New board candidate says government's the issue

PETER McNAMARA
"We're junkies"

By Kathy Garmus
Assistant City Editor

In an election year that holds the promise of a ballot cluttered with contradictory questions, Manchester voters could face an extra surprise — a thirteenth candidate for the Board of Directors.

Peter J. McNamara, 34, an outspoken critic of current government who attends most directors' meetings, announced Tuesday that he is seeking the nod from voters to run on Nov. 5 as a third-party candidate for the board. He has already collected about half of the 131 petition signatures he needs to be listed on the ballot.

McNamara, a Libertarian who owns the Buffalo Water Tavern, says that if he makes the ballot, it will be a race he can't lose — even if he is not elected.

"My objective is to create change," he said. "I don't have to be elected to the Board of Directors to create change. I want to open people's eyes to a different philosophy.

The Libertarian philosophy calls for government at the smallest level possible. It does not, for example, embrace government involvement in constructing houses or giving tax breaks to developers in an attempt to lure business.

Citing the town's Love Lane housing project as an example, McNamara said the town has "given away so many assets it's unbelievable."

In the Love Lane project, the town awarded a developer the right to build 14 "starter" houses on town-owned land. The town will hold a sleeping second mortgage on the land in an effort to lower the cost of the houses.

McNamara said that had the land been simply sold to a developer, the town could have used the money to hold down tax increases.

"It's not the town's function to solve problems like that. Let the market take care of it," he said.

Projects like the one on Love Lane do little to solve local problems, McNamara said.

"They're just throwing a Band-Aid on a cut that needs 500 stitches," he said.

Once the town directors and administration decided they wanted to try to bring more affordable housing to Manchester, McNamara said, they should have addressed what he described as the root of the problem — excessively restrictive zoning regulations that drive up the cost of building houses in town.

"They stopped affordable housing," he said of town officials.

McNamara's potential opponents in the election had varied reactions to his candidacy.

"I wish him luck," William J. Diana, the Republican minority leader on the Board of Directors, said today when told of McNamara's candidacy. "At least he's giving the people another choice."

Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg, a Democrat, said she thought the two-party system was a healthy one and predicted McNamara's candidacy would not be successful.

"I think the current Board of Directors has done a good job and will be re-elected," she said.

McNamara said he believes that government's role should be to protect the rights of individuals — nothing more, nothing less. People have become so used to shelling out money for Social Security and other programs that they have forgotten how to take care of each other, he said.

"We've lost our ability to help people and to feel good about helping people," he said.

Uncontrolled spending and taxation also mean an uncertain future, McNamara said.

"We're junkies," he said. "We gotta have the good life. We're borrowing 'ourselves into poverty."

McNamara said he thinks most people are Libertarians at heart. The Democratic and Republican parties offer voters no real difference, he said, challenging a reporter to define the two.

"Even Webster can't define what a Democrat or a Republican is," he said.

It is the lack of a clear choice that prompts nearly half of all eligible Americans to stay home on election day, said McNamara, adding that he would like to see a "none of the above" choice listed on the ballot.

Despite low participation in elections, McNamara said people are not apathetic.

Most people are interested mainly in feeding and clothing their families and going bowling on Wednesday night," he said. "They only get excited if you try to take their bowling away."

McNamara said he is disappointed.

Syria hints at move to free hostages

By David Zenón
United Press International

CA$ABLANCA, Morocco — Arab leaders gathered in Morocco for the opening of their first summit in three years amid reports that Syria might try to divert attention from today's conference by winning the release of eight Westerners held hostage in Lebanon.

Syria, Algeria, Lebanon and South Yemen boycotted the summit of the 21-nation Arab league.

King Hassan II of Morocco, the meeting's host, contacted all the nations at the summit hours before the first session opened, sources said. They said Hassan was trying to get the leaders to agree on what to discuss at the summit, divided even before its opening by inter-Arab squabbling.

A preliminary conference of Arab foreign ministers was unable to agree on an agenda.

"There seems to be a general desire among the participants to avoid making inter-Arab relations worse than they already are," one diplomat said. "The Syrian boycott, and the fact that King Fahd of Saudi Arabia is not attending the summit himself, are clear indications of how delicate the situation is."

The meeting was clouded by reports Syria would try to steal the conference's thunder by engineering the release of eight Westerners — five Americans and three Frenchmen — held hostage in Lebanon.

The eight hostages were not identified. Six Americans, four Frenchmen and a Briton kidnapped since March 1984 in west Beirut remain missing. Another American who failed to show up for work in west Beirut last December is believed to have been abducted.

Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said Syria would try to win release of the hostages before the Arab leaders begin their meeting today.

Official news agencies in Damascus had no immediate comment on the report.

The Egyptian news agency based its report on a story from London in Kuwait's Al-Siyassah newspaper, which said its information came from an anonymous Western diplomat who recently arrived in London from Beirut.

"Damascus wants to create a large-scale international propaganda festival to steal the limelight from the Arab summit conference in view of what the release of the hostages means to Western politicians and media circles," the Western diplomat was quoted as saying.

Political observers said they expected little more than a vague statement to emerge from the summit.

A preliminary meeting of Arab foreign ministers produced no agenda for the Casablanca summit.

"It seems this will be the most unproductive summit ever, despite the fact that it took three years to put together," a diplomatic source said.

"There have been differences and vagueness in Arab ranks," another diplomatic source said.

"But arriving for a summit conference without even an agenda is something unprecedented in the history of Arab conferences."

And diplomats said decisions by King Fahd of Saudi Arabia, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and the emir of Kuwait to skip the summit took the cloud out of the meeting.

Leading the list of issues that have split Arab ranks is the agreement between Jordan and the Palestine Liberation Organization to negotiate with the United States and Israel.

Multi-colored home makes neighbors red

NEWINGTON (UPI) — The occupants of a rainbow-hued house painted raspberry, pink, violet and turquoise said today they will not change the color or remove the beige toilet and poka-dot bathtub from the lawn despite neighbor's complaints.

"I think it's disgusting and it makes the neighborhood look like a big laughing box," said Robert Trapp, among the residents who signed a petition asking town officials to force the occupants to make their house conform with the conventional homes of the area.

