

Trade proposal unveiled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Striking the middle ground between protectionism and free trade, a bipartisan group of senators unveiled their proposal to expand U.S. export markets and crack down on trade law violators.

More than two dozen senators, led by Senate trade subcommittee chairman John Danforth, R-Mo., Wednesday announced their support for the 10-point plan, designed to reduce a record U.S. trade deficit expected to hit $100 billion this year. The bill was scheduled for Senate hearings early next year.

The "Trade Enhancement Act of 1985" is one of the most comprehensive and ambitious of the more than 300 trade bills introduced this session and centers on the basis for whatever trade legislation ultimately emerges.

"The approach is to rebuild the international trading system," Danforth said, by revising U.S. trade laws and penalties and by extending the president's scope to expire authority to enter into a new round of world trade talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, known as GATT.

Danforth conceded "the president isn't going to like everything in the bill," but expressed confidence that at the end of a negotiations with the House and the administration, a trade reform bill will emerge from Congress next year.

Specifically, the bill would expand the definition of "unfair trade practices," require more investigation of such practices, and mandate retaliatory action against offenders — removing much of the president's existing discretion in that area.

But it would expand the president's options for assisting domestic industries injured by imports by authorizing additional tariff exemptions and financial assistance for those companies trying to rebuild their competitive position.

Currently, the bill would set quotas, tariffs and trade adjustment assistance.

Because one of the causes of the nation's trade deficit is a shrinking market created by debt-ridden third world nations cutting back on their imports, the bill would authorize World Bank and Export-Import Bank loans to developing countries that receive trade benefits to U.S. products.

Greenspan: lower that big deficit

HARTFORD (AP) — Politicians should "resurrect the deficit room" as a way of hammering out compromises to decrease the federal deficit, says economist Alan Greenspan.

Reducing the deficit is a "political hot potato" party because President Reagan's party has cut in defense spending, said Greenspan, former chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors under President Ford.

"The Connecticut Bank and Trust Co. sponsored Greenspan's appearance Wednesday at the exclusive Hilton Hotel.

As for the rest of the economy, Greenspan said "There will be some improvement, nothing terrific, but clearly better than what we have seen in the past year."

Greenspan said American industry has been forced to cope with the threat of imports.

October index puts inflation at 3% annually

By Suzanne Trimel
 United Press International

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices rose a modest 0.3 percent during October, boosted by upward prices on food and higher prices for cars, the Labor Department said today.

The increase was the highest since April's 0.4 percent rise, breaking a string of increases of 0.2 percent.

The department's food and beverage index registered a 0.4 percent increase — the highest since February's 0.5 percent rise — although department analyst Patrick Jackman said the bulk of that jump was due to a higher federal excise tax on alcoholic beverages that took effect on Oct. 1. Without alcohol, food prices at the grocery store rose only 0.2 percent, below September's 0.3 percent increase, the analyst said.

Transportation costs climbed 0.2 percent, following declines in every month since May. The rise reflected higher costs for automobile financing charges, insurance costs and the newly introduced 1985 model cars as auto dealers ended their clearance sales and attractive financing deals in 1985 models.

The increase brought inflation for the first 10 months of the year to 3.3 percent on an annual basis. If that rate holds for the rest of the year, 1985 could have the lowest rate of inflation since 1967's 3 percent, Jackman said.

Last year, consumer inflation rose 4 percent for the year.

The Consumer Price Index for the month stood at 325.5, meaning goods that cost consumers $100 in 1987 cost $325.50 in October.

Economists expect consumer prices will rise even more in the coming months following a 0.6 percent rise in wholesale prices for October, fueled by a sharp rise in food costs, especially meats.

Price increases at the wholesale level usually will translate into sharper prices consumers pay at retail stores months later.

Donald Ratajczak, head of the economic forecasting project at Georgia State University and one of the nation's leading price analysts, said his most recent survey of November prices at the wholesale level shows more of an uptick in prices, particularly meats.

He said if wholesale prices moved upward for only a month, retailers often won't pass on the higher prices, fearing they will lose customers. "But if we get higher prices for two months at the whole lot, you'll definitely see an increase in the Consumer Price Index," said Ratajczak. He said he expects the CPI next month will rise 0.4 percent to 0.5 percent.

Entertainment costs, which covers such items as televisions, stereos and radios, showed a 0.8 percent decline in October's prices, which Ratajczak said was the one area in the index where the lowering of the dollar was "definitely starting to hit consumers."

The department said the turnaround in the transportation index, which had fallen an average of 2 percent from May to September, included a sharp 1.9 percent increase in automobile financing charges and the same jump in the cost for auto insurance. New cars rose 0.5 percent, following a 0.3 percent gain in September.

But offsetting these increases were declines in the costs of used cars, the seventh monthly drop, motor fuel and gasoline, which fell for the fourth straight month.

The food index jumped largely because of a sharp 1.2 percent increase in the price of alcoholic beverages as the excise tax added $2 to the price of a gallon of liquor, the department said.

The indexes for dairy products, cereal and bakery products, processed fruits and vegetables declined. Prices for meats, poultry, fish and eggs rose 0.8 percent. Prices for beef and veal rose for the second straight month — up 2.1 percent. Pork and poultry costs declined 0.5 percent and 0.7 percent, respectively.

Toby Moffett, former congressman and a Democratic candidate for governor, marches on the picket line with a striker at the Pillowtex Corp.'s Regent Street plant. About 22 strikers were there to meet Moffett this morning.

Strikers hail Moffett, but talks stay stalled

By John F. Kirch
 Herald Reporter

Former U.S. Rep. Toby Moffett, leading strikers outside the Pillowtex Corp. plant in Manchester this morning, hailed Moffett as a negotiator, but he supported them and that the United Auto Workers, which represents the strikers, was among his "best friends" in the world.

Moffett, who is challenging Gov. William A. O'Neill for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in 1986, arrived at the Regent Street plant at about 8:45 a.m. and marched in a light rain for about 15 minutes with 22 striking workers.

"I'm here for a couple of reasons," Moffett told a reporter as strikers listened. "Number one, the auto workers are the best friends in the world. So whenever they have a difficulty I try to be helpful. I'm not here as a bargainer or a negotiator, but I'm here to show sympathy to people who aren't asking for the world."

But Moffett said there wasn't much he could do to help the Pillowtex workers reach agreement with the company, he said his support would give them the "incentive" to fight. As he marched with the striking workers, he asked them questions about company benefits, wages and union support.

About 90 production and maintenance workers have been striking the pillow and comforter manufacturer since Aug. 28. They walked off their jobs to protest the lack of a contract with the company.

Moffett said he had a letter to a union member that he had asked state Labor Commissioner Joseph Ferraro for his help in resolving the strike. Ferraro then assigned Frank Rocco to mediate the dispute.

Asked about the sequence of events, a spokesman for O'Neill said today that Moffett had nothing to do with the governor's decision.

"The governor made his decision a week ago," said Larry deBear, DeBear said the governor asked Ferraro to get involved after receiving the workers' petition.

"And all that happened before Toby announced he would march," deBear said.

Moffett said publicly last week that he would march on the picket line outside Crestfield-Fenwood.

About 60 nurses, aides, kitchen helpers and other service employees represented by the New England Health Care Employees Union, District 1189, have been on strike at the nursing home since Oct. 21 because the home's owners have refused to negotiate a contract with them.

Appeal can't change vote on station

By Alex Girelli
 Herald Reporter

The state Elections Commission does not have the power to overturn the Nov. 5 vote on the town's Buckland firehouse even if it finds there was some problem with the way the referendum was conducted, Town Attorney Kevin M. O'Brien said Thursday.

The authority to overturn the results of the referendum, in which residents of the Town of Manchester Fire District voted overwhelmingly to keep the firehouse on Tolland Turnpike, is held only by the courts, O'Brien said.

Ronald Gregory of the Elections Enforcement Commission that morning confirmed that the commission cannot overturn an election.

E. Steven Pearl, a resident of the Eighth Utilities District, filed a complaint with the commission Friday about the firehouse referendum, in which district residents were not allowed to vote.

O'Brien said he asked Gregory to consider the question of whether residents of the Eighth District were improperly denied the right to vote on the matter.

It was O'Brien who advised town election officials that the vote could be restricted to residents of the town fire district, which includes all of southern Manchester and some northern parts of town. Taxes from the town fire district were used to build the firehouse, which is located in an area where fire protection is provided by the volunteer department of the independent Eighth District.

The powers and duties of the Elections Commission are set forth in Section 9-70 of the state statutes. One of those duties is to refer to the state attorney general's office any ruling that election officials err in conducting a referendum.

Pearl, who lives on Hollister Street, told directors of the Eighth District of his complaint at their meeting Monday. The district declined to join the appeal.

Gregory said Tuesday that the complaint would be reviewed by the executive director of the commission and its general counsel. They will decide whether to assign an investigator to it, he said.

