Confidential session

Television talk show host Phil Donahue and the man he brawled with in an airport met before a mediator to discuss the affair, but they didn't bury the hatchet. "The case was heard, a session was held, but there was no agreement," said Peter Boyke, director of the Victim Services Agency center in New York City. Donahue, 56, and William Ferguson, 24, met for about an hour Monday with mediator Elaine Palevsky. Boyke said, "Whatever went on inside must be held confidential," he said, adding that Donahue and Ferguson left calmly. Donahue and Ferguson, a supporter of political extremist Lyndon LaRouche, fought in La Guardia Airport on May 11. Donahue said Ferguson shouted abuse at him as he walked by.

A tough year

The three surviving Frustaci septuplets, who celebrate their first birthday today, are developing slowly, and two may have cerebral palsy, a family attorney says. Sam and Patti Frustaci of Riverside, Calif., are still busy caring for Richard, Stephen and Patti, who demand constant attention and frequent trips to the hospital, said lawyer Janice Corsino. "It's been a tough year for the Frustacis. They (the babies) are very slow developing, and it seems that the boys are not as active as the girl," said Corsino, one of the attorneys representing the family in its suit against the doctor and clinic where Mrs. Frustaci was given a fertility drug. The Frustacis, who have sold the rights to their story to People magazine, declined to be interviewed.

Yoko determined

Yoko Ono says that despite advice to call off her North American tour because tickets have sold poorly, she insisted on performing in some cities for sentimental reasons, including Montreal. "This is where 'Give Peace a Chance' was made and I have an incredible memory of that," she said at a news conference at a hotel only a few blocks from where she staged a well-publicized 16-day "bed-in" for peace with her husband John Lennon in 1969. Shortly after Lennon's murder in 1980, she said she considered staging another bed-in for peace by herself with an empty pillow beside her to symbolize that she and he were still together. "But I thought the '80s climate was not agreeable to that..."

HRC backs new hiring plan despite criticism of figures

By John F. Kirch
Herold Reporter

The Human Relations Commission voted 5-1 Tuesday night to recommend that the town adopt a new affirmative action plan designed to bring more women and minority-group members into the municipal workforce.

The dissenting vote was cast by Jonathan Mercier, who said the plan contains unrealistic hiring goals and gives the impression the town is not doing its part to hire more women and members of minority groups.

HRC Chairman Robert Faucher, Vice Chairman Ronald Osella and commission members Louis Kocis, Eleanor Tunney and Kathy Dimlow voted to recommend adoption of the advisory plan to the Manchester Board of Directors.

Before the vote, Mercier argued that the figures used to compute the percentage of women and minority-group members in the area labor market were inaccurate because they included almost all of Hartford County. The area from which the town draws most of its job applicants is smaller and contains fewer minority-group members, he said.

The figures, which were supplied by the state, are important because they are used to compute the town's hiring goals. The percentage of women and minority-group members living in the Hartford area was compared with the percentage employed by the town and the goals were then set to try to close the gap.

AT TUESDAY'S MEETING, Mercier provided statistics which he said were more accurate because they reflected the composition of the labor force in Manchester, Bolton, Glastonbury, East Hartford, South Windsor and Vernon, the towns he said most municipal employees come from.

Women and minority-group members make up 3.6 percent of the labor market in those six towns, he said. A figure of 11.1 percent was used to calculate the goals in the new plan.

Osella, who led the arguments in favor of the plan, said Mercier may be right. But Osella said he wanted to get an affirmative action plan adopted so that the town could work toward hiring more women and blacks, Hispanics and other minority-group members.

"I wanted to move the plan along now and then review it in a year from now to see if the goals are still realistic," Osella said today.

One of the biggest criticisms of an affirmative action plan adopted by the town in 1976 was that it set unrealistically high goals for hiring more women and minority-group members. The new plan, which must be approved by the Board of Directors before it is formally put into place, would replace the earlier plan.

THE TOWN has been under criticism for years for its inability to hire more minority-group members, particularly in the police department, which employs only whites.

The proposed new plan sets a goal of hiring an additional 14 minority-group members and four women in eight job categories by January 1991.

Mercier said the higher minority statistics from the Hartford area give the impression that Manchester needs to hire more women and minority-group members than it actually does.

As of May 1985, according to the proposed plan, the town employed 448 workers. Of that number, four — or 1 percent — were members of a minority group.

Using a figure of 11.1 percent for the minority population in the Hartford area, the plan concludes that the town needs to hire 42 more minority-group members to close the gap. It sets a goal of hiring 14 minority-group members within the next five years as the first step.

Using Mercier's figure of 3.6 percent, the town would need to hire 17 additional minority-group members to close the gap instead of 42.

SUGGESTING THAT the town needs to hire 42 minority-group members is misleading to the public, Mercier said. It also makes the town's five-year goal of hiring 14 new minority-group members look like the town is not doing enough to alleviate the imbalance, he said.

Mercier said he was not sure what his next step would be. He said he may write a letter to the Board of Directors explaining his position or attend one of its meetings.

Whatever course he chooses, Mercier has an important ally on the Board of Directors in Geoffrey Naab, a former HRC member who resigned when he was appointed to the board to replace Donna Mercier.

Naab, who sat on the sidelines of Tuesday's HRC meeting, helped work on the affirmative action plan and said he strongly agrees with Mercier.

The new affirmative action plan was drafted by an HRC subcommittee that included Osella, Naab, Tunney and Nicki Osella.

MANCHESTER IN BRIEF

Hands will cross Bennet

All 700 students at Bennet Junior High School will join hands Thursday afternoon in front of the school on Main Street to raise community awareness of Sunday's "Hands Across America" project.

The efforts will be "more symbolic than substance," the school will collect what it can to benefit the project, Bennet Principal Thomas Meisner said.

The Bennet band will lead the event on the school lawn at 1 p.m. and there will be some other activities before the student body and staff join hands, Meisner said.

"We've never done anything like this before," Meisner said. "We're trying to keep it simple."

"Hands Across America" organizers are attempting to get people to pledge money for the nation's poor and hungry people in return for joining hands with others across the nation. The human chain is expected to extend from New York City to Los Angeles, with some breaks in western states.

Hearty residents to be jailed

Eight Manchester residents will spend part of today "incarcerated" for the benefit of the American Heart Association.

From 1 to 8 p.m., the prisoners will be held at the real estate office of State Rep. James McCarvagh to serve a sentence of hard labor at the telephones, asking friends to make contributions to the Heart Association.

Donors agree to donate money to help bail out the prisoners or to prolong their sentence.

The prisoners are Joseph Diminico, assistant director of the Senior Citizens' Center; Anne Flint, president of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce; Joyce Epstein, a real estate broker; Richard Dyer, a member of the Board of Education; Mary Willide, Republican registrar of voters; Louis Kocis, a constable and a member of the Republican Town Committee; Ronald Kraatz, the town's director of health; and Geoffrey Naab, a newly appointed member of the town's Board of Directors.

Today's drive will be the fourth annual Heart Hostage Day. Last year the event earned $3,300 in pledges.

Donna Mercier, a former member of the town Board of Directors, is chairwoman of the event.

CPR classes continue at MMH

The Manchester CPR Project will hold several training classes in cardiopulmonary resuscitation next month at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

One-night classes in basic CPR will be held June 3, 9 and 23, and an advanced training class will be held June 16 and 17. All classes run from 7 to 11 p.m. in the first-floor conference rooms.

To register, call Barbara Fassett at the hospital at 646-1222, extension 2313. The cost is $7 a person or $10 for a family.

Bands bring honor to town

Manchester High, Illing are winners

Bands from two Manchester schools had busy weekends winning awards in national competition for their efforts.

The 73 members of the Illing jazz concert and marching bands — and the school's flag corps — received excellent ratings at a national music festival in Montreal, Canada, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Competing with 17 other schools from as far away as Florida and Virginia, the Illing bands — led by third-year director or Bridget Gilchrist, who was assisted by Jon Noyes — received third-place trophies for concert and jazz competition. The marching band and flag corps, directed by Debbie Palmer, came in second, losing by one point to Plainville High School from Connecticut.

Gilchrist said band members were amazed they did so well — and some even lost their voices, while the concert players took seventh out of 22 in that category.

The band also found the time to tour Montreal, visiting the Olympic Park arena and Velodrome, the Montreal convention center and the University of Montreal.

Meanwhile, the Manchester High School jazz and concert bands under the direction of Kurt Ekhardt, won recognition at a similar national competition in Virginia Beach, Va.

Ekhardt said the 28 members of the jazz band came in second out of 14 bands in the weekend festival, while the concert players took seventh out of 22 in that category.

Although band members had no idea what the competition was going to be like, Ekhardt said he had thought the jazz band would do well.

"There's some good talent in the group and a good amount of motivation among the students to improve," he said.

Both band directors said they are now concentrating on getting ready for the town Memorial Day parade, which is Monday.

GOP leaders predict success in teacher-pay session

By Mark A. Dupuis
United Press International

HARTFORD — The General Assembly convened a special session on education today with Republican leaders predicting they will be able to come to agreement on a multi-million dollar program to raise teacher salaries.

The leaders of the GOP majorities in the House and Senate planned to devote today to approving rules for the session and said they did not expect votes on an education bill for another week or so.

Democratic Gov. William A. O'Neill ordered the special session May 7 when this year's regular session ended with House and Senate Republicans unable to agree on a program to raise salaries and standards for teachers.

The top four Republican leaders in the House and Senate met for about 3½ hours Tuesday to discuss rules and strategy for the session and said afterward the meeting went well.

When the four emerged from the meeting, there was a lot of talk of the sharp divisions that existed between the two chambers when the regular session reached its adjournment deadline without approving an education bill.

"We have moved from 'ground zero' to the launching pad," said Senate Majority Leader Reginald J. Smith, R-New Hartford, who said the leaders agreed to keep an open mind on the various proposals under consideration.

"If the mood that I sensed today continues I think we can put something together in a week to 10 days," Smith said, describing the meeting as "extremely amiable, conciliatory."

"There was just a good exchange of thoughts," said House Speaker R.E. Van Norstrand, R-Darien, who echoed Smith's assessment that the meeting was friendly and upbeat.

Both Smith and Van Norstrand said there were still differences between the House and Senate leaders, but they declined to go into details.

Senate President Pro Tempore

Philip S. Robertson, R-Cheshire, said it is possible lawmakers will "deviate slightly" and take up more than education in the session, but he refused to elaborate.

Van Norstrand said it is possible lawmakers could have additional state employee contracts to approve but said he did not see anything else coming up during the special session.

When the regular session ended, House and Senate Republicans were at odds with each other on a program to improve the quality of teaching in the state's public schools.

The House had approved a $80 million plan worked out in negotiations with O'Neill, while the Senate refused to go along and stood by its approval of a $77 million program the governor considered unacceptable.

A chief stumbling block between O'Neill and the Republicans and between the House and Senate Republicans has been whether to require all cities and towns to set a mandatory minimum starting salary for teachers.

"I just think we need some new blood," said Brenda Machia of Main Street. Calling Moffett "a straight shooter," Machia said O'Neill was "very narrow-minded."

Steve Bruckner of Hamlin Street also voted for the town slate of 25 delegates that favored Moffett, which lost to the one backing O'Neill. "He seems energetic and has a lot of ideas," he said. Bruckner criticized O'Neill for not doing enough to repair the state's roads and bridges. He argued that while the governor spent money on the infrastructure, he did it only "because he had to."

Scott Waller of Main Street said he voted for the Moffett slate, but was still undecided. "I just want to see him (Moffett) get to the primary," he said. "I ain't too crazy about O'Neill, but I'm not too sure Moffett's the guy."

A woman who refused to identify herself criticized O'Neill for increasing taxes.

"Everything goes up," she complained after voting for the Moffett slate. "We need a change."

DESPITE SUCH COMMENTS, most of the Democrats voting at Nathan Hale School, where O'Neill or his challenger for the party's gubernatorial nomination, Toby Moffett.

At the District 6 polling station at Nathan Hale School — where Moffett supporters were able to elect four members to the Democratic Town Committee in January — some exiting voters expressed strong sentiment for Moffett.

"I just think we need some new blood," said Brenda Machia of Main Street. Calling Moffett "a straight shooter," Machia said O'Neill was "very narrow-minded."

Steve Bruckner of Hamlin Street also voted for the town slate of 25 delegates that favored Moffett, which lost to the one backing O'Neill. "He seems energetic and has a lot of ideas," he said. Bruckner criticized O'Neill for not doing enough to repair the state's roads and bridges. He argued that while the governor spent money on the infrastructure, he did it only "because he had to."

Scott Waller of Main Street said he voted for the Moffett slate, but was still undecided. "I just want to see him (Moffett) get to the primary," he said. "I ain't too crazy about O'Neill, but I'm not too sure Moffett's the guy."

At the District 12 polling station at Howell Cheney Regional Vocational Technical School, voters interviewed most favored O'Neill. The governor topped Moffett in the district 157 to 133.

