How to sift through data

New technology changes phone service

Since the breakup of American Telephone & Telegraph - what increasingly appears to have been a stupid move on the part of uniformed managers - you and I have been deluged with a bewildering array of information on telephones, their functions and features. This has merely complicated the buying process.

In the first days of deregulation, the market was swamped with cheap "disposable" phones. I saw them being hawked on sidewalks in Manhattan. If you bought them and watched them break down almost immediately, you tossed them away in disgust and disillusionment.

Now, when we buy phones, we're returning to brand names we trust and products backed by longer warranties. And no longer satisfied with the bare basic models, we're looking for convenience features such as memory, automatic redial and lighted keypads.

"With microelectronics, manufacturers can incorporate more 'phone' into smaller packages," explains William G. Smith, general marketing manager for General Electric Consumer Electronics. "For instance, automatic redial of busy numbers and speakerphone capability, once found only on high-priced office phone systems, are now available in medium-priced electronic home phones. Popular features today - some of which save money and/or are extremely helpful - include:

- Answering machines: This reflects our changing lifestyles - particularly dual-career households and households headed by single persons. Says Smith, "Consumers are looking for products that simplify their lives, and answering machines help do that."
- Machines that act as personal secretaries while the owner is away and phones that remember numbers also are valuable.

- Phones with a switch to select touch tone, pulse dialing or any combination of the two for access to long-distance services. Phones with these features cost between $60 and $65 - but with the savings on the leasing and touch-tone charges, in addition to discounted long-distance service, the extra charges can be more than made up in two to three months' use.
- Voice-activated answering machines, meaning machines that record as long as someone is talking. No more cutoff messages. Remote control is a benefit to you if you want to get your messages periodically without having to return home. Some use hand-held remote controllers to operate the machine, while others need only a touch-tone phone. This is claimed to be another reason for the pulse/tone switchable model.

Whether you're buying a telephone or an answering machine, you still need to install it. This means that whatever you buy must be compatible with your phone lines. If, for instance, touch-tone service is not available where you live, you shouldn't buy a touch-tone phone. But if your home is equipped with modular jacks, installation is an easy matter. Plugging in a lamp. If, though, you have an older home, you may need extra wiring.

Some of the suppliers of service try to make it sound, it just is not that easy. (I'm admittedly a dolt in this area, but I suspect millions of you are right in there with me.) Help with installation of phones would be essential for me. Also imperative would be any diagrams of types of telephone outlets found in any home with corresponding diagrams and descriptions of modular jacks needed to install today's new phones.

A telephone consumer guide that simplifies phone installation has been prepared by the National Telephone Association, 1000 N. York St., Syracuse, N.Y. 13221. It will tell you how to do it - but it will take it easier for you to do so.

Heating oil price drops

HARTFORD - State officials say home heating oil prices in Connecticut dropped in June as demand for the fuel lessened and suppliers anticipated lower worldwide oil prices.

The average price of heating oil was down 5.5 cents a gallon on the wholesale level in June and 3.3 cents a gallon on the retail level, a survey by the state Energy Division showed. The state survey found an average retail price of $1.94 per gallon as of July 1, down from $1.97 of the previous month and $1.91 on July 1, 1984, the Energy Division said.

Bradford S. Chase, under secretary of the Office of Policy and Management in charge of the Energy Division, said heating oil prices tend to fall in June because the heating season is over and demand for oil is less.

Troubles brewing at GE

BOSTON - A strike by General Electric Co. employees is a very real possibility, a union official said as workers prepared to vote today on a proposed new three-year contract.

About 12,000 unskilled workers at the company's plants in Lynn and Pittsfield were to join some 55,000 General Electric employees nationwide voting on the proposed contract.

The leadership of Local 201 of the International Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers union, which represents about 8,500 workers at the Lynn plant, Monday voted unanimously to recommend rejection of the proposed contract.

In Pittsfield, the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union board narrowly voted 22-19 in favor of the contract.

Changes in the present wage structure, health care costs and a three percent wage bonus have drawn opposition, officials said.

Ridson gets Eylet Specialty

NAUGATUCK - Ridson Corp. says it has signed an agreement to acquire the financially troubled Eylet Specialty Co. for $12 million in cash and assumed liabilities.

The acquisition includes Eylet Specialty's 400,000 square foot manufacturing facility in Wallingford as well as its United Tool Co. subsidiary in Bridgeport and interests in three international operations.

The acquisition of the financially troubled firm is the largest in the history of Ridson, a Naugatuck-based subsidiary of Metal Box America Inc. of Westport, the company said Monday.

Eylet Specialty was founded 62 years ago and from 1958 to 1973 was owned by International Silver Co. It is currently a subsidiary of Kingston Tool Co. of Mansfield, Mass.

Ridson manufactures packages for cosmetics and toiletries, specialty packaging and deep-draw metal parts.

Dollar drops, gold mixed

LONDON - The dollar nosedived again at the opening of money markets in Europe today, hitting its lowest rates for months. Gold was mixed.

Dealers said the greenback was being marked further down following a fall in New York.

The dollar opened in Frankfurt at 2.9785 marks against 3.0000 and in Zurich at 2.5015 Swiss francs against 2.5223. The U.S. unit opened in London at 1.3445 to the pound against 1.3362 and in Paris at 9.08 francs against 9.1825.

In Milan the dollar began trading at 1,905.75 lire against 1,919.10.

Engineer spends his days creating computer clones

By William H. Inmon

United Press International

DALLAS - Allen Cwagenberg builds clones - intelligent, microchip-laden thinking machines - but he's no mad scientist, and he has no medical pretensions.

Cwagenberg is an electronics engineer. The clones he builds are high-powered computers, the latest generation of lookalikes mimicking the power, durability and appearance of Big Blue, giant IBM, but at a third of a half of the price.

His laboratory is an unobtrusive two-room niche in a quiet suburban shopping center. Business comes mostly from mailouts, direct advertising. "We get orders from as far away as Hawaii and Florida," says the soft-spoken owner of Lolir Electronics.

Cwagenberg is a survivor, both a victim and beneficiary of the massive shakeout which has convulsed the personal computer industry in recent years, leaving only IBM and a few others towering above the rubble.

He came to Texas from the Great Lakes region and was co-partner in a large manufacturing company which made power supplies for computers. But the shakeout left clients scarce and money tight.

"It was a real bad time," he said. "We discovered there were lots of supplies out there. There were companies going out of business, reducing supplies, and lots of brokers who handled the surplus."

"It was what we call the gray market," he said. "We discovered there were lots of supplies out there. There were companies going out of business, reducing supplies, and lots of brokers who handled the surplus."

At 37, Cwagenberg bailed out. He opted to take advantage of the Internetic destruction, the graveyard of parts left by now-defunct firms or firms ridding themselves of surplus.

"It occurred to me that there was a lot of real good material on the market at super prices. High-tech brokers bought up many of these parts - modems, mice, macro and micro items - and offered them to wildcatters like Cwagenberg at bargain prices."

"People wanted this part, they wanted that part. Soon we knew we had enough parts to build a professional system so they can do business at home."

Cwagenberg stocked up on parts for the PC XT, a system fashioned around a 10 MB hard-disk, floppy disks and a controlling 8088 microprocessor.

Panel is hard to find

By Kathy Gormus, Assistant City Editor

Summer vacations and work schedules have taken their toll on the mayor's plans to form a citizens' committee to help sell voters on a sewer-plant project that will be on the ballot Nov. 5.

Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg said Tuesday that she has received commitments from only three people to serve on the committee. She declined to name the three.

At least two others declined to serve because of busy schedules, she said. Weinberg said the biggest obstacle to finding committee members has been trying to reach people.

Weinberg said she had hoped to have the committee ready two weeks ago, but that it will be three to four weeks before the group can be presented to the Board of Directors. The committee should have between seven and 15 people, she said.

"Because of time, you don't want a whole lot of people," she said.

Town officials are pushing for quick approval of the project before the federal grant program for sewer-plant work is replaced by a low-interest loan program. The town was informed earlier this year that the project's priority ranking with the state had moved from tenth to third. Only projects in Gorton and Windham have greater priority with the state.

Weinberg said the committee's main job would be to study the existing sewage treatment plant "and really to help sell the new system."

In 1983, voters rejected a $20 million bond issue to pay for improvements to the sewer plant, which is located off Olcott Street.

When she first proposed appointment of a citizen's committee in May, Weinberg said the group would look over plans for the sewage plant improvements to determine if they were still appropriate in light of possible new developments such as a major mall in Buckland.

However, Weinberg said on Tuesday that because the plans for improvements to the plant have already received state and federal approval, the citizens' committee could not recommend changes to them.

Weinberg said the committee is important to the town's efforts to improve its sewage treatment plant because the average person does not have time to study the plans for improvements of the limits of the old system.

Town General Manager Robert B. Weiss said last month that if the plan is not expanded, the town might not be able to accept more sewage in four or five years.

The proposed improvements to the plant would increase its average daily capacity by 1.5 million gallons.

India starts probe

CORK, Ireland (UPI) - Investigators searching the ocean floor today recovered the voice recorder they hope will help determine whether a bomb caused the Air-India crash that killed 329 people last month, Indian officials said.

The Indian investigating team in Cork said searchers, using a robot submarine operated from the French vessel Leon Thevenin, found and recovered the recorder at a depth of 6,500 feet.

The Indian navy official on board confirmed, after exchanging detailed identification data with the Indian engineers ashore, that the Scarab robot had the cockpit voice recorder, an Indian statement said.

Irish officials said the cockpit voice recorder was to be sent back to India, where investigators would study it for clues to the cause of the crash because they felt it was too low in public safety areas, Hodge said. The referendum vote Tuesday was 512-186.

The new budget allows for the addition of one new police officer and includes funds to allow the town fire departments to update their equipment. In addition, the superintendent of streets and the human services department will each get one new employee.

The new budget is retroactive until July 1. The town has been operating on last year's surplus, Hodge said. "But we couldn't have had another payroll if the budget had not been approved," he added.

WASHINGTON - House Speaker Thomas O'Neill is throwing more cold water on President Reagan's tax reform plan, but Reagan says the current "turkey" tax code should be cooked by Christmas.

When Reagan said Tuesday he would consider taxing Social Security benefits if the wealthy if Congress would not freeze cost-of-living increases, Senate Republican leader Robert Dole labeled it a "recapture of benefits."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes referred to the plan as "replacement of revenues."

Reagan's promise that a tax increase would happen only "over my dead body" apparently necessitated the euphemisms.

O'Neill had previously predicted that a tax reform measure could pass Congress by the end of next year, but that the bill would have to be more fair to the middle class than the plan written by the White House.

The Democratic-led House has taken the lead on the issue in Congress, with the Republican-dominated Senate Finance Committee following House Ways and Means Committee actions by a week.