The Buckland firehouse was built in the 1970s during a court battle over who had fire-protection jurisdiction in the Buckland area — the town or the district. The state Supreme Court held that the Eighth District has the sole right to fight fires in the Buckland area, which had been annexed by the town.

In the U.S. election, residents of the town fire district voted 5,281 to 2,923 to retain the firehouse. Although it cannot be used to serve the area immediately around it, the station is used to provide fire protection for some areas of the northern section of town that lie outside the Eighth District.

The question was placed on the ballot by Democrats after the Republican Party urged that the station be sold.

The district, which has offered to buy the station from the town but has been turned down, is going forward with plans to build its own firehouse within 500 feet of the town's station.

Clever bank robber master of disguise

By David Goodman
 The Associated Press

DETROIT — A "master of disguise" who could fool witnesses into thinking he was a 25-year-old black woman or a 60-year-old white man pulled off at least 22 bank robberies from New York to California before he decided to turn himself in, the FBI says.

Antonio Johnson, 26, so cleverly disguised his age, sex and race that the FBI had no idea one person was behind all the holdups, the agency said Thursday. In all, he pulled off at least 22 robberies of banks and savings and loans since 1982, netting about $350,000, said FBI special agent John Anthony.

"There's no doubt he's been extremely successful," Anthony said. "He moved around a lot and he used very creative disguises."

Johnson walked into the FBI's Detroit office last Friday, saying he had information about a robbery two days earlier at a Comerica Bank branch a block from Detroit police headquarters, said Kenneth Walton, special agent in charge of the Detroit FBI office.

After interviewing Johnson for several days, the FBI linked him to a number of unsolved bank robberies from New York to San Francisco, Anthony said. Johnson is a suspect in the Sept. 27, 1982, robbery of a Fidelity Trust Co. branch in Stamford, Conn., Anthony said.

Johnson, who lives in Detroit, was arraigned Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Detroit in connection with the Comerica holdup, the agent said. Johnson, who was charged with armed robbery, is being held at the Federal Correctional Institute in Milan pending a detention hearing Friday.

He faces up to 25 years in prison if convicted, Anthony said.

Reagan returns to cheers

By Leon Daniel
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, beaming broadly and basking in the limelight, returned from the Geneva summit to a tumultuous welcome from a Congress grateful for even the faintest promise of peace.

Obviously enjoying the two-minute standing ovation that erupted when he strode into the House chamber to address a joint session Thursday night, the president delivered a hopeful address that drew cheers from his supporters and applause from opponents.

"It's great to be home," said Reagan, displaying no sign of jet lag as he reported to Congress and the nation on his meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev — the first superpower summit held in six years.

In a brilliantly staged homecoming celebration, timed perfectly to the minute, Reagan and his wife, Nancy, landed at Andrews Air Force base in suburban Maryland. Reagan, who wore no topcoat despite the chill evening, quickly boarded Marine 1 for the brief helicopter ride to Capitol Plaza, which was transformed into an armed fortress manned by about 1,500 police and Secret Service agents.

The House chamber was jammed with members of Congress, the diplomatic corps, the Cabinet and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Secretary of State George Shultz, who arrived first in a separate helicopter, received a hearty round of applause when he entered the chamber.

But when the booming voice of Larry Smith, the House sergeant at arms, intoned, "Mr. Speaker, the president of the United States," the applause turned thunderous. Reagan, looking sharp in a dark blue suit, made his way down the center aisle, shaking hands on both sides.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., smiling benignly, permitted the ovation to continue for two minutes before striking down his gavel so the president could begin his address.

The address was interrupted almost 20 times by applause. There were no empty seats or spaces in the huge and ornate House chamber which accommodates about 1,500 on the floor and in the spectator galleries.

The applause was louder from the Republican side, notably when Reagan talked about the "Star Wars" defense program. Applause from the Democratic side ranged from politely perfunctory to enthusiastic.

At the end, when Reagan departed from the text and said simply, "Thank you for allowing me to talk to you this evening and God bless you all," the chamber erupted into a final ovation.

As he left, Reagan paused to shake hands with many, including James Brady, his press secretary confined to a wheelchair from wounds received during the assassination attempt on Reagan in 1981.

The president received a kiss from Rep. Bobbi Flieder, R-Calif., as he left.

Summit's impact on relations still in doubt on Capitol Hill

By E. Michael Myers
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan won high praise from members of Congress for his deft personal diplomacy with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, but beyond the glow of Geneva they said the summit must produce tangible results.

Areas where Congress is looking for real results from the "Helsinki summit" include nuclear arms negotiations, human rights, regional conflicts and Soviet emigration.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said the summit should accelerate the arms control talks, although it may be several years before there is an agreement.

"We will have some report cards fairly soon," Lugar said. "People will come out of the Soviet Union or will not. We'll know fairly soon if there is any movement in any of the regional conflicts.

"There are some pragmatic tests that are there," Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, agreed, saying, "Now things have to be fleshed out to the second and third actions. We don't want this to be a one-night stand."

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas said the summit can be called a success because the top Soviet and American leaders met after a six-year lapse and Reagan proved he can communicate with Gorbachev.

"We should stay on the same constructive road," Dole said. House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., a frequent critic of Reagan's policies, said the president's personal diplomacy with Gorbachev helped ease years of bitter exchanges.

"This is a turnaround and we need a turnaround," O'Neill said.

"More than anything else we need these leaders to be talking. We had to get off the loop of being critical of each other, of being suspicious of each other, of saying violent things about each other."

"I hope it's a breakthrough," O'Neill said. Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., said there must be "more than atmospherics" and it should come in the form of a space-based missile defense program, which Reagan refuses to drop.

Rep. Jim Wright, D-Texas, the House majority leader, said the talks have brought the nuclear powers "closer to peace than we were a week ago. He (Reagan) has shown the world he wants to move toward peace."

"But we don't need to be building so many more weapons to show the world we are for peace."

Reagan's visit to NATO Secretary General Lord Carrington, in a statement issued after the 81-minute allied meeting, said: "Geneva is not the end of a process but, we hope, the beginning of a new and more constructive stage."

"The president was able to report in positive terms on important aspects of what had transpired in Geneva and allied relations were strongly supportive," Carrington said.

Reagan met with King Baudouin for 10 minutes in the airport VIP lounge before driving to the nearby NATO headquarters.

After the meeting with Reagan, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said: "The Geneva meeting gives reason for particular satisfaction."

Gorbachev predicts improved relations

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (UPI) — Mikhail Gorbachev in Prague to brief Warsaw Pact partners on the superpower summit, said before leaving Geneva he and President Reagan differed sharply on some issues but the meeting could lead to improved relations.

The Soviet leader Thursday said in Geneva the two days of talks with Reagan were "something that creates the possibility for moving ahead" — despite occasional sharp exchanges on what he called basic points of disagreement.

Gorbachev flew to Prague, Czechoslovakia, Thursday to brief his Warsaw Pact partners at the Hradcany Castle — closed to all visitors for the first time in almost three years.

The briefing in Prague concluded with a dinner and the most of the officials left for home, the Soviet news agency Tass reported from Moscow. But, Tass did not list Gorbachev among those who left and there were indications he was staying overnight in Prague.

The summit closed with the announcement of a limited number of bilateral agreements but Gorbachev told a news conference later that disputes over the "Star Wars" program and regional conflicts had not been resolved.

Gorbachev told the 300 journalists invited to the Soviet mission in Geneva there had been "something of a light" before the meeting when U.S. negotiators pressed their Soviet counterparts in regional disputes.

"Of course we can have disputes about the situation in different parts of the world," he said. "But this should be done without any interference in the internal affairs of other countries."

"I would like to regard the meeting as the beginning of a dialogue aimed at improving the situation," Gorbachev said in Geneva.

"This makes it possible for me to look to the future with optimism," he said. "Reason should prevail." He and Reagan had differed sharply on major issues, especially arms control and Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, which Gorbachev said dominated all their discussions.

It was the first meeting between Reagan and Gorbachev. The 64-year-old Soviet leader is expected to visit Washington as early as next year — at Reagan's invitation — and the president is expected to pay a reciprocal visit.

A great deal of the time during the meeting was taken up by one-on-one meetings with President Reagan. Gorbachev said he and Reagan had frank, long, sometimes we had sharp discussions, sometimes we had very sharp discussions.

"Still I think to a certain extent they were productive," said the Soviet leader, calling his six hours of private talks with Reagan of "great importance."

"Of course it would be much better if we could have reached agreement on stopping the arms race," he said. But after years of bitter relations, "Trust is not re-established easily."

World leaders hail superpower talks

By Anne Saker
United Press International

Obstacles lay ahead for President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, but the agreement provided the people of the world with a sense of security," Nakasone said. "As long as they continue dialogue, it will assure lasting peace of the world."

