By Lyo Phillips
United Press International

MILFORD — A feisty grandmother scoffs at claims by the Boy Scouts of America that women cannot lead boys through the pangs of puberty and vows to press her fight to become the country's first female scoutmaster.

"They're antiquated," said Catherine Pollard, 67, who sat quietly through the Superior Court proceedings Friday wearing a red jacket bedecked with Scout patches and holding her Boy Scout manual.

Pollard has waged an 11-year battle to become a scoutmaster but the Boy Scouts refuse to make her the first woman in the United States to attain scoutmaster status.

The Boy Scouts are appealing a

January 1984 decision by the state Commission on Civil Rights and Opportunities ordering the group's Quinipiac Council to give the determined Pollard the next available troop.

Superior Court Judge Thomas J. O'Sullivan pulled out of the case at the last moment — announcing he attained Scouting's highest rank, Eagle Scout, as a youth — and Judge Joseph Chernauskas hastily denounced robes and took the bench.

Chernauskas must now review extensive written testimony and may take months to render a decision.

"It's not easy for a young boy these days with fewer and fewer organizations trying to impart values," said George Davidson, a New York attorney representing the Boy Scouts.

"They need someone who has

'I could raise 10 boys or 10 girls, it doesn't matter.'

Catherine Pollard

gone through the same biological changes, who has worn the same moccasins in effect and grown up to lead a moral life," he added.

Pollard objected after the proceedings that under Boy Scout policy she could be a cubmaster for younger boys or an Explorer adviser for older ones.

"But boys 11 to 14 can't have me as a scoutmaster because they have not learned about their sexuality," she scoffed at the Boy Scout argument boys entering puberty need a strong male role model, earned scouting's highest honors — Eagle Scout and the Curve Bar. She formally requested the job in 1976 and 1977, but was each time turned down because she was a woman.

The retired music teacher has given about 35 years of her life to the Boy Scouts, Bartholomew said, and as a merit badge counselor. "She really enjoys working with boys that age," the lawyer said.

The recent widow is now supplementing her Social Security income by substitute teaching in Bridgeport public schools.

"What kind of values are we imparting to young men when we suggest that women are inappropriate role models to impart values?" such as patriotism and character? Bartholomew asked.

Hospital interviews volunteers

The Junior Volunteer Program at Manchester Memorial Hospital is interviewing boys and girls between 14 and 17 years old who want first-hand experience in the hospital this fall. The program provides information on the health-care field and work experience at the hospital. The volunteers assist at the lobby desk, admitting office, nursing stations, and in the X-Ray, physical therapy, emergency, pediatrics and dietary departments.

Assignments are available for two- or three-hour shifts once a week after school, in the evenings and on weekends.

To apply for the program, contact the volunteer office at the hospital at 646-1222, extension 2268.

Landfill takes household wastes

Kenneth Tedford, a Democratic candidate for re-election to the Board of Directors, has urged Manchester citizens to bring containers of household hazardous waste materials to the town landfill on Olcott Street today between 8:30 a.m. and 3 p.m.

The Conservation Commission is sponsoring a collection of hazardous wastes such as pesticides, solvents, old chemistry sets, paint, and waste oils.

Tedford urged citizens to help preserve and protect the environment by disposing of hazardous wastes forgotten in basements, attics and garages.

At the landfill Saturday they will be turned over to a licensed hazardous waste disposal company. Tedford suggested that anyone who has a question about hazardous waste phone the town Health Division at 647-3173.

Special needs workshop set

A workshop for parents of special needs children will be held next Friday from 9 a.m. to noon at Robertson School, 45 N. Main St. The workshop is sponsored by the Parent Education Department of Manchester Memorial Hospital in coordination with Manchester Head Start.

Susan Waters of the Connecticut Parent Advocacy Center Inc. will lead the workshop. She will focus on effective parental involvement with schools in planning educational guidelines for special needs students. The workshop will also cover the meeting to be free and open to the public. To register, call Elaine Kahner at 646-1222, extension 2405, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Programs offered at hospital

"Women's Juggling Act: Career and Family" and "Facing the Loss of a Love" will be the topics of two programs being offered at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

The first topic for women in the combined roles of wife, mother and career person will be presented by Gema A. Guanco, a Manchester psychologist, Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the H. Louise Ruddell Auditorium at the hospital.

Guanco will address how women faced with juggling the roles can best maintain their own identity and feeling of adequacy. The free program is open to the public and is one of an educational health series offered every Thursday night through Dec. 5.

The other program will be presented Oct. 28 at 7 p.m. as the second in a six-part series on aging. The free educational workshop is in the conference rooms of the hospital.

The Rev. Ernest Harris, hospital chaplain, will discuss the issues of separation and loss caused by disability and/or death. The series, sponsored by the hospital's social work department is aimed at reaching family members caring for elderly relatives.

Underdog McNamara finds it rough

PETER McNAMARA

Libertarian

Editor's note: The Herald today begins profiling candidates in the Nov. 5 town election. Profiles of all candidates for the Board of Directors and Board of Education will appear during the next two weeks.

By Kathy Gormus
Assistant City Editor

Peter J. McNamara, a third-party candidate for the Board of Directors, says that with sufficient funds and party support, he could very well be the top vote-getter in the Nov. 5 election.

"I think there's a lot of people out there who want change," the Libertarian candidate said in a recent interview.

But McNamara has found the financial support of the state Libertarian organization lacking. He has been excluded from candidate interviews conducted by the town's police union and ignored by other special-interest groups.

"It's like I'm nonexistent," he said. But the 34-year-old owner of the Barton Water Tavern is undaunted by the prospect of defeat at the polls.

"I plan on being the tenth member of the Board of Directors," he said with a grin. As a Libertarian who does not favor government involvement in many areas, McNamara is no admirer of the current Democratic-controlled board. He has roundly criticized the directors for approving a plan to have starter houses built on town-owned land on Love Lane, charging them with giving away assets that could have been sold.

"I think people are uninformed. I don't think they're a large number," he said. He pointed to the large number of unaffiliated voters registered in Manchester as evidence that people are unhappy with the choices offered by the Democratic and Republican parties. He said the unaffiliated voters should be represented on town boards and commissions.

"One-third of the people aren't even represented. There's something drastically wrong there," he said. McNamara said he has no doubts about the extent of his power should he be elected. But he said he could make modest changes in the way decisions are made.

The proposed plan of development is completed. "Until this planning study is done, I don't think there should even be a referendum," he said of a fire station and sewer plant project. "I think they're trying to fire the wrong person," he said. He proposed plan was drafted according to input received from town directors, he said.

McNAMARA SAID he would like to see the Board of Directors to make peace with the district. "I have no political bias. I don't owe anybody any favors," he said.

In public, McNamara has said he would like to see the resurrection of a disbanded liaison committee between the town and district. Privately, he said officials of the two bodies should meet in a room and not allowed out until they have ironed out their differences.

