Another historic shuttle back safely

By William Harwood
United Press InternationalCAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The shuttle Discovery and its seven-member crew glided to a safe landing today, blowing a landing-gear tire in the process. A jagged rip was found in the heat-shield tiles of the ship's left wing flap.

For commander Karol Bobko, co-pilot Donald Williams and crew members Rhea Seddon, Jeffrey Hoffman, David Griggs, McDonnell Douglas engineer Charles Walker and Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, the landing at 8:53 a.m. ended a dramatic week-long space adventure.

One of two 44-inch tires on the ship's right landing gear blew during the touchdown and the second was damaged, with no apparent effect on the otherwise picture-perfect landing, which capped a 2.8-million-mile voyage.

Television views of the $1.2 billion shuttle after landing showed a jagged chunk torn out of a control flap at the edge of the left wing. It was not known if the damage would have an impact on Discovery's next launch, now set for around June 12.

Garn, the 52-year-old chairman of the subcommittee that oversees NASA's budget, gripped both hand rails of the steps leading from Discovery's flight deck and was helped into the waiting "astrovan" where he was joined by his crewmates.

The lawmaker grinned broadly and waved to ground crews, but the astronauts passed up a traditional stroll around the spaceship and quickly left the scene for the short ride back to crew quarters at the Kennedy Space Center.

"The swat team is home!" said Brian Welch in mission control as Discovery touched down, apparently blew on touchdown.

but unsuccessful — satellite rescue effort using improvised "fly swatter" tools.

Dropping like a rock at a steep angle, Bobko pulled Discovery's nose up gracefully and the powerless spaceliner's landing gear settled on the Kennedy Space Center shuttle runway at 8:53 a.m.

After knitting back into the atmosphere over the Pacific Ocean, Discovery shot high across Baja California, Texas and southern Louisiana before arcing over the Gulf of Mexico for final approach to the Florida shuttleport.

Heralded by twin sonic booms, Bobko and Williams deftly maneuvered the winged spaceship into a sharp bank out over the Atlantic Ocean to line the shuttle up for its final glide path to the runway.

Ground crews reported that a tire on the right landing gear apparently blew on touchdown.

Landing originally was planned for Wednesday but the flight was extended two days for the crew's valiant but futile attempt to activate the helpless Syncom communications satellite, left drifting in a useless orbit.

Touchdown today came one orbit — about 94 minutes — late because of clouds over the Kennedy Space Center and the threat of rain, which could have damaged the $1.2 billion shuttle's fragile heat-shield tiles during the high-speed dash home.

Garn, the first public official to fly in space, was on board Discovery as a congressional observer in his capacity as chairman of the subcommittee that oversees NASA's budget.

Three and a half miles from the runway, Discovery's sister ship, Challenger, stood ready for blast-off in just 10 days on a week-long Spacelab science expedition.

a very tough act to follow."

Challenger commander Robert Overmyer said Thursday after a practice countdown.

Along with acting as a congressional observer, Garn conducted a series of experiments throughout Discovery's mission to probe the causes of space sickness, a nauseating malady he fell victim to early in the mission.

But Garn said Thursday he quickly recovered and "I'd choose being a working astronaut over being a senator so fast it would make your head swim."

Walker was on board to operate a medicine processor in an ambitious commercial bid to develop a new life-saving drug utilizing the weightless environment of space.

human testing. The dramatic attempt to rescue the stranded Syncom communications satellite, which included an unscheduled spacewalk and orbital rendezvous, demonstrated an improvisational space capability no other nation can match.

The satellite, owned by Hughes Communications Inc. and insured for about $65 million, was launched from the shuttle Saturday following last Friday's successful deployment of a Canadian relay station.

But the Hughes satellite, the third in a series of four leased by the Navy, malfunctioned and failed to turn on.

In a bold attempt to activate the craft, the astronauts carried out an improvised salvage plan that included a spacewalk Tuesday by Hoffman and Griggs to install homemade "fly swatter" snares on Discovery's robot arm.

History museum won't open soon

By Kathy Gormus
Herald Reporter

Plans to open a museum of local history this spring have been abandoned by the Manchester Historical Society because of a lack of volunteers and money, the co-chairman of the society's Museum Committee said today.

Co-chairman Herbert Bengtson said the museum probably could not be opened until the fall at the earliest. Historical society members said last year that at least part of the museum could be ready to open as early as this spring.

But Bengtson and committee co-chairman Marion Leonard said the society has been unable to find enough volunteers to help prepare the old Lutz Children's Museum on Cedar Street in which the museum would be located.

"We need not only manual labor, but we need an architect who can develop plans and specifications," Leonard said.

One architect has volunteered some of his time but has not committed himself to the project, Leonard said. The society also needs skilled volunteers such as electricians and unskilled volunteers to staff the museum, she said.

Finding unskilled volunteers is a problem facing many historical society museums because the pool of volunteers traditionally relied on — housewives — has diminished as more women have gone to work, she said.

"I've noticed that they've had the frustrations we've had," Leonard said of other museums.

"They just simply can't get people to help them out."

Leonard said efforts to open the Cedar Street museum have also been plagued by a lack of money and by vandalism at the building. Leonard said she did not know how much money would be needed to complete the museum.

A fund-raising committee has been formed but has not yet begun a public fund-raising drive, she said. Leonard said the drive would probably begin soon because of proposed changes in the tax laws that would remove some of the incentives people now have to contribute to charitable causes.

"We're going to have to make our move now," she said. The group also plans to look into grants that might be available for the museum, she said.

The museum would be the first of its kind in Manchester.

Among the items to be displayed at the museum are old advertising materials, clothing items made at the Cheney Brothers mills, a postcard collection and a collection of books, including some written by Manchester residents, Historical Society members have said.

The recent troubles encountered by society members working on the museum have not lessened their resolve to open the museum, Leonard said.

"We have all kinds of things against us, but we're plodding along," she said.

Reagan team gives blessing to aid plan

By E. Michael Myers
United Press InternationalWASHINGTON — President Reagan, yielding to the reality of virtual congressional defeat, has agreed to a compromise that would put the catch on the "lethal trigger" of his $14 million request for Nicaraguan rebels.

The White House signaled agreement late Thursday to a proposal crafted by Senate Republican leaders, that eliminates a key controversial element of Reagan's initial proposal — converting the $14 million from humanitarian aid into military assistance for the Contra rebels if peace talks between the Contras and the leftist Sandinista government of Nicaragua falter.

Under the deal, Congress would provide the money but bar the use of any funds for military help, White House officials said. As a face-saving concession to Reagan, the language also would reaffirm support for his peace efforts in the region, the officials said.

But the compromise faced an uncertain fate. A proposal offered today by Democratic Reps. Michael Barnes of Maryland and Lee Hamilton of Indiana could change the form in which any aid is given. Barnes said the proposal sets aside $5 million for refugee assistance in Central America and another $9 million could be earmarked to ensure verification of a possible regional peace plan for Mexico, Colombia, Venezuela and Mexico.

That plan endorses the four-nations Contadora peace process, which Reagan has sought, but ignores the rebels that House Speaker Thomas O'Neill calls "butchers."

Although the compromise Thursday marked a sharp retreat by Reagan, who has argued over the last two weeks for "an incentive" to make the Sandinistas negotiate, a senior administration official said the White House recognizes the political realities.

"There's a real situation here. What agreement can we come to?" the official said. "If we can come to this agreement that expresses support for the resistance forces and for our policy there, it's not what we wanted, but we can buy that."

The core of congressional opposition was around the potential military aid, the "lethal trigger" that Republican congressional leaders repeatedly warned the White House must be removed.

Wiesel does accept medal

By Ira R. Allen
United Press InternationalWASHINGTON — Holocaust historian Elie Wiesel said today he will go to the White House and accept a congressional gold medal from President Reagan, despite the president's comparing the deaths of Hitler's soldiers with the victims of Nazi extermination.

In the most dramatic turn in an emotional week that summoned up the painful memories of the Holocaust, Wiesel, the chairman of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Council, said late Thursday he might not accept the medal because of Reagan's statements and his decision to visit a West German cemetery containing Nazi war dead.

But today on the ABC "Good Morning America" program, Wiesel said, "The question was not whether to accept (the medal). ... I couldn't be quiet with gratitude. ... The question was whether to accept it at this time."

Wiesel added, "I have decided to accept the invitation of the president of the United States."

"My understanding of the president is he is now in a very difficult situation, diplomatically, politically," Wiesel said.

In a second interview on "The CBS Morning News," Wiesel said he could not understand Reagan comparing Jewish deaths with those of Nazi soldiers.

"I am in total disagreement with him," Wiesel said. "Such an analogy is beyond the vocabulary that I have learned."

The very young soldiers who became soldiers in Germany did not become victimizers. But to compare even them with the victims in the concentration camps shows to me a total lack of knowledge or understanding. But perhaps he doesn't really ... he did not express his real thoughts."

A spokeswoman said Wiesel, a survivor of the death camp at Auschwitz, met with several members of Congress late Thursday to discuss the issue because, "It isn't actually a gift of the president. The president is acting for Congress. And clearly, Congress is not implicated at all."

Congress voted a year ago to award the gold medal to recognize Wiesel's work in advancing human rights and for his contribution to literature.

Wiesel's possible refusal came as the council sent a blistering telegram to Reagan late Thursday denouncing the president for his

State taking 291 land

The town will appeal the price set for land off Tolland Turnpike that the state plans to take by eminent domain for construction of Interstate 291, General Manager Robert Weiss said today.

The state decided to condemn the land after the town refused an offer of $65,200 for it.

The state Department of Transportation needs the property for construction of Interstate 291 through the north end of Manchester.

The state proposed the $86,200 price for a 4.15-acre parcel at Tolland Turnpike and Chapel Road near the Buckland Industrial Park, James Lewis, director of rights of way for the DOT, said Thursday.

