WEATHER

Like the proverbial lion

Today: Windy and mild with showers and a chance of afternoon thunderstorms; highs 55 to 60. Tonight: A 60 percent chance of rain with partial clearing after midnight and a low between 35 and 40. Thursday: Clearing and windy with a high around 40 before turning colder. Drawing by Dorothy Thompson, 9, of 71 Garden St., a fourth-grader at Saint James School.

National forecast

During early Thursday, showers and thunderstorms are forecast for parts of the South Atlantic Coast states. Snow is possible in parts of the Central and Northern Plains states, the Great Lakes, the Upper Ohio Valley and parts of the North Atlantic Coast states. Scattered showers and thunderstorms are possible in the Gulf Coast States and the extreme South Atlantic Coast. Elsewhere the weather will be fair.

PEOPLE

Duke entlits

Screen Actors Guild President Patty Duke has married the Army drill sergeant she met while filming a television movie in which she portrayed a housewife who became an Army pilot.

Her marriage to Sgt. 1st Class Michael Pearce was held Saturday night at Love's Chapel in the South Lake Tahoe area of Nevada, said the Rev. Donald Yonajack, who performed the ceremony.

It was the third marriage for the 38-year-old Duke, the winner of the 1963 Academy award for best supporting actress for "The Miracle Worker" and an acting Emmy in 1964 for "The Patty Duke Show." Pearce, 31, of Wallace, Idaho, was a technical adviser during filming of the CBS-TV movie "A Time to Triumph," in which Miss Duke portrayed the housewife-turned-pilot.

Bill's line is hot

Bill Cosby is the U.S. celebrity who is eliciting the most telephone calls for information about his life, his schedule, you name it. According to Roz Starr, who operates a New York City celebrity service, Cosby gets more calls than any celebrity from agents, producers, directors, ad agencies and fellow stars. Starr has compiled a list of the 10 top celebrities about whom information is most sought. After Cosby, the list includes Robert Redford, Meryl Streep, Elizabeth Taylor, Sylvester Stallone, Tom Selleck, Larry Hagman, Al Pacino, Mary Tyler Moore and Barbara Streisand.

Souvenir hunt?

Officials at a New York theater are trying to get to the bottom of the "missing toilet mystery" involving Elizabeth Taylor. It started when Taylor breezed into the Riverwest Theater recently to catch her son, Michael Wilding Jr., on stage in the play "Dead Wrong." Taylor, accompanied by her daughter Maria Bartsch, asked the theater manager if there might possibly be a private ladies' room she could use during intermission. The manager turned the one ladies' room in the auditorium over to the Taylor entourage and the rest of the women in the audience had to trek across the courtyard to use the facilities. After the show ended, theater employees discovered the now-famous Liz Taylor ladies' room was missing something — the toilet seat. "I've heard of souvenir hunting, but this is ridiculous," one cast member told the Daily News.

SARAH, PRINCESS ANDREW — early spring in London

Royal romance

Prince Andrew, second son of Queen Elizabeth II, is engaged to marry Sarah Ferguson, a red-haired commoner with close family ties to the monarchy, Buckingham Palace announced today.

The engagement of Andrew and Ferguson, both 26, was announced in an official statement handed to reporters outside the palace.

Ferguson, 26, the daughter of Prince Charles' polo manager, first appeared in public with the queen's second son, a Royal Navy helicopter pilot, at the Ascot races last June.

Talk of Ferguson becoming a member of the royal family started in earnest when she showed up twice in one week in early February at the side of her close friend, the Princess of Wales, on a visit to the 25-year-old Andrew's ship, and on a Swiss ski trip.

Still living high

Former Air Force test pilot Chuck Yeager topped the list of nine "rags-to-riches" Americans named earlier this week as winner of the 1986 Horatio Alger Award. The awards have been handed out annually since 1967 by the Horatio Alger Association of Distinguished Americans to people who rose above adversity to stand out as role models and heroes. Yeager, the first man to break the sound barrier, was born in Appalachia. The retired brigadier general now lives in Cedar Ridge, Calif.

Baton produces profit

Mstislav Rostropovich admits the more than $600,000 he received to conduct Washington's National Symphony Orchestra last year makes him one of classical music's top-paid performers.

"I am not the highest paid conductor, and I am not the highest paid soloist in the world, though I may be one of them," the Soviet-born conductor said in an interview published Monday by The Washington Post.

Dukakis is tops

The nation's governors have voted Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis as the most effective governor in the country in a poll taken by Newsweek magazine. The poll in the magazine's March 24 issue questioned 43 governors throughout the country and listed Dukakis as receiving 35 percent of the votes in a rating for effectiveness. New York Gov. Mario Cuomo received 14 percent of the vote for effectiveness, but topped the list as the nation's best bet as the 1988 Democratic presidential nominee.

No nonsense

A former nun who now serves as Rhode Island's attorney general says it is time for the criminal justice system to send out one wrong, exact pay to pay for it. Attorney General Arlene Violet, who became the first woman attorney general in Rhode Island in January 1985, says she developed her tough approach to crime while living in public housing projects for 15 years. "I got a very early education in crime — who were the victims and who were the offenders," she says in the April issue of "Glamour" magazine. "Justice is like an old flabby boxer in the ring. The punch is still good, but the arm doesn't quite have the crack it used to have — and the timing is off."

Today in history

In 1945, all men in the U.S. between the ages of 45 and 64 about 13 million — were ordered to register with their draft boards for non-military duty. On April 27, 1942, the day the order went into effect, President Roosevelt registered as James D. Hayes, chairman of Washington's local draft board, watched.

A single day of bright light and snow can temporarily impair night vision by up to 50 percent, says a safety council. It can take as long as a week for a person to regain normal night vision after one sunny day in the snow. Safety experts recommend a good pair of sunglasses to prevent serious eye damage.

Nicaragua Canal Our relations with Nicaragua might be far different today had it not been for this stamp. At the turn of the century, Congress planned to build a canal across Nicaragua. But a French engineer named Bounavarrilla lobbied hard to sell Congress the French rights to a canal across Panama. In 1902, after Nicaragua's Momotombo volcano erupted, Bounavarrilla sent U.S. lawmakers this stamp of the smoking volcano. In 1904, Congress voted to build the canal on safer ground.

Board backs bus service

By George Lovins Herald Reporter

BOLTON — The Board of Finance Tuesday approved a funding plan that will allow a senior citizens' shopping bus to operate through the end of the fiscal year. The bus service, which provides transportation for about 10 senior citizens each week during the school year, was discontinued March 1 after funding ran out.

But a group of senior citizens angered by the cancellation turned out at a meeting of the Board of Selectmen earlier this month and the board endorsed the resumption of the service. Several senior citizens also attended the finance board meeting Tuesday evening at Community Hall.

"It's an example of democracy in action," Bolton Administrative Assistant Karen Levine said after the meeting.

BEFORE APPROVING the appropriation, finance board members criticized comments made at the March 4 selectmen's meeting by First Selectman Doug Cheney, who had said there was "almost explosive" opposition to resuming the service when the Board of Finance discussed the issue in February.

"It was not an explosive situation," said finance board member

Charles Holland. All board members supported continuing the service, but there was no formal request at the time to fund the operation of the bus, he said.

Chairman Raymond Urain agreed and said it was unfair to characterize finance board members as "the bad guys."

"We're not against providing transportation," he said. "We know there's a need to provide transportation for senior citizens. No money has been budgeted to continue the service during the next fiscal year, which begins July 1. Senior Citizens Committee Chairman Paul Brown suggested Tuesday that federal revenue sharing funds be used to purchase a van to replace the bus and fund the service for another two years until the van would be available.

HIS SUGGESTION came during a public hearing held by the finance board on how to use $87,976 in unspent revenue sharing money. Brown said the van would cost about $24,000 to purchase and the town would have to pay some $4,000. The remainder would be covered by the state through the Greater Hartford Transit Authority's grant.

Urain opposed the purchase of the van. He said that when it comes time to replace the vehicle, state and there would be additional annual costs for gas, upkeep, insurance and a driver's salary, he said.

Urain instead suggested that other means of transportation be

"It's an example of democracy in action," Bolton Administrative Assistant Karen Levine said after the meeting.

BEFORE APPROVING the appropriation, finance board members criticized comments made at the March 4 selectmen's meeting by First Selectman Doug Cheney, who had said there was "almost explosive" opposition to resuming the service when the Board of Finance discussed the issue in February.

"It was not an explosive situation," said finance board member

Charles Holland. All board members supported continuing the service, but there was no formal request at the time to fund the operation of the bus, he said.

Chairman Raymond Urain agreed and said it was unfair to characterize finance board members as "the bad guys."

"We're not against providing transportation," he said. "We know there's a need to provide transportation for senior citizens. No money has been budgeted to continue the service during the next fiscal year, which begins July 1. Senior Citizens Committee Chairman Paul Brown suggested Tuesday that federal revenue sharing funds be used to purchase a van to replace the bus and fund the service for another two years until the van would be available.

HIS SUGGESTION came during a public hearing held by the finance board on how to use $87,976 in unspent revenue sharing money. Brown said the van would cost about $24,000 to purchase and the town would have to pay some $4,000. The remainder would be covered by the state through the Greater Hartford Transit Authority's grant.

Urain opposed the purchase of the van. He said that when it comes time to replace the vehicle, state and there would be additional annual costs for gas, upkeep, insurance and a driver's salary, he said.

Storage building wins support

By George Lovins Herald Reporter

BOLTON — A salt-storage facility and lighting at Herrick Memorial Park were the most popular items on a list of proposed uses for $87,976 in unallocated federal revenue sharing money.

At a public hearing Tuesday at Community Hall on how to appropriate the funds, Board of Finance Chairman Raymond Urain warned that if road salt contaminated underground water supplies, the cost to the town would be great.

Most insurance companies will not provide coverage against pollution damage, meaning Bolton would have to supply drinking water to affected homeowners. The cost "would be almost unmeasurable if (salt) pollutes someone's well," he said.

First Selectman Douglas Cheney said that the town's pile of salt, used during winter to provide traction on icy roads, is stored on a building. He said the building does not prevent the material from being washed into the ground and contaminating water supplies.

Urain estimates that a storage facility range up to $100,000, of which some $25,000 could be covered by the town through revenue sharing. The remaining amount would come from the state's municipal infrastructure trust fund grant over two years, but the town would have to provide for installing the lights. He also supported funding the salt storage facility, but his main priority was covering a $51,000 short-term loan used to pay part of the cost of the town's new $156,000 fire truck.

Other items on the list include a new town radio system, $58,000 for the purchase of land behind Community Hall in order to expand the building and parking area, $4,000 for a senior citizens van and $5,000 to continue a weekly bus run until the van is purchased. $50,000 to remove asbestos from Bolton Center and Bolton High schools, and $73,000 for the newly installed roof at Bolton Center School.

A final decision will be made by townselectmen at an April 1 town hearing, which will follow a second required public hearing on the matter.

Ethics Commission sets date to consider conflict charge

By John F. Kirch Herald Reporter

The Ethics Commission will hold an administrative meeting April 3 to look into an inquiry made by the secretary of the town firefighters' union about a possible conflict of interest in having Wallace Irish Jr. sit on the town's Charter Revision Commission.

The Ethics Commission, an advisory board that reports to the town Board of Directors and only meets to hear complaints, has asked Irish and David M. Mayer, who made the complaint, to attend the meeting to answer questions, commission Chairman William FitzGerald said today.

Mayer wrote to the commission March 7 and said that Irish's membership on the Charter Revision Commission, which was appointed by the Board of Directors to look at possible changes in the town Charter, "could possibly be in conflict of interest," because he is a member of STEAL, an Eighth Utilities District group that opposes consolidation of the town and independent utilities district, and also the insurance agent for the district.

