PEOPLE

Bunny Brooke

Brooke Shields, the model of virtue and chastity, may be Playboy's unlikely cover girl in December if publisher Hugh Hefner gives the final nod. Shields and her protective mother-manager, Teri, were in Chicago for the shooting this week. But don't expect any nude pictures — or even a story about Shields — inside. The only photograph of her inside will be in a "what-sort-of-woman-reads-Playboy" ad. Brooke's mother was overheard in an elevator at the Playboy headquarters saying — in a surprised tone — that she found the magazine people very nice.

Liberace lobbies

Divided They Stand
 On June 27, 1950, President Truman ordered U.S. forces to help repel North Korea's invasion of South Korea. Here Truman is met by Secretary of State Dean Acheson for an emergency meeting preceding the announcement. Today, North and South Korea are still divided. North Korea has a per capita income of about $600, less than half that of South Korea. North Korea exports only about 10 percent of its GNP. South Korea exports about $30 billion out of a GNP of $75 billion.

Getting away
 Sarah Ferguson escaped the pre-wedding hubbub back in London by touring a 250-year-old linen factory in troubled Northern Ireland.
 "It's so lovely to be away from telephones and decisions. I'm really loving it here," Prince Andrew's bride-to-be told a friend.
 Ferguson, who was accompanied to Ulster by the prince, admitted to a bit of nervousness about the wedding next month. "I hope I don't miss my words during the ceremony," she said.
 Many of Ferguson's ancestors come from the remote, rolling green Londonderry countryside where the linen factory is located but she still had trouble with the language. "I'm finding the thick Irish brogue a little difficult to understand," she said.

Democrats search for 4th candidate

By George Lavno and Alex Grell
 Manchester Herald
 Democrat Josh Howroyd of Manchester, a legislative liaison for the state Department of Administrative Services, said Thursday he would consider replacing William Ferris as a candidate for the party's nomination in the 4th Senatorial District if no other contenders emerge.
 Howroyd, 27, a member of Manchester's Democratic Town Committee, said town Director Stephen Cassano would be the most obvious candidate to face incumbent Sen. Carl Zinsner, R-Manchester, this November. Cassano lost to Zinsner in the 1984 election, and earlier this month dropped out of the race against Ferris for the Democratic nomination.
 Howroyd's announcement Thursday that he was ending his campaign because of a fight last week with Manchester Democratic Chairman Theodore R. Cummings over the Hartford County high sheriff's race has once again thrown the race wide open.

CASSANO IS CONSIDERING mounting another campaign, but has said there are a number of factors discouraging such an attempt.
 He would have to give up leadership positions in state and national municipal organizations and forfeit his town director's job if he were to unseat Zinsner. The late start his campaign would have also a factor, he said.
 At the same time, Cassano has admitted that he is probably the only Democratic candidate who is well known in all five towns in the district — Manchester, Glastonbury, Bolton, Hebron and Columbia.
 Another possible Democratic candidate, Stephen T. Penny, majority leader on the Manchester Board of Directors, said this morning he will "absolutely not" consider running for the office. Penny made an unsuccessful run against Zinsner in 1982 and Zinsner recently described Penny as a more formidable opponent than Cassano.
 Manchester Mayor Barbara Weinberg said this morning she has been asked to consider running, but she has not decided. "I'm committed to Manchester," she said. "I'm quite pleased to think that people would ask me," she said.

ZINSNER, WHO WILL be seeking his fourth term in the Senate, said today that he is surprised that Ferris has withdrawn after "forcing Cassano out of the race."
 "It seems to me that all the particulars are not out on it yet," Zinsner said of the new developments. "It seems to me that they are going back to Cassano."
 Howroyd said if Cassano or another candidate does not come forward by next week, he would talk with the party chairmen in each town in the 4th District and with John Sullivan, the district's state central committeeman, "to get a feel for what's going on."
 Howroyd stressed that he has not yet given the matter serious thought and is "flattered" to be considered. He also said he is aware of the issues facing the district, and has a good knowledge of the legislative process because of his job.
THIS MORNING, Ferris said he will not reconsider his decision to withdraw.
 "It would be very strenuous to work with Ted (Cummings)," Ferris said.
 Ferris said that in his phone call Friday, Cummings said that whether Ferris supported consolidation of the town of Manchester and the Eighth Utilities District would be a determining factor in what support Ferris would get in town.
 Ferris said that when he met Cummings Tuesday night, Cummings backed off on that issue as well as the issue of getting delegates to support Al Rioux for Hartford County sheriff, and pledged his unqualified support.

Sewer impasse continues despite report

By Alex Grell
 Associate Editor
 Nothing has happened to resolve the impasse between the town and the Eighth Utilities District over where a sewer line to service the developing Buckland area will be hooked into the town's sewerage system, district President Walter Joyner said this morning.
 At a special meeting Thursday night, the district Board of Directors heard a report from Lombardi Associates, the engineering firm hired by the district to design the sewer, and from Joyner, who met Monday with town officials to discuss the controversy.
 The district directors took no action Thursday night on the sewer question.
 Town officials want the proposed sewer line to feed a sewer that runs along Adams Street and joins the North Manchester Interceptor. The district, which provides fire protection and sewer service to most of northern Manchester, wants to connect to the North Manchester Interceptor farther north.
 Joyner said Lombardi's plans call for installing a blade valve device that could be adjusted manually to allow given amounts of sewage to flow into either the Adams Street sewer or along a proposed sewer on North Main Street to the point where the district wants to make the connection.
 At Thursday night's meeting, the district directors also gave authority to John Risley, a Vernon insurance broker, to act as agent for the district in getting an insurance quotation from the Independent Association of Insurance Agents.
 Joyner said he understood that the quotation would come from a kind of assigned risk pool. When it is offered, an agent would be able to serve as the agent of record for the district and provide the coverage, he said.
 The district's current insurance contract expires July 15. Joyner said Risley hopes to have an insurance quotation by July 10 or 12.
 There were no bidders in March when the district invited insurance bids.
 Joyner said the chief problem lies in obtaining liability insurance, both for vehicles and for other kinds of district liability.
 Joyner said that while the current contract, with the W.J. Irish Insurance Agency, costs about $40,000, the district has budgeted about 50 percent more for insurance in 1986-87.

Police candidates include four blacks, one Hispanic

Fifty-nine of the 256 original applicants for five openings on the Manchester Police Department are eligible to take oral examinations for the posts, the town personnel officer has reported.
 Of the 59, four are black males, one is a Hispanic male, four are white females, and the rest are white males, according to an interim report by personnel officer Linda Parry.
 Ron Oaella, a member of the Human Relations Committee, said that the figures sounded good. "I'm heartened that we have a slew of qualified candidates," he said. "Hopefully, they will do well."
 The oral examinations will be given between July 2 and July 11.