"HE'S DOING a good job," James Martin said after casting his ballot for the O'Neill slate. Martin said there was no particular reason behind his decision, although he joked that he voted for O'Neill because "he's an Irishman."

Daniel and Eva Savino of Love Lane also said they backed O'Neill. Daniel Savino said Moffett did a good job as a U.S. representative, but "I can't see him as governor."

At the District 9 polling place at the Keeney Street School, the O'Neill slate defeated Moffett delegates 187 to 122. The comments of people leaving the voting booth reflected this difference.

Ed Jolly of Strawberry Lane voted for the O'Neill slate. "Basically I'm pretty satisfied with his results. He's helped out the town of Manchester a lot," he said.

Helen Diehl and her husband, Ambrose Diehl, agreed. "I think O'Neill can handle the Republicans better," she said. "I don't have anything against Moffett." Mrs. Diehl said. "The Democrats this time around have to play the ball game," her husband added.

Tom Lattanzio of Barnwood Road

also voted for the governor's slate. "O'Neill's record on public education is number one. I think he has a handle on the pollution problem in the state. Being the incumbent, he has the leg up."

GINNY GIBSON of Santana Drive said she voted for the Moffett slate because, "I like his platform. I've always liked Toby Moffett throughout his career."

Paula Mattsson of Hackmatack Street tried to add her vote to Moffett's total, but found out that she was not allowed. Mattsson is registered as an independent, not a Democrat.

"I was all psyched up to vote. I thought anyone could vote," she said. Although the Manchester Democrats divided their ballots in the primary, they did not display any animosity as they left the polls.

"I met a nice person and I hope she feels the same," said Frank Stamler, a longtime Democrat who was distributing O'Neill campaign cards outside of Keeney Street School. His new friend was East Haddam Democrat Susan Merrow, who was handing out Moffett cards.

"We're becoming friends last," Merrow said. "In a short while we'll be on the same side anyway."

Petroni wins in Stamford

STAMFORD (AP) — Romeo Petroni says his fellow Republicans can't ignore his gubernatorial candidacy any longer, now that he's won a delegate primary in Stamford.

Petroni took the city's 26 delegates in a narrow victory Tuesday over Deputy House Majority Leader Julie Belaga.

The former Republican state senator from Ridgefield took 1,133 votes to Belaga's 1,048.

"They said that Romeo Petroni was not a serious candidate. They can't write Romeo Petroni off anymore," Petroni said.

Petroni said state party leaders will now "have to be willing to wait let the candidate that the people want emerge. I have faith in the people."

Petroni had skipped earlier contests in Fairfield and six Hartford area towns.

But he and Deputy House Majority Leader Julie D. Belaga of Westport filed "challenge slates" of delegates to a state endorsed in April by the Stamford Republican Town Committee. That slate had seven delegates committed to former state Sen. Richard C. Bozzuto of Watertown, six to former state Sen. Gerald Labriola of Naugatuck and the remaining 15 uncommitted.

Voters could choose among three slates: Petroni's, Belaga's, or the party-endorsed slate. Petroni had concentrated his campaign efforts on Stamford and was hoping that a Stamford victory would make him perceived as the candidate of Fairfield County, long a Republican stronghold.

"He put all his eggs in one basket. He did a fine job and really worked this town but he never had to make a commitment and apply his energies in any other communities," Belaga said.

She said she was pleased with her showing, explaining, "To lose in a squeaker is hardly a defeat. I don't think it has any real significance."

Heading into Tuesday's balloting, Bozzuto claimed he already had the support of 350 of the 1,095 Republican convention delegates. He has released his names publicly and the name of the other candidates has challenged his claim.

Lieberman announcing with party

HARTFORD — Rock 'n' roll will replace the traditional speeches when the state's attorney general officially announces his candidacy for re-election next month.

Democrat Joseph I. Lieberman will officially put himself in the running for a second term at a party's New Haven nightclub with The Five Satins and the B. Willie Smith Band providing the music.

Lieberman said Tuesday the idea for the musical announcement came from a member of his staff. He also said he plans to give no formal declaration speech during the $25-per-person event set for June 8.

Wells Fargo bail ruling upheld

HARTFORD — Government prosecutors have asked a federal appeals court to reconsider its bail ruling in the Wells Fargo robbery case, raising a key test of a law that denies bond to dangerous suspects.

The petition filed May 16 with the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York seeks to clarify the controversial preventative detention law, U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy Jr. said Tuesday.

"There is no one voice, no settled law of the circuit to be applied in future cases," Twardy said. "It's the appeals court's decision will have a large impact on other circuits. The law must be clarified, it is muddled right now."

In the Wells Fargo case, a three-judge panel of the circuit court ruled 2-1 earlier this month it was unconstitutional to deny bail to two suspects in the $7 million heist on grounds they are a danger to the public.

Divers prepare to roll oil barge

NEW LONDON — Divers have begun securing damaged hatches and vents aboard a sunken oil barge in Long Island Sound to prepare for rolling over and refloating the vessel, U.S. Coast Guard officials said.

Divers were busy Tuesday securing the hatches, vents and tank tops damaged when the vessel and its cargo of 840,000 gallons of oil sank last November. Coast Guard Petty Officer Mike Kelley said.

The barge sank in 185 feet of water at the treacherous point known as The Race, located near the eastern tip of Long Island. Divers last weekend lifted the barge from that point and towed it into shallow water near Fishers Island.

Only a few gallons of oil have spilled from the barge, the Coast Guard said.

More arrests due in robberies

MIAMI — Up to 10 more people could be arrested on charges linked to home invasions in South Florida and Connecticut in which armed culprits posing as police officers, mail carriers or deliverymen stole cash or jewelry after gaining entrance to victims' houses, police said.

So far, 10 people have been arrested after a two-month probe into the robberies and five others who remain at large are wanted as suspects in the ring, which authorities believe has been operating since 1982. Metro-Dade detective Larry Chilson said Tuesday.

Chilson said that while operating in South Florida, the groups believed to have come from Florida City in southern Dade County north to Palm Beach County and possibly in New Haven, Conn.

Travel agent denies statements

BRIDGEPORT — The former owner of Waterbury's Follow The Sun travel agency is pleading innocent to charges that he made false statements to obtain a bank loan.

David Largay, 44, pleaded innocent Tuesday to five counts of making false statements in U.S. District Court in Bridgeport, his attorney said.

Officials said the Middlebury resident left the state in March owing a Connecticut bank $465,000. He was apprehended in Tampa, Fla., and returned to Connecticut to face the charges.

Largay is due back in court June 3 for the start of jury selection, said his attorney, Joseph F. Keefe of Torrington.

Freedman says auditors off base

HARTFORD — The head of the Department of Administrative Services says auditors used "invalid assumptions" and were off base in citing illegalities in his agency's handling of a lease for office space in Hartford.

DAS Commissioner Elisha C. Freedman on Tuesday issued a report to Gov. William A. O'Neill that said state auditors misunderstood state laws.

He told the governor, however, that his office also had asked the attorney general for comment and clarification of those laws.

The auditors raised questions about the state's five-year, $712,077-a-year lease on a six-story office building at 1049 Asylum Ave. in Hartford. The building is used by three state agencies.

Ruling should help machine-tool firms

By Daniel Beeson
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A White House decision to ease voluntary export restraints by foreign competitors of the U.S. machine-tool industry should help import-hampered Connecticut businesses, two congressmen say.

But Reps. Nancy L. Johnson, R-Conn., and Barbara B. Kennelly, D-Conn., differed Tuesday over just how significant President Reagan's move was.

The industry had asked Reagan to impose import quotas, arguing that a weakened machine-tool industry hurt national security.

But Reagan decided to wait for six months before ruling whether imports hurt national security, a move designed to give voluntary restraints a chance to work.

"It's beginning," said Kennelly. "We're awfully glad the waiting is over."

Kennelly criticized the White House for waiting more than two years from the time it received the industry request before acting on the issue.

"It's beginning," said Kennelly. "We're awfully glad the waiting is over."

Kennelly criticized the White House for waiting more than two years from the time it received the industry request before acting on the issue.

The industry had asked Reagan to impose import quotas, arguing that a weakened machine-tool industry hurt national security.

Panel OKs minority-enrollment plans

DANBURY (UPI) — Connecticut public colleges and universities are generally doing well in terms of minority student staff enrollment and retention, but still need some improvement, a state board has decided.

The Board of Governors for Higher Education voted Tuesday to approve plans for increasing the number of minority students who attend and graduate from the schools, board spokeswoman Connie Zak said.

The plans, taken up by the board during a meeting at Western Connecticut State University in Danbury, outline strategies, programs and timetables for improving minority enrollment and graduation rates.

Eleven institutions were given the maximum five-year approval for their plans while six schools were given the minimum one-year approval and the remaining six had their plans approved for three years, Zak said.

The schools given one-year approvals "need a little more attention" and must submit new plans by November for recruiting and retaining minority students, Zak said.

The plans focus not only on ways to increase the number of minority students at the public colleges and universities but on ways to increase the number who graduate, she said.

As of 1984, minority students accounted for 8.1 percent of the total student enrollment at the state's colleges and universities, while minorities made up about 12 percent of the state's total population.

College officials also are concerned about a slight drop in minority student enrollments, which have dropped 0.1 percent since 1982 in line with the state's other schools.

The board of governors established application and graduation fees for the state technical colleges, bringing them in line with the state's other schools.

Higher Education is also concerned about a significant drop in black student enrollments, which dropped by 6 percent from 1982 to 1984.

The Board of Governors for Higher Education set minority enrollment and graduation goals statewide and for individual institutions, which were then required to devise the plans to meet those goals.

In other action Tuesday, the board of governors established application and graduation fees for the state technical colleges, bringing them in line with the state's other schools.

Gejdenson pushes bill on groundwater study

WASHINGTON (AP) — States need more information to deal with groundwater contamination and the U.S. Geological Survey should expand its research and monitoring program to provide them with it, Rep. Sam Gejdenson, D-Conn., says.

Gejdenson, sponsor of a bill that would require expansion of federal groundwater research, testified Tuesday before the House Interior water and power subcommittee, which held a hearing on a National Research Council report on groundwater.

Gejdenson said the report, titled "Groundwater Quality Protection: State and Local Strategies," backs his bill because it recommends that the Geological Survey expand its hydrogeological and technical information programs.

"When you consider the nationwide scope of the groundwater contamination problem, the lack of basic information on the problem is shocking," Gejdenson said. "No one knows how much of the nation's groundwater is contaminated. Our knowledge of how toxic substances move through groundwater is also far from complete. Until we understand the extent of causing contamination and how widespread it is, we will continue to simply throw money at the problem in response to individual cases."

Gejdenson said the billions of dollars required to clean up existing hazardous waste dump sites demonstrate it would be far cheaper in the long run to prevent groundwater contamination than to clean up waste.

"I would also like to remind the subcommittee that groundwater contamination is not only an environmental problem, it is also a personal tragedy for many families," Gejdenson said. "I have spoken with many parents in eastern Connecticut who have suddenly found out that their children have been drinking water contaminated with toxic substances for years. I cannot even begin to convey their worries and frustrations to you."

The report praised Connecticut as "a national pace setter in statewide programs for groundwater protection."

Connecticut, the report said, has a comprehensive classification system for groundwater, aimed at protecting it from contamination.

Red-faced Moffett says Waterbury vote 'stinks'

WATERBURY (UPI) — Gubernatorial candidate Toby Moffett is demanding delegate primary ballots be impounded after saying a Waterbury vote was reversed in Gov. William A. O'Neill's favor and "stinks" of foul play.

"No one is going to steal this," said a red-faced Moffett, who only 30 minutes earlier was claiming victory and promising he would see O'Neill in a statewide primary in September.

Unofficial results from 27 delegate primaries showed Moffett to be short of the total 270 delegate votes he will need at this summer's Democratic state convention to force the statewide primary Sept. 9 for the nomination.

John Rock, the Democratic registrar of voters in Waterbury, gave the city's delegates to O'Neill by a 48-vote margin Tuesday night, although Moffett claimed the race had earlier been declared for him.

"I am astonished that this happened in Waterbury," Moffett said. "I would be astonished if it happened in Manilla. This stinks. It really smells," he added.

The confusion over the outcome in Waterbury forced the former congressman to address a room filled with screaming supporters twice.

Other races in the nation

In primaries across the nation Tuesday, Republican Sens. Bob Packwood of Oregon and Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania easily won re-election while former Rep. Toby Moffett's challenge of Democratic Gov. William O'Neill took place in Connecticut.

