The body of Clarence White, 41, a retired pilot for United Airlines, was discovered by relatives shortly before 6 a.m. Tuesday, sprawled in front of his single-story, ranch-style house on Prospect Drive, police said.

Sgt. Robert Noriko said the investigation is proceeding on "the assumption of homicide" and an autopsy was scheduled at the chief state medical examiner's office in Farmington. No arrests had been made and there was no immediate motive, Noriko said. Police declined to disclose further details of the slaying.

Timing among key questions in sewer upgrading

News Analysis

Manchester Mayor Barbara Welberg is considering the appointment of a citizens' committee to study proposed improvements to the town's sewerage-treatment plant.

The Department of Environmental Protection in Connecticut is preparing to introduce legislation into the next session of the General Assembly to set up revolving loans.

IF EITHER WINSTED or Groton somehow forfeit, federal grant money will be available to Manchester, officials of both the town and the state DEP agree.

The order, based on higher standards for the Hockanum River, calls on the town to provide advanced secondary treatment of the sewage. The town would have to remove nitrogen from the effluent that goes into the Hockanum.

Improvements designed to accomplish that goal have already been designed and the design has already been approved by the state and federal environmental authorities.

The town has been ready to proceed with the project since 1977, but federal funds went to what the state Department of Environmental Protection determined to be more urgent projects.

The 1978 order set a timetable for getting the work done. The timetable called for getting the plant completed by November 1979.

Beyond the question of whether the state can and will force the town to act, is the question of whether the capacity of the sewage treatment plant is enough to provide for growth in town.

THE FLOW THROUGH the plant is now about 6 million gallons a day. The plant is equipped for 10 million gallons a day but not advanced secondary treatment — was designed for a 1989 estimated average flow of 6.75 million gallons a day.

Robert Young, superintendent of the Water and Sewer Division, says plans for growth now in the works will use up the added 0.75 million-gallon capacity.

TOWN OFFICIALS have said that if the town does not improve the plant on its own initiative, the state will force it to do so. While state DEP officials are naturally reluctant to talk in terms of ultimatums while a town vote is pending, the DEP does have the authority under the statutes to force action, as it did in Coventry when voters repeatedly refused to build a sewage disposal plant.

Bolton selectmen consider Notch park liquor ban

By Kevin Flood Herald Reporter BOLTON — The Board of Selectmen Tuesday evening discussed a proposed ordinance banning alcoholic beverages from Indian Notch Park, addressed complaints from residents living along Bolton Lake that the water level is too low, and refused requests from town lifeguards for additional pay.

THE SELECTMEN unanimously turned down a request from three town lifeguards who had asked that they be paid on days when Indian Notch Park is closed due to rain and they cannot work.

"IT'S NEVER FLOWN because of the various special interests," he said. Players in town softball leagues complain they want to be able to drink beer in the park following the games and other residents complain that they would have to secure a special permit from the town to hold a picnic in the park, he said.

"Lakeside property owners are assessed at a higher rate than similar property owners elsewhere and their opinions should be respected," wrote Paul C. Barron of Vernon Road, urging that the level be raised.

Downtown involvement is stressed

Showing a slide presentation prepared by the National Trust for Historic Preservation, Pellegri said that the Main Street merchants could improve their image with proper use of four basic concepts: organization, promotion, economic restructuring and design.

Promotional devices which could be used, he said, include a downtown directory, logo, a newsletter, sidewalk sales, a farmer's market, and food and craft fairs.

Pellegri began by showing slides of dramatic design changes to storefronts in three Midwestern towns and followed with slides of Manchester's Main Street. He graphically pointed out good and bad examples of design changes to downtown businesses.

Bruce Hurst is rocked again as Tigers overcome Red Sox

By Fred McMane United Press International

Lance Parrish treats Bruce Hurst the way the Sioux treated Custer. Parrish absolutely destroys Hurst, so it came as a bit of a surprise Tuesday night when Boston Red Sox manager John McNamara left Hurst in to pitch to the Detroit Tigers' slugging catcher with the bases loaded.

Elsewhere in the league, New York topped Baltimore 6-4, Milwaukee beat Toronto 4-1, Kansas City routed Minnesota 10-1, California trimmed Cleveland 7-5, Texas defeated Seattle 8-5 and Chicago edged Oakland 4-3 in 13 innings.

BALTIMORE — Orioles manager Earl Weaver concedes that New York Yankee base stealer Rickey Henderson makes things happen even before he gets on base.

