Congress quits without accord on deficit cut

By Steven Komorow
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A tired and frustrated Congress adjourned for the year Friday after failing in a long battle to pass a $74 billion deficit-reduction bill, center-piece of its 1985 budget-cutting effort.

In a final day of maneuvering, with many lawmakers already on their way home, the Senate refused for the second and third times in two days to pass the House version of the massive package of spending cuts and taxes. The House had removed from the package a new tax to pay for the "Superfund" toxic waste cleanup program.

The 35-29 and 35-30 votes killed the bill until next year.

The Senate then approved, on a voice vote, a separate House-passed bill to temporarily extend some expiring tax provisions, including the 18-cent-a-pack tax on cigarettes, until next March. It was the last measure needed before adjournment.

Senate leaders telephoned President Reagan at Camp David to notify him Congress was leaving.

"Mr. President, we're here, we're finished, we wanted to check and see if you had any further work you wanted us to do," said Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., who said the president indicated he did not.

They exchanged holiday greetings, and the leaders returned to the Senate chamber where the gavel fell for the last time at 6:28 p.m. The House followed suit, adjourning at 6:40 p.m. Congress returns on Jan. 21.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., said the Senate would return to conference with the House in January to revise the budget bill, which the White House said would have been vetoed without changes.

"This is not being sent back to die as far as this senator is concerned," he said.

But he drew sharp criticism from Democrats and Republicans, who said Congress needed to act this year to cut the huge federal deficit.

"It's a way to let Reagan avoid facing up," said Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., the Democratic leader. "We send this back to conference, that's the end of this measure."

The Senate could have revised the bill Friday but House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said the House was in earnest — in part because so many members had left there were no longer enough representatives in town to add up to a quorum.

"We have completed our work," said Wright, standing in for Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., who already had left. "We're just waiting for the Senate so we can catch the airplanes home."

The House, seeking to give the Senate a way to adjourn, convened briefly Friday afternoon to pass the separate package to simply extend some expiring tax provisions until March 15 next year. The bill passed by a voice vote, and no one questioned whether a quorum was present on the almost-empty House floor.

The bill would retroactively lower the 16-cent-a-pack tax on cigarettes, which technically dropped to a cent at midnight Thursday after Congress failed to act. It would also restore two Medicare cost-control laws which expired, one setting the rate at which the government reimburses hospitals for treating Medicare patients and the other a freeze on fees paid to doctors.

It bounced back and forth again between the chambers in a marathon session that ended early Friday.

Before the Senate reconvened Friday, Dole said the Senate could send the bill back to the House again, but acknowledged it would be pointless. "I expect most of the House guys except those with 100 percent voting records are gone," he said.

The Superfund tax dispute blocked what was otherwise a broad compromise on a wide-ranging package of program changes and tax increases designed to meet the guidelines of the fiscal 1986 budget Congress approved last August.

British church envoy Terry Waite jokes with his Shiite Moslem bodyguards Friday after a press conference at the Summerland Hotel in Beirut, Lebanon.

Waite said he hoped the captors of four American hostages would respond to his proposals and set them free by Christmas.

Waite says proposals 'fair'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Church of England envoy Terry Waite appealed to radical Moslem kidnappers Friday to let their American captives go home for Christmas. It was his third visit to Beirut in a long quest for the hostages' freedom.

Waite said after arriving from London that he has "just and fair proposals" for the captors. He was flanked by gunmen of the Shiite Moslem militia Amal, who took him from the airport to the Summerland hotel in Moslem west Beirut.

"I remain optimistic," he said. "I believe the situation still is very complicated."

"The fact that I'm here at Christmas is partly coincidental," Waite said, "but I would hope that the significance of this religious festival, which is a time of peace on Earth and goodwill towards men, would not be lost here in this country."

Waite represents Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie, to whom four kidnapped Americans wrote last month requesting intervention. Two other missing Americans did not sign the letters. Waite began his mission Nov. 13.

The hostage negotiator, a bearded 46-year-old layman who stands 6-foot-7, told his armed escorts that he did not want to stay at the hotel and must get to his west Beirut hideaway to make contact with the kidnappers.

He said that, after meetings with American officials in the United States and other parties in Geneva he did not identify, he had prepared "proposals which I believe to be just and fair and based on fair principles. I believe that if those principles are adhered to we can make further progress."

He did not elaborate.

The Americans are believed held by Islamic Jihad, or Islamic Holy War, a fundamentalist Shiite group loyal to Iran. It demands the release of 17 comrades convicted in Kuwait of bombing the U.S. and French embassies in December 1983.

Islamic Jihad also holds four Frenchmen, and other factions hold a British journalist and an Italian businessman.

Stores prepare for rush

By Susan Vaughn
Herald Reporter

Residents of the Manchester area who have put off their Christmas shopping until the last minute will have plenty of opportunity to fill the area under their trees this weekend.

Many stores plan to extend their hours each night through Monday, with some staying open as late as 11 p.m.

And despite the late date, most shoppers should find what they are looking for. Stores contacted Friday night reported that they were still well-stocked for the final Christmas rush.

"We expect absolute bedlam if the snow doesn't keep them away," said Nancy Russell, manager of the D & L clothing store in the Manchester Parkade. Russell said that D & L's buyers have been bringing in numerous items this week for the last-minute rush.

D & L will be open until 11 p.m. on Sunday "for the first time in history," Russell said. She said a company-wide decision will keep all D & L stores open longer on Sunday because it is so close to Christmas. The store will also be open until 9:30 p.m. today and Monday.

Leo Marquis, merchandise manager at K-Mart on Spencer Street, said that shopping was heavy on Friday night and he expected it to continue until Christmas.

"At least we're hoping it will be (heavy)," he said.

K-Mart will continue the extended hours it has had since Thanksgiving, staying open until 10 p.m. today and Monday and 9 p.m. on Sunday.

People shopping for VCRs and microwave ovens might have a little difficulty getting the brand they want, said Fred Gondok Jr., manager of the new Tokyo Shapiro store on Broad Street.

As of Friday, Gondok reported that his store was out of some brands of VCRs and said he expected microwaves to be gone by the end of the weekend, with no shipments expected before Christmas.

Tokyo Shapiro will stay open today and Monday until 11 p.m. and Sunday until 8 p.m.

Both Wegman, a sales manager at Sears in the Parkade, said that business was beginning to pick up again on Friday after a slower week. But she said that business in general this holiday season has not been as brisk as in previous years.

"People are doing a lot of comparative shopping," she said.

Sears will also have extended hours for the next three days, staying open today and Monday until 11 p.m. and Sunday until 9 p.m.

Some other stores with extended hours until Christmas include Caldor at Burr Street, which will be open today and Monday until 11 p.m. and Sunday until 9 p.m.; Marshall's in the Parkade, which will be open today and Monday until 10 p.m. and Sunday until 6 p.m.; and Bradlees, which will be open through Monday until 11 p.m. Most stores will close at either 5 or 6 p.m. on Christmas Eve.

Manchester's homeless get shelter, MACC says

By George Loyng
Herald Reporter

While an advocacy group has charged that the state's shelters for homeless people have failed to help all those seeking warm beds, no one is being turned away from Manchester's shelter, the executive director of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches said Friday.

"We've never turned people away," said Nancy Carr, executive director of the church group that operates a shelter for homeless people at 466 Main St. "I can't conceive that we'd ever turn people away."

The National Coalition for the Homeless, an advocacy group based in New York, charged in a report made public Thursday that an average of 15 or 16 people have been staying at the facility each night since last month.

Ward, who agreed with Carr that nobody has been turned away from the shelter, said the recent cold weather has not increased the number of homeless people seeking a bed for the night.

"Shelter and services for the homeless poor in Connecticut remain woefully inadequate on every level," the report concluded.

Carr said there are between 25 and 45 homeless people in Manchester, although not all stay at the Main Street shelter. Peter Ward, evening supervisor at the shelter, said an average of 15 or 16 people have been staying at the facility each night since last month.

Ward, who agreed with Carr that nobody has been turned away from the shelter, said the recent cold weather has not increased the number of homeless people seeking a bed for the night.

"It hasn't had that much of an effect," he said.

While Carr said the shelter can handle the people from Manchester, it has also had to help homeless people from other towns that either have no shelter or have run out of space at their shelters.

"There's not enough shelters," Carr said. "We have neighbors who need to get their act together."

Homeless people from other towns can stay at Manchester's shelter for only five consecutive days before they are referred to agencies in their home town, Carr said.

"They're really in a bind," she said, adding that while the Manchester shelter will not take referrals from other towns, "if they show up at the door, we'll take them in."

According to the homeless coalition's report, a Hartford shelter turned away some 3,500 people during a 12-month period. It charged the practice is being repeated at other shelters in the state.

"Consequently, large numbers of homeless people are at risk of freezing to death this winter in one of the most affluent states in the country," the report said.

Long hours take their toll

Editor's note: This is one of a series of vignettes prepared by the Manchester Area Conference of Churches, which is seeking to provide Manchester and Bolton residents with Christmas gifts, food and clothing.

She works from 4 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. so she can be home with the little ones, aged 5 and 2.

