Developers set to merge mall plans

By John F. Kirch Herald Reporter

Two partnerships that have competed vocally and vigorously for over a year and a half to build a mall in the Interstate 84 corridor have agreed on a "merger of interests," top sources said today.

Although no formal agreement has been reached, it appears the developers have agreed to build just one mall in the area, a source close to the developers said.

The source, who spoke only on terms of anonymity, said this morning that there was a 90 percent chance a mall will be built in northern Manchester. But nothing is definite at this time, he cautioned.

"The ball game isn't over until it's over," he said.

One partnership, comprising the Homart Development Co. of Chicago and the New York-based Manchester 1-84 Associates, has proposed to build the 750,000-square-foot Buckland Hills Mall in northern Manchester. It has been competing for permits and anchor tenants with another group comprising Melvin Simon & Associates of Indianapolis and Bronson and Hutensky of Bloomfield, which has proposed the 550,000-square-foot Winchester Mall in South Windsor.

The competing developers, who have publicly agreed that the area can support only one regional shopping mall, surprised observers last month when they admitted to holding negotiations designed to reach a merger agreement.

"Until today, however, details of those sessions have been kept under wraps."

"The discussions have reached an advanced stage," the source said. If a final agreement is reached, he added, a number of lawsuits filed by the developers against each other will be dropped and the five anchor stores that have committed to both malls will be included in the joint project.

Sears, Roebuck and Co. of Chicago, Homart's parent company, and D&L Venture Corp. of New Britain have made commitments to put stores in the Buckland Hills Mall, which would be wholly in Manchester. G. Fox and Co. of Salem and Steiger's department stores have announced plans for major retail outlets in the Winchester Mall, which would be in South Windsor.

"It is moving quickly," the source said of the merger effort. "Hopefully by the fall it will all be out of the way."

He said that although the South Windsor site would be less expensive and easier to develop, it appears the new project would be built on the site where Buckland Hills was being planned.

"That's because the Manchester site, located between Daming and Buckland streets just off I-84, has better access to the highway and has received more of the required state and local government approvals."

In June, Homart received a vital traffic permit for the site from the State Traffic Commission. The Winchester developers are still waiting for a traffic permit.

"It would appear that the Buckland site has the advantage of timing, location and traffic visibility," the source said.

Manchester officials have supported Buckland Hills because it would mean more taxes for the town. From the beginning, officials have indicated that the town would pay for the road and infrastructure improvements in the area to provide a development incentive.

Town officials have said that revenue bonds would be used to pay for the improvements around the site in the Buckland section, mostly made up of former tobacco fields. Although the town still does not know how much money it would have to spend to make the improvements, officials have said that tax revenue from the proposed mall and other planned development in the area would more than cover the costs.

Along with the proposed mall, New York developer John Finiguerra, who is a partner in 1-84 Associates, is seeking a zone change in northern Manchester that would allow him to build an office complex, hotels and high-density residential housing.

Heritage-Suffield merger is terminated

By John F. Kirch Herald Reporter

Heritage Savings and Loan Association and the Suffield Savings Bank have terminated a merger agreement announced May 13.

The move came Tuesday after months of negotiations between the two institutions, which have been planning a merger since last October. The Suffield-based savings bank had planned to buy out the financially troubled Heritage, which suffered major losses due to a bad loan portfolio acquired in connection with another merger last year.

Howard Brown, the state banking commissioner who has been monitoring the proposed transaction, said today that the deal came to an end when Suffield changed its offer to Heritage.

Customers should not be directly affected, Brown said, adding that Heritage was "strong enough to walk away" from the merger plan.

Suffield, which originally offered to pay $18.50 in cash for each share of Heritage stock, made a new offer combining debt instruments and cash for the stock. Brown said. Although the new offer also amounted to $18.50 per share, it meant Heritage would receive less cash than expected, Brown said.

"It would have worked to Suffield's advantage," Brown said. "If Suffield would not have to deplete its liquid funds."

Suffield changed its offer, Brown said, after the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., which insures Heritage depositors up to $100,000 each, said the savings bank had to pay a $1 million exit fee before the merger would be allowed. Besides the FSILC, the state Department of Banking, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Federal Reserve Board had to approve the transaction.