But McNamara saves his strongest criticism for the way town officials have plodded ahead with plans to study the police department's needs, decide the fate of a fire station and expand the sewer plant before the town's new Comprehensive Plan of Development is completed.

Racking 'em up again

Actor Paul Newman will rack 'em up again as pool shark Fast Eddie Felson in a sequel to "The Hustler" to be directed by Martin Scorsese, Walt Disney Productions has announced.

Contracts have not yet been signed for Newman, 60, and Tom Cruise to star in "The Color of Money," the studio announced Thursday. In the sequel, Fast Eddie is challenged by a young hustler, played by Cruise, 35 years after beating Minnesota Fats.

The movie will be Newman's first starring role since "Harry and Son" in 1983, a box office disappointment.

Ewing goes back to school

Rookie basketball star Patrick Ewing, declaring that "winning at life means staying in school," has joined the New York school system's Dropout Prevention Program.

"I stayed in school when I could have left and gone pro at the end of my junior year," the 7-foot New York Knicks center told students Thursday at a Manhattan high school. "I wanted to finish and get my degree. A good education nobody can take away from you. It's forever."

The city has allocated $5 million for programs and services designed to keep young people in school, with Adidas, Random House and McDonald's donating about $500,000 in additional money, sporting goods, dictionaries and T-shirts. Officials say as many as 42 percent of the 80,000 students who entered the city school system in 1985 may not graduate.

The Castelbajac spring/summer ready-to-wear collection for 1986, shown in Paris Friday, included this printed cotton dress featuring the Beatles, accompanied by a checked headscarf.

Love song for Tar Heels

Charles Kuralt was never wild about North Carolina's state song, so he crafted a love song of his own for the Tar Heel state.

The popular CBS News correspondent's words have been combined with music by fellow North Carolina native Leonis McGibbon to create an album about the state "where the Smokies rise," and the "wind blows ocean foam." "North Carolina Is My Home" is the album's centerpiece.

Among the other songs on the album include a whimsical look at the towns of Spray and Winton, (whose residents couldn't decide what to name the town and decided "Why not Winton?") and "Dinner on the Grounds," a song praising the biscuits, country ham, fried pies and iced tea that are part of North Carolina Sunday picnics.

Andre Sakharov's son-in-law says a Boston-based group that won the Nobel Peace Prize has done nothing to help the Soviet dissident, who won the same prize 10 years ago.

"They say they are concerned with the fate of millions, so they cannot be concerned with the fate of one family," said Etem Yankevich of Newton.

"But I think that if you are not concerned about one, you cannot be concerned about millions," he said.

International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War was cited by the Nobel committee last week for its efforts to prevent nuclear holocaust.

Yankevich said that despite several calls and letters since 1980, Dr. Bernard Lown of Newton, a co-founder of the group, ignored pleas to help Sakharov, who has been placed in exile by Soviet authorities for his outspoken views.

Lown was in Switzerland and could not be reached for comment. But Conn Nugent, executive director of the group, said Sakharov family members had never contacted the group, though they may have spoken to Lown.

Dotson plans spring wedding

Gary Dotson, who was freed from prison after serving six years for a rape his accuser now says didn't happen, is planning a spring wedding, his attorney says.

Dotson will marry a woman he met at his clemency hearing, attorney Warren Lupel said Thursday. Lupel said Dotson and Camille Dardanes started dating after he was released from prison.

Dardanes gave Dotson a rose at the beginning of his clemency hearing in May.

Dotson, who had been sentenced to 25 to 50 years in prison, was freed after Catherine Crowell Webb said she had lied when she identified him as the man who raped her in 1977. Mrs. Webb said she had made up the story that she was raped because she feared she was pregnant.

Lupel said Dotson, who is recovering from a bout with hepatitis, is about to start a job as an apprentice carpenter.

She's a doll

Defecting Russian dancers and musicians who arrive in America often head for the luxurious New York apartment of Eugenia Doli.

The former ballerina, who danced with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo as Eugenia Delarova in the 1930s and 1940s, has given shelter and love to dancers Rudolf Nureyev, Natalia Makarova, Mikhail Baryshnikov, and Alexander Godunov and cellist Matilav Rostropovich and his soprano wife, Galina Vishnevskaya.

One Soviet dancer wrote home, "Mamushka, America is terrific. I live on Fifth Avenue for free."

On Sunday, Eugenia and her millionaire husband, Henri Doli, former chairman of the Schlumberger oil equipment company, were honored for their humanitarianism with special Albert Schweitzer Music Awards given to them in ceremonies at Carnegie Hall. The award, Eugenia said, "will make me work even harder to help people that need it."

JOHN DE LOREAN arrested in 1982

Today is Saturday, Oct. 19, the 292nd day of 1985 with 73 to follow. The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning star are Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Libra. They include American novelist Fannie Hurst in 1889, historian and philosopher Lewis Mumford in 1895, actress Lawanda Page in 1929 and newspaper columnist Jack Anderson in 1922.

On this date in history: In 1781, toward the end of the American Revolution, Britain's Lord Cornwallis surrendered with more than 7,000 troops at Yorktown, Va.

In 1812, Napoleon's beaten army began its long retreat from Moscow.

In 1949, Mao Tse-tung and other communist leaders formally proclaimed establishment of the People's Republic of China.

In 1982, carmaker John DeLorean was arrested in Los Angeles and charged in a $24 million cocaine scheme aimed at salvaging his bankrupt sports car company. He was tried and acquitted.

In 1983, the prime minister of the Caribbean island of Grenada, Maurice Bishop, was killed in a bloody coup.

In 1984, four CIA employees were killed in the crash of an unarmed helicopter in El Salvador.

A thought for the day: Mao Tse-tung said: "War cannot for a single minute be separated from politics."

Convicted mayor stays in office

SAN DIEGO — Mayor Roger Hedgecock on Friday put his decision to resign on hold, saying that jury tampering allegations may have tainted his conspiracy and perjury conviction.

Hedgecock appeared at an afternoon news conference 30 minutes before he was to officially resign as mayor of the nation's eighth largest city.

"I put my faith in this court system when I defended myself against charges brought by the district attorney," Hedgecock said. "I resigned on the basis of a valid verdict. If there is no valid verdict, there is no basis for resignation."

Weather helps firefighters

LOS ANGELES — Slight ocean breezes and unusually high humidity combined Friday to aid firefighters battling for control over the last of 19 wild fires that have charred more than 80,000 acres in Southern California.

The final unchecked blaze, which has denuded 43,350 acres, burned to the edge of the Sespe Wildlife Sanctuary in the Los Padres National Forest of Ventura County, where firefighters hoped to stop it.

Ironically, authorities said, if the fire entered the refuge it would prove beneficial to the endangered California condor's struggle for survival.

"Due to very old growth, the food supply is sparse," said Capt. Rod Sims of the Ventura County Fire Department.