But because the town rejected the offer, the state will proceed to take the property by eminent domain, Lewis said. The money will be deposited with the clerk of the Superior Court and the town is free to take the money or file an appeal of the offer within six months, Lewis explained.

Weiss said that the town felt the offer was less than half of what an appraisal indicated it was worth. Weiss said he has discussed the matter with the town attorney.

If the town decides to appeal the offer, a hearing would be conducted by a state referee from the Judicial Department, Lewis said. The referee would hear testimony and appraisals from both the town and the state before deciding if the offer was equitable.

The state acquires title to the property when it begins the condemnation process, Lewis said. The four-acre parcel is the only property that the state has acquired from the town in connection with the I-291 project, Lewis said. Other town property recently acquired by the state in the Buckland Industrial Park area has been in conjunction with the widening of Interstate 84, Lewis said.

Jackson urges 'moral' action

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson "Trinity College students that the 29 million white Americans who live in poverty is the best kept secret in America."

"Whether black, white or brown, hunger hurts," said Jackson, who unsuccessfully sought the Democratic presidential nomination in 1984.

Something must be put together between the urban poor and the rural farmer," he said. "Let those farmers put gain in those soils and not missiles and feed the hungry of America."

In a speech that touched upon a wide range of topics, Jackson lashed out at drug abuse as "a moral crisis that cuts at the core of our character."

He said, "Every generation has a duty to address the moral imperative of its day," but those who are maddened by drug and alcohol abuse cannot be strong enough to meet the challenge before them.

Jackson, in Connecticut for the National Conference of Black Mayors, chose to speak at Trinity after learning he could not address Hartford high school students because public schools were closed for the spring break.

He said students in the South in the 1950s and 1960s heard the call of their day and opened doors for the present generation, but this generation must go through those doors with the kind of effort that makes opening those doors worth while.

"All of us can be great because all of us can serve," he said. "The call of convenience leads to collapse and the call of sacrifice leads to greatness."

The moral imperative of today is the need to do something about the arms race, the starving

Mayors to fight cuts

HARTFORD (UPI) — Black mayors lashed out at proposed federal budget cuts and South Africa's apartheid policy while acknowledging blacks still must convince more whites to vote for qualified minorities.

Marion Barry, president of the National Conference of Black Mayors, predicted medium and small cities would go from "meager resources to no resources" if cuts in social programs proposed by President Reagan are accepted by Congress.

Barry, mayor of Washington, D.C., told a news conference Thursday that the majority of the nation's 287 black mayors govern small and medium-sized cities, "and they're the hardest hit."

He suggested the defense budget "ought to take its fair share" of the cuts needed to bring down the soaring national deficit.

Some 500 black municipal leaders are attending the conference's 11th annual convention, including more than 100 mayors, federal, state and local officials and three visiting mayors from China.

Host Mayor Thurman Miller of Hartford, the only black mayor in New England, said the convention would "undoubtedly" pass a resolution condemning the proposed cuts.

Miller, 51, New England's only black mayor, also announced his intention to seek a third, two-year term as head of Connecticut's capital city. He disclosed his intention in his welcoming address Thursday and would officially announce his candidacy next month.

Of the nation's 500,000 elected officials, only 1 percent are black.

Science center teacher explains programs to new group

By Bill Yinoling

Parents who urged school officials to add funds to programs for gifted students in the Board of Education's proposed 1985-86 budget say they plan to continue supporting their cause.

A new group called Supporting Parents for Quality Education has formed and plans to hold monthly meetings which will feature speakers who will focus on the needs of gifted and talented students.

But members of the group say they are interested in developing programs that will benefit all students.

The parents were instrumental in getting school officials to include $41,000 in added funding for gifted programs in the school budget for the fiscal year which starts July 1.

The Board of Directors is now scrutinizing the $24.6 million proposal, which General Manager Robert B. Weiss has recommended not be cut.

Tuesday night seven members of the parents' group met at Bowers School and heard a presentation from a representative of the Talcott Mountain Science Center in Avon.

KATHY EGAN, a general science teacher at the center, told the parents that the center offers programs to students of average learning ability, as well as to students who are gifted learners.

Established in 1967, the center is a non-profit educational and research facility which serves nearly 100 towns in Connecticut. Egan said.

The center, which makes its

Rock stars of the 1950's, from left to right, Fabian, Frankie Avalon and Bobby Rydell, appear for the first time on stage together as they perform during opening night of "Philadelphia's Royalty of Rock Day" at the Valley Forge, Pa., on Saturday, April 19, 1985. The three, who rose to stardom during the early days of rock and roll, all grew up in Philadelphia.

Roosevelt's old deal

A new biography says Franklin Roosevelt had a serious teenage romance with a Boston socialite who turned down his marriage proposal, as well as a few of his overly amorous spouses.

Geoffrey C. Ward, author of "Before the Trumpet: Young Franklin Roosevelt," says Alice Sohler turned down a 20-year-old Roosevelt's offer because he wanted his children and her doctor had said that bearing children would be risky for her.

"I did not wish to be a cow," Sohler, who was 17 at the time of proposal, told a friend years later. "In a day and age when well brought-up young men were expected to keep their hands off the persons of young ladies, Franklin had to be slapped hard." Sohler is quoted as saying.

The book says Roosevelt being seeing his eventual wife Eleanor just weeks after he last saw Sohler.

Humor and homosexuals

Eddie Murphy and homosexuals resumed their battle at Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., Wednesday night. About 75 gays and lesbians picketed outside his sold-out performance, chanting, "You can sit and laugh all day if you're not one of his prey."

Murphy explained his repertoire of homosexual jokes by saying, "I'm not anti anything, I'm just pro-humor. I just tell jokes. You (the protesters) wouldn't think I was funny because you're homos. I make jokes about everybody."

Murphy mocked a request from the school's lesbian and gay coalition, who had asked him to turn over what they thought was his $60,000 performance fee to the Boston AIDS Committee.

"Ha," he said. "Besides, it's $50,000." A spokesman for the school programming board, which scheduled Murphy's appearance, said the university "is an open community, and certainly anyone within the community is free to make a personal statement."

The art of endowment

President Reagan, whose administration has cut federal funds for the National Endowment of Arts, named 10 artists and patrons and one corporation to receive the first annual National Medal of Arts next week. The ceremonies April 23 will coincide with the 20th anniversary of the endowment.

The honorees are composer Elliot Carter, a two-time winner of the Pulitzer Prize for music; "Invincible Man" author Ralph Ellison; actor Jose Ferrer; choreographer Martha Graham; sculptor Louise Nevelson; opera star Leontyne Price; Southwestern artist Georgia O'Keeffe; Dorothy Chandler, the force behind the Music Center of Los Angeles; Lincoln Kirstein, who established the New York City Ballet; Paul Mellon, who was instrumental in creating the National Gallery of Art; and Alice Tully, a big contributor to Lincoln Center.

Also named was Hallmark Cards Inc. of Kansas City, Mo., which has sponsored television specials that have won 49 Emmy awards.

Good police turnout expected

Police are expecting an especially large number of applications for three police positions, the department's community relations officer said this week at a meeting of the Human Relations Commission.

Officer Larry Wilson said at least 300 people were expected to show up for a May 4 agility test — the first step in weeding out unqualified applicants.

"We're going to be looking at an awful lot of people," he said.

The closing date for applications is April 26.

'Tis the season for sweeping

The Highway Department will continue to sweep town streets next week and asks residents of areas slated for sweeping to clear gutters of garbage and sweep sidewalks.

The areas to be swept next week include the area east of Woodbridge Street to the Vernon Town line from south of Lydell Street to north of Middle Turnpike East.

I-84 delays expected

The eastbound lanes of Interstate 84 near exit 92 will be closed for several hours Sunday while contractors work on a new bridge to carry West Middle Turnpike over the highway, a state Department of Transportation spokeswoman said Thursday.

During the work, eastbound motorists will be rerouted into the westbound lanes, where two-way traffic will be maintained during the work. The traffic will be separated by cones and speeds will be reduced in the area during construction, the spokeswoman said.

The work is expected to begin at 5 a.m. Sunday and end around noon. However, the operation will be repeated each Sunday for the next several weeks, the spokeswoman said.

Voters can sign up

The registrars of voters will hold a session in the mall at the Manchester Parkade Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. to register voters.

At the session the registrars and assistants will register voters for Manchester or any other town in Connecticut, accept changes of address for voters in Manchester, and accept changes in party affiliation.

Town officials should not place all of their support behind a shopping mall in the Buckland area being planned by New York developer John Finguerria, Republican town Director Donna R. Mercier said Thursday.

Instead, officials should continue talking with rival developers from Bloomfield and Indianapolis, who plan to build a mall and office complex in Buckland on 93 acres straddling the Manchester-South Windsor town line, she said.

"We're turning our backs on another viable project," Mercier said. "We have rolled out the red carpet to one developer."

Finguerria's plans have received the backing of town General Manager Robert B. Weiss, the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce and the town's Board of Directors, all of whom are eager to see that Manchester gets the most tax benefits for the services it will need to provide either mall.

Manchester officials have complained that the greatest tax-producing parts of the Winchester project would be on the South Windsor side of the line.

But Mercier said that by throwing their support solely behind Finguerria, town officials may be giving up any future bargaining position with the Winchester developers, Bronson & Hutensky of Bloomfield and Melvin Simon & Co. of Indianapolis.

"This is a contest," she said. "I think we have to leave ourselves open to negotiation."

Weiss, while he would not respond to Mercier's comments, said today that the Winchester developers do not appear interested in giving Manchester a bigger share of the tax benefits that would come from the mall.

During the first of two meetings earlier in the year with the Winchester developers, Weiss said he was told that Manchester would get more than just a parking lot and several office buildings on its side of the town line.

"They said 'You're going to get all sorts of other things that will equalize the taxes,'" he said.

But Weiss said he saw no evidence that the developers would change their original plans.