Some of the changes the Charter Revision Commission will look at could make it easier for the town to consolidate with the district, which provides sewer and fire protection for much of northern Manchester. Mayer said he wrote the letter on his own, with no support from the firefighters' union.

FitzGerald said today that the commission has three options after meeting next month. The commission can dismiss Mayer's inquiry, investigate the matter or it can hold a hearing to see if Irish's membership on the charter commission poses a conflict of interest.

The commission will then pass its recommendations to the Board of Directors, which would make a final decision on whether to take Irish off the charter commission. FitzGerald said the board has always taken the commission's advice.

Irish has denied that his membership is a conflict of interest. He said his insurance agency is the district's insurance agent rather than himself.

The Charter Revision Commission will consider changes to sections 10.10 and 10.11 of the Town Charter, which require a separate favorable vote by district residents before consolidation can occur.

The five Democrats and four Republicans on the commission can also look at other areas of the charter.

Both Irish and Mayer said this morning that they would try to attend the April 3 meeting.

Finance board questions proposed staff increases

BOLTON — The Board of Education's proposed $2,998,209 budget for the next fiscal year there will be a larger-than-normal kindergarten class and that the extra staff is needed because the schools have traditionally tried to maintain lower teacher-pupil ratios in the lower grades.

The budget calls for a half-time position to be added to the kindergarten level and another to the fifth and sixth grades.

The budget also includes the addition of a full-time Spanish language teacher for grades through 8, Rash said. She said Bolton is the only town in the area that has no foreign language program in the lower grades.

In addition, the budget calls for increasing the hours of the art teacher by one-sixth to handle a greater number of classes next school year.

The staff increases at the high school, which account for 1.82 of the four additional teaching positions proposed, include the hiring of a vocational education guidance

Accident leads to charges

By George Lovins Herald Reporter

A Glastonbury man who was arrested last week after leading police on a high-speed chase through town has been arrested again in connection with an accident on Hartford Road Tuesday, police said this morning.

Stephen L. Ouellette, 34, of Glastonbury, was charged with driving while intoxicated, failing to use a seat belt, operating a vehicle while his license was suspended and possession of less than four ounces of marijuana, police said.

Ouellette, whose license was suspended in September 1984, was arrested on 11 counts in connection with a chase last Wednesday involving speeds of up to 70 miles an hour and a collision with a police cruiser.

The latest charges follow a 4:30 p.m. accident in which police said Ouellette lost control and struck a utility pole while traveling east on Hartford Road. Ouellette, who suffered minor injuries in the accident, was said by police to be highly intoxicated and very uncooperative.

While being treated at Manchester Memorial Hospital, police said a plastic bag containing less than four ounces of marijuana was found next to him.

He was treated at the hospital and released, and was held on a $5,000 bond, police said. Ouellette is scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court on Monday.

Last week's chase began after police spotted Ouellette driving erratically on Wells Street. After he was stopped by police, and while he was being asked to provide some identification, he stepped on the gas pedal and sped away, police said.

The chase continued onto Spruce, Eldridge and Main streets and finally onto Line Street where Ouellette's car became stuck in the mud behind a house.

Ouellette was charged with driving while intoxicated after the chase, in addition to operating without a license and first-degree reckless endangerment for allegedly intentionally colliding with a patrol cruiser that was following him, police said.

A final decision will be made by townselectmen at an April 1 town hearing, which will follow a second required public hearing on the matter.

Daniels jury continues deliberations

NORWICH — A jury today enters its fifth day of deliberating whether a convicted double murderer will be the first man sentenced to the state's electric chair in 18 years.

The Norwich Superior Court jury hearing the case of Jerry Daniels adjourned at 5 p.m. Tuesday after failing to reach a decision involving sentencing the convicted double murderer, a court spokesman said.

The jury was scheduled to resume deliberations at 10 a.m. today, the spokesman said.

Daniels, 28, who was convicted of the double-murder in October 1983, faces electrocution for the slaying deaths of Christine Whipple, 28, and her 3-year-old daughter Amy Russell.

The jury is charged with deliberating whether any mitigating factor in Daniels' background or character, or in circumstances involving the crime, should spare him from being first person sentenced to the electric chair in Connecticut since 1970.

Nader raps insurance industry

HARTFORD — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader says the casualty insurance industry "should be ashamed" of itself for concocting an insurance crisis now resulting in skyrocketing insurance premium costs.

Nader, speaking Tuesday at a news conference in the "Insurance City," accused the casualty insurance industry of "manufacturing" the crisis to cope with falling profits caused by current premium price wars.

However, Joseph J. Martin, a spokesman for Insurance Association of America, said in a separate interview there is no way to dispute that insurers have encountered losses the last few years.

"Anybody who knows anything about reliable information knows the industry did not manufacture the crisis," Martin said.

Nader, a Connecticut native, also called on Gov. William A. O'Neill and gubernatorial candidate Toby Moffett to take strong stands on the insurance industry. Moffett and O'Neill are both seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination this year.

Governor admits campaign error

HARTFORD — Top aides to Gov. William A. O'Neill made an "error in judgment" in the way they arranged to have a campaign film crew photograph the governor at a recent conference, O'Neill's legal counsel says.

Attorney Jay W. Jackson said Tuesday the governor's aides inappropriately arranged to have state identification badges loaned to the camera crew so it could stay at the National Governors Association conference in film O'Neill.

Jackson was asked by the governor to look into whether the identification badges were improperly used as alleged by supporters of O'Neill's Democratic challenger, Toby Moffett.

Jackson said the camera crew arrived at the hotel room in Washington, D.C., where the governors association was meeting and was told identification badges were needed to remain during a meeting of the governors.

The crew did not have the money immediately available to buy identification badges and thus some O'Neill aides arranged to have some state employees at the conference loan their badges to the crew.

Congressmen seek new Colt talks

WASHINGTON — Rep. Barbara B. Kennelly, D-Conn., says the union representing striking Colt firearms division workers want to settle a strike that started Jan. 24 and congressmen will urge the company to return to the bargaining table.

Kennelly, Rep. Nancy L. Johnson, R-Conn., and Democratic Reps. Sam Gejdenson and Bruce Morrison met with union officials and representatives of walkout groups for nearly an hour Tuesday, seeking ways to end the walkout that affects about 1,100 workers at Colt's Hartford and West Hartford, Conn., plants.

"There is a definite concern that we would like to see them back at the table for meaningful talks," Kennelly said after the meeting.

Philip A. Wheeler, president of United Auto Workers Local 576, which represents the strikers, said the union would like to see a quick and fair settlement to the walkout. Major issues in the strike are wages and a company request that workers pay part of health insurance premiums.

Kennelly said some members of the Connecticut delegation would send a letter to Colt, urging that contract talks resume. The letter, she said, would be similar to one sent by the delegation last year to General Dynamics' Electric Boat division during another lengthy strike.

Candidate backs aid to contras

HARTFORD — Republican congressional candidate Francis "Bud" Mullen today announced his support for President Reagan's call for $100 million in aid to anti-government rebels in Nicaragua.

Mullen, who served in the Reagan administration as director of the Drug Enforcement Administration, said the United States must act now to stop the spread of communism in Central America.

Mullen is competing with James Pahlonias for the Republican nomination for Congress in eastern Connecticut's 2nd District. The winner will face Democratic Rep. Sam Gejdenson, who is unopposed for his party's nomination.

In backing Reagan's package of aid to Nicaragua's contra rebels, Mullen noted that he visited Central America while he was director of the Drug Enforcement Administration.

"I have seen first hand some of the problems facing many countries relative to drug trafficking and terrorism. In many cases Cuba supports and facilitates this activity," Mullen said. "This is not Vietnam, it is our backyard."

Judge defends DUI ruling

Buzaid fields reappointment questions

By Mark A. Dupuis
United Press International

HARTFORD — Superior Court Judge Norman A. Buzaid is defending his controversial ruling that ruled invalid tough drunken driving penalties enacted by the Legislature last year.

Buzaid, questioned by the legislative Judiciary Committee at a hearing Tuesday on his reappointment to the bench, said he issued the ruling against the drunken driving law "because I thought I was right."

In a ruling late last year, Buzaid ruled that lawmakers in effect repealed the law requiring mandatory jail terms or community service for drunken driving when they subsequently passed another drunken driving bill last year.

The ruling was issued in a drunken driving case in Norwalk Superior Court, and has been criticized by some lawmakers. State lawyers have appealed to the state Supreme Court seeking to reverse the decision.

Buzaid told the Judiciary Committee that he stands behind the ruling despite the controversy it has generated. "I think that what I did was right and I took the best," he said.

The drunken driving ruling was one of several points raised during the hearing on Buzaid's reappointment to the bench, said by an appointment to the bench, said he issued the ruling against the drunken driving law "because I thought I was right."

In addition to Buzaid, the Judiciary Committee questioned Superior Court Judge Paul J. Falsely of New Haven, who was also named by Van Norstrand as one of the judges who should not be reappointed.

Although the committee will not vote on the appointments until next Tuesday, it appeared in both cases that the committee will recommend confirmation by the full Legislature.

House Speaker R.E. Van Norstrand, R-Darien, listed Buzaid among five judges whose nominations for reappointment or initial terms should not be confirmed by the Legislature.

However, the co-chairman of the Judiciary Committee indicated after Buzaid's appearance Tuesday that the Danbury reporter said that he was in a "winning confirmation by the full House and Senate."

"I thought he did an excellent job. I don't have any problems with him," said Rep. William L. Wollenberg, R-Farmington, who pointed out that some critics of Buzaid may not realize just how difficult the judge's job is.

Now sitting in Stamford Superior Court, Buzaid said he is involved in some aspects of 500 to 600 cases daily, a workload he admitted may make him "cranky" at times as critics have complained.

Panel hits Galvin's administrative skills

Panel hits Galvin's administrative skills

FARMINGTON (UPI) — A special panel says the chief state medical examiner's office suffers from administrative and morale problems, but it made no recommendation as to the fate of the office's embattled head.

The five-member panel was created to look into complaints about the office, including allegations that Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Catherine A. Galvin allowed her pet dogs to be present when some autopsies were done.

While finding the presence of the dogs "unacceptable," the panel of four medical examiners and a retired chief justice of the state Supreme Court made no recommendation Tuesday on whether Galvin should be disciplined or replaced.

The panel's findings, which will be followed up with a final report in two to three weeks, will be presented today to the Commission on Medical Investigations, an arm of the Farmington medical examiner's office.

State Health Services Commissioner Dr. Douglas S. Lloyd, the commission's chairman, said the commission will take up the panel's findings and also will likely discuss Galvin's status.

Galvin, 39, has been on leave using vacation time during the investigation. She was on vacation Friday, and Lloyd said the commission will have to decide what her status will be after that of her pet dogs at a time to be present during some autopsies, but denied allegations by employees that the dogs lapped blood and licked corpses.

"The presence of dogs on the premises of the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner is unacceptable," the study panel said, adding that the presence of dogs in itself would not compromise autopsy results.

While making no recommendation on Galvin's fate, the study panel did conclude that she is a competent medical examiner but lacks Galvin's administrative skills.

"Dr. Galvin is a competent forensic pathologist who has not demonstrated comparable administrative skills," the panel's report said. "The office urgently needs a skilled administrative officer."

Earlier Tuesday, Lloyd announced he has assigned Deputy Health Services Commissioner Elinor P. Jacobson to resolve one of the administrative problems, a backlog of unfinished autopsy reports.

The study panel cited the backlog in its report, which also labeled as "woefully inadequate" the cramped temporary quarters that have housed the medical examiner's office since 1974.

The study committee noted a larger facility is scheduled for occupancy early next year, but did not say whether it believes the state should provide more space until then.

