Whales get lessons

Mikhail Baryshnikov took a break from the American Ballet Theatre's six-city tour to some dancing with whales. At San Diego's Sea World aquatic park, he donned a wet suit and jumped into a tank with two 900-pound Pacific whales, fed them some fish and did a ballet routine of sorts with them. Time magazine reported. Baryshnikov, a supporter of the Save the Whales Campaign, said after last week's plunge, "They're so powerful, yet so gentle."

Cartooning in

"Bloom County" cartoonist Berke Breathed gave an exclusive interview to one of his creations, Opus the penguin, discussing his airplane crash and his work. Breathed put his tongue so far into his cheek that it's a wonder he could talk at all for the "interview," which was published in The

DANCING DUO — Rudolf Nureyev, left, director of dance of the Paris Opera Ballet, and Mikhail Baryshnikov, artistic director of the American Ballet Theatre, will both dance at a special performance July 8 at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York to benefit both companies and the opera house. The two have yet to decide what piece they will perform.

A chess rest

World chess champion Gary Kasparov claimed another victory Monday but this one came on the soccer field rather than at the chess board. Kasparov, 22, who wrestled the world chess title from fellow Soviet Anatoly Karpov in December in a protracted battle, was on the team of chess pros that defeated a squad of Soviet journalists, 2-1, before some 2,000 soccer and chess fans in Moscow. "To their great delight, good soccer technique was displayed not only by Kasparov but also by the world chess champion Anatoly Gansvarg and the participants in the recent contenders chess tournament. Artur Yusupov and Alexander Sokolov," Tass said.

A Vallee recovery

Singer Rudy Vallee, 84, who has been recovering from throat surgery since February, will be moved from the intensive-care unit to a private room Monday or Tuesday, a spokesman for Cedars Sinai Medical Center said. It was the first time the hospital would confirm that Vallee had undergone surgery for a cancerous lesion in his throat. Vallee's wife had asked the hospital not to release details of his illness. Hospital spokesman Ron Wise said the cancer was removed and there "is absolutely no evidence it has spread. He is sitting up, eating and talking. His condition will be upgraded to fair from guarded." Vallee probably will be released in two weeks.

Award stirs flap

The award of a medal to Attorney General Edwin Meese has raised a flap at Harvard University about whether it is a favor for his services or an "honorary medal for distinguished public service," as the school originally called it.

The award to Meese, from the John F. Kennedy School of Government, has been criticized by several professors and Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass.

Kennedy School spokeswoman Naomi Chase said Sunday that she considered the award to Meese a "a nicer party favor" because he has agreed to speak April 9 at the government school's 50th anniversary celebration.

Quote of the day

Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., commenting on estimates that money for congressional mailings will run out after 30 days, and his bill to eliminate such mailing of congressional newsletters.

"In the Senate, 75 percent of what we spend on postage is poured into newsletters and associated mailings which often wind up in the trash, unread and unwanted. (The congressional newsletter) is one piece of mail which belongs in the dead letter box."

Today in history
 In 1984, singer Marvin Gaye was fatally shot by his father during an argument in Los Angeles. Marvin Gay Sr. is shown here breaking down in court on Nov. 2, 1984. Gay was placed on five years' probation.

Almanac

Today is Tuesday, April 1, the 91st day of 1986 with 274 to follow. This is April Fool's Day. The moon is in its third quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Venus. Those born on this date are under the sign of Aries. They include German military theorist Prince Otto von Bismarck in 1815, Russian composer Sergei Rachmaninoff in 1873, actors Lon Chaney in 1913 and Wallace Beery in 1886, Japanese film director Toshio Miune in 1920 (age 66), actress-singer Jane Fonda in 1929 (age 56) and Debbie Reynolds in 1932 (age 54), and actress All McGraw in 1938 (age 48).

On this date in history:
 In 1918, toward the end of World War I, the Royal Air Force was founded. Two months later, Britain began bombing industrial targets in Germany from bases in France.

In 1945, American forces swarmed ashore on the island of Okinawa to begin one of the longest and bloodiest battles of World War II.

In 1982, the United States formally transferred control of the Panama Canal Zone to the government of Panama.

In 1984, singer Marvin Gaye was fatally shot by his father during an argument in Los Angeles.

In 1985, flight attendants followed the Transport Workers Union in ending a month-long strike against Pan Am. The three-year pact gave in to the union on wages and dismissals.

Wood said there is no special fund for unexpected costs and that the money came right out of the department's general fund of about $3.7 million, which the town Board of Directors approved last May.

This is an unanticipated event," Wood said in the morning. "I think they're in the red in the overall budget. We may have to shift some money around. The other scenario is, if you run out of money, you have to go to the Board of Directors and ask for contingency funds."

The department is not preparing to make such a request at this time, Wood said. Instead, Wood said, the department may cover the cost of the strikes by using money originally earmarked for the creation of five new police positions.

Daily police supervision of the strikes cost $4,432, Wood said. The supervision included one officer at each picket line, plus another officer on duty at the police station who was on call in case assistance was needed at either of the strike locations.

Police spent an additional $10,400 at the 155-bed nursing home and $8,407 at Pillwotex for overtime paid to officers watching over the picket lines and for additional officers who were needed whenever the unions held a rally, sit-in or march.

About 60 nurses' aides, kitchen helpers and other service employees at Crestfield represented by the New England Health Care Employees Union, District 1199, were on strike from Oct. 21 to Feb. 5. They went on strike when the nursing home's three owners refused to negotiate a contract with the union, despite a federal order that they do so.

Both sides are currently at the bargaining table.

At Pillwotex, United Auto Workers Local 376 represented about 60 production and maintenance employees who were on strike from Aug. 16 to March 25. Pillwotex and union officials reached a contract agreement last week on the same day that an administrative law judge of the National Labor Relations Board in Hartford was scheduled to hear UAW charges against the company.

New Year's Fools
 April Fools' Day was inspired by a calendar change during the Middle Ages. In 1564, French King Charles IX adopted a new calendar that changed New Year's Day from April 1 to January 1. But not everyone got into the swing of things. Many people continued to celebrate the New Year on April 1. Those clinging to tradition became known as April fools. By the 1600s, the custom of fooling friends on this day had become popular in France and several other countries.

HARTFORD — Three more jurors were chosen Monday to serve during the trial of an Occit Street man accused of killing his 18-month-old daughter in April.

The three were selected from among five people interviewed in Hartford Superior Court by defense and prosecuting attorneys in day-long proceedings. A total of five jurors have been chosen for the trial of Marshall Crenshaw, and interviews were scheduled to continue today to select seven more regular jurors and four alternates needed before testimony can be heard.

Crenshaw, 25, is charged with suffocating his daughter, Dale-Lyn Crenshaw, on April 20, 1985, by pulling her face into her own mouth while she slept at their Occit Street apartment. Manchester police have said Crenshaw admitted that he killed his daughter because he wanted his life to be the way it was before she was born. However, he has pleaded not guilty to the charges. On Dec. 31, he was found mentally competent to stand trial, and is currently being held at the Hartford Correctional Center because he has been unable to pay a $200,000 bond.

THE TRIAL, being presided over by Superior Court Judge Francis R. Quinn, is expected to get under way late this week and last about six weeks.

The first two candidates — women from East Hartford and Hartford — were not accepted by either attorney Richard Kelly, the public defender representing Crenshaw, or Assistant State Attorney Dennis O'Connor, who will prosecute the case.

The two interviews, which together lasted between 30 and 45 minutes, focused on each person's awareness of the case, their understanding of what amount of proof is needed to find a defendant guilty, and any contact they might have had with either the Manchester Police Department or the state's attorney's office.

MOST OF THE questions were asked by Kelly, and there was no debate between Kelly and O'Connor over the decisions. Kelly conferred with Crenshaw for about one minute before announcing whether to accept or reject each prospective juror.

The East Hartford woman was dismissed after it was learned she had read a newspaper report about the case. Kelly repeatedly asked each candidate if he or she recalled reading or hearing anything about the case.

"You can't cross examine a newspaper article," he said.

The Hartford woman was not accepted after Kelly and O'Connor agreed she did not fully understand that guilt can only be concluded if the juror feels the defendant is guilty "beyond a reasonable doubt."

KELLY EMPHASIZED that this is a higher standard than the "preponderance of the evidence" standard used to determine guilt in civil cases. He said using the civil standard is like using a measuring scale to weigh the facts for and against a defendant, something Kelly stressed cannot be done in a murder trial.

The jurors that were chosen said they were not aware of the case before being selected and that they understood the state had the burden of proving Crenshaw's guilt. The two also said they would not consider Crenshaw guilty because he had been arrested.

Nobody besides the two attorneys, Crenshaw, court officials and members of the press attended Monday's proceedings. The high-ceilinged room, paneled with dark-stained wood, was silent except for the questions asked in the interviews.

Each of the jury candidates — selected from a pool in another room — was led by the bailiff into the courtroom to the witness stand. After the interviews, they waited in the jury deliberation room behind the witness stand until the defense and prosecution agreed either to accept or reject the candidate.

Strikes cost town $23,000

By John F. Kirch

While workers picketed outside the Pillwotex Corp. and Crestfield Fenwick nursing home during two separate strikes this winter, Manchester police spent more than $23,000 to watch over them, a department spokesman said today.

The figures, contained in a police financial report completed last week, show that the town spent $23,249 for police supervision of the two picket lines, police spokesman Gary Wood said today. The lines were set up outside the Crestfield-Fenwick nursing home on Vernon Street and the Pillwotex plant on Regent Street.

The amount could put the police department in a tight budget fiscal year, which ends June 30, Wood said. But some money may be channeled from other areas of the police budget to compensate for the strikes, he said.

Wood said there is no special fund for unexpected costs and that the money came right out of the department's general fund of about $3.7 million, which the town Board of Directors approved last May.

This is an unanticipated event," Wood said in the morning. "I think they're in the red in the overall budget. We may have to shift some money around. The other scenario is, if you run out of money, you have to go to the Board of Directors and ask for contingency funds."