But Dax Tine and Ruby Lou, owners of the home, said they consider it a "work of art."

"To me Walt Disney is one of the greatest men who ever lived," said Tine, a 38-year-old father. "The kids love it and it's perfectly suited for what we do."

The couple began to work on the house last year and completed the outside a few weeks ago. "We wanted something our three children would like," Tine said, pointing out the yellow walk leading to the house, a 4-foot-tall pink and lavender bird feeder, toilet, bathtub and sign marked "Oz" on the front lawn.

Angry neighbors fear the home, is reducing the market value of their properties.

"They have made a mockery of this quiet, conservative neighborhood," said Raymond C. Lecuire. The house "is attracting more traffic than this short street can safely handle."

The town manager, sanitarian and a building code inspector scrutinized the property two weeks ago as a result of the petition. They found only two violations: the house number was not painted in a contrasting color and the couple's white fantail doves, which were classified as pigeons, were not allowed on residential property.

Since then Lou and Tine have repainted the house number and the building code inspector has classified the birds as pets.

But neighbors said they will not give up the fight until the town forces the couple to remove the ornaments and tone down the color of the house.

Town Manager Frank B. Connolly said because the house is not in a historic district, any attempt to restrict the colors would violate the owners' civil rights.

"It's really a tough situation," he said. "The solution rests with the neighbors getting together and trying to iron out their differences."

Tine said the petition was carried out "in a sneaky way" since he and Lou were never approached before it was filed. And the couple said they are now being subjected to harassment with neighbors yelling obscenities while passing the house. Lou, 35, a free-lance artist who also does window displays, said she and Tine put extensive planning and thought into creating just the right affect. "We didn't do it for the neighbors," she added.

Pope assails 'apartheid'

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, on the eve of a visit to Africa, today declared his "convicted and total" repudiation of South Africa's apartheid policy of institutionalized racial discrimination.

The pontiff spoke in an address to more than 10,000 tourists and pilgrims attending his weekly general audience in St. Peter's Square.

"Our repudiation of every form of racial discrimination is convinced and total," he said. "It is founded on the awareness of the dignity common to every man, made in the image and likeness of the creator and called to the position of the son of God."

Student boycotts bring new unrest in S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police clashed with black youths near Durban and Port Elizabeth today as white college students began a boycott to protest emergency rule by South Africa's white minority government.

Police fired tear gas, rubber bullets and snatching powder to break up a mob in Umhlati, near Durban, where township offices were gutted by gasoline bombs during a new wave of arson, looting and stone throwing.

Students at the white University of Cape Town began a three-day boycott of lectures today to protest the state of emergency invoked July 21 to end 11 months of bloody political violence in black townships.

Similar boycotts already are under way at the University of the Western Cape — for mixed-race "colored" students — and at the black Vista University in Soweto, outside Johannesburg.

The families of 19 blacks killed and 38 people wounded by police during a funeral at Langa in March filed a $1 million law suit against Law and Order Minister Louis le Grange and officers involved in the incidents.

Seventeen of those killed at Langa were shot in the back and several of the wounded in the incident were paralyzed.

Police also reported two men and a woman were arrested for looting in Umhlati and nearby Kwa Mashu, where violence has flared following black claims that dissident lawyer Victoria Mxenge was murdered by government death squads.

Reports said a 15-month-old girl was burned to death when her family's home was gutted in a township outside Durban but the report could not be confirmed independently.

Police Tuesday raided the homes of two leading black dissidents — including Winnie Mandela, the wife of jailed African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela.

In a routine summary of recent unrest, police reported that the number of people detained under emergency rule provisions fell below 1,000 today. Authorities said 1,459 people had been detained but 597 were released.

Racial violence that erupted last September has claimed some 500 lives, including at least 25 blacks killed since President Pieter Botha declared the state of emergency July 21 to curb unrest.

Police fired rubber bullets and teargas today to disperse youths who torched a bus and a truck and stoned a clinic and a bus station in townships near Durban, authorities said. Two men and a woman were arrested.

At Fort Beaufort, near Port Elizabeth, youths rolled burning tires into a home, which was destroyed, police said.

Police broke up an anti-apartheid demonstration Tuesday in Brandfort, 225 miles south of Johannesburg, then arrested 30 people who took sanctuary in the Mandela home. Authorities said they found seven gasoline bombs and five gallons of gasoline in the house.

Mrs. Mandela was not at home when police, firing tear gas, moved into the house to make the arrests.

Dr. Abu-Baker Asvat, health secretary of the disident Azanian Peoples Organization, said seven security police officers raided his home and confiscated a number of books and video tapes.

He said the officers threatened to detain him under emergency rule provisions but changed their minds.

Baseball strikers win few friends on Main Street

By Kevin Flood Herald Reporter

Striking major league baseball players were not held in particularly high esteem by the patrons of Main Street restaurants this morning.

Further down Main Street, at the Sunny Side Up restaurant, it was the man slaving away in the kitchen who held the strongest views on the strike.

His companion, Dougherty Street resident John Anderson, agreed. "This thing will hurt the fans more than anybody," he said.

Anderson said this morning that regardless of who is right or wrong on the issues, attendance at ball games will suffer once the strike ends.

Back at the Brass Key, Colchester resident Argyle Roberts offered a solution. "I think the baseball will force a change in the way the game is played."

When the IOH matches the grant from the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving dollar for dollar, it will have reached its $275,000 fund goal for construction of the pool.

Richard Conti, vice president of the IOH, said today that the group will conduct a formal fund drive beginning in September. He said the group has not yet decided on how the drive will be conducted.

Conti said IOH hopes to have completed its fund drive in January or February so that construction of the pool can start in May and be completed in the summer.

IOH, a non-profit organization that teaches handicapped and retarded people to swim, has been raising funds since 1982 and had reached $192,000 when it was awarded the $41,500 matching grant this week.

In January, the town Board of Directors approved a design for the pool drawn by Manchester architect Richard Lawrence. The Board of Education approved the plans last fall.

The pool will be attached to the existing pool complex at the high school. Plans call for a 24-by-42-foot shallow-water pool, access ramps from the exterior to the pool, a storage area, and a separate heating and mechanical system.

