Discovery makes precision landing at dawn

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — Discovery's space repairmen glided to an exceptionally smooth desert landing today, capping the 20th shuttle mission and leaving behind in orbit a successfully rewired communications satellite.

Commander Joe Engle guided the 99-ton space freighter to a precision landing in the rosy light of the California dawn at 6:16 a.m. PDT — nine minutes before sunrise — to wrap up a 3 million-mile orbital adventure.

The big spaceship kicked up a cloud of dust as its main landing gear gently kissed the dry lakebed surface of runway 23 before rolling to a stop 30 seconds later — business as usual for Engle, a shuttle veteran who used to fly X-15 rocketplanes at Edwards.

"Eddy looks beautiful," Engle said just before touching down in a reference to Edwards Air Force Base, where he was once stationed. For Engle, co-pilot Richard Covey, James "Ox" van Hoften, William Fisher and John Lounge, landing signaled the end of one of the most productive flights in the 4-year-old shuttle program.

The Syncom 3 communications satellite spacemen van Hoften and Fisher "hot-wired" Saturday and relaunched Sunday appears healthy and is slowly coming to life after 4 1/2 months as a space derelict.

NASA officials said early today data beamed down from the drum-shaped $85 million satellite indicated its crucial solid rocket motor is in better shape than had been expected. The satellite will not be fired to its final orbit until late October.

"OK, looks like this bus is coming home," Engle said after firing Discovery's twin braking rockets over the Indian Ocean for about four minutes, enough to slow the space freighter by 324 mph and drop it out of orbit.

After a searing glide across the Pacific Ocean, Discovery knifed across the California coast southeast of Santa Barbara at more than four times the speed of sound and then glided to touchdown at Edwards.

Landings on the concrete runway at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida have been ruled out until later this year when the shuttle's landing gear system can be modified to reduce tire and brake damage.

Discovery's flight was especially rewarding to van Hoften and Fisher, who pulled off one of the most daring spacewalks yet attempted and successfully rewired the crippled Syncom 3, which had been stranded in a useless orbit since launch from Discovery in April due to electrical problems.

The satellite is owned by Hughes Communications Inc. and is one of a four-satellite fleet leased by the Navy for military communications.

Hughes paid about $12 million for the repair attempt. If engineers successfully put the big relay station in the proper orbit in late October, insurers stand to recoup 75 percent of the $84.7 million paid out when the satellite was lost.

After two launch delays because of bad weather and computer problems, Discovery narrowly beat an approaching storm to make it into orbit last Tuesday.

The crew promptly launched two communications satellites. A third was deployed two days later to earn NASA $35 million in delivery fees.

But the highlight was the space-walk repair of the Syncom 3 and the orbital surgery to bypass its faulty automatic self starter, which failed to engage on April 13 and left the relay station dead in space.

Reach for the peach

Bomb blast kills Israeli soldiers

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A suicide bomber detonated a car packed with explosives at an Israeli-backed militia checkpoint in southern Lebanon today and Beirut radio said Israeli forces shelled villages in retaliation.

In Beirut, Moslem militiamen fought with machine guns and a new wave of kidnappings was reported near the war-torn capital.

The pro-Syrian Baath Party Organization said one of its members carried out today's suicide attack on the outskirts of the village of Kfar Houna and reported 30 South Lebanon Army militiamen and seven Israeli soldiers were killed by the blast.

Police and Moslem militia sources said "many people" were killed or wounded in the seventh such attack since June. Israel acknowledged the attack but said there were no casualties in the early morning explosion 13 miles southeast of the port of Sidon.

State-owned Beirut radio said Israeli gunners retaliated by pounding 10 southern Lebanon villages near the Shiite Moslem market town of Nabatiyeh with artillery and mortar fire, wounding one person.

The radio said the suicide car was driven into the South Lebanon Army checkpoint by Issam Ahmed Hussein Khodr, a Lebanese Baathist.

Police and Moslem militiamen said the suicide driver ignored an order by South Lebanon Army gunmen to stop, crashed into the checkpoint and detonated the explosives inside his car.

The Kfar Houna checkpoint is one of several manned by the Israeli-backed militia in and around the southern Lebanon security zone, which Israel established along its northern border after its withdrawal from the area this year.

In Moslem west Beirut, a section of the divided Lebanese capital threatened with severe bread and fuel shortages, machine-gun battles broke out between Moslem militiamen outside a bakery.

Battles between rival Christian and Moslem militias and a string of kidnappings have kept main roads between the two sectors of the capital closed, contributing to the bread and fuel shortages in Moslem west Beirut.

Beirut's grain supplies are in government silos in Christian east Beirut along with most of the divided city's mills. Beirut's main fuel storage tanks are also in the eastern part of Beirut.

In the latest abductions, militiamen loyal to Tourism Minister and Druze leader Walid Jumblatt kidnapped 50 Christians from several Druze-controlled villages in mountains overlooking the capital, the Christian Phalangist-owned Voice of Lebanon radio station said.

If confirmed, the latest abductions would raise to at least 105 the number of persons kidnapped in the past 10 days by rival militias.

The kidnappings and suicide bombing came a day after a Palestine Liberation Organization official loyal to PLO chairman Yasser Arafat was seriously wounded by gunmen in the seventh attack since July on Arafat supporters in southern Lebanon.

Educators hear of changes and prepare for new year

By Susan Vaughn Herald Reporter

In September 1961, the Manchester public schools held two days of orientation for 100 new teachers — complete with tours of the town and a welcoming party on the Cheney Great Lawn.

Today, 18 new teachers and one new principal were introduced in the Manchester High School cafeteria to a staff of more than 500 at the start of an hour of orientation consisting of welcoming speeches by school administrators and teachers' union officials.

Nine teachers were given golden rulers for completing 25 years with the school system.

But the changing numbers and methods of orientation do not indicate a diminished interest in teachers, according to school administrators and others who spoke this morning.

Curriculum and staff development are the "number-one priority for the year," School Superintendent James P. Kennedy said as he welcomed the teachers in his 14th year as head of the school system.

Kennedy said he has set a personal goal of being in the schools three days a week during the first semester of this year, when he hopes to visit with at least half the teaching staff.

"If you see me walking around with a lost look, talk to me," he implored. "Tell me what you think I ought to know — but gently."

Kennedy told the teachers that many of the issues in education have changed over his 29 years in education, shifting away from concerns directly related to the improvement of the classroom.

Schools open Wednesday

Public, parochial and technical schools in the Manchester area open Wednesday. Complete bus routes were published in the Herald Aug. 21 and 23.

Following are the starting times for each school. Unless otherwise indicated, students should report to their assigned homerooms.