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said the two-day summit in Geneva, which ended Thursday, brought a good change for improving East-West relations because it enabled the two superpower leaders to get to know each other.

"The chemistry was right, or the alchemy, whatever you like to call it," said Thatcher, whose college degrees are in chemistry. "They got on very well together. I thought they would."

But, Thatcher said, "There is no euphoria, no complacency," about the work ahead for the superpowers in trying to ease tensions.

Reagan stopped in Brussels, Belgium, en route to Washington, to brief NATO allies on the talks with Gorbachev. After the meeting, Belgian Foreign Minister Leo Tindemans said the summit's most striking feature was that, "A personal relationship was established between the two leaders."

"It is always suspicion that is at the basis of distrust between countries," he said. "Now a climate of confidence has been built between them."

Japanese Prime Minister Yasu-

hiro Nakasone hailed the leaders' plan for reciprocal visits, which was announced during their joint appearance Thursday morning.

"The agreement provided the people of the world with a sense of security," Nakasone said. "As long as they continue dialogue, it will assure lasting peace of the world."

After the Brussels session, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said: "The Geneva meeting gives reason for particular satisfaction."

"The two leaders approached it in a businesslike way. I believe both are determined to develop their relations on a new basis," he said.

U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar said in a statement he welcomed the "spirit" of the joint statement issued at the end of the summit.

Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir told Israel radio he was disappointed with the Soviet Union's failure to change its policy toward Soviet Jews.

"I would have been happier if we would have received reports of a change in the Soviet policy toward Soviet Jewry," Shamir said. "But it was difficult to expect that all the numerous and complicated problems would be solved in such a relatively short meeting."

NATO Secretary General Lord Carrington, in a statement after the Brussels meeting, said: "Geneva is not the end of a process but, we hope, the beginning of a new and more constructive stage."

U.S./World In Brief

Flag ban triggers Beirut battle

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A ban against flying the Lebanese flag on Independence Day triggered a battle for control of west Beirut today as Shiite and Druse Muslim militiamen duelled with tanks, mortars, rockets and "everything else they have."

The fighting was described as the heaviest in west Beirut in several months.

A city of more than 1 million is hostage and trapped by the fighting and there is nothing we can do about it," said a Lebanese government official.

Police and witnesses said particularly intense clashes raged around the Soviet Embassy and the seat of the American University of Beirut hospital.

Druse gunmen chased their Shiite enemies from the hospital and its surrounding streets, and fought back waves of assaults by Shites trying to dislodge them from position near the embassy.

The battle forced Church of England troubleshooter Terry Waite, in Beirut to seek the release of American hostages, to postpone a trip to New York.

Halley's comet on soggy passage

BERKELEY, Calif. — Halley's comet is streaming "invisible" water as it streaks through space, scientists discovered with the help of a new radio telescope system.

The discovery, announced Thursday, confirmed a theory about what a comet leaves in its wake as it plunges through deep space, scientists said.

Comets, which are essentially dirty ice balls, lose some of their ice to water vapor as they near the sun.

Observations of Halley's comet last week confirmed a theory that water vapor streams behind at a mile-a-second and breaks up after a day into oxygen-hydrogen and hydrogen molecules. These molecules are believed to break up further two or three days later.

Woman escapes jail in drownings

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — A Japanese-born woman received probation rather than prison as the prosecutor joined the defense in asking for leniency, agreeing she was psychotic when she walked her two children into the ocean in a ritualistic suicide attempt.

Fumiko Kimura, 32, had allegedly told police that she had been trying to commit "Shinju," a parent-child suicide ritual which is part of traditional Japanese culture.

But her attorney dismissed the reports as "absurd," and the prosecutor said Thursday the "cultural aspects" of the case did not enter into her decision to request leniency.

Kimura pleaded no contest last month to two reduced charges of voluntary manslaughter in a plea bargain that spared her a possible death sentence.

Romanian acrobat returns home

NEW YORK — A Romanian circus acrobat returned home rather than defect to the United States and remain with his pregnant American girlfriend, but the woman he left behind says she will follow him because, "I love him."

The acrobat, Andi Georgescu, 24, who told the Immigration and Naturalization Service he had no desire to defect, Thursday night flew from Kennedy Airport to Frankfurt, West Germany, on the first leg of his journey home.

In Phoenix, his girlfriend, Sherri Meyer, 21, said Thursday night she plans to join him in Romania as soon as she can finish the necessary paperwork and consult doctors about her unborn child, due in January.

"I love him," Meyer said. "I'm not sure if I'm going to survive over there either, but I'm going to try."

Cigarette trial hits early snag

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Opening statements in the trial of a case pitting the family of a dead smoker against the nation's $60-billion tobacco industry came on the day of the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout.

It was an ironic beginning to the precedent-setting trial — the first of about three dozen suits against the giant R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. — but the case was quickly delayed until an appellate court decides if material from the U.S. surgeon general's report on cigarettes can be presented.

Further delays could come because claims filed by the widow of a man who smoked for 52 years against the two local supermarkets that sold him the cigarettes — the reason the trial was being held in Santa Barbara — were dismissed 15 minutes before opening statements.

As a result, R.J. Reynolds, which makes Camel, Winston and Salem cigarettes, has the option of shifting the case to federal court, which could refuse to hear it or delay it for months.

Few Kennedy memorials planned

DALLAS — Several groups scheduled ceremonies to commemorate the assassination of President John F. Kennedy 22 years ago today but officials for other civic and political organizations said they prefer to forget the tragic event.

The Downtown Dallas Democrats planned a 12:25 p.m. ceremony in front of the former Texas School Book Depository, from which Lee Harvey Oswald fired the shots that killed Kennedy as his motorcade passed through downtown Dallas.

Two chapters of Green Berets from Dallas and San Antonio were to lay a wreath on the Kennedy Memorial at 2 p.m.

Hurricane Kate assaults Florida

By Denny Hamilton

Hurricane Kate Florida's Panhandle pounded by hurricane

PANAMA CITY, Fla. — Hurricane Kate killed two people, smashed homes and unleashed a fire and tornado blitz in a historic 100-mp-h attack that plunged Florida's eastern Panhandle into howling darkness.

"It's like the world is coming to an end right before your eyes," Annie Laurie Rivers said as Kate smashed ashore Thursday evening near Port St. Joe, becoming the first November hurricane to hit the U.S. mainland since 1933.

Telephone lines and electrical transmission lines snapped under Kate's assault, plunging at least 70 percent of the homes in Kate's path into darkness.

The storm's shrieking winds and pounding ideas crumbled beachfront homes and businesses, uprooted trees, undermined highways and tore boats from their moorings like toys.

At least nine storm-spawned tornadoes touched down in Bay, Calhoun and Washington counties. Kate has claimed at least 14 lives so far — 10 in Cuba Tuesday, two in Key Largo on Wednesday and two in Florida's Panhandle Thursday — a Jackson County motorist crushed by a falling tree and a woman who suffered a fatal heart attack riding out the storm in Chipley.

At least three other people were injured Thursday — a fireman battling a storm-caused blaze in Lynn Haven, a Franklin County sheriff's deputy whose car was hit by a tree and a woman cut by flying glass in Panama City.

State officials said Kate's "swath of primary damage" was along 80 miles of coast between Panama City and Carrabelle, but the storm continued to wreak havoc as it ground inland.

Kate was downgraded to a tropical storm early today after its once-mighty winds diminished to 55 mph over land.

At 5 a.m. EST, the storm was centered about 50 miles west of Savannah, Ga. near latitude 32.0 north, longitude 82.0 west. Kate was moving east-northeastward near 20 mph and was expected to emerge over the Georgia-South Carolina coastal waters by midday.

Kate, diminished to 75 mph, passed Tallahassee about midnight, spawning a tornado that damaged several cars and giving Florida's capital city a taste of its fury.

"The city is a mess. Power lines are down, trees are down and about 90 percent of our utility company customers are without power and probably will be until sometime tomorrow," Tallahassee police spokesman Scott Hunt said.

Fires lit the night sky in Panama City, where downed power triggered so many blazes a fire department dispatcher barked: "I can't talk now" and hung up.

Kate, the fourth hurricane to hit the Gulf Coast since August, sent 100,000 people in 13 counties fleeing to safety on orders from Gov. Bob Graham.

Jackson County rescue workers cut through the twisted metal walls of two mobile homes crushed by falling trees to free five terrified people trapped inside.

Apalachicola took a terrible beating from the storm.

Civil defense director Lee Rivers said huge hunks of U.S. highway 98 were washed away and the windows were blown out of the Franklin County courthouses, exposing valuable records to the relentless rain.

Fish houses where commercial oystermen process their catches were washed away in the storm surge and the wall of a Coca-Cola plant caved in.

Apalachicola's 100-foot water tower collapsed within minutes of the storm's landfall — "Just like someone knocked the legs out from under it," said R.B. White, a Florida Power Corp. engineer.