The band now includes four of McCleite's five sons, Bob, Larry, Dave and Paul. McCleite and his wife, the fifth son, Lee McCleite, will make a guest appearance at tonight's concert as well.

Zinsser hits back at CCAAG

By Kathy Gormus Assistant City Editor

State Sen. Carl A. Zinsser, R-Manchester, said today that his appearance on the Connecticut Citizen Action Group's list of the "10 most dismal" legislators was "no surprise."

And he criticized the citizens' group for failing to provide the General Assembly with input on some of the bills it used to rate the performance of legislators.

In rating him as one of the state's worst lawmakers, the CCAAG specifically cited Zinsser's role in a bill that extended a moratorium on telephone competition in the interstate, long distance market.

Zinsser said today that CCAAG failed to testify at any of the public hearings the committee held around the state on the bill.

The CCAAG last year ranked Zinsser among the General Assembly's 12 worst legislators and targeted him for defeat. Zinsser in turn attacked the group for putting out what he said was a misleading pamphlet about his record.

The pamphlet was issued by Stephen T. Cassano, a Democratic town director who opposed Zinsser in the Fourth Senatorial District in the 1984 election.

Zinsser today called the CCAAG "a very negative organization whose only intent is to get their name in the newspaper whenever they can."

Almanac

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 7, the 218th day of 1985 with 168 to follow. The moon is approaching its last quarter.

On this date in history: In 1782, the Order of Purple Heart was established by Gen. George Washington to honor Americans wounded in the Revolutionary War.

In 1864, Jacqueline Kennedy became the first president's wife to give birth while he was in the White House since the days of Grover Cleveland. The infant, Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, died two days later.

In 1971, the Apollo-15 moon ship returned to Earth safely despite failure of one of its three parachutes during splashdown in the Pacific.

In 1984, the Washington Legal Foundation, in a complaint to the House Ethics Committee, said Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro violated the Ethics in Government Act by failing to report her husband's finances.

A thought for the day: 18th Century German physicist and writer George Christoph Lichtenberg said, "It may not be natural for man to walk on two legs, but it was a noble invention."

White House retreats

Dialogue shows test ban differences

By Jim Anderson United Press International

WASHINGTON — In their first indirect dialogue, President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev apparently have agreed and then disagreed on a central disarmament issue — the possibility of banning all nuclear tests.

Verification of a comprehensive (total) test ban remains a major problem. The indirect dialogue began July 29, when Gorbachev announced the Soviets would stop all underground testing for five months and longer if the United States would do the same.

The issue is a central one. A Washington "think tank," the Center for Defense Information, said in a recent study, "Frequent, regular and rigorous testing of any weapon is essential to ensure successful functioning in battle."

The equivalent of 150,000 tons of TNT, Herbert Scoville, a former CIA official who died July 30, wrote in his last published article that a total arms control ban, such as the one the Soviets proposed, is always easier to verify than a partial one, such as the one now in existence.

Engineers seek shutdown cause for Challenger

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — Engineers inspecting Challenger's rocket engine hope to nail down the cause of an engine shutdown during a launch that almost forced an emergency landing in Spain.

Two hot dog-sized temperature sensors in the No. 1 engine's fuel pump are the prime suspects in the engine shutdown and the high-tech thermometers are expected to be out of the engine by late today for thorough analysis.

Commander Gordon Fullerton and co-pilot Roy Bridges guided Challenger to a smooth if dusty touchdown on a dry lakebed runway in the Mojave Desert at 3:45 p.m. EDT Tuesday to complete the most complex science mission yet flown in the shuttle program.

Preliminary inspections indicate Challenger completed the 19th shuttle flight in good shape. "The inspection team has reported very minimal damage," said NASA spokesman Charles Redmond.

It will take scientists years to fully analyze the reams of data collected by Challenger's 13 major experiments, but shuttle engineers hope to determine the cause of the ship's engine shutdown by the end of the week.

Miller said he expects to complete the case against Walker Thursday and the defense has said its case, which may include testimony from Walker, will last one day.

Nothing open for Julie Tashjian

Julie Tashjian says she's all dressed up and she wishes she had some place to go. So until the right opportunity turns up, she expects to stay where she is for another term as secretary of the state in an administration headed by Bill O'Neill as governor one more time.

That would delay for at least a few years an answer to the question of whether Julie H. Tashjian of Windsor, a self-described "political animal," can attain the upward mobility that lifted some of her predecessors to other jobs.

Barbara Kennedy of Hartford, for example, resigned as secretary of the state before her first term was completed to run successfully for the Congress.

Gloria Schaffer of Woodbridge cut her second term as secretary to run for the U.S. Senate, and when that failed Schaffer wound up on the now-disbanded Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington.

And then, of course, there was Ella. One-time state legislator, one-time secretary of the state and one-time congresswoman Ella Grasso became the brightest success story for a woman in Connecticut by being elected governor.

So whether Julie, certainly as experienced in politics as the others?

"I'M INTERESTED — everybody's interested — in moving up," she says from behind her desk in the temporary office she occupies in the "portable" building on the State Capitol lawn.

"I'm ambitious," she adds. "But there's nothing open." Translated, that means the First Congressional District seat is occupied for the foreseeable future by her friend Kennedy. The U.S. Senate seat is filled by another VIP Democrat for the 1986 election — Chris Dodd. And the governor's office is that you-know-who Irish guy as a tenant.

Tashjian is one of the unsung professionals in her party whose job security is in good shape as long as O'Neill wins re-election. Tashjian knows she is out of a job if Toby Moffett can steal the gubernatorial nomination from O'Neill. Toby has said so, he would retain only Attorney General Joe Lieberman of New Haven from the current lineup of top elected officials on his ticket.

But Tashjian isn't losing any sleep over that. "He (Toby) won't find anybody who can beat me," she says. "Let 'em underestimate me, honey," she laughs.

But confidence is a luxury she says O'Neill cannot afford. She believes the governor needs to take Moffett more seriously and get off this kick that Moffett isn't going anywhere.