Manchester public schools: Manchester High School, 7:50 a.m.; Bennet and Iling junior high schools, 8:20 a.m.; Regional Occupational Training Center, 8:25 a.m.; Nathan Hale School, 8:30 a.m.; Washington School, 8:40 a.m.; Waddell School, 8:45 a.m.; Keeney and Bowers schools, 8:50 a.m.; and Buckley, Martin and Verplanck schools, 9 a.m.

East Catholic High School: Freshmen only report for orientation at 8 a.m. Regular classes begin Monday.

Howell Cheney Regional Vocational-Technical School:

7:50 a.m. Freshmen should report to the cafeteria, sophomores to the gym, and juniors and seniors to their shop homerooms.

Assumption Junior High School: Starts at 8:30 a.m. with Mass.

St. Bridget School: 8:15 a.m.

St. James School: 7:55 a.m.

Bolton public schools: Bolton High School, 8 a.m.; Bolton Center and Elementary schools, 8:50 a.m.

Coventry public schools: Coventry High School, 7:20 a.m.; Captain Nathan Hale School, 8:10 a.m.; George Hersey Robertson School, 8:35 a.m.; Coventry Grammar School, 8:50 a.m. Elementary students will be dismissed early.

Andover Elementary School: 8:40 a.m.

RHAM Junior High School: 7:40 a.m.

RHAM Senior High School: 7:45 a.m.

primary concern in the schools — a controversial eighth-grade health course and protecting children in relation to the outbreak of AIDS.

Allan B. Chesterton, director of curriculum, stressed the role of the teaching staff in education. He cited several curriculum changes that will become effective this fall as the result of teacher curriculum committees.

The changes Chesterton outlined include a completed revision of the K-6 curriculum, the revised elementary math program and plans for a revised seventh-grade math curriculum. Once the junior high math program is updated this year, the entire public school math program will have been revised, making it "one of the most up-to-date in the country," Chesterton said.

In addition, Chesterton said, services for gifted children will be expanded to kindergarten this year; a vocal music curriculum will be introduced in grades 5

Defense lawyers castigate tight security for suspects

NEW YORK (UPI) — A team of defense lawyers will protest the tight security kept on a group of 12 Puerto Rican separatists due to be arraigned today in connection with the 1983 robbery of $7 million from a Wells Fargo armored car.

Civil rights attorney William M. Kunstler said Monday his client Ivonne Melendez Carrion and perhaps all of the 11 suspects transferred Sunday night from Puerto Rico were in the Metropolitan Correctional Center in New York.

But Kunstler said federal officials would not tell him the exact whereabouts of the suspects and called that a blatant violation of their constitutional right to counsel.

An associate called the isolation of the suspects "an outrage."

"This is the fourth day they have been held totally incommunicado. Now they have been nearly 24 hours in what to them is foreign and hostile country. Even Trevor Tutu was permitted to talk to his lawyer," said Ronald L. Kuby, an associate of Kunstler's New York-based Center for Constitutional Rights.

Federal marshals, the FBI and a spokesman at the MCC refused comment on the exact whereabouts of the suspects or when and how they will be brought to Hartford, Conn. for arraignment.

U.S. Attorney in Connecticut Alan A. Nevas Monday would neither confirm or deny that the suspects were at the federal prison in New York.

Nevas said the 11 suspects arrested in Puerto Rico and a 12th seized Friday in Dallas would be arraigned this afternoon before U.S. Magistrate F. Owen Eagan.

Nevas said a three-day continuance for a preventative detention hearing had been granted to the defense.

Kunstler said the defense team he is organizing will oppose any move to hold the suspects without bail pending trial.

Kuby said the defense would move today to disqualify Nevas from the case because he has been nominated for a federal judgeship.

Kuby said Nevas also should be disqualified because he ordered federal officials to deny Kunstler access to the prisoners.

"This is a particularly egregious violation because our clients are just down the street, and we can't get in to see them because of the arbitrary and capricious whim of the United States attorney," Kuby said.

In Hartford Monday, about 30 demonstrators marched in front of the federal building where the suspects will appear.

Carmello Ruiz, a spokesman for the Committee to Free Puerto Rican Prisoners of War, said, "If the United States can go to Puerto Rico and go into people's houses, arrest them, put them on military planes and bring them to this country, that shows to the world that Puerto Rico is a colony." "My personal belief and hope is that the clandestine groups will retaliate," he said.

Seventeen people were indicted Aug. 23 by a federal grand jury for their alleged involvement in the robbery.

Besides the 12 suspects who will be arraigned in Hartford, Anne E. Cassin, 26, will be arraigned in Suffolk County Courthouse today in Boston. She was arrested Friday in Cambridge, Mass.

A 14th person, Luz Berrios Berrios, 34, was captured Friday in Cuernavaca, Mexico, 40 miles south of Mexico City, said Jose Lavanderos, a lawyer with the National Center of Democratic Lawyers.

Nevas was not sure when Berrios would be extradicted to Connecticut.

The alleged front man in the heist, Wells Fargo guard Victor Gerena, is believed to be hiding in Cuba, the FBI said. Two other suspects were still at large.

Higher drinking age brings changes on campus

By Mark A. Dupuis
United Press International

HARTFORD — A campus police officer will be required at large parties at Yale University and students will no longer be able to drink with a beer after exams at the pub at Central Connecticut State University.

The 21-year-old drinking age has returned to Connecticut, and one place where the effects of the Legislature's actions will be felt the most is on the state's college and university campuses.

Several colleges and universities have changed their alcohol policies for students in response to the increase in the drinking age, which took effect Sunday with the arrival of September.

At Central Connecticut in New Britain, the campus pub will not reopen for the fall semester, but the move was not so much a policy change as a reflection of reality, said Richard Judd, executive dean of the university.

"We have closed our pub, but that's not so much of a policy as much as it is a reflection that we won't have the number of people legally able to drink, Judd said, estimating 70 percent of Central's students are under 21.

At Yale University in New Haven, the new drinking age law has prompted a new requirement that a campus police officer be stationed at all large parties on campus, said Lloyd Suttie, dean of student affairs at Yale.

Yale also will issue a separate identification card to students 21 and older that will be required before they are allowed to drink at campus events, Suttie said.

At the University of Connecticut in Storrs, several changes have been made in the student alcohol policy, but the campus will not be reacting responsibly to the higher drinking age, which she said has made students become more creative in planning social events.

"You get a keg and that's your party, that's one thing," she said of the days when the drinking age was lower and most students could consume alcohol legally.

"The burden of responsibility is a lot more on social chairpersons (now). I think our students have taken a very positive approach to trying to program responsibly," Wiggins said.

At the University of Bridgeport, alcohol will no longer be allowed at campus social events, but students of legal age will be allowed to bring alcoholic beverages to events under strict conditions.

The university also is banning popular "TGIF" — Thank God It's Friday — parties on Friday afternoons and students will no longer be given temporary liquor permits for their own parties.

