Kaman earnings rise 8%

BLOOMFIELD — Kaman Corp. reported Friday an 8 percent increase in earnings during the third quarter of 1985 compared with the third quarter of 1984.

Net earnings for Kaman were 68 cents per share or $4.9 million, compared with 64 cents per share or $4.5 million in 1984. Over the first nine months of 1985, Kaman's net earnings have increased 11 percent, the company reported.

Net earnings per share for the first nine months were $1.86 per share, compared with $1.79 per share over the same period last year.

Our third-quarter performance was primarily attributable to the continuing strength of our diversified technologies segment," said Charles H. Kaman, chairman and president of Kaman. "We are confident that 1985 will be our 17th consecutive year of increased earnings," he said.

Barnes income down 18%

BRISTOL — Barnes Group Inc. reported Friday an 18 percent drop in net income for the third quarter of 1985.

Net income per share for the third quarter of 1985 was 59 cents per share compared with 72 cents per share earned during the same quarter in 1984. Sales for the quarter were $104.2 million, compared with $106 million last year.

Over the first nine months of 1985, Barnes reported net income of $1.23 per share, compared with $2.28 per share a year ago. The sale of the company's Globe Distribution group during the first nine months of 1985 resulted in a 59 cent-per-share loss from discontinued operations.

Penn Central earnings fall

GREENWICH — The Penn Central Corp. has reported a nearly 64 percent drop in earnings per share for the third quarter of 1985.

Net income in the third quarter of 1985 for the company was $12.4 million, or 31 cents per share, down from $35.6 million or 86 cents per share for the same period last year, the company said in a report released Thursday.

Net sales dropped from $614.5 million a year ago to $570.1 million for the third quarter of this year. Included in the third quarter is a $20 million in cash of a subsidiary engaged in the manufacture and distribution of white mineral oil.

"The company's electronics operations and diversified industries operations reported losses for the third quarter due to depressed markets for electronic components and offshore drilling rigs," said Alfred W. Martelli, president and chief executive officer for Penn Central.

Profits tumble for Olin

STAMFORD — Due mostly to a $230 million special charge for massive reorganization, Olin Corp. has reported a net loss of $295.1 million, or $5.52 per share, for the third quarter.

The net loss for the quarter compares to a profit of $16.3 million, or 72 cents per share, in the comparable period of 1984, the company reported Thursday.

For the first nine months of 1985, the chemical manufacturer reported a $178.7 million loss, or $1.56 per share, compared with a profit of $76.5 million, or $3.27 per share in 1984.

Olin's reorganization, announced in September, calls for the elimination of 4,200 jobs, including 3,500 employees and 700 salaried jobs. Olin said third-quarter profits before the special charge fell to $5.3 million, a 58 percent drop from the $13.1 million reported in the comparative period of 1984. Earnings per share before the special charge were 23 cents compared with 88 cents in the third quarter of 1984.

Americans spend more than they save

By Suzanne Trime
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Americans spent more quickly than their incomes rose during September — particularly on new cars — and pushed down the rate of savings to an all-time low for the month, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

Personal income, minus Social Security taxes, lashed up by 0.3 percent while spending on both goods and services jumped 1.1 percent. Disposable income — after-tax income — rose by an even smaller 0.2 percent.

August's personal income rose by 0.3 percent and spending showed the same

1.2 percent increase, following week increases of 0.4 percent in July and 0.2 percent in June.

September's rate in after-tax income actually available to spend amounted to only 99 for every American, bringing per capita annual disposable income to $11,327.

Ago Ambre, a Commerce Department economist, said the figures show consumers have been "on a spending spree and the spree has been driven by automobiles."

With consumers taking advantage of reduced interest-rate financing offered by the automakers to help sell the remainder of its 1985 models, the Commerce Department said a large chunk of the $30.5 billion increase in spending on goods and services during the month went for new cars.

The savings rate is the average annual rate of savings by Americans, seasonally adjusted.

Private and government economists expect the savings rate will begin to rise during the final months of the year, as auto sales fall off sharply. Indeed, auto sales for the first 10 days of October have dipped sharply, 10 percent, from September's figures.

"You cannot sustain this sort of thing indefinitely, at some point you have to look at reality and say this escapade has got to stop. At that point, I think you'll see savings come up," said Ambre.

Rogers' loss $710,000 in third quarter

Rogers Corp., a manufacturer of engineered materials and components with facilities in Manchester, reported a net loss of $710,000, or 24 cents per share, for the third quarter of 1985, which ended Sept. 30.

Despite the third-quarter loss, the company has a net earnings of $1,164,000 for the year, down from $4,556,000 for the same period last year, according to a news release.

The lower profit margin for the year is down for three reasons, David P. Bell, treasurer, said in an interview Friday.

The first, he said, is the low volume of sales to buyers in the electronics industry.

"The whole electronics industry is experiencing a very significant slowdown," Bell said. "We can't help but be sold with the market."

He said the Rogers-based company has moved to full-scale production for its computer products — such as computer terminals, printers, hardware and software. He said the move to increase production has added to the short-term costs for the company.

The Rogers High-Speed Interconnectors development project is the third reason for the year's slow down, Bell said.

Rogers has been putting money into the project since 1983, Bell said.

The project, called ROSHI, is designing smaller and faster interconnectors, Bell said. He said an interconnector is a circuit that transfers power from one part of the computer to another part.

Norman I. Greenman, president of Rogers, said in a news release that the third quarter was the low point for the company.

Greenman said the loss for the quarter was due to losses in July and August, but that September saw an increase in profit.

UAW stays at the table in Detroit

DETROIT (UPI) — With a crippling and costly Chrysler strike in the United States and Canada, UAW officials Friday postponed plans to attend a union meeting in Alabama and remained at the bargaining table.

More than 80,000 workers went on strike at midnight Tuesday at Chrysler plants in the United States and Canada, costing the No. 3 auto company an estimated $19 million a day in the two countries.

UAW negotiators had planned to leave Friday afternoon for Saturday's UAW-Chrysler Council meeting in Huntsville, but they changed their plans.

Although there was no specific comment from either side, bargainers were believed to be concentrating on a second Chrysler offer calling for a 15-hour contract with a 3 percent annual pay raises plus lump-sum payments in the first two years aimed at repaying some of the concessions workers gave up between 1979 and 1982 to help Chrysler avert bankruptcy.

The proposal also includes profit sharing, but a lower new-hire rate than the union wanted.

UAW President Owen Bieber said after a 15-hour meeting Thursday that many key issues remained unresolved.

"We worked very hard all day and we're just not there," he said.

In Canada, where more than 10,000 workers are on strike, the newly independent UAW-Canada decided Friday to remain at the downtown Toronto hotel where the talks are taking place rather than break for the weekend earlier planned.

UAW-Canada Director Robert White said even though there was an indication of any movement, the union wanted to be on hand.

Analysts said the strike will cost Chrysler $150 million if it lasts two weeks. Weekly strike benefits for 70,000 U.S. workers, which go into effect on the 15th day of the walkout, will cost the UAW about $10.5 million.

The main issues in the U.S. talks are wages paid to workers at General Motors and Ford Motor Co., job security, and limits on outsourcing — the company's practice of using non-union plants to make parts. Fairly is also a key issue in the Canadian talks.

Stocks drift lower as trading declines

NEW YORK — The stock market drifted to a small loss Friday, pulling back from record highs as the Dow Jones industrial average in the trading session.

The widely recognized average of 30 blue chips slipped 45 to 1,368.84, finishing the week with a net gain of 28.90 points.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange dropped off to 107.08 million shares from 140.53 million Thursday.

The Dow Jones industrials set record closing highs on Wednesday and Thursday. But other, broader market measures remained well below peaks they reached in mid-summer or earlier.

In Friday's economic news, the Commerce Department reported that personal income rose 0.3 percent last month, matching its rate of increase in August.

Meanwhile, intense takeover speculation continued in the stock market. Litton Industries jumped 11 points to 89 on rumors of an impending bid for the company.

However, General Electric said it issued a statement denying that it had any discussions about a possible acquisition of Litton. GE shares lost 1/4 to 39 3/4.

Countdown to summit

WASHINGTON — Top administration advisers have told President Reagan he will go to the summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev next month with the "strongest hand of any president since Eisenhower."

Administration officials who briefed reporters last week at the White House on the grounds that they need to be identified based that assessment on two major factors:

• Continuing economic problems for the Soviet Union, forcing it to try to hold defense costs at the present level, avoiding the huge expense of developing new weapons programs.

• A reversal in the recent military balance, with the United States threatening to move ahead in the last two years.

One administration official said, "The basic problem (the Soviets) face is that the basic stream of money has not gone their way.

Another official said, "We have told the administration that President Reagan goes to the summit with the strongest hand of any president since Eisenhower went to Geneva in 1955."

The U.S.-Soviet meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1985 led to five years of relaxed tensions while Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev tried to repair the crippled Soviet economy and to remove the ravages of Joseph Stalin's years.

The relaxed atmosphere lasted until the U.S. and Cuban missile crises in the early 1960s.

According to U.S. intelligence assessments, the Soviet economy has grown at the rate of 3 percent to 3.5 percent a year, partly due to luck — the Soviet Union had some unusually good crop weather in the last two years.

As a result, the Soviets have been able to cut back on purchases of U.S. grain and that shortfall is now a matter of negotiation between the United States and the Soviet Union.

They want to increase that to as much as 5 percent a year, an ambitious target that suggests the need for lower military spending and international tranquility.

