In the case of the Risley Reservoir, that shouldn't be allowed to happen. And thanks to a variety of interests that appear willing to help preserve this pleasant spot, the odds are good that eventually it will be rescued from its current sad can't see any sign of its troubles. But the problems were evident for most of the winter, when the reservoir sat like some dried-up drinking pool for cattle in Montana. Although the ownership of the reservoir and the land surrounding it is established, a web of questions clouds responsibility for the failing dam that keeps the water in check. Unless the dam is restored, the pattern of the past several months will be repeated over and over: Risley will be a reservoir for part of each year, a mud hole for the The reason no one claims responsibility for the Herbst said she is waiting to learn the fate of a proposal in the Legislature that could lead to a state role in the dam repairs. The bill calls for the DEP to fix the dam that holds back Williams Lake in Lebanon, but could have broader implications. As a Sports Illustrated staffer, Jim Kaplan covers the baseball beat. But unlike his counterparts on the daily papers - who generally stick with the home team through a season - Kaplan moves from city to city profiling teams or individuals who are, if not hot, at least newsworthy.

"Pine-tarred and Feathered" will appeal to two distinct groups. On one level it will delight fans with its brief but revealing profiles of players and managers. It's also about journalism, Sports Illustrated style, and is a must for anyone interested in mega-market magazine writing. Kaplan, who paid his dues for BOSTON 4 The number of people running marathons has declined during the past couple of years and one reason may be that many people find it does more to hurt than help their health. The most common day-of-race niuries are due to heat and cold said Dr. Lyle J. Micheli, who will be overseeing medical emergencies at the Boston Marathon finish

The best-known of such injuries occurred during the 1982 marathon when Alberto Salazar, the winner, finished the 26.2 miles with a body temperature of 88 degrees, 10 degrees below normal. He required a gallon of intravenous fluids fed through lines in both arms before his temperature returned to normal.

"Last year 200 people had the problem seriously enough to re-quire intraveneous fluids," said Micheli. "On cool, damp days the biggest problem is usually hypothermia (low body temperature) Although reversable, hypother mia can be serious and result in kidney failure and possibly permanent damage. WHEN THE WEATHER is warm, the problem usually is just from heat exhaustion or hea stroke, which can be more danger ous. In heat exhaustion a runner's body overheats because it cannot curs in the first 5 to 10 miles of the race," said Micheli. "Generally if they get to the finish line they tend to be in pretty good shape, but if it's cool they'll run into problems with runners than you find in the average inner-city ghetto," said of Mount Everest a climber's biggest problem may not be 100-mile-an-hour winds, avalanches or mountain sickness but simple malnutrition.

A well-trained mountaineer who is already at optimum weight can lose 30 to 50 pounds during a three-month expedition to and from the world's tallest mountain. loss saps a climber's strength by reducing overall muscle mass and depleting energy reserves. It also frostbite and freezing to death and the severe fatigue they encounter make critical decisions. Dr. Edward G. Hixson, physi-

Everest attempts, has been searching for ways to keep climbers from tosing weight. "Muscle is lost, vigor is decreased and weakness is produced," said Hixson. "This person is starving. His muscle activity is at the price of burning up (his) own muscle tissue. He is burning his own body rather than fat. Extreme cold, physical activity and lack of oxygen at 28,000 feet require that climbers burn twice the calories required for even the most physically demanding atdetic activities at sea level. The average person burns about 3.000 to 4.000 calories a day. High altitude mountaineers require about 5,000 to 6,000 calories a day. In addition, the altitude reduces climbers' appetites. Exhausted at the end of a day's climb, they are reluctant to cook and eat. Because climbers just didn't eat their food on the earliest Everest expeditions, later groups just stopped bringing large amounts.

During his first expedition, Hixson required his group to carry enough food to supply adequate calories for the entire trip. They brought it, but did not eat all of it. That year climbers lost an average of 16 percent of their body weight, instead of the usual 25 percent. The next year, they brought extra food and Sherpa helpers to "That year we put eight people

He had to be carried down and almost died. Yet, he returned for another ascent in 1984.

"Last year we asked, 'Can we do it if we carry all our own loads? Can we do it all self-contained in a small mobile expedition?" "We still lost weight, about 11 percent, but it's less and nobody felt burned out," says Hixson.

Bucks trip Celtics in OT

BOSTON (UPI) - Paul Mokeski hit a pair of free throws with no time remaining Friday night to give the Milwaukee Bucks a 115-113 overtime victory over the Boston Celtics. Larry Bird, who came off the bench to score a game-high 47 points, hit a 3-pointer with 5 seconds remaining to tie the game at 115-115. After Milwaukee took a the ball to Mokeski, who dribbled to the free throw line and was fouled by Boston's Robert Parish. Milwaukee jumped out to a 109-103 lead in the overtime, but Danny Ainge's 3-pointer at 2: 11 cut the margin in half. After Sidney Moncrief netted a 16-foot jumper with 1:50 left on the clock, Bird responded with a 10- foot leaner at 1: 07 and a reverse layup at 0: 32.

