Neighbor sues over rezoning

By Kathy Gormus
 Herald Reporter

A Love Lane resident has filed a lawsuit seeking to overturn a zoning change granted developer Raymond F. Damato that would permit construction of 10 town-house apartments nearby.
 Sean Byrne of 131 Love Lane charges in court papers filed with the town clerk that the Planning and Zoning Commission acted without sufficient evidence and "contrary to good planning" when it granted Damato the change from Residence A to Planned Residence Development for a 1.5-acre parcel off Love Lane.
 But the summons names the Zoning Board of Appeals instead of the PZC as the first defendant — an error which could be "fatal to the appeal," according to one of the town's attorneys.
 Assistant Attorney Malcolm F. Barlow said today that if the appeal was served incorrectly, Byrne would not have time to refile it. State statutes give a person 15 days from the time a notice of a zoning decision is published in a local newspaper in which to appeal the decision, Barlow said.
 The notice of the PZC's action on Damato's application was published May 15, according to the court papers, and Byrne's appeal was filed May 30 — the last day allowed under state statutes.
 "I would say it would be fatal to the appeal because the statute is interpreted fairly strictly by the courts," Barlow said.
 However, Barlow pointed out that he does not normally handle zoning matters for the town and has not seen the appeal, which was filed in Hartford Superior Court. Barlow also said the naming of other defendants in the summons might mitigate any negative effect of naming the ZBA as the first defendant.
 Also listed as defendants are Damato, Marilyn Erickson, who owns the property; Chief Building Inspector Russell Davidson; and Town Clerk Edward Tomkiel.
 Hartford attorney Richard P. Lawlor, who is representing Byrne in the matter, said today he did not think the naming of the ZBA as a defendant would hinder the appeal.
 "The city is certainly on notice," he said. "The issue is really whether or not it (the zoning change) was properly done."
 Byrne is seeking a permanent injunction to prevent the town from issuing a building permit for the townhouses, as well as to overturn the zone change, according to court papers.
 Byrne also claims in the papers that the zone change granted by the PZC on May 9 constitutes spot zoning, is not compatible with the surrounding area, and did not "pair the integrity" of neighboring properties.
 About 75 percent of the nearby property owners signed a petition opposing the change. Many of the residents said they were opposed to Damato's plan because of concerns about heavy traffic on

Governors seek feds' aid

By United Press International

Comforted by words of faith and prayers for the future, the victims of tornadoes that killed at least 91 people and injured hundreds more in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Ontario, Canada, tried to begin putting their lives back together.
 Most electricity and telephone service was expected to be restored by today, and the National Guard, local police and Canadian soldiers were called out to keep order during the massive cleanup.
 At least 1,000 homes were destroyed and up to 2,000 damaged by the trail of twisters that cut a gash from Canada to Pennsylvania Friday night, said Michael Carroll, assistant director of American Red Cross Eastern Disaster Services in Alexandria, Va.
 "I really don't know what I'm going to do now," said Orca Harrett, whose home in Atlantic, Pa., was destroyed. "I have insurance, but I think it might be cheaper to buy a house somewhere else than rebuild."
 At least 63 people were reported dead in Pennsylvania, 16 in Ohio and 12 in Canada, and authorities feared the death toll could mount.
 In Ohio Sunday, Trumbull County officials searched the wreckage of a shopping mall and a nearby woods but did not find five people who were unaccounted for.
 At least two are believed to be children who told their parents they were going to a skating rink destroyed in the storm, said emergency team spokesman Bob

The governors of Ohio and Pennsylvania declared disaster areas and asked for federal assistance for counties torn apart by the tornadoes. Damage was estimated in the millions.
 In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the Federal Emergency Management Agency was expediting the processing of disaster assistance requests received over the weekend from Pennsylvania and Ohio and indicated an announcement could come later in the day.
 Survivors held prayer services Sunday and afterwards, many took pictures of their devastated towns and gathered what remained of their possessions. Some said they would not rebuild their wrecked homes.
 "The city is certainly on notice," he said. "The issue is really whether or not it (the zoning change) was properly done."
 Byrne is seeking a permanent injunction to prevent the town from issuing a building permit for the townhouses, as well as to overturn the zone change, according to court papers.

MMH asked to join national network

By Sarah Passoli
 Herald Reporter

Manchester Memorial Hospital has been invited to join a national non-profit hospital network that is trying to keep non-profit hospitals competitive with major national health-care organizations such as Humana Inc. and the Kaiser Foundation Health Plan.
 The MMH Board of Trustees may be asked by the end of the summer to vote on whether to accept the invitation from Voluntary Hospitals of America to form a local partnership with its two Connecticut member hospitals, Hartford Hospital and Yale-New Haven Hospital. Paul Stillman, director of planning and marketing for Manchester Hospital, said he hopes to complete a study of the proposal and make a recommendation to the board by then.
 Stillman said last week that as far as he knows, joint-purchasing is the main benefit of joining VHA. He said MMH already participates in several joint-purchasing agreements and he has not yet determined whether the hospital would save more by joining VHA.

 But a VHA official said today that the potential advantages to Manchester go far beyond supply discounts.
 "Purchasing was really the cornerstone of our genesis," said Ian Lazarus, manager of membership services for the Texas-based VHA. But he said the corporation is now trying to attract hospitals into regional partnerships to form low-cost health maintenance organizations. Such health-care systems are attractive to employers who must provide health insurance to their workers because HMOs can guarantee fixed costs, Lazarus said.
 "Each is an independent corporation, Lazarus said.
 He said such partnerships have become more popular with hospitals since Medicaid and Medicare programs have set limits on the amount of money they will reimburse hospitals for medical care.
 "It was never faddish in the past because there was no competition for the health-care dollar," Lazarus said.
 The corporation's partnership proposal is part of a plan to make VHA members competitive with organizations like the Kaiser Foundation Health Plan and the profit-making Humana Inc., of which both hospitals are part of the country. VHA and the Aetna Life Insurance Co. have also announced plans to market health maintenance organizations and other competitive health care services.
 Founded for profit by 30 hospitals in 1977 to reduce the cost of hospital supplies through cooperative purchasing, VHA now offers planning and management advice to its members, all of which are non-profit hospitals. It has grown to 77 members, which are also its shareholders. Members and affiliate hospitals now account for nearly 95,000 beds, according to VHA promotional literature.
 Another advantage to joining VHA is that the corporation guarantees local autonomy because it does not take over the hospital, according to the promotional literature.
 Because anti-trust laws prohibit competing hospitals from cooperating, VHA has invited only hospitals that VHA officials claim do not compete with Hartford and Yale-New Haven to join the Connecticut partnership.

Jihad denies any role in Kuwait plot

Terrorists release photo of Jacobsen

By Peter Smerdon
 United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Islamic Jihad terrorists today released a photograph of the kidnapped American director of the American University Hospital and a note denying any role in the attempted assassination of the ruler of Kuwait.
 An envelope containing the photograph of David Jacobsen, 54, and the statement allegedly released by the pro-Iranian organization were slipped under the door of a Western news agency office in Moscow west Beirut.
 "The photograph, a Polaroid color shot, showed AUH director David Jacobsen standing in front of a blue curtain. He looks grim but otherwise fine. The picture shows him wearing a blue shirt," a reporter at the agency said. "The note, which was in the same envelope made absolutely no reference to Jacobsen."
 Three gunmen kidnaped Jacobsen May 28 in the Beirut hospital's parking lot. The body of American University professor Denis Hill, 53, was found a day later, and a telephone caller claiming to represent Islamic Jihad claimed responsibility for both the kidnapping and the slaying.

 Callers who said they represent Islamic Jihad have claimed responsibility for the kidnapping of four other Americans.
 Callers claiming to speak for the shadowy group also have said it carried out the May 25 attempt on the life of the emir of Kuwait and several bombings in Saudi Arabia.
 The callers have demanded the release of 17 prisoners held in Kuwait jails for a series of bombings of French and U.S. installations in Kuwait in December 1983.
 But today's statement denied Islamic Jihad was involved in the Kuwait assassination attempt, the Saudi bombings, and the killing of Hill, and blamed the acts on U.S. "plots" to discredit the group.
 "These acts were carried out by the hands of the G-men," Islamic Jihad said. "The note said, 'These acts were carried out by the hands of the G-men,' the note said."

Parties foresee tax plan 'brawl'

By David E. Anderson
 United Press International

WASHINGTON — Despite polls showing strong support for President Reagan's tax reform plan, debate on the bill will be "the biggest political brawl" the nation has ever seen, says a proponent of another reform proposal.
 New York's Gov. Mario Cuomo, another figure in the gathering tax battle, says the program is "dy-namic for rich people," and promises a stiff fight to eliminate a key provision in Reagan's plan — ending federal deductions for state and local taxes.
 Supporters and critics of the tax overhaul appeared on television Sunday to debate whether the changes will be more beneficial to the rich or the middle class and to discuss several controversial elements.
 A poll by ABC News said 65 percent of the 500 people surveyed said they generally favored the plan, with 51 percent saying it was important to simplify the tax collecting system and 54 percent saying it was important to make the system more fair.
 The poll also said 24 percent of those interviewed expected to pay more taxes, 20 percent said they expected they would pay less and 31 percent said they thought they would pay about the same.
 A Newsweek magazine poll said nearly half of 759 people surveyed think the proposal is a good idea but a majority also oppose eliminating the deduction for state and local taxes.
 Treasury Secretary James Baker, appearing on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley," said it is "simply not correct to say that the middle class doesn't get a significant break from this proposal. They do."
 According to Baker's figures, people earning $20,000 or less would get an 18.3 percent tax reduction, between $20,000 and $50,000 a 7.2 percent reduction and more than $50,000 a 5.2 percent reduction.
 At the same time, the Treasury Department estimates 30 percent of Americans will see no change and 60 percent will have lower taxes.
 Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, said

DAN ROSTENKOWSKI likes Reagan plan

he will support Reagan "as much as I can" and added, "I've made no concessions to anyone, no promises to anyone."
 Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., also a Ways and Means Committee member and co-author of an alternative tax reform plan, said the administration bill opened some loopholes that could harm the middle class, especially provisions on aid and gas companies.
 "This is going to be the biggest political brawl Washington and the country has ever seen," Gephardt predicted.
 Baker and Deputy Treasury Secretary Richard Darman defended the proposal as "an issue of fairness" charging that states with lower taxes, and taxpayers who do not itemize their returns, are subsidizing the high tax states.

Septuplets' birth ballooned mom

NEW YORK (UPI) — Patti Frustaci went through a "nightmare" when doctors told her she was carrying septuplets and spent the last two weeks of her pregnancy unable to move and lying on her side "like the Romans did."

The Frustacis were to have appeared on network television today but canceled because of the illness of one child but it is unknown which child was sick or what the ailment was. Officials at Children's Hospital in Orange, Calif., had no comment on reports of illness.

In an exclusive interview with People magazine, released Sunday, Mrs. Frustaci, 32, and her husband, Sam, 30, talked about the historic birth of their seven children, two of whom died.

"The babies were taking so much out of my body," Mrs. Frustaci said. "Nobody can have that much relief for that many."

Mrs. Frustaci was hospitalized in her 20th week of pregnancy, and by the 26th week — just two weeks before the septuplets were born by Caesarean section May 21 — "everything was going downhill."