The panel report was made public Tuesday night at Lloyd's office in Hartford, several hours after the panel held a public hearing and private meetings at the University of Connecticut Health Center in Farmington.

Galvin's work was praised by members of the medical profession but sharply attacked by bereaved parents who complained at the hearing of a lack of compassion and delays in the completion of autopsy reports.

"Having a child die is a very traumatic experience and then having these allegations brought against Doctor Galvin's office is devastating," said Joann Dougherty, who said her severely handicapped daughter died last June at the age of one year and 11 days but despite continued efforts she has been unable to obtain a copy of the autopsy report.

Palme suspect to be released

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Police said today a suspect in the killing of Prime Minister Olof Palme would be released "because an important link in the chain of circumstantial evidence has been broken."

Stockholm police chief Hans Holmer said the suspect, a 22-year-old Swede, was to be set free "shortly" and an arraignment hearing before a district court had been canceled.

"He will be released because an important link in the chain of circumstantial evidence has been broken," Holmer told a news conference.

"We had a confrontation with a witness this afternoon and it did not yield what we had expected," Holmer said in explaining the decision to release Gunnarsson. He added, without elaborating, that the witness "had seen a peculiar man."

The unexpected turn in the investigation left police without a suspect in the biggest manhunt in Swedish history. Palme was shot and killed by an unknown gunman while walking unguarded on a downtown Stockholm street on Feb. 28.

Courts halt double execution

STARKE, Fla. — Defense attorneys, in a frantic round of late appeals, won reprieves for condemned killers Davidson Joel James and Roy Allen Harich, who were scheduled to be executed early today in Florida's electric chair.

Harich, after being denied a stay by the Supreme Court late Tuesday night, got a reprieve less than an hour later from the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.

The Supreme Court granted James a stay about 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, ending the possibility of the nation's first double execution since capital punishment was reinstated in 1976. But two hours later, the justices refused to intervene for Harich.

Both Harich and James were on their first death warrants and no Florida inmate has been executed on a first death warrant since the Supreme Court reinstated capital punishment in 1976.

Attorneys for the two condemned killers claimed people opposed to the death penalty were excluded from their trial juries — an issue that is pending in an Arkansas case before the Supreme Court.

French leader considers post

PARIS — The leader of the nation's largest right-wing party considered today whether to accept an offer from President Francois Mitterrand to become prime minister and form an opposition government.

Jacques Chirac, 53, rightist mayor of Paris and a former prime minister, emerged from a two-hour private meeting with Mitterrand Tuesday without saying whether he accepted the offer.

"The president of the Republic called on Mr. Jacques Chirac to study the subject of forming a new government," presidential spokesman Jean Louis Bianco said.

Mr. Chirac will give his answer to the president as soon as possible.

If Chirac accepts the post, it will be the first time since Gen. Charles de Gaulle founded the Fifth Republic in 1958 that France has a president and prime minister from opposing political parties, a formula dubbed "cohabitation" that essentially gives France two leaders.

Figures show sluggish final quarter

WASHINGTON — The economy expanded by just 2.2 percent last year after a slower fourth quarter than first reported, revised figures released today by the Commerce Department showed.

The gross national product — the nation's output of goods and services — advanced by just 0.7 percent or $6.7 billion in the fourth quarter of 1985, the slowest rate of economic growth since the first quarter of 1984, when the economy moved ahead 0.6 percent, the department's Bureau of Economic Analysis said.

A preliminary report had charted a 2.3 percent annual GNP increase on the basis of 1.2 percent growth in the fourth quarter. Revised figures, based on a new and record-setting increase in the trade deficit, pulled the October-through-December quarterly gain down to just 0.7 percent.

Analysts said the revisions were due almost entirely to the revised trade deficit. The trade deficit increased 19.7 percent to $9.5 billion in the fourth quarter of 1985.

The Reagan administration has already dismissed the economy's sluggish performance late last year as a temporary setback and has predicted 4 percent GNP growth in 1986 as the effects of cheap oil, lower interest rates and a declining dollar combine to stimulate economic growth.

On the bright side, the GNP fell weights price index, a key indicator of inflation, rose by just 3.8 percent last year, the best performance since 1982, when inflation grew only 2.9 percent, the bureau said.

Moscow girl plans to visit U.S.

CHICAGO — An 11-year-old girl from Moscow will visit Chicago Friday to get a firsthand view of American life as a part of peace tour in memory of Samantha Smith, the young advocate of peace between the superpowers.

Katerina Lycheva will spend two days in Chicago visiting a local public school, a career fair for children and the peace museum, which features exhibits on peace activists such as Joan Baez and Yoko Ono.

Lycheva will also meet Mayor Harold Washington and have dinner with an American family.

The peace trip, sponsored by the Children of the Peacemakers Organization, is in memory of Samantha, the Maine school girl who toured the Soviet Union after writing the late Soviet Leader Yuri Andropov urging world leaders to work for peace. She died last year in a plane crash with her father.

White House denies getting donation

By Matthew C. Quinn

WASHINGTON — Documents seized from Ferdinand Marcos by the United States last month show he planned to illegally contribute $50,000 to the 1986 presidential campaign of both Ronald Reagan and Jimmy Carter.

The intended campaign donations were disclosed in one of 2,300 pages of documents turned over to the new Philippine government and to a House subcommittee investigating the "hidden wealth" of the deposed leader, a congressional aide said Tuesday.

Mike Lewan, an aide to subcommittee Chairman Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., said there was no indication of the two $50,000 donations had actually been made.

"I don't know what it all means. I don't know if it put the plan into effect," Lewan said. "It matches up with no other document, there's no other document like this."

It is illegal for foreigners to contribute to an American election campaign.

Deputy White House press secretary Robert Gibbs denied the president actually received any campaign contributions from Marcos.

"I presume it's not true given the screening mechanism of our campaign and the screening by the Federal Election Commission. Such a deception would have been detected," he said.

Lewan said the unmarked, one-page document also contained money earmarked for Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and other candidates.

The document on Marcos's campaign contributions has been turned over to the Justice Department for investigation and prosecution.

A congressional source said other documents revealed that Marcos had sought unsuccessfully to block release of the documents.

The original documents were spirited out of the Philippines as Marcos and his party fled on U.S. military aircraft, and were seized by the U.S. Customs Service in Hawaii Feb. 28.

Washington Post reported Wednesday that the documents also showed a series of kickbacks made by American, Japanese and other corporations to close Marcos associates.

The Reagan administration turned over copies of the 2,300 documents Tuesday to Jovito Solonza, head of a Philippines government commission seeking to recover Marcos's assets.

Copies also were made available to the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Asian and Pacific Affairs, which subpoenaed the papers, and to lawyers for Marcos who had sought unsuccessfully to block release of the documents.

"Namely, one — the raids on the public treasury, the use of military intelligence funds and their misappropriation for the private benefit and use of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Marcos."

"Two — the accumulation of ill-gotten wealth in the Philippines and abroad through enormous commissions, bribes and kickbacks given to the cronies and business associates of Mr. Marcos by corporations and enterprises that have been awarded lucrative contracts by Mr. Marcos."

"Three — the illicit relationship that have been awarded lucrative contracts by Mr. Marcos to his relatives and associates."

Salonga said most of Marcos's assets are in Swiss bank accounts, but some of his wealth was believed to be tied up in massive U.S. real estate investments.

"The evidence keeps on mounting every day," he said. "I just cannot imagine how this can be, this kind of incredible greed."

Salonga, a former senator and opposition figure during the Marcos regime, smiled as he left the State Department with a cardboard box containing the papers early Tuesday.

"I have been waiting for this hour since the last 20 years," he said.

He sorted through the papers for seven hours, then held a news conference in which he estimated Marcos's hidden assets at between $5 billion and $10 billion.

"They confirm what we have suspected all along," he said of the documents.

Fiscal woes leave doubts about budget

Town Manager Robert Weiss has recommended a 1986-87 budget which he says contains "no surprises." It is a well-documented plan which would maintain the current level of town services and make few improvements.

But despite what Weiss says, there may be surprises. The revenue estimates in the plan rely heavily on possible increases in state funding — increases which have been proposed by Gov. William O'Neill but which appear unlikely to be enacted as proposed.

If the Manchester spending plan is adopted by the Board of Directors, the town manager estimates that the tax rate would rise by 4.28 mills, or 9.6 percent. That would be a substantial increase — one which some taxpayers might not be able to afford.

And if the state assistance anticipated by Weiss does not materialize, the town directors would have to make adjustments, further increasing the tax rate or cutting the budget.

As the directors begin their detailed review of Weiss's plan, they had better start thinking about possible cuts. Reductions will not come easily, because most of the proposed increases merely maintain existing services.

The entire recommended budget, excluding education, represents a 10.1 percent increase in spending; without any improvements, the increase is 8.7 percent.

The improvements are minimal, and most involve phased-in programs which the town directors have determined are needed to achieve long-term goals. Perhaps the time has come to reassess the goals, considering the possibility of a longer phase-in period for some projects.

For instance, although the greater commitment to capital improvements is desirable, the town might not be able to increase the level of funding by 33 percent in 1986-87.

The long-term goal, to raise annual capital improvement spending to 2 mills by the end of the decade, would reduce the town's reliance on bonding and lease-purchase arrangements. That's a good plan, and Weiss has proposed spending the equivalent of 1.4 mills in tax revenues on capital projects in 1986-87. But some of those projects may have to wait because of the current fiscal situation.

The directors also must take a close look at the proposal to add 10 employees to the town work force. As Director Stephen Penny remarked, all the added positions are justified, but the board will have to set priorities. One of those priorities should be the addition of a housing code inspector — a necessity which is not addressed in Weiss's proposal.

There is one major recommendation in the 1986-87 spending plan which cannot be tampered with: The education budget, which amounts to about 60 percent of all General Fund expenditures, must be adopted without reductions.

As Weiss points out in his budget message, there is strong support within the town for an increased commitment to quality education, and much of the increased school spending is targeted for salary raises provided for in approved contracts.

Story about case unfair to mother

To the Editor:

As the attorney representing Mrs. Peggy Pisch in the subject custody matter discussed in your newspaper, I read with some interest the article on Feb. 27 headlined, "Father ditches child laws." Because the matter is on appeal and because it is in fact docketed to be heard to be heard by the Appellate Court next month — not in five years as indicated by your article — I do not want to comment on the specifics of either the case or situation.

Scrutiny of judges a sign of progress

The first point to be made about the hubaloo at the State Capitol over judges is that R. E. Van Norstrand's "poll" did not move the Legislature's Judiciary Committee to oppose the reappointment of George Brodigan or anyone else.

Not by itself, it didn't. The public's impression may have been otherwise because of undue attention to Brodigan and other judges who did not fare well in the Van Norstrand ratings. Indeed, Rep. Chris Shays of Stamford, a Republican member of the committee, said he thought Brodigan was being "shuffled" because he was the judge faced the committee.

But Shays, who said he found the survey "distasteful," wound up voting against Brodigan on the basis of the judge's responses to committee questions and what he learned, not from the poll, but from talking with attorneys familiar with Brodigan's way in court.

State Sen. Adela Eads of Kent said "not a bit" when she was asked whether the Van Norstrand findings had influenced her vote. "I didn't even know what the questionnaire asked — I did my own homework," she said.

THAT WAS TYPICAL of how Republicans on the committee replied to queries on whether the ratings had been a factor. "Not at all," said Deputy House Majority Leader Edward Kravitski of Bristol. "It didn't sway me," said Rep. Frank O'Neill of Guilford. Like other Republicans who were asked, they said the survey bore out what they knew or discovered themselves. Van Norstrand, a Darien Republican, is speaker of the House of Representatives. It was his idea, earlier this year, to resurrect a bar association questionnaire of some ten years ago and mail it to the 8,000 lawyers in the state. It asked them to rate judges on how they do on the bench and to say whether they deserved reappointment. He had 1,286 replies.