At Cleveland, Reggie Jackson's two-run homer and RBI single paced a 20-hit attack that helped the Angels defeat the Indians 7-1. Jackson's homer was the 512th of his career, putting him in a tie with Ernie Banks and Eddie Mathews for 11th place on the all-time list.

Tigers' second baseman Lou Whitaker goes up and over Red Sox' Wade Boggs to watch the successful completion of a double-play in the fourth inning Tuesday at Detroit. The Tigers came from behind to win, 9-8.

Like namesake, this eatery delivers

Lois Calase, Margaret Gibson, Betty Peracchio and Nancy Pappas dine frequently at restaurants in Manchester and Williamstown. They particularly enjoy exploring new spots.

Last week the four discovered the new Higgins Highway restaurant, formerly Kelly's Keg on Route 31 in Mansfield. The restaurant opened nine weeks ago, and is named for an obstetrician, William Higgins, who delivered babies in Coventry and Mansfield from 1890 until 1920.

"It's great, we're getting all kinds of people in here who were delivered by Dr. Higgins way back when they're in their 70s now," said Dolly Langley, the chef, who used to cook at Cavey's Restaurant.

Today's Special
Nancy Pappas

Calase and Gibson tried the filet of sole Francaise at Higgins Highway last week, and were impressed with the dish's simplicity. Here is the recipe:

Salt and pepper to taste
Flour as needed
2 eggs, beaten well
4 tablespoons butter (not margarine)
2 tablespoons dry white wine
Juice of 1/4 lemon
1 to 2 tablespoons fresh parsley, minced

Salt and pepper the fish, then dredge in unseasoned flour. Take the floured fish and dip gently into the beaten egg.

Meanwhile, heat a large skillet until it is hot. Add 2 tablespoons of the butter and allow it to bubble. Immediately add the fish, dark side down. When it is cooked through (this takes just a few minutes) carefully flip it over. A novice may need two spatulas to accomplish this without breaking apart the flesh of the fish.

Cook fish on the other side and remove to a serving dish. Add wine, lemon juice and parsley.

Cook briefly. Add remaining butter, small pieces at a time, stirring constantly with a wire whisk. When the sauce looks smooth, pour it over the fish.

The restaurant says that this quantity will serve one diner, but at home it would be adequate for two people.

To have your favorite restaurant dish included in this weekly column, simply write a note telling us the name of your favorite dish at a local restaurant. We'll contact the chef and ask for the recipe. Include your name, address and a phone number where you can be reached during the day. (Phone number will not be published.) The Cape Cod & Hyannis Railroad, which operates daily passenger train service between Greater Boston and the Cape and Islands, offers a full range of food services — highlighted by Saturday dinner and Sunday brunch served in luxurious Parlor Car surroundings.

According to Phil Pappas, director of food and beverage services for the railroad, "Our special meal trains really provide our passengers with a unique dining experience. First of all, dinner and brunch are served in the 'Nobeka' Parlor Car, our exquisitely restored 1912 Pullman Car, an extremely elegant setting with stained glass windows and rich mahogany tables... or in our 1925 'Presidential' Parlor Car, refurbished with comfortable armchairs and large observation windows. Then, while passengers are enjoying their meals, they are also touring the countryside and enjoying the beautiful and constantly changing view.

"And most importantly, our caterers — Dubois and Thurston of Hyannis — prepare delicious, sumptuous meals which we feel can satisfy the most discriminating palates."

specialties such as Marzipan pastries.

"Passengers on the Dinner Train can also purchase cocktails and wine," Mr. Pappas commented. "We have a fully stocked Tavern Car, including a group of wines chosen to complement the meals. We have a house wine, of course, plus Blue Nun Liebfraumilch, Bolla Valpolicella, Mouton Cadet, Partigier — Red or White, and Korbel Champagne. Alcoholic beverages and gratuity are not included in the adult fare of $19.95. But everything else is — including complete Parlor Car dinner, tax, and Passenger Coach return ride."

Passengers should reserve seats on the Dinner Train by noon on Saturday. Reservations may be made by calling (617) 771-1145.

