Police arrest Palestinian in disco bombing

West Berlin police have arrested a Palestinian man in connection with the April 5 bombing of a discotheque...

GOP primary in doubt

By George Lavno Herald Reporter

Plans by supporters of Republican gubernatorial candidate Gerald Labriola to force a primary in Manchester...

Republican Registrar of Voters Mary Willhide said this morning she has asked the Republican State Central Committee...

At issue are a number of petition sheets that were circulated by town directors Thomas Ferguson and William Diana...

However, Ferguson and Diana have led a petition drive to force a primary in an effort to send a challenge state of delegates to the nominating convention in July...

Willhide, who called the statute "superfluous," said the regulation has made the certification of the petition signatures "very confusing."

On Friday, Ferguson and Diana handed in 428 signatures — nine more than the 419 needed to force a primary on May 20.

Ferguson said this morning that he was assured by the secretary of the state's office that there was no violation of the regulation. He said the rule does not apply to him and Diana because they are on both the endorsed and challenge slates.

"It's an area that's been in debate for some time," Ferguson said. He explained that the rule applies to delegates that are on the endorsed slate only and work for another candidate.

"We don't feel that it applies to us," he said.

was taken into custody late Friday in West Berlin.

On Sunday, police booked the Palestinian on suspicion of participation in the bombing, based on descriptions provided by about 100 people in the discotheque at the time of the blast, Ganschow said.

U.S. officials have said they had proof of Libyan involvement in the bombing, and U.S. warplanes raided Libya last Tuesday in retaliation.

It was the first arrest reported in an investigation that has occupied a special 100-member commission of West Berlin and U.S. military police.

An American army sergeant and a Turkish woman were killed in the explosion, and 230 people were injured, 63 of them Americans.

In other developments, French President Francois Mitterrand told U.S. envoy Vernon Walters that France would support the raid on Libya only if it were strong enough to have the "political objective" of ousting Col. Moammar Khadafy, according to a published report.

The Washington Times, quoting a senior administration official in today's editions, said Mitterrand told Walters in a meeting last Monday that the limited scale of the proposed U.S. attack amounted only to a "pinprick" that France could not support, even by granting permission for U.S. planes to fly over France.

A Newsweek poll conducted in France following the attack found that the French supported the raid by nearly 2-to-1.

Meanwhile, the Reagan administration said today it is not prepared to blame Libya for the murder of American hostage Peter Kilburn, and said his death reinforces America's commitment to combat international terrorism.

Forensic experts at the National Institutes of Health on Sunday positively identified a body found outside Beirut last week, along with the remains of two Britons, as Kilburn, an American librarian kidnapped in Lebanon Dec. 3, 1984. (Story on page 4).

A note found near the bodies said they had been killed in retaliation for last week's American bombing of Libya.

"We condemn this cowardly and tragic murder of Peter Kilburn," said presidential spokesman Larry Speakes. "In no way will this deter us from our efforts to obtain the safe release of the remaining hostages in Lebanon."

"We are pressing our extensive efforts with various governments and parties to obtain their freedom," he added. "This tragic killing only reinforces our commitment to combat international terrorism as effectively as possible."

Asked if the United States believes Libya was responsible for Kilburn's death, Speakes replied, "I don't think we're prepared to say that at this time."

Region expects robust tourist season

Lower gas prices, fear of terrorism keeping people home

By Charles Goldsmith United Press International

From Maine's rocky coast to Connecticut's rolling hills, New England's tourism industry expects a record summer due to cheap gasoline prices, a weakened dollar and fear of traveling abroad due to terrorism.

Spillover from New York City's 100th birthday celebration for the Statue of Liberty is also expected to boost the number of people visiting Old New England this summertime.

Especially heartening to tourism operators is higher bookings in June, which is usually a heavy month for European vacations. Travel agents say many tourists have canceled their flights to Europe.

"I think we're going to have the biggest summer ever," said Dorothy Bailey of the Weirs Beach chamber of commerce in New Hampshire's scenic Lakes Region. "This terrorism, it's got people uneasy, but it helps us. It's good for business."

In Vacationland, inquiries to the Maine Tourism Bureau through March were up 32 percent from last year.

"In Maine, lower gas prices are particularly significant," said tourist bureau spokesman Donald Bumpus. "Our latest report shows that 93 percent of people who come here come by private road vehicle. Only 2 percent come by plane."

Maureen Connolly of Cumberland Foreside, Maine, had been planning a trip to England, but recently changed her plans.

"We were going to go to London, but my husband and I decided for several reasons to stay home this year," she said. "One of the reasons was certainly the possibility of terrorism."

"We're planning to take a number of day trips. We will probably spend some time in Boston, and maybe on Cape Cod also. I haven't seen all there is to see in New England, and I've lived here all my life."

MASSACHUSETTS LAUNCHED a $3.8 million tourism campaign last week with the promotional theme, "The Spirit of Massachusetts is the Spirit of America." TV ads in Washington and other markets stress the state's rich historical heritage.

"It looks from every indication that this is going to be the best tourism season in the history of the country. If not, then certainly in Massachusetts," said Dick Rust, assistant commissioner of commerce.

In neighboring Rhode Island, the state launches festivities May 4 celebrating the 350th anniversary of the state's founding by Massachusetts Bay Colony exile Roger Williams. A June tall ships parade in Newport is one highlight.

The state's tourism bureau had 14,881 inquiries during the first three months of 1986, compared to 10,661 for the same period last year. Rhode Island measures tourism by "tourist days," and expects a 12 percent increase to 32 million this year.

In Vermont, which has a reputation as a fall and winter destination, officials expect a 12 percent increase in summer visitors due to lower gas prices.

"A lot of people are coming to the Northeast because of the Statue of Liberty celebration," said Penny Beach, owner of the Basin Harbor Resort on Vermont's Lake Champlain.

"That celebration is drawing attention to New England, and many people will end up driving to this area because driving will be so cheap," she said. "They're turned off to European travel. It's just too scary right now."

CONNECTICUT ALSO hopes to cash in on New York's Statue of Liberty extravaganza, which peaks during the July 4 weekend.

"We're getting advance reservations earlier than usual," said Carl Candels, vice president of the Connecticut Hotel-Motel Association. "Cheap gasoline and the weakened dollar has something to do with it. We're really sorry this terrorism thing is a factor, but it will work to our advantage."

At the Pelham Hotel in Hampton Beach, N.H., "We're getting a lot of weekdays booked in June," said owner Chuck Rago. "That's usually the time people go to Europe." Tempering the euphoria, however, is the one great unknown that affects every summer tourism season in New England. Mother Nature.

"The variable is always the weather," said Bumpus, of Maine's tourism office. "You can do promotions as hard as you like, but bad weather will have a chilling effect no matter what you do."

8th District appoints negotiating team

By George Lavno Herald Reporter

The Eighth Utilities District Board of Directors has appointed a three-man team to negotiate an agreement with the town on the sharing of the town's Buckland firehouse on Tolland Turnpike.

The negotiating team, which was given until April 29 to reach a settlement with the town, will include district Fire Chief Harold Topliff, legal counsel John LaBelle Jr. and former district Director Patrick Donlon.

Town Manager Robert Weiss said this morning that he, town Fire Chief John Rivoso and a town attorney will negotiate for the town, although no date has not been set for a meeting between the two sides.

At a meeting Saturday, district directors said they were optimistic about reaching a settlement.

"In theory, I think it's a good proposal," Director Lorraine Boutin said, referring to the town's offer to lease part of the station to the district for $22,034 a year over 20 years. "I think we can work with it."

"It doesn't look that bad to me," Director Willard Marvin said. "On behalf of the taxpayers, I think it would be fair to pursue."

"I think we're in at least the same ballpark at this point," agreed Director Thomas Landers.

All of the directors expressed some concerns about the proposed sharing arrangement, including the length of the contract, which Boutin suggested should be five years instead of 20. The directors also questioned whether the building should be divided and whether there would be enough room to store the district's pumper and mini-pumper.