OPINION

Contra vote could mean a U.S. war

Despite the words of a jubilant President Reagan, the decision by the House of Representatives to provide military aid to the guerrillas fighting to overthrow the Nicaraguan government is scant cause for comfort.

The vote approving the aid, which came under intense pressure from the White House, can certainly be counted as a personal victory for the president. But if the past is any indication, it wasn't one for the American people.

With the approval of Congress, the administration will now give the contras, as the rebels are known, $70 million for weapons and another $30 million for supplies. The rationale is that the United States must act to stop the establishment of a "Soviet beachhead" on the American mainland.

What the program can actually accomplish, however, remains in doubt. So does the wisdom of any representative who voted to fund a questionable cause overseen by a shadowy group that thus far has shed much blood while gaining nothing of note.

Contrary to numerous assertions, Wednesday's action on the aid came in a Congress more fearful of the president's rhetorical powers than convinced by the nobility of his argument. And the 221-209 vote in the House, which followed narrow passage of a similar measure in the Senate, is hardly an indication of consensus.

Nonetheless, the nation's course has been decided. What must follow is an honest assessment of the goals and how they can be realized.

If the real aim is to promote democracy, the ground must be laid for an end to the contra war even while escalation is undertaken. But as the CIA prepares to equip and train its Central American military machine, the goal looks more like all-out victory than a negotiated settlement.

If that is the case, deadly illusions are at play, and disaster looms.

As the new program begins, significant questions remain about the old one. Indeed, by far the greater part of the last aid package cannot be accounted for, according to the federal General Accounting Office. Stories abound about how the $27 million has paid for houses and lives of luxury in Miami while recruits have gone hungry in the jungles of Costa Rica and Honduras.

That kind of thing must be stopped immediately.

More significant by far is the need to clearly define the U.S. role in the contras' activities and in the region as a whole. Thus far, shallow rhetoric has carried the day, and the facts have been obscured.

Consider, for a moment, what has been said:

In the view of the president, the contras are "freedom fighters" who seek to wrest their land from totalitarian puppets of the Kremlin. Sponsoring a war to bring the Sandinista government down, the nation has been told, is the only way to address the problem.

But how many Americans can name these "freedom fighters"? And how many know what would happen if they were to achieve their aims?

Unfortunately, the numbers aren't great — and probably won't be, until there is a great deal of direct U.S. military involvement. The administration, which has undermined efforts by the Contadora nations and others to promote a peaceful solution, has compounded its folly by concealing both the complexity of the situation and the extent of its warlike intentions.

Another problem is the nature of the client army itself: visitors to Central America have told stories about the contras that are far from reassuring.

The pastor of Manchester's Center Congregational Church, for instance, came back from Nicaragua a week ago with a report of a contra attack in which eight villagers, children included, were killed for no apparent reason. Accounts of rape, murder and pillage have been common.

No matter how despicable the conduct of the Sandinistas, there can be no justification for such actions.

Although official apologists promise an end to atrocities even as they pledge that U.S. funds will no longer be diverted for private gain by the contra leadership, the statements by themselves are essentially worthless. Clearly, the details about oversight are far too scarce and need to be forced into the public eye as a continuous reassessment of the strategy takes place.

If the aid ends up promoting a peaceful resolution of the impasse and democratic reforms inside Nicaragua, critics will be proven wrong. But there remains the distinct possibility that it will only help the Sandinistas consolidate their grip while sparking a broad and useless war.

Whatever happens in the coming months, it is certain that Wednesday's vote has placed a heavy burden on America, which is now publicly sponsoring a war deemed illegal by the World Court and immoral by many in this country and elsewhere.

From this day forward, U.S. citizens must understand that they are almost wholly responsible for the conduct of the contras. The nation must be punished and the rebels must be kept under control.

Even if that's done, the policy that has won Congressional blessing may foreshadow an American war, complete with American troops. If it isn't, the consequences will be too dire to predict.

Andover board can't stand heat

To the Editor:

In the midst of the turmoil over the question of contract busing in Andover, other important issues have been overlooked. At its last regular meeting on June 10th, Mrs. Kowalski's board of education granted itself a two-month vacation from regular board meetings. How can the Andover Board of Education afford itself such a luxury when important business has yet to be settled?

These are the issues that currently confront the board:

- 1) Will the Board excuse itself from the responsibilities of overseeing staff hiring procedures, giving the administration free rein to fill vacancies as it sees fit?
- 2) Can the Board ignore the ongoing budgeting issues?
- 3) Does the Board plan to convene in September with the budget issue solved on its own?
- 4) Does the Board plan on passing on its responsibility of heating oil contract awards to the superintendent?

Nothing has been acted upon. Mrs. Kowalski has reminded the town throughout the bus crisis that her board is committed to children and education. Is that just a ten-month commitment?

Let me remind members of the board that as elected officials, their terms include the summer months. With unfinished business of importance lying on the board's table, the board arrogantly agrees to ignore its responsibilities.

The board calendar of regular meetings is approved well in advance of the June meeting. How can the Board conveniently rescind their earlier decision to approve all meetings?

It is becoming increasingly apparent that the Andover Board of Education can't stand the heat. Perhaps if they can't stand the heat on the Board of Education, members should run next election for the Board of Selectmen.

Some argue disaster looms for Mexico

WASHINGTON — The CIA told President Reagan there's at least a 1-in-5 chance that the Mexican government will collapse within the next five years.

This alarming judgment was delivered to the White House two years ago, but our CIA sources tell us that, if anything, it was an optimistic appraisal. In the last two years, they point out, Mexico's economic and political problems have grown by quantum leaps as the price of oil has fallen and charges of election fraud have hit the headlines.

The prediction of possible disaster was contained in a highly classified National Intelligence Estimate — the most important appraisal of a country that the intelligence community provides to a president. It represents the best intelligence analysis the president and his top advisers receive before policy decisions are made.

The secret, 35-page intelligence estimate begins mildly enough: "The Mexican political system is under greater stress today than at any time under the last 30 years. Ultimately, of course, the preservation of Mexico's stability will rest on the skill and competence of its leaders and on the strength of its political fabric."

"But the majority of the intelligence community principals also judge there is roughly a 1-in-5 chance that during the period of this estimate — through the remainder of President (Miguel) de la Madrid's term, which ends in 1988, and the first few years after his successor is scheduled to take office — centrifugal forces now at work within the system, combined with internal political opposition and perhaps external pressure, will result in the political destabilization of Mexico."

Because National Intelligence Estimates represent the combined view of all U.S. intelligence agencies, dissent is duly noted. In the case of the dire prediction of Mexico's collapse, the majority of the "intelligence community principals" agreed, but five representatives disagreed with the CIA's pessimistic opinion.

Among those who agreed were CIA Director William Casey; Lt. Gen. Lincoln Faurer, then-director of the National Security Agency; Rear Adm. John L. Butts, then-chief of naval intelligence; and the Treasury Department's intelligence unit.