Meanwhile, the influential real estate lobby Tuesday stepped up its campaign against Reagan's plan, complaining about a variety of its provisions to the Ways and Means Committee.

Real estate interests have been among the most vocal critics of the plan.

Israeli jets stage raid on guerrillas

By Samia Nakhoul, United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon - Israeli warplanes bombed Palestinian targets near the northern Lebanese city of Tripoli today, a day after two suicide bombers attacked the Israeli security zone in southern Lebanon, security sources said.

One of them served as headquarters for the Abu Musa group while the other was a departure point for attacks.

A third target base 1 mile east of Tripoli was used as a base for the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, the army said. It said the base contained dugouts and bunkers.

The Lebanese sources, possibly referring to the same target, said five jets bombed Beddawi, a refugee camp 1 mile south of Tripoli, where they demolished a PFLP training base.

They said the Israeli warplanes also bombed Nahr Al Bared, a refugee camp 12 miles north of the city, where they struck a gasoline station.

Israel launched its last air hitting in Lebanon on April 17, striking what it said was a headquarters and training base for the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine in the eastern Bekaa valley.

That raid, near the town of Barr Elias, came eight days after a suicide bomber drove a car packed with explosives into a convoy of Israeli trucks in southern Lebanon killing two soldiers and wounding two others.

The woman who conducted that attack, like the drivers in Tuesday's suicide bombings - a member of the Syrian Social Nationalist Party.

Tuesday's suicide bombings - the first in the SLA-patrolled security zone around the Israeli border since Israel withdrew from Lebanon last month - came amid bloody fighting between rival Muslim militiamen in Tripoli.

Security sources said nine more people were killed and 27 wounded today - bringing the three-day toll in the city to 28 dead and 55 wounded.

BUDGET DIRECTOR DAVID STOCKMAN leave his post Aug. 1

Heading for Wall Street

Stockman's exit is no surprise

By Norman D. Sondler United Press International

WASHINGTON — David Stockman, who reaped fame and frustration as the wunderkind of Reaganomics, is making a long-expected exit from government to pursue prestige and six-figure pay among the financial wizards of Wall Street.

Months as a prime candidate to join the staff exodus under way since the start of Reagan's second term. Speculation swirled Tuesday to possible successors, with Reagan expected to look for someone adept at numbers and politics — and less prone to controversy.

Among those rumored to be interested or under consideration were Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, presidential assistant John Svanh and Joseph Wright, Stockman's No. 2 at the Office of Management and Budget.

Stockman will become a managing director of Salomon Brothers. Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., joked that the onetime divinity student and two-term congressman might see his $75,000-a-year salary increase fivefold.

Friends of July 4 drowning victim Angel Santos gather beneath Founders Bridge in East Hartford Tuesday and throw flowers into the Connecticut River, as a tribute to the Manchester youth. Among those who mourned Santos were East Hartford residents John Magnotta and Joelle Jones, left. Scott Sheehan of Manchester, below, scrawled a farewell message to his friend on one of the bridge supports.

Friends hail Santos with music, roses

By Kevin Flood Herald Reporter

EAST HARTFORD — About 30 friends of the late Angel Santos stood beneath Founders Bridge Tuesday, waiting for the Prince song "Purple Rain" to come over a nearby car stereo.

When the first notes of the song finally floated out of the car, the teenagers walked down to the edge of the Connecticut River and threw flowers into the water, near the spot where Santos, 16, drowned on the night of July 4. Santos' funeral had taken place earlier on Tuesday.

On July 4, Santos, who lived on St. James Street, tried to swim out to one of the bridge supports so he could get a better view of the fireworks lighting the sky above the nearby July Fourth River Festival, his friends told police.

But before he and a companion could reach the support, Santos apparently developed cramps. His friend tried to help him, but had to pull away when Santos panicked and tried to pull him down, police said.

Negotiators predict tech-teachers' pact will be approved

By Susan Vaughn Herald Reporter

WETHERSFIELD — Negotiators for Connecticut's vocational-technical-school teachers reached a tentative contract agreement with the state early Tuesday after a 14-hour marathon bargaining session mediated by State Labor Commissioner P. Joseph Peraro.

The agreement, which came after 15 months of stalled contract talks, was announced Tuesday afternoon at a news conference at the Labor Department offices in Wethersfield. It would cover teachers at the state's 17 vocational-technical schools, one of which is Howell Cheney High School in Manchester.

Officials at the news conference refused to reveal the details of the proposed two-year contract because the more than 1,000 union members had not been notified about them. But both union and state officials said they were confident that the contract would be ratified by the union and the state Board of Education.

A union meeting to vote on the contract will be held Monday at the H.C. Wilcox Vocational Technical School in Meriden. An informational session will begin at 5 p.m., followed by balloting from 6:17-30 p.m.

The state Board of Education has called a special meeting for Tuesday at 2:30 p.m. to act on the contract. Board spokeswoman Lisa Heintz said today that while she could not predict how the board would vote, she said the contract would be retroactive to July 1, 1984.

over two years. But the teachers — whose salaries range from about $16,000 to $28,000 — have claimed their salaries are not keeping pace with other public-school teachers, who have averaged 10.2 percent salary increases.

Earlier this year, the tech teachers were seeking 7.5 percent salary increases each year. Bill Seiki, chairman of the union negotiating team, said in a press release: "This round of negotiations we could have gotten as far as we did without the solid support of the membership and I know they will be pleased."

After the press conference, Peraro told the Herald he was able to help the negotiators reach an agreement after reducing the number of outstanding issues to a manageable level during Monday's all-day session. Peraro, who has helped mediate several state contracts, said he offered his assistance to both sides.

Some teachers union leaders said last week that they would strike before going back to school in September without a contract. Letters explaining the contract were mailed to the teachers Tuesday. Cheney Tech teachers and officials could not be reached for comment today.

Today is Wednesday, July 10, the 191st day of 1985 with 174 to follow. The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. Those born on this date are under the sign of Cancer. They include Protestant theologian John Calvin in 1509, American painter James Whistler in 1834, novelist Saul Bellow in 1915 (age 70), TV news anchor and commentator David Brinkley in 1929 (age 65), author Jean Kerr in 1923 (age 62), actor James Brolin in 1942 (age 43), and actress Sue Lyon in 1945 (age 39).

On this date in history: In 1890, Wyoming was admitted to the Union as the 44th state. In 1938, American industrialist Howard Hughes and a crew of four flew around the world in 91 hours. In 1982, the pioneer telecommunications satellite Telstar began relaying television pictures between the United States and Europe.

In 1982, a special United Nations session on disarmament ended without reaching agreement on limiting nuclear arms. A thought for the day: Greek philosopher Plato said, "Democracy is a charming form of government, full of variety and disorder, and dispensing a sort of equality to equals and unequals alike."

More possible victims found

WILSEYVILLE, Calif. — Human bones have been found more than half a mile from the remote cabin site where skeletons of at least nine other people were discovered, the sheriff's office reports.

The latest remains, unearthed by detectives from a shallow grave Monday, were shrouded in clothing and might be those of more than one person, Calaveras County sheriff's Sgt. Jim Stenquist said Tuesday.

Pope assailed back on stand

ROME — Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca clashed for the second day today in a face-to-face confrontation with the Turkish co-defendant he claims gave him $400,000 to kill Pope John Paul II.

Agca and Turkish terrorist Mus Cerdar Celebi accused the court of trying to bring a meeting in Milan in December 1980, five months before Agca wounded the pope in St. Peter's Square.

Agca, one of eight Turks and Bulgarians accused of plotting to kill John Paul on May 13, 1981, maintains that Celebi gave him 1 million German marks worth $400,000 in advance money during the meeting.

Celebi, who Agca says was his contact with Turkish businessman Bekir Coles — the alleged mastermind — denied any part in the plot. He said the men by which in Milan, where Agca introduced himself as a student named Murat.

Nothing Agca says is true, Celebi told the court. "I will prove that I could never have spoken with him in Milan about the assassination attempt because Celebi didn't let me know anything."

U.S. trade deficit to worsen

WASHINGTON — New U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter said today the nation's trade deficit will get worse before it gets better and it is time for tough talk with Japan about opening some of its markets to American imports.

Yeutter said the solution to trade deficits involves getting the federal deficit under control, bringing interest rates down and, "We've got to work on trade barriers too, getting people to open up their markets."

Car bomb kills socialite, son

NAPLES, Fla. — A car bomb explosion in a guarded subdivision killed a wealthy Pennsylvania socialite and her 21-year-old son, seriously injured her daughter-in-law and sent investigators scrambling for a motive.

A Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agent said the Tuesday morning blast was caused by an "explosive device" apparently triggered by the ignition key.

Margaret H. Benson, 53, and her son Scott, both of Lancaster, Pa., were killed in the blast that demolished a four-wheel drive vehicle and rocked neighboring homes in Quail Creek, a guarded subdivision of homes costing $400,000 and more in North Naples.

Carol Kendall Benson, 40, of Boston, was rushed to Naples Community Hospital in serious condition and officials said she would be transferred to a burn center today.

Meese chides justices on church-state

By Andrea Neal
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Edwin Meese says the Supreme Court spends too much time interpreting public policy and too little time interpreting the Constitution as intended by the Framing Fathers.

In remarks Tuesday to the American Bar Association, Meese said the court's 1984-85 term, which ended last week, resulted in inconsistent rulings based on a "mistaken understanding of constitutional theory."

"Far too many of the court's opinions, on the whole, have been more policy choices than articulation of constitutional principles," Meese said. The justices "continued to roam at large in a veritable constitutional forest."

The administration suffered significant defeats in four major church-state cases last term. In each, the justices ruled on the side of those favoring strict separation of government and religion, striking down use of public teachers in parochial schools, a moment of silence for voluntary prayer and a law giving employees an absolute right to take off their Sabbath.

The administration has long criticized activist judges for making law instead of interpreting it and has tried to find judicial candidates who would exercise restraint.

Meese's attack was not the first time an administration official has criticized a court, although it is unusual for the attorney general to take on the nation's highest court.

Meese's predecessor, William French Smith, frequently criticized judicial activism but never specifically singled out the Supreme Court.

"The Establishment Clause of the First Amendment was designed to prohibit Congress from establishing a national church," Meese said. "To argue that the amendment requires a strict neutrality would have struck the Framing Fathers as a bit bizarre."

Meese had especially harsh criticism for a ruling in a San Antonio case in which the court ruled that local government must follow federal labor law in paying mass transit workers the minimum wage and overtime.

The writers of the Constitution, Meese said, had wanted state and local governments to have more autonomy so they could be "a buffer" between the citizens and the federal government.

"Federalism is one of the most basic principles of the Constitution," Meese said. "The current instability of decisions on state rights undermines the stability of state and local governments."