"I am not a huge person," she said. "I am 5 feet 2 inches and normally weigh 115. By the time I gave birth, I weighed 167 pounds."

"I couldn't sit up and eat by this time. I had to lie here on my side like the Romans did."

"Toward the end I was on oxygen most of the time because four of the babies were lying right along my diaphragm, and one was pushing up on the sternum," she said. "Pulmonary tests determined I was getting one-third of the air a normal person would get."

Mrs. Frustaci was released from the hospital Wednesday but her five surviving babies will not go home for up to two months, doctors say.

A spokesman at Children's Hospital in Orange, Calif., said Sunday night that all five babies are showing at least some improvement, although they remain in critical but stable condition on ventilators.

Patricia Ann, Stephen Earl and Richard Charles "continue to show daily improvement," the spokesman said. James Martin and Bonnie Marie "are showing some small improvement," he said.

The Frustacia lost two of the babies — a daughter who was stillborn and a son, nicknamed Peanut, who died 60 hours after his birth at Saint Joseph Hospital. Both were buried Friday.

Mrs. Frustaci said the death of Peanut — later named David Anthony — hit her husband especially hard.

"Sam just broke down. It was hard on him because he had really gotten to know Peanut," she said. "Sam had a special relationship with him. He had tried so hard to live that his body had just worn down."

"David means beloved, and Anthony means inestimable, priceless treasure. And that's what he was."

The couple, Mrs. Frustaci said, are now "on a constant roller coaster. You get over one crisis and there's another one."

Mrs. Frustaci, a school teacher, had taken fertility drugs to become pregnant and said she and her husband had joked about having triplets.

But when doctors told her she would give birth to septuplets, "I just couldn't believe this. It was a nightmare."

Their Mormon faith ruled out an abortion.

PZC to hear plans for condos and subdivisions

The Planning and Zoning Commission will conduct public hearings tonight on final plans for condominiums on Lyell Street and on proposals for two small subdivisions.

In addition, the commission may act on three other condominium proposals and on plans for the Buckland Hills mall. The four items are scheduled for consideration after the hearings, which will be held during the PZC meeting scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln Center hearing room.

The first hearing will be on final plans for the last four phases of the Lydall Woods condominiums off Lydall Street.

Plans submitted by developer Jack Davis call for 75 more condominiums on about 40 acres of land. The first four sections, which have already been built, include 128 units.

Tonight's hearing will concern requests for rezoning, an inland wetlands permit and modification of the general plan of development as well as the final site plan for the development's last phases. The town planning staff has recommended approval of the plan but wants some changes in the rezoning plans.

The second hearing will concern a request by real estate developers Albert Martin, Gerald Rothman and Alexander Matthew for a zone change from Rural Residence to Residence AA that would allow construction of single-family homes on property on New Bolton Road.

The third is a repeat hearing on subdivision plans submitted by Nicholas J. Palermo, president of Birch Mountain Estates Inc. The original subdivision application was approved by the PZC May 17, but must be the subject of another hearing because maps for the plan were not submitted to the town clerk within the required time period.

Plans call for a seven-lot subdivision that would be called Blue Trails. The new plan asks that the subdivision be built in two phases.

Also tonight, the PZC is expected to take action on a proposal for Hickory Hill Condominiums off Gardner Street, proposed by Barney T. Peterman Sr. and Barney T. Peterman Jr., Planning Director Mark Pellegri said today.

The father-and-son development team wants to build 17 condominiums on 5.5 acres. The plan has been opposed by more than 300 area residents who signed petitions against it and the planning staff has recommended approval of the plan.

Another controversial condominium proposal — for the 244-unit Country Club Estates off South Main Street — is also on tonight's agenda, but Pellegri said he does not know if the PZC will act on it.

Many who live near the site of the proposed 46-acre development objected to the zone change at a hearing last month.

In another matter, Pellegri is recommending approval of the last six phases of the 460-unit Broadwood Condominiums in the North End. But Pellegri said in a memo to the PZC that the development of public improvements and construction of the final 200 units should not begin until the town completes final design plans and receives federal funding for the reconstruction of the intersection of Tolland Turnpike and North Main Street.

If the town's plans to reconstruct the road and intersection are abandoned, the developer, Lawrence A. Fiano, has agreed to fund all the improvements.

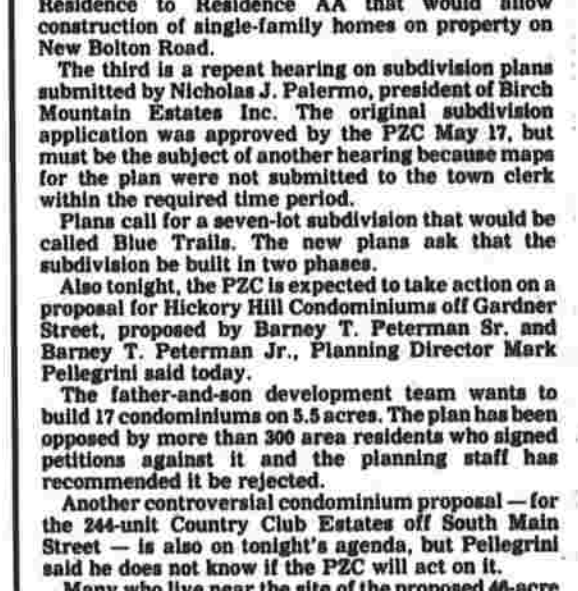

Pellegri said that the review of the general plan of development for the Buckland Hills Mall off Buckland Street has been completed by the planning staff, but it is not definite whether the PZC will take action on the proposal.

The 750,000-square-foot mall is being proposed by Manchester I-94 Associates and Homart Development Co. of Chicago on a 138-acre Comprehensive Urban Development zoned site.

Power to the woman

Bev Francis is probably the most memorable of the weightlifting women in "Pumping Iron II: The Women" and she proved her strength at a publicity party in New York by lifting a bar that held a seated George Plimpton and Gloria Steinem. Some consider her bulging biceps, washboard stomach and massive thighs too masculine but she's not bothered.

"I have my own ideas about femininity," said Francis, who is getting married next month. "I'm basically interested in good human qualities, not qualities that are supposedly feminine or masculine. I am a woman."

Francis, however, doesn't like wearing dresses. "I'm uncomfortable in them," she said. "I've got these broad shoulders and a broad back and small breasts. A dress just looks silly, doesn't fit right. You have to be careful how you sit. Dresses basically are stupid."

His mother's son

He was the great-great-grandson of an Indian, the grandson of a moonshiner and the son of a forger but most of all Elvis Presley was a mama's boy, says the author of a book on Presley's relationship with his mother, Gladys.

"I think he was very like Gladys while she was a young girl," said Elaine Dundy, author of "Elvis and Gladys." "She had rhythm. She was a great beauty. She did a wild Charleston to Jimmie Rodgers records. This prompted people to say that Elvis got it natural."

Gladys died four years after Presley became famous and Dundy says it was because of the changes brought by celebrity.

"She was isolated," Dundy said. "This house, Graceland, which was supposed to be her monument, became her mausoleum. She wasn't allowed to feed her chickens because of the image. She could see very few people. That made her morbid and she had a morbid streak in her anyway. She tried to solve her problem in the age-old way, drinking."

Still some scars

Singer Eartha Kitt, who will perform next weekend at the Heritage Days festival in Trenton, N.J., says her career went into limbo for several years after her highly publicized affair with Lady Bird Johnson in 1968.

Invited to a luncheon to discuss juvenile delinquency with the first lady, Kitt instead criticized the U.S. involvement in the Vietnam War. The 57-year-old singer says she was blacklisted for 10 years and followed by the FBI and CIA. She spent the 10 years performing in Europe, Asia, Australia and Africa but never gave up her U.S. residency.

Police charge sixth teen in theft of beer

Police have charged a sixth teenager in connection with a May 18 burglary at a beverage distributor's warehouse on Chapel Road.

James A. Vallieris, 18, of Glastonbury, turned himself in Thursday, Manchester police said. He was charged with third-degree burglary and fifth-degree larceny.

Four others were arrested May 20 and charged with third-degree burglary and fourth-degree larceny. At the same time, a 18-year-old boy was referred to juvenile authorities.

Arrested then were Daniel Cabral, 19, Gregory E. Gardiner, 17, and James E. Meyers Jr., 18, all of Glastonbury; and Scott F. Rizza, 18, of East Hartford. They are free on non-surety bonds while their cases are pending in Manchester Superior Court.

Vallieris was released after booking on a $500 non-surety bond for a June 5 court appearance.

Police said they caught the youths stealing 27 cases of beer from a railroad car at Hartford Distributors at 131 Chapel Road. Police said they are still seeking the identity of a seventh youth they spotted at the scene.

Purdy Corp. tries again

The Purdy Corp. and two local builders have submitted a new request to the Planning and Zoning Commission to rezone to industrial an 11.6-acre section of property on Adams Street.

Purdy, Andrew Anasid Sr. and Andrew Anasid Jr. withdrew a similar application submitted in February for the zone change for seven Residence A lots and a vacant lot zoned Planned Residence Development. The old application was for 12.5 acres.

The Purdy Corp. at 586 Hilliard St. is adjacent to the property for which the zone change is sought. It manufactures parts for aircraft engines.

In February the PZC approved a two-year excavation permit for much of the same property.

A representative for the companies could not be reached for comment today on plans for developing the property.

Thoughts on Twain sesquicentennial

The charm and originality of Mark Twain's literary works made him a favorite author and humorist in his lifetime, and his reputation has continued to climb since his death in 1910.

Now we're at the beginning of the biggest single Mark Twain boom — the celebration of the 150th anniversary of his birth. The birth, that is, of Samuel Langhorne Clemens, who adopted "Mark Twain" as his pen name.

The Mississippi River community of Hannibal, Mo., the author's home for 13 boyhood years — from which he drew characters and themes for some of his stories and novels — will be headquarters for a seven-month birthday observance.

Activities began in earnest May 4 and will climax Nov. 30, the sesquicentennial of his birth in 1835.

As Rep. Harold Volkmer of Missouri explains, Twain lived in various parts of the country and traveled widely in the world. But Hannibal (population 20,000) is the "center site" for the celebration.

N. La Veri Christensen

You can guess that as a celebration spinoff, Tom Sawyer, Huck Finn, Becky Thatcher, Aunt Polly, Injun Joe and other characters created by Twain will loom larger than ever in the cultural heritage of America.

Samuel Clemens was born in the Missouri town of Florida, and moved with his family to Hannibal in 1839. The boy was only 11 when his father died. Clemens quit school and worked as an apprentice printer in several cities, then as a riverboat pilot. In 1861 he and his brother Orion traveled by stagecoach to Nevada, where the latter had been appointed territorial secretary.

Samuel tried gold-mining, but gravitated to frontier journalism.

You will recall from history that he first used the pseudonym "Mark Twain" in 1865 while writing for the Virginia City Territorial Enterprise. The phrase "mark twain," meaning "two fathoms deep," was employed in making HANNIBAL NORMALLY ATTRACTS 250,000 visitors annually to the Twain home and museum. It expects a million tourists this year.