The department is not preparing to make such a request at this time, Wood said. Instead, Wood said, the department may cover the cost of the strikes by using money originally earmarked for the creation of five new police positions.

Daily police supervision of the strikes cost $4,432, Wood said. The supervision included one officer at each picket line, plus another officer on duty at the police station who was on call in case assistance was needed at either of the strike locations.

Police spent an additional $10,400 at the 155-bed nursing home and $8,407 at Pillwotex for overtime paid to officers watching over the picket lines and for additional officers who were needed whenever the unions held a rally, sit-in or march.

About 60 nurses' aides, kitchen helpers and other service employees at Crestfield represented by the New England Health Care Employees Union, District 1199, were on strike from Oct. 21 to Feb. 5. They went on strike when the nursing home's three owners refused to negotiate a contract with the union, despite a federal order that they do so.

Both sides are currently at the bargaining table.

At Pillwotex, United Auto Workers Local 376 represented about 60 production and maintenance employees who were on strike from Aug. 16 to March 25. Pillwotex and union officials reached a contract agreement last week on the same day that an administrative law judge of the National Labor Relations Board in Hartford was scheduled to hear UAW charges against the company.

coming here. I encourage anyone to do it," she said.

Mara said she grew up in a very Irish family in Chicopee, Mass., which she called "the heart of Dingle." She attended Our Lady of the Elms College, but said she was not interested in Irish history and literature were not offered there.

Although Mara said she would like to take the trip to Ireland this spring, she plans to wait and take her own children in a year or two so show them her roots.

English professor McGunigle's course traces Irish literature back to the heroic tales of the 7th and 8th centuries and brings it up to more familiar writers like James Joyce, Jonathan Swift and William Butler Yeats.

The course provides a chance for which he has become well-versed. He said he had had ample material to teach the class. Of Irish descent, he has also traveled to Ireland previously.

Teaching a class almost wholly composed of older adults is fun because the older students bring a history course, were offered to senior citizens for the first time this semester as part of a pilot program designed to benefit the older adults, the college and the college faculty.

"wealth of life experience into the class" and are not as reluctant to speak up as younger students, McGunigle said. "Having a whole group keeps me on my toes," he said.

Handley said she has had a similar experience teaching the history class.

"If I'm missing a piece of information, I just ask and someone usually has it," she said.

Handley said she has had several calls from working people who could not take the course during the day, so she plans to offer it again next fall in the evening.

The trip to Ireland is open to anyone, whether or not they have taken the classes, Handley said. Under the guidance of Handley and McGunigle, the group will circle the Irish coast, stopping for several days at historic and literary sites in Galway, Sligo, Dublin and Killarney, she said. The total cost, including transportation, first class hotels and most meals is $1,800 per person.

Anyone who would like to sign up or learn more about the trip can call Handley at MCC at 647-6173 or the Humanities Division at 647-2000.

The college plans to offer a similar program next fall on Italy, starting with the art of Italy in the fall and a course on "survival Italy" taught by a teacher from Italy in the spring. That course will also include a trip to Italy.

UAW takes town to federal court

By John F. Kirch

A lawsuit brought by United Auto Workers Local 376 against the Manchester Police Department has been moved from Hartford Superior Court to a federal court, the attorney who represents the union said Monday.

The suit, which charges that the police department harassed Local 376 Secretary-Treasurer Robert L. Madore because of his involvement in a strike at the Pillwotex Corp., was refiled in U.S. District Court in Hartford because it involves a constitutional-rights issue, New Haven attorney Mary L. Davidson of Sklarz & Early said.

"It's basically a constitutional issue," Davidson said. "The basis of the complaint is exactly the same. We just felt we were harassed and that a constitutional forum would be better."

Davidson said she conducted an illegal search and seizure when they asked Madore in October to take sobriety tests after stopping him at Main and Hilliard streets. Madore has said he had not been drinking that day.

Madore has said the only reason police administered the tests was because he had been actively involved in the strike at Pillwotex, which ran from Aug. 26 until March 25.

The suit was originally filed in Hartford Superior Court in January. The switch to federal court was made last week and the case was assigned to Judge Jose Cabranes, Davidson said. No hearing has been scheduled, she said.

Town Attorney Kevin O'Brien said Monday that he had received notice that the lawsuit would be switched to the federal court, adding that he had not seen the complaint.

"I don't know what their motivation is (for switching courts)," O'Brien said. "I think that no matter what court hears it, they'll find the case is groundless and an abuse of the judicial system."

Police Chief Robert Lannan, Town Manager Robert B. Weiss and police officers Clarence V. Heritage and Gary Frost were named as defendants in the original suit. Davidson said they were also named in the federal case.

The suit charges that Madore was "publicly disgraced, humiliated and suffered damages" when Frost and Heritage, under Lannan's supervision, gave him a sobriety test Oct. 31, shortly after Madore left the picket line that had been set up at Pillwotex's Regent Street plant.

Local 376 represents about 90 production and maintenance workers at Pillwotex, a Dallas-based pillow and comforter manufacturer.

Retaliating statements he made when the original suit was filed, O'Brien said, at if the court finds the UAW's case has no merit, the town may file a lawsuit against the union.

Lannan could not be reached for comment.

Pioneer sells plant but remains at site

Pioneer Recovery Systems Inc. sold its Hale Road plant for $3.1 million to the Somersville Corp. on Wednesday, but will continue to do business at the site, a company official said today.

Donald G. Robbins, vice president and general manager of Pioneer Systems, said his company will lease the 90,000-square-foot building at 120 Hale Road from Somersville, an affiliate of First Hartford Realty Corp.

"We are not moving out of Connecticut," Robbins said. "We have signed a lease for the building. We're doing what many companies are doing — we're getting out of the real estate business." Robbins said.

Pioneer, which had owned the building in Manchester for 13 years, will use the money it gets from the sale for other investments, Robbins said.

Pioneer, a holding company for three major parachute makers and two subsidiaries — one that sells crafts to retail stores and another that manufactures various materials — employs about 1,200 people around the country, Robbins said. The Manchester plant has about 130 employees, he said. The company has a plant in Putnam and others in South Carolina, California, Puerto Rico and other parts of the country.

In addition to parachutes, Pioneer manufactures the recovery system for the space shuttle's booster rockets, Robbins said.

U.S./World In Brief

Stalin's daughter reconsiders

MOSCOW — Svetlana Alliluyeva, the daughter of Josef Stalin, apparently has changed her mind about living in her home in a d and wants to return to the United States with her American daughter, a Soviet journalist said.

Journalist Victor Louis said Monday that Svetlana's chances of getting permission to return to the United States — which she left 16 months ago — were slim but she appeared to have a good chance of getting permission to return because she is a U.S. citizen.

Louis, who in the past has been a reliable conduit of information to the West, said Alliluyeva and her 14-year-old daughter visited the U.S. Embassy, apparently seeking exit visas.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Jaroslav Verner confirmed Alliluyeva was in direct contact with the embassy but declined to say whether she sought to leave, citing her right to privacy.

Alliluyeva, 59, was stripped of her Soviet citizenship when she defected to the West in 1967, but it was reinstated when she returned. Her daughter holds dual citizenship unless she decides to renounce her U.S. citizenship as an adult.

OSHA fines Union Carbide

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — The Occupational Safety and Health Administration today levied record fines totaling $1.3 million against Union Carbide Corp., alleging the company violated safety rules at least 221 times in the last six months.

The proposed fines, which Carbide has 15 days to appeal, mark the agency's largest fine ever, said OSHA spokesman Jack Hord. The alleged violations occurred in five units inspected by federal investigators since an Aug. 11 poison gas leak at the plant.

OSHA inspectors went to the plant a month after a leak of aldricid oxime and methylene chloride sent six workers and 129 area residents to hospitals. The agency announced plans to inspect 18 units; today's fines involve five.

The institute probe covered the phosgene and Larvin units. Hord said Phosgene was used as a nerve gas during World War I and Larvin is a strong pesticide that requires a license to use.

Construction spending rises

WASHINGTON — Construction spending rose 1.2 percent in February, led by large gains in residential structures, the Commerce Department said today.

The department said new construction totaled a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $369.5 billion in February, up from $358.1 billion in January. It was the fourth consecutive monthly increase.

Much of the strength in February came from construction of new single-family homes, up 2 percent to $91.3 billion.

In a second report today, the Commerce Department said that orders to U.S. factories fell 1.4 percent in February, the largest drop since a 1.6 percent decline in September, 1984.

A 30 percent drop in orders for defense equipment and a 10 percent drop in the cost of petroleum products accounted for the drop, department analysts said.

Explosions hit Canadian city

TIMMINS, Ontario — An estimated 1,800 gallons of gasoline spilled into a sewer system and seeped into basements of nearby homes, causing at least four explosions and 11 fires and prompting police to evacuate 75 city blocks.

Authorities in Timmins, some 500 miles north of Toronto, shut off electricity and natural gas Monday as residents made their way to relatives' homes or a makeshift shelter in a hockey arena. Police estimated they ordered between 2,000 and 3,000 people to leave the area.

An estimated 1,800 gallons of gasoline spilled into the sewer system while being transferred to a storage tank from a railway car, a spokesman for the oil company said. Fumes seeped into basements where they were ignited by gas stoves or furnace pilot lights, MacDonald said.

Ban spurs protest in Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Protestants angered by a British ban on a planned parade battled security forces in Portadown, ushering in "marching season" with violent protests that spread to other parts of the province early today.

Some 50 people — including 13 police officers — were reported injured in Portadown, 13 miles southwest of Belfast. Authorities said one policeman suffered serious injuries and may have been blinded by one of the gasoline bombs, bricks and stones rioters hurled at police.

Other injuries came from some 100 plastic bullets police fired in return, witnesses said. By early today, the violence that began in Portadown had spread elsewhere in the province, including Belfast.

France confirms withdrawal

BEIRUT, Lebanon — France lowered its flags today and said it would no longer keep its 45 military observers in Lebanon to help rival Christian and Moslem militias monitor cease-fire violations.