Van Norstrand released ratings on 78 judges up for reappointment this year. He did so reluctantly, under pressure of a newspaper's citing Freedom of Information principles. Predictably, the focus of attention was on the few judges who fared poorly. Brodigan was one.

The speaker said all along that his survey was only supposed to be a "tool" to assist legislators when they had to vote on judicial nominations. Apparently they took it that way, or ignored it.

"I DID MY OWN CHECKING," said Rep. Elinor Wilber of Fairfield, adding that the questionnaire was simply "reinforced" her information. So the second point to be made is that the Van Norstrand survey has led to immediate change in the way this committee interviews judges up for reappointment. (House Chairman Bill Wollenberg of Farmington said that in Brodigan's case, it was an appointment since the jurist had been serving on an interim basis.)

Capital Comments

The old fawing over judges by the lawyer-dominated committee is missing. The ingratiating pleasantries are at a minimum. The perfunctory vote to confirm is gone. The rubber stamp is out the window. Judges are being questioned closely for twenty, thirty minutes, not the five or ten minute quackery of the past.

The process is, of course, still deeply political. Democrats predominate on the roster of state judges, a legacy of their party's control of the governor's office for a decade. That circumstance may just give Republicans reason to be so zealous. But the ratings have led in large part toward greater scrutiny of judicial nominations, and that — politics or no politics — is some sort of progress.

Political notebook
• U.S. Rep. Nancy Johnson, a New Britain Republican, got through a State Capitol press conference last week without being asked whether she might run for governor. "I must be slipping," she said later.

• Leaders of UAW locals around the state and officers put Gov. Bill O'Neill and Toby Moffett through a tough grilling last week but could not muster the required two-thirds vote for endorsement. They'll try again next week. The session was at the Farmington offices.
• House Minority Leader Irving Stolberg of New Haven endorsed O'Neill for reelection last week, as we said was likely in a column last December. Stolberg was so upset when he wrote to editors, saying the report was "misleading." Stolberg wants his old job back as speaker, if Democrats regain control of the House next year. His support of O'Neill is a sign he believes the governor has a better chance for the nomination than his old liberal friend, Moffett.

President misses the simple life

WASHINGTON — "What do the simple folk do to help them escape when they're blue? ... Oh, what do simple folk do (that) we do not?" Ronald Reagan, the easygoing charmer who gets along effortlessly with kings and commoners, barons and blue collars, would be the last man imaginable to sing the "Camelot" version of King Arthur. Unlike the Lerner-Loewe ruler, Reagan knows what he's missing. In a recent conversation with Dale Van Atta in the Oval Office, Reagan sounded almost wistful as he reflected on the "simple pleasures" that are denied him as president. "Yes," he said, "you miss the simple thing of — you stand upstairs there and you look out the window and see the people walking by and you say, 'Hey, you know, I can't do that anymore.' I can't go down there and say 'I'm going to walk down to the drugstore and buy a magazine, or drop in some place for a cup of coffee. And you do miss it.'"

The president added that there is another simple pleasure he misses — one that probably only someone who grew up in small-town or rural America would appreciate. "The only driving I get to do is with the Jeep at the ranch — within the borders of the ranch."

THIS LED REAGAN to an interesting observation about the coconlike existence of a modern American president: "I have to tell you, there is something that I'm very much aware of. I didn't get to be so much aware of it until about the time we were leaving Sacramento, but now it is true here in Washington. Now, I've been here in Washington in years past when we'd rent a car and we'd go wherever we wanted to go: out to dinner and that sort of thing. You'd be surprised, sitting in the back seat with someone else driving, how quickly you lose any sense of where things are. I found out as the years went on in Sacramento that, by golly, if they turn me loose in the front seat of the car, I couldn't find my way even back and forth to work."

"And the same is true here. Now we go to the places where they take us, like banquets and so forth at the hotels, and I remember back now I used to drive to those places on my own. Now I have to say, you get me outside these gates. I couldn't find my way any place."

The religious leaders, saying they speak as individuals but are supported by either votes or policies in statements made by their organizations, Tuesday called on President Reagan to negotiate with the Nicaraguan government rather than seek to overthrow it. The statement issued by the religious leaders says the aid package should be opposed because it would increase death and suffering on both sides of the Nicaraguan civil war and it would run counter to peace proposals made by American allies in Latin America and Europe.

The religious leaders, representing Congregationalists, Presbyterians, and Episcopalians, said their views had been shaped by visits to Nicaragua and discussions with both government and rebel leaders. "I would hate to visit Nicaragua again and look into the eyes of a woman whose son was shot in the fields or whose husband was tormented and have her imply that I was behind those who funded this group," said Auxiliary Bishop Peter Rosazza, of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Hartford. "The use of direct military force should always be the last resort, not the first impulse," said the Rev. Stephen Sidorki of the United Methodist Church.

"We shouldn't invest civil wars and overthrow governments we don't like. That's not the American way. I happen to believe in the American way. I believe in any lessons by behaving just like the Soviet Union," said Sidorki, who is also executive director of the Christian Center, and a member of the Christian Conference of Connecticut.

The Rev. Robert Evans of the Presbyterian Church U.S.A. and executive director of the Plover-shares Institute, also visited Nicaragua six times and believes the country has improved under its Marxist-Sandinista government. Since 1979, when the U.S.-backed Somoza government was overthrown, the malnutrition rate for children under age 12 fell from 60 percent to 20 percent, and literacy rate fell from 35 percent to 82 percent, Evans said.

While the leaders announced their position at a news conference in Hartford, Rep. John G. Rowland, R-Conn., said at a Washington news conference that he would support Reagan's proposed $100 million aid package for the Contra rebels.

Thriller in Illinois

CHICAGO — An unknown candidate supported by radical politician Lyndon LaRouche won the Democratic lieutenant governor nomination, sending Democrats scrambling today to reassess their chances of unseating Republican Gov. James R. Thompson. Mark Fairchild was one of a slate of National Democratic Policy Committee candidates. The candidates' stands on the issues included a call for mandatory testing for acquired immune deficiency syndrome and quarantine of those who have AIDS.

Other candidates on the NDCP slate for governor, secretary of state, treasurer and comptroller also did surprisingly well. LaRouche has run for president twice, getting only a small fraction of the vote.

Later results showed Fairchild running ahead of the party's slated candidate, state Sen. George Sangmeister of Mokena. With about 89 percent of the state's more than 11,000 precincts reporting, Fairchild had 397,590 to 296,847 votes for Sangmeister.

Fairchild's support was statewide and carried several counties. "It's a sad day in the Illinois Democratic Party," said Dave Draker, a party spokesman. "The shock still hasn't worn off."

Democratic leader predicts close vote

By E. Michael Myers

WASHINGTON — The margin of victory or defeat for President Reagan's request for $100 million in aid for the Nicaraguan rebels is critically close, its fate to be decided by perhaps fewer than 20 wavering House members. The showdown vote is Thursday and Reagan and his opponents worked intensely on wavering members Tuesday.

Philip Habib, Reagan's special envoy to Central America, was stationed near the House floor to push for the aid that Reagan said is vital to maintaining a military force the estimated 30,000 Contra guerrillas to pressure the Sandinistas into negotiating peace. "We're going to win conclusively but not overwhelmingly," said assistant House Democratic leader Thomas Foley of Washington.

Reagan worked on the undecideds in meetings at the White House, and the Democratic leadership checked and rechecked its support before the first of two days' debate today. "I've had no reports from people that the president has swayed any of our numbers," Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., a chief Democratic vote counter, said Tuesday. "We don't have any indication that there are waves of people moving because of this pressure by the administration, by outside groups."

Bonior said the Democrats are "approaching" 210 firm votes from their party and there are 14 "solid" Republican votes. He said the Democrats hope to pick up five more supporters from their ranks and five or six more GOP votes. A majority of 218 votes in the House is needed. "It's awfully close," Vice President Bush said. "I would concede we still have a ways to go before everybody in this country senses the same feeling of urgency that we feel about it."

Clergymen in state criticize contra aid

HARTFORD (UPI) — The leaders of five major religious groups in Connecticut have urged against U.S. aid to the rebels fighting in Nicaragua and called instead for more efforts at negotiation.

Meanwhile four protesters were scheduled for arraignment today after they were arrested during a sit-in protest at the New Britain office of Rep. Nancy Johnson, R-Conn., the only member of the state's congressional delegation who is planning to vote in favor of the aid proposal.

Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney sits listening as President Reagan delivers welcoming remarks at the White House Tuesday. Mulroney arrived for bilateral talks on acid rain and trade.

Reagan and Mulroney make progress on acid rain issue

By Iro R. Allen
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan and Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney have agreed on an approach to solving the acid rain problem, the single most difficult issue between the neighboring nations.

But the two leaders declined to sign a joint agreement, and instead chose to issue separate statements. The contribution the Canadians have been making on our way of life is incalculable. The bond of affection between us is truly a treasure. I strongly endorse a prompt start to formal negotiations in their fullest possible scope to those who are making our way of life so much better. I hope we can bring these negotiations to a successful conclusion," he said.

Earlier in the day, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said, "The two leaders are in substantial agreement on how to proceed" on acid rain. Rather than an issue of a joint declaration, he said, each side will present "how each leader wishes to state his position."

That approach suggested a continued difference of opinion over causes, effects and appropriate responses to the acid rain problem, which Canada contends damages its forests and waterways and originates in large measure from air pollution in the United States. The United States has refused to blame sulfur dioxide emissions from power plants and autos for acid rain or to agree to costly reductions and prevention efforts in lieu of further research.

Under Canadian pressure, Reagan was said to have embraced a joint study he and Mulroney authorized a year ago. In recent days, Mulroney cost that endorsement as perhaps the smallest step Reagan could take to placate Canada.

The centerpiece of the report issued in January was a $5 billion effort — financed half by government and half by industry — over five years to test methods of controlling acid rain. The report does not call for specific reductions over a set period of time, as Canada has urged.

Reagan and Mulroney also have agreed to expand a $120 billion-a-year trade relationship, the largest between any two countries in the world.

Some countries, including Iran and Algeria, wanted steep reductions to an overall level of 12 million barrels a day. That compares with estimated current production of about 17 million barrels a day.

Most of the others said the limit ought to be higher. The officials also disagreed over how to share the cuts and ways of ensuring against cheating, according to officials from several delegations. This approach, restricting production to dry up the oil glut and stop the price decline was pursued by OPEC for nearly four years starting in 1982. But it unraveled under the financial strains that prompted many member countries to exceed their output limits.

OPEC courts rivals

By Robert Burns
The Associated Press

GENEVA — OPEC today asked five independent oil producers to join the cartel in cutting oil production in order to drive up prices, delegation officials said. They said no firm commitments were given.

The meeting with representatives of Mexico, Oman, Malaysia and Egypt and Angola followed three days of inconclusive OPEC talks on ways to stabilize oil prices.

Fernando Pegado, a member of the Angola delegation, said OPEC did not request specific production cuts. He said his country was willing to help the cartel try to reverse the price slide.

"We are just talking in terms of cooperation, and we (in Angola) feel that we can cooperate," he said.

The talks broke off after about two hours. Pegado said they would resume later in the day. Chokhramza Aghazadeh, Iran's oil minister, told reporters after the morning session that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries had asked non-OPEC countries to join it in cutting non-OPEC production but he said he was a "general consensus" within OPEC that it must substantially reduce its own oil production to halt the price slide.

"We have told them... we are in the same boat," Aghazadeh said, speaking through an interpreter. "We told them we have to manage production. The more we cut the more we can increase the price."

