U.S. awaits details of Soviets' offer

GENEVA (UPI) — U.S. negotiators are carefully studying the fine print in Moscow's proposal at the resumed arms talks to rid the world of all nuclear weapons by the end of the century.

The latest round of talks began Thursday with the Soviet side presenting the sweeping proposal by General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev.

Trinity College to honor Tutu

HARTFORD (UPI) — An honorary degree from Trinity College and a meeting with corporate leaders were among the items on the agenda for South African Bishop Desmond Tutu when he visits Hartford for the second time in two weeks.

The Anglican Bishop of Johannesburg began his three-week, 12-city tour in Hartford Jan. 5 with a sermon at the Horace Bushnell Congregational Church.

The different groups meet on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays on the three main issues — intercontinental or strategic nuclear weapons, intermediate or medium-range nuclear forces, and arms in space.

He said both sides should discuss ways to "jointly apply" any successful results of their research. The latest round of talks in the fourth since the outset.

WEATHER

Is spring approaching?

Today: Mostly sunny and mild with highs near 50 and winds southwest 10 to 15 mph. Becoming cloudy tonight with a 40 percent chance of rain by morning. Lows 35 to 40. Sunday: A 70 percent chance of rain, with highs in the mid 40s. Today's weather picture was drawn by Heather Docherty, who lives on Pond Lane in Manchester.

National forecast

During today, snow is forecast for portions of the northern Intermountain, upper Mississippi Valley and upper Great Lakes regions. Scattered flurries are forecast for portions of the central Pacific Coast, upper and lower Great Lakes, middle Mississippi Valley, Ohio Valley, middle and south Atlantic Coast regions. Scattered showers are forecast for portions of the northern intermountain and Tennessee Valley regions. Elsewhere, weather will be fair in general.

Today's forecast

Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island: Mostly sunny and mild Saturday. High 45 to 50. Becoming cloudy Saturday night. A chance of rain by morning. Low 35 to 40. Rain likely Sunday. High 45 to 50.

New Hampshire and Maine: Partly sunny Saturday. Highs in the 30s and lows in the 20s. Increasing cloudiness Saturday night. Lows in the 20s and low 30s. Sunday cloudy with rain likely in the afternoon. Highs in the 30s and 40s.

Vermont: Partly sunny and mild Saturday. Highs 35 to 45. Clouding up Saturday night. Lows 25 to 35 again. Showers likely Sunday, possibly mixing with wet snow north. Highs 35 to 40.

Extended outlook

Extended outlook for New England Monday through Wednesday:
Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island: Mild temperatures and a chance of showers Monday. Highs 35 to 45 and lows in the 30s. Fair Tuesday and Wednesday. Turning a little cooler with highs in the 30s and lows in the 20s.

New Hampshire: Chance of snow north and rain or snow south Monday. Clearing Tuesday. Fair Wednesday. Highs in the 20s north and 30s south Monday, cooling to the teens and 20s Wednesday. Lows in the 20s Monday, cooling to 5 to 15 Wednesday.

Maine: Chance of snow north and rain or snow south Monday ending Tuesday. Fair Wednesday. Highs in the 20s north and 30s south Monday, cooling to the teens and 20s Wednesday. Lows in the 20s Monday, cooling to 5 to 15 Wednesday.

Vermont: Chance of snow and rain Monday. A little snow Tuesday, then cool and dry Wednesday. Highs in the 30s Monday and in the 20s and low 30s Tuesday and Wednesday. Lows about 30 Monday, in the 20s Tuesday and from 10 to 20 Wednesday.

Balmy temperatures 20 degrees above normal brought an early taste of spring to the eastern half of the nation Friday while winds gusting up to 75 mph battered the Northwest, knocking out power to thousands of homes.

Temperatures climbed into the 50s and 60s from Nebraska to New England, breaking records in at least two cities. Readings were 20 degrees above normal for January, said Scott Tansley, National Weather Service meteorologist.

"Instead of having a strong, cold wind coming out of the north with arctic air, it's warmer Pacific air blowing across the Rockies," Tansley said.

In Lincoln, Neb., a reading of 63 set a record and a reading of 57 in North Omaha tied the 1880 record. It was an unseasonable 60 degrees in St. Louis and 44 in Rapid City. S. I. won't be able to go skiing," she said.

"This is absolutely beautiful. It's too nice to be working," said Chuck Rector, 26, as he polished a brass rail outside an office building in Philadelphia where it was 42 degrees. "Feels like summer, compared to yesterday."

But Terry Bassett, of South Bend, Ind., was not pleased with the spring-like conditions. "It's melting all the snow. I won't be able to go skiing," she said. "I wear my coats and my sweater and I sweat and melt."

Fierce winds storms lashed the Northwest, leaving more than 32,000 homes without power early Friday and closing roads and schools in the Puget Sound area. There were no reports of serious injuries.

Bad loans keep Heritage Savings & Loan in the red

By John F. Kirch, Herald Reporter

The Rochester-based Heritage Savings and Loan Association has reported losses of more than $3 million for the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30.

The losses resulted primarily from bad loans the company acquired in a 1984 merger, bank officials said Friday.

"This was one of our worst years," said Heritage President William H. Hale.

The losses represent a $5.27-per-share drop in the company's common stock, according to Heritage's annual report, which was released Friday.

Although Heritage can claim, among other increases, a 13 percent rise in its total income for 1985 over its 1984 figures, the association has suffered large losses because of bad loans it acquired from Landbank Equities Investment Corp. of Virginia Beach, Va., when it merged with Fidelity Federal Savings of New Haven over a year ago.

Heritage officials, however, point out that the savings and loan association — which has announced plans for a merger with Suffolk Savings, a Suffolk-based financial services company — has not yet lost any money.

"It's not the end of the world," said Chief Financial Officer Richard Krupke. "But we are concerned we won't be able to cover the possibly bad loans, which originally totaled $26 million and have now been reduced to $11 million, heritage has placed about $3.4 million into a loan-loss reserve fund. The money, officials have said, should cover the bank should the loans go bad.

Heritage also owns approximately $4 million in loans it purchased from Equity Program Investment Corp. of Maryland between 1978 and 1983, according to its financial report.

"During the year ended Sept. 30, 1985," Hale wrote in a letter to the company's stockholders that was included in the report, "certain EPIC limited partnerships entered bankruptcy, and these loans became non-performing."

Hale said in the letter that the association will suffer "little or no loss" once the properties are mortgaged and the loans liquidated.

"We just can't get access to those loans or the repayment of them until we get them out of bankruptcy court," Krupke said.

"You can make a choice as to who you will lend money to," he said. "You're not always going to be right."

Krupke said that Heritage officials used their best judgment in securing the loans. But unexpected things happen, he said.

"This has, unfortunately, happened in a very large way to us," he said.

"You can make a choice as to who you will lend money to. You're not always going to be right."

— Richard Krupke, chief finance officer

Heritage is currently planning to sell its Tolland branch to the Savings Bank of Manchester, but is waiting for its shareholders to approve the deal.

Suffolk Savings signed a non-binding letter of intent in October to purchase Heritage.

Hale said Friday that the deal is still being worked out and that agreement will probably come a little sooner now that Heritage's annual report has been released.

Hale estimated that an agreement would be reached within the next three weeks.

Two other financial institutions based in Manchester, the Savings Bank of Manchester and Manchester State Bank, both reported this week that 1985 was one of their healthiest years ever.

Town, 8th disagree about sewer route

By Alex Girelli, Herald Reporter

Officials of the town and Eighth Utilities District disagree on the route a sewer to serve the area near the proposed Buckland Hills Mall should take.

