Lotto fever strikes

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter

Bob Brown, owner of the Memorial Corner Store on Main Street, stood on the roof of his store early this morning wrapping strings of last week's Lotto tickets around the light posts that jut from the front of the building.

"Someone who buys a ticket from my store is going to win this week," Brown said, as people passing by waved or laughed. "Thank you," was his response to the passerby.

He was one of many people thinking about what it would be like to win the jackpot in this week's state Lotto game, now estimated at $17 million. The figure is the biggest in Connecticut's history, surpassing the $12.2 million record prize won last September, state officials said today.

"If I win, I'll help my girls out," said Edna Zitkovitch of Manchester as she bought three tickets at Arthur Drug Store on Main Street. "One is driving a '71 car and the other is driving a '76 — and they've both had it."

Zitkovitch said she would also consider going to Hawaii for a short vacation.

"I've never been there," she said. "They say it's beautiful. I don't know. I know people who have been there three times and I haven't been there once."

"What happens if I win?" asked Jenny Gravelis of Manchester, who bought a ticket at Memorial Corner Store this morning. "I'll retire."

"I'll pay my house off," Manchester resident Esther Schuetz said.

The thought of winning was on the mind of everyone buying a $1 ticket this week. State lottery officials said sales were put at $10 million this morning. Last week, the state sold 7.2 million tickets.

"This is the best week we've ever had," Brown said.

"This is crazy," said Edna Sprague, the manager at Arthur Drug Store. "This is insane. I have to put extra people on to handle the lottery. People are buying 10, 20 or 30 tickets at a time. It's great for

Laying the ground

The afternoon sun shines Wednesday on the World War II Memorial in Muir Park as Park Department worker Randy Brown clears out shrubs to make way for a Korean War monument to be erected this spring. A sidewalk will be constructed next month to connect the two monuments and flowers will be planted by the Perennial Planters. The Korean monument, made in Vermont, will be in place in advance of a May 25 dedication ceremony in the small park between Porter and East Center streets.

U.S. calls off maneuvers in Gulf of Sidra

By Norman Black
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. naval exercises in the Gulf of Sidra will end later today, the Pentagon announced this morning.

A spokesman, Maj. Fred Lash, said only:

"The exercise by the 6th Fleet in the Gulf of Sidra is ending today."

He would not be more specific. Defense Department sources said that if the maneuvers within the gulf do end today, the 6th Fleet vessels would remain nearby in the Mediterranean Sea.

First word that the exercises were about to end came from the Italian government. In Rome, a spokesman said the United States had informed Premier Bettino Craxi's office that the maneuvers would soon be over.

The spokesman, Antonio Ghirelli, said his government had been told of the decision to suspend the operations at 6 a.m. EST. An hour later, a spokesman for the 6th Fleet in Naples said the operations were not yet over.

"The ships are continuing to operate as scheduled," said Capt. Douglas Strole, a Navy joint information bureau spokesman for the U.S. European Command in Naples.

"There haven't been any incidents or things with the 6th Fleet ships. They're continuing to operate in the same area of Sidra," he said.

The Pentagon had said the current naval maneuvers would occur between last Saturday and April 1.

Word of the impending departure came as Libya vowed to retaliate with terrorism for the destruction wrought by the U.S. warships.

It also followed a day on which the Pentagon reported that U.S. planes and ships operated without challenge inside the disputed gulf. The American forces remained on what amounted to a war-time alert, officials said, primed for action against an enemy that didn't appear.

"We have demonstrated that we have the right to operate in international waters," Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims said. "You have to do that periodically. There's nothing unusual about a freedom-of-navigation exercise. What is unusual is that Mr. Khadafy chose to react to it with force."

On Monday morning Eastern time, less than 24 hours after U.S. planes and ships first entered the gulf, Libya fired at least six surface-to-air missiles, according to the Pentagon. U.S. forces on Monday and early Tuesday subsequently sank three Libyan boats, damaged at least one other and twice attacked a radar-guided missile facility near the Libyan town of Sirte, the Pentagon has said.

In the absence of military action Wednesday, the U.S. government ordered tightened security at its installations worldwide.

Among related developments: In a Kremlin speech, Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev called the U.S. missile attacks aggression that was "conceived and planned in advance." He added that he would be willing to withdraw Soviet combat ships from the Mediterranean if the United States would do the same, and offered to begin negotiations on such a withdrawal.

The U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, branding Libya's firing of missiles at the U.S. ships "unprovoked and unjustified," called on the world body to condemn Libya. Ambassador Vernon Walters urged the Security Council to reaffirm the freedom of navigation and to condemn nations that violate that right with force.

Libya's threats of terrorism, which the State Department said were being taken seriously, were carried on the nation's official radio. State Department spokesman Charles Redman called the situation "potentially dangerous" and said Americans abroad were being advised to be careful.

Failure of compromise leads to Senate showdown on aid

Combined Wire Services

The Senate today rejected a blanket ban on aid for the contra rebels fighting Nicaragua's leftist government.

The Senate voted down, 74-24, a proposal by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that would have forbidden U.S. assistance and thus would have effectively scuttled President Reagan's proposed package of $100 million in aid to the rebels.

The vote in the Republican-controlled Senate was the first on a number of amendments expected to be offered to the proposal, which was the final major item on the chamber's agenda before its Easter recess.

The vote came as U.S. Army officials confirmed that Nicaraguan troops had crossed into Honduras and displayed two Nicaraguan soldiers they said were captured in Honduran territory. An army statement Wednesday called the incursion "serious." But government spokesman Lisandro Quezada said it "is not in any way a large-scale invasion."

The army statement did not specify where the reported incursion occurred but said the location indicated the goal of the Nicaraguan operation was "to prevent the infiltration of subversive groups" — U.S.-backed contra rebels fighting to overthrow Nicaragua's leftist government.

Nicaragua, meanwhile, accused

Washington of creating "an artificial conflict" and called for a peace-keeping task force to monitor the border.

The two captured Nicaraguan soldiers presented by Honduran officials at a news conference identified themselves as Mario Salomon Hernandez Mayorga and Carlos Alberto Sandino Ocon of the Nicaraguan army's Francisco Estrada Armored Battalion.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Michael O'Brien placed the location of the reported Nicaraguan raid near Las Trojes, about 80 miles east of Tegucigalpa in El Paraiso province. The site differed from previous Honduran and U.S. reports putting the incursion at least another 30 miles to the east in Olancho province.

In New Orleans, Reagan said the Nicaraguan incursion into neighboring Honduras was "a slap in the face" to House members who voted down his aid plan last week in hopes the action would be taken as an attempt at reconciliation. (Story on page 4.)

In the Senate earlier today, both sides said they were still trying to work out a bipartisan compromise that would give Reagan a strong vote of approval for his package.

Although attempts to work out a compromise broke down Wednesday, "the lines of communication are still open and we are trying to work something out," Senate Minority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., told reporters today.

Australian explosion triggers several blasts

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — A car bomb exploded in front of police headquarters today, triggering a series of blasts that shattered hundreds of windows, injured 21 people and prompted the evacuation of 1,000 office workers.

Police were not immediately able to establish a motive, and no one immediately claimed responsibility for the bombing.

A senior police official described the explosions as a "terrorist attack in the first degree."

Just before the blasts, the police received a telephone call warning that explosives had been set to go off at the 10-story downtown complex, a police spokeswoman said.

The explosions hit at 1 p.m. and continued for 15 minutes, injuring 21 people and rocking buildings for hundreds of feet around in the business district of Australia's second largest city.

LaRouche followers concern Democrats

Directors question spending requests

Several provisions in the recommended budgets for the Manchester water and sewer operations came under scrutiny from members of the Board of Directors at a budget workshop Tuesday night, but no consensus developed over whether they should be changed. Stephen Penny, the town's Democratic majority leader, said he doubted the wisdom of stocking $5,000 worth of components for the computer that operates the water treatment plant and the distribution system. Robert Young, the town water and sewer administrator, said repair parts can be delivered in a day or so. But having some printed circuit boards on hand would allow repairs to be made in a few minutes, he told the directors.

Manchester In Brief

Postal officials are looking at several sites that would allow the consolidation of all branches of the Manchester Post Office. Postmaster Alden Victoria said this week. One vacant building being considered is the former Pic 'n Save grocery store on East Middle Turnpike, but nothing is firm yet, Victoria said. The real estate branch of the post office is doing the site inspections. The Post Office has outgrown its current facilities and needs 22,000 square feet to operate efficiently, Victoria said. "We are losing a lot of time," he said, because the mail processing is done at the main office on Main Street and delivery is done out of the Broad Street office. "We are looking for a site to put the whole operation under one roof," he said. The Manchester post office also has branches in Buckland and Bolton, and the four locations together do not total 22,000 square feet, Victoria said.

Committee OKs Route 83 bill

A bill that would give Manchester $2.2 million to make improvements to a stretch of Route 83 passed the General Assembly's Transportation Committee last week and now goes to the finance committee, state Sen. Carl A. Zinsner, R-Manchester, said Wednesday. Zinsner, one of the bill's sponsors, said the bill has a good chance of being approved by the Finance, Revenue and Bonding Committee and going to the full floor. The bill covers a section of Route 83 between Taylor Street in Manchester and Welles Road in Vernon, which narrows from four to two lanes and has poor drainage. The state Department of Transportation has required developers who want to build in the area to show site plans for improvements to the road. Local businessmen have complained that this practice has kept new businesses from moving in.

Screening scheduled

Two blood pressure screenings are scheduled for April 7 for senior citizens. The first will be held from 9 to 10 a.m. at Westhill Gardens on Bluefield Drive, and the second at the Bennet Apartments on Main Street from 10:45 to 11:30 a.m. for residents of that apartment complex.

Veteran challenges pay disclosure law

A Manchester war veteran has set in motion a challenge to a state law that requires disabled veterans to disclose their incomes annually in order to get the maximum local property tax exemption. The challenge comes from Elwood A. D. Lechasse, a Tanner Street resident who is a veteran of the Vietnam War. Lechasse said he objects to a provision in the law that requires a disabled veteran to fill out a form listing his sources of income. He said his understanding is that the form would become a public record open to anyone's inspection. As a means of establishing the grounds for a challenge, Lechasse sought the exemption from Town Assessor J. Richard Vincent, but refused to disclose his income. That forced Vincent to list his application so that he could appeal to the Board of Tax Review. The tax board was also forced to reject his complaint because he would not disclose his income. Lechasse told the Herald today that the Disabled American Veterans is interested in pursuing the matter, either by getting the General Assembly to change the law or by challenging it in the courts. He said he does not plan to pursue the matter individually. The law in question, Public Act 85-573, was signed into law by Gov. William O'Neill last July. Lechasse, who has a 100 percent disability rating from the Veterans Administration, said he is entitled to an exemption of $4,000, combining his regular exemption as a veteran and exemption for disability. He said he would automatically receive a total exemption of $4,000 under the law even if he did not make an application. Lechasse said he is not primarily concerned with his own case. He said he has talked to disabled veterans who will not apply for exemptions because they do not want to make a public record of their financial status. Lechasse, a newly elected member of the Republican Town Committee, has written letters about the law to state Sen. Carl Zinsner, R-Manchester, and Rep. Elsie Swenson, a Republican who represents the 13th Assembly District in Manchester. Besides having to disclose his sources of income, which he sees as an invasion of privacy, Lechasse said he objects to the requirement that disabled veterans appear personally before the assessor each year. He cited the case of one disabled veteran, now dead, who was confined to a convalescent home and would have been unable to apply. When tax exemptions for veterans are granted, the state reimburses the town for the lost tax revenue. The law in question, Public Act 85-573, was signed into law by Gov. William O'Neill last July.

Crash sends four people to hospital

Four people were injured in a motor vehicle accident Wednesday after the car in which they were traveling crossed the center line on West Middle Turnpike and hit a utility pole, police said today. Police said the driver of the car, John Harris, 29, of Glanbury, was charged with traveling at an unreasonable speed and operating under a suspended license in connection with the crash. He and two other passengers were treated at Manchester Memorial Hospital and released, a hospital spokesman said this morning. A third passenger was listed in satisfactory condition suffering from back injuries, she said. Witnesses told police another car traveling across the center line on West Middle Turnpike, causing Harris to swerve into the eastbound lane and crash into a utility pole at the corner of Edison Road and West Middle Turnpike, police said. Harris told police he was only traveling between 25 and 30 miles an hour, but police said that mark and the extent of damage to the vehicle indicated he was driving at higher speeds. The vehicle that passed Harris before the accident was not found.

