Plea ends trial
State seeks 25-year term for Crenshaw

By George Loyne
Herald Reporter

HARTFORD — In a surprise move, a Manchester man pleaded guilty this morning in Superior Court to charges that he murdered his 10-month-old daughter last April while she slept in her crib.

Marshall Crenshaw, 25, of 40 Dicot St., entered his plea under what he knows as the Alford Doctrine before the start of what would have been the fourth day of testimony in his trial for murder.

Under the doctrine, Crenshaw did not admit to killing the child, but entered the plea because he believed the state's evidence would have been enough to convict him. Public Defender Richard Kelly said.

Such a plea can be entered if the defendant disputes one or more of the elements of the case against him. Kelly said he and his client dispute the state's contention that the death of Dale-Lyn Crenshaw was intentional, which along with a sound frame of mind must be proven for a jury to convict a suspect of murder.

Kelly said Crenshaw's decision to plead this morning was part of "a continuing process" that occurred throughout the trial, but he did not say exactly when his client decided to end the proceedings. The move followed an unusual two-hour closed-door meeting Wednesday afternoon between Kelly, Judge Francis R. Quinn and Assistant State Attorney Dennis O'Connor.

Crenshaw, who has been held at the Hartford Correctional Center for the past year because he has been unable to post bond, displayed no emotion when he entered his plea. Wearing sneakers, blue jeans, a tie and short-sleeved white shirt, the former gas station worker spoke with a clear, unhesitating voice characterized by a southern drawl.

He is scheduled to be sentenced May 19. Crenshaw faces a 25- to 60-year sentence. O'Connor said the state will ask for a 25-year term.

Kelly said he will file a request within a few days to have Crenshaw examined by a psychiatrist "to see if he has some mental illness that might suggest some alternative treatment instead of incarceration." However, the attorney said he was not sure "there are no guarantees" that he will not serve his sentence in prison.

O'Connor told the courtroom, packed with high school students who had come to observe the Town offers fire sharing

By George Loyne
Herald Reporter

The town is willing to share its firehouse on Tolland Turnpike with the Eighth Utilities District fire department for $22,034 a year, according to a letter presented to district officials at a meeting with Town Manager Robert Weiss Wednesday afternoon.

The proposal, details of which were released Wednesday night at a public hearing on the district's budget for 1986-87, comes after both sides said last week they were interested in discussing a sharing arrangement. District officials said Wednesday the move indicates a renewed willingness on the part of the town and the independent utilities authority to negotiate the dispute after months of sharp public debate.

"This is the first time the town has talked to us rather than at us," said District Director Thomas Landers. He said talks would be "difficult... at best," but added that he is "cautiously optimistic" an agreement can be reached.

The district directors will meet Saturday morning to discuss the town's offer. The board also voted Wednesday to meet with the town Board of Directors to seek a settlement, although no date was set.

District President Walter Joyner said Wednesday night a chamber of commerce dinner that he would probably recommend to

Growth rises as inflation falls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy showed a four-fold rebound in growth from January through March, helped up by the best news on inflation in almost two decades, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the gross national product, the broadest measure of the economy's health, grew at a 3.2 percent annual rate from January through March, the best growth rate in a year and more than four times the pace of activity during the last three months of 1985.

The upturn in growth was aided by a steep decline in inflation. Prices, as measured by an inflation index tied to the GNP, were rising at an annual rate of just 2.5 percent in the first three months of the year. This was the slowest rate since no increase at all in the second quarter of 1987.

The 2.5 percent rise, as measured by the GNP deflator which covers a changing market basket of goods, was down from an annual rate of change of 3.3 percent in the first three months of 1985.

The slowdown in inflation mirrors other price gauges which have showed sharp declines in oil prices this year.

The first quarter GNP growth of 3.2 percent, after adjusting for inflation, was at the fastest pace since a 2.7 percent growth rate in the first three months of 1985.

By the final three months of last year, growth had slumped to a barely perceptible 0.7 percent rate as the country was battered by a soaring trade deficit.

Terrorists strike back at U.S., Britain

By W. Dole Nelson
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The surge in terrorism anticipated by the Reagan administration after the U.S. bombing of Libya took shape today with the murders of three kidnap victims in Lebanon, an attempt to put explosives aboard an Israeli airliner in London and fire bombs thrown at a U.S. Marine post in Tunisia.

In Khartoum, the U.S. Embassy announced today the evacuation of some 200 dependents of mission employees and other personnel from Sudan, apparently because of Libyan threats against American targets.

The announcement came after an embassy employee was shot in the head in Khartoum late Tuesday and thousands of people on Wednesday burned American flags and shouted slogans to protest the U.S. bombing raid on Libya.

An embassy statement did not name specifically Libya, Sudan's neighbor to the northeast, but apparently referred to Col. Moammar Khadafi's government, as no other neighboring nation has threatened attacks on U.S. interests. Libya called for attacks on American interests worldwide after the air raid.

In Libya, Khadafi was reported alive but possibly wounded in the bombing raid on his headquarters Monday night. Administration officials sitting through intelligence reports said there were indications he had left Tripoli, the capital, and had gone into the desert amid reports of fighting within the military.

Three bodies found in the mountains east of Beirut were officially identified today as those of three British kidnap victims in Lebanon.

John Rowan, first secretary of the Irish Embassy in Beirut, made the identification. "These are Padfield, Collett and Douglas," he told reporters.

He referred to British writer Alec Collett, 64, and teachers Leigh Douglas, 34, and Philip Padfield, 40.

White House deputy press secretary Edward Djerjian said the United States has confirmed that all three victims were British.

"We were prepared for an increase in terrorism," Speakes said. "In the long run we expect it to diminish."

Asked whether the United States is more concerned now for the safety of seven American hostages in Lebanon, Speakes said, "We're always very concerned."

Nothing the attempt to put a bomb on an El Al airliner at London's Heathrow airport in Britain, Speakes said. "The British seem to have the situation well in hand."

The spokesman said the administration now believes Khadafi is alive in view of his appearance on television in Libya, but said the United States does not know his whereabouts.

Reagan defends actions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan expected a surge in terrorism in the aftermath of the U.S. bombing strikes on Libya but he believes the new attacks will "diminish in the long run," a White House spokesman said today.

"Time will tell," said Deputy Press Secretary Larry Speakes when asked whether the spate of terrorist acts around the world is linked to the American raid on Libya.

"The (Reagan) believes it was the right thing to do," Reagan said. "He has driven home the message" to Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi.

Speakes said that American strike was ordered because of "increasing signs that he (Khadafi) intended to have terrorism on the march."

"We were prepared for an increase in terrorism," Speakes said. "In the long run we expect it to diminish."

Debate challenge spurned

Calling William A. O'Neill a bad governor and politician, Toby Moffett Wednesday called upon the governor to defend his record in a Manchester debate before the May 30 delegate primaries in town and elsewhere.

"I hereby challenge Bill O'Neill to a Manchester debate," Moffett said Wednesday during an interview with Herald editors.

Moffett, who is challenging O'Neill for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, said this governor's administration has left political reform "dead in its tracks." A debate would help clarify the issues, he said.

Officials in the O'Neill campaign said today that Moffett has not contacted the governor about a possible debate. Asked whether O'Neill would debate, campaign coordinator Richard Schneller said: "In my opinion, it's highly unlikely."

He said the governor has a "day-to-day responsibility to the state," and that he can't "run off and debate Toby Moffett just because Toby Moffett wants to debate."

Schneller said that O'Neill's administration has initiated many reforms, including rebuilding Connecticut's infrastructure and improving education.

Wines from Italy remain available despite request

By John F. Kirch and John Mitchell

Italian wines are still sitting on the shelves at most local liquor stores, despite the state's request for a ban on their sale, according to a survey of package stores.

The state Department of Liquor Control Tuesday asked package stores to pull all Italian wines off their shelves after high levels of methanol were found in some bottles of wine last allegedly have killed 22 people in Italy over the past month.

The deaths also prompted the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms to order all wholesalers and importers to test Italian wines for excessive methanol levels before sending them to area liquor outlets, state officials said Wednesday. No wine in the United States has been found to have excess methanol, state officials said.

The scare has apparently failed to force area store owners who sell Italian wines. Most who were interviewed said it was unlikely that any bad wine made it into the U.S.

Of 10 liquor store owners interviewed Wednesday and today, two said they had pulled Italian

WEATHER

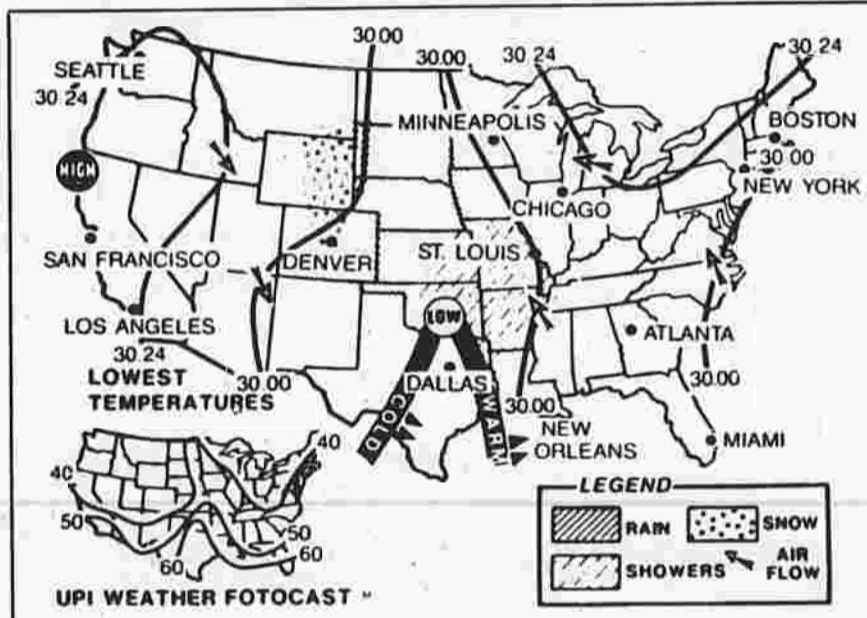

Rain, snow hit Northeast

By United Press International

A blustery storm that sank a tugboat in New York Harbor buffeted the Northeast with rain, snow and high winds today, threatening flooding in New York and New Jersey.

Wait for the weekend

Today: Mostly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of showers and a high in the 50s. Tonight: Mostly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of rain with a low from 40 to 45. Friday: Partly cloudy with a high in the 50s. Saturday: Sunny with highs in the 60s. Drawing by Keri Pelletier, 9, of 145 Park St., a fourth-grader at Washington School.

National forecast

During Friday, snow is forecast for parts of the Central Intermountain Region and parts of the Central Plains with rain in most of the Central Plains and showers in parts of the Southern Plains. Scattered showers are possible in parts of the Western Gulf Coast Region. Elsewhere the weather will be fair.

Air quality

The state Department of Environmental Protection reported that the air quality was good on Wednesday and was expected to be good on Thursday.

Jump for my love

Irene Cara, star of the film "Fame" and winner of an Oscar and Grammy for the title song from the movie "Flashdance," has married a veteran stuntman atop a sea cliff, her spokesman said.

"I knew he was the guy for me when, after a career of jumping off tall buildings and being involved in high-speed car chases, he told me I brought the excitement to his life," said Cara.

She married Conrad Palmisano, 27, president of the Stuntmen's Association, Sunday in Palos Verdes on the cliffs above the Pacific Ocean, her spokesman, Mitchell Schneider, said Monday.

Cara met Palmisano in 1984 on the set of "A Certain Fury," a film in which she starred.

banner just as he has done for other big-money clients like Coke, Ford and Jell-O. The long-term agreement was announced Tuesday by Robert Fomen, chairman of the board of the investment firm, which developed an image problem last year when it pleaded guilty in a multi-million check fraud scheme. "I went with E.F. Hutton because when Bob Fomen speaks, Bill Cosby listens," the comedian-actor said. "What meant more to me was E.F. Hutton's 43-year, uninterrupted performance record, rather than their performance last year." Cosby will appear in television and print ads for Hutton, as well as performing under the billboard of "E.F. Hutton Presents an Evening with Bill Cosby." The length and price tag of the agreement were not announced.

Respect for planes

KUDOS FOR BOB — Ann-Margret and Hal David present Bob Hope with the Pied Piper Award Wednesday night in Hollywood for his contributions to the music industry. Hope was honored by national songwriters for spreading music around the world through his movies and live performances.

She is enrolled in a group therapy class that studies airline safety statistics and practices, according to Glamour magazine. She and other fearful flyers go far as to take field trips to the airport and approach the boarding gate. "Hopefully, I'll be back and flying high in the friendly skies before too long," she says. She is hoping to do her first tour in four years this summer by plane but in the meantime runs her career from Detroit, making use of the telephone, Federal Express and a satellite feed for awards-show appearances.