The decision to withdraw the soldiers from Beirut ends two years of French oversight of cease-fire violations. Government sources said France pulled the observers out because of increased hostility from Moslem fundamentalists and no signs of peace among factions who have fought a civil war since 1975.

In Paris, the Foreign Ministry said the closing of the four posts would precede the observers' departure. A spokesman said the decision was made "in agreement with the Lebanese authorities."

Gramm-Rudman triggers new cuts

By Elaine S. Povich
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Veterans' education and job-training programs are being cut today by as much as 13 percent — the latest reduction under the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law.

The Veterans Administration said a single veteran who is a full-time student will lose $33 per month and a single veteran getting vocational rehabilitation subsistence payments will lose $41 a month, beginning with the checks that come out today.

Details of the veterans' reduction were announced Monday as college students protested cuts under the balanced budget law and President Reagan's new budget.

In a news release, the VA said education and training benefits will be reduced 8.7 percent and subsistence allowances for vocational rehabilitation trainees will be cut 13.1 percent.

Checks for service-connected disability or injury are not affected by the reductions, the agency said.

"It's being done in accordance with the (Gramm-Rudman) law," VA spokesman John Scholten said.

The Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law requires the current deficit of about $180 billion to be cut in steps to zero by the fall 1990.

Scholten noted that Gramm-Rudman required a 4.3 percent cut of nearly all programs, but the education cuts are felt more harshly and sooner because the school year is more than half over.

American Legion spokesman James Witek said the veterans' education and training cuts are particularly hard to shoulder because they are "one of the things the vets need to get back into the swing of things" after their government services.

Veterans are being notified of the cuts with "inserts" mailed with the checks, the VA said. The inserts do not mention the popular name of the balanced budget law, referring instead to the "Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985."

Separately, the General Accounting Office gave government in general an "A-minus" on spending cuts achieved under Gramm-Rudman this spring. In a report required by the law, the GAO said agencies "made concerted efforts ... to make reductions at the required levels" to cut 4.3 percent.

"Consequently, despite our finding that reductions at the program, project and activity levels were not always made in strict conformance with the (requirements of Gramm-Rudman), we believe that the goals of these requirements were substantially fulfilled," it said.

About the same time, a group of college students held a news conference in Washington to protest cuts in higher education due to both Gramm-Rudman and proposals in Reagan's fiscal 1987 budget. The new budget proposes cutting $2.3 billion from the student loan program, asserting much of the aid goes to the "relatively well-off and finances an unreasonable share of costs at very expensive schools."

The budget approved by the Senate Budget Committee two weeks ago would restore that cut.

Jim Schmidt, chairman of the Minnesota State University Association, disputed that claim, saying the "vast majority of student aid goes to lower and middle income students, who without it would likely never receive any sort of post-secondary opportunity."

Foes of aid denied access to president

By Leon Daniel
United Press International

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — A Catholic priest, who was blocked from delivering a petition to President Reagan, says civil disobedience may be necessary to halt U.S. aid to the Nicaraguan contras.

"We'll try every legitimate means before we go into civil disobedience, but that is on the horizon," said the Rev. Charles Litley, who led a march of 60 veterans to the gate of Reagan's ranch Monday.

The marchers were met at the gate by Secret Service agents and sheriff's deputies.

Unable to deliver to the vacationing president their petition calling for a halt of contra aid, the veterans held a brief prayer vigil outside the ranch gate.

Litley, a former Army chaplain who won the Medal of Honor for rescuing wounded GIs under fire in Vietnam in 1967, prayed for "forgiveness for U.S. complicity in crimes in Nicaragua."

One of the marchers later attempted to deliver the petition to White House spokesman Larry Speakes at his news briefing at a Santa Barbara hotel.

"I'm not going to participate in a stunt like that," said Speakes, declining to accept the petition. Speakes offered to see that representatives of the group met with an appropriate White House official but said he knew of no plans for the president to see the veterans.

The veterans sent a telegram to the president requesting a meeting.

"Your request for contra aid raises grave moral questions and serious dangers of a U.S. combat role," the telegram said. "You should be aware of conclusions drawn from our wartime experiences and trips to Central America."

Speaking at a news conference under a huge banner that said "Wage Peace," Litley called U.S. policy in Central America "illegal and immoral."

"We are bullying our way around the world," said the peace activist who is organizing an April 15 march in Washington to oppose Contra aid.

Litley said a military solution to the fighting in Nicaragua is "out of the question. It will have to be a negotiative process."

Ellis Irvin, a Vietnam veteran from San Francisco, said veterans benefits were being cut while millions of dollars have been spent for Contra aid.

Irvin said he feared his 19-year-old son would be forced to fight in Central America because of U.S. policies he considers "morally wrong."

"Why spend $100 million for Contra aid when veterans benefits are being taken away from us?" Irvin asked.

In Washington, the Veterans Administration announced education, rehabilitation and job programs for veterans will be cut by as much as 13 percent today to meet the deficit goals of the Gramm-Rudman budget law.

Lockheed, MIT lead nation in research for Pentagon

By Norman Black
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Lockheed Missiles and Space Co. led the nation's businesses last year in performing research work for the Pentagon, while the Massachusetts Institute of Technology finished first among non-profit organizations, a new report shows.

The report, released Monday, also shows the Defense Department spent $18.94 billion in fiscal 1985 for "research, development, test and evaluation" work, compared to $18.23 billion in fiscal 1984.

The totals include all contract awards totaling $25,000 or more.

During fiscal 1985, which ended last Sept. 30, Lockheed ranked first among recipients of such research contracts included 396 businesses; 95 educational or non-profit institutions; six U.S. government agencies; and nine foreign contractors, the report shows.

Lockheed Missiles and Space, a unit of the California-based Lockheed Corp., bumped The Boeing Co. out of first place last year, the report shows. The one unit of Lockheed received research contracts totaling $1.6 billion, compared to $1.07 billion for No. 2 Boeing.

In fiscal 1984, Boeing led the list of the top 500 research contractors with awards totaling $1.8 billion. Lockheed Missiles and Space was No. 2 that year with awards totaling $1.16 billion.

Lockheed's position among researchers will be actually greater than it would appear because the report treats individual corporate divisions receiving large amounts of work as separate entities.

The Pentagon reported several weeks ago that based on all types of contracts — weapons production as well as research — the McDonnell Douglas Corp. and the General Dynamics Corp. were the first- and second-ranked defense contractors, respectively, in fiscal 1985.

Boeing was No. 5 on that consolidated list and Lockheed No. 6. The new report thus emphasizes the extent to which the Pentagon is devoting its research dollars to work involving missile and space systems, electronics and aircraft.

U.S., Philippines announce accord

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — U.S. and Philippine negotiators reached an agreement in principle today to end an 11-day-old strike by Filipino workers at eight American military bases, but it was too late to stop the diversion of a U.S. Naval force from a port call at the Subic Bay Naval Base.

Union officials said they would submit the agreement to their members later today and, if the rank and file approves the proposal, the 24,000 strikers would lift their barricades and return to work Wednesday morning, said Roberto Flores, president of the Federation of Filipino Civil Servants and Non-Profit Institutions.

The tentative agreement came after a nearly eight-hour negotiating session during a fifth round of talks aimed at ending the longest walkout ever at U.S. military bases in the Philippines.

But it was not enough to prevent five ships carrying 4,500 sailors and marines from being diverted from the naval facility at Subic Bay to an undisclosed port, a decision that will mean the loss of $1.5 million to the local economy.

A seven-point resolution hammered out during a meeting of the Philippine-U.S. Joint Labor Committee called for a resumption of talks on wage and benefit disputes no later than Friday after a return to work.

The union struck all eight U.S. installations in the Philippines, including the Subic Bay facility and Clark Air Base — Washington's two largest overseas bases — March 21 after talks on a new three-year collective bargaining agreement collapsed when the Pentagon rejected a demand that workers who resign be given severance pay.

Candle may be cause of London fire

By Al Webb
United Press International

LONDON — Queen Elizabeth II is not easily shaken. This day she was the star of the smoldering ruins at Hampton Court Palace, home to some of her most illustrious royal ancestors, and mouthed one word: "Dreadful."

A fire that could be seen from 3 miles away as it leaped above turrets and chimneys gutted much of the south wing of Britain's oldest royal palace Monday and destroyed or damaged irreplaceable art treasures valued at millions of dollars.

The culprit may have been a single candle, lit by the widow of a war hero's elderly widow — the one person thought to have died in the blaze that took 120 firefighters to bring under control at King Henry VIII's 16th century residence.

Clad in an olive-green raincoat, Queen Elizabeth broke her Easter vacation and accompanied husband and heir Prince Charles and sister

Princess Margaret on a half-hour visit to Hampton Court. The scene was drenched by fire hoses and a drizzling rain.

All three were clearly shaken as they discussed the disaster with firefighters, who rescued seven elderly women and, with the help of palace staff, saved what Evrimment Secretary Kenneth Baker said was "as much as they could of the irreplaceable pieces of our history."

It could have been worse. The comparatively new south wing was redesigned in the 1690s by master architect Christopher Wren. The fire spared the older Tudor architecture, with its aged and dried beams, that make up the vast majority of the palace's 1,000 rooms.

The fire broke out in upstairs palace apartments provided by the Forest Service in Atlanta.

At least 300 fires blazed across 2,000 acres in North Carolina during the weekend, while Alabama officials reported 150 blazes Sunday alone.

Dry weather was expected in the fire zones for the next few days.

"Without rain there isn't a whole lot we can do," said Ralph Glover, deputy state forester in West Virginia, where 56 new fires were reported Monday and 12 continued to burn.

Four trained "hot-shot" firefighting teams from New Mexico and Arizona were battling a 34-acre blaze Monday in the Daniel Boone National Forest in Kentucky, which had at least 65 fires raging.

Last week, more than 650 fires blackened 23,000 acres in Kentucky. In West Virginia, more than 25,000 acres have been charred this year, the worst since 1976, said Jerry Atkins, assistant state forester. More than 460 fires blackened nearby 15,000 acres last week, and Atkins said arson was suspected in at least one-third.