DISAGREEING WERE Lt. Gen. James A. Williams, Defense Intelligence Agency boss; Hugh Montgomery, head of the State Department's intelligence and research bureau; Gen. William E. Odom, Maj. Gen. James Plautz and Brig. Gen. Larry Smith, the intelligence chiefs of the Army, Air Force and Marines, respectively. All five have since moved on to other spots.

The dissenters' view was given at length: "While Mexico will experience increased political instability associated with extremely diverse social and economic problems, the probability that these conditions will reach the extreme of political destabilization during the period of this estimate is remote."

"The complete political destabilization of Mexico would require an extremely well-organized opposition with dedicated leaders capable of challenging one of the most durable and resilient political systems in Latin America." The dissenters felt this was unlikely in the near future.

"Despite these differences of opinion," the intelligence chiefs told the president, "we judge unanimously that in the coming years Mexico will suffer a series of incidents and crises stemming from the forces now at work within that country's society." The president was reminded, perhaps unnecessarily, that "U.S. policy makers will need to monitor (conditions in Mexico) closely to protect U.S. vital interests."

Under the dome Here's a twist on partisan politics: Democratic insiders who have been fighting the good fight against pork-barrel-as-usual are less than ecstatic over the growing possibility that their party might recapture the Senate this fall. Reason: Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., would cede chairmanship of the Appropriations Committee to Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss. With Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., the "kick of pork" who heads the House Appropriations Committee, this would give the Magnolia State a mortal lock on congressional pork. "We might as well turn over the whole budget to Mississippi," mourned one Senate aide.

Moffett sues for primary ballots

Challenger preparing suit to force a new election

By Mark A. Dupuis
United Press International

HARTFORD — Toby Moffett has filed suit demanding that state prosecutors turn over absentee ballots and other documents from last month's Democratic gubernatorial delegate primary in Waterbury.

Moffett said Thursday he needs the documents for an expected second suit challenging Gov. William O'Neill's victory in the May 20 primary and demanding a new election over the 40 Democratic state convention delegates from Waterbury.

Three people have been arrested in connection with alleged fraud in the primary and the absentee ballots, ballot applications and envelopes have been impounded as part of the investigation.

Waterbury Superior Court, Moffett is asking for a court order requiring State's Attorney John A. Connelly to make the documents available for public inspection by his attorneys.

"We need this information that we're going after to determine what, if any, action we can take to get to the bottom of this," Moffett said at a Capitol news conference.

"It is very likely that we will go to court and be in court very soon," said the former congressman, who is struggling to get enough delegate votes to force O'Neill into a statewide primary for their party's gubernatorial nomination.

Charles Monagan, a spokesman for the O'Neill campaign, dismissed the lawsuit as "a totally cynical action."

"Virtually all the irregularities described so far can be laid at his (Moffett's) doorstep and now he wants a new election because those attempts to defraud the public were unsuccessful," Monagan said.

"It appears now that Moffett will do anything in order to get his (statewide) primary, including abusing the legal process, interfering in a state prosecutor's investigation and insulting the public's intelligence," he said.

Connelly, who is continuing the investigation into the primary, said he was still researching the applicable law, but indicated he will oppose making the ballots and other documents available to Moffett.

"Let me put it this way, this offer's position has always been in the past that we do not disclose information which is being used or gathered in an ongoing criminal investigation, and that's what these documents are," he said.

Superior Court Judge Francis J. O'Brien signed an order requiring Connelly to appear in the Waterbury court at noon Monday to argue why the documents should not be made available to Moffett.

Moffett remains about 15 delegates shy of the 270 he will need at the July state convention to qualify for a Sept. 9 statewide primary with O'Neill, who is seeking a re-election to a second full term.

Moffett said he would not like to see the July 18-19 convention postponed because of legal action over the primary, but said there is a possibility that could occur.

"It's fair to say that it could conceivably happen as a last resort," Moffett said.

High court to take show on the road

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state Supreme Court, marking the first time in more than half-a-century it will hear cases outside of its regular courtroom, has planned to hear appeals one day this fall in Norwich.

Chief Justice Ellen A. Peters said Thursday the high court decided to hold sessions away from the Supreme Court building in Hartford to give more people the opportunity to view its proceedings.

The justices are scheduled to hear appeals Nov. 5 in Norwich Superior Court and will make another out-of-town trip on April 8, 1987, when they will sit in Danbury Superior Court.

Peters said many people are unable to attend the Supreme Court proceedings in Hartford and she is hopeful school groups and others will take advantage of the out-of-town sessions.

Court officials said they believe the Norwich session will mark the first time the high court has heard appeals outside of the Supreme Court building since 1930.

Prior to 1930, the court regularly traveled on a circuit and heard cases in Hartford, Bridgeport, New Haven and Norwich.

While in Norwich this November, the justices will use the same bench the court had used when it held regular sessions in Norwich, said Lawrence G. Moore, director of communications for the Judicial Department.

Danbury process suaver, the court may expand the program of sitting in locations outside of Hartford, Peters said in a statement.

500 evacuated after gas line breaks

TRUMBULL — About 500 people were evacuated as a precaution from a busy downtown business and shopping center after a natural gas line was ripped up during construction, police said.

The evacuation of the Trumbull Center at Daniels Farm Road and White Plains Road as well as some nearby homes was ordered by police at the start of the busy lunch hour Thursday and lasted for about 30 minutes, officials said.

A police spokesman said about 500 people were evacuated from offices, shops, banks, and several restaurants as utility crews quickly traced the leak and shut off service to the affected area. Service to 15 mostly commercial customers was interrupted when construction equipment apparently ripped up a 1½-inch service line from mainline into an office building under construction, said a spokesman for the Southern Connecticut Gas Corp.

The accident was reported at 11:36 a.m. and declared under control at 12:10 p.m., the gas company spokesman said.

State ordered to reimburse CCLU

NEW HAVEN — The state has been ordered to pay $165,000 in legal costs to the Connecticut Civil Liberties Union for its role in a lawsuit forcing the state to fund abortions when the mother's life was in danger.

The decision Thursday by Superior Court Judge Robert I. Berdon follows his ruling in April when he threw out a state regulation that prohibited the use of state funds for abortions when a doctor certifies the procedure as necessary for the health of the mother.

Berdon's ruling in April, which allowed Connecticut to join five other states that allow the use of public funds for abortions in such circumstances, came 4½ years after the suit was filed by a woman whose doctors determined she needed an abortion because she was suffering from cervical cancer.

The order to pay legal fees was hailed by William Olds, executive director of the CCLU, who said it marked the first time in Connecticut that compensation for legal costs has been ordered in a civil rights case.

Berdon's ruling in April, which allowed Connecticut to join five other states that allow the use of public funds for abortions in such circumstances, came 4½ years after the suit was filed by a woman whose doctors determined she needed an abortion because she was suffering from cervical cancer.

Jury in abuse case still undecided

DERBY — A Superior Court jury in the trial of a former Derby man accused of sexually assaulting three Ansonia children has ended its third day of deliberations without reaching a verdict.