One view of Gorbachev describes him as "impatient, even ruthless" in his hurry to reform the leadership of the Soviet Union.

Within weeks of taking over, he dumped his erstwhile rival, Gregori Romanov, from the Politburo. Then he ousted aging Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in the ceremonial post of president and unceremoniously dumped Prime Minister Nikolai Tikhonov from his Politburo position.

One American analyst says it is certain that Gorbachev must be making enemies along the way, if for no other reason than his intransigent anti-alcoholism campaign, which appears to have alienated the vodka drinkers of the Soviet Union.

Commodity market mixed

Shovers sweeping into the Midwest were expected to delay harvesting and helped support corn and soybean futures prices Friday while wheat was mostly lower in trading on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Profit-taking limited gains, however, and kept prices down in the wheat pit where sharp gains were made on Thursday, analysts said.

Wheat settled 1 cent lower to 3 1/4 cent higher with December at $3.13 1/2 a bushel; corn was unchanged to 1/4 cent higher with December at 42.20 a bushel; oats were unchanged to 1 cent lower with December at $1.16 1/4 a bushel; and soybeans were 1/2 cent lower to 1 cent higher with November at $5.94 a bushel. Live cattle settled 1/2 cent to 1.05 cents higher with the contract for delivery in October at 61.92 cents a pound, feeder cattle were .50 cent lower to .55 cent higher with October at 64.50 cents a pound; live hogs were .42 cent lower to 1.08 cents higher with October at 46 cents a pound; and frozen pork bellies were 1.02 cents to 1.22 cents higher with February at 68.89 cents a pound.

Precious metals rallied in trading on the Commodity Exchange in New York. Gold settled $1.20 to $1.30 higher with the contract for delivery in October at $359.80 a troy ounce; silver settled 1/4 cent to 2.9 cents higher with October at $6.17 a troy ounce.

Crude oil settled 3 cents to 15 cents lower with the contract for delivery in November at $29.52 a barrel; heating oil was 73 cent lower to .01 cent higher with November at $21.61 cents a gallon; and gasoline was .28 cent lower to 13 cent higher with November at 78.89 a gallon.

Bond rating up for state

HARTFORD (AP) — Citing Connecticut's "strong financial position," Moody's Investors Service on Friday boosted the state's bond rating, meaning that when the state borrows money, it will be able to get it at a lower interest rate.

The rating for general obligation bonds went from "Aa" to "Aa-1."

"The benefits of sustained economic vitality are evident in Connecticut's now strong financial position, permitting build-up of a substantial budget surplus, elimination of borrowing for operating purposes and reduction of debt ratios," Moody's said in a statement.

As a result of record state budget surpluses, the state now has $200 million in the bank in a budget reserve account to guard against future deficits. The surpluses, the result of a rebounding national economy, permitted the state to make major tax cuts this year.

Gov. William A. O'Neill hailed the move, saying: "The financial community, by raising our rating, is...telling us that the state of Connecticut that will be saving millions of dollars in the sum, the financial community is echoing what I have been saying for a long time: the state of Connecticut is indeed in the best economic shape it has ever been in and is certainly a good shape in which to invest," he said.

O'Neill said the new rating was just shy of the "AAA" rating by Moody's the state enjoyed in 1975.

The other major financial rating institution, Standard & Poor's, upped its rating of Connecticut's bonds in December 1984, from "AA-minus" to "AA."

Workers picket this morning outside the Crestfield-Fenwick nursing home on Vernon Street to protest the owners' refusal to negotiate a contract with them. The workers, who belong to District 1199 of the New England Health Care Employees Union, walked off their jobs at 6 this morning.

Crestfield operates as workers strike

Workers at the Crestfield-Fenwick nursing home walked off their jobs this morning because the home's owners have refused to negotiate a contract with the union that represents them.

Picketing along with about 30 striking workers outside the home on Vernon Street, officials of District 1199 of the New England Health Care Employees Union said the strike would end whenever negotiations began. But they said they were prepared for a long strike.

Housekeeping employee Harold Twigg said he would stay on the picket line "as long as I have to."

Twigg said he has worked at the nursing home for five years and makes $6.29 an hour.

Most workers interviewed said they hoped to receive better wages and benefits, something they said would lead to better care for patients. The picketing workers were joining nursing home employees from other nursing homes in the area.

"We want good patient care. But it is hard with our time limits," said nurse's aide Tracy Wilcox. "Right now we're not on strike for any of these issues. We're on strike because the (management) broke the law."

In an Oct. 10 letter to employees, Crestfield's owner, Crestfield-Fenwick, said the home would not negotiate with District 1199 because it believed that the union was not an "uncovered majority" of the employees. District 1199 was certified this month by the National Labor Relations Board as the bargaining agent for aides and maintenance workers at the 155-bed nursing home.

BILL MEYERSON, communications director for District 1199, said this morning that "a few" unionized workers decided not to strike. He and other union officials contacted this morning said they did not know how many of the 85 workers represented by District 1199 actually walked off their jobs.

Roland Castleman, one of the three owners of Crestfield-Fenwick, said today that the nursing home was operating "above" the standards set by state health inspectors. "This facility is fully operative," he said. "The great majority of employees are working or will be taking their 30 days before the strike date. Officials for the state division of Mediation and Arbitration said District 1199 filed a 10-day notice with them Oct. 8, but that they had not received a 30-day notice. Federal mediator William Hannon said they had received a 30-day notice.

"The only thing we received was a 10-day strike notice," Hannon said. But Hannon said there were differing interpretations of labor law. He refused to say whether he believed the union had violated the law.

Workers hand-delivered the state notice to the home's owners on Oct. 10.

Meyerson said today that the state was not illegal. He said the 30-day notice only needs to be filed if the two sides are bargaining. "The only illegal thing going on is they're refusing to negotiate," Meyerson said.

Workers at the nursing home, which offers both full and intermediate care, voted last December to have District 1199 represent them in contract negotiations. The home's owners challenged certification of the union, but the NLRB in Washington, D.C., eventually ruled against them.

Kinghoffer family, nation pay tribute to slain hostage

By Marlene Alg
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Leon Kinghoffer came home in a flag-draped coffin to a hero's welcome and widow's tears, eulogized as a "symbol of righteousness" whose death aboard the hijacked cruise ship Achille Lauro made him a victim of a "world filled with evil and cruelty."

An Army honor guard, federal officials, his grieving widow and a dozen other relatives and friends gathered Sunday in a remote corner of Kennedy Airport to meet Kinghoffer's plain wood coffin when it arrived by plane from Rome on Sunday.

Terrorists who hijacked the Italian cruise ship Oct. 7 are in an Italian jail, charged with killing the 69-year-old Kinghoffer. Crew members say the gunmen ordered them to toss Kinghoffer's body and his wheelchair into the Mediterranean Sea. The body washed ashore in Syria last week.

Marilyn Kinghoffer, his widow, wiped tears from her eyes and at one point seemed faint.

Sens. Daniel P. Moynihan and Alfonse D'Amato, Rep. Ted Weiss and Assistant Secretary of State Michael H. Newsin eulogized her husband.

"May Leon Kinghoffer's memory be a blessing to the world," President Reagan said in a letter read to the assembly by Newsin.

"The pain you feel is shared by all Americans as we stand by you in prayer at this difficult time," he said.

passengers at the terminal, it taxied to a rostrum where the dignitaries waited with Mrs. Kinghoffer, her daughters, Lisa, 34, and Lisa, 28, Lisa's husband Jerry Arbitier, Lisa's fiancé, Paul Dworkin, and others.

After the speeches, Mrs. Kinghoffer kissed her hand and touched the casket.

Members of the Ft. Hamilton honor guard, wearing white gloves and dress blue uniforms, removed the flag from the coffin, folded it, and placed it in the funeral home's hands. The flag was then draped over the casket, which was placed in a hearse and driven to the funeral home for private funeral services today.

Mrs. Kinghoffer wiped tears from her face as she walked from the coffin toward a waiting limousine. She appeared to sag, and was supported by Arbitier and Dworkin, who led her to the car.

Patrick Pogue, a funeral director from Parkside Memorial Chapel in the Forest Hills section of Queens, draped a black cloth over the casket, which was placed in a hearse and driven to the funeral home for private funeral services today.

Moynihan described Kinghoffer as a "symbol of righteousness in a world filled with evil and cruelty."

He died because he was an American, because he was a Jew and because he was a free man. He will live in this nation's memory always for just those reasons," said Moynihan, D-N.Y.

Mrs. Kinghoffer and other mourners, observing a mourning silence, made no public remarks during the ceremony, held under an overcast sky at a cargo apron of the airfield.

Abortion referendum in Bristol stirs up both sides

BRISTOL (AP) — Next month's referendum on abortion in Bristol has put pro-choice advocates in the awkward position of fighting something they do not want to draw too much attention to.

But abortion rights advocates also acknowledge that the anti-abortion movement could not have found a better community than Bristol — a working class, heavily Catholic city — for a referendum challenge to the Supreme Court's Roe vs. Wade decision.

"It's such a sort of perfect town to have this kind of vote in," said Lucy Nolan, executive director of the Connecticut chapter of the National Abortion Rights Action League.

Abortion rights campaigners say they resent being forced to fight for something they already have achieved because it robs them of time to work on other important women's issues such as comparable pay and public funding of abortions for poor women.

The abortion referendum is "of extremely little significance," said Marcia Niemann, program director of the Washington, D.C. office of the National Abortion Rights Action League.

The league is helping fight the referendum with advice and guidance, and is considering providing limited financial help, she said.