Three juveniles believed to have set several fires in Raleigh County, W.Va., were arrested Monday evening, forester Robert Dameron said.

In southwestern Virginia, seven forest fires burned out of control Monday. Acreage was not available. Since Jan. 1, 195 forest fires burned 4,900 acres, said Division of Forestry spokesman Lou Southard.

Tennessee had 283 fires Sunday that blackened 2,745 acres, said Roy Ashby, director of the state Forestry Division.

So far this year, 3,730 fires have claimed 40,000 acres across Tennessee.

Dry weather dims firefighters' hopes

By Martin Steinberg
The Associated Press

Crews battled hundreds of wildfires today in the drought-parched hills of Dixie, and forecasters held out little hope that rain would end the siege that has charred more than 90,000 acres in the past week.

Forest fires, which contributed to two deaths since last week, were raging today in Alabama, Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, Ohio and Missouri. Many of the blazes were set, officials say.

Large fires were extinguished Monday night in New Jersey and Massachusetts.

More than a half million acres across the Southeast have been consumed this year in nearly 38,000 fires, said Bruce Jewell, regional information officer for the U.S. Forest Service in Atlanta.

Liability caps won't protect the victims

As insurance rates skyrocket beyond the ability of many towns, cities and businesses to pay, limits on the amount of damage awards in liability cases are gaining increasing favor as a means of stemming the trend.

Supporters of liability caps generally see overly generous juries as the culprit behind escalating insurance rates, and one need not look far to find instances of seemingly excessive or outrageous jury awards. For instance, a California teenager was awarded $300,000 for injuries he suffered when he fell through a skylight. While the size of the award was not unusual, the circumstances surrounding the injury were: the youth was lying on the skylight while attempting to steal high-intensity lights.

In Philadelphia, a woman who blamed the loss of what she said were psychic powers on a CAT scan was recently awarded more than $1 million.

Such cases, while receiving a good deal of attention, no doubt represent a very small portion of the claims sought in the courts each year.

But an increasing number of states, including Connecticut, have considered bills that would limit damage awards. And President Reagan has said he plans to submit legislation to Congress that would restrict attorneys' fees and damage awards for pain and suffering.

While keeping insurance premiums affordable is a laudable goal, lawmakers should not overlook the victims of negligence in their haste to halt rising insurance rates.

How does one put a price tag on a lost limb or a lifetime of immobility?

In New Mexico, the price is $50,000 if the victim happens to have been struck by a drunken driver and looks to the tavern owner to recoup damages. In Missouri, the top price is put at $350,000 if the victim's injuries happen to have been caused by medical malpractice.

By setting arbitrary limits on damage awards, states are denying the rights of victims of negligence to seek just compensation.

As New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, himself a lawyer, put it, "A cap is a statement that we can't afford to do justice."

There are other ways to address the insurance crisis without trampling on the rights of victims. The search for a solution to the problem should start with the insurance industry's own practices, not with a revamping of civil law.

Co-ops can help beat high cost of energy

STAMFORD — "You can save $250 on your heating oil," says the headline of a brochure about "Buyers Up," a metro Washington consumer cooperative of Public Citizen, founded by Ralph Nader.

Nader has launched similar co-ops in New Jersey, New York and Connecticut. They really can save big money. For example, here in Stamford, I could pay 56 cents a gallon for heating oil from Herbert Fuel, a local company.

Or I could pay 75 cents if I buy from the Connecticut Fuel Buyers Group. If 1,000 gallons of oil are consumed, the savings would be $200.

But only 125 customers have gotten delivery via CFBG.

Why?

The Nader group is brand new and does not advertise. But even in the Washington area, where Buyers Up has been operating for two years, only 8,000 of the 250,000 oil users buy through the co-op.

In fact, its winter newsletter featured an article headlined "Ralph Nader Wants to Visit Your Home" to meet with any group of 25-30 oil-using friends who are not yet Buyers Up members "to sell the advantages of group purchasing."

"The gathering need not be formal or elaborate. Just an opportunity for you and your neighbors to exchange ideas with Mr. Nader on how consumer leverage in the marketplace can be increased," it said.

THE SIMPLE FACT is that buying through a non-profit co-op seems alien to many Americans. However, the idea makes eminent sense. The concept, as explained by Nader, who has been leading consumer battles for two decades since the publication of his book, "Unsafe At Any Speed," is as follows:

"Consumers are finding that together they can free the market, greatly increasing their bargaining power. Group buying by consumers is the next big stand of the consumer movement, one that can reshape the economy to be more competitive, innovative, and efficient."

Eighth District deserves to live

To the Editor:

Here we go again with the consolidation baloney. The editor was right when he called it malicious.

For those of you not familiar with consolidation, we are one small section of Manchester called the 8th District.

The rest of the town outvotes us 3 to 1, and the Town Charter says we must petition the town for consolidation to take place.

That's what this fare is all about. They plan to change the charter so the town can force us to consolidate. We will be celebrating our 100th birthday in 1988. We sit here quietly minding our own business.

The vague stories that the town subsidizes the Eighth are not true. Last time, a few years back, the case went all the way to the state Supreme Court. We paid our legal fees and also the town's legal fees in our own taxes. That's subsidizing? Thanks, but no thanks.

I believe it was the editor who wrote he couldn't understand why our budget didn't include the new firehouse. You have to live in the Eighth to know how it works.

It's like last year when Mr. Weiss had $4,000 in the town budget, to redo his office. We all paid the tax for that, but we sure had a great laugh here in the Eighth. If a member of our Board of Directors mentioned the room needed a coat of paint, everybody that heard it would give him a bucket of paint and a brush and go to it.

So please, if it comes to a referendum on consolidation vote "No." Something that's worked for 99 years can't be that bad.

Also I have an incurable illness and keep a medic-alert button in my pocket that alerts the Eighth volunteer fire department when I'm alone and in trouble.

I'm going to be an honorary Fire Chief in 1988 reviewing the parade. I am pretty annoyed that they're trying to take that away from me.

We are just people like yourselves, some problems and headaches. Please remember this when you go to vote.

IN FACT, COATES ALLEGES that "Ten to 12 distributors met two days afterwards to see what they could do to get Connecticut Fuel Buyers out of the business. Our oil terminal and our supplier were threatened with boycotts — and were boycotted. The Hitchcock Terminal in Bridgeport received a boycott, and its gallage was greatly lowered as a result of a second meeting by retail competitors, called its organizer and asked, 'Where is that meeting to get rid of the Connecticut Fuel Buyers group?' To his delight, he got the information!"

Abu Nidal may be killing for Khomeini

WASHINGTON — The menacing visage of the Ayatollah Khomeini is looming ever larger in the deliberations of experts trying to identify those responsible for the terrorist assaults on the Rome and Vienna airports that left six Americans dead last December.

At the time, President Reagan angrily blamed Libya's volatile Moammar Khadafi. But U.S. intelligence agencies have received information from usually reliable sources that Abu Nidal, the renegade Palestinian who heads the group that committed the attacks, used Iran as a planning and training center for the operation.

What makes this development so significant — and so alarming for the United States — is that Nidal's protector and supporter for years has been Iran's blood enemy, Iraq. At one time, Iraq was bankrolling Nidal (real name: Sabri Banna) and his group to the tune of $23 million or more a year.

But then, as part of the U.S. attempt to lure Iraq out of the Soviet orbit with arms supplies and other aid, the State Department prevailed on Iraq to drop its support of Nidal. The selling point was that forcing Nidal to move his headquarters from Iraq might remove Iraq from the list of terrorist nations ineligible for U.S. aid.

Unfortunately, the pressure seems to have worked — sending Abu Nidal into the arms of Khomeini.

NIDAL WAS ONCE PART of the most militant wing of the Palestine Liberation Organization. He was associated with Black September, the terrorist group that committed, among other outrages, the massacre of Israeli athletes at the 1972 Munich Olympics.

At about that time, Nidal split with PLO chief Yassir Arafat and in 1974 a PLO court tried him in absentia and sentenced him to death. Ever since, Arafat and Nidal have been trying to get each other assassinated.

Meanwhile, Nidal has carved a path of murder and mayhem across the Middle East and Europe. His usual assassination targets have been moderate Arabs, particularly PLO diplomats.

On June 2, 1982, Nidal actually ignited a war when his goons seriously wounded Shlomo Argov, the Israeli ambassador in London. The attempt was the immediate cause — some say the pretext — for Israel's ill-starred invasion of Lebanon three days later.

After the twin airport attacks last Dec. 27, the Reagan administration blamed Libya as an accomplice, but the evidence points more to Iran and Syria. The two four-man teams of terrorists got crucial training and operational planning in the Bekka Valley of eastern Lebanon. The Bekka is controlled by the Syrians and patrolled by hundreds of Iranian revolutionary guards, who run the valley as if it were a suburb of Tehran.

SECRET INTERROGATION by Italian intelligence of the lone surviving terrorist in the Rome attack, Mohammad Sarhan, confirmed that some of the team's training took place in Isfahan, Iran, as well as the Bekka, and that the airport attackers entered Italy via Syria.

Our own sources inside Iran report that Nidal himself has spent extended periods of time since last September at the Iranian terrorist training camp in Manaziriyeh Park, close to Khomeini's Tehran residence. One trusted CIA source said Nidal stayed as long as a week on at least half-a-dozen occasions between September and the Christmas time airport attacks. His escort on these visits was Khomeini's son, Ahmad.

Several U.S. intelligence officials now concede that Iran (and Syria) bear more blame for the attacks than Libya. If Nidal has indeed become a lackey of Khomeini, it means he may shift his attention from old scores against the PLO to new ones against the United States.

Are the bureaucrats in charge of the much-criticized U.S. aid program in Egypt trying to boost their own stock by implying that the bad guys disapprove of their activities? Reports to Foggy Bottom from U.S. Embassy officials in Cairo point out that leftist, anti-American opponents of Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak have accused the Agency for International Development of providing cover for U.S. espionage. This, the leftists say, is making Egypt too dependent on the United States and is a "U.S. shadow government in Egypt." Does this heaped criticism mean AID must be doing something right? That may be the message.