Mercier was also critical of what she said was a lack of solid information provided town directors on Finguerria's proposal.

Finguerria and his three partners announced plans for the development in January and submitted a general plan to town planning and zoning officials this week. At the time, Finguerria said he had no intention of building housing shown on the plan to conform with requirements of the Comprehensive Urban Development zone in which the mall would be built.

Opening day Saturday

Everything is ready, except perhaps the fish. Larry Spencer of East Middle Turnpike is eager for the crack of dawn Saturday. He's making his final (until he changes his mind) selection of the lures he will use. His tackle box is perfectly organized and he is no doubt vowing once again to keep it that way for the entire season.

Bolton candidates spar during forum

By Sarah Posselt
Herald Reporter

BOLTON — About 40 town residents turned out Thursday night at Community Hall to hear candidates for three major boards in the May 8 town election explain their stands during a forum sponsored by the Bolton Women's Club.

Board of Education incumbent David Fernald, a Democrat, drew gasps from the audience when he used his three allotted minutes to lambaste all three incumbent candidates for the Board of Finance.

"I had serious doubts about whether any of them could say anything meaningful in three minutes, let alone 30," Fernald said after the finance board incumbents had spoken. "They did not let me down."

He urged those present to "vote out all of the incumbent Board of Finance members" and vote instead for candidates who have "the ability to get along with others and the ability to be flexible."

The school and finance boards have been at odds over the school budget. The school board has sought spending increases of more than nine percent in each of the last two years, which the finance board has tried to pare by amounts ranging from $125,000 to $75,000.

A QUESTION-AND-ANSWER period that followed the speeches focused almost entirely on school spending — particularly on finance board incumbent Chairman Morris Silverstein's opposition to Bolton High School. Republican Silverstein regularly advocates cutting the school budget by about $400,000, the amount he claims the town would save if it closed the high school and sent Bolton students to high school in another town.

Finance board challengers Robert Campbell, a Republican, and Rusty Kelsey, a Democrat, criticized the current board's education cuts. Silverstein and incumbents Clayton Adams and Charles Holland defended their actions. Adams is a Republican, Holland a Democrat.

Adams called himself a conservative, which he defined as one who "approves the necessary and rejects the nice but not needed things."

"I vote on the issue regardless of where the party stands on the particular issue," Holland said. He claimed that his votes represent the elderly and those on limited incomes as well as those with children in the public schools.

Claude Riel, who is running out the Democratic ticket for the Board of Finance, steered clear of the dispute.

THE CANDIDATES FOR first selectman, Republican Douglas T. Cheney and Democrat incumbent Sandra W. Pierog, bemoaned the lack of cooperation between the finance board and the Board of Selectmen.

Cheney said his first priority if elected to the top spot on the board would be to improve communications among town boards. He also said he would demand more background information from the selectmen's staff on issues that come before selectmen.

"I don't like surprises," Cheney said. "He said he would 'keep an open mind and be receptive to the input of others,' as the town's chief elected officer."

In his speech, finance board Chairman Silverstein said that the finance board should remain "at arm's length" from other boards and make "conservative, rational, impartial and objective evaluations of the requests that are made of it."

Pierog, who has served as first selectman since the death of Democratic First Selectman Henry P. Ryba last fall, took credit Thursday for starting the town's purchase-order system to control town spending. She also took credit for establishing a work schedule for the public works crew and for improving the records kept by the town constables.

ROBERT L. MADORE, who with Pierog and incumbent Michael A. Zizka is trying to wrest control of the Board of Selectmen from the Republicans, promised to bring a new party spirit to the board.

"Tides have turned and new ideas have to be forthcoming," Madore said of the Democratic party. Citing his history of advocating labor and health care reform, Madore, a United Auto Workers union official, said, "I think I have something to contribute."

Zizka and Republican incumbent Carl A. Press did not attend Thursday's forum.

Selectman Lawrence A. Converse, who is completing his first two-year term on the board, asked for "one more term." He also plugged Cheney's candidacy, noting that when First Selectman Henry P. Ryba was seriously ill last year, "The Republican Selectmen pulled together as a team to get the job done."

When Pierog was appointed to take Ryba's seat after his death last September, in accord with the provisions of the Town Charter, "We had to deny Doug the job that he had been doing such a good job at," Converse lamented.

School board incumbent Michael L. Parsons asked voters to return him to the board for four more years. He said computer education is the wave of the future and must be developed in the Bolton schools.

School board challenger Thomas A. Manning, in his second run for the board, said, "This year you have the luxury of clear alternatives. If you want quality, simplicity and frugality, then vote for me."

Funding dispute continues

BOLTON — The controversy among party leaders about whether organizations based outside of Bolton ought to be involved in the spring election campaign rages on.

Republican critics of Democratic campaign tactics have charged that outside campaign help could influence the candidates who accept it. And several top Republicans in town Thursday gleefully predicted that the Democrats' acceptance of $300 from the United Auto Workers will "backfire" at the polls on May 8.

Republican Town Committee Chairman Mark Johnson argued Thursday that neither the UAW nor the Legislative Electoral Action Program, which this week endorsed Robert L. Madore, Democratic candidate for selectman, could possibly have an interest in Bolton government.

"The issues should be the townpeople and the candidates that we have," Johnson said. "What kind of loyalty are these guys going to have to these outside groups later on?"

The controversy began when town Republicans first voiced fears publicly last February about possible UAW support for Madore, a Connecticut UAW official, and for the rest of the Democratic ticket.

Democratic Town Committee Chairman Henry Kelsey today denied Johnson's charges.

"There's a remote chance that we're going to try to push some money in their direction," Peter Gold, executive director of the state GOP headquarters, said today. He said the amount, if it comes through, will be well under $500.

Gold said the party is offering mostly technical assistance and facilities to municipal campaign organizations.

Johnson said he did ask Gold for permission to use of the state headquarters phones and mailing facilities. But he said that Bolton Republican volunteers will have to man the phones themselves and that the town committee will have to pay postage on all its campaign literature.

One Bolton GOP leader who asked not to be named said that the town party probably has as much money as the Democrats to spend in the campaign this year, anyway — and possibly more.

Johnson said he asked state GOP Political Director Pat Futner last January whether Futner thought the UAW could be a threat to the Republican ticket in Bolton.

"He felt we didn't have to worry about the UAW," Johnson said.

Board of Education candidate Thomas A. Manning tells residents that he is a "clear alternative" to incumbent board members.

Wall Street cool to Turner bid

By Joan Hanover
United Press International

NEW YORK — Wall Street's first reaction to Ted Turner's long-awaited bid to take over CBS was cool, while the television industry wondered about the cable broadcaster's plans and worried about possible connections to political conservatives.

CBS stock closed Thursday at $104.25, down $3.50 in active trading. That means people were selling, not buying, after Turner's offer to acquire 47 percent of CBS stock in a complicated $2.9 billion deal that would merge the company with Turner Broadcasting System to form a new company.

CBS stockholders would get no cash for their CBS shares under Turner's plan. Instead they would get stock in the new company, bonds and fixed income securities valued at $150 a share.

Turner said he plans no "fundamental changes" in CBS television operations, but he spoke of providing the public with "more high-quality, innovative programming than CBS currently provides through its broadcast outlets."

He said his company would "seek to improve the quality, objectivity and diversity of CBS programming."

The word "objectivity" caught the eye of industry watchers, since Turner has had meetings with conservatives who object to what they consider the "liberal bias" of CBS programming.

"I want to make it clear that Turner Broadcasting is acting alone," Turner said. "There is no connection to any ideological group."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who had called on conservatives to buy CBS stock and "become Dan Rafter's boss," was asked whether Turner's move would affect his own plans.

"How do you know it's not a part of our plan?" he asked.

Jim Cain, a co-founder of the Raleigh, N.C., based Fairness in Media, the outfit set up to put Helms' plan in action, said he was delighted with Turner's move and his group most likely would urge politically conservative CBS shareholders to sell to Turner.

He said his group had met with Turner in the past and was "very comfortable" with Turner's plan. Turner's industry track record gives few clues about the changes he might make as head of CBS.

Turner's industry track record gives few clues about the changes he might make as head of CBS. His Atlanta-based Cable News Network was founded in 1980 as the nation's first 24-hour television news network.

His Superstation WTBS-Atlanta is somewhere between an independent station and a network because it broadcasts by satellite to cable stations in many cities. Its programming centers on sports — Turner owns the Atlanta Braves and Hawks — and reruns of sitcoms and old movies.

Turner would preside over a diminished CBS. If his takeover succeeds, the new company would be forced by FCC regulations to sell the 14 CBS owned and operated radio stations and its Philadelphia TV station.

Turner said that would be the first step to recapitalize the company in the wake of the debts a takeover would incur. He also said he would consider selling CBS's non-broadcast holdings, including Columbia Records, a slew of consumer and other magazines and a theatrical film production co-venture.

noon on the ninth day of jury selection. The jury in the first von Bulow trial in 1982 was seated in eight days.

The panel will be sequestered in a hotel Monday and on Tuesday will visit Newport, a seaside Rhode Island resort city long favored by New York millionaires. Clarendon Court, the von Bulows' massive, two-story stone mansion, was once used as a setting for the Grace Kelly-Bing Crosby movie "High Society."

"I anticipate that the state will open its case on Wednesday," said Superior Court Judge Corinne Grande.

Von Bulow, 58, a former aide to the late oil billionaire J. Paul Getty, is accused of injecting insulin into Martha "Sunny" von Bulow, a utilities heiress, so he could inherit $14 million and marry his mistress at the time, Alexandra Isles.

Mrs. von Bulow fell into two comas at Clarendon Court during the Christmas holidays in 1979 and 1980.

Defense attorneys have indicated they will claim the heiress went into a permanent coma in 1980 because of a steady diet of drugs, booze and sweets. Mrs. von Bulow remains comatose under guard in a New York hospital.