During her husband's long layoff, her meager salary was all they had to live on and although he has been called back to work, the bills have piled up. So she continues to work the second shift, getting by on five hours of sleep a night on some nights.

On her creative day she works from 8 a.m. until one the next morning — a 17-hour shift. A year ago, she and her husband welcomed his young troubled teenage child to their family, knowing in advance that their Christmas would be different, both emotionally and financially. They don't regret the decision, but she's tired and the tiredness and worry show in her face.

She's still able to deal gently with the children because they are her first priority.

She shopped at tag sales for warm clothing for the children, but she hasn't been able to find warm waterproof boots for the little ones. She still needs mattresses and blankets.

Bhopal disaster blamed on plant

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — A report submitted to the Indian Parliament Friday blamed fault plant design and insufficient safety precautions for the Bhopal gas leak disaster that killed at least 1,700 people.

The authors of the report also rejected claims that the Dec. 3, 1984, gas leak at the Union Carbide pesticide plant could have been the result of sabotage, as the company has suggested.

"The view of sabotage is obviously an afterthought," said a press release accompanying the Report on Scientific Studies on the Factors Related to the Bhopal Toxic Gas Leakage.

The leak from a faulty valve at the plant lasted for three hours and discharged about 40 tons of deadly methyl isocyanate gas. Official estimates say 1,700 people were killed and 100,000 injured. Unofficial estimates range higher.

Most of the dead were children and elderly people living in

MCC to seek funding for cooperative education center

By Susan Vaughn Herald Reporter

Manchester Community College officials are ready to seek funding for an innovative adult education center scheduled to be operating in Rockville by next September.

He said that combining the various levels of education and training in one building should provide a "stimulating environment."

The new center — to be called the Sykes Center for Educational Excellence — will be administered by MCC and will incorporate programs now operating at Howell Cheney Regional Vocational Technical School, the Vernon Regional Adult Basic Education Program, Hockanum Industries, Eastern Connecticut State University, and possibly Hartford Technical College, Holt said.

community-service credit program. It also offers special job skills.

Cheney Tech's nursing and vocational education training programs will be moved to the center. MCC will be the primary leasee of the space from the Sykes Foundation, which oversees the estate of the late George Sykes, who donated the building 60 years ago for vocational education. The school housed Rockville's sixth grade before it was closed in 1984.

Plese, MCC's development director, and will be submitted Jan. 15 to the state Vocational Education Department for a vocational education grant for excellence. The funding could range from as low as $100,000 to as much as $400,000.

A third funding source is the Job Training Partnership Act, which provides grants through the state to develop job training for the handicapped, unemployed people, minority-group members, displaced homemakers and high school dropouts. Additional funding will come from student tuition and fees.

Crestfield attorney defends firing

By John F. Kirch Herald Reporter

A nonunion nurse who was fired from her job at the Crestfield-Fenwood nursing home, where 60 employees are on strike, was not protected under the National Labor Relations Act because she was a supervisor, the attorney who represents the home's owners said Friday.

Harford attorney Alan I. Scheer said nurse Peg Rudeen was considered part of the "management team" at the 155-bed home in Vernon Street. He said that as part of that team, she should not have supported the union.

"That was an act of disloyalty," Scheer said Friday. "She is a supervisor."

After Rudeen was fired in November, the union that represents striking employees of the home filed a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board in Hartford charging that she was fired because she supported the strike.

Although she did not belong to a union and was not on strike, Rudeen had decided to issue a picket line and signed a petition with 23 other nurses calling on the home's owners to negotiate with the New England Health Care Employees Union, District 1199.

After an investigation, the NLRB decided the union's charge had merit and decided to issue a complaint against the nursing home. The matter will be assigned to an administrative law judge.

If the judge finds in favor of Rudeen, the owners would be required to offer the nurse her job back, the NLRB officials said. The judge's decision can be appealed, however, to the full labor board in Washington, D.C.

About 60 nurses' aides, house-keeping and maintenance employees at the home walked off their jobs Oct. 21 because the owners refused to negotiate a first contract with District 1199. The owners — Roland Castleman and Howard Dickstein of Vernon — have said they will not negotiate with the union.

In another matter, Scheer said Friday that the Crestfield-Fenwood owners have received information from "sources" that District 1199 plans to increase the violence level in the strike. Scheer refused to identify the sources or discuss details.

Both strikers and workers crossing the picket line have had their cars vandalized, including one striker whose car was shotgunned. Both the owners and union officials have denied they were involved in any of the cases.

"They can use the word supervisor in so many ways," Rudeen said. "They're trying to push on the word, but the full labor board in Washington, D.C."

Rudeen said she was a "charge nurse" and was responsible for

Strike-support committee asks sanctions

By John F. Kirch Herald Reporter

A committee of community and union leaders formed to support striking employees of the Crestfield-Fenwood nursing home called on the town Friday to end its financial support of two companies that it said are partly owned by the nursing home's owners.

At a news conference on East Center Street, the Committee for Justice for Crestfield Workers — which has about 60 members — urged the town to stop supporting Dial-A-Ride and the Ambulance Service of Manchester.

The organization said the owners of Crestfield-Fenwood, where about 60 employees went on strike in October after the owners refused to negotiate a contract with the union that represents them, are part owners of both companies.

Dial-A-Ride provides transportation service for elderly and handicapped people under the town Phone-A-Ride program, and the Ambulance Service of Manchester is used by the town in conjunction with its paramedic program. The town currently has a contract with Dial-A-Ride, while the Ambulance Service is operating without a town contract.

Archibald Stuart, a professor in the School of Social Work at Manchester Community College, said the committee wanted to "urge the citizens and town government of Manchester to show their support for the workers by withdrawing financial and other support now provided to these services."

Five town directors — Stephen T. Cassano, James F. Fogarty, Thomas H. Ferguson, Donna Mercier and William Diana — agreed to meet this week to let the committee use their names because they said they supported the strikers.

On Friday, about 30 members of the committee formed a circle and marched outside the building that houses the two services. The marchers called for the home's owners — Roland Castleman, Josiah Lessner and Howard Dickstein — to negotiate with the workers. Across the street is the law office of Lessner, Castleman and Falkenstein, where Castleman and Lessner work.

Officials at Crestfield, the ambulance service and Dial-A-Ride could not be reached for comment Friday.

Kennedy cites the issues

BOSTON — Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., predicted Friday he would have won the Democratic presidential nomination in 1988, but decided against a White House bid to concentrate on the major issues facing the nation.

"I find people are more interested in whether my weight is going up or down than in the substance of what I am saying," Kennedy told a news conference the morning after his unexpected announcement he would not seek the presidency.

"I was increasingly convinced that I was unable to speak to the issues of importance to me and the American people without having those issues put into a category of my political future in 1988," Kennedy said.

Flanked by his children, Patrick, Teddy and Kara, Kennedy, in good spirits, said, "I have stated I would like to be president and I would still like to be."

Bingham wins on charges

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. — Lawyer Stephen Bingham, accused of smuggling a pistol used in a bloody 1971 San Francisco bank robbery, has won dismissal of three of the five murder charges he faced at his trial next month.

Marin County Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire dismissed three murder charges Thursday for lack of evidence.

Bingham, 43, who surrendered in July 1984 after 13 years as a fugitive, was scheduled for trial Feb. 20 after a preliminary hearing of more than three months, one of California's longest ever.

He is scheduled to go to trial Jan. 8 on the two remaining murder charges and a single count of conspiracy.

Bingham is a socially prominent grandson of Hiram Bingham, a Connecticut governor and senator.

Aquino to field observers

MANILA, Philippines — The government Friday granted the political party backing opposition candidate Corason Aquino the right to field observers in the country's 90,000 polling places during the Feb. 7 presidential election.

The decision by the government's Commission on Elections came as U.S. Undersecretary of State Michael Armacost left Manila after what presidential palace sources said were three hours of unannounced talks with President Ferdinand Marcos.

Marcos' six-year term officially expires in mid-1987 but he decided to call early elections.

In another development, leaders of an alliance of leftist military groups said Thursday they would withhold support for Aquino's candidacy unless she endorses their call for an immediate abrogation of the treaty covering strategic U.S. military bases in the country.

U.S. Israel seek agreement

JERUSALEM — Israel and the United States sought agreement Friday on a joint statement about the investigation of alleged spy Jonathan Pollard, a U.S. Navy analyst accused of spying for Israel, officials said.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman and Israel radio said U.S. State Dept. legal adviser Abraham Sofaer remained in Israel to continue an investigation into Israel's role in the espionage case. Four other members of his delegation left for the United States.

Four members of his team, including officials of the Justice Department and the FBI, boarded a New York-bound flight late Thursday, declining to make any statement before their departure.

Yule shoppers rush stores

NEW YORK — Some 850,000 vehicles jammed the streets of New York City as thousands of shoppers hit the city's major shopping areas for Christmas gifts.

Police reported that traffic police reported gridlock on major avenues.

"Anybody who drives a car or brings a car into the city is mad," said Eulala Kling, a shopper who lives in suburban White Plains.