"We're having a difficult time coming to a conclusion," the jury foreman told Judge Anthony V. DeMayo at 4 p.m. Thursday.

DeMayo urged them to continue deliberating the fate of Jerry G. Baker, 32, accused of three counts of third-degree sexual assault and risk of injury to a child.

Farrell, 43, has pleaded no contest in the case and is scheduled to be sentenced to 15 years in jail on July 11.

Hospital asked to consider joint talks

WATERBURY — Waterbury Hospital officials are being asked to consider joint negotiations with the two unions that are striking and effectively closing the state's fifth-largest hospital.

Unions representing striking nurses and blue-collar workers held a joint news conference outside the hospital Thursday to call on hospital officials to meet with both unions simultaneously to end the walkout, now in its fourth week.

Since the strike began, negotiations have included both District 1189 of the Connecticut Health Care Associates, representing registered and licensed practical nurses, and the New England Health Care Employees District 1189, representing the blue-collar workers.

Representatives for both bargaining units said they have sent a telegram to Paul Heffernan, chief negotiator for the hospital, requesting the joint sessions.

O'Neill orders vets' alcohol program

HARTFORD — Gov. William A. O'Neill has ordered the state Veterans Home and Hospital in Rocky Hill to establish an alcohol treatment program.

O'Neill told the State Alcohol and Drug Abuse Commission Thursday to work with the institution's staff to create a voluntary alcohol treatment program after reports that home officials said there was an alcohol problem among some residents, and no treatment program.

The home has about 340 residents and the hospital has 325 patients. Officials' estimates varied on the extent of the alcohol abuse program the institution, but it has ranged from 10 percent to 50 percent of the residents.

Officials said they bus residents to a local package store to buy alcohol, and the home as an on-premises bar.

Drug smuggler's home nets $666,000

WETHERSFIELD — A 5.5-acre estate with a six-bedroom home and a private harbor on the Connecticut River, taken from a convicted drug smuggler by the federal government, drew $666,000 in an IRS auction.

David McDermott, of Lyme, who has lived across the river from the estate for 25 years, outbid 44 other bidders who gathered in a game-show atmosphere Thursday at Wethersfield's Town Council Chambers.

The next closest bidder was developer Herbert Clark III of Essex, who offered $611,885. Only five other bidders were willing to put up more than $500,000, and two tried to get the estate for as little as $40,000.

More than 100 people attended the 45-minute auction for the property in Deep River, which was previously owned by Frank Rositto, a convicted drug smuggler who owed more than $1 million in back taxes.

Rositto, a government-protected witness, is living under an assumed name at an undisclosed location.

"I think I got an excellent buy," said McDermott, owner of three auto dealerships in New Haven and Bridgeport.

Man sentenced in wife assault

LITCHFIELD — A Hartwinton man who was accused of assaulting his wife 14 times during a three-month period has been sentenced to one year in prison after a plea bargain agreement.

Jeffrey A. Tremms, whose estranged wife also plans to sue police for failing to protect her, pleaded no contest on Thursday at Superior Court to 10 counts of third-degree assault and one count of breach of peace.

Union seeks hearing on engineer's firing

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter

The union that represents former Town Engineer Walter Senkow plans to take the third step in its effort to fight his firing, it was reported, an official said today.

That step, which is the union's last alternative under an agreed-upon grievance procedure with the town, is to request a hearing before the state Board of Mediation and Arbitration.

Helaine Swirda, a staff representative of the Civil Service Employees Affiliates Inc., which represents Senkow and about 60 lower management employees of the town, said today that the union will probably file for a hearing before the end of the day.

If the request is made, it will come 11 days after union officials met with Town Manager Robert B. Weiss, who fired Senkow May 13 for what town officials have called sexual harassment of a female co-worker.

Weiss was required to write to the union and inform it of his decision concerning Senkow within 10 working days of that meeting, which took place June 12, according to union officials.

Swirda said this morning that CSEA has not received any response from Weiss since the meeting.

"They're not bargaining in good faith," Swirda said. "They're acting like the bargaining begins and ends with them and there's no in-between."

Town officials have said that Senkow's case is not subject to

Weiss awaits response

In a letter to the lawyer for the Eighth Utilities District, Town Manager Robert B. Weiss has asked district officials to contact the town regarding negotiations about sharing the town's Buckland firehouse.

"You may recall that you were going to get back to me with a response to my comments that your proposal for the use of the firehouse by the district was unacceptable," Weiss wrote to Manchester attorney John D. LaBelle Jr., who represents the district. "I just want you to know that we are still awaiting word from you."

Athletic escapee caught in eatery

By John Mitchell
Herald Reporter

An inmate who escaped earlier this month from the Montville Community Correctional Center during a softball game was captured by Manchester police Thursday night.

Police said that Joseph P. Lyman, 29, formerly of the Rockville section of Vernon, was arrested at about 6 p.m. at a restaurant where he was causing a disturbance.

Lyman was charged with breach of peace and interfering with an officer in connection with the incident at Arthur Treacher's Fish and Chips on Center Street, police said. Police said the suspect used the name "Paul Kelly," and police didn't know he was wanted by the state until they ran a check on him at department headquarters later.

Lyman is being held on a $20,000 bond and was taken to Manchester Superior Court this morning and presented on a $25,000 bond. He was charged with breach of peace charge, according to Police Spokesman Gary Wood. Wood said that after they had heard state police will

Bus insurance costs may go up in Bolton

By John Mitchell
Herald Reporter

BOLTON — Before they agree to help pay the cost of rising insurance premiums, members of the Bolton Board of Education must first accept a plan to reduce liability coverage from 15 million to 10 million, according to the town's school bus contractor to determine why he wants to reduce liability coverage.

Louis Cloutier, head of the school board's transportation subcommittee, said at a meeting Thursday night that the bus company, Clark Transportation Inc., is in the second year of a five-year contract with the board.

The Board of Education last year agreed to split the cost of increased premiums with owner Herbert Clark and was hoping to do the same this year, he said.

In a letter to the board, Clark said premiums in the coverage were rising another 20 percent, effective July 1. He said that because of cost, he wants to reduce the liability coverage from 15 million as provided in the last year's contract, to $3 million.

"I have a great deal of trouble going from $5 million to $3 million," said school board member Pamela Sawyer.

Board member T. Dye Hooper said that the funds were in the education budget, but added that Clark was only "looking for relief in his contract." Hooper suggested

Stations fight for the bingo

By Tara Bradley-Steck
The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Battle lines are being drawn over the latest bid to hit local television — the innocuous, mild-mannered game of bingo.

That well-loved pastime of little old ladies and volunteer firefighters is riding a new wave of popularity, and television producers are capitalizing on the public's age-old fascination with B-15s and G-9s.

Bingo programs recently have hit the air in several cities, including Los Angeles, Honolulu, Oklahoma City, New Orleans and West Palm Beach, Fla.

