White House hails Fed's rate cutting

By Denis G. Gullino
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve Board — in an action cheered by the White House — put its weight behind lower interest rates Friday, trimming its discount borrowing rate for banks by half a point to 7 1/2 percent, the lowest in almost six years.

New York's Chase Manhattan Bank and Citibank quickly followed by lowering their prime rates by half a point to 10 percent, and other banks indicated they would quickly follow their lead, with the new rate to prevail shortly.

Borrowing rates for business and consumers were poised to go down and Friday's 5-0 vote by Fed governors took a step toward easing the pressure of borrowing being interpreted as a strong endorsement of the trend. It was the first such adjustment since late December.

"This very important Fed easing step was apparently aimed primarily at countering weakness in economic activity," David M.

36 dead in mine mishap

TOKYO (UPI) — An explosion a half-mile underground ripped through a northern Japanese coal mine Friday, killing at least 36 miners, injuring 20 and leaving as many as 25 missing, police said.

Rescue workers wearing oxygen masks searched underground caverns filled with poisonous gas as other workers rigged giant fans to ventilate the mine shafts.

It was the second accident in six years at the 15-year-old Minabuchi Mine. A gas explosion in 1978 killed 17 people.

Police said the blast occurred at 3:30 p.m. about 3,200 feet underground, the deepest part of the mine. At least 36 miners were reported dead, 20 injured and as many as 25 others were missing, authorities said.

5,200 pilots on strike Fly boys leave travelers grounded

By Tim Coder
United Press International

More than 5,000 pilots went on strike against United Airlines Friday, grounding flights of the nation's largest air carrier in at least 89 cities and forcing thousands of travelers to make alternate plans.

Members of the Air Line Pilots Association forced cancellation of hundreds of scheduled flights when contract talks with government mediators broke off at a Boston hotel around 3 a.m. EDT, three hours after a midnight strike deadline.

No further talks were scheduled. The pilots — many of whom earn between $63,000 and $150,000 a year — walked picket lines at airports and ticket offices across the nation.

The chief stumbling block in four days of talks was United's "two-tier" proposal to pay newly hired pilots at a lower pay scale than current pilots.

The walkout by 5,200 pilots limited the Chicago-based carrier to flights to only 50 cities while service was canceled in at least 89 others. United said it operated at 11 percent of normal schedule Friday with 165 flights.

The airline said it would attempt to keep planes flying with 200 supervisors. It said it has about 500 replacement pilots — who are trained but not yet hired — and who would be ready to fly in four days.

U.S. District Judge Nicholas Bua in Chicago continued until June 10 a hearing on a suit filed by the pilots union seeking a court order to bar the airline from firing the strikers or replacing them with other pilots.

A union spokesman said members were solidly behind the strike.

"Morale is very, very good," said Capt. Sam O'Daniel, a Denver-based pilot working as a spokesman at strike headquarters in suburban Rosemont near O'Hare International Airport, the hub of United operations.

"We're very pleased with the unity in the pilot group. They understand the issues and the resolve is there to stand firm. We view the company's position as a union-busting tactic."

United unseated a broadcast advertising blitz to inform air travelers, said airline spokeswoman Diane Zelinaki.

Hundreds of passengers milled about in front of United ticket counters as up to 50 pilots picketed outside United entrances at O'Hare.

"We should be able to begin in 72 hours. It is our intention to return services to all cities as soon as possible."

Airports served by United, which normally carries 120,000 travelers per day on more than 1,500 scheduled flights, were filled with angry passengers who hustled to make alternate arrangements.

Rival airlines increased their personnel to pick up the slack. Greyhound Bus Co., based in Phoenix, Ariz., said it will honor United Airlines tickets for the duration of the strike.

United has 315 daily departures at O'Hare, the world's busiest airport, but only 25 had taken off by 3 p.m. EDT. The airline will operate at least 33 flights out of Chicago Friday, said airline spokeswoman Diane Zelinaki.

"We want to inform the traveling public we are flying and want to expand as we're able to do so," said Chuck Novak, United's manager of corporate communication.