"SUNDAY BRUNCH aboard the train is a truly lavish and elegant affair," Mr. Pappas commented. "Dubois and Thurston offer themselves to create a meal that provides something to please everyone. Our brunch consists of Fresh Fruit Cup, Spinach Salad, Crepes a la Reine and Quiche of the Day — plus home fries, bacon and sausage, fresh, homemade muffins and juice, coffee or tea. This guy's lunch fit for a bunch

By Adele Angle

Nancy H. Nye of 36-C St. James St. likes to pack her husband a lunch fit for a king.

Charles Nye, who works at Pratt & Whitney, often carries two or three Tupperware containers of meat, vegetables and potato — and a man's heart is through his stomach.

"I've always felt the way to a man's heart is through his stomach," she says.

She serves her husband a full dinner at noon and then sends him off to his second shift job at Pratt with a king-size lunch.

A "typical" brown bag lunch might be baked pork chops, scalloped potatoes and fresh corn on the cob.

Her children recently gave her a small microwave oven which has proven a great help. She often uses it to reheat meals when her teenagers arrive home. She also has used the oven to bake the season's first corn.

"I've always felt the way to a man's heart is through his stomach," she says.

But she still sends him off to work at least two days a week with portions of the following family favorites.

Baked pork chops
8 center-cut pork chops
1 (1 1/2-ounce) package onion soup mix
2 1/2-ounce cans dried mushrooms
1 1/2-ounce can cream of mushroom soup
Garlic powder
Salt and pepper
1 can water
Brown chops. Add remaining ingredients. Cover with tin foil. Bake in 350 oven for one and a half to two hours.

Stove-top zucchini
6 medium zucchini
Garlic powder
Vegetable oil
Slice zucchini thinly. Sprinkle with garlic powder. Brown in oil. Cover. Steam until tender, about 20 minutes.

Fast apple-cripp
2 12-ounce cans fruit pie filling
1 gold cake mix
1/4 sticks margarine
Place pie filling in oblong glass pan. Sprinkle unbaked cake mix on top. Melt margarine and drizzle on top. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Serves six to eight.

Diet and training hold key to stamina of a racehorse

By Elizabeth Pennell
United Press International

NEW YORK — More than a jockey's name and a racehorse's spirit should guide one's choice at the betting window, Researchers say what that potential winner eats plus exercise will determine whether he makes it down the final stretch first.

"You can change the muscle composition both with training and with diet," said Gary Potter, professor of animal science and horse program leader at Texas A & M University in College Station.

"If the energy content of the muscle is radically changed, then so is muscle performance."

Genetics determines the speed at which a horse can run, said Potter, but endurance varies according to the amount of energy stored in muscles. That energy is tucked away in tissue as glycogen, a carbohydrate.

"When the energy level is too low, it seriously impairs that horse's capabilities," Potter said. The horse may run fine at the beginning of the race but then poeters out. The level of stored glycogen determines when they run out of gas.

In laboratory tests on more than 25 horses, Potter has demonstrated that diets low in carbohydrates can decrease those storage levels by two-thirds. When fed hay supplemented with corn oil (a source of fat for energy) and a protein supplement, the horses tired easily in treadmill tests.

"It really knocked the bottom out of them," he said.

But meals rich in corn, which is packed with carbohydrates, restored normal stored-energy levels and even made them a third stronger than usual.

With the muscles overloaded with glycogen, the horses were able to perform as well or better as before, he said. When it comes to fodder, many trainers could do more to keep that muscle in peak condition.

"The energy density of the diet needs to be higher than commonly practiced," said Potter. Also, most racehorse diets would benefit from increased B vitamins, which are necessary for converting foods into energy.

"We know how to do it experimentally, but we don't yet know about doing it on the racetrack," he said.

What the ideal diet for racehorses should be is still not clear, said Potter. The digestive systems of horses are much more sensitive than those of people, so that trainers must be careful about altering their animals' foods. But meals rich in high-quality hay are bound to help, since that plus exercise can build up energy stores in muscles crucial for keeping ahead even at the race's end.

Next Potter said he hopes to try out some of his ideas about nutrition on some racehorses actually in training.

Supermarket Shopper

Some stores have handicapped in mind

By Martin Sloane
United Feature Syndicate

DEAR MARTIN: I read with interest your recent column, which mentioned special shopping carts for persons with disabilities. Could you possibly give me the address of the company that makes these carts? I would like to convince supermarkets in Iowa to list the good example of Safeway. — The Rev. David Johnson, Des Moines, Iowa.

DEAR DAVID: I know of two companies that manufacture specialized in-store vehicles that allow a person to sit while shopping.