"We're taking a position that reflects not only the law but a concern for alcohol abuse," said Jacqueline D. Benamati, dean of student life. "It is not consistent with the university's mission to encourage the use of alcohol."

Manchester In Brief

Police chief urges caution

Manchester Police Chief Robert D. Lannan says all drivers should be extra cautious this week as children return to school.

All Manchester public and parochial schools open Wednesday.

In a release issued by his office, Lannan also warned drivers to be aware of school buses and heavier bicycle traffic near the schools.

The police department will enforce all school-zone and bus regulations and will ticket violators, Lannan said. The speed limit in school areas is 25 mph. Red flashing lights on school buses mean that drivers on both sides of the street near the bus must stop.

Zinsner demands report

State Sen. Carl A. Zinsner, R-Manchester, is demanding a complete investigation of the Community Action Program after charges surfaced that more than $15,000 for fuel assistance to low-income families may have been embezzled by CAP employees.

"I consider the reported theft of $15,000 from a much-needed program that has limited funds deplorable, and now I wonder how much more money may have been stolen that we don't know about," Zinsner wrote in a letter to James Harris, commissioner of the state Department of Human Resources.

Zinsner said in a news release that he is equally disturbed that Harris told the Legislature's Energy and Public Utilities Committee just 10 days that the CAP agencies were doing a good job.

CAP agencies distribute federal fuel assistance money appropriated by the Department of Human Resources. Four workers at the New Haven CAP have been arrested and charged with stealing money by forging signatures of the applicants on checks or by falsifying fuel assistance applications, Zinsner said.

Road projects continue

Blasting operations being done in connection with the Interstate 84 reconstruction will continue to require periodic closing of the highway, the state Department of Transportation has announced.

Closings, between the former exits 92 and 94, will last for 10 minutes or more.

Also because of the construction, eastbound and westbound travel between exits 92 and 93 will be diverted to new westbound lanes where two lanes in each direction will be maintained for about six months.

District sues again over sewer rates

The Eight Utilities District has filed a second lawsuit against the town seeking to overturn 1984-85 sewage-treatment rates that were declared invalid by a judge last month and later reinstated by the town.

The suit, filed in Hartford Superior Court on Friday, charges that the rates were improperly adopted and are not fair and reasonable, as is required by state law. Besides the Eight District, three town residents are listed as plaintiffs. They are Ann-Marie and William L. Sheridan of 55 Candlewood Drive and Jeffrey J. Lassow of 84 Adelaide Road.

The town has until Sept. 24 to respond to the suit, according to a copy of the summons that was filed with the town clerk.

The district originally filed suit against the town last year after the town Board of Directors voted to increase rates charged the district for treatment of its sewage by 61 percent. Rates for other customers went up by 40 percent, prompting the district to challenge the town's rate-setting method.

The district argued that it was being charged for items that provided no service to the district, an independent sewer and fire-protection authority that serves most of northern Manchester.

In a ruling last month, Superior Court Judge Harry Jackaway declared the rates "null and void" because the town failed to specify in its notice of the new rates that customers had within 21 days

Peachy harvest

Steven Botti, owner and operator of a farm at 260 Bush Hill Road, loads a truck with freshly picked peaches on a recent afternoon. Botti said he was rushing to get the peaches picked because they were ripening early this year due to warmer weather. Apples have not been affected by the weather like peaches, he said.

Parochial schools boost offerings, tuition

The school will have 78 teachers — down one from last year, Cullinan said. ECHS has also hired a new vice principal, John Turmough, who will serve as director of development.

In addition, the parochial high school, which serves 28 area towns, will offer for the first time this year an advanced composition course for seniors for which they can earn credits from the University of Connecticut. The school has similar college-level courses in calculus and modern European history.

East Catholic will also have a boys' swim team for the first time this year, Cullinan said. A girls' swim team has been in existence for some time.

AT ASSUMPTION JUNIOR HIGH School, enrollment is expected to be a little less than last year. Principal Marie Alberta would not say what last year's enrollment figure was, but the previous year it stood at 171 for grades 6 through 8.

Tuition at Assumption is $475 for parishioners, Alberta said. The majority of students at the school are from Manchester, with a few coming from Glastonbury, South Windsor and East Hartford.

Enrollment at Cornerstone Christian School is expected to be between 140 and 145 students compared with 133 last year, according to Principal Marcia Kirby. The school offers classes from kindergarten through ninth grade.

An afternoon kindergarten session is being offered for the first time this fall at the school, which is located in the Church of the Nazarene. The school has a teaching staff of 12. A new fourth-grade teacher, Karla Hahn, has been added to the staff, said Kirby.

Pre-instrumental classes and a computer course for the ninth grade will be offered for the first time this year, according to Kirby.

Tuition at Cornerstone Christian ranges from $850 to $1,300, depending on grade level, Kirby said.

An orientation meeting for parents will be held at the school Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m.

ST. JAMES SCHOOL will open with 474 students and 18 full-time and several part-time teachers, according to Principal Louise Kelly.

St. James is expanding its computer program, which was introduced last year. The staff also has completed a self-study in preparation for a visit from a state Department of Education team in October to renew the school's accreditation, Kelly said.

St. Bridget School will have about 100 students in Grades 4 through 8 this fall, according to Principal Helen Hart. The school, which enrolled 105 students last year, has added a separate fourth grade this year. Fourth and fifth grades were previously combined, Hart said.

St. Bridget has six full-time teachers and teachers for art, music and physical education. Typing and computer-literacy courses which were introduced last year will continue, Hart said.

Tuition at St. Bridget this year is $425. Hart said she expects St. Bridget School will be accredited for the first time this fall by the Archdiocese of Hartford and the state Department of Education.

Phyllis, John make plans

Now that Phyllis George has quit "The CBS Morning News," her husband, John Y. Brown Jr., says he plans to run for governor of Kentucky again.

Brown, in an interview with the Lexington, Ky., Herald-Leader, said he will run again in 1987 unless "lightning strikes or something." In the meantime, he's glad George "decided to come home and be with us" and defended her against the criticism that started almost as soon as she took the anchor job.

"I think she did an outstanding job," Brown said. "And I think I'm the luckiest person in the country because I'm still going to wake up every morning with Phyllis George. The only problem we had was that I couldn't move Kentucky to New York to run for governor and she couldn't move 'The CBS Morning News' to Kentucky to do her show."

George's departure from the show was announced last Friday, one week after a CBS executive denied the network wanted her out or that she wanted to leave.

Meet Sen. Grandma

Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., has been chosen Grandparent of the Year. Hawkins, who has six grandchildren, was chosen for her work on the Special Committee on Aging and for setting up the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

Mike Goldgar, 66, of Atlanta says it is important to honor grandparents on Grandparents Day Sept. 8, because they provide a "stabilizing influence, like a rudder if you will, that keeps the country growing."