FBI seeks 'pirate' in jail break

PELZER, S.C. (UPI) — The FBI charged a 40-year-old red-headed woman with air piracy Friday and extended a search nationwide for her and three convicts she plucked from a prison yard with a helicopter she hijacked at gunpoint.

The FBI said a warrant charged Joyce L. Bailey, a former textile worker, with air piracy. Authorities said Bailey, also known as Joyce Bailey Mattox, pulled a pistol from her cowboy boots after chartering a helicopter and forced the pilot to land Thursday in the Perry Correctional Institution.

Three inmates scrambled aboard the helicopter amid a hail of gunfire. The overboarded three passenger aircraft lumbered over 12-foot fences surrounding the prison and landed four miles away where the chopper pilot, Larry Green, was released unharmed.

Green, who charges $165 per hour, said the woman stuffed the money in his pocket before fleeing in a silver sedan with the convicts. That car was abandoned seven miles away and the fugitives switched to a blue Dodge.

Prison guard William T. Wade, who was shot in the mouth trying to stop the 90-second escape, was hospitalized in good condition.

The fugitives were identified as James Rodney Leonard, 20, serving a life term for murder; William Douglas Ballow, 42, and Jesse Glenn Smith, 35, both serving long terms for armed robbery.

U.S. says Afghans keeping Soviets at bay

By Jim Anderson
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union appears to be bogged down in an unwinnable stalemate in Afghanistan after six years, an estimated 30,000 casualties, and the loss of over 800 aircraft, the State Department said Friday.

In a review of the situation six years after the Soviets invaded the Kabul airport, deputy assistant secretary of State Arnold Raphael told reporters the Soviets increased the number of their troops to about 150,000, but the Afghan resistance scored several victories and it is becoming increasingly clear that there is no military solution to the war.

U.S. policy is to bring about a Soviet withdrawal, by diplomatic means, while increasing the military pressure on the Soviets, but Raphael refused to talk about any U.S. covert military aid to the Afghan resistance.

Such aid has been confirmed by other sources, including the late President Anwar Sadat, of Egypt, who said that U.S. weapons to the Afghan rebels were being funneled through his country.

The State Department released a summary of the situation inside Afghanistan to illustrate the contention that the war is a continuing stalemate, at a higher level of fighting than before.

Soviet casualties since 1979 total more than 30,000, including more than 10,000 killed. There are increasing reports of disaffection, demoralization and even mutinies among the Afghan and Soviet troops, with evidence that some of the weapons coming to the Afghan rebels have been sold by Soviet troops for alcohol or heroin.

The Soviets have lost more than 800 aircraft, including 200 during 1985 when the Afghan rebels began to receive more anti-aircraft weapons, including Soviet-built SA-7 shoulder-fired missiles.

Two of the heavily armored Mi-24 "Hind" helicopter gunships have been taken by defectors, and presumably have been made available to western intelligence.

There is evidence that the anti-war movement inside the Soviet Union has become more pervasive, causing a tightening of draft laws.

The Soviets are paying costs in international terms, with even normally friendly nations supporting moves in the United Nations to condemn the Soviet actions in Afghanistan.

The heaviest burden caused by the war, however, falls on the shoulders of the Afghan civilian population. Raphael estimated that one-half to one-third of the Afghan civilians have been either killed, wounded or made refugees by the fighting.

The Afghan refugee population in Pakistan and Iran, totalling some 3.5 million people, is the largest in the world.

Test for Shultz 'highly unlikely'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A White House official said Friday it was "highly unlikely" that Secretary of State George Shultz or other Cabinet members would be given a lie detector test unless they were suspected of espionage.

Shultz has threatened to quit if he is forced to take a polygraph under a national security directive signed by President Reagan.

"The minute in this government I am told that I'm not trusted is the day that I leave," Shultz announced Thursday.

The official, who asked not to be identified, said, "Unless George Shultz is suspected of espionage, it is highly unlikely he would be asked to take a polygraph."

"It is designed for espionage" investigation, the official said. "I think it's highly unlikely that Shultz or other Cabinet officers would be asked to take it."

Shultz discussed his strong feelings against lie detectors with President Reagan on his arrival from an East European swing Wednesday.

Reagan signed the order Nov. 1 directing the use of polygraph tests as one of the tools in the clearance procedures for officials with access to national security information.

Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes told reporters the Reagan directive "is a very broad effort to counter espionage, to stop spying."

"We're talking about the use of polygraphs for suspected espionage cases," he said. "If someone is suspected and we have evidence of it, one of the tools under the order would be the polygraph."

"There are other ways," he said. "I think everyone in this government realizes the limitations and pitfalls in the use of polygraphs."

Members of the 101st Airborne Division who returned from peacekeeping duty in the Sinai Thursday are grim-faced as they join other mourners in a memorial service Friday in Fort Campbell, Ky., for those who perished when a plane crashed Dec. 12 in Gander, Newfoundland.

Service for crash soldiers 'as much for living as dead'

By Svyl McClain United Press International
FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. — Howlers thundered a 248-gun, roll-call salute into a grey sky and 17,000 troops of the 101st Airborne Division snapped to attention Friday as taps were played in a final tribute to 248 soldiers killed in a Newfoundland jet crash.
"The intensity of our mourning is equal only to our resolve to meet the challenge of life. We dedicate ourselves anew to the mission of peace," Chaplain Bernard Nass told the troops, families of the dead and civilians who packed the parade grounds in sub-zero weather.
Smoke wafted from the 105mm howitzers and the ceremony — the last for the soldiers killed Dec. 12 in a plane returning them from peace-keeping duty in the Sinai — ended with four Air Force jets flying over the snow-covered field in the missing man formation.
"The single and very bright ray of sunshine occurred yesterday (Thursday) when the remaining forces came home," Patrick said. "From the bottom of our hearts, we thank them for what they did for their country, for what they did for peace on Earth and for what they did for good will to men."
Maj. Jim Gleisberg, post public affairs officer, said the bodies of the victims are still in Dover, Del. Each will be accompanied by a member of the Army John Marsh Jr.
"If they make a request for a burial detail, arrangements will be made, but it's strictly up to the parents or wife," said Gleisberg. "The ceremony ended a week of memorial services, including a visit by President and Mrs. Reagan, who came Monday to comfort some 275 immediate family members who lost their loved ones in the crash."
"The ceremonies today are the crescendo for them," said the

New charges ordered vs. Barbie

LYON, France (AP) — The trial against Nazi war criminal Klaus Barbie was delayed Friday when France's highest appeals court ruled that prosecutors erred by excluding some accusations against Barbie.
The trial against the 72-year-old former SS captain had been scheduled to begin in early February. The ruling Friday means the trial will be postponed until at least after the March 16, 1986 legislative elections in France.
In its decision, the court reversed two lower court rulings which had upheld the prosecutors' decision to exclude several charges brought by associations representing World War II French Resistance fighters.
The prosecutors had classified those accusations as war crimes, for which the 15-year French statute of limitations had expired. Instead, they sought to limit the focus of the trial to crimes against humanity, for which there is no statute of limitations.
Lawyers representing the Resistance groups argued that the definition of crimes against humanity had been too narrowly applied in excluding the additional charges.
Under French law, war crimes are committed against an enemy during war. Crimes against humanity are committed against someone because of race, religion or opinion.

French hostage drama ends with surrender

NANTES, France (UPI) — Three gunmen who took over a courtroom packed with people in a daring escape plot released their last two hostages unharmed on an airport runway Friday and gave up. No one was injured in the 34-hour drama.

The three gunmen freed the last of their hostages — criminal court Judge Dominique Bailhache, 45, and one of his assistants, Bernard Bureau — before surrendering to police.

The end to the hostage drama came on the runway of the Chateau-Bougon airport near Nantes, where the gunmen had hoped to fly to freedom in a government jet.

The gunmen included two Frenchmen who had been on trial Thursday for armed robbery and a Moroccan who burst into a courtroom at the Nantes courthouse, gave the Frenchmen guns and hand grenades, and helped them take the hostages in a bold bid to free his friends.

Georges Courtois, the leader of the trio, smiled to reporters as he was led away to jail and said, "We chose the best solution."

He called reporters, who he had fired upon at one point, "sharks" and said he was content "to leave them to their sad lot."

The other two, Patrick Thiollet, 24, and Abdel Karim Khalki, 30, a Moroccan who claimed to be a Moslem extremist, remained silent.

Their decision to surrender came during four hours of intensive negotiations in a beige Renault mini-van parked on the runway with a government Myrte 20 jet parked 400 yards away. During the talks, police refused a demand to let them take their two hostages with them.

France's top anti-terrorist policeman, Robert Broussard, was a key official in negotiating the gunmen's final surrender and the decision earlier in the day to let them drive away with four captives from the Nantes courthouse where they had stayed 27 hours.

"The three hostage-takers won the first round when they left the courthouse, but they lost the second," Broussard said. "Our tactic was to find their weakness. The Moroccan was very generous in that respect."

"When the other two figured out it was either fight or die, they could go on no longer," Broussard said. He said "it was impossible" to use force to intervene in the crisis or else "there would have been carnage."