But the first major competition for the advertising dollars generated by bingo aficionados has occurred in Pittsburgh, where two network affiliates began broadcasting bingo shows in February.

According to the A.C. Nielsen Co., WTAE-TV's bingo show had a rating and 46 percent of the audience in its 10 a.m. time period in May, compared to a rating of 5 and 22 percent of the audience for the show it replaced, "Divorce Court."

"It was dynamite," said WTAE General Manager Fred Barber. "We had projected a 7 rating, and to do a 9 rating obviously exceeds our expectations. It has terrific sales success."

WPXI-TV's bingo show generated moderate sales, according to Nielsen figures, general sales manager, posting an 8 rating and 15 share.

"The response has been tremendous," said Mark Barish, program director for WPXI-TV, an NBC affiliate. "Our mail increases by 10,000 pieces every week."

Judy Girard, program director for WTAE, had felt that bingo was a boom-or-bust gamble. "The only game shows that have ever worked are those that the viewers can play along with. Bingo is the ultimate because you have to play along with it completely," she said.

WTAE, affiliated with ABC, airs its live "$25,000 Bingo Mania" at 10 a.m. The program occasionally runs over its allotted time because bingo numbers are called until someone wins.

WPXI-TV is shooting for a larger, more diverse audience for its "$50,000 Jackpot Bingo" with an evening time slot. Portions of the show are live, others taped. Because prime-time network programming follows, only 55 numbers are called and the show often leaves the air without announcing a winner.

Possible winners phone a toll-free number to have their cards verified.

Viewers at home can win cash prizes up to $25,000 in the morning show's game, 50,000 in the evening game.

Bingo cards are distributed by sponsors such as supermarkets, department stores and fast-food chains. Cards are color-coded and change every week, a ploy that forces viewers to patronize the businesses weekly and also helps the stations gauge the programs' popularity.

"Everybody wants them and they use all kinds of excuses to get more," said Max Dreier, a clerk at a grocery store that sponsors WPXI-TV's program. "They want them for their grandmothers who can't get out and their mothers and fathers in the hospital. Many of the men will say, 'If I go home without these, my wife will kill me.' But I think they want them as much as the women."

The Muppet maker has come up with a new film

By Vernon Scott
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — Jim Henson

JIM HENSON has new film

TV's Muppetmeister has produced a new fantasy film with a whole new cast of creatures to gladden the hearts of moviegoers.

Titled "Labyrinth," Henson provides audiences with an adventure story combining the charm of "The Wizard of Oz" — his favorite movie of all time — and the whimsy of "Alice in Wonderland."

Henson, a quiet, bearded introvert, lives in something of a Wonderland himself. His life is populated by talking frogs and pigs, dragons, goblins and other assorted apparitions.

A couple of years ago the prolific puppeteer produced "The Dark Crystal," creating an eerie landscape in a time-warped version of the large and small, transporting audiences into fanciful, sometimes frightening adventures.

THERE ARE ONLY two major human roles in the cast of "Labyrinth" — rock star David Bowie, the sinister king of the goblins, and a beautiful 14-year-old Brooklyn girl, Jennifer Connelly, who plays the heroine, Sarah.

The balance of the cast is made up of a group of magical goblins, good and bad, of all descriptions. Like Dorothy on her journey along the Yellow Brick Road, Sarah picks up some pals on her travels. There's Hoggle, a dwarf-like gnomish; a big shaggy beast with horns and tusks; and Sir Didymus, who looks suspiciously like a far-flung relative of Toto, the spunky terrier in "The Wizard of Oz."

Didymus is typical of Henson's beasts.

"Didymus is fearless in his protection of Sarah," Henson said at lunch the other day. "But he's not very big. The only reason he isn't killed is that he rides a sheepdog named Ambrosius who is a terrible coward."

"Then Terry Jones of Monty Python (James) wrote the screenplay."

"Brian made hundreds of sketches of ideas for creatures and we found some that are as delightful as they are original, which is important."

"In fantasy it is vital to invent beings and surroundings that have never been seen or imagined before. The area of puppets and creatures is still wide open to the possibilities of technology. It's improving every day with computer-generated animation and imagery."

There are, of course, Muppets in his previous TV shows and movies, marionettes, animatrons, hand puppets, midgets in costumes, radio-controlled figures and computer graphics.

"We selected our characters from sketches by Brian Froud, our conceptual designer who also worked with me and Dennis Lee, the Canadian poet, to put the original story together," Henson said.

"We're going to see unbelievable progress in optics, electronic images and high-resolution images," he said. "But no matter how advanced the techniques become, you still need a good script and performances, otherwise you'll never have a movie."

"I work in a make-believe world where the characters and story come first. 'Labyrinth' is full of stuff I like. To work in fantasy as long as I have you must still gear into another world populated by different beings. It's necessary to suspend your disbelief."

Fantasy is a big gamble for filmmakers. There have been some disastrous financial failures, including "The Wiz" and more recently "Dune" and "Return to Oz."

"Costs are so great in wardrobe, sets, special effects and the size of the film and it has been three years in the making. We shot all of it at EMI Studios in London — using every sound stage on the lot."

"If 'Labyrinth' doesn't do well at the box office, it will be more difficult to get the big money necessary to produce another fantasy film. I just hope it succeeds well enough to encourage people to try another."

Rob Reiner's film tackles 12-year-olds

By Vernon Scott
 United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — Rob Reiner, who played meek Mike Sívic in the "All in the Family" TV series for seven years, has tackled a rare movie subject — pre-pubescent boys.

Reiner previously directed only two films, both critical and box office hits. The first was the cult film "This is Spinal Tap," a satire on British rock groups touring the United States. He followed it with "The Sure Thing," a tender, comic love story of a couple of college kids.

For his third film, Reiner has chosen "Stand By Me" for Columbia Pictures. It is the story of a group of 12-year-olds groping for their own identities by plotting to become heroes over the discovery of a dead body.

Reiner, who marches to his own creative drumbeat, wanted to make a film about youngsters that avoided the current trend of post-pubescent high schoolers undergoing traditional rites of passage — usually a first brush with sex or lost virginity.

"This is my personal film," he said. "I was determined to capture the thoughts and feelings of young boys before they discover girls. Stephen King's novella, 'The Body,' was a perfect vehicle for what I had in mind."

"The book is very uncharacteristic of all the occult, horror novels King has written. It mixes drama, suspense, comedy with the adventures of four small-town Oregon kids in 1959."

"I wanted to do something reflective, a representation of my own personality and attitudes when I was 12 — the story of a boy coming into his own. So I took King's book and focused it on my own feelings of disenfranchisement as a youngster and how I validated myself."

Reiner grew up in the shadow of his father, the famed Carl Reiner, writer, director, actor and comedian.

He grew up with complexes common to sons overwhelmed by the success and popularity of a celebrated parent who dominates their lives. It wasn't until his own triumphs as an actor and director that Reiner the Younger came into his own.