The celebration kicked off with a parade, fireworks, cultural activities and dedication of a Mark Twain bust. Exhibits and entertainment are expected to continue almost every day for seven months.

'The old man and the sea'

Before hitting the road to sell his new tax plan to the American people, President Reagan warmed up by speaking to several groups, including graduates at the U.S. Naval Academy.

The former star of "Hellcats of the Navy" told midshipmen that if Hollywood ever sends him another movie script, it will probably be for "Old Man and the Sea."

While filming "Hellcats" in San Diego, recalled Reagan, Navy pilots and submarine officers stationed there had a real-life exchange. Pilots first took the sailors aloft and "gave them the works — the whole load," said Reagan.

Once safely on the ground, the shaken sailors decided to return the favor: "They took them out in the submarine and they were below and they dived! And then, all of a sudden, bells began ringing and sirens sounding and fellows were running back and forth ... and it seemed there was a dial there that said they were not coming out of their dive, they were going down.

"... And then, in the midst of all that excitement, and as it got closer to that red line (on a dial indicating destruction of the sub), one fellow just climbed the ladder into the conning tower and opened the hatch. They were still tied to the dock."

Speaking to the National Association of Manufacturers two days later, Reagan noted the economy has had "solid growth" for the last nine quarters.

The growth was reflected in a New York Daily News headline reporting that the Dow Jones Industrial Average had broken 1,300, a new record. The headline, which Reagan said he will "always cherish," read simply — "Zippy Doo Dow."

Reagan got his best laugh of the evening with this line: "Sometimes I think that government is like that old definition of a baby: an enormous appetite at one end and no sense of responsibility at the other."

BACK TO THE SESQUICENTENNIAL. The Hannibal area has many Mark Twain-related attractions besides the home and museum, including a new visitors center, the Clemens law office where Twain's father was justice of the peace, the cave referred to in the Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn books, the Tom and Huck statue, and the Mississippi riverboat named "Mark Twain."

Of course, Hannibal isn't the only city that claims Mark Twain memorabilia.

Years ago when my family visited Angels Camp in California, huge signs at the fairgrounds heralded frog-jumping contests, a throwback to Twain's short story, "The Celebration Jumping Frog of Calaveras County."

In Hartford, Conn., Twain and his wife, Olivia, built a mansion and lived in it with their family from 1871 to 1891. Twain financed the home with profits from his 1869 book, "Innocents Abroad." It was here that he wrote some of his best books while also engaging in many lecture tours.

Twain's works have been translated into more than 50 languages, attesting to their universal appeal. His witty sayings are still quoted widely.

Winter's speech was very moving

To the Editor:

Thank you for printing the entire text of Ronald Winter's speech (May 25) made at the dedication of Manchester's Vietnam Veterans Memorial Park. That speech was one of the most moving I've ever heard and I'm glad to have a copy of it.

Although I was one of the many critics of the war, I was deeply touched to see Manchester honor those who fought and died in Vietnam. This long-overdue tribute and memorial makes me proud to part of this "City of Village Charm."

Great coverage of Billy Graham

To the Editor:

My sincerest gratitude to Al Tarquinio, photographer, and Nancy Pappas, reporter, for the spectacular coverage of the Billy Graham Crusade in the May 25 edition of the Manchester Herald.

It is still beyond my understanding how you could get such precise facts in order when I relayed them to you in a hazy, sleepless fashion. Especially noteworthy is the perfect quote from Patrick: "A person has the opportunity to start life over with a clean slate." Your inclusion of this has touched lives you probably never guessed might be affected by it. We have heard from many, one being a young man released from prison just the day before this was printed.

Yes, it is God's will that we all share the peace we know through Him to all we come in contact with during His life. You have given this strength and assurance to many — the results only God Himself can reveal to you one day.

Speak out about neo-Nazi groups

To the Editor:

New groups of neo-Nazis are trying to quell some of the gains that were granted to minority and poor citizens of the United States. The church of the Aryan nations and the Order (most radical wing) are two factions of white supremacists who are espousing claims for a white male-controlled government.

Members of the Order are eventually seeking to overthrow the governments of the United States and Canada by assassinating top-level officials via a point system. David Tate, a 32-year-old member of the Order, was charged in April with the murder of an Arkansas state trooper and the wounding of the dead man's comrade. A cache of arms was found in the suspect's possession.

William Ellison, another neo-Nazi who is a member of the Church of the Covenant, Arm and Sword, turned himself over to authorities five days after Tate's arrest.

The American Nazis have existed in our nation since the early 1930s with little interference from federal authorities until the beginning of World War II. One of their former leaders, the late George Lincoln Rockwell, gained some prominent publicity in the 1960s. His character was portrayed by actor Martin Brando in one episode of "Roots: The Next Generation," a television miniseries in 1979.

Several white middle-class teenage males were arrested a few months ago in Texas for being leaders of the Legion of Doom. Members of this Fascist-minded group believed people whom they thought were deviant to their beliefs. They smashed windshields of cars and set off a pipe bomb, etc.

William Webster, chief of the FBI, has these Fascist groups, including the Ku Klux Klan, under surveillance.

As a concerned citizen, I abhor this kind of racial hatred and violence. We live in a democratic society and it's up to carrying people to speak out or write letters to Congress.

We told you first

In April, we reported that Navy documents showed long-suppressed evidence that South Africa exploded a nuclear device in 1979. The Washington Office on Africa, a public-interest group, has now released supporting evidence and Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., and other House members have asked President Reagan to "impose an immediate and unconditional embargo on all nuclear relations with South Africa."

Watch on waste

The taxpayers on all 50 states help pay the electric bills of power users in the Pacific Northwest. How much does this save the fortunate people in the northwest corner of the country? For comparable services, a household in New York shells for several times what a homeowner in Grant County, Wash., pays.

Mini-editorial

How many more "runs" must there be on savings institutions before Congress decides to require all banks and savings-and-loans to be covered by federal deposit insurance? Even sound institutions are vulnerable to depositor panic, and there are only about 1,400 banks and S-and-Ls that aren't covered by federal insurance. So why the delay?

Foggy Bottom says 'no' to embassy safety

WASHINGTON — In recent years our diplomats, as the targets of terrorists, have put their lives on the line. So imagine, if you will, the State Department bureaucrats turning down any embassy's request for $130,000 to beef up its security. And imagine also that the embassy in question is the one in Beirut.

Hard to believe, isn't it?

But that appears to be what's happened.

When Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew requested this relatively modest sum to protect his people in the front lines of Beirut, he got no sympathy from the rear-echelon commandos who man the swivel chairs in Washington. They reminded him, in effect, that money doesn't grow on trees. They also lectured him about spending funds on security without dotting all the i's.

As a final insult, the Foggy Bottom featherheads told the ambassador that if he seriously expected to get the money he needs, he'd have to promise to follow strict budgetary protocol in the future, review all the embassy's expenditures and submit a "state of your budget" report.

After Bartholomew does all this, they'll think about his request for $130,000.

New England In Brief

News reporter may be jailed

BOSTON — A television reporter says she will not identify her source for a story about alleged police corruption, even though she may be jailed for contempt of court this week unless she reveals the name.

Susan Wornick, a reporter for WCVB-TV, Channel 5, said she has been ordered to appear before Suffolk Superior Court Judge James Donahue Tuesday with the name of her source.

But she said this weekend she will not disclose the person's name.

Wornick interviewed the man on Feb. 1 as part of a news probe of allegations that Revere police lotted a CVS pharmacy in the city after being called there to investigate a burglary.

The man, who was not identified in the report and appeared only with his back to the camera, said he saw police officers loading pharmacy merchandise into police cruisers. Wornick said she promised the man she would protect his identity.

Region faces rising tuition

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — A new report has found that New England colleges and universities have raised tuition rates at double the national inflation rate.

While inflation has been controlled at 4 percent in 1985, tuition rate increases for the 1985-86 academic year are running at 8 percent, according to figures released Sunday by the New England Board of Higher Education.

"I believe that we can expect college costs to continue to rise at the rate of inflation or higher over the next decade if they are to provide the kind of education we have come to expect of New England institutions," said NEBHE President John Hoy.

Of the 20 most expensive independent colleges in New England, Boston University registered the largest tuition hike, 12.2 percent, the survey found. Students who paid $9,116 last year will have to pay $10,220 for the upcoming year, according to the report.

Bennington College in Vermont, however, is the region's most expensive institution. It's $12,800 tuition for the upcoming year is a 9.2 percent higher than last year.

The NEBHE said the figures represent only tuition and fees and do not include room, board, books and expenses which would make attending the schools even more expensive.

Capitol gets 'peace ribbon'

CONCORD, N.H. — In a message an organizer said came "straight from the heart," more than 100 people from across New Hampshire tied a symbolic "ribbon of peace" around the Statehouse.

The demonstration Sunday was part of the nationwide Peace Ribbon project that culminates Aug. 4 in Washington, when peace activists hope to tie a 10-mile banner around the Pentagon, White House and Capitol. It will coincide with the 40th anniversary of the bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Battle over Vt. lawyer

CONCORD, N.H. — A Vermont lawyer who waged a three-year battle against New Hampshire's residency law and won in the U.S. Supreme Court says the state's bar admission to the state's bar.

Kathryn Piper said although she had fought the New Hampshire Bar Association, other members commended her efforts that nullified the state's law preventing nonresident lawyers from practicing in New Hampshire.

Piper, who can look across the Connecticut River from her Lower Waterford, Vt. home and see New Hampshire, had applied for permission to take the New Hampshire Bar examination in 1972. At the time she signed a statement, required by law, that she would live in New Hampshire. She passed the bar in April 1980 and asked the clerk of the state Supreme Court to waive the residency requirement because her home was only 400 yards from the New Hampshire border.

Von Bulow's current lover chides stepchildren

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Claus von Bulow's current lover has criticized his two stepchildren for making negative remarks about von Bulow while he is on trial on charges of trying to kill their mother.

Andrea Reynolds chastised von Bulow's two stepchildren in a letter in which she also said she had initiated an investigation against them.

In the latest out-of-court antic in the socialite's highly-publicized trial, Reynolds' letter to Alexander von Auersperg and Annie-Laurie Kneisel, said, "You both have one hell of a nerve to pass judgment on Claus."

Von Bulow, 56, is standing trial in a second time on charges he tried to kill his wife, Martha "Sunny" von Bulow, with insulin shots in 1979 and 1980 in order to collect $14 million from her utilities fortune and marry his former lover, Alexandra Isles.

Von Auersperg and Kneisel, Mrs. von Bulow's children from a previous marriage to an Austrian aristocrat, said they eventually learned of the probe which led to von Bulow's indictment and first conviction in 1982. The verdict was later overturned on constitutional grounds.

Both also have testified for the state against von Bulow during his current retrial.

"You saw fit to have your stepfather investigated in the hope of finding out some dreadful things in his past," Reynolds' letter said. "For that reason, and against Claus' wishes, I have had you investigated just as thoroughly during these last years."

"I have offered Claus the results of this investigation to test your credibility with the jury," the letter said. "In deference to his wife, your mother, he decided not to make them available to his lawyer."

Reynolds said von Bulow's stepchildren "panicked" at the thought of being financially on von Bulow after their mother passed into an irreversible coma in December 1980.