Anti-abortion organizations, however, hope the referendum idea will catch on and draw more attention to the issue.

The Rev. Patrick Mahoney, a fundamentalist pastor in Bristol who came up with the referendum idea, cites two New Hampshire communities that have already followed Bristol's lead. The coastal city of Dover, N.H., and the town of Derry, N.H., about 50 miles away, have placed measures identical to Bristol's on their municipal ballots.

But unlike Bristol, where the issue has been widely discussed in recent months, the referendums in New Hampshire have attracted little attention.

Even so, that is "the initial ripple effect of what is probably going to be hundreds of towns in 1986," said Mahoney, spokesman for Celebrate Life, the Bristol anti-abortion group responsible for getting the question on the ballot.

Mahoney is a chief figure in the high-visibility campaign in Bristol, which has half a dozen anti-abortion groups. Celebrate Life has computers to track potential supporters and has taken his message to Washington, D.C., in a meeting with public liaison to President Reagan.

Both sides of the issue are polling residents and placing dozens of lawn signs.

But he said he is discouraged by the national boogie that has surrounded the Bristol campaign and complains that news media have focused on everything but the issue.

"It's really a vote on the Supreme Court decision," Mahoney said. "It's a poor decision. If people can just question Roe vs. Wade — that's all — that's what we're looking for."

In a 7-2 ruling in 1973, the high court said the constitutional right to privacy includes and protects a woman's decision to terminate a pregnancy.

Celebrate Life believes abortion is acceptable only to protect the life of the mother, said Mahoney, who gives his side less than a 50-50 chance of winning the referendum.

The pro-choice side says it must win by a large margin if it is to stop the momentum of anti-abortion forces.

If not, said Catherine Blinder, campaign chief of Citizens Against Referendum 1, "the fight will probably continue and probably switch into a higher gear."

The referendum question itself — "Should the decision by the Supreme Court regarding abortion be overturned?" — has come under some criticism.

Critics said the question does not specify which decision or explain what the court ruled, and does not let voters say whether they think abortion should be legal under certain circumstances.

Everett Ladd, director of the Roper Center for Public Opinion Research that is associated with the University of Connecticut, said, "It's not, for most people, simply yes or no."

Ann-Margaret in fashion cathouse

Throw away the lace finger-less gloves and the "boy toy" belt buckle. The Madonna look is out. People magazine says.

In its annual list of the best and worst-dressed celebrities, People credits Madonna for popularizing the trash-and-flash look but says it is passe. The magazine's editors also suggested Jackie Bisset go back to wet T-shirts and had bad things to say about actresses Mary Crosby, Sonja Braga and Raquel Welch.

Some of the harshest words were directed at Ann-Margaret.

"When will the maturing sex kitten yank up her bodice and stop dressing like the madam of an antebellum cathouse?" the magazine asks.

Bruce Springsteen was cited for his "truck-stop panache," joining Liberace, Prince, Jamie Lee Curtis, rocker David Byrne, "Miami Vice" stars Don Johnson and Philip Michael Thomas and princesses Stephanie and Caroline on the best-dressed list.

Zsa Zsa's auction

Three of Zsa Zsa Gabor's beds will be auctioned off in Delray Beach, Fla., along with some of the actress's jewelry and household goods.

Gabor, who moved out of her villa at the Palm Beach Polo & Country Club in August, has authorized an auction to sell the villa's furnishings at a public auction Nov. 15-17. Among the hundreds of items on the block are a hand-carved French Provincial double bed made of walnut, two single beds and a roll-top bed. She is also selling several framed magazine covers featuring her picture, a 1962 oil portrait of herself, and the award bracelet she wore while sitting for the portrait.

George Martin, director of the gallery handling the auction, said Gabor gave up the villa because she rarely had time to stay there.

Democrats call for revised plan

By John F. Kirch Herald Reporter

Democratic candidates for the Board of Directors today called on town planning officials to revise portions of the proposed new Comprehensive Plan of Development. During a morning news conference at Deputy Mayor Stephen T. Penny's law office, Penny and fellow candidate Peter DiRosa Jr. criticized a proposal contained in the plan to designate some sections of southwestern Manchester for medium to high-density housing.

Saying they were speaking for the other Democratic candidates as well as themselves, Penny and DiRosa said the proposed plan was "well documented" and "well considered," but would be jeopardized unless sections of it were revised.

"The realities are," Penny said, "that unless the plan can be put into a form where it enjoys the support of the community, it'll never be adopted."

The plan, which is intended to guide the PZC's land-use decisions over the next decade, proposes medium to high-density housing for the area south of Interstate 84 and west of Keeney Street.

The new designations would allow for six to 20 housing units per acre. The plan is currently zoned mostly for one to two units per acre.

Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg, also a Democratic candidate for election Nov. 5, said in a news release today that 20 units per acre was excessive. She called for the formation of a citizens' panel to study the plan.

Penny and DiRosa said they were asking the PZC to return the plan to the Planning Department staff for revisions.

William A. Bayer, a member of the PZC, said it was not necessary for the plan to be returned to the Planning Department. He said it was drafted with the help of the PZC and that any revisions would be made jointly by the commission and the planning staff.

"I don't separate the two," he said. He said the plan would probably be revised before any action by the PZC, which has the sole authority to adopt or reject the plan.

During the news conference, Penny and DiRosa also criticized their Republican opponents for jumping on the "bandwagon" of public discontent over the plan immediately after a public hearing last Wednesday at Waddell School. The Republican candidates for the Board of Directors, said during a press conference Thursday and argued that the PZC, which is currently appointed by the Board of Directors, should be elected.

DiRosa said that after reading the plan, "We don't find it so great either."

A GROUP CALLED the Southwest Manchester Property Owners' Association has sharply criticized the housing proposals contained in the plan. The group argued that higher density housing would ruin the environment and drive down property values.

"The group argued against the plan at the hearing Wednesday and has also circulated a petition calling for the removal of Planning

GOP's Diana says personalities count

Editor's note: The Herald today continues profiling candidates in the Nov. 5 town election.

By Alex Girelli Herald Reporter

WILLIAM DIANA, ... style has changed

William J. Diana, who leads the Republican minority on the Board of Directors, usually conducts a low-key campaign.

And with six election victories to his credit, Diana sees little reason to change his technique this year. The only campaign in which he ran vigorously — for election as judge of probate — was one he lost to Democratic incumbent William Fitzgerald.

Diana, 49, says he is convinced that personalities in local elections are more important than issues. He says the town's elected officials are so close to the people they represent that voters tend to know them personally and cross party lines to cast their ballots for someone in whom they have confidence.

The issues that concern most voters are those that have a direct effect on their pocketsbooks, Diana says.

Diana, a Manchester attorney, became the board's minority leader after Peter DiRosa Jr. resigned his seat in April. After serving almost six terms on the board, Diana says his style has changed somewhat.

"I leave more to the administration now. They seem to be knowledgeable," Diana says. Town General Manager Robert Weiss has hired some top-notch people as administrators, Diana says.

The recruiting is better and promotions are no longer automatic," he says.

Diana observed in a recent interview that 90 percent of the decisions made by the Board of Directors are unanimous.

But when the two parties are divided on an issue, the minority leader has to present the opposing view. Diana argues that the town made a mistake when it became involved with the conversion of a former Bannock School building into apartments for elderly people. He says it will make another if it persists in a plan to have starter houses built on a piece of town-owned land along Love Lane.

Like his fellow Republicans, Diana says the town should have considered outright sale of both the Bannock building and the Love Lane land. The Bannock building would have been used for a number of innovative private uses, Diana contends.

PETER DIROSA, ... comfortable with switch

Democrat DiRosa calls for planning

By Kathy Gornus Assistant City Editor

Peter DiRosa Jr. gained headlines earlier this year when he resigned from the Board of Directors in a dispute with the Republican town chairman and switched parties.

Now running for the board as a Democrat, the former Republican minority leader said his change in party affiliation should not have any bearing on his candidacy.

"I'm no different now than I was six months ago," DiRosa said in a recent interview. "I have the same ideas."

DiRosa, 38, said he feels "far more comfortable running as a Democrat than I thought I would," adding that when he left with GOP Town Chairman Curtis M. Smith and other members of his former party erupted, he figured he would be out of town politics for quite a while. DiRosa was appointed to the board in 1979 and was subsequently elected to the board twice.

In the interview, DiRosa denied charges made by Smith that he had often voted one way in caucus with the other two Republican directors and then voted differently at meetings of the board.

"I don't think that the caucus system should run town government," DiRosa said. More often than not, he was absent from Republican caucuses, he said.

DiRosa, who owns a dry-cleaning business, said the town should be run as a business and that the directors should conduct for it, we have orders from the federal government to do it," he said.

DiRosa stressed that town officials need to monitor development. He said he could not vote for a proposed new Comprehensive Plan of Development as currently written, but that he viewed it as "an introductory sketch."

"People in Manchester don't have a whole lot to complain about, now we have to keep it that way," DiRosa said.

DiRosa said that after reading the plan, "We don't find it so great either."

New twist in Lindbergh case

TRENTON, N.J. — The kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby, the "crime of the century" that became a symbol of tragedy befalling the famous, has a new twist: Fingerprints that may be the child's have been found, attorneys say.

Lawyers for Anna Hauptmann, wife of the man executed for killing Charles Lindbergh's son, and a man who claims to be the son said Sunday fingerprints recently recovered by the state police could prove the baby was not murdered.