Tashjian acts a little peeved, in fact, over what she sees as too much of an overconfident attitude by O'Neill. "You can't afford to take anything for

Capitol Comments Bob Conrad

TASHJIAN, 47, says she got into politics "as a hobby — something to do," nearly 20 years ago. She worked locally in Windsor for the early years, as a member of the Democratic Town Committee, the Democratic Women's Club, as deputy register of voters, and chairing the jury committee. Seven years ago she made the bigger time by gaining a seat on the Democratic State Central Committee.

Then there came the 1982 Democratic State Convention and a dozen women started milling around with their eyes on nomination as secretary of the state.

Eleven wound up in a convention showdown, but after all of the smoke had cleared, there was Julie with the endorsement in her pocket.

Her schedule now keeps her in motion all around the state for a mix of appearances as the chief elections official and as a working, keeping-in-touch Democratic pol. In a typical week, she addressed a Travelers retirees' organization, closed the General Assembly, spoke to service clubs at luncheons, reviewed the Governor's Foot Guard, and was the center of attention at three flat-out Democratic political meetings. She also made appearances on televised interview shows and took a class of Killingworth students to lunch in Hartford.

All of the time she is keeping informed about political doings throughout the state. And she is doing her share of the basic work toward the next elections — sort of as an investment in her own future as well. "If we don't win," says Tashjian, "it won't be because I didn't work."

The questionable equipment purchases were made through an "inter-agency agreement" with the Agriculture Department's Graduate School.

But the school, which is self-supporting and thus does not get funds appropriated by Congress, is no longer allowed to make such inter-agency agreements, according to a General Accounting Office ruling. All its agreements, estimated as high as $30 million over a four-year period, will be terminated as of Sept. 30.

In fact, the school's inter-agency agreements were the subject of a three-year investigation by the Agriculture Department's inspector general and now a grand jury is studying the school's operations. The school's director was recently asked to resign.

According to the Army audit report, which was obtained by our reporter Kenneth Reid, Fort Belvoir paid the Graduate School $21,685 for word-processing equipment in 1982, and $77,000 for office equipment, furniture and supplies in 1982-83. It also purchased data processors from the school as part of its educational contracts in 1983. The auditors recommended that the fees be returned, but the school spokesman said it has no intention of returning the $49,450.

These fees were not a profit, he said. "It cost that much to do business with the Army." As for the retraining of the two posts: camouflaging their equipment purchases, the audit stated. "Responsible personnel ... told us that they used the school to acquire items because it was easier and faster than acquiring them through normal acquisition channels." A Walter Reed employee told the auditors that the procedure "was viewed as a time-saving measure for all concerned."

But the shortcut clearly violates Army regulations. As one Pentagon public-information officer recalled, his requisitioning days at Fort Sill, Okla., "We had to submit a justification for everything down to our jockey shorts."

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state Capitol was evacuated briefly when smoke from welding in the basement was circulated through an air conditioning system from four stories above, officials said.

Firefighters were called to the historic building about 2 p.m. Tuesday and there was no damage and Capitol staff and other workers were allowed back into the building in about half an hour.

Welders were cutting a pipe near an open chimney in the west basement of the historic building when the smoke went up the chimney to the roof where it was drawn into an air conditioning system.

Army bases skirt rules on purchases

WASHINGTON — Applying the Army's talent for camouflage, two military posts in the Washington area hid some purchases that might have raised eyebrows. These ranged from personal computers to a coffee maker and an exercise machine.

The purchases were disguised as "educational services" to bypass procurement channels. Why did military officials ignore regulations? Because it was "easier and faster," Army auditors were told by those responsible. It was also, the auditors added, more expensive.

The two bases that tampered with the rules were Walter Reed Medical Center in Washington, D.C., and Fort Belvoir in nearby Virginia. In fiscal 1982 and 1983, the years covered by the audit, the bases bought about $225,000 in equipment without going through the required competitive-bidding process.

The auditors' report, which has never been made public, concluded that the educational services were "not cost effective" and included "unnecessary administrative fees" — not to mention the regulations that were overlooked.

Officials try to identify child

NEW BRITAIN — The state medical examiner's office is seeking to determine if a decomposed body found in a park was that of an 18-month-old child who has been the object of a police search since last week.

The body was found Monday night in Battersea Park in neighboring Farmington by a passerby and New Britain police said they believe it was the body of the infant.

A spokesman at the chief state medical examiner's office in Farmington said Tuesday the body was decomposed and an identification had not been made. The spokesman also said further tests were needed to determine the cause of death.

New Britain police began their investigation July 27 when relative of Efron Luis Ugrillano complained the child was missing and might be dead. Police went to Puerto Rico July 31 to search for the mother and her boyfriend.

The mother, Gloria Lago-Velez, was arrested on drug charges. She is in a maximum-security prison outside San Juan, awaiting an extradition hearing Friday. A New Britain police spokesman said police believe the body found Monday night is that of her child.

CHFA offers more bucks

ROCKY HILL — The Connecticut Housing Finance Authority is making about $30 million available for mortgages by using funds from early repayments of prior loans.

The state-backed authority also announced Tuesday it is easing requirements for elderly homeowners to obtain reverse-annuity mortgages under a program it launched earlier this year.

The $30 million in regular mortgages will be available on a first-come, first-served basis to low- and moderate-income people buying their first home, although prior homeowners can also obtain reverse-annuity mortgages. The fixed-rate loans will carry an interest rate of 11 percent and a term of 25 years, the CHFA said in a statement from its Rocky Hill headquarters.

The authority generally provides mortgages through the sale of tax-exempt bonds and said the use of the funds from early repayments of prior loans should be a bonus for people awaiting the next regular bond sale.

Blaze damage alleviated

SALISBURY — Town officials will open their vault today to find out whether records dating back to the 1740s survived a blaze which gouged out the columned center of the 236-year-old Town Hall.

Dominic A. Persempere, the state's public records administrator, is more determined than ever to have the municipal building equipped with fire alarms after the suspicious fire.

State police sifting through the charred remains of the elegant Greek Revival building said Tuesday they had found evidence of arson and had compiled a list of 10 to 15 suspects.

Persempere said he feared the records in the town's two vaults would be "baked," but that some may be salvagable.