Man seeks damages

A Starkweather Street man is asking the town for more than $12,000 to cover damages to his house and three automobiles that occurred when a large tree blew over during Hurricane Gloria. According to papers filed with the town clerk, John C. Lamson Jr. of 86 Starkweather St. is seeking reimbursement of $12,492 for cleanup and repair costs related to the Sept. 27 incident. The oak tree, which was on town-owned land bordering Lamson's property, fell onto the house, punching a hole in the roof, tearing down gutters and smashing a bedroom window, the papers said. Lamson claims the town was negligent because the tree had been dead for a couple of years and he and his wife had asked the town to remove it several times before the hurricane, which brought high winds to the Manchester area and cut power to much of the state. Two days before the storm, the Parks Department designated the hollow tree as dead and slated it for removal. Parks Superintendent Robert Harrison said. Assistant Town Attorney John Conroy said Wednesday there are fewer than five hurricane-related damage claims against the town. He said the town's liability depends upon the circumstances surrounding each incident and refused to discuss the Lamson claim.

Redford fights trucks

Actor Robert Redford and a number of other residents of the scenic mountain pass called Provo Canyon near Sundance, Utah, have joined forces in a bid to seek a ban on truck traffic through the area. About 40 residents turned out for a meeting Tuesday at Redford's Sundance ski area, including Leonard and Barbara Jones, whose daughter, son-in-law and three grandchildren were killed in a traffic accident in the canyon recently. Redford, 49, is a longtime Utah resident.

Sly and loud?

Pop musician Sly Stone's songs are not a hit with the manager of his $1,450-a-month apartment, who is trying to evict him and his roommate for allegedly playing loud music and failing to pay the rent. The suit seeks one month's back rent and the eviction of Stone, 42, and roommate Darryl Armstrong.

Jerry Lee — again

Rock 'n' roller Jerry Lee Lewis is heading for divorce court with his sixth wife claiming he bloodied her nose when they argued about his interest in other women. In a divorce petition filed Wednesday in Memphis, Tenn., Kerrie McCarver Lewis, 23, claims her 50-year-old husband has "a quick and violent temper and that he has sexually abused and threatened her on occasions too numerous to mention." She married Lewis in Memphis two years ago, less than a year after his fifth wife died of a drug overdose.

Wavering no more

Singer Rudy Vallee was "wavering between life and death" with cancer before he improved, a publicist says. "Rudy Vallee came very close to saying goodbye to all of us. There were slim chances he would survive," Chris Harris said Wednesday in Los Angeles. "Today for the first time in six weeks, Rudy had food." "His wife and I fed him chocolate pudding." Vallee, 85, had cancer of the esophagus, which was removed by surgery last week, but he was expected to regain his voice. Vallee remained under intensive care in a private room, Harris said. Vallee's wife of 36 years, Eleanor, had refused to permit officials at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center to disclose her husband's ailment or condition. His hospitalization was disclosed last week, but in fact he was admitted Feb. 6, Harris said.

Libyan media calls for suicide attacks

By Kevin Costelloe

TRIPOLI, Libya — The official media called on all Arabs to make suicide attacks against American targets around the world, but despite the rhetoric the Libyan capital and the disputed Gulf of Sidra appeared quiet.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said in Washington that Libyan agents have U.S. installations under surveillance and may have targeted Americans for attack. He called the situation "potentially dangerous."

Libyan radio, monitored by the British Broadcasting Corp. in London, urged Arabs of all countries to transform themselves "into suicide squads and into human bombs, missiles and aircraft to deter and resist terrorism and destroy it for good."

President blasts Ortega's motives

By W. Dale Nelson

NEW ORLEANS — As the Senate neared a vote on his $100 million aid request for Nicaragua, President Reagan said today a new Nicaraguan offensive against rebels in Honduras was "a slap in the face" to House members who last week rejected his aid plan in hopes Nicaragua would see the action as an attempt at reconciliation.

He charged the leftist Sandinista government had lied when it denied crossing the border in what Reagan called an invasion of Honduran territory.

Reagan's remarks were in a speech prepared for a GOP fundraising luncheon in New Orleans, his first public appearance since the United States engaged Libyan forces in the disputed Gulf of Sidra and rushed emergency military aid to Honduras to repel the reported Nicaraguan attacks.

Soviets rip actions

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, accusing the United States of waging a planned "punitive" attack against Libya, has proposed that Moscow and Washington remove their fleets from the Mediterranean.

"The United States is not stalling words in justifying that act of aggression," he said Wednesday.

"We resolutely denounce the aggressive anti-Libyan actions of the U.S.A.," Gorbachev said.

He expressed solidarity with the Libyan people, who he said were "standing up for their sacred right to freedom and independence from imperialist encroachments."

Gorbachev's sweeping condemnation of Washington, his first response to the conflict, was made at a Kremlin dinner speech in honor of visiting Algerian leader Chadli Bendjedid, whose nation is located on Libya's western border.

He said the presence of U.S. ships involved in "provocative and threatening" activities off the Libyan coast had become permanent, even before the fighting broke out Monday in the disputed Gulf of Sidra.

Israel jets attack Palestinian camp

SIDON, Lebanon — Israeli jets attacked Palestinian refugee camps outside Sidon today, killing 10 people and wounding 22, police said. The attack came shortly after a rocket exploded in an Israeli town near the Lebanese border.

Guerrillas in the Ein-el-Hilweh and Mieh-Mieh refugee camps and the nearby hilltop village of Sirobiuh unleashed barrages of shoulder-fired SAM-7 anti-aircraft missile at the Israeli fighter-bombers.

Police said no hits were reported on the three planes that made six attack runs firing rockets on the four targets. Israel's military command reported all planes returned safely to their base.

Israel's military command said the air strike was launched 1 1/2 hours after a Soviet-made Katyusha rocket fired from southern Lebanon hit a school yard in the northern Israeli town of Kiryat Shmona. All the camps near Sidon attacked today are strongholds of PLO chief Yasser Arafat's mainstream Fatah movement.

Police say 2,500 blacks arrested

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police said today they shot dead two blacks in a slum near Cape Town when a crowd freed a private vehicle, bringing to an end the number of blacks killed in two days anti-apartheid unrest.

It has been one of the most violent outbreaks since daily rioting began in September 1984. Police confirmed 27 black deaths from police gunfire and three in black-against-black fighting.

Meanwhile, police in the black homeland of Bophuthatswana said 2,500 blacks were arrested after police fired on a crowd of protesters at a mass rally Wednesday, killing 11 people.

Col. Dave George, in the homeland capital, Mafikeng, also said 32 people were admitted to a hospital with gunshot wounds, and an undetermined number of other people were treated for lesser wounds. Residents said they believed as many as 100 people were wounded by the gunfire.

Bophuthatswana President Lucas Mangope ordered a judicial inquiry into the shootings, said Minister of State Affairs Rowan Cronje. Police insisted they fired in self-defense.

LaRouche candidates flood U.S. ballots

Democratic candidates for lieutenant governor and secretary of state who had anticipated easy victories. That forced Democratic gubernatorial candidate Adlai Stevenson to renounce his ticket, saying he won't run as a regular Democrat with a radical.

Warren Hamerman, chairman of the National Democratic Policy Committee, said there are about 780 candidates in 29 states affiliated with NDPC goals. They include 170-180 for the house, 15 for senate and seven for governor.

Richard jury selection to continue

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — A tentative 16-member jury, which includes a meat cutter, a teacher, a library assistant and a housewife, has been selected to hear testimony in the rape trial of Ralph Richard.

Rhode Island law allows lawyers for both sides eight challenges by which they can excuse a tentative juror without reason. Once a tentative juror is excused, lawyers must then screen other potential jurors until the vacancy is filled.

Jury selection was scheduled to continue today. If the jury can be finalized by the end of this week, the trial will begin Monday. Superior Court Judge Joseph Rodgers has not yet decided whether the panel will have to be sequestered.

Richard, 34, is charged with sexually assaulting his infant daughter Jerrri Ann. His wife, Donna, 33, is charged with killing the child and will be tried later this year.

They are both charged with attempting to stonewall police by reporting the child kidnapped on Nov. 11, 1984. Four days later, the baby's body was discovered in a Pawtucket alley. Less than a block from the couple's former home in Pawtucket.

More needed than quick fix

Gov. William O'Neill's proposal to boost aid to cities and towns to offset imminent federal spending cuts differs dramatically from the push by Republican legislators to use the state surplus to reduce taxes. But both are quick-fix approaches that fail to address the problems of the future.

This year is certainly shaping up as a watershed for the state and local governments across the nation because of the Reagan administration's plan to return many responsibilities to the local level. Connecticut stands to lose $54 million as a result of the elimination of revenue sharing alone.

The aid plan introduced by the governor last week might reduce the initial shock, but it would not be prudent for municipalities to rely on aid of this sort in the future. And the GOP alternative, a tax cut, would be foolhardy at best under the circumstances.

Given the situation, mayors, city councils and boards of selectmen must be careful about the way they approach Gov. O'Neill's apparent largesse. The same holds true of citizens and the GOP's tax-reduction plan.

If the O'Neill plan passes, local governments must not introduce programs that they may prove unable to maintain after the one-shot deal has expired. If the Republicans slash $100 million from the state tax bite, taxpayers should wait to cheer until they see the amount of the resulting increases in levies on their property.

In the end, both plans smack of election-year maneuvering and make for good politics, but poor public policy.

The challenge both the governor and the General Assembly's Republican leadership should be facing up to is the development of a thoughtful, long-term plan that attempts to prepare the state for more than the next few months.

For now, however, the governor's program is the better choice of the two available.

Under his proposal, the state would allocate $15 million in direct aid to municipalities. It would provide another $9.8 million for the elderly, the handicapped and programs affecting child welfare, job training, education and the environment.

O'Neill's alternative offers to provide relief to the residents who need it most, something any reduction in so-called nuisance taxes would not achieve.

But like the GOP, the governor and his administration have failed to take into account that the proposed assistance may only lead to bigger problems if the economy goes sour and the state can't make a similar commitment in future years.

The real charge to both the executive and legislative branches is to fashion a comprehensive plan to maintain services through 1991 as federal spending dwindles.

As things stand, the state ranks second in the nation in its reliance on property taxes to fund local services, according to a spokesman for the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities. With the coming federal cutbacks, there will be an even greater burden on such taxes unless the state takes the initiative.

There is no question that state aid programs are the best way to help the municipalities faced by both rural communities and cities with blighted areas. The state can tax people equitably and is in a position to ensure that revenues are distributed fairly.

But cities and towns must be able to count on steady sources of income that don't change radically every time the political winds begin to blow.

The risky numbers game for delegates

It's difficult to say at this point whether Democrats in Manchester will be going to the polls May 20 to determine whether the town's convention delegates support Gov. William O'Neill or Toby Moffett for the party's gubernatorial nomination.

But a primary is a distinct possibility and would undoubtedly produce some interesting exchanges. State Central Committeeman John Sullivan, a staunch O'Neill backer, has been saying all along that he favors a primary in which one of the candidates would capture all 23 of the delegate posts. And Democratic Registrar of Voters Herbert Stevenson, who has been appointed by O'Neill to coordinate his Manchester campaign, said this week: "We are prepared to primary."

Stevenson said the group has made no firm decision about whether to force a primary. But he said preparations are under way in case the decision is made.

The Democratic Town Committee has already taken a vote that puts 19 of the 23 delegates in the O'Neill camp. If there is no challenge from either side, the governor will get 19 delegates without any further effort on the part of his campaign.

With that established, why are some of his supporters so interested in going through the trouble of forcing a divisive primary that could only gain them four more delegates - delegates O'Neill surely will not need to win endorsement at the state convention?

ONE ANSWER is that every delegate in the O'Neill column is one less in the Moffett column. Moffett needs at least 20 percent of the total number of delegates in order to challenge O'Neill in a primary for the nomination. The more delegates Moffett gets beyond 20 percent, the Court bill needs voters' support

To the Editor:

Working men and women of Connecticut who are charged with minor motor vehicle infractions and traffic violations should be entitled to their constitutional right to due process and access to the courts without facing the prospect of losing pay.

People who hold first-shift jobs and are cited for a minor traffic offense must often choose between paying a fine they may believe is undeserved or losing time from work to make repeated daytime court appearances.

Citizens who want a judge to decide their cases must come to court a minimum of two days, sometimes more.

After losing several days' pay to make repeated court appearances, many Connecticut motorists feel pressured - either by their bosses or by reduced pay checks - to plead guilty to a charge just to get back to work without ever being able to explain the time of the summons to a judge. In these instances, due process and access to the courts becomes something limited to those citizens with flexible work schedules and understanding supervisors.