The finding of nine sets of fingerprints, believed to be those of Charles Lindbergh Jr., "is of tremendous significance," said Trudy Maran, a New Jersey lawyer representing Anna Hauptmann in her $100 million wrongful death suit filed over the 1936 execution of her husband, Bruno.

The existence of fingerprints has been confirmed by Cal. Clinton Fagan, superintendent of the New Jersey State Police, who said, "We'll have a number of interesting issues to discuss" at a Tuesday news conference. The details, however, he said, will not change Hauptmann's conviction.

Reactor passes new test

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. — The Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant's Unit 2 reactor produced its first electricity Sunday, a utility spokesman said.

Unit 1 at the $5.6 billion, twin-reactor plant, located on the coast midway between Los Angeles and San Francisco, reached full power May 6.

Nine years of delays and a series of protests in which thousands were arrested preceded full power operation. Contributing to the delays were legal and technical problems including design errors, federal licensing disputes and the discovery of an offshore earthquake fault.

At 5:57 a.m., Unit 2's generators started delivering 100,000 kilowatts — enough to meet the electricity needs of about 100,000 people — into the regional power grid, said Pacific Gas & Electric Co. spokesman Chuck Peterson.

16 dissidents go on trial

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Sixteen leaders of the opposition United Democratic Front went on trial today for high treason after a weekend of anti-government violence in which three people were killed.

The trial of the 16, including joint UDF presidents Archie Gumede, 70, and Albertina Sisulu, began in Pietermaritzburg, 300 miles southeast of Johannesburg. They pleaded not guilty to high treason, which carries a possible death penalty, and to a charge of terrorism.

The group sits with 67 others on "Happy Birthday" for Sisulu, who turned 67 today.

The trial began after a weekend of blood violence mainly along the coastal cities of Port Elizabeth, East London and Cape Town. Three people were shot dead in Cape Town, two by police and one by a white motorist whose car was stoned, and a woman was killed in an apparent firebomb attack near East London.

Those on trial in Pietermaritzburg face a charge of high treason, which carries a possible death penalty, and a charge of terrorism.

The trial is part of a series of hearings that began in September 1984. At least 764 people have been killed, 506 of them shot by police.

Hudson tries stay farewell

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Some of Hollywood's biggest stars signed margarita and strolling mariachis strolled Rock Hudson's favorite Mexican tunes as friends gathered to bid farewell to the actor at his home.

The party Saturday was organized by Elizabeth Taylor, and many of the guests spoke sentimentally of Hudson, who died at his cliff-top home Oct. 2 of AIDS.

After a number of reminiscences about the late actor, Taylor asked the crowd to celebrate Hudson's memory by sharing the recreation he liked best — Mexican food and strolling mariachis.

The guest list was not made public, but celebrities seen arriving for the invitation-only event included Ricardo Montalban, Robert Mitchum, Angie Dickinson, Martha Raye, Glenn Ford, Roddy McDowall and Jessica Walters. Others attending included Susan Saint James, Robert Wagner, Stephanie Powers, Esther Williams, Lee Remick, Tab Hunter and Tom Clark, the actor's close companion who moved back into his home to take charge of affairs during the last months of Hudson's life.

Vaccine may be licensed

ATLANTA — The first vaccine for chicken pox is expected to be licensed next year to prevent many of the 3 million annual cases of the disease and save $400 million spent each year caring for sick children, health officials say.

Highly contagious, chicken pox is the last common infectious disease of childhood for which no vaccine is available.

"I would suggest that the cost of the disease indicates there is a need to prevent it," said Dr. Steven Preblud, an epidemiologist at the national Centers for Disease Control.

Preblud said Sunday the chicken pox vaccine "looks safe and very good in preventing chicken pox in normal children and preventing complications in all children."

The vaccine's manufacturers, Merck Sharp & Dohme, said it expects the preventive agent to be licensed next year by the Food and Drug Administration.

Moon not made of cheese

WASHINGTON — The moon is made not of material that broke from Earth in one piece but from a ring spun off from the planet when it was young and fast, an Indiana University astronomer said in a report today.

The explanation of how the moon was formed, Richard Durisen, an astronomy professor at the university, used a supercomputer to simulate the Earth when it was fluid and rotating rapidly. He found the result was a single body surrounded by a ring of material.

"To the extent of the computations we've done so far, it demonstrates the moon would not have broken off as a single piece," Durisen said in a telephone interview.

The National Science Foundation, which supported the work, said the theory the moon was a spinoff of Earth was proposed first in 1879 by George Darwin, son of the English naturalist Charles Darwin.

The new theory could also explain why the moon has so little iron, while the Earth has so much. The iron would have settled to the Earth's core, where it lies now and the outer part could have broken away to form the ring.

Craxi takes back the helm in Italy

By Paolo Butturini
United Press International

ROME — Bettino Craxi was named prime minister-designate today and immediately began trying to reassemble the five-party coalition government that collapsed last week over the Achille Lauro affair.

Craxi, Italy's first Socialist prime minister until his resignation Thursday, was given the nod to form a new government after meeting less than 45 minutes with President Francesco Cossiga.

"I will go back to work immediately to try to resolve a political crisis that might not turn out to have easy solutions," Craxi told journalists after the meeting.

Craxi given the reluctant support of a key coalition partner that forced the collapse of the last government over the release of a Palestinian suspect in an Achille Lauro hijacking, is expected to form a new administration.

The new government would likely be a coalition of the previous 26-month-old coalition that linked Craxi's Socialist-led coalition with the Christian Democrats, along with the smaller Liberal, Social Democratic and Republican parties.

Craxi said he hoped to begin consultations today or Tuesday with each of the nation's political parties.

The needs of the country endure crisis situations badly and endure even worse prolonged crisis situations," he said. "I hope that the necessary clarifications and agreements can be realized rapidly ... to guarantee the continuity of the government."

Envoy gives Reagan message to Mubarak

By Dolio Boligh
The Associated Press

CAIRO, Egypt — A U.S. envoy today delivered a letter from President Reagan to Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, and said the message expressed Reagan's desire to surmount strains caused by the Achille Lauro crisis.

Mubarak has accused the United States of delivering a "stab in the back" to Egypt by intercepting an Egyptian jetliner carrying the four hijackers of the Italian cruise ship, an act also referred to as "piracy."

U.S. Deputy Secretary of State John C. Whitehead met for almost two hours today with Mubarak, and said he handed the Egyptian head of state a letter from Reagan that urged a continued commitment to close U.S.-Egyptian relations and his hope that we can now put our recent differences behind us.

N.H. murders still unsolved

By Morrira Engler
The Associated Press

JACKSON, N.H. — When the telephone rang near dawn, William Kelley was preparing for bed, thinking the worst of the night was behind him. The fire chief and his men had spent hours outside in January weather so hateful the wind made their heads ache, and their hoses left icy bark on charred timbers.

Now, an alarm brought Kelley's crew out again, to the house of Malcolm and Elizabeth Jennings, who lived next to their 11-year-old Dana Place Inn at the edge of the White Mountain National Forest.

"Nothing on this earth or beyond" could have prepared him for what he found in the burning house, Kelley said later.

In the ashes of the home, Kelley found two charred bodies.

"I could never go through that again," he said. "We knew those people."

By day's end, Jackson's 700 residents learned that a killer had burned, gagged and repeatedly stabbed the inkeepers before burning their house.

"I believe our boys saved the case," Kelley said of his men. "Without their work, the ropes and gags and everything else would have gone up in flames."

Twelve days later, two more bodies were found in a burned shack in High Springs, Fla. Among the few bones and teeth which survived investigators identified one tooth. It belonged to Page Jennings, the 21-year-old daughter of the inkeepers.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua, while declaring that victory over U.S.-backed rebels is within reach, says civil liberties will remain suspended until the United States accepts the legitimacy of the Sandinista revolution.

During an hour-long interview with a small group of reporters Sunday, Ortega said last week's internal crack-down was needed to guarantee final victory over the resistance forces led by the Contras.

Ortega was expected to make a speech today to announce that he has delivered a strong defense of the crackdown in the opening speech today to the General Assembly as it begins the final four days of the celebration of the United Nations' 40th anniversary. An estimated 60 heads of government planned to take part.

In what the Reagan administration described as a "further step toward imposing a totalitarian system on the Sandinista government last week imposed new restrictions on the freedom of speech, travel and assembly, the right to strike and on the protection of privacy in the home and the mails."

Defending curbs on the activities of the Roman Catholic Church, Ortega said, "The church must behave as a church and the state must behave as a state."

Ortega indicated the restrictions will be in effect for the long-term.

"The measures will be there as long as the United States does not change its objectives," he said, speaking through an interpreter.

Attempting to minimize the impact of the restrictions, Ortega said the Constituent Assembly will continue to write a new constitution, taking into account opposing viewpoints, and opposition parties will be allowed to hold a second congress provided they receive prior permission from the government.

Ortega appeared relaxed as he spoke to reporters in his hotel suite after a morning jog through Central Park.

His activities this week will include attendance at a reception President Reagan is giving to the heads of government present here.

Whitehead, dispatched to Egypt and Italy in one what one U.S. official called a peace-making mission, met Saturday in Rome with Bettino Craxi, who resigned as Italy's premier after his governing coalition broke up in disagreement over decisions made in the Achille Lauro crisis.

Whitehead then flew to Cairo, and met Sunday with Egypt's foreign minister, Esmat Abdel-Meguid.

Mubarak, in an interview broadcast Sunday on CBS-TV's "60 Minutes," said he felt he was doing the United States and Italy a favor by asking Tunisia to allow the entry of the hijackers.

