Battles flare in Philippines

By Jack Reed
United Press International

MANILA, Philippines — Moslem separatist guerrillas and government troops clashed several times during the weekend in the southern Philippines, killing seven rebels and five soldiers, the military said today.

The resurgence of Moslem rebel activity followed a week of heavy fighting between government forces and communist rebels in the northern Philippines that left at least 21 soldiers, 10 insurgents and two journalists dead.

Troops also battled the private army of a political warlord loyal to ousted ruler Ferdinand Marcos, who fled the South Pacific island nation Feb. 25 after a military-led revolt.

Today, Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said the armed forces were backing President Corason Aquino's call for national reconciliation but that he doubted "hard-core" elements of the communist insurgency would heed his appeals "unless it is to their benefit or advantage."

Enrile made the remarks at a security conference a day after some 10,000 Marcos supporters gathered in a seaside park in Manila to press for his return and listened to him speak from his home in exile in Hawaii in a live radio broadcast.

Marcos urged the crowd to "double and quadruple" their ranks and push ahead with a big rally on Thursday to press for his return but he appealed to them not to take up arms.

The official Philippine News Agency said seven Moslem guerrillas from the Moro National Liberation Front and five soldiers were killed in fighting last weekend in the Sulu archipelago off the strife-torn southern island of Mindanao.

The southern Philippines is home to most of the predominantly Roman Catholic nation's 3.5 million Moslems. A Moslem uprising in the 1970s in Marawi touched off a secessionist war that has left more than 60,000 people dead.

In other weekend fighting, soldiers in the southern provincial capital of Marawi on Mindanao island battled the heavily armed forces of fired provincial Gov. Ali Dimaporo, a political warlord loyal to Marcos.

Government troops fired artillery at 80 Dimaporo loyalists who were attempting to seize the provincial capital building. The troops withdrew by Sunday, the government said.

Fighting flared in Marawi, about 500 miles south of Manila after Dimaporo was fired as governor of Lanao del Sur province by Aquino and replaced by a caretaker governor.

Libya restricts some diplomats

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — Libya, responding to a European crackdown on its diplomats, will expel some European diplomats and impose travel restrictions on those who remain, one Western diplomat said.

Word of the retaliatory diplomatic sanctions came Sunday amid reports of an impending shake-up in Moammar Khadafy's government.

The Western diplomat said European representatives were summoned to the Foreign Ministry Saturday and told of the planned expulsions and travel restrictions. He said they were told the action was being taken in retaliation for a decision by the European Community foreign ministers last week to cut the size of Libya's diplomatic and trade missions in Europe.

A Libyan television report said the heads of missions from Greece, Italy, Spain, France, West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands and Denmark were told Libya "rejects the measures adopted by the European Community countries."

"We have no option regarding these measures — which have been adopted without any justification — except to reciprocate," the report said.

The television report said the Europeans gave in to "U.S. pressure" in adopting the sanctions against Libyan diplomats. It said the diplomats were told Libya has "no links or any kind of relation with terrorism."

European Community foreign ministers agreed last week to reduce Libyan diplomatic and trade missions in their countries to a minimum, limit movement of Khadafy's diplomats and tighten controls on other Libyans because of Tripoli's sponsorship of terrorism.

In another development, diplomats said Khadafy appeared to be the source of an extraordinary editorial attack in Libyan newspapers on the performance of the Libyan military during the U.S. bombing. They said the editorial could indicate an impending shake-up in the government.

A Western European diplomat said Saturday disciplinary measures were being taken against military officers who did not carry out their duties during the U.S. air attacks on Tripoli and Benghazi.

An East bloc source predicted top officials in the Information Ministry and the army would be ousted.

The British consul in Tripoli called a meeting of British residents Sunday to advise them to send their families and non-essential personnel home.

George Adams and Nick Zenick. Standing on the truck is Sal Marino, owner of Marino Cemetery Service, which installed the monument.

Korea stone in place

By John Mitchell
Herald Reporter

A memorial honoring four Manchester men who lost their lives in the Korean War was erected in Munro Park this morning, with an official dedication ceremony set for late May.

"I think it's just beautiful," said Sal Marino, owner of Marino Cemetery Service, the company that set the monument in the park on East Center Street.

The 7-foot-tall gray granite stone, which came from Vermont, was planned by Manchester's Korean Veterans Memorial Committee. The committee raised the $7,500 needed to purchase the stone and plant shrubs and do landscaping work around the memorial.

The monument, placed across from a World War II memorial, is connected by a walkway that encircles the two.

On the front of the memorial are the names of the four men over an engraved map of Korea. Stars on the map indicate where the men lost their lives. At the bottom, an inscription reads "Not Forgotten."

On the other side is the picture of a sword, turned down, with laurels around the handle, which in the military symbolizes mourning and remembrance.

Marino said nobody came up to look at the monument during the installation, but people noticed as they walked by the park.

"This is very, very nice," said Herman Lassow of Autumn Street. "It's kind of a thing that shows that people don't forget."

Ian Campbell of Country Club Drive also said the memorial was fitting. "I'm surprised that they hadn't had one before," he said.

East Hartford resident Mary Johnson, who comes to shop near the site, agreed that it was needed. "I think it really is beautiful," she said.

The official dedication ceremony is set for May 25, which falls during Memorial Day weekend. Last Memorial Day, a monument to Vietnam veterans was dedicated at Main and Center Streets.

Manchester catches Whale fever

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter

The Hartford Whalers have captured many hearts in Manchester.

Whether season-ticket holders or casual watchers of the hockey team, area residents are rallying around Connecticut's only major professional sports team as it makes its bid for the Stanley Cup — and for good reason.

The Whalers are the underdogs of the National Hockey League, the Cinderella team. And they keep on winning.

"They are doing the unexpected — I may even become interested," said Manchester resident Herb Tyler, an insurance agent who was eating breakfast this morning at Fani's Kitchen on Main Street. Tyler said he has gone to only one game in the past five years, but vowed that things will be different next year.

"I'd like to see four or five games," he said.

The Whalers, who in February could claim only a losing record and the last-place slot in the Adams Division, are now a single win away from advancing to the NHL semi-finals after beating the Montreal Canadiens 1-0 Sunday night.

"It's been one pleasant surprise after another," said Burt Lindsay, a Manchester real estate developer. Lindsay sat in the Sinnamon Restaurant on Oak Street this morning hunched over a cup of coffee and the sports section of a daily newspaper.

He flinched when a reporter asked him if he was a Whalers' fan, appearing reluctant to get his name in the newspaper. But he admitted that he's been watching the team for a long time.

"Oh, come on Burt," Lindsay's friend, Ed Swain, said. "You know you stayed up late last night to watch the Whalers win 1-0. He's a Whalers' fan."

Both Lindsay and Swain, a real estate salesman, said that the key to winning the final game of the best-of-seven series with Montreal rests with Hartford's goaltender, Mike Liut.

"Thirty-two saves and a shutout (for Liut). That's important."

Other fans who were interviewed around town agreed that Liut has to have a good game Tuesday if the Whalers are going to win.

"I think Montreal is going to be a little rough Tuesday night," said Manchester resident Barry Van Camp, who works for Heritage Savings and Loan Association on Main Street. "I think they'll have a pretty good chance of winning, depending on how well Liut plays."

"They've got to keep up the defensive work," said John Lincoln of Enfield, who has been a Whaler fan for about four years. Lincoln, who was eating breakfast at Fani's, said the team has come from behind before and can win again — even on the Canadiens' home ice.

"They've been down 2-1 and they came back. They were down 3-2 and they came back," he said. "It's time for Hartford to start screaming. They never had a chance before."

The optimism on Main Street this morning was catching. Fans everywhere were confident that the Whalers could beat the Canadiens, who finished the regular season in second place in the Adams Division while the Whalers finished fourth.

"I don't care what game you're playing, anything can happen," said Lincoln's friend, Tom Crocicchia of North Franklin, an insurance manager who works in Manchester. "I'm not a hockey fan, but I want them to win."

There were many people like Crocicchia in town today. Before March, they didn't know what hockey was. Today, they watch each playoff game as if the fate of the world depended on it. If anything, all agreed, the Hartford Whalers have made a name for themselves.

"I have a brother, he goes crazy for the Whalers," said Anthony Sala of East Hartford, a retail salesman in Manchester, as he walked down Main Street today.

His brother's influence has rubbed off, Sala said, and even he is going "crazy" for the Whalers. "I'm so happy, honest to God," he said. "They gotta go all the way. I'll push them with my mind."

Egyptian magic

Illusionist David Copperfield "walked" through the Great Wall of China and made the Statue of Liberty and a Lear jet "disappear." For his next act, Copperfield would like to make the pyramids of Egypt vanish.

"We're planning on going to Egypt next year and tackling some of the better known objects there," he says. Copperfield, 29, is in Boston this weekend and will attempt to walk through a steel wall, much as he did when a TV special showed him going through the Great Wall of China. No one will tell how Copperfield creates the illusion of passing through walls because all who work with him are required to sign secrecy agreements so they won't reveal the tricks. Fewer than half a dozen people really know how he made the Statue of Liberty "vanish."

Derby parties

Kentucky Gov. Martha Layne Collins has some political heavyweights on her Kentucky Derby guest list. Included are a couple of potential presidential candidates, Sens. Gary Hart, D-Colo., and Bill Bradley, D-N.J., as well as national Democratic Party Chairman Paul Kirk. For soap-opera fans the May 3 race offers Susan Lucci, better known as Erica Kane on "All My Children," and Miss America Mary Ann Mobley. Country music star Ricky Skaggs, who is grand marshal of the Kentucky Derby Festival's Pegasus Parade, also will be a Collins guest. Some of the special guests will join Collins for pre-Derby parties throughout the week, including "Derby '86" and "Derby 2001" parties she is hosting at the governor's mansion.

Dolly gets her dream

Entertainer Dolly Parton says she always dreamed to change the first letter on the famous hillside "Hollywood" sign. Her dream comes true this week when she opens a theme park near her hometown named "Dollywood."

"It just popped into my mind that it would be a good name for a park," Parton says in the May 5 issue of People magazine. The park outside Pigeon Forge, Tenn., officially opens Thursday.

However, some changes had to be made regarding a photo of the country music star and her husband, Nashville contractor Carl Dean, that was to hang in a park museum, the magazine said.

"The other day, the photographer for the museum came over to the house, and Carl cut some eyes out of a grocery bag. He had on a suit and put this bag over his head and called himself 'the unknown husband' - like the unknown comic," the performer said.

"That is just his style. He thought it would be fine if I wanted to put that one in the museum, but I thought maybe some people would be insulted."

Dean agreed to have another photo taken.

A royal birth

Queen Anne-Marie, the 38-year-old wife of ex-King Constantine of Greece, gave birth to a boy, their fifth child, it has been announced. The prince, born Saturday at St. Mary's Hospital, weighed 8 pounds, 4 ounces, a spokesman for Constantine said Sunday. Mother and baby were "wonderfully well," he said.

The baby has not yet been named.

Constantine, 45, and Danish-born Anne-Marie, went into exile in 1967 and live in northern London. Their four other children are Princess Alexia, 20; Crown Prince Paul, 18; Prince Nicholas, 16, and Princess Theodora, 2.

Anne-Marie is a sister of Queen Margrethe of Denmark.

Duke remembered

Duke Ellington died in 1974 but the 87th anniversary of his birth Tuesday won't go unmarked in New York. The United States Postal Service will issue an Ellington commemorative postage stamp and the Mercer Ellington Orchestra will perform a set of Ellington standards at the ceremony.

Then musicians and dancers will gather for "A Celebration of the Sacred and Inspirational Music of Duke Ellington" at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Ellington premiered his second sacred concert there in 1968.