"Much of what you did since then was due to unfounded fear and the very bad advice given to you by the high-priced parasites gravitating around you," Reynolds said. "My advice to you now is, be quiet, stop making ally noises, you have caused irreparable damage."

Reynolds went on to say that "it saddens me to owe much of my happiness with Claus ... to your mother's present condition. But I didn't steal her place."

Lawyers may call daughter in defense of von Bulow

By Millie McLean
United Press International

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — A von Bulow may testify this week as the defense moves closer toward concluding its case in the attempted murder retrial of socialite Claus von Bulow, but it may be his daughter doing the talking in court.

Cosima von Bulow, the teenage daughter of the well-known defendant, may be called to refute some of the testimony offered earlier by von Bulow's two stepchildren, Alexander von Auersperg and Annie-Laurie Kneisel.

Von Bulow, 56, is being retried on charges he attempted to kill his wealthy wife, Martha "Sunny" von Bulow, with insulin injections to collect up to $14 million from her estate and marry his New York mistress.

His guilty verdict and 30-year prison sentence in 1982 were overturned on appeal on constitutional grounds last year.

Von Auersperg and Kneisel testified for the state against their stepfather and are credited with initiating the investigation which led state police to arrest von ruled out the possibility of putting von Bulow on the stand — something they refused to do at his first trial and which the then-convicted defendant later said he regretted.

Regardless of their decision to call the debarred defendant, the defense may have his daughter testify. She is the only child von Bulow and his wife had before she lapsed into coma in 1979 and 1980.

The second one has left her in a death-like state in a New York hospital.

If the Danish socialite-financier doesn't take the stand, the case could possibly reach the sequenced 14-member jury by the end of this week.

The defense opened its case with seven medical experts last week to try to prove Mrs. von Bulow caused her own coma in a drug-and alcohol-induced suicide attempt.

Defense attorney John Sheehan said the last medical witness would be called Tuesday or Wednesday.

If the doctors make a strong enough case, Sheehan said, von Bulow will probably not testify.

If he is called, the trial will probably stretch into next week because prosecutors will then they would question him at length.

COSIMA VON BULOW ... may take stand

Cape residents find spy ring gossip fodder

By Leslie Anderson
United Press International

WEST DENNIS, Mass. — In the quiet Cape Cod village of West Dennis, spies and military secrets are the stuff of summer news.

But last week, the world of espionage merged with local gossip after three members of a Navy family were charged in a long-running scheme to sell U.S. defense secrets to the Kremlin.

John Walker Jr., 47, a retired Navy communications specialist, was arrested in Maryland on May 20 and charged with spying for the Soviets since 1964. By the end of last week, his son and brother were jailed as well.

The FBI was alerted to Walker's alleged activities by his ex-wife, Barbara Walker, a middle-aged store clerk who works in the resort town on the south side of the Cape.

"I think this is the biggest thing that's ever happened in West Dennis," said one long-time summer resident who refused to give her name. "It's a small town. People with problems come down here to get away from it all."

Mrs. Walker was divorced from her husband in 1976 and worked as a check-out clerk for the Christmas Tree Shops.

Described by neighbors as friendly and quiet, she frequently visited her daughter Cynthia, 25, and grandson, Tommy, 8, in their Main Street apartment — a gray-shingled house in the center of town.

On one of those visits several months ago, Cynthia's landlord alerted Mrs. Walker to the FBI.

"Mrs. Walker has arrested three Russians in the FBI or had any contact with the FBI, and I said that I did," said Chester Buck.

"She wanted to talk with them, so I called an agent of the Hyannis office. That was my only involvement. I suspected, but I didn't know (what it was about). I didn't ask any questions," he said.

John Walker was arrested after he dropped a bag full of classified documents on a rural Maryland roadside.

His son, Michael, 22, a sailor aboard the aircraft carrier Nimitz, was charged over Memorial Day weekend after sensitive materials were found stashed near his bunk. The elder Walker's brother, Arthur, 50, a retired submariner and employee of a defense contractor, was charged May 30.

Authorities allege that greed prompted the three family members to smuggle Navy secrets to the Soviets, and investigators still are trying to determine how seriously national security was compromised by their activities.

Soon after the arrests, Cynthia Walker filed her apartment to avoid publicity and neither she nor her mother have been available for comment. Buck said he has called the police several times to get reporters and photographers off his property. The building also contains a real estate office and religious book-store.

"We've had to call the police on several occasions. People have walked into the building and pounded on the doors and really harassed the tenants," he said.

Many shoppers in the village — part of the larger town of Dennis with 14,000 yearlong residents — also have grown protective of their neighbors and have stopped answering reporters' questions about the Walkers.

"It's really quite something that this should turn up here," said Buck.

Prof graduates too

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — The 119th commencement at Massachusetts Institute of Technology today marked a graduation of sorts for Paul A. Samuelson, the economist whose textbook is a college campus classic.

The 70-year-old Nobel Prize winner who advised several American presidents, both Democrat and Republican, marched into graduation as an active-duty student. He marched out as professor emeritus.

"There won't be any change at all in my lifestyle — same offices, same secretary, same committees," he told the Boston Globe.

Bolton school board considers proposal to cut '85-'86 budget

By Sarah Posselt Herald Reporter
BOLTON — The Board of Education will vote Thursday on a plan recommended by the superintendent of schools to cut $75,000 from the budget for the fiscal year that begins July 1.
Superintendent Richard E. Packman made the recommendations at a special board meeting last Thursday.
Packman also recommended that the board use unencumbered funds in next year's budget to buy computer hardware, calculators and new textbooks, which were separate line items in the board's budget request.
Packman recommended the board seek competitive bids on insurance and predicted a $400 savings.
He also promised that administrators would find a way to pare another $3,000 during the course of the next year.
Packman also offered a list of other possible reductions for the continuing education, funds for cheerleading and softball uniforms, funds to repair computers used for math classes at Bolton High School and funding for a part-time aide for the administration.
Targeted for reductions are the high school art program, the Bolton Center School gifted program known as Project Explorers and funds for home economics course supplies.
The board faced cutting its $2.7 million budget request for 1985-86 after voters approved a lesser amount in a referendum last month. The board wanted an unsuccessful campaign to get residents to reject the lesser amount, which was set by the Board of Finance.

'A Taste of Manchester?'

The Downtown Merchants Association and the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce have started planning for a downtown food-tasting event similar to the "Taste of Hartford" held annually on Constitution Plaza.
Manchester's event — which may be called "Manchester has Taste" or "Manchester has Good Taste" — will be on a much smaller scale with 12 to 15 Manchester restaurants participating, chamber president Anne Flint said today.
Joseph Garman, chairman of the Parking Authority, said the event is one of several efforts planned by the Downtown Merchants to revitalize Main Street.
The event would also offer beverages and entertainment, Flint said. She said several details — such as available electricity — must be studied before the event is feasible.

Herbert P. Schoen, led The Hartford
HARTFORD (UPI) — Herbert P. Schoen, former president, chairman and chief executive of The Hartford Insurance Group, died at St. Francis Hospital Sunday at the age of 71.
Schoen, who died of a long illness, was chairman of the state's Gaming Policy Board, which regulates legal gambling in Connecticut. A Republican, Schoen was named to the post in 1979 by Gov. Ella T. Grasso, a Democrat who passed over two fellow party members.
He was president and chief executive officer of The Hartford from 1973 to 1978, when he was elected chairman of the board of directors. Schoen remained chairman and chief executive until his retirement in June 1979.
DeRoy C. Thomas, who succeeded Schoen as chairman, said, "It's so hard when you lose a great friend, and he was just that."
"He left such a warm and close feeling with all the people who worked with him that we'll all take his loss very personally. He was a great leader at The Hartford, and we all felt it was a privilege to work for him," Thomas said.

Death toll 91 in aftermath of tornadoes

Cardinal.
Four of the Canadian dead were children, including Jonathan Poeschman, 8, a third-grader who lived near Toronto and tried to make it home on his new bicycle when the deadly tornadoes struck. The house was barely touched by the storm, but the boy never made it home.
"It seems like God took my brother and left my house," his sister, Crystal, 12, said Sunday.
In northwestern Pennsylvania, nearly every structure in Albion, with 1,800 residents, and nearby Cranestown was damaged. Two Cranestown trailer parks were destroyed, with some 60 people injured.
Bob White of Atlantic, Pa., said he and his girlfriend huddled in a corner of his one-story house when a tornado ripped it apart.
"My girlfriend and I just kept praying," he said. "I doubt if we'll be seeing each other again. We're torn down. This was a nice little community but I doubt if many people are going to be here."
"You won't get me in a trailer ever again," said Dennis Perry, who got his wife and 3-year-old son out five minutes before a tornado hit. "I'm going to have a house with a basement."
About 253 people were injured and at least 1,255 homes damaged from a point 30 miles north of Pittsburgh to Lake Erie and stretching hundreds of miles east. Damage was estimated at more than $13.3 million in Erie County, the hardest hit by the tornadoes, authorities said.
In Ohio, curfews were in effect in Niles and Newton Falls, where even the most badly damaged churches held services.
"It's like a dream," said Shari Smolak, 16, of Newton Falls. "I can't believe it happened."
David and Gail Agnes of Niles, whose home was badly damaged, put a sign in their front yard reading, "For Sale - Make Offer." They spared the sign on what was left of their huge pine tree.

Pagano lawyers battle affidavit

By Kevin Flood Herald Reporter
HARTFORD — Lawyers representing Manchester attorney Anthony F. Pagano were scheduled today to challenge an affidavit that could damage their client in disciplinary hearings against him.
Pagano faces possible disciplinary action ranging from reprimand to disbarment for his involvement in a May 19, 1984, motor vehicle accident on Route 4 in Burlington. The accident resulted in the death of 31-year-old David Charest of Fall River, Mass.
Pagano has already been given a one-year suspended sentence, two years' probation and a $500 fine in connection with the accident.
Pagano's attorneys are now arguing that the disciplinary action against him should be dismissed because Bristol Superior Court Judge Julius J. Kremki, the original sentencing judge, had considered and rejected professional sanctions.
But Assistant State's Attorney Paul Murray has submitted an affidavit signed by Phillip R. Dunn, a lawyer for the grievance committee for the Hartford-New Britain Judicial District, in which Dunn claims Kremki told him before the sentencing that he would not consider professional sanctions against Pagano, though "he did not think that others would be precluded from taking action."
The grievance committee began an investigation after Charest's family and Chris Powell, editor of the Journal-Bulletin, submitted an affidavit in which Kremki has already submitted an affidavit in which he swears that he considered and then rejected professional sanctions against Pagano.
Pagano's lawyers have based much of their defense on the contention that Pagano cannot be subjected twice to disciplinary hearings on the same offense.
"I don't know if the league is up for settling this thing in a parking lot, but the Celtics are great. Just what the NBA needs. Men who are often described as the best athletes in the world reduced to fighting it out with fists and elbows and knees."
"What we should do is just meet them out in the parking lot and have a fight to get it out of our system, then we can play ball," said Celtics star Larry Bird, who is one of few Celtics who want to fight in the parking lot.

Coldest day cements warm friendship with Atlas Oil

On the coldest day of the winter, my boiler sprung a leak and I needed a replacement fast! I called Atlas Oil and they gave me a fair price on the furnace and heater I wanted. I was well satisfied with the price and with the workmanship. I don't think any company can beat Atlas Oil for service. Any time I've had trouble, a man was there in less than an hour, and many times that was in the middle of the night.