The district directors have settled on one route for the sewer and the Public Works Director George Kandra favors another one that he says would be less expensive.

District President Walter Joyner plans to discuss the problem with the other district directors when they meet Tuesday evening.

The disagreement came out at a meeting Friday in Kandra's office. Following the discussion, Joyner invited Kandra to the district's meeting Tuesday night, but Kandra said he is scheduled to attend another meeting.

The disagreement is the latest in a series of disputes between the town and district, an independent political entity that provides sewer and fire protection to most of northern Manchester. It came as Democratic leaders reported they were planning to consider charter changes that would either force consolidation of the district and town or guarantee the town a great portion of tax revenues from development within the district, including the mall.

The sewer will run south through the mall site, which is just north of Interstate 84 between Buckland and Slater streets and through adjacent developments to Tolland Turnpike.

From there the district directors favor running the sewer east along North Main Street, where it would be connected to the town's North Manchester Interceptor Sewer. The interceptor carries sewage from the district to the town's sewage treatment plant on Olcott Street.

Long goodbye

Libby joins panel

Judith Libby, a Manchester High School science teacher, has been appointed to the Conservation Commission. Town Manager Robert Weiss announced this week.

Libby, a lifetime Manchester resident, has been an alternate member of the commission since last year.

She has been an MHS teacher for 10 years and teaches biology, zoology, and animal behavior. She replaces Ernest Turek who did not want to be reappointed, Weiss said.

Flowers are topic

Career opportunities in crafts and flowers will be examined next week at the Manchester High School Guidance Department.

Robin Lassler from the Swain School of Design in New Bedford, Mass., will speak Tuesday at 11 a.m. at the high school's Career Center on the school's new crafts program.

On Wednesday at 10:20 a.m., Michael Orowski, owner of the Park Hill Joyce Flower Shop in Manchester, will speak on opportunities in the floral business.

Pillowtex hiring statements disputed

By John F. Kirch, Herald Reporter

Officials of the Pillowtex Corp. lied when they said the company offered 58 of striking employees their jobs back, a union official said this week.

Robert Madore, secretary-treasurer of the United Auto Workers Local 376, said that only about 20 of the strikers were offered their jobs back after the workers made an unconditional offer Dec. 23 to return to work.

Richard E. Kerner, vice president of personnel at Pillowtex, said the company had offered "all but two" of the strikers their jobs back.

"That's a lie," Madore said. "They might have offered 20 of them their jobs back."

Kerner said the striking employees were offered either the same jobs they held before the strike began or similar jobs, and that all workers were offered the same wages they earned while working at the plant.

Local 376 represents about 80 maintenance and production employees at the Pillowtex plant on Regent Street. About 60 of them went on strike Aug. 26 after contract negotiations reached an impasse despite the intervention of a federal mediator.

The state Labor Department ruled earlier this week that the Dallas-based pillow and comforter manufacturer was lacking in bargaining with the workers.

Kerner said the striking employees were offered either the same jobs they held before the strike began or similar jobs, and that all workers were offered the same wages they earned while working at the plant.

Olympic singing?

China's Olympic gymnast Tong Fei, a silver medalist in Los Angeles, is flipping careers and plans to become a pop singer, the official English-language China Daily reported today.

Tong, 24, plans to retire from competition and enroll in college, but first he will record new songs written for him by Hou Dejian, a Taiwanese who defected to the mainland in 1983, the report said.

Power of the porn

Pornography is the vanguard of literature, says author Gay Talese, who recently hailed Hustler publisher Larry Flynt and Screw magazine publisher Al Goldstein as "the kamikaze pilots of the literary world."

Talese, talking about censorship at the Pen International Congress in New York, said the so-called pornographers soften up people's standards, giving "the William Styrons and the John Updikes" more liberties than in years past. Talese also disputed assertions that conservatism is forcing writers to clean up their work.

"I don't see any evidence that we are able to be less trashy than we were 10 years ago," he said.

Actress Colleen Dewhurst, feminist Betty Friedman and author Kurt Vonnegut also expressed concern over artists' rights in remarks Thursday to the National Coalition Against Censorship. Their primary target was the Meese Commission on Pornography.

"At terrible risk of infection, the members of the commission have to wallow in pornography," Vonnegut said. "They are so fearless. We might think of them as sort of sewer astronauts."

Gemayel backers hold off attackers

By Ed Blonche
The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — President Amin Gemayel's supporters used tanks to repulse a two-pronged offensive by Syrian-backed militias on his Christian stronghold Friday while Syrian leaders sought to salvage a shattered peace agreement.

Police said at least 21 people were killed and 56 wounded in overnight counterattacks by Christian units of the Lebanese army and militiamen loyal to the Maronite Catholic president, who has opposed a Syrian-brokered pact to end the decade-old civil war.

An alliance of Syrian-backed militias launched their offensive hours after Gemayel's forces on Wednesday defeated Christian and Shiite Catholic forces in the Damascus accord signed Dec. 28.

By police count, at least 403 people have been killed and nearly 800 wounded since Monday.

Security sources said Gemayel's forces counterattacked with U.S.-made M-48 tanks in the central mountains above the president's hometown of Bikfaya northeast of Beirut and the northern Batroun region around the ancient port of Byblos.

In the eastern sector, commandos of the army's 5th and 8th Brigades recaptured positions stormed by fighters of the Syrian Social Nationalist Party and other leftist militias Wednesday, military sources said.

To the north, militiamen of Shuttle to try again today

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Bad weather blocked another Florida landing for Columbia Friday but NASA gambled on a change for the better and scheduled a third attempt today to try to keep the shuttle's March cut-throating mission on schedule.

The forecast, however, was not promising and mission managers said they would divert the jinxed spaceship to Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., an hour and a half later if the Kennedy Space Center is socked in a third time.

It was nearby light rain that prevented the landing attempt Friday morning and a similar try Thursday. Rain would damage the ship's fragile heat shield tiles.

Never before has a shuttle been waved off twice because of bad weather.

The space agency did not want to have to send the shuttle to the Mojave Desert airbase because doing so would almost guarantee Columbia could not be readied in time to blast off March 6 on the Halley's comet showcase mission.

Yemen fighting forces pullout

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates — Fierce fighting was reported in South Yemen Friday between rebel soldiers and forces loyal to President Ali Nasser Mohammed. Britain used the royal yacht Britannia to evacuate foreigners.

The fighting between rival communist forces began Monday after the attempted assassination of Mohammed as part of an unsuccessful coup led by hardline Politburo members in the Marxist government.

The fighting worsened following Thursday's collapse of Soviet-mediated peace talks in the Soviet Embassy in Aden, the capital of South Yemen. Yemeni sources said.

The British Embassy reported that launches from the Britannia, which can be converted into a fighting vessel, began evacuating foreigners from a beach near Aden in consultation with the Soviet Union and France.

South Africa denies visas

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The white-minority government Friday denied visas to nine U.S. clergymen invited to South Africa by the same church group that hosted an anti-apartheid congressional delegation last week.

The British Embassy reported that launches from the Britannia, which can be converted into a fighting vessel, began evacuating foreigners from a beach near Aden in consultation with the Soviet Union and France.

Police in Pretoria, meanwhile, said a large crowd of blacks attacked and killed a man Thursday near Pearson, an eastern Cape province sheep-farming community. Police said riot patrols used gunfire to disperse rioting in two areas Friday and that two policemen were injured.

More than 1,000 people — most of them black — have died in a 16-month wave of political violence that erupted as a protest against the government's system of racial discrimination, known as apartheid.