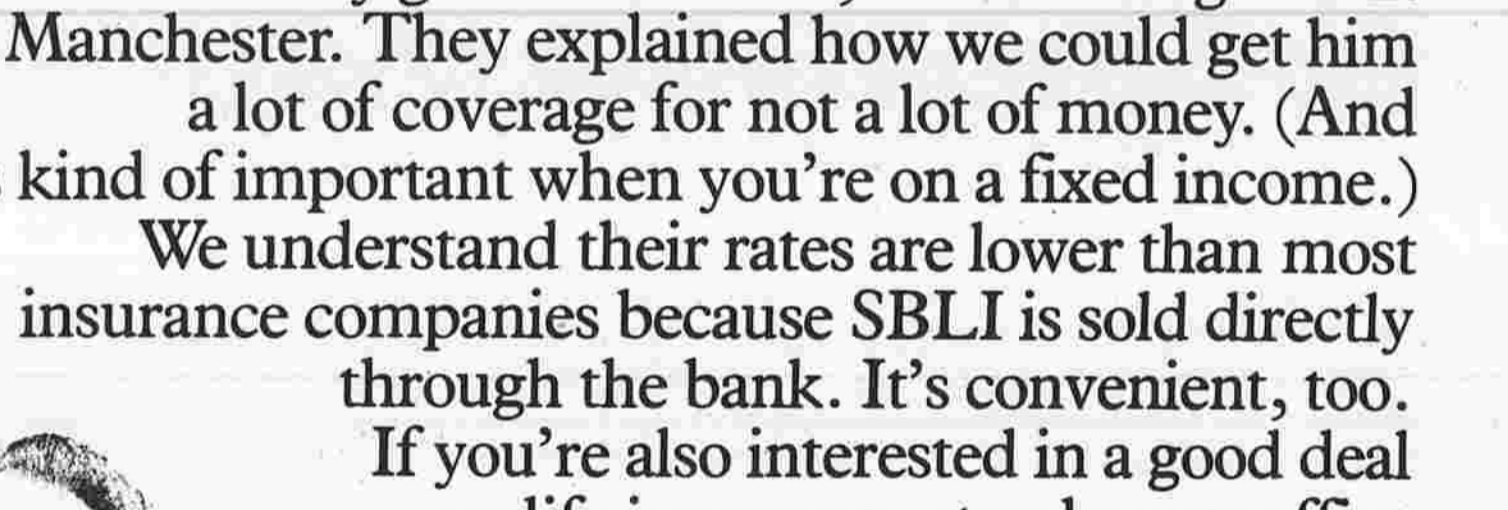

Oregon and Pennsylvania also picked candidates for governor to succeed Republicans Victor Atiyeh and Dick Thornburgh who could not run for third terms.

In Oregon, one of the big battles in November was assured when former Transportation Secretary Neil Goldschmidt won the Democratic nomination for governor and former secretary of state Norma Paulus was nominated for the Republicans. Rep. Jim Weaver easily won the nomination and to face Packwood in November.

In Pennsylvania, former auditor general Bob Casey, on his fourth try, finally won the Democratic primary for governor, defeating former Philadelphia District Attorney Edward Rendell. Casey faces Lt. Gov. William Scranton III — heir to one of Pennsylvania's most powerful political names in November. Rep. Bob Edgar held a big lead over Don Bailey in the Democratic race to oppose Specter.

In New Jersey, lawyer Robert Menendez, the son of Cuban immigrants, was sworn in Tuesday as mayor of Union City, becoming the only Hispanic mayor in the state.

In Georgia, Savannah Mayor John Rousakis was forced into a runoff with businessman Roy Jackson, the first black to run for mayor.

Lanzano case points to need for reforms

Despite the division it will leave within the Democratic Party in Greater Hartford, the controversy surrounding Hartford County High Sheriff Patrick Hogan's recent decision not to reappoint a deputy from Manchester may prove to be a good thing for the citizens of Connecticut.

When Hogan informed Deputy Sheriff Raymond Lanzano over lunch two weeks ago that he would lose his job on June 1, a feud promptly erupted among area Democrats, who have benefited from the patronage surrounding the sheriff's office for many years.

Lanzano contended he was being fired solely because he refused to support Hogan's chosen successor as high sheriff, John Tarca of Plainfield. The move was allegedly meant to serve as a warning to other deputies who want Al Rioux, the Democratic chairman in Newton, to be the party's nominee for the post when Hogan steps down in July 1987.

It's clear that Lanzano knew what he was getting into when he took the deputy sheriff's post last year. That was emphasized by his initial decision to refer questions about his own firing to Manchester's Democratic chairman, and by his awareness of how the appointment game is played.

But Hogan's statement that his decision to let Lanzano go was "personal" is far from convincing. Allegations of improper pressure and dirty tricks can't be dismissed as easily as the high sheriff would like, and Lanzano's political rights may indeed have been violated.

In the end, the dispute will almost certainly damage the image of the sheriff's office. But that shouldn't be all bad, since it will also bring to light the valid question of whether the current method of operations is the best way to keep the courts protected and get legal papers served.

The fact that the sheriff's offices throughout the state remain an acknowledged bastion of political patronage isn't a good thing for the average taxpayer. The system is one of the final vestiges of county government in Connecticut, and it may well have outlived its usefulness.

In this case, there are numerous questions that deserve answers. Should it be proven that Lanzano was fired for refusing to actively promote Tarca's candidacy, it will be clear that the high sheriff has broken the rules that go along with his office, politicized as it may be. Placing such demands is illegal, even on deputy sheriffs who got their jobs because of party connections, according to a state Ethics Commission spokesman.

If Rioux follows through on his promise to bring the Lanzano matter to court, some answers will be forthcoming. But just clearing up the Lanzano affair will not be enough.

When it convenes next year, the Legislature should take a new look at the laws governing the conduct of Connecticut sheriffs. Preliminary indications are that such an examination would at least reveal a need for new regulations on the appointment process.

At most, it could show that the elimination of a machine-oriented anarchism would be the best way to serve the public interest.

Bozrah Bomber keeps right in reserve

That happy-go-lucky congressman from over East, Sam Gejdenson — who likes Bill O'Neill and Toby Moffett so equally well he couldn't endorse either for governor prior to their shootout this week — is about to show another side of his make-up.

Gejdenson expects that Francis "Bud" Mullen of East Lyme will be his Republican challenger this year in the battle for the Second Congressional District seat Gejdenson has occupied for three terms.

Gejdenson has the Democratic nomination locked up, so he is into his re-election campaign even though he has yet to go through the traditional ritual of "announcing" his candidacy. And he can't wait to get at Mullen.

Gejdenson believes he has an issue that will blow the Republican right out of the water. And he doesn't mind breaking one of the basic rules of politics — that an incumbent should not give a challenger free exposure by attacking him.

"We're going after his glass jaw," says Gejdenson, rubbing his hands gleefully and looking pseudo-menacing as he talked about his intentions over coffee in Hartford. Mullen has a jutting jaw that usually conveys determination. But Gejdenson says a skeleton in Mullen's closet makes a "glass" one.

THE ISSUE, which has already gotten extensive publicity in the district, stems from Mullen's days as chief of investigations for the FBI and his reported withholding information from a Senate committee examining Raymond Donovan of Jersey as nominee for secretary of labor. Gejdenson says there is much mileage left in the Senator Dodd must then support our allies giving sanctuary to those who kill Americans. If we do not return convicted terrorists to Great Britain then it goes to follow that the British have no obligation to return to the United States terrorists it finds in its territory.

There is a very simple reason for ratification of this treaty. American citizens, security forces and military forces are the targets of terrorist groups from Puerto Rico to the Midwest. Should those who have killed our people be apprehended in British territory, we would expect their return to the United States for prosecution and/or incarceration if already convicted. If the United States expects to obtain allied cooperation when Americans are the victims, it must give the same cooperation and return those who kill its allies' citizens, security forces and military forces.

The bilateral extradition treaty with the United Kingdom should be ratified by the U.S. Senate as it was negotiated because it is in American interests to have the treaty.

Flowers for all in housing matter

I would like to publicly thank Alan Robbins of Bolton for his successful efforts in locating Ali Eslam's family in San Diego. As a fellow worker and friend of Ali, it was wonderful to see the public reaction to Ali's predicament.

The reaction of many at United Technologies Research Center where Ali works, was one of total disbelief of the injustice.

Besides the efforts to locate Ali, there was a concerted effort to bring pressure on local officials to rescind the decision arrived at by Visions Unlimited and Town Attorney Kevin O'Brien.

Numerous calls were made and I wish to acknowledge the sympathetic and understanding responses by Town Manager Bob Weiss and Town Director Kenneth Tedford. Both returned calls and discussed the issue in a gentlemanly fashion.

On the other hand I am disappointed in attempts to contact the town attorney. I made three calls to his office and home. He was either on the telephone or in the shower. Each time I left information and a request that he call me. Kevin O'Brien did not have the decency (or time) to return my calls. I believe the town official should have returned at least my original call.

Although I am not a lawyer, I disagree with his legal ruling. The law is not just books of rules, it must take into account circumstances and fairness.

Mr. O'Brien's ruling might have easily resulted in a lawsuit against the town, a lien placed on the Love Lane home and an embarrassment to all involved.

Orchids to Alex Girelli and Alan Robbins for a job well done. Roses to Bob Weiss and Kenneth Tedford for listening. Dandelions to Kevin O'Brien for his insensitivity.

Gejdenson refused to join U.S. Reps. Barbara Kennedy of Hartford and Bruce Morrison of Hamden and Dodd in endorsing O'Neill. "Endorsements are overrated," said Gejdenson. Besides, neither the Borrah nor Moffett twisted his arm for support.

Government won't protect whistleblowers

WASHINGTON — Despite all the "protections" the government boasts about, whistleblowers who report wrongdoing by their bosses are having a tougher time than ever.

The anticorporate crusade waged by the bureaucratic establishment on Elaine Mittleman, a Treasury Department lawyer whose only sin was trying to do the job she was being paid for. She was fired a few years back after a bitter dispute with her supervisors over Chrysler Corp.'s failure to make periodic reports to Congress, as required because of the federal bailout of the auto company.

Mittleman suspected that her firing was in reprisal for her strict enforcement of the bailout legislation. She took her case to the Office of Special Counsel, which was established, in part, to protect whistleblowers from retaliation. But the office declined to help her and Mittleman left for a job in the private sector.

Recently, when Mittleman applied to the Office of Personnel Management for another government job, she learned just how difficult it is for whistleblowers these days. In a telephone call to the Office of Special Counsel, an investigator for the personnel agency was told that Mittleman had been suspected of leaking information to Congress and The New York Times while she was at the Treasury.

MITTLEMAN INSISTS she did neither, but the accusation has effectively blackballed her from government jobs.

"The Office (of Special Counsel) is a Trojan horse," said Tom Devine, an attorney with the Government Accountability Project, a group dedicated to helping whistleblowers.

As a spokesman for the Office of Special Counsel explained, the official who relayed the charge against Mittleman was required by law to answer inquiries from the personnel agency. Special Counsel attorneys and their clients do not have the confidentiality that covers other attorney-client relationships.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., has introduced legislation that would remedy that crucial flaw, but she told our associate Stewart Harris she doesn't expect it to pass the Senate.

Meanwhile, according to a government survey, a growing number of potential whistleblowers are clamming up for fear of reprisals. Some of those who courageously blew the whistle have suffered for protecting the taxpayers. The number seeking help from the Government Accountability Project has almost tripled in the last two years.

Senate favors more daylight-saving

WASHINGTON (AP) — National daylight-saving time would begin on the first Sunday in April, three weeks earlier than at present, under a plan approved by the Senate.

The proposed change is less ambitious than a four-week extension approved by the House last year. The House version included an extra week in the fall to provide more daylight during traditional Halloween trick-or-treating by millions of the nation's children.

The differences between the two plans will be resolved by a House-Senate conference.

Supporters of the measure, which was attached to a fire prevention authorization bill, said it would save energy, reduce traffic accidents, provide more recreation time and benefit the sporting goods, convenience store and barbecue industries.

Five hurt at French nuclear plant

PARIS — Five workers suffered radiation exposure at a nuclear reprocessing plant on the northern coast of France, a company spokesman said today.

The workers were examined by a doctor and sent home, spokesman Jean Claude Magnac said by telephone from the plant near Cherbourg, 215 miles northwest of the French capital. None was seriously injured.

The accident occurred at the La Hague center, operated by the Compagnie Generale des Matieres Nucleaires, or COGEMA, a branch of the French government's Commission of Atomic Energy.

Search resumes for Pride sailors

AGUADILLA, Puerto Rico — The Coast Guard searched today for four missing sailors from the sunken schooner Pride of Baltimore and the eight survivors of the shipwreck prepared for a flight home to Baltimore.

The six men and two women survivors returned to land Tuesday after drifting in a life raft for nearly five days during which they subsisted on a half-cup of water and bits of sea biscuit each every eight hours.

The crew members were unburned but smiling when they arrived in Puerto Rico.

"They are in relatively good condition," said Cmdr. Alfred Brassel Jr., a Coast Guard flight surgeon. "But all of them are suffering from various degrees of skin infections" from exposure.