Sinatra talks golf

Some 50 sign-carrying anti-apartheid demonstrators marched outside the Yale Law School building to protest Frank Sinatra's lecture at the school Tuesday. Sinatra faced the topic head-on, talking about his appearance at the Sun City resort in segregated South Africa. "I played it once about seven years ago and had a great time," he said. "They had a great golf course." Other than that, Sinatra was treated like a hero by the crowd of 450 that frequently interrupted his 90-minute talk with ovations. He had a light-hearted denial of early connections to organized crime ("It's so blown out of proportion") and said he even likes some rock 'n' roll, a musical form he once disparaged. Sinatra says he still is concerned about rock's sexually suggestive lyrics. "I'm not a prude and I never have been but I'm not too fond of a lot of the songs that some of the kids are listening to," he said.

Gunsmoke returns

Television is reaching into the past again for a movie sequel of another vintage series. James Arness will be back as Marshal Matt Dillon and Ken Curtis will again be his sidekick Festus in a reprise of "Gunsmoke." Amanda Blake, who played Miss Kitty, still isn't signed up for the project, however, said a CBS spokesman. The special is tentatively scheduled for broadcast during the 1986-87 broadcast season but Robert Deiter, a Nebraska restaurateur, is trying to get CBS to draw. He has been raising money to shoot a full-length movie in Kansas, claims to own the music rights to the original "Gunsmoke" theme and is threatening a lawsuit. Potter also says he has a script written by Paul Savage, one of the writers for the original "Gunsmoke."

Belaga stresses pride

By Alex Girelli Associate Editor

"I am convinced that we can bring this state back to the level of excellence that was once ours," Republican gubernatorial candidate Julie Belaga told members of the Republican Women's Club Wednesday.

"I look forward to the challenge," she said. Belaga, a state representative from Westport, spoke at a luncheon meeting attended by about 48 members of the club and their guests at the Manchester Country Club.

She said the key to Republican victory in the governor's race this November is "to reach deep into the pockets of unaffiliated voters." There are about 700,000 Democrats in Connecticut, 600,000 unaffiliated voters and fewer than 500,000 Republicans.

Historically, Belaga said, the Republican Party in Connecticut does well in presidential elections but not in gubernatorial elections, when the voter turnout is lower. Belaga said that in southwestern Connecticut, 150,000 fewer people vote in gubernatorial elections than in presidential elections.

In order to win, the GOP must find "a candidate who can capture the public imagination — a dramatic candidate who can knock their socks off," she said. Belaga said she is that candidate. Others seeking the GOP nomination are Richard Bozzuto of Watertown, Gerald Labriola of Naugatuck and Romeo Petroni of Ridgefield.

During her talk, Belaga attacked Democratic Gov. William O'Neill, who is seeking re-election, as a "phantom governor." "We never see the guy at the state Capitol," she said. But, she said, "about seven months ago someone must have told him there was an election" because he has suddenly become visible all over the state.

Belaga said that in campaigning throughout Connecticut she has found that "an awful lot of people are proud of the state but embarrassed by their government." Newspapers have published "stories" after story about state commissioners who are unable to handle the business of the state," she said. Belaga said that as governor, she would "seek out the best and brightest."

She said her priorities would be to bring pride back to government, improve transportation and address environmental concerns. "Do you remember when we had the finest roads in the nation, and you could always tell when you had crossed into Massachusetts because of the change in roads?" she asked her audience.

In her attack on O'Neill, Belaga said that in 1983 he was one of only two governors who "had-mouthed" President Ronald Reagan's economic policies.

Belaga was introduced by state Rep. Elsie Swenson, R-Manchester. Swenson said that at times representatives use a paper work while the House is in session and do not pay much attention to the speaker.

"But when Julie Belaga gets up to speak you can hear a pin drop," Swenson said.

Manchester In Brief

Registrars go to Parkade

State residents who want to register to vote can do so from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. tonight and again from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Saturday at the Manchester Parkade.

CPR goes to MMH

The Manchester CPR Project will be incorporated into Manchester Memorial Hospital's Department of Emergency Services under an agreement reached between the hospital and the town's Emergency Medical Services Advisory Council.

Meters to be replaced

The town Water and Sewer Department is replacing meters that have been in service more than 20 years at homes in an area of South Main Street, east of Tonicia Spring Trail, and north to Charter Oak Street.

Resident under investigation

A Manchester woman who works as a clerk in the vital records division of the state Department of Health Services is being investigated by state police following allegations that she violated department regulations, a state police spokesman said this week.

The investigation resulted from allegations made last July against Marybeth N. Campbell by another clerk in the department in a letter to state Health Services Commissioner Douglas S. Lloyd. The former clerk, Millagros Marrero, said she observed Campbell conducting genealogical searches during office hours and giving out birth information in violation of department regulations.

Charges by Marrero that Campbell may have been gathering data on deceased infants have not been substantiated, Rickerby said. "It is still an open case," police spokesman Sgt. Daniel Lewis said. Campbell could not be reached for comment.

Solicitation bill dies

A bill that would impose limits on the use of automatic telephone dialing systems has died in the Finance, Revenue and Bonding Committee, but its sponsor, Sen. Carl Zinzer, R-Manchester, said he will try to petition for a vote on the bill.

Zinzer's proposal would establish specific guidelines for the use of automatic dialing systems, such as making it illegal for a computer-dialer call to tie up a community's emergency 911 line and prohibiting unsolicited calls between 9 p.m. and 9 a.m.

Zinzer will need the signatures of 19 of the Senate's 36 members to bring the bill up for vote.

Fire damages house
A Woodland Street house suffered minor damage Wednesday when a clothes drier overheated and a pile of clothing nearby in the basement caught fire, an Eighth Utilities District fire spokesman said this morning.

Department spokesman Thomas O'Marra said none of the three occupants of the single-family house at 111 Woodland St. was home at the time, and nobody was injured. However, the family's cat died of smoke inhalation and minor smoke damage occurred to the upper floors, he said.

The fire was reported by a neighbor at 4:44 p.m. and was extinguished at 5:07. O'Marra said, Forty-five District firefighters were at the scene and they left at 6:01 p.m., he said.

8th District spending plan finds no public opposition

By George Lyoya Herald Reporter

No opposition was raised by Eighth Utilities District residents to a proposed budget of $1,130,852 for the coming fiscal year during a public hearing Wednesday evening.

The spending plan would require a tax increase of 1 1/2 mills over the current 4-mill rate paid by residents for fire protection and sewer service. However, the proposal includes appropriations for a new firehouse on Tolland Turnpike and a new sewer line, neither of which has been given final approval.

The proposal, which was finished by the district Board of Directors Saturday, calls for a $1.5 million loan to cover both the expected $1 million cost of the sewer project and the $500,000 cost of the firehouse. If approved, the loan's cost to taxpayers for the fiscal year that begins July 1 would be $210,000 based on a 10-year loan at no more than 7 percent interest.

Residents were scheduled to have voted during Wednesday's meeting at the district firehouse on Main Street on whether to approve the borrowing.

Cassano still eyes Senate race

By Alex Girelli Associate Editor

Town Director Stephen T. Cassano is still interested in seeking the Democratic nomination to run for the state Senate in the 4th District, a post now held by Republican Carl Zinzer of Manchester.

Cassano said Wednesday he would like to run for the Senate and run for the House from the 13th District, but that was before Thompson quit for the Senate race and he could now devote the time necessary for the Senate race and feels he could get the finances for it.

"I'd love to see him run," Cassano said. The house seat is held by Republican Elsie Swenson, who has defeated Thompson twice in close votes. Swenson said this week she will not decide whether to run again until the current legislative session ends.

Cassano said he has talked to people in Glastonbury and Hebron, two of the towns in the 4th Senatorial District, and has been encouraged to run. He also said he could now devote the time necessary for the Senate race and feels he could get the finances for it.

"Carl Zinzer is not going to be easy to beat for any candidate," Cassano said. Zinzer has not said he will seek re-election, but most political observers assume he will. If Cassano does seek the Senate nomination, he might be opposed by William E. Ferris, the Democratic town chairman in Glastonbury.

Ferris said April 30 that he wanted the nomination and Cassano said then he might step aside and run instead for the House. He also said one of his options was to remain in his post as a town director.

District residents will vote on the budget proposal at an annual meeting scheduled for May 28. At that meeting they will also elect a new Board of Directors, president and fill other posts.

Also included in the administration budget is $10,000 for "public awareness," an increase of $9,000 over this year. Administration director Lorraine Boutin explained that the hike would fund a public relations campaign on behalf of the district in the face of attempts by the town to consolidate the two entities.

While no specific plans have been drawn up for the money, Director Joseph Tripp said the funds would be used "to tell the truth about the district," which has provided fire protection and sewer service to most of northern Manchester for nearly a century.

District residents will vote on the budget proposal at an annual meeting scheduled for May 28. At that meeting they will also elect a new Board of Directors, president and fill other posts.

Marshall says Bolton's school concerns constant

By Susan Vaughn
Herald Reporter

BOLTON — The Board of Education had many of the same problems in 1986 that it does today — transportation, fuel, roofs and parental complaints. But back then, the transportation was by horseback and the fuel was wood.

School board Chairman James Marshall told that story at the opening of a public hearing Wednesday night on next year's proposed $3.9 million education budget. He based his remarks on his recent reading of the minutes of Bolton Board of Education meetings from 1916 to 1945.

Noting a concern with quality of education on the part of all previous school boards and saying the current quality of staff members and students in Bolton is high, Marshall added, "But we're not sitting on past laurels. We have an improvement budget."

The discussion at the sparsely attended meeting at Community Hall centered more on suggestions for how the school programs could be improved than on the actual budget figures.

At one point, finance board Chairman Raymond Urbin asked the school officials if the budget addressed improvements in the quality of education in the classroom.

But Bolton resident Bill Schade and school board members responded by asking the finance board for a justification of the $400 cut it made in the proposed school budget.

Finance board members failed to pinpoint one specific area of the budget at which the cuts were directed. Finance board member Clayton Adams started going through the budget page by page, pointing to large percentage increases in staff salaries.

"Where does the 9 percent come in?" he asked, referring to the net increase in the overall budget for the fiscal year that begins July 1.

When school board member Barry Stearns pressed Adams for an answer, Adams said that a proposed increase in staff was only part of his reasoning for backing the cuts.

Most of the finance board members said that they considered the $400,000 an across-the-board cut, rather than one that demands specific line-item reductions.

"They can spend how they want," finance board member William Fehling said of the school board.

Urbin said that he felt the school board could improve the quality of education despite the $400,000 budget cut. He noted that the school budget has been 65 to 66 percent of the total town budget in the past five years and that next year it would represent 62.2 percent of the total estimated budget of $4.3 million.

Neither the town proper budget nor the one for education are final until after they have been approved by townpeople. The town meeting on the budget is set for May 12.

Quarry owner's permit extended

BOLTON — The owner of a quarry in Bolton Neck was given a 30-day extension Wednesday on his permit to continue operations, Zoning Commission Chairman Philip Dooley said this morning.

The annual permit for Box Mountain Quarries Inc. was set to expire Sunday, but the extension was given by the commission because a test blast to determine if noise from the quarry exceeds federal and state safety levels is not set to be done until Monday.

Neighbors have complained that blasting operations conducted by owner David Buck have been too loud, but Buck has said earlier test blasts have shown the noise to be well within safety limits.

In March, Buck agreed to the commission's request for another test this month after the panel said the earlier results were inconclusive. Members contended that the noise readings from the earlier blasts, including both high- and low-frequency measurements, were not taken from all the test points in the immediate area.

The results from the latest test are expected to be available by the commission's May meeting, when it will consider whether to renew Buck's permit.

Dooley said Buck's failure to enclose his property with a fence as earlier instructed also jeopardized renewal of the permit. Dooley said the commission wants "basically the entire property" enclosed, although the matter is "somewhat negotiable."

Dooley said the commission's main priority is to get a fence erected across the headwall where the blasting operations occur.

Walk benefits needy people

BOLTON — About 100 area people walked a 10-kilometer course around the center of Bolton Sunday afternoon to raise money for hungry and homeless people.

The Bolton Ecumenical Council, which consists of the town's four churches, organized the event. People who participated received pledges for each mile they walked.

The pledges will go to CROP, a community hunger relief agency of the Church World Service, or to other hunger-fighting agencies of the walkers' choice.

Chamber toasts and roasts 'Mr. M'

BOLTON — Manchester Merchant Joseph Garman — one of whose honorary titles is "Main Street" — was honored by the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night when he received the chamber's annual "M" award.

But speakers at the banquet at Fiano's Restaurant on Route 44 roasted Garman at least as much as they lauded him.

William Johnson, president of the Savings Bank of Manchester and master of ceremonies for the evening, listed the qualities a recipient of the M Award should have and evaluated Garman against them.

"It is an example of stability to go fishing in Purnell Parking lot," Johnson asked, referring to Garman's practice of demonstrating fishing rods in the back of his clothing store from which he also sells lighting and sells you merchandise left over from another era."

On a more serious note, Johnson said Garman is a person who "has never said an unkind word about any other individual, has labored long without compensation or recognition to make this a better community, has enriched the lives of all who have been fortunate enough to know him."

Garman, who owns J. Garman Clothier at 87 Main St., is chairman of the Manchester Parking Authority and has long been active in the Downtown Association.

In accepting the award, Garman said that "to be acclaimed by peers and the community where a person lives is the supreme accolade."