The most important independent producers — the Soviet Union, the United States, Britain and Norway — are not taking part in the talks with OPEC, thus diminishing the likely impact of any production cut on the oil market.

During a break in the talks, Javier Espinosa Teran, the Ecuadorian oil minister, confirmed there was a "general consensus" within OPEC that it must substantially reduce its own oil production to halt the price slide.

On Tuesday, Kuwait's oil minister said most OPEC officials were ready to abandon their falling strategy of trying to win a bigger share of the market. But he said they disagreed on how to cut production.

Kuehl says Republicans keep budget options open

By John F. Kirchn
Herald Reporter

Republican Town Chairman Donald Kuehl plans to meet with Town Manager Robert B. Weiss to discuss the manager's budget recommendations and says the GOP may offer its own budget.

Kuehl said he hasn't seen the budget in full yet and couldn't elaborate on what approach the Republicans would take. The three Republican members of the nine-member Board of Directors could not be reached for comment today.

Kuehl did say that he does not want to see a tax increase, but offered no alternative to the 4.39-mill General Fund hike requested by Weiss. He would only suggest that the manager's recommendations were a "first step" that should be followed by other options.

Bernard Malamud, 71, dies

Author wrote 'The Fixer,' 'The Natural'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bernard Malamud, the Pulitzer Prize-winning author who drew inspiration from his father's tales of Czarist Russia but only began writing seriously after the Holocaust, died of a heart attack at his Manhattan apartment here today.

Malamud died at 4:15 p.m. Tuesday of natural causes, said a spokesman for Raymond O'Donnell, Malamud's agent.

BERNARD MALAMUD
... Pulitzer winner

Malamud began making up stories for his friends as a boy, inspired by his father's tales of Czarist Russia. He began writing short stories in the back room of his family's grocery store in the Bronx, N.Y., when he was 17.

His first novel, "The Natural," written in 1948, was made into a successful film that abandoned Malamud's grim conclusion for one of renewal and hope.

Redskins toss John Riggins on football junk pile

By Will Dunham
United Press International

WASHINGTON — John Riggins claims Washington Redskins coach Joe Gibbs has misjudged how much talent he has left and the running back is willing to prove the error.

Riggins said Tuesday that the Redskins told him they will not give him a contract this season because coach Gibbs believes his talents have eroded.

Gibbs met with Riggins at Redskin Park Tuesday and informed the team's all-time leading ball-carrier that he wasn't wanted for the 1986 season.

After the meeting, the 36-year-old Riggins challenged any potential replacement to a running duel during mini-camp May 12-17 at the Redskins' Herndon, Va., training facility. "I want to prove he still has the ability to play in the NFL. Riggins was the NFL's oldest running back last season.

"I met with Joe Gibbs this morning and we discussed my future with the team," Riggins said in a statement issued through his lawyer Tuesday night. "I told Joe from the onset of the meeting of my desire to play for the Redskins again this year. He responded that he did not want me to play for the team any more because I had supposedly, 'lost a step,' in his words. I did not agree with his opinion."

"With that in mind, I would like to issue a challenge to anybody who thinks he wants to be the starting running back for the Redskins this year to a 60-yard dash at the mini-camp," Riggins added. "I think the outcome of the competition will prove that I haven't, in fact, lost a step. Should my challenge go unanswered, I want everybody to know that I will have the Redskins well and I have no hard feelings."

Riggins was unavailable for comment. His lawyer, Joseph Wytash, said he did not know whether Riggins' statements signaled his retirement or whether he is interested in playing for another team.

Neither Gibbs nor Redskins officials would comment on Riggins' claims.

Riggins, a bull-line runner and one of the league's all-time best short-yardage ground-gainers, has amassed 11,352 yards in 14 seasons in the NFL, the last nine with the Redskins. He is second in league history in touchdowns (116, behind Jim Brown's 128) and rushing touchdowns (104, behind Brown's 106).

A self-proclaimed mad boy, Riggins has caused considerable am- biance in the Redskins' front office with his off-field behavior, including a 1985 charge of public drunkenness.

The Redskins issued a minimum qualifying offer for Riggins in January to prevent him from becoming a free agent, but no contract negotiations have been held since.

Spring training roundup Moreno playing ball for Tanner's Braves

By The Associated Press

Omar Moreno had his best year playing for the Pittsburgh Pirates under Manager Chuck Tanner. He led the National League with 71 stolen bases in 1978 and 71 in 1979 and led NL outfielders in total chances with 514 in 1979 and 499 in 1980.

He also hit a career-high .382 in 1979 and then hit .333 as the Pirates won the World Series.

It has been mostly downhill since then in unproductive stints with Houston, the New York Yankees and Kansas City and the 32-year-old Moreno is back in Boston. He signed a minor-league contract Feb. 28 — trying to catch on with the Atlanta Braves, whose new manager is none other than Chuck Tanner.

Moreno continued his strong spring performance Tuesday, hitting .313 with a three-run double and a two-run single, leading the Braves to a 7-1 exhibition victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Baltimore's sixth base in nine spring games as Atlanta improved its exhibition record to 8-2.

In other games, it was the New York Mets, Detroit 5 in 11 innings; Baltimore 4, Philadelphia 1; Chicago White Sox 6, New York Yankees 4; California 8, San Francisco 2; Montreal 1, Kansas City 6; Toronto 5, New York Yankees 5; Pittsburgh 4 in 11 innings; Milwaukee 6, San Diego 5 in 12 innings; Texas 12, Los Angeles 8; Oakland 6, Seattle 3; Cleveland 6, Chicago Cubs 4; Minnesota 2, Houston 1 in 10 innings.

Mets 7, Tigers 5

Detroit roughed up the usually unhittable Dwight Gooden for three runs and six hits in four innings but the Mets won from Tim Lincecum, Terry Blocker and Howard Johnson all singled and scored in the 11th inning. Detroit ace Jack Morris also was ineffective, yielding four runs and eight hits in five innings.

Orleans 4, Phillies 1

Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt, who had been suffering from a bad back, made his first appearance of the spring and went 6-for-3 as the designated hitter. Baltimore's third baseman Fred Lynn hit three-run homer off Phil Proffitt in the seventh inning — including Juan Samuel's seventh-inning homer and Fred Lynn hit a three-run homer off Dave Shipanoff after Kevin Gross pitched five scoreless innings. Blanked Boston on one hit for five innings, extending his scoreless streak to 12. Mullinix hit home runs off Al Leiter and Whit connected off Rob Woodward.

Blue Jays 5, Red Sox 2

Rance Mullinix hit a pair of solo homers and Ernie Whit added a two-run shot for Toronto while Dave Stieb, making his third start in the 11th inning, pitched one hit for five innings, extending his scoreless streak to 12. Mullinix hit home runs off Al Leiter and Whit connected off Rob Woodward.

Brewers 6, Padres 5

After San Diego took a 3-3 lead in the top of the 12th, the Brewers rallied for three runs, capped by rookie Glenn Braggs' two-run triple. The Padres had a 2-2 lead in the ninth inning when Brewers rookie Dale Sveum singled off Rich Gossage with two out.

Rangers 12, Dodgers 9

Oddie McDowell's grand-slam home run and Bobby Jones' three-run shot highlighted Texas' seven-run fifth inning. Jones' homer came off Orel Hershey. But right fielder Fred Lyle was hit by a pitch in the seventh inning. Jones' homer came off Orel Hershey.

Indians 6, Cubs 4

The Indians tied the game in the fifth on Joe Carter's RBI triple. Ken Forsch, trying to battle back after missing the last two seasons with arm injuries, pitched four innings for the Angels, allowing one run — Chris Brown's homer — and five hits.

Expos 1, Royals 0

Montreal's Bryan Smith, who has been troubled by a sore elbow, pitched three strong innings in his spring debut. Jeff Jarrett, Randy St. Clair and Mark Comer followed Smith to the mound and each pitched two innings.

White Sox 6, Yankees 4

Carlton Fisk, Chicago's catcher-turned fielder, collected three hits, including a home run, and upped his team-leading spring batting average to .458, including three homers and six RBIs. He had played errorless in his seven games. Chicago starter Floyd Bannister allowed just one run in five innings. Gary Roenicke homered for the Yankees.

Angels 8, Giants 2

Bob Boone doubled home the tying lead runs with the first of six consecutive California hits in five-run seventh inning. California erupted off Jim Gott, who had retired the first seven batters he faced.

Reds 5, Pirates 4

Dave Concepcion's sacrifice fly scored Paul O'Neill from third base in the top of the 11th inning with the winning run. O'Neill led off the inning with a double and

National League tryouts this weekend

Manchester National Little League tryouts will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Buckley School. The schedule is: age 12 at 9-10 a.m.; age 11 from 10-11:30 a.m.; and age 10 from 1:15-1:30 p.m. each day. Tryouts for 8-year-olds will be Saturday only, from 2:30-4:45 p.m., unless it rains.

MHS's Blake first team All-State

NEW HAVEN — Manchester High School's Bobby Blake was named to the first team All-State ice hockey team in voting conducted by coaches throughout the state and tabulated by the New Haven Register. Blake, senior center, had 46 goals and 43 assists for 89 points in leading the Indian Ice men to a 12-9-1 record this season. Manchester reached the state Division II semifinals for the second time in three years before being eliminated. Manchester coach Eric Farnio said Blake is thinking of attending prep school.

Krzyzewski UPI coach of year

NEW YORK — Mike Krzyzewski, the Bobby Knight disciple who transformed a slumping Duke basketball program into the No. 1 team in the land in 1986, was selected as Coach of the Year by United Press International. Krzyzewski, 39, who was a surprise choice six years ago when he was hired to coach at the Atlantic Coast Conference school, has guided Duke to a 34-2 record heading into Friday's NCAA Tournament East Regional semifinal against DePaul. In nationwide balloting of 125 sports writers and broadcasters, Krzyzewski received 39 votes followed by Dick Versace of Bradley with 24 votes and Lou Carnesecca of St. John's with 22. Krzyzewski's honor was announced Tuesday.

Stenmark far from over the hill

WILMINGTON, N.Y. — Ingemar Stenmark, the king of the downhill, proved on his 30th birthday he is far from over the hill. Stenmark notched his 86th World Cup victory Tuesday, winning the Subaru men's giant slalom race at Whiteface Mountain. He nosed out Hubert Strobl of Austria with a two-run time of 2 minutes and 40.86 seconds. Strobl clocked in at 2:40.94. Robert Erbacher of Italy took third in 2:41.32, besting Christian Gaidet of France, who finished at 2:41.55. Erbacher had the fastest time in the second run at 1:15.97.

Steiner wins World Cup slalom title

WATERVILLE VALLEY, N.H. — Roswitha Steiner of Austria, buried in 11th place after one run in the World Cup season's final slalom race, decided to concentrate on speed. Her approach worked. Steiner turned in a blazing second run Tuesday to steal the World Cup slalom title from Erika Hess of Switzerland. The 22-year-old Steiner captured her first World Cup title with a speedy second run on sunny Mount Tecumseh for an overall time of 1 minute and 34.17 seconds. The first-place finish gave Steiner 110 total slalom points for the season. Hess also closed with 110 points, but lost the title because Steiner won four slaloms during the 1985-86 season compared to two for Hess. "I think that's the sport, that's the system," Hess said. "It's a shame we cannot be together. I didn't lose. She won."

Pirates can remain in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH — Municipal officials say the Pirates can remain in Pittsburgh for at least five years in light of the City Council's approval of a $21 million bond sale on behalf of the club. The go-ahead for a bond sale appeared to end months of uncertainty about the future of the Pirates, who are being sold by the John Galbreath family. Mayor Richard Caliguiri and others say money from the sale, added to $25 million from private investors, will be enough to buy the team from the Galbreath family and operate it through 1990.