Soviets have plan for Chernobyl

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union announced a three-point plan to entomb the damaged nuclear reactor at Chernobyl and decontaminate the area by June 15 in preparation for putting three undamaged reactors at the site back on line.

The program was outlined by Lev Voronin, chairman of the Soviet State Supply Committee, in an interview published Tuesday by the government newspaper Izvestia.

The plan concentrates on burying the damaged No. 4 reactor in concrete, decontaminating the zone around the plant and "preparations for the operation" of the three unaffected reactors at Chernobyl, the newspaper said.

"A program has been drawn up for a period ending on June 15," Voronin said.

Conferees begin budget talks

WASHINGTON — There is no disagreement that Pentagon spending is the toughest issue facing House-Senate budget negotiators, but budget leaders differ over just how big a stumbling block it will be.

The House and Senate each have approved nearly $1 trillion budgets that are $16 billion apart on military spending in fiscal 1987, which begins Oct. 1. The House allocated $285 billion and the Senate $301 billion for that category, neither of which approaches the $320 billion President Reagan requested.

House Budget Committee Chairman William Gray opened the first negotiating session Tuesday by saying the chambers are really not that far apart in military spending. But Senate Budget Committee chief Pete Domenici saw the same gulf as wider.

"I wish I could be as optimistic as you are," Domenici, R-N.M., sighed to Gray, sitting across the huge table of negotiators.

New Soviet envoy surprises U.S.

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union, in a surprise move that left Western diplomats agog, named its recently appointed ambassador to the United Nations, Yuri Dubinin, ambassador to the United States.

The 56-year-old career diplomat is a European expert and reportedly does not speak English. He also has little experience in dealing with the United States.

The Tass news agency announced Tuesday that Dubinin would succeed Anatoly Dobrynin, the longtime ambassador to Washington who returned to Moscow more than a month ago to become a key adviser to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and a secretary on the powerful Central Committee.

"It's a very big surprise," a European diplomat said. "To put it bluntly, no one expected this, especially as he's not even a candidate member on the Central Committee."

Presser's power undiminished

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Jackie Presser's power over the giant Teamsters union apparently has not diminished one bit, despite his indictment last week on federal racketeering and embezzlement charges.

Presser's forces Tuesday overwhelmingly crushed an attempt by dissident Teamsters to reform the union's elections process. The dissidents, outnumbered 2,000 to 20, also lost an effort to reduce Presser's salary from some $550,000 to $125,000 a year and to limit the salaries of top officers to $100,000.

Reagan under the gun on arms deal

By Helen Thomas
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan is making a last-ditch lobbying effort to overcome Senate opposition to the sale of a whitelisted-down arms package to Saudi Arabia.

Reagan has until midnight tonight to veto the congressional resolution rejecting the $354 million arms sale.

At Reagan's suggestion, the Saudis withdrew their request for $89 million worth of Singer anti-aircraft missiles contained in the $354 million arms deal, hoping to make the sale more palatable to the Senate.

The administration, with help from Senate Republican leader Robert Dole and Sen. Richard Lugar, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, lobbied into the evening Tuesday in a drive to line up enough votes to survive an override attempt by Congress.

"We're very, very close," said White House spokesman Larry Speakes. "We've made good progress, but there's more work to be done."

If Reagan still lacks the votes to uphold his veto, White House officials said the action could come so late in the day as to postpone the override attempt until after the Senate returns from the Memorial Day recess June 2, giving Reagan more time to work his will on Congress.

After the Senate recessed for the evening, Dole predicted the override vote would "very likely" come by this afternoon.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., who led the charge against the missile sale, said removal of the Singer — shoulder-fired anti-aircraft missile, "will make the task of overriding the veto more difficult."

"The White House knew it was going to be licked on the original package," Cranston said. "They had to find some way to try to retrieve something."

Lugar, R-Ind., said the Saudis, who have kept a low profile in the current fight, concluded "of their own volition" that "it was important to remove as much controversy as they could" from an arms sale that has assumed political as well as military importance.

The Saudis dropped their request for the Singers in a message from King Fahd delivered to Reagan by Prince Bandar, the Saudi ambassador, who said the Saudis "had more immediate requirements" for the Sidewinder anti-air missiles and Harpoon anti-ship missiles contained in the other part of the deal.

Responding to questions, Bandar said domestic politics, particularly pressure on GOP senators up for re-election in the fall, and the power of the pro-Israel lobby had thwarted the Singer sale and jeopardized the entire arms deal.

The original House and Senate votes to reject the sale were well in excess of the two-thirds majorities needed to nullify Reagan's action and kill the deal.

Reagan held a private late-afternoon meeting with about a dozen American Jews, including Wall Street investor Ivan Boesky, to promote the arms sale as vital to U.S. interests in the Persian Gulf and Middle East stability.

One of the participants, Malcolm Hoelnic of New York, said Reagan "responded frankly and candidly to our questions," but — like other members of the group — indicated the administration sales pitch changed no minds.

No transit fare cuts despite fuel savings

By Lawrence Kilmon
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The nation's train, bus and trolley systems are saving millions of dollars because of dropping fuel prices, but riders aren't likely to see fare cuts because other expenses are eating up the windfall.

A check of seven cities by The Associated Press found an anticipated annual savings of $4 million in New York, $4 million in Boston, $2.4 million in Los Angeles, $2.3 million in Chicago and more than $1 million in both Philadelphia and suburban Detroit. Only Atlanta is not charting big savings because its annual fuel budget estimates were low and on target.

In Philadelphia, despite the million-dollar savings, the Southern California Transit District Authority wants to increase fares by an average 22 percent, including a rise in the base fare from $1 to $1.25. Why? Rising insurance costs and a loss of $13 million in federal subsidies.

The anticipated fuel savings for the fiscal year beginning July 1 "means almost nothing to us," said Dave Murdoch, a SEPTA spokesman.

In New York, where 5.5 million riders cram trains, buses and subways every day, the $14 million fuel savings represent three-tenths of 1 percent of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority's $4.2 billion budget — a mere drop in the bucket, said spokeswoman Doris Gonzalez-Light.

In Los Angeles, the Southern California Transit District Authority pays about 47 cents a gallon to fuel its 2,100 diesel buses, down from 72 cents a gallon about nine months ago. At current levels, the district will save $2.4 million this year. On the other hand, insurance payments rose one year from $67,000 to $3.5 million.

In Chicago, $810,000 was saved the first three months of this year. The Transit Authority expected to pay 73 cents per gallon for fuel this year but has been paying as little as 49 cents. Even if the average per gallon cost would average out as high as 63 cents per gallon by the end of the year, the CTA would save $2.3 million.

In Boston, the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority expects to save $4 million on fuel in the fiscal year ending June 30. Although the money hasn't been earmarked for any specific purpose, liability insurance and other costs are certain to eat up the cash, said spokesman Peter Dimond.

A survey of 500 public transit agencies by the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration found that fuel costs comprise an average of only 7.4 percent of overall operating costs. The year but has been paying as little as 49 cents. Even if the average per gallon cost would average out as high as 63 cents per gallon by the end of the year, the CTA would save $2.3 million.

S. Africa warns of possible future raids

By John Iams
United Press International

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — President Pieter W. Botha, accepting "full responsibility" for raids into Zambia, Botswana and Zambia, warned that South Africa would not hesitate to take similar action in the future.

Appearing in the House of Assembly in Cape Town Tuesday night, Botha made the first official comments on the raids against suspected bases of the banned African National Congress. Three people were killed in the raids Monday and 13 — including two children — were wounded.

"Like the United States of America and every other civilized government, we reject internationally organized terrorism," Botha said.

"Israel's attack on the PLO headquarters in Tunisia and America's attack on certain libyan installations are a case in point."

Botha added, "We likewise will not tolerate terrorists hiding in other countries with the intent to perpetrate the crime against people in our country."

Botha dismissed worldwide criticism of the lightning pre-dawn raids mounted by South African security forces in Zambia, Botswana and Zambia — including sharp rebukes from the United States and Britain.

"South Africa will not allow the double standards and hypocrisy of the Western world, even on the application of legal principles, to stand in the way of our responsibility to protect our country."

In a prepared text released to foreign journalists, Botha said, "I take full responsibility for the actions of our security forces. I congratulate them and assure the country that we will do it again when the occasion demands."

Journalists in Cape Town said Botha omitted the reference to striking again when he delivered the speech.

Opposition leader Colin Eglin said the attacks were "damaging, if not disastrous."

"Any short-term advantage the government may have achieved in the security field will undoubtedly be offset by the damage it will have done to South Africa in the field of international relationships," he said.

Charles Freeman, the newly appointed U.S. Assistant Secretary for Africa, said he was told a new conference the United States deplored the actions.

"South Africa had just begun a promising dialogue, which is now certainly complicated by the recent events, but it can hardly be said that remedies have been exhausted," he said.

Botha, who spoke several hours after Freeman's new conference, disagreed.

"There can be no question about the fact that South Africa has exhausted all peaceful remedies that have been at its disposal and its approach to this matter has been more than reasonable," Botha said.

He said South Africa gave fair warning to the neighboring states that it had irrefutable proof of the existence of ANC bases and ANC activities and passed the information to them.

Weinberg defeat seen in primary

in town, said: "I hope this sends a message to Barbara (Weinberg) that there are other Democrats in town."
But Cummings, also an O'Neill backer, said, "Part of my job now will be fence mending and I'll need all the glue I can get."
As returns came in to O'Neill headquarters on Main Street showing the governor's slate winning in each of the town's 12 voting districts, Stevenson announced the results and called for cheers.
O'Neill phoned and spoke to Cummings and Stevenson and told the crowd of supporters that the governor said to thank them for a "great, great victory in Manchester."
"Let's hear it," he shouted.
The crowd responded with three cheers.
At Moffett headquarters in Weinberg's real estate office on East Center Street, the mood was somber earlier in the evening as returns indicated a loss.
Later, when it appeared that the Moffett cause was doing better elsewhere, the mood brightened. However, the campaigners left the headquarters knowing only that Moffett needed a victory in Waterbury to get the delegates needed to force a statewide primary against O'Neill in September.
Weinberg said that point that the 60-to-40 percent margin in the Manchester vote indicated greater support for Moffett than the Democratic Town Committee was willing to concede. The committee originally allotted four of the 21 delegates to Weinberg supporters on the basis of support shown in a poll of committee members.
She said the primary showed that "Democrats do care and did come out to vote."
Slightly over 50 percent of the Democrats eligible to vote cast ballots.
This morning, Robin Tracey, a Manchester coordinator in the Moffett campaign, said the O'Neill forces had the advantage of having an organization already in place and concentrated their efforts on places where Moffett backers were strongest.
"We were expecting a much lower vote," she said.

School smoke disrupts vote

Students at Waddell School and people who were voting in the building were evacuated when a ballast on a light in the office of the principal began to smoke.
The voters were returned to the polling place promptly when the cause of the smell that permeated the polling place was discovered.
A spokesman at the school said most of the students were dismissed from outside the school, and the evacuation occurred at about 2:45 p.m., close to school closing time.
Some students who take buses were brought back into the building briefly until their buses arrived.
Paul Phillips, acting Democratic registrar of voters for the day, and Herbert Stevenson, the regular registrar, went to the office to determine that the voter lists and the voting machine were safe. Nothing was damaged.
Stevenson turned over his job to Phillips for the day because Stevenson was coordinator of the campaign of Gov. William O'Neill in Tuesday's primary election.

Here's a list of town totals

Manchester Democrats in all 12 of the town's voting districts Tuesday favored a slate of delegates pledged to the nomination of Gov. William O'Neill over challenger Toby Moffett, a former eighth district Congressman.
Townwide, the O'Neill slate got 2,390 votes to 1,573 for the Moffett slate. The total number voting was 31,366 percent of the 12,728 eligible Democrats.
The vote by district was as follows:
District 1, 213 to 141
District 2, 169 to 123
District 3, 232 to 114
District 4, 182 to 88
District 5, 196 to 184
District 6, 206 to 188
District 7, 232 to 161
District 8, 196 to 127
District 9, 187 to 127
District 10, 235 to 127
District 11, 186 to 107
District 12, 157 to 133

Senkow charged with infraction

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter
Police have charged former Town Engineer Walter Senkow with the infraction of creating a public disturbance after he allegedly placed pornographic pictures on the desk of Assistant Town Planning Director Carol Zebb, who will resign her post Friday.
Senkow was fired last week as the town's top engineer after 18 years on the job for what town officials said was sexual harassment. He was served with the infraction Tuesday and must appear in Manchester Superior Court June 4 or face possible arrest, police spokesman Gary Wood said today.
The maximum penalty for the charge is a $100 fine, Wood said.
Police had applied for an arrest warrant for the more serious charge of breach of peace, which carries a penalty of three months in jail and/or a $500 fine. But the state's prosecuting attorney, Cornelius Shea, turned down the application in favor of prosecuting the infraction, Wood said.
It was his interpretation of the offense, Wood said.
According to an affidavit submitted to the court by Manchester detective Lorraine Duke, Senkow placed pornographic pictures on Zebb's desk on two occasions in December. In April, police said Zebb also found a paperback copy of "Looking for Mr. Goodbar" on her desk. Zebb told police she knew the book contains "material of sexual nature," police said.
Zebb declined comment on the incidents involving the pictures.
"It's a very good job and I couldn't pass it up," Zebb said today. She would not say where the pictures were placed.
Senkow had asked Zebb for her home phone number and address, but Zebb did not give it to him. Police said Senkow then approached other town officials for Zebb's address and phone number, but they all declined to give it to him, Zebb said.
Town Manager Robert B. Weiss, who fired Senkow May 13, would not confirm whether the police report and Senkow's termination were directly related.
Concerning her resignation, Zebb said today that she has found a better job in the private sector and has notified Weiss and Planning Director Mark Pellegrini of her decision to take the position.
Weiss and Pellegrini were informed of her decision May 12 and her resignation takes effect Friday, Pellegrini said.