The nine U.S. clergymen, members of the National Council of Churches, were invited to Johannesburg by the South African U.S. congressional led by Rep. William Gray, D-Pa., last week.

MIA remains promised

HANOI, Vietnam — A Foreign Ministry official told a U.S. congressional delegation Friday that next month the government hopes to turn over the remains of up to 50 of the nearly 1,800 Americans still missing from the Vietnam War.

Deputy Foreign Minister Hoang Bich Son also repeatedly assured two senators and two congressmen there are "absolutely no" living Americans under Vietnamese control, said Sen. Frank Murkowski.

The lawmakers met Friday for more than three hours with Son on what Murkowski, chairman of the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee, called a humanitarian mission to seek answers to the mystery of American MIAs.

The lawmakers met Friday for more than three hours with Son on what Murkowski, chairman of the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee, called a humanitarian mission to seek answers to the mystery of American MIAs.

The Vietnamese appear committed to resolving the MIA issue in the two-year timetable they proposed earlier this month, when a high-level Reagan administration team visited Hanoi.

Bonner has phone trouble

BOSTON — Yelena Bonner's phone call Friday to Soviet dissident husband Andrei Sakharov was interrupted with noise "like a siren" when she tried to tell him he was being filmed by the KGB, her son-in-law said.

It's a murder to interrupt the conversation," Bonner said to Soviet officials who she contended monitored the 20-minute call, son-in-law Erem Yankelovich said. He said Bonner talked to the monitors, but got no response.

Bonner, who is in the United States for medical treatment and underwent heart surgery Monday, said to the monitors that Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev "ought to be ashamed" of his politics, and asked them to let her say goodbye to her husband.

D.A. will appeal Goetz dismissal

NEW YORK — The district attorney said Friday he would appeal the dismissal of attempted murder and assault charges against Bernhard Goetz, who shot four young men in a subway train.

"We have decided to appeal Judge Crane's decision to the Appellate Division," said the one-line statement issued by Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau's office.

The office said it would issue a fuller statement on the case, in which Goetz said he shot four black youths in December 1984 because he believed they were about to rob him.

The case fired a debate over whether Goetz was a victim fighting back or a vigilante looking for trouble.

Earlier Friday, two black leaders said the dismissal of serious charges could be dangerous for other blacks and called on Morgenthau to send the case to a third grand jury in an attempt to get the charges restored.

Heavyweight title to be unified

ATLANTA — Promoters Don King and Butch Lewis announced plans Friday to stage a series of fights between the three boxing association champions, including Larry Holmes-Michael Spinks rematch, to crown a single world heavyweight champion.

King said the 18-month series of fights, which he called "the super bowl of boxing," would open with a March 22 match between Pinklon Thomas, the World Boxing Council champion, and Trevor Berbick. The Spinks-Holmes rematch will be held sometime in April, King said, but added he did not yet have a specific date or site for the bout. There was also no site for the Thomas-Berwick fight.

Wisconsin state workers have the day off Monday but Gov. Anthony Earl asked them to spend it picking corn. About 20 percent of the state's crop is lying in snow-covered fields.

In Texas, state workers can take the day off instead of snow-covered fields.

Activists in Houston, which is observing the holiday, called for a boycott of banks and stores that don't close Monday.

"Let us voluntarily do our personal business on a day other than this coming Monday," urged state Rep. A. Ed Edgington. "The activities of Dr. King meant too much to this whole world for us not to give reverence to that day."

Reports say Marcos may be dying

By Jim Anderson
United Press International

WASHINGTON — U.S. intelligence reports indicate that Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos, in the midst of an election campaign, is seriously ill with a combination of diseases that are "potentially fatal," sources said Friday.

The reports surfaced Friday after reporters covering Marcos' campaign noticed that he appeared to be weak and unsteady in several appearances and was being held up by aides.

According to the U.S. intelligence reports, Marcos has a cyclical form of lupus, a disease in which the body's auto-immune system begins to attack healthy tissues, including such organs as the kidneys. The sources said Marcos has had "a number" of kidney transplants but the organs have been rejected by his body, apparently because of the disorder in the immunity system.

The loss of kidney function has meant that Marcos must undergo

FERDINAND MARCOS — lupus casualty? In addition, Marcos, 68, is said by the intelligence reports to be suffering from diabetes, in which the body is unable to produce sufficient insulin, a chemical needed for the metabolism of some foods such as sugar.

The Philippine Information Minister issued a denial in Manila Friday to the reports that Marcos is seriously ill or weakened.

"He is in the public view for all to see," Philippine Information Minister Gregorio Cendana said. "How can he stand the rigors of the 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. campaign if he is not healthy?"

Marcos campaigned in two cities north of Manila Thursday but was visibly tired, United Press International correspondents reported.

The intelligence reports, which have been tracking Marcos' health for many years, say the combination of diseases is "potentially fatal" but the reports note that he was extremely sick one year ago, but snapped back to near-normal health last summer. He held a campaign to deny that he was in poor health and said that any health troubles are due to old

Gunshot kills Aquino campaign worker

DAVAO, Philippines (UPI) — A campaign worker for opposition presidential candidate Corason Aquino was shot to death Friday.

The second Aquino worker to be killed in three days, Aquino officials said.

At the same time, the Philippine government denied U.S. intelligence reports from well-informed sources in Washington that President Ferdinand Marcos is seriously ill with a cyclical, "potentially fatal" rare disease called re-election campaign of his life. He faces the widow of slain opposition leader Benigno Aquino in the Feb. 7 election.

Marcos called the election more than a year ahead of schedule amid growing internal dissent and U.S. criticism over his handling of a growing communist insurgency.

Aquino campaign officials said Antonio Nolasco, a barrio campaign captain in the town of Narvacan in Ilocos Sur province, 200 miles north of Manila, was shot

Preschool charges likely to be dropped

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charges will be dropped against five of the seven former teachers charged with molesting young children at the McMartin Pre-School, District Attorney Ira Reiner said today.

The announcement came just a day after parents of children allegedly molested at the school in suburban Manhattan Beach said they feared county prosecutors might not press charges against all seven defendants.

About a dozen parents, threatening to seek help from the state attorney general, gathered outside the now boarded-up preschool Thursday to address rumors that the charges might be dropped.

The defendants were charged with a total of 133 counts of child molestation and conspiracy in the alleged abuse of 14 pupils. The young witnesses have testified to rape, sodomy, satanic rituals and other abuse.

The preliminary hearing in the McMartin case took 18 months and cost $4 million. On Jan. 9, Municipal Court Judge Alvia Bobb ordered all seven defendants to stand trial.

The defendants included school founder Virginia McMartin, 78; her daughter, Peggy McMartin Buckley, 58; her grandson, Raymond Buckley, 27; her granddaughter, Peggy Ann Buckley, 29; and three former teachers, Mary Ann Jackson, 57; Betty Rindor, 65; and Babette Spiller, 36.

"This case is not complete without all seven," Diane Carter, whose children attended the school, said Thursday. "This occurred over a period of many years and we believe it was a conspiracy and a ritualized abuse. To cut some defendants away is to suggest the case is less important."

King ceremonies spur Ku Klux Klan protests

By United Press International

Ceremonies honoring the 75th birthday of Martin Luther King Jr. moved into the weekend of the first federal holiday in his honor Friday and the wizards and dragons of the Ku Klux Klan planned demonstrations to denounce it.

One, however, said he would just stay home and fly his American flag upside down to indicate his distress.

In some areas where the holiday is not being observed, civil rights activists said they would lead demonstrations or boycotts in protest.