Jesse Jackson joins effort to free hostages in Beirut

By Thomas Ferraro
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Jesse Jackson pushed his efforts Friday to win freedom for six hostages in Beirut while the State Department accused the terrorists who held them of "cynical and cruel" behavior.

Jackson, seeking to duplicate the diplomatic feat that obtained the release of a Navy flier from Syria last year, talked first with State Department officials and then with representatives of the Arab League.

The meetings followed a statement by the brother of one hostage that the terrorists apparently are threatening to kill their captives — four Americans and two Frenchmen.

Joseph Jenos said he received a letter from his brother Lawrence, a Catholic missionary and one of the hostages, saying the terrorists have vowed to kill the captives unless extremist Islamic members are released from a prison in Kuwait.

Earlier this week, a group claiming to be the Islamic Jihad, or "Holy War," released pictures of the American hostages and warned of "catastrophic consequences" if the Kuwaitis do not free 17 terrorists.

The civil rights spokesman said the Kuwaitis do not know the whereabouts of the hostages. This is a cynical and cruel act of taking the hostages in the first place.

"We want to inform the traveling public we are flying and want to expand as we're able to do so," said Chuck Novak, United's manager of corporate communication.

Jackson, accompanied by relatives of the American hostages, said he had a "very effective and significant" meeting with Robert O'Neil, head of the State Department's office of counter-terrorism.

The civil rights leader told reporters, "We're going to continue to appeal to our government to take a very active role in trying to open doors for us in the Middle East."

Jackson said he wants the Reagan administration, which has refused as a matter of U.S. policy to negotiate with terrorists, "to try to create enough flexibility to create some movement."

JUDGE CORINNE P. GRANDE ... denies motion by defense

2nd expert witness pinpoints insulin shot

By Mihly McLean
United Press International

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — A diabetes expert testified Friday that he is "100 percent" sure Martha "Sunny" von Bulow's first coma was caused by an insulin shot and "90 percent" sure the same thing caused her second coma.

Dr. Robert Bradley, president of the Joslin Diabetes Center in Boston and a Harvard Medical School associate professor, was the second expert witness in two days to tell jurors in Claus von Bulow's retrial that insulin shots caused his wife's 1979 and 1980 comas.

Superior Court Judge Corinne Grande ruled there were no inconsistencies large enough to strike Thursday's testimony by Dr. George Cahill.

Assistant Attorney General Henry Gemma asked Bradley how certain he was the first coma was insulin-induced. "One hundred percent," Bradley said.

Directors to mull code which OKs one-room apartments

By Alex Girrell

The Board of Directors next week will consider a revised town housing code that would allow smaller apartments.

Under the revision to be considered, rooming units could have shared bathroom and kitchen facilities. Cooking would not be allowed within units, and units could be as small as 70 square feet.

Under the revised code, all rooming units would be inspected periodically and inspections in other cases would be made on complaints, Kraatz said.

Western books gain renewed popularity

By Brod Smith
United Press International

Americans used to buy books about the Old West as quickly as they came off the press. The likes of Zane Grey, Max Brand and later, Louis L'Amour were always among the nation's bestsellers, as readers hungered for their special kind of romance, adventure and history.

That was years ago. Science fiction replaced westerns as the popular literary genre. With the exception of those by L'Amour, who remains one of the most popular authors anywhere, most western books disappeared from shelves at the bookstores.

"There certainly seems to be a resurgence in interest in the West, not only in the book industry but in the movie industry as well," says Lisa Ross of North Point Press, the San Francisco house that published Evan S. Connell's "Son of the Morning Star."

At least three books about the Old West have made it to a bestseller list in the past year and a fourth is a Book of the Month Club selection.

HOLLYWOOD, AFTER A DEATH of westerns in recent years, is coming out with two this summer. One of them features Clint Eastwood in his first western in eight years. The other, "Silverado," is directed by Lawrence Kasan who directed "The Big Chill."

