

Moffett hits O'Neill's 'free staff, rent'

Governor's aide admits use of state time, facilities

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Toby Moffett says Gov. William A. O'Neill should not be allowed to conduct even the slightest amount of campaign-related work out of the governor's office.

"We think it goes to the integrity of the process and we intend to pursue it," said Moffett, a former congressman who is challenging O'Neill for this year's Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

On Wednesday, O'Neill aide Jon Sandberg acknowledged that the governor's staff made copies for the media of the governor's re-election announcement speech and a letter from mayors and first selectmen endorsing O'Neill.

The time and money it took to make and distribute the copies may have been minimal, but the issue was raised last week by Moffett in a letter to the state Elections Enforcement Commission.

At first, Sandberg said that "no printing, free postage and free gasoline."

"If you add that up, a campaign that's anywhere near being reasonably geared up, you're talking about $50,000 to $100,000," Moffett said. "I think it's a classic and unfortunate case of taking power for granted and taking taxpayers for granted."

Marc Caplan, Moffett's campaign chief, had asked the elections commission to look into questions about how much, if any, campaign work could be done by O'Neill's staff during business hours.

In 1982, questions were raised about O'Neill using state mails to distribute campaign-related material. He later reimbursed the state.

Sandberg said that O'Neill staffers who had attended the governor's announcement speech Jan. 10 had taken two hours' personal time off to be there. He also said the governor's announcement speech had been written by O'Neill aide Timothy Bannon at home.

Jeffrey B. Garfield, executive director of the elections commission, said he had received Moffett's request on Tuesday.

"I'm studying the issues raised in the letter and will respond to Mr. Caplan as soon as possible," Garfield said.

He declined comment on the practice of having the governor's staff make copies of campaign-related materials, saying "those are the kinds of issues being raised."

In 1982, questions were raised about O'Neill using state mails to distribute campaign-related material. He later reimbursed the state.

"This is a new twist on public financing of campaigns," said Moffett. "Apparently the O'Neill approach is that just one candidate gets public funds."

Moffett said O'Neill has been a candidate for re-election since creating his campaign committee in October and should have had a separate campaign office operating since then.

Instead, Moffett said, "we're talking about three months of free rent, free phones, free staff, free printing, free postage and free gasoline."

Prosecutors said the two had been drinking and began arguing before the stabbing.

Johnson had served almost five years of a 10-to-20-year sentence for his November 1981 conviction on a reduced charge of first-degree manslaughter; he was scheduled for parole on Feb. 26 but was released early because of his good behavior, authorities said.

In hearings before his murder trial, Johnson claimed he had become possessed by demons after challenging the devil to leave a 12-year-old boy and enter him during an exorcism and that he killed Bono under the devil's spell.

A superior court judge refused to allow Johnson's defense to argue that he was possessed by demons. Nevertheless, the case attracted widespread attention; the story was made into a book and a 1983 NBC television movie, "The Demon Murder Case," starring Andy Griffith, Cloris Leachman and Kevin Bacon.

During his stay at the state prison in Somers, Johnson married, received a high-school degree, earned several other educational certificates and took a number of college courses, according to Hans Fjelman, chief of parole for the state corrections department.

"He was an exemplary inmate," Fjelman said Wednesday. "I can comfortably say a complete psychiatric work-up has been done. His mental condition was carefully examined. They found no negative factors."

More than 100 seek state watchdog post

HARTFORD (UPI) — The field of candidates for the newly created post of state inspector general has grown to about 100 and more applications could be coming in, officials say.

A legislative committee screening applications for the watchdog position has extended until Jan. 31 its deadline for accepting applications and will begin interviewing candidates the following week.

Fifteen candidates have been selected for the initial round of interviews, but none of the contenders has been ruled out, said Rep. William P. Candelori, D-New Britain, co-chairman of the screening committee.

The inspector general's office was created under a law enacted last year to conduct "preemptive" inspections and investigations of programs related to the collection and distribution of state funds and property.

Under the law creating the office, the legislative screening committee will recommend three candidates to the state auditors, who will then choose one whose name will go back to the full Legislature for confirmation.

An initial round of advertising last year in Connecticut newspapers brought in "a little over 50 applications," said David B. Ogle, executive director of the Office of Legislative Management.

Subsequent advertising in out-of-state newspapers and publications targeted to black and Hispanic readers have brought in additional applications, with the total now at about 100, Ogle said Wednesday.

He estimated that about 55 percent of the applicants are from Connecticut. The names of the applicants are being withheld from the public as is common in personnel matters.

Human services leader says outlook isn't bright

By Susan Vaughn
Herold Reporter

Because it refuses to pay $450 in prenatal care costs for some poor women, the state has wound up footing $100,000 hospital bills for their children, the head of the Connecticut Association for Human Services said Thursday.

"Kids born unhealthy cost a lot and they cost a lot further on in life. Long-term institutional care can cost as much as $34,000 a year," he said.

The association is using cost effectiveness and humaneness as its main arguments in lobbying state legislators for expanding the luncheon meeting at Emanuel Lutheran Church.

Children born to women without prenatal care are more likely to begin Feb 5 is the lack of accessibility to proper health care for thousands of children in the state, Melmed said.

Melmed said that statistics show that Connecticut has made no progress in addressing low birth weights in recent years. In 1978, 6.7 percent of the babies born in the state weighed less than 5 pounds, 8 ounces. In 1984, that percentage was still at 6.6 percent, he said, and the rate is "dramatically higher" in areas where there are high concentrations of poor people and minority groups. The percentage of non-white Connecticut women who had access to prenatal care dropped from 72 percent in 1979 to 66 percent in 1983, Melmed said.

"You are seeing a situation where the poor are not getting the type of care they need," he said.

Melmed said his organization's efforts during the past year resulted in a recommendation to the Legislature by Gov. William O'Neill for a $7.7 million human services spending package. But he was not optimistic about the chances for passage of much social service legislation in the upcoming session of the General Assembly. The governor's package includes money for school-based health clinics and preventive health care services for the working poor. Melmed pointed out that many women in the state who are working for minimum wage make only about $7,000 a year. But those women are often making too much money to qualify for Medicaid, the state program that pays for medical care for low-income residents.

In order to qualify for Medicaid, a person can make no more than $4,206 a year, Claudette Beaulieu, a spokeswoman for the state Department of Income Maintenance, said today.

Melmed said his organization and other human services groups will ask the Legislature to raise the income limits so that more poor people will qualify for Medicaid benefits. The social service agencies also would like the Legislature to make a major one-time increase in caps on Aid to Families of Dependent Children to bring the state's level closer to the federal limit.

Other human services issues to be targeted in the Legislature will include the Legislature's Department of Income Maintenance, said today.

'Demon' killer to go home

BROOKFIELD (AP) — After serving five years in a state prison where authorities said he had stabbed his landlord to death — under demonic possession, he claimed — has returned home.

Arne Cheyenne Johnson, 24, whose story was made into a prime-time television movie, married and received a high-school degree in prison, and was released on parole Friday, one month early.

The state's chief of parole said had been an "exemplary inmate" since his Feb. 17, 1981, arrest for stabbing Alan Bono, 40, the owner of a Brookfield kennel, to death a day earlier.

Prosecutors said the two had been drinking and began arguing before the stabbing.

Flights a warning to Libya

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. warplanes began flight operations off Libya today to send a "strong message" to the North African nation that the United States will not tolerate terrorism. U.S. officials said.

U.S. officials confirmed carrier-based aircraft were now operating near Libyan air space but declined to pinpoint their location. The flights over the Mediterranean Sea by fighters, radar and radar-jamming planes from the aircraft carriers Coral Sea and Saratoga will continue through Jan. 31, the officials said Thursday.

The aircraft may probe farther south, to the Gulf of Sidra, in a test of Libyan reaction to the U.S.-demanded right of freedom of navigation there, the officials said. Whether the carriers enter the gulf depends on Libya's reaction, they said.

"They (the planes) may go until they start getting tracked" by Libyan radars, including those accompanying a dozen Soviet-built anti-aircraft missiles being installed at Sur, on the Libyan coast of the Gulf of Sidra, about 550 miles east of Tripoli, one official said.

Libya claims the gulf and its airspace as its territory. The United States does not recognize the claim beyond the international 12-mile limit.

The order for the exercise originated in the National Security Council Tuesday and was dispatched to the Sixth Fleet that day, the officials said.

Uranus has a visitor today

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Voyager 2 dashed at 34,000 mph into the bizarre kingdom of the planet Uranus today, scanning close-up the hazy planet, its five large icy moons and its dark rings of frozen debris for the first time.

In less than half a day, the 1,130-pound spacecraft from Earth was expected to obtain more information about the seventh planet out from the sun than all that has been learned since Uranus was discovered by an amateur astronomer 205 years ago.

"We've been waiting 4½ years for this," chief scientist Edward Stone said Thursday at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory. "It's a crescendo of discovery that we're facing."

If there were an observer aboard Voyager, the Uranian system and its 14 known moons and nine narrow rings would resemble an enormous bull's-eye nearly 750,000 miles across.

Because Voyager and its targets are 1.8 billion miles from Earth, it takes two hours and 45 minutes for the robot to report its findings to antennas in Australia, Spain and California. Much of the data are being recorded and will be sent back over the next few days.

Voyager 2 began its long journey of exploration when it left Cape Canaveral on Aug. 5, 1977. It is the only spacecraft to have visited Uranus.

Weicker: tax hike is likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher taxes are inevitable if federal red ink is to be controlled without cuts in domestic spending so massive that most voters would oppose them, Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., says.

Weicker predicted Thursday that Congress this year will approve a mix of spending cuts and higher taxes to meet deficit reduction targets imposed by last year's Gramm-Rudman act, instead of allowing automatic spending cuts to take place. His remarks echo statements by the GOP leadership.

"Aside from the presidential pretensions on taxes, I think you will find before it is all over, there will be a compromise on this matter and it will include a package of cuts and taxes," he said.

We simply cannot keep taking 100 percent of what the government has to offer at 80 percent of the cost," Hart said in a speech on the Senate floor.