Garman said that over his years of activity with the chamber of commerce and other community groups, "I found not only assisting on a project, I found friends

— real friends."

Garman, an avid fisherman and hunter who writes an outdoor column for the Manchester Herald, did not pass up the chance for some reciprocal needing. He threatened, since he had a captive audience, to tell the story "about the 26-pound salmon I caught two years ago."

Before Garman got his award, William R. Hunniford, who took over Wednesday as chairman of the chamber board of directors, outlined an agenda for the year that stressed long-range planning.

"I see 1986 as a year of planning and positioning, a year when we look forward as best we can and say, 'This is where we think the community and the chamber should be in 1990 or 1995,'" Hunniford said. "I think there are more opportunities for real growth than ever before, more opportunities to make this an even better community."

Hunniford, a Southern New England Telephone Co. executive, cited as examples of these opportunities "the revitalization of downtown, the promise of Buckland Hills Mall, the refurbishment of the Cheney Historic District, and the completion of the I-84/384 interchange."

But Hunniford said the group will bring traffic problems and demands for municipal services that will require planning.

He said the chamber will have to join in that planning and added, "It may be tough work."

Greetings from the town were brought by Mayor Barbara Weinberg, who was introduced by Johnson as "Little Miss Moffett."

Weinberg is a leading Manchester supporter of former U.S. Rep. Toby Moffett in his bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

PROMPTCARE IS HERE. AND IT'S NICE TO KNOW WE'RE NEEDED.

OVER 4,000 OF YOUR NEIGHBORS in the area east of the River have received quality care at PromptCare since we opened our doors in mid-November. Why have so many people chosen PromptCare at Manchester Memorial Hospital for non-emergency care from sore throats to sprained ankles? Because they needed the immediate, affordable, all-inclusive, quality care only PromptCare's hospital environment can provide. The kind of quality care for which Manchester Memorial Hospital is well known.

Here's what your neighbors had to say about their PromptCare experiences:

"I liked PromptCare's association with Manchester Memorial Hospital. The care was very fast and efficient." Mrs. Rose Donnelly, Manchester.

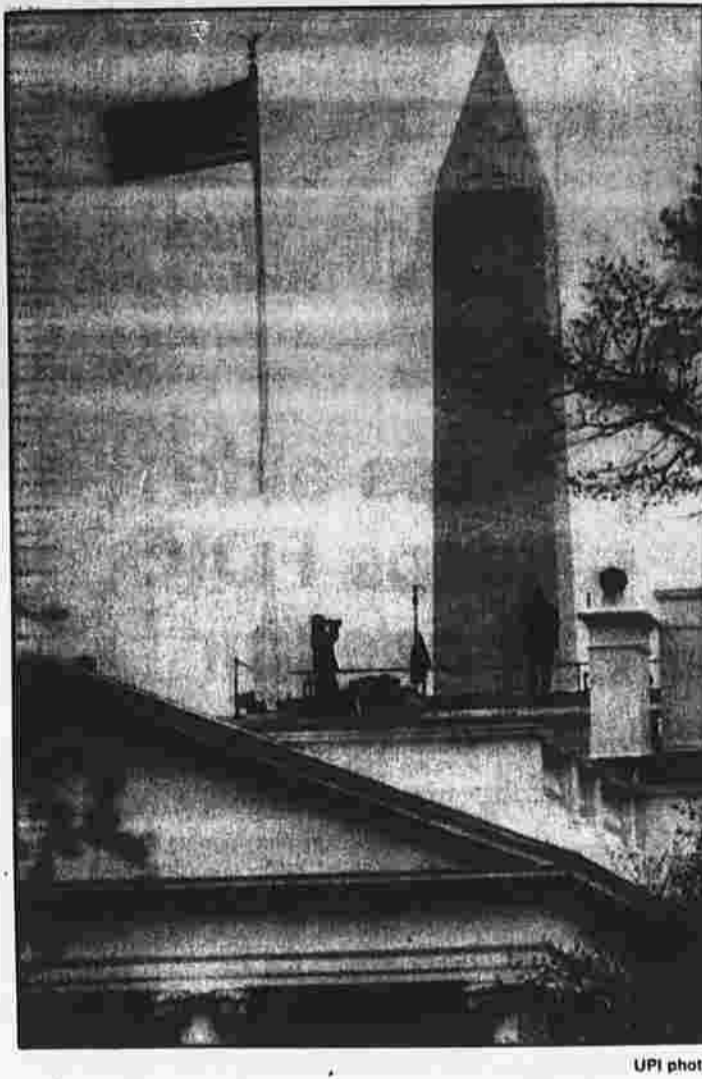

"The staff is very pleasant and helpful. They really know what they're doing and we even got a follow-up call to see how we were." Mr. & Mrs. Michael Bider, Coventry.

PromptCare is AFFORDABLE. Our basic fee is $38.00 — all common supplies are included. (There may be additional charges for necessary tests and procedures.) And no up-front payment is necessary — we'll gladly bill you or your insurance company.

PromptCare is CONVENIENT. PromptCare is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., 7 days a week. And because of our reduced fee structure, after-hours care for minor illnesses and injuries is available through the Hospital Emergency Department at the same reduced fee.

PromptCare is ACCESSIBLE. PromptCare is ideally located at Manchester Memorial Hospital on Army Street, off Main Street. Plenty of parking close by.

GOP gamble saves aid for another day

By Tim Ahern
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — House Republicans, who in a surprise move voted to block President Reagan's proposed $100 million in assistance for the Nicaragua rebels, expressed confidence they can revive the package later.

Democrats, however, predict the GOP lawmakers will lose the tactical gamble they have taken, and say they will likely approve a different version of the aid containing restrictions the president opposes.

In a surprise move, Republicans joined Democrats Wednesday in approving an amendment that basically eliminated all $100 million President Reagan wants for the Contras fighting Nicaragua's leftist government.

The Republican tactic prevented the House from voting on a proposal by Rep. Dave McCurdy, D-Okla., which would have granted Reagan his $100 million package, but delayed spending $75 million of it for at least three months while peace talks were tried to end the Central American struggle.

Instead, by a 361-65 vote, the House passed an amendment by Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., which would replace Reagan's program with a package of $27 million in aid to Central American refugees and $2 million in help to the so-called Contadora Latin nations trying to mediate a peaceful solution.

On the vote, 184 Democrats were joined by 177 Republicans. Only one Republican, Rep. Willis Gradison of Ohio, voted to keep the Reagan plan alive.

The parliamentary maneuvering came because Democrats hold a 252-182 edge in the chamber, with one seat vacant.

Last month, after the House voted 222-210 against Reagan's package, House Democratic leaders promised to bring it up again this month but to attach it to an unrelated bill making $1.7 billion in various appropriations.

The Republican-controlled Senate later narrowly approved a modified Contra package.

But Reagan has threatened to veto the spending bill if it passes and he complained Wednesday that Republicans were being denied a vote on a free-standing Contra package because of "a back-door parliamentary maneuver."

Republicans will now have to round up signatures on a petition to try to force to the floor their version of the Reagan package.

The GOP will need 218 signatures, meaning it will have to hold all its own members and pick up at least 36 Democrats. Under House rules, the earliest the measure could come to the floor would be May 12.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., later sent word to reporters that he would allow the Contra package to come to the floor in a normal manner, perhaps as an amendment to a defense appropriations bill expected to reach the floor next month.

Rep. Tom Foley, D-Wash., then, gader, said, "I don't think they're (Republicans) going to get enough signatures on the discharge petition."

Europe on guard against retaliation

Combined Wire Services

Western European foreign ministers meeting in Paris agreed today to implement measures soon restricting the movements of Libyan diplomats in Europe in a bid to prevent increased terrorism following the U.S. bombing raid on Libya.

Netherlands Foreign Minister Hans Van Den Broek, acting as spokesman for 12 European Economic Community foreign ministers who met for the second time this week, said a report on "concrete measures" to be taken against Libyans would be completed by the weekend for approval Monday.

Van Den Broek also said Western European nations are intensifying contacts with Arab countries, the Soviet Union, Eastern Europe and other nations in an effort to "state-sponsored terrorism."

Van Den Broek told reporters after the ministers met for 19 hours that Americans should not have the impression Europe is doing nothing to fight terrorist activities.

"If there is a misunderstanding with the American people about the seriousness of the Europeans to combat this action, measures will be materialized shortly that will take away this impression," he said. "Understanding has been expressed to the risk Americans have for the threat of terrorism in the view that I don't think the Europeans should have to combat terrorism on a higher level because of the Americans."

"Most of the attacks that take place are in Europe, and Europeans are also victims," he said. He said the foreign ministers wished to avoid "military escalation" and that "the 12 expressed the view that it was international terrorism that led to the situation we are in now."

Asks about the threat of new terrorist strikes resulting from the American raid, Van Den Broek said the EEC nations "should be alert for possible repercussions."

Vigils protest U.S. action

HARTFORD (UPI) — More than 60 demonstrators opposed to the American bombing of Libya have staged protests in Hartford and New Haven, with organizers calling the action "hypocritical and cowardly."

The nighttime protests were held Wednesday at the federal building in Hartford and the New Haven Green.

Holding signs which read, "No war in Libya," "Statesmen don't bomb," and "Killing doesn't solve problems," a group of about 50 demonstrators in Hartford walked in front of the federal building but did not block its entrance.

"This military action ordered by President Reagan can only be characterized as being hypocritical and cowardly," said leaflets distributed by the American Friends Service Committee, which organized the Hartford rally.

Instead of using military options, the United States should concentrate on helping Palestinian refugees who lack of a homeland is the source of unrest in the Middle East, said Bruce Martin, program secretary for the Connecticut chapter of the American Friends Service Committee.

In New Haven, a group of about 12 people handed out leaflets urging citizens to reject all forms of violence. The bombing "denies the humanity of the Libyan people and of ourselves," Laffin, one of the New Haven demonstrators said.

Conservative Edward Heath and Labor's James Callaghan, and from opposition Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock. They accused Thatcher of "subservience" to President Reagan.

Thatcher's critics did not contest her charges that much international terrorism is masterminded by Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi, but held that military retaliation was the wrong tactic to use.

They urged concerted international efforts to isolate Tripoli instead of inviting more terrorism directed from Libya.

But Thatcher, in a speech judged by some commentators as one of her most effective in recent months, mounted a robust defense of Britain's collaboration with Washington in the air strike launched from three British airfields.

She did so despite a public opinion poll that showed 60 percent of Britons disapproved of Britain's involvement and that 59 percent considered Reagan wrong to launch it.

"Terrorism has to be defeated. It cannot be tolerated or sidestepped," Thatcher said. "Terrorism thrives on appeasement."

"Had we refused to permit deployment from Britain, the U.S. operations would still have taken place but more lives would probably have been lost, both on the ground and in the air."

PERMISSION TO FLY THE U.S. F-111 bomber strike from Britain was given after detailed discussions with the United States, she said, outlining a catalogue of alleged Libyan complicity in terrorist plots around the world.

She said that on March 25, Tripoli ordered the Libyan People's Bureau (embassy) in East Berlin to launch terrorist attacks against Americans. On April 4, the bureau informed Tripoli in advance of the West Berlin disco bomb that killed two and injured 240 early the next morning, she said.

Intelligence agents three weeks ago uncovered plans for a bomb attack on people lining up for visas at the American embassy in Paris, she said.

Libya was behind an attack on the U.S. Embassy in Beirut April 6. But it failed when the rocket exploded prematurely, Thatcher said.

In Africa there was evidence of planned Libyan attacks on U.S. facilities "in no less than 10 countries," she said.

In Washington, the Reagan administration blasted the Soviet Union for a lack of progress in easing superpower tensions and bitterly condemned the Kremlin for failing to avert the bombing of a West Berlin nightclub.

"They have wasted six months since the summit," the State Department said in a sharply worded statement Wednesday that blamed Moscow for not maintaining the momentum begun at President Reagan's meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev last November.

In a separate but related blast, the department said the Soviets had been warned Libyans were planning an assault in the German city and could have stopped them from carrying it out.

It virtually blamed Moscow for the April 5 discotheque bombing in which an American soldier and a Turkish woman were killed and hundreds wounded, Reagan, saying there was irrefutable evidence linking Libya to the attack, had U.S. warplanes bomb Tripoli, Benghazi and other targets in "self-defense" against terrorism.

"We urged the Soviets and East Germany to restrain the Libyans," the State Department said. "Had they done so, this entire cycle of events would have been avoided."

OPINION

Vandals need tough lesson

The waste of thousands of dollars and a lot of needless pain is what the vandals who keep trashing the St. James Cemetery are leaving in their wake.

In the past week or so, some 70 tombstones at the cemetery off Broad Street have been broken and strewn about on the ground. Area residents have been forced to search about for the grave markers of their parents and other loved ones, often fruitlessly.

Unfortunately, the Manchester Police Department said after the first incident of grave desecration that the case could not be considered "active." Unlike some murders, robberies and other crimes involving victims, vandalism often fails to produce witnesses or other "hard" leads.