Under legislation passed in 1984 to fund state infrastructure repairs, traffic fines are scheduled to increase 125 percent over the next six years. Ultimately, a motorist who pleads guilty or is found guilty of driving 56 m.p.h. on a limited access highway or parkway will be subject to fines and penalties totaling more than $350. The prospect of having to pay these increased fines will further pressure working people who feel like they have been unjustly charged to lose time from their jobs to appear in court to explain any extenuating circumstances.

A bill that we are sponsoring in the General Assembly, Senate Bill 400, offers an alternative to this unfortunate circumstance. On a pilot basis, the bill would establish a voluntary night court for minor motor vehicle cases. People accused of violations which are not punishable by imprisonment (this excludes negligent homicide, drunk driving, reckless driving, etc., which can carry a jail term) could have their cases heard by a magistrate weekday evenings between 6 p.m. and 11 p.m.

Other states that have implemented a night court have found the system fair, workable and popular.

Connecticut's need for a night traffic court will be even more pressing as planned traffic fine increases are implemented and the threat of increased auto insurance coverage premiums

They may simply be saying, "If you primary, we will too, and we'll fight to take away the four delegates you have."

Moffett and his backers claim a lot of support among rank-and-file Democrats who are not closely tied to the party establishment. Moffett himself in effect challenged the Democratic Town Committee on the evening of March 19 to determine the number of delegates to apportion to each gubernatorial candidate by polling all registered Democrats in town.

The claim of popular support may well be exaggerated - one Manchester Moffett backer put the split between his candidate and O'Neill at 50-50 - but Moffett would not need a majority of Manchester Democrats to win a primary.

Ortner finally acknowledged that the skeletal evidence he saw was not decisive. "I cannot, on the basis of what I see, resolve the question of whether it is a hoax or not," he said. "There is nothing that pins it down to a specific person... The variables are not sufficiently fine to make the point that it is Mengele."

His gut instinct based on other tests, Ortner said, is that the bones in the Brazilian grave were Mengele's.

When Mayor Weinberg announced her support for Moffett, she did not surprise many party regulars. But she undoubtedly antagonized those who have been her supporters.

As Thomas O'Neill, the Democratic chairman in Voting District 8, put it: "I worked 100 percent to get her in. I'll work 200 percent to get her out."

That may be the key to the apparent eagerness on the part of the O'Neill people to talk about a primary in such positive terms.

Mengele careful to hide records

WASHINGTON - Just as investigators from the United States, West Germany and Israel were in hot pursuit of Dr. Josef Mengele, the most notorious Nazi war criminal still on the lam, his family suddenly announced last year that he had drowned in 1978 and that his bones were buried in Brazil.

Forensic experts examined the skeletal remains and identified the bones as Mengele's "with reasonable scientific certainty." This led the three governments to call off their search for Adolf Hitler's "Angel of Death."

We pointed out some curious discrepancies that aroused our suspicion that maybe, just maybe, Mengele had pulled a hoax on the world and had escaped again. Our associate Laurette Lagado pursued clues from Germany to Paraguay.

Now the United States' leading forensic dentist, Dr. Albert Dahlberg, has asked the Simon Wiesenthal Center to reopen the investigation of the skeletal remains exhumed in Brazil. He is professor emeritus of anthropology at the University of Chicago and is considered the dean and pioneer of forensic dentistry. This is the science of identifying bodies by teeth and the dental records.

DAHLBERG SAID he was not impressed by the explanations various team members made recently at the annual convention of forensic scientists in New Orleans. "I think there is much that is unanswered," Dahlberg said. "They were a little too hasty, and the evidence was meager."

The forensic medicine team is still split over its pending final report on the skeletal remains. Some members are anxious to have done with the matter; others want to have all the lingering doubts resolved before submitting the final report.

One frustrating concern is that the Brazilian government, after almost 10 months of trying, has been unable to turn up a single X-ray that could be used to identify the skeleton positively. Mengele's diaries - which have been authenticated - told of numerous physical ailments that would likely have led to X-rays, as did testimony of the people who matched him in exile for more than 20 years.

Although doctors and dentists who treated Mengele have been found, none had an X-ray of their notorious patient. Mengele insisted on obtaining all his X-rays, they said.

ONE CURIOUS INCIDENT involved Mengele's hairball, apparently caused by ingestion of mustache brushes that lodged in his digestive tract. The doctor who treated Mengele was located, and he recalled the difficulty he had borrowing the X-rays he had taken when he wanted to discuss the unusual operation at a medical conference some time later.

The patient, whom the doctor knew then as Wolfgang Gerhard, was extremely reluctant to part with the X-rays even for a few days, and finally agreed only on condition that no copies be made. He scrupulously counted each X-ray, and checked them just as carefully when the doctor returned them.

X-rays of the lower abdomen would almost surely include portions of the pelvis and spine that could be matched against the bones dug up in Brazil. Mengele, himself an anthropologist, would have known that such X-rays could demolish any hoax he might have been planning.

Dental records are also conspicuously absent, and Dahlberg said he was unimpressed by the dental evidence found in the Brazilian grave. He believes genetic studies might help to identify the few teeth as Mengele's or not, but this would require the Mengele family's cooperation, which has not been forthcoming.

MEANWHILE, THE REPORT of Dr. Donald Ortner, a Smithsonian Institution anthropologist who examined some of the remains independently, was inconclusive. When asked the crucial question, Ortner first replied: "There is nothing in the skeleton which proves it is Mengele." But he also pointed out: "There is nothing which proves it is not Mengele."

Ortner finally acknowledged that the skeletal evidence he saw was not decisive. "I cannot, on the basis of what I see, resolve the question of whether it is a hoax or not," he said. "There is nothing that pins it down to a specific person... The variables are not sufficiently fine to make the point that it is Mengele."

His gut instinct based on other tests, Ortner said, is that the bones in the Brazilian grave were Mengele's.

When Mayor Weinberg announced her support for Moffett, she did not surprise many party regulars. But she undoubtedly antagonized those who have been her supporters.

As Thomas O'Neill, the Democratic chairman in Voting District 8, put it: "I worked 100 percent to get her in. I'll work 200 percent to get her out."

Alex Girelli is associate editor of the Manchester Herald.

That may be the key to the apparent eagerness on the part of the O'Neill people to talk about a primary in such positive terms.

Governor says poll 'hogwash'

By Mark A. Dupuis
United Press International

HARTFORD - Gov. William A. O'Neill has dismissed as "hogwash" a poll that Senate Republicans say is proof the public wants his budget slashed and taxes cut by up to $100 million this year.

Senate President Pro Tempore Philip S. Robertson, R-Cheshire, said Wednesday the poll found little support for the $4.92 billion total budget proposed in February by the Democratic governor.

Robertson said more than of the respondents favored a Senate GOP plan to limit spending to 7 percent above this year's budget and to cut taxes by at least $100 million in the coming fiscal year.

"In general, the results indicate there is a large feeling that the governor's budget (with a 10.98 percent overall increase) is too high," said Robertson, the top leader of the Republican-controlled Senate.

While Robertson defended the poll as a scientific sample of public sentiment, others attacked the validity of the survey with an aide quoting O'Neill as describing the findings as "hogwash."

Robertson denied the poll questions were written to provide the desired answers, saying the questions were worded by Everett C. Ladd, director of the Roper Center for Public Opinion Research at the University of Connecticut.

"We didn't know how the results would come in," Robertson said. Robertson released the poll results in advance of a meeting Tuesday where the Republican-controlled Appropriations Committee is scheduled to vote on a proposed budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Rep. Otto C. Neumann, R-Granby, the committee's co-chairman, said the panel will present a budget with a 9 percent increase over current spending, or about $80 million less than the governor's plan.

The $80 million cut in O'Neill's proposed budget reflects the sentiments of House Republicans. Senate Republicans want to cut the spending increase to 7 percent, which would be about $170 million less than the O'Neill package.

Senate Republicans want the deeper cuts to allow for up to $100 million in state tax cuts, while House Republicans have yet to commit themselves to any major tax cut this year.

Neumann said the Appropriations Committee will go with the House version of the budget and will then work out a compromise plan to send on to O'Neill for his signature.

Robertson said 11.1 percent of the 3,183 voters who responded to the poll favored leaving O'Neill's budget intact, while 52.1 percent favored a 7 percent spending increase and tax cuts and 36.8 percent favored no spending hike.

Bucci blasts tax-cut plan

By Lydo Phillips
United Press International

BRIDGEPORT - The Democratic mayor of the state's largest city says Republican legislators are "completely irresponsible" when they propose statewide tax reductions rather than increased state aid to cities.

"The Republican leadership does not seem inclined to give support to our large cities," Mayor Thomas W. Bucci said Wednesday at a weekly news conference.

Bucci said he and other mayors support a proposal by Gov. William A. O'Neill, a Democrat, which would return a portion of the state's surplus directly to municipalities to offset reductions in federal revenue-sharing and block grant payments. Bridgeport faces a loss of more than $5 million in federal funds under the Reagan administration's proposal for drastic cuts in federal aid to municipalities, Bucci said.

"To have this wrenched away all in one year I think is very unfair," Bucci said.

In addition, the city will see a $6 million increase in debt service in the next fiscal year and a $5 million fine because of a failure to keep and maintain proper welfare records, said John G. Nerko, the mayor's chief administrative aide.

Without increased state aid, the city faces increased property taxes and the elimination of city programs, Bucci said. "It just means tough times for the city of Bridgeport," he said.

City budget planners are already preparing a list of proposed cuts in city programs, Bucci said.

No area will be safe from cuts except those programs that provide services to the elderly and police and firefighters, which are already seriously understaffed, Bucci said.

Under O'Neill's proposals, Bridgeport would receive $4 million in educational funds and more than $2 million more in other funding to offset the loss of federal revenue-sharing funds.

Petroni pushes primaries

HARTFORD (UPI) - Republican gubernatorial candidate Romeo G. Petroni says he will force primaries in at least two cities for choosing delegates to this summer's GOP nominating convention.

Petroni, a former senator from Bridgeport, said Wednesday he will wage primary fights in Hamden and Stamford and also is considering a primary for convention delegates from West Hartford.

In announcing plans for the official primaries May 20, Petroni said he is dropping a threat to seek a court order to block the "Super Tuesday" series of unofficial primaries set May 6 in six towns.

Although not challenging Super Tuesday in court, Petroni could throw the idea into doubt by forcing a formal primary in West Hartford, the largest of the Super Tuesday towns.

The unofficial primaries will be open to Republicans and unaffiliated voters and although not legally binding GOP leaders want towns to pledge their delegates to the candidate who wins in the town.

Thus, one set of delegates could be chosen as a result of the Super Tuesday primary in West Hartford and another in an official May 20 primary where only Republicans could vote.

"I don't see it as a problem," said Republican State Chairman Thomas J. D'Amore Jr. He said he could not see a state of delegates committed through the unofficial primary being replaced by a formal primary later on.

Petroni's plans for official primaries May 20 in Hamden and Stamford bring to at least three the number of towns where delegate primaries may be held.

Deputy House Majority Leader Julie D. Belaga of Westport has said she will wage primaries for delegates from Stamford and Hartford.

Meanwhile Wednesday, GOP candidate Richard C. Bezut picked up a key legislative endorsement while Democratic Gov. William A. O'Neill picked up new endorsements.

Finance board cuts said to scrap 'gentlemen's agreement'

By George Lovner
Herald Reporter

BOLTON — Members of the Board of Education and Board of Selectmen said Wednesday they were surprised and disappointed by cuts made by the Board of Finance in their spending proposals for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

"I expected a cut, but not a cut of that dimension," said school board member John T. Muro, referring to the $40,000 trimmed by the finance board from the proposed education budget of $2,908,209.

"We're all concerned."

The finance board also cut $150,000 from the proposed general town budget of $1,584,489. If the reductions are approved, residents will have to pay an estimated 1.7 mills more than the current $2.4-mill tax rate. Had the cuts not been made, taxes would have climbed an estimated 4.1 mills.

"I expected it to be cut. I didn't expect it to be cut as much," said Selectman Sandra Pierog, a Democrat. She maintained that the cuts mean the town's general budget — which includes everything but education spending — will show negative growth for the second consecutive year if the capital expenditure items are considered separately.

"We can't do too many of these and still provide services," she said.

Fire and First Selectman Douglas Cheney, a Republican, both objected to the way the Board of Finance cut the town budget.

Both said they thought the two panels had "a gentlemen's agreement" under which the finance board would only trim a certain amount of money and the selectmen would "pick and choose" where to make the cuts.

DURING A SPECIAL meeting Wednesday, the selectmen approved a plan proposed by Selectman Carl Preuss that would mean a tax increase of 1.5 mills instead of the 1.7 mills required under the finance board's plan.