Six heavily armed SWAT team members had been stationed in a mini-van 20 yards away and all air traffic was canceled at the evacuated airport. Police sharpshooters took up positions atop the control tower.

A police negotiator, Loire regional prefect Jean Chevance, said the gunmen had told negotiators they might want to go to Switzerland or Morocco but had no precise destination.

With a Renault mini-van given them by police, the gunmen drove themselves and four hostages to the airport from the courthouse in Nantes, 200 miles southwest of Paris.

The gunmen departed the courthouse one by one, handcuffed to their last four hostages, as a police SWAT team and a crowd of reporters looked on. The gunmen fired several shots into the air as they left.

Several police vehicles trailed behind them, forming a convoy that wound through Nantes streets and eventually arrived at the airport, where they freed two hostages — substitute judge Philippe Varin and Francois Dior, an assistant to the presiding judge.

The gunmen's departure from the courthouse came minutes after their leader, Courtois, appeared on a balcony and randomly fired into a crowd of reporters. Courtois fired once into the air, then pointed his .357 magnum pistol at a crowd of reporters and fired several shots.

He hit no one but smashed the television camera lens of British Broadcasting Corp. reporter Don Nesbitt, who was not injured.

"He was not shooting at anyone in particular," Nesbitt said. "He was firing away at anyone who might be in sight."

Courtois also threatened to kill the last four captives and then himself unless police let him and the two other gunmen go free.

Courtois, in a rambling speech to those in the courtroom filled by a television journalist and shown on national television, said he had met Khalki in prison and taken up his cause of political extremism.

But the overriding demand that emerged in the hours that followed was not one of political concerns, and police doubted there was a political motive to the hostage-taking. The gunmen seemed simply to want to go free.

Continued Jarvik heart use supported by federal panel

By William Kronholm
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A federal advisory panel on Friday endorsed continued human experimentation with the Jarvik-7 artificial heart, but called for increased observation of procedures because of concerns about serious medical complications.

The advisory panel, after meeting in closed session for more than six hours, said it would recommend that the Food and Drug Administration allow Dr. William DeVries to continue performing heart implants on a case-by-case basis.

DeVries has performed four of the seven implants authorized by the FDA. Of the four, two patients have died and all have suffered complications including strokes and blood clotting.

But in testimony before the panel Friday, Dr. Robert Jarvik, the developer of the heart, said the four cases have contributed to the scientific and medical knowledge necessary to develop an acceptable artificial heart.

Dr. Charles L. McIntosh, chairman of the federal advisory panel, said the committee agreed unanimously to support the experiments to continue, but under sharp new reporting requirements.

The procedures will include reports every three months on each patient receiving the Jarvik-7 as a permanent replacement heart

Transplant saves woman

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — A woman whose heart was attacked by a mysterious virus became Iowa's first female heart transplant patient Friday in an operation performed just a few hours from her death, doctors said.

Sandra Boger, 38, of Sioux Center, was taken off all life-support systems except a respirator after the three-hour surgery, but remained in critical condition at Mercy Hospital late Friday.

Boger became seriously ill in November when doctors believed she contracted a "mystery virus" that enlarged her heart and caused it to deteriorate rapidly, hospital spokesman Bill Maurer said.

She had been kept alive since Tuesday by a balloon pump inserted at the base of the aorta until officials located a donor heart near Detroit late Thursday and flew it to Des Moines by jet.

She was just a few hours from death when she underwent the transplant operation early Friday, cardiologist William Wickemeyer said.

"Her heart is working extremely well today," Wickemeyer said. "She is off all life support systems except the respirator. Her lungs are working very well, but she is extremely weak. She is awake, but exhausted. She is responding to stimuli," he said.

and FDA clearance for each operation, based on the success of the previous operation.

Continued serious medical complications still could prompt the advisory committee to recommend that the experiments be halted, McIntosh said.

"Obviously, I think if there were multiple problems, the same kind of problems that we were reviewing today, that were persistent from patient to patient, that might give the panel food for thought for saying perhaps the sixth or seventh patient shouldn't be done," McIntosh said.

McIntosh said the panel "did not come to any clear-cut decision" on whether the serious complications that have afflicted earlier heart implant patients were caused by the device or by treatment procedures.

Rail sale a top priority

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican leader Robert Dole said Friday a bill approving the sale of Conrail to Norfolk Southern Corp. will be the Senate's first item of business when it returns from its Christmas break Jan. 21.

Sen. John Danforth, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, said the promise of speedy action has continued Norfolk Southern Chairman Robert Clayton to maintain his company's $1.2 billion offer for Conrail, the government-owned freight rail carrier.

Without affirmative action by Clayton, Norfolk Southern's bid would expire at the end of 1985.

"I believe the majority leader's commitment will satisfy Norfolk Southern management that significant progress is being made on the sale of Conrail," said Danforth, R-Mo., in floor remarks.

Norfolk Southern's acquisition of Conrail has been blocked by congressmen who say a Norfolk Southern-Conrail merger would sharply reduce rail competition and increase shipping rates because Norfolk Southern, a major eastern railroad, and Conrail are now intense competitors.

Norfolk Southern opponents have embraced a rival $1.2 billion bid by Morgan Stanley & Co.

Phones fall in Stamford

STAMFORD — The area that boasts the third largest concentration of Fortune 500 companies in the country was without telephone links to the rest of the world Friday, Southern New England Telephone Co. said.

SNET spokeswoman Lucille Christie said about half the telephone lines in Stamford, about 34,000, were out of commission and all of lower Fairfield County, including Stamford, Greenwich, New Canaan and Darien, was unable to make or receive out-of-state calls.

SNET was in touch with AT&T's communications centers in Chicago, Ill., and was flying in equipment by helicopter from New York Friday evening, Christie said.

The problem was first reported just after midnight Friday and was traced to a main computer switching station, Christie said. Lines were back in service at 2:08 a.m., she said, but then went dead again at 1 p.m. Friday before the analysis of the cause was completed.

To further complicate matters, Christie said toll lines to the area from within the state were jammed because of people calling from area to find out what had happened.

Rado charged after probe

NAUGATUCK — Former Mayor William Rado Sr., his son and a police officer were among six men charged Friday in connection with a one-man grand jury investigation into alleged corruption in Naugatuck.

State police said they also charged Rado's grandson and a Naugatuck public works employee on charges stemming from the grand jury probe by Superior Court Judge Martin McKeever. The arrest warrants containing details of the charges were ordered sealed because the grand jury investigation is continuing, police said.

Rado, 68, a former six-term Democratic mayor who was charged in April with larceny and taking bribes, was arrested again Friday on a variety of larceny, extortion and campaign-related charges.

O'Neill halts repair projects

HARTFORD — A temporary halt on most repair projects done by outside contractors for the state Bureau of Public Works has been ordered by Gov. William A. O'Neill.

The order, issued Thursday, follows published reports that some large repair jobs were broken up into smaller projects to avoid the requirement that they be put out for competitive bidding.

The governor's announcement, which will not affect emergency repair projects, came after a meeting with Elisha C. Freedman, commissioner of the Department of Administrative Services.

The halt will remain in effect until new procedures to prevent abuses can be developed.

"The new procedures will allow better planning, scheduling and estimate for state projects," O'Neill said in a statement issued Thursday.

Wildlife refuge wins OK

MILFORD — Congress has authorized spending $1 million to buy 83 acres of wildlife refuge in Norwalk and Milford.

The fund, approved Thursday, would be used to buy and preserve 60 acres of Sheffield Island and 13 acres of Chimion Island, both of which are in Norwalk, and 10 acres of Milford Point. The sites include nesting areas for the rare endangered songbird, the piping plover.

The measure awaits final approval from President Reagan, according to Tony Roda, legislative director for Rep. Stewart B. McKinney, R-Conn., Reagan supports the measure.

Officials say that once completed, the total refuge areas should support more than 65 species of wildflowers and nearly 200 species of birds.

Leberman wants river notice

HARTFORD — Connecticut Attorney General Joseph I. Leberman said Friday he had written to the Army Corps of Engineers in Waltham, Mass., asking to be notified if Massachusetts makes any attempt to divert water from tributaries of the Connecticut River.

Massachusetts is considering a variety of plans to ensure continued fresh water supplies to Boston.

Leberman said he was prepared to go to federal court if necessary, to block any plans to divert water from Connecticut River tributaries.

Homeless find shelter in Manchester nation," the report said.

The coalition criticized the state's political leaders for not doing enough to help homeless people.

Gov. O'Neill and the state Legislature have been less than imaginative, hardly innovative, and by no means generous in responding to the misery of the state's poorest citizens," the coalition charged.

MACC's shelter, which opened in September, can accommodate 40 people. Renovation work currently under way will also enable the facility to feed 40 people. The work is scheduled to be completed by the summer.

"Manchester is doing a really good job," Carr said. "We've got the staff, so we're really working with the people."

Two volunteers from area churches work at the shelter each night, she said.

Users of the Manchester shelter are encouraged to remain for a maximum of two weeks, Carr said. During that time, social service workers try to find them employment and another place to stay, she said. However, Carr said nobody is forced to leave if those efforts fail.