Relatively few Americans, most of them federal workers, will have the long weekend. Only 29 states and the District of Columbia recognize the holiday Monday, called for a boycott of banks and stores that don't close Monday.

"Let us voluntarily do our personal business on a day other than this coming Monday," urged state Rep. A. Ed Edgington. "The activities of Dr. King meant too much to this whole world for us not to give reverence to that day."

OPINION

Democrats may be a bit less frivolous by 1988

Richard W. Cosgrove, Publisher
Douglas A. Bevins, Managing Editor
James P. Sacks, City Editor

The Democratic Party may not win the presidency in 1988, but signs are multiplying that it is at least preparing to take the steps necessary to position itself for victory in the years ahead.

Even if the prospects for 1988 are far from rosy, the Democrats will obviously have to pick a candidate and do battle, and their choice will tell us a great deal about how they intend to restructure their appeal in 1988 and beyond.

Of course, some sort of unexpected economic disaster may yet dramatically improve their prospects in 1988 itself. But the recent New York Times CBS poll reporting that even a majority of American blacks approve of the way President Reagan is handling his job, and the announcement that unemployment has now dropped to 6.8 percent, are bone-crunching news for Democratic strategists.

Even the huge federal deficits are not very promising issue material. It is far from certain that voters deeply worried by these deficits would regard the Democratic party as the best hope of reducing them.

THE FIRST INDICATION of the Democrats'

likely new direction was Sen. Ted Kennedy's declaration that he will not seek the presidential nomination in 1988. Kennedy has long been the champion of simon-pure Democratic liberalism, and — although he has well-known personal disadvantages, too — his withdrawal must surely be interpreted, at least in part, as an admission that liberalism has lost much of its appeal.

Someone, however, must inherit the liberal support that previously was Kennedy's. Gary Hart, in announcing that he will not run for re-election to the Senate (and, by implication, will instead seek the 1988 presidential nomination), carefully avoided this poisoned cup. He clearly wants to be known as the candidate of a very different group — indeed, of a different generation: the "young, upwardly mobile professionals," or yuppies.

How about Mario Cuomo, then?

WHAT THEN SHALL BECOME of the liberals — the ideologues and their "disadvantaged" minorities (black, gay, "native American," ultra-feminist, etc.), whom Jesse Jackson in 1984 so aptly described as a "coalition of the damned"? Jackson himself may well run for the presidency as an independent, if the Democratic Party insists on shifting rightward toward the center of American public opinion. But the liberal and leftist components of the 1984 Democratic coalition still exercise formidably clout in the party's councils, and they will undoubtedly seek to slow any swing toward moderation.

At a minimum, they can almost certainly prevent the nomination from going to any genuinely conservative contender. But the very fact that this is the battlefield speaks volumes as to what is happening in the Democratic Party.

Almost every other political figure whose name has featured in speculation over the 1988 Democratic nomination — Rabibiti, Biden, Bradley, Clinton, Gephardt, Jaconca and Robb — is in a position to come before the voters unainted by association with past liberal Democratic policies. The nomination of any of them would constitute a clear signal that the party's leaders are at last ready to distance if from the perverted liberalism that has characterized it for the past half-century and more.

Without making a big public to-do, feminist groups are backing away from another bruising fight with EXA, which failed to win ratification by the necessary number of state legislatures a few years ago. They'll make some pro forma pitches for the constitutional amendment, but will save their strength for more attainable goals: comparable-pay legislation, easing restrictions on abortions for poor women, and an end to sexual discrimination in the insurance and credit industries.

Many of these issues are being pursued not only in Capitol Hill, but in state legislatures and the courts, where slow but steady progress already has been made against stubborn opposition.

There are still openings for the following organizing classes:

Winning wimps have nothing to hide

In keeping with his ham-handed public personality our secretary of state said recently that if they made him take a lie detector test, he'd take it and then tell 'em exactly what they could do with his job. Say what you will about the singularly graceless George Shultz, the man has character. It's not a charming character he's pulling around after himself, but it's formidable and interesting.

Nobody is going to invade George Shultz's privacy, and being a man of character he expects others to know of his honesty, fidelity and loyalty without having gizmos wrapped around his arms and suction cup sensors stuck to his skin.

Of course George Shultz made a success out of himself as a university professor, then got into politics, which was his stepping-stone to the job in business which made him rich. George Shultz has had it all and is grandly enough placed in the world, if anybody is, to tell even a president to go stuff it.

CHARACTER IS inner directed. People of character are their own judges; they act by their own lights. They are, as the social historians say, inner directed, but as a type they have long since ceased to be common. Even the word character has lost currency. A hundred years ago it was used all the time. Character was instilled in children. People were of good or bad character. To say a person had no character was to dismiss him as a contemptible nebbish.

Character has been supplanted by personality, but personality isn't a new word for an old meaning. Personality is other directed. Those who have personalities, rather than characters, find their sense of worth in what other people think or say about them. A man of character repudiates a lie terminal incompetence with which he has administered his scandal-plagued department by an act of self-degradation. The difference between a Shultz and a Weinberger is the difference between character and personality. A person of character lives by set, certain and immovable standards. Any public act to prove loyalty is demeaning.

Not all people of character are of Shultz's generation. There are, thank goodness, some young men and women of character around — but they will go into government service! Would anybody with a spine and erect posture choose a career, where at any time you must humble yourself to have the wires attached to your body while strangers ask you any question they can think of?

For the wimps with winning personalities, the empty insides and the rubber backbones, there is no problem. As they always say when the subject comes up, "I'll take the test. I don't have anything to hide." Indeed they don't.

Commander Zero speaks his piece

WASHINGTON — A self-described "assiduous reader" of our columns has written to tell us more about himself and to correct what he says were errors in a story we wrote about him last July.

He is Eden Pastora, the famous "Commander Zero" of the Nicaraguan revolution and now the fierce independent leader of the anti-Sandinista guerrillas operating along the Costa Rican border. Because Pastora could conceivably succeed someday in his anti-communist mission to drive out his Marxist ex-colleagues in Managua, his letter deserves careful attention.

Pastora erroneously attributed to us "a desire to hurt me" because we reported the doubts of our intelligence sources concerning what we would do if he ever gained power in Managua.

"I am a democrat, a revolutionary and a nationalist," Pastora wrote. "I have fought in armed combat against both external and internal sources of exploitation and to win for my country a future of freedom and justice for all." "I do not want for Nicaragua either the dictatorship of the right or the dictatorship of the left, nor do I want primitive capitalism, exploiters or communist totalitarianism. I want neither the exploitation of man by man nor the exploitation of man by the state."

"I want for my people a free society, with peaceful development, with authentic participation by the people in national decisions, with an effective political pluralism, under the banners of national dignity and nationalism — the true banners of Gen. Sandino, who today is falsified and reviled by the communists of Managua."

IN HIS LETTER, Pastora addressed what he said were some factual errors in our report. His mother, he said, was Nicaraguan, not Costa Rican, and it was she, "with much sacrifice," who sent him to study outside the country, not the Sandinista underground. Also, he studied in Mexico, not in Cuba or the Soviet Union.

As for our report on "a curious incident" involving the young Pastora and $80,000 intended for Cuban President Fidel Castro in 1963, Pastora denied any relationship with Castro before 1978. He also said he never got training from Castro, "since I already had — and I say this with justified and patriotic pride — a magnificent training in the school of guerrilla life as practiced in the Segovian jungles of northern Nicaragua."

"Finally, I wish to beg you to help us spread the truth about the thousands of our guerrillas who are fighting barefoot and hungry in Nicaragua, and if necessary we will die to see our homeland free of all dictatorship, of all repression, and where were only the banners of dignity, liberty and national independence."