Manchester/Area Towns In Brief

Health services offered
COVENTRY — Community Health Care Services Inc. of Columbia will hold office hours at the Coventry Town Hall Wednesday from 2 to 3 p.m.
All residents served by the agency are eligible to receive blood pressure checks, tuberculosis tests, throat cultures and general health guidance.
The group will also sponsor a blood pressure clinic Tuesday at the Coventry Pharmacy from 1 to 3 p.m. A second clinic is scheduled for June 19 at the Village Pharmacy, also from 1 to 2 p.m.

Swim programs readied
COVENTRY — Registration for the 1985 Coventry swimming program will be held Tuesday from 7 to 8 p.m. at the Captain Nathan Hale School.
Three different sessions will be offered, from June 24 through July 12, July 13 through August 3 and August 4 through August 23.
Classes will be held Monday through Friday in the morning for 35 minutes each and will range from those for preschool non-swimmers to advanced adult swimmers.
Registration may also be made through the mail by sending a check to Coventry Swimming Program, 123 Mark Drive, Coventry, 06233. The cost for the programs is $7 per child per session, $10 for basic rescue and $20 for lifesaving.

Juran quits parking authority
Leo Juran, longtime member and secretary of the town Parking Authority, has submitted his resignation because he is no longer a downtown businessman.
The Parking Authority accepted the resignation at a meeting today.
Juran was a member of the authority almost from its inception about 25 years ago, said authority chairman Joseph Garman. For many years, Juran owned and operated Fairway on Main Street until he sold the business more than year ago.

Students to share $70,000
The Manchester Scholarship Foundation will award 40 students college scholarships worth more than $70,000 at its annual awards ceremony Tuesday night at Manchester Community College.
The amount, $70,000, is the largest in the foundation's history, according to a foundation news release.
The ceremony will take place at 7:30 in the Lowe Program Center on Bidwell Street.
According to the news release, 84 students applied for scholarships. All were judged on their scholastic standing, financial need and extracurricular activities in sports, school and community activities.
A committee reviews the applications without the applicants' names, the news release says.

Damato said this morning the lawsuit would slow down work on the project, which has not yet received final approval from Manchester zoning authorities. Final engineering plans for the development have not yet been completed, he said.
"It'll be at a standstill for a while," Damato said. Damato originally intended to build 15 townhouses on the land, but the PZC limited him to 10 when it approved the zone change.

Mostek exec quits
CARROLLTON, Texas (UPI) — Harold I. Ergott Jr., president and chief executive officer of Mostek Corp., a semiconductor manufacturer which has been laying off employees in the wake of a slipping sales, has resigned.
Ergott quit Friday.
Mostek, which is part of United Technologies Corp., has laid off 3,700 employees this spring because of a drop in sales, said Stan Victor, company spokesman.
He would not say whether Ergott was forced to resign. A company statement said his resignation was effective Friday, when he offered it.

Red Sox win second straight Banished Hurst gets an 'A'

BOSTON (UPI) — Bruce Hurst, banished to the bullpen after losing three straight games, deserves an A for his effort on Sunday.
"Anytime you take the hill, it's a test," the Red Sox left hander said with a smile after giving his first victory in nearly two months Sunday as Boston thrashed the Texas Rangers 12-3.
Hurst, who raised his record to 2-4, went eight innings, scattering 10 hits and chalked up a career-high eight strikeouts in his first start since May 23.
He had been sent to the bullpen after three straight losses and had not won a game since April 10. He only got the starting assignment Sunday because of Roger Clemens' sore shoulder.
It looked like another bad day on the mound for Hurst when Texas' Larry Parrish hit a two-run homer in the first inning. But the Red Sox came roaring back with a season-high 14 hits — four of them by Jim Rice, who belted 10th homer of the season and had 3 RBIs.
Miller then singled, Godman to second before Glen Hoffman doubled both runners home.
Hurst's fifth victory in their last six games. It was Boston's second straight win over Texas after dropping the first five meetings between the teams.
"When I gave up that home run in the first inning, I thought it was going to be a long day, but we battled back," Hurst said.
Mark Clear, who relieved Hurst, finished up without giving up a hit.
Hurst was philosophical about his poor showing so far this season.
"Every player goes through that," he said. "I've had to take it day by day. I feel I can still pitch."
Leading 7-3, the Red Sox broke the game open in the sixth inning and chased loser Dave Rozema, 2-4, who was replacing starter Dickie Noles. Rice and Bill Buckner led off with singles and Hurst was forced to load the bases.
Rich Gedman reached on a fielder's choice off reliever Chris Welsh, scoring Rice, and Marty Barrett's sacrifice fly scored Buckner to make the score 9-2.
Miller then singled, Godman to second before Glen Hoffman doubled both runners home.
Boston sent 10 men to the plate in the fifth against Rozema and scored four runs to break a 3-1 tie. Wade Boggs led off with a double and Rice singled, and Easler followed with a two-run double for a 5-3 Boston lead. After Godman was walked intentionally, Barrett singled home Easler, and Miller singled home Gedman.
Texas took a 3-2 lead in the third on Parrish's solo home run, his second of the game and seventh of the season. But the Red Sox came back in the bottom of the fourth inning on Miller's RBI single, chasing Noles in favor of Rozema.
Boston came back with a pair of RBIs in the bottom of the inning on Rice's two-run single, scoring Boggs and Steve Lyons.
Rice's solo home run in the seventh accounted for the 12th Boston run.
"We started off good," lamented Texas Manager Bobby Valentine, "but then it went down hill. It's like that. It's too bad it was a wasted effort."

Lakers down and dirty in taking 2-1 advantage

By Rich Tosches United Press International
INGLEWOOD, Calif. — The Boston Celtics pride themselves on being the blue-collar, working-class team of the NBA. Three games into the NBA championship series, the Los Angeles Lakers have given the Celtics a slap up alongside their hard hats.
Los Angeles showed its own down-and-dirty style Sunday afternoon and emerged with a 106-111 thrashing of the Eastern Conference champions that left the Lakers with a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.
Games 4 and 5 will also be at the Forum, Wednesday and Friday nights.
It's too early to count the Celtics out, certainly, but the Lakers have assumed command of the championship series by using a take-no-prisoners style that was thought to belong exclusively to the Celtics.
The idea that they play physical basketball in the East and only finesse ball in the West is just not accurate, Lakers' coach Pat Riley said. "It's something that the media made up and now people believe it."
The Lakers, using only flashes of the glitzy and finesse that they're known for, beat the Celtics in Game 3 with the old-fashioned way — by getting physical.
There were two near brawls in the first half, with Bob McAdoo and Magic Johnson each throwing punches at the head of Boston forward Kevin McHale in retaliation for McHale's liberal use of his elbows. Both punches missed, but the mood was set.
"The Celtics want to intimidate everyone," McAdoo said. "But they will not intimidate us."
In the fourth quarter, Los Angeles' Kurt Rambis and the Celtics' Ray Williams went at it with Williams driving Rambis three rows into the expensive seats and leaving him with two bright red scratches on his arm. As they were being separated, they resumed the fight and Williams was ejected.
The Lakers, who have had a year to dwell on their seven-game loss to the Celtics in last year's finals, seem determined not to be the 98-pound weaklings this year.
"We can't back down from them," Lakers' forward James Worthy said. "I think last year we backed down from them."
Worthy led Los Angeles with 29 points, all in the first three quarters. The Lakers 38-year-old Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 28 points and 14 rebounds while holding Celtic center Robert Parish to 17 points and 8 rebounds. McAdoo and Johnson added 19 and 17 points respectively.
McHale found time to score 31 points to lead Boston while Larry Bird added 20 on 8-of-21 shooting.
"We've got to come around pretty fast," Bird said. "I'm just not hitting my shots and that's hurting us. I know I'll come around in a week or so. But the problem is we don't have a week or so."
The Celtics, who won by 24 points in Game 1, built a 10-point lead midway through the second period, but the Lakers took control at that point.
They outscored Boston 27-11 in the next seven minutes and led 65-59 at halftime.
The domination continued in the third quarter with Worthy soaring over and driving around Bird and McHale for 14 points and Los Angeles led 100-85 entering the final period.
Boston never got closer than 17 points in the fourth quarter.
"Everybody from the coaches to the ball boys wanted this game," Abdul-Jabbar said. "We were prepared."
Wednesday brings the Celtics another chance, and Bird vowed that Boston will not go quietly into the night.
"Right now they're a little closer to winning the championship than we are," he said. "But you have to win two games to take 2. We're not down so deep that we can't get out."

McAdoo is worrying about becoming dated

By Jeff Hosen United Press International
INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Even scoring machines worry about becoming obsolete and high elbows late in the period.
"There's a lot at stake and I think it will get more intense," McAdoo said. "The closer a team gets to a (championship) ring, they realize times change."
Guns now are bigger and stronger," McAdoo said Sunday after his 19 points helped the Los Angeles recover from a first-half deficit to storm past the Boston Celtics 136-111 for a 2-1 lead in the championship series.
"There was no such thing as a Kevin McHale, a player that big who can move that well and shoot that well. Now there are a lot of them."
McAdoo figures he may be a dying breed. He has surmised that he is playing for his job in the finals. Free agency is days away.
He entered the game in the first period when McHale was having lunch — namely, eating the Lakers alive down low. But he hit four jumpers in a row and did enough on McHale to force the Los Angeles to climb back into the game.
"We tried to force McHale into the middle," said McAdoo. "He's a hard man to guard. I don't know him personally and I don't care to know him because this is war."
It was a battle, so much so that the two exchanged high elbows late in the period.

Heep's HR lifts Mets

By United Press International

SAN DIEGO — In the course of a 182-game season, every team must rely on the lucky bounce or getting the call that could go either way. Sunday the New York Mets hit the jackpot when home plate umpire Ed Montague turned Danny Heep's foul ball into a two-run homer, boosting them to a 7-3 triumph over the San Diego Padres.

"He finally told me it was a fair ball," Heep said of Montague's final decision.

Controversy developed in eighth inning when first base umpire Fred Brockler called Heep's drive down the right field line foul, then appealed to Montague after Mets manager Dave Johnson protested.

"He (Brockler) said I lost it in the people's shirts. I didn't see it as crossed the plate. I'm glad he got another opinion," said Heep. "He really didn't make a mistake, he just didn't see it."

According to San Diego Padres catcher Terry Kennedy, Brocklander's call was the latest in a series of oddities to occur in the past few weeks at Jack Murphy stadium.

"We've been having some weird calls in the last week or two," Kennedy said. Everybody today said they couldn't see anything out there. It was real, real bright."

Calvin Schiraldi and Doug Sisk combined on a five-hitter to lead the Mets to triumph.

Schiraldi, who came off the disabled list Friday after recovering from a broken toe, got credit for his second win of the year. Eric Show, 4-3, was the loser.

The Padres took a 2-0 lead off Schiraldi in the first inning when Tony Gwynn hit his second homer of the year, after Tim Flannery had walked.