"Some people have been with us for months," she said. "Our people are fairly secure."

Ward said people of all ages have sought help at the shelter.

"I've had people from 18 to 70 years old," he said, adding that the majority are in their 30s.

Carr said the shelter is open from 8 p.m. to 7 a.m. every day. Those who stay are given a meal of soup and sandwiches at night and not or cold cereal in the morning, according to Patricia Munguia, director of the shelter.

During the day, the shelter users usually spend their time at the library or walking in the streets.

In its report, the coalition for the homeless criticized the lack of 24-hour shelters.

"Few can afford to provide basic support services or operate on a 24-hour basis," leaving "elderly and disabled clients, among others, to fend for themselves on the streets each day," it said.

The coalition's report recommended that the state increase the

Dodd sees boost from Kennedy decision

By Bruno V. Ronniello
United Press International

HARTFORD — Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., said Friday Sen. Edward Kennedy's decision not to seek the presidency will not lessen but increase his influence in the selection of the party's nominee.

Dodd said at a news conference that Kennedy, a close friend, made his decision based on personal reasons and considerations of his family.

"No other candidate in the last 25 years has provoked so much passion as Kennedy," but his decision will not be the least bit of a setback to Kennedy's influence in the Democratic Party.

Kennedy announced Thursday he had decided not to seek the party's presidential nomination, feeling he could do more for the nation by remaining in the Senate.

Disaster blamed on plant

Most of the dead were children and elderly people living in tenement towns around the plant, owned by Union Carbide India Ltd. The firm is a subsidiary of the Union Carbide Corp., headquartered in Danbury, Conn.

Billions of dollars in legal claims against Union Carbide by victims still have not been settled.

The scientific report was submitted to the Parliament by Dr. S. Varadarajan, director general of India's Department of Scientific and Industrial Research.

It concluded that "insufficient caution in design, in choice of materials of construction and in instruments, together with lack of facilities for safe effective quick disposal of materials showing instability, contributed to the event."

'Christmas clergy craziness'

Those who minister to the rest of us wrestle with stress

By Nancy Pappas
Herold Reporter

Ministers. They deliver the sermons, but also the pointsettias. They lead Advent study programs, plan Christmas pageants, preach sermons and hang the holiday greens around the sanctuary. They hold hands with the depressed, visit shut-ins, and attend to the needs of the poor.

Others may have the opportunity to pull back a bit from their everyday work lives during the weeks before Christmas. They have the chance to smuggle up before a fire, sing carols, bake cookies, or just do a bit of Christmas dreaming.

But clergy people have no such luxury. "I would say that a minister's work load just about doubles at the holidays," said the Rev. Phillip Chatto of the Church of the Nazarene. A minister who puts in 60 hours a week, 11 months of the year may put in at least 75 during December, he said.

There are more services to plan and more sermons to write. There are more church parties, children's pageants and choir concerts to attend — or plan in many churches, the counseling load increases as well.

"People have tremendous expectations of what the holiday season should be, and they often have trouble accepting that it's going to be different," said the Rev. Ernest Harris, chaplain at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

"There's an increase in emotional intensity at this time of year," said the Rev. Nevell Curtis, senior pastor of Center Congregational Church. "This means happiness may be elevated almost to the level of hysteria. And a little sadness may spiral down into a real depression."

Unfortunately, those who need additional pastoral help to cope with the season are not likely to pick up the phone and ask for that help, said the Rev. Dale Gustafson, senior pastor of Emanuel Lutheran Church.

THIS MEANS that the pastor — who may be extremely busy with other activities in the church — must find a way to reach out to those who are in need.

Doesn't all of this create stress for the ministers? When asked this, the Rev. Joseph Milton of Second Congregational Church started laughing. "Are we revealing the truth about the stress we're under?" he asked. "Or are we making the usual kinds of 'Everything's fine' statements?"

Milton's home is subject to a double dose of clerical craziness because his wife, Nancy Milton, is the interim pastor at Talcottville Congregational Church in Vernon.

"So we're doing all of the usual things — the shopping, the children's plays, the cookie baking, making presents, decorating the house, going to the relatives' homes — plus we've each got a congregation to serve," said Milton.

In December, the number of services doubles at many churches, said 11 ministers interviewed for this story.

many ministers feel the need to retreat to a quiet place and study. "You have more messages to prepare and less days to do them in," said the Rev. Norman Swensen of Trinity Covenant Church. "For example, you lose Thanksgiving day because it's a holiday and you're with your family, right? But there's still a Sunday coming."

of Christmas can be the crowded pews, overflowing with many who do not normally attend church.

"For a lot of people — even those who do not attend church during the rest of the year — Christmas is a very spiritual time. So they will come to church," said the Rev. Phillip Saunders of Full Gospel Interdenominational Church.

them into the fold of regular church attenders," he said. This puts extra pressure on the minister to make each holiday service a peak experience for those in the congregation.

"You stand there knowing, if you miss them this year, you're not going to have another shot for a full year," Saunders said. "That's a heavy. You've got to think about your responsibility for those souls."

"Take the time to make yourself whole, either by talking with a good friend or by seeking counseling. You're of no use to others if you're feeling stretched thin yourself," said the Rev. Ernest Harris, chaplain, Manchester Memorial Hospital.

If it's the thought that counts, why can't I think?

Maybe I'll give her a fur coat.

How much is a fur coat? Would she wear a fur coat, though I guess not. They're a little pretentious. Anyway, every time you see a woman in one you think of the animals that were killed to make it. I'm not going to give her a fur coat.

A diamond ring, do you think? How much is a diamond ring? Is there any way of knowing whether you're being taken or not when you buy a diamond ring? She doesn't like jewelry that much, either.

LET'S SEE. A new car wouldn't be a bad Christmas present. I could have it delivered late Christmas Eve and parked in the driveway, with a big red bow on top, just like an advertisement.

It would be tough to pull off the financing for a new car by Christmas without letting her know about it, though. She'd probably have to sign something. Christmas presents should always be a surprise. If it isn't a surprise, it isn't a Christmas present.

She just spent $147 having the radiator fixed on her old car, too. Seems like an awful waste to get her a new car right now, after that.

I suppose I could get her several small gifts instead of one big one. I could get her a book, a scarf, a pair of gloves, a change purse, a radio alarm clock and a plant. The trouble is, she doesn't have time to read a book, she has 18 scarves in the bottom of her dresser drawer, she loses gloves, she has some special kind of change purse she uses and there's always a clock radio in any hotel room you stay in when you're traveling.

SHE HAS a typewriter. She has a camera. She has two wristwatches and doesn't usually wear either one of them. I saw an electric frying pan I liked but she wouldn't think a frying pan was a Christmas present.

It would be a good idea if we had one of those automatic telephone answering machines. She's hardly ever home and everyone's always saying they called but no one answered. I've said we ought to have one, though, so maybe she's giving me one. It would be pretty bad if we gave each other the same present.

Clothes are tough. I can never remember any of her sizes. I have to find a saleslady in the store who looks about the same size as she is and have the saleslady try on the clothes. They don't seem to mind. It doesn't work, though.

Anyway, even if I bought her something that fit, she probably wouldn't like it. People have a clear idea in their minds of what looks good on them and what doesn't. Even when they're wrong, there's no sense trying to fight it by buying them something you like.

I SUPPOSE I could give her a gift certificate from Saks Fifth Avenue, Tiffany's, Banville-Teller, Bloomingdale's or Lord and Taylor but I've never liked the idea of gift certificates. They put too much emphasis on the money and too little on the gift. A person shouldn't know exactly how much you spent on a present.

I'm trying to think what I gave her last year. It wasn't a fur coat. I know that. It wasn't a diamond ring or a new car, either.

Isn't what you give as a present that matters, of course. It's the thought that counts. That's what they say, but if it's the thought that counts, why can't I think of anything?

Scholastic roundup

ENFIELD — "We survived," said Frank Kinel after his debut as Manchester High head basketball coach turned out to be a close encounter of the third kind. The Silk Towers had a 12-point lead at one point but had to hold on down the stretch for a 48-46 victory over Enfield High in the Central Connecticut Conference East Division opener for both schools Friday night in Enfield.

"We didn't play well the fourth quarter. We were sloppy and they almost caught us. But we're back, we survived and we have the win," said a relieved Kinel.

Manchester applied pressure on the homecoming Raiders and, while it was effective in getting more turnovers, it almost proved costly for the Indians. "We made only four foul shots while we fouled them and put them on the line," Kinel said.

Enfield did convert 18 free throws but missed another 10 that could have turned the tide.

Manchester had a 12-lead at the time of the 24-19 edge at halftime. The margin went to as many as a dozen before Manchester took a 37-29 lead into the final quarter of play. That's when things started to unravel, and get tight for the Silk Towers.

"We played hard but it was a typical first game. We had a lot of turnovers," said Kinel, checking his stats and coming up with 17 turnovers.

Mike Lata pumped in a game-high 20 points to pace the Indians with Chuck Sentles and Bruce Rosenberg next at 6 apiece. Rosenberg, 6-4 junior, came off the bench when 8-4 Brian Arnold got into foul trouble and gave Mike Chester a lift. "He did a real nice job," Kinel said. Arnold blocked three shots early but then ran into foul trouble.