"We are sustaining extensive damage at this time from high winds from the hurricane," Bay County Sheriff's Lt. Robert Sterling said in Panama City.

"Some roofs are being blown away. Houses are collapsing because of erosion on the benches. We've pulled our people off the roads until the wind subsides," Sterling said.

A Port St. Joe police dispatcher who said the storm sounded "like an invasion of big helicopters" reported that "windows are shattered, roofs are flying off and pine trees are blowing across the highway."

Four tornadoes touched down in Calhoun County, three dipped out of the sky in Washington County. At least one twister hit Panama City, another destroyed two homes in nearby Beach and a small twister danced around the community of Calloway.

"The tornadoes knocked down trees and power lines everywhere and we are pleading with everybody to stay in their houses," Calhoun County sheriff's dispatcher Buster Smith said.

Allies see exchange as positive step

By Michael Dennison

BRUSSELS, Belgium — A bombing at an American firm coincided with President Reagan's brief stopover in Brussels, where he briefed Western allies on the superpower summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. No one was injured in the blast.

Fifteen NATO representatives, including 13 heads of state, traveled to Brussels to hear Reagan's briefing Thursday and were reportedly satisfied with the results.

No one was injured in the blast at Motorola Data Systems European office — about 5 miles away from NATO's headquarters, but there was extensive damage. The blast was apparently set to coincide with

Reagan's visit to NATO Secretary General Lord Carrington, in a statement issued after the 81-minute allied meeting, said: "Geneva is not the end of a process but, we hope, the beginning of a new and more constructive stage."

"The president was able to report in positive terms on important aspects of what had transpired in Geneva and allied relations were strongly supportive," Carrington said.

Reagan met with King Baudouin for 10 minutes in the airport VIP lounge before driving to the nearby NATO headquarters.

After the meeting with Reagan, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said: "The Geneva meeting gives reason for particular satisfaction."

"It is always suspicion that is at the basis of distrust between countries," he said. "Now a climate of confidence has been built between them."

OPINION

Editorial

The future of downtown

Before another year and a half has passed, road crews will begin the long-delayed reconstruction of downtown Main Street in Manchester.

As townspeople have been quick to point out, the project will inconvenience drivers, shoppers, professionals, and everyone else who spends time downtown. Traffic will be rerouted, stores will be forced to rely on rear entrances, and numerous other adjustments will be required.

Despite these problems, there is no question that the reconstruction project will be a good thing. But unfortunately, fixing the street will be only a first step in the arduous process of rejuvenating the area between the Center and the Terminus.

Although the downtown district holds a number of bright spots, it has many others that are best described as dismal. Buildings remain unoccupied for lengthy periods, litter blows around on streets and in parks, and housing isn't up to par.

All that could change, however, with innovation and the intelligent use of available resources. In the past, numerous ideas for renewing the area have been put forth, lauded or criticized, then left to languish.

Whatever the fate of former studies and proposals, now is the time for a thorough assessment of what the future holds for the area. Proper planning would help the downtown situation change for the better as new roads are constructed and the redevelopment of the nearby Cheney Historic District is completed.

The assessment should be conducted by a group featuring the best that Manchester's government and business community have to offer. Its ultimate goal should be to produce a long-term revitalization plan that would make the downtown area an integral and attractive place once again.

As strip shopping centers continue to crop up around town and a major mall is constructed north of Interstate 84, the downtown district will constantly face new dangers. But those who lead Manchester must recognize that the area's vitality is essential to that of the town as a whole.

To get things rolling, the Manchester Board of Directors should indicate its willingness to help with a study. The board should offer to oversee a quasi-governmental panel that could tap the town's resources for an assessment that would last at least a year, perhaps up to two.

Planning Director Mark Pellegrini, for instance, is an expert on downtown redevelopment plans that have been followed in other towns and cities. His talents should be used, along with those of business leaders, merchants and at least one or two ordinary citizens.

Things that must be studied range from the expansion of the downtown taxing district to the development of a realistic strategy for attracting diverse concerns to the area. Plans to keep the area clean and spruce up the appearance of its buildings must be developed and followed.

In order to finance these activities, both government and the downtown business community must be prepared to help. The possible redirection of revenues from the current taxing district should be studied, along with other funding strategies.

With the redevelopment of the historic district, the Main Street project and the construction of a connector road between southern Manchester and I-84 all in the works, the next logical step obviously is to assess Main Street's assets and its liabilities. Only a progressive and realistic strategy will ensure that the downtown area lives up to its potential for the future.

Results of the summit

By Gregory Nokes

WASHINGTON — President Reagan says the real results of his Geneva summit won't be evident for months or years, but the test may come sooner — in January, and in Geneva again, when the arms control talks resume.

Three sessions of the arms talks already have been held without significant results, and now the superpowers have failed at their summit to forge a breakthrough to hand to their negotiators.

The leaders failed at their summit to forge a breakthrough in the arms talks, although they agreed in a joint statement on the need "to accelerate the work at these negotiations."

According to summit participants, neither leader budged on what has become the central issue in the negotiations. Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, popularly known as "Star Wars."

The Soviets came into the summit demanding the program be scrapped, while the American side was just as insistent nothing would stop Star Wars research.

Paul H. Nitze, Reagan's chief arms control adviser, told reporters on Air Force One during the flight back to Washington that the Soviets "tried their level best to break down our position on SDI, without offering anything in return, and they didn't get away with it."

BUT THERE IS A CONSENSUS among many experts on U.S.-Soviet relations that the "new start" that both sides say they want in superpower ties is impossible without a new agreement curbing arms, which now seems more than ever tied to Star Wars.

Whether they will later back down or not, the Soviets have made arms control the acid test for an improved relationship with Washington.

Advocates of arms control worry that not only has there not been progress toward a new agreement, but that existing agreements are being eroded beyond repair.

Those agreements are the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty and the unratified SALT II treaty. Each side accuses the other of major violations, and each has proposals on the drawing boards which would erode them further.

They shudder at the prospect of a world without any arms control agreements.

WHILE THE LEADERS' DEADLOCK remained unbroken by the summit, the closing joint statement did specify two common goals for arms control negotiations, one a 50 percent reduction in nuclear arms of both sides and the other a separate agreement on intermediate range nuclear weapons in Europe.

Both proposals were made earlier by the Soviets and had been endorsed by the Reagan administration. There are major problems with them, including different methods for counting what weapons of each side would be included in cutbacks.

But, however vague, the joint statement does offer a ray of hope, and the fact the two leaders gave it their blessing does increase the chance of something emerging when the arms control talks resume.

In addition, the two leaders agreed to meet again, at least twice more, probably in Washington in 1986 and in Moscow in 1987.

There will be ample opportunity to back up words with deeds.

U.S. economy at crossroads, experts agree

WASHINGTON — The big question mark that hangs over America is whether taxes should be increased or spending cut to stabilize the federal government's shaky finances.

If the spending spiral isn't stopped, most economists agree, the American people can anticipate higher inflation, higher interest rates and higher unemployment.

The amounts may be astronomical, but the problem is simple: Next year, the federal apparatus will spend nearly $1 trillion but will collect less than $800 billion in taxes. The $200 billion difference will be added to the staggering national debt, which members of Congress would rather leave for their successors to worry about.

The bottom line is obvious: The federal government is spending too much or taxing too little. Either the government should make some drastic spending cuts or raise more taxes.

Those who BENEFIT from government spending, not surprisingly, want to raise more revenue. This has always been the response of the special interests which don't want to lose their privileges, and the federal administrators, who don't want to reduce their budgets. They never offer to cut their extravaganzas.

Whenever the public shows signs of alarm over spending excesses, the special pleaders call for more taxes. They usually get their tax increase, which relieves the financial pressure. But the federal administrators never use the new taxes to reduce the national debt; they merely find new ways to spend the money.

The government has always spent all the taxes it has collected, plus as much extra as it could get away with. The result has been skyrocketing taxes, which somehow never catch up with the deficit. During our 38 years on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, the median family's income has grown nearly eight times. But the taxes this average family pays on its income has shot up more than 246 times.

THE CONSTANT QUEST for more taxes has had a deadening effect on the economy. Multiplying taxes tend to stifle whatever is taxed. Government subsidies, in contrast, tend to increase whatever is subsidized. So the government taxes work, savings and production; it subsidizes non-work, welfare and consumption.

What America needs, in our opinion, is not more taxation but less spending. Waste-buster J. Peter Grace has found 2,478 ways to increase federal revenues without increasing taxes. He would merely cut waste, inefficiency and mispending.

Diplomatic digest
Can Syria succeed in Lebanon where Israel and the United States failed so tragically? The Syrians are certainly trying to exercise the influence over fragmented Lebanon that eluded the Israelis and the Americans. Our intelligence sources have been tracking the movements of the leaders of the myriad Lebanese factions to and from Damascus, where they plead their case in hopes of obtaining Syrian support.