Meese urged the high court to return to what he termed "the jurisprudence of original intention," basing all decisions on what the writers of the Constitution meant when they drafted the document almost 200 years ago.

Such a system of lawmaking, Meese said, "would not be tainted by ideological predilection."

DEDHAM, Mass. (UPI) — Former rock 'n' roll musician Myles J. Connor Jr. pleaded innocent today to charges he jumped bail one day before being acquitted of ordering the slaying of two Boston women.

Norfolk Superior Court Judge Roger J. Donahue ordered Connor, 42, held on $50,000 cash bail in Norfolk County Jail.

Connor was arrested around 11:30 a.m. Monday by police acting on a tip from a neighbor who saw the one-time musician moving furniture from the house. He was found hiding under a shed at his mother's home.

A 14,000-acre brush fire in the Lexington area of Los Gatos, Calif., 50 miles south of San Francisco, forced evacuation of 4,500 residents Tuesday.

Scorching weather offers no relief to firefighters

The West, already ravaged by wildfires that have charred 1 million acres and driven thousands from their homes, is bracing for more of the scorching weather that is fueling the inferno.

In the worst fire season in the memory of many veteran firefighters, savage grass and forest fires continued to crackle across the region Tuesday, and forecasters said the searing temperatures — more than 100 degrees in many states — and absence of rain could last at least another 10 days.

A record 12,900 firefighters — 90 percent of the professionals in the country — were on the lines in the American West on Tuesday, with another 3,000 fighting 550 blazes in British Columbia.

"We are currently coordinating the largest short-time fire suppression effort in the history of firefighting," said Bill Bishop of the Boise Interagency Fire Center, which coordinates manpower for the lower 48 states.

Major fires were raging out of control in California, Oregon, Nevada and British Columbia, and crews were coming in from as far away as New York and Alaska.

Bringing the number of fire-caused declarations to six. The most dangerous fire was burning unchecked near the central California town of Los Gatos, where an 18,000-acre blaze forced evacuation of 4,500 people Tuesday.

Canadian authorities said Tuesday they fear a series of forest fires in the western province could explode without warning into a giant firestorm, trapping 100 people who refused to flee their homes in a logging town.

"We're sitting right on the edge of a firestorm situation," said firefighter Jack Carradice. "If anyone thinks they'll have time to get the hell out of here, if it goes into the firestorm mode, you've got another thing coming."

The province has lost a staggering 370,000 acres of timber since April and the cost of fighting the fires climbed to $1 million a day. The cost of fighting the California fires was estimated at up to $20 million, and that does not include the damage.

Senate vote eases purchase of guns across state lines

By Judi Mason
United Press International

WASHINGTON — In a big defeat for gun control advocates, the Senate has approved a bill that would make it easier to buy a gun across state lines, but opponents say the fight is not over yet.

The Senate, voting 79-15, approved the Firearm Owners Rights Act, which would be the first major change in federal gun laws since 1968 when Congress approved a gun control law after the assassinations of Martin Luther King and Robert Kennedy.

The legislation still faces a tough obstacle course in the House and was unlikely to see any movement out of the House Judiciary Committee, which has been considering a similar proposal for several years.

Gun control proponents vowed a stiff battle against the bill. "Although we lost in the Senate today, the battle is not yet over and we will redouble efforts in the House to make sure this legislation never becomes law," said Charles Orsin, vice president of Handgun Control.

The National Coalition to Ban Handguns was in an angry state Tuesday, but House Judiciary Committee Chairman Henry Hyde said the Senate bowed to pressure from the "big dollar contributions and high-pressure lobbying tactics" of the National Rifle Association.

"It's a day of shame when the NRA's unlimited money speaks louder than the cries of the victims of handgun violence," the coalition said.

But the Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms said the bill would be a "big step" toward easing federal gun control laws also turned back efforts to ban the interstate sale of handguns, a proposal for a 14-day "cooling off" period before a person could purchase a gun and a provision for surprise inspections of gun dealers to make sure they are complying with the law.

Reagan OKs budget compromise

By Iro R. Allen
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has given up his battle to free Social Security cost-of-living increases and accepted a defense spending ceiling for next year.

Reagan's decision to accept a 1986 budget deal would hurt national security, critics say. The deal would cap defense spending at $130 billion, a 10 percent cut from 1985.

The basic outline of a compromise to break a month-long impasse on the fiscal 1986 budget was crafted at a two-hour White House meeting Tuesday among Reagan and three Democratic and two Republican leaders of Congress.

Reagan was to meet today with the House-Senate negotiating team in an effort to win approval of a spending plan that would reduce the $20 billion deficit by more than $50 billion next year.

Although Tuesday's meeting was not conclusive, House Democratic leader Jim Wright said, "We're closer than when we went in, substantially closer because two of the really big stumbling blocks (defense and Social Security) have been removed."

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd said the one thing the Democrats made clear to Reagan was that Social Security would not be touched.

"My clear understanding of the sense of the meeting was that the president and representatives of the Senate agreed that there would be no tampering with Social Security COLAs," Wright said.

"And we agreed on behalf of the House that we would move in a substantial direction toward the Senate figure on budget authority for military and they would embrace our figures on outlays for fiscal 1986," Wright continued.

Senate GOP leader Robert Dole, however, said there was no agreement on Social Security. "I don't think we got a total agreement, we're right where we were before the meeting," Dole said, but added he was optimistic there would be progress.

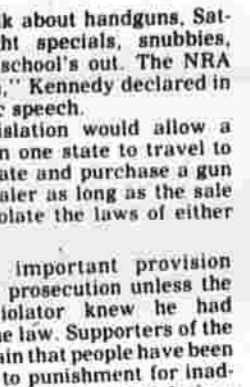

Under terms of the defense compromise, actual military spending would be frozen next year at $27.1 billion, $6 billion less than the Reagan sought and a figure the president said earlier Tuesday was damaging to national security.

At the same time, the House would move closer to the Senate figure for budget authority — the amount that can actually be contracted for — of $30.5 billion, $9.9 billion more than the House.

The effect would be to hold actual spending next year below what Reagan had wanted but to endorse higher spending in later years.

At a lunch Tuesday with editors and broadcasters, Reagan said: "I flatly refuse to be cornered into a budget that undermines our national security and a spending spree that threatens our prosperity."

Asked later about Reagan's sharp words, Wright said, "The president's rhetoric is always Florida, always entertaining, not always absolutely factual." But he said he would not quarrel with Reagan "because he's agreed to our figures. I'm sure he didn't mean quite the things that he said. It's difficult for the president sometimes to realize that bipartisanship is not a faucet you can turn on and off at a whim."

EDWARD KENNEDY anti-handguns

WASHINGTON — Kennedy said it too will come through for us," the group said.

Sen. Don't tell me that Bambi is hurt in the woods and they have to go up and help Bambi," Kennedy said.

Let's punish criminals and not put the focus on legitimate gun owners," he said.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who led the opposition to the bill, declared there was no legitimate use for handguns.

Proponents of easing federal gun control laws also turned back efforts to ban the interstate sale of handguns, a proposal for a 14-day "cooling off" period before a person could purchase a gun and a provision for surprise inspections of gun dealers to make sure they are complying with the law.

OPINION

Moffett is sure he has support

Former Congressman Toby Moffett is convinced there's a constituency out there somewhere that will join and sustain his crusade to deliver Connecticut from the reign of Gov. Bill O'Neill.

He is equally sure O'Neill is vulnerable within a Democratic Party that has tired of his performance. Moffett is reaching for an alliance of voters who believe it can be better in this state under new management.

Capitol Comments
Bob Conrad

He hasn't put it together yet, but he is more optimistic every time we talk with him. Meanwhile, he grows bolder in his jobs at O'Neill, denying all the time that he will be personal in his campaign.

Moffett candidly says O'Neill "has grown in the job" and "tries hard." Then he says O'Neill mismanages the state and can't shake off the baggage of "cronyism" around him. He says O'Neill may be "immune" to corruption, but is surrounded by it in his administration and won't act.

What's more, Moffett says many Democrats believe O'Neill has run out the string and should retire. Moffett says O'Neill does nothing to overcome an image of the party as stale and bland. Other than that, he says O'Neill is a sweetheart of a guy.

Moffett represented the 6th Congressional District for four terms in Washington. Since losing a run for the U.S. Senate in 1982, he has become a family man in Branford — an expectant father for the third time. He is restless in private life. But no matter what he wants for this state or the Democratic Party, what he wants most is to get back in.

Moffett and O'Neill are Democrats. Unless the moon starts racing in the opposite direction and fish begin to fly, the two will seek their party's gubernatorial nomination in 1986. O'Neill for a second full term. A primary appears likely at this point.

Moffett's recent poll to assess his chances has done wonders for his morale. It showed him beating O'Neill if a primary were held now. It also showed that a primary would not split the party.

Moffett does business with the highly regarded Irwin "Tubby" Harrison of Boston, so the findings should not be taken lightly.

But the survey offers only a snapshot of how the contest looks now. It can't do the work facing Moffett if he expects to make it happen. As a challenger, he has to make the case for denying O'Neill that second shot.

By the way he has started out, Moffett apparently believes there is mileage in an issue of O'Neill's alleged mismanagement as well as in the governor's performance with the party. Moffett seems to be untroubled that both tactics were tried in other campaigns with limited, if any, success.

Moffett, a ONE-TIME all-out liberal, has been scrambling toward middle ground lately, and that troubles many of his early followers. He has suggested that distress by openly courting the so-called Yuppies, the young, urban professionals. Yuppies worship their success and affluence as a cult. They also tend to be, perish the thought, Republican.

Moffett's support by labor is not what it used to be, we are told. Labor has been disappointed in recent years by Moffett's biddies, former state Sen. Bill Curry of Farmington in a congressional run, by former House Speaker Ernie Abate of Stamford for the gubernatorial nomination and by former Vice President Walter Mondale.

"They (labor) may have decided they want a winner next time," says one prominent Democrat. An announcement in recent days by Moffett that he would clean house of O'Neill appointees if he succeeds the current governor could be a two-edged sword. While it beholds the obvious — of course a new governor would be "obligated," as Moffett says, to bring in his own team — it also signals O'Neill's incumbent crew to rally around the boss to save their jobs.

Moffett DOESN'T HAVE much time to mount his campaign. The delegate selection process starts early next year. So far, he is doing well at the basics of organization. He has an eager gang of volunteers at his headquarters in New Haven. He is personally scouring the state and Washington for financial help.

Moffett has a way to go, however, in forging a compatible alliance for his very big job ahead. And taking on O'Neill is only the first hurdle for Moffett next year.

Viet fiasco was really a success

WASHINGTON — While the Reagan administration weighs its options for dealing with terrorism, it is relevant to examine the lessons learned from a remarkable U.S. military operation nearly 15 years ago: the commando raid on Son Tay, North Vietnam.

