United States burns Before 1985 ends, more than 2,000 merican homes and businesses will have been estroyed or damaged by fire.

No one expects to be among those horrifying statistics: I don't, neither do you. But if fire does strike, nothing can alleviate the trauma of having our homes and their contents destroyed by flames. The one thing we can do, though, to make it easier to return our lives to normal is to have our important papers and most valuable possessions protected in a place safe from fire.

What specific belongings should we take particula care to protect in the event this tragedy strikes home? Any items that are both valuable and irreplaceable. For instance, should your home be destroyed by ire, insurance forms and appraisals documenting your possessions will be crucial to filing a claim and starting to replace furniture, clothing, the like · Many documents that would involve both time and cost to replace and thus should be kept safe from fire: passports, bank books, stock certificates, tax records, birth certificates, marriage licenses and wills. You can add to this list on your own. . Items of pure sentimental value that are truly irreplaceable, such as old photographs, letters or

Where should your irreplaceables be stored to keep them safe in case of a roaring fire? Most of you would choose a bank safe-deposit box (and of course. I have a box in the bank on the ground floor of my apartment building in New York City)

But that means being tied into banking hours to retrieve things you need - and I have experienced how inconvenient this can be.

So for many items, millions of Americans choose a security chest or a safe kept at home. But the key here is to make sure that the chest or safe has been oughly tested for fire resistance. A recent survey of New York area residents, for instance, has found that 65 percent of us store irreplaceable records in metal boxes, many of which are advertised as being sulated" or "asbestos lined.

But the average home fire raises the temperature to more than 1,200 degrees Fahrenheit, while paper

As a result, while the metal boxes themselves will survive, they become incinerators for their contents. The so-called protection offers no protection at all

A new Fire-Safe Security Chest from Sentry Sales has been tested by Underwriters Laboratories and provides protection for its contents up to 1,550 degrees F for 30 minutes. The interior temperature of the box during the test remains well below 350 degrees F. The chest appears similar to the common metal box so many of us use to store insurance papers, tax records and other important documents at home - bu obviously, it's far safer. What if you have larger possessions you need to protect? Then, of course, one answer is a home safe Home safes come in a wide variety of sizes, shapes and models, including types that fit into the wall, into the floor, or that feature file drawers and specialized storage compartments. Prices vary widely, too, and

But the most important point to look for is the U.L. label, which means the safe has passed rigorous performance tests to ensure fire resistance against temperatures up to 1,700 degrees F for one hour and against the hazard of explosion. Most safes also are equipped with live-looking bolts and changeable combination locks for security

Relying on the possibility that you'll escape unharmed in case of fire is not acceptable. It is possible to lessen your losses by taking sensible ventive measures. If you do not already have your valuable papers and possessions in fire-safe boxes or chests, arrange for it today. Don't delay. Tragedy

Soviet leadership to talk to Israel

By Wesley G. Pippert United Press International

JERUSALEM - The Soviet Union has offered to renew diplomatic relations with Israel and speed Jewish emigration in a bold move that could catapult the Soviets into the Middle East peace process. Israel radio said Friday. Soviet Ambassador to France Vuli Voronitsov passed a message containing the offer to Israeli mbassador Ovidya Soffer during a two-hour meeting in a private home in Paris three days ago, the broadcast said.

Israel Television added that Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir will meet with his newly appointed Soviet counterpart, Eduard Shevardnadze, when both are in New York in September for the opening of the U.N. General It will be the first face-to-face encounter between an Israeli official and a member of the new Soviet leadership. Prime Minister Shimon Peres said earlier this week that Israel would agree to Soviet participation in the peace process if the Soviets would re- establish diplomatic The Soviet Union voted in the United Nations in 1947 for the establishment of a Jewish state but broke off relations after the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. In the war, Israel seized the Golan Heights Syria as well as the West Bank from Jordan and the Gaza Strip from Egypt. Israel annexed he Golan Heights in 1981.

The Israel radio report comes at a time when both countries are under new, more flexible leadership - Peres as Israeli prime minister, and Mikhail Gorbachev as Woviet leader and Eduard Shevardnadze as Soviet foreign minister. The Soviets have made no secret about their desire to be involved in the Middle East peace

Vronitsov was quoted as saying the severing of Soviet ties with Israel was a major mistake but that the restoration of relations depended on some Israeli move on the Golan Heights, a rocky plateau overlooking the Sea of Galilee Vronitsov reportedly said Moscow would not be averse to Israel retaining part of the Golan, the militarily strategic land along Israel's northeastern border with Syria, if Syria did not object. 'Mementos' bring an arrest warrant

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - City officials hauled off 20 years worth of what they said was trash piled to the ceilings of a house in a neighborhood with $400,000 homes. But the "pack rat" who lives in the house apparently escaped out the back door before authorities could arrest her Thursday. A fire official on the scene, where bag after bag of paper, trash, furniture and miscellany was thrown into the dump trucks, said he had never seen anything like it.