Topliff said there probably would be room for the district's equipment. He said the most important item to be negotiated is the establishment of living and working arrangements between town and district firefighters who would share the station. Topliff said if a settlement is reached, he would like to begin sharing the station on July 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

The district is an independent authority that provides volunteer fire protection and sewer service to most of northern Manchester. It is planning to build a second station to serve the Buckland area, one that would be just two lots west of the town's station.

The town built the station in the 1970s during a court dispute over who had fire-protection jurisdiction in the area, a dispute won by the district. Although the town cannot legally fight fires in the area immediately around the station, the station is used to serve other areas.

The district has offered to buy the station from the town, but its offers have been refused.

District President Walter Joyner announced Saturday that the district was able to obtain a 30-day extension on the bid submitted by Andrew Ansaldo Co. of Manchester to build the proposed district firehouse. The move gives the district until May 20 to make a decision on whether to share with the town, or build its own facility.

Under the terms of the extension, which were approved by the board, the original bid price of $489,000 would be increased by $4,900 because of higher labor and

8th District leaders say Weiss's report 'disgusting'

By George Lovyn Herald Reporter
"We've paid for that information for years," he said. Tripp also criticized Weiss's contention that the existence of two separate fire departments in Manchester makes it difficult for residents and dispatchers to know which unit to call in an emergency. "There isn't any dispatcher that has to ask what fire department to ask - it's disgusting," he said. "What so many of them have said is ridiculous and disgusting," district Director Willard Marvin said of Weiss's report and other comments over the past few months by consolidation advocates. "We can never accomplish anything if it's just getting to be constant name calling."

charged that the district's sewer system "no longer makes operational sense." He said the district has chosen to provide sewer service to "those areas which are economically to their advantage and leave others to the town." Weiss also said it would be better to have one fire department consisting of the town's paid unit and volunteer firefighters. The district's own report was scheduled to have been submitted to the Charter Revision Commission this morning, District President Walter Joyner said. It was finished last week by legal counsel John D. LaBelle Jr., but was not handed in earlier because LaBelle had to leave the state on other business, Joyner said this morning. Joyner said the district's report is two pages long.

Joyner said on Saturday he will take any blame for the delay. "I'm sorry, I can't say anybody else is responsible," he said. Both the district and the town were supposed to have submitted their reports to the commission for its consideration at an April 7 meeting, but both sides asked for an extension. Joyner said it is more difficult for the district to prepare the report than the town. "We don't have the manpower to handle these questions," he said. "We don't have the staff like the town does to prepare an eight-page report with two-page addendums." Joyner said the district's report is two pages long.

8th District ready for firehouse talks

Continued from page 1 material costs. Ansell's bid was the lowest of 10 opened by the district in March for construction of the proposed station, but a contract has not been signed. The bid was about $200,000 higher than the directors had expected. The directors agreed to give the negotiating team 10 days to reach a settlement with the town, although they said extensions could be given if the town needs more time. However, they also agreed to withdraw from the talks before the deadline - and build their own firehouse - if it appears an agreement will not be reached. "Time is of the essence in this case - it really is," Boutin said. The directors also decided to send with their negotiating team a list of their concerns about the town's sharing plan. Among these is a proposal by attorney Robert Blechman, head of the district political action group called Stop Tampering with the Eighth's American Liberties, or STEAL, to approve any recommendations by the Charter Revision Commission that would make it difficult to force the district to consolidate with the town. The commission is currently studying two sections of the charter that require a separate and favorable vote within the district before consolidation can occur. Blechman, who maintained that it's a "foregone conclusion" the commission will recommend changing the charter, said the town directors have a "moral duty" to reject the recommendation if it is serious about cooperating with the district over the Buckland fire station. However, Boutin and Landers disagreed. They argued that any talk of consolidation should be delayed because it would complicate negotiations to share the firehouse. The Charter Revision Commission is scheduled to continue its deliberations tonight on whether to change the two sections of the town charter that deal with consolidation. The Democratic majority on the town Board of Directors has urged abolishing these provisions and instead having only one, townwide vote on the matter, in which district voters would be outnumbered by about three to one.

PZC gets retail plan

Two Hartford developers will seek a special exception from the Planning and Zoning Commission tonight that would allow them to build a small retail and food center on Spencer Street. Developers George R. Recek and Alfred Roy, partners of Geal Development Co. of Hartford, are proposing to construct three buildings containing a total of about 20,000 square feet on 2.16 acres at 171 Spencer St. The site is near the intersection of Hilltown Road and is next door to the Spencer Street branch of the Manchester State Bank. It is zoned Business III. The center would have a Fay's drug store, a Dunkin' Donuts and Blimpies, a fast food restaurant that serves sandwiches, according to site plans filed with town planning officials. About 2,000 square feet must still be filled, the developers said today. The special exception is needed because the developers plan to put in 101 parking spaces, planning officials said. Zoning regulations require a special exception for any development that has more than 60 parking spaces. A vacant house and barn on the site would be removed, the developers said. A public hearing on the developers' application will open the PZC's meeting, which will start at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln Center conference room. The PZC will also consider an application from Fairway Estates, which is seeking a zone change from Rural Residence to Residence AA for about 47 acres at 608 S. Main St. The zone change would allow the developers to build single-family houses at a density of two units per acre. The application was tabled by the commission at its April 7 meeting. The PZC will also consider a 42-lot subdivision application from Blanchard & Rossetto Construction Inc. of Manchester. The developers have proposed to build single-family houses on 16.7 acres zoned Planned Residence Development at 456 Wetherell St.

KATHARINE HEPBURN... baring her soul

Glimpses

Katharine Hepburn reportedly has written a script that producer Joseph Levine will make into a movie. "Me and Phyllis" is said to be semi-autobiographical. Designer Calvin Klein has joined Elizabeth Taylor as co-host for the April 29 AIDS benefit sponsored by the fashion, fragrance and cosmetics industries in New York. "I am committed to assist in finding a solution to this devastating epidemic," Klein said. A made-for-television movie starring Jaclyn Smith and Angela Lansbury will not be filmed in Italy as planned because of the threat of terrorism. "Rage of Angels: The Story Continues" will instead be shot in upstate New York.

Still fighting crime

Adam West has taken off the Batman costume but he's still fighting crime in a comedic fashion in the sitcom "The Last Precinct." The show is in the same vein as the "Police Academy" movies with West's character, Capt. Rob Wright, commanding a crew of contemporary Keystone Kops. West describes the show as "sort of an upside-down 'Hill Street Blues'" and says his character is sometimes "smaller than life. Captain Wright is not exactly a nut case but he's at the very edge of burn-out. He's a manic-depressive. I'm doing my best to make him as much fun as Batman." West says the show has some violence but it's of the funny, victim-less sort. "I'd rather deliver laughs than bullets," he says. "This is broad comedy with some good slapstick. There's only one major problem. We're on opposite 'Dallas'."

Audience of stars

Richard Thomas, John Rubinstein, Lisa Eichorn and Carol Shelley starred in Shaw's "Arms and the Man," but the audience for the reopening production at the Pasadena, Calif., Playhouse was as star-studded as the cast. Among those at Saturday night's sellout were Robert Culp, John Lithgow, Carroll O'Connor, Stacy Keach, Frank Langella, Helen Slater, Lynn Redgrave, Maude Adams, Tina Louise and Zsa Zsa Gabor. The 70-year-old playhouse, which had been closed since 1970 in a tax dispute, reopened after developer David Houk arranged $4.3 million in financing and a plan that ultimately will include shops and restaurants in the ornate, Spanish-style complex in this Los Angeles suburb.