American Distributing Co. in Garland, Texas, makes "Sit & Shop," which places a good-sized basket out in front of a specially modified wheelchair. Rev. Davis, president of American Distributing, says that as many as a percent of the people visiting supermarkets could make good use of them.

Sage Industries of Rogers, Ark., manufactures "Mart Cart," which it calls the world's first all-electric shopping cart. Klein's Supermarket in Tomball, Texas, has been using the Mart Cart, and general manager Robert Klein says, "I bought the cart to allow shoppers who may not be able to get around the store by themselves to do their own shopping." Both companies say the carts quickly pay back the supermarket's investment through increased sales.

DEAR MARTIN: In your column you asked how readers used their coupon savings. When our 25th wedding anniversary was approaching, I wanted to get my husband something special, do not work outside our home, so I decided to use my "found money" (that's what I call my coupon savings) to buy my husband a gift. I wanted the gift to be of lasting value, so I decided on a gold piece. He was delighted, and so was I.

My coupon savings turned out to be as good as gold! — Harry Wooten, Sanford, Fla.

14-mile hike is mere stroll for kids from the country

DEAR ABBY: I thought that surely the school bus case was closed, but now I feel compelled to respond to "Saddened" as a "Psychologist."

Dear Abby Abigail Van Buren

their kids to the YMCA so they can get some exercise. JERRY E. IN WEST BEND, WIS.

DEAR JERRY: Here's another letter from a kid who walked:

DEAR ABBY: I thought you might want to hear from someone on the side of the parents who made their kids walk to school.

I lived a mile from school. My mother drove, but she didn't drive me. She insisted that I walk. My friends' mothers drove them and I thought my mother was being mean by making me walk, so I asked her why she didn't drive me to school. She put her arms around me and said, "If I drive you, how will you learn, and have time to think? Walk and learn, dear."

Well, I walked, and learned to love the smell of rain in the air and the feel of it on my face. I learned the feeling of snow crunching under my feet. I did a lot of thinking while I walked. It helped me to think things out instead of making quick decisions. I also met some nice people on the way. The lady who gave me a flower for my mother from her garden, the old man who was always waiting by his mailbox for a letter or a card from his children. (None came, but cards for every special occasion did come from me.)

I am 17 now, and I still walk whenever I can because I enjoy it. My mother was right. I learned a lot by walking.

Jazz, folk festivals return

By Ken Franckling United Press International NEWPORT, R.I. — Singer Sarah Vaughan, trumpeter Wynton Marsalis and Freddie Hubbard and pianist McCoy Tyner will headline this year's reincarnation of the Newport Jazz Festival, producer George Wein says.

The JVC Jazz Festival-Newport, scheduled Aug. 17 and 18 at Fort Adams State Park, will follow by two weeks the revival of Wein's old Newport Folk Festival, which was last held in the resort in 1980.

"It feels like old times, having both the Newport Folk and Jazz Festivals back once again," Wein said at a news conference Tuesday. "One of the greatest thrills in my entire life was the Newport Folk Festival, and to start it once again is a dream come true."

Veterans returning for the Folk Festival include the folk vocal group Sweet Honey in the Rock. Peter Brown, David Malliet, David Massey, the New Grass Revival, Bill Morrissey, Greg Brown, Mimi Fariña, and country-bluegrass players Bill Keith, Mark O'Connor and Jim Rooney.

This year's folk festival is patterned after Newport events of the 1960s that were a career launching pad for Collins, Guthrie, Bess and others. Newport also plugged his guitar into a wall in 1965.

The Newport Folk Festivals were held from 1963 through 1980. The 1970 event was canceled because of rowdiness at the 1969 jazz festival. The 1971 folk festival was canceled on short notice when another riot prematurely ended the jazz festival and sent it packing to New York City.

The jazz festival will run from noon to 6:30 p.m. on Aug. 3 and 4. Tickets are $15.50 in advance, $18 at the gate.

The jazz festival will run from noon to 6 p.m. on Aug. 17 and 18, with tickets listed at $19 in advance, $22 at the gate.

Athlete's foot can be outrun

DEAR DR. GOTT: How can one get rid of persistent athlete's foot?

Dr. Gott Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR READER: Athlete's foot is a fungus infection of the skin between the toes.

These areas provide ideal growth conditions for yeasts because the skin is warm, moist and dark.