"If the fire does enter the sanctuary as expected, the long term benefit will be excellent. New growth will encourage small animal life to enter, thus providing new food sources for the condor. This will enhance the breeding process."

Bush winds up visit to China

HONG KONG — Vice President George Bush, singing the praises of Peking's modernization program, Friday wound up a six-day visit to China and helicopter across the border to capitalist Hong Kong for a brief stopover on his way home.

"China is making remarkable progress toward modernization," Bush said after visiting a Pepsi-Cola bottling plant in China's special economic zone of Shenzhen, where Peking's capitalist experiment began in earnest in 1980.

"Shenzhen was inspiring," Bush said on arrival in the British crown colony after a 28-minute helicopter flight. "It looks like there's a lot of potential for a lot of people."

Bush's talks with Hong Kong officials during his two-day stopover were expected to center on trade issues.

Espionage case goes to jury

LOS ANGELES — A jury began deliberations Friday to decide whether Richard Miller — the only FBI agent ever charged with espionage — passed secret documents to his Soviet lover for sex and money.

If convicted by the jury of six men and six women, the former counterintelligence agent faces a term of life in prison.

The panel, which received an unusually stern warning to not talk about the case with bailiffs, began deliberations about 2 p.m. and recessed for the weekend about two hours later.

U.S. District Judge David Kenyon's admission appeared to be in response to recent allegations of bailiff misconduct in the trial of San Diego Mayor Roger Hedgecock, whose felony conviction may be overturned on grounds of jury tampering.

Teen opens fire at homecoming

DETROIT — A teen-ager opened fire with a shotgun during halftime at a high school homecoming football game Friday, wounding six other youths, police said.

The gunman, who had apparently been involved in a fight at Murray-Wright High School earlier in the day, fled the scene following the 4:15 p.m. shootings during halftime at the game, said police Sgt. Daniel Carr.

The wounded, who were hit with birdshot, were taken to Detroit Receiving Hospital. None was seriously hurt and one was released, a hospital spokesman said.

Police were hunting for a male aged 17 or 18 "who apparently an hour earlier had been involved in a physical fight in the area of the school," Carr said.

Gemayel in Syria for talks

BEIRUT, Lebanon — President Amin Gemayel flew to Damascus Friday for talks with Syrian leader Hafiz Assad, leaving behind a city shaken by fierce battles between feuding Lebanese gunmen.

Lebanese officials said the two leaders held a first round of talks aimed at strengthening an agreement reached Tuesday by Lebanon's biggest Christian and Muslim militias to try to stop a decade of civil strife.

Shortly after Gemayel's departure, artillery, rocket and machine-gun fire erupted between the Christian-led army and Druze Muslim militiamen in the hills outside Beirut, the Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said.

Teamsters reject newspaper pact

PHILADELPHIA — Negotiators shook hands Friday on a tentative accord to end the city's 42-day newspaper walkout, but hours later Teamsters drivers narrowly rejected the pact and other unions said they would remain on strike with them.

Philadelphia Newspapers Inc., publisher of the morning Inquirer and afternoon Daily News, had just launched a radio campaign to lure readers back, and was planning a press run Saturday night to print its first Sunday editions in seven weeks.

The Teamsters drivers' vote was 175-163 against a proposal calling for an increase in wages and benefits of $150 per week over four years, an average $27.50 weekly gain, according to union negotiator Rick Penner.

Bus crash hurts 14 from cruise

KARLSRUHE, West Germany — A bus carrying German passengers from the hijacked cruise ship Achille Lauro was involved in a 10-vehicle accident and 14 were injured, police said Friday.

Three people were killed in the pileup Thursday night, but none of the dead was from the Italian liner that was hijacked last week by four Palestinian terrorists during a Mediterranean cruise.

Horst Albrecht, a spokesman for the Frankfurt travel agency that owned the bus, said the vehicle was carrying 34 passengers who had returned home from the cruise that was cut short by the hijackers.

He said the bus was en route to Frankfurt from Genoa, Italy, where the passengers had gone Wednesday to pick up their luggage when the Achille Lauro docked.

Campus drinking down sharply

NEW YORK — Campus drinking has dropped sharply in the past several years, according to two surveys released Friday, but college officials credit better-informed students and not higher legal drinking ages for the sobering-up trend.

Just as many students are drinking now as five years ago — about 88 percent. But they are drinking less. And they are able to correctly answer more questions about drinking and alcohol abuse.

Those were among the findings of a survey of 1,581 students who visited Daytona Beach, Fla. during last year's spring break. The survey, conducted by Gerardo Gonzalez, president of BACCHUS (Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students) found that male students said they averaged 46 drinks per month in 1985, compared with 53 in the 1981 survey. Females surveyed last spring said they averaged 29 drinks per month, down from 39 five years ago.

U.S. sends envoy to Egypt and Italy

By Jim Anderson
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration is sending Deputy Secretary of State John Whitehead to Egypt and Italy "to turn down the thermostat a bit," but with orders to make no apology for U.S. actions in the ship hijacking crisis, the State Department said Friday.

Whitehead, according to the State Department, is going to Cairo to meet President Hosni Mubarak and other officials to try to ease tensions in the crisis that followed the hijacking of the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro.

He also will go to Rome to meet caretaker Prime Minister Bettino Craxi, who resigned Thursday after his coalition government was split by arguments on whether to support the U.S. request to extradite Palestine Liberation Front leader Mohammed Abbas. The Palestinian is accused of directing the ship hijacking in which American Leon Klinghoffer was killed. The trip is seen by officials as a sign of the firmness of the U.S. intercept of an Egyptian aircraft carrying the hijackers, which was thought would be short and relatively mild, has grown to proportions that were not predicted.

According to the officials, Whitehead, the No. 2 man in the State Department, has orders to "turn the thermostat down a bit, but not to apologize for any U.S. actions." Mubarak has demanded a U.S. public apology for the intercept of the Egyptian plane. President Reagan, when asked during a trip to Boise, Idaho, this week if the United States is prepared to apologize, replied: "Never."

State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb, asked about the strains in U.S. relations with Italy, said the links between the two nations are "so broad and deep" they would survive any temporary tensions.

But the tensions were increased by Craxi's revelations Thursday remove any strains in the relations between the United States and Egypt — a relationship that is vital if the peace process in the Middle East is to continue.

Last week, U.S. officials thought $2.3 billion in annual U.S. financial assistance to Egypt would be all that is required to remove the strain.

Whitehead, a former Wall Street banker who was a partner in Goldman Sachs, has been deputy to Shultz since July. He made a trip to the Middle East soon after being sworn in, but has not been actively involved in the Middle East negotiations.

The announcement of the trip comes in the wake of reports from Egypt that Mubarak intends to cancel scheduled December joint military exercises with U.S. troops in Egypt.

It also follows indications that Craxi may not attend next week's pre-summit meeting with Reagan, where the leaders of the seven major industrial nations were to discuss the Geneva summit.