Going for the gold

Greg Louganis successfully defended his national platform diving championship and then gave the gold medal to his guest, young AIDS victim Ryan Wright. Louganis decided to compete Sunday at the U.S. Diving Indoor Championships in Indianapolis despite pain from the removal of warts last week from his hands and feet, because Ryan accepted his offer to attend. "My injuries are superficial and they'll heal," said Louganis, who won two gold medals at the 1984 Olympics. "I wish that that were the case with Ryan." Ryan, a 14-year-old resident of nearby Kokomo, is a hemophiliac and contracted acquired immunodeficiency syndrome from a blood transfusion. His illness was diagnosed in December 1984, and authorities kept him from attending school for all but one day this year until April 10, when a judge ruled there was no evidence to keep him out of classes.

No Jackson stamp

Britain has rejected a plan by the Caribbean colony of British Virgin Islands to issue a postage stamp featuring singer Michael Jackson. It was disapproved because the design did not include the royal insignia of Queen Elizabeth II, according to correspondence presented to the colony's legislative council last week by Chief Minister Cyril Romney. "As the queen of each dependent territory it is Her Majesty's requirement that her portrait on the royal cypher should appear on all stamps and she takes a close personal interest in stamp proposals for the dependent territories and had recently confirmed that she would like to have the standards strictly adhered to," said a letter from Baroness Young, a minister of state in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in London.

March for children

Actor Danny DeVito and his wife, actress Rhea Perlman, led more than 1,000 people, many pushing toddlers in strollers, in a Los Angeles march in support of public funding for child care. The one-mile walk Sunday through the Westwood area near UCLA was sponsored by the California Children's Council, a nonprofit group whose aim is to educate the public in child-care services. DeVito, star of "Romancing the Stone" and "Jewel of the Nile," and Perlman, who appears in NBC-TV's "Cheers," have two young daughters. The march made hand-prints with paint on a roll of paper that is to be delivered by DeVito and Perlman to California Gov. George Deukmejian on Thursday as part of an appeal.

Gorbachev backs an end to alliances

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said today he would support the simultaneous abolition of the Warsaw Pact and NATO military alliances.

In a speech to several hundred East German factory workers, Gorbachev also repeated his readiness to meet with President Reagan so long as the appropriate international atmosphere is created, and real disarmament steps are possible.

"We stress our readiness for a simultaneous dismantling of the Warsaw Pact and NATO, or for a start, their military organizations," the Soviet Communist Party general secretary said.

Gorbachev visited the factory this morning before attending the closing session of the East German Communist Party Congress. His comments were carried on state-run East German television during the afternoon.

According to the television report, Gorbachev did not elaborate on his statement about the dissolution of the Warsaw Pact, a mutual defense agreement between the Soviet Union and its Eastern European allies, and the U.S.-led North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Gorbachev today also repeated his proposal made in a speech at the party congress Friday that conventional forces be cut back across the European continent.

The Soviet leader Sunday accused the United States of poisoning superpower relations, but said that under the right circumstances he still is willing to meet Reagan as

British citizens leave Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Most of the British residents of Moslem west Beirut, left Lebanon by sea today in the wake of the executions of two kidnapped Britons by pro-Libyan gunmen, authorities said.

A British teacher who asked that his name be withheld said, "We did not mind the shelling and car bombs... but kidnapping is more dangerous."

"It means killing us twice. Lebanon is finished for us and probably the whole Middle East will be the same in the near future," the teacher said.

A British woman said, "I would be foolish to return to Lebanon where my friends were murdered."

The exodus Sunday from the Moslem sector coincided with the return to the United States of the body of American Peter Kilburn, a pro-Libyan group claimed responsibility for the killings, saying they were carried out to avenge the attack and Britain's decision to allow British-based U.S. bombers to participate in the air raids.

"I don't want to leave, but whenever I look to the pictures of the three executed men, I think it is foolish to stay," said a 52-year-old American woman who has worked in Lebanon for five years.

Alliance concerns Britain

LUXEMBOURG (UPI) — British Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe told Western European ministers today that Libyan-supported terrorism must not be allowed to drive a wedge between the United States and the European allies.

"Khadafy should not succeed in what the Soviets so far failed to achieve — splitting Atlantic solidarity," Howe told the European Community ministers who were meeting to discuss an allied response to Libyan-sponsored terrorism.

Except for Britain, the Western European allies were critical of the U.S. attack on Libya Tuesday, saying it would only lead to more violence and leave Europe vulnerable to Libyan reprisals.

The U.S. attack on Libya was triggered by the bombing of a West Berlin nightclub that killed a U.S. soldier and a Turkish woman. The United States said it had proof of Libyan involvement in the Berlin bombing.

"Whether we like it or not, Europe is likely to sit in the line of international terrorism for some time," Howe told the ministers, according to a conference official.

"It is no good for Europeans to sit wringing their hands about what the United States has done or might do."

West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher said West Germany was the primary target of terrorism in Europe because of the more than 300,000 U.S. soldiers stationed there.

The meeting of Western Europe's foreign ministers was the third in the past week on terrorism and Britain was said to be pressuring the alliance to approve a sweeping plan to combat terrorism in Europe.

Prosecution to play tapes

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Prosecutors are expected to play their trump card this week when they resume for Ralph Richard, accused of the 1984 rape of his 4-month-old daughter.

Six hours of taped conversations between Richard and police, which prosecutor Charles Nystedt has called "the heart" of the state's case, are expected to be played this week for the 18-member Superior Court jury.

Richard, 34, is standing trial on charges he raped his infant daughter, Jerri Ann, and then conspired with his wife, Donna, also 34, to conceal the infant's death by reporting the child kidnapped on Nov. 11, 1984. His wife will be tried later this year for allegedly killing the baby, whose battered body was found Nov. 15, 1984, in an alley less than a block from their former Pawtucket apartment.

Defense attorney John O'Connor was to resume his cross-examination of Pawtucket Det. Robert Brown today as the case moved into its fourth week of testimony.

Apertame, seizures linked

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Scientists studying a popular artificial sweetener said today they have identified 82 people who say they suffered epileptic-like seizures after consuming the substance.

The subjects suffered the seizures after ingesting foods or beverages containing apertame, which is marketed as NutraSweet, said Dr. Richard J. Wurtman of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The subjects were examined after the seizures are found to have no brain abnormalities that would explain the attacks, said Wurtman, who said the findings were turned over to the Food and Drug Administration.

The typical patient was a young woman between ages 20 and 40 with no prior history of neurologic problems, he said.

Wurtman accused the G.D. Searle Division of Monsanto Chemical Co., which makes NutraSweet, of failing to refer complaints about the seizures to the FDA.

Ferry sinks; toll rises

DHAKA, Bangladesh — A ferry carrying 1,200 passengers sank in a sudden, fierce hailstorm and authorities said today they feared some 300 people were killed.

Rescuers recovered some 175 bodies from the riverbank that sank some 30 miles south of Dhaka Sunday and said there was at least 70 more bodies trapped in the vessel's cabins.

Authorities said the death toll could go as high as 300.

The hailstorm hit suddenly, sinking the M.V. Ekhas Star, shortly after it departed from the river port of Munshiganj, about 30 miles south of Dhaka.

Some passengers were thrown overboard when the ship was hit by surging waves and less than 200 managed to swim to shore, witnesses said.

Marines trained Klansmen

RALEIGH, N.C. — U.S. Marines who joined a Ku Klux Klan splinter group trained members in the use of weapons and supplies in a military exercise, two former members of the group said in sworn statements.

The statements of the unidentified former White Patriot Party members were filed in 1984 with Klanwatch, an arm of the Southern Poverty Law Project of Birmingham, Ala., and published Sunday's News and Observer of Raleigh.

The former White Patriots said the Marines from Camp Lejeune trained party members in combat techniques, including the use of weapons, and supplied the group with fatigues, pistol belts and canteens.

The former Klansmen said the Marines did not supply any weapons and state Bureau of Investigation officials said they have not found evidence of the paramilitary, white supremacist group obtained weapons from military bases.

A Fayetteville police special operations officer told United Press International that the Marines and Fort Bragg soldiers have been identified at White Patriot Party rallies.