"Even though I am 39," he said, "I remember with great clarity my pre-teen problems with identification, trying to make a stand on my own in my struggles with my father to a point where I could feel good about myself."

"A story of boys in their first brush with puberty is an area rarely examined in movies. It's much easier and more common to build stories around kids in the 16-19 age group."

Reiner also thinks a film about pre-teen girls is long overdue. "It would take a woman writer and director to enter their world and bring it to the screen. I mean, how would any man know about the problems and thoughts and interpersonal relationships of a group of young girls who hang out together?"

Reiner said his movie was tailored specifically for the youth market. For adults, he said, it is a chance to rediscover what it was like to be young in 1959.

"The picture will remind men of what they went through," he said. "Women will have an opportunity to look into the lives of boys — a world from which they have always been excluded. It will give them some insight into their sons, brothers and husbands, even their fathers."

Advice

Man with handicap provides rewards

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to say a few words to all the single women looking for an honest, happy, rewarding relationship with a decent man. Please don't overlook a man with a physical handicap. I'm glad I didn't.

Dear Abby
 Abigail Van Buren

I am glad I focused on all the positive aspects of our relationship rather than the few minor inconveniences of living with a handicapped person.

LUCKY

DEAR LUCKY: Thank you for a dandy upper. He's lucky, too.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that lately all the personal film ads widely they open their mouths when they kiss, the sexier they are? It never used to be that way.

All of his best friends are within an inch of being feet tall, with the exception of this one guy he's known since first grade, "Shorty" is 5 foot 5.

revolving. I've tried to ignore it, but yesterday my 5-year-old grandson greeted me with his mouth wide open, and a very wet kiss! When I told him that was not the way to kiss — he should keep his mouth closed — he said, "That's not the way they do it on TV, Grandma." Now what?

YUCK IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR YUCK: To protest anything you see on TV, write to the head of the network, then fire off a letter of complaint to the sponsors of the program, then write the producer. Meanwhile, tell the child that the people on television kiss their grandmothers with their mouths shut.

DEAR ABBY: My fiancé and I are planning our wedding and we've hit a snag. He is going to have ushers and I am going to have six bridesmaids.

CHRISTMAS WEDDING

DEAR WEDDING: Yes. Let Shorty decide whether he wants to be included. Some short guys are long on self-confidence. He might surprise you.

DEAR ABBY: Now that the wedding season is upon us, please remind your readers of the following: If an invitation is addressed to Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, it does not mean Mr. and Mrs. John Smith and their three children. (Even if the John Smiths live 2,000 miles away, the invitation does not include their children.)

If the invitation is addressed to Mr. and Mrs. John Smith and family, then — and only then — are their children included.

If the invitation is addressed to Ms. Jane Doe, this does not mean that Ms. Doe may bring a date. If the invitation is addressed to Ms. Jane Doe and guest, then she may bring one.

Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY: To eliminate frustration when doing house chores, write notes! Usually one is around when you find the wet towel on the bedroom floor or the tissue in the dryer or the faucet that still drips. Writing a constructive note to the person involved frees you to pick up the towel, etc., without feeling resentful and angry.

It's also a good way to remind people of appointments or tasks that come to mind at 10 p.m. when the person involved won't be home until dinner time. You can "handle" situations without waiting. It also makes your message clearer and eliminates nagging and complaining, and it makes you feel better to get things off your chest as they occur.

(Also: To make meatballs without the mess of frying, simply spray a cookie sheet with non-stick cooking spray and place the meatballs on the sheet. Bake at 375 for eight to ten minutes, depending on the size of the meatballs. This will brown them. They can then be added to your sauce and cooked as usual.)

Thoughts

When the death of one whom we have loved touches our lives, we can be strengthened by the community of the faithful.

"I believe in the communion of saints, and the resurrection of the body." Such is our confessed belief, the "assurance" of faith.

We are the united ones, united with God in Christ, and united with our brothers and sisters through faith in Jesus Christ as our Savior from sin and death. We are never alone. We are surrounded by God's people, the company of the committed, many of whom have and are experiencing the hurt of loss and the healing of God's love.

Brokerage charged with money-laundering

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc. has been indicted on charges of laundering money from a state sports betting ring allegedly run by a company sales manager and the son-in-law of former Mayor Frank Rizzo.

The indictment handed down Thursday by a federal grand jury claims the brokerage firm, one of the nation's largest, laundered $1.3 million from a gambling syndicate with reported ties to organized crime.

During its peak, between 1982 and 1985, the ring collected about $1 million a week in bets, the indictment said.

New York-based Shearson denied the charges, believed to be the first of its kind against a brokerage house. If convicted, Shearson faces a maximum $18.5 million in fines.

Rizzo's son-in-law, Joseph Mastronardo Jr., and Herbert Cantley, 46, a former sales manager of Shearson's Philadelphia office, were indicted along with five other U.S. Attorney Edward Dennis said defendants would take money orders, cashier's checks and cash from the betting operation into local banks and purchase money orders, cashier's checks and treasurer's checks in amounts of less than $10,000.

Using this method, they attempted to subvert federal regulations requiring financial institutions to report transactions of $10,000 or more, he said.

The checks and money orders were made out to Shearson, deposited in "dummy" accounts controlled by Cantley — a former Shearson securities broker — and the other defendants and used to purchase bearer municipal bonds and other securities, Dennis said.

Shearson, known as Shearson-American Express during the time of the alleged scheme, was charged with 36 counts of failure to file currency transaction reports.

She and her husband, Roger, are residents of Manchester.

Lumber Imports hurt U.S. sales

WASHINGTON — Canadian softwood lumber imports are undercutting U.S. sales and injuring U.S. lumber producers, says the U.S. International Trade Commission which could levy stiff duties on future imports.

The preliminary decision, on a 5-0 vote Thursday, was a victory for the Coalition for Fair Lumber Imports, a U.S. industry group which is seeking duties of up to 27 percent on Canadian lumber imports.

While some states allow participation by virtually any farmer who applies, Connecticut officials try to restrict the program to large farms in rural areas that have a history of good agricultural production, Goodhouse said.

From the time the program started in 1978 through 1985, officials approved an average of 39 farms each year, Goodhouse said. However, the number grew to nine in 1984 and eight in 1985 before jumping to 10 so far in 1986.

State farm preservation program popular

HARTFORD (UPI) — A state program that compensates farmers for development rights to their land has been granted more approvals so far in 1986 than in any other full year, officials said.

The state Bond Commission was to consider a request today to authorize $836,000 in payments for three more farms, which would bring to 21 the number of approvals granted so far this year, said Mary Goodhouse, director of the Farmland Preservation Program. The 8-year-old program, which is similar to efforts in several other northeastern states, has been eagerly supported by the state Legislature both for aesthetic benefits and as a way of preserving a vibrant agricultural economy in Connecticut, Goodhouse said.