Mubarak said that Tunisia checked with the United States before deciding what to do. "The Americans told them to give permission," Mubarak said in the interview taped Saturday. "At that time, you decided to take the decision for the interception."

The Egyptian jet was forced down by U.S. warplanes at a NATO base in Sicily, where the four hijackers were arrested for trial in the ship's hijacking and Klinghoffer's slaying.

Referring to the Egyptian jet's diversion, Mubarak said: "I could tell you that I consider this from the United States a stab in the back ... from a friend."

Listen to your baby

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — Parents who ignore baby's "goo-goo" and "da-da" sounds as newborn jibberish are missing early attempts at communication, a pediatrician said.

Harvard University Prof. T. Berry Brazelton, whose book "Infants and Mothers" became a best-seller in 1969, said during weekend talks that infants who get no response from their baby talk can become depressed.

He also said babies respond differently to fathers than they do to mothers, with an infant commonly taking on a "pounce look" when the father approaches.

"Everything goes up — shoulders, mouth, eyes, as if to show, 'Now I'm ready,'" he said.

Rough time on Hill

WASHINGTON — Despite overwhelming opposition from Israel and most members of Congress, supporters of a proposed sale of weapons to Jordan are trying to devise a compromise that will salvage the Reagan administration's plan.

The administration planned to send the $1.9 billion proposal to Capitol Hill today and Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, urged its adoption — with conditions attached to make it more palatable to opponents.

But Lugar said on Sunday, "These are defensive weapons. The point we are trying to establish right now is that King Hussein needs our support in order to proceed with the peace process."

Israel knows that. We really have to find a formula right now to accommodate each of the interests. We added on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley," Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres said even with conditions, the only acceptable condition should be "let's have peace," he said.

Budget woes split president, Congress

WASHINGTON — As predictable as the characters in a Hollywood potboiler, Congress and the Reagan administration are again struggling and bickering over how to meet the ambitious set of budget goals they have set for themselves.

Congressional negotiators were resuming work today on drafting a compromise version of a Senate-passed plan whose supporters, including President Reagan, say will force a balanced budget by 1991.

"Either they (the bargainers) take the instruments of largess away from us or we will never be able to do it ourselves," said Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., the assistant majority leader.

The House has embraced the goal but not the specifics of the plan.

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., chairman of the congressional Joint Economic Committee, used the Democratic response to Reagan's budget plan as a "mindless threat" to the economy.

"This scheme is a prescription for making recessions worse and for doing the least about the deficit when we can most afford it," Obey added.

To underscore his point, Obey called Franco Modigliani, winner of the 1985 Nobel prize for economics, to testify on the plan before his panel today.

Modigliani, a professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been a critic of the supply-side economics Reagan has used as the foundation of the administration's economic policy.

The negotiators from the House and Senate were meeting today for the third time to go over the proposal for setting declining limits on budget deficits — now running at about $200 billion a year.

"This scheme is a prescription for making recessions worse and for doing the least about the deficit when we can most afford it," Obey added.

To underscore his point, Obey called Franco Modigliani, winner of the 1985 Nobel prize for economics, to testify on the plan before his panel today.

Modigliani, a professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been a critic of the supply-side economics Reagan has used as the foundation of the administration's economic policy.

The negotiators from the House and Senate were meeting today for the third time to go over the proposal for setting declining limits on budget deficits — now running at about $200 billion a year.

Arms sale proposal gets go-ahead

WASHINGTON — Despite overwhelming opposition from Israel and most members of Congress, supporters of a proposed sale of weapons to Jordan are trying to devise a compromise that will salvage the Reagan administration's plan.

The administration planned to send the $1.9 billion proposal to Capitol Hill today and Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, urged its adoption — with conditions attached to make it more palatable to opponents.

But Lugar said on Sunday, "These are defensive weapons. The point we are trying to establish right now is that King Hussein needs our support in order to proceed with the peace process."

Israel knows that. We really have to find a formula right now to accommodate each of the interests. We added on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley," Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres said even with conditions, the only acceptable condition should be "let's have peace," he said.

The 9,000-pound whale was moved in a specially designed cradle on a flatbed truck from the park's old home in Redwood City, Calif. It took 14 hours to move the park's two killer whales to their new home.

Budget woes split president, Congress

WASHINGTON — As predictable as the characters in a Hollywood potboiler, Congress and the Reagan administration are again struggling and bickering over how to meet the ambitious set of budget goals they have set for themselves.

Congressional negotiators were resuming work today on drafting a compromise version of a Senate-passed plan whose supporters, including President Reagan, say will force a balanced budget by 1991.

"Either they (the bargainers) take the instruments of largess away from us or we will never be able to do it ourselves," said Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., the assistant majority leader.

The House has embraced the goal but not the specifics of the plan.

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., chairman of the congressional Joint Economic Committee, used the Democratic response to Reagan's budget plan as a "mindless threat" to the economy.

"This scheme is a prescription for making recessions worse and for doing the least about the deficit when we can most afford it," Obey added.

To underscore his point, Obey called Franco Modigliani, winner of the 1985 Nobel prize for economics, to testify on the plan before his panel today.

Space commission hopes to cash in on future launches

By Jim Rattray
United Press International

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — The National Commission on Space, meeting at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology today, is hoping a systematic approach to further exploration will eliminate the problems of the past.

The organization, charged with preparing the United States for the industrialization and commercialization of space, faces an astronomical cost problem.

The next move into space will take lots of money and years of precise planning following the Apollo missions to the moon during the late 1960s and early 1970s.

The commission, through the MIT sessions and other meetings around the country, hopes to unravel the secrets of successful space exploration.

"We are not going to undertake another space spectacular so much as a progressive space exploration and exploitation," said commission member George Field, physicist and professor at the Harvard-Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory.

Interpol seems to be changing with the times

WASHINGTON — The spread of terrorism and the need for greater efficiency have brought change — and controversy — to Interpol, the international police information-sharing organization.

Robert Wagman

Interpol's recent general assembly — its 44th — was the first to take place in the United States in more than 25 years. The sessions were closed to the public and the press, but it was clear that the 62-year-old organization is undergoing rapid change.

However, at its 1984 general assembly in Luxembourg, Interpol voted to change its rules. It will now involve itself in cases in which crimes are committed even if they are "politically motivated."

THE ORGANIZATION ALSO is undergoing a change that some of its elder members find somewhat sinister and hard to accept. Since World War II, Interpol has always been viewed as a French organization, since it's based in France and has always been headed by a Frenchman.

Kendall denies that this represents some kind of Anglo-American takeover of the organization. At a press conference, he called the charge "a false issue that has been built up where it doesn't exist. My relations with French officials," he said, "are cordial and are based on mutual respect."

IN A JULY 8 SPEECH to the American Bar Association, Reagan included Iran, Nicaragua and Libya among five "outlaw states" and sponsors of terrorism — and all three are Interpol members.

During his news conference, Kendall was asked if Interpol had any safeguards that would prevent dissemination of information to members who might abuse it. He admitted that Interpol's constitution contains no such safeguards or sanctions, but added: "In my 15 years (as Britain's Interpol representative), I have never come across a case where there has been a deliberate misuse of information."

It started when we mispoke ourselves about the whereabouts of the Achille Lauro terrorists.

Change selectmen, not Bolton charter

To the Editor: The Herald editorial, "Bolton needs new system," which promotes the concept that a revision of the town charter would permit a more efficient government and streamline money handling, is as faulty as editor's admitted past assessment of the May election.

constant chasing a resident down Williams Road, Bolton Center Road, passing the library, the town hall, the church, to Steele Crossing Road, at a reported 80 miles per hour. All because of a noisy muffler? Would this juror feel the extreme danger by the high speed to residents and other motorists that the selectmen are indifferent or failing to control the appointed constables?

But leaders who will initiate and welcome referendums, who will defend the constitutional rights of other boards to hold opinions different than their own, and not try to undercut them.

ST GERMAIN TOLD our associate editor Tony Capacchio: "I am aware of the call, but very frankly I do not recall the specific details of how they were initiated."

Whalers playing wait and see game after 4-1 start

By Bob Papelli
Herald Sports Writer

HARTFORD — The vital begins. As the Whalers prepare for their first major road trip of the season, players and fans alike have adopted the proper attitude concerning a fast 4-1 start.

For Hartford, it doesn't matter how many points separate the club from first place. The only digit that rates is how many points away from last place. After degrading the defending Adams Division champion Montreal Canadiens, 11-6, Saturday night at the Civic Center, the POOL number (points out of last) currently stands at four.

Calm down. The team at the bottom is the Canadiens, winners of just two out of five games this year, and 15 Stanley Cups and 20 division crowns in the last 30 years. The team at the bottom also resides in a haunted castle called the Forum, where many a brave Whale has been swallowed up whole, never to be seen again. Those lucky enough to escape were reduced to blubbering masses.

Are the ghosts of the Montreal Forum that menacing? These are facts: in their six-year NHL history, the Whalers are 8-14 in Montreal. Included in the tally were a pair of 1979-80 playoff losses in Hartford's first and only post-season appearance. In the past four seasons, since the league realigned and created a monster division called the Adams, the Whale has exactly one non-loss in Montreal country.

Assuming that the presently hapless Habs continue to ice at least eight rookies — like they did Saturday — the playoff hopes of a half-decade dormant may come down to one building. And it's not on Trumbull Street.

"One of our goals, besides points, that is very high on our list," said left wing Dave Tiptert, "is to win in the Forum."