"It's piled to the ceilings," he said. "It's a jungle." An arrest warrant was issued for Ottille Tobin, also known as Natalie L. White, whose house has been described as an eyesore in the neat Studio City neighborhood for

Nicaraguans note anniversary

MANAGUA, Nicaragua - Half a million Nicaraguans chanting "the Yankee will die" packed a plaza Friday to elebrate the anniversary of the Sandinista revolution and hear President Daniel Ortega accuse the United States of supporting

The Plaza Carlos Fonseca Amador, which authorities say holds 500,000 people, was filled to capacity for the official celebration of the sixth anniversary of the 1979 Sandinista revolution that ousted dictator Anastasio Somoza. Most of the people, dressed in the Sandinista colors of red and black, waved banners and flags and several times broke into the chant. "Here, there, everywhere, the Yankee will die." Ortega accused the Reagan administration of imposing "state terrorism" on Nicaragua by mining its ports and financing the Contra rebels seeking to topple the Sandinista government.

"By law one is dead when the heart stops beating. I have no heart, yet here I sit. There must be something wrong with the law. I have talked with legal experts, and they assure me I am not dead," said Leif Stenberg, 52, the only non-American among the world's five artificial heart recipients.

The controversial Swedish definition prohibits the transplant of a heart from one person to another. Most other countries define death as the end of brain activity, which may leave the heart in

Soviets go on the offensive

MOSCOW - The Soviet Union accused Western nations Friday of "gross human rights violations" in an offensive apparently intended to counter criticism expected next month on the 10th anniversary of the Helsinki Accords.

The West regularly accuses Moscow of failing to honor the numan rights provisions of the accords signed in Helsinki, Finland, on Aug. 1, 1975 by 33 countries, including the United States and the Soviet Union

"The provisions of Helsinki in the humanitarian field are of great significance," said an article in the Communist Party newspaper, Pravda, "The fact remains that they are far from being completed by the West, and this causes concern among the broad public,

The Prayda article and a news conference were timed to promote a new booklet, "Ten Years After Helsinki," which called for restoration of the 1970s policy of detente and defended Moscow's honoring of the Helsinki Accords.

Pravda said, listing a series of alleged human rights violations in

NOW election overshadowing other issues

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - President Judy Goldsmith of the National Organization for Women, in a heated race for a second term against former ally Eleanor Smeal, mounted a new attack Friday against Reagan administration efforts to ban abortion.

In a move seen by many as responding to criticism by Smeal. Goldsmith used the first day of the NOW convention to go on the offensive against the administration's attempt this week to convince the Supreme Court to overturn its 1973 decision But Smeal, who headed NOW for five years until 1982 and supported Goldsmith's first bid for the presidency 21/2 years ago, said Goldsmith's actions are a reflection of Smeal's "Whether I win or loose, we will affect the direction of the National Organization for Women." Smeal told reporters.

You already see Judy Goldsmith announcing a more activist program."
The 2,500 convention delegates, both men and women who come from all walks of life, will cast their ballots Saturday in the race that could change the tactics and strategies of the Smeal wants to raise NOW's visibility and develop a more militant NOW," staging rallies and using more aggressive tactics to dramatize issues. Goldsmith wants to continue grass-roots organizing and low-key lobbying. "Ellie takes credit and Judy gives credit," said Meri Guyot of Los Angeles, who is voting for Goldsmith.

The election for NOW's presidency is overshadowing other topics at the convention, including sessions on pay equity, child care, women in politics, and abortion. Both Smeal and Goldsmith claim to be leading in the increasingly bitter race marked by accusations concerning money and the faltering membership of NOW. Goldsmith says she inherited a $1.7 million debt from Smeal's unsuccessful ERA campaign and had to work to rebuild the organization. Smeal contends she left NOW in 1982 with more members than ever before and with a surplus budget. She said the debt was a loan from an anonymous donor that is being forgiven. At a news conference, Goldsmith announced a new campaign to support a woman's right to abortion, but denied it was prompted by Smeal's criticisms. Goldsmith said her nents on the abortion issue were neither a change of tactics nor a "ploy" to counter Smeal.