But it's a tricky business for the Syrians. Though a "Syrian connection" is regarded as a plus in the Byzantine world of Lebanese politics, dependence on aid from Damascus is also resented. The Syrians are trying to make sure that no single Lebanese faction gets too strong.

Watch on the Pentagon
Rep. Jim Bates, D-Mass., has had it up to here with the Navy's investigative Service and wants it eliminated. What first ticked off the congressman was what he called the "inadequate investigation by NIS of the gun-smuggling charges involving Vice Adm. Joseph Metcalf III." But what really took the rag off'n the bush, as Snuffy Smith would say, was the Navy's failure to uncover the years of espionage by the Walker family, which might still be going on if John Walker's ex-wife hadn't gone to the FBI. Bates has introduced legislation that would give the Naval Investigative Service's functions to other agencies, which he hopes will do a better job.

Confidential file
Will the continuing and embarrassing discoveries of U.S. complicity in Nazi war criminals' escape from justice ever end? First there was Klaus Barbie, the SS "Butcher of Lyon." Documentary evidence showed that American counterintelligence people employed him, then helped him cheat the hangman by arranging his flight to South America. Then there was evidence, which the Justice Department's Nazi hunters are still evaluating, that the infamous Dr. Josef Mengele was allowed to slip through our fingers. Now Justice is investigating whether Alois Brunner, an ex-Nazi now living in Syria, had American help in fleeing Germany after the war.

Mini-editorial
It's only 22 years since President John F. Kennedy was assassinated. But since that terrible Friday in Dallas, Americans have grown sadder, wiser and more accustomed than we should be to the political murders of both the prominent and the unknown, the tyrant and the tourist. Many of us can remember exactly where we were and what we were doing when we first heard that Kennedy had been shot. Now the bombings and assassinations have become so commonplace that they tend to blend into a fuzzy feeling that these awful outrages will never stop. Jack Kennedy's murder made fatalists of us all.

The triumph improved the Patrick Division leader's record to 16-5, best in the NHL. Hartford, shut out for the second straight game, dropped to 8-10 and remained last in the Adams Division.

UConn is powered by senior co-captain Matt Addington, who had 19 goals and 6 assists for 44 points this season. Second-leading scorer is E.J. Raftery with 8 goals and 7 assists for 23 points. BU counters with a three-prong attack led by Mike Emmano, who averaged 27 goals and 6 assists to lead the Terriers during the regular season.

UConn agrees to Central, Southern grid games

STORRS — The University of Connecticut football team will add two non-in-state rivals to its schedule over the next four years, according to an announcement Wednesday by UConn Director of Athletics John Toner.

Connecticut agreed to a pair of separate two-year contracts with Central Connecticut State University and Southern Connecticut State University.

UConn will open its 1986 season in Storrs on Sept. 13 against Central Connecticut and the Huskies will also launch the 1989 season in Storrs on Sept. 9, 1989 against the Blue Devils.

Connecticut will face Southern Connecticut in back-to-back years in Storrs, kicking off the 1987 season on Sept. 12 and also facing the Owls on Oct. 29, 1988.

Commenting on the total package, Toner said, "We are delighted to be able to put this package of games together and we feel it is a positive step for all three institutions. In addition to creating new football rivalries within the state, the two contracts assure Connecticut of at least five home games per season for the foreseeable future."

The addition of Central to launch the 1986 season completes an 11-game regular season schedule in 1986 for the Huskies. UConn is slated to play five home games and six road games in 1986.

The addition of the 1987 regular season opener against Southern also completes an 11-game UConn schedule and assures the Huskies of six home games and five away in '87.

In agreeing to meet Southern and Central, the Connecticut football schedule now lists 11 games per season through the 1993 season and currently shows no vacancies.

The 11-game 1986 UConn schedule features seven Yankee Conference games and YanCon newcomers Delaware and Richmond will challenge for league honors and the NCAA Division I-AA playoff berth award to the regular season conference champion.

The other games on UConn's 1986 season include three non-conference road games at Yale, Delaware State and Northeastern.

In 1988, the Yankee Conference will officially include nine members as Villanova becomes eligible for the conference title.

The two-year contracts with Central and Southern extend through the 1989 season. Starting in 1990, UConn's 11-game schedule each year shows eight Yankee Conference games and non-league clashes with Yale, Northeastern, Lehigh (1990 and 1991) and Lafayette (1992 and 1993).

Duke's Mark Alarie (32) slam dunks over four Lamar defenders in first round game of the Big Apple-NIT tournament held in Houston, Texas. Duke beat Lamar, 66-62.

College basketball roundup Duke asks for time after close victory

By Michael A. Lutz
The Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Duke Blue Devils, ranked No. 6 in The Associated Press preseason college basketball poll, admit they didn't present a finished product in their first-round game of the inaugural NIT Big Apple preseason basketball tournament. All they ask is time.

Duke beat back a late charge by the Lamar Cardinals for a 66-62 victory Thursday night that put the Blue Devils into Sunday's second round against No. 16 Alabama-Birmingham, which also had a close call before defeating Texas A&M 71-68.

The winner of Sunday's game advances to the semifinals in New York's Madison Square Garden on Nov. 23. The final is Dec. 1.

"It looked like we had a few first-game jitters," Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "We haven't developed into a cohesive unit."

"We weren't as sharp as we have been," said David Henderson, whose 18 points led the Blue Devils. "We're going to be a different ball club than we showed tonight before the season's over."

Duke had to battle for a 32-30 halftime lead against the Southland Conference Cardinals and held a 56-49 lead with 6:43 to play.

But Lamar just wouldn't quit. Two free throws by James Gallely with 32 seconds to play, cut Duke's lead to 62-60.

The Blue Devils wouldn't back off either and finally sealed the victory with four free throws in the final 17 seconds by Henderson and Johnny Dawkins sealed Lamar's fate.

Henderson scored 18 points to lead Duke and Dawkins scored 14. The Cardinals had balanced scoring with 14 points each from Anthony Todd, Karl McCauley and James Gallely.

Alabama-Birmingham squandered a 16-point, 39-23 halftime lead against the Aggies and had to depend on Jerome Mincy, who scored eight of his 16 points in the final 4:41 of the game, and 24 points from guard Steve Mitchell.

"I tried to concentrate and make my shots," Mincy said. "Fortunately, I made some key baskets and the free throws. A&M is one of the most physical teams I've ever played." It was really rough.

Mincy had two three-point plays and a tie-breaking basket in his clutch run.

A&M guard Don Marbury, held scoreless in the first half, finished with 24 points and fueled the Aggies' surge.

"I felt like in the first half I took myself out of the game," Marbury said. "In the second half, we were just playing our hearts out. We came back and layed hard but we couldn't get the breaks."

Only 1,250 fans attended the opening games of the tournament here.

The rest of the NIT field begins tonight, and most of the Top Twenty teams will swing into action this weekend.

The NIT pairings and sites: St. John's vs. No. 19 Navy and No. 10 Auburn vs. West Virginia at Hartford, Conn.; Tulsa vs. Dayton and No. 9 Louisville vs. Miami of Ohio at Cincinnati, and Washington vs. Texas-El Paso and No. 5 Kansas vs. Pepperdine at Denver.

While top-ranked Georgia Tech has its first game Monday-night against South Carolina-Alken, second-ranked North Carolina gets under way at home Sunday against UCLA, the 1985 NIT champion.

Third-ranked Michigan, the defending Big Ten Champion, will be playing this weekend in one of the three other tournaments.

The Wolverines play Virginia Tech in tonight's first-round round of the Chamaine Tournament at Honolulu, Chamaine, an NAIA power which has upset Virginia with Ralph Sampson and Louisville in the past, faces Kansas State.

Roy Tarpley, Michigan's 6-foot-11 senior center who put on 15 pounds and now weighs 230 pounds, is expected to be ready after injuring his right knee in early drills.

The Lobo Tipoff Classic in Albuquerque, N.M. also begins tonight with New Mexico against Hunkeler and Long Beach State facing San Diego.

The Hawaii Pacific Tournament in Honolulu has host Hawaii Pacific against Fullerton State and Iowa meeting Arkansas-Little Rock.

Other games tonight include No. 11 Kentucky vs. Northwestern of Louisiana; No. 12 Notre Dame vs. St. Joseph's of Indiana; No. 13 Oklahoma vs. UC-Santa Barbara; No. 14 Louisiana State vs. Montana State; and No. 17 Nevada-Las Vegas vs. Nevada-Reno.

Norm Nixon not ready to report yet

By Mike Barnes
United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Another game and another loss have passed for the Los Angeles Clippers, who are still waiting for free-agent guard Norm Nixon to sign and report to work.

The Clippers Wednesday matched an offer sheet tendered by Seattle, but Nixon remained holed up at his Baldwin Hills, Calif. home Thursday night.