It may be a reflection of the level of interest in westerns that none of the three best-selling books is pure fiction. Two are non-fiction ("Son of the Morning Star" about Connell's father's adventures in the West and "Frontiers," a collection of essays by L'Amour), and one is historical fiction ("Dream West," a fictionalized account of John C. Fremont's expeditions). A BMOCC alternate selection for May is "The Snowblind Moon," a fictionalized account of the events leading up to Custer's

LOUIS L'AMOUR bucking the odds

A refugee seeks nightmare's end

Beyond the Dragon's Mouth, Stories and Pieces, by Shiva Naipal (Viking, 424 pp., $17.95)

The younger brother of V.S. Naipal, Shiva, at 49 shows a total lack of roots and no indication he may find any soon, if ever. This is a quality that, most likely, helps him write with such stinging.

This collection consists of two dozen stories and travelogues — most quite recent, a few going back to the mid-1970s, the oldest written in 1969. It is introduced by an autobiographical fragment that gives the book its title. Dragon's Mouth is the name of the strait between Naipal's native Trinidad and a spit of land jutting out from neighboring Venezuela.

It is the gate one must pass when one leaves the Caribbean island by ship, as Naipal did when he first went to England in the early '60s, "the culmination of 18 years of dreaming, of intense longing."

"At last I was escaping from the island whose narrow confines and tropical sameness had always seemed like a prison."

He finds many like him and later writes about them too, as in "Living in Earl's Court" or in a story about the Rastafarians in London. He often writes scathingly, feeling, perhaps, that because of his origins he knows the people from the Third World better than others do and is more justified in doing so.

As an Indian from the West Indies, he also fearlessly takes on Asian Indians, as in "The Sanjay Factor" and "Dying State." And he has made a reputation for himself castigating Africans in their newly independent lands.

He conveys his ambivalence, his lack of attachment, his fears of putting down an anchor. "Having to return to Trinidad nearly always lures me with alarm. It brings on this nightmare that, having once arrived there, I may never be able to get out again."

This is a common recurring nightmare of refugees who fled communist East Europe or Vietnam. Most have happy homes in the West and their nightmares eventually go away.

Naipal is still looking.

Temple tribute

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Shirley Temple, the most popular child actress in movie history, will be honored at a special tribute by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences Monday, May 20.

The former child star, whose musical films saved 20th Century-Fox from bankruptcy during the 1930s depression, will participate in the program along with several of her principal co-stars.