The state Supreme Court overturned von Bulow's two 1982 convictions on constitutional grounds.

Von Bulow's attorneys ended jury selection by telling Grande they were satisfied with a jury of five married men, five married women, five single women and a divorced.

"The state is satisfied with the composition of the jury," Assistant Attorney General Marc DeSisto said earlier in the day.

The state also rested on the jury earlier this week, but Grande's decision Tuesday to sequester the 16-member panel required the dismissal of several jurors because of hardships it would impose.

Two others were dismissed Thursday for health and financial reasons.

The jury includes a former state representative, several social service workers, and a man who administers the budget for a state substance abuse program.

While some Rhode Islanders wondered how the court would find an untried jury following von Bulow's heavily publicized 1982 trial, many jurors said they remembered little of the case.

"It didn't interest me that much," said Virginia Suspyk of Providence, one of the last jurors to be seated.

The panel will be housed in a hotel throughout the expected two-month trial because of extensive publicity. The trial has attracted reporters from as far away as Germany. Court officials estimated it will cost Rhode Island about $60,000 a month to house, feed and pay the sequestered jury.

The 16 sequestered jurors selected Thursday include four persons from the city of Providence and Cranston, three from Woonsocket, two each from Pawtucket and East Providence and one juror from Johnston.

In Brief

Madore backed

BOLTON — Robert L. Madore, Democratic candidate for the Board of Selectmen, is the only candidate in any of the May municipal elections in Connecticut to win the endorsement of the Legislative Electoral Action Program, according to a LEAP news release.

John Flynn, chairman of the Hartford-based coalition of environmental, labor and women's groups, cited labor leader Madore's record on consumer issues, job training and programs for the elderly as factors in LEAP's decision to endorse him. As Vice President of the United Auto Workers' political action committee in Connecticut, Madore has supported legislation on those issues, LEAP spokesman Nick Nyhart said today.

"Madore is a superb example of the hard-working, dedicated incumbent candidate that LEAP likes to support," Flynn said.

LEAP formed in 1980, was credited with helping candidates unseat incumbents in three 1984 races for the General Assembly. Nyhart said LEAP helped train campaign workers for the candidates they endorsed.

Nyhart said LEAP will furnish volunteers to help Madore campaign in Bolton for the May 6 election.

MADD chief vents anger

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The founder of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers believes the latest drunken driving arrest of the motorist whose car killed her daughter in 1980 should "put him away for life."

"I think he should be taken off the road and removed from society," said Candy Lightner, who founded MADD after her 13-year-old daughter was killed by a car driven by Clarence Busch, 52. "I would put him away for life."

Busch, who has a long record of drunken driving arrests, was picked up Wednesday night on a charge when his car turned left against a red light and hit another car driven by Carrie Sinnott, 19. The woman escaped with bruises on her upper left arm.

"I'm not surprised he's done this again," said Lightner, who had passed the same intersection about 15 minutes before the collision. "I said he would do this again."

"When I learned that he was back out on the road, it brought up the old anger again — anger at him for being so stupid for doing this again."

The last violation cited on Busch's driving record was his arrest for Carl Lightner's death. Busch ran down the suburban Fair Oaks girl while she was walking to a church festival in May 1980, then sped off.

Busch received a two-year involuntary manslaughter sentence in 1980 after a judge ruled that his alcoholism diminished his capacity to make decisions.

The tragedy prompted Candy Lightner to launch a national campaign to form MADD. Beginning as a one-woman crusade, the group now has 340 chapters in 47 states, Canada, Great Britain and Guam.

The project also was the subject of a television movie. "Busch displayed symptoms of intoxication and failed manual dexterity tests conducted by a CHP officer at the scene," said Sgt. Jim Elliott of the California Highway Patrol. "He was arrested for felony drunken driving and also as an unlicensed California driver." Busch was held in lieu of $200,000 bail.

Memories of the Second World War

Almost every week from now through August will mark the 40th anniversary of something having to do with the Second World War. There has already been considerable editorializing on the theme. The thrust of what we are being told is that a better and innocent America than the one we now live in fought the last good war.

As wars go, World War II was worth fighting as you're going to fight, but the constant imputation that they were better than we are now needs to be swallowed with a grain of salt. Though it had its heroes and its great moments, the great war fought by Ronald Reagan's generation was not the unalloyed crusade held up to Americans born after the last good war.

In 1917 America did go to war on a wave of idealism the likes of which have never been seen again. In 1941, America, still disillusioned by the outcome of the First World War, went to war because it had been attacked. Although individuals had an ideological commitment to wage war on the Axis powers the nation did not.

WHATEVER IS SAID NOW, America was not particularly moved before the war or during it by Hitler's anti-Semitic atrocities. Before Pearl Harbor the extent of American interest in the plight of the persecuted Jews of Europe was pretty much limited to preposterous schemes of resettlement anywhere in the world but the continental United States. For a time Franklin Roosevelt was taken up with a proposal to settle Jews in Africa. William Randolph Hearst suggested the Belgian Congo be sold to the Jews for that purpose; Henry Ford thought they should be settled in Brazil and offered to give them some land, but Leopoldville in the Congo said "no deal" and Brazil's response was less than halfhearted.

During the war itself, American fighting spirit was not strengthened by news of the Holocaust. That was because news of it never reached these shores. Reports of what was going on inside Nazi Germany were blocked by the State Department. Until near the war's end all questions having to do with the plight of the Jews were handled inside the American government by Brekinridge Long, a State Department official whom reputable historians regard as an anti-Semite.

DOCUMENTS RECENTLY PRIEDED OUT of Washington archives show that after the war, parts of the American government had more important things on its mind than worrying about the Nazis. In 1946, the war over but a year, Dr. Herman Boyker-Freyling was working for our Air Force before justice caught up with him. He was tried at Nuremberg for performing experiments on prisoners at Dachau. Altogether hundreds of Nazi scientists had their political dossiers expunged so they could be put to work by our government.

The 12 million who served in the armed forces did indeed sacrifice for the cause but the 120 million on the home front did not find life too taxing. (An exception could be entered for those killed or injured in the race riots which briefly broke out in Detroit, Los Angeles and New York.) Between 1940 and 1944 the total of all goods and services in the civilian economy grew.

The war brought prosperity. Meat rationing, for instance, was not such a tough thing for a family which had not been able to afford any of the unrationed meat for sale in the Depression decade of 1930. In 1939 there were 4,900 supermarkets in America, by 1944, even with the armed forces getting priority on all forms of building material and the labor to use it, the number of such markets had grown to 16,000. On the third anniversary of Pearl Harbor, Macy's in New York had the single, biggest selling day in its history.

CIVILIANS DID HELP the war effort in other ways besides getting fat paychecks at the war plant. There was much volunteering for everything from the Red Cross to Boy Scouts searching the back alley for old tires and scrap rubber. But not everybody put their shoulders to the wheel. Standard Oil of New Jersey pleaded nolo when charged by the government with conspiring with I.G. Farbenindustrie to withhold the process for the manufacture of artificial rubber for the war effort. When Ronald Reagan was doing his soldiering at that movie studio in Burbank every body wasn't a hero then and every body isn't a hero now.

'Free' radio: more harm than good

WASHINGTON — Radio programs broadcast to Soviet-bloc countries by two U.S. government-financed stations in Munich often insult the very people they're trying to win, and contain questionable criticism of the United States and its allies, according to internal congressional reports.

The problems with the two stations — Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty — stem more from mismanagement than malice, concluded one congressional staff memo obtained by our associate Indy Badwar. But the memo notes that the problems are serious, involving the broadcasting of "unacceptable material ... characterized as anti-Semitic, anti-Catholic or even anti-Western." The memo also complained of "reversing headline rhetoric" reflecting the Reagan administration's harsh anti-communist views.

The critics don't fault broadcasters' hard-line on philosophical grounds, but simply on the basis that heavy-handed propaganda tends to be counterproductive.

WHEN THE TWO STATIONS were established by the CIA in the early 1950s as an antidote to Radio Moscow, their shrill anti-Soviet propaganda gave them little more credibility than the Kremlin's broadcasts.

So Congress took Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty away from the CIA and created an independent Board for International Broadcasting to fund and supervise the stations. The board's guidelines for effective broadcasting recommend avoidance of "emotionalism, vindictiveness, belligerence, condemnation, propagandistic argumentation, unsupported criticism of the communist system, incitement to revolt, programs based on rumors, sweeping generalizations and gratuitous value judgments."

Unfortunately, the programs prepared by refugees and other East Europeans often reflect their deep-seated prejudices. Here are some examples:
• In one broadcast, a staff memo says, "there are implications that the Russians as a people are responsible for the evils of communism left." The same broadcast also offended Poles when it stated, "It is not only the communist regime, but also a part of the Polish population, including the Polish Catholic clergy, which are responsible for the unenviable fate of the Ukrainian minority in Poland."
• In the same Radio Liberty broadcast, "There is a reference to German imperialism in a postwar context, which is less than flattering to Radio Liberty's host country."

• LAST JANUARY, for the first time since the founding of Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty, the State Department felt obliged to issue a formal apology and disassociate itself from a broadcast that compared Poland's military dictator, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, to Adolf Hitler.

• A program last year "rationalized" a series of Cossack pogroms against Jews in the Ukraine in 1918-1920 by noting that many Jews had joined the Bolshevik cause.

• A religious program described Pontius Pilate as despising the Jews who denounced Jesus, and quoted Russian Orthodox Archbishop Anthony Zhenyevsky as saying, "The atheists in their hatred of Christ have gone even further than the Jews."

• Another broadcast suggested that Poles and Jews were responsible for the triumph of communism.
• One Radio Liberty broadcast gave a "positive" description of the Nazi unit Galitzen, which was responsible for allowing Ukrainians to murder thousands of Jews in Lvov.

Excerpts were broadcast from a book that accused President Franklin Roosevelt of concealing advance knowledge of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, and of conducting "un-American, undemocratic and unconstitutional methods of provoking war."