DAR presents good citizenship awards

Four area high school seniors have been selected for their good citizenship for the 1986 Daughters of the American Revolution Award. Orford Parish Good Citizen Chairman Ruth Willey announced the presentation will be made March 13 at Center Congregational Church at 7:30 p.m.

Brassell is the daughter of Susan Picard of 51 Elizabeth Drive. The senior is president of Safe Riches. At Manchester High School she is Student Assembly president and a yearbook editor. She has played varsity softball, basketball and soccer. She organized several school events. She works part time at Manchester Manor and delivers newspapers.

In 1984 Mayor Barbara Weinberg appointed Brassell to the Commission on Children and the University of Hartford, Hart School of Music, in West Hartford, and has been a member of the East Catholic High School Stage Band and Orchestra. She is also a school majorette. She earned a school varsity letter as a softball team member.

In the community, she is a Big Sister and represents his program on the Social Action Club executive board. She is a volunteer for Manchester Memorial Hospital Time Out for Parents, and the Manchester YMCA.

Collins plans to attend Russell Sage College in Troy, N.Y. to major in both dance administration and elementary education.

Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Smith. He is secretary of his senior class. He also is a member of the school's Outing Club. He was the school's Outing Club. He was one of 12 state seniors to be selected as a NOTE Achievement Awards winner for his writing. An honor student, he has taken Tae-Kwon-do lessons, and played baseball and volleyball. As an Inling Junior High School student, he took part in the play, "Sweeney Todd."

Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew P. Pinto of Bolton. She is Bolton High School's senior class president and a Student Council representative. She is working on the yearbook and the literary magazine and is a Spanish Club member.

During the last three years, she has been involved with Instructors of the Handicapped with the Manchester Memorial Hospital Junior volunteer and a soccer statianist. She has been a 1985 Larsen Girls' State delegate, Junior class secretary, Junior Prom chairman, 4-H Club member and secretary, and a member of Arabian Horse Club of Connecticut. She has her own horse.

Pinto works part time at the Bolton Veterinary Hospital.

Winter 'blahs' need special care

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — People who suffer emotional anxieties when the days grow shorter might benefit from a combination of drug treatment and exposure to light.

The new experimental therapy borrows from recent clinical studies showing dramatic improvement in depression attributed to "winter blahs" when patients are exposed to panels of bright light for several hours a day.

"We're now finding that the light may augment the response to antidepressant drugs," said Dr. Michael Gilin, a clinical professor at the Neuropsychiatric Institute of the University of California at Los Angeles and a psychiatrist at the Los Angeles Center for Mood Disorders.

Some people, he said, "experience depression according to seasonal patterns. These are people who get depressed when the days get shorter. This is an interesting manifestation in southern California, where even though it's almost always sunny, days get shorter here too."

Gilin said melatonin, a hormone secreted by the pineal gland in the brain, is released when the environment is dark and suppressed when it is light.

He theorizes that melatonin, which is known to induce sleep, may increase in some people from October through February, causing them to feel sleepy, apathetic, withdrawn and given to carbohydrate cravings and depression.

"The fascinating part of all of this is that it's based on how much light hits the retina," Gilin said. "We know for certain that the pineal gland regulates the amount of hormone secretion based on how much light is coming through the eye."

The psychiatrist is now studying a group of patients with defined mood disorders ranging from simple depression to manic depressive illness, which is characterized by dramatic swings from exhilaration to brooding depressions.

"The study employs the use of full spectrum light, like the grow lights for plants," he said. "We

REITs gain favor among investors

Sylvia Porter

As a small, individual investor looking for investments in commercial properties — shopping centers, office buildings, apartment complexes — you have really only two alternatives.

First, buy into limited partnerships. These tend to be structured as tax shelters, with high participation costs — usually $25,000 or more. Even when they're affordable, though, partnerships are extremely difficult for you to sell your shares and get your money out on a major stock exchange and can propose changes in the tax laws in '86 may compound these risks by restricting the tax advantages on many limited partnerships.

Second, buy into real estate investment trusts, or REITs. Established by Congress in 1960, REITs were designed as a way for small investors to enjoy the advantages of owning high-grade real estate formerly available only to institutional investors such as pension funds, banks and insurance companies. REITs work by pooling funds for participation in real estate ownership or financing.

In the mid-1970s, many REITs ran into severe problems, mostly because their managers had invested in uncertain developments and construction loans at a time when the real estate market was weakening.

But today REITs are making a big comeback. The National Association of Real Estate Investment Trusts estimates that at a recent reporting date there were 125 qualified REITs in the United States with assets of more than $5 billion. And the market continues to expand steadily, with many new REIT issues covering famous sites.

Most REITs today offer a high degree of safety, but their returns to you can vary substantially, depending on the type of investment they make.

For instance, although REITs that invest in mortgages may offer a higher current return at the start, those investing directly in equity real estate tend to give you a better return over the long term. All REITs are required by law to return at least 95 percent of their net income annually to the owners.

REITs tend to be both affordable and easily transferred. While they are designed for the patient investor and not the frequent trader, their shares usually trade on a major stock exchange and can be purchased the same way stock in any corporation is bought. You can buy as little as one share.

The characteristics of REITs vary considerably and there are several factors you, an investor, must weigh before buying. J. Steven Manolis, a managing director at Salomon Bros., which last year introduced an institutional-quality REIT that trades on the New York Stock Exchange, says that you, an investor, should watch out for REITs that DO NOT offer:

• Diversity of locations and types of properties.

You, a small investor, should take your lead from the big institutional players who frequently demand certain safeguards before they invest in REITs, says Manolis. "Investment professionals price REITs that clearly identify properties at the start and are required to sell those properties within a fixed period of time," Manolis stresses.

DON'T GO ANYWHERE BEFORE CONTACTING THE EXPERTS... CONNECTICUT TRAVEL SERVICES

TELL US WHERE YOU WANT TO GO AND WE WILL HAVE AN EXPERT CALL YOU BACK AT YOUR CONVENIENCE

How many times have you called a travel agency asking for information on a specific location or destination and you hear at the other end of the phone, "I've never been there." "Maybe I can find some general information and I'll send it to you."

Connecticut Travel Services' employees have traveled and been to practically every location in the world and have traveled on most cruise ships. However, when you call us or another travel agency, you may get an agent who has not been at the destination or on the particular cruise ship you would like to go on. Let us know where you want to go and we will have someone who's been there call you at your convenience.

IF YOU WANT TO GO ON A CRUISE... and are thinking of going on Norwegian Caribbean Lines (N.C.L.), Royal Caribbean Lines, Homes Lines, Holland America Lines, Carnival Cruise Lines, Connecticut Travel Services will have one of their cruise experts call you. All five of these cruise lines have recently presented Connecticut Travel Services with awards for our sales on these cruise lines. (Kal London, President of Connecticut Travel Services, is on the National Advisory Board of NCL.)

IF YOU WANT TO GO TO PORTUGAL, NEW ZEALAND, AUSTRALIA, AUSTRIA, ARUBA, MARGARITA ISLAND, ST. MAARTEN, PARIS, GERMANY, LONDON OR PEBBLE BEACH... Connecticut Travel Services will have someone contact you who has been involved in large group movements to those locations during the last two years.

IF YOU WANT TO GO TO HAWAII, DISNEYWORLD, LAS VEGAS, THE BAHAMAS, NASHVILLE OR ARIZONA... Connecticut Travel Services will have someone call you who is involved with Connecticut Travel Services programs to these destinations. Connecticut Travel Services runs regular programs to these destinations and has people specifically in charge of them.