The new Gramm-Rudman act calls for automatic cuts in October if Congress cannot agree on a way to reduce the federal budget deficit, now more than $200 billion, to $144 billion next fiscal year.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, one of the strongest opponents of Social Security cuts, noted Reagan said last year he opposed cutting Social Security — waffled once — but then went back to his original position.

Regan's proposed spending cuts will be the subject of hearings around the country conducted by the House Budget Committee, chairman William Gray, D-Pa., said Thursday.

Democrats say they'll work together

By George Lovng Herald Reporter

Members of a challenge slate elected last week to the Democratic Town Committee and long-time committee members say they will be able to work together on local issues. The two groups also say they do not foresee a sharp debate in Manchester over the race for the party's gubernatorial nomination between Gov. William O'Neill and former U.S. Rep. Toby Moffett. Robin Tracey, one of four members of the slate who won the right to represent Voting District 6 on the town committee, said this week that she does not expect strong opposition from more conservative party members when her group, Democrats for a Better Manchester, pushes for such things as affordable housing, a full-time housing inspector, road improvements and the possible creation of a fair rent commission. Tracey, who is also the executive director of the Manchester Tenants' Housing Coalition, said there is a lot of support for action to improve housing in Manchester. She said her group and others may form a larger coalition to press for better housing. She refused to name the other groups, but said a meeting will be held at the end of February to discuss the plans. "We have a good foundation in Manchester," she said.

Other members lost bids in two other voting districts. Democratic Town Chairman Theodore R. Cummings, who before the caucus had criticized the challenge slate, said longtime party members and the newly elected committee members will be able to present a unified front. "New ideas added to those interests and issues the town committee already has can be beneficial to Democrats and the community and that's how we approach this," he said. "Ideas must be expressed and debated and discussed. For ideas to be workable, it takes much work." Before the caucus, Cummings had charged that Democrats for a Better Manchester were more interested in sending Moffett to the polls than in working for the party locally. Cummings said a number of projects completed in the past or in progress now, such as "starter" housing on Love Lane, the renovation of the Bennett School building into apartments for elderly people and the repair of town roads, were made possible after hard work and cooperation by Democrats on the Board of Directors and the town committee. "Democrats have kept their position as the majority party not because they have the largest number of voters, but because we're interested in the troubles, concerns and problems of the town," he said.

TAMMY GREATION, one of the four challengers who won a seat on the nine-member slate in district six, said she does not expect confrontation with other members of the town committee. "I believe we can work together," she said. "We're not going to go out on a rampage." Greation, a member of United Auto Workers Local 576 on strike at Pillsbury Corp., said repairing sidewalks and streets, providing day care in the downtown area and blocking a rate hike sought by Northeast Utilities were her primary concerns. "Another challenge slate member elected in last week's caucus, Timothy Gaffney, agreed with Greation. "I hope to be able to work with them," he said of more conservative Democrats. "We have some common goals regarding the community." In particular, he said it is important that the two groups cooperate to oppose the NUI rate increase. "If they don't (oppose the hike), they should because they're going to be paying it," he said.

STEPHEN T. PENNY, the Democratic majority leader on the Board of Directors, said that because only four challengers were elected to the committee, it is unlikely they will greatly change the direction of the group. However, he said he expects cooperation between the two sides. "I'm sure they will find a way to accommodate each other," he said. Despite the fierce battle shaping up between O'Neill and Moffett on the state level, the Manchester Democrats say they do not expect sharp exchanges within the town party. "The discussion should pertain to the issues and the facts," Tracey said. When asked if she would respond in kind to harsh criticism of Moffett, she said: "No, I'd rather not play that type of game." "It's really up to the people involved," she said. "It seems like the threat of something happening is coming from the governor." Chairman Cummings, an O'Neill supporter, also said he does not expect sharp debate among local supporters of each candidate. "Everybody is free to exercise their right of choice. The theatrics and noise of the caucus is over," he said. Cummings said most of the rhetoric will be over local issues and any dispute between town committee members "will work itself out. However, he maintained that most Manchester Democrats support O'Neill.

Melmed's group and others have been told by the state they can expect a 40 to 50 percent increase for most workers at state-funded day care centers, but he did not express much hope for other areas. As an example of the low pay received by day-care workers, Melmed said the starting salary of an executive director of a day-care center is $11,878 a year. "There will be cuts, but it's a question of the magnitude of those cuts," he said. He said the state's social services block grants are expected to be cut by 20 percent, the Head Start program by 12 1/2 percent and child health grants by about 12 percent.

Charge surprises Martin parents

By Susan Vaughn Herald Reporter

A member of the PTA Council accused School Superintendent James P. Kennedy Thursday night of misleading the parents of Martin School students in his proposal for a full-time administrator at the school next year. Paul J. Damiano of Bruce Road, a representative of Martin School on the PTA Council's budget study committee, said the parents were left with the impression that the elementary school would get a full-time principal when Kennedy presented his proposed $27.7 million budget for the 1986-87 fiscal year. "It is clear that we were misled," Damiano said Thursday at the school board's second budget review session. But school board members and other parents expressed surprise at Damiano's statement. Kennedy defended his proposal for an administrator who would be at Martin School five days a week, but who would spend about 40 percent of his time in other areas, either as a math coordinator or working in staff development. "I sincerely believe the recommendation I made will serve Martin School and its parents well," he said. The proposal would solve the problem of having the administrator leaving the building for emergencies, he said. The current principal, Douglas Townsend, is now at Martin three days a week and is vice principal at Bennett Junior High for the other two. A committee of parents of Martin School students had urged the board in recent weeks to hire a full-time principal. The chairman of that committee said today that the committee understood Kennedy's proposal was not for a full-time principal.

Computer query answered

Computers are used as learning and tutorial aids for students throughout the town's public schools, as well as by teachers and staff for clerical purposes, the school board was told Thursday night during a review of the $27.7 million budget proposed for the coming fiscal year. Curriculum Director Allan B. Chesterton said the proposed purchase of nine computers at a cost of $15,897 for the town's elementary schools would complete a five-year plan for computer instruction at the elementary level. He said 18 more computers will be needed by the two junior high schools in the next two years. The proposed budget for the fiscal year that begins July 1 includes $8,600 for the purchase of several departments, and three replacement computers and a printer at Illing. During a budget session on Tuesday, school board members asked Chesterton for a complete accounting of the schools system's computers after some of them questioned the need for certain computer purchases. Chesterton said 32 computers are now being used in various departments at Manchester High School. The budget includes a proposal to purchase computers for the business, science and math departments at the Illing Junior High school. Assistant School Superintendent Wilson E. Deakin said that a computer requested for the library at Washington School would be used by the librarian as a clerical tool. He said it would free up her time to work with the students and would save money by eliminating the need for another staff person. There is only one parent volunteer at Washington, Deakin added. In response to another question by board members, Deakin said that would cost the school system about $15,000 to hire a part-time physical education teacher to teach 24 kindergarten classes. Board members Bernice Cobb and Anne Gavin said Tuesday that they would favor hiring a physical education instructor for kindergarten teachers, who now receive the instruction from the regular kindergarten teachers. Sharon Kelley of South Farms Drive said she was not aware of Damiano's statement, even though he told the school board he was speaking on behalf of Martin School parents. Damiano was not a member of the parents' committee and did not attend any of its meetings, Kelley said. Kelley said that although the committee understood Kennedy's proposal was not for a full-time principal, their main goal was to have a person at the school five days a week. "We realized the proposal was 60-40 from the beginning," she said. Kelley said she is not sure if the parents' group would address the board at Monday night's public hearing on the proposed budget. Board member-elect Jo Ann Moriarty, who was also a member of the Martin parents' committee, expressed surprise after the meeting at Damiano's statements.

JFK on Soviet stage

"The Burden of Decision," a Soviet play about John Kennedy and the Cuban missile crisis, is a sympathetic portrayal of the late president. The play, which debuted in Moscow this week, includes a scene with FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover in a clandestine barroom meeting with Jacqueline Kennedy, warning of assassination plots as "Strangers in the Night" plays in the background. Kennedy is presented as a religious man haunted by the burden of office, plagued by a check injury and struggling with a weakness for beautiful women. The play ends after the missile crisis has been resolved and Kennedy walks off stage, saying, "I'm off to the theater, like Lincoln, I hope I don't meet his fate." A loud shot is heard and patrons are left thinking that Kennedy's handling of the crisis led to his assassination at the hands of Hoover and right-wingers. # Town gambling case is continued

Pre-trial proceedings have been continued for a Spruce Street man, his daughter and the owner of a Manchester upholstery company who were arrested in a December raid on what police called one of the biggest gambling operations in state history. The cases of John "The Greek" Dadiakos, 58, Diane Dadiakos, 57, and John B. Holmes, 52, were continued Thursday in Manchester Superior Court until Jan. 31. John Dadiakos of 28 Spruce St. pleaded not guilty on Dec. 16 to 388 counts related to illegal gambling. Police said Dadiakos headed a gambling organization with outlets in towns throughout the state that brought in at least $40 million a year. Diane Dadiakos of Hebron was charged with 12 counts of illegal gambling and Holmes, the owner of the Art Upholstery Co. at 199 Forest St., was charged with one count of illegal gambling. According to the pre-trial court docket, the three plan to represent themselves during pre-trial proceedings, a court clerk said. The three were arrested in simultaneous raids at the upholstery company and a Birch Street apartment Dec. 9 after a two-year investigation involving state police. Raids were also made that day on Diane Dadiakos' home in Hebron and locations in Farmington and Hartford.

Bozzuto makes it official

WATERBURY — Pledging to restore greatness to Connecticut, former Sen. Richard C. Bozzuto has officially launched his campaign for the Republican gubernatorial nomination he sought unsuccessfully four years ago.

Bozzuto, who has been wooing Republicans for support for months, Thursday officially rounded out the field of four contenders for the gubernatorial nomination with an evening announcement before more than 500 supporters in Waterbury.

He said he returned to the city where he was born to formally begin the campaign because it was there, as a child of Italian immigrants, that he saw many of his dreams come true.

"Connecticut is at a crossroads and I intend with you, the people of this great state, to bring about a rebirth of the greatness Connecticut once knew and to restore to our halls of leadership a degree of integrity we seem to have lost," Bozzuto said.

Bozzuto also indicated that this year's campaign would be a crossroads for himself. If he fails to win the nomination, he said it will be the end of his political career.