He said grandparents don't want to be known only as "yesterday's mothers and fathers" but as individuals who make the family whole.

"I don't want it to be just another department store day," said Goldgar, a grandparent who has had three heart operations performed by Dr. Michael DeBakey and who is head of a lobbying effort trying to get Congress to honor grandparents.

"I think families should go out together. If they have fun together, then you'll remember your grandparent."

Today's forecast

Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island: Today, mostly sunny with high in the 70s to lower 80s. Tonight, partly cloudy with a chance of showers or thunderstorms after midnight over thunder interior sections. Lows 50 to 65.

Wednesday: a chance of showers in the northern interior sections during the morning, otherwise partly sunny, very warm and humid. High 85 to 90, except cooler across Cape Cod.

Maine: Mostly sunny except clearing up this afternoon north and mountains. High in the 70s. Showers north and a chance of showers south tonight. Low 50 to 60.

Scattered showers north and a chance of showers followed by partly sunny south Thursday. High in the 70s to mid 80s.

New Hampshire: Partly sunny north and mostly sunny south today. High in the 70s. Clouding up tonight, a chance of showers south and showers likely north. Low 50 to 60. A chance of morning showers then partly to mostly sunny Wednesday. High 75 to 80 north and 80 to 87 south.

Vermont: Partly sunny today. A chance of afternoon thunderstorms north. High in the 70s. Partly cloudy tonight. Chance of some evening showers north. Breezy and mild. Lows 55 to 65. Hazy, warm and humid Wednesday. Chance of an afternoon thunderstorm. High in the 80s.

Satellite view

Commerce Dept. satellite photo taken at 3:30 a.m. EDT shows the remains of Hurricane Elena are now bringing rains and cloud cover to much of Louisiana and Arkansas. An area of thunderstorms extends from the upper Michigan peninsula back to the southwest through Nebraska in association with low pressure in Minnesota. Clouds and light showers are scattered over the southern Rockies and near the Great Salt Lake.

National forecast

During early Wednesday morning rain is forecast for parts of the Central Mississippi Valley and the North Atlantic Coast states. Scattered showers and thunderstorms are possible in the central Intermountain States, the Central Plains, the Mississippi Valley, the Great Lakes, the Ohio Valley and parts of the Atlantic Coast states. Elsewhere the weather will be fair. Minimum temperatures will include: (Maximum temperature in parentheses) Atlanta 69 (91), Denver 57 (85), Chicago 68 (83), Cleveland 68 (80), Dallas 75 (101), Denver 57 (85), Duluth 48 (72), Houston 72 (84), Jacksonville 74 (91), Kansas City 67 (84), Little Rock 73 (88), Los Angeles 50 (72), Miami 80 (88), Minneapolis 60 (79), New Orleans 75 (92), New York 71 (90), Phoenix 76 (98), St. Louis 56 (85), San Francisco 56 (75), Seattle 56 (89), Washington 74 (95).

Hard horror work

Horror writer Stephen King is making his directorial debut this summer, adapting his short story "Overdrive," and doesn't particularly like the work.

"Directing is very interesting and very hard," he said. "The only difference between this and working on a road gang is that the pay is ever so much better."

"Overdrive" will be his last directorial effort — for a while at least.

"As a writer, you have a tremendous urge to dig yourself a rut and furnish it comfortably and never come out," King said. "That's why seven years ago I went back to teaching school. And seven years hence my youngest child will be 15 and my oldest will be maybe 22, and I'll be ready to try teaching again. And seven years after that maybe I'll want to direct another movie."

"Overdrive" is being filmed at the Dixie Boy Truck Stop outside Leland, N.C. and will feature Emilio Estevez, Pat Hingle and Laura Harrington being terrorized by driver-less trucks.

Harrison County, Miss., Civil Defense Director Wade Giese, assessing damage from Hurricane Elena:

"This has been the most aggravating, fickle storm that we have ever been associated with. She taunted us and teased us and forced us to evacuate five days ago, then came back and slapped us and went on her way." (See page 4).

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 3, the 244th day of 1985 with 119 to follow.

The moon is moving toward its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo. They include architect Louis Sullivan in 1856, and actress Valerie Perrine in 1943 (age 42).

On this date in history:

In 1783, the signing of the Treaty of Paris officially ended the seven-year American Revolutionary War, recognizing U.S. independence from Britain.

In 1916, the World War I Allies turned back the Germans in the Battle of Verdun.

In 1939, Britain declared war on Germany. France followed six hours later, quickly joined by Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Canada.

In 1979, Hurricane David, one of the strongest Atlantic storms of the century, hit the eastern U.S. seaboard after sweeping through the Caribbean, where it left more than 1,000 dead and caused billions of dollars in damage.

In 1984, a 28-year-old Chicago print shop employee was named winner of $40 million in the Illinois state lottery, the richest lottery win in the world.

A thought for the day: In declaring war on Nazi Germany, Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the British House of Commons, "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, sweat and tears."

Bennet work to be complete this week

Corrective work at the Bennet Apartments for elderly and handicapped people will be completed by the end of this week, an official of the company that was the town's partner in the project said today.

Steven Erie, managing director of the Community Development Corp., said much of the corrective work was done last week and workers were scheduled to return to the job today.

Mrs. Thomas Cengilio, one of the wheelchair-bound tenants at the Bennet Apartments, said today the stove in her apartment has been replaced with one that has controls along the front. The original had controls at the back of the stove, making it difficult for her to reach them safely from her wheelchair.

"It's a blessing," she said. Cengilio said grab bars have been installed in her bathroom and some other corrections have been made.

When a Herald reporter and photographer visited the complex Friday, workers had already left for the day, but two tenants said that six or more workers had been busy all week correcting problems that had brought complaints.

The complaints were the subject of newspaper stories beginning Aug. 22.

'Raise the Titanic'

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland (UPI) — A team of French and American scientists testing a new robot submarine found the wreck of the Titanic, the famed ocean liner that was dubbed unsinkable but struck an iceberg and sank in the frigid North Atlantic in 1912.

"We came on it early this morning," Robert Ballard of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution in Massachusetts said Monday. "It was just bang, there it was right on top of it."

In a ship-to-shore interview with Canada's CTV network from the U.S. Navy oceanographic survey ship Knorr, Ballard said pieces of the Titanic were located about 370 miles south of Newfoundland.

Ballard led the U.S.-French expedition, funded by the U.S. Navy and the National Geographic Society, which was mounted to test a new remote-controlled submarine equipped with video and still photography cameras.

The team's initial reaction "was excitement, then a coming down off that to realize that we had found the ship where 1,500 people had died," Ballard said.

"For a lot of us who had researched it for so many years, the Titanic has become more than a shipwreck. It's a true disaster," he said. "To finally put those souls to rest was a very nice feeling."