'Obviously, there is no way that we're not going to respond, and respond strongly to the Reagan administration's abortion Goldsmith announced plans for a major campaign supporting abortion, and said NOW would file its own legal brief with the Supreme Court next month urging the justices not to abandon their landmark decision. "In seeking to overturn that ruling, and recriminalize

the health and lives of women that is truly shocking,

Goldsmith said.

Both candidates have spent hours talking with delegates, many wearing raspberry T-shirts supporting Smeal or blue buttons for Goldsmith. Betty Bone Schiess of Syracuse, N.Y., the first woman ordained as an Episcopal priest, came to the convention to support Smeal because she said, Smeal "understands how the religious right is attacking the women's movement.

Firehouse issue would make a good sit-com

the town should sell its firehouse on Tolland Turnpike resembles the pilot for a situation

Indeed, the drive's chief organizer said at midweek that if his cherished proposal were to reach the ballot, he could well find himself voting against it.

Later, the complications led Stephen Penny, the leader of the Democratic majority on the Board of Directors, to threaten litigation against the town's own attorney over a then-unwritten ruling on who would be allowed to vote on the sale.

So before even one signature had been placed on a petition, the latest chapter in the furor surrounding Buckland was already inching its way toward a crescendo. There is a good chance the petition drive itself will become irrelevant on Monday, when the Democrats hold a news conference on their highly secret political solution to the Buckland dispute. But things will get worse before they get any

No matter what the Democrats have to say, it is unlikely that their foes will abort the petition drive, since doing so would make them look positively foolish. That means the drive's principal result probably will be to hasten the opening salvos in this summer's Battle of Buckland, which will play a large role in the Nov. 5 town election

BUCKLAND, where the disputed station is located, is a rapidly developing area that is supposed to be protected by volunteer firefighters who belong to the independent Eighth Utilities District Fire Department. But the station is owned James P. Sacks and staffed by the department serving the Town of Manchester Fire District, also known as the South Manchester Fire District

The threat by Penny came before a ruling Friday by Kevin M. O'Brien, the town attorney. that the vote on the sale must be restricted to residents of the South Manchester district.

The GOP drive would have had a greater chance of success if residents of the Eighth District had been allowed to participate.

But predictably, the ruling went the way Penny himself a lawyer, thought it should. At any rate, it represented the resolution of only one complication.

Ronald Osella, the leader of the Republican petition drive, admits that there are other When Osella declared that he might vote against the proposal, he said the effort had raised questions about job security for unionized town firefighters and questions about safety for the Bryan Farms subdivision in the event of a fire. As is traditional, the Republicans themselves have no firm opinion about any of the problems. They plan to hire their own counsel, who will no doubt produce more wrinkles as he or she tries to the state has informed the registrars that all this resolve the current ones, which are so numerous that there isn't enough space to list them.

BECAUSE PEOPLE tend to sign petitions, the GOP drive is liable to prove successful whether or not the Democrats offer a feasible solution to the

But unless a bit of immoral suasion is brought to bear on Manchester's political leadership, townspeople might have to wait until .. fter the election on Nov. 5 to pull levers on the Buckland Getting the sale on the ballot Nov. 5 requires cooperation from the Democratic majority, which doesn't want to sell the firehouse. But if the Democrats make it necessary to call a special election, they can expect the Republicans to develop the refrain: "Look at the big spenders," because one would cost $10,000 or so. By Election Day, that $10,000 would seem like a

That leaves the Democrats in the unlikely position of telling the voters that they want the sale on the ballot because it's cheaper that way. but also want everyone to vote against it because it's the right thing to do.

Much confusion is likely And if the election is actually called Nov. 5, the form will certainly fit the substance.

The registrars of voters will have to come up with extra rooms (accessible to handicapped people, of course) and voting machines in eight voting districts - all while the schools, which double as polling places in most districts, are in session. Then there will be the extra checkers. moderators and other officials. The secretary of is necessary for the election to be legal.

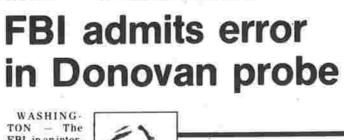

THE END RESULT of both the drive and the conflict are unpredictable at this point, as they should be if the Buckland Show is to provide us with misguided merriment for the full season. But several possible scenarios come to mind. Because the Eighth District is planning to build a fire station two lots away from the one owned by the town, Manchester might just end up with backto-back symbols of stubborness. Firefighters from the two rival departments could wave to one another and a sign boasting about the landmark pair could be placed on I-84 to draw tourists into

Or the two departments could find themselves sharing the town station on Tolland Turnpike. That seems the most logical solution, and it may be what the Democrats plan to announce Monday But previous fights and slurs indicate that unpleasantness could occur if that comes to pass. Or, given the substance of the proposed referendum question, which calls for sale of the town firehouse to the highest bidder over $400,000, we could end up with the Buckland station being converted to a convenience store while the Eighth District's building nearby was being converted to a fire station.