"I am not interested in any other office. This is the last hurrah. You guys bury me this time, that's the end," he told reporters after his speech.

Bozzuto was the last of the four announced Republican candidates for governor to officially declare his candidacy, although he has been listed by state party Chairman Thomas J. D'Amore Jr. as the frontrunner in the contest.

A former Senate leader, the 55-year-old insurance salesman from Watertown unsuccessfully sought the GOP nomination for governor in 1982 and in 1980 made an unsuccessful bid for the party's U.S. Senate nomination.

In announcing his candidacy this year, Bozzuto made no direct references to his three opponents for the GOP nomination and although attacking Democratic Gov. William A. O'Neill did not mention the incumbent by name.

Bozzuto alluded to the arrests of two former state commissioners on criminal charges and dismissals of two other high-ranking employees for failing to put in a full day's work.

'Save our Coventry' vows to continue fighting sewers

By George Lovno
Herald Reporter

COVENTRY — A citizens' group seeking to stop construction of a $5 million sewer project said Thursday it will have little trouble replacing the lawyer who represented it in two court actions but quit earlier this week.

Frank Hastings, a spokesman for Save Our Coventry, said he was informed by letter on Wednesday that Hartford attorney Edward Hare will no longer represent the group. Hare said in his letter that he was not getting paid enough to continue to work for the group, Hastings said.

"Any attorney wants to get paid," Hastings said. "It's a matter of getting the money. I think we will."

He said that although Hare has never sent a bill to Save Our Coventry, the group has paid him about $1,000 it collected through contributions and fund-raising events. The group did not ask Hare for special rates for his services, although "the dollars haven't been coming in as quickly," as Hare wanted, Hastings said.

Save Our Coventry has plans to hold additional fund-raisers to collect more money for its efforts, Hastings said. He said he is confident the funds can be raised and another attorney hired.

The group is trying to stop a sewer system being built in the Coventry Lake area as the result of a 1983 court decision that ended a lawsuit brought against the town by the state Department of Environmental Protection. The DEP had charged the town was violating a 1971 pollution abatement order it issued by not building the sewer system. The order sought to stop sewage from seeping into Coventry Lake from waterfront homes.

Save Our Coventry has charged that the 1983 decision is unconstitutional because it overturns three referendums held between 1971 and 1983 in which voters rejected the sewer project. It also maintains there are other alternatives to building sewers to alleviate the septic problems around the lake.

Save Our Coventry filed a suit this summer against the town and the DEP seeking to overturn the court order. In December, the DEP was dismissed as a co-defendant by Tolland County Superior Court Judge Arthur L. Spada. The town's motion for dismissal was rejected, although it has filed a second request.

The two sides were in court on Tuesday to debate the motion, but action was postponed after Hare withdrew from the case.

Town Attorney Abbot Schwebel said he will give Save Our Coventry a few weeks to hire another lawyer. If the group cannot find an attorney by then, he said he will ask that the suit be withdrawn.

The group has also appealed the dismissal of the DEP as a co-defendant. Hastings said he is waiting to hear from Hare on the status of the motion.

Hearing coming on Elm deal

By George Lovno
Herald Reporter

COVENTRY — The administrator overseeing the estate that owns the Elm Water Co. has asked the West Hartford Probate Court to approve a settlement that would allow the town to collect some of the more than $50,000 in back taxes it is owed by the estate.

Attorney David Hadden, who was appointed by the court to administer the estate of George Koppelman, filed papers Wednesday with the probate court seeking a hearing, a court clerk said Thursday. The hearing will probably be held within three weeks, the clerk said.

Hadden will ask the judge to grant a judgment against the estate that will allow the town to reduce the amount of taxes owed by the estate, Town Attorney Abbot Schwebel said.

Schwebel said Hadden will also ask for authority to sell the utility, which serves 197 customers in the Coventry Hills and Pilgrim Hills sections.

Under state regulations, a municipality cannot reduce a tax lien against a utility if the company is solvent and operating. But a judgment would allow the town to ask for less than what it is owed.

A dispute between the town, the estate and the court-appointed receiver who now operates the Elm Water Co. over how to pay the back taxes has held up a resolution of the matter.

Hadden's action was suggested by Schwebel in December. Schwebel said he convinced Hadden last week to make the dual application and will also ask the probate judge to expedite proceedings.

John Wittenzeller, Elm Water's court-appointed receiver, has said he is interested in purchasing the utility and the L & M Water Co., which serves part of Manchester and is also owned by the Koppelman estate. Wittenzeller owns the Aqua Pump Co. of Stafford.

Under a plan worked out by Wittenzeller and Schwebel, Wittenzeller would agree to pay 10 percent of the unpaid taxes after the probate judge approved Hadden's request. The Town Council would then agree to accept less than the full lien and Wittenzeller would purchase the utility from the Koppelman estate.

"The Super Bowl is uniting some people," Hawkins said. "We're not dismissing what the human dimension of TV can do."

Benton Miller, manager of media relations for the Christian Broadcasting Network, which produces the 700 Club, said Robertson decided to speak at the course, in part, because he is a Yale Law School graduate. Robertson was not available for comment.

Miller said the 700 Club is No. 1 in the top 10 of religious programs.

Health clinics planned

The Community Health Care Services Inc. of Columbia has scheduled a number of health clinics for Coventry and Andover residents. Eligible residents can receive blood pressure checks, tuberculosis tests, throat cultures and general health guidance at the Coventry Town Office Building on Wednesday from 2 to 3 p.m. The agency will also hold office hours Tuesday at its facility in Columbia on Route 6 from 8:30 to 10 a.m.

On Feb. 6, a "Well Child Clinic" will be held at the Andover Congregational Church from 8:45 to 11 a.m. Children can receive immunizations and routine physicals by appointment.

Council wants state funding

COVENTRY — In a letter endorsed Monday by the Town Council, council member Phillip C. Bouchard has called on the state to consider providing financial assistance to towns to pay for the increased duties of fire marshals required by new state regulations.

"While I applaud the state for thinking of the public's safety, I can't help but be concerned that the cost of the state-mandated regulations pose an unfair burden to the local municipalities, especially ones like Coventry with limited tax bases and virtually no industry," Bouchard said in a letter to state Sen. James D. Giulietti dated Sunday.

Bouchard said the fire marshal's job in Coventry has grown from a simple, voluntary one to one that will probably cost more than $12,000 this year.

GOP tax plan worth ignoring

Republican leaders in the Connecticut Senate succeeded in capturing the spotlight this week when they announced plans for a massive tax cut in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

"It's immoral to have budget surpluses year after year and not reduce taxes," Senate President Pro Tem Philip Robertson, one of the sponsors of the proposal, said Wednesday at the Capitol. The surpluses, Robertson added, prove that the Legislature is "overtaxing people."

But when questions arose about where the $100 million in announced cuts would be made, the answer was forthcoming from Robertson or any other Republican.

In fact, the Senate president's colleague in the House, Speaker R. E. Van Norstrand, went out of his way to distance himself from the proposal, saying the $100 million figure had apparently been selected because it was "dramatic." "If they want to fly with that, that's their business," Van Norstrand said of the Senate leaders.

Given budget conditions this year, the speaker is right to disown the plan. So was Democratic Gov. William A. O'Neill, who dismissed the proposal Thursday as "irresponsible."

The prospect of a tax cut is politically attractive to some legislators and can be forgiven for recalling, especially in an election year. But Wednesday's call was badly timed, that it can only be seen as downright disturbing.

Indeed, rather than representing the interests of their constituents, Senate Republicans appear prepared to sell them down the river for the sake of ensuring their own re-election in November.

At the very moment Robertson and other Republicans were playing up their sympathy for the state's overtaxed residents, Congressional leaders in Washington were in the process of leading for the first round of cuts that will be required under the Gramm-Rudman bill passed last session. As O'Neill pointed out when he denounced the GOP's shadow of a tax-reduction proposal, Connecticut's towns and cities will feel the estimated $11.7 billion in Gramm-Rudman cuts deeply — especially considering the complete elimination of federal revenue sharing this year.

Budget officials in Manchester and other towns have warned in recent weeks that the federal deficit-reduction plans will either force local and state taxes up or place essential services in jeopardy. The truth of that claim is all the more apparent because the cutting at the top must be accompanied by substantial pay hikes for educators and increased funding for a variety of state programs.

Surely, with towns already crying for a share of the state surplus, the time is not right for a politically motivated call such as the one trumpeted Wednesday.

Once the federal changes settle, the size of the state surplus will almost certainly dwindle at a frightening pace, increasing the potential for new taxes. That's not all bad, of course, since the federal deficit imperils the nation's economic health and should be reduced partly at the expense of states that are now running surpluses.

But Gov. O'Neill was right to strongly criticize the GOP plan. Although the current situation is certainly far from ideal, it would be ridiculous for the state to reduce taxes only to turn around and raise them again.

I feel that what he did was appropriate under the circumstances and want him to know that I called town fire headquarters and asked if a certificate was available for me to present to Josh. To my delight, it was suggested by Fireman Ruffini that a town fireman could deliver the certificate and meet my son.

On Monday, Capt. Jack Hughes and Fire Ranger Jim gave Josh a certificate and made him a Junior Fire Marshal.

Dear Chief Rivosca: Recently my 6-year-old son, Josh, upon hearing a smoke detector go off in our house, ran to a neighbor's house to report the alarm. As it turned out, the smoke alarm sounded when smoke came into the house while I was lighting our fireplace.

The important issue was my son's quick reaction to the situation. However, once the reason for the alarm was explained, Josh became embarrassed and questioned his own action.

But when any legislation infringes on the civil rights of the individual it is unconstitutional. Massachusetts, where the shot that was heard around the world was fired, is in the process of having its seat-belt law revoked at the ballot box or through the courts. We in Connecticut are certain that numerous individuals feel likewise.

So in Connecticut, as in Massachusetts, let us show the politicians that in a democracy, the people rule. Enough said.

Tom Tiede

Dear Boss: I suppose you are wondering about the $30 I charged to my expense account for the "rental of a machine gun," so I am supplementing the billing with an explanation. I don't want you to think I just blew it. (Hey, a little bit of levity helps.)