The Mets scored three times in the third to wipe out the advantage, with an error by Graig Nettles allowing the final run. Terry Blocker began with a single to center, his first major-league hit. Mookie Wilson and Wallie Backman each singled to score one run and Keith Hernandez doubled home Wilson, tying the score 2-2. Carter then hit a ground ball to Nettles at third and Hernandez was caught in a rundown and called out. Backman broke from third on the play and was safe at the plate when Nettles misplayed a throw from catcher Terry Kennedy.

Carter gave the Mets breathing room in the sixth when he walked his sixth homer of the year after Hernandez singled, putting New York ahead 5-2.

The Padres got one run back in their half of the sixth.

Seattle ends Yanks' streak

By Joel Sherman

NEW YORK — The key ingredients for another home-cooked New York victory never materialized at Yankee Stadium Sunday. The Yankees owned a 12-game home win streak, entering Sunday's game with the Seattle Mariners thanks to strong pitching and clutch hitting.

Both were absent as the Mariners built an early three-run lead and the Yankees, on the verge of taking control all game, never did, as Seattle held on for a 7-6 victory.

"We played good, but our pitching got lost," said New York's Ricky Henderson, who had four hits. "They got up a few runs early and we had to play catch-up ball. We just didn't score enough runs."

Seattle starter Dennis Rasmussen, 2-3, was rugged up for four runs on three hits and four walks in 2-1/3 innings. Reliever Don Cooper was almost as ineffective, yielding a homer to the lightning-bolt Domingo Ramos and a hit to Phil Bradley in two innings.

Rich Bordi allowed what appeared to be a meaningless pinch-hit homer to Al Cowens in the sixth, putting Seattle ahead 7-4. But Don Mattingly's two-run homer in the bottom of the inning gave the Yankees a 7-6 lead.

"We knew they were playing well (at home)," Cowens said. "They knew we have to play well just to keep anybody." The Yankees started the game with a 15-4 home record, the best in baseball. Billy Martin, who took over as New York manager early in the season, was 11-0 at Yankee Stadium.

Seattle manager Chuck Cottier provided the game's most interesting moment. After being ejected in the third inning by first-base umpire Lance Parrish, Willie Hernandez, 4-1, was the winner. Karl Best gained his third save.

Red hot White Sox cop fifth straight to tighten race

By Mike Tully

CHICAGO — The White Sox's career approaching success, Sunday leading the White Sox to their fifth consecutive victory, a 4-1 decision over the Kansas City Royals.

"I did not feel any more pressure last Tuesday night when we lost our series a row than I did Sunday after we had won our fifth in a row," LaRussa said.

"As a manager, I'm under constant pressure and because I want to win every game, I not only put myself in that position but believe strongly that if your team does not produce, for whatever reason, then the manager must expect that somebody is looking over his shoulder."

The Royals, swept in the four-game series, have lost five of their last six to fall into third in the AL West. The White Sox collapsed last night to Lance Parrish, Willie Hernandez, 4-1, was the winner. Karl Best gained his third save.

Tigers 4, Angels 3

DETROIT, Darrell Evans banged a ninth-inning pitch with Donnie Moore off the upper-clip in right for his ninth homer to lift the Tigers. Moore, 3-2, entered in eighth and gave up a game-tying homer to Lance Parrish. Willie Hernandez, 4-1, was the winner.

Kemper to Glasson

By Will Dunham
United Press International

BETHESDA, Md. — Few people — least of all Bill Glasson — thought the second-year player would figure prominently in the Kemper Open.

"I've never played this course very good. That's why I didn't play well at all," said Mize, who had a four-stroke lead entering the final round. "I was definitely disappointed with the way I hit the ball. I have to keep working on my game."

Glasson, 25, picked up his biggest paycheck ever, $90,000, in winning the $500,000 tournament at Congressional Club with an overall 18-under-77.

The PGA event was dominated by young players, with Mize, 26, shooting a 73 to end one-stroke behind, tied with Corey Pavin, 25, who shot a 69.

Glasson, a second-year player, started his charge at Mize with birdies on the 5th, 7th, 8th and 10th, drawing to two shots back. Glasson bogeyed the 11th, but drew even at 18-under when he birdied and Mize bogeyed the 14th hole.

Both Glasson and Mize bogeyed the 17th, but Glasson nailed the long putt on the 18th for his six-under-66.

"I was seriously choking — I was losing it," said Glasson of the final few holes. "But after making the bogey on 17, it took all the pressure off."

Glasson has had only spotty success in his two years on the tour. In fact, he lost his tour card after the 1983 season, but he had to qualify for the tour last fall.

His $90,000 first prize money is close to double his previous 1985 earnings of $55,276.

"I wasn't trying to make it. I was trying not to three-putt," he said. "It was tracking pretty good and I guess it straightened out. I think it went in the left side. I don't know. I was over my bag by then."

"I guess it was in the cards for me today."

Mize nearly forced a playoff, but his putt for a birdie on the final hole rolled wide.

"I thought it was good," Mize said of the shot. "Halfway there I thought it was in."

McEnroe downs Henrik Sundstrom

By Bill Beacon
United Press International

PARIS — John McEnroe is trying to get to the finals of the French Open by way of Sweden.

McEnroe, the top seed and the world's number one ranked player the past three years, defeated 12th-seed Henrik Sundstrom 6-3, 7-5, 6-2 in a fourth-round match Sunday and is to face another Swedish player, Mats Wilander, in the quarterfinals on Tuesday.

He gets by Nystrom, he will likely play fourth-seed Mats Wilander of Sweden in the semifinals.

The straight-set victory avenged a loss by McEnroe to Sundstrom last year in the Davis Cup final which Sweden won 4-1.

Sunday McEnroe caught Sundstrom flatfooted with precision drop shots and rushed the net to neutralize Sundstrom's high topspin shots from the baseline.

He expects more trouble from Nystrom, who was not a Davis Cup team member last December.

"We played one early in the year and I lost to him," McEnroe said of his second-round loss to Nystrom at the WCT indoor tournament at Dallas.

"He's a good player. He's a guy who can bring out the best or the worst in me. But I feel that if I'm on my game, I should be able to beat him."

Nystrom advanced with a victory over Chile's Hans Gildemeister Sunday.

Wilander dispatched 13th-seed Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 and will play Frenchman Henri Leconte in the quarterfinals.

Leconte upset compatriot and ninth-seed Yannick Noah before 125,000 center court Sunday.

Leconte, who beat Wilander and second-seed Ivan Lendl last week at the world team cup at Duesseldorf, Germany and upset fifth-seed Andres Gomez of Ecuador in the third round Friday, held off Noah's determined comeback bid to win 6-3, 6-4, 6-7, 4-6, 6-1.

The loss was a bitter blow to Noah, the 1983 French Open champion who missed most of last season with various injuries.

American Chris Evert Lloyd took another step toward the women's final with a fourth-round 6-2, 6-3 over West German teenager Stefli Graf, the 11th seed.

Lloyd is to play American Terry Phelps, who upset eighth seed Charles Basset of Canada 4-6, 6-9, 6-3.

Another rising 15-year-old, Argentina's 14th seeded Gabriela Sabatini, eliminated South African Rosalyn Fairbank 6-4, 1-6, 7-5.

Sabatini will meet fourth-seed Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria, who defeated 10th seed Bonnie Gadusek of the United States 7-5, 6-3, in the quarterfinals.

MBs take two

At the time, it seemed a case of a hot team putting it all together. Now, Greater Hartford Twilight League opponents of Moriarty Brothers are beginning to believe.

The MBs, who scored 60 runs in five games to top last August's Jack Rose Memorial Playoffs, have picked up where they left off. Moriarty's romped over two more adversaries this weekend, blanking the Imaginers, 8-0, in Manchester Saturday night, before whipping Herbs, 11-2, Sunday at Windsor High.

Moriarty's, now 3-0, got its first look at newly acquired pitcher Bill Akasmit Saturday. Akasmit, an 11-year Twilight veteran, tossed a three-hit shutout against the Imaginers, while fanning five and walking none. He was supported at the plate by Steve Choliner, who cracked two doubles, and Jeff Johnson, who went 2-for-2 with two RBIs.

Dave Ford provided the power with a tremendous two-run home run to left center.

The MBs came back to trounce performance by Bill Chapulis. A bases-loaded triple in the fourth by Chapulis was the big blow in the contest. Choliner was the only other batter with two hits.

Brian Labbe, who won two games (including the championship tilt) in last year's playoffs, nailed down his first victory of the season. Labbe scattered seventh, shifted seven and walked one.

The defending champs are at East Hartford's McKenna Field Tuesday night against Marco Polo. The MBs are back on Thursday night for a key matchup against Society for Savings at Moriarty Field at 7:30 p.m.

NEW HAVEN — Only the doubles won.

Manchester High boys tennis team competed in Saturday's CIAC Class 1L tournament at Wilbur Cross High in New Haven.

The Indians' top doubles pair of Vic Antico and Jeff Kennard notched Manchester's only victory of the day, downing Steve Stone and Mark Hager of Westhill, 6-6, 6-3 and 6-3. The Manchester team, coached by Amity's Bill Olderman and Scott Krueger, 3-6 and 2-6.

Singles players Aaron Windchowski, Doug Siwik and Randy Dumas were all eliminated in first round play. Wiochowski lost to Rob Wilson of New Canaan, 1-6, 4-6. Siwik was shaded by Joe Lubas of Bridgeport Central, 5-7, 4-6, and Dumas was whipped by Tony Caccarelli of Fairfield Prep, 2-6, 2-6.

Decision called 'great success'

SPA FRANCOISCHAMPS, Belgium — Frenchman Alain Prost, one of the prime movers behind the cancellation of Sunday's Belgian Formula One Grand Prix, said the decision represented "a great success for the future."

Prost spent Sunday watching the French Open Tennis Championships in Paris instead of sweating round 42 laps of the Spa-Francorchamps circuit in Belgium in his McLaren car.

He and fellow drivers Michele Alboreto and Niki Lauda were instrumental in the Belgian race being cancelled.

They made a final inspection of the track, whose new surface had cut up and made practice both dangerous and impossible, Saturday night and persuaded the race organizers to cancel Sunday's race.

It was the first time Formula One drivers had decided whether or not a race should go ahead, and the first time in Formula One history that a Grand Prix was cancelled because of a dangerous track.

Mario Andretti a winner

WEST ALLIS, Wis. — Mario Andretti, driving at a record pace, Sunday won a 200-mile championship car race at the Wisconsin State Fair Park Speedway.

Andretti led all but four laps and beat Tom Sneva across the finish line by 12.72 seconds to win the Miller American in a race he dominated from start to finish.

"It was just my day," Andretti said. "I just had the car really working all day and I just hoped it would stick around until the finish."

Neither Sneva nor the rest of the field could catch him except for the brief four laps Sneva led after Andretti made a pit stop. "Mario was just looking real good," Sneva said. "We just couldn't catch him."

Rick Mears finished third and was surprised Andretti did so well.

"I expected him to run real well but not to dominate as much as he did," Mears said. "I just didn't have enough stick to make a run at him or Tom."

The Nazareth, Pa., driver set a record speed for a 200-mile championship car race at the speedway, averaging 124.162 mph to break the mark of 121.807 mph set by Al Unser in 1976.

Elder captures seniors event

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. — Lee Elder shot a 4-over-par 76 Sunday but held on to win a PGA senior's tournament by one stroke over Peter Thomson.