MAKING A SPLASH - Miss New York - Beth Laufer, 22, of West Islip - was the first to hit the pool after contestants arrived in Miami for the 35th annual Miss USA Pageant. Fifty-one ladies are in the competition and the winner will be crowned live on CBS May 20.

Manchester In Brief

Request might mean new trial

A request by an Olcott Street man to change his plea of guilty to charges that he murdered his 10-month-old daughter will be heard by Hartford Superior Court Judge Francis R. Quinn on May 19 - the same day he was scheduled to be sentenced, a court clerk said this morning.

Marshall Crenshaw pleaded guilty on April 17 under the Alford Doctrine, which means he does not admit to suffocating his daughter Dale-Lyn Crenshaw last April, but enters a plea of guilty because he felt the evidence would have been enough for a jury to convict him.

The state prosecutor has said he will recommend a 25-year sentence for Crenshaw.

Crenshaw's attorney, Public Defender Richard Kelly, said last week if Quinn allows his client to change his plea, Crenshaw's earlier not-guilty plea will be reinstated, a new jury will be selected, and another trial will be held.

Firehouse deadline nears

With one day left before Tuesday's deadline, no talks have been held between the town and the Eighth Utilities District over the town's proposal to share its Buckland firehouse on Tolland Turnpike with the district's volunteer firefighters. Town Manager Robert Weiss said this morning.

The district Board of Directors decided on April 19 to set a Tuesday deadline for reaching an agreement with the town in order to have a decision in hand before May 20 - the last day remaining on a bid to build the district's own fire station. However, the directors have said they will grant an extension if one is needed.

Weiss said this morning members of the district's negotiating team have not contacted the town about arranging a meeting.

Earlier this month the town offered to share its firehouse with the district for $22,004 a year for 28 years. District directors have reacted favorably to the proposal, although they have also expressed some reservations.

The district has plans to build its own station - located two lots away from the town's firehouse - if a sharing agreement cannot be reached.

McCavanagh postpones trip

A trip to the Pentagon that Rep. James R. McCavanagh, D-Manchester, was supposed to take last week has been postponed at least until after the legislative session ends, McCavanagh said this morning.

McCavanagh, who received one of 40 invitations sent out to community and business leaders, intended to attend a program at the U.S. Defense Department to discuss the readiness of Connecticut's National Guard and Army reserves.

McCavanagh said that he was advised Wednesday night - the day before he was to leave - that there was important legislative business in Hartford that he should attend to.

"My first responsibility as a state representative is to be there for the big votes," he said.

McCavanagh said that he will be invited back "within six months."

Town rejects amended land offers

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter

Two amended proposals to buy town-owned land near Union Pond were rejected last week when Town Attorney Kevin O'Brien said it was improper for the town to accept additional proposals because it had already closed the bidding process, town officials said today.

Developer Ernest J. Reed and the Manchester-based Pressure Blast Manufacturing Co. both had their original proposals to buy the land rejected by the Economic Development Commission April 5.

Democratic majority plans to cut spending

Majority Democrats on the Board of Directors plan to cut an undisclosed amount from the General Fund tax rate proposed by Town Manager Robert Weiss before the board adopts a budget next Monday.

Democratic Director Kenneth Tedford said this morning there will be a reduction in the mill rate, but declined to say how much it would be or where it would come from.

Tedford did say, however, that some of the changes in Weiss's recommendation will be on the revenue side of the $50.7 million budget, which covers the fiscal year beginning July 1.

A reduction from 48.75 to 48.49 mills has already been suggested by the town administration based on a tax collection rate of 99 percent instead of the 98.5 percent originally assumed.

The Democratic directors, who hold a six-to-three majority on the board, have discussed their course on the budget in caucus.

Mayor Barbara Weinberg said today the directors "hope to save some dollars, but not a lot."

"I'm sure there will be cuts in the budget," said Deputy Mayor Peter DiRosa, another Democrat. He said the directors are concentrating on requests for increased personnel.

DiRosa said the directors are not doing a line-by-line analysis but are concentrating on the policy decisions contained in the proposal.

The board is scheduled to meet at 6 p.m. Monday to set budgets and fix mill rates for general government, for the Town of Manchester Fire District and for the downtown taxing district.

The recommendation by Weiss is for a General Fund budget of $50,677,448, an increase of 11.3 percent over the budget adopted for the current year and 9.8 percent more than the town expects to actually spend in the current year.

However, the EDC, which said the bids were too low, allowed the developers a chance to amend their proposals.

Before the new bids were brought before the Town Board of Directors, which has the final say on the sale of the land, town officials asked O'Brien if it was proper for the town to have allowed the developers a second chance to buy the land.

"The town attorney felt that it wasn't proper to reopen bids to the developers again," Town Manager Robert B. Weiss said today. He said Planning Director Mark Pellegrini sent letters late last week to Reed and Helen L. McMullen, who owns Pressure Blast, informing them of the decision to reject their second offers.

McMullen, who originally proposed to buy the 11.02-acre parcel in the Union Pond Industrial Park for $17,500 an acre, changed her offer to $27,000 an acre if the town made certain improvements to the land. She wanted to move her Chapel Street plant to the new site, citing a need to grow.

Reed had amended his original three proposals, all of which were rejected.

Town officials have said the land has an appraised value of $20,000 an acre without any improvements and $30,000 an acre if an access road from Tolland Turnpike to the site is built and drainage and utilities are installed. Such improvements are estimated to cost about $276,000, Pellegrini said. He said after the improvements were made, the town could probably get more than $40,000 an acre.

Now that the proposals have been rejected, officials said. Both Pellegrini and Weiss said the town will make a number of improvements to the land before trying to sell it again.

Once the improvements are made, the town can either assign a value to it and sell it to anyone who is interested, or it can reopen the bidding process, Pellegrini said today that many members of the EDC favor assigning a value to the land and then advertising it for sale, much like what was done in the Buckland Industrial Park.

Town officials said they will try to use federal and state funds they expect to have for another project to help pay for some of the improvements.

Currently, the town is conducting an engineering study for the reconstruction of a 7,800-foot stretch of Tolland Turnpike between the intersection of North Main Street to a section just west of Deming Street. Public Works Director George Kandra said. The town plans to use federal and state funds to pay for 82.5 percent of the $3.5 million project, with Manchester picking up the remain 7.5 percent, Kandra said.

Pellegrini said that some work that needs to be done to the 11.02-acre industrial site could be pertinent to the Tolland Turnpike project, making it eligible for federal funds.

Weiss reports to panel on town-8th District relationship

Editor's note: The following is the text of a report on the relationship between the town and Eighth Utilities District submitted by Town Manager Robert Weiss to the Charter Revision Commission. The nine-member commission, which is currently changing the Town Charter to make it easier to consolidate the town and district, requested the report as well as one from the district, to help in its deliberations. The commission is scheduled to make its final recommendations to the town Board of Directors May 13.

I have been asked by you on behalf of your commission the question as to what are the problems that have affected and are affecting the town's relationship with the Eighth Utilities District. As you know, there are two major sewer systems: one by the district that impact upon the town. I have asked our director of public works, George Kandra, to respond to the question relating to the sewer service based on his knowledge over the past four years. I know that his predecessors in the position of director of public works have similar concerns regarding their incumbency as well. Attached to this report is a memorandum from our former director of public works, reflecting his experience in this relationship.

CONCERNS WITH EIGHTH UTILITIES DISTRICT TOWN OF MANCHESTER RELATIONSHIP IN REGARD TO THE SEWER UTILITY

In response to this area of concern most of the information has been provided by George Kandra, director of public works, reflecting answers to a series of questions that both of us have been asked over a period of time.

What are the problems that have affected and are affecting the town's relationship with the Eighth Utilities District from the sewer service perspective?

Equal, uninterrupted and efficient public sewer utility service expected by citizens of Manchester. Experience shows that a divided government has considerable difficulty attempting to meet these demands. Delineating areas within one governmental entity for special treatment, consideration, or level of service different from the whole invariably tends to alienate and divide its people and its government. Manchester is experiencing how it relates to sewer utility service. Master planning, operations, and service are all negatively impacted to some degree. Specifically, the Eighth Utilities District's 26-mile collection line arrangements in the town's 126-mile trunk collection system no longer makes operational sense. The district abandoned its sewer treatment facility and the administrative structure that went with it. The district abandoned its sewer system in 26 miles of collector pipe. The town provides treatment for its own sewer system. The town fulfills the state's NPDES permit requirements for sewer operation as part of the Eighth District as part of the town's overall legal responsibility.

What is the overall town responsibility for sewer system operation?

The Department of Environmental Protection places full collection and treatment responsibility for sewerage generated throughout the town, including the Eighth District, on the Town of Manchester. This is done through the issuance of one Town NPDES permit (National Pollution Discharge Elimination System). The State does not recognize the District in these matters and does not issue the District a permit. In effect, we have the responsibility and liabilities but no authority in the District. The rest of the town has been studied for infiltration-inflow as required by the state. In this instance except with and through District approval, it is most unusual and unique for sewer system are administered, having to work through a third party on treatment matters. Sewer system operation would eliminate this cumbersome situation.

Are there other examples of sewerage problems coming from Eighth District sources?

A further example of inappropriate discharge of the properties emanating from the District is in the area of infiltration-inflow (I-I). A 1978 Facilities Plan indicated that our sewer system was subject to possible excessive inflow/infiltration of clear water in order to quantify I-I. A Sewer System Evaluation Survey was required to be performed in order to determine and federal funding requirements. The District chose not to participate. "If cost money was not the District. The date, the survey has not been performed in the Eighth District collection area. Clear water is entering our system and the flow cannot be metered nor billed. The town of Manchester has been studying infiltration-inflow as required to be eligible for state assistance in upgrading our treatment plant.

How is system planning improved by the current divided services arrangement?

In 1979, the Town prepared a report titled "Facilities Plan for Wastewater Collection and Treatment Works" that provided a blueprint and long-range plan for sewer facilities in Manchester. It was approved by both the federal and state governments. The plan serves the Planning and Zoning Commission for new development approvals and provides all local government agencies the information necessary to guide the process. This vital area, Unilaterally, the Eighth District has chosen to ignore the plan by substituting a plan of its own construction. A major sewer line serving the North End. Its alignment and sewer connection location are totally contrary to the approved blueprint. Needless to say, the change impacts the Town directly. What is disconcerting is the fact that the change was made independently without Town input or review. The Town followed this 1979 Facilities Plan when the Buckland Industrial Park was built and constructed sewer trunk sewer facilities on Adams Street at its expense to carry the expected flow from a substantial area in the North End above and beyond what was required for the Industrial Park. The District believes that it does not intend to take advantage of this construction, but instead plans to construct a new line independent of the Adams Street line. As a result, an excessive expenditure would be made to prevent this from happening. Unfortunately, if the District chooses to prevent this from happening, the Town then would have spent money needlessly for oversized pipe that would not be used and the development will be required to pay an excessive cost for no valid reason in running sewer pipe twice as far as is necessary.

Are there other examples of planning problems?

A serious planning breakdown between the Town and District relates to the construction of the highway. It was prudent that a segment of sewer line be placed under the highway before roadway construction began to serve as a guide for which the District could be the sewer service agency. The District defaulted and refused to install the line. The Town of Manchester, at an expense of over $200,000, constructed the sewer line and sewer under the highway in order to make future service to this area feasible. Despite the Town's investment, it is still not clear as to who will service the area. The segment of sewer line is under the Pioneer Industrial Park. Attempting to construct the segment of sewer line would have been cost prohibitive due to it having to be placed under a major state highway. In fact, the probability it would be impossible to open-cut the highway after it was constructed. The absence of this sewer line segment would have prevented proper development in the locations within the north end of town.

How does a divided sewer system affect the level of service citizens receive?