The FSILC's fee request was not anticipated, Brown said, and was "the additional element that made Suffield pause."

Officials of both institutions declined comment today on why the agreement was terminated except to say that the termination was in the best interest of both parties.

Some banking officials speculated that the deal was killed because Heritage's financial problems were worse than previously reported and said the bank would be forced into another merger by banking regulators. But Brown said today that such speculations were incorrect.

"I want to make perfectly clear that Heritage is not a problem," Brown said. "It is in no way a failing institution. If Heritage wasn't strong enough to walk away from this deal, they would have accepted Suffield's offer. Heritage found the terms of the offer unacceptable. They were strong enough to walk away."

Janet Hale, assistant treasurer at Heritage, said today the bank has hired an outside consulting firm to develop a new business plan.

The firm - Lyons, Zombak and Ostrowski of New York - will review Heritage's status within the next few days, Hale said. The firm's report will help the S&L identify its capital needs and develop a plan on how to meet them, she said.

"That would give us some alternatives," Hale said. "Once the agreement with Suffield folded, we went ahead with it. Now that we are separate again, we feel it's time for us to look at ourselves fresh and say 'Where do we want to go?'"

Heritage has been setting aside funds to cover potentially bad loans it acquired with its 1984 purchase of Fidelity Federal Savings of New Haven. Heritage posted losses last year and in past years, mainly because of the bad loan portfolio.

nan, the court approved of the Cleveland promotion scheme. By a narrow 5-4 margin, in an opinion also by Brennan, the court approved of the New York plan.

The high court said the Cleveland consent decree, countersigned to by the city and the minority firefighters to settle a discrimination suit, meets the guidelines of federal law.

Court backs affirmative action plans

By Henry J. Reske United Press International

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court gave wide support to affirmative action plans today, ruling such programs may be used in both hiring and promotion schemes.

The action, in cases from Cleveland and New York, is a defeat for the Reagan administration, which had urged the court to strike down the affirmative action plans as discriminating against whites.

Civil rights groups had urged the court to endorse affirmative action as necessary to correct past discrimination against minorities.

One of the two cases was brought by the Cleveland chapter of the International Association of Firefighters challenging an agreement

Connecticut In Brief

Absentee ballot ruling expected today

WATERBURY — A Superior Court judge is expected to rule today on whether to turn over absentee ballots and other documents seized in a probe of alleged illegal voting in last month's primary to one of the candidates. Democratic gubernatorial challenger Toby Moffett has filed suit against State's Attorney John Connolly demanding access to the documents seized by the state's attorney's office when Connolly launched his investigation. Moffett is demanding a new election in the May 20 primary, which put all 49 Waterbury delegates into Gov. William A. O'Neill's column for the July 18-19 nominating convention. O'Neill won the Waterbury primary by only a 44-vote margin.

Ex-Choate student to surrender

NEW HAVEN — A student wanted for allegedly supplying cocaine to fellow students at an exclusive private school has agreed to return to the United States this month and face a drug charge, a federal prosecutor says. Matthew Robert Holmes, 20, now living with his parents in Caracas, Venezuela, faces a cocaine distribution charge in a case that led to the arrests of 16 other students at the Choate Rosemary Hall preparatory school in Wallingford. All of the students arrested were expelled from the school, which includes President John F. Kennedy among its graduates. Holmes is planning to surrender July 21 at Kennedy International Airport in New York and be arraigned later in the day at Bridgeport Superior Court. Assistant U.S. Attorney Jeremiah F. Donovan said Tuesday. While a student at Choate, Holmes was believed to have made seven trips to Venezuela to supply other students with cocaine, Donovan said.

Judge halts Uniroyal demolition

NEW HAVEN — A federal judge has halted demolition of the former Uniroyal complex in Naugatuck, citing improper removal of cancer-causing asbestos by a New York wrecking firm. U.S. District Judge Ellen Bree Burns issued a temporary restraining order against the Big Apple Wrecking Corp. of New York. U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy Jr. said Tuesday. Twardy brought the suit against Big Apple on behalf of the federal Environmental Protection Agency, citing a serious health hazard posed by exposure of asbestos to the air. It is the first temporary restraining order issued in a Clean Air Act case involving asbestos removal, Twardy said.