Manchester's next action is at the Manchester Rotary Auditorium this coming Friday night when it faces cross-town East Catholic in the opening round at 8 p.m. at Clark Arena. Windsor High opposes Middletown at 4 p.m. in the other bracket. The winners and losers meet Saturday night, Dec. 28, in the consolation and championship games.

CHESHAM — Brian Milone led the Bulldogs 20-6. Brian Arnold 2 1/2, Mike Lata 10 to 20. Chuck Sentles 15-6. Bruce Rosenberg 10-6. Jon Ross 2-2. Scott Henderson 2-2. Mike Venzetti 2-2. Shaun Brophy 0-0. Totals 27-44-4.

ENFIELD (46) — Tim Anderson 20-5. Frank Kinel 11-18. North Meriden 20-10. Mike Horton 0-3-3. Matt Hart 0-2-4. Keith Wilcox 2-4-6. Cleve Middleette 2-0-4. Darren Crosby 1-1-2. Totals 15-16-44.

MHS girls win

The player of the game took control of the game in the final quarter to secure Manchester High's first girls basketball win of the season.

Senior Dawn Martin pumped in a game-high 22 points, including 10 in the final eight minutes to pace the homecoming Indians to a 43-35 triumph over Enfield High in Central Connecticut Conference East Division action at Clark Arena Friday night.

"Martin had another fine offensive night," said MHS coach Steve Armstrong. "The key was that it was still a three-point game after three quarters, but Martin scored five hoops and almost single-handedly won the game for us."

Manchester, now 1-1, gets a holiday layoff until Jan. 3, when the Indians meet host Glastonbury High.

Martin also pulled down a club-high nine rebounds. Maura Fogarty added six points and eight rebounds, while Mary Prior also contributed six points.

The Indians were without the services of starting point guard Julie Falkowski, who is stricken with the flu.

"Precourt and Ricci did a pretty good job," noted Armstrong. "They've got some learning to do, but they did a creditable job at this point."

Enfield, 0-2, started three freshmen but kept the contest closer than expected.

"They hung tough," said Armstrong. "And any team that has three freshmen starters can only get better."

Chris Fritzel led the Raiders with 11 points.

MANCHESTER (43) — Kim Ricci 6-2-2. Dawn Martin 9-22-22. Shelby Jones 4-10-12. Mary Prior 3-7-7. Sarah Nicholson 0-0-0. Erin Prescott 1-1-1. Revynquillo 1-0-2. Meera Fogarty 2-0-1. K. Kris Cook 0-0-0. Totals 43-22-22.

ENFIELD (35) — North Meriden 20-10. Mike Horton 0-3-3. Matt Hart 0-2-4. Keith Wilcox 2-4-6. Cleve Middleette 2-0-4. Darren Crosby 1-1-2. Totals 15-16-44.

The Weekend

MHS wrestling tourney this morning

Manchester High hosts its annual holiday wrestling tournament today, beginning at 10 a.m. Among the eight teams competing are Manchester, East Catholic High and RHAM. The championship and consolation matches are scheduled for approximately 4 p.m.

High school hoop, hockey slated

The East Catholic High boys basketball team hosts rival South Catholic High in the Eagles' 1985-86 home opener tonight at 7:30 p.m. East dropped its season opener against homecoming East Lyme, 56-42.

In other action, Coventry High plays its first game of the season in entertaining Tolland High at 7:30, while 9-1 Bolton High is at Somers High. Both start at 7:30 p.m.

On the hockey rinks, a pair of local contingents will try to record their initial victories. Manchester High, 0-1, faces unbeaten 2-0 South Windsor High at Hartford Arena at 8:10 p.m., while 0-2 East Catholic meets host Fairfield Prep at 7:30 p.m.

Civic Center busy with UConn, Yale

HARTFORD — The University of Connecticut men's basketball team puts its undefeated, 4-0 record on the line this afternoon, when it takes on the University of Minnesota, 8-2, at the Hartford Civic Center at 1 p.m.

The coliseum will be converted back to a frozen pond by 7:30 p.m., when the Whalers welcome the New Jersey Devils for a Wales Conference inter-division hockey bout. The Whalers are in last place in the Adams Division, but sport a 15-14-1 record. The 13-17 Devils are also a last place club (sixth in the Patrick Division), but — like Hartford — no longer a pushover.

Cheney upended

PORTLAND — Led by Evy Bass and Bob Buttram, Portland High jumped to an early lead and maintained it for most of the game as the Highlanders downed Cheney Tech, 74-55, in the Charter Oak Conference basketball opener for both schools Friday night in the season.

The Highlanders jumped to a 20-12 lead after one period with Bass pumping in 9 of his game-high 31 points and Buttram chipping in 9 of some-total 14 markers.

"They have some definite all-COC players in Bass and Buttram," said Tech coach Aaron Silvia. "They controlled it for them."

Portland's lead was 36-24 at the half with Cheney unable to get closer through some poor foul shooting. The Techmen were a poor 6-for-18 in the opening half.

Portland's lead was 60-24 from the foul line. "Our foul shooting was horrible," Silvia voiced. "If we hit our foul shots in the first half, it would have had us almost even."

NFL playoff picture to be completed this weekend

The National Football League's complicated playoff picture will be completed this weekend — the last of the 16-week regular season.

Two games with important playoff significance will be played Saturday, with the New York Giants at home against Pittsburgh, and Washington at St. Louis.

The Giants and Redskins, each with a 9-4 record, are tied for second place in the NFC East, one game behind division champion Dallas, and are fighting for the two National Conference wild-card playoff berths, along with San Francisco, the defending Super Bowl champion. The 9ers also have a 9-4 record.

The Giants can clinch a wild-card spot and the home field advantage in the opening round of the playoffs with a victory over the 7-8 Steelers, who hope to avoid their first losing season since 1971.

The Giants could lose Saturday and still make the playoffs if either Washington loses or San Francisco is beaten by Dallas Sunday.

In Sunday's other games, Cleveland will be at the New York Jets, Cincinnati at New England, Buffalo at Miami, Houston at Indianapolis, San Diego at Kansas City, Atlanta at New Orleans, Chicago at Detroit, Green Bay at Tampa Bay and Philadelphia at Minnesota.

Monday night, it will be the Los Angeles Raiders at the Los Angeles Rams.

The NFL's final weekend began Friday night, with Denver at Seattle.

In the NFC, the division champions already have been decided. Dallas, 10-5, has won the East, Chicago, 14-1, with the best record in the league, the Central champion, and the Rams, 11-4, are the West titlists.

The 9ers, the Bears have earned the right to be home team for the divisional playoff game Jan. 4 or Jan. 5, against the winner of the Dec. 29 wild-card game, while the Cowboys and Rams still are contesting for the home field edge for their Jan. 4 or Jan. 5 playoff game.

In the American Football Conference, only the 11-4 Raiders, the leaders in the West, have clinched a berth in the playoffs. Miami, 11-4, leads the East by one game over New England, the Jets, each 10-5, while

In Sunday's other games, Cleveland will be at the New York Jets, Cincinnati at New England, Buffalo at Miami, Houston at Indianapolis, San Diego at Kansas City, Atlanta at New Orleans, Chicago at Detroit, Green Bay at Tampa Bay and Philadelphia at Minnesota.

Monday night, it will be the Los Angeles Raiders at the Los Angeles Rams.

The NFL's final weekend began Friday night, with Denver at Seattle.

In the NFC, the division champions already have been decided. Dallas, 10-5, has won the East, Chicago, 14-1, with the best record in the league, the Central champion, and the Rams, 11-4, are the West titlists.

The 9ers, the Bears have earned the right to be home team for the divisional playoff game Jan. 4 or Jan. 5, against the winner of the Dec. 29 wild-card game, while the Cowboys and Rams still are contesting for the home field edge for their Jan. 4 or Jan. 5 playoff game.

In the American Football Conference, only the 11-4 Raiders, the leaders in the West, have clinched a berth in the playoffs. Miami, 11-4, leads the East by one game over New England, the Jets, each 10-5, while the Jets and Redskins, each with a 9-4 record, are tied for second place in the NFC East, one game behind division champion Dallas, and are fighting for the two National Conference wild-card playoff berths, along with San Francisco, the defending Super Bowl champion. The 9ers also have a 9-4 record.

The Giants can clinch a wild-card spot and the home field advantage in the opening round of the playoffs with a victory over the 7-8 Steelers, who hope to avoid their first losing season since 1971.

The Giants could lose Saturday and still make the playoffs if either Washington loses or San Francisco is beaten by Dallas Sunday.

In Sunday's other games, Cleveland will be at the New York Jets, Cincinnati at New England, Buffalo at Miami, Houston at Indianapolis, San Diego at Kansas City, Atlanta at New Orleans, Chicago at Detroit, Green Bay at Tampa Bay and Philadelphia at Minnesota.

Monday night, it will be the Los Angeles Raiders at the Los Angeles Rams.