To eliminate athlete's foot, you must first clean the skin between your toes on a regular basis and then make absolutely sure the area is dry. The next step is to use one of the over-the-counter athlete's foot preparations, the advertisements for which seem to sprout like mold from magazine ads and TV screens.

If these simple remedies don't work, try Thioconazole, an oral and topical antifungal agent that kills fungus. In the event your athlete's foot persists, you may have to see a doctor for further advice and, perhaps, a prescription for stronger medicine.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My skin is super-sensitive, very dry and itchy. The problem is mainly on the inside of my elbows and neck. What could cause this?

DEAR READER: That depends on where the yeast infection occurs. Simple over-the-counter preparations may work well when applied to small areas of infection. However, if your yeast problem is more severe - or if it causes mouth infection or vaginal irritation, you will need to see a doctor. You may need to be checked for diabetes, low weight or undergo a simple gynecological examination.

If your doctor has checked you and cannot find a reason for your yeast infection, it may be due to a condition called eczema. Eczema is a skin condition that causes red, itchy, inflamed patches on the skin. It is a chronic, relapsing condition and is not life-threatening.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

DEAR POLLY: Why are my fresh bantam eggs hard to peel for boiled or de-fried eggs? Also, how long will eggs keep in the refrigerator? — K.E.N.

Pointers Polly Fisher

DEAR K.E.N.: Very fresh eggs are always hard to peel when they've been hard-cooked. Since yours are obviously about as fresh as can be, I'd refrigerate them for at least four to five days before boiling them.

You should be able to store your eggs for about three weeks in the refrigerator. To determine whether the eggs in past their prime and should be discarded, cover the egg with cold water. If it floats, toss it out. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY: I've found many uses for the 4-quart plastic ice cream pails. One use is in my daughter's playpen. She has so many small toys. The pails filled with toys keep the playpen neat and she loves to empty them and use them as drums. You can easily remove the handles so there's nothing to harm the child.

Another use is as a closthepin holder. If you set it on the ground, you'll have to bend down to get the pins, but just thinking of what the exercise you will do for you! — ANN

Whistler's father remains mystery

By Ken Franckling United Press International STONINGTON — When James Abbott McNeill Whistler committed his mother to an insane asylum, as "Whistler's father" people ask, as if the artist didn't have one.

"Maj. George Washington Whistler may have been lost to history by the brush strokes of his son, but in his day he was a respected and famous railroad pioneer.

In this old nautical town, where the family lived from 1837 to 1840 — and where Whistler's father is buried, historians find one of Whistler's more illustrious citizens has been slighted.

"He was a much more respected man in his time than Whistler the painter was in his time. Whistler the painter was thought to be pompous," said Louise Pittaway, curator of the Stonington Historical Society's Old Light House Museum.

The elder Whistler was an 1810 graduate of West Point, where he was trained as a civil engineer. In those days, with no warfare to tie up the brains, the Army's engineers were lent out for all sorts of projects — including railroad construction.

In 1858, HE HELPED lay the first miles of track of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, engineering completion of the first passenger rail service in the country.

"His fame as an engineer was so great that in the early 1840s, Whistler was invited by Czar Nicholas I to be consulting engineer on the great road of steel the emperor wanted built over 400 miles between Moscow and St. Petersburg.

FARMINGTON (UPI) - University of Connecticut officials say they are disappointed a sudden illness will prevent Nobel laureate Mother Teresa from receiving an honorary degree from the school today.

Salvadorans kill six American citizens

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Leftist guerrillas sprayed automatic rifle fire across a block of cafes Wednesday, killing four U.S. Marines, two American civilians and seven other people, officials said. Twelve civilians were injured.

American Marines Tom Handworn, Gregory Webber, Patrick Kwajaski and Bobbie Joe Dickson were killed when the terrorists opened fire. The Justice Ministry told UPI. The men's hometowns, ages and military ranks were not released.

Two customer service representatives for Wang Laboratories were also killed in the shooting, company officials in Lowell, Mass., confirmed today. Robert Alvarez, 47, of Lexington, Mass., was based in the firm's headquarters, said Myra Barradas, a spokeswoman for the computer manufacturer.

Alvarez, the father of three children, ages 11, 12, and 20, had been in El Salvador for two days and was expected back Wednesday or Thursday of next week, said his wife, Sheri, reached at their Lexington home. He had never been to El Salvador before, she said.

The other employee, George Viney, was based in Coral Gables, Fla., said Barradas.

State Department spokeswoman Vivienne Ascher said the Marines were off duty guards at the U.S. Embassy.