While it is evident that much remains in doubt, at least two things are certain: Many officials and politicians are wasting a lot of time and money on an issue that should be resolved through detailed negotiations between the town and the Eighth District. And if public safety continues to be a political football in town for much longer, the end result will be a danger to us all.

Earhart in 1937 ranks as one of the 20th century's greatest mysteries. Air Force retiree Vincent V. Loomis spent much of the past 15 years tracking down tales of Earhart's last flight. In "Amelia Earhart: The Final Story," he presents his theory: she and her navigator Frederick Noonan crashed in the Marshall Islands and were taken as Japanese prisoners of war. Loomis, with the help of Jeffrey L. Ethell, examines the path the attempt to circle the globe and set a record. Loomis, who particitesting over the Pacific atolls, recalled discovering an aircraft hidden on one of the tiny islands. He gave little thought to the find at researching Earhart's last flight

He interviewed many islanders who recalled stories and sightings of a white man and woman in the custody of Japanese soldiers. The prisoners allegedly died of

Court strikes balance in church cases

By David E. Anderson United Press International

"It was the year of religion at the U.S. Supreme Court," according to Stan Hastey, longtime court watcher for the Baptist Joint Committee on Public

"Suprisingly," he adds, "it was also the year of the big comeback for separation of church and state." Most church-state analysts agree with Hastey's conclusions, arguing that after what appeared to be a radical undermining last term of the principle of separation, the high court moved in its just-ended erm toward striking a balance on church state

"The most striking feature of the 1984-85 term is what did not happen," according to the American Civil Liberties Union. "Most significantly, the court did not undermine the separation of church and state Rejecting the Reagan administration's invitation to permit the state to "accommodate religious impulses, the court, in four historic cases ... reaffirmed our Constitution's insistence on strict neutrality in religious matters.

In a world beset by religious fanaticism, the court's refusal to bend the constitutional rules to permit the state to advance religion is a welcome exercise in true conservatism," the ACLU analysis

When the term opened in October, "accomn tion" seemed to be the new buzzword to describe the trend of court decisions. In previous decisions the justices had come down in favor of a Minnesota tuition tax credit plan, the use of tax dollars in Nebraska to pay a chaplain at the state legislature and a Pawtucket, R.I., tradition of using public money to maintain a Christmas Nativity scene.

In terms of volume alone, the court dealt wth more major church-state cases than in previous terms, with seven cases on its docket, including four that were considered particularly noteworthy. Those four included an Alabama statute providing for a moment of silent prayer, a Connecticut law requiring employers to give employees time off or their Sabbaths, and New York City and Grand Rapids Mich., cases involving public aid to parochial schools

Inland fishing advisory

Fishing inland fishing has been generally slow around Connecticut, as warming weather attracts swimmers and weather attracts swimmers and boaters.

Trout fishing has been good at the Housdonic River Trout Management Areo, Highland Lake, East Twin Loke at night, and Candlewood Lake whered 16-pound, seven-ounce brown and several rainbows up to two pounds were reported during the post week.

Trout fishing was foir to good of Uncas Pond, Narwich Pond, Beach Pond, Lantern Hill Pond and Long Pond, Fair conditions have been reported at the Willimantic River Trout Management Area, Natchaug River, Mt. Hope Pond, Scantic Rives and the upper Farmington River, evenings.

River, Mt. Hope Pond, Scantic River, and the upper Farmington River, evenings.

Largemouth bass fishing is good to excellent at West Twin Lake and Batterson Park Pond where a six-and-one-half-pound largemouth was reported. Good fishing is indicated at Crystal Lake in Middletown, Lake Pocatopaug, Bolton Lake, Connecticut River coves and Pachaug Pond where a six-pound bass was taken.

Good fishing for smallimouth bass if reported on the Housatonic River and the Farmington River lust below Unionville. A four-and-one-half-pound smallimouth was taken from the Farmington below Unionville. Smallimouth bass offer fair prospects at Wyassup Lake.