The town clerk's vault contains records of public meetings, births, deaths and marriages dating from the town's incorporation in 1746, land records from 1741, tax lists from 1860, and other documents, including a Bible published in 1750.

Study sees office space glut

HARTFORD — Office vacancy rates in the area have reached double-digit levels with the largest amount of available space found in suburban communities, a survey shows.

The survey, by the Commercial Real Estate Council of Connecticut, said that 12.5 million square feet of office space in Greater Hartford is vacant, bringing the vacancy rate to 14.8 up from the 11.5 percent vacancy rate reported in the company's year-end 1984 survey.

In the communities east and south of Hartford, Farley said, there is a 15.8 percent vacancy rate with 399,270 square feet of the total 2.53 million square feet vacant. The city of Hartford has a 12.8 percent vacancy rate, Farley said, with 921,252 square feet available.

Better use for lottery surplus

To the Editor:

Recently, the state Lottery Division announced that it has a multi-million-dollar surplus and it announced, also, what it will do with all that money. Believe it or not, with all the many urgent needs this state has, the lottery surplus will be liquidated by giving a free ticket to every 25th buyer of one.

Well, I, for one, know where those funds can do the most good — toward helping the elderly. This state, one of the wealthiest in the United States, has one of the poorest records in the United States for helping the elderly.

Medical fees, hospital fees, prescription fees, health insurance premiums, convalescent home charges and even home health care charges keep creeping ever higher and higher. There isn't a corner of the state, there isn't a city, town or hamlet that can't use some relief.

Added to the situation is the chaos and the bad feelings generated by the negative climate in Washington, D.C., where the administration and the Congress have locked horns over the proposed 3 percent cost-of-living increase for Social Security recipients.

A 3 percent increase, mind you, means an average increase of less than $200 a year, less than $4 a week. What a magnificent sum!

And that's not all. Even as the Social Security payments increase (maybe by 3 percent a year), the monthly premium each Social Security recipient pays for Medicare (contrary to widespread belief

Reagan renews offer to Soviets on tests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, who had a small skin cancer removed from his nose last week, will wear a hat and a sun block on his nose when he is out in the sun, he said.

Anna McCann's jam sessions are fruitful

By Nancy Pappas Herald Reporter

"My mother's never been bothered by a challenge. She was raising us, doing the housework, working full time and going to school. In the 1950s, that was not at all common."

Elva McCann

When Anna McCann of Phelps Road talks about a jam session, she is not referring to jazz or rock 'n' roll. She means, instead, a summer work session — a session designed to turn pounds and pounds of produce into pints and pints of juscious jam.

Peach conserve: 3 pounds peaches, 1 large, unpeeled oranges, 1 8-ounce can crushed pineapple, 1/2 cup raisins, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup water, 1 tablespoon cornstarch.

Strawberry jam: 1 pound strawberries, 1 pound sugar, 1/2 cup water, 1/2 cup lemon juice, 1/2 cup fresh or frozen blueberries.

Anna McCann slices an orange as she makes jam in her Phelps Road home. A retired school teacher, she preserves many pounds of jelly and jam each summer.

Bake-off includes microwave category this year

Microwaves have come a long way from their infancy when a microwave was featured in the kitchen of the House of the Future at Disney's Epcot Center. The introduction of new compact microwaves has dramatically affected the purchase of microwaves. People who previously could not afford or did not have the room for a microwave oven, including one- and two-person households and college students, are now buying and using these marvelous pieces of equipment.

Blueberry crumb dessert has an attractive light brown crumb topping. Its crust is made by combining part of a pudding-included white cake mix with butter, and heating the mixture in the microwave.

Blueberry crumb dessert: 1/2 cup dairy sour cream, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1/2 cup fresh or frozen blueberries. Blueberry butter and blueberry pie: 3 cups peeled, sliced fresh peaches, 1/2 cup fresh blueberries, 1/3 cup peach brandy.

U.S. FARMS: FEWER — BUT LARGER

There are only about one-third as many farms today as there were in 1930, but today's farms are nearly three times larger. Growing domestic needs and world trade have encouraged larger-scale farming, which is better able to absorb costs and make practical use of mechanization.

Supermarket Shopper

By Martin Stone
United Feature Syndicate

DEAR MARTIN: I've been sending for manufacturers' refund offers for years. But senior citizens like myself, who do not use large amounts of a product or buy the large sizes, are at a serious disadvantage. We are not likely to accumulate enough proofs of purchase before an offer expires. I want to suggest that manufacturers give us seniors some consideration when they make their refund offers.

E. SMITH
TITUSVILLE, FLA.

DEAR ANN: I agree with you. The growing trend toward high-value refunds and multiple proofs of purchase puts senior citizens, as well as singles, at a disadvantage. I would like to find one manufacturer who rises above the typical refund instruction, and offers an alternative that considers the interests of all its customers.

The right stuff can make cookies the perfect snack

Youngsters enjoy special lunch-box treats for school and after-school snacks. These mini-adults also get down on the nutritious bandwagon. While still enjoying cookies and other sweet treats. Round out a school day's menu with wholesome sweets, such as cookies, breads, waffles and pancakes filled with added grains, fruits and nuts.

Peanut butter, cream cheese, fresh-fruit jams and jellies are healthful fillings for fruit-out breads. These are for snacking with skim milk or fruit juice and travel well in a school lunch box.

Peanut-oatmeal cookies
2 or 3 fresh Western Bartlett pears
1 cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs
1/4 cup milk
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
2 cups oatmeal
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
2 cups rolled oats
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
Wash pears, but do not peel. Core and chop to equal 2 cups. Set aside. In medium bowl, cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Mix in milk and lemon peel.

Almond banana bars
1 cup chopped banana (unblanched) almonds
1/2 cup whole-wheat flour
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1/4 cup dark brown sugar (packed)
2/3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup buttermilk
1/2 cup vegetable oil
1/2 cup mashed bananas (about 1 1/2 large)
2 eggs
Buttermilk-caraway icing (optional)
1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup chopped nuts
2 cups raisins
In medium bowl, cream shortening, sugar and eggs until fluffy. In another bowl, combine flour, baking soda, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg; add flour mixture alternately with applesauce to creamed mixture.