Six other civilians, a Guatemalan, a Chilean and four Salvadorans, were also killed in the attack, along with one Salvadoran soldier, the military said.

A Salvadoran military spokesman said an undetermined number of guerrillas pulled up in two trucks in the posh Zona Rosa sector of San Salvador and opened fire indiscriminately on a row of cafes, killing 13 people.

He said 12 people were injured in the attack, all Salvadoran civilians. They were rushed to a downtown emergency clinic.

An U.S. embassy spokesman called the group a unit of leftist rebels "dressed up as members of the armed forces."

"In our judgement it is not clear whether the guerrillas specifically intended to kill the Marines or if the Marines just happened to be in the place the guerrillas decided to attack," he said.

The president of the Salvadoran Supreme Court, Francisco Jose Guerrero, visited the site of the killings and described it as a "massacre."

"Terrorists do not respect human rights," he said.

The killings of the Marines were the first of U.S. military personnel in El Salvador since May 25, 1983, when the deputy commander of the U.S. military group, Navy Lt. Cmdr. Albert A. Schaufelberger, was shot by left-wing guerrillas.

According to the U.S. Embassy, Schaufelberger, 32, had been sitting in his car parked outside the University of Central America in San Salvador, waiting for a friend when two men shot him four times in the head.

Leftist Popular Liberation Forces, fighting the U.S.-backed government, later claimed responsibility for the killing.

The U.S. Embassy has since changed the patterns of living for U.S. military personnel, including the times that U.S. military personnel can visit a popular sporting club.

Bailey reopens town court case

By Kevin Flood
Herald Reporter

Hartford State's Attorney John Bailey has reopened a criminal investigation into the apparent embezzlement of more than $11,413 at Manchester Superior Court.

Bailey said this morning he reopened the investigation because his office has uncovered new evidence in the case. He made the disclosure as state auditors released a report on the suspected embezzlement and suggestions on how to prevent future thefts.

"We have some new information," said Bailey.

But Bailey declined to elaborate and refused to disclose whether investigators have gathered enough evidence to identify a suspect in the case. He also refused to say how many investigators have been assigned to the case since it was reopened two weeks ago.

Bailey's office began investigating the court on West Center Street in 1983, after court officials discovered that fines from traffic tickets had been collected in the clerk's office but not deposited in the state treasury. Bailey closed the investigation in January, saying investigators could not collect enough evidence to identify a suspect.

State auditors Henry J. Becker Jr. and Leo V. Donohue reported last month that they believed more than $11,413 had been embezzled from the court in 1983 and 1984, raising an earlier estimate of the missing funds sevenfold.

Today, a month after reporting the $11,413 figure, the state auditors released a full audit of the court that included recommendations on how to prevent future thefts. The report also said the auditors had been unable to locate several thousand dollars seized in criminal cases.

In a related development, Judge Aaron Ment, the chief administrator of the state Superior Court system, told the Herald he might seek the return of about $4,000 seized in criminal cases and given to police and a charitable organization. Some $1,300 of that money went to the Manchester Police Department. (See story on page 10.)

As the auditors released their report, Ment's office reported that court officials had acted on three of the auditors' four recommendations by the time they received the report. Ment's office said the court officials acted on the fourth suggestion within 24 hours of receiving the report several days ago.

The audit came after state prosecutors discovered irregularities in parking tickets handled by the court in 1983.

The auditors found that some court records for 188 traffic tickets handled between September 1983 and July 1984 indicated that the cases had been dismissed, while other records indicated that those charged with the infractions had pleaded guilty and had paid fines.

Several judges discovered that their signatures were on court records, indicating the charges had been dismissed, according to the auditors. In the report released today, which was submitted June 13, the auditors recommended two corrective measures directly related to the collection of fines.

They are:

- That the state Judicial Department establish a central control system to keep better track of the temporary receipts court clerks often give to motorists when they pay their fines. All of the motorists who paid the missing fines were given the temporary receipts, the auditors said.
- The transportation, food and beverage, and apparel and upkeep portions of the index all registered declines in May, the bureau said.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that for the first five months of 1985 prices rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.9 percent, about the same as for all of 1984.

The bureau said food and beverage prices dropped 0.1 percent, apparel and upkeep 0.1 percent and transportation 0.2 percent. Gasoline prices continued to increase, but by only 0.3 percent in May as compared to increases of 1.6 percent in March and 3.1 percent in April. Grocery food prices dropped for the third straight month, down 0.4 percent.