Marcos says Aquino will fail

MANILA, Philippines — Ousted President Ferdinand E. Marcos predicted in a videotaped interview released in Manila today that Corazon Aquino's government will fail within a month, possibly to communist rebels.

Marcos claimed in the interview that Moslem forces loyal to one of his former political leaders, Ali Dimaporo, outnumber government troops 10:1 on the large island of Mindanao, and that 34 percent of the nation's soldiers have left their posts since he left the country Feb. 25.

Marcos' statements, made during the weekend before a group of U.S.-based Filipino supporters at his home in Honolulu, came as pro-Marcos demonstrators and communist insurgents both increased pressure on Aquino's government.

Horowitz plays in Moscow

MOSCOW — Students surged through a phalanx of police and one fan clambered up the fire escape outside a concert hall to hear pianist Vladimir Horowitz give his first formal concert on a Soviet stage since 1936.

Muscovites waxed lyrical about the playing of the 81-year-old Horowitz, who drew a stormy, eight-minute standing ovation after his Sunday recital in the Grand Hall of the Tchaikovsky Conservatory, a stage on which the greatest Soviet artists have performed.

"I could just go and kill myself happily after hearing this," enthused Vladimir Feltsman, a young pianist who has been trying for years to emigrate from the Soviet Union to the West, as Horowitz himself did in 1925.

No injuries in Peru blast

LIMA, Peru — Presumed left-wing rebels exploded a car bomb today that damaged a wall protecting the residence of U.S. Ambassador David Jordan but caused no injuries, police said.

Neither of Peru's two principal left-wing rebel groups immediately took responsibility for the blast.

At least two people abandoned a red sedan next to the colonial residence in central Lima minutes before two explosions destroyed the vehicle at 5:10 a.m., police said.

NASA awaits final forensic work

By William Hrdwood United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — With the search for shuttle cabin wreckage finally completed, pathologists are in the final stages of identifying and documenting remains of the seven Challenger astronauts, NASA says.

"Final forensic work and future planning in accordance with family desires is expected to be completed within the next several days and will be announced when appropriate," the space agency said Saturday.

The statement, released six weeks to the day after the first crew cabin wreckage was hauled to the surface on March 8, said the cabin salvage operation was complete and confirmed remains of all seven shuttle flyers had been recovered.

"I'll talk to NASA... and they said that they've identified all seven of the astronauts," said Marvin Resnik of Akron, Ohio, father of astronaut Judith Resnik. He made the comments in New York.

While identifiable remains of all seven astronauts have been found, Resnik said some body parts may elude positive identification.

He said the remains will be flown from the Kennedy Space Center to an Air Force facility in Dover, Del., around April 29 or April 30 for cremation or other treatment before they are returned to the families. NASA would not confirm those plans.

"There are no bodies mind you, there are just bits and pieces," Resnik said. "I don't know how I can say that nicely. Even though the cabin was partially intact, the crew was not. They really were blown apart."

Killed in the Jan. 28 disaster were commander Francis "Dick" Scobee, copilot Michael Smith, Resnik, Ellison

Onizuka, Ronald McNair, satellite engineer Gregory B. Jarvis and New Hampshire schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe, the first "ordinary citizen" to ride a space shuttle.

Shuttle salvage work continued off the coast of Florida today with ships and submarines pressing the search for wreckage from Challenger's right-side solid-fuel rocket booster, the one that failed and led to the ship's destruction.

On shore, rocket engineers are working to disassemble the shuttle solid-fuel booster to look for anything unusual that might shed insights into whether assembly problems played a role in the Challenger disaster.

Two boosters that had been slated for use in May with the shuttle Atlantis are the target of the investigation.

The work began Saturday and it is expected to last about two weeks. It is only the second time shuttle boosters have been "destacked."

Documents indicate engineers putting together Atlantis's left-side rocket had problems similar to those experienced when Challenger's faulty right-hand booster was assembled.

The main body of wreckage from Challenger's crew cabin was tentatively identified on March 7 and the next day. Navy salvage divers hauled up the first debris and, possibly, human remains from "site 67." On March 9, NASA announced the wreckage had been positively identified and that crew remains were present.

Sources said the USS Preserver, a Navy salvage vessel, returned to port on at least three occasions bearing astronaut remains. The commercial salvage vessel G.W. Pierce made the last such trip Tuesday when remains of Jarvis were brought to shore, sources said.

NASA said final wreckage from the cabin crash site was recovered Friday.

House considers bill despite a veto threat

By Jim Drinkard The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House this week takes up a $1.7 billion catch-all spending bill that would increase the federal deficit while exploring ways to move it closer to what the White House wants.

Dole said last week after meetings with administration budget chief James C. Miller III and Senate leaders that White House officials are privately saying "they like to be helpful." But he declined to say whether flexibility might be forthcoming in the controversial areas of taxes or military spending.

More meetings are planned this week. The spending bill before the House would pump an additional $1.7 billion this year into agriculture, the Coast Guard, the Veterans Administration, Irish aid, the Internal Revenue Service and other programs. In some cases, the money restores cuts made under the new Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law.

It also provides for several money transfers, the largest being a $702 million shift from the defense department to a program to assist the security of U.S. embassies and other diplomatic installations abroad. The money is the first installment in a five-year, $4.4 billion effort aimed at making it more difficult for terrorists to attack U.S. personnel.

Ruby Conner and her husband, Eddie, pick up the pieces of what was once their home and belongings Sunday after a killer tornado cut a two-mile swath through the southeast section of Sweetwater, Texas, early Saturday. An 87-year-old man was killed and about 100 people injured with 1,500 residents left homeless in the west Texas town.

SWEETWATER, Texas — National Guard troops patrolled today against looters after tornadoes carved a two-mile-long, half-mile-wide swath through this west Texas town, killing one person, injuring about 100 others and leaving 1,500 people homeless.

Police Chief Jim Kelley said cleanup efforts were progressing. "We're getting a lot of volunteer types," he said. "They're swooping in there and they're helping."

Gov. Mark White visited the city Sunday and talked with residents of the Sun Village Housing Project, a federally subsidized development for the elderly that was hit hard. The storm's only fatality was an 87-year-old man who lived there.

One resident, Gladys Lane, stood looking through what used to be the side wall of her house as White spoke.

"It was just like I was in a vacuum," said Ms. Lane. "I was down on my knees begging the Lord to take care of me. I didn't care about the house."

"The only thing I can say is tough times never last, but tough people do, and we've got a lot of tough people around here," said White.

Nineteen people remained hospitalized Sunday, including a woman who was transferred to a Dallas hospital in critical condition, officials said. Seventy people were treated and released Saturday.

Candidates await end to 'Duel of Dynasties'

BOSTON (UPI) — The intense media spotlight on the 8th Congressional District "Duel of the Dynasties" between U.S. Sen. Edward Brooke and U.S. Rep. Robert J. Kennedy Jr. has more than a dozen hopefuls patiently waiting their turn at some attention.

The 32-year-old son of Sen. Robert Kennedy and the 40-year-old grandson of President Franklin Roosevelt have dominated a celebrity blitz unusual for a district where politics is serious business.

There already has driven from the field state Rep. Thomas Vallety of Boston, who decided his pitch as the "other guy" was falling on deaf ears. Other candidates are left with lots of time to build grassroots organizations and wait until attention finally shifts to the grassroots.

"The truth is that as long as the field of candidates remains as large as it is — with so many people vying to ride — then the debate, and the press coverage, will be simplistic and unedifying," Vallety said.

A second candidate who received virtually no coverage state Rep. William Galvin of Boston, dropped out of the race.

The race is for the seat now held by House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, the veteran Democrat who is retiring after more than 30 years.

"I don't plan to run naked down the street or engage in the forms of hucksterism some people contemplate," quipped state Rep. Thomas Gallagher, who called his supporters "the people who are not the people in people magazine."

"It's all a double-edged sword," said Kennedy. "Sometimes it's frustrating. But you've got to learn to take the good with the bad and make the most of the opportunities that are provided."