FOOTNOTE: Board member Ben Wattenberg conceded that there might be problems with some of the broadcasts but they are:

• "What's at issue here is 10 or 15 broadcasts out of countless thousands in a two-year period. On the whole I believe the quality of our programs is getting better and we have more controls over these radios than many other journalistic organizations."

Wattenberg added that the troubles arose from the fact that some of the broadcasts reflected "ancient rivalries and blood feuds" between East European and Soviet populations "and these people tend to talk in black-and-white language."

Drug-busters update

When we reported recently on the government's harassment of rural residents who live in marijuana-growing areas of northern California, we soon learned that overzealous drug-busters use similar tactics elsewhere.

In West Virginia, for example, innocent farm families have been subjected to warrantless searches, "buzzings" by low-flying helicopters, and similar scare techniques, according to affidavits filed in federal court.

One Vietnam veteran wrote: "The helicopter visits were for me especially upsetting as a result of my Vietnam experience."

A woman wrote: "This lengthy and close surveillance awoke my young daughter, whom I had just put to sleep for her nap. She was very upset, saying, 'Mommy, don't let the airplanes get me.'"

Another witness reported that "the choppers were reported flying as low as 90 feet overhead."

Editorials

Yet another rec mistake

The craziness continues.

Last month, we were surprised and annoyed by reports that the town Recreation Department had had the town Engineering Department do twice the work necessary to design parking lots at Charter Oak Park. "It's crazy designing two areas," Director Stephen Cassano said of the double effort, which Recreation Director Scott Sprague attributed to a disagreement over where the parking lots should be.

Now the Recreation Department is involved in another fiasco — this time with the Park Department and Public Works Department.

The Recreation Department commissioned improvements to Pagani Field, and the Public Works Department prepared plans for work on the softball field. Unfortunately, no one considered that the poorly maintained West Side Oval track was still being used by runners, and a fence, installed as part of the improvement project, is obstructing the track.

Joel Janenda, chairman of the Advisory Park and Recreation Commission, insisted something be done. So the Park Department put two gates in the fence where the track runs through the ballfield. Janenda attributed the snafu to "serious management problems."

It's not clear what the extra work has cost. But among the news from this week's rec commission meeting was the report that Pagani Field improvements went $10,000 over budget, which means that some other work planned this year won't be done.

Does one hand know what the other is doing? And who's minding the store?

Quote without comment

No extra comment is needed. Jacob Schrik, a municipal official from the Netherlands visiting Manchester this week, said he was surprised by the organization of government in the United States. He said he considers it more of a system of disorganization.

"You can be taxed by five, six or seven levels of government," he said. "It's crazy."

Added case for planner

On Wednesday, we endorsed a request by town officials to add a principal planner to the staff of the town Planning Department. There is no question that the department needs more help to handle an increasing workload of land-use matters and to complete revision of the town's Comprehensive Plan of Development, which is hopelessly out of date.

Since Wednesday, it has been called to our attention that we could have cited two other reasons for creating the new position.

A principal planner could help untangle the ever-more-complicated code of zoning regulations which restrict everything from tag sales to home automobile repair. Many of the rules probably are not needed, anyway.

And the addition to the planning staff could give employees time to do some chores which recently have become a problem. It seems that members of the Planning and Zoning Commission need a constant reminder that they are expected to show up for their meetings.

Rooney owes us an apology

To the Editor:

The Manchester Herald is to be congratulated for the weekly column featuring Dog Warden Richard Rand. You have helped save a great many dogs since the inception of this column and made Mr. Rand's job much pleasanter and more rewarding. More importantly, you have made people aware of man's inhumanity to dumb animals.

To have Rand's column on Thursday, followed by Rooney's on Saturday, entitled "Rooney's Act of Kindness on Bridge Didn't Last a Mile," served to draw attention to the average person's ignorance in the humane treatment of stray animals. I am appalled, however, that someone with Rooney's education and background could be so ignorant and insensitive to abandon a stray animal. By doing so, he undoubtedly sentenced that dog to untold physical abuse and suffering before its dying a lingering death.

I have seen the Newark animal shelter and it was not pleasant to observe what happens to a stray dog or cat in a large city, and those I saw were the "lucky" survivors.

The decent thing for Rooney would have been to take the dog to a local branch of the humane society or, as he had contemplated, having a veterinarian put the dog to sleep.

Andy Rooney owes every reader of his column an apology. It is too late for the dog he "saved" on the bridge, but there are thousands out there that can be saved. I suggest he send a substantial donation to the humane society branch nearest that bridge and ask that it be used in the education of people in the proper care and treatment of animals.

Parents, town of Manchester, school board, administrators and teachers: Where will you be when that teen has reached an age where he or she is faced with a decision that they will be afraid to share even with their closest friend? You won't be around, but the words, philosophies and experiences of a health teacher will ring in your child's ears.

Parents if you are not teaching your children at home, what they are taught in school is all they will know. When it comes time to make a decision, they may make that decision on somebody's else's knowledge and experiences that you may not even agree with. I urge you to talk to your teens and pre-teens (some eighth graders are only 12 years old). Tell them how you feel about sex, abortion, masturbation, drugs and alcohol. If you don't, a health teacher will, and what that teacher tells your child may not be what you want them to hear.

Tell your teens what you think

To the Editor:

This is a letter to all the parents of Manchester. I am troubled today. I am writing you in regards to the health education courses offered in the Manchester school system. Many have written in and said the course is great. I would like to ask you how old is your son or daughter? Right now they are sweet, innocent and you are able to keep a tight rein and monitor what they do.

caustic," the telegram said. "If no immediate correction is offered by you, it will mean you see no difference between war and genocide."

A White House spokesman said early today, "I know of no plans for a retraction" and the ceremony would be held "whether Mr. Wiesel is there or not."

Reagan, defending his planned trip to a German military cemetery as part of his May 5-6 state visit to West Germany, Thursday told a White House gathering of editors and broadcasters: "I think there is nothing wrong with visiting that cemetery where those young men are victims of Nazism also, even though they were fighting in the German uniform, drafted into the service to carry out the hateful wishes of the Nazis (speaking)." he said.

"They were victims just as surely as the victims in the concentration camps," he said.

The council and other Jewish groups have angrily denounced Reagan's decision to visit the military cemetery near Bitburg, West Germany, where more than 2,000 German soldiers are buried — including about 30 members of the elite corps of storm troopers.

This week, Reagan reversed his stand against dreading up Germany's past horrors and agreed to add a death camp stop to his itinerary. But he stood firm on his decision to pay homage to the German soldiers.

Break-in nets charge

Police charged a 17-year-old Wetherell Street resident Tuesday in connection with a break-in last month at a Redwood Road residence, police said.

David Hazel of 652 Wetherell St. was arrested on a warrant and charged with second-degree burglary and sixth-degree larceny. Police said the son of the couple who own the Redwood Road house apparently told several friends, including Hazel, that they could use the house while his family was on a week-long vacation in Florida.

Police said that the son told his friends how to get inside the house without using force. Police said there were no signs of forced entry when they searched the house.

Nothing of value was missing, police said, but two of the family's cars had been moved. The radio antenna was broken off one of the cars, police said.

The family also found nearly empty liquor bottles scattered around the house and a clock radio taken from one room and left in another.

Police said more arrests are expected in the case.

Hazel was released on a $500 non-surety bond and ordered to appear Monday in Manchester Superior Court.

Roy W. Dungan

Roy W. Dungan of Manchester, husband of Josephine (Speck) Dungan, died Wednesday at St. Francis Hospital and Medical Center in Hartford.

He was born in Manchester, the son of the late Louis and Amanda (Schuler) Dungan, and lived in Hartford for many years before moving back to Manchester. Before his retirement, he was employed as a machinist at Pratt & Whitney in Southington for 30 years. He was a member of Holy Family Layman's Retreat League and a Navy veteran of World War II.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two sons, Roy C. Dungan of Waterbury and Joseph T. Dungan of Hartford; a daughter, Mary LeRoux of Manchester; a brother, Louis Dungan of Enfield; a sister, Evelyn Boynton of Torrington; and an uncle.

The funeral will be Saturday at 9:15 a.m. at Farley-Sullivan Funeral Home, 96 Webster St., Hartford, with a mass of Christian burial in St. Peter Church, Hartford, at 10 a.m. Burial will be in Mount St. Benedict Cemetery, Bloomfield. Calling hours are today from 2 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Memorial donations may be made to Oncology Department, care of Sister Mary Ann Norton, St. Francis Hospital and Medical Center, Woodland St., Hartford, 06105.

CHFA plans more mortgages

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Housing Finance Authority announced $86.3 million will be available in home mortgage funds at 9.25 percent beginning April 29.

Orest T. Dubno, executive director of the state-backed authority, said Thursday that the below-market interest rate was possible because of Wednesday's sale of tax-exempt mortgage revenue bonds.

CHFA offers the growing equity mortgage under which the interest rate applies for the full term of the mortgage. Every two years monthly payments increase by 60 cents per $1,000 borrowed.

The increase in payments is applied directly to the loan principal and the loans are thus paid off in 17 years rather than 30. As a result, the homeowner saves about $40,000 in interest over the term of the mortgage.

CHFA Chairman Arthur H. White said the authority expects to extend more than 1,500 mortgages through the latest bond sale. Of the $86.3 million, $29 million will be reserved for the financing of newly constructed homes.

Consultants resign under fire

WASHINGTON — The swift resignation of two new Education Department consultants has organizations for the handicapped crying victory and Education Secretary William Bennett relieved.

Consultants Eileen Gardner and Lawrence Uzzell stepped down Thursday in the wake of massive criticism for statements about the disabled and the federal government's role in education.

Gardner had said laws for the education of the handicapped "have selfishly drained resources from normal school population." Uzzell said he favored abolishing all federal education programs, including the Education for the Handicapped Act.