Attention turns to the links with good weather to the outdoors, one leaves the ice rinks and hardcourts, beginning the annual search for "the secret." Using the newest in innovated equipment; shoes and extra spikes for better traction, clubs designed to hit it straighter, farther, and more consistant, and golf balls that do everything but keep score; the sports fan drives to the outdoor arena, the golf course, determined that "this is the year." The sport is golf and the time has arrived! It's spring, Golf has been defined in many ways, but the description by Arnold Palmer says it best: "Golf is deceptively simple, and endlessly complicated. A child can play it well, and a grown man can never master it. Any single round of it is full of unexpected triumphs and seemingly perfect shots thatr end is disaster. It is almost a science, yet it is a puzzle without an answer. It is gratifying and tantalizing precise and unpredictable. It requires complete concentration and total relaxation. It satisfies the soul and frustrat es the intellect. It is at the same time rewarding and maddening and it is the greatest game with a 4-ball on April 20.

Many area courses have taken on new looks over the winter months. At Manchester CC, PGA professional Ralph DeNicolo put away his putter and wedge for a hammer and saw this winter, expanding the Pro-Shop at the Country club. Assistant Steve Garren is back for the year, which sees the Men's Club off and running

In Coventry, a new nine holes were added to the Twin Hills CC layout which now presents golfers with 18 holes of golf. Rumor has it, this new nine is one addition put on its clubhouse. Undedr the "watchful eyes" of Mike and Karney Ovian, the recently opened building features an outstanding pro shop and a beautiful foyer. Tony Roberto is the new golf professional at Blackledge CC, in Hebron. Ground breaking for their new clubhouse begins this summer according to Roberto, who last season was the assistant pro at Cliffside CC in Simsbury John and Susie Motycka report that Skungamug CC officially gets under way, for its 20th season, on Saturday, with a 4-member scramble event and brunch. Word has it, the woods have been cleared out, which will make it even more enjoyable to play. The Connecticut Section PGA opens its season with a pro-am event at Willimantic CC on April 22. This year's section president is Don Gliha, former resident of Manchester. Gliha resigned his position as professional at the Black Hall Club in Old Lyme. Ah, it's masters time. This week, Augusta National in Georgia will be the center of the golfing world as the masters begins. Here's a golf trivia question on the masters: What do the masters champions of 1958-62 in first place with 10 points followed by Waterbury Portuguese with 9 points. The Moriarty spring roster includes Ray Boisvert and newcomer Jeff Duback in goal. Duback, a first team All-American, joins the locals from Yale University. Also returning are sweeper Blaz Stimac, stopper Tom Gardiner, Dave Farrell, Greg DeNies and Randy Swason. Newcomers to the squad include Frantz Innocent and Lenny Tsantiris, former UConn stars. Also joining the team are Michael Rudd and Bob Trajkovski. Forwards Joe Morrone Jr. and Marion Stoj, former pro players, lead the attack. Late additions include Jay Hedlund, former Manchester High star who is now at the University of Maine and Scott Owsiany from Syracuse.

BOSTON - When the Boston Red Sox are winning, their fans would rather watch the team than have sex, according to a survey taken by a local radio station. Friday morning, after the team completed a three-game season-opening sweep of the New York Yankees, station WROR-FM asked listeners which they would prefer, attending a Red Sox game or taking part in a "romantic interlude." The results were 163 to 129 in favor of the Olde Town Team. Andy Moes, a host of the station's morning program, said all isteners were asked to call in during a two-hour period and responses were split almost evenly between men and women. "We did have one caller who had a hard time deciding. He said what he wanted to do was to have sex at a Red Sox game," Moes

Larry Holmes will fight NEW YORK - Larry Holmes will end his brief retirement May 20, whether or not the opponent is light-heavyweight champion Michael Spinks, an NBC spokesman said Friday. NBC has been negotiating with Spinks' promoter, Butch Lewis, to match Spinks with International Boxing Federation heavyweight champion Holmes. However, NBC's boxing boss Ferdie Pacheco is also talking to three other heavyweights because Lewis has balked at the May 20 date. Monaghan said Pacheco, who is now in London, is negotiating with heavyweights Carl "The Truth" Williams, Tony Tucker and Frank Bruno about filling the May 20 date against Holmes.

'Most older people choose to stay in homes they already live in," points out Leo Baldwin, housing coordinator for the American Association of Retired Persons. But, he notes, even though it's a small percentage, the actual number of people who move or need special housing arrangements is impressively

And when your family is involved, the actual numbers really don't matter. The decision to move, or stay put, affects the entire family. Whatever the choice, your aging parents may need financial assistance or require some other form of help. At the same time, middle age children, squeezed between helping parents and providing for children.

need to find ways to ease the load. Together, you can work out some methods of achieving the twin goals of providing comfortable surroundings and managing the financial burdens. Should all this be elusive, the number of housing options available today still suggests that parents and children can find alternatives to unworkable As a middle-age child, if you want to provide your parents with housing, and you can afford it, you can buy a house and rent it to your parents. "If you're wealthy, you can use this as a tax shelter," observes Laurence Goldstein, a specialist in personal tax planning at Arthur Young of New York. "In that situation, though, it's crucial that parents pay fair market rent," cautions Charles Lefkowitz, a