The London Observer earlier reported the submarine had been probing 100 square miles of ocean floor in water 2 miles deep since the beginning of July.

CTV, based in Toronto, reported the expedition did not plan to raise the wreck but would ask the United Nations to declare the site an international memorial.

"As far as I am concerned, that ship is my father's grave," said Eva Hart, an 80-year-old British survivor.

The Titanic was en route from Southampton, England, to New York on April 14, 1912, when it struck an iceberg, taking 1,503 of the approximately 2,200 passengers and crew to their deaths.

The Titanic was believed to be "unsinkable" because of its double bottom and reinforced bulkheads. Ten millionaires were on board when the ship sank. Its stateroom was filled with valuables, including diamonds valued at $7 million.

Three attempts have been made to locate the ship and Walt Disney productions once spent $70,000 on a feasibility study.

John Pierce, a British salvage expert, told the Observer he planned to try to raise the Titanic with a new salvage system using inflatable canvas bags.

John Eaton of the Titanic Historical Society told "The CBS Morning News" the salvors would find a debris trail.

"At the moment, it just appears to be fragments of the ship which broke up as the ship impacted with the bottom of the ocean bed," he said. "Based on some tests that the U.S. Navy did a couple of years ago, they found that at that depth the vessel would strike at the equivalent of about 100 mph and that would mean just total destruction of most of the equipment and furnishings and things of that sort."

"There may be techniques developed in some future period that would enable them to get down there and work."

Easter occurs about the same time as the ancient Roman celebration of the vernal equinox, marking the arrival of spring.

The luxury liner Titanic was supposed to have been unsinkable, but it went under the icy North Atlantic waters off Newfoundland April 15, 1912, after hitting an iceberg. This is how German artist Willy Stoeber visualized the scene.

Unsinkable ship sank on its maiden voyage

By Ed Lion United Press International

LONDON — The White Star liner RMS Titanic was the biggest, most luxurious vessel afloat, and because of its innovative construction it was dubbed "unsinkable."

But as it steamed across the frigid North Atlantic on its maiden voyage on the evening of April 14, 1912, it plowed into an iceberg — shattering its hull and the illusions that man had managed to conquer the sea.

The ship was traveling from Southampton, England, to New York. With 1,000 millionaires aboard, including John Jacob Astor, the first-class passenger list read like a "Who's Who" of American and European society.

The 45,000-ton liner with a double-bottom hull and reinforced bulkheads was dubbed an "unsinkable" ship — the ultimate in ocean travel comfort.

But on that evening in 1912, the ship plowed into the iceberg in a calm sea about 370 miles south of Newfoundland, Canada.

There were 2,201 people aboard, but the ship's 14 lifeboats and four life rafts only had space for 1,178 people.

At first many of those aboard, buoyed by stories of the Titanic's seaworthiness, refused to leave the apparent security of the ship's straw deck for the discomfort of the lifeboats. Many of the early lifeboats pulled away half empty.

Ruth Becker Blanchard, 85, of Santa Barbara, Calif., who survived the disaster along with her mother, brother and sister, was 12 at the time. She remembers being one of the lucky ones who climbed into a lifeboat before the ship sank the next day at 2:20 a.m.

"When we got down to the ocean we could see a great big gash in the Titanic and the water was running in there," she said. "We rode away as fast as we could because we were afraid of the suction."

By the time the full extent of the collision became known to the passengers, she recalled, "all four decks were covered with people all looking from rails with nothing to get into."

The stricken vessel sent out a radio SOS — the first ever transmitted. But help was coming too late.

"That's when they started screaming and jumping off the decks into the water," she remembered. "It was terrible to see that. But there was nothing we could do about it."

"It seemed to us, in our boat, that the ship broke in two. Then the stern seemed to stand up for about a minute or so and then it went down very quietly."

The disaster killed 1,513 people. No other sea tragedy has gripped the world's imagination like sinking of the Titanic. Four films and scores of books have been written about it.

Gulf residents ride out storm

BILOXI, Miss. (UPI) — Hurricane Elena spilled little blood, but its 125-mph fury and sister tornadoes cut a swath of devastation along Mississippi's coast that officials say will take years to rebuild.

"Only the general evacuation saved us a lot of injuries and deaths. When they saw it coming, they said, 'Let's get out of Dodge,'" civil defense officer Michael Hampton said.

There was a dusk-to-dawn curfew along Mississippi's coast today and National Guard troops and police patrolled debris-strewn streets to protect damaged homes and businesses from thieves who came when the storm moved inland and fizzled to a mass of rain clouds.

A grocery store in Pascagoula displayed a hand-lettered sign that said, "Looters will be shot."

About 225,000 people were without power from Bay St. Louis, Miss., east to the Gulf of Mexico. Power companies in neighboring states rushed crews to the coast.

FEW BUSINESSES SURVIVED ELENA'S Labor Day wrath and supplies to feed thousands of storm refugees and fuel the cleanup effort were already running short.

"Right now, we're isolated," said Robert McLaughlin, a Pascagoula resident. "We need food, water and gasoline. If we don't have replenished supplies soon, we're going to be in trouble."

The Red Cross, Salvation Army and state agencies mounted a relief effort for the same coastline battered by killer Hurricanes Camille in 1969 and Frederic in 1979.

Gov. Bill Allain asked President Reagan to declare Mississippi's 80-mile resort coast a disaster area, but had no damage estimate.

"We were under the right wall of the eye and the winds just rapped the coast," said Hank Turk, the civil defense chief in Pascagoula, Miss. "The overall cleanup of Frederic took two years. I don't see much difference from this one."

In Ocean Springs, the storm caused damage that Hampton said "was more extensive than either Hurricane Camille or Frederic."

Two supermarkets and 29 homes were destroyed and Hampton said "an average of four homes on every block in our city had major roof damage from fallen trees."

One twister tore into the Central Elementary School in Gulfport, sending 380 people into the howling winds, and the roof of a Biloxi senior citizens center was smashed, forcing paramedics to crawl through rubble to rescue 200 people.

"I would swear there was a freight train running right across the roof of the college where we were housed," said Gantier firefighter Glenda Underwood. "I was actually petrified."

The storm raked Florida's Panhandle Sunday night and early Monday, injuring 25 people, and tornadoes spawned by Elena on Saturday killed two people and injured six others.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The stepson of Soviet dissident Andre Sakharov, on a hunger strike to pressure the Soviet Union to allow him to see his mother and the Nobel laureate, says he fears something might have happened to them.

Alexei Semenyov, 29, sat on a folding lawn chair two blocks from the Soviet Embassy, the same spot he has occupied 12 hours a day since Friday.

"I'm not sure my parents are alive," he said. "Something could have happened to them and the Soviets will want to keep it quiet until after President Reagan meets with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev in November. I want to see my parents now."