David Lipscomb takes NAIA crown

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Arkansas-Monticello ran out of players and David Lipscomb College of Tennessee ran off with the championship of the 49th NAIA Basketball Tournament. Arkansas-Monticello coach Gary Sharpe relied on six players — his five starters plus senior guard Derwin Jackson — to survive the first four rounds of the tournament and earn a berth in the title game Tuesday night against 11th-seeded David Lipscomb. However, the Bull Weevils ran into foul problems for the first time in the tournament, forcing Sharpe to go to his barren bench, and David Lipscomb thundered to its first NAIA title with a 67-54 triumph.

Arizona State placed on probation

MISSION, Kan. — The NCAA, agreeing with Pacific 10 Conference penalties, Tuesday placed Arizona State University's men's basketball program on probation for one year for violations that included unethical conduct. The penalties, imposed by the conference and adopted by the NCAA, also called for no grants-in-aid to be awarded to any incoming prospect during the probationary period — which went into effect Dec. 11, 1985. Also, the NCAA said the men's basketball coaching staff is prohibited from engaging in any off-campus recruiting activities or from providing any paid recruiting visits to the university's campus during the probationary period. The case included a violation of the NCAA's ethical conduct rule that occurred when a former men's basketball coach instructed a student-athlete to report false information and to withhold information when contacted by NCAA and Pacific-10 Conference investigators. None of the violations in the case involved members of the current basketball staff, the NCAA noted.

Towering five

DALLAS (AP) — No records are kept of this kind of thing, but Coach Dick Motta of the Dallas Mavericks recently put a lineup on the court that may have been the tallest in the history of basketball. At the two forward spots, Motta had Bill Wennington, 7-6, and Uwe Blab, 7-1. James Donaldson, 7-2, William E. Fitzgerald and Judge of Probate

NOTICE

Probate Court is open for conferences with the judge from 6:30 P.M. to 8 P.M. on Thursday nights. Appointments suggested. Night telephone number: 647-2227. William E. Fitzgerald, Judge of Probate

Soviets win first gold in skating

By Jennifer Pormelee
The Associated Press

GENEVA, Switzerland — The successful Soviet delegation at the 1986 World Figure Skating Championships is being led by its smallest member. Ekaterina Gordeeva, a 14-year-old, 77-pounder, appeared to dance through the air, her arms out like wings, as she and partner Sergei Grinkov, 19, skated a lively, well-harmonized long program Tuesday to win the first gold medal awarded at the championships. The world pairs title capped two days of Soviet success in competition at Vernet Sports Center in the lakeside Swiss city. Kira Ivanova, 23, took an early edge in the women's singles over 18-year-old American challenger Debi Thomas of San Jose, Calif., by earning the lowest score in the compulsory figures. And competitor Alexander Fadeev, 22, continued to zero in on his second world title, winning high marks for a fast, high-flying short program. Soviet ice dancers Natalia Bestemianova, 26, and Andrei Bukin, 28, were also favored to win their second straight world championship in the event that began today with compulsory dances. Later tonight, the women's skaters were to skate their short program. In the pairs finals, eight of nine judges awarded the top score to Grinkov and the 4-foot-10 Gordeeva, who ousted reigning world champions and fellow Soviets Elena Valova, 23, and Oleg Vasiliev, 26, who finished second. The new world champions finished with a factored placement of 1.4, followed by Valova and Vasiliev with 2.8. Canadian duo Cynthia Coull, 20, and Mark Rowson, 26, moved up into third place at 4.6 with a playful, skillful routine to Gertrude's "American in Paris."

Soviet couple Larisa Selezneva and Oleg Makarov slid down into fourth, at 5.2, after an innovative space-age routine that won over the audience but lost points with the judges. Denise Bemming and Lyndon Johnston of Canada were fifth with an 8.4, while close behind at 8.6 were Americans Jill Watson, 22, of Bloomington, Ind., and Peter Oppagard, 26, of Bloomfield Hills, Ind. Gordeeva and Grinkov, wearing peppermint-candy colored outfits, soared through dazzling throws, triple Salchow jumps, dizzying lifts and fluidly coordinated fancy footwork to the music of Duke Ellington that brought the spectators to their feet. In other action Tuesday, Ivanova, who placed second at last year's championships, skated the lead Thomas and defending world titleholder Katarina Witt, 20, of East Germany. Fadeev held a two-event lead in the men's singles, but had to confront stylish upstart Brian Orser, 24, the six-time Canadian champion who skated away with the night's short program by reeling in five of the nine top scores. Orser, who finished second to Fadeev at last year's World Championships, skated a swift, eye-catching routine in full peasant gear to Brahms' Hungarian Dance No. 6 — moving the audience to cheers when he ended up dead in his tracks after a clean double axel. American national champion Brian Boltano, 23, of Sunnyvale, Calif., kept hold of his fourth-place spot.

Upshaw charges racism

DETROIT (UPI) — The head of the professional football players union says civil rights leaders should pressure the National Football League to do something about the absence of black head coaches. "We need that kind of pressure," Gene Upshaw said in an interview with the Michigan Chronicle. "When you have a situation where there has been almost no progress whatsoever... the outside pressure from the Jesse Jacksons and the Benjamin Hookes might force some change." Upshaw, 41, director of the NFL Players Association, said civil rights leaders could target the coach issue the same as they have the apartheid issue in South Africa. "Plain and simple, there has to be racism involved," Upshaw said of the NFL's slow progress in finding its first black head coach.

Crunchy, crispy cereal teams with many dishes

Microwave Kitchen

Marge Churchill

Cereal, crunchy and crisp. What does it bring to your mind? If you think of cereal only in terms of a breakfast bowl covered with milk and sugar, then it is time for you to expand your horizons. Cereal can be teamed up with many dishes and other ingredients to give crunch and flavor.

There is a delightful little recipe for a baby shower, which contains some very good ideas for the use of cereal in cooking with the microwave. You can send for the booklet, called "Microwave Cooking with Kellogg's," by writing to the Public Affairs Department, Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Mich. 49818. The recipes for today's column were taken from this booklet.

Mexican stuffed peppers

- 4 large green peppers
- Salt
- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 2/3 cups rice kernel cereal
- 1/2 teaspoon instant minced garlic
- 2 teaspoons chili powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 cup pitted ripe olives
- 1 egg (beaten) whole peeled tomatoes, drained
- 1 can (8 ounces) tomato paste
- 1/2 cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese

Wash peppers. Cut off tops and remove seeds. Lightly salt inside of each pepper. Place peppers, cut side up, in a 12-by-7-1/2-inch glass dish. Set aside.

In a narrow bowl with straight sides, beat the egg whites for 3 minutes. Add 1 cup of the sugar and beat until stiff peaks form. Set aside.

In a large bowl, beat the yolks and remaining 2 cups of sugar. Cream the butter in, and beat 10 minutes. (It will take longer if all you have is a small, hand-held mixer; they are not as powerful.) Add extracts and bourbon. Beat 2 minutes. Add flour and ground nuts. Beat another 5 minutes. Fold in the egg whites as gently as possible; this is the only leavening your cake will have.

Prepare a large tube pan by greasing, then fitting a ring of waxed paper into the bottom. Pour in the batter. Bake for 1 1/2 hours at 350 degrees. When the cake comes out of the oven, set the pan on a wire rack for an hour. After that hour, run a small knife around the edges of the pan, then invert cake onto the rack to finish the cooling.

This is excellent alone, or with a cream cheese frosting, below. It freezes well; wrap in double layers of foil after completely cool.

Family favorite meat loaf

- 1/4 pounds ground round
- 6 links hot Italian sausage, casing removed
- 2 cups cheese-flavored bread crumbs
- 1 cup water
- 2 eggs

Thoroughly mix all ingredients. Put a cake cooling rack in a lasagna or broiling pan. Cover rack with foil, then poke holes in the foil. Shape meat loaf and place on the rack. The holes will allow the fat to drain through to the pan below. Bake 1 1/2 hours in a 350 degree oven.

Apple scones

- 2 scones squash
- 4 tablespoons brown sugar
- 4 rounded tablespoons raisins
- 1 large apple, peeled and sliced
- Salt and pepper to taste

Cut squash in half and scoop out seeds. Put a tablespoon of brown sugar, a tablespoon of raisins and several slices of apple in each. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, if desired. Place halves, cut side up, on a rack in a shallow baking pan. Add an inch of boiling water to the pan. Cover closely with aluminum foil and bake in a 350 degree oven for 1 hour. Remove foil and continue baking another 30 minutes. Serves four.

Chilies go into these potatoes

- 10-ounce package cream cheese
- 2 sticks (1/2 pound) butter
- 2 teaspoons vanilla or lemon extract
- 1 pound powdered sugar

Beat all ingredients together for 2 to 10 minutes, or until very white and fluffy. Yield: Enough to cover a large tube cake, or to frost and fill a 9-inch two-layer cake.

Meat and later pie

- 1/2 cup corn flakes, crumbled
- 1/2 cup margarine or butter
- 1/2 cup prepared mustard
- 1/2 cup egg milk
- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 egg
- 2 cups seasoned mashed potatoes
- 1/2 cup shredded American cheese

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Fry ground beef in a shallow dish. Dip chicken in milk. Coat with crumb mixture. Place in shallow baking dish. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on high for 30 minutes or until chicken is tender.

French cherry dessert

- 1/2 cup margarine or butter
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons sifted confectioners' sugar
- 1/2 cup all purpose flour
- 1/2 cup corn flakes, crumbled

Microwave on high for 8 to 10 minutes, or until thoroughly heated and bubbly. Sprinkle crumb mixture evenly over top. Microwave on full power for 1 minute. Let stand 5 minutes before serving. Yields 4 servings.

Carrots au gratin

- 5 tablespoons margarine or butter, melted
- 1/2 cup corn flakes
- 1/2 cup cheddar cheese
- 1/2 cup evaporated milk

Microwave on high for 15 to 18 minutes, or until melt completely cooked. While pie is baking, combine remaining 1/2 cup corn flakes crumbs with melted margarine, set aside.

In a medium mixing bowl, beat eggs slightly. Stir in granulated sugar and vanilla. Add flour mixture, mixing until well combined. Reserve 2 tablespoons nuts and 2 tablespoons coconut for topping.

Stir in remaining coconut and cherries. Spread over crust mixture. Microwave on high for 4 minutes. Sprinkle with reserved nuts and coconut. Microwave on high for 2 minutes longer, until mixture is set. Cool. Cut into squares and serve. Yields 6 servings.

Corn-crisped chicken

- 1/2 cup corn flakes
- 1/2 cup evaporated milk

Microwave on high for 15 to 18 minutes, or until melt completely cooked. While pie is baking, combine remaining 1/2 cup corn flakes crumbs with melted margarine, set aside.

Stir in remaining coconut and cherries. Spread over crust mixture. Microwave on high for 4 minutes. Sprinkle with reserved nuts and coconut. Microwave on high for 2 minutes longer, until mixture is set. Cool. Cut into squares and serve. Yields 6 servings.

Stir in remaining coconut and cherries. Spread over crust mixture. Microwave on high for 4 minutes. Sprinkle with reserved nuts and coconut. Microwave on high for 2 minutes longer, until mixture is set. Cool. Cut into squares and serve. Yields 6 servings.

Stir in remaining coconut and cherries. Spread over crust mixture. Microwave on high for 4 minutes. Sprinkle with reserved nuts and coconut. Microwave on high for 2 minutes longer, until mixture is set. Cool. Cut into squares and serve. Yields 6 servings.