Health-care expert wants coordination

By Susan Vaughn
Herald Reporter
Health-care services need to be coordinated and public funds reallocated in order to provide more equitable care for all Americans, a national writer and lecturer on the subject, said at a town news conference this morning.
Emily Friedman, a contributing writer for several national health-care publications, charged that Medicare's refusal to pay for long-term care has become a "national scandal." Medicare provides no incentives for coordination of care, she said during the breakfast news conference at Manchester Memorial Hospital.
Friedman's remarks today came after she addressed the issues surrounding the provision of quality health care during a speech at the annual meeting Tuesday of the Manchester Memorial Hospital Corp. and hospital staff.
Public health-care expenditures got out of hand in the late 1970s, Friedman said. But since federal reductions began around 1980, she argued, the pendulum has swung too far in the other direction, with cost taking priority over care.
One-quarter of Americans — or 50 million people — are directly affected by the government-funded Medicare and Medicaid programs, Friedman said. Another 30 million have no insurance at all, she said.
Welfare mothers have been cut more from Medicaid coverage than the elderly, she said.
"I'm desperately concerned about the poor," Friedman said. The number of people below the poverty line in the United States has increased during the past 10 years from 23 million to 34 million, she said.
Medicare's Diagnostic Related Groups, known as DRGs, provide a strong incentive for spending time in the hospital only for acute care, Friedman said. That leaves other care to be provided in long-term and intermediate care, she said.
Friedman said she has the responsibility to see that other places pick up that care, she said.
Friedman said she has also cut revenue to hospitals, leaving them with no money to carry those who cannot afford to pay for care, she said.
Last year, Manchester Memorial Hospital spent $1.18 million for people who could not pay their hospital bills, she said.
"Most care of the poor is being paid for by hospitals," she said. "Friedman said she has the responsibility to see that other places pick up that care, she said."

Coventry vote stops Paterson appointment

By Unified Press International
BOSTON — Being the leader of the American League East pack is starting to look easy for the 1986 version of the Boston Red Sox.
Tuesday night, the Red Sox pounded out an assortment of hits, totaling a season-high of 20, en route to a 17-1 blowout of the Minnesota Twins.
Wade Boggs was the main combatant, going 5-for-6 to raise his average to .383, scoring three runs and driving in three while Tony Armas broke out of a season-long slump with a 4-for-4 effort.
"It's a nice feeling," said Boggs. "When a team is hitting like this, you can't catch up."
The win, coupled with the New York's 2-1 loss to Oakland, moved the Red Sox two games ahead of the second-place Yankees.
Boston broke out to a 6-0 lead in the first inning. Jim Rice had an RBI single with the bases loaded and Don Baylor followed with a two-run double to make it 3-0. Armas followed with a two-run double to improve the margin to 5-0. Roy Lee Jackson replaced Armas, who faced six batters, and allowed an RBI single to Sullivan to hike the lead to 6-0.
The Red Sox added a run in the second when Dave Stapleton scored on Baylor's infield out.
The Twins cut the lead to 7-2 in the third on Kirby Puckett's two-run single before Boston added two more in the bottom of the inning. Sullivan added his second RBI of the game and Boggs scored on catcher Sam Salas' throwing error.
"I felt good when I was warming up," said Viola after dropping to 4-4 on the year, "but I just couldn't keep it going into the game."
All nine of the Boston starters scored while eight men in the lineup had an RBI.
Friedman said that it will be up to the health-care providers, including hospitals, and their boards of trustees and physicians, to push for changes in the health-care allocations by the government and private insurers.

Coventry vote stops Paterson appointment

COVENTRY — In a vote that went along party lines, Democrat Elizabeth Paterson failed to win appointment to the Town Council Tuesday to fill a seat left vacant earlier this month.
The Town Council's 3-2 vote in favor of appointing Paterson was one short of the four votes required. Democrats Richard Hines, Patrick Flaherty and Charlene Lewis voted for Paterson, while Republicans Philip Bouchard and Michael Cleary voted against her. Democrat Ken Donovan was absent due to family illness.
"It is unfortunate that such a qualified and experienced person should be rejected," Lewis said after the vote. She criticized Bouchard and Cleary for voting against Paterson, and said it is important that the full council support the selection of a new member.
Bouchard said he was opposed to Paterson's record in her days on the Town Council from 1981 to 1983. This morning, Bouchard charged that as a Town Council member, Paterson had supported a number of actions that had violated the Town Charter.
"I voted that way because of the oath I had taken to uphold the state statutes and the Town Charter," he said.
In particular, he cited Paterson's refusal to support funding budgets for fiscal years 1982-83 and 1983-84 to referendum, even though petition signatures had been submitted both years. He said this violated the Town Charter.
He also said the 1981-83 Town Council violated state Freedom of

SPORTS Fat MHS boys track holds off Rockville

By Herald Staff
The meet was only five events old and a concerned Coach George Sultor expressed his concern in the simplest way. "We're flat, we're flat as a pancake," he said while totaling up the score from the events already complete.
Sultor's squad, the Manchester High boys' track team, had won the Greater Manchester Invitational Track Meet only two days before. And on Tuesday afternoon the Indians were facing a good Rockville High team at Pete Wigren Track.
Rockville was one of four schools, along with Manchester, Windham and East Hartford, tied for the lead in the Central Connecticut Conference's East Division. Despite the flatness, the Indians finally were able to persevere, finishing with a combined best of 78.76, as Sean Toland sealed the victory by taking second place in the 3200-meter run.
"There were some good performers turned in by our Indian runners. Dana Dieterle had a personal best of 17:06 in taking third place in the 5000-meter run. Peter Follett had a personal best of 45.3 in the 300-meter hurdles where he took a third placement. And Dwayne Albert had a personal best of 18-feet, 6-inches in winning the long jump. Tom O'Marra and Steve Gallacher picked up critical points for Manchester in the 400- and 1600-meter runs.
Junior Brian Brophy won four events — worth 20 big points — in Manchester. He won the 110 and 300-meter hurdles along with the shot put and discus. Joe Mallard won the triple jump, was second in the high jump and secured third in the long jump for the Indians.
Manchester returns to the track Friday against host South Windsor.

Tigers 12, Mariners 0

At Detroit, Walt Terrell, 5-1, pitched a five-hit shutout, the first by a Tiger this season, and his fifth straight victory and fourth complete game of the season. Lou Whitaker went 3-for-4 with a homer and three RBI to lead the Tigers.
At Milwaukee, Ernest Riles with a grand slam single up the middle with one out in the seventh broke an 8-8 tie and Paul Houser followed with a three-run home run to lead the Brewers to a 12-8 victory. Riles' grand slam broke a club record eight runs in the first inning.

A's Young outduels Guidry

Guidry, meanwhile, went the distance giving up seven hits, including rookie Bill Bathe's two-out, solo homer in the second that produced the 1-1 tie. Guidry did not allow a hit from the second through the eighth, at one point retiring 17 in a row.
"I think I did my job," said Guidry, 4-3, who has lost three of his last four decisions. "It was one of those games — I should have won, and he should have won."
Canseco began the winning rally against Guidry with a leadoff single in the eighth. Guidry did not hit for the A's. After failing in a sacrifice bunt attempt, Dave Kingman advanced Canseco in second on a tapper to the mound and Carney Lansford was walked intentionally.
Dusty Baker, hitting for Bathe, singled into shallow center field, and A's third base coach Bob Didier signalled for Canseco to hold a tapper. When Henderson fell, however, Canseco scored easily in front of the throw.
It had rained for part of the day before the game, and Yankees Manager Lou Piniella said the outfield was slippery.
"The grass was wet," Piniella said. "They had the runner hold up. If we get the double play, we're out of the inning."
The next batter, Mike Davis, hit a grounder to second that turned into a fielder's choice when Lansford was tagged out trying to go home, and Alfredo Griffin made the third out when he grounded into a fielder's choice.
"They were slipping, and I slipped," Henderson said. "You saw it. But that wasn't the reason we lost. We lost because we didn't hit. I was surprised they sent him (Canseco) even after I slipped."
The Yankees had the potential tying run aboard in the bottom of the ninth after Willie Randolph led off with a single, but Young got the next hit, and Mattingly, to ground into a forecourt back to the mound. And that's when the right-hander Howell came on.
"I knew I would face Mattingly one more time," Young said, "and then it was Jay's turn to come in."
Mattingly went 0-for-4 against Young, ending a 14-game hitting streak.

White Sox 2, Jays 0

At Chicago, Orzle Guillen belted a solo homer to back the eight-run pitching of Joel Davis, lifting the White Sox to their sixth straight victory. Davis, 2-1, hurled his first complete game of the season. Blue Jays rookie John Cerutti, 0-1, made his first major-league start.
At Arlington, Texas, Darrell Porter and Pete O'Brien each hit solo homers to snap the six-hit pitching of Mike Mason, enabling the Rangers to snap a three-game losing streak. Mason, 4-0, hurled Texas' second shutout of the season. Dennis Leonard, 4-4, took the loss.
But you knew Manchester would find a new way of losing. If Manchester ever learned how not to give games away, it would be a lot more successful than it is. The Indians at 8-8 have four games left, beginning Wednesday at home against the New York Yankees. It was a 30-year season for the up-and-down Indians.
"Which band will appear for the final four games?" Stay tuned. The solution will be interesting, believe it.

Calhoun the answer?

Jim Calhoun the man to solve the woes of Connecticut basketball? Having taken the task at hand last Thursday, Calhoun now will find himself under the spotlight of the Connecticut media, and the demanding University of Connecticut basketball fans.
One point in his favor is that he's produced a winner wherever he's been. He took over a program at Dedham (Mass.) High School, which had won only 13 games the past two years, and led them to a 21-1 mark in 1984. He coached at Old Lyme High School in Connecticut, taking over a program that had lost 50 straight, and turned it into the most improved team in the state. He was Shoreline Conference Coach-of-the-Year for turning that team left.
UConn won't be as simple. There is no quick fix for off. You guessed it, Ballard picked off the third baseman instead, the run scored and the Indians led. Do you know how many times the opposition stole third base, had the peg from the catcher sail into left field, and had the winning run prance merrily home as the Indians anguished over another one that got away?

Sounds like the Red Sox — until this year, anyway — doesn't it?
Manchester has moved into a new dimension this year. It's known as not being able to catch a fly ball. That's new. It hadn't been seen here before; not with Manchester baseball anyways.

Late goals give Canadiens edge on Flames

By United Press International

MONTREAL — The Stanley Cup clock is running down on the Calgary Flames because of bad timing.

The Flames gave up goals toward the end of the first and second periods Tuesday that killed a comeback attempt in a 5-3 defeat to the Montreal Canadiens in Game 5 of the Stanley Cup final. The Flames trail the Canadiens 2-1 in the best-of-seven series, with Game 4 scheduled for Thursday in the Forum.

Since 1939, only one team — the Toronto Maple Leafs in 1964 — has gone on to win the Stanley Cup after splitting the first two games and losing the third.

With 2:01 remaining in the first period, the Flames led 2-1 on goals by Joey Mullen and Joel Otto. They fell apart in the next 68 seconds, allowing goals by Bobby Smith, Mats Naslund — his second of the period — and Bob Gainey to give Montreal a 4-2 lead with 27 seconds left in the period.

Calgary coach Bob Johnson pulled rookie goalie Mike Vernon at that point and inserted veteran Reggie Lemelin.

Lanny McDonald brought the Flames within one goal again with his league-leading 11th playoff goal at 7:13 of the second period. Once again, the Canadiens scored, this time Kjell Dahlin, with only 38 seconds left in the period.

"The timing of their goals really hurt," Calgary captain Doug Risebrough said. "I mean, you want to carry a lead for more than one of two shifts."

McDonald praised Lemelin's performance, but agreed Dahlin's goal sapped the team's resolve heading into the second intermission.

"It really hurt us because we seemed to be taking the play away from them," McDonald said.

The loss was the first time the Flames have dropped two consecutive games in the playoffs.