Joe Klecko is prime mover in the Jets' defense

By Joel Sherman
United Press International

HEMPSTAD, N.Y. — Moving in an old story to the New York Jets' Joe Klecko.

He delayed college two years to drive trucks that specialized in delivering heavy loads cross-country. These days Klecko is still driving heavy loads, but his moving days appear over.

Klecko, who has played in the Pro Bowl as a defensive end and defensive tackle, has been voted to this season's Pro Bowl at a third position. His success this year at nose tackle indicates there will be no more position moves.

"It's something no one else has really done," Klecko said of his three-position success. "It feels great to have played well and stayed healthy."

One of the major reasons the Jets entered the final week of the season on the brink of the playoffs was Klecko's ability to stay healthy and switch from defensive end and tackle to the nose.

In 1981, Klecko recorded 20½ sacks and made the Pro Bowl as a defensive end. But 1982 began an amazing series of injuries when he ruptured the patella tendon in his right knee and failed to reach the Pro Bowl for the only time in the last five years.

The injury slowed him and the Jets decided to move him to tackle, where he made the Pro Bowl in 1983 and 1984.

This season Bud Carson was hired as defensive coordinator and one of his first moves was to insert Klecko at nose tackle.

"In most schemes nose tackles are garbage collectors," said Carson, who developed the Steel Curtain defenses of the Super Bowl Steelers. "Joe's an aggressive player. You've got to put him in an aggressive position. You can't just put him in as cannon fodder where he's using blockers.

The nose position seems to have been created for Klecko. At 6-foot-3 and 268-pounds, he is a rare combination of power (better than 500 pound bench press) and speed.

"The biggest reason for my success is being quick off the ball and determination to get there," Klecko said.

However, Klecko's ninth season began with many of the questions which had clouded others. In preseason, he suffered a pulled hamstring running a 40-yard dash and also pulled an abdominal muscle.

But the 28-year-old Klecko credits an offseason stretching program devised by team physician James Nicholas as the key to him getting back.

He has remained healthy and played in the first 15 games. He is tied for second on the team with 7½ sacks. He is the Jets' third-leading tackler and the two men ahead of him, inside linebackers Lennie Laidl and Kyle Clifton, can thank him for their status.

Playing at a 45-degree angle to the center, an idea thought up by Carson while with Pittsburgh, Klecko has been able to distract more than one blocker and channel things away from the inside.

"(The guards) can't scoop us," Mehl said. "That's why no one runs up the middle. Joe just knows how to use his strength, and he's so quick guys can't get to him. If they do, he just picks them up and throws them away."

The Jets are the No. 1 team against the rush in the AFC after finishing 11th last season. They are 10-5 overachieves after being 7-9 underachievers in 1984. And one of the biggest reasons for their move upward has been Joe Klecko's ability to keep moving successfully.

Business In Brief

Bonneau finishes orientation

John Bonneau of Vernon has recently completed a two-day Manager Orientation Program conducted at the Friendly Ice Cream Corporation headquarters in Wilbraham, Mass. Bonneau is the manager of the Friendly Restaurant located on Berkshire Avenue in Springfield, Mass.

The purpose of the session is to help ensure a smooth transition into restaurant management and to acquaint new managers with the firm's extensive facilities and the specific functions of support departments. Extensive training courses are given to management personnel as an effort to acquaint new managers with their roles.

SNET ups dividend

The directors of Southern New England Telephone have voted to increase the quarterly dividend on the company's common stock by $2 to $7.70 from $5.70.

The board's action raises the annual dividend rate to $30.80 from $22.80. The next quarterly dividend, at the new rate, is payable January 15, 1986, to share owners of record on December 23, 1985.

Walter H. Monteth, Jr., SNET chairman and chief executive officer, said, "Our directors' action is consistent with their policy of providing dividend increases of an amount appropriate both to SNET's earnings and to the need to invest in our business. The board's goal is to offer investors a return on the company's common stock which is competitive with those of similar investments."

Monteth noted that this is the eighth consecutive year in which directors have raised the dividend.

Warnaco and RLL merge

BRIDGEPORT — Apparel manufacturer Warnaco announced Friday approval of a merger with a private corporation formed by top management, designed to take the company private.

The independent board of directors at a special meeting Thursday unanimously approved a merger proposal from RLL Inc., a corporation organized by a group of private investors headed by Warnaco senior management, a company statement said.

The investors consist of a broad-based group from Warnaco's corporate and divisional management headed by Robert J. Natura, chairman and chief executive officer of Warnaco. The firm of Goldman Sachs is acting as financial advisor to the group.

Warnaco also announced it has entered into an agreement in principle providing for settlement of the lawsuits challenging the merger.

Growth, costs fell together, analysis shows

By Martin Crutinger
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The economy grew a lackluster 2.4 percent in 1985, the slowest pace since the last recession, the government reported Friday. While the year ended on a faster note, many analysts predicted only a slightly improved economy in 1986.

Growth in the gross national product, the total output of goods and services, was down substantially from the revised 6.6 percent advance turned in during 1984 and was below even a scaled-down estimate by the Reagan administration.

The GNP report and a separate Labor Department report on Friday showed that inflation is remaining under control as the economy enters its fourth year of expansion.

A GNP-linked inflation measure showed prices rising 3.5 percent in 1985, the lowest increase since 1967. The Labor Department reported that consumer prices were rising at an annual rate of just 3.6 percent during the first 11 months of the year, despite a sharp 6.6 percent increase in November prices.

Many analysts discounted the big November gain, the largest in almost two years, saying it stemmed from a temporary spurt in food and energy costs.

At the White House, spokesman Larry Speakes said the GNP figures showed an economy "continuing on the steady progression of moderate growth. There is no reason to expect any end to the economic recovery."

The administration focused on the fact that a "flash" preliminary estimate showed the economy in the still uncompleted fourth quarter was growing at a 3.2 percent rate, up from a revised 3 percent pace in the third quarter.

The economy was slowed this year by a huge trade deficit which caused a near-recession in U.S. industry as domestic manufacturers lost sales to foreign competition both at home and abroad.

All the GNP figures reported Friday reflected a wholesale overhaul that is done once every five years in an effort to make sure this key economic indicator accurately reflects the real world.

In addition to moving the base year for prices to 1982 from 1972, the department added $101.2 billion to Americans' personal income in 1984 to reflect the so-called "underground economy" on which people don't pay taxes.

While the Reagan administration is forecasting the economy will grow at a 4 percent rate in 1986, many private analysts are predicting growth will be only slightly better than this year's 2.4 percent rate.

The new report put the GNP at $3.58 trillion for all of 1985, up from $3.49 trillion in 1984. Before inflation is removed, the 1985 GNP figure is $3.99 trillion, up 5.8 percent from 1984.

True Temper sold

FARMINGTON (AP) — Embart Corp. reported Friday that it had concluded its purchase of Allegheny International Inc.'s True Temper operations for $102 million.

True Temper is a leading manufacturer of a broad range of lawn and garden products, tools and golf club shafts, and employs more than 1,600 people in the United States, Canada, England, Ireland and Japan.

In a prepared statement, Embart noted that the True Temper products fit in well with its consumer lines — hardware stores and home centers.

Carbide asks probe into GAF financing

DANBURY (UPI) — Union Carbide Corp., which insists the company is not for sale despite a multi-billion dollar hostile takeover bid by GAF Corp., is asking federal officials Friday to probe alleged GAF stock margin violations.

Carbide said it made a written request to the board of governors of the Federal Reserve system to determine whether GAF's financing of the takeover would violate federal securities laws.

Carbide's statement called its offer "a financially superior offer which also is intended to have the effect of the company continuing to operate as an independent entity."

GAF has testified in the New York court before U.S. District Judge Milton Pollock that it would honor what Anderson called "junk bonds" used to raise funds to purchase Carbide by selling off Carbide assets after acquiring the firm.

In a separate suit by Carbide against GAF in New Haven, a Carbide lawyer Thursday termed that an intention "to take control of and dismember Union Carbide."

"THE GAF OFFER of necessity would require the immediate and near-term sale of significant assets and operations of Union Carbide for the sole purpose of financing short-term indebtedness to be incurred by GAF to finance its proposed acquisition," the statement said.

GAF, based in Wayne, N.J., made its $68-a-share tender offer Dec. 10.

Carbide's board of directors responded by voting Dec. 15 to repurchase up to 47.1 million shares, or 70 percent of the company's outstanding common stock at $85 a share in cash and securities.

The two companies sued one another Dec. 16. GAF filed suit against Carbide in New York and Carbide suing GAF in New Haven. The New York hearing was continued until Dec. 24. Pollock is being asked by GAF to grant a preliminary injunction against Carbide's counteroffer and other defensive measures against the takeover bid.

U.S. District Judge Jose A. Cabranes in New Haven Thursday rejected GAF's motion to dismiss the Carbide suit and scheduled hearings to begin Jan. 2.

GAF first made public its interest in Carbide Aug. 16 when it disclosed it had purchased nearly 4 million shares of Carbide's outstanding common stock, about 5.6 percent.

"IN FACT, the company's directors unanimously believe that the best interests of the company and its shareholders will best be served by Union Carbide remaining an independent company, rather than being acquired by GAF Corp. under its grossly inadequate and unfair offer," Carbide said in a statement.