Currently, all plans for sewer development are reviewed and scrutinized by the Town of Manchester Planning, Engineering and support staff. In the past, the District has not followed the same review process in the Eighth District. The usual response from the District regarding plans for sewer service is that everything is OK. The latest example that everything is not OK came from the Town Engineering staff when the Brentwood development for 400 plus condo units was submitted. If the District approval had prevailed, an oversized line would have been installed. The Town insisted that a larger size line be required and alignment also had to be changed. Another recent example of sewer confusion and conflict resulting from a divided system is the Red Rock Inn application. The applicant currently does not have any idea if, when, or how sewer service will be made available for their business. For whatever reason, and there are many, this applicant is confused to the point that the entire venture is in jeopardy. This can happen and does happen with divided authority. The line serving Brentwood and Red Rock Inn will also serve the 100+ hundred acres of prime land north of 184 including the projected mall at facility. Because the Red Rock Golf Course area.

How does the Eighth District determine if it will serve a particular area?

It is not clear what criteria the District uses to service areas which they are potentially authorized to serve. It appears that they go into those areas which are economically to their advantage and leave others to the Town. For example, in the Bryan Farms neighborhood over one-third of the properties were suffering septic tank failures. The Eighth District could have served this area but would not correct the problem, and so ultimately the Town assumed this area of responsibility. In 1987 when the Town Fire Department was created, the Town assumed this area of responsibility. The Town is required to utilize federal and state grant funds to assist in the financing of the sewer system. The Town has approved to serve this area, however, the Town had to run a major trunk line through the District. The District qualified its approval of the Town's trunk line by requiring that the District have the right to connect to the line in the future without paying a connection charge. Of course, the line was made large enough at extra cost to the Town to serve adjacent areas in the Eighth District.

Have there been other problems with sewer service?

At the time the Town was making arrangements to serve the Buckland Industrial Park with sewers, a District meeting had to vote to relinquish authority to the Town. A small number of negative votes at the special meeting would have delayed the entire Buckland Industrial Park project and by so doing that situation and also the fact that the Buckland was going to continue to grow rapidly. It was controversial since it does not serve the Buckland area surrounding it, it still serves 75-80 percent of the residential and commercial structures it was intended to serve. It currently is being studied as a location for a second paramedic unit which will be required in the near future.

What about the personal relationships between the firefighters at the scene of a fire? Don't they just concentrate on the job to be done?

Normally, they do concentrate on the job to be done, but the situation is frequently awkward and confusing. Often, firefighters are not sure who to call or whom to report to.

Assuming that the Town were to purchase the Eighth District Fire house and equipment, with the cost amortized over a 15-year period, would the Town Fire Department be able to increase its fire coverage to approximately 20 percent. This assumes operating the Main Street Firehouse with income with a complement of three men on each shift. At the same time they would be able to increase their fire coverage to approximately 40 percent, resulting in a 60 percent increase in fire coverage for all the Town taxpayers served by the Town Fire Department.

Is there any duplication of equipment with the separate fire departments?

There is some duplication of equipment. The Town Fire Department has a fire engine, a fire truck, and a fire truck. The Eighth District has a fire engine, a fire truck, and a fire truck. The Town Fire Department has a fire engine, a fire truck, and a fire truck. The Eighth District has a fire engine, a fire truck, and a fire truck.

Does the division of the Town into two fire districts complicate the fire protection rendered to the public?

Yes, at times. For example, 32 of the Northfield Condominium units are served by the District and some 16 units are served by the Town. In other parts of town, the Fire Marshal's jurisdiction is not certain as to who will service them. In the other end of town, the Fire Marshal's jurisdiction is not certain as to who will service them. In the other end of town, the Fire Marshal's jurisdiction is not certain as to who will service them.

What is the effect of Special Act 200 procedure for admission to the Fire Marshal's office?

The special Town fire planning and is detrimental to the fire defense planning process. For example, the Fire Marshal's jurisdiction is not certain as to who will service them. In the other end of town, the Fire Marshal's jurisdiction is not certain as to who will service them.

Does the existence of the 911 system eliminate the problem of which department to call?

No, some people still call the operator for fire. The operator calls are handled from a location in Meriden with an operator who is familiar with the area. Sometimes result because the question is asked by the operator, "Do you have a fire?" The operator sometimes asks the question, "Do you have a fire?" The operator sometimes asks the question, "Do you have a fire?"

There is an ongoing concern with the Fire Department's identification of boundaries between the District and the Town.

Due to the irregularity of the boundaries, there exist situations where homes on one side of a street belong to the Eighth District and homes on the other side of the street belong to the Town, and, in fact, in some cases homes on the same side of the street are divided between the District and the Town. This can lead to a confusing situation which at times results in the wrong department being dispatched and places an additional burden on our dispatching unit to ensure that the right department is called for the emergency.

Why was the Buckland Fire House built in its present location?

In 1987 when the Town Fire Department was created, the Town assumed this area of responsibility. The Town is required to utilize federal and state grant funds to assist in the financing of the sewer system. The Town has approved to serve this area, however, the Town had to run a major trunk line through the District. The District qualified its approval of the Town's trunk line by requiring that the District have the right to connect to the line in the future without paying a connection charge. Of course, the line was made large enough at extra cost to the Town to serve adjacent areas in the Eighth District.

department and is now in the process of appointing a full-time Fire Marshal. I am concerned that most of the growth that will contain the greatest fire hazard for the Town of Manchester, as a whole, is concentrated in the North End.

OTHER CONCERNS
It appears to me that there is a major inquiry in the Town due to the fact that areas within the jurisdiction of the Eighth District which are not presently served by the District can be annexed merely by a petition action from the residents in the area to the Eighth District. A similar method is not available for areas which are presently served by the District but which desire to be served by the Town.

Should also be noted by our Commission that there are many services rendered by the Town that the taxpayers of the Town, as a whole, are not presently receiving. For example, the District does not provide an assigned fire truck to levy its taxes, but instead relies on an extract of the Town's Grand List. It would be very expensive if the District had to provide this function itself. We also must prepare a separate Grand List for the Fire District. These requirements complicate our tax preparation procedure and cause an increase in our operating costs.

We also see many frustrated taxpayers appearing at our Collector's Office who are unaware of the District-Town separation until they have a difficult time registering a car.

A further concern for the Town is the fact that the effort in recent years has been directed toward economic development for the town by the district. This represents a great deal of the effort of Town staff, but also the investment of the Town's own money in infrastructure improvements. This process is continuing with the development of the Main Street Mall project. Most of the major nonresidential development in Manchester will occur in the north end of town. The Town will continue to make this effort for the overall benefit of the community but at the expense of the town's own money.

The relationship between the Town of Manchester and the Eighth Utilities District has been affected primarily by the dispute arising out of the town's decision to build Fire Station No. 5 in Buckland in disregard of a petition from residents to have that area join the Eighth Utilities District. The Supreme Court's decision affirming the right of the Buckland residents to join the Eighth District has left a town-owned firehouse in an area which it cannot serve. The expenditure of public funds by the Town of Manchester to build this firehouse and the need of the Eighth District for a fire station to provide service to the Buckland area has resulted in a friction which has colored all other aspects of the town-district relationship. It is the failure to remedy the Buckland firehouse situation which is the source of the other imagined conflicts between the town and the district.

The district is willing to cooperate with the town and pay its fair share of joint expenses such as sewerage treatment. In the 1980's both the town and the district were under abatement orders from the Department of Environmental Protection because their sewerage treatment plants were polluting the Hockanum River. Much discussion was had about how to solve the pollution problem and various proposals for sewerage treatment were advanced by both the town and the district. Several of which envisioned two or even three treatment facilities. The DEP, whose approval was needed to obtain federal and state funding, insisted on one treatment facility. Because the town's treatment plant was located at the lowest elevation and thus could serve the greatest geographic area, the town site was chosen for the location of the secondary treatment facility. As an adjunct of the treatment plant construction, a cross-town connector trunk sewer was also designed and constructed. The district paid the cost of the sewerage treatment plant and the cross-town connector. The town built in a cooperative partnership with the town. (See Exhibits A and B.) Upon completion of the construction the DEP ordered the district treatment plant abandoned and the cross-town connector treatment plant located at the town landfill. The district willingly pays for the cost of treatment of district sewage and all other appropriate costs of the treatment facility. Both the town and the district maintain their own sewerage collection systems consisting of trunk line and street sewers. All district sewerage ultimately enters the cross-town connector. The town and the district maintain virtually no maintenance due to its large size. Since the district maintains its own internalized collection system and bills its customers for the maintenance of the town collection system not used by the district, the town has not had to pay for the town's share of the cost of the town's sewerage collection system.

Walter H. Joyner
President,
Eighth Utilities District

The town and the district have a fine working relationship with its maintenance of the town collection system and bills its customers for the maintenance of the town collection system not used by the district. Within the past month the Town of Manchester for the first time has charged Town of Manchester sewer cost charges within the boundaries of the Eighth District. The district, like the town, levies sewer outlet charges. Outlet charges are designed to pay for the cost of sewer facilities such as trunk sewers, pump stations and force mains which are collection system expenses over and above the cost of construction of street sewers. That cost has been jointly paid for, each entity should levy its own outlet charge within its territory. Eighth District customers should not be billed twice. The change as to outlet charges was made unilaterally by the DEP, whose approval was needed to obtain federal and state funding, insisted on one treatment facility. Because the town's treatment plant was located at the lowest elevation and thus could serve the greatest geographic area, the town site was chosen for the location of the secondary treatment facility. As an adjunct of the treatment plant construction, a cross-town connector trunk sewer was also designed and constructed. The district paid the cost of the sewerage treatment plant and the cross-town connector. The town built in a cooperative partnership with the town. (See Exhibits A and B.) Upon completion of the construction the DEP ordered the district treatment plant abandoned and the cross-town connector treatment plant located at the town landfill. The concerns which I cite above are those which I as an administrator find to be of primary consideration. I would be happy to appear before your Commission if requested to answer any questions that this report might raise.

Sharing stall is puzzling

About three weeks ago, the town and Eighth Utilities District governments created quite a stir by indicating that they would attempt to cooperate in at least one area for the benefit of their constituents.

It began when Walter Joyner, the district president, wisely expressed a new willingness to consider the old idea of having district volunteers share the town's Buckland firehouse on Tolland Turnpike if an offer was forthcoming in time.

As Joyner apparently realized, sharing makes sense because the town department cannot fight fires in the immediate area of the station and the district has failed to demonstrate that building its own firehouse nearby would be anything but an expensive exercise in obstinacy. Given the shabby shape of relations between the district and the town, however, it was a pleasant surprise to see any signal of cooperation, no matter how wasteful the alternative.

After Joyner's comments were reported, the town reacted with praiseworthy swiftness so the district would have an offer to consider in time. That put the ball in the district court, where it remains today for some unattractive reason.

A mere nine days after the sharing issue dropped up, Town Manager Robert Weiss set forth a reasonable proposal under which the town and district firefighters could share the station if the district paid the town just over $22,000 each year. Then, when the district Board of Directors named a team two days later to negotiate the matter with the town and set Tuesday as the deadline for a settlement, things appeared headed for a satisfactory resolution.

But since then, the process has stalled without apparent cause. Weis, who will serve as a negotiator for the town, said today he has not been contacted by the district about the sharing offer. That was the case even though attorney John D. LaBelle Jr., a district negotiator, said Friday he planned to initiate a meeting between the two governments at which the matter would be discussed.

In the meantime, the controversy surrounding the commission studying revisions to the Town Charter that would make it easier to force the district into consolidation has continued. So has a dispute about sewer connections in the northern part of town.

That gives rise to questions about why the district has allowed the town's offer to go begging when its stated deadline is only a day away. Having sought an offer and set a time limit, it has ignored the first and allowed the second to lapse, both without any explanation.