Stir in remaining coconut and cherries. Spread over crust mixture. Microwave on high for 4 minutes. Sprinkle with reserved nuts and coconut. Microwave on high for 2 minutes longer, until mixture is set. Cool. Cut into squares and serve. Yields 6 servings.

Stir in remaining coconut and cherries. Spread over crust mixture. Microwave on high for 4 minutes. Sprinkle with reserved nuts and coconut. Microwave on high for 2 minutes longer, until mixture is set. Cool. Cut into squares and serve. Yields 6 servings.

Stir in remaining coconut and cherries. Spread over crust mixture. Microwave on high for 4 minutes. Sprinkle with reserved nuts and coconut. Microwave on high for 2 minutes longer, until mixture is set. Cool. Cut into squares and serve. Yields 6 servings.

Stir in remaining coconut and cherries. Spread over crust mixture. Microwave on high for 4 minutes. Sprinkle with reserved nuts and coconut. Microwave on high for 2 minutes longer, until mixture is set. Cool. Cut into squares and serve. Yields 6 servings.

Eye on Your Diet

There are ways to fool the Munchy Monster

By Mary Ellen Campbell

All day long you've been faithful to your diet, keeping visions of a new bikini uppermost in your mind. Breakfast was a breeze, lunch was a snap and dinner was well planned to ward off cellulite buildup.

But now you've settled down to watch "The Cosby Show" and you feel the inner stirrings of what you've silently feared throughout the day—the return of the Munchy Monster! It turns out he still lives within you. You only lulled him to sleep with your reduced caloric intake. But now he threatens to bring his rightful place in front of your TV set!

You know instinctively what will happen soon if the Munchy Monster has his way. Your mind races through the contents of the kitchen cupboard to assess the possible damage. The box of Oreos will certainly bite the dust, and the bag of potato chips hidden behind the cereal does stand a chance. And didn't you put aside a blueberry pie for tomorrow night's dinner guest? They'll never taste a bit if you don't stand up to the Munchy Monster here and now!

But, don't despair, die pilgrims!

There is hope yet in your valiant fight for a toned tummy, thinner thighs and willowy waist. The Munchy Monster doesn't have to win, he can be fooled!

Changing your eating patterns can be as difficult as changing any part of your lifestyle. If snacking has been a part of your life up until now, don't expect to completely rid yourself of the habit until the minute you utter the "Diet!" battle cry. And you don't have to forego snacking entirely.

Snacks are not inherently bad. The trick is to snack and stay within your personal caloric goals for the day. Another noble aim is to choose snacks that will help you meet your needs for nutrients. A registered dietitian can help you determine your personal caloric needs and identify required nutrients.

Foods from the basic four food groups make the best snacks. They are: Milk and Dairy, Protein, Fruits and Vegetables, and Bread and Grain. The OTHER food group, the one with sugar, fat and alcohol, should be very limited in your diet.

Some easy snack ideas might include: celery sticks with peanut butter, sliced banana with peanut butter, crackers and cheese, plain yogurt with granola, raisins, and toasted English muffin with cheese.

dried fruits and nuts. Having low-calorie munchies like these nearby can save the day. Don't be caught without ammunition when you appear the Munchy Monster.

When you just have to have sweets or snacks high in fat it may help to: a) take a small portion and put the bag or box away, b) brush your teeth when you are finished (a lingering sweet or salty taste in your mouth makes you want to go back for more).

Here are some more suggestions for healthy snacks. These are from the American Heart Association:

Orange-bran muffins
1 cup whole wheat flour
1/2 cup unprocessed, uncooked wheat bran
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 egg
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
2 tablespoons dark molasses
1 cup buttermilk

Orange fudge
6 ounces orange juice concentrate
1 cup plain low-fat yogurt
2 ounces water
Blend all ingredients in a pour into ice cube trays. Put a drinking straw (which has been cut in half) into each cube. Freeze several hours.

Frozen bananas
2 bananas cut in half
2 tablespoons peanut butter
About 1/2 cup evaporated skim milk
Chopped nuts or crunchy bran cereal
Place bananas halves on sticks if desired. Mix peanut butter with evaporated skim milk until it is the consistency of egg whites. Roll bananas in peanut butter mixture. Then roll in nuts and/or cereal. Place in freezer until frozen. Serves 4.

Here are some from the American Diabetes Association-The American Dietetic Association Family Cookbook (Volume II):

Delicious dip
1 cup plain low-fat yogurt
1/2 cup low-fat cottage cheese
1/4 minced green pepper
1 tablespoon catsup
1/4 teaspoons prepared horseradish
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon minced garlic
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
Mix yogurt and cottage cheese. Stir in remaining ingredients. Cover and chill 2 hours to blend flavors. Serve as a dip for crackers, chips, or raw vegetable pieces. Or serve as dressing for lettuce wedge or green salad. Yield: one and two-thirds cups (8 servings) Calories: 36.

This series on diet is being run on Wednesdays during March, which is National Nutrition Month. Mary Ellen Campbell is a registered dietitian with Manchester Memorial Hospital.

Declarer gets sidetracked, By James Jacoby, The right approach to planning the play of the hand is to figure out a way to take the tricks required. Don't be sidetracked into doing other things that just may keep you from making your contract.

Manager's budget would maintain current services

Editor's note: The following are excerpts from Town Manager Robert B. Weiss's budget message for fiscal 1986-87, which begins July 1. In accordance with section 5-2 of the Charter of the town of Manchester, I am pleased to submit my recommended budget for the fiscal year July 1, 1986, through June 30, 1987. The recommended general fund budget totals $69,897,348. This represents an increase of $2,166,736, or 3.1 percent, over the adopted budget of $67,730,612 for fiscal year 1985-86 and 9.8 percent over the estimated expenditures for that year. As detailed later in this message, this budget proposes a mill rate for fiscal year 1986-87 of 46.76, which represents a 4.26 mill, or 9.6 percent increase over the current mill rate.

1) Planning - With the addition of a 25-hour-per-week secretary at a cost of $12,000 to provide secretarial support to the Zoning Enforcement Officer and the Zoning Board of Appeals. 2) Building Inspection - With the addition of two building inspectors at a total cost of $50,240 to respond to the large increase in inspection service demand associated with the increased construction activity in town. 3) Engineering - With the addition of one-half the salary of a draftsman at a cost of $9,813 with the remainder of salary distributed evenly between the water and sewer budgets. The draftsman, as previously presented and endorsed, is necessary to maintain the township mapping system which has been produced over the past several years and to provide drafting assistance to the utilities engineer.

4) Highway - With the addition of a foreman at a cost of $30,361 with a laborer at a cost of $20,429 to the sanitation division, and is made possible due to the replacement of the foreman as supervisory over an environmental manager to oversee the landfill and perform other environmental services necessary within water and sewer operation. The additional laborer is both necessary due to the demand for increased road maintenance activities and the greater number of miles of road to service and maintain, and the resurfacing and drainage work associated with the public improvements program.

5) Parks and Cemeteries - With the addition of a parks maintainer at a cost of $29,120 to assist in maintenance of the increased number of park facilities that this division is responsible for. Staff assigned to this division has decreased 10 percent over the last eight years despite annual increases in total work required. 6) Police - With the addition of two civilian dispatchers at a cost of $39,743, authorization of a deputy chief position in concert with temporarily not filling the resultant captain vacancy at a cost of $2,832, and the addition of sergeant to perform as a full-time training officer at a cost of $32,000.

Further justification of each of these service expansions is presented in the budget commentary of each division's budget. However, since the recommendations for the police department are extensive and part of a multi-year plan as presented in the recently completed police manpower and organization study, the results of that study are summarized below: The town, during the present fiscal year, engaged Systems Design Group to perform a manpower allocation study in the police department. A comprehensive report has been received and reviewed by town staff and my budget recommendations reflect a phased approach toward implementing recommendations contained within the report. The study identified two additional civilian dispatchers and two additional civilian trainers are properly staffed to meet the needs of the police department. The complexities of both the training and dispatch functions require personnel concentrating on the police department. In addition, there is a recommendation to create a deputy chief position, at the present time, would be assigned to command the administrative services division. Ultimately, this position will be assigned to direct a new operations division which would encompass the patrol and detective functions. This would replace one captain and the recommendation is not to fill the captain's position until such time as the department's police and administrative divisions are complete as well as policies and procedures related to the new operations division as recommended in the consultant's report.

The police department will be exploring a national accreditation program which is designed to standardize and improve the standards of police departments. The process is extremely time consuming. However, the end result will be a more professional and efficient police department. There is a cost of approximately $8,000 associated with the accreditation process. At this time I am recommending that the department perform much of the work necessary to receive accreditation and the Board of Directors to decide at a later date if it wishes to expand the funds necessary to have the Accreditation Committee review our department for official compliance with the standards. A final recommendation in my budget is to upgrade the position of traffic analyst to a pay scale equivalent to lieutenant's position. This was also a recommendation contained within the consultant's report.

At $3,114,635 and 12.3 percent, our major cost increase, both in actual dollars and also by percentage increase, occurs in education. The entire recommended budget, exclusive of education, represents a 10.1 percent increase over the fiscal year 1985-86 adopted budget. The operating subtotal increase of $1,834,997, or 10.5 percent, includes $225,346 for the service improvements outlined on the preceding page. The total increase in my budget is 9.8 percent. The combined contractual and commodities objects for all operating budgets, the cost over which we generally have the most control, has increased by 5.9 percent. Exclusive of strengthening costs, which, at an 11.3 percent increase, are dictated by the utilities service, the total increase for these objects is 5.0 percent. Please note that the entire fixed costs and miscellaneous subtotal, including capital improvements and debt service, has increased by 9.8 percent. A final recommendation in my budget is to upgrade the position of traffic analyst to a pay scale equivalent to lieutenant's position. This was also a recommendation contained within the consultant's report.

I am pleased to report the continued success of our self insurance plan for our workers' compensation-general liability insurance programs. We are nearing the end of our fourth year of self insurance for these risk areas and project a fiscal year end fund balance of $1,100,000. As you know, the turmoil within the insurance industry during the past two years remains a major concern for all municipalities in fiscal year 1986-87. We remain dependent on the current insurance premium market for many types of coverage. The recent tendency has been for dramatic increases in premiums charged to municipalities, elimination of availability of certain coverages, higher deductibles and in some cases, non-renewal coverage with minimum notice. Whether this trend continues will depend on many factors which will be the subject of a report to be prepared and presented to you at a future date.

Volcker loses out on rates

By Tom Rahn
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker may be losing his seven-year grip on U.S. monetary policy after being defeated by the board's Reagan majority on a critical interest-rate vote, analysts say.

With all four appointments of President Reagan joining forces against Volcker, the board voted 4-3 last month to lower a key interest rate from 7 1/2 percent to 7 percent, according to participants and other government officials.

Asked to comment on the vote, Martha Seeger, one of the Reagan appointees, said the Fed "is not supposed to be a one-person show."

Volcker was able to persuade the board to delay the action for several weeks so the rate cut could be coordinated with other industrialized nations, officials said.

The final action in reducing the discount rate, the fee the Fed charges banks and financial institutions for short-term loans, was announced March 7 after West Germany and Japan had taken similar steps.

At the time, the Fed said the decision had the unanimous approval of the board. Reports of the earlier split vote first surfaced about a week ago and were confirmed by Fed and administration officials Tuesday. The officials spoke only on condition of anonymity.

The February vote was the first time Volcker has been overruled on monetary policy in his seven years as Fed chairman — a fact that economists said could undermine his future effectiveness.

A spokesman for Volcker, Joseph Coyne, denied rumors that he had resigned. He said that he was not about to resign, Coyne said.

Seeger, speaking with reporters after a speech on Tuesday to a credit union association, said she did not know whether Volcker would serve until his term expires in August 1987.