IF YOU WANT TO GO TO ALASKA OR CHINA... Gayle Trabitz, Vice President of Branch Operations, has been to both locations during the past two years and will probably call you.

IF YOU WANT TO GO TO SCOTLAND... Margaret Grasso, Executive Vice President of Connecticut Travel Services is a Scottish citizen and goes back at least once a year to visit relatives. She knows Scotland.

IF YOU WANT TO GO TO BERMUDA... you will most likely get a call back by Debbie Sauter who travels to Bermuda at least twice a year and has been there approximately twenty times already.

REMEMBER... you get certain extra services with Connecticut Travel Services such as one day free valet parking at Bradley Airport, free passport photos, discount books to Disney World and Las Vegas, and travelers checks at no cost.

SHIFTING GEARS - Susan Lucci has been a major star among daytime fans for years, and she's beginning to make her nighttime mark as well. She plays Antonia Giancana in 'Mafia Princess', a role that has little in common with Erica Kane on 'All My Children'.

John McEnroe used to be the king of the heap in men's tennis but he's slipped to No. 2 in the rankings and has already

Is time of reckoning at hand for McEnroe?

By Morfin Loder
United Press International

NEW YORK — Just as it did for Bjorn Borg three years ago, a time of reckoning is at hand for John McEnroe.

His attitude, admittedly, "is very bad," and the level of his game is tumbling into the same gutter. The man who lost only three matches in 1984 now has been beaten three times in the space of a week, a remarkable figure when you consider the 1986 season hasn't even begun.

It is a moment of bewilderment for McEnroe and a time of ironic conflict. As his game continues to sink, he claims to be happier than ever in his life off the court.

More and more, McEnroe speaks of how well he understands Borg's decision to retire at 26, an age when he still was at the peak of his prowess. It is no coincidence that McEnroe happens to be 26.

McEnroe, far more susceptible than Borg ever was to the pressure of being a celebrity, is totally frustrated at the unbecoming attention the media accords his private life. Still, he would like to continue playing for at least three more years, and this poses the problem of how much effort he is willing to expend to retain his position at or near the top.

The latest humiliation for McEnroe came Wednesday night when he first ousted Brad Gilbert, then lost to him, 5-7, 6-4, 6-1, in a first round match of the $500,000 Nabisco Masters. It was the first time since the WCT Finals last spring that McEnroe has beaten a major opponent. He had captured only a single set from him in seven previous meetings.

Indicative of problems, McEnroe was guilty of 45 unforced errors against Gilbert — accounting for 23 percent of the points he lost — and did not even put up much of a struggle as he dropped the final six games of the match.

"What can I tell you, I'm embarrassed," said McEnroe the two-time defending champion in the 1985 Grand Prix circuit. "I'm just not moving as well as I normally do."

not serving as well. I'm not hitting the ball as solid. I'm making too many mistakes and my concentration isn't what it used to be to do well in a tournament like this."

After reigning as the world's No. 1 player for four years, McEnroe has slipped to second place behind Ivan Lendl. And while McEnroe contends there is no shame in being No. 2, on current form it seems likely he will continue to slide further down the list.

He would like to take time off but is committed during the next three weeks to a tournament in Philadelphia and some exhibitions.

"I don't know exactly what I might do," McEnroe said in reference to his playing schedule. "Physically, I'm not feeling too good. I'll base my decision on how I feel."

"If I continue results like this, I would stop playing tournament tennis and get myself in shape because I have no business being on the court playing like this."

There have been published reports that McEnroe plans to marry Tatum O'Neal Feb. 17, one day after his 27th birthday. He refuses to discuss this, but with baby on the way it is obvious his life situation will change dramatically in 1986.

Even if he continues to play a full schedule, McEnroe will have to answer to himself if he still has the desire to challenge for the No. 1 spot.

For now, even he is confused, and his situation becomes more muddled by his persistent feeling of being persecuted by certain elements of the media.

"The desire is there, but right now it isn't," he said Wednesday. "I feel like I had more to give than I am accomplishing. And it's going to be up to me. It's an unfortunate situation that we are in right now. If they try hard enough, they will bring anyone down no matter how good a player they are."

"Unfortunately, that's what I'm dealing with right now. I feel that as a person I'll learn from it, and I hope that other people will learn from it. They didn't learn from Borg. I hope people care enough about the sport and the individual."

McEnroe does care about his sport, and the image he leaves behind is of vast importance to him. Still, this could be the big year of decision for him to determine whether it's worth all the hassle.

Gibson's case included some drama, little humor

BOSTON — In Kirk Gibson's case, there was drama with a little humor thrown in. Just 15 minutes from Wednesday's midnight deadline, he was at a New Zealand restaurant, phone in hand, talking across the Pacific Ocean to agent Doug Baldwin in Seattle, who had Tigers GM Bill Lajoie on the other line in Detroit.

As they continued to weigh the circumstances of the club's continued hard line, the proprietor of the restaurant told Gibson to get off the line, as someone else wanted the phone. He told him again, then got downstairs. And, finally, one minute from the deadline, Baldwin agreed to Lajoie's offer, which amounted to $100,000 and a minor attendance incentive bonus above the offer that both player and agent never thought they'd ever accept.

Two hours after the deadline, thanks to an extension granted Jerry Kapstein and the White Sox, Carlton Fisk came to terms on a two-year, $1,750,000 (plus $25,000 for 120 games) deal that was only $100,000 more than what was offered three months earlier, they spent that in phone calls and the remaining hours before, Donnie Moore whose agent David Pinter had made wild boasts of a Bruce Sutter contract settled on a handsome three-year, $3M deal, and that had come after Cleveland had signed Tony Bennett and Jamie Eastery and the Yankees had inked Bud Wynegar and the Brothers Niekro.

Of the 10 free agents who had to either sign with their old clubs by Wednesday or realign themselves with that team again until May 1, only Juan Beniquez and Kurt Beeson were left. In Beniquez's case, the Angels had chosen not to resign him and the Padres were so shocked at Beeson's refusal to accept arbitration that they didn't even bother letting him go. No one got more than three years of guarantees. No free agent had signed with another team.

Neither Gibson, Fisk or Moore was willing to find out just how solid the owners really are in their resolve to turn the financial system inside-out. So, as Steve Freyer of the Boston-based Sports Advisors said, "This was a big victory for management. A major, in-your-face victory." Tom Reich agreed, calling it a "major victory" but did so with his back trimmed for another battle and another year.

Some agents, especially Reich and Dick Moss, feel that Gibson sold himself (and others) down the river, but that's a strong opinion. Reich, who has negotiated with two strong seasons with clients to negotiate, he's young, he said at the outset: "I don't want to be heard that a management figure had sold that if he didn't play with the Tigers that day. Then the Big Chill would continue until Gibson resigned with Detroit on May 1 for a lot less money than the potential $4, 105,000 he will earn if the Tigers draw 2.3M a year through 1988.

Gibson is good, he is exciting and he is marketable, but the contenders could rightly argue that he would be different in the hands of the Royals, and they're already the world champions, so they can't cavalierly know they'll soon have to deal with megabucks contracts for Bret Saberhagen, Danny Jackson et al. This was the perfect opportunity for Charlie Kerfeld in his current series class.

"Quote of the week: 'His backswing was so hard that some players didn't have that kind of batspeed through the strike zone. Joe Torre was a good competitor and a good first baseman and he was scared to death that when Willie McCovey was at the plate and he was playing first, someone would throw the first time through with the Muncie sign in Kansas City was teaching dictionary skills this week and brought up the word 'dugout,' she asked her students, 'Boys and girls, with what game is dugout associated?' Recently George Brett said into the dugout chasing a foul ball 'What game is that?'"