Sure, the department can send an extra car past the cemetery at odd times during the night, and it should. But such random efforts are unlikely to lead to the apprehension of the rascally specimens of humanity who have taken repeated pleasure in destroying something that is sacred to others.

That's where the public can lend a hand. Anyone who knows anything about this particular case of vandalism should be sure to report it by calling the town police department at 646-4555. While reporting crime is generally the right thing to do, it is a special necessity in cases like this one due to the sickness inherent in the offense.

And if the perpetrators can be found and convicted, whoever presides over their sentencing should be sure to mete out appropriate punishment. After the culprits provide restitution, perhaps they should spend a few hundred hours of "community service" cleaning and grooming a cemetery.

Responsibility in Coventry

Coventry taxpayers could be facing what one town councilman calls an "intolerable burden" — a tax increase of up to seven mills — and the council has begun what appears to be an exercise in indiscriminate budget-slashings to reduce that potential increase.

But the Town Council's apparent refusal to acknowledge the needs of the Coventry Police Department seems more intolerable than such a tax increase.

Last week, Police Chief Frank Trzaskos warned the council about liability concerns and improving safety for Coventry's officers. Trzaskos told the council that officers are working some shifts without any backup coverage, and that the use of part-timers in the department means there are officers on the street who don't know police procedure or the law.

The chief asked for three more officers and an investigator in his budget proposal for 1986-87. Only one patrol officer was approved.

Certainly, there must be some reductions in the total spending plan so Coventry taxpayers will be able to afford it. But the council's failure to address the need for public safety is irresponsible.

It's past time for the Coventry council to bite the bullet and provide the resources that are required for a full-time police department.

Suggestions, praise and primary plans

The Board of Directors has completed its workshop sessions on the budget recommendation offered by Town Manager Robert Weiss for the fiscal year that begins July 1.

One would think that anyone who had attended all three of the long Saturday morning sessions would have some notion of what the directors are likely to do with the budget when they act on it next month. But actually, no picture emerged.

Several of the directors themselves agree that no consensus became apparent about what will happen to the recommendation for General Fund spending of $50,897,748 — an increase of 11.3 percent over the budget adopted for the current year.

And it is clear that no clear picture will emerge until the Democratic majority directors have caucus. As of Wednesday, no caucuses had been set.

MAJORITY LEADER Stephen T. Penny says the administration's budget preparation has changed for the better in the past few years. The budget is a program budget that permits the directors to decide what policies to implement instead of questioning why the fire department needs to buy more rubber boots than it did in the previous year.

That may account for why you can sit at a four-hour workshop and come away without a head full of figures.

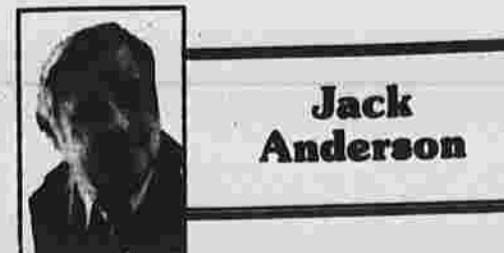

Democratic directors have said enough in the workshops and in private conversations to indicate that they will be evaluating requests for new personnel to carry out new or expanded programs and considering requested capital improvements.

DONALD KUEHL, the Republican town chairman, says the GOP plans to approach the budget with "a scalpel rather than an ax."

He said there are several places where the

Press aide keeps FDIC image fair

WASHINGTON — For all the barbs we aim at federal bureaucrats, we'd be the first to inform the public on this issue. Heeding this advice, board members discussed the proposal with many community organizations and individuals. My thanks to my fellow citizens for your graciousness and hospitality in listening to our message.

In a previous letter to the Herald, I stated that in 1982 suddenly became a center of fervent activity. Banks were collapsing at a rate reminiscent of the Great Depression, and the FDIC received more scrutiny from press and public than it had during its first half-century of existence.

AS THE PRINCIPAL BUFFER between the public and the brass that makes the agency's decisions in closely guarded secrecy, Whitney has found himself at times catching flak from both directions. The public wants to know why it's not being told more about a situation that affects its savings and the economic life of its community; muckrakers in the banking community and even within the banking agencies firmly believe that successful public relations is keeping one's affairs out of the public prints entirely.

To his credit, Whitney came down on the side of the public, choosing to open a dialogue with the communities that were hit by bank failures. He has logged thousands of miles in the past two years, explaining to stunned — and sometimes resentful — citizens the media the FDIC's role following the collapse of a bank.

Probably his toughest chore has been to explain loan foreclosures, which some people seem to think should stop when a bank fails — even though bad loans may have been the cause of the collapse.

In one Nebraska town, for example, an activist priest demanded that the FDIC forgive at least half of all the bad loans owned by local farmers to a bank that had just failed. He implied it was the agency's Christian responsibility.

WHEN WHITNEY EXPLAINED that the FDIC has a legal responsibility to collect on a failed bank's loans in an effort to help compensate for the guaranteed deposits the agency made good, the priest told the community: "The FDIC doesn't care you live or die." After weeks of tension, the FDIC office in the town burned down; local authorities called it arson. The priest then accused the FDIC of torching his own office to get sympathy.

"You're up to your hip boots in alligators, trying to figure out how you're going to work your way through a particular crisis, and Alan always has a level head about him," one agency official said.

Last June, for example, Whitney and FDIC employees confronted an angry throng of Chinese-American depositors, few of whom spoke English, after the failure of the Golden Pacific National Bank in New York City. Rumors of fraud incited the crowd to a frenzy; the FDIC group was barely able to keep the people from forcing their way into the bank. Men and women were screaming and weeping.

Whitney defused the explosive situation by venturing into the hysterical crowd and singing out half a dozen relatively calm depositors, whom he invited into the bank. He explained to the delegation what was going on; they went out and explained it to the rest, and the crowd dispersed.

Watch on waste

The official line on the Statue of Liberty's 100th birthday party over the Fourth of July weekend is that the costs will be paid entirely by the sale of television rights and tickets to some events. But the Navy will be using a good chunk of the money from its own budget to send 11 warships and several aircraft, including the Blue Angels, to the ceremonial events. Officials say they haven't added up the cost yet, but we have information showing the brass found more than $1.6 million lying around to pay for celebration-related expenses.

Party needs a New Guard

To the Editor:

Well, the Grand Old Party has done it again.

They have lost a most dedicated worker, Donna Mercier. Some of the "Old Guard" seem to think they can admonish, belittle, and demean people in front of an entire town committee executive board, the press and the public. And what is worse they seem to take pride in their rudeness.

It's time to stop their self-destructing. They are behind in the numbers column 2 to 1. We cannot afford to keep losing good people. This is 1986 — let's wake up!

An unneeded noise complaint

To the Editor:

What is wrong with some of the "adults" in our lovely town of Manchester? What exactly do they want? Where are their priorities? Do they complain about everything? Should our police pursue every complaint no matter how unnecessary it may be?

Sandy afternoon, I stress the time, not early morning or late at night, but in the middle of the day, a number of young people were driving their motor bikes along the property where the power lines are located at the southwest corner of our town. One of our town residents found it necessary to notify the authorities and complain about the noise. As if there is nothing better for the police to do, they had to track down and warn these riders of possible arrest for disturbing the peace. Now really, what, may I ask, is so terrible about riding bikes on open land in the middle of the day? Is this really a police matter? Would this citizen prefer these young people hang around a street corner getting into trouble? Many of these riders spend hours working on their bikes. To be harassed by the police because of a citizens' complaint is both frustrating and unnecessary. Where is the justice? Does this citizen complain about snow blowers and chain saws that make noise in our town, knowing our young people are constructively busy, than worrying about what trouble

Republicans will recommend changes, perhaps on the revenue side.

Kuehl said there may be some areas where the Republicans would want to recommend more spending, but he declined to name any.

And he said the Republicans may compliment the town administration for its work on some sections of the budget.

One clear choice

Conditions in recent days have been pretty good for door-to-door canvassing. That's fortunate, considering preparations for the primary elections coming up in Manchester May 20.

The dedicated Democrats and Republicans who are going from house to house asking people to sign their petitions have not had to put up with uncooperative weather. If you take them at their word, they have not met many uncooperative voters, either.

Leaders of both petition drives inevitably tell you they are getting "positive responses." But it is difficult to guess how many people sign a primary petition just to get rid of the petitioner and how many sign it simply because they think primary elections represent the most democratic way of determining who should be nominated.

SUPPORTERS OF DEMOCRAT Toby Moffett.

who is challenging incumbent Gov. William O'Neill, say they already have many more than the 617 signatures they need to force a primary, but are shooting for 1,000 or more. Normally, petitioners try to get more signatures than they really need to make up for the ones the party registrar of voters will find invalid for some reason.

But 1,000 signatures is far more than needed, and the petitioners know that. The real benefit of surplus names is to instill in the minds of voters the idea that your candidate has wide support.

Given the Democratic figures, it's almost certain that Republicans aren't having much trouble collecting enough names to put their challenge slate before the voters. Those who were contacted were unsure of the numbers, but said "They're out there."

For the Democrats, the race is a simple matter of a Moffett slate challenging a slate for Gov. O'Neill.

FOR THE REPUBLICANS, the situation is more fluid. A mixed slate endorsed by the Republican Town Committee is being challenged by another mixed slate.

The delegates to the committee-endorsed slate are not bound to support any candidate to the bitter end, but are divided according to a straw poll of the committee that put gubernatorial candidates Richard Bozuto, Gerald Labriola, and Julie Belaga up against one another. Romeo Petroni was also included, but got no votes.

The challenge slate has more supporters of Labriola than the four slates allotted to Labriola in the town committee-endorsed slate.

Thus when Republican voters go to the polls, they will not have as clear a choice before them as the Democrats.

Officials: Rocket wreckage confirms rupture in booster

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI) — A burned-out chunk of rocket wreckage confirms a joint rupture in Challenger's right booster doomed the ship, but engineers probably will never pinpoint exactly what caused the failure, officials say.

The space agency is scheduled to present preliminary results of its accident investigation to the presidential disaster panel Friday. The commission, in turn, is expected to report to President Reagan by June 6.

Richard Feynman, a Nobel Prize winner in physics and a member of the presidential commission, said Wednesday a variety of factors probably played a role in the failure of the rocket joint.

"I don't believe it's ever going to be possible to determine which of these things caused the actual accident," he told a news conference at the Marshall Space Flight Center. "But I don't believe we need to really know that."

"What we really have to know is what the weaknesses of the joint are so that in the new design we know what to get rid of. We know of many things now that are weaknesses of the joint that we'll have to cure in the future."

J.R. Thompson, directing NASA's accident review, said last week one or more of four factors could have contributed to the booster failure: the effects of cold weather on O-ring seals in the joint, assembly problems, trouble with putty inside the joint and how the joint flexes when the rocket is ignited.

It turns out the joint had many actual weaknesses and the tests have shown the joint could fail in one of a number of causes, Feynman said. "All of these things could produce a failure or in combination."

The current center of attention is a 2-ton piece of wreckage from

Cronkite on flight list

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Legendary CBS anchorman Walter Cronkite said he looks forward to competing with 99 other journalists for the chance to ride into space aboard a shuttle and report back to the public.

"The 'Journalist in Space' project Wednesday announced the names of 100 semifinalists selected from a field of 1,703 applicants.

Cronkite, 68, said in New York he was pleased to make the first cut and added: "I look forward even more to the fact that I will have the opportunity to compete further for this privileged assignment."

The selection process was similar to the one employed to pick New Hampshire high school teacher Christa McAuliffe to become the first private citizen in space. McAuliffe was killed along with six crewmates in the Challenger disaster.

Challenger's right-side rocket booster that features a charred section of the joint that failed. Commission member Eugene Covert described the debris as "just another brick in the wall" of evidence about the cause of history's worst space disaster.

"If you had never gotten this piece, it would not have changed our viewpoint," Covert said, but it conclusively verifies theories that a rupture occurred in the right booster joint, dooming the shuttle and its crew.

The wreckage features a jagged hole burned through the joint area by a jet of flame from burning propellant that somehow leaked through the side of the rocket, setting off the explosion of the shuttle's external tank.

Joining Feynman and Covert Wednesday were commission members Maj. Gen. Donald Kutyna of the Air Force and panel Vice Chairman Neil Armstrong.

Armstrong said because of the late recovery of the rocket wreckage from the rupture area, the presentation of some findings to the commission Friday will be delayed.

"We still have testing that could not be accomplished during this time period and additional analysis that must take place," Armstrong said.

The hole in the 220-square-foot piece of booster wreckage measures 2 1/4 inches across and 15 inches high and resembles a bite taken out of the edge of the rocket's skin. Covert said the hole was created by flame from burning propellant leaking through the joint.

"It is remarkably good shape considering all it's been through," he said of the debris. "The indication is definitely that the burn is inside out. The significance of this is it implies strongly that the booster was at fault in terms of a flaw and not the external tank."

He said the location of the apparent "burn through" was consistent with photographic documentation of Challenger's fatal flight that shows a plume of flame appearing on the side of the booster about 50 seconds after blastoff. The shuttle exploded about 15 seconds later.