AIDS virus change puzzles researchers

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Researchers are trapped in a scientific maze that may eventually lead to an AIDS vaccine because the virus changes genetic makeup once inside the human body, the co-discoverer of the virus said at a medical conference Friday.

"We don't know if the virus changes (genetically) at the time of infection or when it is activated, said Dr. Luc Montagnier, chief of oncology at the Institut Pasteur in Paris.

Montagnier said scientists also are disturbed over discovering that the AIDS virus can attack brain cells, causing Alzheimer's-like symptoms in its victims.

He also said some patients have shown signs of dementia, a disease marked by loss of memory and personality, and characteristics resembling encephalitis, a sometimes fatal brain infection.

"We know the agent (of AIDS), but we still don't know how to prevent its proliferation," Montagnier said, adding that researchers are frustrated by the lack of laboratory animals that can be infected with the human disease for tests.

These drugs have no effect on the disease. "So far, only chimpanzees show signs of being infected by the virus," associated with acquired immune deficiency syndrome, Montagnier told some 300 doctors attending the International Symposium on Medical Virology.

AIDS, first identified in 1981, is believed to be transmitted through semen, infected blood products or contaminated hypodermic needles.

Recently, scientists in the United States discovered presence of the virus in tears of an AIDS victim, but they have been unable to prove the virus is transmissible by that manner.

Montagnier and Dr. Robert Gallo Jr. of the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., are credited with independently discovering the virus believed responsible for AIDS. Gallo called the virus HTLV-3. Montagnier named it HTLV.

The killer virus destroys the immune system's T4 cells, the primary agents that defend the body against infection and disease. Montagnier said researchers are frustrated by the lack of laboratory animals that can be infected with the human disease for tests.

Lawyers close case on school AIDS risk

NEW YORK (UPI) — An attorney urged a judge Friday to be cautious and bar from classes a child with AIDS, but the city's attorney said school officials had acted cautiously and begged the court not to disrupt the girl's education.

The pleas were part of closing arguments in state Supreme Court on whether New York school and health officials acted properly when they allowed the 7-year-old girl to attend class in the nation's largest public school system.

The second grader, who was born with acquired immune deficiency syndrome, has never been identified. Officials also have refused to say which of the city's 623 grammar schools she attends.

"For God's sake, we're dealing with a million children here," said Robert Sullivan, who represents two Queens school boards. "Risk implores caution."

Sullivan asked Justice Harold Hylan to remove the child from school at least until September 1986, while officials learn more about the deadly disease.

"We say let's err on the side of caution. The proper thing to do is to remove the child from school for this school year," Sullivan said.

But Corporation Counsel F.A.O. Schwarz Jr. said officials studied the question carefully before deciding the youngster would not pose any health hazard to her fellow students.

Queens parents are fearful if the young AIDS victim suffers a nosebleed or engages in a blood-sneezing ritual, the youngster might spread the virus that causes AIDS.

AIDS is generally thought to be contracted through sexual contact, blood transfusions or the use of contaminated needles.

"The city has acted in all respects in a cautious and caring way. We have not taken a reckless position," Schwarz said.

Hylan issued no decision after the arguments, which closed more than a month of hearings in the Queens courthouse. The judge set a Nov. 15 deadline to file written arguments.

Lawyer David Ellenhorn, representing the child at the center of the furor, says it is up to the child's parents and doctor — not a judge — to decide if she is healthy enough to attend school.

Newspapers provide the ideal climate for political advertising because newspapers are in the business of keeping readers, of whatever political persuasion, informed on all aspects of politics.

Newspapers have a tremendous value for the candidate and are the obvious medium for political advertising because the various sections of the newspaper are devoted to the dissemination of political news and views: in news columns, in feature articles, in editorials, in "Letters to the Editor" columns, in cartoons.

Newspapers rank high in creating name identification. Newspapers rank high in believability. And newspapers rank high in providing the lowest cost per voter means of communicating and getting your message across.

This election year, perhaps more so that ever, people have a watchful eye on critical, crucial issues. Your job is to tell them about yourself, about the issues, explain your solutions to the problems that affect your community.

Sheriff will lose his license

TOLLAND — Tolland County's sheriff has been told he will lose his license for six months because he refused to take a blood-alcohol sobriety test.

Sheriff Francis H. Curran was charged with drunken driving last month in Willington, state police said. State police said Curran was stopped after a trooper spotted him driving erratically on Interstate 84 and Route 32.

Curran was notified last week by the state Department of Motor Vehicles that his license will be suspended Oct. 26. Under state law, drivers who refuse to take a blood-alcohol test automatically lose their license for six months, regardless of whether they are found guilty of drunken driving.

Curran is scheduled to appear Oct. 29 in New Britain Superior Court on the drunken driving charge. He can challenge the license suspension by requesting a hearing, but has not done so. Neither Curran or his lawyer, Edward Daly, would comment on the license suspension.

Redeem toll tokens for Lotto?

HARTFORD — State House Speaker R.E. Van Norstrand proposed Friday that the public be able to redeem turnpike toll tokens for Lotto tickets, now that the tolls have been shut down.

The state Department of Transportation is working on a plan to have the tokens cashed in at several banks. The tokens were sold at a cost of 17.5 cents each and were good for one 35-cent toll.

Van Norstrand, a Darien Republican, said that rather than having to go to one of a handful of banks, "it would make it a lot easier and more convenient if they were allowed to cash them in at any Lotto agent's location."

He proposed that four tokens be good for one $1 Lotto ticket.

Work begins on toll bypasses

HARTFORD — Work began Friday on constructing bypass lanes around five of the toll plazas on the Connecticut Turnpike, Transportation Commissioner J. William Burns said.

Gov. William A. O'Neill closed the turnpike tolls on Oct. 9, and until the bypass roads are built, cars and trucks must slow down and pass through the toll booths.

Burns said construction was under way at the plazas in Greenwich, Norwalk, Stratford, West Haven and Branford. Bypass work at the Madison tolls will begin Monday, and at the Montville and Plainfield tolls within the next several weeks, Burns said.

"We fully expect that work on the bypasses at all eight toll plazas will be completed by the middle of November," Burns said. "When the bypass lanes are completed, traffic will no longer have to travel through the narrow toll booth aisles."

Yale to trim list of candidates

NEW HAVEN — A list of 425 candidates for the next presidency at Yale University will be narrowed to about 50 by early next month, says search committee chairman Cyrus R. Vance.

Vance, a former member of the Yale Corporation who has been working on finding a successor to current president A. Bartlett Giamatti since he announced plans to retire June 30, 1986.

The eight-member search committee has held six formal meetings since it was formed in April.

After a shorter list of candidates is compiled, the search committee will then consult with the deans of the 12 schools of Yale University and with the directors of Yale's 10 research divisions — humanities, social sciences, biological sciences and physical sciences and engineering.