The fact is I spent the money to research a wild and woolly new wrinkle in the nation's long fascination with firearms. Ever since the Pilgrims came ashore with their matchlocks, as you know, Americans have been plinking away, often at each other, with the highly treasured national arsenal.

Today, federal authorities believe the public holds some 200 million guns. That's more than most armies in the world, more than most nations combined, in fact, and when you think it down to where the firing pin meets the shell, it's nearly one gun for every man, woman and child in the union.

MOST OF THE WEAPONS are for sport, of course. There are 17 million licensed hunters in the country, and more people are interested in arms that are made for killing larger game than pheasants: hold on to your desk, boss, there may now be as many as 500,000 machine guns and semi-automatic weapons in private hands.

I stress the qualifier here. There are no reliable statistics on the matter.

The federal says all machine guns, which fire in rapid, automatic bursts, are supposed to be registered, and they have logged 120,000 to date. But thugs do not record their holdings. Nor do people who illegally convert semi-automatics (capable of either single-shot or automatic firing) into Buzz Guns.

Whatever the figures, the fact is clear. The Buzz Guns are in vogue. The weapons have become awesome props in television shoot-outs, Sylvester ("Rambo") Stallone wears them over his movie-house pectorals, and the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol,

Firefighters went beyond duty

The following is a copy of a letter to John C. Rivosca that I want to share with your readers.

Dear Chief Rivosca: Recently my 6-year-old son, Josh, upon hearing a smoke detector go off in our house, ran to a neighbor's house to report the alarm. As it turned out, the smoke alarm sounded when smoke came into the house while I was lighting our fireplace.

The important issue was my son's quick reaction to the situation. However, once the reason for the alarm was explained, Josh became embarrassed and questioned his own action.

But when any legislation infringes on the civil rights of the individual it is unconstitutional. Massachusetts, where the shot that was heard around the world was fired, is in the process of having its seat-belt law revoked at the ballot box or through the courts. We in Connecticut are certain that numerous individuals feel likewise.

So in Connecticut, as in Massachusetts, let us show the politicians that in a democracy, the people rule. Enough said.

Dear Boss: I suppose you are wondering about the $30 I charged to my expense account for the "rental of a machine gun," so I am supplementing the billing with an explanation. I don't want you to think I just blew it. (Hey, a little bit of levity helps.)

The fact is I spent the money to research a wild and woolly new wrinkle in the nation's long fascination with firearms. Ever since the Pilgrims came ashore with their matchlocks, as you know, Americans have been plinking away, often at each other, with the highly treasured national arsenal.

Today, federal authorities believe the public holds some 200 million guns. That's more than most armies in the world, more than most nations combined, in fact, and when you think it down to where the firing pin meets the shell, it's nearly one gun for every man, woman and child in the union.

MOST OF THE WEAPONS are for sport, of course. There are 17 million licensed hunters in the country, and more people are interested in arms that are made for killing larger game than pheasants: hold on to your desk, boss, there may now be as many as 500,000 machine guns and semi-automatic weapons in private hands.

I stress the qualifier here. There are no reliable statistics on the matter.

The federal says all machine guns, which fire in rapid, automatic bursts, are supposed to be registered, and they have logged 120,000 to date. But thugs do not record their holdings. Nor do people who illegally convert semi-automatics (capable of either single-shot or automatic firing) into Buzz Guns.

Whatever the figures, the fact is clear. The Buzz Guns are in vogue. The weapons have become awesome props in television shoot-outs, Sylvester ("Rambo") Stallone wears them over his movie-house pectorals, and the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol,

Firefighters went beyond duty

I congratulate these two men and the department they represent. I believe that they are representative of the all-around concern shown by this town's professional firefighters.

This visit meant a great deal to a young boy who can't wait to proudly tell his friends about the importance of reacting promptly during an emergency.

Make smokers wear ID tags

Just a note in regards to the story "Tenant Injured In Apartment Fire."

The people who go to bed and smoke present a hazard not only to their own well being but to the neighbors around them. They should be required to wear identification on their person at all times, letting landlords know they smoke in bed and fall asleep.

If I was renting to someone and he showed me his "ticket," I would think twice about it.

In every apartment or rooming house hall, a list should be kept identifying, by room number, if not by name, who smokes or does not. It would also be a big help to the firemen answering calls.

There are many who have come to the aid of another in times of emergencies and have lost their lives in doing so. It seems such a waste, but some never learn that smoking in bed can not only be dangerous, but deadly.

Khadafy can't hold a candle to Khomeini

WASHINGTON — Iranian diplomatic facilities in Rome are the principal center for planning the Ayatollah Khomeini's terrorist operations throughout Western Europe.

Our intelligence sources now believe that the Iranian colony in Rome assisted in the Christmas time gun and grenade attacks at the Rome and Vienna airports. The head of Italy's military intelligence service reported earlier that the airport terrorists had been trained in Iran.

While Libya has been fingered as the main culprit in the airport attacks, and there is close cooperation among Libya, Iran and Syria in terrorist activities, it is the Iranians who have been responsible for more Americans than any other terrorist sponsor.

The grisly "body count" of Americans killed by Iranian-inspired violence is 50 times that of Libyan-backed assassins.

Rome became the headquarters for Iran's Western European terrorist operations in early 1984, following the French government's expulsion of many Khomeini supporters from Paris. Brussels is the secondary center for the violent exportation of Khomeini's Islamic revolution.

The Iranian terrorist nest in Rome is directed by Ayatollah Khomeini's ambassador to the Vatican.

The son of a carpenter, Khomeini-Shahi had been imprisoned by the late shah for subversive activities. After the shah's ouster, Khomeini-Shahi became Khomeini's chauffeur, bodyguard and trusted aide. He was second-in-command of the Iranian revolutionaries who seized the American Embassy in Tehran and held its personnel hostage for 44 days. He was rewarded in 1981 with the ambassadorial appointment to the Vatican.

At least twice, Italian police have monitored Rome meetings arranged by Khomeini-Shahi of top officials in the Iranian and Syrian secret services. Much of the plotting goes on at the Islamic European Cultural Center at 361-63 Via Nomentana, a large complex purchased at the time of Khomeini-Shahi's arrival. He and his deputy also have an apartment at 58 Colla di la Farina, but most of the work is done in the 60-room Islamic Center building.

The Italians use long-range cameras to keep watch on the center, but surveillance is made difficult by hidden exits to two nearby streets and at least one underground passage to the Libyan Embassy next door.

Trunks suspected of containing arms and explosives have been delivered to the center — many from search under diplomatic seal. Hundreds of young, bearded Iranians have come and gone over the past five years, including one of three dozen flown into Rome ostensibly for medical treatment — although the center has no medical facilities.

ONE REASON THE ITALIANS are so concerned about these young Iranians is the secret motives of a high-level conference held in Tehran on May 26, 1984. Ayatollah Mohammed Khatami, Khomeini's minister of Islamic guidance, ordered Iranian officials to produce 1,500 to 2,000 men for suicide missions. They were to be under 30, preferably unmarried and "completely committed to martyrdom," according to the minutes.

CIA Director William Casey's comments to a small group of academics last April are worth considering. He said: "Probably more blood has been shed by Iranian-sponsored terrorists during the last few years than by all other terrorists combined. Tehran uses terrorism as a major element of its ongoing campaign to export the Iranian revolution throughout the Moslem world and to reduce Western influence — especially that of the United States — in the Middle East. Libya's (Col. Moammar) Khadafy is not in the Ayatollah Khomeini's league."

Richard Murphy, assistant secretary of state for the Middle East, is bunkering down in Foggy Bottom, trying to ride out the storm that threatens to sink him professionally. Unwisely and for this veteran career diplomat, uncharacteristically — Murphy has pushed his unpopular views to the point that Secretary of State George Shultz has become noticeably irritated at his open explanations. "The law has no power to negotiate with the Palestine Liberation Organization, and favors the plan of several Arab states for an international conference including the Soviet Union. Shultz is against both ideas."

Every year the federal government falls farther and farther behind the mandated deadlines for the budget. For example, the White House is supposed to submit its budget proposals to Congress by Jan. 15 each year, as things look now, it'll be at least Feb. 5 before Congress gets the administration's figures for the upcoming fiscal year. And there's not much that can be done about it. As one congressional aide explained: "The law has no teeth. What can we do? Drag the president up here for what Congress does because the budget is late?"

NU foes blast rate hike request

HARTFORD (AP) — Foes of Northeast Utilities' proposed $155.5 million rate increase asserted in a public hearing that the company itself should absorb more of the cost of its $3.8 billion Millstone 3 nuclear power plant.

Such a plan would soften the blow to customers of Connecticut Light & Power Co., an NU subsidiary that now wants to collect 8.5 percent more overall from its customers — 12.5 percent in the case of residential users — beginning in May.

The utility's request — with similar ones expected to follow in each of the next two years — is before the Department of Public Utility Control, which opened a series of eight public hearings Thursday night in Hartford. The series continues today in New Britain.

Also on Thursday, Democrats on the General Assembly's Energy Committee said Northeast Utilities should phase in over five years instead of three the costs of Millstone 3. Critics say the plan, due to begin producing electricity in May, is 10 years late and 90 percent over budget.

REP. DAVID LAVINE, D-Durham, and Sen. John Larson, D-East Hartford, said they would introduce a bill for a five-year phase-in during the 1986 legislative session, which convenes next month. A similar bill was killed last year in the Republican-controlled legislature.

An NU spokesman said the measure would cost its customers more money in the long run, not less.

Lavine and Larson said they stood a better chance of getting the bill passed this year because NU's $155 million rate increase request — including $133 million for Millstone 3 — is now pending.

Larson and Lavine also propose splitting the interest carrying costs equally between customers and its stockholders.

NU spokesman Emmanuel S. Forde said the proposal, while possibly softening the impact of higher rates temporarily, would cost NU customers more over the long term because finance charges would be extended.

"It sounds very attractive," Forde said. "Nobody can say you can magically stretch their wallets and save ratepayers' money. There's a bottom line that will have to be absorbed by the people receiving this power."

CONSUMER COUNSEL James F. Meehan, who represents power company customers in rate cases before the DPU, said the phase-in for Millstone 3 should be at least five years. But the bigger question, he said, is whether the plant is needed now or not. "I want to make sure the ratepayers don't pay for power they don't need," Meehan said. "There's no need to put Millstone 3 in the rate base for years."