Preuss's suggestion calls for using federal revenue sharing money to cover the $50,000 cost of land behind the community hall instead of funding the expense from the 1986-87 fiscal year budget.

Townpeople hold the final say on how the revenue sharing funds will be used. A public hearing is scheduled for Tuesday, with a vote slated for April 9.

The finance board's budget proposal will be considered during public hearings April 14 and April 16. A final budget plan will be voted on by residents at a May 12 town meeting.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION is scheduled to meet tonight to discuss where the cuts will be made in the school proposal. Chairman James H. Marshall said Wednesday the most likely area is curriculum expenses.

He said the proposal to increase the number of teaching positions, including the hiring of a Spanish

Colt talks break off as strike continues

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) — Colt Firearms Division and the union representing 1,100 workers have broken off its third set of contract talks in the nearly nine-week strike at two Connecticut plants, officials say.

"We didn't get anywhere today," said Thomas Carroll, a federal mediator who arranged the 45-minute session Wednesday at the state Department of Labor.

Carroll said he halted the meeting between Colt and Local 376 of the United Auto Workers after the two sides failed to reach a compromise.

"We recessed the meeting," Carroll said. "We just didn't make any progress."

Bob Brown, who owns the Memorial Corner Store on Main Street, hangs last week's losing lottery tickets around the light posts above his store this morning.

"The company you can't negotiate if the company is going to go to court," Wheeler said. "The company should be there to negotiate, not to make insults."

Richard S. Reibeling, Colt vice president for personnel, said 133 of the 1,100 members of the collective bargaining unit have returned to work and are keeping the plants operating along with more than 300 other workers hired since the strike began.

"We've got a situation here where we've got a two-month strike and people are suffering. There's no question of that," Reibeling said. "We continue to remain willing to meet and have always done so."

The last negotiations March 12 broke down after only about 10 minutes when Colt refused to budge from the offer it made shortly after the strike began. The initial bargaining session after the strike also was brief and fruitless.

The company has been offering a three-year contract with no wage increases in the first year and 4 percent raises in each of the two following years.

The union was asking for 8 percent raises in all three years, but earlier this month reduced its offer by one-half percent in each of the first two years.

The bitter dispute has been marked by charges of harassment and arrests on the picket line.

Sprague and others interviewed this morning said they have either doubled or tripled their sales over previous weeks. Many said this week's sales were even bigger than the "great week" they had before Friday's $10 million Lotto drawing, which no one won.

Sprague has sold almost $1,700 worth of tickets each day, she said, while Ashwin Javia, the owner of Coventry Farms Dairy Store on Main Street, estimated that people would hit $5,000 this week, compared to about $2,000 in other weeks. He said the rush started

Bolton LMC goes to referendum

BOLTON — Townpeople voted Wednesday to hold an April 10 referendum on whether to build a proposed $493,000 library and media center at Bolton High School.

In an eight-minute special town meeting at Community Hall, about 35 residents unanimously approved the referendum plan without discussion. The 2,800-square-foot addition, which has been endorsed by the Board of Selectmen, the Board of Finance, the Public Building Commission and the Planning Commission, would house a larger library and provide space for a reading room and conference center.

If voters approve the project, 60 percent of the cost will be reimbursed by the state Department of Education.

Assistant manager may take on town legal role

A proposal that Assistant Town Manager Steven Werber be allowed to do legal work for the office of the town attorney and get separate compensation for it will be considered by the Board of Directors Tuesday night.

Werber graduated from law school in 1984 and passed the Connecticut bar examination the same year.

Town Manager Robert Weiss said in a report to the Board of Directors that the town could save money by using the knowledge Werber has gained in law to carry out selected legal assignments from the town attorney.

The compensation proposed would amount to $2,480 for the months of May, June and July. Weiss said it would be based on an average of seven hours of work a week outside Werber's regular hours.

Weiss said that legal matters relating to personnel and labor relations would mostly be handled during regular working hours which, "for this position have in the past been in excess of the normal 35-hour work week."

Weiss said in the report that a survey of other communities shows that without the expense developed by Werber, the town could be faced with spending large amounts of money for legal services related to labor law and compensation.

Werber's current salary as assistant town manager is $28,258. If a recommendation by Weiss is approved by the Board of Directors, the salary will increase next year to $41,100.

Whalers, picking up steam, flatten Habs

Shutout in goal by Mike Liut boosts Hartford into fourth place

By Bob Papentl
Herald Sports Writer

HARTFORD — Get out of the way, here come the Whalers. The steam-rolling Whalers flattened — of all people — the once-mighty Montreal Canadiens, 3-0 Wednesday night before 15,877 green-bladed hockey fans at the Civic Center.

Hartford, 27-35-3 for 77 points, squeezed into sole possession of fourth place in the Adams Division. Back at the end of February, the only assurance that the then-whaling Whalers had was flashing in the top five. Now it's not even that they're a better-than-even bet to make the Final Four.

With just five regular-season games remaining, the greedy Whalers are three points out of second place. Quebec leads the tight division with 87 points followed by Montreal 80, Boston 78, Hartford 77 and Buffalo 76.

No. 1 and only goaltender Mike Liut, fresh off his NHL player of the week award, swallowed 30 shots on goal to post his second shutout of the season and extend Hartford's unbeaten streak to 5-1.

Only four squads in the league — Edmonton, Philadelphia, Washington and Quebec — have more wins than the Whalers.

In less than four weeks the Whale has gone from diving to surviving to thriving, and it's no mere coincidence that Liut has started the entire 12-puck of a 2-1 bludge.

It must be March. Last year, the Whalers finished up on a 3-2 high note, but those games didn't mean anything. They were already out of it.

"We made some crucial plays," said Liut, after handing the suddenly hapless Habs their ninth loss in 11. "I think, looking back, we'll find that this game was very critical for us."

Catalyst Kevin Dineen snapped a shutout at the end of the second period with another one of his heroic goals, and Scott Kleinemeck and Ron Francis clinched it with successive tallies in the first 47 seconds of the third.

The visitors actually held the advantage in play throughout the second period of an Adams Division game that was predicated on physical, defiant and defensive. The opening session was highlighted — or marred, depending on your point of view — by the season's longest flatfoot between Whaler Wayne Babych and Canadian Steve Roomey.

With 2:51 left in the middle period, Dineen took a pass from John Anderson and broke into the Canadiens' net wearing not one but two Canadiens, Bob Gainey and Chris Chelios.

On the descent on net, Gainey managed to pick up Dineen's stick off the puck, but the Canadiens right winger stayed whacked a polo shot — of the one-handed back-hander variety — over netminder Patrick Roy.

"I thought he had me, but all of a sudden I had that one last chance, and I got one last sawt at it," said Dineen, who has 28 goals for the season.

The fans, none of whom left early, responded with the longest ovation of the campaign for one play. It was a memorable goal coming at a memorable time.

The Canadiens, who have played the best hockey of his Hartford career since rejoining the lineup in Hartford, were kept out of the net from the left through a maze of bodies to make it 2-0, just 15 seconds into the final stanza.

Hartford's John Anderson finds himself sandwiched between Montreal players Craig Ludwig (left) and Chris Chelios in first-period action at the Hartford Civic Center Wednesday night. The Whalers blanked the Canadiens, 3-0, to move into fourth place in the Adams Division.

NBA roundup

Celts, ho hum, win again
The Boston Celtics won in Boston Garden. What else is new.

With Larry Bird taking charge down the stretch, Boston defeated Milwaukee 121-115 on Wednesday night. The Celtics' 25th straight home victory this season.

"We don't like to lose at home," said Coach K.C. Jones.

The 25 straight home triumphs moved Boston within two of the NBA record, set 36 years ago by the Minneapolis Lakers.

In other games Wednesday night, it was Cleveland 110, New Jersey 108; Philadelphia 112, Atlanta 103; Washington 120, Dallas 112; Houston 110, Indiana 101; Utah 116, Denver 101; Phoenix 120, Seattle 107; and San Antonio 105, Los Angeles Clippers 97.

Milwaukee gave the Celtics a lot of trouble until Bird took charge with a pair of layups and two free throws for a 115-109 advantage.

Dennis Johnson's baseline jumper at 2:16 completed an 8-0 run that clinched Boston's ninth straight victory.

Bird finished with 35 points for Boston. Terry Cummings led Milwaukee with 31.

Ueberroth is banning freeloaders

NEW YORK (UPI) — Baseball Players' Association leader Donald Fehr withheld comment on Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's guidelines limiting access to major league playing fields, dugouts and dressing rooms until he reviews the new regulations.

Ueberroth declared Wednesday afternoon that he has limits to "all but essential personnel" in an effort to tighten clubhouse security.

Ueberroth said players' friends, business associates, agents, attorneys, equipment salesmen, vendors or unauthorized doctors or therapists no longer will be allowed to roam freely in the clubhouse or on the playing field.

"I'm not aware that agents were ever allowed on the field or in the clubhouse before," said Fehr, the Major League Baseball Players' Association executive director of the Major League Baseball Players' Association. "I'm not sure exactly what has changed, but I won't comment until I actually see the release from the Commissioner myself."

Besides the clubhouses, dugouts and fields, other areas of limited access include the managers' offices, shower rooms, trainers and doctors rooms, players' lounges, umpires' dressing rooms, laundry and equipment rooms and video, weight and exercise rooms.

Other than the players, the coaches and the manager, the only people who will have access to those areas are Players Association representatives, trainers, team physicians, appropriate club, league and central office officials and employees, accredited members of the media and those people necessary for the normal conduct of club operations.

Members of the players' immediate families will be permitted, as long as the club approves.

Other groups, where appropriate and with the approval of the club, will be granted access to restricted areas on a limited basis.

One player agent, Tony Attanasio, applauded Ueberroth's action. "I think it's fantastic," Attanasio said Wednesday. "It should have been done long ago."

Attanasio, who represents 30 major league players, said agents and attorneys have no business being on the field or in the locker room. "I just think it's ridiculous having agents climb all over these kids," he said. "If agents have any dealings with a player at the park they can meet him before he gets ready for the game or when he's ready to leave."

All 26 clubs also were advised that more stringent security should be applied when on road trips, through better communications with local law enforcement and hotel security personnel.

Boston's Robert Parish (00) gets his hook shot off over the defense of Milwaukee's Terry Cummings Wednesday night at Boston Garden. The Celtics won their 25th in a row at home, 121-115.

Broten first American with 100 points
The playmaking wizard from Roseau, Minn., Wednesday night became the first American-born player to surpass 100 points in an NHL season with two assists in the North Stars' 6-1 triumph over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Broten set up linemate Dino Ciccarelli and Scott Bjurgast and each of whom scored twice in the game.

"I see my job as getting the puck to them and they put it in the net. I'm trying to think pass instead of shoot a lot of times," he said in a post-game interview.

Broten has 100 points in 117 games, just one game without a point and then all of a sudden I get three points."

At Vancouver, British Columbia, Gary Lupul and Doug Halward each scored their second goal of the game during a four-goal, second-period rally against Quebec goaltender Mario Gosselin, who gave up seven goals in 19 shots.

Chris Petersen athlete of the week

HARTFORD — Chris Petersen, a graduate of Manchester High School, was University of Hartford "Athlete of the Week" for his performance during the week ending Feb. 23. Petersen, a third baseman/shortstop on the baseball team, was Hartford's most consistent player as the Hawks made a western swing through Arizona and New Mexico to launch their 1986 season. Petersen had a 12-game hitting streak and led the team with 18 hits. He was batting .409 after 13 games.

Jarvis-Smith wins bowling crown

WINDSOR LOCKS — Mary Jarvis-Smith of Manchester won her first TV Sports Tournament Club championship at Bradley Bowl last Friday. Jarvis-Smith, a 142 average bowler, bowled a 350 including handicap in the three-game set to beat her son, Charlie Smith Jr. of New Britain. The tournament meets ever Friday at Bradley Bowl.

Smith wins superbowl at Parkade

Charlie Smith Sr. of Manchester won the TV Sports Tournament Club Superbowl at the Brunswick Parkade Lanes last Sunday. Smith beat Joe Parker of Manchester, 198-173, in the final to take home the first-place check of $172. Parker took home $85 for second place. The tournament is held every Sunday at 1 p.m. at the Parkade Lanes.

Anderson named to select swim team

HEBRON — Sean Anderson, competing in the 10 and under age group, has been selected as a member of the Connecticut Zone team which will participate in the Eastern Zone Age Group Junior Olympic Swimming Championship Meet in Pittsburgh, Pa., on April 4-6. Anderson made the team in the 50- and 100-yard backstrokes and as the backstroke leg in the 200-yard medley relay. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Anderson of 14 Webster Lane, Hebron.