"I've talked to many people in the (Reagan) administration and I'm disappointed they have put no priority to the situation," Semenyov said. "If they wait until after the Reagan-Gorbachev meeting, it may be too late."

Sakharov's stepson protests

Semenyov, a computer programmer who lives in Newton, Mass., said he has received no word from Sakharov since the Soviets claimed to have released him from a hospital in July.

Semenyov, the son of Sakharov's second wife, Yelena Bonner, said his last contact with his parents was a postcard he received from his mother "wishing me a happy birthday" July 4.

He said the card made no mention of his stepfather.

"I haven't set any time limit for how long I will be out here," Semenyov said. "I want to see my parents and will continue (the protest) out here for as long as I can go on."

Since Thatcher took office in 1979, the number of unemployed Britons has risen from 1.2 million to 3.2 million and last month the seasonally adjusted figure hit 12.2 percent — the highest on record.

The latest opinion poll showed the left-wing Labor Party leading with 35 percent of public support, the Liberal-Social Democrat Alliance with 31 percent and Thatcher's Conservatives also with 31 percent.

Thatcher said changes should result in strengthened policy on employment, the issue on which she is most vulnerable.

Thatcher named Lord Young, an employment secretary, expanding his powers and giving him a deputy.

But opposition Labor Party Leader Neil Kinnock said if Thatcher was really interested in improving the economy, she would have fired the chancellor of the exchequer.

The Cabinet reshuffle was "a game of musical chairs to the sound of the death march," Kinnock said.

Swede Nystrom upsets applicart at U.S. Open

By Frederick Waterman
United Press International

NEW YORK — The match of the year went on in flames and it was a quiet Swede named Joakim Nystrom who snuffed out the bright light of the U.S. Open.

Nystrom's four-set victory Monday over Wimbledon champion Boris Becker leveled the mounting anticipation of the hoped-for confrontation between the 17-year-old sensation and No. 1 John McEnroe.

But Nystrom, seeded 10th, can't take full credit for his 6-3, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 victory. The West German had a hand in his own demise, committing 14 unforced errors, too many to be offset by his 20 aces.

"The first two sets, I wasn't on the court, then the third and fourth sets was a close match," lamented Becker, who received raves of encouragement from the stadium-crowd crowd of nearly 20,000.

Tenth-seeded Joakim Nystrom raises his hands in victory after upsetting eighth-seeded Boris Becker in fourth round at U.S. Open 6-3, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Yankees able to hold on

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Yankees jumped on the Seattle Mariners early Monday, Seattle jumped back but New York stayed the Mariners off before they could inflict too much damage.

Dave Winfield led in four runs, including three with his 22nd homer, to stake Ron Guidry to a 7-0 lead after two innings and the Yankees held on for an 8-7 victory over the Mariners.

"We had it early and they took it from us," said Winfield, who saw the Mariners rally to chase Guidry, 17-5, and pull within 7-6 after six innings. "Inning by inning, they kept scoring. It was hard to stop them."

But Brian Fisher and Dave Righetti did just that, shutting the Mariners down on only one run the rest of the way and keep New York within four games of the Blue Jays in the American League East.

Fisher threw 2 1/3 innings of one-hit relief and struck out four batters, turning things over to Righetti, who gained his 24th win by working the last 1 2/3 innings.

"When we had the 7-0 lead, I thought I'd have the day off," admitted Righetti. "Gator (Guidry) is not the kind of pitcher to give up all those runs in one inning. He's a tough pitcher to catch up on. When he got into trouble, the flamethrower (Fisher) did a hell of a job and then I came in and finished it off."

Seattle's Frank Wills, 4-7, was finished off by the second inning.

New York scored four times in the first inning. Rickey Henderson led off with a walk, moved to second on a balk and scored on Griffey's single. Don Mattingly then singled and Winfield followed with his 22nd homer.

The Yankees added three runs in the second. Rex Hudler, playing second base after just being brought up from Columbus, singled and Bobby Meacham beat out a bunt. Henderson then walked to load the bases.

Wills was replaced by Paul Mirabella and Griffey singled up the middle to score Hudler and Meacham. One out later, Winfield's sacrifice fly scored Henderson to make it 7-0.

Seattle scored twice in the fourth inning on a single by Alvin Davis and a home run by Dave Henderson, his 11th. The Mariners added a run in the fifth on back-to-back doubles by Al Cowens and Gorman Thomas.

Seattle added three runs in the sixth. Dave Henderson and Danny

"The crowd was cheering for me and I began fighting harder," he explained after saving five match points in the final two games.

The 2-hour, 45-minute contest ended strangely. Becker, who had fought for every point, ran towards a Nystrom backhand down the line but pulled up when, from behind the baseline umpire, a voice in the crowd, yelled, "Out."

When the ball bounced inside the line, Becker looked into the crowd, a moment, then down at the court. He wordlessly went to the net and shook hands and afterwards claimed not to have heard the extra shout from the crowd.

Nystrom, who lost in five sets to Becker at Wimbledon, said of the Open's vanquished eighth seed, "I think he was nervous from the beginning. I think he felt a lot of pressure. I tried to play very safe from the baseline."

The Swede approached the net just 13 times versus 81 for his hard-hitting opponent.

Becker said he expects to use his defeat as he has used all other setbacks.

"So far, every match that I've lost has been good for me. Hopefully, this is the same," he said.

McEnroe, very interested in playing Becker, had reached the quarterfinals earlier in the day with a 6-3, 7-5, 6-2 ousting of Tomas Smid.

Mats Wilander, the third seed, overcame Greg Holmes 7-6 (7-5), 6-1, 7-5 in a fourth-round pairing on the evening schedule. The Swede won despite trailing 5-1 in the tie-breaker and being down 5-2, double set point, in the second set.

The women's top four seeds also advanced to the quarterfinals Monday. Martina Navratilova led the way with a 6-4, 7-5 elimination of Sweden's Catarina Lindqvist, who gave the defending champion her toughest match of the tournament.

No. 1 seed Chris Evert Lloyd triumphed 6-2, 6-4 over Robin White. No. 3 Hana Mandlikova prevailed over Kathy Jordan, 7-5, 3-6, 6-1, and Pam Shriver, the fourth seed, eased past Alycia Moulton, 6-2, 4-6.

For McEnroe, who had looked forward so much to playing Becker, there is a challenge in refocusing on Nystrom.

"It would be a different type of match, but he's a damn good player. He showed me that in the French (Open). Me against Becker is more of an attacking kind of match. Me against Nystrom would be more of me having to take the play."

"During this time I've been thinking about Becker. It's my job to get over that. You're not a champion or a Number One player if you can't get over something like that," he explained.

Navratilova, who next plays sixth seed Zina Garrison, had surrendered only six games in her first three matches. She said Lindqvist helped her prepare for the more difficult later rounds.