Meanwhile, as Los Angeles suffered its eighth straight loss — a last-minute 112-108 defeat to the Portland Trail Blazers at the Sports Arena — agent Tom Collins continued to delay the signing.

"All the documents seem to be in order," Collins said. "Now I'm going to forward them to New York to Gary Bettman (the NBA's general counsel) and Larry Fleisher (the director of the Players Association) tomorrow."

When asked if there was a chance Nixon would sign in time to play Saturday night against Milwaukee, Collins said: "No way."

It remained unclear why the agent was not allowing Nixon to sign, even though the terms are almost identical to the ones contained in the Seattle offer sheet.

A source close to the situation said the agent may have a "personal vendetta" against the club.

Meanwhile, Nixon appears willing to let his agent handle his immediate future.

"I rely on Collins' advice," he said, "but I am going to be a Clipper."

The team could have used Nixon against the Trail Blazers. Los Angeles needed key baskets late in the fourth quarter, and was forced to go to free-throw line, even though the terms are almost identical to the ones contained in the Seattle offer sheet.

Marques shows leadership but Nixon in there creates another threat," said Clippers forward Michael Cage. "They (the Trail Blazers) knew we were going to Marques so they were able to prepare for that."

Johnston, with defenders blanketing him, missed his last three shots, and the Clippers lost."

Los Angeles reportedly could have signed Nixon two weeks ago for $500,000 cash for three years.

1986) but there wasn't anything 'extra' when he was over at Cronell and we'd play them.

"You play to win every game and it usually doesn't matter who's across the field from you ... and I certainly don't think the players even think about it. They're usually not aware of any kind of relationship like that."

"They're interested in the guy they're going to play in the game, not about whether the coaches used to work together."

Peek had said officials may not schedule McEnroe in his opening match until next Friday, five days after the tournament begins.

This would almost certainly result in a confrontation between the temperamental 28-year-old New York southpaw and officials.

McEnroe's absence had spawned rumors, including speculation that the world's No. 2-ranked player would not appear as scheduled, and that he was about to marry long-time girlfriend and actress Tatum O'Neal before honeymooning in Australia.

Peek said Friday he did not know whether O'Neal would be accompanying McEnroe on his trip.

White probable for Eagle game

ILVING, Texas (UPI) — Dallas Cowboys quarterback Danny White, who suffered a jammed neck in the team's 44-0 loss to Chicago last week, has been upgraded to probable for Sunday's game against Philadelphia, a team spokesman said Thursday.

White had been listed as questionable for the Sunday game, which could play a critical role in the Cowboys' NFC East playoff hopes.

Dallas, which against Chicago suffered the most lopsided loss in the team's 26-year history, is 7-4 and tied with New York for the conference lead.

FOCUS / Weekend

Rejoice with music

By Nancy Pappas
Herald Reporter

"Tis the season to be musical. Churches are offering concerts of all kinds — from familiar carols to ancient liturgies, from novel and contemporary orchestral works to the familiar, traditional excerpts from Handel's 'Messiah.'"

Although the Thanksgiving turkey has not yet been baked, the season of sacred concerts will get under way this weekend with three concerts. The Manchester Salvation Army starts with a Thanksgiving Festival of Music on Saturday evening. The concert is being presented in honor of the late C. Peter Carlson, who conducted the Manchester Citadel Band from 1949 to 1980. The concert begins at 7:30 p.m.

Also this weekend will be a performance of a work called "John the Baptist" at the Cathedral of St. Joseph in Hartford. It will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. Dr. Peter Harvey, the cathedral's choral director, said this piece is a cross between a cantata — a piece in which the singers wear formal clothing and stand still — and a fully-costumed opera.

Finally, an evening of French Christmas music will be presented by the Hartford Philharmonic Society at 8 p.m. Saturday at Trinity Episcopal Church, 130 Silganway St., Hartford. As with most of the seasonal concerts, admission is free but donations will be gratefully received.

As for the rest of the season, the crowded calendar speaks for itself. There is much to do, and many opportunities to hear fine — and usually free — music.

Peace and understanding

Several hundred Soviet and U.S. citizens learned to understand each other on an 800-mile cruise on the Volga River in 1984. Certainly, then, there is hope the Soviet and American leaders meeting in Geneva can devise a way to lead people to peace.

That will be the theme of an illustrated lecture presented at 7:30 tonight by Lou and Judi Friedman at the Friends Meetinghouse, 144 South Quaker Lane, West Hartford. The Friedmans were among the people who took the cruise in 1984. They will present a slide lecture about the experience.

Charge: $2 per person.

Twain's comet in show

Performances of the planetarium show called "Halley's Comet - Mark Twain's Star" continue each weekend at the Copernicus Planetarium and Space Science Center, Central Connecticut State University, Wells Street, New Britain. The first portion of this production features an actor, dressed as Mark Twain, performing humorous vignettes taken from Twain's speeches and writings. The shows are at 8:30 Friday and Saturday nights. Admission is $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for children under 12.

Skitch to weld baton

Connecticut's own Skitch Henderson will be the guest conductor with the New Britain Symphony Orchestra on Sunday at 3 p.m. at New Britain High School. Known for his extensive appearances on the concert stage, radio and television, Henderson has conducted such fine orchestras as the NBC Symphony, the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, the Stuttgart Symphony and many more. He is probably best known for his appearances on television's "Tonight" and "Today" shows.

The program will feature a 100th-birthday salute to Jerome Kern, in which Henderson will play the piano as well as conduct the orchestra. Tickets will be sold at the door. They cost $10 general admission, $5 students. For more information, call 229-1665.

Jazz on a dulcimer?

If you've never heard jazz played on a hammered dulcimer, then you're in for a treat. Walt Michael & Company, a rather unusual folk music group, will be presented Saturday evening by the Sounding Board coffeehouse. The concert will also feature country dance tunes and traditional songs of rural America. Concerts are held at First Church of Christ Congregational, 12 South Main St., West Hartford. Doors open at 7 p.m., music begins at 8. Tickets are $6.

You don't have to travel to the end of the rainbow to find a large pot of gold. You'll probably find what you're looking for at the Loomis Chaffee School's coin auction on Sunday. More than 200 lots of coins will be for sale to the highest bidder. Highlights will include more than a dozen Morgan dollars, an 1877 Indian cent, gold coins, proof sets and more.

The preview begins at 11:30 a.m., and the auction will start at 1 p.m. Admission is free, and lists of the coins will be available. Profits will go to the school's scholarship fund. The school is in Windsor

A bit of sleep walking

Will the name of Amina's true love be revealed? Will Amina be kept apart from the man she truly loves? If these sound like cliff-hangers from a soap opera, they are - in a sense. They are all part of the plot of Vincenzo Bellini's opera, "La Sonnambula," which translates as "the sleep walker."

Like that of many other operas, this plot reads like the story line for a daytime drama. It will be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday at Bushnell Memorial Hall, Hartford, by the Connecticut Opera. For ticket reservations, call 527-0713.

Antique discovery day

Ever wondered about the value of that old doll your Aunt Emma left you? Or what about that Victorian rocker which you found at a flea market.

You can learn all you need to know on Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Antique Appraisal Discovery Day at the South Glastonbury Public Library, 40 High St., South Glastonbury.

A panel of professional appraisers will give verbal appraisals of items such as clocks, fabrics, quilts and antiques, furniture, silver, books and glassware.

The fee will be $3 for one item, $5 for two items and $10 for five items. Proceeds will benefit the library.

Look, don't drive

The 11th annual Connecticut International Auto Show runs today through Sunday in the Hartford Civic Center. The show, which is sponsored by the Greater Hartford Automobile Dealers' Association, will feature hundreds of cars from 30 manufacturers.

If autos aren't enough to tempt you, how about an autograph from Krista Tesreau, who plays Catlin Lewis on the soap opera, "Guiding Light"? Or from Thomas Ian Griffith, who plays Catlin Ewing on "Another World."

The show is part of the show from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday, talking with visitors and performing in soap opera spoofs with Gary Craig, a disc jockey with radio station WVIC-FM.

The show is open tonight until 11, Saturday from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission is $4.25 general admission, $3.25 senior citizens and teenagers, and free to children under 12.

'Whose Life' continues

"Whose Life Is It Anyway?" continues this weekend in the Love Program Center of Manchester Community College.

The drama by Brian Clark is performed by Encore Productions. Tickets are $7.50. Performances are at 8:30 tonight and Saturday.

Listen to concert

Sharon Derby and Randy Gordon will give a concert of piano and cello duets Sunday at 7 p.m. at Concord Congregational Church, Route 85, Hebron. To benefit the Old Church Siding Fund. A donation of $3 for adults is suggested.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for children under 12 with an $8 maximum for a family. Profits will go to Ethiopian children's relief.

Villella leaps in

He did his college work at the New York Maritime Academy, where he earned a variety letter in baseball and won the campus lightweight boxing championship. Hardly the description for a famed ballet star.