Explosion, fire hit copper factory

SEYMOUR — A series of explosions destroyed the manufacturing building of the New Haven Copper Co. and fire officials this morning were investigating natural gas or propane leaks as a possible source of the explosion.

All six employees inside the Main Street plant got out safely after the first explosion shortly after midnight, authorities said. That was followed by a series of explosions and the fire, authorities said. The back wall of the factory caved in and flames leapt 50 to 60 feet into the air, observers said.

Northeast Utilities officials were on the scene this morning testing the area for possible gas leaks. They were called to the scene about 12:30 a.m. to shut off the electricity and later to shut off gas to the building. NU workers tested for possible gas leaks after the fire was under control, a spokeswoman said. She said results of those tests were not available this morning.

The fire was largely under control by about 3 a.m. this morning, said police Lt. John Olencuch. He said the fire "pretty much" destroyed the factory.

Three state firms charged in lawsuit

NEW HAVEN — The U.S. attorney for Connecticut filed suit in U.S. District Court Monday against three state electro-plating companies, charging they failed to meet government regulations for hazardous waste sites.

The suit seeks to close the waste facilities at Plainville Electro Plating, Stanley Plating Co. in Forestville and Susan Bates Inc. in Chester, U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy said in a prepared statement.

The civil complaint was filed against the companies because they could not prove compliance with requirements for groundwater monitoring and liability insurance, Twardy said. Under the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act of 1980, companies were given until November 1985 to bring their landfills into compliance.

Twardy is seeking up to $25,000 a day in fines from each company for each violation. The suit asks for the closure of the waste sites, not the companies.

Plainville Electro Plating plates aircraft parts and electrical components. Stanley Plating does work for automotive and aerospace firms and Susan Bates makes knitting needles and crochet hooks.

Poll gives good marks to DMV

HARTFORD — After being the target of criticism for the past year, the Department of Motor Vehicles got good marks in a recent poll of Connecticut drivers.

Five hundred drivers were called between Feb. 25 and March 4 and asked about their experiences with the department. The Institute for Social Inquiry at the University of Connecticut and The Hartford Courant conducted the poll.

Two-thirds of those polled said the department's performance was excellent or good and 27 percent said it was poor.

The drivers were split almost evenly about whether or not the lines they stood in were reasonable. Forty-five percent said the lines weren't too long and 48 percent said the lines were too long. Three percent said they didn't have to wait at all.

Three out of every four drivers said they were treated courteously during their last visit to one of the department's 17 offices.

More than eight in ten of the drivers said their business was handled efficiently once they got to a window.

A survey released in October by the General Assembly's Program Review and Investigations Committee found obsolete computer systems at the agency, a shortage of employees and money, long lines and haphazard employee evaluations.

Officials urge water pump checks

HARTFORD — State environmental officials are warning that homeowners with wells should check their subsurface water pumps following reports that PCB-laced oil from the pumps may contaminate water supplies.

Recent studies indicate thousands of pumps may have capacitors filled with PCBs, or polychlorinated biphenyls, said Scott Desheley, a senior environmental analyst with the state Department of Environmental Protection and coordinator of Connecticut's PCB Toxics Program. The PCBs could contaminate oil in the pump motors and possibly leak into water supplies, he said.

"People who have well pumps should determine first if the pumps are subsurface, then whether the pumps were manufactured between 1971 and 1978, and then if they have capacitors that are fluid-filled," Desheley said.

Desheley's warning followed a report by New York State health officials that identified 13 cases of contaminated well water caused by subsurface pumps. In three cases, PCBs were found at levels higher than New York's safety guideline of 1 part per billion.

D'Amore says Petroni doesn't count

By John Gustavsen
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Republican State Chairman Thomas J. D'Amore Jr. says GOP gubernatorial candidate Romeo G. Petroni is no longer a factor in the race for governor.

D'Amore said Petroni's absence from today's caucus against three others seeking the GOP gubernatorial nomination makes his candidacy for governor unviable.

"I don't believe that he's a factor at this point when you start to look at some of the things that are necessary to keep a candidacy viable, and the least of which is tomorrow night not entering Fairfield," D'Amore said at a news conference Monday.

"At this juncture we're really looking at, as a practical matter, three candidates for governor."

D'Amore also said he would probably endorse a candidate prior to the convention and considered it likely other GOP leaders would do the same.

Petroni, who is not a candidate in today's caucus, said for D'Amore to "write off my candidacy because he prefers to spend his money elsewhere, said for D'Amore to "write off my candidacy because I didn't enter Fairfield is wrong. I don't know who appointed him."

"I'm going to challenge in three towns, Stamford, Hamden and West Hartford," Petroni said. "My decision was to challenge (Westport state Rep. Julie) Belaga in Stamford. If I can win in Stamford, I will become the Fairfield County candidate."

Petroni also said D'Amore previously told him he would not make an endorsement prior to the July convention and added it would be in "the best interests of the party" for D'Amore to remain neutral.

Petroni has said in the past that D'Amore favors Belaga's candidacy above his and those of former state Sen. Gerald Labriola of Naugatuck and Richard C. Bozuto of Waterbury.

"I think he's wrong in endorsing anyone until after the convention," Petroni said. "It's reasonable for the chairman to endorse anyone the party endorses."

When Fairfield Republicans pick their delegates today to the July nominating convention, 23 delegates will be at stake, the fourth-largest delegation to the convention.

D'Amore said the caucus is significant only because it's the first significant test of strength.

"I don't think anyone has to win Fairfield to get the gubernatorial nomination," he said. "It's just one of a series of things that are important to look at."

Bozuto appears to have spent the most money on Fairfield, estimating his expenses at $7,500. Labriola said he had spent between $5,000 and $6,000, while Belaga said she had spent about $6,000.

After Fairfield, the next test will be "Super Tuesday" — the May 6 delegate selection in six Hartford-area towns that will permit unaffiliated voters to join with Republicans in voting for delegates.

The towns taking part in these contests are Granby, Newton, Simsbury, South Windsor, West Hartford and Wethersfield.

Incident spurs embarrassment

Elections office breaks state campaign laws

By Mark A. Dupuis
United Press International

HARTFORD — A routine campaign announcement has proven embarrassing after aides to the state's chief elections official apparently violated campaign laws in getting the announcement out.

The secretary of the state's office issued a two-paragraph news release announcing the appointment of Edward J. Stockton as finance chairman for the re-election campaign of Secretary of the State Julia H. Tashjian.

The release was printed under the official letterhead used by the secretary of the state's office for news releases in apparent violation of laws prohibiting the use of state stationery for campaign purposes.

"Oh dear, you know something, I hope it's not (a violation). I never thought of that," the secretary's administrative assistant, Susan Rocchi, said Monday when the apparent violation was pointed out by United Press International.

Rocchi acknowledged later the news release should not have been on the state letterhead, but said the incident was the result of an "absolute mistake" and not intentional.

She said she prepared the release while doing state work on her own time over the weekend and by mistake gave all of the materials to a secretary to type Monday morning.

"Everything got in one pack of stuff," said Rocchi, who said she had intended to type the news release on plain paper so it could be distributed to the news media.

The issue of using state facilities or employees for campaign work has been a sensitive one this year, with Democratic Gov. William A. O'Neill accused of using state staff and workers to handle campaign-related work.

The State Elections Enforcement Commission is investigating a complaint filed by D'Amore accusing O'Neill of violating campaign laws by having state workers handle campaign chores.

Rep. Pauline R. Kester of Plainville, the only announced GOP candidate to challenge Democrat Tashjian, said she has no plans to personally file a complaint with the elections commission over the Tashjian news release.

Kester, however, criticized the secretary of the state's office for the apparent violation.

Sudafed removed

TORRINGTON (AP) — Some local stores have cleared their shelves of Sudafed decongestant capsules following a report of possible tampering with a package of the product bought locally.

A package purchased at the Shop Rite Supermarket Saturday has been turned over to the state Department of Consumer Protection for testing, according to John F. McGuire, chief of the department's food division.

A local woman discovered at least one of the capsules was not firmly attached to its package as it should have been.

McGuire said two of the capsules appeared to have been crushed.

GOP lists winners, losers under education plan

By Mark A. Dupuis United Press International
HARTFORD — All but 19 of the state's cities and towns would get more aid under a Republican education plan than under Gov. William A. O'Neill's program, a GOP analysis has shown.

O'Neill has declined to say if he would sign or veto the plan since he has not yet seen the details. The chief differences between the GOP plan and O'Neill's proposal include the formula for distributing the aid and GOP refusal to mandate a minimum starting salary for teachers. O'Neill proposed spending $47 million of the $91 million in his program for teacher salaries, including a minimum mandatory starting salary of $19,300 in the 1986-87 school year.

U.S. death rate reflects older population, cancer rise

Among causes of death, an increase was noted for cancers, particularly lung and lymphatic cancers. Death rate increases also were observed for chronic lung disease, pneumonia and influenza, diabetes, kidney disease and blood poisoning, according to the study.

The nation's population over age 65 increased by 2.5 million between 1980 and 1984, the Census Bureau reports, with an estimated 28,040,000 elderly as of July 1, 1984, up from only 16 million over age 65 in 1960.

Despite a slight rise in infant deaths, though, the nation's infant death rate was 10.6 per 100 live births, down slightly from 10.7 a year earlier.

The rate fell despite a rise in deaths due to the fact that the total number of infants increased faster than the deaths — a reflection of the so-called echo of the Baby Boom, occurring as that large generation born after World War II passes through the prime child-bearing ages.

While the national death totals were given for calendar 1985, the detailed figures are for the 12 months ended last November, since statisticians have not had the opportunity to analyze later figures.

During that 12-month period, the nation's single most common cause of death was heart disease, as it has been for many years, although the rate has been declining.

Major cardiovascular diseases — diseases of the heart and blood vessels — had a death rate of 416.5 of every 100,000 Americans. That is down from a rate of 410.9 a year earlier.