"Naturally, you don't like to lose two games in a row," McDonald said. "Who would, especially in the playoffs. We have to cut out mental errors. In a couple of cases it was guys trying to do too much by doing the other guy's job."

Vernon refused to take all the blame for the goals, saying they were screen shots or they came on rebounds that could have been cleared.

"There were goals that were scored that I don't think I could have done anything about," he said. "This club has a lot of character and talent. We've bounced back before, and can do it again."

When asked whether his club had been hurt by the timing of the goals, Johnson replied: "No question. It's very simple. They scored late goals, and that killed us. Our job is to forget Game 3 and get ready for Thursday."

Johnson inserted several rookies into the lineup, including Brett Hull, son of former Chicago Blackhawk great Bobby Hull.

"I used fresh legs to give some of my players a needed rest for Thursday," Johnson said. "It takes four games to win, so we're not out of it."

Canadiens coach Jean Perron said he was happy with every aspect of his team's play other than their penalty killing. Calgary scored on three of five power plays. Montreal had one power-play goal — Smith's — in five attempts.

He agreed with his Calgary counterpart that the timing of the goals was crucial.

"We got two quick goals at the end of the first and one at the end of the second," he said. "That did them in. The week off has been an advantage to us. We'll be even better Thursday."

The Canadiens won their previous series against the New York Rangers in five games, giving them an extra week of rest, compared to the Flames, who played a seven-game series against the St. Louis Blues in the semifinal, whose second goal gave him a career high of eight playoff goals, was happy with Montreal's performance.

"If we can keep winning our home games, we have a good chance to win the Cup," he said.

Center Bobby Smith also played a strong game with a goal and an assist.

Montreal's Mats Naslund (28) fires the puck past Calgary goalie Mike Vernon for the Canadiens' third goal during the first period Tuesday night at the Forum in Montreal. The Canadiens won, 5-3, to take 2-1 lead in the Stanley Cup final.

Bears fine Dent a grand per day

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Chicago Bears officials say Richard Dent, who is reportedly cruising the Caribbean, will be fined $1,000 for each day he fails to show up for a three-day mini-camp that begins today.

Dent's agent, Everett Glenn, and Bears General Manager Jerry Vainisi say contract negotiations for the Super Bowl MVP have reached an impasse.

"We're getting to the point where there may be irreconcilable differences, and they may have to move (trade) him," Glenn said Monday, adding the All-Pro defensive end will not play for the Bears this fall without a new contract.

Dent is entering the option year of his contract and must play to achieve free agency in 1987.

Rose a favorite for Hall of Fame

ST. LOUIS — A survey of major-league managers by The Sporting News lists Pete Rose as the only unanimous choice as a player who already merits selection to the baseball Hall of Fame.

Rose headed the list of 10 National League players chosen by the managers.

Reggie Jackson topped the list of American League players with 13 of 14 possible votes.

Managers were asked, "Which players in your league — if they retired tomorrow — already have accomplished enough to merit selection to the Hall of Fame?"

Rose and Carlton were followed, in order, by Mike Schmidt, Nolan Ryan, Steve Garvey, Rich Gossage, Dale Murphy, Bruce Sutter, Gary Carter and Tony Perez.

Phil Niekro and Tom Seaver followed Jackson in the American League. Both Niekro and Seaver were picked by at least three-fourths of the league's managers.

Nelson to donate dollars to farmer

MILWAUKEE — Milwaukee Bucks coach Don Nelson's playoff share could be turned into a much-needed plowshare for a financially strapped Wisconsin farmer and his family.

Faced with bankruptcy and foreclosure of the family's 313-acre dairy farm near Bimmmwood, Clarence Willcome wrote Nelson asking for possible advice.

But Nelson, who grew up on a farm in Sherrod, Ill., has given the Willcome's much more than advice.

Nelson said he would contribute his share of the Bucks' playoff earnings to the Willcome family. Although Nelson said he did not want the exact figure made public, he said $12,000 would be in the ballpark.

Rockets can dethrone Lakers tonight

By Jeff Hosen
United Press International

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — The defending champion Los Angeles Lakers, maintaining their confidence in unshaken despite three straight losses to the Houston Rockets, say slight changes can turn around the Western Conference final.

"We were a very short hop away from winning two of the games we lost," Lakers coach Pat Riley said Tuesday after his team practiced for tonight's fifth game. "The very minor things that are killing us are easily correctable."

Riley would not elaborate.

"If I went into them, I might open the eyes of the opponents," he said.

"We've just got to do them and we will do them. I have tremendous faith in this team's character."

The Lakers, who lost the third and fourth games of the series when they scored 18 and 16 points, respectively, in the final quarter, are seeking to become the fifth NBA team to come back from a 3-1 deficit to win a best-of-seven series.

"We can't rely on history and think about who was the last team to do it," Riley said. "I live in the present and I'm the eternal optimist. I'll always be until the final whistle."

The Lakers have been soundly beaten on the backboards, a fact Magic Johnson addressed without his usual smile.

"We have to get better shots and execute better," he said. "That means getting more rebounds. We're confident. We just have to go out and play our style. If we play our game, we'll win, no question about it."

Johnson said the Lakers can not afford to look past Game 5.

"We can't think three in a row," he said. "We have to win one. Once you get one, you never know what will happen from there."

A sixth game, if needed, will be Friday night at Houston. A seventh and deciding game, if necessary, will be Monday at the Forum.

"The mood is solemn, but we are by no means out of it," said Lakers swingman Michael Cooper. "Wednesday's game is going to be a war. This is by no means over."

Tyson shows he can go the distance

By Dave Roffo
United Press International

NEW YORK — The more Mike Tyson fights, the happier he is. Tyson said after Tuesday night's unanimous decision over Mitch "Blood" Green Tuesday night, "I'm having a good time going 10 rounds. I just might go 10 rounds my next five fights."

Tyson dominated the fight by bullying and punching Green around the ring for 10 rounds to improve to 21-0. It was his second straight decision after scoring 19 knockouts, but Tyson was much more impressive Tuesday than in his 10-round triumph over James Tillis May 3.

"Not to be egotistical, but I won the fight so easily," he said. "Now they know Mike Tyson is not one of those fighters who after six rounds or four rounds is dead tired. I can go 10 rounds hard."

Green, who fell to 16-2-1, nearly withdrew from the fight Monday when he learned he was making $30,000 compared to $200,000 for Tyson. He said that bothered him when he entered the ring.

"I have no desire, no determination, no motivation because I'm not getting paid," Green said after the fight. He also repeated his wish to sever ties with promoter Don King.

"I'm no $2 fighter," he said. "As soon as I found out about the payday, I couldn't fight."

Judges George Colon and Pat Dolan scored it 9-1 in rounds for Tyson, and judge George DeGambri had it 8-2.

Tyson was able to walk through any offense Green mounted, and consistently crashed left hooks off Green's jaw and connected with right hands to the body whenever Green tried to clinch.

Green's mouth was bloodied early in the third round, and a stiff jab from Tyson sent his mouthpiece flying and snapped his head back in a neutral corner. A Tyson right hand rocked Green in the fourth round, and a left hook buckled Green's knees late in the 10th.

Nothing that Green tried worked early in the fight. Despite a 5-6-inch height advantage, he could not keep away Tyson. Tyson walked through Green's best punches, and punched through every clinch.

"He was 6-foot-5 with an 84-inch reach and he wasn't hitting me with his jab," Tyson said. "I was connecting more with my jab when I threw it."

Green's best moments came in the eighth round. He countered a Reggie Green June 13 in the Garden. His next fight against a ranked opponent will probably be July 26.

however, and controlled the rest of the of the round.

Tyson, from Catskill, N.Y., weighed 215 1/2 pounds for the bout, which took place before 6,239 in Madison Square Garden, Green, from Queens, N.Y., weighed 225.

Green was notified Tuesday night of a minor court warrant, charging him with harassment in connection with a March incident. According to Sgt. Raymond O'Donnell, public information officer of the police department, the warrant, issued May 13, was for "a violation of law, but not a crime."

O'Donnell also said police never planned to disturb the fight.

The bout was Tyson's first in Madison Square Garden.

Tyson is scheduled to fight Reggie Green June 13 in the Garden. His next fight against a ranked opponent will probably be July 26.

Great Menus For Today's Lifestyles

Whether it's a picnic in the park, luncheon on the terrace, or a backyard barbecue, Americans young and old are in love with eating out-of-doors on the balmy days of summer and early fall. Here are featured distinctive menus for those sunny days or indoor dining year-round.

Barbecued Alaska Salmon† Potatoes Roasted In Coals‡ Mixed Green Salad Fresh Fruit

A special treat for the barbecue is salmon from Alaska. And there's good news that this premium fish is now in good supply. Whole, dressed salmon, averaging 3 to 5 pounds, will offer a good value for consumers and they will be more widely available fresh or frozen nationwide.

Grilled to perfection over glowing coals, Alaska salmon is a grand selection for your next outdoor festivity. For a larger group, grill a whole fish or have it filleted. You can fillet the fish yourself following the basic directions shown here. For small groups, you may wish to purchase salmon steaks or individual fillets.

Suggested here is a recipe for a buttery basting sauce that is an ideal complement to the moist and tender flesh. Just remember not to let salmon overcook. It is ready to enjoy when the flesh flakes when tested with a fork; a general rule is to cook it 10 minutes per inch of thickness measured at the thickest part.

You can prepare the hot foods on the barbecue when you serve Potatoes Roasted in Coals. Washed and scrubbed, all-purpose Russet potatoes from Washington State are served with a zesty salsa topping, a tasty addition to this alfresco feast. Washington State Russet potatoes cook up moist and fluffy due to their high solids content and are the ideal year-round baking potato.

Barbecued Alaska Salmon

- 2 whole (about 1/2 lb. each) Alaska salmon filets
- Salt and pepper
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 4 teaspoons grated onion
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1/2 teaspoon bottled hot pepper sauce

Rinse salmon filets and pat dry. Sprinkle each filet with salt and pepper. Combine remaining ingredients except oil; brush filets with butter mixture. Place each filet, skin-side down, on a sheet of well-oiled heavy-duty aluminum foil; place on grill over hot coals. Cover barbecue or make a tent of foil to cover each filet. Barbecue 10 minutes per inch of thickness measured at its thickest part or until salmon flakes easily when tested with a fork. Baste frequently with butter mixture. Makes about 12 servings. Recipe can be halved.

Potatoes Roasted In Coals

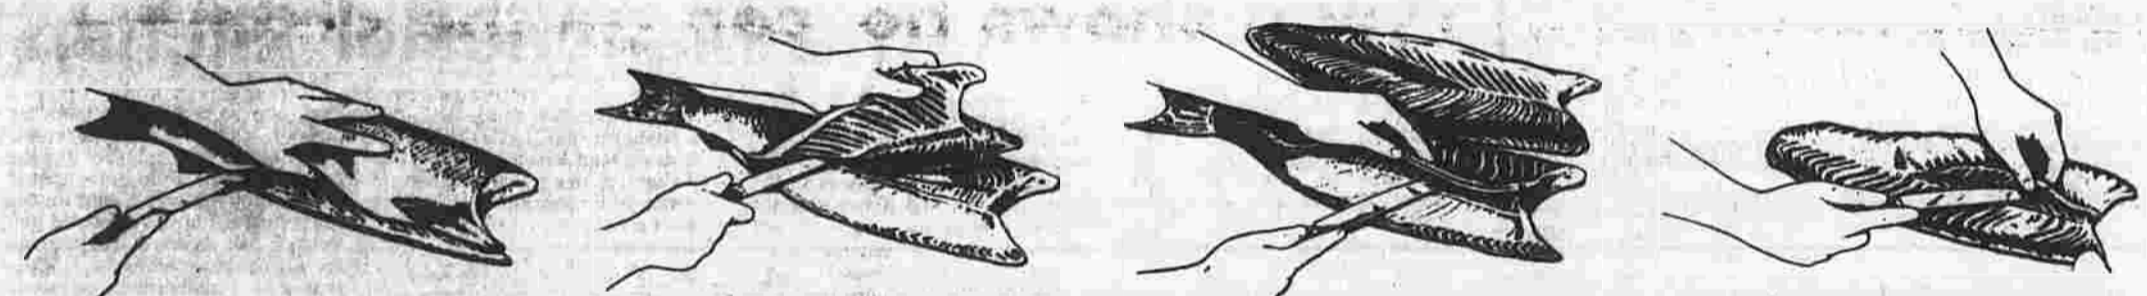

- 6 (about 10 oz. each) Washington Russet potatoes
- Oil
- Salsa

Scrub potatoes; rub with oil. Pierce several times with fork. Individually wrap potatoes in oiled heavy-duty aluminum foil; seal securely. Place directly on hot coals; cook about 1 hour or until tender, turning every 15 minutes. Remove potatoes from foil. Cut or pierce tops of potatoes lengthwise; squeeze ends and push toward center to open. Spoon about 1/3 cup Salsa into each potato. Makes 6 servings. Recipe can be doubled.