The problem could be just a case of too much business and too little time. If that's all it is, the district should extend its deadline for a settlement and get about the business of arranging a meeting.

But if the district is allowing other matters to obstruct the settlement of the long-running Buckland fire feud, it is making a mistake and should promptly change its approach. Spending a half-million dollars to build a fire station two lots away from the town's would be a serious abrogation of responsibility — especially when a reasonable resolution seemed so close to fruition.

"Our guest today is David Stockman, who built a vast web of confusion and self-delusion and resorted to budget filmmaking before he signed a $2.4 million contract for his memoirs and came out smelling like a rose."

Civics lesson on Love Lane

To the Editor:

How shocking that "single women" were allowed to participate in the lotteries for the homes on Love Lane. Right-thinking people know singles belong in apartments or condos. (Letter to the Editor, 4/23/86.) More importantly, to have attempted to exclude single persons from these lotteries would have been in direct violation of the Connecticut General Statutes, Section 46a-63, which seeks to protect persons from discriminatory public accommodation practices. As used in that chapter:

"(1) 'Place of public accommodation, resort or amusement' means any establishment which caters or offers its services or facilities or goods to the public and is not limited to, (A) public housing projects and all other forms of publicly assisted housing, and in violation of the Connecticut General Statutes Section 46a-64 entitled Discriminatory public accommodations practices prohibited. Penalty:

"(a) It shall be a discriminatory practice in violation of this section: (1) To deny any person within the jurisdiction of this state full and equal accommodation, resort or amusement because of race, creed, color, national origin, ancestry, sex, marital status, age, mental retardation or physical disability ... subject only to the conditions and limitations established by law and applicable alike to all persons:

"(c) Any person who violates any provision of this section shall be fined not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days or both."

Because of the unique arrangement by which payment for each lot is to be made in the future to the Town of Manchester, these statutes are clearly governing. And that, dear reader, is your civics lesson for today.

Postponement helps the town

To the Editor:

Indeed, how fortunate for Manchester residents that their elected representative has postponed her decision about running for office again until after the legislative session. Too many elected officials are so concerned about re-election that they lose sight of business at hand, namely the business of the Legislature.

I have had the opportunity to serve as Rep. Elsie Swenson's intern during the present session. Senators and representatives are not provided with a paid staff. Interns are college students selected to help with administrative duties as well as research and constituent problems.

As I am not a traditional college student, but rather an adult returning to school, I feel I bring a special appreciation of how difficult a legislator's job can be. "Biz" is a hardworking and conscientious representative, with a special interest in constituent problems. She is always available to the residents of her district and eager to assist them. She serves on three separate committees and can be seen flying from one committee vote to the next. She has had to tackle difficult issues this year: insurance reform, education reform, day-care legislation, and voter reform. "Biz" is always trying to educate herself on the issues as well as weighing how her decisions will affect Manchester. Credit to "Biz," who finds legislative business more important than political speculation.

East Center shows class

To the Editor:

This is in response to Sol Cohen's "poem" about East Center Street. I found it in very poor taste and actually upsetting. All along both sides of the street you will find property owners spending thousands and thousands of dollars updating and improving their properties. Many are going to incredible expense to restore and preserve the original beauty of their buildings.

I am sure I speak for many in thanking you to school, I feel for adding such "a touch of class" to "The City of Village Charm."

Khadafy dims in comparison to Khomeini

WASHINGTON — Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini, not Libya's Muammar Khadafy, directs the world's most deadly terrorist network. Yet incredibly, the Reagan administration has begun a hush-hush barely perceptible tilt toward Iran. Take the question of hostages, for example. The implacable Khomeini, not Khadafy, controls the fate of American hostages. Washington has been quietly conciliatory in the behind-the-scenes negotiations with Iran over the American hostages held by pro-Iranian terrorists.

This dramatic, subterranean shift in policy toward Iran goes beyond the fate of the hostages into the realm of global geopolitics. President Reagan has been convinced by his advisers that there still is some sense in attempting an effort made to establish relations with Ayatollah Khomeini.

Their concern is that, without an American presence at all in Tehran, the Soviets may be tempted to occupy northern Iran during any post-Khomeini period of confusion or chaos. When we asked about the warming-up with Iran, one high-level State Department official tacitly confirmed the development by snapping testily: "We deal with the Soviet Union. We deal with Syria. So why not Iran?"

A CLUE to the surprising change in direction toward Iran can be detected by reading between the lines of President Reagan's hard-line denunciations of Khadafy. Reagan appears to hold Khadafy primarily responsible for the murders of Americans at the Rome and Vienna airports last December, as well as for subsequent terrorist attacks.

However, the terrorist Abu Nidal is known to have masterminded the airport attacks and may have engineered the later ones. Yet in 1983, when Iraq expelled him because it wanted better relations with the United States, Nidal went to Khomeini for help — and got it. Our sources estimate that the ayatollah has been giving Nidal about $25 million a year for his murderous ventures.

In addition, we've seen a classified U.S. intelligence report to the effect that the Rome and Vienna coordinated assaults were approved by the foreign ministers of Iran, Syria and Libya at a meeting in Tripoli on Oct. 23. The three governments' intelligence chiefs oversaw the twin operation, which was carried out by Nidal.

Finally, Nidal was spotted in East Berlin at the time of the discotheque bombing earlier this month. Intelligence sources say he may have had a hand in the atrocity — probably on loan to Khadafy from his protector and bankroller, Khomeini.

YET REAGAN has singled out Libya as the source of all anti-American terrorist evil, even when the evidence suggests that Iran and Syria are at least equally guilty. In addition to the geopolitical reason for rebuilding bridges to Iran, a senior White House official mentioned a similarly hardheaded inducement: money. It costs the United States a bundle to defend against the chaos that Iran sponsors.

"We have one (sensitive) report that indicates we are spending $10-$12 billion more than we would have to if relations with Iran were normal," he said.

As to what hopes of success the administration has for its overtures to Iran, the White House source said that Iranians in general, and even mainstream Shiites for that matter, are not as viscerally anti-American as they may seem. They have been stirred up by Khomeini to distract them from other troubles, such as the appalling slaughter of the war with Iraq and their declining living standards.

This is a stickup
Bonnie and Clyde would be appalled. The FBI estimates that eight times as much money was stolen by bank officials and other insiders in one recent year as was extracted by bank robbers and burglars. Criminal misconduct by financial institution insiders was a major factor in about one-half of all bank failures in recent years. And the situation isn't helped by the punishment meted out: The small number of insiders who are convicted spend less than a year in prison.

Constitution caper
You remember the $150 million pushed by the Constitution we told you was being bought by the staff of the Constitutional Bicentennial commission? Well, we may not have to worry about it much longer. A bill, already cleared by a House subcommittee, would ban further construction on the Mall beyond five structures already approved. The Constitution building is not one of the exempt.

Connecticut In Brief

Report suggests UConn revamp

STORRS — The University of Connecticut's administration needs to be restructured to relieve pressure on an overburdened upper management, according to a preliminary consultant's report.

The report said that the university's strengths are the quality of its students and faculty. Its relatively secure funding and its new president, John T. Casteen III, Casteen replaced John A. DiBiaggio last August. Staff members of Peat Marwick Mitchell & Co., a New York management consulting firm, presented the report to about 50 UConn administrators and faculty members Wednesday. The university's weaknesses include graduate programs, lack of faculty "stars" and too few minority faculty members and students, the report says.

Chief's rejection upsets staff

HARTFORD — The chief of surgery at Hartford Hospital has been denied chairmanship of the University of Connecticut surgical program in a move criticized for possible interference from rival hospitals, a published report says. The rejection of Dr. Peter J. Deckers has left staff at the UConn Health Center in Farmington upset over the suspected interference from rival hospitals, and has again set back efforts to develop the surgical unit, the Hartford Courant reported Sunday.

Deckers, who has been serving as acting chairman of UConn's surgery department for the past year, was recommended for permanent appointment by Dr. James E. Mulvihill, the health center executive director, and Dr. Eugene Sigman, medical school dean.

Youth program holds graduation

BRIDGEPORT — A group of about 80 hard-core juvenile offenders have graduated from an intensive 10-day rehabilitation program which left participants thanking volunteer organizers for "putting some sense in my head."

The program, which caters to young people who have been in trouble with the law and in school, begins with a 24-hour-a-day, 10-day course which includes classroom work, mountaineering, daily running, and group encounter sessions. The 10-day course ended with graduation ceremonies Sunday, although the participants will continue in a year-long follow-through program.

A third of the participants had shot, stabbed or beaten people and almost all had named criminals in school and at home.

Artist named citizen of the year

NEW HAVEN — Roger Tory Peterson, whose bird watching guides have inspired generations of bird enthusiasts, has been named as the Connecticut Citizen of the Year by the Jackson Newspapers.

"Peterson is credited with being the most influential naturalist of his era," publisher Lionel S. Jackson Jr. said in announcing the award Sunday in the New Haven Register. The award was first presented in 1964 and was given annually for the next decade.

"He is truly a Connecticut citizen of this or any other year and is being honored for a lifetime of achievement," Jackson said.

No first-prize winner in Lotto

HARTFORD — Lottery officials said no one won the first prize in this week's Lotto contest, bringing the first-prize pool to Tuesday's drawing to about $4 million. Lottery officials said Saturday there were 129 second-prize winning tickets worth $1,300 each and 6,105 third-prize winning tickets each worth $49. More than 92,000 people won $3 fourth prizes.

Workers approve Hamilton contract

WINDSOR LOCKS (UPI) — Workers at the Hamilton Standard division of United Technologies have overwhelmingly approved a new three-year contract covering 3,700 hourly employees.

The contract, approved Sunday by union members, $30-72, gives workers a new contract on the day on which their current pact was scheduled to expire.

"We are very pleased with the ratification," said company spokesman Mark Sullivan. "We think it's a good contract that will continue to provide a fair and equitable treatment for the people here and allow Hamilton Standard to remain competitive."

The machinists and assemblers at Hamilton Standard, who earn an average of $11.41 an hour, will get an immediate $300 bonus, two additional bonuses equal to 3.5 percent of their yearly pay this June and next June, and a 3 percent raise in April 1988. Sullivan said.

All raises are in addition to annual cost of living increases based on the national Consumer Price Index, he said.

A tentative contract agreement between the company and Local 743 of the International Association of Machinists was reached by negotiators Thursday morning after they met for about 18 hours.

Machinists at the Middletown, North Haven, and Southington facilities of Pratt & Whitney, another subsidiary of the Hartford-based United Technologies, went on strike for about two weeks in December during a contract dispute at those plants.

While the Hamilton Standard agreement affects about 3,700 workers, only about 1,300 employees are members of the union, said Local 743 negotiator George Almeida.

Hamilton Standard employs about 16,000 workers making aircraft propellers, space suits, and environmental systems for aircraft and spacecraft.

About 7,000 of the company's 9,000 Connecticut employees work in Windsor Locks, while the remainder work in Farmington.

Community mobilizes against killer's parole

THOMPSON (AP) — On Tuesday, five years and a day after he killed 17-year-old Kimberly Gagne by repeatedly smashing her 45-pound rock against her skull, Alan R. Gaumond is to appear before a parole board seeking early release.

But residents of the small community where Miss Gagne grew up, still horrified by the grisly crime, have launched a campaign to keep Gaumond behind bars.

Gaumond was given a 10- to 20-year sentence after pleading guilty to first-degree manslaughter in 1981. If the three-member panel approves, Gaumond, now 24, could be freed from Somers State Prison in July.

More than 2,000 people have signed a petition circulated by the town of Thompson. Clarences "Charlie" Gagne, the slain teen-ager's father, opposing parole. "It's a small price to pay for such a huge crime," Gagne said simply.