She also said she did not know whether the four Reagan appointees would continue to vote in a bloc, while noting that the 4-3 vote "has signified some independence" of the group. "I intend to vote my conscience," she added.

The last time a Fed chairman was overruled on the issue of a money-policy vote was in 1978 when William Miller was chairman. When news reports of his defeat surfaced, financial markets plummeted — something that did not happen this time.

Intense competition worldwide, shrinking profits in the face of an overvalued U.S. dollar and an embarrassing and enormously expensive legal fight with rival Polaroid Corp. have put Kodak on the defensive and forced it to branch out.

Although Kodak has sold products unrelated to photography in the past, it has recently embarked on a rapid string of acquisitions, joint ventures and new businesses unprecedented in its history.

Chairman Colby Chandler predicts the new businesses, combined with continued success with mainstay products such as film and chemicals, will help Kodak survive. The company currently ranks 28th on Fortune magazine's list of the 500 largest companies, based on sales.

Colby Chandler, 60, chairman of the Eastman Kodak Co., is a native of Maine who says he unwinds by fixing tractors.

Here, he sits at his desk on the 19th floor of the company's office building in Rochester, N.Y.

Kodak takes drastic steps to put its house in order

By David Armon
United Press International

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Eastman Kodak Co., whose film brought images of Donald Duck to the screen and moon-walking astronauts to the world, is struggling to brighten an increasingly dim financial picture.

This past year has been the worst for the company that made a picture-taking a snap rather than an odd hobby requiring more gear than it carried by the average mountain climber.

Once the only name in the photographic business, the 105-year-old Rochester, N.Y., company known for its little yellow boxes of film is just now feeling the same pinch that those who make cars and televisions have been feeling for years.

Intense competition worldwide, shrinking profits in the face of an overvalued U.S. dollar and an embarrassing and enormously expensive legal fight with rival Polaroid Corp. have put Kodak on the defensive and forced it to branch out.

Although Kodak has sold products unrelated to photography in the past, it has recently embarked on a rapid string of acquisitions, joint ventures and new businesses unprecedented in its history.

Chairman Colby Chandler predicts the new businesses, combined with continued success with mainstay products such as film and chemicals, will help Kodak survive. The company currently ranks 28th on Fortune magazine's list of the 500 largest companies, based on sales.

"The company is basically as healthy as it has ever been," said Chandler, 60, a quality control engineer who joined Kodak in 1959 and rose to company's top job in 1983.

Dismal earnings
Chandler's optimism is not shared by many who watched Kodak slip from one of Wall Street's most consistent performers to a company with a 194 million loss in the fourth quarter of 1985, its first as a public company.

As a result of the dismal earnings, Kodak has departed radically from its reputation as the most paternalistic of companies and announced drastic cuts in employment and budgets to get its financial house back in order.

By the end of 1986, Chandler vows to trim the worldwide Kodak work force by nearly 13,000, or 10 percent. Budgets were slashed 5 percent, raises canceled for 130 top-level managers and a review begun of the generous employee wage dividend program.

Technician Lucille Edwards performs a test on an Eastman Kodak Co. "Ektachem" blood analyzer. Faced with stiff competition in its mainstay film business, Kodak has branched out into many areas, including that of medical products.

& Co. "I am very pleased that they finally faced reality. They've got a lot more to do."

Kodak's largest long-term problem has been the strength of the U.S. dollar, which allows Japanese companies such as Fuji to make photographic supplies at a fraction of Kodak's costs, Chandler said. As a result, he estimated the company lost more than $3 billion in earnings in recent years.

"There's nothing that any management can do to cut our earnings in half as the currency has done for us," Chandler said in a recent interview in his office in downtown Rochester.

"You could put an untrained seventh-grader in my job (and) the momentum of the company would keep the earnings going."

Almost as harmful to companies such as Kodak are current U.S. tax laws, Chandler said.

"When you have a tax structure that makes it more attractive for you to produce a product offshore for U.S. market than produce it onshore, that's a notational tax situation," Chandler said.

Stock split won't double dividends

QUESTION:
A stock I own split two for one last June. I had 116 shares before the split and received another 116 shares as a result of the split, making me the owner of 232 shares. The company pays dividends every three months. But, since the split occurred, my quarterly dividend checks have been the same as before the split. My common sense tells me I should be receiving quarterly dividends double the amount I received on 116 shares. Am I dumb or something?

Investors' Guide

William A. Doyle

ANSWER: Don't be harsh on yourself. You've made the all-too-common mistake of assuming a stock split automatically increases dividends. As the old song goes, "It ain't necessarily so."

It was not, in this case. The stock was split but the dividend payments were not boosted.

A stock split and a change in a dividend payment are two separate and distinct things. A stock split simply cuts each share into smaller pieces, each of which represents a share of company ownership.

The two-for-one split of your stock doubled the number of shares owned by you and all other stockholders. Naturally, that doubled the number of shares outstanding. As a result, each of the split shares now represents half as much ownership in the company as each of the pre-split shares.

Let's say the company was paying quarterly dividends of 50 cents a share before the split. On your 116 shares, you received a $58 dividend check every three months.

At the time of the two-for-one split, the dividend was not changed. As a result, the quarterly dividend on the split shares is 25 cents. You continue to get $58 quarterly dividend checks — 232 times 25 cents. The 58-cent dividend on the split stock is equal to the 50-cent dividend on the pre-split shares.

Your thoughts about your dividend checks doubling in size have to be counted as "great expectations." For that to happen, the company would have to increase its dividend payout by a whopping 100 percent. You'll seldom see that monstrous dividend hike.

Companies sometimes increase dividends at the time of stock splits. For example, if the company in which you own stock had boosted its dividend, say, 10 percent, it now would be paying 27.2 cents a share quarterly and you would be getting $63.80 dividend checks on your 232 shares.

QUESTION: On Dec. 4, I bought 200 shares of stock traded on the American Stock Exchange at $44 a share. I paid $8,800, plus commission. The transaction was handled by a bank's brokerage affiliate. My account was charged Dec. 12.

Unknown to me, this stock was to be split three for two Dec. 27, with the effective date being to owners of record Dec. 9. The stock's price in newspaper tables was $42 to $45 until Dec. 28, when it dropped to the split price of $28.

I received certificates for 200 shares in January. So, the stock for which I paid $8,800 now is worth only $5,600. Is there anything I can do besides look at this transaction as a loss?

ANSWER: There's something very wrong here. If the "record date" for that three-for-two stock split was Monday, Dec. 9, the stock should have gone "ex-dividend" at the opening of business Tuesday, Dec. 9.

In that case, you and anyone else who bought that stock in a "regular way" transaction on and after Dec. 9 were not entitled to receive the additional shares resulting from the split.

However, a stock's market price is automatically adjusted downward on the ex-div date — not some future date, as you say. Based on the dates you mention, you should have paid $28 a share. There's no way the ex-dividend adjustment in that stock's market price could take place on Dec. 27 and be reported in Dec. 28 newspapers. It's most unlikely that stock's value would have plunged one-third on any day other than the ex-dividend date.

If you bought 200 shares at the higher price before the actual ex-dividend date, you're entitled to receive another 100 shares resulting from the three-for-two split.

I suspect you've been misinformed about the date. Sit down with the broker and get things squared away.

Dollar bounces back after decline vs. yen

TOKYO (AP) — The U.S. dollar rebounded from record postwar lows against the Japanese yen, closing on the Tokyo Foreign Exchange Market today at 176.80 yen, up 1.90 yen from Tuesday's close of 174.90 yen.

The dollar opened at 175.90 yen and ranged between 175.75 yen and 177.50 yen in heavy trading following rumors that the Bank of Japan had intervened in the New York market Tuesday to support the U.S. currency.

The dollar ranged between 174.60 yen — a postwar record low for Tokyo trading — and 175.85 yen. Spot trading totaled $5.832 billion, up from $3.846 billion on Tuesday.

One dealer, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said he heard that the Bank of Japan intervened in support of the dollar in late New York trading when the dollar was trading there at about 174.30 yen.

The Bank of Japan, the central bank, does not comment on intervention. Traders said the bank did not intervene in Tokyo this morning.

The dollar has fallen about 28 percent since the finance ministers of five major industrial nations agreed last September to cooperate to lead the dollar lower as part of efforts to reduce massive U.S. trade deficits.

Japan, one of the five nations, has supported a strengthening of the yen to help reduce the large Japanese surpluses that have brought complaints from trading partners. But in recent days, the government of Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone has expressed concern that the yen's recent rise has been too rapid, seriously hurting small and medium-size firms that depend on exports.

Kodak cuts costs in struggle to restore winning ways billions more if Kodak loses an appeal and damages are awarded to Polaroid.

Kodak said instant cameras and film had accounted for less than 3 percent of sales, but more than 18 million cameras had been sold. Owners were left with no way to buy film and Kodak was left with a major public image problem.

With annual sales just under $11 billion, Kodak is in no danger of going broke. However, for the first time in the company's history Kodak is branching out full-scale beyond its traditional businesses to bolster earnings.

Kodak has had its hands in several seemingly unrelated industries for several years, making vitamins for three decades and copier machines since the mid-1970s. But now the company is turning to outsiders for growth.

Acquisitions and joint ventures have become commonplace in the past several years, marking a far different strategy for a company that had done almost everything in-house since George Eastman founded the company in 1880.

The string of acquisitions ranges from the 1981 purchase of Ates, a Bedford, Mass., maker of special processing systems for the newspaper and publishing industry, to Verbatim Corp. of Sunnyvale, Calif., a leading maker of computer floppy disks.

Recent joint ventures have concentrated on biotechnology. Kodak is working with Cetus Corp. to develop medical diagnostic products, and with Seattle-based Immunex Corp. to make genetically engineered hormones and proteins.

The newly formed Kodak Life Sciences and Pharmaceutical Divisions are in their infancy, but offer great potential. The company is adding that annual revenues from life science products are expected to be $1 billion by 1990-91.

"We are today where we were in 1983 when the first transistor patent was issued," Chandler said of the life sciences business. "I think Kodak has a great deal to contribute here."

Beyond Rochester

The company is also rebuilding its photographic business, which provided the first motion picture film for Walt Disney and was used by astronauts on manned flights to record their views of the earth and moon.

But in the new Kodak, not all of the new products sporting a "K" are made in Kodak's sprawling Rochester plants.

Chinon Industries, of which Kodak owns 5.5 percent, makes two new fully automatic 35mm cameras for Kodak in the Far East. Both some of the production is expected to be transferred to Rochester later this year.

Cheper Kodak 35mm cameras being sold in Asia and Latin America are manufactured by H.

Haking Enterprises of Hong Kong.

New film-processing mini-labs unveiled by Kodak early this year are also being marketed overseas. In all, Chandler has promised Kodak would introduce more than 50 new photographic products this year.

Everybody is sitting on the pins and needles," said one worker, reacting to Chandler's Feb. 11 announcement that the work force would be cut by 13,000 worldwide. About 1,200 Rochester workers have already been fired since January.

Unlike past years when employees left voluntarily during offers of early retirement, or were laid off, some Kodakers, as the workers are known, are being fired in the new wave of cuts because of poor work records.

"In this city, if you get fired from Kodak, it's like going to hell," said one former worker who was fired in January, apparently for a discipline problem four years ago.

Despite the public's perception that Kodak simply responded to a poor earnings report, with little more than job cuts, Chandler said a cost-cutting program was already in place long before.

The process actually began in the mid-1970s, when several thousand workers left, spokesman Charles Smith said. In 1983, another 11,000 Kodak employees — many of them production workers — were either fired or took early retirements.

Much to the satisfaction of analysts, Chandler has not ruled out the possibility of more cuts to return Kodak to its position of preeminence as a major industrial corporation.