"A lot of the public support for the program comes from the fact that there are open space benefits, but also because farms in Connecticut now produce 50 percent of our dairy products, 35 percent of our fresh fruits and vegetables in season, and 100 percent of our egg production," Goodhouse said.

"There still is a very vital farm economy out there," she said.

Under the program, the state pays the farmers what it calculates to be the difference between the fair market value of the land and its value for agricultural purposes.

NU workers reject new contracts

WATERBURY (AP) — Northeast Utilities electrical workers have rejected new contracts offered by the company and a union spokesman says it's up to mediators to prevent a strike.

Members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers voted at 16 sites around the state Thursday, according to Dick Healey, business manager for Waterbury-based Local 427. The vote also involved Local 527.

The vote affects 1,600 electrical workers, he said. Two separate contracts were both rejected. Healey said, one by a 60-415 vote and the other by a 127-31 margin.

The company's offer was for 4 percent raises during each of the contract's two years, Healey said, following negotiations with the union that began in April. Healey said. The vote was taken without a union recommendation.

The workers last went on strike in 1971, Healey said. The contracts cover the utility's line workers, electricians and non-nuclear plant operators.

"Our guys aren't getting a fair shake from the utility," HEY SAID. "It's disgraceful they would offer 4 and 4 percent."

Emmanuel Forde, a spokesman for Northeast Utilities said the contract rejection was "very disappointing."

Times Mirror pulls out of Dallas

DALLAS — The Times Mirror Co. has pulled out of one of the nation's hottest newspaper wars by selling the Dallas Times Herald, leaving a Texas who once was rejected for a job at the newspaper to carry on the uphill battle.

Media News Group, a Woodbury, N.J., company headed by William Dean Singleton, 34, said Thursday it would pay $110 million for Dallas' No. 2 paper behind the Dallas Morning News.

Analysts agree the sale will be a good move for Los Angeles-based Times Mirror, but say how it will affect the newspaper war remains to be seen.

Mark Twain Said,
"The spider looks for a merchant who doesn't advertise so he can spin a web across his way."
Spiders don't lead an easy life. Newspaper advertising creates the kind of customer traffic spiders hate and merchants love. If you're a business owner who seems to be seeing far too many spiders lately, give us a call. Our retail display and classified advertising departments can create the kind of advertising you need to send lazy spiders on their way.

Tony's Cuisine

Irvin Glenney owns and runs Tony's Cuisine at 221 Spencer St., Manchester, in the K-Mart Plaza. He has learned the secret to high quality, large portions and very moderate prices. These ingredients along with his ready wit and smiling face combine to make Tony's Cuisine a pleasant and relaxing eating experience.

Choose from off-the-grill dishes, salads, appetizers, homemade pasta, veal and chicken dishes, seafood, grinders, "dinner menu for two" and two styles of pizza — thin-crust New York style or thick-crust Sicilian. All meals and pizzas are cooked to order to insure maximum taste and freshness.

Tony's Cuisine specializes in "dinners for two." All dinners are served with homemade bread, braided garlic rolls, butter and coffee. Two people can order a complete, fabulous meal — including a carafe of wine — for less than $20. One of the restaurant's most popular items is the "vegetarian special for two."

Tony's Cuisine was named to the Top Ten Pizza Restaurant list compiled by a questionnaire in a local newspaper. Choose from daily special and homemade style soup and all orders are available to go.

Tony's Cuisine makes their own sauce and bread, and their pizzas and other entrees are ready for any test.

Stop in and taste for yourself or call Tony's Cuisine at 643-9202.

The Islander

A bubbling fieldstone fountain greets visitors to The Islander, noted for its delicious Chinese-Polynesian cuisine.

The Manchester restaurant's interior, decorated in unique Oriental decor, has a bamboo roof, colorful lanterns and huge, shell-covered lights to add to your dining pleasure.

In surroundings that put you in a relaxed mood, exotic drinks such as Pineapple Passion, Head Hunter, Blue Hawaii or Beach Comber turn your thoughts to a complete menu from which to choose sumptuous dinners.

There is a Pu Pu Platter with seven varieties of South Sea snacks, served in native style with flaming hibachi. Or Subgum Wor Ba (fresh lobster meat, roast pork, white meat chicken) combined with imported mushrooms, choice vegetables and water chestnut, served on a bed of sizzling rice.

And for true connoisseurs of seafood, there is the Lobster and Crab Meat Singapore — fresh lobster and crab meat sauteed with mushrooms and fine cut vegetables, surrounded with imported, crisp noodles.

Other irresistible offerings include Chicken Aloha (lobster wrapped in white-meat chicken in oyster sauce), Yuen Young Steak (fresh breast of chicken and sliced tender beef, sauteed with vegetables in the Islander's special sauce), and Bora Bora Steak (big piece of tender filet mignon cut in cubes with whole mushrooms and peppers, broiled to taste.)

Fiano's

The Fiano kitchen staff puts out a full force effort to provide you with such favorites as steak, veal, lobster, baked stuffed shrimp and various fish delicacies.

Fiano's has something for everyone. Their menu features half a dozen appetizers as well as two soups. While waiting for your meal, chived cottage cheese and perhaps the world's best chickpeas in a creamy dressing are placed on your table with a tray of crackers. Their bread is baked fresh daily - and what a treat their loaves of white and raisin bread are.

Fiano's takes as much pride in the preparation of their dinner entrees as they take in their banquets. Their banquet fare merits attention, also, in that the same efforts go into preparing the menu as the meal. Your wedding reception will be a day to remember, as well as anniversaries and other special functions. There are two banquet rooms with capacity for 100 and 300 each. The restaurant consistently offers good food, well prepared and in large portions.

Antonio's Pizza Restaurant

Antonio's Pizza Restaurant is celebrating its 6th year anniversary during the month of July. In appreciation, any large pizza purchased will receive a free litre of soda.

Our dough and sauce is made fresh daily by our expert chef Jean Moriconi who has been in the business for more than 34 years.

Also, come inside our cool, clean atmosphere for our daily lunch and dinner specials. Why make mom cook when you can come to Antonio's? Relax - and let us serve you.

Massaro's West Side

After 35 years of serving the greater Manchester area, Massaro's has established a reputation for excellent food. It also has the distinction of being the oldest pizza restaurant in Manchester.

The West Side Tavern was established by Michael Massaro in 1950. The West Side (as it was known) flourished and became one of Manchester's busiest beer taverns.

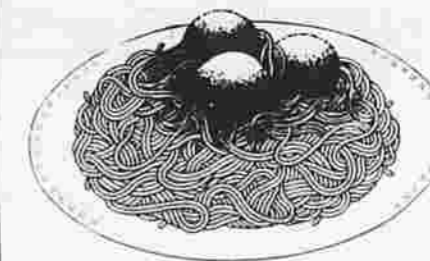

In 1967, the tavern changed over to a small Italian restaurant, with a limited menu of pasta, pizza and selected Italian dishes.