Pickerel fishing has been foir at Long Pond and Wauregan Reservoir. A four-and-one-half-pound, 25-inch cholin pickerel was reported at Tyler Pond during the post week.

Fishing for northern pike is fair at Wright's Cove, Wethersfield Cove and Crow Point Pond on the Connecticut River.

Kokanee fishing is generally slow at Wonanscopomuc Lake, West Hill Pond and East Twin Lake. The fish are at depths of 25-to 25 feet.

Fishing for pantish is generally good at Bolton Lake, Lake Saltonstail, Rogers Lake and Morey Pand. Calico bass provide good fishing on the Cannecticut between Cromwell and Middletown; bluegills and yellow perch at East Twin Lake; white perch on the Housatonic River below Derby Dam; and sunfish and calico bass of Rainbow Reservoir. Fishing for pantish in general is also good at Wess. Twin Lake.

White cartish are pientiful near the Housatonic River below Derby Dam; and sunfish are pientiful near the Haddom Bridge and at Chapman's Pand on the Connecticut River.

A 38-pound carp was taken near the Baldwin Bridge at the mouth of the Connecticut River this week.

Textron stops plans to sell Bell Helicopter

by recent allegations of overcharging the federal government for defense work, withdrew plans Friday o sell its Bell Helicopter subsidiary. The decision is directly related to the Army's decision to suspend portions of its payments to Bell Helicopter for defense work in the wake of the allegations, said John Carberg, a spokesman for the Rhode Island-based company "On July 12, the Army advised Bell that it was reducing or suspending a portion of its progress payments by 50 percent until questions have been reolved concerning alleged accounting, mischarging and internal control deficiencies," Carberg said. The decision not to sell "was a contributing factor." In March, Textron, the state's only Fortune 500 company, announced that it planned to sell Bell in ar effort to offset some of the debt incurred in the $1.4 billion acquisition of Aveo Corp., of Greenwich, Conn Textron in 1960, is based in Fort Worth, Texas and employs ab- 7,200 workers. Revenue in 1984 was $672 "Although Textron has received serious indications of interest in Bell from potential purchasers, we believe that the interests of our shareholders would be better served by deferring further consideration of a sale," said B.F. Dolan, president and chief executive Carberg refused to rule - the possibility of a future sale when the multi-billion dollar aeropace and technology firm settles its problems with the federal "I'd prefer not to make any predictions ab-that Carberg said. "Bell has been meeting with Army officials and other government agencies on ways to resolve the problems as soon as possible. Dolan said the company is also ahead of schedule on equisition, which is lessening the company's need to "We expect to accomplish the major portion of our

AT&T, child battling over disconnect fee

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) - American Telephone & Telegraph Co., in a case that raises "important onstitutional and jurisdictional" questions, is battling in federal court over an allowance claimed by one of its former subsidiaries at the center of the dispute is a bill for $87,100.20

New England Telephone Co. sent AT&T for the one-month cost of disconnecting the telephones of customers who don't pay their long-distance bills. "There is a considerable value in the ability t disconnect for non-payment which (we) should get. NET spokesman John McCatherin said Friday. AT&T has refused to pay the fees, resulting in NET's suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Portland. No hearing date has been set on the case.

Until the Bell system was dismantled Jan. 1, 1984 to settle an antitrust suit, NET was a part of AT&T. Since divestiture. NET provides only local telephone

AT&T must still use NET's facilities to deliver long distance lines and for services such as disconnecting the phones of those customers who refuse to pay ong-distance bills.

Under a May 1984 Federal Communications Commission decision, there is no mention of whether the local phone companies can charge AT&T for the

"NET's lawsuit is no ordinary collection action; it raises an important constitutional and jurisdictions issue," AT&T states in papers filed with the court.

The Maine Public Utilities Commission last November ordered NET to raise $1 million by biling AT&T for that disconnection right, at the rate of 33

NET attorney Everett Ingalls argued in his court brief that the FCC "explicitly" left the discognection fee issue to state regulators. NET attorney Everett Ingalls counterd that the fee is "a fair price for a service NET performs completely within Maine." But AT&T claims that infringes on commerce and oversteps the state's authority

"The Maine commission simply cannot increase interstate charges so as to reduce intrastate charges," AT&T attorneys Michael Nelson and Keith Jacques argue in their court filing.

"Well I certainly hope they will look very closely at the vetoes and not try to override. Every single one was done for a specific reason," said O'Neill, who has vetoed 46 bills since becoming governor in 1981. The Democratic governor, whose 37 vetoes from the four previous sessions all have been sustained, is likely to succeed again this year simply because of the