The raid was widely regarded as an intelligence fiasco, since the American prisoners who were supposed to be rescued were no longer there. In fact, it was nothing of the sort. U.S. intelligence was quite accurate, and the raid itself was carried out with superb skill.

What the Pentagon planners knew before the Son Tay raid and the surprising results have never been revealed. Here's the story.

On Nov. 21, 1970, a force of 60 elite commandos landed in a secluded compound 23 miles west of Hanoi, deep inside North Vietnam. The men were told their mission was to liberate as many as 80 American POWs being held there.

Not a single POW was found. Only North Vietnamese (and some Chinese) soldiers were on the premises. A brisk battle ensued. The enemy suffered up to 100 casualties; not a single American was killed. In fact, the only U.S. "casualty" was a commando who sprained an ankle.

Their raiders were bitterly and understandably disappointed. They had apparently risked their lives for nothing. Who had blundered?

THE OVERWHELMING EVIDENCE is that no one had goofed. U.S. intelligence was reasonably certain there were no American POWs at Son Tay by the time of the raid. So why send the raiders in?

The chief planner of the raid, Gen. Donald T. Blackburn, told our associate Donald Goldberg years later: "We knew they (the POWs) had been moved. We didn't want to give up the demonstration of power." The real purpose of the raid, he said, was to show the North Vietnamese how vulnerable they were.

There were intelligence gaps, though not over the central question of the presence or absence of Americans in the camp. An Army intelligence officer who worked on the raid told us recently that the Pentagon deliberately held down the number of reconnaissance drones that flew over the camp for fear of tipping off the North Vietnamese to an imminent raid.

"The big thing was not whether there were POWs there or not," he explained, "but whether there was a North Vietnamese regiment there or not. We had to make sure that they would not set up a trap for the raiding force or we could have had 60 more POWs, which would have been disastrous."

The large number of troops and raiders encountered was a surprise, as was the quality of their weapons. In fact, a CIA analyst later resigned over the raid, complaining that his boss, not wanting to admit he had no spies in the area, "estimated" that the enemy soldiers at Son Tay were armed only with old Japanese and French rifles, pitchforks and machetes. In fact, they had machine guns.

BUT, IN RETROSPECT, the raid was both a strategic and tactical success. It netted maximum military gain from a minimum risk of men and material. There were four important results:

- Enemy leaders were so frightened at the demonstration that U.S. raiders could strike with impunity close to Hanoi that they withdrew from the capital and avoided gathering together, which hampered their planning ability.
- Some of their best troops were pulled back from the south to protect Hanoi.
- The devastatingly effective surface-to-air missile batteries were also recalled from the south to ring Hanoi.
- The treatment of American POWs improved dramatically as they were moved into Hanoi for security. It was "less likely that some sadistic sergeant out in the sticks" would mistreat them, a source explained.

The cost of integrity sometimes comes high. Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., calls his 1978 appearance in Groton, Conn., for the launching of the nuclear submarine Jacksonville "one of the most expensive speeches I ever made in my life." The reason: Bennett insisted on paying General Dynamics for the gifts — silver trays, gold bracelets, a clock-barometer — that the contractor gave him and his family as mementos of the occasion. He sent the company a check for $1,250. Bennett also reimbursed the Treasury for the $1,068.60 in Navy transportation costs.

Connecticut In Brief

'Per se' bill gets O'Neill's signature

HARTFORD — Gov. William A. O'Neill has handed lawmakers pushing tough drunken driving laws a major victory by signing legislation that will make it tougher for motorists to contest a drunken driving charge.

The so-called per se law, signed Tuesday and effective Oct. 1, defines drunkenness as having a 0.1 percent blood alcohol level as measured by either police breath or blood tests.

Under the law, a motorist who registers a blood alcohol level of 0.1 percent on a test can only challenge the accuracy of the test and cannot offer other evidence to convince a judge or jury that he or she was not intoxicated.

Sen. Richard Johnston, R-Wethersfield, co-chairman of the Legislature's Judiciary Committee, said that under current law motorists accused of drunken driving are too often able to avoid conviction by introducing a range of mitigating circumstances.

"That is why many of those who can afford counsel get off scot-free," he said. "Per se will treat everyone accused under the law equally."

Lottery players may get free tickets

NEWINGTON — Some lucky lottery bettors will get free tickets starting today as the state returns prize money that went unclaimed for more than a year by lottery winners.

Lottery officials said every 25th wager reaching the lottery's central computer will be free of charge beginning today through July 31 under the "free play" program.

For the first time this year, officials said free tickets also will be given to Lotto bettors in addition to people playing the Daily Numbers and Play Four lottery games. The "free play" program is the sixth in lottery history.

Dismissal prompts end to trial

HARTFORD — The dismissal of a defense attorney has brought an abrupt halt to the state's five-month effort to try a businessman accused of hiring his son to murder a business partner.

The 10 jurors chosen since Feb. 11 were dismissed Tuesday by Superior Court Judge Francis R. Quinn in the murder-for-hire case against Joseph Shillensky.

Shillensky faces the death penalty on charges he hired his son, Scott Shillensky, 20, to kill John Garett, 44, whose body was found in the victim's Hartford residence on Jan. 11, 1983.

Quinn dismissed attorney George V. Lawler of Farmington after prosecutors disclosed Tuesday a potential conflict of interest involving the lawyer and his client, Assistant State's Attorney Herbert G. Appleton said Shillensky and Garett were partners in several ventures and each had a 50 percent share of a popular hamburger stand in Colchester known as "Harry's Place." Shillensky turned over his stock in the business to Lawler, said $5,000, to pay for his defense.

Slaying victim's family blames police

BRIDGEPORT — A young mother gunned down by a former boyfriend in a fast-food restaurant pleaded with police for protection the day before she was slain in an apparent murder-suicide, her family says.

Wanda Hargrove, 31, was mortally wounded while eating breakfast in a busy downtown "McDonald's" restaurant. Frightened customers dived for the floor and no one else was injured.

The suspect in the slaying, Stanley Stokes, 29, of Bridgeport, was found dead hours later Monday from a gunshot wound to the head in a rooming house less than a mile away from the scene.

The bitter family of Wanda Hargrove blamed police in her death, claiming authorities knew Stokes threatened to kill his former girlfriend, the victim's sister and brother.

Police investigated complaints Sunday that Stokes threatened the family, but made no arrest. Wanda Hargrove served as cook that day during a family picnic at their home.

New chief takes helm in Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD — Anthony C. Magno, a 21-year veteran of the Bloomfield Police Department, was named chief Tuesday by Town Manager R. Gary Stenhouse.

Magno, 46, was one of seven semifinalists selected from a field of 178 applicants. "I knew that Tony had strong leadership and management skills from my experiences with him in the past year," Stenhouse said.

Magno will keep his position of captain until the appointment becomes effective July 22.

Veto helps resolve panel deadlock

By Lydo Phillips
United Press International

HARTFORD — Republican legislators today looked for Democratic help in overriding a gubernatorial veto of a bill the GOP considers crucial to an investigation of the state's criminal justice system.

Majority Republicans agreed Tuesday to appoint a Democratic deputy counsel for the investigation by a 16-member special committee and in exchange want Democratic help in overturning the veto by Gov. William A. O'Neill.

A subcommittee of two Republicans and two Democrats agreed to hire Hartford attorney Thomas D. Clifford, a Democrat, as the sole official legal staff to the committee's chief counsel, Francis J. McCarthy.

Rep. Ronald Smoko, D-Hamden, who represented House Democrats on the subcommittee, said the governor's veto was "the catalyst" for the resolution of the deputy counsel issue, which has divided the committee for weeks.

The Democratic governor Monday vetoed a bill that would have given the committee an exemption from the state's Freedom of Information law allowing the panel to keep documents secret until the conclusion of its investigation.

The bill was designed to exempt from disclosure any documents obtained by the committee that would be considered confidential under state and federal law, such as police files on ongoing investigations.

"An inquiry of this nature should be open to the public from start to finish," O'Neill said in announcing the veto, which can be overturned by a two-thirds vote of the House and Senate.

Whether Democrats will be able to deliver on a promise to help give the GOP the votes needed for an overrule will be discussed at meetings of the top Democratic leadership later this week.

The co-chairmen of the special committee, Rep. William L. Wolberg, R-Farmington, and Senate Majority Leader Reginald J. Smith, R-New Hartford, said the committee would be more than willing to work even without the bill.

However, without the assurance of confidentiality Wolberg said the investigation would be more "political motions. No one would tell us anything," he said.

The committee heard testimony from its first witness Tuesday with Attorney General Joseph I. Lieberman giving background on the state's criminal justice system as compared to other states.

Lieberman said most states have elected district attorneys coordinated by a central authority, usually an elected attorney general.

He said Connecticut is unique in its system of appointed state's attorneys coordinated by a chief state's attorney and an attorney general who has very limited jurisdiction in criminal matters.

Until last year, Connecticut's prosecutors were appointed by judges. Since voter acceptance of a constitutional amendment last year, prosecutors are appointed by a Criminal Justice Commission.

White saying the matter was up to the committee to decide, Lieberman said he believed prosecutors should be accountable to the people.

He also said Connecticut's use of the one-man grand jury as an investigative tool was unique. He said the system asks "too much of judges," who serve as grand jurors to investigate allegations wrongdoing. "Judges are meant to judge, to hear cases and decide them dispassionately," he said. "To make him into an investigator and an accuser is doing the judiciary an injustice."

State to press prosecution in gang rape

WATERBURY (UPI) — A young motorcycle club president was free on bond today awaiting sentencing in the gang rape of a woman last year as prosecutors prepared to move ahead with the cases of his five co-defendants.

A jury Tuesday convicted Martin Warren of first-degree sexual assault and conspiracy in the June 2, 1984, incident at Naugatuck headquarters of the cycle club informally known as the Dead Babies.

Warren, 26, married and the father of two children, said nothing as the jury of four women and two men returned the guilty verdicts at noon after about 3½ hours of deliberations at Waterbury Superior Court.

Warren was freed after posting bond increased from $30,000 to $75,000 by Superior Court Judge Julius A. Bremaki. The judge set sentencing for Aug. 23 when Warren faces a maximum sentence of 40 years in prison.

Connelly said he will ask for the maximum sentence. Defense attorney Joseph F. Keele, who said he was stunned by the jury's decision, said he will appeal the conviction.

The jury began its deliberations Monday afternoon after final arguments, by attorneys where the victim's credibility arose as the central issue.

"I submit to you (the victim) has so many inconsistent statements she wasn't telling the truth," Keele said. "How could it have happened the way she told us? There's no way."

Our phone service was better in past

To the Editor:

We the people of the United States used to have the best phone service in the world. We were told that the competition would reduce prices. The opposite is true.