NBC formally signs Olympic pact

NEW YORK — Almost six months after NBC won the rights to televise the 1988 Summer Olympics in South Korea, a formal contract was signed Wednesday with the network agreeing to pay a minimum of $300 million.

Representatives of NBC, the International Olympic Committee and the Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee gathered Wednesday at IOC headquarters in Lausanne, Switzerland, for the signing. NBC had reached an agreement in principle Oct. 3 with the IOC and SLOOC for the exclusive United States television rights, but the signing was delayed principally because of NBC's desire to get contract protection in the event of another boycott or cancellation.

George Raveling headed for USC

LOS ANGELES — George Raveling of Iowa is just details away from being named basketball coach at Southern Cal. It was reported Wednesday.

Raveling, who this season guided the Hawkeyes to a 20-12 record and a berth in the NCAA Tournament, has agreed to a multi-year deal with the Trojans, according to radio station KNX, which broadcasts USC games. According to the report, Raveling already has turned down an offer to coach at the University of Houston. KNX said he also rejected a salary increase from Iowa governor Terry Branstad in order to replace Stan Morrison at USC.

Final Four to pump in $7 million

DALLAS — The Final Four, college basketball's annual extravaganza, will attract an estimated 15,000-20,000 visitors this week, and they are expected to pump more than $7 million into the local economy, officials said. Rick Baker, director of the Dallas Executive Committee, said the Chamber of Commerce expects the out-of-towners to dish out $7.7 million.

"That's money spent on everything from hotel rooms, restaurants, souvenirs, entertainment, rental cars, whatever, while they're here," he said. The Dallas economy could realize more money — up to $11 million or $12 million — because the exposure may attract future business and conventions, Baker said.

Hana wants to team with McEnroe

NEW YORK — Apparently, Hana Mandlikova prefers her men with a few rough edges. Last year it was Nastase, otherwise known as Nasty, with whom she teamed in mixed doubles. Next on her list of preferred partners is John McEnroe.

"It was fun, really," Mandlikova said of her partnership with Nastase, explaining that when he went off on a tirade, she would stand by and watch. The two were finalists at last year's Olympic World Cup Championships.

Mandlikova, known to indulge in some on-court theatrics herself, said she and McEnroe discussed the possibility of teaming during an exhibition last year in Mexico. "He said he would like to play mixed doubles with me," the U.S. Open champion said. "I would like to do it. I like him very much personally, and he's the most talented player ever."

Spring training roundup Bosox go on offensive

By Herschel Nissenon The Associated Press
The New England Patriots could have taken some lessons in offense from the Boston Red Sox. Of course, the Red Sox weren't playing the mighty Chicago Bears. Instead, their opposition was the White Sox and, even though it was merely an exhibition baseball game, the Red Sox exacted a measure of revenge for New England on Wednesday by pulverizing the Chicagoans 27-16. "In all my years in baseball I don't think I've ever seen anything like that — in spring training or in the regular season," Boston Manager John McNamara said after the Red Sox, who had been in a hitting slump while dropping eight of their previous nine games, pounded out 22 hits — including five doubles, four triples and Rich Gedman's homer — to go along with 14 bases on balls and four wild pitches from Chicago's four, er, pitchers. The 27 runs were the second most ever scored by the Red Sox, two shy of a 29-4 trouncing of the St. Louis Browns on June 8, 1950. Glenn Hoffman drove in six runs while Bill Buckner, Marty Barrett and Mike Stenhouse each had four RBIs.

"That brings back a lot of memories of when we had an awesome bunch of hitters," said former Red Sox star Johnny Pesky, now a specialist at the farm level club. "It reminded me of 1950 when we had such great hitters as Ted Williams, Junior Stephens, Billy Goodman, Dominic (DiMaggio) and others."

Chicago starter Joel Davis bore the brunt of the bombardment. He surrendered eight hits and walked six in four innings and was charged with 11 runs. The Red Sox scored six runs in the first inning, five in the fourth (both against Davis) and seventh (off Bryan Clark) and four in the eighth (off Dave Wehrmeister) and ninth (against Bob James).

Ron Kittle and Rudy Law homered for the White Sox, who had 17 hits of their own. Kittle's blast was a 500-footer off Tim Lollar. A game between the rest of the White Sox and the Pittsburgh Pirates was rained out.

The Chicago Cubs also had trouble getting people out. They lost to the Oakland A's 12-5 and have been outscored 34-7 in their last three games. Dennis Cokerley was rocked for 11 hits and eight runs in five innings and relief ace Lee Smith allowed four runs in one inning. Oakland rookie Bill Bathe drove in five runs with a single, double and homer and Dwight Murphy had three hits, including his fourth spring homer.

Other action: Cincinnati 3, Minnesota split squad 2; Houston 5, Minnesota split squad 3; Toronto 4, New York Mets 2; Montreal split squad 10, Los Angeles 9 in 11 innings; California 9, Cleveland 8; Texas 6, Atlanta 5; San Diego 6, San Francisco 5; Seattle 5, Milwaukee 7. Games between Montreal a split squad and the New York Yankees and Philadelphia-Detroit were rained out.

Lou Pinella will begin his first year as New York Yankee manager when the season opens in two weeks. When we had such great hitters as Ted Williams, Junior Stephens, Billy Goodman, Dominic (DiMaggio) and others."

Horses succumb in blaze

By United Press International
CAMDEN, S.C. — An electrical short circuit most likely caused the fire at a training stable that killed 27 valuable thoroughbred race horses.

"We're fairly certain it was electrical," Rick Corley, an investigator with the state fire marshal's office, said Wednesday night. "We call it an accidental fire. We don't find any evidence that the fire was set."

The Tuesday night blaze leveled a stable holding 40 horses at Fenton Horse Farm. Aleret grooms saved 13 horses, but one horse was injured.

Estimates of the horses' value ranged from $50,000 to $1 million each. The loss to the farm was estimated at $1 million to $27 million. Although horse attendants live in quarters above the stable, no one was seriously injured in the blaze.

Will Brooklyn get a new team?

By John M. Dovic The Associated Press
NEW YORK — The Dodgers left Brooklyn in 1957 and took big league baseball with them. An American Association team owner says the fans and the legacy are still there, waiting to embrace a minor league club.

Brooklyn has "the greatest legacy there is in baseball," said A. Ray Smith, expansion committee chairman for the AAA minor league American Association.

"They haven't had it (baseball) in more than 25 years," said Smith, whose league is considering expanding from eight to 10 teams. "I said he would be assumed highly that Brooklyn be taken in if an interest (Brooklynites) is shown."

Smith was in Brooklyn Wednesday to address a Chamber of Commerce luncheon on baseball expansion and told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that the ancestral home of the Los Angeles Dodgers is ripe for a minor league team.

"We call it an accidental fire. We don't find any evidence that the fire was set."

Confront your doctor, speaker at MCC urges

By Nancy Poppo Herald Reporter
When was the last time you sat down for a heart-to-heart chat with your doctor? Was he attentive? Or irritable? Did she ask a lot of questions? Or give you a lot of answers? It's not always easy to get along with your doctor, said Dr. Kent I. Stahl. Stahl is a physician at Immediate Medical Care Center, which has facilities in Websterfield and Manchester. Stahl spoke Wednesday on "Dealing with Doctors" at a luncheon gathering in the Women's Center at Manchester Community College. It was the fifth in a series of 10 weekly seminars called "Women & Health," organized by the Women's Center in conjunction with Student Health Services.

Sometimes patients expect too much from their doctors, Stahl said. For instance, they expect miracle cures and complete alleviation of pain. BUT SOMETIMES patients don't demand enough. They may be unwell, unformed, or may simply have written off the medical profession as being callous, Stahl said. Patients like this may not realize that they're entitled to simple explanations, access to their own medical records, courteous responses on the telephone, and prompt scheduling of appointments, Stahl said. "There's an unofficial patient's bill of rights in many areas," said Stahl. "The problem is, not everyone agrees on what's included in it."

People who complain about doctors usually bring up what Stahl called "the two T's" — time and technical language. Some physicians give the impression that they simply don't have time to pause for questions. "Most people are in a hurry," Stahl said. "And doctors are no different than anyone else, trying to cram more things in than they're able. If that becomes an oppressive part of your relationship with your doctor, then that is a problem... You need to let the doctor know your feelings, followed, if necessary, by changing doctors." DOCTORS OFTEN use so much technical terminology that their patients have trouble unraveling the meaning. "It's the patient's duty to confront the doctor, and say, 'What does that mean?' or 'Can you explain this?' in some cases, the law actually requires a lay-language explanation of treatment and risks," Stahl said. But if you have chosen a doctor carefully, and established a good working relationship, you probably won't often be in a confrontational situation. Choosing a physician is not an easy task. "You'd be surprised how many people just flip through the yellow pages," said Stahl. "They wouldn't do that when choosing an investment or a financial counselor. And that's just money. Here you're talking about putting your health in someone's hands." Gather recommendations from friends; get a similar list from acquaintances in the medical field. Ask a hospital nurse to recommend particularly skillful doctors. Compare the lists, and call for a number of appointments. IT IS TIME for you to prepare your personal list of questions and requirements. Stahl said. What do you want from a doctor? Do you prefer someone with a calm soothing manner, who remembers the names of your kids? Or someone a bit gruff, who sticks to medical topics? You will also wish to know how well this doctor's philosophy matches your own. Other factors may enter the picture: Do you want a doctor who will telephone patients with answers to questions? Do you object to being treated by a number of partners in a practice? Patients tend to shy away from aggressively interviewing a doctor. But today, physicians expect to be questioned, he said. In fact, many will offer the initial visit for free, so that the patient and the doctor can see whether they have a good match.

Computer calls are our newest nuisance

By Philip Olinick United Press International
WASHINGTON — With dinner sizzling on the table and not a bite yet taken, the phone rings. "If you'll just take a moment to answer a few questions, we'll give you a free gift! Wouldn't that be okay with you?" "Who is this?" you ask. "This survey won't take very long. Just give this machine your answers, then an operator will arrange for you to receive a free prize." A machine. And there's a good chance it wants to sell you something. The free gift could be anything from a Thanksgiving turkey to a free furnace check-up that will lead to recommendations for $1,000 in very likely unnecessary maintenance and repairs.

EVERY DAY, human and computer telephone solicitors call between 7 million and 12 million people, almost half a million of whom buy something, according to a 1986 FCC memo. This year experts expect the telemarketing industry to gross $1.6 billion, $68 billion more than Exxon did in 1985. The automatic dialing machines with their computer-chip voices are taking an ever-larger slice of that big pie. Telephone computers do have non-commercial uses. They have saved precious moments contacting volunteer fire fighters in the middle of the night, told parents that their children aren't in school and warned entire communities of life-threatening emergencies. However, the machines also have pitched frightened people for burglar alarms at 3 in the morning. They have "talked" with answering machines for as long as half an hour. And a Columbia University study found instances like the time a machine kept a Canadian mother from calling an ambulance for her choking daughter, because she couldn't free the telephone line.

IF THIS WERE junk mail it could go in the wastebasket. Or, a lot of it could be removed from your mailbox by writing the Direct Mail Association in New York, according to the postal service. But these phone calls are different. PSC officials decree that the only authority capable of prosecuting under the statute, the state's attorney general, would have to get the governor's permission to take a telecomputer abuser to court. The commission has proposed new legislation, now in committee, that would make it possible to prosecute under the existing law by shifting it to the criminal code.

California has a problem typical of many states: its law controlling telemarketing. "Unfortunately most people are not aware that there is such a statute," says Herschel Elkins, an assistant attorney general. Not surprisingly, county prosecutor Dick Padzielski, who would screen any cases in the Detroit area, could not recall any complaints about automatic dialing machines in his district.

Many states defer prosecutions to their counties. Michigan state law provides that "the telephone company shall report a violator to the county prosecutor." But Henry Boynton, an assistant attorney general assigned to the Michigan Public Service Commission, said Michigan Bell has been slow to pass on the complaints on grounds that consumer communications with the phone company are confidential.

BUT A UPI SURVEY found that existing state laws prohibiting computer calls are Changes are good if you pick up the phone today and there's someone selling something at the other end, that "someone" may be a computer. A growing number of consumers are starting to resent such calls.

Your Neighbors' Views What is your fondest memory of Easter time?

Linda Neely: "I have a favorite Easter memory, when my children were little. It would be making the Easter eggs, waiting for the Easter bunny, hiding the eggs for the children. I think it got to be even more exciting when the children got older, and they understood more about the church meaning of Easter, too."