The DPU is holding separate deliberations on this question of excess generating capacity of the Millstone 3 plant.

Under NU's proposal, the average residential customer using 500 kilowatts of electricity a month would see his bill go up $6.27 a month, or 12.5 percent.

Timothy J. Gaffney, one of about 300 people who attended Thursday night's hearing before the DPU, opposed the rate increase, saying, "If we are to put up the capital and take the risk, then make us stockholders."

Michael K. Wilkinson, of the Connecticut Citizen Action Group, one of several public advocacy groups represented at the hearing, told the three-member DPU board: "Are you going to recognize the injustice of foisting upon the company's customers the cost of the windfall profits the utility wants to reap in reward for building a plant 90 percent over budget and 10 years late? Are you going to continue to allow the customers of a monopoly company to subsidize one of the highest rates of return of any utility in the country?"

Several small business owners said they could not absorb another rate increase.

Milton Gordon, president of Windsor-Stevens Inc., a specialty fiberboard manufacturer, said power costs in New England already are 20 percent to 30 percent more than those charged in other regions. He said the proposed increase would add an additional 20 percent. "If we make mistakes in our operation, we do not ask the state or our neighbors to pay for these," he said. "Perhaps CLAP should require a larger part of their losses."

Also Thursday, Democratic gubernatorial candidate Toby Moffett called on the DPU to impose a moratorium on new power plants — nuclear or otherwise — in Connecticut until the year 2000.

"We must not focus on only one rate case or lurch from one utility case to the next without asking what we want Connecticut's energy policy to be for the next decade and beyond," Moffett said.

He called Millstone 3 "a clear example of how the state has overbuilt and overspent to obtain electric generating capacity that is not needed now or in the foreseeable future."

Lead paint accord reached

HARTFORD (AP) — An undetermined number of Connecticut homes that used lead-based paint manufactured by a major paint firm can arrange to have the toxic substance removed, the state attorney general's office reports.

James Kennedy, a spokesman for Attorney General Joseph Lieberman, said in a statement that the Benjamin Moore Co. of Newark, N.J., will pay for removal and repainting homes where its "Navy Gray Deck Enamel" paint has been used since it was sold in Connecticut beginning in 1978.

Ingestion of lead-based paint chips has been linked to retardation and brain damage, especially in young children. The federal government set standards in 1973 and 1978 to protect the public from harm caused by lead-paint ingestion.

Lieberman's office filed a lawsuit in 1984 against four defendants: Railroad Salvage Inc., Chemray, the New York-based Warehouse Trading and Chemical Co. and Evans Products of Portland, Ore., the parent company of Inside Outlet stores.

Benjamin Moore was not named in the lawsuit. The state has targeted three categories of lead paint known to have been sold in Connecticut.

Bolton LMC faces vote

BOLTON — The Board of Education Thursday night voted to send a new proposal for a library and media center at Bolton High School to referendum on or before April 15.

A subcommittee headed by school board members Michael Parsons and John Muro recommended that the board support the recommendation made by a citizens' advisory group for a 2,800-square-foot addition to the high school.

The board's subcommittee will ask members of the citizens' committee to join in selling the plan to the community. Parsons said today. Bolton voters defeated a proposal in November for a 7,000-square-foot library and media center.

Party leaders mull charter choices

By Alex Girelli Herald Reporter

The five people the Democratic Party picks to serve on a charter revision commission will be "the best and will be people who have minds of their own," Democratic Town Chairman Theodore Cummings said today.

He said the Democrats have not yet decided who they will appoint to the nine-member commission, which will likely be assembled by the Board of Directors when it meets Feb. 11.

Man faces charges in cycle shop incident

A Manchester man was arrested early this morning and charged with trying to break into the Manchester Cycle Shop on West Middle Turnpike, police said today.

Trevor J. Armstrong, 22, of 11 Essex St., was charged with third-degree burglary in connection with the incident, which occurred shortly after midnight, police said.

The existence of the independent utilities district, which provides volunteer fire protection and sewer service to most of northern Manchester, has been a source of irritation to Democratic leaders. They have charged that the town subsidizes district operations.

District residents are charged a separate tax for fire and sewer services that is lower than that charged non-district residents because the district's fire department is made up of volunteers.

Whalers are a far cry from Kotsy days

By Bob Popelli Herald Sports Writer

HARTFORD — Defenseman Chris Kotsopoulos bladed the puck behind his own net and disgustingly cuffed it around the boards as time ran out in another frustrating NHL game at the Hartford Civic Center.

The situation was all too familiar for Kotsopoulos, who has seen his share of disappointments and humiliations in his particular building. Years ago, back in the early 1980s, "Kotsy" was a mainstay blue liner on what was one of the joke teams in the league.

McMahon caught in the middle

NEW ORLEANS — It was as if the controversy Jim McMahon had been looking for finally found him in the anti-hero quarterback of the Chicago Bears.

The current Whalers aren't just characters, they have character. Hartford clubs during the Kotsy era possessed something akin to infinitesimal fortune.

Wayne from Dave — since the elder forward came over from Quebec last Friday in a swap for Greg Malone, Dave, 24, also played solid D throughout his usual mega-minutes, while Wayne, 27, added two assists to run his totals to 1-5-6 in his three Whaler games.

Bothwell, the journeyman wearing Kotsopoulos' old No. 24, helped exemplify the steady defensive game that will make or break the Whale through the next 34 contests.

Even history favors Bears in Super Bowl XX

NEW ORLEANS — Everything, even history, seems to favor the Chicago Bears in their upcoming battle against the New England Patriots.

This will mark the fifth time in Super Bowl history that the participating teams have played each other during the regular season.

Whaler goalie Mike Liut (1) makes save as Toronto's Rick Vaive (22) and Steve Thomas (32) apply pressure. Doug Jarvis (27) tries to lend Liut assistance. Liut had 24 saves in Hartford's 4-1 win over the Maple Leafs.

Turgeon, who fired seven of the Whalers' first nine shots on goal in the opening period, was especially in evidence. "I told Ray, I got the wheels turned, so pass me the puck and I'll keep going," noted Turgeon.

Knight's antics fishy after win

By Dick Brinster
The Associated Press

His Indiana Hoosiers had just beaten bitter Big Ten rival Purdue by a point in overtime, and all Coach Bob Knight would tell was a fish story.

"What an unbelievable (warm) day we got for January. I sat on this lake fishing and I brought how insignificant basketball really is," said Knight, who refused to answer any questions following Indiana's 71-70 victory Thursday night over the 18th-ranked Boilermakers.

"I hate to leave you, but I think I'm going to go plan my fishing trip tomorrow," said Knight, who frequently crosses swords with the media.

And that had to stand as the Indiana story, because all the players — including the hero of the night, Steve Alford — left without saying anything, either.

Alford's presence was felt at both ends of the court, however. He scored 19 of his foul-plagued team's last 17 points, made the only field goal of overtime and stole the ball to deny Purdue a final chance to win.

Alford wound up with 27 points as the 12-4 Hoosiers improved to 4-2 in the Big Ten. The visiting Boilermakers, led by Melvin McCants and Todd Mitchell with 14 points apiece, fell to 5-2 and 1-4.

Elsewhere, it was No. 7 Kansas 81, Missouri 77; No. 10 Nevada-Las Vegas 88, New Mexico State 79;

No. 11 Kentucky 74, Georgia 69; No. 17 Bradley 87, Illinois State 63 in overtime; No. 18, Alabama-Birmingham 81, North Carolina-Charlotte 63, and No. 19 Texas-El Paso 65, Colorado State 57.

Top Ten Kansas 81-77
There was no relaxation among the Kansas Jayhawks, particularly after they blew most of a 15-point lead in the closing minutes of the game at Missouri.

"I was thrilled, thrilled to death to win," said Kansas Coach Larry Brown, who has lofty ambitions. "We desperately need to win if we're going to fight for the top spot."

Forward Ron Kellogg led the Jayhawks with 27 points, the last two coming on free throws that were fouled by Missouri.

"I think we were a little afraid of both ends of the court, however. He scored 19 of his foul-plagued team's last 17 points, made the only field goal of overtime and stole the ball to deny Purdue a final chance to win.

Milner's connection pleads guilty

PITTSBURGH — A former Pittsburgh bartender has pleaded guilty to three counts of selling cocaine to retired Pittsburgh Pirates outfielder John Milner.

Paul Mosco, 30, who faces a maximum sentence of 45 years in prison and a $75,000 fine, entered his plea Thursday before Judge Donald E. Ziegler of U.S. District Court on the day his jury trial was scheduled to begin.

The government agreed to dismiss the remaining eight counts against Mosco in return for his plea. Mosco was permitted to remain free on bond pending sentencing in March.

Chicken pox fells LSU cagers

BATON ROUGE, La. — Louisiana State basketball star John Williams is one of two players on the team who has been hospitalized with chicken pox, school officials announced.

Dr. Jim Osterberger, internist and team physician, said Thursday night that Williams and Bernard Woodside had contracted chicken pox and were hospitalized at Our Lady of the Lake Regional Medical Center.

Immediately after a news conference Thursday, the whole team was taken to Our Lady of the Lake for testing.

Saints want Mora as head coach

NEW ORLEANS — The New Orleans Saints said Thursday night they expect to announce the new coach shortly after the Super Bowl and withheld comment on a report they are on the verge of signing Jim Mora of the U.S. Football League.

A team source told UPI he believed the Saints had narrowed their field of candidates to Mora and Richie Petitbon, the Washington Redskins' assistant head coach-defense.

Fairfield trips up Iona

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. — Tony George scored 22 points Thursday night to lead Fairfield to a 80-65 triumph over Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference rival Iona. Pat Yerinia added 19 points and 10 rebounds and Jeff Grooms had 17 points and 9 rebounds for the Stags. Iona overall and 6-0 in the MAAC. Richie Simmons scored 14 points and Bob Coleman 13 for the Gaels, 7-12 and 3-3.

O's place Ford on waivers

BALTIMORE — Dan Ford, who helped the Baltimore Orioles to the world series championship in 1983, was placed on waivers Thursday for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

Ford, 34, played in 28 games with the Orioles in 1985, batting .187 with one home run and one RBI.