When you have officials in Washington stating they don't care if it's a couple of cents and string as long as it's cheaper, you know you're in trouble. We are constantly faced with delays, malfunctions of all sorts, and poor quality transmitting due to "cheap" phones being produced and purchased. Maybe the "good old days" for jobs, standard of living, etc., weren't too good, but I'll take the good old days' phone service anytime!

A plea for Eighth to talk with town

To the Editor:

Following is a letter addressed to Walter Joyner, president, and other members of the Board of Directors of the Eighth Utilities District:

Last week I addressed the town Board of Directors and first reminded them of a prediction I made in May. That prediction was that Republican Town Chairman Curt Smith would run for the town board and that the Eighth-town relationship would be the major political issue. I further said it appeared thus far I was half right.

Basically, what I said to the town board was that this continuing problem between the Eighth and the town should be resolved, must be resolved, and that the way to resolve it is not by making the relationship an election-time politi-

Here are the facts on action council

To the Editor:

The recent Manchester Spotlight column by Kathy Garmus, entitled "Opponents Of Abortion Ignore Rights Of Women," portrayed the Christian Action Council as a group of unfeeling and dangerous pro-life extremists. Unfortunately, Ms. Garmus failed to do her homework. Not only were her facts incorrect (strange that she omitted any actual statistics to back up her opinion), but her portrayal of the Christian Action Council was unfair.

There are two sides to the abortion debate. Both sides claim the other to be extremists. We on our side of the issue feel that abortion — taking the life of unborn human beings — is wrong. We work to save these lives. It is important to note that on the other side of the issue, there are those who feel it is a more compassionate choice to allow an expectant mother to take the life of her unborn child than to go through the personal "trauma" of placing the child up for adoption.

Please do not allow the Eighth-town problems to become a 1985 political issue. I ask you, please, at your next meeting, discuss and decide to sit down and talk with the town directors.

GOP to mount drive for firehouse vote

Democratic Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg said today she thinks Republicans will obtain enough signatures on a petition to force a referendum on whether the town should sell its Buckland firehouse to the highest bidder.

"It is very easy to get people to sign petitions," said Weinberg, who labeled the position taken by Republicans "irresponsible."

At a news conference this morning at Lincoln Center, Republican Town Chairman Curtis M. Smith announced the townwide petition drive, saying the minority party had an "obligation" to bring the issue before the people.

He said the petition would be used as backup in case the Democratic majority on the Board of Directors refused to place the question on the ballot.

Under the town charter, an issue can be brought to a referendum if at least 5 percent of the town's registered voters petition for it, town General Manager Robert B. Weiss said. That means the Republicans need to obtain at least 1,300 signatures, based on current registration figures provided by the registrars' office.

The petition drive will be coordinated by Ronald Osella, a South End resident who said today that the real issue is fire protection.

Osella, who lives on Hackmatack Street, said a firehouse is needed south of Interstate 284 because of rapid residential growth there in recent years.

"Something has to be done for the South End," he said. "We're getting the short shrift."

Weinberg said she has not heard any complaints residents over fire protection in that area. Weinberg said she has tried to ease the often-strained relations between the town and Eighth Utilities District, and charged the Republicans with trying to present the issue as one of district versus town.

Coventry residents form water district

COVENTRY — A group of residents in the Lakeview Terrace section of town, who have had water problems for years, voted Tuesday night to form a tax district that will allow them to build and control their own water system.

The vote at Coventry High School was 27-7 in favor of forming the Lakeview Terrace Water District. The residents also elected a nine-member board of directors to oversee the district.

The president of the board, Thomas Hall, said today that forming the district was the least-expensive way to provide a water system for the 120 homes in the one-block section near Coventry Lake of South Street.

The present water system is 40 years old and "beyond repair," Hall said. It doesn't have enough capacity, needs more wells and water mains and a place to store the water, he said.

The new water board plans to build "the whole thing from the bottom up," Hall said.

In January, the state Department of Public Utility Control took the water company which provided service to Lakeview Terrace from its owner because he failed to provide adequate risk of injury to a minor, two counts of obscenity to minors, and two counts of fourth-degree sexual assault after three children reported that he had propositioned them and touched them.

Police said they charged Raymond L. LeBlanc, 56, of Greystone, N.C., with three counts of risk of injury to a minor, two counts of obscenity to minors, and two counts of fourth-degree sexual assault after three children reported that he had propositioned them and touched them.

When asked if he had propositioned any children, LeBlanc said he had been handing out small pins to children, whose names and ages were withheld, told the police that the suspect had asked them if they had ever had a sexual act performed on them, the report said.

The report said one of the children said the suspect had run the Squire Village housing project on Spencer Street Monday afternoon to the arrest of a North Carolina man, police said this morning.

Police said they charged Raymond L. LeBlanc, 56, of Greystone, N.C., with three counts of risk of injury to a minor, two counts of obscenity to minors, and two counts of fourth-degree sexual assault after three children reported that he had propositioned them and touched them.

At that time, police said, LeBlanc was arrested and taken to police headquarters.

In further questioning, one of the children reported that LeBlanc asked several times to meet him at another location, adding that "he should not tell people about this or he would get in trouble," the police report said.

Another youth reported that LeBlanc told his sister that "she was beautiful" and kissed her on the cheek, the report said. The youth went on to claim that LeBlanc had touched him or her on the back of the leg, the report said.

LeBlanc remained in police custody Monday evening on a $5,000 bond and was arraigned Tuesday.

Post 102 is EH-primed

No hardsell is needed for tonight's American Legion Zone Eight showdown at Ray McKenna Field.

Old friends Manchester and East Hartford will be reunited at 7:30 p.m. to rehash old times.

The second meeting of the year between the two top teams in the Zone promises to be another barn-burner. East Hartford, currently atop the Zone Eight standings, boasts just one loss — a 3-2 setback to arch-rival Manchester on June 24.

Post 102, which disposed of Bloomfield, 4-1, Tuesday night at Cougar Field, is primed and ready. Manchester, now 18-9 overall, topped its Zone Eight log to 8-2.

Neil Archambault twirled a four-hitter, fanning four and walking four. Chris Ogden was the lone Manchester batter with two hits. Third baseman John Mazurek backed Archambault with some fine defensive work.

The winners tallied two runs in the first on an Ogden RBI-single and a bases-loaded walk to George Scaglia. Post 102 added a pair of pad runs in the fifth on a wild pitch and a fielder's choice.

Moriarty bounces back

BLOOMFIELD — Bouncing back from their first Twilight League loss after 12 straight wins, Moriarty Brothers did a convincing number on the Imaginators Tuesday night.

Dave Bidwell fired a three-hit shutout and the MBs mashed 14 hits in a 10-0 slaughter at Bloomfield Field.

First-place Moriarty, now 13-1, succeeded four runs in the third inning, one in the fourth and five in the seventh.

"We just went station to station — the outcome was never in doubt," quipped animated coach Gene Johnson.

Ray Sullivan was credited with the game-winning RBI when his single brought home the initial run of the contest in the third frame. A double by Dave Smythe and a triple by Chris Petersen were other big hits in the uprising.

Smythe went 3-for-5 with a pair of runs batted in to pace the victors' balanced offensive attack. Petersen also doubled and had two RBIs while Steve Chotiner and Jeff Johnson each added two hits and one RBI.

Moriarty Brothers entertains Katz at Moriarty Field on Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. The MBs then host Herb's in a two-night doubleheader Saturday at Moriarty Field, beginning at 5 p.m.

Junior Legion club rebounds

EAST HARTFORD — After losing three straight league contests, Manchester's Junior Legion baseball team broke out of its slump in rousing fashion Tuesday.

The locals came from behind to defeat Discount Stores, 10-7, in a Jaycee Courant League tilt at Ray

McKenna Field.

Manchester, 8-8 overall with a 6-3 league mark, rallied for four runs in the top of the sixth to win.

Complete game winner Joe Casey was shaky on the mound, though he was clutch with the bat, rocketing a triple and double for three RBIs. Jon Roe also shook a hitting slump by banging out a pair of doubles. Trent Seaman added two singles.

Manchester has another JC Courant affair tonight against hosting Herb's at Colt Park No. 2 at 6 p.m.

No injuries in pileup

A chain-reaction accident involving four cars on West Middle Turnpike Monday afternoon left two of the cars heavily damaged but caused no injuries, police said this morning.

A police report said the 3:48 p.m. accident occurred when the four cars stopped behind a fifth car that had slowed to make a left turn. The first three stopped safely, but the fourth car slammed into the rear of the third car, the report said.

The force of the impact pushed the third car into the second car, which was then pushed into the first car, the report said.

The driver of the fourth car in line was identified as Scott L. Martin, 17, of East Hartford. Police said he was driving a 1981 Ford Mustang when he "did not realize traffic was stopped in front of him" and applied his brakes too late, the report said. Martin was charged with following too close.

State police said Fontaine had been following the truck and tried to pass it by crossing into the opposite lane. As he passed the truck, it began a left turn into a private driveway, state police said.

Fontaine's cycle struck the left front fender of the truck, throwing him off the cycle, state police said. Fontaine was not wearing a helmet at the time of the accident, police added.

Streaking Guidry wins 10th consecutive game

By Jim Lutfrell
United Press International

Ron Guidry kept his hot streak alive and as a result the drought goes on for Bud Black.

Guidry won his 10th straight decision Tuesday night leading the New York Yankees to a 6-4 triumph over the Kansas City Royals and raising his record to 11-3. Black, 5-10, lost his seventh straight decision. The left-hander has not won a game since May 26.

Guidry, who won his fifth straight start, has Yankee fans reminiscing the left-hander's 1978 season when he compiled a 25-3 record.

"I've had a couple of outstanding streaks," said Guidry, who was 10-11 last year. "In '79, I think I was 6-7 at the All-Star break and I won 11 straight and topped 18-8. This is the best streak in a long time."

Black, who was 17-12 last season, was victimized by three Kansas City errors.

Guidry pitched pretty good and made good pitches when he had to. Kansas City manager Dick Howser said, "But we didn't play well defensively. You can't give a team that many outs and that many runs and expect to win, not a good club. You can't do it."

Rickey Henderson and Don Mattingly each had two hits and an RBI to support Guidry, who scattered nine hits over a 2-3 inning while walking four and striking out one. Dave Righetti got one out for his 15th save.

Mattingly extended his hitting streak to 17 consecutive games, the longest in the American League this season.

The Yankees took a 3-2 lead in the fourth. Henderson ripped an opposite-field double to right to score one run and took third when Black's errant pickoff throw went into center field. Mattingly knocked in Henderson with a single to left.

Kansas City scored twice in the ninth on RBIs singled by Brett and McRae to make it 6-4. It was McRae's 1,000th career RBI.