Wells Fargo suspect nearly free

HARTFORD — The lawyer for an accused terrorist leader charged in the 57 robberies said Friday his client should be released on bail next week from a federal prison in New York.

Attorney Michael Avery of Boston, who represents Jorge Farinacci, said the delay in Farinacci's release Friday, but the suspect could be released from the federal prison at Otisville, N.Y., as early as Monday.

Farinacci would be the first of 13 Wells Fargo suspects presented in U.S. District Court to be released on bail while awaiting trial in the second largest cash heist in U.S. history two years ago in West Hartford.

Farinacci, 33, a Puerto Rican labor lawyer, arrived at the Hartford court late Friday morning for a hearing to determine if his $1 million bond had been obtained legally.

U.S. Magistrate F. Owen Eagan ruled conditions of the bond had been complied with, but ordered Farinacci returned to the New York prison because four co-signers were in Puerto Rico.

Zitser urges city-owned power

BRIDGEPORT — State Consumer Counsel Barry Zitser says Bridgeport could save money by forming its own electric company.

Zitser was in the state's largest city Thursday to speak to a Common Council group exploring the possibility of starting up a city-owned utility.

He said Bridgeport would have to have legislative approval for the project, which could take between two and four years to realize. In that time, utility rates could nearly double, Zitser said.

Bridgeport is provided electricity by United Illuminating Co., which now charges about 11.5 cents per kilowatt hour.

"If I were U.I., I wouldn't want to lose Bridgeport as a customer," Zitser said. "And I wouldn't make it easy for you either."

Doctor describes student's death

DANBURY — A state medical examiner has given grisly testimony about the stabbing death of a high school student allegedly killed by a classmate wielding a kitchen knife at school.

Assistant State Medical Examiner Dr. Mulka Shah said Kerry Latham, 17, died to death as a result of stabbing. The knife used in the slaying went through one of the teenager's lungs and lodged near her spine, Shah said Friday.

Roselyn Hawkins, 18, a Jamaica immigrant who has lived in the United States for a year and a half, is charged in the Jan. 2 death of Latham at Danbury High School, where both attended classes.

Hawkins is being held on $100,000 bond at the state's prison for women in Niantic. Testimony in the case was scheduled to resume Tuesday in Danbury Superior Court.

Campus strippers stir debate

STORRS — Professional strippers have prompted complaints at the University of Connecticut, with some students claiming the campus fundraising shows are sexist and exploit both men and women.

Male strippers attracted standing-room-only crowds on the campus of the state's largest public university, and now an all-female revue is planned in another effort to fund dormitory activities such as picnics and dinners.

Some UConn students have raised moral objections to the fundraisers, but university officials say that while they try to discourage such shows there is little they can do to stop the strip-tease acts.

As long as the activities comply with state and university laws, the school cannot prohibit or censor the events, Barry M. Wilson, UConn director of student union activities and programs said Thursday.

O'Neill denies 'exploiting' incumbency

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Just because he's been releasing pieces of his budget earlier than ever and just because he's been calling news conferences when a news release might do, Gov. William A. O'Neill says he's not exploiting his position as the incumbent ginning for re-election.

"Well, I don't think that's the proper terminology, 'exploiting,'" O'Neill told reporters at a news conference Friday.

It was the latest in a series of news conferences held in the past couple of weeks in the governor's office. He had called this one to announce an increase in the state's bond rating. A similar announcement in December had been handed by a press release issued through the state treasurer's office.

"I think the proper terminology is that I'm allowing the people of Connecticut to be on a first-hand basis as to knowing what's going on in state government," O'Neill said with a smile. "And I will continue to do that."

O'Neill, who faces re-election next year, has been criss-crossing the state in recent months, ostensibly on behalf of local candidates running for office next month. But the exposure for himself can't hurt. He's expected to get a challenge for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination from former Congressman Toby Moffett.

Over the past couple of months, O'Neill has been releasing details of the 1986-87 budget he will submit to the General Assembly in February. In the past, he has tried to keep a tight lid on his budget proposals until shortly before the session begins. Up until a year or so ago, no details would be released until his budget speech began.

He used to say that, as a legislator, he would get angry driving up to the Capitol and hearing the details of the governor's budget on the radio before the address had begun.

Now, however, his feelings have apparently changed.

He's already outlined a series of what he likes to call "initiatives" that he'll be asking the legislature to approve next year.

Among them: a $183 housing program, a $2.1 million business expansion program for eastern Connecticut, a $1.5 million program aimed at reducing alcohol and drug abuse among students. He has also said he supports increases in teacher salaries, but has not yet given dollar amounts.

Moffett's campaign manager said last week that the power of the incumbency is one of the biggest obstacles faced by Moffett.

"We certainly don't underestimate the power of the incumbency and the resources that the governor will attempt to mobilize," said Moffett campaign chief Marc Caplan.

Moffett is expected to formally announce his challenge to O'Neill on Nov. 14.

O'Neill has not said when his official announcement will come. But he has said he expects to file papers creating a campaign committee soon.

Legislators rap report on utilities

HARTFORD (AP) — The co-chairmen of the General Assembly's Energy and Public Utilities Committee lashed out Friday at a preliminary report on utility companies' response to Hurricane Gloria, saying it "glossed over" serious problems.

The committee is planning its own hearings next week on how the state's two largest power companies responded to the Sept. 27 storm that caused blackouts for 718,000 customers, the worst outages in state history. Some were without lights for more than a week.

Earlier this week, Commissioner Marvin S. Loewith of the Department of Public Utility Control, issued a two-page, preliminary report on the companies' response. He characterized it as acceptable, but said the companies did a poor job of communicating with the public and local officials about how long the lights would be out.

The DPUC plans hearings next month to get reaction from the public and will then issue a final report after the end of the year.

Although they acknowledged Loewith's report was preliminary, the Energy and Public Utilities co-chairmen, Sen. Carl A. Zinsser and Rep. David B. Anderson, said it appeared the DPUC was interested in getting something out early, rather than giving the question the attention it deserved.

"The DPUC report was done in a hurry and there were not enough details," Zinsser said. "Many problems were glossed over."

The committee will hold one hearing Monday at the Capitol and another Wednesday at the Hall of Records.

On Monday morning, the committee will hear from power company representatives and state officials. On Monday evening, members of the public will have a chance to tell of their experiences. The DPUC also will attend the New Haven hearing Wednesday at 10 a.m., Zinsser said.

"The public hearings should not be seen as a witchhunt, but as a continuing effort for how the state can respond better to future natural disasters," Anderson said.

Zinsser said he would propose legislation that would make it mandatory for utility companies to file disaster response plans with the DPUC.

Loewith made a similar recommendation.

Earlier this week, Commissioner Marvin S. Loewith of the Department of Public Utility Control, issued a two-page, preliminary report on the companies' response. He characterized it as acceptable, but said the companies did a poor job of communicating with the public and local officials about how long the lights would be out.