Cardiovascular diseases had a death rate of 436.4 in 1980, 406.0 in 1979 and 311.1 in 1960, according to government records. Lower rates, however, of between 350 and 400 per 100,000 people were recorded in the early years of this century.

Various forms of cancer had a death rate of 193.2 for 1985, up from 191.1 in the earlier sample, the center reported.

In contrast to recent declines in the death rate from heart disease, the cancer rate has been rising in recent years as people live longer.

The cancer death rate was 193.9 in 1980, 162.8 in 1970 and 149.2 per 100,000 people in 1960. Cancer was blamed for only 64 deaths per 100,000 people in 1900, the rate climbing steadily ever since, and topping 100 in 1922.

Lung and chest cancers accounted for the largest segment of cancer deaths last year at a rate of 52.1 per 100,000 people, up from 51.8 in the 12 months ending in November, 1984.

Other cancers with high death rates included cancer of the digestive organs, 49.1, up from 48.7; cancer of the genital organs, 29.8, up from 29.4; breast cancer, 16.7, down from 16.9; cancer of the lymph system, 10.4, up from 10.2; and cancers of other unspecified sites, 24.5, up from 24.3.

Other major causes of death in 1985 listed in the new report, and the rates per 100,000 people, are: Accidents, 38.3, down from 39.6; chronic lung disease, 31.3, up from 29.5; pneumonia and influenza, 27.8, up from 24.5; diabetes, 15.8, up from 15.1; suicide, 11.8, down from 11.7; liver disease, 11.4, up from 9.3, up from 8.7; murder, 8.2, down from 8.3, and blood poisoning, 7.1, up from 6.2.

Joseph Butler of the Federal Aviation Administration examines a wing section of the light plane that crashed near Somers Monday, killing five people. The plane, one of whose occupants co-owned a business in Manchester, crashed as it approached the Ellington Airport.

Smoke killed crash victims

No evidence yet there was malfunction

SOMERS (UPI) — Autopsies show that four of the five people found dead in the wreckage of a private airplane which crashed into the side of a mountain died of smoke inhalation, the state's chief medical examiner says.

Despite the medical examiner's findings, federal investigators at the scene said Monday they had not made any immediate conclusions about a possible cause, such as mechanical failure.

The Piper Comanche plane carrying five Somers-area residents slammed into the 1,075-foot Soapstone Mountain Sunday night about two miles short of an airport runway, state police said.

"The weather last night was clear and at the present time there is no evidence that it was a malfunction," said Frank Ghiora, chief of the National Transportation Safety Board's regional office in New York.

Police identified the victims as: Steven Scribner, 27, of Ellington; his wife, Wanda Scribner, 27; their son, Mark Scribner, 4; and two friends, Elizabeth Stevens, 28, of Vernon; and Jeffrey King, 26, also of Vernon.

All except Stevens died of smoke inhalation, the chief state medical examiner's office said.

Stevens died of multiple blunt trauma to chest and abdomen, although an autopsy also showed signs of smoke inhalation, the medical examiner's office said.

The plane crashed into the mountain, located in the Shenepost State Forest near the Massachusetts border, at about 8:30 p.m. Sunday, police said. The crash ignited a fire which scorched more than four acres of state forest, police said.

The victims were badly burned and their identities had been withheld pending completion of

A friend and co-worker of Steven M. Scribner, wife, son and another friend, Elizabeth Stevens of Vernon, also died in the crash.

Flying was a favorite hobby of Scribner's. He co-owned the single-engine Piper Comanche with Chris Hoveman, a co-owner of the metal works plant.

The plant was open today and will continue to operate, although it may shut down on Thursday so that all the employees can attend the funeral services for the Scribners in East Hampton, Horton said.

No further details on the funeral were available today.

Tom Ozimek throws water at Michael O'Rourke during an opening sketch in 'Improv 10.'

Improv 10 is 10!

By Nancy Pappas
Herald Reporter

It's hard enough to put together a quality show when you've got a solid script in front of you. But it's even more difficult if the script comes entirely from the actors' heads. Such is the case with Improv 10, an innovative improvisational theater group, celebrating its 10th anniversary with a production at Manchester Community College this weekend.

The show will include 25 short sketches, each developed by the performers themselves, in the course of about 18 three-hour rehearsals.

"With us, there's no script, there isn't even a theme or a unifying concept," said Richard Dana, the group's producer-director. "The only thing you start with is a commitment to do a show."

Improv 10 was founded 10 years ago by his wife, the late Mildred Dana, a television and off-Broadway actress who taught her craft at MCC. "She was looking for a performance vehicle for her students," said her husband.

Both Danas taught their acting classes almost entirely without scripts, he said. "We believed that the ability to read a script has absolutely nothing to do with acting," said Dana, who still teaches the school's only acting course.

"Our courses are based largely on improvisation," he said. "We take new people and keep them away from scene work, from scripts, for almost the whole semester. When they finally get a script in their hands, they have a basis for being natural, being themselves on the stage."

Improv 10 performances will be Thursday through Saturday at 8 p.m. in the East Campus Auditorium. Tickets are $3.50 general admission, $2.50 for senior citizens and students.

'We're part of Manchester'

Lassow says 8th helps town save money

By George Loyne
Herald Reporter

Gordon Lassow, who served as president of the Eighth District for 11 years before stepping down in 1984, said this morning he does not understand why Manchester's Democratic leaders are pushing for consolidation of the town and district.

But he isn't surprised by the effort.

"It seems like they come at us every 8 to 10 years," he said from Manchester Memorial Hospital, where he has been hospitalized for the past three weeks undergoing treatment for a variety of ailments. "The district isn't there to screw the town. We're part of the town. We're part of Manchester."

Lassow argued that by providing less expensive fire and sewer service to most of northern Manchester, the district is actually helping the town save money. In particular, he pointed to the district's fire department, which he said is cheaper and more efficient to maintain than the town's paid fire fighting unit.

"You don't do it from the outside," he said of having only one, townwide vote on consolidation. "It's like saying 'I don't like your family. We'll do away with your family.' There's a certain sanctity about it."

Careful contact can prevent spreading of genital herpes

DEAR ABBY: I liked your answer to "Alice's Husband" — the guy who was considering divorce because he was telling his ex-wife's potential suitors that she has genital herpes. However, I would like to see you write, "I assume that you, too, have herpes, and are aware that a person with herpes can live quite normally with her occasional outbreaks."

because he had been infected by her. Many readers wrote to say, "When you assume something, you put an 'ass' before 'u' and 'me.'" They were right.

DEAR ABBY: My husband was helping his mom clean out her attic when they came across some stuff from World War II. (His father died 20 years ago.) One of the things was a long, stamped envelope. It had never been used. My husband wanted to keep it as a souvenir. My husband says my problem is, I'm scared to death the thing is going to blow up, but my husband says it's been in the attic for nearly 40 years and nothing has happened yet, so there is no danger.

Can you ask your experts what might happen to it if it just sits around any longer? My husband says maybe he would be all right with me, but I've been losing sleep over this. Sign me.

SITTING ON A TIME BOMB
DEAR SITTING: Phone your local police department immediately and tell them what you've told me. Do not touch it. Just call the police immediately and let them handle it.

DEAR ABBY: You frequently counsel your readers to seek the sympathetic ear of their pastors. Though it's sound advice for the most part, I would caution them to ask first what the fee will be.

In deep unhappiness, I recently sought solace by talking with a "certified pastoral counselor," only to be handed a bill for $65 at the end of the session. I could not pay that amount, and it was not covered by my insurance.

This man came recommended by my church, and I was too naive to consider that a pastoral counselor might expect me to pay for his services.

Needless to say, it was not an uplifting experience. So please advise your readers to always ask ahead of time, "How much?"

Iron compound causes woes

DEAR DR. GOTT: A routine test showed that my hemoglobin was low. My gynecologist prescribed ferrous sulfate. During my pregnancy, I had been semi-conscious, but now, with iron, I have diarrhea very badly. Is this normal?

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR READER: A low hemoglobin means anemia, for which your gynecologist chose to give you iron to counteract a deficiency. Ordinarily, iron pills cause constipation, but some people experience the opposite effect: diarrhea. Ask your doctor to change you to another iron compound. For example, a switch to ferrous gluconate may solve your problem and still allow you to enjoy the benefits of iron supplements.

Remember that certain foods can interfere with the absorption of iron. Most gynecologists recommend taking iron supplements at least one hour after the evening meal and two hours before retiring.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have dark and light-brown moles that cover my body. They itch constantly and continue to multiply. They are too numerous to remove surgically. Any suggestions?

DEAR READER: Moles usually don't itch unless they appear in areas of friction, such as belt lines. Because some types of moles are dangerous, I think you ought to get a dermatologist's opinion about the opposite effect of diarrhea. Ask your doctor to change you to another iron compound. For example, a switch to ferrous gluconate may solve your problem and still allow you to enjoy the benefits of iron supplements.

Remember that certain foods can interfere with the absorption of iron. Most gynecologists recommend taking iron supplements at least one hour after the evening meal and two hours before retiring.

Jade plant needs little care

DEAR POLLY: My neighbor gave me a cutting from her jade plant. I would like to know if this plant needs frequent watering and if it needs light.

Polly Fisher

DEAR MRS. B.K.: A jade plant is a succulent, meaning that it stores quite a bit of moisture in its leaves. The plant does not need a lot of water. In fact, it should be completely dried out when the soil is watered only when the soil is completely dry. When the leaves start to shrivel, you probably need to water it a bit more.

The jade plant also needs very good light. However, it will grow well under artificial light, such as the fluorescent lights in an office.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter, "Hints for Healthy Houseplants," which has care directions for 20 popular houseplants as well as general plant care tips and recipes for homemade potting soil and gelatin plant food. Others who would like this issue should send $1 for each copy to Polly's Pointers, in care of the Manchester Herald, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title.