"Game Five," shouted out 8-year-old Joey Skaggs, who played Pittsburgh with Steve Kemp has finally decided to ditch the number 13.

At the age of 38, without much speed, Darrell Evans had the best home run-to-double play ratio, .405. The worst Hi-CDP? Willie Randolph, 5-9.

In case you think he's a Yankee Stadium wonder, 22 of Don Mattingly's 35 homers and 87 of his RBI were run up on the road.

Whacky Joaquin Reprise: When Joaquin Andujar built his new house in San Pedro, D.R., he had it painted Cardinal Red. After being traded, he is having it repainted blue. The Oakland colors are green and gold.

The Giants are the only team in baseball not to release their schedule, are not selling tickets and on their spring training itinerary list "to home city" for the final getaway day. The Spry, N.C. pitcher Charlie Kerfeld in his current series class.

Sports in Brief

Final soccer registration set

Third and final youth soccer registration will be conducted by the Manchester Rec Department on Monday night, Jan. 27, from 6-8 p.m. at Illing Junior High.

There are four divisions: Pee wee (ages 6-7) co-ed; midget (ages 8-9) boys and girls; junior (ages 10-11) boys and girls; and intermediate (ages 12-14) boys and girls.

Age is determined as of Dec. 31, 1985. There is a $5 registration fee and a $3 Rec card is required at time of registration. There is a maximum number of participants that the Rec Department will be able to accommodate. When the number is reached, registration will be closed. There will be no registration after the Jan. 27 date.

Eller to talk on substance abuse

HARTFORD — Carl Eller, former star defensive lineman with the Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League and now a consultant to the NFL on alcohol and drug abuse, will lecture on his experience with drugs on Thursday night, Jan. 30, at the Lincoln Theater on the University of Hartford campus at 7:30 p.m. The lecture is open to students, faculty, staff and the public. For further information, call 243-4658.

Durham, Cubs agree on terms

CHICAGO — Chicago Cubs first baseman Leon Durham, who lost a bitter arbitration case one year ago, agreed to a three-year contract Friday worth nearly $3 million.

Durham, who had sought $1 million from the Cubs in 1985 but settled for $800,000, will be paid between $900,000 and $950,000 as the Cubs' regular first baseman for the next three years.

The signing of Durham, who was eligible for arbitration again this winter, also means Chicago will not have to worry about losing the left-handed slugger to free agency after the 1986 season.

Blues' Sutter on sideline

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Blues said Friday captain Brian Sutter suffered a hairline fracture of the left shoulder in Thursday's night 4-3 loss at Minnesota.

The team also said center Doug Wickensheiser, who is battling back from a career-threatening knee surgery, has been given full medical clearance and will return to the club's practice Thursday.

The Blues said Sutter, a veteran left winger, will wear a sling and require complete rest for 10 days. He then will begin therapy and his return date is indefinite.

Kohde-Kilsch survives upset bid

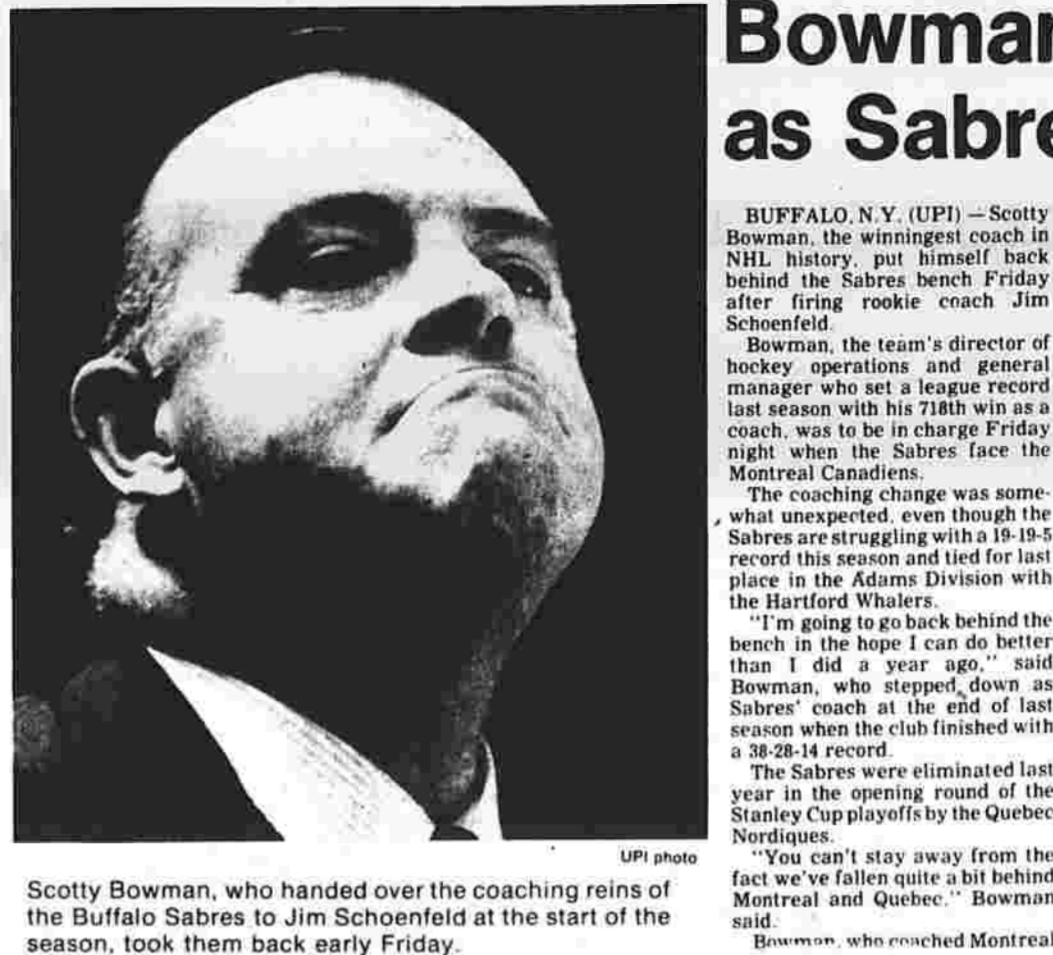

WORCESTER, Mass. — Claudia Kohde-Kilsch survived an upset bid by Australian Wendy Turnbull Friday to reach the quarterfinals of a $250,000 stop on the women's pro tour.

The fourth-seeded West German needed one hour and 45 minutes to post a 6-4, 5-7, 6-2 victory over Turnbull.

'Hot Rod' asks for dismissal

NEW ORLEANS — John "Hot Rod" Williams, the former Tulane basketball star who was a key figure in the school's point-shaving scandal, has asked the Louisiana Supreme Court to dismiss sports bribery charges against him.

Attorney Joel Loeffelholz filed the appeal late Thursday seeking to overturn an appeals court decision reinstating the charges.

Scotty Bowman, who handed over the coaching reins of the Buffalo Sabres to Jim Schoenfeld at the start of the season, took them back early Friday.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Scotty Bowman, the winningest coach in NHL history, put himself back behind the Sabres bench Friday after firing rookie coach Jim Schoenfeld.

Bowman, the team's director of hockey operations and general manager who set a league record last season with his 71st win as a coach, was to be in charge Friday night when the Sabres face the Montreal Canadiens.

The coaching change was somewhat unexpected, even though the Sabres are struggling with a 10-15 record this season and tied for last place in the Adams Division with the Hartford Whalers.