"We wanted to play this game for next Saturday," he added, after chipping in two goals in the shootout. Ron Francis notched his fourth career hat trick (in a 7-2 first period) and Sylvain Turgeon netted his first two markers of the year. Kevin Dineen also tallied twice, giving him a team-leading six goals, while Bobby Crawford and Terrie Robertson added one each.

Right wing Ray Neufeld drew five assists, tying a club mark for most points in a tilt.

If any contest can be called crucial this early in the campaign, it is "next Saturday," when the White tries to scale the Forum wall. First stops on the four-game road swing include Chicago on Wednesday and Philadelphia on Thursday. Hartford winds it up the following Tuesday in Pittsburgh, before becoming home to host Quebec on Wednesday, Oct. 30.

Saturday night's abacus assault by the Whalers cannot totally be attributed to an off-night by the losers. Granted, goalie Steve Penney let five of 13 shots in goal (including two sliders between his legs). All-Star defenseman Chris Chelios got used up, and four veterans were out of action. But the presence of a half-dozen no-name apprentice forwards suggests an extended span of on-the-job rebuilding.

"Of their four lines, out of 12 skaters, we counted six new guys who haven't played against the Whalers," added Tiptert. The best of the lot looks like Swedish right wing Kjell Dahlin and center Stephane Richer, each of whom scored two goals. Sergio Momesso and Brian Skrudland also counted for Montreal.

These obviously aren't the same old Canadiens. "We were just looking for excuses," said all-time great defenseman Larry Robinson, who played on five Stanley Cup winners. "There was no cohesion. Every time the puck was in our end, we just panicked."

The Habs missed sidelined forwards Mario Tremblay, Lucien Delbois and defenseman Rick Green. Also absent from the lineup was felonious dentist Chris Nilan, who was serving the second of an eight-game suspension for using the butt end of his hockey stick to extract two incisors from the mouth of Boston's Rick Middleton.

"Tonight it was a goalie's nightmare, everything bounced in," said Francis, who has five goals and four assists for nine points, tying him with linemate Neufeld (4-9) for the team lead.

"We wanted to show them that we are for real," added Francis, who welcomed the return of Turgeon to the No. 1 line. "Sylvain was due for a big night."

We gave up six goals and didn't play that great defensively, either."

But what about all those new guys. Neufey? "That doesn't hurt our chances at all."

East soccer finishing strong

How does the saying go, "Bad start, good finish."

That can be applied in the case of the East Catholic High soccer team.

The Eagles had a horrible start, losing their first four of seven games. It looked like East's streak of qualifying for the state tournament, which stands at six years and running, was in deep jeopardy.

Not anymore.

The Eagles are within one victory of gaining a post-season berth following Saturday's 1-0 shutout of St. Bernard's in the rain and drizzle at Cougar Field. East, 7-8 overall, needs a single triumph in its last three outings to climb the hill.

Kevin Madden's third goal of the season at the 21-minute mark of the second half, after the Eagles had seen several good bids fly either high or wide, put the game in the win column for East.

"We moved the ball well all day and had some excellent scoring chances in both halves," cited East coach Tom Malin.

In the first two minutes of the second half, Sean Powers and then Dan Gardiner saw possible scoring bids go astray. But Madden's 1-0 outran a Saint fullback to the ball, put one home from 15 yards out to decide matters.

"We're playing with confidence, we've won seven of eight games to push our record to 7-5 and with a win or tie in our next three games would qualify us for the tournament," Malin said.

East begins its quest for a post-season berth Wednesday against South Catholic in Hartford at 3 p.m.

Madden, Kevin Riggs, sweeper Dave Rusczyk and John Arigno, the latter off the bench, played well for East.

East outshot the Saints, who dipped to 2-7-1 with the loss, by a 14-6 count. Mickey Thaxton had 9 saves against 5 for East keeper T.J. Leahy.

Grogan, Pats ground Jets

By Frederick Waterman
United Press International

FOXBORO, Mass. — The play was "perfect," the veteran quarterback "tough," and the New England Patriots played "good old-fashioned football" Sunday.

Steve Grogan's fourth-quarter bootleg was the deciding score in the Patriots' 20-13 victory over the New York Jets, snapping the visitors' five-game winning streak.

Grogan, an 11-year pro starting his first game since Sept. 16, 1984, called all his own plays. But the winning score was the one he didn't call.

Before his touchdown, Grogan called a handoff to running back Tony Collins. He faked the move, then sprinted untouched into the left corner of the end zone.

"It was the perfect call," conceded Jets nose guard Joe Klecko. "I haven't seen a tougher quarterback in my life. I just haven't."

The victory improved Grogan's record to 11-3 against the Jets.

"He's still the same tough Steve Grogan that beat us in the past," New York defensive end Marty Lyons said. "He took some tough licks, but he kept getting up."

Grogan started in place of Tony Eason, who suffered a separated left shoulder last week.

Sunday's score was Grogan's 30th career rushing touchdown, and came on one of his favorite plays.

"I use to run that play a lot," said Grogan, who set out 18 straight games before guiding New England to a comeback victory over Buffalo Oct. 13. "But I haven't run it a lot lately."

On Sunday, Grogan completed 11-of-32 passes for 171 yards and watched his receivers drop several long passes.

New England gained 129 yards rushing and used its ground game effectively in the second half.

49ers mysteriously keep on stumbling along

By Joel Sherman
United Press International

Last year, as the San Francisco 49ers were cruising toward the Super Bowl championship, they hit a minor pothole in Week 7. This season, Week 7 was another stumbling block for the 49ers, but the road is leading toward mediocrity.

James Jones rushed for a career-high 118 yards and one touchdown and Eddie Murray booted three field goals Sunday to help the Detroit Lions send the 49ers under .500 with a 23-21 victory.

The Pittsburgh Steelers defeated the 49ers 20-17 on the seventh week last season, San Francisco's lone loss in a 15-1 regular season.

Their loss Sunday dropped the 49ers to 3-4. The team's dramatic turnaround this season is reminiscent of the last time they won the NFL championship. Following its Super Bowl XVI victory, San Francisco fell to 3-6 in the strike-shortened 1982 season.

"It's a very difficult loss for all of us — the team and the organization," San Francisco coach Bill Walsh said. "I hate to keep saying this week in and week out, but our opponents are outplaying us and deserving of the wins."

"The game we had today is the kind of game we've had all year. We just have to maintain our poise and composure the rest of the way."

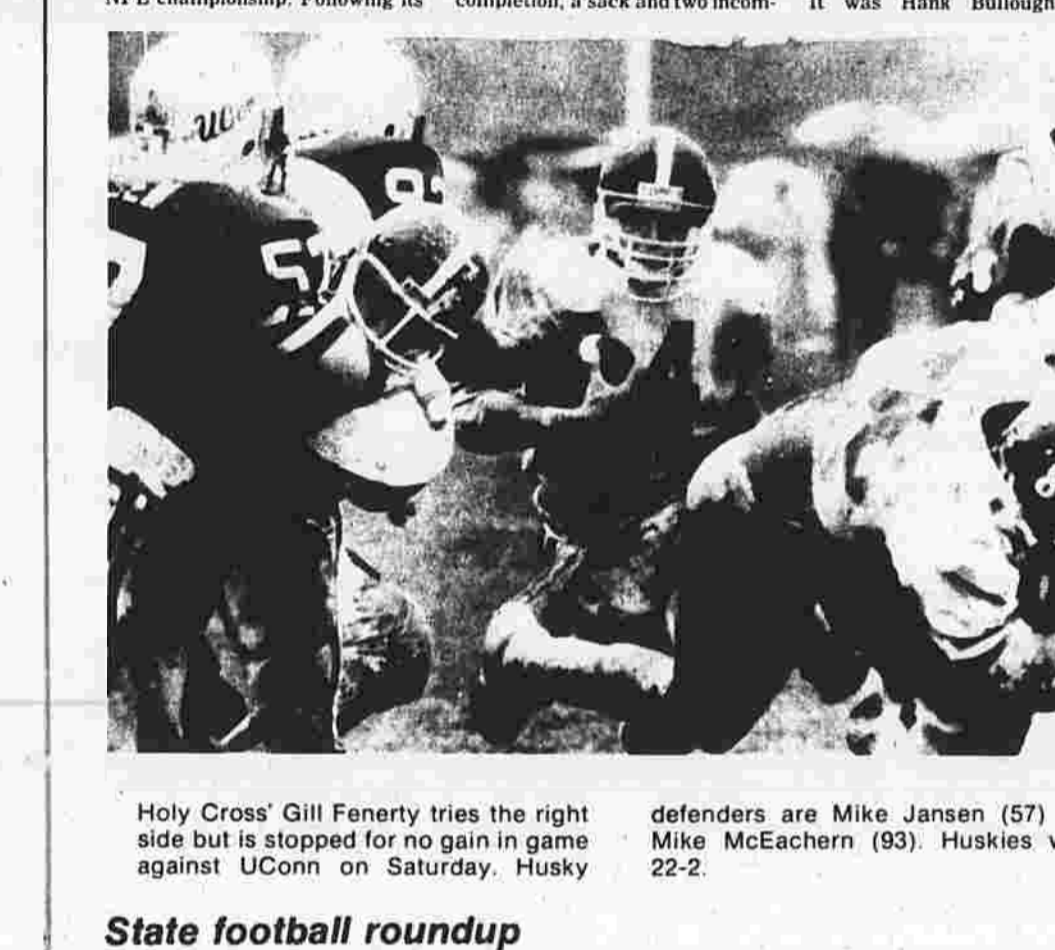

With Detroit holding a 23-14 fourth-quarter lead, Joe Montana marched the 49ers 95 yards in 10 plays, with Roger Craig racing 11 yards for the score with 2:59 left to cut the deficit to 22-21.