"I don't think you can get into faulting the size of the field for the lack of debate on the issues," said Kennedy. "The press has a particular job to do and many candidates are issue-oriented."

stone returned in reminding voters of his lineage — he announced his candidacy at a program in Chicago headed by his first wife's office.

Roosevelt, who trails Kennedy and Bachrach in early polls, unveiled the strategy he has used repeatedly since — Kennedy bashing.

When asked in question by Kennedy, Kennedy starts out as the front runner," Roosevelt said. "I start out as the person who can challenge him on substance."

Kennedy responded in kind a day later.

"There happens to be a Jefferson, a Johnson, a Kennedy and a Roosevelt in this race," he said, referring to Republican Mildred Jefferson and misidentifying Democrat Carla Johnston.

"Four famous names," and the only one who really seems to be running on that is one of those four names, and it isn't me," said Kennedy.

While Kennedy and Roosevelt trade barbs, Bachrach said he is busy at the grassroots.

"I understand Kennedy bashing gets you headlines," he said. "My sense is the bigger names are Barack and Robert in New York. But this race will be won or lost in Union Square in Somerville and Vermont Square and Oak Square in Brighton."

Vallety blamed the size of the field — not the focus on Kennedy and Roosevelt — for the inability to focus on issues.

"Faced with a field of this size, the press has two choices: it can be unfair and boring or it can be unfair and boring in name, money or political base," he said. "Covering this race for journalists must be as frustrating as running in it for a politician."

"I don't think you can get into faulting the size of the field for the lack of debate on the issues," said Kennedy. "The press has a particular job to do and many candidates are issue-oriented."

Kissinger lauds Reagan years

By Christopher Cornell The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Henry Kissinger says "a strange phenomenon" occurs when you meet and listen to Ronald Reagan.

"You ask yourself, 'How did it ever occur to anybody that he should be governed by a man who has dominated California for eight years, and now dominates the American political process for 16 years, as he has cannot be a trivial figure,' the former secretary of state said.

"He has a kind of instinct that I cannot explain," Kissinger said, adding that it is "perfectly possible" history will judge Reagan as "a most significant president."

It is also possible that he will be seen as somebody who spent a lot of capital maintaining popularity for eight years," said Kissinger, who served during the Nixon and Ford administrations.

"Academics make a mistake to underestimate a man... who has moved with the times, who has moved with the times, who has moved with the times," Kissinger said at a Library of Congress symposium last week.

"On the other hand, you have to say also that a man who dominated California for eight years, and now dominates the American political process for 16 years, as he has cannot be a trivial figure," the former secretary of state said.

Kissinger said that either the administration's analysis of the situation in Nicaragua is wrong or the solution is wrong. It cannot be that it is such a vital interest and it can be solved with $100 million.

The argument of Democratic opponents that "you ought to use diplomacy and not power is also total nonsense. What does it mean, diplomacy and not power? If they said, 'It's not a vital interest,' or 'In using force you do so much other damage to other interests that it's even more important,' then we could join a sensible debate."

"As it is now, both sides are stating platitudes," he said.

Kissinger expressed frustration at the failure of scholars to offer new insights on arms control.

How to pick the number one newspaper in a multiple paper town.

In a town like Manchester, you might as well start with readership. In a most recent survey conducted by First Market Research of Boston, the Manchester Herald holds the overall local readership lead. According to the study, the Manchester Herald is the leader for local news, local happenings and local sports, with three quarters of the readers saying the coverage is the most extensive.

Next, the number one newspaper should provide readers with a depth of information needed to make valued and reasonable decisions regarding key local issues that may impact on their lives today, or in the future. Well that same study shows that the Manchester Herald is rated quite highly in terms of space devoted to selected issues in its Opinion pages. Nearly eight in ten readers find that the space devoted to view-

Caring about its readers should also be a priority with the number one newspaper. The Manchester Herald feels it is their responsibility to listen to what residents in Manchester have to say. They want to hear about readers views on the news — what they think is important, what should go into the paper and what shouldn't. They're especially interested in hearing any comments you may have about the service you get from the Herald. They guarantee prompt delivery and courteous, efficient service on all billing matters. If you're not satisfied, they want to know about it.

If you're still trying to figure out which is the number one newspaper in Manchester, the facts are obvious. Your choice will be the same paper more and more readers in Manchester choose every day. The Manchester Herald — your voice in Manchester.

No conflict of interest

The Ethics Commission quite properly has decided there is no conflict of interest involved in the fact that Wallace Irish Jr., who is serving on the town Charter Revision Commission, is head of the firm that sells insurance to the Eighth Utilities District. It was also right in its decision that his past expressions of support for a group that opposes a change being considered by the charter commission do not constitute a conflict.

The charter commission is considering revisions in the town charter that would work against the best interest of the district as district leaders see that interest. The revisions would make it easier for the electorate at large to force the district into consolidation with the town, eliminating the district's independent control over fire protection and sewer service in northern Manchester.

Irish's insurance agency sold insurance to the district only after bidding competitively for the contract. That alone should exempt him from being considered in conflict of interest for commercial reasons.

And as the commission decided, his support of STEAL, an organization of Eighth District backers who vigorously oppose any change in the charter's consolidation provision and any move to consolidate the two entities, is nothing but an example of the exercise of First Amendment rights.

All members of the Charter Revision Commission approach their task with some feelings and predispositions about what is in the best interest of the community. They form those ideas from their formal and informal affiliations with political parties and with individuals and organizations that have causes.

The chief difference between Irish and other commission members in this respect is that his views on consolidation have been more pronounced and that he has expressed them openly. That does not necessarily mean his view would not change if the weight of evidence produced during deliberations of the Charter Revision Commission proved strong enough.

To say that Irish should not be allowed to serve because he has been closely associated with advocacy of continued district separation is no more logical than to say that any Democrat should not serve because the Democratic Party has become associated with the move to force consolidation. If that were the rule, the charter commission could not have been appointed in the first place.

Helms asks Foggy Bottom to reveal all

WASHINGTON — The State Department is reeling under a barrage of pointed questions from Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. It will take a task force to answer all the senator's inquiries, including followups. Helms has demanded answers — in writing — to more than 120 complaints, rumors and policy questions. The hapless recipient of the senator's interrogatory, Ronald Spiers, under secretary of state for management, must also defend himself personally against a charge that he allowed "an open saloon" to operate at the U.S. Embassy in Islamabad while he was ambassador to Pakistan.

Two things make the situation particularly interesting: Helms is a senior member of the Foreign Relations Committee, and the phrasing of many of the questions suggests that he already has a pretty good idea what the answers will be or had better be. In fact, some of the questions are almost as impossible to answer without incrimination as the classic: "Have you stopped beating your wife?"

THE HELMS QUIZ hasn't been released, but a copy was slipped to us. Here are some of the potentially embarrassing questions the senator wants Spiers to answer:

• "During your tenure as ambassador to Pakistan, did the American club serve alcoholic beverages?"

• In light of the Islamic fundamentalist objection to the consumption of alcoholic beverages, did you permit the U.S. Embassy to operate an open saloon and allow visiting airline crews, non-official visitors and Pakistani nationals to patronize the club? If so, why?

• Noting that $24 million has been requested for new furniture, Helms asked: "Why, in light of the urgent, desperate need for improved security against terrorist threats, did the department consider new furniture a higher priority than projects to add to physical and electronic security?" Helms also wants to know how much money from the emergency supplemental package for embassy security will be spent on new furniture for embassies the department plans to build, and asks: "Please explain what relationship there is between new office furniture for the Department of State and protection against terrorism."

• Helms expressed misgivings at proposed staff increases at certain embassies: "Given the threat of terrorism perceived by the department, please provide justification for increasing rather than decreasing the size of these missions. This justification should include a country-by-country threat assessment and the justification for each new position envisioned in the proposal."

• "Please provide me with a complete list, by total income received, of all Department of State personnel who earned during calendar year 1985 more than the salary of a United States senator." Helms noted that this information is readily available on W-2 forms prepared by the department.