Salsa: Combine 1-1/2 cups chopped tomato, 1/2 cup each chopped onion, chopped cucumber and diced green chilies, 1 tablespoon each chopped green onion and olive oil, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 3/4 teaspoon garlic salt, 1/4 teaspoon crushed oregano and dash pepper. Makes 2-1/4 cups.

Tip: Top Salsa-filled potatoes with dairy sour cream or plain yogurt.

†Double layer of regular aluminum foil can be substituted.

1. Place dressed fish with belly toward you. With a very sharp knife, cut through flesh from end of cavity back through to base of tail.
2. Insert knife blade flat against backbone and cut along backbone through back of fish from head end to tail on top side of fish, severing ribs and top piece from backbone.
3. Lay top piece aside. Remove backbone from remaining side by inserting knife under backbone and repeating lengthwise cut, leaving as much flesh on fillet as possible.
4. With a smaller knife, trim away ribs and fin bones from both pieces. Pull out pin bones, if desired.

Salad Supper

This menu is equally at home served to honor the sunset on your own patio or throughout the year indoors as a prime example of today's lighter approach to foods. In Salmon Vegetable Potato Salad, chunks of rich, moist canned salmon accompany a fresh vegetable-laden potato salad marinated in tangy Caraway Dressing. Select the best vegetables from your garden or supermarket. Washington State Russet potatoes offer pleasing contrast in texture and their ability to absorb the dressing intensifies this harmonious blending of flavors.

- Salmon Vegetable Potato Salad†
- French Rolls and Butter
- Ice Cream with Seasonal Fruit
- Chocolate Brownie Fingers
- Iced Tea

Alaska canned salmon is an unbeatable choice for a wide variety of tasty recipes that can be prepared in minimal time. Wonderful right from the can, Alaska canned salmon combines with other ingredients in appetizers, soups, sandwiches and entrees. It's always ready to serve and may be found in a variety of can sizes to meet every need... 3-3/4 ounce, 7-1/2 ounce, 7-3/4 ounce and 15-1/2 ounce cans.

Salmon Vegetable Potato Salad

- 1 pound warm, cooked Washington Russet potatoes
- Caraway Dressing
- 1 cup each cut sugar snap peas, thinly sliced yellow squash and sliced, quartered cucumber
- 1/4 cup chopped celery
- 2 tablespoons each minced green onion and parsley
- Salt and pepper
- 1 can (15-1/2 oz.) salmon, chilled
- Lettuce

Peel potatoes; slice 1/4-inch thick. Marinate in 1/2 cup Caraway Dressing; cool at room temperature. Add sugar snaps, squash, cucumber, celery, green onion and parsley. Salt and pepper to taste. Chill if desired. Drain salmon; break into chunks. Arrange on lettuce-lined platter with potato mixture. Drizzle remaining Caraway Dressing on salmon. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

Caraway Dressing: Combine 1/2 cup olive oil or oil, 1/3 cup white wine vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1/4 teaspoon each sugar, salt and chopped or crushed caraway seeds and dash pepper; mix well. Makes about 1 cup.

Variation: One cup Chinese pea pods, blanched peas, sliced zucchini, sliced carrots, broccoli flowerets, cherry tomatoes, olives, sliced green beans or green or red pepper strips can be substituted for sugar snap peas, yellow squash and/or cucumber.

To Boil Potatoes: Scrub potatoes. Add potatoes to 1-inch boiling, salted water; return to boil. Simmer, covered, 20 to 30 minutes or until tender. Drain thoroughly.

To Bake Potatoes: Scrub potatoes; rub lightly with oil. Pierce several times with fork. Bake at 400° F. 50 to 60 minutes or until tender.

DEAR MARTIN: Your column about mistakes at the checkout counter reminded me of a recent experience at our local supermarket, Slater Bros., which has installed National Cash Register electronic scanners. When the shopping cart is unloaded, the items were pushed to the left, then across the scanner. But the register display showing the price of the item that has just been rung up was on the right!

It really bothered me that the scanning was to the left and the display to the right, so I finally wrote a letter to Slater Bros. headquarters. I explained that I would have to be looking in two directions at the same time in order to make sure your items were rung up correctly.

A few days after I sent off the letter, I received a phone call from Slater Bros. They said that Slater Bros. understood the problem and was going to make some changes that would solve it.

Shortly afterward, the position of the display was changed so it can now be seen while customers are watching the items being passed across the scanner. It was great to know that such a large supermarket chain cares about its customers.

Thanks, Slater Bros.

JESSIE WATKINS
SAN DEMAS, CALIF.

DEAR JESSIE: I want to thank you for your letter, because it is good to give credit to a supermarket that listens to its customers.

Today, more than 60 percent of all supermarkets in America have converted their checkout counters to electronic scanners that read the Universal Product Code on product packages. Unfortunately, a few of the supermarkets that installed electronic scanners in checkout counters lost sight of the fact that the register display is not just for the benefit of the cashier.

Instead of the price display being fixed at the top of a large cash register, the new electronic register has displays that can be turned to any angle, or even placed in a separate location many feet from the register.

The results were often disastrous. A Cleveland chain turned the display around to face the cashier. This meant that shoppers who wanted to see the prices of their items as they were rung up had to lean over the checkout counter and crane their necks.

Do consumers have a right to see the register display? They certainly do. In some localities, it is legally required, and it has been a longstanding tradition everywhere. The coming of the scanner should not change this, and supermarkets that care about their customers should make a point of having the register display in clear view.

Are you having problems seeing the prices of your items as they are rung up? If you do, I would like to know about it. Please write to me in care of the Manchester Herald.

Edith Olinyk holds some fleisch roland (meat rolls) in her 92 Vernon St. kitchen. On the table are kuchen baked in a ring, red cabbage with lemon slices, mint sauce in a pitcher and potato dumplings sprinkled with parsley.

Your Neighbor's Kitchen

German heritage is alive in this Manchester kitchen

By Margaret Hayden
Herald Reporter

Edith Olinyk cooks many of the foods that she enjoyed during her youth in Germany, such as red cabbage with lemon slices, mint sauce in a pitcher and potato dumplings. She is a Sunday meal. Have some! "This is a Sunday meal. Have some!" she said, as she served generous portions of steaming dumplings, cabbage and meat. The dumplings are often served with sauerkraut. Any leftover dumplings can be cooled, sliced and heated in drippings or butter, she said. They also can be served with peaches, pears or other fruit. "I use all fresh vegetables and fruit, nothing from a can," she said.

Here are some traditional German recipes she has translated into English. She has some roland needles (thick, stainless steel rods with bent ends) which she bought in England. Heavy white thread can be used instead to keep the steaks rolled while cooking. The rods and thread are removed just before eating the rolls.

Fleisch roland
6 slices of thin lean steak
2 onions, chopped
Pepper, salt

Roastin kuchen
8 ounces sugar
2 ounces butter
2 ounces drippings or lard
5 eggs
4 teaspoons baking powder
Salt
1 pound flour
1/2 pint milk
4 ounces sultana raisins
1 teaspoon lemon peel
1 teaspoon vanilla
icing sugar
Cream butter and sugar. Beat in

Red cabbage
1 medium red cabbage
1 onion
Pepper and salt
3 cloves
4 cooking apples
2 ounces drippings or margarine
Shred cabbage. Wash. Brown onion slices in drippings or margarine. Add cabbage, salt, pepper and cloves. Peel and cut apples into slices. Add to cabbage. Cover and steam. Stir every 15 minutes. Cook on low setting for 45 minutes.

Potato dumplings
6 medium potatoes
2 eggs
4 ounces flour
Salt
Cook potatoes in skins. Cool, peel and place through a sieve. Beat in eggs, flour and salt. Shape into balls and boil them in gently boiling salted water for about 10 minutes or till they come up to top of water.

Turkey breast
4 to 5-pound turkey breast
Place turkey breast skin side down in a 12-by-8-inch baking dish. Estimate the total cooking time: divide in half. Microwave at high for 5 minutes. Reduce power to 50 percent (medium). Microwave 20 minutes. Turn meat over. Insert microwave thermometer or probe. Microwave at 50 percent (medium) for 20 to 45 minutes, or until internal temperature reaches 125 degrees. Let stand 10 minutes. Reserve one-third cup pan drippings in a medium bowl. Blend in flour and water. Stir in reserved drippings and gravy mix. Microwave at high for 2 to 6 minutes, or until thickened, blending with wire whop 2 to 3 times.

Sirloin tip roast
5-pound frozen beef sirloin tip roast
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1 cup water
1 package (1 ounce) au jus gravy mix
Place unwrapped frozen roast on roasting rack. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave at high for 5 minutes. Turn roast over. Cover. Microwave at high for 5 minutes. Reduce power to 50 percent (medium). Microwave 20 minutes. Turn meat over. Insert microwave thermometer or probe. Microwave at 50 percent (medium) for 20 to 45 minutes, or until internal temperature reaches 125 degrees. Let stand 10 minutes. Reserve one-third cup pan drippings in a medium bowl. Blend in flour and water. Stir in reserved drippings and gravy mix. Microwave at high for 2 to 6 minutes, or until thickened, blending with wire whop 2 to 3 times.

Menu
Sirloin tip roast
Turkey breast
Wineberry salad
Potato rosettes
Vegetables Mornay
Assorted bakery rolls
Pound cake and strawberries
Time Plan: A week before the party, prepare and freeze potato rosettes.
The day before, defrost and microwave turkey breast. Cool, then slice thinly. Arrange slices on microwave-safe platter. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate. Make wineberry salad and refrigerate.
Early in the day, rinse, hull and halve strawberries. Sprinkle with sugar. Refrigerate covered. Split sandwich rolls. Arrange breads in a basket, and cover with plastic wrap.
About 1 1/2 to 2 hours before serving time, start frozen sirloin tip roast. While roast is cooking, slice carrots and measure ingredients for Vegetables Mornay.
While roast stands, microwave vegetables and mix ingredients for gravy. Drain vegetables, add mushrooms and set aside on covered. Microwave covered platter of sliced turkey at high 1 to 3 minutes to remove chill.
Microwave gravy and set aside. Cover. Prepare mornay sauce and croutons. While carving roast, re-heat vegetables at high for 2 to 4 minutes. Gently stir in sauce. Microwave at high for 4 to 5 minutes, adding croutons during the last cooking time.

Microwave can help make holiday feast a piece of cake

Make your microwave a full partner in your plans this Memorial Day. You can save a lot of time and effort, and be freer to enjoy your guests.

May I suggest a buffet for 10 to 12 people, featuring cold sliced turkey and hot roast beef with gravy. In the assortment of rolls and small sandwiches, include some split hard rolls, so guests can make sandwiches if they like.

Decorative potato rosettes are made in advance and reheated straight from the freezer. The wineberry salad is made a day or two in advance. The frozen turkey breast is defrosted and cooked the day before, while the sirloin tip is microwaved from the frozen state without preliminary defrosting. Strawberries for dessert are washed and hulled early in the day. The pound cake is of the large-bought variety.

Plan ahead to make this meal a snap. With little effort, you'll be able to enjoy the day and your guests.

Wineberry salad

2 cups cranberry cocktail juice
1 package (6 ounces) raspberry gelatin mix
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cups sangria
1 can (8 ounces) whole berry cranberry sauce
1 can (8 ounces) crushed pineapple, well-drained
2 cups chilled whipping cream, whipped
1 cup chopped pecans

Place cranberry juice in a large bowl. Microwave on high for 4 to 6 minutes, or until boiling. Add gelatin, stirring to dissolve. Mix in sugar and sangria. Chill for 1 1/2 hours, or until soft. Fold in remaining ingredients. Pour into a 12-cup mold. Chill for 3 to 4 hours, or until serving time. Unmold onto plate. Serves 10 to 12 people.

Potato rosettes

1 1/2 teaspoons salt, divided
1/2 cup hot water
2 large baking potatoes, peeled and quartered
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Spoon potatoes into pastry bag using a number 6 star tip. Squeeze onto 2 rosettes on waxed paper-lined baking sheets. Sprinkle with paprika. Freeze 3 hours or overnight. Place in plastic bags. Freeze up to 1 week. To heat: Place 15 rosettes on a 12-inch plate. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave at 70 percent (medium-high) for 5 minutes. Rearrange rosettes with spatula so that those around outer edge are in center; cover. Microwave at 70 percent (medium-high) for 2 to 6 minutes, or until heated. Repeat with remaining rosettes.

Vegetables Mornay

6 to 8 carrots, cut into 1/4-inch diagonal slices
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon dried chives
Paprika
Dissolve 1/2 teaspoon salt in 1/2 cup milk. Microwave at high for 2 to 3 minutes, or until thickened. Stir in carrots, chives and paprika. Microwave at high for 2 to 3 minutes, or until heated. Repeat with remaining rosettes.