"I had to play well. It was a good test, having to play those types of points. You can't get that anywhere else, no matter how much you practice," she explained.

Except for No. 8 seed Manuela Maleeva, who lost 6-2, 6-2 to Steffi Graf Monday night, the women's draw filled out as seeded. No. 5 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch rallied from a pair of match points in the second set to defeat Wendy Turnbull, Garrison, the sixth seed, had little trouble with Kate Gompert, 6-3, 6-2, and No. 7 Helena Sukova rallied from a match point in the third set to defeat Carling Bassett, 4-6, 7-6 (8-6), 7-5.

Benched Hernandez comes back strong

By Fred McMane
United Press International

It's a sure bet Keith Hernandez won't object the next time manager Davey Johnson suggests he take a day off.

Johnson benched his All-Star first baseman Sunday and a doctor's prescription couldn't have been a better antidote for a severe case of "tired bat."

New York Mets' first baseman gripped when Johnson forced him to sit out Sunday's game with the San Francisco Giants, but he delivered a pinch-hit homer in the ninth to win the game 4-3 and Monday night he continued his heavy hitting by banging out five hits to score a 12-4 victory over the San Diego Padres.

"The season is a test of mental endurance as well as physical," Hernandez said after helping defeat the Padres. "It's a long year. I've gotta believe the off-day helped me."

The Mets collected 18 hits en route to the victory.

The triumph, coupled with St. Louis' loss to Cincinnati, moved the Mets to within one game of first place in the National League East.

Dodgers 5, Expos 4

Johnstone singled home the winning run with one out in the 11th inning to help the Dodgers snap a four-game losing streak. The triumph kept the Dodgers 6 1/2 games ahead of the Cincinnati Reds in the National League West. Andre Dawson homered for Montreal.

Phillies 5, Braves 4

At Pittsburgh, Mike Brown hit a three-run homer, his first for Pittsburgh since being acquired in a trade from the California Angels, and Steve Kemp went 3-for-4 and drove in a run to lead the Pirates to victory.

Astros 7, Cubs 2

At Chicago, Eric Bullock drove in two runs with his first major-league hit, a fifth-inning double, to lead the Astros to their fifth triumph in the last six games.

Bullock was called up from Houston's AAA farm club in Tucson last week.

Reds 4, Cardinals 1

Red Sox show some muscle

By Mike Rabun

ARLINGTON, Texas — The Boston Red Sox did not need all that much offense to put the Texas Rangers away Monday night, but produced a lot of it anyway.

Boston accounted for 19 hits — their second highest total of the year — among them a two-run homer by Jim Rice and Mike Eastler's second grand slam home run in three days.

It added up to an 11-2 victory that was every bit as one-sided as the score indicated.

"We really put the hits up there tonight," said Eastler. "Some nights are like that. You hit and you just can't stop hitting. The whole team was doing it tonight."

Good fortune extended to the Red Sox pitching staff as well since starter Tim Lollar labored through 12 pitches, 68 of which missed the strike zone and five of which sailed to the backstop.

Lollar allowed only two hits through eight innings to win his record to 6-9. Texas had just three hits overall, matching its season low.

"This was one to forget," said Texas manager Bobby Valentine. "There's no doubt about it."

Boston picked up its first six runs off Texas' Dave Stewart, 0-6, with Eastler's blast being the big one.

Bill Buckner picked up four hits during the evening and drove in three runs while Wade Boggs went 3-for-5 and boosted his league-leading batting average to .364.

Oakland helping the needy

By Joe Sexton
United Press International

The Oakland A's are baseball's version of Live Aid. They have undertaken to feed the American League's hungry and to do it in grandiose fashion.

A's pitchers, who handed out a dozen hits and 14 runs to the Detroit Tigers Sunday, doled out another 11 hits and dozen runs to the Baltimore Orioles Monday in a 12-4 loss.

Cal Ripken, whose RBI production had grown thin of late for lack of home runs, got a double helping, cracking his 18th and 20th homers of the year and first since Aug. 15 to add six runs batted in to his total.

STORRS — The last line of defense in soccer is the goalkeeper.

Usually, sometimes a goalkeeper or cross-bar comes in to play to level assistance.

And then there are teammates who save the day.

UConn keeper Andy Pantason can thank two teammates for saving the day as the Huskies drew with Hartwick, 0-0, in a battle of nationally ranked powers Sunday at the UConn Soccer Stadium.

An opening day crowd of 5,300 saw the ISAA pre-season No. 5 (Hartwick) and No. 16 (UConn) clash in a tight affair.

Jets get down to minimum as five players are gone

By Joel Sherman

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. — The New York Jets waived five players Monday, including veteran quarterback Bob Avellini, to reach the mandatory NFL regular-season limit of 45.

Also let go by the Jets were safety Rich Miano, a sixth-round draft choice from Hawaii, veteran linebacker Jim Elio, center Greg Gunter and offensive tackle Mark Shumate.

Avellini, who played 18 seasons for the Chicago Bears, was brought in by the Jets late last season when quarterback Pat Ryan suffered a concussion. He never threw a regular-season pass for New York and his being waived came as no surprise. With Ryan and starter Pat O'Brien the only quarterbacks

Don Shula's son QBs 'Bama win

By David Moffit
United Press International

ATHENS, Ga. — Ray Perkins spent the preseason looking for an Alabama quarterback.

Monday night, he found the man he had been looking for — junior Mike Shula, son of Miami Dolphins coach Don Shula.

Perkins has had young Shula for quite awhile, even using him as a part-time starter last season when the Crimson Tide suffered through its first losing campaign in 27 years. But there was always the question about whether he'd take over completely.

Shula, starting and going the route in Alabama's nationally televised 1985 opener Monday night, led the Crimson Tide 21-0 to a 25-16 victory over Georgia.

The left-handed quarterback passed the Crimson Tide 71 yards in 35 seconds, hitting Albert Bell on an 18-yard touchdown pass to spur Alabama to a 16-13 lead by blocking an Alabama punt and recovering it in the Tide end zone.

But Shula, who had thrown only eight times earlier in the evening, quickly drove his team to victory.

Starting at the Alabama 29, Shula, after missing on a first-down pass, hit four in a row — 16 yards to Greg Richardson, 25 yards to Bell, 12 yards to Richardson and then the winner to Richardson.

"We went into the game thinking we could establish our running game and I think we did that," said Shula. "But, I really felt good about our passing game at the end."

Georgia coach Vince Dooley noted his Bulldogs "hung in there long enough to find a way to win — but then celebrated too early and it cost us tremendously."

"I have to give a lot of credit to their quarterback, Shula," said Dooley.

NFL roundup

Seahawks cut veteran Jim Zorn

By Joel Sherman
United Press International

Jim Zorn, who was able to survive the early, dreadful days of the Seahawks, learned Monday he could not make it with the team now that Seattle is among the NFL elite.