The Orioles are required to pay about $450,000 of his guaranteed contract for 1986.

LSU's Wilson academically ineligible

BATON ROUGE, La. — Nikita Wilson, a starting forward and captain of the Louisiana State basketball team, Thursday was ruled academically ineligible and may not play for the rest of this season.

Coach Dale Brown, whose team is ranked 13th in the nation, criticized instructors who gave failing grades to Wilson and called their rejection of his appeal a "kangaroo court."

Cashion heads Super officials

NEW ORLEANS — The National Football League announced Thursday Red Cashion would referee Super Bowl XX and head an eight-man crew which contains only one with previous NFL title experience.

Cashion, an NFL game official for 14 years, is the chairman of the board of an insurance company. He served as referee for the wild card playoff game between the San Francisco 49ers and New York Giants.

Joining Cashion will be umpire Ron Botchan, head linesman Dale Williams, line judge Bama Glass, back judge Al Jury, side judge Bob Rice and field judge Jack Vaughan. Only Rice worked a Super Bowl before — Super Bowl XVI between San Francisco and Cincinnati.

Nevada-Las Vegas sharpshooters Anthony Jones and Freddie Banks. Jones scored 28 points for the Runnin' Rebels, now 16-2 and 7-1 in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. Banks added 21, including five three-pointers. Three were in succession as UNLV erased a 66-50 deficit.

"He's got the green light to go on one-on-one," UNLV Coach Jerry Tarkanian said of Banks. "He can create a lot of things."

The Aggies, who had won seven straight games, got 25 points from Gilbert Wilburn and 21 from Kenny Travis. New Mexico State is 5-1 in the PCAA and 11-4 overall.

Second Ten Kentucky 74-69
It was easy for Kentucky, which led 8-0 and was in front all the way. But Coach Eddie Sutton was not satisfied. He had the Wildcats practicing shortly after the last of the crowd had filed out of Rupp Arena.

Ed Davender led Kentucky, 15-2 overall and 6-1 in the Southeastern Conference, with 15 points. Willie Anderson topped Georgia, 10-6, and 3-4 in the SEC, with 14 points.

Bradley 67-63 (OT)
Bradley, led by center Mike Williams' career-high 30 points, scored the first five points of overtime and hung on for its 10th straight victory. The Braves are 19-1 overall and 6-1 in the Missouri Valley Conference.

It's a 46-minute game, and that was 20 minutes too long for North Carolina-Charlotte. Alabama-Birmingham, 18-4 overall and 6-1 in the Sunbelt Conference, recovered from a 30-29 deficit late in the first half and ran away to lead by as many as 32 points.

Steve Mitchell scored 19 points and James Ponder added 14 for the Blazers. Mike Milling had 17 points for the visiting 49ers.

UTEP 85-57
Texas-El Paso didn't figure to have to much trouble with 7-11 Colorado State, but the Miners — who trailed by two points early in the second half — had to press.

Led by Juden Smith with 15 points, UTEP hiked its record to 18-3, including 5-2 in the Western Athletic Conference. Dave Feil had 13 points for the Rams.

King and Dickinson share LPGA lead

BOCA RATON, Fla. (UPI) — Betsy King and Judy Dickinson were tied for the lead in the 36-hole first round of the LPGA tournament Thursday to score 4-under-par 68 and share a one-stroke lead going into today's second round of a $200,000 women's golf tournament.

While the two-month-old Stonebridge Golf and Country Club proved tricky to other golfers, neither King nor Dickinson, both among the LPGA's top 10 money winners, complained.

"The greens putted very true, and I felt like if you could read them, they would fall," Dickinson said.

The 5,368-yard course has large, wavy greens and narrow driving areas lined with water traps. But the new spread has none of the wind-breaking condominiums and trees that sat off the fairways at Deer Creek, the Deerfield Beach, Fla., site of last year's tournament.

NBC bringing TV army to show Super Bowl

By Ira Kaufman
United Press International

NEW ORLEANS — The NBC peacock comes to Super Bowl XX with extra cameras and camera angle — imaginable.

More than $1 million worth of electronic equipment and several miles of cable will be utilized in the six-hour telecast surrounding America's most publicized sports event. Nine cameras are needed for just the two-hour pregame show, labeled "Super Sunday: An American Celebration."

Another 22 cameras will bring an estimated audience of 116 million the game between the New England Patriots and the Chicago Bears and the production and technical crew of 135 will help NBC feed 201 stations.

All this from the network with the avowed "less is more" approach.

"Dick Enberg and Merlin Olsen are as disciplined as any team going when it comes to announcing a game," says coordinating producer Ted Nathanson. "They know that the pictures tell a great story and that atmosphere noise is often the best audio. As far as equipment goes, the only reason we have two extra cameras (from Super Bowl XVIII) is because the telestration (an analytical tool that helps explain why a play worked or failed).

"We're not adding the cameras just for the sake of saying that we've got more than the network that did the game previously," says executive producer Michael Weisman.

When the music stops and the kickoff begins (5:15 p.m. EST), Watson will be rooting like mad. Not for the Patriots. Not for the Bears.

"We try to stay with the game," Watson says. "We let the game be the story. Some people want to address personalities, but our style is our style. If we've got a real exciting game, we just let it roll."

And what will make Watson groan Sunday? "A blowout," he says. "When it's 28-0 at halftime, you just say it's a bad weekend and leave it at that."

One minute of the pregame show will be dedicated to the sounds of silence as NBC experiments with a 60-second intermission, featuring shot four birdies. Dickinson said she scored a "great" birdie on the final hole of the round. She managed to land on the green with a slice from a spot four feet behind a tree and sink a 25-foot putt. Daniel, who was paired with Dickinson, called the shot spectacular.

"To make the birdie was pretty great," said Dickinson, who lives in the nearby Jupiter, Fla., area. "I was rolling the ball so well I just thought I could make anything."

King did not pile up any bogeys, and only narrowly missed a fifth birdie when she failed to sink a 3-foot putt on her 17th hole. The Limekiln, Pa., resident said her game plan is simple.

"I just keep working on my game, and if I improve that way then the rest will take care of itself," she said.

Pat Bradley, who earned the No. 2 spot on last year's money list with $387,377, started the day as the tournament favorite but finished with a par-7. Nancy Lopez, who topped last year's money list at $416,472, is not playing in the classic because she is five months pregnant with her second child.

Fredrickson, 23, who qualified for the tour in October, is starting her first LPGA tournament. She was asked about her 3-under par performance.

"I think I dreamed about it," she said. "But I just try taking shot by shot, which I did."

Enberg and Olsen will enter the Superdome armed with data and anecdotes and expecting the worst: four of the last five Super Bowls have been over by the start of the fourth period.

"We'll be prepared if there's a blowout," says Nathanson, who has participated in all 10 of NBC's Super Bowl telecasts. "We have what we call a shopping list and if the game is exciting, we don't get to many things on the shopping list."

NBC has decided to add a third man in the booth and Bob Griese will work the telestrator.

"Initially, my reaction was one of reserve," admits Enberg. "But his contribution with the telestrator can be a real bonus. What we want to do is allow the fan to understand and appreciate what's happening on the field."

Super deals

Reduced prices around Sunday

By Nancy Pappas
Herald Reporter

Where will you be when the Chicago Bears and the New England Patriots face off on Sunday?

Can't afford that charter flight down to New Orleans? Cheer up! Sports commentators who've spent the week in the Mardi Gras city report that only talk is cheap in the French Quarter. The prices for drinks and munchies are sky high.

Not so for fans who stay in Manchester. Many restaurants and taverns in this area are trying to woo your patronage with large television screens, free hors d'oeuvres and reduced-price beers. Some spots which normally remain closed on Sundays will open just for this occasion.

Here's what the Manchester Herald found. Sorry if we've left out your favorite night spot. Call ahead to see if anything special is in the "game plan."

Buffalo Water Tavern — 622 E. Middle Turnpike. Buffet featuring stuffed shells and cold cuts, ribs and sausages, from 2 p.m. Beer prices reduced. Three standard televisions.

Capone's — 336C Broad St., in the Manchester Parkade. Hors d'oeuvres buffet, drink specials. Three 4-foot televisions.

Kegs are going fast

Get set for 'party-party' weekend

Thinking of throwing together a last-minute Super Bowl party at home? If so, you'll be joining thousands of others who plan to celebrate heartily on this, the occasion of the first appearance by the Patriots in a Super Bowl game.

Demand for Super Bowl souvenirs and kegs of beer has been particularly intense this year, local merchants report. Paperama on Broad Street reports that Patriots paper cups and Super Bowl pennants — just 99 cents — are selling well.

"This is going to be a really party-going week," said Norm Mortlock, the owner of Cooper Hill Liquors on Cooper Hill Street.

"People who have never watched a Super Bowl in their lives are watching this weekend, just because it's New England playing."

Let the guests show up in plain everyday clothing. Ron Marconi of Antonio's Pizzeria & Family Restaurant on Main Street has stocked a selection of buttons, hats, T-shirts and sweatshirts. Items range from $1.50 to $30 each.

Marconi is a loyal Patriots fan, and most of his souvenirs either reflect his favoritism toward New England, or simply commemorate Super Bowl XX. But the store does have a limited number of Chicago Bears baseball-style caps. "You've got to be fair," Marconi said.

If you're hoping to serve beer by the keg, call your favorite package store as soon as possible. Demand has been far heavier than usual, said sales clerks at several shops.

A quarter-barrel sized keg will give you about 150 eight-ounce glasses of beer. A keg will cost you from $19 (for Bush Beer) to $29 (for Lowenbrau and Michelob).

The average price is about $24, which covers Budweiser, Miller and Coors beer, the three most popular keg brands in this area. Once you've located a distributor with a few kegs left, the trick is going to be to keep it cold from Saturday afternoon until Sunday.

Meet Lucille Lortel

Years haven't slowed the queen of off-Broadway

By Frederick M. Winship United Press International

NEW YORK — When actress Lucille Lortel married a millionaire aboard the luxury liner "Leviathan" in 1931, her stage career ended in the best tradition of Broadway legend.