Elder earned $30,000 in capturing his first senior's tournament. The rest of the field did not challenge until the end of the round.

Elder, who was 4-under-par with a four-shot lead going into the day, bogeyed the third, ninth and 16th holes. He double-bogeyed the 43rd-par, par-4 18th after his drive landed in the water.

Peter Thomson, who finished 2-under for the tournament, won $18,000. Billy Casper placed third, shooting par for the day and for the tournament, and won $15,000. Arnold Palmer was fourth, with 1-over-par. He entered the day 4-under but shot a 77 Sunday. Palmer won $12,500.

Ryan wins 'The Race'

EUGENE, Ore. — Kevin Ryan won the Oregon Track Club "The Race" for the third time Sunday, beating Alberto Salazar, the world class distance runner still recovering from leg surgery.

Ryan remains the only man to have won the eight-kilometer race, clocking 23:07.8, short of the record 22:54.0 he established in the 1983 inaugural event. Ryan also won the 1984 race.

Bonnie Tamis of Eugene captured the women's race in 28:15.9 to edge West German Birgit Petersen, a student at the University of Oregon.

Ribbs secures Transam race

SONOMA, Calif. — Willy Ribbs broke from the pack on the first lap and held off Wally Dallenbach Jr. down the stretch Sunday, to capture his second straight title on the Transam racing circuit.

Ribbs, driving a Ford Capri, completed the 40-lap, 109-mile race in a time of 1:10:22.2, an average of 85.843 mph. He edged out Dallenbach by an 8.8-second margin at the fourth annual Motocraft 100 at the Sears Point Raceway.

Davey Allison race winner

HAMPTON, Ga. — Davey Allison, son of race driver Bobby Allison, won the Georgia ARCA 500 at Atlanta International Raceway Sunday in a race marred by the death of a fellow driver in a crash.

Stuart George Lyndon, 34, a native of Hastings, New Zealand, was killed when the car he was driving crashed head-on into a dirt bank.

USFL roundup

Flutie, Sipe on sidelines

The Baltimore Stars, battling for the eighth USFL playoff spot, averaged an opening-day loss Sunday with a 17-12 victory over the Jacksonville Bulls.

The Stars knocked out Jacksonville quarterback Brian Sipe with a separated shoulder for the second time this season.

Sipe is not the only — or the most expensive — USFL quarterback sidelined with a separated shoulder. New Jersey Generals quarterback Doug Flutie is expected to miss the rest of the season after he injured his left collarbone Saturday night against the Memphis Showboats.

"I feel fine," Flutie said. "The collar is a little sore and the only discomfort I have is from the harness. But I can't do anything about it — it helps keep the collarbone in place."

Defensive end John Walker sacked Sipe in the third quarter, sending him from the game, and the rest of the Stars' defense held Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier to 60 yards rushing.

The Stars, 8-6-1, gained a half-game edge over the Bulls with two regular-season games remaining. The Bulls are 8-7-0.

In the other USFL game Sunday, Bobby Hebert threw for more than 300 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Oakland Invaders to their seventh straight triumph and into the playoffs.

Oakland, 11-3-1, clinched a playoff berth by beating the Portland Breakers 38-20. Portland fell to 4-11.

The Invaders broke the game open after leading 21-14 at the half.

Oilers are saluted by hometown fans

EDMONTON, Alberta (UPI) — More than 15,000 fans Sunday saluted the Stanley Cup champion Edmonton Oilers at a downtown motorcycle and rally.

The Oilers, riding in convertibles, were wildly cheered for winning their second straight Stanley Cup Thursday night. They defeated the Philadelphia Flyers in five games.

Wayne Gretzky, the Most Valuable Player of the playoffs, and Paul Coffey took turns hoisting the Stanley Cup as the cars carrying them and other players circled Commonwealth Stadium.

Oilers coach and General Manager Glen Sather said fan support has "touched" every player.

"We had a great day together and I hope next year we can bring the Stanley Cup back to Edmonton," he said.

Oilers owner Peter Pocklington said Edmonton has become a "city of champions" because of such support.

Edmonton, a city of 600,000, has won eight professional championships since 1978 — five Canadian Football League Grey Cups for the Eskimos, the Oilers' two Stanley Cups and the Triple-A Pacific Coast League baseball champion Trappers last year.

"Part of developing any winning team is having a winning city to do it in — you are the best," Pocklington said.

Sunday's celebration was staged in the controlled environment of the football stadium to curtail a repeat of the disturbances that erupted downtown during last year's Stanley Cup victory festivities.

After the Oilers dethroned the New York Islanders last year a mob of 1,000 fans clashed with police in the streets and had to be dispersed by fire hoses.

McEnroe to bypass British tourneys

PARIS (UPI) — John McEnroe said Sunday it is unlikely he will participate in the Queen's Club and Wembley tournaments in London this year — two Grand Prix events he has dominated throughout his career.

"I'd say that's a good possibility," the world's No. 1 player said after qualifying for the semifinals of the French Open with a 7-6, 6-1, 6-1 triumph over Sweden's Henrik Sundstrom.

"I'm not entered in these tournaments any more and I don't intend to. I have other scheduling plans," McEnroe said Sunday clearly professional in 1978 at Queen's, the grass tournament traditionally used by the top players to prepare for Wimbledon two weeks later.

He won Queen's from 1979-81 and was second the next two years. But his comments Sunday clearly indicate he will be absent from this year's event, from June 16-18, for the first time in eight years.

McEnroe has also been the major success and drawing card at London's winter indoor tournament at Wembley, which he has won five times since 1978.

He was absent last year while serving a suspension following an outburst in Stockholm, Sweden, the previous week. But McEnroe's absence this year would be the first since 1978.

Of course, it couldn't have anything to do with that," he said with thick sarcasm.

Five years ago, McEnroe received his nickname "Superbrat" by the British press and his private life is often the subject of sensational stories in England. Last January, he reacted violently to a British reporter inquiring about his romance with actress Tatum O'Neal.

Oklahoma State walks by Gamecocks in College World Series yawner

By United Press International

OMAHA, Neb. — Oklahoma State coach Gary Ward could hardly keep his eyes open Sunday in the Cowboys' 16-11 College World Series victory over South Carolina.

"This was a boring game that was not well played and we are not pleased with our performance," he said. "I've seen us as awesome and dominating this year, but we have yet to show it in this tournament."

In the nightcap, No. 1 Stanford coasted to a 9-2 victory over Arizona. South Carolina and Arizona were both knocked out of the double-elimination tournament.

Today, No. 4 Arkansas, 50-13, and No. 5 Mississippi State, 49-13, play in a winners' bracket game.

The Arkansas-Mississippi State loser will play Stanford, 47-14, Wednesday. No. 30 Oklahoma State, 58-15, will play the loser of Tuesday night's Miami-Texas game in the other elimination game Wednesday.

Sunday's Oklahoma State-South Carolina contest took nearly four hours as five pitchers for each team combined to issue 23 walks, which left Ward yawning.

"We got the win, but it was not a good feeling because we did not play well," Ward said.

Oklahoma State's Pete Incaviglia, who set single-season records for home runs and RBI this season, drilled a three-run homer, his 48th, and No. 5 Mississippi State, 49-13, Mike Day scored four runs and drove in three as the Cowboys assaulted the Gamecocks' pitching staff.

"There's not much to say except we ran out of pitching," South Carolina coach June Raines said.

The Gamecocks trailed 14-4 going into the bottom of the seventh but bunched six walks and four singles to score six runs.

Oklahoma State brought in Jeff Bronkney, who allowed one unearned run the rest of the way and picked up the save.

Rob Rinehart and Scott Mackie paced South Carolina with two hits apiece.

Stanford coach Mark Marquess, who described the Cardinal's 17-3 loss to Miami Saturday as "a real good whipping," said his team's relaxed attitude might have helped against Arizona.

"I felt we were looser today," Marquess said. "The team was loose on the bus and in batting practice."

Mike DeBoron's grand slam helped Stanford to victory. DeBoron's blast came in the eighth after Arizona intentionally walked the Cardinal's top same-run hitter, Rick Lundblade.

"I loved that situation," DeBoron said. "I was looking for a pitch inside and (pitcher Joe Estes) got the ball up."

Arizona coach Jerry Kindall defended leading the bases to bring DeBoron to the plate.

The UEFA decision bars English teams from European competition, but not clubs from Scotland, Wales or Northern Ireland. Places reserved for English teams will be given to the Soviet Union, France, Czechoslovakia and The Netherlands.

France told a news conference in Basle, Switzerland, after the group met for three hours. "We must make soccer safe for families again."

The rampage at the European Champions Cup final in Brussels began when British fans of the Liverpool club rushed into a section filled with Italian supporters of Turin's Juventus team.

Most of the dead were trampled to death. More than 400 people were injured.

The incident prompted the Belgian government to ban all British soccer teams from Belgium, and the English Football Association, the ruling body of English soccer, clubs, to ban English teams from all European competition for one year.

Most soccer officials in England bowed to the mood of national humiliation and accepted the ban as inevitable and a signal for soccer clubs to deal forcefully with the problem.

"It's up to us now to get our house in order," said Ted Croker, secretary of the English Football Association. "It's going to be painful while we're doing it, but its undoubtedly long overdue and we've got to take drastic steps."

Liverpool soccer club chief John Smith described the UEFA ban as "state-sanctioned" and pledged his team would do everything to "eradicate this cancer of violence."

Liverpool's goalkeeper, Bruce Grobbelaar, told the Sun newspaper he might quit soccer because he was so sickened by the Brussels' bloodbath.

AUSTIN, Texas — Michael Conley gave those who cheer for the Arkansas Razorbacks something to remember him by, and Roddie Haley gave them reason to hope for more.

Between them they helped bring the Razorbacks the NCAA's track and field championship.

The Arkansas track team has become so powerful it even had a minor effect on the NCAA's decision-making process last weekend.

A few hours before the Razorbacks captured their first outdoor triple crown of college track, the NCAA voted to hold next year's indoor championship in Oklahoma City.

Part of the argument used by those trying to bring the meet to Oklahoma was that it would be a relatively short drive for Arkansas fans who usually flock in large numbers when their team has a chance to win something big.

Trip offered chance for reflection

We had to take a sad trip recently. A very dear family member, who lived out of state, is extremely ill, and we had to see her. This was one of those necessities of love, not life.

On the Line John Bossidy

I wondered how flight attendants manage to smile so much. Don't they ever have a bad morning following a bad night? Don't they ever get bored? They must have to pass a smiling test before they can graduate from flight attendants' school.

goddies we'd need for late-night coffee — the whole thing we used to snicker at. A very sure sign the years left to come are far fewer than the years that have gone before.

The last major impression I developed on this trip came from one of the elderly sisters we visited. She'll be 89 in a few weeks, and I asked her if she ever expected to have that many years. No, absolutely not, she replied. Did she like having that many years, especially because her health is so good? No, absolutely not, she said.

When I asked her why she didn't like her 89 years, she gave me an answer I wasn't prepared for. Because, she said, you always have to worry about where you're walking. The more I thought about that, the more I realized how scary it is for older folks.