Among the signers is Chief

State's Attorney John J. Kelly, who lived in Thompson.

"I don't think that he's paid his debt," said State Sen. Kevin F. Johnson D-Putnam, one of more than 100 people who have written letters to the state Board of Parole urging rejection of Gaumond's application for release.

A senior at Tourtellotte High School, Gagne was on her way home from a school play rehearsal when she was killed.

During her investigation, police determined that Gaumond knew Gagne. But they concluded that the exact sequence of events leading up to the slaying probably never will be known.

Richard Reddington, chairman of the parole board, said he has conducted countless hearings over the last seven years and can't recall another that has generated such overwhelming opposition from the community.

"It's certainly not typical," Reddington said.

Children charged in heroin delivery

HARTFORD (AP) — Hartford police took two children into custody after they were observed helping to deliver heroin to drug users.

Police Lt. Thomas Moore said officers put an apartment building under surveillance last week after hearing complaints about drug dealing there.

While officers were watching the Park Street building Thursday, they realized a 10-year-old girl and a 15-year-old boy were helping to deliver drugs, authorities said.

Officers Dennis W. Beaver and Richard Murzar had the building under surveillance for five hours, Beaver said. They saw the dealer get money, but he did not deliver any drugs.

Then the officers saw the 15-year-old give black plastic bags to the buyers. Police realized he was getting them from the 10-year-old girl, who was riding a plastic tricycle up and down the hallway, Moore said.

"It had to happen a few times for the cops to understand," he said. Beaver said the little girl was very protective of the bags.

When the officers stopped the operation, they found 13 bags of heroin on the girl, Moore said.

"They could have been sold on the street for about $20 each."

The two children, whose names were withheld because of their ages, were taken into police custody Thursday afternoon and turned over to juvenile authorities.

Later they were released to the care of a neighbor, police said.

The mother of the girl was arrested Thursday afternoon and charged with risk of injury to a minor.

Foreign drama hides terrorism at home

A friend of mine was murdered a few days ago. She died horribly, her last minutes of life all pain and blood and terror.

She is one of 19,000 or more of us who will be murdered this year. Though the annual slaughter equals 40 percent of all those killed in the Vietnam War, neither she nor her fellow victims will be the object of consternation or concern on the part of our highest office holders. Washington decides to treat the homicidal plague by making guns freely available to us would-be victims and, if we are still unable to protect ourselves, our elected officials have readied the gas chamber and the lethal inoculation room.

My friend's last minutes of life were terrible. She died by the knife, which means dying terrorized and in agony. Yet the kind of terrorism she endured is of scant interest to the higher-ups. It must be Libyan to get their attention.

OF ALL THE THOUSANDS and thousands of Americans who die by violent hands every year, how many are murdered by Khadafy's people? Five? Ten? Twenty? In terms of the number of victims, of blood spilled, of pain and heartache, the worst terrorism we're subjected to is violent crime here in the United States. My friend was murdered in her home and you can be sure, when they find out who did it, the killer won't be from Libya.

We've come to accept the deliberate, purposeful killing of our own people by the thousands; other than clamoring for wider use of the electric chair we take the deaths as though they were an act of nature, as if they had been murdered not by human beings but by cataclysm like a volcano or a hurricane. But step across our northern border to Canada and murder almost ceases to exist.

Nicholas Von Hoffman

Canada averages about 600 murders a year. Of course, the U.S. population is larger, a little over nine times larger, but the number of murders in America is 32 times larger.

THE EASY EXPLANATIONS for the difference between a safe Canadian society and a dangerous American one do not hold. Although they watch the same movies and see the same TV shows we do and eat the same junk food, Canadians manifest a greater reverence for humanity than Americans by not destroying it.

Gun control laws there are much tougher but that is probably but a symptom of a different attitude about running their society. Canadians and other civilized people with low murder rates whom we look down on seem to regard their society as the ultimate human habitation, the collective tool that gives safety, success, wealth and identity and as such must be worked on, repaired, improved, cleaned and overhauled as the needs and changing times indicate.

Americans, on the other hand, seem to look on their society as yet one more natural resource to be used and abused until exhausted. We treat the great social edifice which must nurture and sustain us as we treat forest rivers and the soil itself. Hence Canada has a society where people are not brought up to be murderers and we have one where they are.

The work of maintaining the society is sabotaged by the men and women with the greatest responsibilities for seeing to it, our national politicians.

THE DRAMA, THE GLORY, the kicks and the simple bold strokes of foreign affairs have suckered a succession of administrations into abandoning the hard and complicated work at home for a fascination with war and foreign affairs. From Kennedy through Reagan, the short lived Ford administration being perhaps the only exception, the presidents of the modern era have immersed themselves, their energy and concentration with what's happening abroad.

The work of tending to the health of the society is put aside and postponed in favor of the cheap and dangerous thrills of a quasi-permanent condition of war. It works on the population and on the politicians somewhat like Quaaludes do, as Randolph Bourne, a skeptical American writing in 1918 about another group of war politicians saw:

"War — or at least modern war waged by a democratic republic against a powerful enemy — seems to achieve for a nation almost all the most inflated political idealists could desire ... each cell of the body politic is brimming with life and activity ... every citizen identifies himself with the whole and feels immensely strengthened in that identification ... The distinction between society and the individual is almost blotted out."

And the real terrors of life at home are ignored for the distant, exhilarating frights from afar.

Death called homicide

COVENTRY — State police are investigating the murder of a young woman whose body was found Sunday afternoon in a wooded area off Hop River Road. Sgt. Edward Daly of the state police said today that a local fisherman found the body of the woman, who was probably in her 20s, at about 3 p.m. within 100 yards of the dirt road.

The death was termed a homicide by the state police and the state medical examiner's office. The state police Major Crime Squad is investigating the death, but had no further information today, Daly said. The results of an autopsy being conducted by the state medical examiner's office will be released this afternoon, a spokeswoman from the office said.

An armed robber stole a small amount of cash from the 7-11 store at 513 Center St. early today, Manchester police said.

Police said that a masked man displayed a gun as he entered the store shortly before 3 a.m. There were no injuries reported. No further details on the robbery were available this morning.

Donald A. Hebert, 44, of 58 Birch St., was charged with third-degree assault after he allegedly struck his wife several times Saturday night at their home, police said today.

Police said Hebert struck his wife in the head, causing her to become dizzy and lose consciousness when she went to a neighbor's to call for help.

Hebert was taken into custody and held in lieu of a $1,000 surety bond. He was scheduled to appear in court Wednesday.

One woman was admitted to Manchester Memorial Hospital following a two-car accident at Cooper Hill and Fairfield streets shortly after 7 p.m. Sunday, police said today.

Donna Urriano, 40, of 65 Robert Road, was admitted to hospital with a broken wrist and was listed in satisfactory condition today, a hospital spokeswoman said. She was a passenger in a car driven by Daniel Urriano, 39, of 65 Robert Road, who was treated for minor head injuries at the hospital and released.

The Urriano vehicle was struck crosswise by a car driven by Denise E. Mann, 17, of 763 Center St., as it was traveling west on Cooper Hill Street, police said. Mann entered the street from Fairfield Street. She was charged with failure to obey a stop sign.

8th sewer connection is rejected

By Alex Girelli
Associate Editor

Town Public Works Director George Kandra has formally notified the Eighth Utilities District that he will not permit connection of a sanitary sewer line at the location proposed by the district. The notification is contained in a letter from Kandra to District President Walter Joyner dated Friday.

Kandra and Town Manager Robert Weiss have opposed district plans to connect a proposed sewer line to the North Manchester Interceptor at point near North Main Street. The town wants the sewer connected instead to a sewer line on Adams Street.

Neither Joyner nor John D. LaBelle Jr., the district's legal counsel, could be contacted today for comment. Since both the town and the district are adamant on the question of where the sewer should be tied in to the town's system, it appears the dispute might end up in court.

At an April 8 meeting, directors of the district decided to go forward with their sewer plans without waiting for a final review of the plans by the town.

A day earlier, officials of the town and the district met with representatives of Red Roof Inn to discuss the sewer route. Red Roof wants an early decision so it can proceed with plans to build a motel in the Brookfield area of town, where the proposed district sewer, would serve.

At the meeting from which the press was barred, representatives of A.R. Lombardi Associates, consulting engineers for the district, explained their reasoning for recommending connection with the North Manchester Interceptor.

After the meeting, Weiss said the town's position had not changed and that it would not allow the hookup where the district planned it.

In the letter to Joyner, Kandra said a January 1987 town-wide sewer plan was approved by the state and federal governments in connection with grants.

He said that unless there is a substantial reason to change the plan, "we have an obligation to follow it."

Reagan won't push human rights issue

By Iro R. Allen
United Press International

HONOLULU — Despite pleas from members of Congress and several organizations, President Reagan will not press the Indonesian government on the question of human rights abuses, an administration spokesman says.

Reagan, who has promoted his trip to Indonesia and Japan as a journey on the "winds of freedom," said Sunday while in the U.S. has a fundamental commitment to economic, political and social progress in East Asia. "We believe that Asian nations are the masters of their own fate."

"They must work out solutions to problems on their own according to their own particular, and often unique circumstances."

The human rights question threatened to overshadow the first visit of an American President to Indonesia since its 1975 violent annexation of the former Portuguese colony of East Timor.

Reagan, who walked a white sands beach Sunday as he rested for the 15-hour trip from Honolulu to the island of Bali, appeared to self-pedal human rights as he responded to questions submitted by newspapers of the ASEAN nations.

Reagan will meet with President Suharto on Thursday before joining the foreign ministers meeting of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations — Indonesia, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand and Brunei.

Spokesman Larry Speakes called allegations of corruption in the 20-year-old Suharto regime "an internal matter."

On the human rights issue, spokesman Edward Djerejian said, "We don't expect it to be a major item on the agenda" with Suharto, who has proved extremely sensitive to Asian press comparisons between him and deposed Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos.

Asked how Reagan could ignore allegations from human rights and religious groups that the government had killed perhaps 100,000 East Timorese and continues to torture opponents and censor the press, Speakes replied, "I just don't have anything on that."

More than 100 congressmen from both parties wrote Reagan last week urging him "to add the plight of the people of East Timor to your agenda" and bring to bear on Suharto "the prestige and moral influence of the United States."

"The president has strong feelings on human rights, but it is a matter that he believes is most effectively handled through private exchanges," Speakes said.

In a statement before leaving Washington, Reagan declared, "There is no denying that the winds of freedom are blowing east and west. They are brisk and bracing winds, sweeping out the old and I believe, ushering in a new era of freedom."

Arriving in Honolulu Saturday, Reagan said, "The foreign ministers we'll meet in Bali represent nations that have each in large part embraced human liberty, both political and economic."

Broderick Crawford dies at 74

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — With his jowly, kicked-in face and paunchy build, Broderick Crawford looked more like the stevedore he once was than an Oscar-winning actor.

By the time he died Saturday at age 74, Crawford had given memorable performances as a ruthless politician in "All the King's Men," which won him the 1949 Academy Award; and as gruff Chief Dan Mathews of television's "Highway Patrol," who made the phrase "10-4" part of the language.

Crawford suffered a stroke last year and died at Eisenhower Medical Center, where he had recently been admitted, said longtime agent Al Melnick. Funeral services will be private.

With Crawford at his death were his sons, Chris and Kelly, and their mother, Kay Crawford, said hospital spokesman Mike McFadden. He also is survived by his current wife, Mary Alice.

Crawford was born in Philadelphia on Dec. 9, 1911, to Broadway performers Lester Crawford and Helen Broderick. He was first carried on stage at age 8 months.

Despite his Oscar, the only other pinnacle of his career was the 1959 series "Highway Patrol." With a few exceptions, he played thugs and swindlers.