• Helms questioned the need for Spiers to have six assistant secretaries, and demanded to know how often they traveled first class. He accused the department of hiring wives of senior officials for the $50,000 post as director of the Family Liaison Office, and asked for a list of all employees' children who had gotten summer jobs in the department.

• Helms claimed that 80 percent of women Foreign Service officers were in consular and administrative jobs instead of political and economic positions, and asked if this might explain why so few women reach the ambassadorial level. And he wanted to know why the inspector general, required by law to report to Congress, has failed to notify the Foreign Relations Committee of a single problem in six years. "Am I correct to assume that the inspector general has not become aware of such problems, abuses or deficiencies during a full six years...?" Helms asked.

Office honors two volunteers

To the Editor:

As you know, April is National Child Abuse Prevention Month and the week of April 20 to 27 is National Volunteer Recognition Week.

We at the Parents Anonymous of Connecticut state office would like to take this opportunity to publicly acknowledge Elsie Strickland of Glastonbury and Ginny Foster of Coventry for all their time, effort, caring and support as the volunteer sponsors of the Parents Anonymous chapter in Manchester.

Elsie and Ginny provide time, support, suggestions, advice and friendship to the parents in the chapter as they work out their problems with child abuse and develop healthy nurturing relationships with their children, and develop their own self-esteem. It is a hard job and our volunteers give tirelessly of themselves. We are very grateful and proud to have Elsie and Ginny as members of the P.A. Resources Association.

Meadows care was excellent

To the Editor:

There exists in today's society an erroneous belief, based on ignorance, that all elderly patients who enter a convalescent home for care go there to simply passively wait for death. The fact that they receive the excellent physical care and psychological support necessary for their final years is overlooked.

In search of allies

Have you ever stood in a moment of time. And realized that it had past once before. History seems to ride a circular track. For wasn't it France who left Hitler at the door?

Do you feel belittled by superpower propaganda? Selling arms openly, while hunting for peaceful relations. And today the USSR condemned as for decadent actions. But didn't they fortify Hitler's first conquests?

Can you see the signs of a nightmarish moment. When all evil is personified by one man. Has the world forgotten Chamberlain's appeasement. When Czechoslovakia stood alone against the satanic man?

Have you ever read of that moment not long past. And seen the total destruction one man can bring? Why would France and Europe turn it's scarred back. When this new man carries a fanatical nuclear sting!

We would like to share our experiences with the care of our husband and father, Emil W. Bronke, who was a resident of the East Building, C Wing, Meadows Manor, Manchester, from September 1982 until his death, April 6, 1986.

We feel the philosophy of care at Meadows Manor has exceeded the highest goals in the standards of nursing care. Our loved one was treated and cared for with skill, dignity and respect by all members of the staff. There existed a caring, informative and supportive attitude toward our family. We observed many nursing interventions which contributed to our husband's and father's comfort and well-being.

The staff of Meadows Manor can take pride in being associated with an institution which provides a necessary service with professionalism, compassion, skill, and the most important human ingredient of all — love.

relations companies to influence American opinion, promoting themselves and denouncing the Sandinistas.

"You are the ones paying for this," says Chamorro. "All these contra leaders are paid by the United States to lobby Congress with your own money."

"They are told to say the money they are spending in a restaurant with a journalist or a congressman comes from a different pocket, from a private enterprise pocket, even Venezuela. 'CIA money' All of it!"

CHAMORRO, A ONE-TIME public relations professional, sees it as a marketing campaign by the administration.

"They've got a product, the contras," he says. "They are selling it to the consumers, to the voters, to Congress, to the American people. So they are doing a good marketing job, but for a bad product."

The campaign has an especially good sponsor, but Chamorro questions the president's willingness to publicly declare himself a contra.

The contras: U.S. product gone bad

Edgar Chamorro doesn't think much of the contras. They haven't been effective so far in shaking the Sandinistas' control of Nicaragua and he doesn't think that's likely to change, even given more time and more American money.

Their numbers are greatly exaggerated. Instead of 23,000, the figure being put out in Washington, Chamorro estimates there are, at most, 6,000 effective fighters.

He especially doesn't like their methods, a legacy of early training under Argentine officers who taught the techniques of "death squads" and Argentina's own "dirty war."

Chamorro's knowledge of the contras is firsthand. He is a former leader, a member of the seven-member political directorate until he walked out in disgust in late 1984. He has been lobbying since for a change in what he sees as disastrously counterproductive American policy.

Still, the past remains very much with him. "When I was a contra...," peppers his conversation. He still tends to refer to the contra organization as "we" and to operations in the present tense.

THE CONTRAS' ROOT PROBLEM, Chamorro says, is that they are artificial, a tool created by the United States and completely dependent upon the United States.

Their leaders are paid by the United States, travel with U.S. documents, use the facilities of the State Department, speak on behalf of U.S. policy and are, in effect, ambassadors of the United States.

They also function as a lobby, hiring public

Yale president announces fact-finding mission to Africa

Combined Wire Services

NEW HAVEN — After weeks of divisive anti-apartheid protests on campus, Yale President A. Bartlett Giamatti has announced the Yale Corporation will organize a fact-finding trip to South Africa. The trip, to take place in late spring or early summer, will give the corporation — Yale's governing body — a chance "to assess firsthand the compliance of... companies with Yale's ethical investment policy," Giamatti said in a prepared statement released Sunday night.

The group will inspect operations of some companies that the university holds stock in, Giamatti said.

Panel member dissents on coroner report

By Lyda Phillips
United Press International

HARTFORD — One member of a private panel of medical and legal professionals has filed a dissenting report on the state medical examiner's office.

Dr. Eleanor McQuillen, chief medical examiner for the state of Vermont, refused to sign the panel's final report because she felt additional information could have been added to the group's findings, said Wanda Rickerby, a spokeswoman for the state Department of Health Services.

The report McQuillen filed Saturday was exactly the same as the majority report except it stated in brackets that the final report "does not express opinions regarding the specific cases heard during public session."

"It is my understanding that a subcommittee of the commission has been delegated to this task," McQuillen's dissenting statement said.

The panel had heard from family members of various deceased persons who had waited months for autopsy results.

The panel, appointed last month by the state Commission on Medical Investigations, made public its findings Friday in its final report on the coroner's office and allegations surrounding the former chief medical examiner.

The panel of four out-of-state medical examiners and a retired Connecticut chief justice, called the state medical examiner's office "woefully inadequate," with morale problems and a backlog of incomplete autopsy reports.

The panel reaffirmed its preliminary findings that former Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Catherine A. Galvin "was a competent forensic pathologist who, however, has not demonstrated comparable administrative skills."

Galvin was ousted from her position March 9 when the commission received a ruling from the state attorney general's office that her 5-year term had expired.

"The panel affirms the preliminary conclusions concerning the woefully inadequate and difficult to maintain facilities provided for the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner with consequent serious inefficiency, morale problems and the existence of a considerable backlog of incomplete autopsy reports," the panel stated in its three-page report.

Galvin had come under fire because of the backlog of cases and allegations her dogs lapped blood and licked corpses while in autopsy rooms.

In response to allegations Galvin allowed dogs in examination rooms while she performed autopsies, the panel stated, "At the worst, it appears that on two occasions, a dog did approach the table and sniff the hand of a body."

The panel further stated it was "satisfied that the presence of dogs per se did not compromise the integrity of delegal investigations."

Acting Chief Medical Examiner Dr. H. Wayne Carver II told the commission Thursday his staff had begun to clear some of the backlog of incomplete autopsy reports.

Carver said that of 465 cases reported to be pending 2 1/2 months or longer as of March 13, 31 percent have been completed. The total number of pending autopsy cases as of Thursday was 554, he said.

LITTELL SAID SUNDAY night's announcement resulted from a series of weekend meetings and telephone calls between Giamatti and corporation members.

Senior Matthew Countryman, a member of the Yale Divestment Campaign, said his group would like to participate in the trip.