Michael Lindwehr, legislative analyst for the Disabilities Rights, Education and Defense Fund, said, "The disabled community can claim victory. We are very excited, very, very excited."

Late Wednesday, Lindwehr's group, along with 14 other national organizations for the disabled, wrote a letter to President Reagan calling for Gardner's resignation. They said her statements insulted and outraged the handicapped.

Officials ask clemency for Dotson

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — State officials awaited an application asking for executive clemency for Gary Dotson, who has served six years in prison for a rape the alleged victim says never occurred.

Warren Lupel, Dotson's attorney, notified the state he will have a courier deliver the long-awaited document to the Illinois Prison Review Board today, asking that clemency be granted and Dotson's sentence commuted to the six years already served.

"I can't understand why he (Lupel) waited this long," said Terry L. Barnich, legal counsel to Gov. James Thompson. "Dotson was sent back to prison a week ago."

Cook County Circuit Judge Richard L. Samuels last week refused to set aside Dotson's 1979 rape conviction, saying he did not believe the recantation of Catherine Crowell Webb, the woman who was allegedly raped. He maintains she lied in 1979 and fabricated the rape story because she feared she was pregnant with her boyfriend's child. This week Webb and her attorney said results of a lie detector test supported her new story.

Thompson said he will act quickly to consider the case once the proper papers have been filed, but Barnich said Thursday the latter belonged in the courts.

Botha assails anti-apartheid group

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — President Pieter Botha accused the main anti-apartheid movement today of being communist and "an internal extension" of the banned black nationalist African National Congress.

Addressing Parliament one day after a white man was set on fire and five black people were killed in race violence, Botha attacked the United Democratic Front — an umbrella organization of about 600 groups opposed to South Africa's apartheid system of racial segregation.

"The process of politicization and mobilization, in which especially the UDF has an important role and which takes place in a still deteriorating economic situation, has attained such proportions that the potential for extensive countryside violent disturbances has increased markedly," he said.

Botha said he accepted blacks had real grievances that caused unrest. But the aim of the UDF "is the destruction of our system of government and civilized values," he said.

The new racial violence Thursday came as autopsies revealed 17 of 20 blacks killed last month by police were shot in the back.

Briley follows brother to chair

RICHMOND, Va. — James Briley, the middle brother of three of Virginia's most feared criminals, was executed for killing a pregnant mother and her son during a 1979 Briley gang murder spree that claimed 12 lives.

Briley was strapped to Virginia's death chair at 11:02 p.m. EST Thursday and was given back-to-back jolts of 2,300 volts of electricity.

Convicts at Virginia's State Penitentiary, who staged a brief but bloody riot Thursday morning in a futile attempt to halt the execution, were silent when the 28-year-old killer and convict here was pronounced dead at 11:07 p.m.

A prison spokesman said Briley made no final statement, but looked at the nine official witnesses in the cramped death chamber, smiled and asked: "Are you happy?"

Guards quelled the Thursday morning disturbance in 15 minutes, but nine guards and one inmate were injured in the melee — none seriously.

The Statue of Liberty is behind scaffolding, which is necessary for the renovation work, which will take another 15 months.

In photo above, metal workers from France are rebuilding the torch and the flame. A wall of glass protects tourists from flying sparks. Top, an entirely new flame is being constructed for the torch.

The statue welcomes visitors though she's under repair

By Nancy Poppo Herald Reporter

The students at Wadwell School are running a trivia contest to raise money for her "face lift."

The kids at Buckley School held a variety show and sent $300 to help refurbish this universal symbol of freedom.

Keeneey Street School collected pennies for the lady, and raised several hundred dollars worth in jars.

Verplanck grades 3, 4, 5, and 6 are looking for pledges for their "Run for Liberty," a 20-minute jog which will be May 6.

Let's face it. The Statue of Liberty is a mighty popular lady. When a survey by the National Park Service reported serious corrosion in the statue's iron framework, and considerable deterioration of the 200,000 pounds of copper sheeting that forms her outer covering, private citizens all over the country dug deep into their pockets to find funds to pay for her restoration.

Led by Chrysler Corp. chairman Lee Iacocca, it is reputed to be the largest outpouring of private funds for a public cause in the history of this nation. It is estimated that the renovation of the statue, and the museum on Ellis Island, will cost approximately $20 million.

Certainly, some of this has had to come from large corporate donors. But youngsters in more than 25,000 schools across the country have had talent shows and bake sales, and contributed their allowances to the cause, as well.

This spring vacation, how about visiting the lady while Manchester schools are on spring break?

OF COURSE, YOU'LL FIND the famous girl a bit under the weather just now. Always the symbol of freedom, with shackles laying broken at her feet, she is imprisoned behind bars of steel these days.

A 305-foot scaffold has been erected to allow workmen to make repairs both internal and external. But the statue, and the museum at her base, are still open to visitors.

"Tourism has fallen off drastically, because most people think that liberty island is closed," said Kathy Vestuto of the New York Convention and Visitors' Bureau.

"But it's really a very historic time to visit the island. Years from now, people will be able to say that they visited the Statue of Liberty when she was covered with scaffolding. She's really just getting ready for a birthday party."

That birthday party — on Oct. 28,

"It's really a very historic time to visit the island. ... She's really just getting ready for a birthday party."

Kathy Vestuto
New York Convention and Visitors' Bureau

1986 — will be the lady's 100th. By then she will have a completely rebuilt torch and a re-engineered flame. Each point of light coming from her crown will be burnished and beautiful.

There will also be crowds galore. You can practically have the place to yourself when you can take the 15-minute ferry ride from Battery Park out to Liberty Island, to watch engineers and welders at work in their "beauty parlor."

The Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Centennial Commission has placed a glass wall between the tourists' gallery and the working area, so you and your youngsters may watch the renovation from close-up.

Many adults recall, from visits made in childhood, that anyone with enough wind could climb high into the statue's face, and peer out through observation windows in her crown. This is not possible while the renovations are proceeding — it was actually discontinued several years ago. But at the official centennial celebration, the observation area is expected to be reopened.

TO GET INTO MANHATTAN you could drive — but then you'd have to contend with New York City traffic, and, much worse, New York parking rates. Consider, instead, the train, which costs $28 round trip.

Direct trains depart from Hartford at 6:34, 7:34 and 8:27 a.m. on weekdays, arriving at Penn Station in Manhattan at 9:14, 10:18 and 12:14 p.m., respectively.

Unfortunately, there's only one convenient direct train for returning to Hartford, and that leaves Penn Station at 9:58 p.m., and arrives in Hartford at 11:47 p.m. For this, which is the Montreal train continuing into Canada, reservations are required. If you cannot get a seat on this train, you'll have to change trains in New Haven to get back to Hartford. Call 525-4850, in Hartford, for information about these, or any other Amtrak trains.

From Penn Station, walk one block to the corner of 34th Street and Broadway, and take the southbound M-4 bus to the end of the line. These buses run every 8 minutes, and cost 90 cents — which you must have in exact change.

Cleveland's Phil Hubbard (35) battles for rebound with Boston's Kevin McHale (32) in first-quarter action Thursday night. Boston's Larry Bird is at the left. Celtics won playoff opener, 126-123.

Celts take first step towards title defense

By Frederick Waterman
United Press International
BOSTON — For the Boston Celtics, it's one down and 14 to go.
The defending NBA champions embarked on their bid to win back the crown with a 126-123 victory Thursday night over the Cleveland Cavaliers. To win the title, a team must win 15 games during the four rounds of the playoffs, and Boston knows what to do when the games get close.
"We kept our pulse and our patience, and it paid off at the end," said Larry Bird, who scored a game-high 40 points.
Trailing 123-122, the Celtics worked the ball into Kevin McHale, who was fouled and dropped both free throws with 1:27 on the clock. After World B. Free shot an air ball and the Cavaliers lost the ball into hounds, McHale netted a 3-foot jumper. Attempted 3-pointers by Cleveland's Edgard Jones and Free missed in the final seconds.
"They know how to make the big plays. We're just learning how to do it," Cleveland coach George Karl said. "I thought we had a good chance to beat them and I know that we can beat them."

Boston takes a 1-0 lead in their best-of-five series against Cleveland, appearing in the playoffs for the first time since 1978. Game 2 will be played Saturday afternoon in Boston.
McHale, who finished with 26 points, scored for the Celtics final 11 as Boston rallied from a 119-115 deficit with four minutes remaining.
The Celtics led through most of the game, with their biggest lead 91-76 midway through the third quarter, after Danny Ainge dropped his second 3-pointer.
Cleveland gradually closed the gap and a 9-0 surge during the fourth quarter provided a 118-113 margin with 4:47 remaining. Roy Hinson scoring 7 of his 24 points during the run.
"We're known for blowing big leads," guard Dennis Johnson commented. "We were missing layups, rebounds and loose balls."
Boston coach K.C. Jones said, "We have a tendency to get very careless, but we respect Cleveland. Everyone in the press was saying, 'They're a piece of cake,' but we're saying 'No, no, no."

Cavalier Phil Hubbard said his team's mistakes were the difference.
"We are just trying to do our best. I think we should have won the game, there's no moral to this in the playoffs."
Cleveland lost for the 20th straight time on the road against Boston, which has defeated the Cavaliers in their last 16 games.
Boston center Robert Parish committed three fouls in the first quarter, sat out the second and was not a factor in the game, scoring just eight points and grabbing five rebounds.
"Robert got out of the offensive flow, and when that happens, a player tends to get overlooked," explained Bird. "On Saturday you'll see our offense play differently, with Robert getting the ball."
John Bagley added 22 points and 11 assists for Cleveland, and Free provided 18 points.
"We made some mistakes early, little things that hurt us, but they are things we can fix," said Cleveland's Ben Poquette. "We have confidence in ourselves and we can beat them on Saturday."