He considered his rough-hewn look his career insurance. "The guys with ugly mug are working," he said once. "And a lot of the pretty boys aren't around much anymore."

Married three times and twice divorced, the gravel-voiced Crawford fought a long battle with alcoholism. He was twice arrested for drunken driving, and divorce lawsuits against him alleged mistreatment.

"He could have been the greatest," said Melnick, "but the one problem that always did him in was the bottle. Brod was promise for Crawford, who had been a Broadway actor in the 1930s, had jobs as a stevedore and merchant seaman between engagements and served in the Army Air Corps during World War II.

Crawford followed "All the King's Men" with a well-received comic performance in "Born Yesterday," but he was then cast in a series of unrewarding movie roles.

Between 1955 and 1959 Crawford appeared in 156 syndicated episodes of "Highway Patrol," creating a lasting image of his character leaning against a patrol car with a microphone in hand, answering a radio message with the code "10-4."

Whale forces deciding seventh game

By Bob Popelt
Herald Sports Writer

HARTFORD — Vintage Whalers — Mike Liut pitched a shutout and Kevin Dineen scored the winning goal.

If you had to draft a script for a Hartford Whalers movie, the climax would look exactly like the real life drama of Game Six of the Adams Division finals.

Liut, Dineen and the Whalers plucked the Montreal Canadiens off the ice after Stephane Richer butt-ended him in the nose. But the strategy backfired, as it provided avoid elimination and force a seventh game.

Game Seven is Tuesday night at the Montreal Forum.

The winner hosts the Patrick Division champion New York Rangers in the Wales Conference finals, beginning Thursday night.

Liut, back in the lineup after missing nearly three games with a bruised right knee, literally saved the Whale. The stand-up goalie stood up the Habs by making 32 saves, at least a half dozen that were heavy-duty clutch.

Dineen, the Tasmanian devil with the "S" on his chest, tipped in a pass from John Anderson for the game's only goal at 7:30 of the second period.

The Canadiens may have home ice for the finale, but it's no advantage, according to the Whalers.

"You could play it on the river if you wanted to and it's not going to make a difference," said Liut. "It doesn't matter where it is."

They're expected to win in their own building and they might be nervous and uptight because the pressure is on them," added left winger Dave Tiptett.

Game Six also featured the return of Hartford's best offensive defenseman, Dave Babych, who missed the past two games with a groin injury. Babych, still not totally mobile, was credited with an assist on the game-winner.

Babych dumped the puck from mid-ice down the right boards, and it zipped around the net as Habs' tender Patrick Roy failed to clear it. Anderson dug the puck out of the left corner and ripped it into the slot, and a charging Dineen banged it up over Roy and under the crossbar.

Melvin L. Thurston
Melvin L. Thurston, 63, of Moreno Valley, Calif., husband of Hope (Smith) Thurston, died Thursday at Christian Hospital Medical Center, Parris, Calif. He was the father of Lester Thurston of Manchester.

Besides his wife and son, he also is survived by five daughters, Edith Harralson of Sacramento, Calif., Luvera Girardin of Colorado Springs, Colo., Katrina Chabot of Sunnymead, Calif., Sandra Sheri-Yo, serving in the United States Army in West Berlin, Germany, and Marcia Williams of Sunnyvale, Calif.; two brothers, Maurice Thurston and Glenn Thurston; one sister, Velma McKenzie; and seven grandchildren.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 9:45 a.m. at Kubodow Mortuary, Riverside, Calif. Burial will be in Riverside National Cemetery, Riverside.

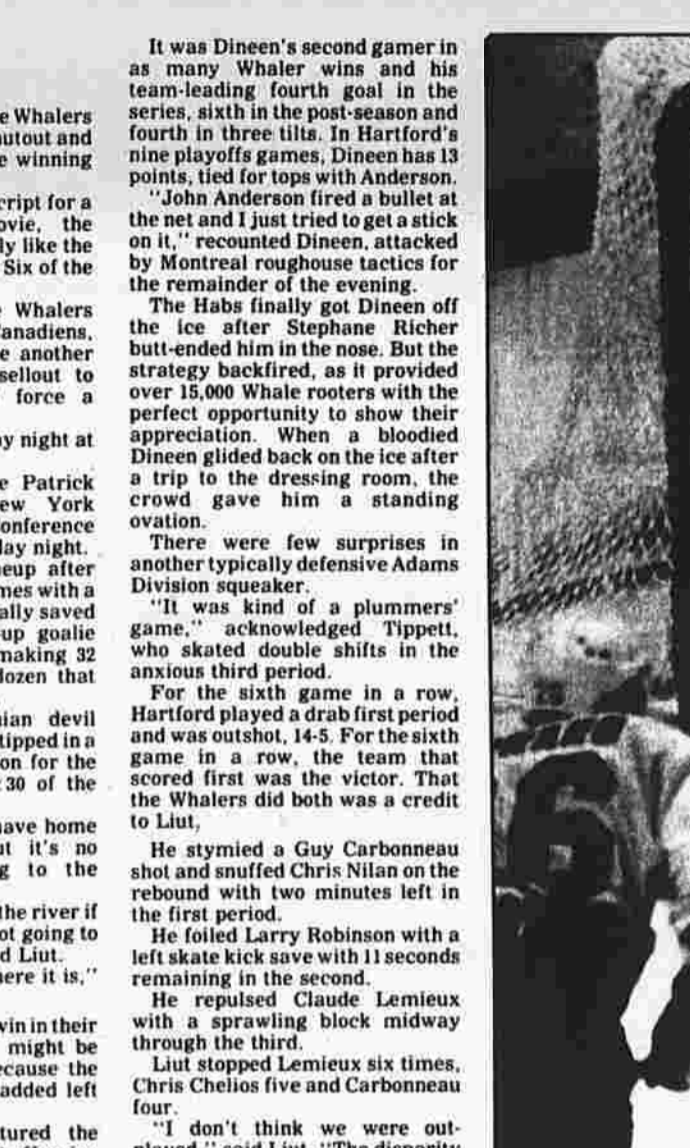

Hugo Feldmueller
Hugo Feldmueller, 87, formerly of 37 Avondale Road, died Sunday at a local convalescent home. He was the husband of Susan (Baye-rle) Feldmueller.

He was born in Pirmasens, West Germany, Feb. 15, 1899, and had lived in Manchester since 1972.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Thomas (Ruth) Connelly of Manchester, who also has two grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

A private funeral and burial will be held by the convenience of the family. There are no calling hours. Holmes Funeral Home, 406 Main St., is in charge of arrangements.

Memorial donations may be made to a charity of the donor's choice.

Whaler goaltending savior Mike Liut gets set to defend against Canadian Claude Lemieux (32) midway through the third period in action Sunday night at the Civic Center.

Liut stopped Lemieux six times. Chris Cheilos five and Carboneau four.

"I don't think we were outplayed," said Liut. "The disparity gets distorted. There was a disparity of shots, but there wasn't a disparity of goals."

"Again, the same story," sighed Canadian coach Jean Perron. "Score, first and you win the game."

In six opening periods, Montreal has a 76-26 advantage in shots on goal.

"We left Mike alone a couple of times and he came up big," noted center Ron Francis, who excelled in a forechecking role. Francis centered Wayne Babych and Torrie Robertson on a line that logged half the ice time in the first two periods, but was employed by Coach Jack Evans with Stewart Gauthier and Tiptett for the nerve-racking third.

The Whalers are 3-3 in the playoffs when they score three goals or less. They were 2-1 in regular season, the one win a 3-0 wash job over Montreal.

Whaler defenseman Ulf Samuelsson, John Quenneville and Scot Kleinendorfer were again

Game Seven at the Montreal Forum. More than one Whaler described it — in proper locker room accent — with the classic cliché.

"This is what hockey is all about."

Now, all the Rangers do. In the Campbell Conference, upstart Calgary can eliminate two-time defending champion Edmonton by winning at home tonight. The Flames led the series 3-2, and a seventh game, if necessary, will be at Edmonton.

Also, Toronto, still another playoff surprise, must win at home to prolong its Norris Division final. The St. Louis Blues lead the series 3-2, and have the home game if it proves necessary.

Every since Pierre got back, we have the feeling we can score goals." Rangers forward Bob Brooke said. It's nothing he brought physically or verbally. It's something that surrounds him.

"As for John," Brooke continued of Vanbiesbroeck. "I still sit on the bench and say 'Did you see that save?' But I stopped saying 'Do you believe that save?' I believe anything."

His second goal came during a power play 34 seconds into the third period, when he batted down his second assist from Mike Ridley and scored through Pete Peeters' legs.

"I was just whacking away, whacked it down, whacked it in," Larouche said, smiling and making staccato hand gestures.

For all Larouche's flippancy about his goals, only fast hands on the ice could have produced them — the hands of a natural scorer.

"Ever since Pierre got back, we

Washington Capitals — still. "I think part of the whole disappointment is we have felt — and I think still feel — we are the better hockey team. Maybe it's just being stupid and headbanded on our part, but it's something we felt. I don't think it was a false enthusiasm or a false analysis of what we were and what we could do."

Capitals center Bobby Carpenter was the last to take off his uniform for the season, leaving his head on his hand and glaring into a corner. By the time he was ready to speak, he was the most vocal.

"Obviously we're the better team. We're a much better team. We just didn't prove it."

Now Sator is being heralded for installing a game plan and instilling confidence.

"I have no revenge, no vengeance, all I want to do is go out there and score goals," Larouche said.

"I've just whacking away, whacked it down, whacked it in," Larouche said, smiling and making staccato hand gestures.

Despite complaints, state says OTB is improving

By Brent Lovman
The Associated Press

WATERBURY — Dominic Rosa, a local developer, thought renting space to an Off-Track Betting parlor a decade ago was a shrewd business move.

The parlor would generate customers, he reasoned, and attract other commercial and retail tenants to the downtown plaza he manages.

Last month, Rosa filed suit to evict OTB from the Buckingham Plaza. Waterbury, contending the parlor attracted loiterers and created an unsavory and unsightly atmosphere that scared away shoppers.

"They devastate whatever area they're in," Rosa complained during a recent interview.

State gaming officials say they're trying to solve such complaints and that Connecticut's OTB system has "turned the corner" after four years of declining profits and other setbacks.

"I believe we're on our way," said Robert Munroe, OTB division chief for the state Division of Revenue Services. "Our revenues are paying off and our handle is starting to move."

Based on current projections, the state's revenue from off-track betting should reach about $18.9 million for the fiscal year ending June 30. That's a modest 1 percent increase over last year on a 2 1/2 percent increase in the handle — the total amount wagered.

Between 1982 and June 30, 1985, state revenues from OTB dropped from $20.2 million to $18.7 million. By contrast, lottery revenues jumped 52 percent during the same period. Profits from jai alai and dog racing also increased modestly each year. The handle has fluctuated between $185 million and $187 million.

Munroe says OTB needs to increase the number of parlors to raise the handle and revenues. That has been a problem, even though towns get 0.4 cents for each $1 bet at their OTB parlors. Norwich receives about $8,000 a year. New Haven, where Tele-track is located, gets about $340,000 a year.

An OTB parlor in Meriden was forced out two years ago after Canberra Industries said it wouldn't move into the Meriden Hub shopping center with an OTB parlor located there. That reduced the number of parlors from 15 to 14 — six fewer than allowed under state law.

Two years ago, Danbury refused to allow a parlor to locate there. Mayor James E. Dyer led the opposition.

"I just didn't feel it was worth the small amount of money we'd get," Dyer said. "I felt it would degrade the area and cause problems for us. It just wasn't attractive."

In November 1983, Enfield voters rejected the idea of placing a so-called super-parlor, with several hundred seats and "simulcasts" of New York races, in their town.