Indians 7, Rangers 2
At Cleveland, Andre Thornton clubbed a two-run homer and drove in four runs to support the four-hit pitching of Bert Blyleven and defeat Texas. Blyleven, 8-4, struck out five and walked five in notching his American League-leading 12th complete game.

Ortles 11, Twins 6
At Baltimore, Eddie Murray slammed his 10th career grand slam in the sixth inning to beat Minnesota in a game delayed 36 minutes in the ninth inning by rain. Nate Snell, 3-1, earned the victory but suffered a broken rib when a line drive struck him in the ribs.

Tigers 6, White Sox 5
At Detroit, Chel Lemons' bases-loaded single scored Alan Trammell and capped a four-run ninth inning that lifted Detroit's lead over Chicago. Alan Trammell and Kirk Gibson had singled to tie the score off loser Bob James, 4-3.

Angels 5, Brewers 4
At Anaheim, Calif., Juan Beniquez singled home Rob Wilfong from second base with none out in the bottom of the 10th inning to cap California's come-from-behind victory over Milwaukee. Donnie Moore, 7-3, pitched the final inning for the victory.

Blue Jays 9, Mariners 13
At Seattle, George Bell's 13th-inning grand slam off Ed VanDe Berg, 6-1, lifted Toronto over Seattle. It was Bell's 17th homer of the season. Ron Musselman, 3-6, worked the final three innings for Toronto. The Blue Jays collected 20 hits, the first 17 of which were singles. The Mariners totaled 16 hits, all singles.

Oilers wrap up Farm tournament

The Oilers shaded MARC, 14-13, to clinch the Town Farm Tournament championship Tuesday night at Vreeland Field.

Winning pitcher Grant Cline went the distance, striking out nine and aiding his offense with a pair of singles.

Eben Fleese delivered the big hit for the Oilers, coming through with a bases-clearing triple. Ed Downes contributed a double. On defense, J.D. Downing, Danny Carangelo and Jeff Lazzaris sparked above the rest.

Ken Snellenberger bombed a home run and a double for MARC. Joe Motia added a triple and single, while Dave Toomey and Shawn Knowles played well defensively.

A's errors aid Sox 'Oil Can' resumes winning style

By United Press International

OAKLAND, Calif. — Boston hurler Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd stopped listening Tuesday night and resumed winning.

"You just go swing the bat and I'll pitch the ball," Boyd said.

Boyd hurled a seven-hitter for his 10th win and the Boston Red Sox took advantage of three Oakland errors in the ninth inning Tuesday night to defeat Oakland, 6-3.

"All I want is for people to respect my game," said Boyd. "I love having fun out there. I haven't pitched well since I started listening to what other people have been saying. The bottom line is that I want to win out there."

"Guys are saying I'm showing them up, but I have not been saying anything to anyone. If I strike out a guy in a pressure situation, I'm going to show some emotion out there on the mound. I have to go back to being my old self."

I tip my hat to Mike Davis on getting that two-run single, the man really stayed in there. I hope I'm not making enemies around the league."

Boyd, 10-7, struck out three and walked two in pitching his 11th complete game.

Oakland reliever Jay Howell said, "We just did not play a good game. Oil Can was hot-dogging the last time he was in town and we wanted to get to him tonight. But we have heard around the league that is just his style."

Boston led 3-1 after seven, but the A's tied the score at 3-3 in the eighth. Dave Collins and Carney Lansford singled to lead off, and two outs later, Davis lined a single to center to score Collins. Davis was caught in a rundown trying to stretch his hit into a double, allowing Lansford to score.

In Boston's ninth, Mike Easler led off and shortstop Alfredo Griffin opened the gates with an error. Pinch runner Reid Nichols advanced to second on a sacrifice and moved to third on a single by Glenn Hoffman. Steve Lyons then hit a slow grounder to first baseman Bruce Bochte, who threw the ball away, allowing Nichols to score and Hoffman to advance to third. Lyons then stole second and when catcher Mickey Tettleton threw the ball into center field, Hoffman scored to make the score 5-3. Marty Barrett then scored Lyons from second with a single.

Steve Ontiveros, 6-1, the fourth Oakland pitcher, took the loss.

Hard-hitting Boston third baseman Wade Boggs, who knocked in the first Boston run, said, "We have to do the little things to win, like moving the runner over, bunting him over, getting him in scoring position and then getting the big hit. In the last 18 games we lost, we lost 14 of them because we did not do that."

Boggs is third in the AL in batting with a .334 average, trailing the Yankees' Rickey Henderson (.357) and Kansas City's George Brett (.340). Boggs now leads the American League in hits with 107.

Red Sox' Mike Easler grimaces as he slides into A's catcher Mickey Tettleton's leg in the sixth inning. Easler scored on a double by Rich Gedman.

Record-setting running back

Herschel Walker voted MVP

By Joel Sherman
United Press International

NEW YORK — Herschel Walker of the New Jersey Generals completed his season-long run to redemption Tuesday by winning the U.S. Football League's Most Valuable Player Award.

The Professional Football Writers of America made Walker a unanimous selection for his pro football season rushing record of 2,411 yards.

Despite two seasons of more than 1,000 yards with the Generals, Walker was criticized for not furthering the awesome talent he displayed while at the University of Georgia as one of college football's greatest running backs.

"Everyone is always going to try and put you down," Walker said. "You have to prove things to yourself. This year, I displayed to people that I'm still around. I showed that I haven't gone up in a cloud of dust."

At 6-foot-1 and 222 pounds, Walker combines world-class sprinter's speed with brute power.

Walker set the record in the "minor leagues."

"If I had set the record in the NFL, there would have been people who would have found a reason to put it down also, saying it was in 16 games not 14 or something like that," Walker said.

Walker blasted to the record with 14 games of 100 yards or better, including 11 straight. Against the Houston Gamblers, he set a USFL rushing record of 233 yards.

The 23-year-old back also set USFL records with 22 touchdowns, 21 touchdowns by rushing and 132 points.

"All great running backs are different," Generals coach Walt Michaels said. "Except that they all have speed and the knack for alluding tackles and the potential to go all the way when they see a hole. Herschel has those qualities."

Walker joined the Generals after winning the Heisman Trophy in his junior year. He rushed for 1,812 yards his first pro season and 1,339 last year.

Marathon changes?

By United Press International

BOSTON — In an effort to maintain the Boston Marathon's status as one of the world's premier marathons, Boston Mayor Raymond L. Flynn reportedly plans to recommend major changes for next spring's 90th running.

Prize money totaling $292,500 would be awarded and the race — the oldest continuously run marathon — would be shifted to the Sunday of Patriot's Day weekend under the proposals, the Boston Globe reported today.

Historically, the race has been run on the Monday celebrated in Massachusetts as Patriot's Day, drawing criticism from runners from other states where the holiday was not celebrated.

Moving the race to a Sunday would increase the race's chances of being nationally televised.

Despite criticism, race organizers had staunchly refused to offer prize money in an effort to maintain the marathon's amateur status. But top runners had increasingly skipped the race for more lucrative events.

Under the proposal, the race would pay $30,000 for winning the race.

Brett on rope tear

AL DID YOU KNOW

By Rick Gosselin
United Press International

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — American League pitchers can be accused for their inability to figure out George Brett these days. The All-Star third baseman of the Kansas City Royals can't figure himself out — nor does he want to.

Brett staged another of his patented hot streaks during Kansas City's recent 10-game homestand, tearing up the pitching staffs of the California Angels, Oakland A's and Baltimore Orioles with 19 hits in 37 at-bats.

Brett scored 10 runs, knocked in 12 and also walked eight times. That recent offensive flurry established Brett as the league runnerup to New York's Rickey Henderson in both hitting (.344) and slugging percentage (.553).

"I'm doing something right," Brett said. "But I don't spend a lot of time thinking about it. I don't like to overanalyze everything."

"I'm not a scientific hitter. I'm not a guess hitter and I'm not a zone hitter. I may anticipate a pitch but I'll never guess, say, fastball and then look silly swinging at a slider in the dirt. If I'm seeing the ball well and I think I can hit it, I'll swing at it. And right now I'm seeing the ball well."

Brett had four three-hit games and two two-hit games during the homestand. In the first game against California, he reached base seven consecutive times on two singles, a double and four walks. He knocked in six runs with two homers and a single against Oakland July 2 and came back the next night to stroke two doubles and score two runs against the A's.

That game convinced Brett he shouldn't try to out-think himself.

"I had my worst fundamentals of the year in that game against Oakland," Brett said. "I wasn't keeping my head back and waiting for the pitch. When you're moving forward, the ball looks like it's coming faster and you have less time to react to it. But I still got two doubles."

Charley Lau told me a long time ago when you're not swinging the bat good, you've got to find a way to get a hit. Oh-for-3's and oh-for-4's kill you. You've got to scratch out something because if you can get a hit a game, you're average isn't going to fail. Then when you get hot and you start having those three and four-hit games, you can raise your average 10 points."

Brett had at least one hit in each of the first eight games of the homestand before his former high school teammate, Scott McGregor of the Orioles, held him hitless in four at-bats last Saturday.

"When you get in one of those streaks when you're always on base," Brett said, "you get crushed when you don't get a hit."

Coupon dispensers

Cards mailed to thousands in Manchester

You may open your mail this week to find a bright yellow credit card — one which you did not request, and probably do not recognize.

The card will allow you to use the Coupon Counter, a new coupon-dispensing machine located in four Manchester supermarkets. About 40 percent of Manchester households will receive cards in this mailing, cards which entitle users to obtain four to six new coupons each week.

An estimated 10 percent of area households have already received the cards, and shoppers without cards may stop at stores' courtesy counters for a temporary number and an application for a permanent card.

The machines are now located in Shop-Rite Supermarkets on East Middle Turnpike and Spencer Street, the Edwards Food Warehouse and the A&P Food Store.

The filter which accompanies your new card will tell you that this is "a revolution in couponing."

"It's a real boon to the busy working woman who doesn't have the time to clip coupons," said Mark McLain, executive vice president of the Massachusetts firm which distributes the machines. "She might accidentally leave her coupons at home, and she can still save at the market with our coupons."

BUT JANET BRATCHER was one of dozens of shoppers last Friday afternoon who hurried past the machine which has stood near the produce department of Edwards Food Warehouse since November.

"I just can't be bothered," Bratcher said. "I carry coupons for about 80 different products. What good does it do to stop and get coupons for six more?"

Coupon Counters in Manchester can deliver up to six coupons to each customer; the coupon selection is changed every Monday morning. Last week, only four coupons were dispensed to each customer.

By the end of the summer, McLain said in a telephone interview, machines in Connecticut will be delivering 12 per customer, as they are already doing in the Boston area.