Mayfair's federal lunches may be cut off by Jan. 1

By Susan Vaughn
Herold Reporter

A program which provides nutritional meals daily to elderly residents may end Jan. 1 if more people do not take advantage of it. Coordinators of the town's Elderly Outreach Program say they don't know why more people don't participate.

The low-cost lunches provided at Mayfair Gardens elderly housing complex are funded through federal Title III of the Older Americans Act, said Diane Wicks, coordinator of field services for the elderly. She said the funding will come to an end if more people don't take part in the program.

The lunches have been served at Mayfair since 1974. The number of elderly residents has dwindled during the past couple of years to only 12 to 15 a day, Wicks said. "We need 25 to continue the program," she said.

The program is open to any town resident over 60. Residents pay what they feel they can afford for the meal, but the suggested donation is $1. Dial-a-ride is also available for rides to Mayfair Gardens.

A recent survey of some residents in Mayfair Gardens at North Main and North School streets indicated a number of reasons why the residents do not take advantage of the lunches, Wicks said. Some residents said about 40 meals are served at that complex daily.

The Community Renewal Team of Hartford administers both programs and provides site managers who supervise the meals and volunteers help serve.

Elderly women take part in a federally funded lunch program at Mayfair Gardens. Only about a dozen residents take advantage of the lunches daily. About 25 are needed to meet federal guidelines.

O'Neill admits fight not over in road effort

HARTFORD (AP) — Gov. William A. O'Neill acknowledged Friday that the battle was not yet over in the state's effort to build the final link in a superhighway from East Hartford east to Windham.

On Thursday, O'Neill had announced that federal transportation officials had given the state the go-ahead to begin acquiring land along the proposed route. He had said that construction would begin next year and should be completed by 1991.

But on Friday, he conceded that some permits were still required and that the fight from environmentalists could well continue.

"I think the road will be built," he said. "It could be completed by 1991 if everything went smoothly."

The U.S. Department of Transportation has given the state approval to begin buying property along the 12-mile stretch between Bolton and Columbia. That section will link already completed sections of highway in that region.

Sneakers need some style with all the comfort

Women have made progress in recent years in emancipating themselves from the silly, high-heeled, pointy-toed shoes with the paper-thin soles that they still have a way to go. Yesterday I went to an shoes business party in New York City and after it was over I came out the front door of the building in which it was held.

Don and Marilyn were standing there. Marilyn looked helpless. Don looked for a cab.

"I can't walk 10 feet in these," Marilyn said, looking down at her high-heeled, black leather pumps. "My feet aren't too good anyway."

"So why are you wearing those shoes?" I asked.

"Every once in a while I have to dress like a lady," Marilyn said, smiling through the pain in her toes.

You are normally a particularly bright, sensible person, Marilyn and I hate to be the one to tell you this but that's a dumb statement. If you put on an item of clothing that hurts just because you have no idea it looks better or conforms to what other people are wearing, it's dumb.

WHY IS IT that most shoes for men and women bear only the vaguest resemblance to the shape of the human foot? The more comfortable a shoe is, the more it looks like the foot it covers. That's why old shoes are the most comfortable. After it's been worn a few months, a shoe reluctantly gives up trying to stay in the shape it was built and starts to assume the shape of the foot that is jammed into it every day. By the time they're ready to be thrown away, most shoes are thoroughly comfortable.

About three times in my life I've seen a market for a product so obvious that I could't understand why some entrepreneur wasn't making it. If I were a businessman, there's a business I'd go to tomorrow. There is a great market available to the first company that produces a women's dress shoe built like a sneaker or athletic shoe. It would have the same comfortable, cushy rubber sole that athletic shoes now have. The only change would be in the uppers. They'd be the same shape but instead of finishing the canvas in bright colors with stripes and the name of the maker emblazoned on them, the sneakers would be fashioned of some material that women find acceptable.

ALL THE MAKERS of athletic shoes would have to do is substitute black silk for canvas or use some flower-patterned material for the upper parts of their sneakers so women wearing them would feel as comfortable in their minds as in their feet.

Everyone has a wild urge to wear crazy clothes once in a while. We all have things in our closet that are different from what we usually wear. A dress, a pair of pants, a shirt or a hat can be anything that amuses the wearer. They can be too big, too small, too long, too short. So you look a little funny in them. Shoes are different. We shouldn't play with shoes.

NEW YORK — NBC's affiliates are coming home to roost.

And that could be good news for NBC's "Nightly News" and its anchor, Tom Brokaw.

During the 10 years when NBC was sunk in third place in the three-network ratings rivalry, some of its long-term affiliate stations switched to ABC, but now the tables are turned and ABC is in third place while NBC was a solid second last season and threatens to overtake CBS this time around.

In recent weeks NBC has announced the return of two affiliates — KOMU-TV serving the Columbia, Mo., market, which had been an NBC affiliate for 30 years before switching to ABC in 1982, and KCEN-TV serving the Waco-Temple, Texas, market, which went on the air 32 years ago as an NBC affiliate and left in July 1984.

Earlier this year marked the return of WSAV-TV, Savannah, an NBC affiliate from 1956 until it deserted to ABC in 1982.

"We lost about 15 affiliates over the 10-year period," Pierson Mapes, president of the NBC Television Network, said in an interview. The network has 207 affiliates.

"Of course, we replaced them — there was only one market where we got shut out. That was Alexandria, Minn., a one-station market. But in most cases we inherited a station that was not as strong as the one we lost."

MAPES SAID in the vast majority of cases NBC lost more powerful UHF stations and picked up weaker VHF stations.

There are two factors involved. The obvious is that a weaker station reaches fewer viewers, which affects advertising rates.

"How important a factor that is depends on the size of the market," Mapes said. "In a market where you might expect a swing of 20,000 to 30,000 households, it could mean a difference of a couple of million dollars in potential revenue."

"But more important from a ratings and financial standpoint is the news. In most cases, the stations we inherited were not as strong in news as the ones we lost. Either a station is in the news business or it isn't and in a lot of cases the stations we inherited were not in the news business."

"Local affiliates news ratings are very significant in national news ratings. Pick up a local station with a strong news team and you will pick up Tom Brokaw's numbers."

"In most areas, Mapes said, local news directly precedes network news and the audience usually stays tuned in.

"We're in partnership with that local station," Mapes said, adding that local news and network news ratings numbers were always within a point or two of each other.

IN THE NATIONAL ratings, "CBS Evening News with Dan Rather" ranks No. 1, while ABC and NBC vie for second place.

"With our ratings success, the affiliate turn-around has been very precipitous of late," Mapes said. "Some stations even kind of anticipated it and decided maybe the tide was turning and came back two or three years ago."

SPORTS Royals begin Series minus their heart

By Fred McNamee United Press International

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The first World Series played entirely in the heart of America in 41 years begins Saturday night and the Kansas City Royals enter the best-of-seven competition with the heart of their betting order torn apart.