DEAR POLLY: I always scraped horseradish root with a knife. I really save time now that I use my vegetable peeler. Also, the root comes out so pretty and white. I took a 6-foot length of green hose and used gray plumber's tape to make one-inch-wide stripes along the length of it, one inch apart. When I laid the hose the length of the strawberry bed, I had no trouble with jays and starlings eating my strawberries. E.Y.

Sheila Mistretta takes the oath of office from a state official as club begins new life at M.H.S.

VICA club holds first official induction ceremony

On February 13, the 1986 Manchester High VICA Executive Council held the first Official Induction Ceremony. Five officers were inducted. They are as follows: President, Sheila Mistretta; Vice President, Dana Huntington; Secretary, Dale Christensen; Treasurer, Denise Smith; Reporter, Tim Peul. Each officer was sworn in by VICA's State Reporter, Michael Simon.

VICA offers leadership, citizenship and character development programs and activities to complement skill training available in the public schools, vocational training centers and community colleges. Its program helps students to better prepare themselves for the labor market. VICA emphasizes respect for the dignity of work, high standards in trade ethics, workmanship, enterprise system and patriotism through the practice of democracy in the club.

Student speaks out against distorted view of apartheid

Editor's note: The following is a reply to an editorial in the HSW 3-12-86 by A. Livermore and R. Fallon. I am writing in response to the editorial on March 11, 1986, on apartheid. I feel compelled to clear up injustices done to this subject. The author has taken this important subject and made, in my opinion, the wrong points about it. By doing this the whole impact of what should be a stirring piece of writing is lost.

Editorial

Idle threats ignore the perils of 'senioritis' If you're a senior, you have probably already heard the big threat. That right, after making the usual threats, the administration has again decided to allow seniors to miss finals. I don't know about you, but I'm getting sick and tired of this little game the office school play every year. One again they threaten their idle threats of taking away open campus and making seniors take finals. I just don't understand it. Why do they say these things?

One reason is that they might be trying to scare seniors into paying attention for the last half of the year. After they have already been accepted by the colleges of their choice, I don't know why they realize it that after midterms, every graduating senior is afflicted with a disease called senioritis. This dreaded disease causes the poor student to be unable to pay attention, be on time for class, or do anything remotely similar to productive work from January until June. No matter how much the person tries, he or she is unable to be a good pupil. In some extreme cases, students have become severely afflicted and even gone to the point of telling off teachers and causing disruptions during class time.

Perhaps sometime in the future someone will come up with a real reason for making these yearly statements. Until then, I'll be right here waiting for the answer, but to be perfectly honest, I think I'll be a little wait.

Exchange students help to enrich host families' lives

The four foreign exchange students who have been attending Manchester High School for the past year are about three-quarters of the way through their stay in Manchester. Though the high school will miss these students, MHS will be welcoming another set next year. In another few months, organizations such as the American Field Service, (AFS) and Youth For Understanding (YFU) will be searching for new host families for these students.

MHS wrestling team rounds off great season

Many people feel that wrestlers are a bunch of dumb, smelly athletes looking for something to do between football season and spring baseball, and they are right in many cases. There is, however, one exception to the prevailing belief and that is the MHS wrestling team. There may not be a group of more dedicated people in the entire school, with the possible exception of the math team.

Project winners announced

After a week of heavy voting, the winners of the contests involving the 3 Periods of construction of Creative Woods Project were announced. Tim Lang, Bob Neron, Dan Snellenberger, Pat Volz, and Don Henschel received their prizes at a brief ceremony at MHS on Thursday, March 19, 1986.

The three periods to Construct Creative Woods Project is yet another example of the challenging nature of Industrial Arts offerings available to all Manchester High Students.

'Never Nervous' shows seniors how

Freshman Pervis Ellison leads Louisville to NCAA championship

DALLAS — A team that worked its entire college career for a shot at the national championship tournament as a team that held its poise, the Cardinals were severely tested in the second half. With 7:19 to play Duke's David Henderson grabbed a loose ball, scored on a layup and put his team up by 6 points. Only twice all night had Louisville managed to score more than 4 points in a row and Blue Devils defense seemed destined to bring Duke its first team national championship in any sport since Monday night as not only the hero of the NCAA title game, but as a potential collegiate superstar.

at intermission. Known throughout the NCAA tournament as a team that held its poise, the Cardinals were severely tested in the second half. With 7:19 to play Duke's David Henderson grabbed a loose ball, scored on a layup and put his team up by 6 points. Only twice all night had Louisville managed to score more than 4 points in a row and Blue Devils defense seemed destined to bring Duke its first team national championship in any sport since Monday night as not only the hero of the NCAA title game, but as a potential collegiate superstar.

Duke's Johnny Dawkins spreads the ball as he goes after a loose ball along with Louisville's Pervis Ellison (43) and Milt Wagner during NCAA title game Monday night in Dallas. Ellison had 25 points and 11 rebounds to lead Louisville to the NCAA championship.

With Ellison scoring 25 points and being named the tournament's outstanding player, Louisville ended its season with 17 straight victories and a 32-7 record. Duke had a 21-game winning streak through its season with a 37-3 mark. The Blue Devils became the first NCAA Division I team to play 40 games. Duke, with four seniors and a junior in its starting lineup, was a 14-point favorite.

When Duke was forcing turnovers, Louisville was turning the ball over on its own. The Cardinals had 14 turnovers in the first half and were fortunate to come away with only a 37-34 deficit in the first half including two short shots from the lane and an 18-foot jumper.

Where did Dawkins go?

By Denne H. Freeman The Associated Press

DALLAS — Where did Johnny Dawkins go? The turning point in Louisville's 72-69 NCAA championship victory over the Duke Blue Devils on Monday night was the vanishing act by the All-American guard in the final 15 minutes. It was an admitted die roll by Louisville Coach Denny Crum to switch defenses, concentrate on Dawkins and let somebody else beat him.

Matchups went for Louisville

By Jeff Hassen United Press International

DALLAS — Pervis Ellison's ability to once again scoff at his freshman status and handle the experienced Duke frontcourt enabled Louisville to defeat the Blue Devils 72-69 Monday night and win the national championship. Ellison, whose "Never Nervous" nickname was never more evident, scored 8 points in the last seven minutes against Duke's four-plugged big men.

Whalers, Sabres showdown is here

HARTFORD — Tonight is Hockey Night in Hartford. For real.

Of all the biggest games of the year for the Whalers, tonight's showdown at the Civic Center at 7:35 with the Buffalo Sabres is the largest, widest and heaviest. Mass is at maximum density and the volume is cranked.

Armas for Seaver deal appears dead

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI) — For the Red Sox brass, today is D-Day. And the talk about someone trading Chicago White Sox pitcher Tom Seaver for Boston's slugger centerfielder Tony Armas — and whoever — appears dead.

Armas said, "All I now is I'd like to finish my career here (with the Red Sox). I'm not shutting out the possibility of something (with Seaver) happening with the White Sox." Armas, 32, hit .265 with 23 home runs and 64 RBIs in 1985, missing part of the season with a torn calf muscle. He led the American League in home runs with 43 in 1984, his second year with Boston after coming from Oakland.

Gambolati anxious to resume a normal lifestyle

Spend a Buck, the 1985 Horse of the Year, retired since last fall in now active in breeding at Lane's End Farm in Versailles, Ky., and his former trainer, trainer Cammy Gambolati, is anxious to resume a normal life.

Gambolati, a native of Manchester and a graduate of East Catholic High School, became famous almost overnight when he trained Spend a Buck and the 2-year-old colt capped a great season by winning the Kentucky Derby, horse racing's most prestigious race.

The colt was purchased at a bargain basement price, $12,500, and wound up earning $4,220,689 in 15 starts under Gambolati's handling.

During the 1985 season, Gambolati admitted he was treated like a celebrity wherever he went, because of the success of Spend a Buck. The red carpet treatment was accorded the 33-year-old local trainer, one of the youngest and most successful in the history of horse racing.

If it never happens again, at least I was fortunate enough to have this honor while I'm young enough to enjoy it," Gambolati said after winning the post-season Eclipse Award. "And if it does, it might be easier to handle the second or third time." Gambolati added, "Right now, I'm happy to go back to living a normal life."

Gambolati is back in Florida still working at the Dennis Diaz stable hoping that he may find another yearling capable of running — and winning — in the first Saturday in May.

Meanwhile, he's resting on his past laurels and still enjoying the status attained with Spend a Buck.

Gray lauded
New honor for Scott Gray, of Manchester and

WTC, who has been named winner of the 1986 sparcaster of the year in Connecticut by the National Sparcasters Association. Gray handles the early morning updates from the world of sports and special assignments for the Hartford station.

Among 238 Division I college basketball teams for ranked 90th, Syracuse (7th), St. John's (14th) and Georgetown (18th) paced Big East members.

The Boston Celtics have a team which grows by $5 each time a player misses a free throw. That amounts to a pretty good sum at season end.

Don Hoeng, a frequent player in the annual Manchester Open golf tournament, is now a full-time member of the PGA Seniors' tour, limited to golfers 50 and over. The 54-year-old Hoeng is a busy man as owner of Thompson Speedway, a restaurant and a golf course in the same Connecticut town. Bob Crowley and Bill Eznicki, both well-known for their participation in past Manchester Opens, are also on the rich seniors' tour.

Lou Holtz, new Notre Dame varsity football coach, appeared one night at Manchester High in a sports program which featured Bob Cousy as the featured attraction. Holtz, a natural comedian, and Rick Fortzno, another master of one-liners, actually stole the show from the basketball whiz of another day. Fortzno and Holtz were UConn football coaches at the time.

Sound advice
"Make friends with your competitors. That way a race won't be an anxiety-filled experience, but more like home week," Charlie Robbins noted on his outlook on life in a Runner's World feature authored by Amby Burfoot. Robbins, who will be making his 41st start, 35th in succession, thinking morning in Manchester's Road Race, claims he has run over 60,000 miles barefoot without suffering an injury. Burfoot, the all-time king here with nine triumphs, seven in a row, — both records — will be in his 24th race in Manchester in November. Back in 1963 in his first race at age 17, Burfoot was the first high school runner to finish the local course.