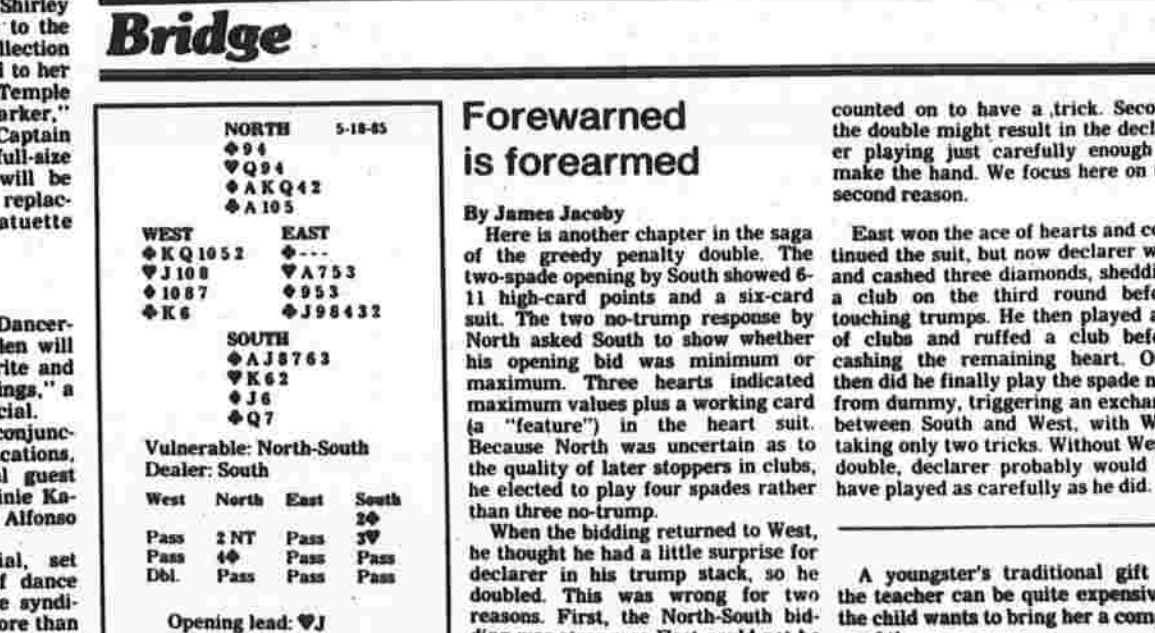

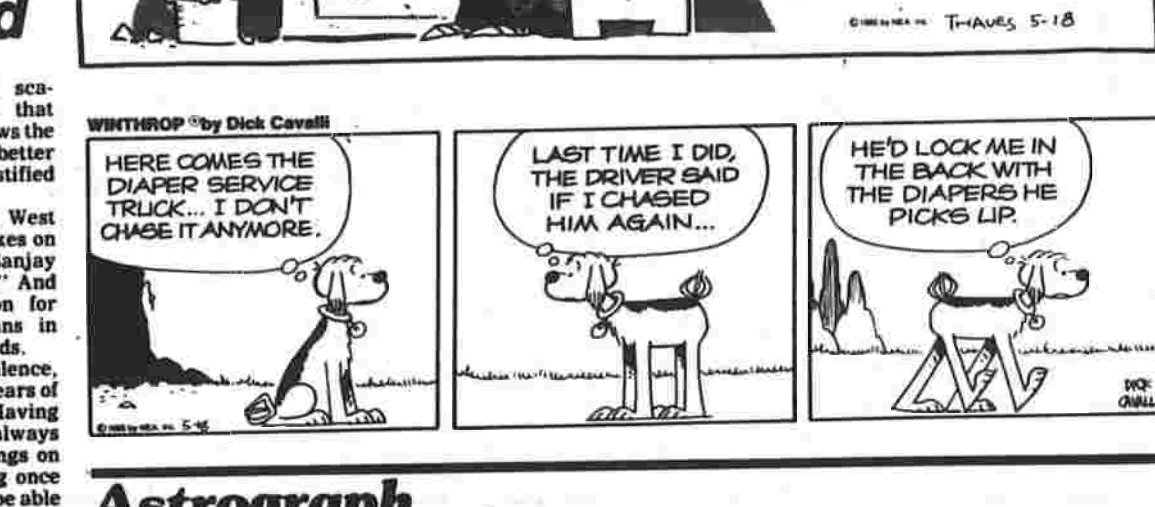

The tribute will mark Shirley Temple Black's donations to the academy's archives of a collection of movie materials related to her career. Clips from such Temple classics as "Little Miss Marker," "The Little Colonel" and "Captain January" will be shown. A full-size Academy Award Oscar will be given the former actress, replacing the miniature statuette awarded her at age 6.

TV musical

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dancer-choreographer Debbie Allen will produce, choreograph, write and star in "Dancing in the Wings," a 60-minute TV musical special.

The show, produced in conjunction with LBS Communications, will feature four special guest stars: Sammy Davis Jr., Liza Minnelli, Shirley Hemphill and Alfonso Ribeiro.

Allen says the special, set against a background of dance troupe "gypsies," will be syndicated in prime time on more than 100 stations from Sept. 16 to Oct. 10.

Refund checks arrive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's personal income grew a moderate 0.6 percent in April but income after taxes skyrocketed 3.9 percent because of the arrival of late income tax refund checks, the Commerce Department said today.

The increase in the after-tax disposable income was the largest on record but still did not represent a complete recovery from the income tax refund snafu, the department said.

Refund problems cut disposable income by 0.4 percent in March and 0.7 percent in February. Personal spending in April rebounded, up 0.7 percent after declining a revised 0.2 percent in March.

The report suggested that Americans finally have more cash on hand but does not settle the question whether they plan to spend it or save it.

The increase in disposable income would amount to $314 a year, to an annual $11,399 for every American.