But Edward Villella, one of America's premier male dancers, did all of that. He has been known for his virility and athletics in ballet.

Villella will present a lecture-performance, "An Evening with Edward Villella and Dancers," tonight at 8 in the Roberts Theater on the campus of Kingswood-Oxford School in West Hartford. Tickets are $14 general admission, $10 senior citizens and students carrying identification. The theater is off Trout Brook Drive in West Hartford.

 Spiders don't lead an easy life. Newspaper advertising creates the kind of customer traffic spiders hate and merchants love. Product show is this weekend
 Would you like to pick up a free yardstick? A handful of balloons? A couple of key chains? Perhaps you'd like to have your caricature drawn - absolutely free.

These are among the offerings this weekend at Product Show '85, co-sponsored by the Greater Manchester, the South Windsor, and the East Hartford chambers of commerce.

From 8 to 10 tonight, from noon to 10 p.m. Saturday and from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, visitors are invited to the show, just off Route 5 in South Windsor. About 135 businesses and civic organizations will be showcased in the exhibit hall.

Admission to the show is $2 per person, and children under 6 will be admitted free.

The Product Show may be reached by traveling along Route 194 to Route 5. Turn south to Strong Road, across the street from Scandinavian Design. Turn left on Strong Road, then right onto Nutmeg Road.

While parents enjoy the exhibits, a free child-care area will be offered by Creative Nursery School Inc. of South Windsor. There will be arts and crafts projects, toys and movies on a large-screen television.

At 4 and 5 p.m. Saturday, Mixed Company, a popular jazz vocal group specializing in music of the 1940s, will present a free concert. Mark Mazarella, a magician who is featured on WVIC-TV Channel 61, will present free programs of magic and illusions at 1 and 2 p.m. Sunday. Other special performances will be presented by the Illing Junior High School Jazz Band and the Silk City Chorus, among others.

Sylvester Stallone stars once again
 HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Sylvester Stallone, with "Rocky IV" completed and "Rambo III" on the drawing boards, will star in a new movie playing neither the heavy-weight champion nor the avenging Vietnam vet.

Stallone will play a street-tough, big-city detective in "Cobra" for Warner Bros., co-starring his close companion Brigitte Nielsen as a beautiful fashion model.

The screenplay was written by Stallone and will be directed by George P. Cosmatos, who directed "Rambo: First Blood Part II."

"Cobra" is scheduled to be released on Memorial Day 1986.

Advice

Blind boy's special legacy is a precious gift of sight

DEAR ABBY: This is for that lady whose family wouldn't sign the papers for her to donate her organs after she died. I had a brother and his name was Andy. He was 9 years old. He was blind and paralyzed. Andy died last August. His blindness was caused by brain damage, so he could donate his organs. Some people told me they thought that was gross, and I told them, "It was not gross because now somebody can see. They can really see." It doesn't hurt so much knowing that Andy died because his dying did somebody some good. A 9-year-old boy who was blind and paralyzed was able to make somebody see. I am 11 years old and already I want to donate my organs after I die.

Dear Abby Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine and I work at the same location about 30 miles out of town. Since he doesn't own a car, and it wasn't really out of my way to pick him up and take him home, I was only too happy to have him ride along. It's been a year now, and these thoughts have crossed my mind: I am spending $250 a month on car payments and $45 a month on gasoline. Meanwhile, my friend is saving a bundle. I've spoken with a number of people who say they have the same problem, and the only solution we agreed on was to sell our cars and were freed on other people for transportation.

However, we find it hard to put our feet down because we really aren't going out of our way to pick up these riders. Please print this. NOT A TAXI

JILL TURNER

DEAR JILL: Thank you for stating a principle that deserves to be carved in stone. You have centuries of wisdom stored in that 11-year-old head. Please write again and send me your address. I have a gift for you.

DEAR NOT: A person who "rides along" daily should not have to be prompted to give the driver a gift, or fill the gas tank occasionally. But since your passenger apparently needs a small nudge, I'm printing your letter and hope it penetrates.

Look up this nutrition data

DEAR DR. GOTT: How can I find out what vitamins and minerals are found in what foods?

Dr. Gott Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR READER: There are many available publications that list the nutritional makeup of foods. In addition to the ever-printed supply of paperback references in most bookstores, you library will have sourcebooks about nutritional values. The dietitian employed by your local hospital also can give you specific advice about various foods. Finally, you will find that many manufacturers list major ingredients, nutritional information and vitamin-mineral contents on their food packages.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What can you tell me about Sjogren's syndrome? I have been diagnosed as having it. I was treated for lupus for many years; then, after my tests, I was told it was Sjogren's. I also have a bad cough and lung trouble. Are they related?

DEAR READER: Sjogren's syndrome is an uncommon disease thought to be due to person's reaction to certain body tissues. It is characterized by dryness of the mouth and eyes. It can be associated with a rash or form of inflammatory arthritis. I am not aware that Sjogren's syndrome by itself, affects the lungs, but if you have lupus (another form of immune dysfunction), you are experiencing a generalized reaction for which treatment by a qualified physician may be necessary.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Years ago, I discovered small lumps at the inside edge of each breast, at the breastplate. The doctor said it was extra cartilage. During two pregnancies, the lumps swelled up and were sore, then subsided. They seem to change with my period. Should a mammogram be taken?

DEAR READER: Ordinarily, cartilage will not significantly enlarge in relation to changes in female hormones. I wonder if your lumps may not be breast cysts. Rather than exposing yourself to the radiation of a mammogram, you might be able to obtain a diagnosis by having an ultrasound exam. If you are over 45, a baseline mammogram is appropriate, but if the lumps are indeed cartilage, they will probably not show up on the X-ray examination.

Thoughts

Jesus said, "Do not judge, or you too will be judged. For in the same way you judge others, you will be judged, and with the measure you use, it will be measured to you."

"Would cause you to falter too." (Page 683)

Rev. Norman Swensen Trinity Covenant Church 302 Hackmatack Street Manchester, CT 06640

We have to be careful in our judging others, especially when we want to appear brilliant ourselves. Here's how the Chicago Times evaluated Lincoln's Gettysburg Address in commenting on it the day after its delivery:

"The cheek of every American must tingle with shame as he reads the silly, flat and dish-watery utterance of a man who has to be pointed out to the intelligent foreigners as President of the United States." (Encyclopedia of 7700 Illustrations - Paul Lee Tan, Page 684)

"Pray don't find fault with a man who limps Or stumbles along the road, Unless you have worn the shoes he wears Or struggled beneath his load. There may be tacks in his shoes that hurt Though hidden away from view. Or the burm he bears, placed on your back. Might cause you to stumble too. Don't sneer at the man who is down today. Unless you have felt the blow That caused his fall, or felt the shame That only the fallen know."

You may be strong, but still the blows That were his, if dealt to you In the self same way at the self same time Might cause you to stagger, too. Don't be too harsh with a man who sins, Or pelt him with words or stones, Unless you are sure, yes, doubly sure, That you have not sinned of your own. For you know, perhaps, if the tempter's voice Should whisper as soft to you As it did to him when he went astray

Film banned in Boston

Cops protect movie viewers

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — The Orson Welles Cinema hired off-duty policeman and vowed "to do whatever is necessary" to protect viewers at today's scheduled opening of the film "Hail, Mary," which was banned in Boston. City officials agreed to supply extra officers, if needed, said cinema manager Mark Sommer. The theater has been deluged with bomb threats and hundreds of angry phone calls since the management announced earlier this week that it would run the modernized film version of the Nativity, despite objections from local officials and the Catholic Church. Protesters have vowed to demonstrate "until that movie is thrown out of Harvard Square."

But Sommer said Thursday, "We will put on extra staff of our own and do whatever is necessary to ensure safety." "The film has a right to be shown," he said. "We think it would be a dangerous precedent for Orson Welles not to show the film and suppress it because of concerns by some members of the community." Many Catholics including Pope John Paul II, have expressed outrage at the Jean-Luc Godard production depicting Mary as a high school student who plays basketball and pumps gasoline at her father's gas station. Joseph, her fiance, drives a taxi. The 10-minute movie contains some nudity and coarse language. It also depicts Mary writing naked in her bed as she is tempted by worldly desires.

The strong protests prompted the Sack Theater chain to cancel the planned showing in Boston. The Massachusetts Civil Liberties Union has criticized Sack's decision as a blow to freedom of expression. "If Sack had held fast the protests would have dispersed since it's a major theater chain," said John Roberts, the MCLU's executive director. "Now all of the attention is focused on one small theater in Cambridge," the home of Harvard and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

City Manager Robert W. Healy and Police Chief Anthony G. Paolillo cited concern for "public safety" as their reasons for requesting the showing be canceled. "The people against the movie have done more than any advertising agency could have ever done," Sommer said. "The film could have come and gone quietly."