"But that's all. It's my impression that the shopper doesn't want it — and really can't — sift through more than that as she's standing in the front of the store," McLain said.

"You'd be much better off with a machine that gives out a lot more coupons," said Chet Mount, manager of the A&P on Tolland Turnpike. The Food Marketing Institute has found that among shoppers who use coupons — which, in the Northeast, is about 45 percent of all shoppers — most collect coupons for at least 45 different brands and items.

One shopper's experience — no big deal!

By Nancy Pappas
Herald Reporter

"A revolution in couponing." A boon to the working woman." I'd heard the ads and I was intrigued.

So I spent two hours last Friday afternoon trying to save money the "new Coupon Counter way."

My first stop was at the A&P Food Store on Tolland Turnpike, one of four Manchester supermarkets which has an automatic coupon-dispensing machine, which has an automatic coupon-dispensing machine.

I went to the courtesy booth and asked for a temporary code number, so that I could use the machine. At first, the clerk behind the counter looked blank. But when I explained, for the third time what I was trying to do, she said, "Oh, we're all out of those. You'll have to call Massachusetts."

FORTUNATELY, there was a toll-free telephone number printed on the front of the machine. Even better, the coupon machine was right next to the telephone. So all I needed to do was wait 10 minutes, while a Pepsi-Cola route man argued with his home office. He finally hung up the telephone and I called the number printed on the machine.

After explaining my request to a receptionist in Westwood, Mass., I was put on hold for two minutes. Fortunately, this was a toll-free call. Then a pleasant young woman picked up on the line and explained, "We don't really give temporary numbers, and when we do, they're only available at the stores."

My next stop was the Moti's Shop-Rite on East Middle Turnpike. They had a few temporary cards, but the access numbers printed on them had expired. Store personnel were polite, but did not volunteer to call the machine's home office in Massachusetts.

The third stop of the afternoon was at the Edwards Food Warehouse on Silver Lane. There, the Coupon Counter sits in full view of the courtesy desk. The clerk there gave me a temporary card promptly, explained how it was to be used and also gave me an application for obtaining a permanent card.

THE MACHINE dispensed the four coupons for the week. How could this machine replace coupon clipping, I wondered. The bulging folder I carry to the market each week contains about 120 coupons. This machine was only giving me four.

In addition to one for Moti's mayonnaise, there were three of a type I'd not seen before. Each said, "Choose your favorite brand. The consumer had the option of any brand of hot dogs, any frozen vegetable and any liquid laundry detergent."

When I tried to punch my code into the same machine a second time, the machine told me — quite correctly — that I was ineligible for further coupons until the following Monday.

But when I took my card across the street to the Continued on page 15

Calories, caution 'to the wind'

Ice cream is the main course at church supper

By Nancy Pappas
Herald Reporter

There's no better way to blow a diet than with a giant bowl of homemade ice cream. Unless you're talking about REALLY blowing the diet with three bowls of homemade ice cream.

How about these three?

- Chocolate ice cream with marshmallow topping
- Banana ice cream with chopped cherry topping
- Grape nut ice cream with buttercrunch topping

Sunday evening was the Church of Christ's annual Ice Cream Supper. The three combinations above — and many more — were offered to the 45 guests who gathered at the South Windsor home of George and Elaine Caruthers after the evening church service.

"We throw caution and calories to the wind. Fortunately, it's only once a year!" said Deanna Johnston. "I don't want you to print how many bowls I tried," said Mary Brown.

Brown and Johnston were two of the dozen women who prepared the ice creams for the others to enjoy. Families who do not own ice cream freezers brought toppings, or cookies and cobblers to go with the ice cream.

"You'll notice it's called an ice cream 'supper' not an ice cream 'social,'" said Francis Todd. "We don't fool around with nutritious food first. We get right into the serious ice cream eating."

The Manchester Herald asked a number of the ice cream producers to share their recipe. Here are some you'll want to clip and save for the hot summer weekends still to come:

Francis Todd's black cherry ice cream
2 eggs
2 cups sugar
4 cups whipping cream
4 cups pitted, chopped black cherries
3 quarts milk (at least)
Beat eggs until they are a light lemon color. Add sugar gradually, then beat well. Add cream, beat lightly. Pour into the can

Mary Brown's frozen yogurt
1 egg
6 tablespoons sugar
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup plain yogurt
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
1/2 teaspoon salt
Combine all ingredients in a medium bowl. Refrigerate for about two hours. Freeze according to manufacturer's directions. This quantity fills a one-quart freezer. However, Brown made eight times as much, to fill her two-gallon hand-cranked ice cream maker, and encountered no difficulties.

Pat Mosher's Grapenuts ice cream
7 eggs
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
3 cups sugar
2 tablespoons vanilla
1 quart milk
1 1/2 cups plain cream
1 1/2 cups Post Grapenuts cereal
Beat eggs until light in color. Beat in sugar gradually, then all remaining ingredients. Pour into the can of an ice cream freezer and freeze according to manufacturer's directions. This quantity fills a one-gallon freezer.

Deanna Johnston's banana ice cream
2 eggs plus 2 tablespoons sugar
6 eggs
1 1/2 tablespoons vanilla
1 pint heavy cream
1 1/2 15-ounce cans evaporated milk
5 large bananas
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Milk as needed

Jackie Frasher's cherry-chocolate ice cream
3 slightly beaten eggs
1 quart milk
1 cup whipping cream
1 cup sugar
1 cup chocolate flavored syrup
1 15-ounce jar maraschino cherries, drained and chopped
3 1/2-ounce bars milk chocolate with almonds, chopped
3 tablespoons vanilla
Combine all ingredients in a large bowl. Pour into ice cream freezer and freeze according to manufacturer's instructions. Makes three quarts.

'You'll notice it's called an ice cream 'supper' — not an ice cream social. We don't fool around with nutritious food first. We get right into the serious ice cream eating.'

Lerman's baklava took best of many recipes

By Adele Angle Focus Editor

Maxine Lerman of Sassa Drive is only too happy to share the secret of her baklava.

The secret is butter. Lots and lots of butter.

"Don't skip on the butter or your pastry will emerge thick and heavy rather than flaky and crisp," says Lerman, a registered dietitian.

"I'm very generous with the butter. I tend to think that's why it comes out OK."

She has been making this sinfully rich Greek treat for many years. Friends who are lucky enough to sample her sweat by its delicate texture and flavor.

"I like all good recipes, this one took years to perfect.

It's a combination of three recipes. Actually, she tried to make baklava while taking an international foods course at Cornell University that recipe called for lemon and orange rind, ingredients few baklava recipes call for today.

Years later, when she taught foods and nutrition at the University of Connecticut, an assistant gave her a Greek cookbook which carried a recipe for baklava. The recipe intrigued her.

"It wasn't until she lived in Chicago, though, when a friend demonstrated how to make baklava, that she really became interested.

Baklava calls for phyllo, a tissue-thin dough which is sold in many supermarkets today.

She has a few hints on using the dough.

Defrost it properly. "It has to be defrosted carefully or the dough sticks because of condensation," she says.

She suggests defrosting the dough overnight in the refrigerator, and then leaving it out on the counter for two hours before beginning the recipe.

Work as quickly as you can, she says, to keep the dough from drying out.

"Be gentle so you don't poke holes in the dough with the nuts, she adds."

Her daughter, Sharon, 6, loves to watch her making the dessert. That's a family tradition, in fact. Both her mother and grandmother are fine cooks and she says she learned her way around the kitchen by watching them at work.

Her grandmother, Bee Horwin of Charleston, S.C., used to make 72 pounds of fruitcake at holiday time! Along with her baklava, Lerman is sharing her grandmother's recipe for blueberry pie.

The recipe calls for a cookie crust. "It's tricky to make because you use an egg," Lerman says.

Lerman says she found the recipe for sour cream chocolate cake sitting on her grandmother's kitchen counter one day. It was on the back of a Gold Medal Flour tin.

The strawberries with Devonshire cream recipe is from a Chicago newspaper.

Both are popular with her husband, Manny, a mathematics professor at the University of Connecticut, and her son, Elliot, 9.

Vegetables in microwave please even finicky eaters

Marge's Microwave Kitchen Marge Churchill

If you have some people in your family who avoid vegetables, perhaps you can tempt them with vegetables cooked in the microwave.

Certainly one of summer's favorite vegetables is fresh corn on the cob. Use your microwave to prepare corn on the cob either in or out of the husks. It will retain its flavor, and be easy to prepare without heating up the kitchen.

Selecting the best of the fresh corn takes some time and careful inspection of each ear. You should choose ears with fresh green husks, moist stem ends, and silk that is free from decay and worm damage. Avoid yellowed or dried husks.

Look for plump, tender, milky kernels in close rows extending to the tip of the ears. Kernels should be firm enough to puncture easily with slight pressure. Immature corn has very soft, small kernels. Large or dark yellow kernels indicate age.

Remove microwave corn in the husk, arrange ears in the husk on oven floor with space between ears. No preparation is needed. Microwave on high for 4 to 6 minutes, or until heated through, rotating dish after every 2 minutes. Sprinkle with remaining butter and soy sauce, if desired.

Celery casserole
4 cups sliced celery cut in 1/4-inch diagonal pieces
1/2 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1 small onion, chopped
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2/3 cup water
1 teaspoon instant chicken bouillon granules
1 teaspoon cornstarch
1 small onion, chopped
1/2 teaspoon basil leaves
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 bay leaf

Place celery, mushrooms, onion, olive oil and lemon juice in a 2-quart casserole, set aside. In a 2-cup measure, combine water, bouillon, cornstarch and lemon juice. Stir well. Add to celery mixture. Beets
Fresh beets are available year-round, but are in greatest supply from June on. The roots must always be cooked whole and unpeeled with root ends and part of the stem uncut or the juice will be "bleed."

Select small to medium-sized beets that are firm, smooth and deep red. Tops with quickly and do not indicate poor quality. Do not buy flabby, rough or shriveled beets. Large beets may be tough and woody.

Cut off all but 2 inches of tops. If they are fresh, use immediately as greens. Refrigerate root ends covered in crisper and use within a week.

To prepare and microwave beets, wash 1 pound of beets gently to avoid skin breaks. Leave root ends and 1 to 2 inches of tops intact to prevent bleeding.

Place beets in 1 1/2-quart casserole. Mix 1/2 cup water with 1/2 teaspoon salt until dissolved, pour over beets. Cover. Microwave on high for 15 to 20 minutes, until fork-tender, turning beets over and rotating dish every five minutes. Let stand covered for 3 to 5 minutes, or until cool enough to handle.

Slip skins and tops. Trim root ends, if desired. Serve beets whole, quartered or sliced. Microwave covered on high for 1 to 2 minutes with 1 tablespoon butter. Add lemon juice or vinegar or butter to cooked beets, if desired, for additional flavor.