Zorn was waived Monday by Seattle, ending a 8-year association which stretched back to the team's expansion in 1976. Cornerback Dave Brown and wide receiver Steve Young are now the lone original Seahawks remaining on the roster.

Veterans joining Zorn on the waiver included Chicago kicker Bob Thomas, Minnesota nose tackle Charlie Johnson, Dallas running back Ron Springs, Cleveland running back Mike Pruitt, and Tampa quarterback Jack Thompson and safety Beasley Reese.

A starter in the franchise's first six seasons after joining the Seahawks as a free agent, Zorn was Seattle's passing game coordinator and backup quarterback. He was waived after ending his 38-day walk-out.

Giants' specialists waived

By United Press International

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The New York Giants Monday waived veteran special teams stalwarts Larry Flowers and Joe McLaughlin in order to reach the NFL limit of 45.

The Giants also cut nose tackle Frank Wright, a ninth-round draft choice, and placed rookie running back Lee Houston and offensive tackle Damien Johnson on injured reserve.

Defensive back Flowers and linebacker McLaughlin were victims of the roster reduction from 49 to 45 players this year, since both were more valuable on special teams than defense.

The Giants considered Flowers, a five-year veteran, one of the best kick coverage men in the NFL.

Cincinnati manager is a big hit

By Mike Tully
United Press International

ST. LOUIS — Pete Rose looks like a pretty good manager.

His pursuit of Ty Cobb provides excellent camouflage. This summer, 4,192 looks like the most important number since the Greeks defined pi.

If you think 4,192 hits is impressive, however, then try these two figures:

— A 69-60 win-loss record for Rose's Cincinnati ballclub.

— A distance of only 6 1/2 games between the Reds and the first-place Dodgers.

The Reds look very little like the team that duded the San Francisco Giants for last place in the National League West a year ago.

"I marvel at the way he's played so well and managed so well because they are both so hard to do," said Reds GM Bill Bergsch. "Rose went 6-0-3 in Monday night's 4-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals and still needs six hits to pass Cobb."

He made two key pitching decisions, however, both of which proved correct.

With the Reds leading 3-1 in the seventh inning, Rose removed starter Tom Browning, who had just allowed a two-run homer to Willie McGee and a walk to Tim Landerum.

Believer John Franco prevented any further scoring.

It was Franco who was in trouble. He had the bases loaded and a 2-0 count on Cesar Cedeno. Rose left Franco alone, appeared with Pantason getting a hand on it at the last moment.

UConn and Hartwick each had scoring bids in overtime. Tony Rizza, who played sweeper in a three-back setup for UConn, was on the line to clear a Metrick drive seven minutes before the end.

Thouki Stavriandis, pegged as the starting sweeper, was used a rover in revised system by Morrone.

"UConn did a good job on us. I didn't allow penetration. We didn't get our attack as I would have liked," Lennox cited. "I thought we played well as a team."

Morrone, who lauded the play of Rizza and Stavriandis.

HUSKY NOTES

— One who didn't play but expects to in the future is Hartwick's Todd Karry, a freshman out of East Catholic High. The 18-year-old Stafford Springs, resident, who'll be 19 in October, said he was slated to start for Magistrate but for a leg injury. What's the difference between the high school and college game? "The speed and caliber of play," answered Karry, who led for second on the 84 Eagles, with 6 goals. "You take the two best in high school and that's like everyone on this team. (And) awareness is so much better." Karry said East Coast Tom Malin's workouts helped him prepare for the college game. "I want to learn how Coach Lennox wants me to play. After this year (when some seniors graduate), maybe I can be a starter," Karry said hopefully.

Hartwick returned 10 of 11 starters from last year's Final Four club.

signing Saturday with the Cardinals

Sharpe left the Cardinals last winter to sign with the U.S. Football League's Memphis Showboats. Saturday, he signed a 1-year contract to come back to St. Louis.

Though he will only be available for spot duty, the Eagles are happy to have All-Pro receiver Mike Quick back in camp.

After a bitter salary dispute in which he had asked to be traded, Quick ended his holdout Monday.

Philadelphia added another offensive weapon Monday when it traded an undisclosed draft choice to the Chargers for running back Earnest Jackson, the AFC's top ground gainer last season.

In another trade, Washington traded its top pick, cornerback Tony Dixon, to San Francisco for an undisclosed future draft pick.

One thing was disclosed Monday by Colts coach Bob Dowhower — his No. 1 quarterback is Art Schlichter.

Schlichter, suspended by the NFL in 1983 in connection with illegal gambling activities, beat Mike Pagel for the starting nod.

both Rouson and Johnson in preseason but neither figured to get much playing time this season anyway.

Rouson is a free agent from Kansas State.

Barring further moves, the Giants will open the season with five draft choices — first-round running back George Adams, second-round wide receiver Stacy Robinson, third-round cornerback Ty Davis, fourth-round tight end Mark Bavaro and 11th-round defensive back Herb Welch.

The only free agents on the roster are former three NFL players: running back Maurice Carter, center Bart Oates and punter Sean Landeta.

The Giants brought veteran tight end Don Hasselbeck in for a tryout Monday.

Ierardi to leave Cheney

By Alex Girelli
Herald Reporter

Dr. Lawrence Ierardi, who has been director of Howell Cheney Regional Vocational Technical School in Manchester for the past six years, will leave the school this fall to become a consultant on high technology with the State Department of Education.

Ierardi said today he will not leave the school until a new director has been hired to replace him.

Dr. Arthur Buckley, assistant superintendent of the state's vocational schools, said the state has distributed an announcement about the position widely in various agencies, colleges, industries, and recruiting agencies. He said as many as 30 or 70 people might express interest in the directorship of the school on West Middle Turnpike.

Nicole Bowers, left, age 6, of Essex Street, is a little shy this morning as she waits in line outside Waddell School. Her friend Jessica Safford, 7, of Homestead Street, hugs her Cabbage Patch doll for security. Both girls are second graders at Waddell. They were among about 7,000 students who returned to Manchester public schools today.

Students have mixed views as new school year begins

Seniors Laurie Cheerman and Julie Falkowski both said they were excited and looking forward to their last year in high school. Calling MHS "one of the better high schools in the state," Falkowski said she likes the school because there is a lot to do. She is involved in sports and clubs.

Another student, Suzy Ross, was obviously excited about being a senior, saying "I can't believe we made it this far. She added, "I love watching the sophomores walking around not knowing what they're doing."

Final enrollment figures were not available late this morning. School officials estimated earlier that about 7,000 students would be enrolled in the public schools this fall.

Earlier, Mayor Dale Richardson of Pascoqua said Elena will probably help Camille up his town. "I think Elena will make this a better city. Camille probably did the best thing. It upgraded our city.