Royals in 1980, was embracing the assignment with vigor.

"I feel a sense of excitement," White said. "You're playing in front of the whole world. That's when you make your name. A guy like Willie Wilson, his 200 and has 230 hits, but the only thing the fans remember are the 12 strikeouts he had in the 1980 Series."

"George becomes an easier out when he expands his strike zone," Jim Palmer, former Baltimore pitcher during the Series, "Without McRae behind him he's going to have a tendency to get out."

Prestigious marathons now awarding prize money

It has been well publicized recently that Boston Marathon officials have decided to award prize money beginning in 1986. For most of this century, the prestige, historical significance, and tradition of the Boston Marathon was enough to draw the world's best marathoners to the starting line in Hopkinton on Patriots Day each year. These qualities are no longer true. Today's talented runners have numerous opportunities to be compensated in races throughout the world. The decision to award prize money will restore the Boston Marathon to its rightful place on the international running calendar.

The Manchester Thanksgiving Day Road Race possesses similar historical and traditional characteristics as the Boston Marathon. In addition, beginning with this year's race, the Manchester Road Race will also award prize money to the top male and female performers. The total purse of $4500 will be awarded under the guidelines of the TAC Trust program developed by The Athletics Congress (TAC).

I have participated in several conversations during the past couple of months with runners as well as non-runners regarding the issue of prize money. The topic of conversation is not whether the runners should be compensated. The discussion usually involves how these athletes can still be labeled amateurs. We know that runners who receive prize money, but it was always "under the table" to retain that precious amateur standing. The announcements involving the Boston Marathon and even the prize money to be awarded at the Manchester Road Race would jeopardize a runner's amateur standing. Right? Wrong?

On the Run

THE KEY TO UNDERSTANDING what's happened is the TAC Trust program. The TAC, with significant contributions from runners, corporate sponsors, and road race committees has developed a comprehensive trust program to enable an athlete to receive the full benefit of any funds received, without jeopardizing amateur standing.

The important characteristics of the program are:

- All TAC Trust funds belong to the athlete.
- TAC's role is limited to approving TAC Trust deposits and withdrawals in order to protect an athlete's amateur standing

- TAC approval is required so as to ensure compliance with International Amateur Athletic Federation (IAAF) guidelines
- An athlete's trust is supervised by a TAC approved trustee

GONE ARE THE DAYS when the old Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) was in conflict with the athlete and accused of not supporting or contributing to the success of amateur athletes. With the development of the TAC Trust program, the governing body and the athlete are finally working together.

The athlete can withdraw funds from the trust under liberal guidelines. The list of acceptable athletic expenses includes all health care, training costs, competition expenses, education, insurance, coaches, trainers, therapists, special equipment, agent's commissions, lawyers, and accountants. There's also an automatic cost of living program, and a last income program. The use of prize money for any of these items is acceptable under IAAF rules and TAC Trust guidelines.

Compliance with the rules of the TAC Trust program enables TAC to protect the amateur status of any athlete. Any athlete spending trust funds on other than approved items, will continue to be risking his or her amateur standing.

These running fans have two great chances next two Sundays to see the world's best runners in action on television. America's Marathon will be held in Chicago tomorrow with the likes of Steve Jones, Rob de Castella, and women's world record holder Ingrid Kristiansen reportedly competing.

The following Sunday, Oct. 27, the New York City Marathon will be held. Tentatively set to compete in the CCC East girls' soccer action Friday in Enfield.

Russ Blatt ran a fine 2:28 marathon on Sept. 22 in the Montreal International Marathon. Blatt is competing with the Silk City Striders entry in the Cape Cod Relays Sunday.

Denise Valk has two fine 10K performances to her credit recently. She ran 36:44 in Syracuse, N.Y. on Sept. 22, and followed that with a 38:22 personal best, in the Bonne Bell 10K held in Boston on Columbus Day. She finished 98th out of approximately 4,000 women.

In Manchester on Oct. 27, the American Cancer Society Pumpkin Run for Hope will be held. The race begins and ends at Benet Junior High School there is a 1-mile costume run beginning at 11 a.m. and the 5-mile race begins at 11:30 a.m. This race is a good tuneup for Thanksgiving Day and should attract most of the better local runners.

College football roundup

San Diego - The San Diego Chargers Friday reactivated tight end Kellen Winslow and cornerback Terry Lewis, the club announced.

Both are back from knee injuries.

White Sox pick up options

CHICAGO - The Chicago White Sox announced Friday it would use its option to retain the contracts of pitchers Tom Seaver and Britt Burns for the 1986 season.

The White Sox did not pick up the option in the contracts, Seaver and Burns would both have become free agents.

Seaver's contract has a second option year on it. White Sox executive vice-president Ken Hershman has announced plans to grant Seaver's wish to trade him to a New York team to the 40-year-old pitcher could be closer to his home in Connecticut.

Seaver had indicated that while he enjoyed Chicago, he would like to return to New York, where he played with the Mets from 1967 through 1977 and again in 1983 after a five-year stint with the Reds.

Faust denies he's resigning

SOUTH BEND, Ind. - Notre Dame coach Gerry Faust Friday denied reports that he would resign if his team finished 5-6 this season. The Cincinnati Post reported.

"I will not quit," the Post quoted Faust as saying. He was responding to an article in Friday's New York Times that said he may resign at the end of the season.

Scholastic roundup

Manchester girls close in on CCC East title

ENFIELD - Three different players found the range as streaking Manchester High won its eighth in a row, a 3-0 shutout over homesteading Ferni High in CCC East girls' soccer action Friday in Enfield.

The Indians now stand 11-1 overall, 9-1 in the division, and have an important date coming up Wednesday at Rockville High at 3:30 p.m. A victory would clinch a second consecutive division championship for the Silk Towners. "It's a very big one," voiced assistant coach Joe Erardi.

Manchester's forward line of Nancy Sheldon, Chris Rogveno and Amy Barrera each notched a goal. It was Sheldon's sixth of the season, Rogveno's seventh and fifth in three games and Barrera's 14th.

Sheldon's goal came four minutes before halftime. A square pass from Barrera from the left corner was run onto by Sheldon, who deposited it home from six yards out.

Manchester had an overwhelming 38-6 edge in shots against Ferni, which dipped to 2-2, 3-7-2 with the loss.

"This was a good one for us in that the second eleven got a feeling of playing time," Erardi cited. "Ferni has limited talent but it played hard."

Cross Country

EC girls divide pair

UNCAVILLE - East Catholic girls' cross country team by the basis of a sixth runner came home a loser Friday afternoon despite a 28-28 score against homesteading St. Bernard's. If teams decided, it was St. Bernard's sixth of the season, Rogveno's seventh and fifth in three games and Barrera's 14th.

Girls Volleyball

MHS beaten three straight

Manchester High girls volleyball team was thrashed by a powerful Ferni High contingent in three sets Friday at Clarke Arena. Scores were 15-0, 15-4 and 15-4.