Coach Mike Saimond, left, bandages Ron Cournoyer's leg during a first-aid training course Wednesday in the Manchester High School gymnasium. School coaches splint one another

By Susan Vaughn
Herald Reporter

More than 20 coaches from Manchester schools splinted, bandaged and practiced other first-aid techniques on each other for 7 1/2 hours Wednesday in the Manchester High School gymnasium.

The marathon, multi-media first aid course was held to bring the coaches in compliance with a new state law requiring all coaches to receive first-aid training before school resumes in September.

Athletic officials and coaches interviewed while the Red Cross course was in session agreed that the first-aid requirement for coaches was a good idea. But they said the time constraint was difficult to meet.

As a result, in Manchester only the coaches for fall sports received first-aid training Wednesday. The rest will take the course at the beginning of the school year, said Daleyne Siwik, MHS athletic trainer.

The law requiring coaches to have first-aid training was passed by the state Legislature this year.

Mike Simmons, the new athletic director at MHS, who took the course Wednesday, said he thought the first-aid law was an "excellent idea."

"You never know when something is going to occur," he said.

There are often incidents of choking and other non-athletic emergencies in the schools, he said.

Even though most of the coaches have had some first-aid training, the course will serve as a refresher, Simmons said.

Most coaches in the school will be required to take the course unless they have received a first-aid certificate within the past year, Simmons said.

Physical education instructor Mary Fagnant also approved of the new law. She said there are many times when coaches have to give first aid, particularly when they are away from the school and the trainer is not available.

Fagnant said she could recall several instances in which she was the only coach at an event and had to travel to the hospital with an injured student.

The types of injuries that occur most often during school athletic competitions are broken bones, dislocations and sprains, she said.

Retiring Athletic Director Dick Cobb said as he walked out of the school Wednesday that the high school has never offered a complete first-aid course for coaches before and that he thought it was a good idea.

"I wish they had included CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) too," Cobb said.

Hijackers, not Berri, guard hostages

By Diono Sood
United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Muslim gunmen who hijacked a TWA jet last week acted "in a noble cause" and are still guarding remaining American hostages, an aide to the Muslim leader negotiating for the hijackers said today.

The statement by Col. Akef Haidar, a leader in Nabih Berri's Amal militia, came as final preparations were made at Arlington National Cemetery outside Washington for today's funeral of a Navy diver slain by the hijackers.

Haidar, a member of the Shiite Muslim militia's politburo, told western reporters in Beirut there had been no progress in negotiations for the release of the hostages.

The hijackers and Berri — who has taken personal responsibility for the remaining hostages since they were moved from the plane to undisclosed locations in Beirut Monday — have demanded release of 786 Lebanese Muslims held in Israeli jails.

Haidar said today Amal had no direct control over the hijackers "but we trust the hijackers and we have their word the hostages will be treated as human beings."

"They are doing something for a noble cause," he said of the gunmen.

Berri has said he had control of the hostages and personally supervised their care, but Haidar said Berri's English is poor and he may have been misunderstood.

"We don't have the military control... but we have the chance to see the hostages and we have a lot of our brothers who go to see them," Haidar said.

Asked if any of the hijackers were members of Amal, Lebanon's most powerful but most divided militia, the colonel replied:

"I don't think so. They are fighters. They might be anyone. They are Shiites first of all. We are backing their cause."

Berri, interviewed today on NBC's "Today" show, blamed the United States for the deadlock in negotiations.

"I don't have good help from the American government and I don't see any advance," Berri said.

When told President Reagan would hold him personally responsible for the hostages, Berri said: "I accept it — the responsibility — of course (I guarantee the hostages' safety) as long as I am the mediator."

"When I see I cannot do anything, I will study again my position or I will continue or I will give up," he said.

Aides to Berri said negotiations are in progress.

Diplomatic sources in Beirut said Algerian Ambassador Abdelkrim Gharib was seeking a face-saving deal in which the Americans would be freed in return for a "binding pledge" by Israel to free its Shiite prisoners.

In Jerusalem, Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin told the United States to "make up its mind" whether it wants to formally ask Israel to release the Shiites from Jails near the Israeli port of Haifa.

Reagan — citing the U.S. policy against dealing with terrorists — has not asked Israel to release the Shiites it rounded up during its occupation of southern Lebanon.