Margaret Rovero: "I remember Easter egg hunting on the White House lawn. We went a few times, around 1936. My family lived in Washington. We got to go downtown on the bus, my brother and sister and I, all dressed up... It was great that the president (Franklin D. Roosevelt) would come out himself, roll some of the eggs. But truthfully, the eggs were more exciting to us kids."

Linda Neubelt: "I remember this Easter egg hunt in Massachusetts, when I was in about third grade. It was at Otis Air Force Base... I was an Air Force brat. It was a big family get-together. This was a big event, a really wonderful time." Vianna Zimbel: "What I remember best is that we all lined up in front of the magnolia tree and had our pictures taken on Easter Sunday. It was a straw hat and white gloves occasion." Asked if she had grown up in the South, she said, "Yes, the south shore of Long Island. But we had magnolia trees, and they were always in bloom for Easter."

Fact-checker seeks elusive truths

By Paul de la Garza
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Encyclopaedia owners ask the darndest things. "I've had people wanting to know 'Did Cleopatra have false teeth, or what is heaven like?'" says Margaret Mottier, who's been digging up facts for the Britannica Instant Research Center for three decades.

"I've also had someone ask what do people taste like," Mottier said in a recent interview. "I suppose we were supposed to ask the cannibals."

Mottier now heads a staff of 14 fact-checkers at the center, a subscriber service created in 1936 by Encyclopaedia Britannica Inc. of Chicago to answer questions from Encyclopaedia Britannica owners.

Owners are entitled to make up to 10 inquiries a year for 10 years after they buy a set of the books, and the staff fields up to 1,000 calls a day. The center reported Monday that establishing a small business and Halley's comet were the most-asked-about topics in more than 300,000 inquiries last year. It didn't give figures on the number of questions about specific topics.

In zoology, interest in dinosaurs topped questions about whales, pandas and man-eating sharks, with subscribers wanting to know how dinosaurs lived and why they disappeared, said Mottier.

"They want to know which sharks are dangerous and examples of incidents where there have been shark attacks on swimmers," she added.

As people become more concerned with practical considerations and self-improvement, "how-to" questions are increasingly common, she said. In fact, most of the leading topics reflect an interest in making, protecting and using money smartly, all in a do-it-yourself style.

"How do I set up a business at home?" is often asked, she said. The questions "basically reflect a very practical group of people." On an average day, Mottier said her staff handles 500 to 1,000 calls or letters.

One question Mottier recently had to field was from a young boy wanting to know if a story his grandfather had told him was true.

"His grandfather had been reading from the Encyclopaedia about cavemen, and he told him that his grandmother was a descendant from the prehistoric of the cavemen. He wanted to know if it was true, but I obviously couldn't do this. I sent him a letter saying we didn't have any scientific information, but that on this one, his grandfather was the best authority."

An animal's soul can rival that of humans

QUESTION: Do animals have souls?

ANSWER: This question is as old as the ages. Since it's agreed that man is formed in the image of God, only we have the awareness of the meaning of death. It's then concluded that animals do not possess a soul.

It is true that in some cases a dead or dying animal is ignored by mates or group members. And since animals don't seem to have the same level of intelligence as human beings, that, too, is used as an argument against animal souls.

However, we have all heard of cases where terminally ill animals, seeming to realize their fate, crawl off to a remote area to die alone, with dignity. Some species do seem to be aware of death. Whales and dolphins will try to hold a sick or injured member above water so it can breathe. Or they beach themselves while trying to assist a dying member.

Elephants will attempt to rouse a gravely ill member of the herd, and wolves will bring food to injured pack members who are unable to hunt. All this evidence contradicts the view that animals are without souls.

In families that have more than one pet, the closeness which develops among individuals over a period of time is touching. A pet going into depression when a mate dies is not unusual. We study the human-animal bond, but there is also an animal-animal bond that is very evident.

Pet Forum

We try to solve pet grieving by diverting the pet's mind. A change in sleeping area, a new toy, walking in a different area or introducing a new pet into the house usually helps. It takes understanding and patience, as well as time, but a pet usually recovers as we do in similar situations. Medication is available to get us well as people to help overcome prolonged grieving.

Many pets seem to understand their owners' moods, whether sad, happy, worried or sick. We all have heard stories about companion animals refusing to leave the sicked of their masters and after death, grieving for weeks or sometimes months.

I think that those who don't believe animals have souls probably feel these creatures are of inferior intellect as well. Our inability to "talk" to animals (except for Dr. Doolittle) has led to animals being branded dumb. Recent developments in communication through sign language with chimpanzees and other primates have caused some questioning of this theory. Haven't you often felt that it pets could talk our language, they would say things that were quite intelligent?

We praise ourselves for being the highest form of life in this world and children of the Lord. Yet some pet behavior is more "soul-like" than our own behavior. So do animals really have souls? Of course, they do. They are made of the same stuff as we — clay touched by God.

Do animals have souls? Those who love pets such as this one would agree. Oreo, above, belongs to Helen Ford of Manchester.

Bankruptcy may not be end to all ills

In the 1970s, it became fashionable for consumers to declare bankruptcy to escape paying installment loans — any number of other debts. But it's becoming more and more difficult. Being yanked from your hands as a consumer defaulter may be your ability to get new loans, the amount of property you can keep, even the willingness of schools you attended to admit you're a graduate.

Good or bad? It's a hot debate. Creditors lose if they aren't paid and generally pass on the additional costs to everyone else — including us, the customer. But the consumer is being urged by business and advertisers to buy to the hilt: Our buying is essential if our economy is to survive (much less thrive). Where is the balance? How can you reach it?

The whole field of bankruptcy has become ever more critical and incongruous. And the process has been speeded by an amendment to the Bankruptcy Code in 1970 to put into law a special, ultra-high-stick procedure known as the famous (or infamous) "Chapter Eleven" (11).

"The chapter," as it is called by insiders, is designed to help companies stay in business by giving them a chance to work out their debts with the agreement of creditors and under the supervision of the court. So far, so good — keeping companies in business helps them save jobs, preserves contracts with suppliers and customers, protects communities.

BUT THE NEW CATCH added in 1970 was this: Automatically, just by filing a paper, the company invoking the magic carpet of "the chapter" can stop all lawsuits throughout the nation. And when the procedure says stop, it means stop — every step, no matter how routine. All of the wheels are completely blocked.

Even the taking of a pretrial deposition or a minor hearing on a procedural issue is forbidden — unless the creditor can convince the bankruptcy judge who has the case to lift the "automatic stay."

OK, you ask, why not do that? Sometimes it does work, if the creditor can afford to hire a bankruptcy specialist, say, to appear in what is often a distant location and can convince the bankruptcy judge that holding up the claim of a little guy against a big company is unfair. But the deck is heavily stacked in favor of the company invoking the chapter for reasons that become clear:

1) If the company using the chapter solves its problems — even at the expense of minor business or consumer victims — the case can be "successfully" completed and is removed from the overloaded docket of the particular judge involved.

2) The burden is on the creditor trying to get out of the "automatic stay" to prove the unfairness of having been trapped. The company using the chapter does not have to prove the urgency of stopping, let's say, a minor pretrial hearing in Omaha.

BANKRUPTCY EXPERTS tend to defend these procedures as necessary to help troubled firms back to their feet efficiently. Others who aren't bankruptcy specialists are frequently more acid in their evaluation of the chapter in its post-1970 incarnation.

Will anything be done? Perhaps the courts may begin to consider requiring more proof of emergency that might cause irreparable damage before allowing bankruptcy to take over. As for you, if you can't pay a student loan and are threatened by a collector, you may be confident that a much bigger debtor is banking in protection from any lawsuits at all.

What is happening is a reaction against the extreme tilt to penalize the big boys in bankruptcy in the 1960s and 1970s. The pendulum has swung very far and fast and is smashing the lives of little people who don't have the sophistication to fight back as the bigger debtors have had.

One day soon, the pendulum will swing against Chapter 11 and its apparent bias for business. When it does, it may swing just as far against the chapter as it has now swung for it.

Unless, of course, common sense arrives first and we recognize that we can learn from each swing and move up with our society and not just back and forth.

Consider it a 'beer chaser'

BEND, Ore. (UPI) — Suspects in a holdup at a beer company escaped police by bombarding three pursuing patrol cars with dozens of cans of the brew.

About five cases of beer cans bounced off the hoods and windshields of the dented patrol cars during the recent chase, police said.

The four suspects in the burglary then abandoned their own auto and fled into the woods, where they eluded a manhunt by police and Deschutes County sheriff's deputies.

The chase started when the car carrying the suspects was involved in a traffic violation. Two passengers in the rear seat hurled the beer at the patrol cars.

Princess can show her royal behavior

By Borboro Richmond
Special to the Herald

A female Corgi cross found on New State Road on March 21 is this week's featured pet. Dog Warden Richard Rand has named her Princess. The name suits her personality as she is a well-behaved dog.

Princess is blonde and will be ready for adoption on Tuesday, if not claimed by her owner.

Sweet little Annie, the featured pet a few weeks ago, has been adopted by a High Street family. Patches, last week's featured pet, is still waiting for someone to adopt him. He's a black-and-white mixed breed and was found on Waronoke Road on March 8. He's a smart dog and friendly.

The old male Labrador retriever cross, mentioned in last week's column, has been claimed by his owner. He suffers from arthritis and finds it difficult to move around.

Still waiting also is Colleen, the featured pet a couple of weeks ago. Colleen is a spayed female, medium-sized and tuffy-colored. She was picked up on Gardner Street on Feb. 22 and needs a good home.

Besides the Corgi, there were three other new dogs at the pound as Tuesday. A tan male mixed breed, about 2 years old, was found roaming on Birch Street on March 19.

Another new one is a female shepherd cross. She's about 2 years old and is black and tan. She was found roaming in the Love Lane area. The other new one is a baby, about 2 months old. She's a collie cross, tri-color, but mostly white. She was found on Whitney Road on March 24.

Just another reminder that there will be a clinic to give rabies shots to dogs or cats on April 5 from 1:30 to 4 p.m. at the firehouse on Center Street. There will be a $6 charge for dog or cat. Shots will be given by qualified veterinarians and certificates will be issued.

The certificate has to be shown when obtaining the licenses for the dogs.

Alex Matthew, Milton Tedford and Russell F. Haugh Jr., from left, wear their Sphinx hats and tassels at a recent session of the Omar Shrine Club of Sphinx Temple. They were installed as president, first vice president and second vice president, respectively. Also installed recently were: Arthur Tinsz, secretary; Robert Petersen, treasurer; William Craft, James Bouchard, Wallace Wielock, Joseph Wysocki, Harold Vail, Ellisworth Wood, directors; Robert Haugh, chaplain; Gordon Johnson, scribe; William Keehner, historian; William Strickland, representative to DeMolay; Alfred Rossetto of Manchester, potentate of the Sphinx Temple, performed the swearing-in ceremonies.

Obsession to save

Problems of hoarders run deep

By Rob Stein
United Press International

BOSTON — Some people collect rubber bands in their desks at work. Others stack old newspapers so high at home there's barely enough room to squeeze through a narrow path to their bed. Just about everyone collects things to some degree. But some people take hoarding to an extreme, and some researchers are beginning to believe the tendency to act like a squirrel could be genetic. "We've seen families where there are four generations of hoarders," said Dr. Steven Blass, a psychiatrist at Butler Hospital, Providence, R.I., studying the behavior. "There's been a fair amount of animal work to show that certain types of rodents tend to hoard things," said Rasmussen. "Rasmussen and an associate are studying hoarders as part of their work with obsessive-compulsives — people who exhibit extreme forms of behavior such as the irresistible urge to wash their hands." "We noticed that many of our obsessive-compulsive patients are hoarders," said Rasmussen. "Everyone has a variance in this. There's a certain amount of normal behavior. Everyone has certain things that are special to them that don't have any meaning to anyone else," he said. "But some people go way overboard. Many people collect things because they think it's going to come in handy sometimes. But it can get to the proportions where you can barely get into the house," said Rasmussen. The researchers have visited patients whose homes are overrun with piles of newspapers, magazines, boxes of coupons and other items they can't seem to part with. "It just seems to be passed down from one generation to the next," said Rasmussen. He pointed out, however, more studies are needed, possibly with identical twins, to prove or disprove the genetic theory about hoarding. Previous studies traced the hoarding instinct in animals to a part of the brain located in the center near the top. If this part of the brain is cut, the hoarding behavior disappears. Researchers also suspect hoarding may be closely associated with maternal instincts, since the tendency to build nests or feed the young also disappears when this part of the brain is cut. "People who exhibit severe hoarding tendencies also tend to be overly maternal," Rasmussen said. This has led experts to suspect that the hoarding instinct may be related to the trauma of being separated from mothers. "There's a certain point of development when the mother is gone you develop an attachment to something like a blanket to substitute for the mother," he said. But some people retain their attachment to objects instead. "People who have high levels of separation anxiety we think end up being the collectors. They tend to be loners, they tend to be singles, introverts. They develop a relationship that most people would not have with whatever they collect," he said.