"I'm going to go back behind the bench in the hope I can do better than I did last year ago," said Bowman, who stepped down as Sabres' coach at the end of last season when the club finished with a 38-28-14 record.

The Sabres were eliminated last year in the opening round of the Stanley Cup playoffs by the Quebec Nordiques.

"You can't stay away from the fact we've fallen quite a bit behind Montreal and Quebec," Bowman said.

Bowman, who coached Montreal to five Stanley Cup titles, including four straight from 1976 through 1979, said Schoenfeld was "very disappointed" when told of the coaching change.

Schoenfeld, who was named coach this season with no previous NHL coaching experience, was not available for comment.

Bowman said Schoenfeld, a former Sabres defenseman who also played with Boston and Detroit, could remain with the Sabres organization if he desired.

"His future with the club would best be put on hold until he thinks and we think about what he wants to do," Bowman said. "There's a lot of work in an organization such as ours."

Bowman would not criticize Schoenfeld, but did blame the Sabres' poor performance this season in part on the players.

"I don't think the team is in complete disarray," he said. "I think the players have to look at themselves." I say it's a lack of performance by a lot of players.

Bowman joined the Sabres as coach in 1979, and coached the team on-and-off until after last season. He has a 189-109-57 record as the Sabres coach.

He hasn't had much exposure," said Mayes, who is playing in his third all-star game in less than a month. "That's part of the reason I'm here."

"A lot of guys come here to impress the pro scouts," said 290-pound All-America offensive lineman Jim Dombrowski of Virginia. "It's the only all-star game this week, that's why we're here. There's a lot of pressure. But that's what it's all about."

Quarterbacking has been a game of "musical chairs" for this Senior Bowl. After Bosco and Trudeau had withdrawn, Mike Norseth of Kansas was switched from the South to the North and Mark Yip of Washington State was brought in early this week as his backup.

While neither are that well known nationally, Norseth played for a Big Eight record 2,995 yards

"I don't think the team is in complete disarray," he said. "I think the players have to look at themselves." I say it's a lack of performance by a lot of players.

Bowman joined the Sabres as coach in 1979, and coached the team on-and-off until after last season. He has a 189-109-57 record as the Sabres coach.

He hasn't had much exposure," said Mayes, who is playing in his third all-star game in less than a month. "That's part of the reason I'm here."

"A lot of guys come here to impress the pro scouts," said 290-pound All-America offensive lineman Jim Dombrowski of Virginia. "It's the only all-star game this week, that's why we're here. There's a lot of pressure. But that's what it's all about."

Quarterbacking has been a game of "musical chairs" for this Senior Bowl. After Bosco and Trudeau had withdrawn, Mike Norseth of Kansas was switched from the South to the North and Mark Yip of Washington State was brought in early this week as his backup.

While neither are that well known nationally, Norseth played for a Big Eight record 2,995 yards this past season and Rypien for 2,174.

The loss of Norseth forced South coach Leeman Bennett of the Tampa Bay Bucs also to rejuvinate his quarterback.

Daryl Dickey, a fifth-year senior who didn't become a starter at Tennessee until Tony Robinson was injured at mid-season, starts a quarterback for the South, backed up by Auburn's Pat Washington and LSU's Jeff Wickens, a last-minute addition.

Dickens had anything fancy during Saturday's game. Reeves said he and Bennett had agreed to let both their offenses and defenses slip.

"We'll both start on one-half sets and we'll play man-to-man coverage with strong side zones so the quarterbacks won't be confused."

South favorite in Senior Bowl

By David Morfin

MOBILE, Ala. — The running South led by Heisman Trophy winner Bo Jackson of Auburn, is favored over a weakened North squad in Saturday's Senior Bowl college football all-star game.

The North lost an earlier edge when its original quarterback, Robbie Bosco of Brigham Young and Jack Trudeau of Illinois, had to withdraw because of injuries.

"The South has some tremendous players," said North coach Dan Reeves of the Denver Broncos. "Overall they are probably a bigger football team than we are."

The Senior Bowl completes the flurry of post-season college all-star games. Unlike the others, this one pays its players. Each member of the winning team gets $2,250, losers $2,000. There also are four $1,500 outstanding player awards and the game's MVP gets a car.

In addition to Jackson, who rushed for 1,786 yards and 17 touchdowns this past season despite a nagging thigh injury, South runners include Florida fullback John L. Williams, LSU record holder Dalton Hilliard and Ken Davis, who was suspended by TCU.

Best known of the North runners is Navy's Napoleon McCallum, who holds the NCAA career record of "all-purpose" running with 7,172 yards. Others are Washington State's Rueben Mayes, who set the NCAA single-game record when he rushed for 357 yards against Oregon in 1984; Virginia's Barry Word and Arizona State's Darryl Clark.

"Playing in the Northwest, I haven't had much exposure," said Mayes, who is playing in his third all-star game in less than a month. "That's part of the reason I'm here."

"A lot of guys come here to impress the pro scouts," said 290-pound All-America offensive lineman Jim Dombrowski of Virginia. "It's the only all-star game this week, that's why we're here. There's a lot of pressure. But that's what it's all about."

Crestfield workers disagree on raises

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter

HARTFORD — Two Hartford attorneys who are representing workers of the Crestfield-Fenwood nursing home in Manchester tried to demonstrate to an administrative law judge Friday that pay raises were not given to employees of the home each July as striking workers contend.

The New England Health Care Employees Union, District 1199, which represents the strikers, filed a complaint with the NLRB Aug. 2 charging that the owners had made a "unilateral change in benefits" by denying workers a raise in July.

Attorneys John Romanow and Karen Bledsoe of Uplike, Kelly & Spillane, the firm that represents the home's owners, brought four witnesses to the stand during the second day of National Labor Relations Board hearings on a union complaint that the owners denied workers a traditional summer raise because employees organized.

About 60 nurse's aides house-keeping and maintenance employees went on strike Oct. 21 to protest the owners' refusal to negotiate with District 1199.

Sullivan PAC backs O'Neill

A political action committee has been formed by Democratic State Central Committeeman John Sullivan to work in Manchester for the re-election of Gov. William O'Neill over former U.S. Rep. Toby Moffett and will hold a $100-plate fund-raising dinner Jan. 30.

Workers have said they were never told this and expected the traditional raise in July.

Two days after the strike began, employees still on the job received an hourly pay increase of 50 cents.

Federal attorneys Stephen Fanning and Jonathan Kreisberg, who are representing the NLRB in the case, have tried to establish that the owners set a pattern of two pay raises each year — one in January and one in July.

Shutdown may idle Dynamics workers

GROTON (AP) — Electric Boat is considering a two-week shutdown to cut costs, and blue-collar workers are being asked by their union leaders when they would prefer the closing to occur.

Electric Boat spokesman William B. Pedace said the shutdown has been under consideration for the past year and is not related to General Dynamics' suspension by the Defense Department.

Tutu seeks support, warns of violence

Tutu had planned to fly to Oakland, Calif., for an event Friday night, but decided to stay in Hartford after he was "advised by people with their ear close to the ground that it is not good to attend this particular event."

The money raised will also go to pay the legal fees of political detainees in South Africa, and for his work as a bishop, Tutu said. He said some white Anglicans have threatened to withdraw their financial support from the church.

As nation honors King, some see a dream betrayed

By George Lovno
Herald Reporter

Manchester has 57 patrol officers on its police force, all of them white.

Blacks across the nation now flood polling places and most hiring policies, including Manchester's, call for equal opportunity. Yet the police force remains all white and there are still only a few minority workers among the town's more than 400 full-time employees.