Buttermilk-caraway icing
2 tablespoons buttermilk
1/2 teaspoon caraway seeds
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup sifted powdered sugar
Mix buttermilk, caraway seeds and almond extract into powdered sugar.

Eating disorders increase among today's teenagers

By Lidia Wasowicz
United Press International

BERKELEY, Calif. — An increasing number of American youngsters are suffering serious health problems and developing eating disorders as a result of mounting pressures to stay thin, a new report warns.

Some 40,000 youngsters, most of them females, are starving themselves, while another 2.3 million are afflicted with a related eating disorder called bulimia in which victims induce themselves to vomit.

Constant promotions of the "cut-thinness" and stigmatization of fatness have given many parents and children the wrong idea about children's normal body shape and weight," reports a 11-member Ad Hoc Interdisciplinary Committee on Children and Weight.

"Children and teenagers are bombarded with social messages promoting an 'ideal' body shape that is unrelated to youngsters' normal growth and genetically inherited characteristics.

"The report, published by Nutrition Communications Associates of Berkeley, says many young children and teenagers — some overweight, some not — are being wrongly encouraged to control their weight through extreme low-calorie diets or excessive exercise regimens. "These programs fail more often than they succeed," the committee says.

"Strident weight control measures during a child's developmental years have been shown to cause retardation of growth, development of unhealthy eating and exercise habits, the report concludes.

"Concentration on any one weight loss method, particularly restrictive dieting, should be discouraged."

Instead, parents should help children develop a positive self-image, improved social coping skills, better eating habits and more regular physical activity. And society must stop stigmatizing fatness and discriminating against fat people, the nutritionists advise.

Pancake proves popular Viet dish

Today, dear readers, we are scraping the barrel. We have filled all the requests we've gleaned from you — or we've referred them to the restaurants who are concocting the answers.

So today we're on the trail of a recipe that I'm hoping to prepare at home. The Lotus Restaurant, a fine Vietnamese eating establishment in Vernon, serves an unusual crisp stuffed pancake, called a Saigonese pancake. Canh Nguyen, the co-owner and chef, was more than willing to supply this recipe, which turned out to be far simpler than we had expected. The dish is popular here, as it was at the restaurant which she operated back in Viet Nam.

Salgonese pancake
1 cup rice flour
1 cup water
1 cup unwatered coconut milk
Pinch salt
1 teaspoon vegetable oil
1/2 cup cooked shrimp
1/2 cup cooked pork, shredded
1/2 cup onion, shredded
1/2 cup bean sprouts
Combine the rice flour, water and coconut milk thoroughly. This may be done in a blender. Set aside batter to rest one hour. Heat oil in a large skillet until very hot. Pour about one-third of the batter into the pan. Immediately add the shrimp, pork, onion and bean sprouts to one side of the pan.

Chicken wings fit for backyard grill

It's time for a change in the barbecue menu. Next time the charcoal is at the ready, grill some chicken wings.

Chicken wings are an inexpensive way to feed a large group and are finger-licking good with a special sweet-tangy sauce. Another different cocktail treat is pork and rye-bread kabobs. These are marinated in a special sauce.

Grilled chicken wings
1 jar (14 ounces) cranberry-orange sauce
1/2 cup dry white wine or apple juice
1 pound soy sauce
1/2 cup vegetable oil
1 large onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, chopped
1/2 cup coarsely ground ginger
2 teaspoons dry mustard
3 pounds chicken wings (wing tips removed)
In a large bowl, combine all ingredients except chicken and onions, turning frequently. Remove from marinade; wrap each pork cube with a strip of bacon. Alternate pork cubes and bread cubes on skewers. Grill 6 inches from charcoal for 10 minutes, turning and basting frequently with remaining marinade. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 12 servings.

Deep-dish pie
1 recipe butter crumb pastry (recipe to follow)
5 cups fresh blueberries
1/4 cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
In a large mixing bowl, combine blueberries and remaining ingredients. Turn into a buttered 9- or 10-inch deep-dish glass pie plate. Top with crumb mixture. Sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Set pie on waxed paper in oven. Microwave on high for 11 to 16 minutes, or until blueberries are tender, rotating 1/4-turn after 6 minutes, then every 3 minutes. If filling is bubbling very hard, reduce power to med-high, and increase cooking time by 2 or 3 minutes.

Butter crumb topping
1 cup flour
1/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons butter
1/4 teaspoon salt
Beat ingredients in a small mixing bowl at low speed until particles are fine. Sprinkle on top of deep-dish blueberry pie. Microwave as directed.

Blueberry jam
1 1/2 pints fresh blueberries, washed and drained
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup powdered fruit pectin
In a 2-quart casserole, mash berries. Stir in lemon juice, peel and pectin. Microwave on high for 10 to 12 minutes, or until mixture comes to a full rolling boil around the edges and in center. Stir twice during cooking. Stir in sugar. Microwave on high for 5 to 7 minutes, or until mixture comes to a full rolling boil, stirring after half the cooking time. Boil for 1 minute. Store the mixture in the refrigerator or pour into hot sterilized jars, seal and process.

Giglios mark 50th anniversary

A reception was held recently at Fiano's Restaurant in Bolton to honor Leonard and Alice (DePietro) Giglio of Coventry on their 50th wedding anniversary. About 150 friends and relatives attended, including Robert DePietro and Mary (Futner) Spotto, who served as the Giggios' best man and maid of honor at their wedding.

Music was furnished by Dubaldo's Orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Giglio were married on June 20, 1935, at St. Rose Church, East Hartford. They formerly operated Allen's Food Market in Coventry for more than 20 years.

They have three sons, Leonard Giglio Jr., father of their grandsons, Leonard and David; Raymond, father of their granddaughter, Amy-Lynn; and Raymond.

The anniversary couple live on their farm on Old Coventry Road, Coventry.

Advice

Seniors too often victims of fast-talking fund-raisers

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: "Frustrated in Palm Springs" complains that because her 91-year-old sister had sent thousands of dollars to politicians in response to their letters soliciting for campaign funds, when Sister realized that the letters were only "form" letters and not personally written to her, she wanted her money back.