Opening Day is fun, but don't take it seriously

The best times to fish are when it's raining and when it's not.
And then there's Opening Day. The third Saturday in April is unique to Connecticut trout anglers. The anticipation and spectacle of 200,000 licensed fishermen splashing around in state streams, lakes and ponds is a once-a-year occasion.
It's a circus and a rat race but that's what makes it fun.
Even diehard, year-round fishermen can enjoy themselves if they follow one basic philosophy: you can't take it seriously. At least not in the traditional sense of the sport. Those seeking solitude and peace and quiet — major attractions to the purists — might as well stay in bed.
Few do. Not many would chose to preserve their dignity at the expense of missing a day of fishing.
This is the one morning when nobody minds getting up early.
Opening Day is more than just the start of a new season. It's a party, like Super Bowl Sunday. Many groups of friends or families meet for pre-dawn breakfasts and game-plans, or even assemble the night before to count down the hours together and swap lies.

Fathers and sons (and daughters), grandpas and grandkids and long-time buddies jam the river banks or launch the boats en masse. Of course, expect herds of humping beginners packed shoulder to shoulder at all the "secret" pools, crossing each other's lines and spooking all the fish.
Try not to be offended, though. Remember — it's their day. Anyone really into the hobby of freshwater fishing has the next 10 months to do it up right.
If first-day situations get out of control, amusement can always be found by observing the company.

AL roundup Rice's rocket shot boosts the Bosox

By Joe Illuzzi
United Press International
Just call him Professor Rice, doctor of homerology.
Jim Rice can be considered an authority on home runs, so when he lectures on the subject, people should pay strict attention.
Rice belted a two-out, 400-foot home run from the top of the 10th inning Thursday night to give the Red Sox a 4-3 victory over the Kansas City Royals.
"I wasn't looking to hit a home run," said Rice, who also made a game-saving catch in the bottom of the 14th with the tying run on second base. "My theory in situations such as this is that if you're looking to hit a homer, 10 times out of 10 you'll fail. I just try to drive the ball through someone."
Rice's towering shot came on a 2-0 pitch off reliever Mike Jones, 0-1. It was his third homer of the season.
"I got behind him 2-and-0 and tried to get the ball out over the plate and didn't get far enough," said Jones. "And he hit the ball out of it. I made a mistake that got away with it."
Ojeda, 1-0, pitched three innings of relief to earn the victory. He entered with men on first and third with none out in the 10th, but he got out of the jam.

With two out in the bottom of the 14th, Pat Sheridan doubled. Rice then made a diving catch at a George Brett line drive to left field to end the game.
Kansas City had a chance to win the game when they put runners on first and third with one out in the 12th inning, but Ojeda escaped by striking out Sheridan, and getting Brett on a ground ball to first baseman Bill Buckner, who made a diving stop.
"As far as I'm concerned, the play that won the game for us was the one that Buckner made in the 12th inning," said Ojeda. "That really seemed to wake us up. I know it got my adrenalin flowing."
Elsewhere, Cleveland blasted Baltimore 11-5. New York edged the Royals 3-2. Toronto topped Texas 6-3 and California outslugged Minnesota 9-8.

Indians 11, Orioles 5
At Cleveland, a pair of errors by usually reliable shortstop Ripken enabled the Indians to score three runs in the sixth inning and go on to defeat the Orioles.
Cleveland's Julio France went 4-for-5 to raise his American League-leading average to .556. Baltimore got two home runs and four RBI from Rick Dempsey.
Angels 9, Twins 8
At Minneapolis, Doug DeCinces belted a three-run homer and Rod Carew and Brian Downing each drove in two runs to power the Angels to victory. Doug Corbett, 1-0, was the winner while Donnie Moore got his second save. Randy help boost two home runs and four RBI from Rick Dempsey.

Stanley Cup playoffs Stars back on track

By Lisa Harris
United Press International
Of the 16 teams that entered the Stanley Cup playoffs, three remained unbeaten with 4-0 records after Thursday night's action. The best-of-seven division finals got under way.
The first of those to stay perfect, Philadelphia with a 3-0 Game 1 victory over the New York Islanders in the Patrick Division opener, scored in a 14-game winning streak at home and 16-1 record ending the regular season, finishing in first place with 113 points.
At Montreal, Oilers, four points behind the Flyers in second at the end of the season, are defending Stanley Cup champions, and have redefined firepower in the NHL. That offense has yet to appear in the playoffs, and Wayne Gretzky just Thursday scored his first playoff goal — an empty netter at that. The Oilers are the favorite to win the Cup.
At Minnesota swept the Norris Division champion St. Louis Blues out of the first round, but St. Louis slumped for weeks after losing Doug Wickens, their best defensive center, penalty killer and face-off specialist.
The last-ranked post-season contender, the Rangers, Gary Flaherty and Boston Bruins were ushered out of the first round in three, four-game games.
The North Stars untracked their offense with six unanswered goals after trailing 3-0, including four in the second period, and two assisted goal to tie the game at 7:40 of the second period and Neal Broten scored the puck from Chicago's Ben Wilson and backhanded the go-ahead shot unassisted at 11:03.

"The big key was we didn't panic," Manchester High and Eastern Connecticut State University standouts, is expected to defend his men's division crown.
The race will be sponsored for the second consecutive year by the Bolton Lion's Club. Entry fee is $4 day of the race. There will be prizes awarded in six men's and six women's divisions along with prizes to the first Bolton finisher, the youngest finisher and the youngest sub-junior finisher.

Nordiques 2, Canadiens 1
At Montreal, all traces of last year's bloody "Battle of Quebec" were gone in this year's opener, as the provincial arch-rivals probably were reaping from first-round series that went the full five games. Rookie Mark Kumpel scored the game-winner, his first goal of the playoffs, at 12:23 of the first period. That's why it's a seven-game series.
In the Adams Division, Quebec got by Montreal 2-1 in overtime.
Flyers 3, Islanders 0
At Philadelphia, goalie Pelle Lindbergh keyed a shot-blocking Philadelphia defense and Tim Kerr scored his sixth playoff goal to shut out New York. Lindbergh turned aside 22 shots and rookies Rick Tocchet and Ron Sutter also scored brilliantly.
Oilers 4, Jets 2
At Edmonton, Alberta, Paul Coffey's point shot at 6:42 of the third period deflected off Winnipeg defenseman Dave Eabych to McLain, who was denied ball the day after the March 16 guilty verdict, is expected to appeal the convictions and hopes to be released on bond following his sentencing.
Beck has shoulder repaired
NEW YORK — New York Ranger captain Barry Beck was reported in good condition Thursday after having an operation on his left shoulder.
"Everything went well," said Ranger team physician Barton Nisonson, who performed the 1½-hour surgery at Lenox Hill Hospital.
Prince back with Bucs
PITTSBURGH — Bob Prince, known to baseball fans as "The Gunner" will once again be part of the Pittsburgh Pirates broadcast team, it was announced Thursday.
Prince, whose firing after the 1975 season caused massive protests by Pirate fans, made the announcement at home plate of Three Rivers Stadium after being released from Ely & Zar Hospital, where had undergone surgery for removal of a tumor between his tongue and jaw.
Prince will join the KDKA radio team of Lanny Fratantone and Jim Rooker, and also work with John Sanders on television broadcasts.
Wilander survives scare
HOUSTON — Top-seeded Mats Wilander survived a second-set scare Thursday to grab a 6-3, 7-6 (8-7) victory from Boris Becker in the second round of the $100,000 River Oaks tennis tournament.
Anders Jarryd, seeded second, also advanced to Friday's quarterfinals, posting a 5-7, 7-6 (7-3), 6-2 win over Guillermo Vilas. Other winners Thursday were No. 6 Tim Mayotte and No. 7 Vitas Gerulaitis.

Tulane drops hoop

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A Tulane University administrator refused to rule out the possibility that men's basketball may be reinstated some day, but an unanimous vote by the Board of Administrators has abolished the program.
The decision Thursday ended the school's scandal-plagued basketball program after more than 1,400 games.
Elimination of the team will make Tulane the nation's only major university with a football squad and no basketball team this fall. The University of Miami will add a basketball team in November.
"I am saddened and disappointed by the events that have taken place and the necessity of taking this action," said Tulane President Edmond Kelly.
"At the same time, perhaps this will result in the kind of program here at Tulane that will benefit all of interested athletes throughout the United States."
The University Senate Monday approved Kelly's recommendation that men's basketball be dropped because of a point-shaving and drug scandal, and admissions of NCAA violations by coaches.
All 21 administrators voted to abolish the basketball program, but Board Chairman Boller Rely III refused to rule out the possibility basketball will be reinstated some day at the school.
"This university plays by the rules," Rely said. "We are going to set an example that we are going to play by the rules at Tulane University."

Lakers Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Phoenix Alvin Adams reach for loose ball during the first period at the Forum Thursday. Los Angeles walked all over the Suns in NBA playoff opener.

NBA playoff roundup Suns made even sicker

By Joe Illuzzi
United Press International
After Thursday night's showing against the Los Angeles Lakers, the Phoenix Suns may join the rest of their injured players in the infirmary. The game was enough to turn anyone's stomach.
The Suns, so decimated by injuries that the cover of the team's playoff media guide is a full-color replica of a Band-Aid box, played without their three top scorers, and it showed to the tune of a 142-114 rout at the hands of the Lakers.
"They're a tremendous team, no doubt about that," Phoenix coach John MacLeod said. "They're just too doggone good for us."
"We were strictly business on the court. No horsing around. They just took it to us."
Magic Johnson scored 18 points and handed out 19 assists in three quarters to lead the Lakers, in their ninth straight playoff season.
For the Suns, Larry Nance has a pulled groin muscle, Walter Davis has had surgery on his ankles and a hand, and James Edwards has a bruised knee and lower-back problems. All three are doubtful for the remaining games in the series.
Game 2 of the best-of-five series is Saturday at the Forum, where the Suns have lost all four games played this season.
What was left of Phoenix was led by Charles Pittman with 22 points. Maurice Lucas and Bob McAdoo, Byron Scott and James Worthy, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 15 points.
"I was worried when I got here tonight and I'm still worried now," Laker coach Pat Riley said, not a hint of a smile on his face.