Senators meet with Reagan

WASHINGTON — Four Senate critics of Soviet compliance with arms control agreements are expected to have an audience with President Reagan today to press their case on why the United States should no longer adhere to the SALT 2 treaty.

Reagan agreed to meet with the four Republicans — James McClure, Pete Wilson, Malcolm Wallop and Dan Quayle — after conferring for an hour Wednesday with his top arms control advisers on whether to continue abiding by terms of the unratified 1979 agreement.

There had been indications Reagan was nearing a tentative decision and that he would be dispatching his two key nuclear arms control advisers to Europe and Asia to confer with allies.

At issue is whether the United States will dismantle two Poseidon submarines after a new Trident nuclear submarine begins sea trials May 20 to stay within the SALT 2 limit of 1,200 multiple-warhead missiles. The decision, bound to affect the climate for future arms negotiations, has been the subject of debate within the administration for more than a year.

Mount St. Helens spews ash

VANCOUVER, Wash. — After nearly a year of slumber, Mount St. Helens volcano suddenly awakened, spewing gas and ash almost five miles into the sky but quieting down within two hours, officials reported.

The state Office of Emergency Services said the cloud of ash that rose 25,000 feet into the air headed in a north-northeast direction toward Yakima.

A pilot flying a private plane spotted the plume Wednesday at 5:15 p.m. It was the first time that Mount St. Helens had emitted gas since June 1985.

Roundup nets 3,506 criminals

SAN DIEGO — Authorities used tricky old-fashioned police work and international cooperation in a giant manhunt that netted 3,506 fugitives and $130 million in contraband in the Southwest and Mexico, officials said.

Stanley Morris, director of the U.S. Marshall's Service, said Wednesday the operation was called F.I.S.T. for Fugitive Investigative Strike Teams, which operated in California, Texas, Arizona and New Mexico and in Mexico during the last two months. More than 30 state, local and Mexican law enforcement agencies took part in the roundup.

"We ran a number of scams or stings, but the vast majority of arrests) were from good hard professional police work," said Morris.

Alliuyeva heads to Chicago

MOSCOW — Svetlana Alliuyeva, the daughter of dictator Josef Stalin who stunned the Soviet Union by defecting and then returning 17 years later, quietly left her homeland again and headed for Chicago, officials said.

It was not immediately clear whether Alliuyeva had again renounced her Soviet citizenship but a U.S. embassy spokesman said, "She is still an American citizen."

Alliuyeva made a spectacular defection to the West in 1967, only to slip back to the Soviet Union in 1984 with a harsh denunciation of the West in what was considered a publicity coup for the Soviets.

She gave up her homeland once again Wednesday, when she quietly boarded a flight out of the country, a U.S. embassy official said. A Swiss Air official said she bought tickets in Moscow for a flight to Chicago via Zurich.

Alliuyeva's daughter Olga, 14, left for England Tuesday to enroll again in the boarding school that she left in 1984 to accompany her mother back to the Soviet Union.

Bush to make pre-'88 stop

CONCORD, N.H. — Vice President George Bush, who was crushed by Ronald Reagan in New Hampshire's 1980 primary, is likely to find a friendlier reception during his first visit of 1986 to the state.

In what is likely to be one of many trips to the first primary state, Bush was due in New Hampshire today to address the heavily Republican state Legislature and a business group.

Bush has made several recent overtures to New Hampshire, which holds the nation's first presidential primary. On Tuesday, he met with the state's all-Republican congressional delegation to hear its concerns over a federally proposed nuclear waste dump, a controversial issue in the state.

The appearance was viewed as an attempt by Bush to strengthen his conservative credentials in a state that is overwhelmingly Republican and largely conservative.

NBA playoff roundup

Jazz and Sixers will be missing key players

By United Press International
The Utah Jazz and Philadelphia 76ers may each be missing their key players in the opening round of the NBA playoffs.

Philadelphians' injuries go beyond Malone. Bob McAdoo, who like Malone missed the final seven games of the regular season, has a hyperextended knee, and is questionable. Julius Erving and Clemson Johnson have injured rotator cuffs, but are expected to play against the Bulls.

Malone has joined the likes of James Worthy and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar by donning goggles for the first time in his career to protect the eye, and it will get accustomed to them.

Thursday, the defending champion Los Angeles Lakers host the San Antonio Spurs, the Boston Celtics meet the Chicago Bulls, the Detroit Pistons, and the Houston Rockets host the Sacramento Kings.

Celtics are an overwhelming favorite over the Bulls. Celtics players, however, are not counting themselves out.

Record during the regular season on Thursday's game against the Kings. The main concern for Houston is its inside game and injuries at the guard position.

Shaky Eagles suffer first diamond setback

Herold Sports Writer

East Catholic High's first loss of the baseball season was a classic defeat.
The 3-1 Eagles, 2-1 in the ACC, took on homestriding Northwest Catholic High in another conference contest at 11 a.m. Saturday morning in West Hartford.

It was a close affair for the first half of the tilt before the hard-earned victory for the home team.
The triumph was the first of the campaign for Xavier's Falcons.
Youthful East, which saw its three-game winning streak snapped, merely suffered from a combination of the three major baseball ingredients: poor pitching, hitting and fielding.

Freshmen lefty starter Mark Mangiocco was hit hard in his second varsity outing, the defense behind him was shaky, and the offense was chilled by the three-hit hurling of volleyball right-hander Ken Linkfield.

Not that the Eagles were atrocious in their 7-4 All Connecticut Conference defeat to visiting Xavier High on Thursday's rainy afternoon at Moriarty Field.

Manchester baseball finds itself in early trouble

ENFIELD - It's still early in the season but the Manchester High Scholastic baseball team already has its back against the wall.

Coach Don Race thought his Indians would contend for Central Connecticut Conference East Division honors in 1986. Instead, Manchester is holding up the rear end in the division.

The Raiders, 1-0 in the CCC East and 1-0 overall, scored the tying and winning runs in the bottom of the seventh inning. The game ended with a 1-0 loss to Enfield on the fourth Manchester miscue.

"We're losing through careless baseball," said a perplexed Race, who has not figured out how to get his team headed in the right direction. "No wins and three losses, we're not playing up to our ability level. We had five errors the last game and four today. And we haven't had more than five hits in any one game."

Enfield High in Thursday's Central Connecticut Conference East Division opener at Fitzgerald Field.

Enfield turned three singles, two walks and a hit batsman into three first-inning runs and never looked back. The visitors added three more in the second frame on a couple of walks and a pair of triples to Brandy Birmingham and Allison Swanson.

Manchester plays against host Hartford Public High Friday at 3:30 p.m.

The Indians' first tally came in the bottom of the second when Kelly Reingold scored on Cheryl Domina's single.

Is angry Larry Holmes near end of his career?

By Dave Roffo
United Press International

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Don King and Richie Giachetti, who have clashed often and fiercely over the handling of Larry Holmes in the past, agree the former heavyweight champion's strange behavior is a good sign for Saturday's rematch against Michael Spinks. Holmes, who lost the International Boxing Federation crown to Spinks last September, has acted like a bitter man since his first pro defeat. Promoter King and trainer Giachetti say Holmes' attitude means he's been working extra hard in preparation for Spinks. Holmes' handlers have been left to talk for him, because he has declined interviews, and missed Wednesday's press conference. "The first shock of his life — losing the title he valued — has been a traumatic experience," King said of Holmes. "He's coming back as a challenger for the first time since June 9, 1978, when he won the title from Ken Norton. I notice the frivolity and levity is gone. "He's been cold, calculated and methodical," who had trained Holmes from early in his pro career, was fired after a falling out with King five years ago. He returned for the first Spinks' fight, and says Holmes has trained much better for the rematch. "This is the first time in a while I could really say he is very physically and mentally prepared," Giachetti said of the 36-year-old former champ. "There are no distractions to take his mind off what he has to do. If we ain't got it now, we'll never have it." Spinks and his camp contend Holmes has lost it. Others who have observed Holmes agree with Spinks: Holmes is just an angry man winding down a great career. "He don't know what happened. He's just mad at the world," said Spinks, who is 38-0. "He was having a great time. All of a sudden his overconfidence ... the way he treated people ... like a big rock, came tumbling down on his glass house. "He was Humpty Dumpty. He had a great fall." Holmes' fall began when he lost a 15-round decision to Spinks. He has since blamed the loss on a pinched nerve in his neck for preventing him from throwing right hands, overconfidence, and a bad deal from the judges. Holmes, 46-1, is upset with the media for reporting his comments at the postfight press conference.

Holmes' most damaging comment was "Rocky (Marciano) couldn't carry my jockstrap," in reference to his failing to match Marciano's 49-3 record. Holmes made unprintable remarks telecast live across the country on the ESPN cable network. Holmes has done television interviews since losing. In an interview with Home Box Office that will be shown on HBO's preflight show Saturday, Holmes talks about how he seeks to regain respect lost on the night of the first Spinks' fight. Holmes continues to lose respect as the light draws near. He had Dick Young, perhaps the dean of sports columnists, forcibly removed from his Tuesday workout, and in a television interview last week accused boxing judges of being dishonest. After the Nevada State Athletic Commission threatened to call off Saturday's fight, Holmes apologized, and said his statements were distorted. "Some guys can handle success, but can't handle defeat," said Butch Lewis, who has been Spinks' promoter throughout his career. Spinks wants to give Holmes more of what he can't handle. "I want him to hang em up. I want him to finish," Spinks said.

Cavalliers fire GM Harry Weltman

RICHFIELD, Ohio — The Cleveland Cavaliers' quest for a new head coach has hit an ironic snag: the primary searcher has been dismissed. Cavaliers general manager Harry Weltman, who fired head coach George Karl March 16, was informed Wednesday his contract will not be renewed. George and Gordon Gund, co-owners of the NBA franchise, said they will immediately seek a new executive vice president and general manager.

"That person will then lead the search for a new head coach," George Gund said when contacted at the Richfield Coliseum. "Clearly, we're disappointed at our 29-53 showing this season, and the fact the team didn't make the playoffs."

Langer out to defend Heritage title

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — After failing to repeat as Masters champion, Bernhard Langer returns to a friendly golf course today intent on defending his Heritage Classic title. The top seven money leaders on the PGA Tour head a field of 120 poised to conquer tight fairways and tiny greens at the Harbour Town Golf Links course. Langer earned $72,000 here last year for shooting an 11-under-par 273, then won a playoff against Bobby Wadkins with a par on the first extra hole. The flamboyant West German entered the 1986 Heritage on a roll, having won the Masters in the preceding week. Langer was in contention through three rounds of the 1986 Masters, but a faulty putter in Sunday's final 18 holes left him at 75 in a tie for 16th place. Langer believes the Heritage course is better suited for his precision game.

USFL says it won't accept settlement

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. — The eight-team United States Football League Wednesday vowed to press its $1.32 billion antitrust suit against the rival NFL, saying it will refuse out-of-court settlement offers. USFL owners, preparing for the league's first fall season in which it will compete with the NFL for fan support, met outside Orlando, home of the Renegades. League Commissioner Harry Usher said the owners voted unanimously to reject any settlement offer. The future of the USFL depends on the verdict in the lawsuit, which goes to trial May 12 in U.S. District Court in New York. The USFL charges the NFL has impeded the four-year-old league by unfairly cornering the market on players, coaches, stadiums and especially network television.

Kohde-Kilsch, Garrison win matches

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. — Second-seeded Claudia Kohde-Kilsch and fifth-seeded Zina Garrison — the defending champion — won second-round matches Wednesday in the $275,000 Sunbelt WTA Championships. Top-seeded Steffi Graf, 16, of West Germany, defeated Neige Dias in a night match, 6-4, 6-3. Kohde-Kilsch, of West Germany, a semifinalist in the tournament last year, defeated Elise Burgin of Baltimore, 6-4, 6-4. Garrison, of Houston, who upset Chris Evert Lloyd in last year's final, breezed by Hu Na of China 6-1, 6-3.

Average salaries up 12 percent

NEW YORK — The average salary of a major-league player grew by 12 percent from 1985 to 1986, team owners said Wednesday. The announcement came from Barry Rona, executive director of the Player Relations Committee, which represents the owners in negotiations with players. The PRC said the average salary for 658 players on the opening day rosters, including 34 on the disabled list, was $431,521, compared to an average last year of $384,677. Team payrolls ranged from a low of $6.6 million to a record high of $16 million, the PRC said.

Jockey Marquez critically injured

ARCADIA, Calif. — Carlos Marquez was critically injured and fellow Jockey Sandy Hawley also was hurt Wednesday when Marquez' horse fell during the eighth race at Santa Anita. Officials said. Marquez, 44, was unconscious and listed in critical but stable condition at Methodist Hospital in Arcadia following the spill. Doctors said a scan showed a small amount of bleeding in his skull.

MCC skid continues

The skid continues for Manchester Community College's baseball team. Homecoming MCC was routed by Tunxis Community College, 11-4, Thursday at Cougar Field. The loss was the seventh straight for the Cougars, who are now 1-7. Stanley Biko, Jeff Brennan and Dave Swain rapped two hits apiece for Manchester, which plays Quinsigamond Community College in Worcester on a p.m. Mike O'Connor (2-2) was the winning pitcher for Tunxis, while Josh Corlett (0-2) absorbed the defeat.