Carbide spokesman Kurt Mazurosky claimed the report in the Wall Street Journal was "totally out of context."

"In no way was implying or directly stating that the company is for sale," Mazurosky said from Carbide's world headquarters in Danbury. The report quoted Anderson "in bits and pieces," Mazurosky said.

Carbide has made an $85-a-share counteroffer to shareholders, $20 in cash and $65 in debt securities. GAF has made an all-cash offer of $68 per share for 48 million shares of Carbide's outstanding common stock.

Mandela says she will defy police orders

By Maureen Johnson
The Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Black activist Winnie Mandela appeared before a Johannesburg magistrate today on a charge of defying government restrictions on her actions and movements, and vowed later to ignore the orders and return to her Soweto home.

Mrs. Mandela, the wife of imprisoned black leader Nelson Mandela, was dragged from her Soweto home by police Sunday and taken to the Krugersdorp police station west of Johannesburg for being in Soweto despite a new government order that allows her to live anywhere in South Africa except the Johannesburg area.

The court released Mrs. Mandela on her own recognizance after a five-minute hearing today, and ordered her to appear Jan. 22 at Krugersdorp regional court outside Johannesburg.

Mrs. Mandela left the court ringed by hundreds of chanting black supporters. "As far as I am concerned, it is a non-issue, a law that should not be obeyed by any human being," she said of the banning order that restricts where she may live and who she may see.

Mrs. Mandela was more than 90 minutes late for the court appearance. About 70 reporters waited for her to appear in the small courtroom, and 15 police officers and some military police also were present.

Mrs. Mandela had been ejected at gunpoint Saturday from her residence in Soweto, the black township near Johannesburg.

She returned early Sunday and was speaking to reporters when police arrived to arrest her. She wore a bandage on her ankle to protect a bruise suffered while resisting expulsion from her home the day before.

"Are you coming or do we have to use the force we used yesterday again?" shouted a policeman,

Residents of a group home at the corner of Brookfield and East Center streets join forces this morning to shovel the sidewalks and parking area in front of the home. A white Christmas is in store for the Manchester area, weather forecasters say.

Town prepares for white Christmas

By George Lovyn
Herold Reporter

Unlike a storm earlier this month, the snow that fell Sunday night and this morning in the Manchester area caused no major problems for work-bound commuters or last-minute shoppers.

But it did renew hope for a white Christmas.

"I love the snow," said Manchester letter carrier Andy Winsler as he delivered mail this morning on Main Street. "It doesn't help too much when you're a mailman, but you got to have snow for Christmas."

"There's nothing like a white Christmas," said Jim Diggle, an employee of Peris TV and Appliances who was shoveling the sidewalk in front of the Main Street store. Diggle said that although the snow meant more work for him, he thought it was "great."

Between three and five inches had accumulated around the station by the time the snow stopped and the sun broke through at around noon, according to National Weather Service Forecaster Robert Woodard. Woodard said that the storm was the largest of the season for the area and caught the Windsor Locks weather center by surprise.

"Everybody kind of blew this one," he said. "A warm front to the west and a lot of moisture to the south gave us more snow than expected." He said forecasters had predicted only about one inch of the white stuff.

Woodard said more snow may fall on Christmas Eve. There is a 60 percent chance of furies Tuesday afternoon and evening, he said.

Manchester police said there were only two minor accidents on the roads this morning. That figure stood in sharp contrast to the aftermath of a snowstorm on Dec. 6, which resulted in 34 accidents in town. Police in Coventry, Andover and Bolton said today there were no reports of accidents on their roads.

Manchester Highway Superintendent Keith Chapman said 18 trucks sanded and plowed town roads through the night. Crews began work at around 11:30 Sunday night with about five trucks, but more were added when the snow became heavy, he said.

"They had predicted about one to two inches," he said. "It was more than we anticipated, but we were ready for it."

Chapman said that crews are getting ready for Tuesday's expected snowfall by plowing as close to the sidewalks as possible. "We're making room for additional snow," he said.

The state Department of Transportation reported there were no major accidents or tie-ups this morning on state roads. DOT spokeswoman Ann Marie Fisher said some 600 trucks were sanding the highways at around 10 p.m. Sunday, but had to do more work than they anticipated.

"We expected approximately one inch," she said. "But the weather conditions did some strange things. Fortunately, we were all out there when it occurred, so it was no problem."

Merchants in Manchester said the snow did not stop Christmas shoppers from doing some last-minute shopping. Several store managers said crowds were normal for the day before Christmas Eve, when doors opened at 9 a.m.

Since schools were closed, parents and students did not have to worry about delays or cancellations.

For the first time this winter, children were sledding on the hill behind the Mary Cheney Library. Among them were Nathan Hale School students Marcy Mahony, 10, and Debbie Burnett, 8, who said they were having fun in the snow.

When asked if they looked forward to a white Christmas, both enthused lastically answered "Yeah."

Soviets press ban on nuclear testing

By Carol J. Williams
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union said post-nuclear test of a U.S. hydrogen bomb test may be a sign that the White House is considering its call for a total ban on nuclear testing, but an American official said the weather was responsible.

Packing the punch of up to 150,000 tons of TNT, 10 times the power of the bomb that destroyed Hiroshima, the weapon to be exploded in Nevada has been linked to research for President Reagan's "Star Wars" program to develop space-based missile defenses.

The underground test, code-named Goldstone, was delayed three times after originally being scheduled for last Thursday. The latest postponement came Saturday and Sunday.

Tass, reporting Sunday on the delay, noted that the Soviet Union on Aug. 6 imposed a unilateral moratorium on nuclear tests that is to run through the end of the year.

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev has offered to prolong the ban if the United States follows suit, and the Soviets recently said they could agree to measures of on-site verification to respond to U.S. concerns that a ban is not verifiable.

"So what does the United States' decision to put off an underground nuclear explosion mean?" Tass asked. "Is it a response to the recent Soviet proposals on verification?"

"If so, then the possibility to get off the ground the solution of the problem of nuclear tests assumes real outlines," Tass said. "Many would like to see in it the sign of hope that the voice of reason starts prevailing among those who are shaping the United States nuclear policy."

But in Washington, a spokesman for the Department of Energy said the explosion had been delayed because of winds blowing toward populated areas of Nevada and California.

Spokesman Chris West said a forecast indicated unfavorable conditions for the test.

An abandoned baby poses a hardship

Editor's note: This is one of a series of vignettes prepared by the Manchester Area Conference of Churches, which is seeking to provide Manchester and Bolton residents with Christmas gifts, food and clothing.

She's quite determined to keep the baby even though there is no blood kinship.

"I can't let her be moved from place to place. She needs to have a permanent home. I wouldn't be right to leave her." So Ella continues the increasingly difficult struggle to adopt a little one she is determined will have a safe place, a loving place. The baby, abandoned by her 16-year-old mother after just a few weeks, is now 11 months old.

Four times, appointments have been made in Probate Court for the mother to sign adoption papers. Four times, Ella's stepdaughter, who Ella cared for after her father left, failed to appear to sign the papers. Transient, moving from place to place, the baby's mother is hard to contact.

In the meantime, the Department of Children and Youth Services is happy to have Ella providing a good home for a baby they had to place in a temporary foster home.

Unfortunately, their regulations rule that since Ella does not have legal custody of the baby nor is she a blood relative, she is not eligible for financial aid. That was fine with Ella until her shop closed its doors. She's a lost her job, lost her apartment and has had to move in with a good friend, complete with her own teenage son and the baby.

It would have been easy to put the baby back in foster care, but she's determined that this little girl will have a better chance at life than her own teenage mother has had. A crib, playpen and warm winter clothing, size 2, for the baby will be a big help.

Ella is one of the more than 300 households which MAACC hopes to help during the Christmas season. Nonperishable foods and gifts for shut-ins and elderly people may be left at the Town Fire Department's Center Street headquarters, the Eighth District fire station at 32 Main St., any office of the Heritage Savings and Loan Association or the Manchester Mall at 811 Main St. Checks can be mailed to MAACC Seasonal Sharing, Box 773, Manchester, 06860.

O'Neill says Moffett forgot his help in '82

HARTFORD (AP) — Gov. William A. O'Neill says he's discouraged by the challenge from Toby Moffett for the 1986 Democratic gubernatorial nomination because he has helped further Moffett's political career.

"We ran three years ago as a team and I did about everything I could to help him get elected as a United States senator. That didn't happen. However, I was elected governor," O'Neill said.

"Almost from the day that I was elected and he was not, this campaign began, and that is discouraging to me."

Moffett has said that the opposite is true, that O'Neill wouldn't campaign alongside of him at factory gates and the like during the 1982 campaign.

O'Neill said he believes Moffett is running "perhaps (because) there's no place else to go."

Moffett has said he's challenging O'Neill because the state and the Democratic Party deserve better. He accuses O'Neill of presiding over a state administration that never anticipates problems, but only reacts to them.

But O'Neill, in an interview with The Associated Press, said this is not the time for a challenge from Moffett.