DEAR ABBY: Your column on irritating speech habits hit some well-chosen targets, but missed one of them completely. You wrote that it was incorrect to use "apropos" as though it meant "appropriate," and went on to add, "It doesn't. It means 'concerning,' 'regarding,' 'pertaining to' or 'relevant.'"

In fact, "apropos" has two correct usages. One of them is as you define it, the other is when it is used as a noun. Larousse's French Dictionary defines it as: "something said or done in an appropriate time or place," and gives as an example, "to have the sense of what is apropos."

DEAR DR. GOTT: My mother is 76 and hasn't been to a gynecologist since she went through menopause. She says there's no need and that it's "undignified."

Is it necessary for her age to have regular gynecological exams? DEAR READER: Although some gynecologists urge nonmenopausal women to undergo annual examination, the pendulum is swinging away from this practice. If your mother has no symptoms, I agree with her that regular exams are unnecessary.

There is some medical disagreement as to the simplest, most accurate and least expensive method to test for diabetes. Many experts now believe that the five-hour glucose tolerance test is a cumbersome annoyance for most patients. Therefore, some doctors are substituting just one blood test, taken two hours after a heavy meal or glucose drink. If the blood sugar is above normal after two hours, the patient very likely has diabetes.

You may very well be one of the patients who could avoid sitting around a laboratory for five hours, having repeated blood samples drawn. Ask your doctor if he would be satisfied if you underwent the single two-hour sample. It is called a two-hour postprandial glucose determination and might give him the information he requires.

If you have questions about menopause, you can get answers in Dr. Gott's new Health Report on the subject. Send 75 cents plus a self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on Menopause.

Thoughts

Skepticism and a vibrant relationship with God do not mix. This "ism" would fill us with doubt by telling us that we can't know for certain that God is who the Bible says he is, like the Bible says he is, even if he is. Skepticism tells us that it's foolish in this day and age to believe in anything that can't be scientifically verified.

formed bulbs. They're commonly known as bunching onions and there are special varieties to plant in your garden that do not readily form bulbs, so are true scallions. However, any onion picked while young and slender can be used as a scallion. The term "green onion" is used to refer to any onion picked fresh and green, no matter how large, as opposed to one that has been left to mature and form a dry papery skin. In most recipes, green onions may be used when scallions are specified, although they may have a stronger flavor than true scallions.

This year the only spectating Manchester Legion will be doing at the state tournament will be in between innings, not in stands.

Manchester, for the first time since 1981, will be a participant and not viewers as the state Legion tournament rolls around. Coach Steve Armstrong's Post 102 contingent earned the right to represent Zone Eight as its champion with a two-game sweep of East Hartford in the dangerous Zone Eight playoffs.

The current contract in the NHL expires Sept. 15, 1986. It was a five-year deal with an option to cancel in the fourth year, which the players association has done.

NEW YORK — Major league baseball's owners and players headed back to the bargaining table early today to try reaching an agreement on a new labor contract that will end a one-day old strike which has already cost cities and workers millions of dollars in revenues.

As a result, 13 games scheduled for Tuesday night were canceled and, unless an agreement is reached early today, Wednesday's games will be wiped out as well.

The two sides met three times for a total of 8 1/2 hours Tuesday, giving indications that a settlement might be near. However, Donald Fehr, acting director of the Players Association, said they were still far apart on the major issues.

However, Lee MacPhail, chief negotiator for the owners, thought it was about to end the strike quickly. The major issue is the salary arbitration. The owners remain insistent that an artificially low salary be imposed on the players.

Workers were already beginning to feel the impact of the strike. Judging by the impact of the seven-week walkout by the players in 1981, the cancellation of every game will directly affect everyone from parking lot attendants to entire business communities that depend on the income generated by major league baseball.

Thoughts aplenty

Vote may fix price of station

By Alex Girelli
Herald Reporter

The majority Democrats on the Board of Directors plan to pass an ordinance Tuesday night that would fix $600,000 as the minimum value of the town's Buckland firehouse.

Democratic Majority Leader Stephen T. Penny said today that the purpose of passing the ordinance is to emphasize to the people of Manchester that the Republican Party is proposing to sell the firehouse on Tolland Turnpike for two-thirds of its value.

The Republican Party is circulating a petition that could force the town to offer the station — located in the independent Eighth Utilities District, which runs its own fire department — for sale to the highest bidder with a bid of more than $400,000.

The Republican petition would put the question on the ballot in the Nov. 5 election. If the majority of voters in the town fire district back the sale, town officials might be forced to go forward with it. But the Democrats are also petitioning for a referendum on an ordinance that would forbid the sale at any price.

It remains unclear what would happen if voters favored both the sale and the ordinance forbidding it.

Penny said today that the Democratic directors will abide by the decision of the voters if they back the Republican sale proposal, despite the ordinance set for passage by the six Democratic directors Tuesday that would set the minimum price at $600,000.

Penny, a lawyer, said that the vote of the people would prevail over the vote of the directors on the price. He said his assumption is that any ordinance passed by the voters will automatically supersede the one the Democrats will pass Tuesday.

He said the only condition under which he thinks that would not apply is if the right to decide on the sale is a right reserved in the Town Charter to the elected representatives. He said he sees no evidence of such a reservation.

A public hearing is scheduled on the Democratic ordinance during the meeting Tuesday. The directors meet at 8 p.m. in the hearing room of Lincoln Center, with the public hearings scheduled early in the agenda.

The ordinance, the latest of several Democratic responses to the Republican initiative, would fix the minimum value of the firehouse at $600,000 until July 1, 1986, when a new value would be established.

Aside from the two contradictory binding referendums that are the subjects of the petition drives, the Democrats have put two advisory questions on the Nov. 5 ballot.

One would ask the voters of the town fire district to say if the town should sell the firehouse for no less than $600,000 with the provision that the buyer lease back space to the town to continue its firefighting operation. The other would ask the voters of the town should share the firehouse with the Eighth District.

The Eighth District has the right to fight fires in Buckland, where the firehouse is located. The town has the right to fight fires elsewhere in the northern part of town.