TUNXIS (11) — Sommario 25, 4-2-1; Biko 25, 4-2-1; Brennan 25, 4-2-1; Swain 25, 4-2-1; O'Connor 25, 4-2-1; Corlett 25, 4-2-1; Penneouth 25, 4-2-1; Toloni 25, 4-2-1.

Genalo leads Bradley bowl

WINDSOR LOCKS (UPI) — Five-time champion Don Genalo jumped to a 45-pin lead over non-winner Jim Harvey Wednesday night after the second round of the Professional Bowlers Association's $125,000 Greater Hartford Open.

Genalo, a Perrysburg, Ohio, resident who won the Lite Beer Championship in Milwaukee earlier this year, rolled games of 268, 254, 265, 255, 294 and 185 for a six-game total of 1,412.

He increased his 12-game total to 2,785, while Harvey, of Tucson, Ariz., totaled 2,740. Harvey had high games of 289 and 279.

Johnny Petraglia, a PBA Hall of Famer from Staten Island, N.Y., was third with 2,739, seven pins ahead of Jeff Bellinger of Columbia, S.C.

Amleto Monacelli of Venezuela, the top foreign player on the PBA Tour, rounded out the top five with 2,716.

John Wilcox, who led after the first round, fell to eighth place with 2,697.

Spell bound

Annie Breen of 3 Academy St., a sixth-grader at Nathan Hale School, spelled the word "crescent" correctly Wednesday night and became the winner of the Manchester Junior Women's Club's second annual townwide spelling bee. The event took place at Concordia Lutheran Church.

Runner-up was Laurel Bomely of 171 Saddlehill Road, a sixth-grader at St. James School. Laurel put up a fine fight until she stumbled on the word "vaccinate."

Beemaster was Nancy Roser. Twelve schools took part, including Assumption Junior High, Bowers, Buckley, Keeney Street, Cornerstone Christian, Nathan Hale, Robertson, St. Bridget, St. James, Verplanck, Waddell, and Washington.

Hartford group to sponsor fix-up fair at Cheney Hall

By Nancy Pappas
Herold Reporter

Are you in the midst of renovating an older home? If so, perhaps you've had trouble locating a supplier of Victorian-style, roof slate. Or wondered what colors you should use in your 150-year-old salt box.

The Hartford Architecture Conservancy, in cooperation with the Cheney Hall Foundation, hopes to solve many of your problems on April 26 and 27. The organization is bringing crafts people and restoration specialists to Cheney Hall to present seminars and exhibits.

Got a problem with the exterior of your home? On hand will be experts from the company that cleaned the outside of the state capitol and the White House. They'll give advice on removing paint and cleaning masonry.

Thinking about buying an older home as an investment? A real estate appraiser and a manager of large rental properties will present talks on the joys — and pitfalls — of such propositions.

The fair will take up all available space in the hall, and spill out along Hartford Road. For example, the food concession, operated by Little Theater of Manchester, will be in the Cheney Hall parking lot. The Village Blacksmith of Goshen will set up a forge on the front lawn of the hall.

Across the street, in the little building that once housed the Keeney Street School, the Manchester Historical Society will offer classes on researching a historical house. Cheney Homes- tead, next door, will be open.

You can attend these seminars

- April 26
- 12:30 p.m. — Real estate appraisal; evaluating the rehab potential. John J. Lantry, real estate appraiser.
 - 1:15 p.m. — Selecting and managing a rental property. Miles Andrews, Hartford Urban Group.
 - 2 p.m. — Using an architect effectively on a small job. Richard Charney, Rapel & Charney architects.
 - 2:45 p.m. — Paint colors from the Victorian era. Ann C. Street, Hartford Architecture Conservancy.
- April 27
- 1:15 p.m. — Paint colors from the Victorian era. Ann C. Street, Hartford Architecture Conservancy.
 - 3:30 p.m. — Stained glass restoration and fabrication. Robert Mancuso, Mancuso Studios.
 - 4:15 p.m. — Early 20th century domestic architecture. Sherill Foster, architectural historian.
 - 5:30 p.m. — Tenant-landlord relations. Rod Barker, Hartford Development Group.
 - 8:15 p.m. — Basics of kitchen planning. Lois Harzen, Design Associates, M.A. Peterson.

This April 26 is a big day for Manchester Brownies. It's the annual Brownie Day, and this year's theme is Africa. Activities will include learning African songs and games, tie-dyeing, which is of African origin, face-painting and seeing an African folk tale performed by some older Girl Scouts.

A special Girl Scout Day was held at Mystic Aquarium on March 29. Forty-one Brownies from Cadette and Senior Scouts will host a spaghetti dinner at Center Congregational Church at 6:30 PM. Reservations should be made through Dianne Stromer.

It's always exciting to move up a rank in Girl Scouts. Bridging from Junior to Cadette will take place at Camp Merriewood on April 27th, 1 to 4:00 PM. Troops 658, 616, and 2 will ask as welcome. Junior troops being ridged are 626, 655 and Cadette program; and do various activities.

Troop 612 from Washington School and Troop 662 from Nathan Hale School recently spent a laugh-filled morning watching the Muppets at the Hartford Civic Center.

Brownie Troop 617 accepted five new members at a recent investiture at the Keeney School cafeteria. New members are Maryanne Fitzgerald, Jessica Griffin, Tashunda Monroe, Nichole Dakin and Keri Felkey.

Councilman has bombastic flair

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — A city council member will probably think twice before leaving his briefcase behind again. The bomb squad might take it apart — again.

City Councilor M. George Downs left the briefcase behind a statue in City Hall when he went across the street for dinner earlier this week. He planned to retrieve it later for a council meeting.

Nine in ten Manchester area readers prefer the Manchester Herald for local news over any other print publication.

If you live in Manchester then the Herald's the newspaper for you because it's the only one that's geared expressly to the needs of the community. A recent survey conducted by First Market Research of Boston pointed out that the Herald's major strength is in its local news coverage and its intimate focus on the Manchester area.

The same study shows that the Manchester Herald is rated quite highly in terms of space devoted to selected local issues in its Opinion pages. Nearly eight in ten readers find that the space devoted to viewpoints on local issues to be more than sufficient in explaining the issues. This extensive coverage provides readers with the depth of information they need to make reasonable decisions on key local issues that may impact on their lives today, or in the future.

Paying attention to the needs of its readers is the number one priority of the Manchester Herald. They feel it is their responsibility to listen to what residents in Manchester have to say. They're especially interested in hearing any comments you may have about the service you get from the Herald. They guarantee prompt delivery and courteous, efficient service on all billing matters. Anglers get ready for a new season

Joe's World

Joe Garman

I just received a press release from Dennis P. DeCarli, deputy commissioner of the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). He issued a reminder that areas stocked with trout are now closed to fishing, and that they will reopen at 6 a.m. on Saturday.

Of 821,000 trout that have been produced in 1986 stockings, 65 percent will have been stocked before opening day. Included in this group are brooks, brooks and rainbows are a limited number of brood stock trophy-sized fish.

DeCarli included this key information in his press release: "One lake, Saugatuck Reservoir, Easton-Hedding-Weston and one stream, Falling Mill Brook, have been added to the trout stocking list this year and two ponds and five streams have been dropped."

Fishermen should also be aware of a related regulation which sets a nine-inch minimum length limit for any trout caught in designated headwaters and some sporting goods stores. The stockings will continue through Memorial Day, with the larger rivers and lakes receiving the greater number of fish. The Farnington River will continue to be stocked between Memorial Day and Labor Day, and some of the larger lakes will be stocked again in October.

DeCarli also reminded fishermen of two regulations that continue in effect for the 1986 fishing season.

Zero gravity saps strength

IRVINE, Calif. (UPI) — When America's first space station orbits Earth in the early 1990s at least one compartment aboard the module 200 miles out in the cosmos will look like an earthbound exercise studio.

Studies under way at the University of California, Irvine show that short and prolonged missions in space cause rapid loss of proteins that help keep muscles in shape on Earth.

"In zero gravity we have to add a sufficient degree of stress on the muscle to counteract the natural tendency toward atrophy in space," said Dr. Kenneth Baldwin of the College of Medicine.

The research shows that gravity dictates the action of two key muscle fiber proteins, and in the absence of the force that keeps things firmly in place on Earth, muscle tissue rapidly degenerates.

Baldwin explained that space missions as short as seven days have caused such detectable levels of muscle atrophy that it is apparent astronauts currently are not being properly trained.

"Over the last few years, we've been programmed into the notion that aerobic activities — jogging, cycling, running — are good but they are not designed to add mechanical stress to the musculoskeletal system," he said.

"What we need is a device that essentially provides a form of hydraulic stress so that you can push against a system that will put mechanical pressure on the muscles" to build strength before and during space voyages, Baldwin

NASA is listening. Dr. William K. Douglas, who served as physician to the Mercury astronauts and now is on the McDonnell-Douglas research team designing a health maintenance compartment in the space station, said some good ideas are on the drawing board.

"Several have been suggested, like the Nordic track which simulates cross-country skiing complete with poles and skis. "There's also another that simulates climbing a mountain. The astronaut would have to climb against tension and exercise the whole body," he said.

Baldwin, an exercise physiologist, is focusing his research on myosin proteins, which are produced by muscle cells.

"Myosin is one of the essential components of the contraction response and we have found that different kinds of myosin figure in certain contractile activities," he said.

Muscle tissues of humans and almost all other animals consist of two types of myosin — fast myosin for "fast-twitch" muscle fibers, which contract rapidly, and slow myosin for "slow-twitch" fibers, which contract more slowly.

It is slow myosin that evolved in man as the protein that helps muscles fight gravity and maintain an upright posture.

Baldwin and his team are trying to design exercises that will help astronauts produce more slow myosin.

Doctor says many cereals high in salt

By Rob Stein United Press International

BOSTON — Many popular breakfast cereals are higher in salt than potato chips and other snacks, prompting a doctor today to warn that they can be dangerous to people prone to high blood pressure.

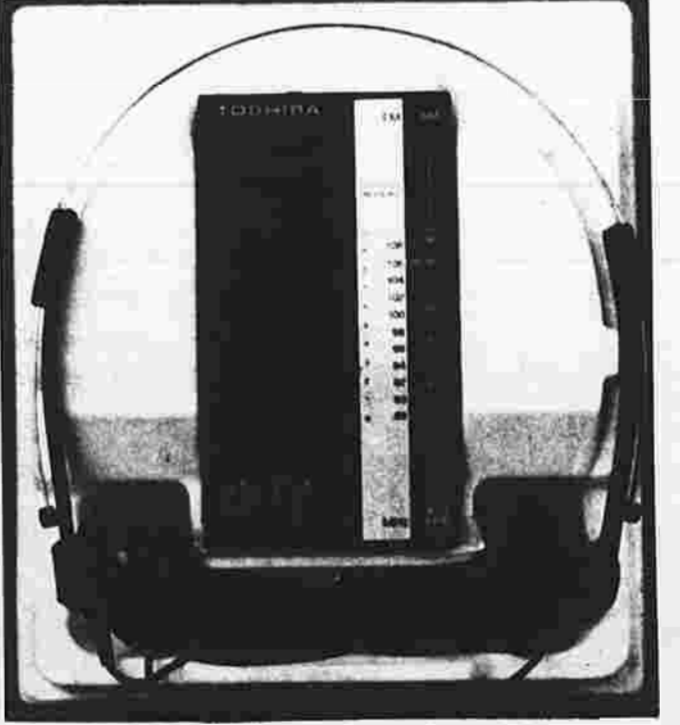

"Parents are giving something to their children without realizing they're giving them something so high in salt," said Dr. Steven W. Luger, a family physician in Old Lyme, Conn.

"If a child asked for a bowl of potato chips for breakfast they'd look at them and say, 'That's not good for them. Well, some of the cereals are just as bad when it comes to salt,'" said Luger, who outlined his concern in a letter to "The New England Journal of Medicine."

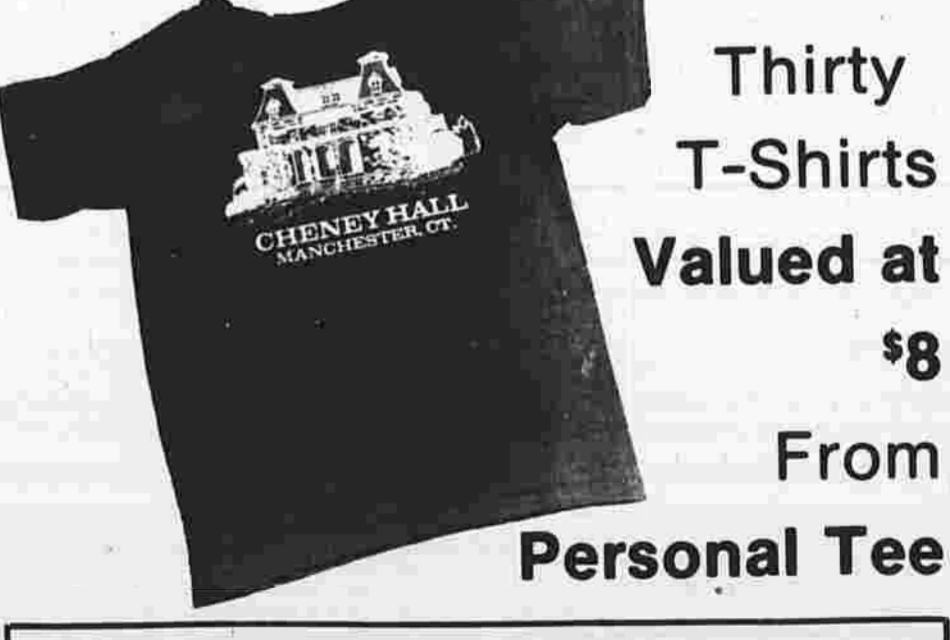

Luger examined the sodium content of several popular cereals after reading an advertisement for Cheerios that said the cereal was recommended by pediatricians as an ideal food for toddlers, he said. Sodium is a component of salt.