Connecticut created its off-track betting system in 1976, five years after New York City's Off-track Betting Corp. accepted its first $2 bet from Mayor John V. Lindsay. OTB in New York has recently come under criticism from officials who say revenues have been a fraction of what planners had hoped.

Maryland-based American Totalisator Co. Inc. operates OTB under a contract with Connecticut's gaming division. The system includes the 2,300-seat New Haven Teletrack racing theater — OTB's "crown jewel" in the words of one AmTote executive — and the 14 smaller betting parlors.

Munroe says the state and AmTote have made a series of changes to make OTB a better neighbor and more attractive to its customers.

During the last 2 1/2 years, AmTote has spent $428,000 to renovate or move six of its 14 parlors, Munroe said. The state is spending $250,000 a year on increased maintenance, he said.

In January, OTB's computer system was expanded to offer more races, including the entire schedule from the Plainfield Greyhound Park and some races from Hialeah in Florida and Santa Anita Park in California. Races from New York harness and thoroughbred tracks still dominate the business.

The renovated parlors, though hardly posh, include such amenities as toilet facilities, benches, vending machines and non-smoking areas. Five also have a live call of the race.

"In those places where we have been able to provide those types of amenities, you don't have people congregating outside," Munroe said.

Colonial Plaza in Waterbury, about a mile from the downtown Buckingham Plaza, houses one of the new-style parlors.

"The live call boosted our business 20 percent," said John Lenkiewicz, a parlor manager. "They can hear how their horse won — or how the horse died. It creates more of a track atmosphere."

"Our customers don't bother other business," Lenkiewicz said. "This is kind of a social club."

Brophy takes decathlon title

NEW BRITAIN — With a school-record performance, Brian Brophy of Manchester High School captured the decathlon at the New Britain Invitational at Willowbrook Park over the weekend.

Brophy accumulated a total of 6900 points to win going away. "Brian's performance is one of the best in the country this year," cited Manchester coach George Sutor. "It qualifies Brian to compete in the men's junior national championship in Towson, Md., in June. This is the national championship for men 19 and under," he added.

Brophy had five personal records in the two-day competition. He had a time of 11:66 in the 100-meters, a school-record toss of 56-feet, 11-inches in the shot put, and a time of 52:55 in the 400-meter run, a

NL roundup Cards collapse in Mets' series

By Joe Illuzzi
United Press International

A win is a win, whether it comes in April or September. Especially when it comes against your chief divisional rival.

The New York Mets, who lost the National League East title last season, the Cardinals by three games, stormed into St. Louis' Busch Stadium this weekend and swept a four-game series to extend their winning streak to nine.

"It's nice to have," Mets manager Davey Johnson said after Sunday's 5-3 victory. "We've had some tough times here in this park. It proves to St. Louis we can beat them here."

Last year, they gave everyone in the league a tough time, and we need to do well against them."

While the Mets are coasting along with their best start ever - 11-3 - the Cardinals are playing horrendous ball. They have lost seven straight after starting the season 7-1.

"I'd have liked to win four straight," Cardinals manager Whitey Herzog said. "But I don't know if we can beat anybody the way we're playing."

New York received another well-pitched game Sunday, this one from newcomer Bob Ojeda. The left-hander, whose acquisition from Boston solidified an already strong staff, earned the victory by going the distance for the first time this year.

Ojeda is new to the Mets and the National League, but he is fully aware of what beating the Cardinals means.

"It's a battle against someone you're going to have to beat in order to win the division," Ojeda said. "They got a great ballclub and will do it just as well as we've got a great ballclub this year. It's going to be a battle for the No. 1 spot. The difference today was our offense came through in the clutch."

The Mets scored three runs in the fourth inning to take a 3-1 lead. Kevin Mitchell hit his first career home run to lead off the inning. With one out, Keith Hernandez singled, Gary Carter hit a grounder to shortstop, but Ozzie Smith threw the ball over Tom Herr's head at second base for an error, putting runners at second and third. Hernandez scored on a Darryl Strawberry groundout, and Carter came home on a George Foster single.

New York beat Cardinals ace Jon Tudor, 3-1, who had his 18-game winning streak at Busch Stadium and his 14-game regular-season winning streak snapped.

Elswhere in the NL, Pittsburgh clobbered Philadelphia 13-5, Chicago rallied past Montreal 12-10, Houston blanked Cincinnati 8-0, San Diego stopped San Francisco 6-4, and Los Angeles whipped Atlanta 7-4.

Phillies 5, Pirates 4

At Pittsburgh, Bill Almon homered for the second straight game and drove in four runs to lead the Pirates over the error-plagued Phillies. Mike Bielecki, 1-0, registered the victory. Pittsburgh sent 10 batters to the plate in the bottom of the second off loser Steve Carlton, 1-3, to break open the game.

The Mets scored three runs in the fourth inning to take a 3-1 lead. Kevin Mitchell hit his first career home run to lead off the inning. Strange's victory takes the heat off

By Richard Luno
United Press International

THE WOODLANDS, Texas — Curtis Strange, seeking to regain the form that made him the PGA's leading money-winner in 1985, believes his playoff victory over Calvin Peete in the $500,000 Houston Open is just what he needed.

Strange, who entered Sunday's final round trailing Peete, Tom Watson and Jay Haas by 3 strokes, fired a 6-under-par 66 to finish regulation play tied with Peete at 14-under-par 274.

Strange and Peete were even through two playoff holes before Strange sank a 30-foot putt on the 18th hole to put together the best round possible.

"I think I put a lot of heat on myself after 1985," said Strange, who earned a tour-record $2,321 last year. "This win took the heat off. This relaxes me tremendously."

It was Strange's ninth career victory and his third in five playoffs.

Peete, who either shared or held the tournament lead from the opening round, earned $54,000. It was the first time he has been in a playoff.

"That didn't affect me," Peete said. "I felt I played good. I have no complaints, Curtis just played better. I missed a few chances and coming in. Playing against any top player, you can't beat them with your eyes."

Tom Watson finished third at 12-under 276, two strokes behind the leaders. Bruce Lietzke, Jay Haas and David Edwards tied at 9-under-par 279.

A happy Curtis Strange thrusts his fist into the air after winning the Houston Open on the third sudden death hole in a playoff with Calvin Peete. The pair had ended regulation tied at 14-under-par 274.

January and Littler secure Legends title

By Mike Rubin
United Press International

AUSTIN, Texas — The philosophy among those who stage the Legends of Golf is that the tournament makes a better show if there are some particularly strong teams battling for the title.

"You can handicap a horse race," said Don January, "but you can't handicap a golf tournament."

And for the last two years, the best team of all has been January and his partner, Gene Littler.

They combined Sunday to win their second straight Legends crown, firing a final round 64 for a 72-hole total of 25-under 255.

That was good for a two-shot victory over the last-closing team of Jim Ferree and Charles Sifford. Littler and January won for the second straight year, becoming the first repeat champions in the tournament's nine-year history.

Although the Legends was the first of the seniors tournament and is still looked upon chiefly as a reunion for the game's great names, the competition has gotten almost as fierce as on the regular tour.

"About three years ago," said January, "a lot of the players got together and talked to (tournament chief) Fred Raphael. We love the nostalgia of the Legends, but still have to have competition. And competition is best when you put two good players together rather than one good and one not so good. It is hard to put one old and one young, one one good and one halfway good and make anything even."

"So we suggested we put about eight strong teams together. And with a final round 62 Sunday, closing within a shot of the lead before Littler made a critical 30-foot birdie putt at the tough par-4 15th.

"Sifford and Ferree made it close with a final round 62 Sunday, closing within a shot of the lead before Littler made a critical 30-foot birdie putt at the tough par-4 15th.

Colles, who lost despite shooting a 69, earned $18,500 and finished at 273.

AL roundup Rangers' gamble on Witt paying off

By Mike Tully
United Press International

The Texas Rangers made two player development gambles this spring, and one of them appears to be working.

In one, they invited criticism by rushing right-hander Bobby Witt to the majors with only 11 games of minor-league experience. In the other, they named slugger Pete Incaviglia their starting right fielder, fresh from college.

So far, Incaviglia is struggling with a .155 average, but Witt surprised them by hitting .260 in the seventh before being lifted with one out.

The 47-year-old knuckleballer received warm ovations from the crowd of 46,607 when he took the mound in the first inning and when he left in the seventh.

"It was a big lift when all the fans got behind me," he said. "I made me want to throw harder. Fortunately, it turned out well for me today. Unfortunately, it didn't for the ballclub."

After the Yankees built a 4-0 lead after three innings, Cleveland got single runs in the fifth — on Carter's third homer — and the sixth. He scored three runs in the seventh to take a 5-4 lead. The Yankees came back in their half of the seventh to score three runs — two on bases-loaded walks — to take a 7-5 advantage.

Rangers' offense.

"Witt showed me a lot today," Bobby Valentine said. "He pitched it up and put on an outstanding performance. He probably could have finished the game, but with the blister and the number of pitches he had thrown, I wanted him out."

Witt, 24, collected his 21st strikeout of Brewers batters in two games this year, and reduced his ERA to 3.80. He has 27 strikeouts for the year in 21.1 innings. Juan Nieves, 6-1, suffered the loss for Milwaukee. He allowed six hits in 6 2/3 innings, and three earned runs.

"Milwaukee took a 1-0 lead in the second on a single by Jim Gantner and walks to Paul Houshander, Charlie Moore and Paul Molitor.

"There's a point where things are going real well and you are in a groove, and then something happens and you get out of that groove," Witt said. "I think that's what happened to me in the second inning. When I got into that jam, I just had to think about what I was doing wrong, and stay within myself to pitch the way I know I can."

"I thought we had him at that point, but he came back strong," said Brewers manager George Bamberger. "He has a good, strong arm."

In other games, Toronto blanked Baltimore 8-0, Cleveland downed New York 9-7, California beat Minnesota 8-7, Detroit downed Chicago 4-1, and Oakland shredded Seattle 1-0. Boston at Kansas City was postponed because of rain.

Blue Jays 8, Orioles 0

At Baltimore, rookie Cecil Fielder blasted a two-run homer, and George Bell and Rance Mullins added solo shots to support the shutout. Blue Jays manager Jim Carden, 2-1, the shutout was the eighth of Clancy's nine-year career and his first since 1983. Ken Dixon, 2-1, took the loss.

Butler's patience upends the Yanks

By Kevin Kenney
United Press International

NEW YORK — Brett Butler waited for his pitch ... and waited ... and waited.

When it finally came — after seven straight foul balls — the Cleveland center fielder laced a two-run double to left field to cap a four-run eighth inning and give the Indians a 9-7 victory over the New York Yankees.

Butler, who earlier cracked his first home run of the season, completed a 2-for-5, three-RBI performance with his game-winning hit off reliever Dave Righetti, 2-1.

The hit climaxed a wild game in which there were three late-inning lead changes, the emotional return to New York of former Yankee Phil Niekro, and a one-inning relief stint by the Yankees' Ed Whitson, his first appearance in Yankee Stadium since April 9, when he was asked to be removed from the home rotation because of fans' unruly treatment.

"I felt like I couldn't throw him a ball," Righetti said of his show-down with Butler. "It wasn't even that he hit a bad pitch. He was just able to get good wood on it."

Cleveland trailed 7-5, entering the eighth, but sent seven batters to the plate against Righetti for the winning rally. Righetti got just one quick out before Pat Tabler and pinch runner Carmen Castillo hit consecutive singles. Joe Carter — who was 4-for-4 with four RBI — then singled home Tabler, and Chris Chambliss walked to score Castillo.

Butler, the next batter, went to 3 and 1, then threw off seven straight Righetti fastballs before ripping his game-winning hit to the opposite field, scoring Carter from second and Banks from first.