Full particulars for the 50th anniversary of the Manchester Road Race will be announced this summer.

Constant compounding pads interest

Investors' Guide

William A. Doyle

QUESTION: My money is in three certificates of deposit at a savings and loan association. One CD matured recently and I reinvested in a new 30-month CD at 9.25 percent. I asked if this would be compounded daily and was told, "It's better than that. It's compounded continuously." When I asked the woman handling this for the method of calculation, she said it was "not available at her desk."

Can you explain exactly how this calculation is done?

ANSWER: I can't give you anything approaching an exact answer, because I don't know how many days that S&L uses as a year for its interest calculation. Different S&Ls and banks use anywhere from 365 to 372 days for that purpose. Most use either 360 or 366.

Here's a rough rule of thumb: The fewer number of days used, the better the deal for depositors.

Simply put, compound interest is the process of interest earning more interest. Every time interest is added to your account, it earns more through compounding.

Naturally, the more frequently interest is compounded, the more money your CD earns. Semiannual compounding is better than annual compounding; quarterly compounding better than semiannual; monthly better than quarterly; daily better than monthly.

Continuous compounding means that interest is added to your CD balance constantly. In theory, the dollars and cents amount in your CD could increase every hour, minute and second of the day, as that S&L's computer adds interest to your account for instant compounding.

In practice, continuous compounding is little more than a promotional gimmick. Unless you have a very large CD, you're not going to earn even pennies more through continuous compounding than you would through daily compounding.

You should ask the S&L for the annual percentage yield on your CD. That will tell you the exact number of dollars and cents each $100 will earn over a year's time.

With a stated 9.25 percent interest rate, compounded either daily or continuously, $100 should earn approximately $10.41 interest a year. I had to use that hedging word "approximately," because I don't know the exact interest calculation formula your S&L uses.

QUESTION: When I renewed a certificate of deposit, I learned the savings and loan association no longer mails statements on new CDs every three months. I have had CDs there since 1978 and always received quarterly statements. It's a good thing I did, because I found errors in the interest credited in three consecutive statements.

I am attempting to have this "no statement" policy changed to "special handling," so that I will receive quarterly statements. If I am unsuccessful, should I redeem the CD?

ANSWER: Don't redeem the CD before it matures. That would cost you a fat early withdrawal penalty. The S&L will send you a Form 1099 every January, listing the interest credited to your CD. If you find an error, get it corrected then.

The time to move your money will come when the CD matures. It's surprising you didn't do so when your last CD came due. It makes no sense to keep doing business with a S&L or bank that sends out frequent erroneous statements.

QUESTION: The bank with which I have been doing business for many years recently informed depositors that it will levy a 60 monthly charge on any account when the balance falls below $1,000. To make matters worse, it also will charge 25 cents every time I write a check or use the automatic teller machine when my balance is less than $1,000.

Are banks trying to get rid of the "little guy"?

ANSWER: Some banks and savings and loan associations—not all—are doing just that. It's obvious that your bank is one of those attempting to unload small accounts.

Now that deregulation of deposits in the banking industry is complete, banks and S&Ls are free to charge any fees they like. That makes it even more imperative to shop around at different depository institutions.

Doyle welcomes written questions, but he can provide answers only through the column.

Passbook changes coming

Revisions won't be major, bank experts say

By Bill Menzes

The Associated Press

NEW YORK - People who put money in passbook savings accounts, the traditional family nest egg, may get a few perks starting today that the accounts are open to unlimited interest, but shouldn't expect a big boost, industry experts say.

The government ended its 5.5 percent interest ceiling on passbook accounts as the last stage in its six-year deregulation of consumer interest rates paid by banks and savings institutions.

"There's no good reason to boost your cost of funds by raising the passbook," said Bob Schoenberg, president of the New York League of Savings Institutions. "You may attract some new deposits at the higher rate, but you're having a profound and dramatic effect on your cost of funds on deposits that are already there without gaining anything by it."

The industry also is reluctant to change a product that remains popular despite higher returns on other accounts, officials said.

"The passbook has a permanent edge to it," Schoenberg said. "You can't go up to 7 percent and then reel it back to 6 percent a few months down the line."

Stefanek, a spokesman for Citibank NA, the nation's biggest bank, said Citibank had no changes in the works for its passbook accounts. "But of course we're always reviewing our products and looking at them to see if we need to make any changes."

About 75 percent of all American households have at least one passbook or statement savings account, totaling about $394.9 billion as of February, according to the Federal Reserve Board.

Passbook savings have shrunk from $348.4 billion since 1982 as bank money market accounts were introduced, but many savers still prefer them because of stable return, unlimited withdrawals and relatively low minimum balances.

"A lot of people didn't move out of their passbook accounts when interest rates were considerably higher," said Steve Sted, a customer service not to respond to those kinds of things."

Warnaco flight headed for court

Bridgeport (AP) - Warnaco Inc. and a California investment group are preparing to move their takeover battle into federal court as the investors raised their all-cash bid for the apparel maker to about $49 million.

A hearing is scheduled for Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Hartford on a lawsuit by Warnaco that accuses W. Acquisition Corp. of Encino, Calif., of violating federal securities laws in its March 17 tender offer for all of Warnaco's shares.

Warnaco has a lawsuit pending against Warnaco in state court. No date has been set for a hearing on that action, which charges Warnaco with violating state and federal securities laws in proposing a recapitalization plan in defense of the attempted takeover.

On Sunday, W. Acquisition raised its offer from $36 per share to $40 per share, or about $409 million based on Warnaco's 10.2 million outstanding shares of common stock. The offer is contingent on the tender of 8.5 million, or 91 percent, of Warnaco's shares.

Wall Street apparently thought the bid could go higher. Monday as Warnaco's stock price had closed Thursday at $39.37, jumped to $42.25 in early trading. The New York Stock Exchange was closed for the Good Friday holiday.

Warnaco had no response to the sweetened WAC bid, company spokesman Verne King said Monday, although Warnaco President Larry L. Herrington said Sunday that he did not expect his company to come back with a higher offer of its own.

Warnaco last week dropped a plan to go private in a leveraged buyout and, defending itself against the takeover bid, replaced it with a recapitalization plan that would give each shareholder 97 in cash, notes with a total face value of $29 per share and common stock in the recapitalized Warnaco.

Some analysts have valued the package at about $39 per share, but Warnaco values it at $41 per share and has said it could raise the cash portion to as much as $22 per share if it can sell the notes to outside investors. Shareholders are scheduled to vote on that proposal on April 23.

On Monday, at least one analyst, Edward F. Johnson, said he believed the package of cash and common share was "about a fair price" for Warnaco based on the company's earnings potential.

There's no question, because there will be less people producing," he said.

Herrington said Saudi Arabia had succeeded to some degree in its effort to drive down the price of oil by maintaining current production levels despite the glut on the world market.

Saudi Arabia engineered the oil price collapse in an effort to enforce discipline within the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and to force non-OPEC nations to produce less oil.

OPEC nations, heavily dependent on oil revenues, have failed to agree on ways to stabilize the oil market and non-OPEC exporters such as Britain also have refused to alter their production policies.

Oil prices seen hitting bottom

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Energy Secretary John Herrington says oil prices are bottoming out and will rebound soon because the current glut on the market will result in decreased competition in the industry.

Herrington told reporters Monday the oil glut and its accompanying rock-bottom prices inevitably will prompt a cutback in production because there is no economic incentive to keep pumping. He said that will tighten up oil supplies and send prices back up.

He contended Saudi Arabia, OPEC's principal producer, which has engineered the price collapse by maintaining production soon would change course in the face of growing political and economic problems stemming from that policy.

A Saudi official, however, said the kingdom had no intention of lowering production and another glut on the market would decrease competition in the industry.

Herrington's remarks came as the price of oil for immediate delivery on the New York Mercantile Exchange dropped during the day and finished down $1.02 at an all-time low of $10.42 a barrel.

Oil prices in world markets are averaging about $11 a barrel, down from around $28 a barrel in December, and there are rumors the price could fall to $5 a barrel.

"I think we are getting near the bottom," Herrington said of oil prices. "I would be surprised to see it fall much further."

"Prices are going to go back up,

there's no question, because there will be less people producing," he said.

Herrington said Saudi Arabia had succeeded to some degree in its effort to drive down the price of oil by maintaining current production levels despite the glut on the world market.

Saudi Arabia engineered the oil price collapse in an effort to enforce discipline within the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and to force non-OPEC nations to produce less oil.

OPEC nations, heavily dependent on oil revenues, have failed to agree on ways to stabilize the oil market and non-OPEC exporters such as Britain also have refused to alter their production policies.

5th town sewer dispute begins hurting 'the little guy'

The first clean reaction to being charged sewer outlet fees by both the town and the Eighth Utilities District emerged Tuesday night, and it was far from positive.

Manchester attorney James Sullivan and a client, Michael Zarollini, asked the Board of Directors for an explanation of why Zarollini was billed for sewer charges by the town and the district for sewer charges in connection with plans to build a house on Avondale Road.

Sullivan said his client was told that the district would take up the sewer connection to the house within the district and ordered them collected in the future, spurring criticism from district officials.

Town Manager Robert Weiss has told him they are available in the office of the town attorney. Sullivan said houses are being built on East Middle Turnpike and they appear to be exempt from the town outlet charge. But Sandra told him the town has just begun to levy the charge on construction in the district and Zarollini's is the first application involved.

Labriola, O'Neill score big wins

THE BODIES OF the three people were found on an unused Greek air force landing strip outside Argos, 30 miles south of Corinth and about 65 miles southwest of Athens, he said. They apparently had been sucked out of the plane by the blast.

Agostinelli says Belaga's almost out

Republican gubernatorial candidate Gerald Labriola's overwhelming win in Fairfield caucuses Tuesday clearly establishes Belagria as the leading GOP candidate, three Republican leaders in Manchester said today.

Belagria's victory came as Democratic Gov. William O'Neill collected an overwhelming majority of delegates who were also chosen Tuesday in 45 communities.