"It looks like a really solid trip — a trip which would involve all segments of the Yale community — I think we would support it as a part of a movement for total divestment," Countryman said.

"At the same time, it will not stop our movements here toward total divestment," he said.

The university also reversed its stand on shanties built to protest apartheid in South Africa and granted students permission to rebuild the structures.

Students began rebuilding the shanties, dubbed "Winnie Mandela Village," Saturday afternoon in the Hewitt Quadrangle between Woodbridge Hall and the Beinecke Museum, the site of the original shantytown.

"It's a small step in the right direction," said Kim Phillips, a Yale graduate student who met with the ad hoc committee and who was among those arrested Wednesday.

"It's interesting that they are trying to make it look as if they are giving us permission," Phillips said.

In all, 166 students have been arrested since Monday during demonstrations against Yale's South African investments. Of those, 76 were arrested Monday for refusing to move when university employees arrived to tear down a shantytown erected in front of the Yale administration building.

On Wednesday, at least 60 students were suspended for blocking access to a university building — the first such suspensions since 1969. The suspensions were lifted later in the day.

More than 160 Yale College faculty members on Thursday condemned Yale's "use of force and mass arrests" in response to the anti-apartheid protests.

Seconds and 170 pounds of explosives were needed to bring down the former Connecticut National Bank building on Main Street in Bridgeport Sunday. A $75 million office complex will be built on the site of the 10-story building.

State bank implodes its 10-story building

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Exactly as planned and with about 1,000 cheering onlookers, a demolition crew used explosives to collapse a 10-story downtown building being cleared to make way for a new office complex. The "implosion," which was set off at about 6:30 a.m. Sunday with the push of a button by Mayor Thomas Bucchi, took only a matter of seconds to leave the 76-year-old Connecticut National Bank building at Main and State Streets in a heap of mortar and steel.

Cyclist killed

OXFORD (AP) — A 22-year-old Oxford man was killed by a car after he was thrown from his motorcycle after it smashed into the rear of another motorcycle, state police said. David Meisser was pronounced dead on arrival at Griffin Hospital in Derby Sunday night, shortly after the 7:45 p.m. accident on Route 67 in Oxford, according to Trooper Scott Lyke.

Deadline nears on budget action

HARTFORD (AP) — The 1986 Connecticut General Assembly, with only 13 working days to go before its mandatory adjournment date of May 7, is expected to take up the 1986-87 state budget this week. Senate Majority Leader Reginald J. Smith, R-New Hartford, says action in the Senate could come Wednesday. Two weeks ago, the Republican-controlled Appropriations Committee approved a $4.34 billion General Fund budget. That was about $70 million below what Democratic Gov. William A. O'Neill had proposed.

Heroin arrest called biggest in state history

HARTFORD (UPI) — Three foreign nationals were scheduled for arraignment today after they were arrested in what federal officials called the largest heroin seizure in state history. The men arrested, Frank Davies, William Sasu, and Rudolph Amadei, were identified as Ghanaian nationals who live in Brooklyn, N.Y., said Jerome Mattioli, an agent for the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration. A 5-pound bag of heroin with an estimated street value of $5 million to $7 million was seized from the men by state and federal authorities Friday night after they observed a drug transaction in the parking lot of a Hartford restaurant, Mattioli said.

Connecticut In Brief

Two weekend fires suspicious Fires that broke out about an hour apart in two Northwest Connecticut towns may have been set, authorities say. A commercial building in Canaan suffered heavy damage in a fire reported around 3 a.m. Saturday, authorities said. The second fire destroyed a Salisbury house recently purchased by writer Anne Aronson and her husband, author Richard Grossman, authorities said. The house was vacant and no injuries were reported in either fire, authorities said. Firefighters from five Connecticut towns and three Massachusetts towns battled the Canaan fire for five hours. The 100-year-old building, bought and remodeled a year ago by Robert Drucker of Great Barrington, Mass., housed Bob's Clothing and Shoes stores and a Masonic Lodge meeting room. An employee of a nearby bakery called in the alarm. A passing motorist reported the Salisbury house fire about 4 a.m. Salisbury firefighters were recalled from Canaan and aided by firefighters from Sharon, Falls Village and Norfolk. One ticket worth $1.7 million HARTFORD — State lottery officials said one first-prize ticket worth $1.7 million was sold in Friday night's Lotto contest. Crew reunites to open Nautilus

GROTON — Crew members from the world's first nuclear powered submarine have been reunited for opening ceremonies at a newly renovated $8 million museum which also celebrated the submarine's designation as a national landmark. The crew members returned to the home port of their historic submarine as inaugural events were held during the past week to commemorate today's public opening of the Nautilus Memorial and Submarine Force Library and Museum. The Nautilus, which used its nuclear power source to set numerous submarine performance records including distance traveled and time underwater, was transferred into a museum after being returned to Groton last summer. Officials led by Gov. William A. O'Neill and the former crew members took part in ceremonies Sunday which also celebrated the submarine's designation as a national landmark. In addition to the submarine, the new facilities include a new 14,000-square foot Navy submarine library which is almost five times bigger than the former facility. The library contains a variety of artifacts, historical information and memorabilia on the development of the submarine.

Republican primary jeopardized by law

In addition to the legal hurdle, a primary also may be thwarted if the necessary number of signatures are not certified by Wildlife. As of noon today, five signatures had been invalidated because the signers were not legally registered Republicans.

That means the margin of extra signatures is down to four.

The certification procedures were expected to be completed this afternoon.

Most of the challenge delegates are supporters of Labriola, as compared to the endorsed slate, which contains nine Bozotto backers, four for Labriola and three for state Rep. Julie Belaga.

By sending the challenge slate to the convention, Labriola supporters hope their candidate will have a better chance at winning the GOP nomination. However, no

Thousands flock to parade

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — The state's 350th anniversary parade, billed as the largest in Connecticut history, stepped off with a cannon salute at 11 a.m. and marched off to the state tune "Yankee Doodle Dandy" under sparkling blue skies.

A crowd three-and-four-deep lined the 2 1/2-mile parade route down Chapel Street and around New Haven's historic Green to the corner of Church and Elm Streets.

"It's even better than we prayed for, honestly," said the state's Firsts, Lady Nikki O'Neill, wife of Gov. William A. O'Neill, who watched the parade with other dignitaries from a special reviewing stand.

Angela Dermer and Lucille Moxley, secretaries in the New Haven mayor's office, were able to lean out their office window and catch the parade go-by on Church Street.

"It's an event, it's wonderful," Dermer said. "We're getting very excited."

"Absolutely beautiful, along with the beautiful day," said Moxley. "It's so colorful and everybody looks so happy."

Masella's favorite group was the prize-winning cheerleading troupe from St. Aedan's parochial school.

Home ice edge belongs to Hartford

By Bob Pappell Herald Sports Writer

MONTREAL — Look at it this way:

The Adams Division playoff finals between the Whalers and Canadiens is now a best-of-five series and three games will be played in Hartford.

Unless, of course, one team wins the next three straight to end the series. Which is a longshot as long as the defensemen, checkers and goalies of two evenly matched hockey clubs continue to fill their roles and plug the holes like in Games One and Two in Montreal.

The Canadiens captured Game Two, 3-1, Saturday night at the Faneuil Forum before 17,657 fans even up the showdown at one game apiece. The hosts outplayed the Whalers more than the visitors did to the Habs in Thursday's 4-1 opener.

Game Three is at the Civic Center tonight at 7:35. Game Four is in Hartford on Wednesday night, and then the final three games are at alternate locations.

"It's going to be a long, tough series," said left winger and penalty killer Dave Tiptett. "You rely on your scorers, but in the playoffs it's a lot of what you call your 'other' key players, like the special teams. And both teams are very similar in their close checking game."

Game Five is in Montreal on Friday, with "if necessary" slated for Sunday at the Civic Center and next Tuesday at the Forum.