Orange beets
1 pound fresh beets
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup orange juice
Dash of pepper
1 cup (11-ounce) mandarin orange segments, drained

Prepare fresh beets as directed above. Cut into 1/2-inch thick slices. Reserve liquid plus enough water to equal 1/2 cup.

In a 1 1/2-quart casserole, combine brown sugar and cornstarch. Stir in orange juice and peel, reserved juice and pepper. Microwave on high for 2 to 3 minutes, until hot, stirring once. Gently mix in oranges.

Several fresh thyme leaves

Stuffing enhances trout

Ruth Money recently enjoyed the stuffed trout at the Mill on the River in South Windsor, formerly the Podunk Mill. Chef Helmar Wolf was able to cut down the stuffing recipe from the enormous quantities he makes at the restaurant.

Today's Special Nancy Pappas

There should be no need to secure them with string or picks. Generously grease a large baking pan and add a dash of white wine. This prevents the trout from sticking to the pan. Bake in a 450-degree oven for 20 minutes. Serve eight.

This is excellent when served with a few parselined new potatoes and a mixture of vegetables including broccoli and cauliflower, flowers and zucchini spears.

To have your favorite restaurant dish included in this weekly column, simply write a note telling us the name of your favorite dish at a local restaurant. We'll contact the chef and ask for the recipe. Include your name, address and a phone number where you can be reached during the day. the machine, she may choose not to make use of them. Ginny Coppola, customer service manager at Matt's Shop-Rite on East Middle Street, said it's a matter of arithmetic. For example, she said, two weeks ago the Coupon Counter was dispensing a coupon worth 15 cents toward a jar of Hellman's mayonnaise. That would have brought the price down from $1.29 to $1.14.

But during the same week, the Shop-Rite circular contained a coupon for Hellman's mayonnaise at 89 cents per jar. "You can't use two coupons on the same item," Coppola pointed out. "One way you're going to pay $1.14. One way you're going to pay 89 cents. Which way do you think you're going to go?" he asked.

That kind of conflict is a problem with the system, McLean acknowledged. He said his firm does not charge the stores which carry its machines. Instead, it makes its money by selling "couponing opportunities" to food manufacturers. The contracts with the manufacturers must be arranged months in advance. "So you just can't help having a few situations where our coupons are not the most economical one to use," he said.

ANOTHER DRAWBACK to using the Coupon Counter's coupons is that A&P and Shop-Rite have chosen not to double their value.

asked when I had gotten such a useful coupon. My package of hot dogs, which would usually have cost $1.59, ended up costing 43 cents.

But I did not follow the same routine with the "15 cents off any brand of liquid laundry detergent" coupon obtained from the machine when I bought it. The coupon worth just 30 cents. In my folder of coupons, I had many liquid laundry detergent coupons worth 30 cents each — or $1.50 when doubled.

On the whole, I was distinctly underwhelmed. The machines are billed as the way "to put coupons where they are really needed — right in local grocery stores."

But if they continue to dispense such a tiny number of coupons — coupons which cannot be doubled at the stores from which they are obtained — then they certainly are not going to revolutionize the couponing business.

I HAD NO trouble using it for my purchase, although the cashier

Tips for dilemma-free diets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Heart and cancer authorities have joined the publishing blitz that is showering the nation with brochures and cookbooks on how to put diet guidelines into action in the kitchen.

The American Heart Association, which has its own cookbooks, recommends Americans cut their total fat intake from the current average of 40 percent of calories to 30 percent.

The Center for Science in the Public Interest recommends cutting fat consumption to 20 percent of calories, the average in Japan, but those on the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute consensus panel said this might not be practical for Americans.

The Heart Association suggests cutting salt consumption and emphasizing polyunsaturated fats, usually found in plant sources. Corn, cutaneous safflower and sunflower seed oil are high in polyunsaturates, which tend to lower the level of cholesterol in blood.

Other recommendations: Substitute low-fat meats, fish, poultry and high-protein vegetable foods for high-fat meats. Use egg whites and substitutes instead of yolks. Substitute low-fat and non-fat dairy products for regular dairy products. Increase consumption of fruits, vegetables, breads, cereals and grain products.

The American Cancer Society and National Cancer Institute, both of which have published brochures, suggest a similar diet plan. They include ample menus. Also, individual doctors have written cookbooks.

Most include these suggestions: Increase consumption of high-fiber foods. Fiber may help inhibit colon cancer. Eat vegetables in the cruciferous family. These include broccoli, cauliflower and cabbage. Some studies have suggested these may reduce the risk of cancer of the esophagus, larynx and lung, and C may help ward off cancer of the stomach and esophagus.

Drink alcohol in moderation. Heavy drinkers are at high risk for cancers of the mouth, larynx and esophagus. Eat vegetables in the cruciferous family. These include broccoli, cauliflower and cabbage. Some studies have suggested these may reduce the risk of cancer of the esophagus, larynx and lung, and C may help ward off cancer of the stomach and esophagus.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter was recently married in a traditional Protestant church wedding. Her mother and I sat in the front pew on the left, and the groom's parents occupied the front pew on the right.

We arranged to have a friend videotape the entire ceremony from an obscure position behind the minister.

After the honeymoon, the bride and groom and both sets of parents viewed the tape of the ceremony. It was beautiful. We were able to see the faces of the bride and groom as they pledged their vows — not just the backs of their heads, which is the view we (and everyone else) had during the ceremony.

Abby, wouldn't it make more sense and have a beautiful ceremony — if the bride and groom were to face the congregation during the ceremony? This might not go over so well with some ministers, but I'm sure the congregation would appreciate it. What do you think?

If you are over 40, you will probably benefit from a colonoscopy exam, during which a specialist, using a long flexible fiberoptic tube, looks into the colon, using your intestine. You will also need periodic hemoccult tests — simple and inexpensive determinations of blood in the stool.

My comments are meant as suggestions. You should consult an intestinal specialist, a gastroenterologist, who will know best how to proceed and at what intervals follow-up tests need to be performed.

I can think of only one other way for you to minimize your chances of developing colorectal cancer, and that involves an increase in dietary bran and roughage. At least one world expert has convincingly demonstrated that high-fiber diets exert a protective effect against the problem that affected your forebears.

Corn of the country Meet the singing pranksters

By Jim Lewis United Press International NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Behind the comic facade of Sandy Pinkard and Richard Bowden there's something here that's not serious. It's eggs, eggs, eggs.

They told 70,000 copies of the single, "Mama, She's Lazy," a parody of The Judds' "Big Hit," "Mama, He's Crazy."

"Different people find different things funny," Bowden said. "But country people have always had a dry sense of humor. What a lot of people think is corny is not necessarily corny because there are some sharp minds out there among country music fans. They may not know about computers and high technology but they know about life in the country."

"We do change our show to gear it to the audience as best we can," second-guess an audience," Pinkard added.

"I don't want this one-dimensional pap that has been served heretofore," Pinkard concedes there is some "conservative" resistance to their pranks by radio stations and right now they are targeting their careers toward TV.

There are a lot of golden calves out there and we're not going to bypass them. How much integrity would we have if we did that," Pinkard said.

Pinkard and Bowden, in appearance, resemble a poor relation of Laurel and Hardy singing duo. Pinkard hails from Cajun country in Louisiana and Bowden just over the line in East Texas.

Bowden went to Los Angeles in 1970 with a group that later disbanded and worked for a while as part of Linda Ronstadt's band. Pinkard had established some credentials as a songwriter, including "Mell Tills," "Coca Cola Cowboy" and Tanya Tucker's "Pecos Promenade" in addition to "You're The Reason God Made Oklahoma."

Now THEIR SECOND ALBUM, titled "PGI" is out and has some controversial songs, including, "Guns Made America Great."

It goes: "If everyone were pistols, the rate crime would drop. Then, we could all sleep easier, no need for cops so let's get armed and dangerous, before it's too late. Guns made America great."

"I might say I'm an advocate of the right to bear arms, but a song is a song. Maybe we are furnishing something in comedy that nobody else is doing. The best humor is controversial. We have a strong social conscience," Pinkard said.

He said "Guns Made America Great" has been several years in developing. "I'm not at liberty to tell you the writers names, although both are prominent. Because of the controversial nature of the song, they have chosen to use noms de plume."

"We're not afraid of the backlash," he said. "But comedy is like being on a rodeo. It's not what you did last night it's the next bronc you ride down the road."

O'Neill takes aim at 'rate shock'

GOV. O'NEILL
"important bill"

Vermonters wants secure supply

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI) — Gov. Madeleine Kunin says Vermont should be assured a plentiful supply of cheap New York hydro power, thanks to hard work by state officials and a favorable report last week by the New York Power Authority.

But Kunin told a Monday news conference the state's energy future is still uncertain because contracts guaranteeing the low-cost New York power won't be signed for another five months.

"We have to recognize while this is good news, it is still a fairly uncertain period in terms of (New York) power," she said.

The New York hydro power is by far Vermont's cheapest electricity source, and the New York Power Authority told Vermont officials Friday the state will receive 125 megawatts of the power.

That allocation was less than the 150 megawatts Vermont has received in the past, but more than the 109 megawatts New York Gov. Mario Cuomo had previously said would be sent to the state.

The change came as other states receiving the power were unable to show they could deliver the energy. Appearing with Kunin at the news conference, Public Service Commissioner Gerald Tarrant said he believes Vermont should get the full 150 megawatts, and that the state is ready to file suit to obtain the power.

But Tarrant indicated his willingness to sue, Kunin shook her head. Later, both agreed a lawsuit would be a last resort.

Vermont officials want to make the state get the New York electricity, as well as hydro power imported from Canada, before the Vermont Yankee nuclear power plant begins an 18 month refueling and repair shutdown in mid-September.

into choosing between paying their energy bills or their food or shelter bills.

Under the bill, the state Department of Public Utility Control must spread out rate increases to pay for Millstone 3 over a three-to-five-year period and cannot allow the costs to be passed on in one rate hike.

LONDON (UPI) — The dollar rallied weakly today at the opening of European money markets, but traders said the reaction was only technical. The price of gold went lower.

Carbide center gets OK

BHOPAL, India (UPI) — A Union Carbide pesticide research and development center in Bhopal has been given government permission to continue its work, a senior company official said Tuesday.

B.P. Srivastava, director of the center, said the government has renewed its registration for three more years after the visit of a scientific inspection team.

Registration for the research facility was allowed to lapse April 30 following the leak of toxic gas from the Union Carbide pesticide production plant in Bhopal that killed an estimated 1,700-2,500 people last December.

The license for the pesticide plant was withdrawn and the factory will officially close Thursday.

Srivastava said a team of scientists from the department of Science and Technology inspected the operations of the research center after the gas leak amid press allegations it was involved in unauthorized research.