Lortel lived happily ever after in the lap of luxury, but she was able to give the old legend a new twist. She plunged back into the theater as a producer and eventually became the undisputed "Queen of Off-Broadway."

Interviewed on her 80th birthday in her Fifth Avenue apartment as if rapidly filled with floral tributes, Lortel looked back on a career unique in the annals of the American stage.

Pioneers of Rock 'n' Roll boogie into Hall of Fame

By Kiley Armstrong The Associated Press NEW YORK — A whole lot of shaking was going on in the usually more sedate art deco ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria as the world of rock music inducted its pioneers into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame.

"Dy-no-mite," responded Chuck Berry, 59, who slid across the stage on his knees to the tune of his "Roll Over Beethoven" before the Rolling Stones' Keith Richards presented him with one of 15 such awards Thursday night.

Berry, Elvis Presley, Jerry Lee Lewis, James Brown, Fats Domino, Ray Charles, Sam Cooke and Buddy Holly were among those honored as a crowd of 1,000 clapped and howled delightedly with the sounds of rock punctuating the black-tie dinner.

"I've lifted every lick he ever played. He's the gentleman that started it all, as far as I'm concerned," Richards said of Berry.

The balconies were festooned with giant photos of the music idols

In death, she found friends

PEQUANNOCK, N.J. (UPI) — In life, Katherine M. Schaff was a virtual unknown. Her funeral almost four years ago drew only a single mourner.

But the exclusive, penny-saving newspaper has a multitude of friends today.

That's because the one-time jewelry polisher's estate distributed $105,000 to 14 area charitable agencies in checks that began arriving on Christmas Eve.

Among the beneficiaries were the town's first aid squad, fire company and youth and mental health centers.

"Had the people in town known she was about to bestow more than $100,000 on them, I'm sure they all would have come to her grave and said tribute to her," said drum Codrill, who attended her 1982 funeral accompanied only by a minister and the driver of the hearse.

Codrill, who was Schaff's friend and neighbor, said the refusee died in a nursing home at the age of 90 after amassing a small fortune with a frugal lifestyle that included wearing 30-year-old handmade clothes and blouses cut from her dead brother's shirt.

Schaff never left New Jersey and took only one vacation — a day trip to Asbury Park — and watched

Volunteer attorneys reduce backlog of divorce cases

By Chris Dahl The Associated Press

HARTFORD — There were 551 divorce cases pending in Superior Court after attorney Elga Wasserman and Michael Budlong mediated the first settlement under Hartford County's ambitious new program to reduce the backlog of contested divorces.

As Thursday wore on that number was reduced further as five teams of attorneys, one male and one female on each, mediated divorces settlements before they got to trial.

Smiles of satisfaction creasing their faces, Budlong and Wasserman leaned back in their chairs morning in a small hearing room at Hartford Superior Court.

"We've had our case, and these people are happy in terms of getting their divorce settled," said Budlong, who has been a family lawyer since 1969. "The couple had more time for their attorneys to explain the issues to them and discuss the case with us than they ever would have in court."

Budlong and Wasserman, who met for the first time last week, said they were satisfied with their first taste of the program. Budlong said the only problem was that he had to "run around a little to find a judge" to ratify the settlement.

The concept of a blitz on congested Family Court dockets has been tried successfully in several other judicial districts in recent years, but never in a family and the scope of Hartford's program, according to Jacob Saxe, the Judicial Department's case flow manager for the Family Court.

Hartford's program is unique because of its size and emphasis on having male-female teams of lawyers.

"What's important is the public perception of fairness," said Wasserman, a six-year family attorney who has been involved in similar mediation efforts in New Haven County.

"There's no question that having a male-female team handle the case, even if it really has no bearing, is beneficial," she said. "There has been a fair amount of criticism about the overwhelming amount of men in the judicial system."

Said Budlong: "We made it very clear at the outset that we are not gender advocates." About 60 private attorneys have volunteered two or three days each to take part in the program, the brainchild of Superior Court Judge Francis X. Hennessy, chief administrative judge of the court's Family Division. There were 280 cases scheduled for mediation on 14 days between Thursday and Feb. 28.

The "special masters," as the attorney's are known, will hear only limited contested divorce cases, those that do not involve child custody, said attorney Sanford Ruger, assistant clerk for Family Division.

MOSCOW - Soviet television, jokingly called the Kremlin's answer to the sleeping pill, has begun to jolt viewers awake with lively new programs like aerobic dance classes, talk shows with top officials and foreign films.

WHAT MOST PLEASURES viewers, however, may be what TV is not showing.
Programs devoted to World War II, from documentaries to love stories on the battlefield, have dropped dramatically, eliciting a sigh of relief from just about everyone.

Critic says cancer clinic posed danger

CHICAGO — A Bahamanian cancer clinic has needlessly injected thousands of patients with hepatitis and AIDS-contaminated blood products, creating an international health hazard, a National Cancer Institute researcher says.

Dr. Gregory Curt says the Bahamanian government should be embarrassed if it allowed the Freeport clinic to remain open and treat its "immunodeficient therapy" on patients, including former Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox.

Cur and his colleagues reporting today in the Bahamanian government ordered the clinic closed in July, we've received information the clinic is still treating patients," Curt said in a telephone interview from Bethesda, Md.

"We've received treatment materials from a patient who said he was there in December. More than 3,000 patients were treated for cancer and acquired immune deficiency syndrome at the Immunology Researching Center between 1977 and 1985. Ideas were treated from May 1983 to June 1985 for prostate cancer.

The therapy, intended to bolster the immune system, consisted of numerous injections — 6,000 in Maddox's case — of four types of blood serum. The serums were derived, in part, from blood drawn from other patients at the clinic, including AIDS patients.

Aching feet need an exam

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has burning and aching on the bottom of his feet and above his knees. The doctor says it's arthritis. Do you have any other ideas?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I think your husband should be evaluated for circulation problems. Although arthritis can affect the feet, the pain is usually in the joints, not on the soles. A good internist can probably separate out the vascular pain from the arthritic discomfort.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Could chewing gum cause my mouth to dry out?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Your dry mouth is probably due to the flavoring in chewing gum. Stop using the gum for a while and see if your mouth improves.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can a woman strengthen her vaginal muscles by doing exercises?

DEAR DR. GOTT: There are exercises that you can be taught by an obstetrician, nurse-midwife, or physical therapist. Check with one of these professionals to determine the most appropriate exercises for you to tone up the pelvic muscles.

DEAR DR. GOTT: The letter in your column from the woman whose husband had undergone a personality change reminded me of a similar problem I read about elsewhere. The man finally went to a neurologist, who discovered a brain abnormality. A drug called Dilantin changed his life, and the abnormality was gone.

DEAR READER: Personality changes can sometimes result from an abnormal discharge of electricity in the brain. Although this disorder is technically a mild form of epilepsy, the patient may not lose consciousness or have seizures. The illness can be difficult to diagnose but, as you point out, neurologists are trained to identify the source of this abnormality. Dilantin is usually an effective treatment and works by inhibiting excess electrical activity in the cerebral cortex.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Your dry mouth is probably due to the flavoring in chewing gum. Stop using the gum for a while and see if your mouth improves.

Grocery bags are 'trashy'

DEAR POLLY: White plastic grocery bags being used by many supermarkets make great trash can liners for small trash cans. I use one in the baby room. It keeps the trash can odor-free. When full, I just tie the handles together and tote it out. I keep all flip-top lids from in the dishwasher and used over and over. A can of cheap hair spray is a good thing to have on hand. You can use it to remove ink and permanent marker stains from clothing before laundering and even use hair spray on waxes and yellow jackets. It sticks their wings together and they fall to the floor. Then you can kill them without the risk of being stung. — CARMEN

DEAR POLLY: I have used lots of cleaners on my glass fiber bathtub. Nothing works very well, so I tried dishwasher detergent. I wet the tub, sprinkled in the detergent, then waited a few minutes. Then I scooped the tub. Worked great! — MRS. E.H.

DEAR MRS. E.H. AND READERS: Automatic dishwasher detergent could be harmful to the finish of some tubs. Use with caution, please. — POLLY

Thoughts

Get on with the entertainment! Everyone is an OK at every place a stage. Experts come from all kinds, (and that's OK with me) even from preachers — and their flocks know it no one else. It is interesting to see an entertainer on a talk show expound their views about religion or act. Their religious convictions are often shallow (not all as it is said, "I was born into it." Roman Catholic upbringing seems to catch it more than most from many of these experts. My Catholic friends need not a Lutherian apologist. But maybe a humble request is in order, "get on with the entertainment!"

"land of the free and the brave." One more invites discernment. "Call upon Me in the day of trouble; I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify Me." (Psalm 90:15)

BUSINESS

Business In Brief

Town firm gets a loan

Manchester Structural Steel Inc., a manufacturer of steel building frames, has received an $80,000 loan from the state that it will use to buy new equipment for its Mitchell Drive plant. The Connecticut Development Authority, the financing arm of the state Department of Economic Development, approved the loan as part of its $516,000 small manufacturers loan program. The program is included under the authority's industrial financing package, which this month will loan about $6.5 million to companies planning to expand. Companies that apply for the loans must show that the planned expansions will create new jobs or ensure that existing ones will be retained, a CDA spokesman said Monday.

Manchester Steel, which employs 12 workers, will add three new jobs with the additional equipment to its 28,000-square-foot building, CDA spokesman Charles Abramo said.

Last year, the CDA lent $371.8 million to state industries, which created or retained about 16,000 jobs, Abramo said.

Swadosh named GM

NEW YORK — Georeson & Company has named senior vice president Robert E. Swadosh general manager in charge of the firm's investor relations and financial public relations services, the company has announced.

Swadosh is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Swadosh of Manchester.

Georeson pioneered the investor relations field and was among the first to arrange analyst meetings as part of an organized investor relations program for clients. In addition to arranging hundreds of meetings a year, Georeson now offers a broad range of stock-market related analytical and advisory services.

Budget Pest moves office

Rich and Gino Vatteroni of Budget Pest Control have announced the move of their office from Bolton to the Andrews Building, 63 E. Center St., Manchester.

"This move is necessitated by the expansion of our pest control business which services this area," according to Rich Vatteroni. "It will enable us to better service our customers, who we thank for making this move possible."