The figures showed that, at least initially, Americans are holding on to the income tax refund checks. The savings rate in April was 5.3 percent, a sharp increase from the 4.8 percent average for the previous three months.

Personal income, the total from which only Social Security payments are deducted, was running at an annual rate of $8.17 trillion in April after seasonal adjustment.

Disposable income, from which both Social Security and income tax withholding is subtracted, was at an annual rate of $2.7 trillion.

Of all the major sources of income only factory wages declined in April, reflecting slippage in both the number of jobs and the length of the average factory work week.

Bolton votes on budget

For the first time in eight years, Bolton voters will go to the polls today to decide the fate of the proposed $4.04 million budget proposed for the fiscal year that begins July 1.

The polls at Community Hall on Bolton Center Road will be open from noon to 8 p.m.

The budget traditionally goes before residents at an annual town meeting for approval at the town meeting residents would ordinarily vote to accept, reject or cut the budget. They do not have the authority to increase it.

But no vote on the budget itself was taken at the town meeting last Monday, leading to the referendum.

To ward off the possibility that opponents of the proposed spending plan would pack last Monday's annual meeting, Board of Finance Chairman Morris Silverstein launched a petition drive to send the spending plan to a referendum.

The petition was declared invalid Monday. But minutes before the annual meeting the Board of Selectmen voted to recommend a referendum and a majority of residents present at the town meeting voted to hold the referendum today.

Selectmen said many who otherwise would have attended the meeting did not because they were expecting the referendum.

This year the budget proposed by the Board of Finance faces opposition from the Board of Education and the Board of Selectmen. School officials and selectmen have objected to what they said were excessive and arbitrary cuts made in their original budget requests.

The finance board cut $25,000 from the school board's $2.7 million budget request, prompting school board Chairman James H. Marshall to call on voters to reject the budget.

The Board of Selectmen also called for rejection of the budget, demanding the finance board request $115,000 in cuts to the town portion of the spending plan.

MMH plans walk-in center as competitor opens in town

Manchester Memorial Hospital has announced plans to open a friendly, personal and comfortable walk-in medical clinic next to its Emergency Department.

The clinic, which MMH officials say could be ready to open by late summer, would become the second walk-in clinic in Manchester.

The first — the Immediate Medical Care Center — opened for business this morning on West Middle Turnpike. Both the medical director of the new clinic and a hospital spokesman said today that the town has room for two clinics.

MMH spokesman Andrew Beck said hospital officials are concerned about possible competition with the Immediate Medical Care Center, but are confident the hospital's reputation will boost the use of its clinic.

"We will make it," he said. "But Dr. Michael Erdil, medical director of the Immediate Medical Care Center, said the MMH clinic's affiliation with the hospital could work to its disadvantage. Many people are turning away from hospitals in search of a more friendly, personal and comfortable atmosphere, he said.

"I don't think it's going to affect us," Erdil said of the hospital's planned clinic. "You still have a hospital environment (there)."

Beck said the clinic will be "its own autonomous entity." He said its proximity to the hospital will be advantageous for clinic patients who need hospital care or services.

MMH Executive Director Warren L. Prelesnik, in a news release on the hospital's plans, called the decision to open a clinic "a logical extension of our efforts to provide comprehensive medical services to our community."

Although no fees have been set for the clinic, Beck said they would be "competitive with other ambulatory care centers." No plans for staffing the clinic have yet been made, although Beck said he expects new staff from outside the hospital to be hired.

Plans call for the clinic to be open 12 hours a day, seven days a week.

The Immediate Medical Care Center is open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. every day of the year. By 10 a.m. this morning, the clinic had seen its first five patients, Erdil said.

Erdil said the concept behind walk-in clinics is "booming" and is around to stay. He said that contrary to the fears of some hospital officials, the Immediate Medical Care clinic will actually help hospital business by referring people who might not otherwise have come to the attention of medical professionals.

"We are not the definitive doctor for long-term care," Erdil said.

The clinic can diagnose and treat most non-life-threatening injuries or illnesses. By taking people with minor problems out of local emergency rooms, walk-in clinics can improve the efficiency of emergency departments at hospitals — and help cut medical costs, Erdil said.