Despite their first loss of the 1986 Stanley Cup playoffs, it is no small consolation that the Whalers escaped from the once-impregnable Forum with a split.

"You gotta be satisfied with the split," said center Ray Ferraro. "We scored Hartford's lone goal and was the best Whaler on the ice Saturday." "The onus is on them to win one in the building."

The Adams finalists split four games in Hartford during the regular season.

"They had the pressure on them, with their backs against the wall," noted defenseman Joel Quenneville. "And they played like they did."

"We got the split in the first game, so then we wanted a bonus," said defenseman Dave Babych. "But we didn't get it."

One bonus that has been stressed, undressed, magnified and hyperbolized in the post-season is the all-important "first goal."

The initial tally seems to produce a thicker digit in the rafters of each player's cranium than it does on the scoreboard hanging from the rafters of the rink.

Montreal, which hadn't scored in the first period in four previous playoff games (including a three-game sweep of the Boston Bruins), broke the string on Saturday. They Canadiens strafed goaltending savior Mike Liu with a unilateral 15-2 advantage in shots on goal in the first 20 minutes. And they scored the first goal of the game.

Stagnant starts have plagued Hartford in the playoffs, and it was never more alarming.

The Whale was stale. "I'll tell you what, I don't like that boy's it's a lot of what you call your 'other' key players, like the special teams. And both teams are very similar in their close checking game."

Francis, he crossed him out, altogether.

"They're always in the way," said Bobby Orr of the Canadian shadow boxers. "And it's more of a pain than anything else."

It was especially painful for Francis at the outset of the middle stanza when Gainey chopped him with a two-hander like he was mauling a tree stump. Regard as one captain's way of reminding the other of who's boss. For the most part, Gainey — one of the most famous defensemen in NHL history — spent his time neutralizing right winger Kevin Dineen.

Stephane Richer steamed in a power play marker to make it 1-0 at 12:33, and then Carboneau attacked in the rebound of a Nilan shot with 56 left in the first.

The Whalers were the offensive aggressors in the second and third periods, outshooting the hosts by 23-15, but rookie netminder Patrick Roy replied the most threatening change.

NBA roundup

Air Jordan sets playoff mark, but Celts win

By United Press International

BOSTON — For Michael Jordan, scoring is only the means to an end, so Sunday's double-overtime loss to the Boston Celtics made his NBA playoff scoring record meaningless. "I don't care about scoring 63 points," said the Chicago guard after the 135-131 loss, which left the Bulls trailing 0-2 in the best-of-five playoff series. "I'd give them one all way for a win."

"Nobody can stop him," said Celtics coach K.C. Jones. "I was watching the game, and all I could see was this giant Jordan and everyone else is sort of in the background."

Seven different Celtics tried to contain Jordan at various times. As a result, two Celtics fouled out and three finished the game with five fouls.

"I thought he was one of the best players in the league before this game," said Boston guard Danny Ainge. "Now I think he's better than I thought he was."

Jordan, who scored 49 points in Thursday's Game 1, scored 34 points in regulation time Sunday, the final two coming on a pair of foul shots with time expired to tie the score 116-116.

He scored 5 points in the first extra period, but Ainge hit a driving layup with 12 seconds remaining to tie the score at 125-125 and force the second overtime.

Boston took a 131-127 lead in the final five-minute period on a 19-foot Ainge jumper, but Jordan hit a pair of jumpers to even the score again. With 51 seconds left, Jerry Sichting broke the tie with a 15-foot jumper, and Robert Parish's 8-foot jumper with 9 seconds remaining clinched the triumph.

Larry Bird led the Celtics with 36 points, Kevin McHale added 27, and Ainge, scoreless at halftime, finished with 24. Chicago's Orlando Woolridge backed Jordan's club scoring record with 24 points, and Charles Oakley was the only other Bull in double figures with 10.

The triumph was the Celtics' 33rd consecutive home victory and improved their home record this season to 42-1.

"The triumph was the Celtics' 33rd consecutive home victory and improved their home record this season to 42-1."

Chicago did not trail through the first three quarters, but the least changed hands 11 times in the fourth quarter. Neither team led by more than 4 points in the final 22 minutes.

Boston's larger frontline controlled the boards by a 39-44 margin. The Celtics finished with 12 blocked shots, McHale stopping 6.

Jordan, the 1984-85 Rookie of the Year who missed 64 games this year to a foot injury, played 53 of 54 minutes Sunday.

"I felt good. I wasn't tired at all," said the guard, who was pleased with his team's play.

"We were consistent all the way through. As a team we played very well, but we still have to work harder to beat the Celtics," said Jordan, who amassed the league's reigning MVP.

"He is the most exciting, most awesome player in the game," said Bird, who played a game-high 56 minutes. "I didn't think anyone was capable of doing what Michael has done against us the past two games."

Boston can sweep the series with a victory Tuesday night at Chicago.

Elsewhere around the NBA, players who were supposed to be missing from action dominated the NBA playoffs Sunday.

At Milwaukee, Darryl Dawkins, declared by the New Jersey Nets to be out for the season with a bad knee, made a surprise appearance Sunday, scoring 10 points. He played 17 minutes — his most since Feb. 4 — but couldn't rally the Nets as they fell to the Milwaukee Bucks 111-97. Milwaukee leads the Eastern Conference series 2-0.

"I am not surprised that Darryl Dawkins played," Milwaukee coach Don Nelson said. "It just goes to show you that (New Jersey coach) Dave Wohl is a dirty, sleazy, carousing guy to pull that on me."

Wohl, a former assistant under Nelson, questioned only his former boss' grasp of the English language when informed of the comments made in jest.

At Philadelphia, the 76ers, playing without Moses Malone who fractured a bone around his right eye in the regular season, rallied behind 27 points and 20 rebounds from Charles Barkley to defeat the Washington Bullets. Philadelphia evened its Eastern Conference series at 1-1 with a 102-97 triumph.

At Denver, missing players took a toll on the Nuggets, who fell to the Portland Trail Blazers 108-106.

That Western Conference opening series is tied 1-1.

Denver played without starting center Wayne Cooper, who had a sprained ankle, and sixth man Bill Hamlik, who is hospitalized with a congenital back problem.

Boston and Milwaukee can end their best-of-five series on the road Tuesday. Washington and Portland will be at home when their respective series resumes Tuesday.

Also Tuesday, Atlanta travels to Detroit, and Houston visits Sacramento with a chance to sweep their series. Wednesday, the Los Angeles Lakers visit San Antonio with a chance to sweep. Dallas will be afforded the same opportunity at Salt Lake City Wednesday.

Bucks 111, Nets 97

At Milwaukee, Terry Cummings scored 10 of his 28 points in the third quarter, and Milwaukee scored 20 of its 26 fourth-quarter points from the free throw line. Mike Gminski led the Nets with 28 points. Sidney Moncrief added 20 for Milwaukee.

Mavericks 113, Jazz 106

At Dallas, Aguirre scored the most crucial points inside the four-minute mark as Dallas built a 9-point lead. Karl Malone of Utah hit 31 points.

76ers 102, Bullets 97

At Philadelphia, Barkley scored 7 points down the stretch as the 76ers, who blew a 7-point lead in Game 1, overcame a 92-86 Washington advantage. The Bullets received 25 points from Jeff Malone, and 22 from Gus Williams series 2-0.

Among the missing who did not appear Sunday was the Jazz's scoring leader Adrian Dantley, who was hospitalized Sunday with an aching back. He is out for the series.

At Philadelphia, the 76ers, playing without Moses Malone who fractured a bone around his right eye in the regular season, rallied behind 27 points and 20 rebounds from Charles Barkley to defeat the Washington Bullets. Philadelphia evened its Eastern Conference

Michael Jordan (23) of the Bulls splits Celtic defenders Danny Ainge (left) and Bill Walton and hangs in the air to deposit two of his NBA playoff-record

63 points against Boston Sunday at Boston Garden. Despite Jordan's production, the Bulls fell to the Celtics in double overtime, 135-131.