"Karate" sequel HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — One of last year's big critical and box-office successes, "The Karate Kid," has inspired a sequel, "The Karate Kid II," reuniting Pat Morita and young Ralph Macchio. Joining the cast this time around will be Nobu McCarthy who made her movie debut with Jerry Lewis in "Geisha Boy" and appeared in such other films as "Five Gates to Hell" and "Wake Me When It's Over."

Some 1986 tax deductions reap bigger benefits in '85

It's generally wise to pull tax deductions from next year into this year. You get tax and economic benefits from the deductions that much sooner. Extra tax savings: Tax brackets are adjusted annually to compensate for inflation — meaning the deductions provide more tax savings in 1985 than in 1986. In addition, current tax reform proposals would cut tax rates in '86, making deductions in 1985 even more valuable.

With the help of Eli J. Warach, divisional vice president of Prentiss-Hall, I've put together ways to shift personal deductions from 1986 to 1985, when they're worth more. 1) Sales tax: The tables provide for a simple automatic deduction for state and local sales taxes with everyone like you getting the same deductions — and no questions asked. But if you plan to buy several expensive items (new furniture, say), make the purchases before year-end and save your receipts (including what you spend for holiday gifts). The sales tax you pay on these items alone may be greater than that listed in the tax tables — even though you haven't kept all records. The IRS treats some big-ticket purchases (such as a car) as major items and you can deduct the sales tax on these items even if you use the sales tax tables.

Move up your purchase of a car by one month — from January to December — and increase your 1985 sales tax deduction. 2) Prepay your estimated 1985 state income tax, due in early 1986, before year-end. Then you can deduct it in '85 instead of '86. Reason: Starting this year, the bank must file information return with the IRS showing how much mortgage interest you paid during the year. The late December payment doesn't show up on the bank's 1985 records, it will be reported on the new information return. And if you claim the interest portion of this deductible in '85 instead of '86, you can deduct the sales tax on the bank must file information return with the IRS showing how much mortgage interest you paid during the year. The late December payment doesn't show up on the bank's 1985 records, it will be reported on the new information return. Term insurance might be better

QUESTION: My wife and I have been approached by a salesman with insurance policies that have "vanishing premiums" after seven years. We both are 28 and, according to the salesman, each of us would pay approximately $1,000 annual premiums for $100,000 policies.

The idea of never paying insurance premiums after seven years is very appealing and we've already received applications from the insurance company. What is your opinion on this?

Investors' Guide
William A. Doyle

ANSWER: Don't sign those applications and turn over any money until you have studied and understood all the details of the policies.

You'll probably find out that your premiums would be higher than your wife's. That's pretty standard, because females have longer average life expectancies than males. Insurance companies have that worked out on actuarial tables. As with the gaming tables in Atlantic City and Las Vegas, the odds favor the house.

Double-check to make sure the premiums can't be raised during the seven-year payment period. The policies might have provisions allowing the insurance company to raise the premiums, if interest rates drop and the company earns less interest on the money it gets from you.

An insurance company invests the money it receives from premiums. Because you would pay all the premiums in seven years, the insurance company would have the use of your money sooner than if you make premium payments over a longer span.

As a result, the company would earn more by charging, say, $10,000 in premiums over 20 years.

While this arrangement might appeal to you, it also results in you losing the use of your money for longer periods of time. Chances are, you could do better by buying lower-cost term insurance and investing the money you save on premiums elsewhere.

Of course, an insurance company doesn't get all the premium money you pay. A goodly chunk goes to the salesman. It comes as a shock to many people to learn that, in states where insurance regulations allow it, all of the first year's premium goes to the salesperson on some policies.

QUESTION: A friend of mine claims he is getting his whole life insurance for free. He says he's had his policy for so many years that the dividends now are big enough to pay the premiums. This sounds too good to be true. Is it really possible?

ANSWER: Even though your friend no longer has to pay premiums, he isn't getting his insurance "for free." He simply paid so much in previous years that the insurance company has collected a sufficient amount of his money and no longer has to charge him. So-called "dividends" are paid on "participating" whole life policies. Those dividends come from money the insurance company has left over, after meeting its expenses — including death claims. Holders of that type of policy participate in the company's surplus money by receiving dividends.

Your friend is using his policy's dividends to pay his premiums. When a participating policy has accumulated a high cash surrender value, its dividends can be equal to or larger than the policy's premiums. This being the case, your friend no longer has to send money to the insurance company.

QUESTION: I have $30,000 in a 10.5 percent certificate of deposit and $10,000 in a 9.5 percent CD. My insurance agent is trying to sell me a universal life plan with the entire $40,000. He says it would pay me to redeem my CDs and pay the early withdrawal penalties — six months' interest on the larger CD and three months' interest on the small one. Do you agree?

ANSWER: Not for one minute. Next time that agent shows up at your house, lock the door and don't let him in.

Quick arithmetic shows you would lose $2,000 in early withdrawal penalties by going along with that peddler's proposal. Even if the universal life policy turned out to be a reasonably good thing for you over the long run, there's no reason in the world for you to take that immediate financial loss. Keep your CDs.

Stocks Set New Record
The Dow Jones Industrial Average zoomed 23.05 to 1,462.27, surpassing its previous record of 1,440.02, set Monday.

Stock prices rocketed to dizzying heights in heavy trading Thursday as the Dow Jones Industrial Average smashed through records. It zoomed 23.05 to 1,462.27, far surpassing its previous record of 1,440.02, set Monday.

Stock prices enter uncharted territory

Amid hopes for lower interest rates, stock prices have bounded ahead into uncharted territory.

On Thursday, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed 23.05 to a new closing peak of 1,462.27. The barometer of blue-chip stocks has reached nine records this month alone. It hit a new high mark on Monday of 1,440.02 and finished with only minor changes Tuesday and Wednesday.

Broader market measures have also been breaking fresh ground. The New York Stock Exchange composite index rose 1.33 to a new high of 116.12.

Besides optimism about interest rates, analysts attributed the stock market's recent strength to renewed hopes for a thaw in superpower relations following the summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Meanwhile, a new survey said most big American manufacturers would like the government to do more to aid them in foreign trade.

The survey by the Conference Board, a non-profit research organization based in New York, said 38 percent of big U.S. firms favor stronger tariffs or quotas. The board polled the Fortune 1,000 companies and drew 295 responses, 95 percent of them from manufacturing companies.

In a trade development on Capitol Hill, legislation that would curb textile apparel and shoe imports came a step further in the House of Representatives. It will be debated on the House floor Dec. 3.

Other economic news Thursday included:

- A Federal Reserve Board report which showed the nation's basic money supply is still growing at a rate above the central bank's target.
- The Commerce Department reported Americans tightened the grip on their purse strings last month and personal spending plunged 0.9 percent.

Hutton head hits attempt to curb state operations

HARTFORD — Declaring "enough is enough," the president of E.F. Hutton & Co. appealed to state officials to allow the firm to continue to operate in Connecticut despite its guilty pleas to federal fraud charges.

Scott Pierce, who has served as president of the New York-based brokerage firm since December 1983, said Hutton already has suffered enough because of the check-killing scheme that resulted in the guilty pleas earlier this year.

Pierce told acting state Banking Commissioner Howard B. Brown at a hearing Thursday that suspension or revocation of Hutton's Connecticut license would harm many innocent people who had nothing to do with the overdraft scheme.

"I think enough is enough," he said in urging Brown to reject the efforts by state Attorney General Joseph I. Lieberman to have Hutton disciplined for the check-killing, which occurred between 1980 and 1982.

Pierce said the company already has been subjected to extensive investigations that proved the overdrafting scheme involved only a small number of employees who didn't know they were acting improperly.

Pierce, who works in Hutton's New York headquarters, was the first witness called by lawyers defending the company against the state attorney general's request for suspension of revocation of Hutton's Connecticut license.

Pierce said the employees involved in the scheme have been disciplined and that to take further action against the company would harm innocent employees and customers who had nothing to do with the suspension or revoking of its license would

Boston hotel strike looms

BOSTON (UPI) — Nearly 1,500 employees of Boston's largest hotels have given their union the go-ahead to call the first hotel strike in the city's history on Dec. 1.

The 1971 to 71 vote, tallied Thursday, authorizes the negotiating committee of Local 26 of the Hotel, Restaurant, Institutional Employees and Bartenders Union, AFL-CIO to "do what it chooses," including a strike beginning at midnight Dec. 1, said union spokesman Jim Braude.

Braude said the strike would be the first in Boston hotel history.

Union members began balloting on the strike authorization resolution during a rally Wednesday and the ballots were counted Thursday afternoon.

The union represents 3,500 employees at nine of Boston's largest hotels. Employees at five other hotels have contracts that are contingent on the union's negotiations.

"The vote is a reaffirmation of this democratic union and shows the members approve of the direction we're going and the methods we're using," said union president Domenic Bozzotto.

"What we plan to do now is to negotiate," Bozzotto said.