Seader won't run again for school board

By Sarah Passell
Herald Reporter

Manchester Board of Education Chairman Leonard E. Seader announced today that he will not seek re-election this November, and thus will end a nine-year stint on the board in November 1986.

Seader, a Democrat, cited the demands of his family and job as his reason for stepping down. He is a vice president for the First Hartford Realty Corp., a prominent local developer.

"I've got some personal considerations that are weighing in this," he said.

Although he will serve until the end of his three-year term next year, the election for the next term is scheduled for this November. Six schools' board seats will be at stake this fall, including three for terms that begin this coming November and three that begin in November 1986.

Jeanne Moriarty, wife of former Mayor Moriarty, said she was named as another possible contender. Another is Richard Cobe, an executive with United Technologies Corp. who sat on the Curriculum Review Committee last year and was involved in the conversion of Highland Park School into a facility for adolescent special education students.

The fourth is Terry Bogli, Cummings's daughter, former president of the Highland Park School PTA.

Seats now held by Republicans David Dampier Jr., Gloria DellaFera and Bernice E. Cobb will also come vacant in this fall's election. Dampier's term ends this year. DellaFera and Cobb will serve until November 1988.

Cummings predicted today that the Democrats would claim a sixth seat on the nine-member board in the November elections. He said he assumes incumbents Composio and Francis A. Maffie Jr., whose terms end this November, will run again.

Cummings listed the names of four people, one of them his daughter, as possible contenders for the two unclaimed positions on the ticket he expects the Democrats to win. Any of the four who are interested will have to compete for the endorsement of the Democratic Town Committee, Cummings said.

One potential candidate is Richard Conti, a Manchester attorney who has been involved with instructors of the Handicapped and was recently appointed to sit on the school's Family Life Committee — the group assigned to review sex and mental health education in the Manchester schools. Conti said today, Conti said it is "too early to make a decision," about whether he will run.

Seader is the board's longest serving member. He served on the board from 1972 to 1985.

Broadcast draws wrath of Castro

By John E. Newhagen
United Press International

MIAMI — Radio Martí, a 50,000-watt station that President Reagan says will "help defuse the war hysteria" spread by Cuba, went on the air today and Cuban President Fidel Castro immediately suspended an immigration agreement in retaliation.

Castro also threatened to start a "radio war" and to halt cooperation in dealing with airplane hijackings in an announcement broadcast by the state-run Radio Rebelde.

The announcement came just a half hour after Radio Martí began broadcasting at 5:30 a.m. EDT and a few hours later there were indications the Cubans were trying to jam the broadcasts.

An FCC spokesman in Washington said Radio Havana was broadcasting on the same frequency as Radio Martí. "It is not having any effect on the broadcast as regards the United States," he said. "But I have no idea what the effect is in Cuba."

In a broadcast monitored in Miami, Radio Rebelde said "All types of applications of the Dec. 14 immigration pact are suspended."

Radio Martí, an AM station at 1180 on the dial, will broadcast 14 hours of daily news, commentary, music and sports broadcast from a Washington studio through a transmitter in the Florida Keys.

In exchange, Castro had agreed to allow the United States to return to Cuba about 3,600 "undesirables," including criminals and mental patients who were among the 130,000 Cubans who came to Florida in 1980 as part of the Mariel boatlift.

The Cuban radio announced today that "all types of travel" between Havana and Miami were suspended except "strictly humanitarian" visits.

Concerning the hijacking cooperation, the state-run radio said, "The government of Cuba reserves its right to reconsider the collaboration that it has unilaterally given to the government of the United States in the struggle against illegal departures from the country."

Castro routinely has given stiff prison sentences to anyone hijacking an airplane and taking it to Cuba.

"The government of Cuba also reserves the right to make any radio transmission to the United States," the Cuban radio said, in an apparent threat to jam broadcasts or to begin Cuba's own propaganda programming in a "radio war" against the United States.

The broadcast said Deputy Foreign Minister Ricardo Allarcón delivered a diplomatic protest note containing the measures to the U.S. Interests Section in Havana early today.