Paige Lepak and Sara Billew played well for the Indians but were dropped six in a row to fall to 3-9 for the season.

Ferni also won the junior varsity match, 15-0 and 15-8.

Manchester is home Monday against Rockville High at 3:30 p.m.

Cards want track meet

By Richard L. Shook
United Press International

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - The St. Louis Cardinals need to turn the World Series into a track meet.

Managers Whitey Herzog's National League champions need to run to defeat intrastate rival Kansas City in the World Series. If they can run, they should win.

St. Louis had only one player with more than 20 home runs this season (Jack Clark, 22) and only three others even reached double figures.

So if the 1985 World Series is a home run hitting contest, the Cardinals might as well run right out of town.

Home runs (except for playoff game-winners by Ozzie Smith and Clark) didn't get the Cardinals to Kansas City. Speed, pitching and defense.

Squeezing a fly ball between the three fast St. Louis outfielders is like trying to drive nails into the wall.

Some people claim St. Louis doesn't even need a third baseman with Ozzie Smith on the left side. He covers more ground than a basemen carpet.

St. Louis made only 108 errors all season in baseball, but the Cardinals pitchers hold the opposition to only 3.3 runs per game. The staff ERA is 3.10.

That should be trouble for the Royals, whose offense is taking about a 20 percent plunge because of their own pitching. Designated hitter cleanup hitter Hal McRae, who is being taken out of the offense that already has problems getting on base.

One of St. Louis' strengths is its deep bullpen. Bill Campbell (4), Ken Dayley (11), Keith Lawton (19), Todd Worrell (5) and ace man Ricky Horton (1) combined for 40 of the club's 44 saves.

The Cardinals need five switch-hitters in their lineup (unless Vince Coleman is unable to play because of his sore leg).

This will limit the Royals' ability to bring a left-handed pitcher into the game in certain situations, though, are John Tudor and team speed.

Tudor could get to pitch three well-tested games in a seven-game series. And with Tudor's numbers this season you have to make him an overwhelming favorite to win every time he walks out there. That could mean the Cardinals need to scrape only one victory out of some other pitcher to walk away with the Commissioner's Trophy.

KC to rely on 7 arms

By Ricc Gosselin
United Press International

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - The Kansas City Royals are going to try to toy a Cardinal with seven arms.

For the Royals to capture their first World Series, they need the same pitching excellence against the St. Louis Cardinals they had in the final week of the season against the California Angels and in the American League playoffs against the Toronto Blue Jays.

The Royals leapfrogged over the Angels into first-place in the AL West by winning three of four games in California during the final week.

Bret Saberhagen threw a five-hitter in a 4-1 win over the Angels. Bud Black threw a three-hitter in a 4-0 win and Danny Jackson and Dan Quisenberry combined to scatter 13 hits in another 4-1 win.

Kansas City pitchers held the Angels scoreless for a span of 23 innings during one stretch.

The Royals' left hand-in-hand the ALCS, Kansas City pitchers held the Blue Jays to 13 runs over the final five games for a 2-3 record run average. Jackson shut the Blue Jays out 2-0 in Game 5 and the Royals went on to become only the fifth team in baseball to rally from a 3-1 deficit to win a best-of-seven series.

Kansas City posted the second best earned run average in the American League during the 1985 season at 3.49. Five starters won in double figures - Saberhagen (20), Charlie Leibrandt (17), Jackson (14), Mark Gubicza (14) and Black (10) - the Royals also had seven relievers who had saves in Quisenberry, who had 37.

Throw in right-hander Steve Farr, the pitcher of the year in the New England quarter-back Steve Grogan, who will be trying to work some of his old magic against the high-flying New York Jets Sunday.

The 28-year-old Grogan, with his passing and scrambling, has become more of a threat because of his scrambling ability. Elway, living up to his expectations in his third season, including winning back Curt Warner and sure-handed Steve Largent. Hoch, Morgan share lead

PENSACOLA, Fla. - Scott Hoch mastered capricious cross winds to shoot a 65 Friday and tie Gil Morgan for the lead at 9-under-par 133 after two rounds of the $300,000 Pensacola Open.

John Cook, who opened with a 63 Thursday to take a two-stroke advantage, bogeyed his first four holes on the front side after making the turn and shot an even-par 71 at the 7,093-yard Perdido Bay course.

A stroke back at 8-under 138 were Ronnie Black (69), Tim Simons (69), defending champion Bill Kratzger, who followed Thursday's 66 with a 68, and Cook, Mark McCumber, who fired a 66, stood two shots back at 135 along with 1985 scoring leader Don Pooky, Danny Edwards and Ed Fiori.

Ferre passes PGA Seniors

MELBOURNE, Fla. - Jim Ferree shot a 5-under-par 67 Friday to take a one-stroke lead after the first round of a $165,000 PGA Seniors golf tournament.

Ferre led Bob Toski, who bogeyed his last hole for a 65. Five players were bunched at 69, two strokes behind the leader. They were Don January, Gay Brewer, Mike Petchik, Bob Goalby and Charles Owens.

Red Wings send down pair

DETROIT - The Detroit Red Wings Friday sent high-priced rookie Ray Staszak, who they signed for $1.4 million, to their Adirondack club in the American Hockey League and 19-year-old rookie center Shawn Burr, their No. 1 pick in the '84 draft, to the Kitchener Rangers of the Ontario Hockey League, a team spokesman said.

The spokesman said the Red Wings also recalled center Bruce Eakin and left wing Basil McRae from Adirondack.

Chargers activate Winslow

SAN DIEGO - The San Diego Chargers Friday reactivated tight end Kellen Winslow and cornerback Terry Lewis, the club announced.

Both are back from knee injuries.

Missouri is looking for magic to rub off

By United Press International

If only the World Series Missouri Magic could rub off on the state's favorite football sons.

The University of Missouri - Frank and unable to win a game this year in five starts - takes on powerful sixth-ranked Nebraska, 4-1, Saturday in a game at Columbia, Mo. that may be without many Tigers fans traveling to Kansas City for Saturday night's start of the all-Missouri World Series between the St. Louis Cardinals and Kansas City Royals.

Girls Swimming

MERIDEN - Homesteading Maloney High squeaked past East Catholic High by the narrowest of margins, 86-85, in girls' swimming action Friday in Meriden.

The win moves the Spartans to 5-4 for the season; East dips to 3-5.

Michelle Freemer was a double winner for the Eagles, coping the 200- and 500-yard freestyles. Kathy Fitzgerald took the 100-yard breaststroke for the Eagles. Carol Trocena had a pair of seconds in the 200 IM and 100 free for East while Pam Reischerl and Michelle Cantin also scored well for East.

The Eagles are back in action Tuesday against Ferni and Wetherfield High at the Wetherfield High pool at 3:30 p.m.