House rejects reappointment of O'Neill's judicial nominee

By Mark A. Dupuis
United Press International

HARTFORD — With one lawmaker calling him a "one-man legislature," the state House has rejected the nomination of Superior Court Judge Norman A. Buzaid for reappointment to another eight-year term.

The House voted 83-68 to reject Gov. William A. O'Neill's nomination of Buzaid for another eight-year term, marking the first time in memory that lawmakers have denied a judge reappointment.

Buzaid, 63, of Danbury, has nine years on the bench and is now serving Stamford Superior Court. He will remain a judge until his current term expires July 1, said William F. Stiering Jr., the governor's executive secretary.

The House vote Wednesday marked the first time in memory that lawmakers have rejected the reappointment of a judge, although the Senate earlier this year rejected George D. Brodigan of West Hartford for an initial eight-year term.

O'Neill, who nominated all of the judges up for reappointment this year despite warnings some might have trouble winning confirmation, said he was disappointed by the House vote.

"I had no reason not to re-submit his name so therefore I am disappointed in the House action," the governor said.

Buzaid was criticized for his demeanor in the courtroom and accused of letting his own policies prevail over the law.

"He was and is a good lawyer and that's what he should be — a lawyer, not a judge," said Rep. Gerald M. Noonan, D-Naugatuck. "He's a one-man legislature. In his courtroom, what he says is the law."

House Speaker R. E. Van Norstrand, D-River, who as the chamber's presiding officer usually does not participate in debates, made a rare speech from the floor, against Buzaid's reappointment.

"An Norstrand noted that Buzaid received low marks in a survey conducted by the speaker's office which asked lawyers to rate the performance of the state's judges.

Lawmakers who favored confirming Buzaid for another term said he was a tough but fair judge who had worked well despite handling a massive number of cases in less-than-desirable surroundings.

"Judge Buzaid has the outer appearance of a crusty old salt, but I can tell you from my observations that beneath that tough shell is a man of compassion and integrity," said Rep. Robert F. Frankel, D-Stratford.

Buzaid was one of several judges whose nominations were said to be in jeopardy of rejection by the Legislature. Two others about whom questions were raised were Arthur W. E. and by the House Wednesday and now await Senate confirmation.

Brodigan was serving an interim appointment when the Senate voted earlier in the session to deny him a full eight-year term.

Superior Court Judge Aaron Ment, the state's chief court administrator, said he was "saddened and disappointed" by the House vote to deny Buzaid reappointment.

"I have worked with Judge Buzaid personally. I consider him to be a good judge," Ment said, noting the House strayed from its usual course in turning down the Judiciary Committee recommendation that Buzaid be confirmed.

Ment said he does not see the votes on Buzaid and Brodigan as part of a trend to oust large numbers of judges. "I think these are isolated cases, but that doesn't lessen the pain I feel for Judge Buzaid," Ment said.

Vote on radar detectors delayed for panel action

HARTFORD (AP) — The House of Representatives has referred to the Transportation Committee a bill that would legalize the installation of radar detectors in Connecticut.

The voice vote delaying House consideration of the measure came Wednesday at the request of the Transportation Committee Co-chairman Rep. Elinor F. Wilber, R-Fairfield.

Judiciary Committee Co-chairman William Wollenberg, R-Farmington, agreed that the Transportation Committee should have had an opportunity to consider the measure earlier in the session.

The Judiciary Committee did not approve the bill until after Transportation's deadline.

Wilber said it could be before her panel next week, and that its chances of passage were good. The bill has already passed the Senate.

Opponents of the amendment, which was killed on a 29-9 vote, said the issue of a consumer advocate would be included in a study of insurance reforms to be conducted later this year.

MEANWHILE WEDNESDAY, a top state Republican said that a complaint would be filed with the Federal Election Commission over the inclusion of "thank you" postcard to Democratic Sen. Christopher J. Dodd in recent Blue Cross and Blue Shield bills.

"There's something very wrong with that," said Peter W. Gold, executive director of the Republican State Central Committee. "It's illegal. Intended or unintended, it's wrong."

He said it amounts to a campaign contribution to Dodd, who is up for re-election this year.

Gold said the GOP also wants to know if Dodd was aware of the mailings before they went out.

BCBS included an unstamped postcard addressed to Dodd, thanking him for his work on behalf of the company, which comes under governmental regulation.

BCBS spokesman Richard S. Holdt said the company was not playing politics. He said the company just wanted Dodd to get some feedback for working to prevent the federal tax reform bill from including provisions that would lift BCBS tax-exempt status.

Also Wednesday, Gov. William A. O'Neill's personal wealth was pegged at $438,500 in documents made public by his office.

His federal tax return showed he paid $14,908 in taxes on his 1985 income.

The documents, voluntarily filed by O'Neill with the secretary of the state's office, show his personal wealth grew by $28,500 when compared with the documents he filed at this time last year.

The governor's annual salary is $65,000, but his tax return lists it as $57,512. The difference represents deferred compensation, similar to an individual retirement account, according to his legal counsel, Jay W. Jackson.

REPUBLICAN STATE Sen. Thomas Scott denounced U.S. Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., on Wednesday for Weicker's criticism of President Reagan's decision to bomb Libya.

"At this point, I think we have to ask which side Senator Weicker is on," said Scott of Milford. "He's made it crystal clear by now that he's soft on terrorism."

Weicker was the only member of Connecticut's eight-member congressional delegation to criticize the president for the bombings.

The state Senate on Wednesday unanimously approved and sent to the governor a bill requiring insurance companies to give more notice before a policy could be canceled.

The vote came after the Senate rejected a Democratic amendment that would have required the hiring of a "consumer advocate" to represent policy holders when insurance companies file rate increases with the Department of Insurance.

Connecticut In Brief

Teacher pay lobbying begins
NEWINGTON — A coalition of school administrators, teacher unions, students and parents is lobbying Republican lawmakers for the revival of Gov. William A. O'Neill's plan to raise teacher salaries.

The Connecticut Alliance for Public Education said a $97 million program drawn up by the Legislature's Republican majority would not guarantee higher pay for teachers and would increase inequities in school spending around the state.

Members of the alliance held a news conference and met Wednesday with lawmakers asking them to scrap the GOP program in favor of O'Neill's $91 million program to raise teacher salaries and increase state aid for education. O'Neill's program would give towns the option of going along and would not mandate a starting salary.

Coalition members echoed other critics who argue the GOP plan would not assure money is set aside for teacher salaries and is more of a local aid program than an education program.

Couple wins Lotto jackpot
NEWINGTON — The first winners in the state lottery's twice-weekly Lotto drawing have claimed their share of a $4.3 million jackpot.

The winners, Michael and Judy Lucetti, both 41, of Danbury, Wednesday presented their winning ticket worth $2,167,536, officials said.

The jackpot for Tuesday's drawing was built up after there was no winner in three previous drawings since April 4, lottery officials said.

The prize built up faster than in the past because the previous format of weekly drawings on Friday was changed to twice-weekly drawings beginning April 8.

The couple said they plan to share their winnings with their three children and take more frequent vacations.

The other winning ticket for Tuesday's drawing, which was sold in Waterbury, remained unclaimed Wednesday, lottery officials said.

House sides with non-smokers
HARTFORD — Companies with 50 or more workers would be required to provide no-smoking work areas if requested by employees, under a bill on its way to the state Senate.

With the chamber's smokers and non-smokers joining in, the House voted 83-57 Wednesday to approve the smoke-free workplace provision as an amendment to a bill calling for a legislative study of work-related deaths.

The committee co-chairman, Rep. Francis X. O'Neill, R-Guilford, cited warnings by state and federal agencies and health groups that "passive smoking" can be harmful to people who inhale a smoker's exhaust.

The bill would allow the state Labor Department to grant exemptions to businesses that would face unreasonable financial hardship in providing a smoke-free workplace.

Goldfarb case reopened?
HARTFORD — The state can reopen its appeal of the dismissal of an ethical misconduct case against Hartford attorney Alexander A. Goldfarb, the state Appellate Court has ruled. The court set May 30 as the deadline for further written arguments in the case.

Last July, Hartford Superior Court Judge Norria L. O'Neill cleared Goldfarb of any wrongdoing in the handling of the estate of 89-year-old Ethel F. Donaghue of West Hartford.

The Hartford District Grievance Committee had accused Goldfarb of acting improperly in encouraging the hiring of two attorneys who drafted a will for Donaghue. The will said Goldfarb a co-executor and co-trustee of the estate.

O'Neill's ruling was appealed by the state. But in February, Seymour N. Weinstein of the chief state attorney's office decided to withdraw the appeal.

Weinstein's decision was criticized, however, prompting Chief Court Administrator Aaron Ment to recommend the hiring of a special prosecutor to investigate the matter. Weinstein then filed a motion to reopen the appeal.

BUSINESS

Mortuary trust fund pays funeral expenses

QUESTION: What is your opinion of what might be called "the ultimate in tax shelters" — mortuary trust funds, or prepaid funeral expenses? When my mother went into a nursing home, they insisted she have one. Although we are only in our 40s, we are considering signing up for such a plan.

ANSWER: I have to call those plans worthwhile, assuming they are set up and administered properly. The idea behind such a plan is relatively simple and has a great deal of appeal to many people. Money you put in while you're still breathing Earth's air pays for the cost of your departure. The funeral home puts the money into insurance, securities, certificates of deposit or some other account that will offset any price increase.

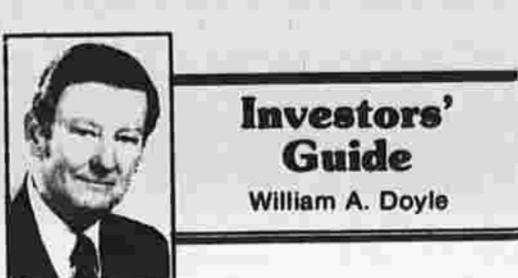

You know your "final arrangements" are complete. The funeral home doesn't have to worry about full payment for its services.

As a result, you relieve your survivors of problems making arrangements and paying for your burial or cremation. That can be especially worthwhile during a time of bereavement.

Despite the obvious attractions, there can be drawbacks in some prepaid funeral plans. Many accumulate interest at lower rates than CDs and other bank deposits. Some states have strict regulations covering those plans. Others don't. Some — notably New Jersey and New York — allow participants to withdraw all their payments, plus interest, if the contracts are canceled. That's not possible in many areas of the country.

The cancellation clause is important if you move, the funeral home goes out of business or is sold. Check that clause and all other details of any mortuary trust fund you are considering.

A final note of caution: There have been isolated cases of fraud in the prepaid funeral business. The American Association of Retired Persons tells its members to consult lawyers before signing up for any such plan.

Investors' Guide
William A. Doyle

QUESTION: My husband and I are in the process of cashing out our three whole life insurance policies, all of which have been paid up for some 20 or more years. We will each have one policy left. Our funerals are taken care of through prepaid plans.

We live on my husband's pension, my Social Security benefits, a certificate of deposit, a money market deposit account and an interest-paying checking account.

We are not high-rollers, but we would like to take a 50th anniversary cruise with the cash surrender values of the three policies. Our insurance agent wants us to invest that money in Ginnie Maes with his company.

May we have your advice?

ANSWER: Take the cruise. You deserve that treat and, based on your letter, you can afford it. When you return, you'll have as much income as you do now. Also, it seems obvious you have all the life insurance you need.

You really can't fault the insurance agent for trying to sell you Ginnie Maes or anything else, but he can provide answers only through the column.

Business In Brief

Chesebrough-Pond sales increase
WESTPORT — Chesebrough-Pond's Inc. reports that its sales for the first quarter of 1986 were double first quarter earnings of last year.

Results for the first quarter, which were released Wednesday, show the results of Stauffer Chemical Co., which was acquired by Chesebrough in March, 1985.

First quarter net income was $51.2 million compared with $19.9 million for the first quarter of 1985. Earnings per share were at $1.37, up from 88 cents per share the year before.

Sales were up from $411.8 million during the first quarter of 1985 to $528.5 for the first quarter of this year.

Stanley reports rise in net earnings
NEW BRITAIN — Stanley Works reports that it had a 5 percent increase in net earnings for the first quarter of 1986 as compared to 1985.