Social Security

Medicare card can be replaced

QUESTION: I've lost my Medicare card. What should I do?
ANSWER: You should call or visit a Social Security office right away and ask for a replacement. It will be provided free of charge. Remember to carry your card with you whenever you leave the house.
QUESTION: My wife saw an ad in a magazine that promised to furnish her with useful information about Social Security. She sent them some money and got information that turned out to be incorrect. Why doesn't Social Security stop such practices?
ANSWER: The Social Security Administration has no authority to proceed legally against businesses of this kind. When Social Security discovers a serious instance of misleading advertising, it refers it to the U.S. Postal Service, which can take action.

QUESTION: I expect to retire soon, but I'm waiting for my employer to hire my replacement. I've heard that you should apply for your retirement benefits 3 months before you actually retire. Why is that important?
ANSWER: Applying 3 months before you actually retire helps assure that you get your first Social Security payment on time. It means that your Social Security checks will come when your income from works stops.
QUESTION: My sister, who is 58 and in poor health, lives with her 38 year old mentally retarded son.

What will happen to him if she dies? I'm sure he doesn't have Social Security coverage since he's never worked.
ANSWER: Your nephew may be eligible to receive supplemental security income (SSI). SSI is different from regular Social Security benefits. It is payable to persons with limited income and resources. No work credits are required by SSI, which is financed by Federal funds, not by Social Security taxes.

What do you want for Easter?

Jessica Lee Lante, 6, sits on the lap of the Easter bunny, also known as Delores Beaulieu. The bunny will also visit the Manchester Jaycees' Easter egg hunt at 11 a.m. Saturday in Center Springs Park. Jim Nikodemski, behind the bunny, is manager of the Burger King on Center Street, which is co-sponsoring the event. Joe Stack, right, the Jaycees' egg hunt chairman, holds a chocolate bunny, one of those which will be given to children who find the eggs. The egg hunt will be in the Valley Street end of the park.

Connecticut In Brief

Commission head, wife found dead

STONINGTON — The chairman of the town's police commission and his wife were found dead this morning, both had been shot, according to Police Chief Carl Johnson. Police were called to the home of Jordan Carreira, 35, about 7:28 a.m. and found the bodies of the commissioner and his wife Dorothy, 37, police said. Johnson said it does not appear there was a third person involved in the shooting, but he says the department is not speculating that it was a murder-suicide. Johnson said that Carreira, who had been a Stonington police officer for four years, had been a big supporter of the department.

Murderer jailed for 50 years

HARTFORD — A confessed murderer who says he can't explain why he killed his girlfriend has been sentenced to 50 years in prison. Walter L. Dalie was given the sentence Wednesday by Hartford Superior Court Judge Francis R. Quinn. Dalie was charged with murder and felony murder in the February 1983 death of Mary E. Carrington, manager of a Mr. Steak restaurant in Newington. Dalie was charged eleven days after the woman's body was found in the restaurant office. He pleaded guilty to murder on January 15, with the state dropping the felony murder charge. "I can't explain why it happened. I don't know," Dalie told the judge just before the sentencing.

Bradley losing pleasure travelers

WINDSOR LOCKS — Bradley International Airport is doing a good job of attracting business travelers, but is losing pleasure travelers to larger airports, a consultant's report said. J.A. Nammack Associates Inc. in a report released Wednesday, characterized Bradley as a strong business market, because of convenient scheduling and "the fact that the cost of business-travel normally is born by the employer or is deductible as a business expense." But pleasure travelers who are spending their own money often find "strong incentives" to drive to New York or Boston, the report said.

Wells Fargo suspects' bonds cut

HARTFORD — The bond for two of the three defendants arrested most recently in connection with the Wells Fargo robbery case has been reduced, court officials said. Roberto J. Maldonado's bond was reduced in U.S. District Court on Monday, from $300,000 to $200,000, and Antonio Camacho's bond was reduced from $300,000 to $150,000, officials said. Judge T. Emmet Clarie required that the defendants post $25,000 in cash and the remainder in property or other assets. The two men, who were arrested Friday in Puerto Rico, are being charged with conspiracy in connection with the $7.2 million 1983 robbery, and the transportation of stolen money.

Committee kills student aid bill

HARTFORD — A $700,000 student aid funding bill has been effectively killed in the General Assembly's Education Committee. The committee's Senate co-chairwoman, M. Adela Eads, said Wednesday she and her House counterpart had effectively killed the bill to replace college loans threatened by the Gramm-Rudman federal deficit reduction law. The state bill was not placed on the agenda of the committee's final meeting scheduled for Tuesday, Eads said. Legislative rules require that any bill must have a public hearing before it is forwarded to the committee of origin. The committee would have had to schedule a hearing by 1 p.m. Wednesday deadline.

Daniels' saga to end with court sentencing

By Susan Okubo
The Associated Press

NORWICH — Convicted murderer Jerry D. Daniels was scheduled to be sentenced today for the June 1984 killings of a Norwich woman and her 3-year-old daughter. Daniels, who was found guilty of capital felony murder in October, 1985, and faced a possible death penalty, likely will get life imprisonment, said Norwich Superior Court Judge Harry Edelberg, who with two other judges will impose a sentence. Edelberg's recommendation stems from a dejected jury that was not able to reach a full decision on Daniels' sentence and a ruling in a previous case. However, prosecuting attorney Robert Sattl said he would ask Edelberg and Superior Court Judges Michael P. Conway and Paul M. Foti to impose the death sentence. Sattl claims the jury's lack of a decision could be interpreted by the judges to mean that Daniels should be sent to the electric chair. If the death penalty is not imposed, Sattl said he would ask for a partial mistrial in the jury portion of the case. Daniels' sentencing will come in connection to the deaths of Christine K. Whipple, 20, and Amy Russell, 3, both of Norwich. Daniels also was found guilty of second-degree sexual assault against Whipple and murder in connection with Amy's death. There was some speculation from other justice officials on Wednesday that Daniels, 29, would get at least two consecutive life terms. Connecticut law applicable to Daniels' case states that a life jail term means 60 years. Chief State's Attorney John J. Kelly said. If the terms were consecutive, Daniels would not be eligible for parole until between 70 and 80 years past, Kelly said. Daniels confessed that he went to Whipple's apartment on June 16, 1984, looking for his girlfriend, who was Whipple's roommate. After a heated conversation with Whipple, Daniels stabbed and raped her and slit Amy Russell's throat as she cried "Mommy, Mommy," court proceedings have recounted. A jury considering whether Daniels should be sentenced to death was unable to reach a full decision over the penalty after 25 hours of deliberations that ended on Tuesday. The jury was split 6-0 on the presence of mitigating factors in the murders. Connecticut law requires that a jury say that no

Inmate who filed suit wounded in stabbing

SOMERS (AP) — An inmate at Somers State Prison who had filed a $1 million suit alleging that prison officials failed to protect him is reported in serious condition after being wounded at a stabbing in the prison. Louis H. Skidmore, 33, was in critical condition Wednesday evening at St. Francis Hospital and Medical Center in Hartford, hospital officials said. State police believe the stabbing stemmed from an article in The Hartford Courant last week about Skidmore's being an informant, state police Sgt. Edward Dalley said. Skidmore was stabbed in the neck and collarbone while returning to his cell from a recreation yard, state police said. Another inmate was being held in isolation at the prison in connection with the stabbing, state police said. It was the second serious stabbing at the prison this month. Kevin Jones, 30, was stabbed to death during his first full day at the maximum security prison. The Courant reported last week that in earlier incidents, Skidmore was stabbed twice and his cell allegedly fire-bombed after he complained about the alleged drug sale, but says he was transferred into the unit where the guard worked. Corrections officials have declined comment on the suit, filed in U.S. District Court. But state police have said they have evidence that in the earlier incidents, Skidmore may have stabbed himself or had other inmates stab him in an effort to get transferred from Somers to a less confining institution.

JAMES MERRILL OF STONINGTON glad there was no election

Poet laureate Merrill credits state readers

By Kenneth R. Bazinet
United Press International
HARTFORD — Connecticut has its first poet laureate and James Merrill says he was glad he earned the title without having to campaign this election year. "I didn't have to campaign to get here," Merrill said, drawing laughter and applause at a ceremony Wednesday where he was officially installed by Gov. William A. O'Neill.

O'Neill camp denies allegations by GOP

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. William A. O'Neill's campaign says charges the governor used tax dollars to promote his re-election are groundless, despite a state commission's decision to formally investigate the matter. The state Elections Enforcement Commission voted unanimously Wednesday to investigate the allegations made against the Democratic governor by Republican State Chairman Thomas J. D'Amore Jr. O'Neill's campaign director, Richard F. Schaefer, denied the allegations, saying the governor "scrupulously maintains the proper line" in the work done by his state staff and his campaign.

Defense contractor is faulted

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — General Dynamics charged the government $100,000 to buy kitchen equipment in 1980, despite a Pentagon directive that the government not pay for non-military items for defense contractors, states a published report. The items charged to the government were the company's Fort Worth plant cafeteria was renovated included $1,500 for an automated potato peeler, reports the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. According to a General Accounting Office audit, the Air Force sanctioned the purchases despite Pentagon directives calling for a phase-out of government involvement in facilitating defense contracting companies. The equipment was among several "questionable acquisitions" uncovered during a seven-month audit of 25 contractors, the accounting office reported. The investigatory arm of Congress did not suggest that the General Dynamics kitchen costs were excessive but said that "since kitchen equipment does not appear to be critical to the mission of the facility, it is difficult to understand why such equipment was provided."

Pratt to help GM power Osprey jets

WASHINGTON — Pratt & Whitney was picked by the Allison Gas Turbine Division of General Motors Corp. to become the second production source for engines that will power a new military tilt-rotor plane, the companies say. Pratt, in a statement released Wednesday in Washington, said it was picked by Allison with the concurrence, because of its technological base, its ability to produce high quality, competitively priced engines and its financial resources. The Navy selected Allison, based in Indianapolis, as the prime engine builder in a competition that ended late last year. Under the Pentagon's policy of having dual sources for major weapons systems, Allison was obligated to pick another contractor to join in building the engines. Pratt & Whitney is headquartered in East Hartford, Conn. The engines would be built by its Government Products Division in West Palm Beach, Fla.

Trade deficit drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The country's foreign trade deficit, aided by falling petroleum prices, totaled $12.5 billion in February, 24 percent below the record deficit set in January, the government reported today. The Commerce Department said imports of petroleum products plunged by 28 percent. The decline in imported oil reflected a cut in the amount purchased and the price of oil. An average of 5.4 million barrels of oil was purchased daily, down from 6.2 million barrels a day in January while the price fell to $24.85 per barrel, down $2.29 from the January level. This was the lowest oil price since November 1979. The price of oil on the spot market has fallen by more than $10 per barrel since November. But the bulk of oil is purchased under long-term contracts that do not change as quickly as the spot market price. Still, experts believe one of the major positive factors that will help the country's trading performance this year will be lower oil prices. Economists also believe that the sharp decline in the value of the dollar will help to boost exports while reducing Americans' appetite for foreign goods. The dollar has fallen by 30 percent since it peaked in March 1985, but experts say it normally takes between one year and 18 months for a currency decline to show up in more favorable trade numbers.

Stock market shows broad gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ran up a broad gain today, following through on Wednesday's full-speed-ahead advance as interest rates kept falling. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 12.81 to 1,823.21 in the first hour of trading. Gainers outnumbered losers by more than 4 to 1 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. In the credit markets today, prices of long-term government bonds, which move in the opposite direction from interest rates, rose more than $10 for every $1,000 in face value. Declining interest rates have been cited as a primary force behind the dramatic rise in stock prices since last fall. The market also was greeted this morning by some favorable news on the nation's position in international trade. The Commerce Department reported that the foreign trade deficit totaled $12.5 billion in February, 24 percent below its record level in January. Malcolm Baldrige, secretary of commerce, said he expected further progress toward reducing the trade deficit in the months ahead because of the dollar's decline in currency markets. Gainers among the early volume leaders included Federal National Mortgage, up 3/4 at 44; Chrysler, up 1/4 at 64; and Avon Products, up 1/4 at 33 1/2. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks added 88 to 137.58. On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed $2.20 to 1,810.70, breaking the record of 1,804.24 it set last Thursday.