Taco Bell makes donation

Taco Bell has raised $1,500 in Manchester for the United Cerebral Palsy Association Inc. through the recent sale of Huggett novelty dolls. Many of the restaurant franchises also donated money from taco sales to the associations' recent "Weekend with the Stars" telethon.

Cerebral palsy is a condition caused by damage to the brain, occurring before, during or shortly after birth.

Bonner is bank director

EAST HARTFORD — Robert B. Bonner of South Windsor has been named to the Board of Directors of First Federal Savings of East Hartford, according to Robert P. Lynch, chairman of the board and president.

Bonner is a graduate of Colby College in Waterville, Maine, and the U.S. League Savings and Loan School for Executive Development at the University of Georgia. He has a graduate diploma from the Connecticut Chapter, Institute of Financial Education.

Bonner and his wife, Linda, have two children.

Red Cross picks Kempf

Everly Kempf of Coventry has been appointed Director of the Nathan Hale Branch of the American Red Cross in Vernon. The branch serves the towns of Coventry, Ellington, Somers, Stafford Springs, Tolland, Union, Vernon and Willington.

Kempf, a 16-year employee of Red Cross, started at the Dutchess County Chapter in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., eventually serving as a director of Service of Military Families Division.

Upon moving to Connecticut, she joined the Greater Hartford Chapter American Red Cross in Farmington. Her most recent assignment has been as a casework supervisor in the Hartford Branch in the Service to Military Families and Veterans Department.

She and her husband, John, have four children.

Stocks open on upswing

NEW YORK — The stock market moved higher in early trading today, extending the Thursday advance that halted a four-session slide.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.78 to 1,515.02 by 10:30 a.m. on Wall Street. Gainers outnumbered losers by about 7 to 3 on the New York Stock Exchange. The NYSE composite index of all its listed common stocks rose 0.35 to 118.49.

In the latest economic news, the Commerce Department said orders to U.S. factories for durable goods increased 4.2 percent last month, the biggest gain in more than a year.

Several airline stocks were among the volume leaders in the early going. Republic jumped 1/4 to 19 1/2 and was atop the active list. Republic is to be purchased by the parent company of Northwest Airlines for $884 million, the two companies announced Thursday.

Dollar falls, gold surges

LONDON — The dollar opened under pressure on European money markets today, forced down by remarks by the Bank of Japan governor that Tokyo was prepared for a stronger yen. The dollar fell to a seven-year low in Tokyo. Gold jumped by more than $4 in a volatile market.

In Frankfurt, the U.S. unit slipped back to 2,497.5 marks against 2,493. In Zurich it fell back to 2,050 francs from 2,070 and in Paris is eased to 7,472 francs, compared with Thursday's close of 7.51.

In London the pound, buffeted by anxiety over oil prices and the apparent determination of authorities not to approve a rise in base rates, recovered slightly. It opened at $1.2942 against a close of $1.2835.

Shareholder can't split tax bite

Investors' Guide

William A. Doyle

QUESTION: On Dec. 28, I sold 1,000 shares of stock I had owned for several years and realized a very large profit. Rather than report all of that profit on my 1985 income tax return and pay a huge tax come April 15, I would like to report half of it on my 1985 return and the other half on my 1986 return, thereby spreading the tax bite over two years and deferring part of it until April 15, 1987.

Can this be done?

ANSWER: Nope. You have your choice of reporting the entire profit on either your 1985 or 1986 return. You can't split it and report part on each of the two years' returns.

Because of the five-business-day settlement rule, the proceeds from stocks sold at a profit after Dec. 22 did not become available until January. For reasons only CPAs and tax lawyers can fathom, that makes them installment sales, with the profit taxable in 1986.

However, you can "elect out" of using the installment sale method simply by reporting the transaction on your 1985 return and paying whatever tax is due.

Choosing the return on which to report that profit gets a bit hairy.

Because you owned stock for more than six months, the profit is a long-term capital gain — only 40 percent of which is taxable under current tax law. You also know that 40 percent of your other taxable income and pay whatever tax applies.

The top federal income tax bracket now is 50 percent, making the maximum tax bite on long-term capital gains 20 percent for 1985.

That could change for 1986, with capital gains taxes being lowered, if our foot-dragging Congress ever completes the badly needed overhaul of the Internal Revenue Code.

QUESTION: Is it true that all my losses last year on sales of stocks, even those for transactions on December 31, must be reported on my 1985 income tax return?

ANSWER: Yes. If you sold stock on Dec. 31, you report the sale for that trade date on your 1985 return. Under this nation's tax system, the settlement date does not affect a sale at all.

QUESTION: The utility company in which I own 2,000 shares had a rights offering last year, giving stockholders the opportunity to buy additional shares at somewhat less than the going market price. I did not choose to do so. I sold my 2,000 shares and received a check in the amount of $254.20.

How do I report this on my income tax return?

ANSWER: The easy way is to report it as a capital gain on Schedule D of your federal income tax return.

Your "holding period" for the rights dates back to the day you bought the stock.

So, if you owned the stock more than six months before you sold the rights, the $254.20 was a long-term capital gain. Otherwise, it was a short-term capital gain.

However, because nothing is simple in our present tax system, you don't have to handle it that way. You can treat a portion of the cost "basis" of your 2,000 shares of stock as the basis of the rights. That complicated exercise is figured on the market value of the rights on the day the stock went ex-rights compared to the market value of the stock plus rights. Unless you're a whiz at mathematics or turn the chore over to a good accountant, my advice is to use the first method and pay the small capital gains tax.

QUESTION: I exercised rights to purchase more shares in a utility company last year. What are the tax consequences?

ANSWER: Most likely, there is no immediate tax impact. Virtually all rights are issued free from tax. You'll probably find that spelled out in the literature explaining the rights offering.

Your basis for the stock you bought by exercising your rights is the price you paid for those shares. Keep a record of that, as you should for all securities you buy. When and if you sell, the difference between your basis and the proceeds from the sale is either a capital gain or a capital loss, which you will be required to report on your income tax return.

Doyle answers written questions, but he can provide answers only through the column.

GAF bid cuts Carbide earnings

By Peter S. Howes
The Associated Press

DANBURY — Union Carbide Corp. Chairman Warren M. Anderson said his company was "clearing the decks" for a profitable 1986 when it took an additional $24.4 million charge against earnings that pushed 1985 losses to $582 million.

Preliminary earnings figures were released by the company on Thursday; the final report will be issued in February, according to a company spokesman.

Included in the fourth-quarter charges are $31.1 million for the cost of preparing and advertising a stock swap with shareholders to thwart an attempted takeover by the associations' recent "Weekend with the Stars" telethon.

Cerebral palsy is a condition caused by damage to the brain, occurring before, during or shortly after birth.

settlement of legal claims, including those from the 1984 chemical leak in Bhopal, India, and $25 million for resolution of tax controversies.

Before the special charges, Carbide's income in the quarter was $37.5 million, or 56 cents per share. But a hefty charge for the second straight quarter created a net loss of $21 million, or $3.12 per share, according to preliminary figures.

Sales in the fourth quarter were $2.3 billion, down slightly from $2.4 billion in the fourth quarter of 1984 when the company earned $13 million, or 19 cents per share.

Chairman Warren M. Anderson said the decline in sales was due to divestitures and weak pricing in many of the company's business lines.

The only operations showing sales gains in the quarter were industrial gases and consumer products. A Carbide spokesman said sales figures for individual business groups would not be available until February.

Since August, Carbide had sold six business segments for more than $700 million and — to end the GAF fight — intends to sell its prized consumer products division for at least $2 billion. Consumer products such as Glad bags, Eveready batteries, STP oil treatment and Prestone antifreeze contributed 20 percent of the company's 1984 sales.

For all of 1985, Carbide said preliminary figures show a net loss after taxes of $82 million, or $8.35 per share, on sales of $9 billion. The year before, the company had earned $22 million on sales of $9.5 billion. Before the special charges, it had 1985 income of $251 million, or $3.61 per share.

Anderson said the charges "have cleared the decks" for the company's future. Anderson said the company should be profitable in 1986.

Job cutbacks in Syracuse

By United Press International

GTE Corp. says Taunton will be home for a new plant to manufacture and assemble state-of-the-art communication equipment as part of a $4.3 billion contract, the largest of its type ever awarded by the Pentagon.

Between 700 and 1,000 jobs will be created for the Mobile Subscriber Equipment project to provide the Army with secure voice and data transmission anywhere in the world.

GTE, headquartered in Stamford, Conn., won the contract in November, following stiff competition from British manufacturers.

Meanwhile, a sharp drop in semiconductor sales and foreign competition has prompted the company to move its Syracuse, N.Y., semiconductor unit to North Carolina — the second job cutback in two days.

James Dykes, vice president of the Power Electronics Semiconductor Department, Thursday said of the 425 employees who work in the unit, 125 salaried employees will be asked to move to the company's Semiconductor Business Group in Research Triangle Park, N.C., near Raleigh.

Dykes said most of the 325 remaining workers, including 95 salaried employees and 230 other workers, will be absorbed by other GE operations in Syracuse, including Military Electronic Systems Operations.

In Massachusetts, Gov. Michael S. Dukakis told a Statehouse news conference the selection of Taunton, the geographically largest community in southeastern Massachusetts, was a major breakthrough in helping the region share in the state's economic boom.

Latest GTE plum goes to Bay State town

Dukakis suggested failure to place a micro-electronics center in Taunton three years ago may have been a blessing in disguise.

Fairfield, Conn.-based GE blamed increased foreign competition and a sharp drop in sales have pinched the semiconductor unit, which is scattered over several locations. Employment at several GE plants in Syracuse has grown by 2,000 in the past six years.

"It's inefficient to spread out," said Connie Grasso, a GE spokeswoman. "This is a national problem, not a local problem."

Grasso said the pending retirements of nearly 700 GE workers in Syracuse, including 300 hourly workers, 300 professional employees and about 90 to 100 clerks, could assure jobs for most of the unit's employees. GE employs more than 7,000 in Syracuse and central New York.

However, Arthur Smith, president of Local 329, International Union of Electrical Workers, said he was "disappointed" by the action, and stressed the shift would mean 450 fewer jobs in Syracuse.