"I'm my own worst critic," Butler said. "I hit it where I was supposed to hit it, but I was just supposed to hit it where I was supposed to hit it."

Scott Ballies, the third of four Cleveland pitchers, improved to 3-1 with two-thirds of an inning of relief. Rich Yetz worked the last two for his first save.

Derby field is growing

By Philo Smith
United Press International

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Howard Groovy, is delighted the starting field of the Kentucky Derby might number the maximum 20 horses rather than the anticipated 15 or 16, week in New York, also said he appreciated the ovation.

"It was a big lift when all the fans got behind me," he said. "I made me want to throw harder. Fortunately, it turned out well for me today. Unfortunately, it didn't for the ballclub."

After the Yankees built a 4-0 lead after three innings, Cleveland got single runs in the fifth — on Carter's third homer — and the sixth. He scored three runs in the seventh to take a 5-4 lead. The Yankees came back in their half of the seventh to score three runs — two on bases-loaded walks — to take a 7-5 advantage.

Trainers with Derby horses who run off the pace were unhappy to hear owners were considering sending Ensign Rhythm, Royal Doulton and Mr. Classic to Churchill Downs for the 118th Run for the Roses Saturday.

"His big field can result in rallying traffic jams."

"Any time there's light traffic, you feel better," said Phil Gleaves, whose colt Wise Times came from the back of the pack to win the Lexington Stakes and a start in the Derby.

Robert Brennan and Carlos Garcia, owner and trainer respectively of Garden State Stakes winner Fobby Forbes, were not happy about the news, either.

Should owners of more than 20 horses show up Thursday to pay the $10,000 entry fees, the actual starters would be determined by highest earnings in graded stakes. Application of that rule would eliminate Fobby Forbes, who has been at Churchill since last Thursday, since all of his $263,400 in career earnings come only from non-graded stakes races.

Racing secretary Jerry Botts said representatives of Lucille Weber's Royal Doulton and Lush-and-Farm's Ensign Rhythm called his office Saturday to inquire about entry fees, stable space and the like. Both callers told Botts decisions probably would be made some time today.

Botts said he had not heard from Murray Garron, owner and trainer of Mr. Classic, but Garren said in New York Sunday he was considering the Derby.

"I haven't made up my mind," Garren said. "I won't know for a day or two. There's no rush."

"My vet wants to go. As for me, I'm not sure. I was very disappointed in his race Friday. I thought he was a living clinic."

Angels 8, Twins 7

At Minneapolis, Ruppert Jones hit a two-run homer, and Reggie Jackson had three hits and two RBI to lead a 14-hit attack that carried the Angels. Rookie T.R. Bryden, 2-0, was for the second straight day in relief. Roy Smith, the third of four Minnesota pitchers, fell to 0-2.

Tigers 4, White Sox 1

At Detroit, Lou Whitaker's two-run triple with one out in the sixth spoiled a strong performance by Chicago rookie Joel Davis and ended the White Sox's four-game winning streak. Jack Morris, 3-2, notched his first complete game of the season. Ron Kittle homered for Chicago.

A's 1, Mariners 0

At Oakland, Rick Langford and Jay Howell combined on a two-hitter for the A's. Langford, 1-2, struck out seven batters. Howell earned his fourth save.

Bucs hope Jackson will save franchise

By Dove Roffo
United Press International

NEW YORK — Bo Jackson has been described by most NFL scouts as a franchise player, and he appears headed toward a team in dire need of exactly that.

Besides finishing 2-14 in 1985, the Tampa Bay Buccaneers were hurtling at the gate. The Buccaneers averaged 38,733 for eight home games at 74,270-capacity Tampa Stadium, and drew just 25,577 against Indianapolis and 33,992 against Green Bay in their last two games. The season average and Colts' game were franchise lows.

Tampa Bay owner Hugh Culverhouse realizes how Jackson, James Wilder and quarterback Steve Young in the backfield, can make the Buccaneers much more effective on the field and at the turnstiles.

"We're thinking of a backfield of Jackson and Wilder — Jamba," said Culverhouse, whose team has the first round of the NFL draft in Tuesday's NFL draft. "This is the most critical draft in Buc's history and I've never taken as active a role in club operations as I have now. I'd like for people to look back on this draft a few years from now and say Tampa Bay had an opportunity to turn a team completely around and took advantage of it."

"Of all the assets I own, the Bucs are the one I treasure most and I feel we're not that far away."

Culverhouse's other businesses include a law practice, real estate development and banking interests.

Tampa Bay coach Leeman Bennett would like an offensive line and two defensive players, and the Buccaneers don't rule out trading one or more of these picks to get what they want. Tampa Bay has also been fielding offers for the No. 1 pick, but will most likely use the pick on Jackson.

Culverhouse vows to beat any offer Jackson might get from major league baseball teams or the NFL (Birmingham has his rights).

Other NFL teams already are thinking of the Buccaneers' "Jamba" backfield.

"Now Tampa Bay already has James Wilder, so going to add Bo Jackson, so maybe we better draft to stop the run," said Darryl Rogers, coach of Tampa Bay's NFL Central rival Detroit Lions, who are in need of a quarterback and running back.

The second pick Tuesday also bears close watching by all 28 teams. The Atlanta Falcons said they will use the pick for Oklahoma's Tony Casillas, making him by far the highest drafted pure nose tackle coming out of college. Although most NFL teams have used a 3-4 defense for at least several years, nose tackles are usually converted 4-3 tackles, the first round draft choices or free agents.

The Falcons will be moving from

Noah's new arrival an aid to Nystrom

By Joe Illuzzi
United Press International

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — Joakim Nystrom sees his victory over Yannick Noah Sunday in part to a baby girl.

Nystrom took a 6-3, 6-2 victory in the final of the $405,000 Monte Carlo Open after Noah learned his wife, Celia, gave birth to their second child, a girl, at New York.

"I've already forgotten the match," said the 25-year-old Noah Sunday.

"I used up a lot of strength in my semifinal Saturday against Mats Wilander, and I was tired today," Noah said. "But even though I lost, I'm happy with my performance at Monte Carlo."

Noah was fined $500 by the tournament supervisor for leaving the court at a doubles match Friday before the umpire officially declared a postponement due to rain.

Nystrom moves on Monday to the $99,000 Madrid Open, where he is to be top seed ahead of another hot Swede, Anders Jarryd, winner two weeks ago of the WCT championship at Dallas.

You can get many benefits in credit union membership

If steep charges for basic monthly banking services are putting you in an unenviable position, consider joining a credit union.

More than 52 million Americans have preceded you and now rely on credit unions for basic banking and other financial services, and the total is growing.

Membership in credit unions increased by 6 percent in 1985 while savings rose 23.4 percent to a total of $126 billion. To illustrate what that total means to other financial institutions, savings rose a comparatively small 9.5 percent in 1985.

Sharply rising costs on monthly checking accounts have been a sore point for consumers in recent years. Today only about 5 percent of banks and savings and loans do not impose such charges.

In contrast, 75 percent of credit unions offering checking services don't charge these fees.

When credit unions require minimum balances for share draft accounts — which is what credit unions call checking services — they are lower than those required by banks and S&Ls, according to studies prepared by the Consumer Federation of America and the Credit Union National Association.

Certain checking accounts, which at banks might cost you up to $75 a year, can cost as little as $2 annually at some credit unions.

Key reason: Since credit unions are non-profit organizations, they can usually offer financial services at lower costs than commercial institutions.

sure deposits up to $100,000 at most credit unions can be especially helpful to retirees or others on fixed incomes. In fact, says Howard Cosgrove, CUNA's spokesman, a number of credit unions are actively seeking ways to bring in retirees as members. One possibility is through membership in local senior citizens' groups.

To join a credit union, you must share a "common bond" with other members. This can mean a shared employer, or group of employers; it can mean, as well, residence in the same community, or membership in a religious or professional organization or labor union.

Historically, credit unions have been organized around employers. Even today, about 80 percent of credit unions work this way.

Instead of serving just one employer, however, many now serve a moderate number of employers.

Other credit unions open membership to residents in their geographical areas.

In the past, credit unions were limited in the kind of services they could offer members, although the services included free or low-cost checking, and higher rates on regular savings accounts than offered at commercial institutions.

Thoughts

"Who Me?"

The Lord said, "Go." And I said, "Do I have to?"

And He said, "Yes, you." People are going to cut me up in little pieces and hate me and I can't leave the kids and you know there is no one to take my place.

And He said, "You're stalling." And again the Lord said, "Go." And I said, "But I don't want to." And He said, "I didn't ask if you wanted to."

And yet a third time the Lord said, "Go." And I said, "Do I have to?" And He said, "Do you love Me?" And I said, "Lord, I'm scared." People are going to cut me up in little pieces and hate me and I can't take it all by myself.

And He said, "Where do you think I'll be?" And the Lord said, "Go." And I said, "Here I am, send me!"

A '100 percent American' looks like just about anyone

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Regarding "100 Percent American": The American of Oriental descent complained that within five minutes of being introduced to a Caucasian, he was asked, "What are you?" You replied that it was rude to ask personal questions at any time, but because the average Caucasian doesn't know a Chinese from a Japanese, Cambodian, Vietnamese, Korean or a Thai, the question seemed reasonable — but it was still rude.

Rude? I disagree. Inquiries about a person's roots are not necessarily rude. It shows a sincere interest in their heritage. The Orient is a rich and diverse geography. The face of an Oriental person has her heritage. His looks tell of a passage through villages, cultures and languages — but which ones? His story is probably quite fascinating. I don't think it's rude to observe that such a face has a rich ancestry. I think it's a positive component of international understanding.

AMERICAN NAMED FINN
Many people have the false impression that all "real" Americans must be white (or at least black). I don't speak with a foreign accent, my dress is typically American, but because I am not the "right" color, many people automatically assume that I am not American.

DEAR AMERICAN: My mail was heavy on this one. Without exception, all writers of Oriental descent resented being asked, "What are you?" shortly after being introduced.

A typical letter:

DEAR ABBY: I, too, am 100 percent American, and because I to relax? Are these heart palpitations serious?

DEAR READER: Without knowing the precise nature of your lung surgery, I cannot speculate as to whether your symptoms are due to the operation. However, anxiety is common in new mothers, and I suspect that your palpitations and dizziness are caused by the stress and fatigue of your added responsibilities. Check with your obstetrician to make sure your blood pressure as well as your thyroid gland, in otherwise healthy women, palpitations are by themselves, no cause for concern. Perhaps you need to learn about stress management techniques, such as meditation, to help you relax.

country started out as an empty land, and all the races that are represented here now (yes, even the American Indian) came from other parts of the world. We are all Americans, regardless of our ancestors' origins.

A REAL AMERICAN
DEAR ABBY: I am often asked, "What are you?" It's not the personal nature of this question that bothers me, it's the question itself. This query seems to question my very humanity. "What am I?" Why, I'm a human like everyone else!

Another question I am frequently asked is, "Where did you come from?" This would be an innocent question when one Caucasian asks it of another, but when it is asked of an Asian, it takes on a different tone. I suppose I am expected to say that I am from faraway China or Japan. When I reply, "I'm from right here, Portland, Oregon," they are invariably surprised. Why? Because they find it hard to believe that an Asian-looking person is actually a native, true-blue, 100 percent American — and not a recently arrived immigrant from some foreign country.

DEAR JIMMY: For Tip O'Neill to be lying to smuggle down past a rocketing.

DEAR JIMMY: I am another "100 Percent American" of Oriental heritage, but I was born in the United States of America. When I am asked by Caucasians, "Where are you from?" I always reply, "Texas."

DEAR AMERICAN: My mail was heavy on this one. Without exception, all writers of Oriental descent resented being asked, "What are you?" shortly after being introduced.

A typical letter:

DEAR ABBY: I, too, am 100 percent American, and because I