The next change came in 1976 when the restaurant, as well as the menu, was expanded. The addition of veal and seafood dishes was a definite plus factor. Some of the speciality items on the menu now are Veal Sorrentino, Chicken En Bianco and Seafood Fradivolo.

Massaro's offers specials Tuesday thru Sunday, featuring Wednesday's Italian Night, Sunday's Two for $14 Night, and Early Bird Specials from 5-7 on Tuesdays and Thursdays. All dinners with the exception of Steak & Shrimp are $6.95. Regular menu prices range from $5.95 to $11.95.

Massaro's is the place to go for good, solid food and thoroughly reliable service.

Manchester's only Vietnamese restaurant, Kien Giang, has taken over the former Jury Box restaurant on Walnut Street. Cao Hong and Ngoc Pham serve dishes which combine familiar ingredients in ways that are new to the American palate.

Customers walk in expecting a Chinese-style menu and are surprised to find such items as garlic-marinated steak tidbits, grilled over a charcoal fire. It looks a little like American, but it is all traditional Vietnamese food.

The three dozen entree choices are divided into seafood, vegetarian, meat and poultry, as well as Lo Meins and a variety of rice dishes.

Entrees such as Tom Xao Rau (shrimp with mushrooms and baby corn) and Goiga (chicken with cabbage, carrots, onions, grapefruit and Vietnamese sauce) are sure to please.

Your hosts hope you will enjoy your dining experience and the cuisine of their country. Please feel free to call in advance to plan a special dinner or party.

The Hungry Tiger

The Hungry Tiger is beginning its fifth season serving the Manchester area and continues to be the area's most trend-setting and popular restaurant and night spot.

Co-owners Don Denley Sr. and Don Denley Jr. base the popularity of their business on the premise of quality food and drink at reasonable prices, a pleasing relaxed atmosphere and quality service by a staff that cares.

Don Sr. is a well known Manchester chef and businessman having owned and operated the original "Brass Key" Restaurant on Main Street in Manchester from 1956 to 1981, while Don Jr. gained his business knowledge and insight from years of service at Valler's Steak House, The Russian Lady and Brown Thomson Restaurant. Bombay Palace

Indian cuisine is among the world's most sophisticated. Only open since mid-March, the Bombay Palace will more than meet the expectations of a seasoned diner, or provide the most marvelous of introductions to a novice.

The Bombay Palace menu will allow you to try a variety of Indian dishes, though several visits would really sample the menu thoroughly.

There are 20 entrees on the menu, some vegetarian, but most containing meat. Chicken madras is a hot dish and packs a good punch. Madras is in South India where the food is the spiciest. Anything bearing that description is intended to be far from subtle.

Tandoor chicken comes from Indian's northwest. It is first marinated in a spicy yogurt mixture and then cooked in a special beehive-shaped oven to keep the meat moist.

The Bombay Palace is an attractive, small restaurant with 10 tables that seat about 35. The food is genuinely Indian and is as good as it can be. The small serving staff makes the meal a leisurely one, but dinner at The Bombay Palace is certainly worth the trip.

Rein's

After a 10-year search for a pastrami sandwich really worth the heartburn, I've concluded that Boston is a delicatessen desert. The Hub, like most New England cities, is made of white bread. But many who take the inland route from Boston to Hartford, New Haven or New York know of an oasis called Rein's New York Style Deli-Restaurant, where they can find a fragrant sandwich on sissel and, wonder of wonders, an egg cream, that mythical beverage made with neither eggs nor cream.

This ethnic haven is located in Vernon, Conn., at exit 65 off Interstate 84, a few miles northeast of Hartford. Any place with a sign in the window inviting you to "relox" can't be all bad, and once inside the door you're warmly embraced by the endearing smells of chicken soup and corned beef. It's a clattery, cheery place, where they put a plate of half-sour pickles on your table as soon as you order from a menu that includes Dr. Brown's Cel-Ray tonic and homemade ruggalach, a nut-and-raisin-filled cookie.

Rein's was started 13 years ago by brothers Bob and Bernie Rein, and Bob's wife, Betty. The Reins had moved to the Hartford area from northern New Jersey and opened up shop basically because they wanted someplace to eat deli. About half their customers are locals who know what good is, and the rest are freeway travelers who go into Burger King only to use the facilities. Speaking of which, the bathrooms at Rein's are sort of famous. The sign directing you to them reads "Flushing," with further indications for "Queens" and "Manhattan."

10 Reasons Why You Never Ate At Rein's New York Style Deli Restaurant
YOU DIDN'T KNOW...

- 1 You could "re-live" your Manhattan weekend in Vernon on a Tuesday night
- 2 there was a restaurant that filled you up on kosher pickles before the meal instead of dinner rolls
- 3 there was a place East of the River where exotic delicacies like egg cream, match ball soup and bialys were served
- 4 Rein's Deli imported their cheesecake from the heart of the Big Apple
- 5 our bakery whips up its own sour cream coffee cake, chocolate pecan pie and ruggalach
- 6 our quiet, alternative lounge serves a variety of hot and cold alcoholic beverages for apres ski
- 7 we have a take-out deli area where Hebrew National deli foods can be had
- 8 that we protect your bagels by putting our fox on them
- 9 you can cure your winter cold with our homemade chicken soup
- 10 there is an alternative to Chinese, Mexican or Italian ethnic food

Vic's

It is safe to say that Vic's is one of the most popular eateries in town.

It is not the ambience, or the decor, or an attractive facade. The restaurant is housed in an unassuming little brick building, and the dining room is relatively small. But the reason for the long lines of people who wait patiently for tables might just be because of Vic's consistent good food.

A favorite with many patrons is Veal Parmesan. It is made with real veal — not patties. And it is always cooked to perfection.

Vic's has been open since 1944, but 8 years ago the restaurant made a major expansion. Noted originally for its pizza, it is now a complete restaurant offering anything from hamburger to steaks.

Vic's is a nice local restaurant with efficient service, good food and reasonable prices.

Pagani's Bolton Pizza

Fine food, friendly service and a pleasant family atmosphere have made Pagani's Bolton Pizza a popular eating spot in the Bolton area. Combining the talent and experience of Bob, Don and Fani Pagani, this family-operated restaurant offers large portions of Italian food, fine crispy crust pizza with all the toppings, in addition to other delicious items all at a reasonable cost.

Thirteen years of serving Manchester townspeople at Fani's Kitchen on Main Street prompted the move to the country setting of Bolton, where the tradition of excellence continues.

In addition to the traditional menu items of spaghetti, shells, ravioli and manicotti are spinach with ricotta cheese and cool summer salad, a meal in themselves. House garlic bread toasted with cheese is fast becoming a popular choice of diners.

Just minutes from Manchester, south on Rte. 85, escape from the fast pace of the city and visit the Pagani family, where we say "Our specialties are pizza, pasta and you."