Place 2 tablespoons butter in a small bowl. Microwave at high for 30 to 60 seconds, or until melted.

1 1/2 quarts fresh strawberries, hulled and halved
2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen loaf pound cake
Sweetened whipped cream
Sprinkle sugar over fresh strawberries. Let stand for several hours. Place each unwrapped cake on a plate. Microwave one at 70 percent (medium-high) for 45 seconds to 1 1/2 minutes, or until wooden pick inserted in center meets no resistance. Let stand 5 minutes. Repeat with remaining cake. Cut cakes into 1/4-inch slices, then cut slices into halves and thirds. Serve with strawberries and sweetened whipped cream. Yields 10 to 12 servings.

Pound cake and strawberries

2 to 3 tablespoons sugar
1 1/2 quarts fresh strawberries, hulled and halved
2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen loaf pound cake
Sweetened whipped cream
Sprinkle sugar over fresh strawberries. Let stand for several hours. Place each unwrapped cake on a plate. Microwave one at 70 percent (medium-high) for 45 seconds to 1 1/2 minutes, or until wooden pick inserted in center meets no resistance. Let stand 5 minutes. Repeat with remaining cake. Cut cakes into 1/4-inch slices, then cut slices into halves and thirds. Serve with strawberries and sweetened whipped cream. Yields 10 to 12 servings.

Astrograph

Your possibilities for reaching new heights in your chosen field will be excellent in the year ahead. Keep doing your best and keep hoping.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Make it a point to go after significant career objectives today. Your possibilities for pulling off something big are far better than usual. There is romance in your future.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Lady Luck isn't apt to rally to your side until later in the game today. Don't be discouraged if early happenings are negative.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something personally beneficial can be pieced together today by linking two unrelated sources. You're the middleman who can make it all possible.
LIBRA (Sept. 22-Oct. 23) Material conditions continue to be your area of greatest promise. Focus on things that can ring the cash register.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21) Things will work out as you envision them today, provided you stay in the driver's seat. Put those who might interfere in the back of the bus.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Conditions are now stirring that will eventually contribute to your material success and feelings of well-being. The first ripples may be felt today.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Happy tidings you'll be receiving will put new zest in your step. Lots will be going on today, but most will be pleasant happenings.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're still in a good achievement cycle, so dedicate your time and talents today to attaining objectives that will give you pride of accomplishment.
PICES (Feb. 20-March 20) Concepts you conceive today will be both logical and promising, even though an associate might think you're viewing things on too optimistic a scale.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're in a stronger position today than you may realize. You've done something others need and will be willing to pay for it, either a contact or a special talent.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're involved with what you've done with a partner who went out well for all concerned. You could be especially lucky with a partner with whom you've been lucky in the past.

Finding a 4-4 fit

By James Jacoby
With only 14 high-card points, South doesn't seem to have enough to take another bid. After all, partner raised to four hearts, showing at least 11 high-card points plus spade support. But experience has shown that partner can raise your suit. The try for game is justified, but how it is done is very important. Bidding three hearts is crucial, because in many cases the final game contract should be in the 4-4 major fit. Today's deal is an example. With hearts as trump, South ruffs the second diamond lead and plays the hold the trick. When South continues with the heart queen, East should win and lead a third heart. South can now

Would-be winery

U.S. law allows the head of a household to make up to 200 gallons of wine a year for personal use. One man who failed to qualify for a permit — because he was a bachelor — years ago tried to have his city apartment certified as a bonded winery. Miss Texas USA, Christy Fichtner, was chosen Miss USA 1986 Tuesday in a nationally televised pageant. Early in the show, she appeared in a western outfit.

Texan is Miss USA

MIAMI (AP) — Christy Fichtner, a green-eyed blonde from Dallas, said capturing the 1986 Miss USA crown and representing the United States in the Miss Universe pageant is "the greatest feeling of my life."
Fichtner, a 23-year-old model from Dallas, beat 50 women during Tuesday night's nationally televised pageant to win the title and some $175,000 in cash and prizes, including a new sports car, a black mink coat, a grand piano and a five-year supply of cosmetics.
"I want to scream. I love the United States and I'd like to go swim about 60 miles," the 5-foot-3 Fichtner said. "The first thing going through my mind is that I've traveled all over the world for the

Thoughts

Genesis 2
In the second chapter of Genesis God is portrayed as having planted a special garden for his creature, man. This man's body is made from the dust of the ground and God breathes into him the "Breath of Life." This is a way of saying we have two natures that should be balanced, but often act in competition to one another.
The man is special, his life being God breathed. He is given a lush garden paradise in which to live. This tells us how much God cares for us. It is another way of saying we are in His image.

Paper girl finds customer's lack of clothes embarrassing

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl who has an early morning paper route. Sometimes people are up and waiting for me, but one guy is always waiting for me in his underwear. Today he was there as usual — in his underwear, but this time he was doing his exercises, like touching his toes and reaching high with his arms up over his head.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Here's a new twist on the perennial mother-in-law problem: Recently at my home, at dinner, my mother-in-law referred to police officers as "pigs" in front of my 8-year-old daughter. (She was peeved with me because I glossed over it because I didn't want to make a scene. Now I worry because I think I should have said something to my daughter or my mother-in-law at the time. Some perspective, please.

DEAR ELAINE: It's to your credit that you now "worry" revised and expanded booklet, "How to Be Popular" — for people of all ages. DEAR ABBY: With high school proms coming up, please find room to return this piece I clipped from your column three years ago. It may save a few young lives. Thank you.

INDIANAPOLIS NEWS READER

DEAR READER: I agree, it's worth the space:

IT ISN'T THE CAR. IT'S THE DRIVER. "It isn't the car that begins to whine when forced to stop for an old stop sign — it's the driver."

"It isn't the car that takes a drink, then quickly loses its power to think — it's the driver."

"It isn't the car that fails to heed the dangers of reckless, discourteous speed — it's the driver."

"It isn't the car that steps on the gas and causes an accident trying to pass — it's the driver."

"A car may be bent and twisted awry, but it isn't the car that will have to die — it's the driver."

Dr. Seuss goes home to Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Dr. Seuss explained to the wide-eyed youths who invited him "home" for Springfield's 32nd anniversary how he came up with all those rhymes in his library children's books like "Cat in the Hat."

Seuss, whose real name is Theodore Seuss Geisel, returned Tuesday to his hometown for the first time in 20 years, at the invitation of Mayor Richard E. Neal and hundreds of schoolchildren, many of whom met with for a news conference with elementary school reporters.

1904, the son of a Springfield parks superintendent, and now a resident of La Jolla, Calif. — was what they expected he would be, with his white hair and glasses.

"He was exciting and nice," Daniel Santana, 10, clutching his chest a copy of Seuss' "The Cat in the Hat" said.

Garage sales generate fun, but rarely produce bargains

As we turn onto the night way that leads directly to our home in exurbia, the first big sign greets us: "Garage Sale! As we get closer to our home, the sign becomes more detailed: "Turn left and street ahead." And other signs join the first: "Garage Sale, Family Moving!" or "All Garden Equipment, Cheapest Prices!"

Sylvia Porter

individual if you find any bargains. But you will have the fun of being a "Peeping Tom" without being ashamed of your curiosity. And it is just possible that among the junk, your sophisticated eye may spy some bric-a-brac that is priced far below its resale value in the regular open market.

Garage sales are a unique American phenomenon of the 1980s, they're becoming ever more sophisticated, with ads being run in local, regional and even nearby big-city newspapers. For millions of Americans, participating in a garage sale is a vacation; you can check the location of a sale by a traffic jam in a nearby, usually quiet, neighborhood.

Make a day of it. Check community papers and cover several sales in a morning and afternoon. Get it straight from the start. In a garage sale, there are no returns and no refunds.

A gracious payoff gesture: Serve coffee to enhance an atmosphere of good will and "stay awhile." Use grace and common sense. Encourage your would-be buyers to become real-life customers by your pleasant attitude.

About Town

Post observes Memorial Day

Dilworth-Cornell-Quey Post 102 has several plans for observing Memorial Day. Members are selling poppies, made by veterans in Veteran Administration Hospitals, on the streets and malls. On Sunday, the post Color Guard will participate in the annual Memorial Day service and dedication of the Korean War Memorial. On Monday, the Color Guard will march in the annual parade starting at 9:30 a.m. at the Army and Navy Club.

Families continue friendship

BOLTON — The Silverstein family is continuing its friendship with the Costagliola family of Toulouse, France. Last summer Amy Silverstein spent a month in Toulouse. In July, Ines Costagliola will spend a month in Bolton. Amy and Jill Silverstein are studying French and Costagliola has studied English for four years. The families are sharing cultures in the annual Navel Cultural Exchange.

Rec registers for day camp

The Manchester Recreation Department is accepting registrations for Morning Star Day Camp. The camp will run for six weeks at Highland Park School on Porter Street from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays, except for the July 4 holiday. The camp is for children 6 to 12. The registration fee is $50 for the first five-day week a child attends and $47 for an additional week. It is $42 for the four-day week, June 30 to July 3.

College alumni elect officers

The Manchester Community College Alumni Association has elected Richard Quinlan of Glastonbury president for a two-year term. Other officers elected are: Valeris Johnston of Manchester, vice president; Richard Lacafala of South Windsor, treasurer; Susan Finn of Stafford Springs, secretary; and Joyce Perret of Manchester and Joan Stevens of Bolton, members of the Board of Directors.

About Town deadlines

Items submitted to the About Town column must be submitted to the Manchester Herald at least five days before publication. Always include a name and a daytime phone number in case questions arise. Items should be typed, written or plainly printed on business-size stationery. Items which do not meet the above guidelines cannot be guaranteed publication.

Youth Services has beach trips

The Andover, Hebron, Marlborough Youth Services will sponsor four trips to Ocean Beach, New London, this summer, on July 10, July 27, Aug. 5 and Aug. 12. Each trip will leave the RHAM High School parking lot at 8:30 a.m. and will return at 4 p.m. Students under 13 must have adult supervision. Parents

ECHS drive nets 54 blood donors

East Catholic High School recently held a bloodmobile. The donors, including 54 who gave for the first time, were:

McWilliams, Paul Michoud, Lesa Miles, Matthew Moulisick, Elizabeth Moseler, Karen Mueller, John Murdoch, James Sailer, Michael Seewer, Patricia Tencio, Patricia Testi, Mark Verelick, Thomas Wallace, Matthew Poincove, Paul Pelletier, Bory Powell, John Wickac, Adrienne Fougasse.

Difference between 'hard,' 'soft' water

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — America's increasing attention toward health and fitness also has drawn attention to the value of good drinking water and use of the terms "hard" and "soft" water. Researchers at Mountain Valley Spring Co. define "hard" water as water with 100 parts per million dissolved solids. "Soft" water is water with less than 100 p.p.m.

Dr. Henry A. Schroeder of the Dartmouth College trace element laboratories reports that people who habitually drink "soft" water are more likely to die of cardiovascular diseases than people who drink "hard" water. Cardiovascular diseases are blamed for one of every two deaths in America.

AIDS test is fairly reliable

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm so scared about getting AIDS that I'm considering making any man I get serious about test a blood test. How effective is the test for detecting AIDS and how long must a person be infected with it before the test can detect it?

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: The blood test for AIDS is said to be more than 90 percent accurate. Like any blood test, however, there are bound to be false positives — and false negatives. Actually, the blood test detects if individuals have been infected with the HTLV-III virus; only a small percentage of these people will develop AIDS.

DEAR READER: I have pain in my hands when I hold something heavy like a water pitcher. Wringing out a rag causes terrible pain. One doctor told me it was all in my head, and an orthopedic specialist told me to lose weight. Where do I turn next?

DEAR READER: To a rheumatologist. Your problem appears to be in your hands, not in your head. An arthritis specialist may be able to discover the reason for your discomfort and suggest treatment. If you are obese, by all means lose weight. Remember that doctors who claim physical ailments are due to head problems often make this claim because they can't diagnose the ailment.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there one address a person could write to in order to find out the addresses of organizations specializing in certain disorders?

DEAR READER: Yes, there is. Write to the National Health Information Clearinghouse, P.O. Box 11133, Washington, D.C. 20013-1133.

Lipstick stains easy to rid

DEAR POLLY: Help! My little girl got lipstick stain all over her new white dress while playing dress-up with Mommy's make-up (unknown to me). The dress is polyester and cotton. What's the best way to remove the lipstick without setting the stains? MRS. F.N.

To hand-shake cream, place it in a light-lidded jar filled about half-full. Shake until many rests as you like. When the butter clumps up (either in a hand-shaker or in the blender), drain a few minutes in a colander, place in a bowl and wash by barely covering with cool water.

Work the butter with a wooden spoon in a creaming motion, washing the butterfat out of the butter. Drain over a colander. Repeat washing until the water is clear after working the butter. Use cool, but not cold water or the butter will stiffen. Finally, cream the last drops of butter out of the water. Salt if desired to taste.