San Francisco got the ball back with 1:37 remaining on its own 12.

Giants flex muscles in beating Redskins

By Dove Raffo

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — When the New York Giants and Washington Redskins play football, it's strength against strength and may the toughest team prevail.

The Giants did all the muscle flexing Sunday, scoring a 17-3 victory that made the Redskins look like weaklings.

"We had to more or less shut down their running attack early," Giants inside linebacker Harry Carson said. "I'm proud of the way our defense performed. We set goals on Friday and attained them."

"We wanted to hold them to 10 first downs, less than 100 yards rushing and 250 yards total offense, commit no defensive penalties and a very important goal was not to allow any first-or-fourth-quarter touchdowns."

We wanted three turnovers and five sacks. If we establish our goals, we should win."

The Giants reached most of their defensive goals although the Redskins had 16 first downs and 276 yards total offense. Washington's ground game, No. 1 in the NFL, managed just 69 yards on 19 carries. New York's defense, No. 1 in the league, came back strong after losing consecutive shootouts to Dallas and Cincinnati.

"We did ruin the ball as well as we did in the past," said Washington's John Riggins, who was limited to 35 yards on 11 carries.

"Of course, that's one of the Giants' strong suits. It's one of ours too and it looks like they outperformed us in that part of the game."

New York got a boost from outside linebacker Lawrence Taylor, who said he rededicated himself to football this week.

Coventry girls blank EC

COVENTRY — Three more goals from prolific scoring sophomore Leslie Danehy powered Coventry High to a 4-0 verdict over East Catholic in girls soccer action at the annual Coventry SoccerFest Saturday afternoon.

Danehy, who broke her own school single-season record earlier in the week, now has 29 goals for the season. Monica Hodina notched the other tally for the Patriots, who've won five straight, giving her 15 for the season.

Coventry goes to 9-2 with the victory while the loss snapped East's five-game winning streak and drops them to 7-3 for the season.

The Eagles have four regular season games remaining, starting with Tuesday's match at Windham High, and must win just one to qualify for the state tournament.

Coventry had a 23-21 edge in shots. Patriot goalie Anna Werfel had 8 stops against 10 for Eagle goalie Paula Hollis. Chris Ruffin, Melissa Carroll, Amelia Bears and Debbie Sulzanski played well for East.

Coventry's next action was today against RHAM High in Hebron.

Bolton wins second

MOODUS — With two goals in each half, Bolton High whitewashed Hale-Ray, 4-0, in girls' soccer action Saturday afternoon in Moodus.

The win moves the Bulldogs to 2-1 for the season. Hale-Ray, in its first year of varsity soccer, is winless.

Kerry Jeczewski and Denise Welch had first-half goals for the Bulldogs with reserves Justine Kolesko and Jo Dinnocenza finding the range in the second half.

Wetling's goal was her fifth of the year. Jeczewski's and the first for Kolesko and Dinnocenza.

Bolton outshot the Little Noises, 17-2. Kristie Cook made two stops in goal for Bolton.

Ann Lewis and Kolesko played well for Bolton, which was back in action today at home against East Hampton.

Terriers top Patriots

COVENTRY — All the scoring came in the first half as Rocky Hill topped Coventry High, 2-1, to spoil the annual Coventry SoccerFest on Saturday in Coventry.

The setback drops the Patriots to 7-2-3 for the season, 5-2-2 in the Charter Oak Conference. The Terriers, who've won the COC championship 20 years in a row, wind up 9-0 in conference play and are 10-2 overall. They've won nine in a row after dropping two of their first three games of the season.

"It should have wound up a 1-1 tie," observed Coventry coach Bob Plaster. "The wet conditions played a factor in the final outcome."

After freshman Jack Ayer had tied it for the Patriots with 30 minutes left in the half, Rocky Hill tallied the game-winner.

A Terrier direct kick was stopped by Patriot goalie Bill Hines, but he couldn't contain a rebound. "The ball was three feet in front of him but each time he went for it he slipped and (Dave) Goodrich tapped it in," Plaster recalled.

Mike Gozzo's goal at 12:44 gave the visitors an early lead.

Each club had 8 shots with Hines and his counterpart, Dean Bartolucci, each registering three saves. "The teams were pretty well matched and there was good defense both ways," Plaster cited.

Steve Paterson had the best opportunity to knot it for Coventry with five minutes left but his shot whistled six inches wide of the post.

Wing fullbacks Mike Burrell and Dan Ellis, stopper Gary Talar and sophomore midfielder Rob Berkowitz played well for Coventry.

The Patriots next set action Tuesday at home against RHAM High at 3:15 p.m.

Proficient Jets power play burns the Flames

By Ken Rappoport
The Associated Press

For a team that was supposed to be one of the strongest in the National Hockey League this year, the Winnipeg Jets haven't shown much so far in the power-play department. That situation is liable to change, however, judging from their performance Sunday night in an 8-5 beating of Smythe Division rival Calgary.

"I was glad to see our power play finally get untracked," Winnipeg Coach Barry Long said after his Jets converted four of 10 power-play opportunities. "In our first five games, it was just horrible to behold."

Defenseman Dave Babych, who scored with the man advantage in the second period for Winnipeg, said the Jets were coached on the power play during the intermissions.

"We watched some of the power plays to see what we were doing wrong," Babych said. "Then we started to move it around a little better and got our chances."

In other NHL action Sunday night, it was Edmonton's 8-2 rout of the New York Rangers 4, Vancouver 3, and Philadelphia 5, Chicago 2.

Centers Laurie Boschman and Dale Hawerchuk put in two goals each as the Jets evened their record at 3-3 and dropped Calgary to 2-3.

Until Sunday night, the Jets had managed only three goals on 33 power-play opportunities this season. But against the Flames, Winnipeg cashed in their power-play advantages to a great extent.

Boschman and Hawerchuk each scored with the Flames a man short, with Mike Ridley with a 4:15 goal in the final period.

Also scoring for the winners were Dave Babych, Paul Miller and Wayne Gretzky who had an assist for the Oilers, the assist goes, the fifth straight victory for the unbeaten Oilers.

The Canucks came alive in the third period to tie the game 3-3 on goals by Petri Skiro and Stan Smyl in the first three minutes before Miller drilled home his game-winner.

At 7:43 of the third period, Philadelphia defenseman Mark Howe uncorked a 45-foot slapshot. Hawks goalie Murray Bannerman failed to clear the puck and knuckled it to his right. Propp slapped it and the puck hit the goal post, bounced off Bannerman's skate and went into the net for a 3-2 Philadelphia advantage.

Less than four minutes later, the Flyers' Murray Craven passed from behind the Hawks net to Propp, who was stationed just to the left of Bannerman. Propp passed to Dave Brown, who punched in his first goal of the year.

Propp's first goal of the game, in the second period, had helped the Flyers build a 2-0 lead. But the Hawks struck suddenly, scoring a pair of goals in the span of 1:46 to tie the score.

Paul Coffey and rookie Raimo Summanen scored two goals each to give the Oilers a 1-0 lead at 1:48 of the first period, but Edmonton took charge quickly with three straight goals, including the first of the year for Summanen and Coffey's third. Summanen added a score in the second period and Coffey capped things for the defending Stanley Cup champions with a shorthanded goal in the final period.

Wayne Gretzky had a goal and an assist for the Oilers, the assist goes, the fifth straight victory for the unbeaten Oilers.

Rangers 4, Canucks 3
Rookie Kelly Miller scored his first two NHL goals, including the game-winner in the third period, to pace the Rangers over Vancouver. The Rangers blew an early 3-0 lead before battling back on Miller's second goal, which came on a rebound of a shot by Mike Ridley with 4:15 gone in the final period.

Also scoring for the winners were Dave Babych, Paul Miller and Wayne Gretzky who had an assist for the Oilers, the assist goes, the fifth straight victory for the unbeaten Oilers.

Advice

Children shouldn't be seen or heard on most job sites

DEAR ABBY:

A group of us women were discussing the letter from "Timid in Louisiana" (a housewife) hired a contractor to install a swimming pool.

The contractor brought his son and very young grandson along on the job causing "Timid" problems. Almost every woman in the group had a similar story to tell.

One said she hired two men to build a patio. They showed up lugging a suitcase-sized radio, already tuned to a rock station, and without asking if it would disturb anyone, they turned the volume up full blast. It blared away all day until quitting time. She said she was too intimidated to complain.

Another woman said three roofers brought a radio to keep them entertained while they worked on her roof. Her phone rang all day long with calls from angry neighbors asking her to turn down her stereo; the sound had carried to the next street and down the block! She also said nothing, because the roofers were hard to get.

DEAR HOUSEWIFE: Read on for the lip side of that story:

DEAR ABBY: I just finished reading the letter from "Timid" complaining to you about the self-employed contractor who brought a small child along on the job. I have the opposite problem. I am a self-employed contractor who has worked at houses where the lady of the house will put her kids down for a nap, run out the door and say, "I have to go to the store for a few minutes; please watch the kids." Then she's gone all day.

Dear Abby

There are also women who send their children out to play while we work. We take our boys and girls with us and we have to watch them every minute.

We are hired to do a job, not to be baby sitters.