Anderson to leave Union Carbide helm

DANBURY (AP) — Warren M. Anderson, who steered Union Carbide Corp. through its most difficult times after a chemical leak in India killed more than 2,000 people, will step down as chairman in November when he reaches Union Carbide's mandatory retirement age of 65, but give up the position of chief executive officer April 23. He recommended to the board of directors at a meeting Wednesday that Robert D. Kennedy, one of two Carbide presidents, be elected president and chief executive officer. They will vote on Anderson's recommendation following the April 23 shareholders meeting. Kennedy, who has been with the company since 1955, became Carbide's president for chemicals and plastics in a July 1985 management reorganization. Kennedy, 53, will become chairman when Anderson retires, according to a Union Carbide statement. Alec Flamm, who as vice chairman had been the No. 2 person in Carbide's structure, retired Wednesday, reportedly after learning that Anderson did not intend to name him as his successor. J. Clayton Stephenson, 53, currently Carbide's executive vice president and chief financial officer, has been appointed chief administrative officer and will become vice chairman in November. "I feel good about the new Union Carbide that is emerging from the restructuring we started last year," Anderson said in a statement. "Its prospects are bright." A leak of methyl isocyanate, a pesticide ingredient, at Carbide's plant in Bhopal, India, in December 1984 killed more than 2,000 people and injured another 200,000. Since then, the nation's third-largest chemical company initiated a series of moves to trim fat from its multi-billion dollar operation; successfully fought off a hostile take-over bid and, last week, reached a tentative settlement with victims of the chemical leak in India. Not long after the Bhopal accident, Anderson had said in an interview with The Associated Press that seeing Carbide through its crisis remained his largest task before retirement. Anderson joined Union Carbide in 1945 as a sales manager. He was president and chief operating officer from 1971 until 1982, when he assumed his current position. Union Carbide confirmed Sunday that it had tentatively agreed to pay $50 million to settle damage and injury claims from the Bhopal chemical leak. The settlement was worked out between Carbide and lawyers for the individual plaintiffs and would cover anyone injured in the leak, whether they are employees of the company or not, to a published report. The Indian government, which wanted to pay $1 billion in damages, is not part of the tentative settlement and regards it as illegal. In August, Union Carbide unveiled a seven-point program aimed at improving the company's financial position and attractiveness to investors. Company officials insisted it was part of a continuing restructuring begun in the mid-1970s. Analysts, however, noted that at no time in Union Carbide's history have such dramatic moves come in such rapid succession.

How to pick the number one newspaper in a multiple paper town.

In a town like Manchester, you might as well start with readership. In a most recent survey conducted by First Market Research of Boston, the Manchester Herald holds the overall local readership lead. According to the study, the Manchester Herald is the leader for local news, local happenings and local sports, with three quarters of the readers saying the coverage is the most extensive. Next, the number one newspaper should provide readers with a depth of information needed to make valued and reasonable decisions regarding key local issues that may impact on their lives today, or in the future. Well that same study shows that the Manchester Herald is rated quite highly in terms of space devoted to selected issues in its Opinion pages. Nearly eight in ten readers find that the space devoted to view-

Caring about its readers should also be a priority with the number one newspaper. The Manchester Herald feels it is their responsibility to listen to what residents in Manchester have to say. They want to hear about readers views on the news — what they think is important, what should go into the paper and what shouldn't. They're especially interested in hearing any comments you may have about the service you get from the Herald. They guarantee prompt delivery and courteous, efficient service on all billing matters. If you're not satisfied, they want to know about it. If you're still trying to figure out which is the number one newspaper in Manchester, the facts are obvious. Your choice will be the same paper more and more readers in Manchester choose every day. The Manchester Herald — your voice in Manchester.

Lydall buyback goes on

The Board of Directors of Lydall Inc. of Manchester has approved the continuation of the company's stock repurchase program announced in January 1985. The board also authorized the officers of Lydall to purchase up to 100,000 shares of the company's common stock for treasury over the coming year. During 1985, Lydall purchased 71,481 shares of its common stock for treasury at an average per-share price of $13.79. Chairman Millard H. Pryor Jr. said the purchase of treasury stock is an excellent investment considering the company's strong cash position. Lydall Inc. is a $185 million manufacturer of products for industry which include specialty fiber materials and engineered elastomer and fiber composites.

Bay State bank acquired

HARTFORD (UPI) — Hartford National Corp. has announced it has signed a definitive agreement with First Bank of Massachusetts under which it will acquire First Bank. The agreement, which must be approved by state and federal regulators, will allow the Chelmsford-based First Bank to operate with its own identity, officers, and directors. Hartford National Chairman Robert L. Newell said Wednesday. First Bank, with assets of $250 million, has 10 branches in the greater Lowell area. Hartford National Corp. is the parent company of Connecticut National Bank, with 159 offices, and Arlington Trust Co., with 19 offices. The agreement to acquire First Bank comes as Hartford National nears completion of its acquisition of the Boston-based Provident Institution for Savings on April 1, Newell said. When that merger is complete, Hartford National's assets will be more than $9.2 billion, making it the third largest of New England bank holding companies, he said.

Crispino's no more

The conversion of the former Crispino's Supreme Foods store on Hartford Road into a small shopping center is under way. Business partners Robert D. Udoff and Bruce W. Bekerman of West Hartford bought the building and surrounding property for $1.1 million last October from Sam Crispino and plan to open the center, above, with about four or five small stores by early summer. At left, carpenter Boleslaw Terlikowski sands a door on the side of the building Wednesday.

Nicaragua says rebel camps hit

Reagan lauds vote in Senate

By United Press International

In a statement issued as the Senate approved $100 million in aid to the Contras, Nicaragua said its troops had "destroyed important enemy camps" and killed 350 of the rebels in the past week.

The Defense Ministry Thursday denied fighting had taken place in Honduras although previously it had said the U.S.-backed rebels' principal training camp is in Honduras near the Nicaraguan border.

Western sources in Tegucigalpa, meanwhile, said the Contra rebels repelled a surprise attack by Nicaraguan soldiers on a training base in Honduras last weekend in fighting that left 200 Nicaraguan soldiers and 40 Contras dead.

Honduran officials also said Nicaraguans had crossed the border but had apparently pulled back.

"The majority of the Sandinistas have re-crossed the border we think," said Honduran Lt. Col. Danilo Carbajal Molina during a briefing for reporters in San Francisco De Capira, miles from the Nicaraguan border.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., President Reagan hailed the narrow Senate approval for his $100 million aid package for the Contras and urged the House to follow suit as he began his 11-day Easter vacation.

"I am deeply pleased by today's vote in the Senate," Reagan said.

He said the Senate's approval of the $100 million package "is sure to send a profoundly reassuring signal to those fighting for freedom in Nicaragua, and to Nicaragua's friends and neighbors." (Story on page 5.)

The Nicaraguan statement said the Sandinista People's Army "dealt major blows" to the Contra forces in "different combat areas," and that most of the important fighting took place in points along the Honduran-Nicaraguan border "where mercenary (Contra) forces are trying to penetrate our territory."

The two-page Defense Ministry statement said 550 Contra rebels were killed and 250 wounded in fighting along the border in the last week. It also reported that 40 Sandinistas were killed and 11 wounded.

Denying for the fourth straight day that its troops were battling Contra units in Honduras, the Defense Ministry said, "Members of the Sandinista People's Army are maintaining their posts in Nicaragua."

Asked whether fighting had spread into Honduras, a Defense Ministry official who requested anonymity said, "The border up there is very vague, but we don't cross over."

The Nicaraguan Defense Ministry conceded five Sandinista soldiers are missing. It said two were in Honduran custody, an apparent reference to two soldiers presented to reporters late Wednesday in the Honduran capital of Tegucigalpa.

But the Honduran military Thursday showed reporters the bodies of five men they said were Nicaraguan soldiers killed in fighting in Honduras.

Reporters have not been permitted to visit the site where the battle was said to have occurred, and claims of 200 Nicaraguan deaths have not been confirmed.

The new Nicaraguan statement came as the Senate passed President Reagan's request for $100 million in military and other aid to the Contras, who for five years have unsuccessfully sought to overthrow Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

The official radio, Voice of Nicaragua, interrupted its all-music program to read a news bulletin on the vote.

"This shows we can expect nothing good from the U.S. Congress," a radio commentator said. "We have to be prepared."

Volcanic eruption leaves cloud of ash

By Jeff Berliner United Press International

ANCHORAGE, Alaska - A 150-mile-long cloud of ash spawned by the eruption of Augustine volcano drifted across south-central Alaska today, raising a snowy grime that halted air traffic and prompted health warnings.

The 4,000-foot volcano, located on a barren North Pacific island 180 miles from the Cook Inlet, as it did in 1883 when searing gas and molten rock plummeted down the mountain into the water to produce monster swells known as tsunamis.

"There's very little to alert us if there's a tsunami," said volcanologist Tom Miller of the U.S. Geological Survey. "It could come across there in 25 minutes."

As long as the volcano continues to erupt and produce the threatening gas and ash flows, the threat of giant tidal waves speeding toward populated areas remains, Miller said.

Anchorages officials Thursday issued a 10-point health alert, urging residents to stay home and wearing people with respiratory problems to wear masks outside.

Anchorage International Airport was virtually deserted after airlines diverted morning flights to Fairbanks or Seattle and canceled all flights in and out of Alaska's biggest city by afternoon.

Miller said the volcanic grit was made up of ground rock and glass, combined with newly falling snow over much of south-central Alaska to produce a grimy drizzle.

The danger of corrosive ash damaging jet engines was great, said Paul Stueckle of the Federal Aviation Administration. The agency alerted all airlines that an ash cloud 150 miles long and 35 miles wide was poised in the flight path of the airport.

Latest poison scare hits maker of Encaprin

DEERFIELD, Ill. (UPI) - Walgreen Co. has removed Encaprin, a nonprescription painkiller, from its shelves nationwide following an anonymous warning the drug was laced with cyanide, a company spokesman said today.

There were no reports of actual tampering, the spokesman said. Also, the caller named an Encaprin lot number that does not exist and said the capsules had been tainted in Detroit area Walgreen stores, where the drugstore chain does not operate, company officials said.

The anonymous call was made to the corporate offices of the Cincinnati-based Procter & Gamble Co., which makes the painkiller, said Bob Norrish, director of public relations at Procter & Gamble.

"The caller gave us a lot number and we don't have such a number on the brand," Norrish said. "We have not found any products that have been tampered with."

Walgreen employees pulled the aspirin substitute from its 1,170 stores after the removal was ordered over the company's computer system, the spokesman said.

"We don't know if it was a crank call or what," said Tom Mammoser, director of Walgreen's corporate communications. "But it doesn't take much to get the wheels started these days."

The removal order issued Thursday night told employees to pull all Encaprin extra-strength and regular capsules from shelves and store them in a secure place. They were told to await further instructions.

"The call came in on our 800-line between 7 and 9 p.m. EST," said Sydney McHugh, a Procter & Gamble spokesman. "The caller said the five capsules he contaminated were in the 50-capsule, maximum-strength bottles."

McHugh said the caller made no demands for money.

"We have no way of knowing yet if it is just a threat or a hoax. We have not contacted other stores (other than Walgreen) because the caller was very specific about how many capsules he had contaminated and where they could be found. Also, at this point, we have not verified his information," McHugh said.

Sunrise services to mark holiday in town

By John F. Kirch and George Lovins

Special gospel sessions and sunrise services will be offered by various churches around Manchester on Easter Sunday to celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Center Congregational Church on Center Street will hold a sunrise service Sunday morning at 6 on the east lawn of the church. It will be followed by a breakfast and then regular services from 8 to 10 a.m.

During the Lent season, which started Feb. 12 with Ash Wednesday, Center Congregational Church has been dealing with "crisis examination," the Rev. Henry H. Curtis said today. He said congregation members were studying the significance of the cross and their lives.

Other churches will hold special prayer sessions and services during Easter Sunday.

The Church of the Living God on Eldridge Street will host a dramatic scripture reading at 10 a.m. Services pastor David Muller said today. He said there will be special music for the large turnout expected.

"If it were not for the resurrection, we would still be locked in our sin," Muller said. "It's not just a one-day shot, it's a lifelong thing."

The Rev. Len Milton said that a regular 9 a.m. service will be offered at the Second Congregational Church on North Main Street Sunday. He said he and his wife, Nancy, will invite congregation members to conclude the services with a prayer circle. They will pray for an improved world and less trouble in such places as in South Africa, Central America and Libya, Milton said.

In another matter, Manchester children hoping to find some Easter fun by searching for hidden Easter eggs will have to look elsewhere else this weekend.

For the second year in a row, the Manchester Recreation Department has decided not to hold the traditional Easter Egg Hunt.