Mavs 139, Blazers 131 (ot)
At Dallas, Rolando Blackman led Dallas alive through one overtime period and scored 7 straight points in the second extra session to give the Mavericks a victory over Portland in the opening game of their series.
Game 2 is Saturday afternoon in Dallas.
Blackman equalled a career-high with 42 points and scored the tying baskets at the end of regulation and the first overtime.
He touched off a 15-2 run in the second extra period to spark Dallas.
As the game progressed we left Rolando could get by Clyde Drexler, so we started running plays for him," Dallas coach Dick Motta said. "It was a great game to watch."
Dallas won despite being outshot by the Blazers 56 percent to 39.

Pistons 125, Nets 105
At Detroit, Isiah Thomas scored 21 points and handed out 11 assists while running a sparking fast break to lead the Pistons to a 1-0 lead in their series. Game 2 is scheduled for Sunday night at Detroit's Joe Louis Arena.
Bill Laimbeer scored a team-high 23 points for Detroit and hauled in 13 rebounds as the Pistons completely dominated a New Jersey team which had mastered won the regular-season series 5-1.
Nuggets 141, Spurs 111
At Denver, Alex English scored 33 points and Calvin Natt added 25 to spark Denver to a 1-0 edge over San Antonio. Game 2 is Saturday night in Denver.
Denver's point total and margin of victory were both NBA playoff highs for the franchise.

Bolton race set Sunday

BOLTON — The eighth annual Bolton Five-Mile Road Race will answer the gun Sunday at 1 p.m. at Bolton High School on Brandy Street. The course is a figure eight that is not an easy one to navigate, according to Stephen Gates, two-time defending champ. Gates, a former Manchester High and Eastern Connecticut State University standouts, is expected to defend his men's division crown.
The race will be sponsored for the second consecutive year by the Bolton Lion's Club. Entry fee is $4 day of the race. There will be prizes awarded in six men's and six women's divisions along with prizes to the first Bolton finisher, the youngest finisher and the youngest sub-junior finisher.

Sports In Brief

Torch Run on Saturday
STORRS — The I.F.C. (Intrafraternal Council) of the University of Connecticut is conducting a Torch Run Saturday to benefit the Community Child Center. The Torch Run is a relay from the Manchester Park area to the UConn campus in Storrs. Each relay leg is made up of one to three individuals from each sorority and fraternity participating in "Greek Week." Each runner gets pledges of sponsorship for the 20 mile trek, much like a March of Dimes walkathon.
The Community Child Guidance Center is a non-profit organization for autistic and abused children.
McLain about to bottom out
TAMPA, Fla. — Seventeen years after attaining a baseball zenith equalled by few players in history, Denny McLain is about to bottom out.
The last 30-game winner in the major leagues faces a maximum sentence of 75 years in prison today at 9 a.m. EST when U.S. District Court Judge Elizabeth Kovachovich rules on McLain's penalty for a conviction last month on four counts. McLain, who was denied bail the day after the March 16 guilty verdict, is expected to appeal the convictions and hopes to be released on bond following his sentencing.
Beck has shoulder repaired

Bobby Wadkins leans back after sinking long birdie putt on sixth hole in opening round play at Hilton Head Classic. Wadkins carded a 6-under 65 to take the lead.

Wadkins snares lead

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) — It was a great day for golf and relative unknowns in the opening round of the Sea Pines Heritage Golf Classic.
Forty-three golfers tied or broke par on the par-71, 6,788-yard Harbour Town Golf Links Thursday. Bobby Wadkins, younger brother of Lanny, led the way with a six-under-par 65.

NL roundup Heat thaws out Expos' Rogers

By Fred McMane
United Press International
There's nothing like a July day in April to thaw out an aging arm and melt away those trade rumors.
Hampered by bitterly cold weather in his first two starts of the season, Steve Rogers found 87-degree weather in St. Louis the perfect remedy for his problems Thursday and pitched the Montreal Expos to a 7-1 triumph over the Cardinals.
His impressive outing came less than 24 hours after a story in a Canadian newspaper said he might soon be traded to the Houston Astros for pitcher Mike Scott.
Last night, Rogers' Astros general manager Al Rosen confirmed the trade had talked about such a trade, but the deal had fallen through.
"It's dead in the water," said Rogers. "We don't have what they want at this time."
Rogers, who entered the game with an 0-2 record and a 6.23 ERA, struck out four and walked four in going the distance for the first time this year. Rogers had endured four long snags and rain delays in his first two decisions, but this time the 35-year-old right-hander did not allow a hit after the fourth inning and retired 13 consecutive batters in one stretch.
"It was tough out there," said Rogers. "I was in a groove. No really, it was very pleasant. I stayed loose. You can do that when it's hot. Plus, there were no delays to wait through. I like pitching."

Reds 4, Giants 3
At Cincinnati, Cesar Cedeno singled home two runs with a hit in the 10th inning to give the Reds their fourth straight victory. Cedeno's hit came off losing reliever Greg Minton, 0-1, and made a winner of Carl Willis, 1-0. Cincinnati's Pete Rose went 1-for-4 and needed 45 hits to break Ty Cobb's all-time hit record of 4,191.
Vance Law had three hits and drove in two runs to pace a 15-hit attack in support of Rogers. Kurt Kephart, 0-2, suffered the loss.
Elsewhere in the National League, Los Angeles blanked San Diego 5-0, and Cincinnati nipped San Francisco 8-1 in 10 innings.
"It feels very good to have so many runs behind you, and being victimized by poor batting support last year in a 12-17 season. That really helps, especially at the beginning of the game. Sometimes you don't have any help and other times you do have help."
At Cincinnati, Cesar Cedeno singled home two runs with a hit in the 10th inning to give the Reds their fourth straight victory. Cedeno's hit came off losing reliever Greg Minton, 0-1, and made a winner of Carl Willis, 1-0. Cincinnati's Pete Rose went 1-for-4 and needed 45 hits to break Ty Cobb's all-time hit record of 4,191.

Bolton baseball remains winless

BOLTON — Visiting Bacon Academy scored in every inning but the fifth to easily overpower winless Bolton, 19-2, in COC baseball action at Bolton on Wednesday.
Bacon, now 5-1 in the conference and overall, pounded three Bulldog pitchers for 15 hits and took advantage of five errors. Steve Lupat paced the winners with four hits, while Bill Bruch and Mike Hickey each had three. Bruch smashed the big blow of the day, a two-run homer.
Bolton, 0-5 in the COC and 0-7 overall, managed just two hits off winning pitcher Andy Shoop, who struck out 18. Bulldog freshman Cliff Stoudt ripped the first hit of his varsity career, an RBI-single.
"We were not aggressive with the bats like the last two games," said Bolton coach Howard Sobolov. "Shoop pitched well, he had our hitters fooled all day. Again, the errors and unearned runs hurt us."
The Bulldogs are off until April 30, when they travel to East

Hampton High.
Bacon Academy 255 202 3 19:15-0
Bolton 807 800 0 2:2-6

East boys track has the numbers

By Bob Papetti
Herald Sports Writer
Strength in numbers.
East Catholic track coach Mark Skehan hopes the old adage proves true this year. Forty-seven athletes comprise the Eagle squad, including 27 upperclassmen and 20 underclassmen.
"Overall, we're very talented but we're probably inexperienced, especially in the throwing events," noted Skehan. "We've got a good number, but we are younger than the last three or four years."
Top scoring hopefuls this season are seniors Buddy Zachary and Rick Lavey. Zachary was one of the top indoor sprinters in the state, placing second in the state in the 55-meter dash and third in the 300-meter run. He will anchor the 100 and 200 sprints and run a leg of the 4 X 100 relay.
Last spring, Lavey was third in Class L in the triple jump. He is also East's top high jumper and 400 man and will probably participate on either the 4 X 100 or 4 X 400 relays.

The relays should be a strong point, depending on who wins spots, according to Skehan. The promising sprint relay may feature Zachary, Lavey, and sophomores Paul Fehner and Dan Albriero.
Senior Chris Galligan will again be the premier middle distance runner. Last year, Galligan was among the top six in Class L in the 800-meter run. He should also run a leg of the mile relay.
Top distance runners are senior Bert Howard in the 3000 and junior Paul Ray in the 5000.
With so many candidates vying for positions, it should only be a matter of time before the Eagles assemble a winning combination.
"We'd like to be in contention with HCC rivals like Norwich, St. Bernard and Xavier," added Skehan.

Lopez paces LPGA event

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Charismatic Nancy Lopez may rate as one of the prettier women golfers of the past decade, but she is still looking for her first victory.
Lopez, a two-time LPGA Player of the Year, has won the $200,000 Las Vegas LPGA tournament three of its seven years. She fired a 7-under-par 66 Thursday to grab a one-shot lead after the opening round.
Forty-three golfers tied or broke par on the par-71, 6,788-yard Harbour Town Golf Links Thursday. Bobby Wadkins, younger brother of Lanny, led the way with a six-under-par 65.
Two-time Heritage champion Hale Irwin headed the "name"

Her performance barely overshadowed a brilliant 21-hole back nine by Patty Sheehan, who tied a course record for those nine holes even though she bogeyed No. 18. That left Sheehan tied with Vicki Ferguson at 67, one stroke back of Lopez.
Sheehan carded six birdies, including four straight, in an eight-hole stretch.
"I hit the ball at times awesome," Sheehan said. "Other times, I hit so badly that I looked like I should not be out on the Tour."
At 68 are Lenore Muraoka and Patty Hayes, while Dinah Shore champion Alice Moore headed a group of five women at 69 that includes Cincy Hill, Val Skinner, Dan Reedler and Della Tomes