FED UP IN THE TWIN CITIES
DEAR FED UP: Speaking of baby sitters, let's hear it from a pro:

DEAR ABBY: I am director of a child care center with 250 children in child care. My reply to the woman who complained about the workmen who brought a small boy along on their job would be as follows:

Woman of the house: "Oh, I see you have brought your child with you. I'm sure my homeowner's insurance will cover a lawsuit if he gets hurt on the premises, so I will baby-sit for you while you are working. By the way, I charge $10 per hour for baby-sitting, which I will be glad to deduct from your bill."

She then could have turned to the child and said, "Come on in and have a glass of juice, and we'll find something fun to do while your daddy works!"

I read your column daily. Keep up the good work.
NANCY GOLDSMITH, M.E.D., BRANT ROCK, MASS.

DEAR ABBY: Re your position that not everyone is cut out for motherhood, I always say: Everyone should have children, no one should be allowed to escape. Cheerfully,

FATHER ANDREW L.J. JAMES, P.H.D., HOLY CROSS EASTERN ORTHODOX CHURCH, ATHENS, OHIO (P.S. I have three.)

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby's Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 3923, Hollywood, Calif. 90023.)

DEAR DR. GOTT: Twenty-three years ago I had a mastoidectomy. Last October I developed an ear infection. I've been to a specialist who wants to operate on my ear. My doctor and the pharmacist told me that different antibiotics could be tried until one worked. My doctor said that a different antibiotic would be used.

DEAR READER: Mastoid operations were common years ago, before antibiotics became available. Occasionally mastoid surgery is necessary today, but most doctors prefer to treat infections with antibiotics. Rather than choosing between your doctor and your pharmacist, obtain another opinion from a qualified otolaryngologist. Perhaps surgery will be necessary, but in your case, the procedure will be elective, so why not take your time about making a decision? Get another opinion.

Huskies win 13th straight
STORRS — With Matt Addington getting both goals, University of Connecticut men's soccer team ran its winning streak to 13 straight with a 2-0 shutout of Navy on Sunday.

UConn, 13-0-3, has registered the second longest winning streak in school history, only the 17 straight in 1980 beats the current skien. The 13-0-3 start for the Huskies is the second longest.

Navy, 4-5-1, employed an offside trap gimmick — "We don't have the type of skilled players that UConn does, so we have to try these quite, unique gimmicks," Navy coach Greg Myers said — but the Huskies were finally able to break through.

The two goals were Addington's 44th and 45th of his career, placing him third on the all-time Connecticut list.

UConn is on the road Wednesday against Providence.

Knicks' Ewing hurt in exhibition

Television replays showed Ewing threw an elbow into Stipanovich's face with the Indiana center later grabbing Ewing around the neck from behind, tossing him to the floor face down and jumping on him.

Both players were ejected. It was Ewing's fourth scuffle and second ejection in the preseason.

Edwards wins Pensacola Open
PENSACOLA, Fla. — With two booming 4-irons and one soft putt, Danny Edwards won $54,000 Sunday — and made his plane. Edwards snapped a two-year victory drought by dropping in a 15-foot birdie putt at the 17th hole, breaking away from a three-way tie and winning the $300,000 Pensacola Open by one stroke.

Jones, Samuelson cop Marathon
CHICAGO — Steve Jones of Wales and American Joan Bennit Samuelson won titles at the America's Marathon Sunday, with Jones coming agonizingly close to a world record.

Jones, 30, finished the 26.2-mile race in 2:07:13, two seconds behind the world record set by Carlos Lopes of Portugal in April. He said he did not know how close he was to the record until it was too late to do anything about it.

Bennit, of Cape Elizabeth, Me., ran inches ahead of Ingrid Kristiansen of Norway through 15 miles of the race, then slowly pulled away from the world record holder. Bennit's final time of 2:11 was 15 seconds behind Kristiansen's world record, set in London this summer.

Waltrip wins Nationwide 500
ROCKINGHAM, N.C. — A chassis adjustment and a fresh set of tires with about 70 laps left in the Nationwide 500 added up to a victory Sunday for Darrell Waltrip and increased his lead in the NASCAR point standings.

With his third victory of the season, Waltrip built his lead over Bill Elliott to 35 points with two races remaining. Going into Sunday's 492-lap event at the 1.017-mile North Carolina Motor Speedway, Waltrip held a 20-point advantage over Elliott.

Grambling's Robinson winningest
GRAMBLING, La. — Eddie Robinson now is the winningest coach in football history — and the 1985 edition of his Grambling Tigers are sitting undefeated atop their conference.

College football roundup

Iowa just keeps its No. 1 ranking
As the clock ticked down to 0:00, the scoreboard changed from "Michigan 10-9" to "Iowa 12-10."

Which is as close and as dramatic as it should be when the nation's top two-ranked college football teams get together.

No. 1-ranked Iowa and runner-up Michigan duelled for 60 emotional minutes Saturday before the Hawkeys, who dominated the statistics, finally prevailed on the scoreboard as well, and on the very last play of the game — a 29-yard field goal by Rob Houghtlin, who had kicked three earlier ones but missed a 44-yard attempt with 7:38 remaining.

"If we're No. 1, they're dang sure No. 2, as far as I'm concerned," said Iowa Coach Hayden Fry.

Iowa, 6-0 for the first time since 1960, almost certainly will remain No. 1 in this week's Associated Press poll, but it remains to be seen whether the setback will cost Michigan its No. 2 ranking. There surely will be some shuffling in the Top Ten since third-ranked Oklahoma lost to Miami of Florida 27-14 and No. 4 Arkansas bowed to Texas 15-13. Both Miami and Texas were unranked last week.

Two other members of the Top Twenty also lost — 10th-ranked Alabama fell to No. 20 Tennessee 16-14 and No. 19 Army dropped a 24-10 decision to Notre Dame. In addition, No. 16 Georgia was held to a 13-13 tie by Vanderbilt.

The only easy winners were 14th-ranked Florida, which swamped Northwestern Louisiana 45-0, and No. 13 Florida State, which buried Tulsa 78-14.

Meanwhile, tailback Bo Jackson of eighth-ranked Auburn and quarterback Robbie Bosco of No. 9 Brigham Young were the weekend's most explosive performers, along with place-kicker Dale Klein of seventh-ranked Nebraska.

Penn State 24-20
John Shaffer, who ran one yard for an earlier touchdown and later left the game for a spell after being shaken up, flipped an 8-yard touchdown pass to Steve Smith with 1:53 to play. The Nittany Lions have won all six of their games by a total of 24 points.

WHY NEWSPAPERS?

Reach the voters with newspaper advertising!

Newspapers provide the ideal climate for political advertising because newspapers are in the business of keeping readers, of whatever political persuasion, informed on all aspects of politics.

Newspapers have a tremendous value for the candidate and are the obvious medium for political advertising because the various sections of the newspaper are devoted to the dissemination of political news and views: in news columns, in feature articles, in editorials, in "Letters to the Editor" columns, in cartoons.

Newspapers rank high in creating name identification. Newspapers rank high in believability. And newspapers rank high in providing the lowest cost per voter means of communicating and getting your message across.

This election year, perhaps more so than ever, people have a watchful eye on critical, crucial issues. Your job is to tell them about yourself, about the issues, explain your solutions to the problems that affect your community.

DEAR DR. GOTT:

I am a violinist with a symphony or orchestra. Notwithstanding the relatively minor qualities of the work (as compared to the work of the Boston Symphony, for example), the work does manage to exert a lot of pressure on me, largely because of the demands of my conductor. My biggest annoyance is my head.

DEAR DR. GOTT: For several years I have been using a popular brand of hair-color restorer. It contains lead acetate. Is this harmful in any way?

DEAR READER: I am not aware that the small amounts of lead acetate in Cleveland 401, providing the hair solution is used precisely according to the manufacturer's directions. Hair-coloring compounds are regulated by appropriate government agencies and are marketed only after having been proved safe.

DEAR POLLY: I save slivers of soap from the bathroom to use for marking pattern details on fabric. I use colored soap on white material and white soap on colored materials. You can mark all darts and other details. The soap will wash out of any washable fabric.

DEAR POLLY: If you want rust stains to sink with a couple of drops of cooking oil on a paper towel.

Rust stains will come off a knife in a jiffy if you pour some cleanser on a cork, then rub the cork against the knife.

Jordan rebuffs Israeli proposal

By Iven Zverlov
United Press International
A proposal by Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres for direct peace talks with Jordan this week and hinted the Soviet Union could join the peace process. "I hereby proclaim, the state of war between Israel and Jordan should be terminated immediately," Peres said. "I declare this readily, in the hope that Jordan is willing to reciprocate this step. This is the hour for decisions and statelessness."

Peres, addressing the 40th anniversary session of the U.N. General Assembly Monday, had called for direct peace talks with Jordan this week and hinted the Soviet Union could join the peace process. "I hereby proclaim, the state of war between Israel and Jordan should be terminated immediately," Peres said. "I declare this readily, in the hope that Jordan is willing to reciprocate this step. This is the hour for decisions and statelessness."

He said Palestinians may participate in the conference on the Jordanian side provided they "represent peace, not terror." In the first sign of Israeli willingness to allow countries other than the United States to enter the negotiating process, Peres said. "The permanent members of the Security Council may be invited to support the initiation of these negotiations."

District prepares for construction

By Alex Girelli
Herald Reporter
Directors of the Eighth Utilities District have set a timetable for construction of a firehouse to serve the Buckland area, but have yet to determine how the project will be financed.

Firehouse financing hits legal snag

The district annexed the territory in the late 1970s after winning a lawsuit in state Supreme Court, but the town station had already been constructed.