Health maintenance organizations surge

If you're among the nation's 30 million Medicare recipients (or surely you know someone who is), be on the alert: You can join a health maintenance organization (HMO) and save on out-of-pocket health care expenses. This unquestionably will boost membership in the more than 300 HMOs across the United States, and lead to an upsurge in enrollments. Enrollments in HMOs have been in a dramatic increase even without this new spur. In the past year, over 1.2 million have joined, the greatest rise ever, bringing total enrollment to an estimated 15 million. Today, more than 50,000 businesses offer HMOs to their employees. The HMO appears to be a medical plan whose time has come.

In brief, HMOs provide health care services for a prepaid annual fee. Group practice HMOs provide care in a clinic or hospital. In an Independent Association (IPA), the HMO makes a contract with private doctors, who function out of their own offices. The reason for the trend: money. They cost of HMO plans now compares favorably with traditional medical insurance programs and, in some instances, the HMO is cheaper.

Even when the premiums are higher, HMOs can be cheaper for families who use a lot of medical services since HMOs eliminate copayments and deductibles. Moreover, costs are rising at a lower rate for HMOs than for other medical insurance programs, a recent survey by the Group Health Association of America, a trade group, disclosed.

Employers, eager to contain health care costs, push HMOs as an alternative to traditional medical plans. There have been cases where employers actively

Your Money's Worth

have required that new employees enroll in an HMO for their first year on the payroll. Companies with 25 or more employees are required by the government to offer HMOs as an alternative to medical insurance. With all these developments under way, an estimated 40 million of us will be enrolled in about 800 HMOs by 1990, projects Frost & Sullivan, a New York-based market research firm. Of that total, the study predicts, about 20 percent will be elderly. There are some reasons, says Dr. William E. Gold, director of the Blue Cross-Blue Shield Greater New York HMO. Gold says that HMOs cut out the copayments and deductibles patients would otherwise have to pay. In addition, many HMOs provide services such as hearing aids, eyeglasses and prescription drugs in the comprehensive fee. And HMOs can be convenient — providing a network of health professionals in one location. Medicare will pay to the HMO 90 percent of the cost of providing Medicare for that patient in that geographical area, according to the Health Care Financing Administration. The beneficiary will pay any extra money cost. That extra premium, it is expected, might be up to $15 per month per beneficiary.

If enrolling in an HMO appeals to you, do your homework before you join. There are some advantages: less choice of health care providers, no coverage for routine care not provided by your HMO and inconvenience if you live far from a Medicare-approved HMO.

Among the guidelines for joining: Ask your friends and co-workers for recommendations. Ask about their complaints and compliments, whether they plan to re-enroll.

Compare the HMO's benefits with those under your existing health plan. Inquire about the HMO's grievance procedures.

Visit the proposed HMO. Is it convenient? How long does it take to get an appointment?

Estimate your total anticipated health care expenses. Will the HMO cost more per month? After you factor in copayment and deductibles?

What is the staff's background? Are doctors board certified or board eligible in their specialties? Are there any complaints or second opinions?

What if you must see a specialist outside the HMO? Contact your local Social Security office or agency on aging for more facts about Medicare-approved HMOs in your region. Act with care.

Remember tax deadline

HARTFORD — June 15 is the filing and payment deadline for Connecticut residents who owe an estimated state tax on dividends for interest income. Legislation enacted this year makes two major changes affecting that deadline, according to the Department of Revenue Services. As of Jan. 1, Social Security Income and Tier 1 Railroad Retirement benefits are excluded from a taxpayer's federal adjusted gross income used to determine liability for the state tax on interest and dividends. Also now in effect are a new income scale and rate schedule for the tax, the department said. The estimated dividend and interest tax payment due by June 15 amounts to 50 percent of the total estimated tax due. Tax return forms for the estimated dividend and interest tax are available at the Department of Revenue Services, 92 Farmington Ave., Hartford, and at department field offices in Bridgeport, East Hartford, Norwich and Waterbury.

Avco workers back on job

STRATFORD — Workers returned to their jobs today at Avco Lycoming Corp. after ratifying a new contract with the turbine engine manufacturer.

The 280 clerical and technical employees represented by Local 376 of the United Auto Workers and the 2,100 production workers represented by Local 1010 voted Sunday in favor of three-year contracts providing raises of 2, 3 and 3.5 percent annually.

Local 376 reached a tentative agreement Friday, but negotiations with Local 376 did not conclude until Saturday after a marathon session.

Local 376 President Philip A. Wheeler said in addition to the raises, the employees received a $25 bonus. The union also stopped the company's move toward subcontracting work at the expense of union jobs, Wheeler said. Local 376 successfully opposed a company proposal to take some engineers out of the bargaining unit, or hire non-union help for those jobs, Wheeler said.

"There were some major problems in the area of resolution of the bargaining unit, but they've been resolved," he added.

High-speed rail gets qualified backing

By Jon Fleming
United Press International

ALBANY, N.Y. — A high-speed railway linking New York City and Montreal would cut travel time for the 385-mile trip to three hours, but would not generate enough revenue to cover construction costs, a report said. However, the system, which is seen as a way to promote tourism and industry, could make enough money to cover its operating and maintenance expenses, the study said.

The study, released Sunday, was conducted by officials from New York, Vermont, Montreal and the province of Quebec. It found no engineering obstacles to building what is called the Very High Speed Rail system between the two cities. The high speed trains travel at up to 185 miles per hour.

The proposed railways would cost about $2 billion and create 3,000 construction jobs, the study said. A similar ultra-fast railroad currently operates in Paris, but none are running in North America. But several states, including Florida, Pennsylvania and Nevada, were exploring plans to build such a system.

Canadian officials approached New York about the possibility of building the system. The report examined a plan to build a train that would run between New York City and Montreal, with stops in Poughkeepsie, Albany, Rutland, Vt. and Burlington, Vt.

"What we found was that (the railway) generates sufficient revenues to cover operating and maintenance costs, but it would not amortize the capital costs of building the project," the study said.

"If someone will build it, then it will make money. But the thing is, who is going to build it?" Luzzi said.

New York has not begun exploring ways of funding such a project or whether it should be developed at all. Luzzi said. However, if enough interest in building the railroad existed, private financing would be the best alternative, he said.

The next step in the preliminary investigation will be in September, when the state Department of Transportation plans to present the results of the report to investment bankers and railway officials to explore possibilities for private financing of the project.

The report determined considerable demand exists for such a railway and that ridership between New York and Montreal would increase 500 percent over current levels by the year 2005 if high speed service were available. Ridership in 1982 on the Amtrak route between New York and Montreal was

Fund questions linger

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — At least 14 people, including the daughter of former Gov. J. Joseph Garraby, secured low-interest mortgages from secret fund operated by the troubled Rhode Island Housing and Mortgage Finance Corp., documents have revealed.

Lisa Sapinley, the chairwoman of the RHMFC board, said the money from the special fund had been used to "grant favors to special people."

Sapinley said she has discovered as much as $900,000 in the secret fund since becoming chairwoman of the RHMFC board this year. Sapinley said she halted the practice of issuing 10 percent loans from the fund and has yet to determine whether the fund was maintained legally.

Documents said that among those given special mortgages through the fund included:

• Colleen Mahoney, the daughter of former Gov. Joseph Garraby; —Anthony Solomon Jr., son of former state General Treasurer Anthony Solomon Sr.

• Cynthia Ruggiero, daughter of former Senate Majority Leader Rocco Quatrocchi and wife of state Sen. Dominick Ruggiero; and

• James Cummings, son of the late John Cummings, the former president of Fleet National Bank.

All have denied receiving any preferential treatment in obtaining mortgages and none have been accused or charged with any wrongdoing.

A Providence Journal-Bulletin computer analysis of 25,000 RHMFC mortgages found that although agency records showed that all 8 1/2 percent loans issued in a 1978 program had been distributed, some homeowners were receiving the mortgages as late as last fall.

During the last four years, when the rest of the public was paying as much as 13 1/2 percent for RHMFC mortgages and as much as 10 percent for conventional loans, the state-run agency held onto a pool of money and issued at least 14 mortgages at substantially lower interest rates, documents show.

Since last March, the RHMFC has become the target of an expanding state anti-federal investigation which has resulted in seven arrests, including former Executive Director Ralph Part on racketeering and extortion charges.

The mortgage to Garraby's daughter and son-in-law in 1982 does not appear on RHMFC computer records, but the father, Executive Director Joseph Krause said the mortgage did come from the 1978 fund.

Among the charges Part faces is one that increases his indemnifying information in the RHMFC computer system.

Garraby said he never spoke of his daughter or her relationship to the system.

"I didn't know anything about (a special fund)," the former governor said. Meanwhile, Gov. Edwin DiPrete said the state may begin providing between $15 million and $25 million in subsidies to help the state resume providing low-interest mortgages.

venues from sale of the UPI report, while collecting $600,000 to $1 million in annual revenues UPI previously reported.

Finint received $1.3 million in contracts for UPI's stock price reporting service in return for promising to share profits from a new computerized stock service for newspaper subscribers.

UPI's filing of schedules of assets and liabilities, detailing many of its financial affairs, listed total debts of $40,229,294 and total assets of $23,994,449.

The debts included:

• $3.3 million in state and federal taxes. UPI previously disclosed its failure to pay $1.77 million in employee payroll withholding taxes to the Internal Revenue Service and the Social Security Administration for the fourth quarter of 1984. The newly filed court papers disclosed UPI also failed to pay $401,622 in federal withholding and Social Security taxes in April, the month it filed under Chapter 11, as well as four months of federal unemployment taxes totaling nearly $60,000 and more than $1 million in unemployment,

UPI investigates 'fraudulent transactions'

By Gregory Gordon
United Press International

WASHINGTON — United Press International, itemizing debts of more than $40 million for a federal bankruptcy court, says it is investigating possible "fraudulent transactions" in which company assets may have been sold for sub-market prices.

"The debtor may pursue these investigations and, where appropriate, to pursue liquidation and recovery of all claims resulting from these transactions," company lawyers said in a 1,400-page filing Friday in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Washington.

The court papers did not specify what assets UPI might seek to recover, but Chairman Luis Nogales has publicly criticized the firm's chief owners for making "bad deals" he said helped lead the firm to file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection.

The court papers said, "The debtor is investigating possible fraudulent transactions and other claims against various entities."

Under bankruptcy law, a "fraudulent transaction" is defined as one in which an asset is sold for less than full market value, said Richard Levine, an attorney representing UPI.

personally, state income, business or sales and use taxes in the 50 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

• Secured debts of $8.5 million, including $2 million in leases and $3.49 million in revolving credit owed Footlock III Capital Corp. UPI's primary cash lender.

• $140,327 in priority wages, owed employees at a rate of $2.00 per employee for work performed prior to the April 23 filing. Most of these wages, which the company plans to distribute shortly, are for Vermont not processed prior to the Chapter 11 filing.

• $467,470 for employee benefit plans, including pension funds. A recent ruling by U.S. Bankruptcy Judge George Mason assured UPI employees suffered no loss of medical coverage as a result of the Chapter 11 filing.

• $27.7 million in unsecured claims. Unsecured vendors include the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.; Queens of UPI include a part-time sales and management staff employees owed wages in excess of $2,000. Among unsecured creditors are Nogales and UPI Editor in Chief.