Poor have high mortality rate
By Gina Del Guercio
United Press International

BOSTON — Although the nation's child mortality rates have dropped dramatically since the 1960s, the gap between poor families and their wealthier counterparts has not closed, doctors say.

"That gap is not going to close, either, unless more attention is paid to preventative care as well as hospital care, according to a report on Boston's mortality rates published today in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Poor children are one third more likely to die prematurely than are members of the wealthier classes, said Dr. Paul H. Wise, an instructor in pediatrics at Harvard Medical School. "But when the disparity in medical care is eliminated, as it is in Boston, there is still a disparity in mortality."

"This shows we need to move into the preventative arena and address additional underlying inequities in the environment of these children," he said.

Researchers analyzed not only the overall rate but broke it down into age groups. The study found the largest difference existed for children during their first few months of birth. The smallest difference was during adolescence.

"We found that prematurity was a critical factor in the disparity for newborns," said Wise, the report's primary author. "Between 28 days old and one year, respiratory disease was significantly elevated in poor children."

"We found that in school-age children the fire mortality rate is extremely high in poor children," he said.

"In adolescents, there is only a

A bolt of lightning that knocked down power lines at the corner of New State Road and Hilliard Street shortly after midnight Wednesday cut off power for several hours to Manchester Water Department customers, NU officials and an Eighth Utilities Fire Department spokesman said today.

The lightning knocked down the power lines at about 12:35 a.m. NU spokesman Stephen Kelly and fire department spokesman Thomas O'Marra said.

Kelly said the initial outage affected only 440 NU customers. But to restore power, he said, NU work crews had to interrupt service to an additional 870 customers.

"We had to interrupt power so our crews wouldn't be working with live wires," Kelly said. "In the dark, it can be a little troublesome doing that sort of thing."

Kelly said the outage affected NU customers on New State Road, Tolland Turnpike, Parker Street, Oakland Street, and part of North Main Street.

Car bomb kills two at U.S. base

By Steven Donziger
United Press International

FRANKFURT, West Germany (UPI) — A powerful car bomb exploded as workers arrived today at the sprawling U.S. Air Force Rhein-Main Air Base, killing two people and injuring at least 11 others, military authorities said.

"It was terrible," said base spokesman George Silna. "I saw a brilliant yellow tongue of flame and our office was suddenly full of debris. Furniture was blown all over."

George Wegmann, 56, a civilian base employee, said, "I saw overturned burning cars and three blood-drenched people on the pavement."

Sgt. Dave McMahon, a base spokesman, said one person died in the blast and another, a woman, was dead on arrival by medical evacuation airplane at the burn center of Landstuhl Army Hospital, about 100 miles west of the base.

A badly injured U.S. Air Force man was treated at the Wiesbaden Air Force hospital 30 miles to the west and a civilian German woman was treated at U.S. Army and civilian facilities in Frankfurt.

At least 10 other people were treated at a base clinic for sprains and bruises.

McMahon could not say how many of the casualties were military personnel but West German civilian sources said both the dead were Americans. Mahon said the casualties would be identified about their families were notified.

No group claimed responsibility for the attack but a spokesman for Kurt Gebmann, the West German attorney general and chief connier-terror prosecutor, said the crime looked like the work of the Red Army Faction, also known as the Baader-Meinhof Gang.

Military authorities said the bomb went off at 7:15 a.m. between the headquarters of the 43th Tactical Airlift Wing and a base dormitory, blasting out windows and causing extensive damage to both buildings.

Witnesses said the bomb left a 5-foot-deep crater outside the buildings.

West German police said the blast damaged or destroyed 29 cars parked in the area. West Germany's federal anti-terrorist squad was immediately called into the case.

West German police said the bomb exploded in an automobile and was apparently the work of terrorists.

Police said they were seeking a fat man in a black leather jacket, possibly a foreigner, who was seen leaving the base in a taxi with stolen license an civilian authorities were investigating the bombing.

An officer at the base said the headquarters building and the dormitory were heavily damaged and had to be evacuated.

A special press center set-up to handle bombing queries was located in another part of the base because the base public affairs office was in the damaged headquarters structure, the officer said.

Civilian authorities said the huge base on the outskirts of Frankfurt was immediately sealed off.

The base is adjacent to Frankfurt Airport, where a bomb went off in an international departure terminal seven weeks ago, killing three people and wounding scores. It was the NATO military installations in West Germany. Earlier attacks caused no casualties.

Americans expect release by rebels

By Steven Donziger
United Press International

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — President Daniel Ortega ordered the army not to interfere with today's expected release of 29 American religious activists and 14 journalists reported held by U.S.-backed rebels in Costa Rican territory.

The boat — carrying 29 Americans from the "Witness for Peace" organization and 14 journalists, some of them Americans — was on a two-day voyage to protest U.S. policy in Nicaragua when it was reported captured Wednesday by Contras.

A spokesman for the activists, in radio contact with Managua, said they were captured by U.S.-backed rebels of the Democratic Revolutionary Alliance, or ARDE, near Las Cruces, the halfway point along the San Juan River that forms the Nicaraguan-Costa Rican border.

The spokesman for the captured group, Bob Armstrong, said over the radio that the group expects to be released today if the Nicaraguan army stays out of the area.

In a visit to the Witness for Peace office in Managua, Ortega said the fate of the Americans "is in the hands of the U.S. government," but said he had given very clear instructions "to the military high command to avoid the area."

Nicaragua's Foreign Ministry said Wednesday an army helicopter had flown over and photographed the area where the Americans were thought to be held.

Contra leader Eden Pastora vowed beforehand to stop the boat if the group went through with its two-day journey. But an ARDE spokesman later denied having captured the boat and charged the report was a publicity stunt by the ecumenical Christian group.

"We definitely did not fire on them. We have not even seen the boat the Americans are traveling in," said Jose Davila, ARDE's political coordinator in San Jose, Costa Rica.

In Washington, a "Witness for Peace" spokeswoman said the boat's radio operator, Warren Armstrong, told the Managua office at 9:45 a.m. EDT Wednesday: "They want everyone off the boat — we can see three (armed men). We're getting off the boat... They are Contras."

Armstrong contacted Witness for Peace member Pat Manning in