Stanley said Wednesday its first quarter earnings were $14.7 million or 53 cents per share compared to $14 million or 52 cents per share the year before. Net sales for the same period were $234.1 million up 17 percent from 1985 when it was $226.8 million.

Stanley said sales and earnings figures for 1986 include results from Boostich staplers and fastening tools and Peugeot hand tools, which were acquired during the first quarter.

Oil earnings increase sharply
STAMFORD — Olin Corp. reports that it more than doubled its earnings for the first quarter of this year as compared to last year, despite a 4.5 percent decrease in sales.

Olin reported its first quarter net income was $25.2 million, or $1.11 per share, as compared with $12.1 million or 83 cents a share for the first quarter of last year.

Comparing first quarter results with both continuing and discontinued operations last year, Olin said its profit improved 62 percent.

Sales for the first quarter were $451.4 million, compared with $472.7 million the year before.

Stocks continue moderate gains
NEW YORK — The stock market showed a modest gain Tuesday in a carryover of buying from Wednesday's upsurge to record highs.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.34 to 1,851.31 in the first hour of trading.

Gainers outpaced losers by about 6 to 5 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said enthusiasm persisted over the performance Wednesday of the stock, bond and oil markets as investors concluded that hostilities between the United States and Libya apparently wouldn't lead to any major financial or economic disruptions.

Corporate snafu

Memo is poor way to communicate

By Frank Kelly
United Press International

DALLAS — All those memos flying about the workplace may be the reason many corporations fail to communicate effectively with their employees, a business communications and training expert suggests.

"Communications is probably the largest weakness we have found in any corporate structure," says Joe Manganello of Hadden, Manganello and Associates, a Dallas company specializing in communications and business training.

"I can really get on my soapbox about this, but if a company is going to survive in the next five to 10 years in this country, it has to begin communicating its purposes to every employee in the corporation — telling the workers exactly how what they do in their jobs enhances those purposes," Manganello said.

Hadden and partner Scott Hadden advocate blending the use of an often overlooked media, video, as part of a corporation's training and communication program.

"Basically, our concept is that training is just communications for specific purposes and we try to align what we do within the company's goals," said Manganello, whose firm has conducted training or marketing programs for such companies as Mary Kay, Campbell-Taggart and Club Corp.

HE SAID the first step begins in working with executives of the company in determining its goals and objectives.

"What we'll do is get into the operations of the company as a third-party observer, identifying the gaps that are stopping them from reaching those goals, both short-term and long term," he explained.

"We do a lot of research, especially at the employee level," Hadden added.

That research includes extensive surveying, often through the Dollar continues its slide

LONDON (UPI) — The dollar continued its slide today, opening lower on major European money markets. Gold was up slightly.

In Tokyo, the Bank of Japan stepped in to bolster the greenback, which closed at 175.40, down from the previous closing 177.65 and the lowest since it hit a record low of 174.99 yen March 1.

The U.S. currency opened down in London at $1.5655 against the pound. It had crossed the $1.50 mark Wednesday to close at $1.5627.

The dollar opened in Zurich at $1.8645, down from the previous closing 1.8910, in Paris at 7.1325 franc against 7.1438, in Brussels at 46.1550 Belgian francs against 46.2750 and in Frankfurt at 2.2475 marks against 2.2395.

In Milan the dollar opened at 1.538.50 lire against 1.553.50.

The dollar fell to $1.39 Canadian from $1.3928 Tuesday.

Gold opened up in Zurich at $339.50 per ounce against Wednesday's closing $338.50. London at $339.25 against the previous $339.

Silver also opened higher in Zurich, at $5.45 per ounce against the previous $5.40, and in London at $5.41 against $5.40.

Yale students to challenge suspensions

By Lyda Phillips
United Press International

NEW HAVEN — Yale University students, declaring "We are not dissenters," have vowed to step up a campaign to challenge suspensions of 66 students arrested during a noisy rally at the campus last week.

Students at this university will continue to refuse to be intimidated into silence," said sophomore Lisa Marie Bronson, who also was arrested and suspended.

"As we speak, there are people being arrested for their freedom of speech in South Africa."

The Yale Corporation, which serves as the university's board of trustees, has condemned the protest and refused to revise policies on involvement in companies with South African interests.

Police said "between 66 and 68" people, including student supporters, were arrested at the rally at the campus police and charged with disorderly conduct before being released.

Yale officials placed the total number at about 60, while protest leaders said at least 60 students had been charged and suspended.

"From my point of view, Yale has suspended education in this university," said graduate student Tracy Dick, one of those arrested.

Campus police began the latest arrests after about 60 protesters refused to move from in front of four doors to the bursar's office, where about 20 people were arrested on Tuesday.

Yale Secretary John A. Wilkinson told the students they were suspended after they refused to remove themselves from the doors.

The students have formed a group known as the Yale Disinvestment Campaign to challenge the interim academic suspensions in court and demand Yale free speech. The suspension could mean some students might not graduate with their class this year.

"We are not just dissenters at a springtime rally," Yale junior Luis J. Li, one of those charged, said later during a noisy rally attended by more than 500 people at Battell Chapel. "I am very ashamed to go to Yale at this moment."

Students said they would chal-

Show horses die in fire

UNION (UPI) — A fire at an equestrian boarding and training farm has destroyed 15 Arabian show horses and a pony while leveling the facility's performance arena, officials said.

The animals were trapped inside the main barn at the Classic Training Center stables when the fire broke out about 1:20 a.m. Wednesday, state police said. Three other community fire companies in addition to Union firefighters had to be called in and finally put out the blaze which destroyed the barn.

State Fire Marshal Joseph Roy and Union Fire Marshal Harold Finch said while the origin of the blaze had not been determined, the fire was not considered suspicious.

The training center is owned by Joseph Villandre, who lives adjacent to the stables on Cemetery Road. Villandre's daughter, Jody LaSalle, a nationally known horse trainer and instructor, will continue to operate the facility built in 1979.

State police said the horses were valued at several hundred thousand dollars, but the fire marshals said no value had yet been put on the losses to the center.

American said to be among slain hostages

Combined Wire Services

The American University Hospital reported today that kidnapped American librarian Peter Kilburn was among three Westerners killed Thursday in Lebanon to avenge the U.S. air attacks on Libya.

American University Hospital spokesman said Kilburn's body was identified at 5:30 p.m., shortly after United Nations officials determined the corpse was not that of British writer Alec Collett.

Britain blames Libyans

LONDON (UPI) - British Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe today pinned the blame squarely on Libya and its "state-directed terrorism" for the kidnapping and murder of two Britons in Lebanon, which he described as "a senseless outrage."

The Foreign Office said more than 70 other Britons in Lebanon had been advised to "keep a low profile" and to keep tuned to the British Broadcasting Corp. World Service, the standard conduit for evacuation instructions.

Howe was in Paris today but planned to return to London for a discussion of the Libyan situation later in the day with the U.S. ambassador to the Court of St. James, Charles Price.

In a statement issued in his name by the Foreign Office, Howe said that "for some time we have had some evidence of direct Libyan involvement in the kidnappings" of Britons John Leigh Douglas and Philip Padfield as they walked home from a Good Friday dinner in Beirut.

Janice Ray, who Thursday won the right to buy one of the houses being built on Love Lane under town contract, accepts congratulations from Dominic Martorelli, president of Visions Unlimited of Tolland, the contractor that is building the houses. Lotteries were held to determine who would be permitted to buy houses and Thursday's lottery at Lincoln Center — the second and final one — attracted a good deal of media attention.

Second house lottery gets attention

By Alex Girelli Associate Editor

It was a repeat performance in Manchester Thursday evening when eight people won the right to buy houses under a town-sponsored program.

But unlike the first lottery for the 14 starter houses being built on Love Lane, the second became a media event of sorts, with three Connecticut television stations on hand to record it.

The second and final lottery at Lincoln Center was conducted by Visions Unlimited of Tolland, which is building the houses under a town program aimed at providing affordable homes for first-time Manchester home buyers who meet financial guidelines.

After the first lottery for seven of the houses on March 13, the program attracted wide attention and was the subject of an article in the New York Times on Sunday.

On Thursday night, buyers for the remaining seven were to have been chosen. An eighth lottery was added because one of the March 13 winners did not qualify as a purchaser.

The winners Thursday were Christine Mooney of 18 Laurel St., David and Sharon McMann of 186 West Middle Turnpike, Thurston and Janice Ray of 15 Laurel Place, Roy Johnson of 652 N. Main St., James and Deanna Paugas of 24 Cooledge St., Celeste Jackson White of 77C Henry St., William and Suzanne Oelinger of 40 Wilfred Road, and David and Karen Bidwell of 76 N. School St.

The McManns won in two of the lotteries, but under the rules were barred from having the right to buy a second house.

The first ticket drawn Thursday belonged to Carl Ogren, who was a winner in the March 13 lottery.

The room in Lincoln Center where the drawings took place was filled, with some people crowding the doorways. But four of the winners — the McManns, Johnson, White and the Paugas family — did not attend.

Thompson says he'll probably run in 13th District

By John F. Kirch Herald Reporter

Former Mayor John W. Thompson has all but officially announced his candidacy for the 13th Assembly District seat currently held by Republican Elsie L. Swenson.

In an interview Thursday, Thompson said that it is highly likely he will seek the House seat. An official announcement will probably come next week, he said.

"The possibility does exist," he said. "Henry (Agostinelli) and I had a nice talk and I said that I would probably be running."

Thompson's comments came shortly after Democrat Henry E. Agostinelli, who announced his candidacy for the 13th Assembly District seat April 8, said he planned to withdraw from the race.

Agostinelli said previously he would not seek the seat if Thompson decided to run.

Agostinelli said that he met with Thompson for 15 minutes Thursday and received "strong indications" that Thompson will mount a campaign.

"He is going to run," Agostinelli said. "But I can't say that he said that. There are strong indications."

consider the people of the 13th District fortunate to have a man like Jack Thompson running and I will do everything possible to help him win — everything. I really believe he can win."

Thompson, who lost to Swenson in 1983 by a handful of votes, said he would welcome Agostinelli's help.

A third possible candidate for the seat, Robert Faucher, has also said he would drop out of the race if Thompson declared his candidacy.

Faucher could not be reached for comment on his intentions Thursday.

Democratic town Director Stephen T. Cassano, who was also considered a possible candidate for Swenson's seat, said Wednesday he would prefer to run for the 4th Senate District seat currently held by Sen. Carl A. Zinsner, R-Manchester.

Cassano has said he would "love to see" Thompson run for Swenson's seat.

Thompson has challenged Swenson twice before, losing both times in very close votes. He said last week that he would not run against Swenson unless he was sure he could win.

"I've always thought that a person has to run on his record," Thompson said Thursday. "I have a record as mayor — a good record. I'm not sure what Bill's record is, but she'll have to run on it."

Swenson, who said this week she would not decide on seeking another term until after the session of the Legislature ends next month, could not be reached for comment.

Whale helps TV sales

Fans of the Hartford Whalers are eager to watch their team in the NHL playoff series, no matter what the cost.

In the last month, the number of area subscribers to the SportsChannel on cable television has increased by 17 percent.

"Last week we added about 200 subscriptions to the SportsChannel," said Duffy Leone, marketing manager at Cox Cable Greater Hartford, whose offices are in Manchester.

Duffy said it was nice to see fans come into the office wearing Whaler T-shirts, hats and buttons. "We've been trying to play it up as much as possible," he said. "We're big Whaler fans here."

Thursday, the Whalers maintained their record with a victory over the Canadiens in Montreal.

Leone said the subscription price for the SportsChannel, if cable service is already in existence, is $12.

He said he'd love for subscribers to continue the service, but expects some to cancel. "Hopefully they'll stay on through the Celtics playoffs," he said.

Gorbachev wants cuts in conventional forces

BERLIN (AP) - Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev today proposed reductions in conventional military forces and tactical nuclear weapons across the entire European continent from the Atlantic to the Ural.

Speaking to the East German Communist Party Congress in East Berlin, Gorbachev said he was taking a new initiative for an East-West agreement on meaningful cuts in the ground and tactical forces of European countries, as well as in U.S. and Canadian forces deployed on the continent.

The Kremlin leader, however, provided few details of his proposal. A brief report from the official Soviet news agency Tass, filed from East Berlin, did not elaborate.

In his address to the East German Communists, which was simultaneously translated from Russian, Gorbachev said troop units would be disbanded and their arms either destroyed or stockpiled in their home countries.

In the past, the United States has rejected such a proposal, which would require it to liquidate its arms in Europe, or ship them back across the Atlantic.

Gorbachev said his proposal would affect both conventional and tactical, or battlefield, nuclear weapons.

Probe continues

The investigation is continuing today into what caused 261 workers from Bussmann Cooper Industries to seek emergency medical treatment Wednesday and Thursday.

Complaints of an unidentified odor and accompanying feelings of nausea and dizziness sent 54 employees from one department to Bristol Hospital. Story on page 8.

Warm weekend

Clear and cool tonight with lows from the 30s to the low 40s. Sunny and warmer on Saturday with a high near 70. Details on page 2.