Courts denies Ross dismissals

NEW LONDON — A Superior Court judge has denied a defense attorney's motion to dismiss two counts of capital murder against accused serial murderer Michael Ross. Superior Court Judge Seymour Hendel refused Tuesday to dismiss two of four contested counts against Ross after his defense attorney argued the murders were committed in Rhode Island and therefore outside the jurisdiction of Connecticut courts. The ruling related to the alleged kidnapping and killing of April Brunis and the abetting and sexual assault of Leslie Shelley, both 14 and of Griswold. Ross, 26, of Jewett City is also accused of the killings of Wendy L. Baribeault, 17, of Lisbon and Robin Stavinsky, 19, of Columbia.

Five plead innocent to ballot fraud

WATERBURY — Five people facing charges stemming from allegations of widespread absentee ballot fraud in the Waterbury delegate election between Gov. William A. O'Neill and challenger Toby Moffett in May have entered innocent pleas. O'Neill won the election, and Waterbury's 49 convention delegates, by 43 votes. Attorney Timothy Moynahan, representing Jose Antonio Vargas, who faces 34 charges, said Vargas was "clearly working for the Moffett organization in Waterbury." Also pleading innocent Tuesday were David G. LaPointe, 22, of Waterbury; Loretta Allen, 46, of Waterbury; William Watson, 58, of Waterbury; and Vanessa Gatling, 32, of Waterbury.

'Tampering' was done by brother

STAMFORD — A 16-year-old boy was injured when his brother apparently placed straight pins in his deodorant, police said. Police had been asked to investigate the incident in which the North Stamford youth suffered minor armpit cuts Monday morning while using the pin-laden deodorant stick. Stamford police said the teen's father called Tuesday to say another son apparently was responsible for tampering with the deodorant. But Stamford police and the deodorant manufacturer, The Mennen Co. of Morristown, N.J., continued to investigate the complaint.

Court reverses Century ruling

WATERBURY — A court decision that had allowed Century Brass Products Inc. to declare bankruptcy and free it from its contract with union workers was reversed by a U.S. Appeals Court judge in New York. The decision on Monday sends the case back to lower court to be modified, according to Walter Bryant, an appeals court deputy clerk who said the earlier court ruling had been "reversed and remanded." Century Brass, a Waterbury firm that employs 530 production workers and 300 office workers, makes automotive parts. A former brass mill, it employed 1,700 people a year ago.

State OKs freeze of electric rates

NEW BRITAIN (UPI) — State regulators have given the go-ahead to an agreement freezing rates for nearly 1 million Connecticut electric customers for at least 18 months.

The agreement approved Tuesday by the Department of Public Utility Control also sets up a special fund that will be used to pay the utility's share of the cost of the freeze. The utility's share will be paid by the state through a special fund that will be used to pay the utility's share of the cost of the freeze. The utility's share will be paid by the state through a special fund that will be used to pay the utility's share of the cost of the freeze.

The agreements, when viewed as a unified whole, represent an equitable resolution of the issues," the five commissioners said in their unanimous decision to approve the plan.

The DPUC said the agreement, which was worked out by Northeast and state officials, represented a fair settlement of the utility's unsuccessful bid for a $147 million electric rate hike and related issues. Under the agreement, Northeast will freeze rates for the 960,000 electric customers served by its Connecticut Light & Power Co. subsidiary until at least 1988. The utility also will establish a "rate moderation fund" that would be used to reduce any electric rate hike requests filed by the state's largest utility after the freeze expires.

In addition to the freeze on electric rates, the agreement will freeze gas rates for residential customers and reduce rates for some commercial gas users for the next year, a DPUC spokeswoman said. Northeast, which also provides electric service in western Massachusetts, serves about 158,000 residential and commercial natural gas customers in Connecticut. DPUC Chairman John T. Downey said he was pleased that Northeast was able to reach the settlement with the DPUC prosecutor's division and the state's consumer counsel and attorney general.

Stores charged with antitrust violations

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state is filing suits seeking fines that could reach into the hundreds of thousands of dollars from two supermarket chains accused of conspiring to eliminate "double coupon" offers.

The legal action announced Tuesday against the Stop & Shop and Finast chains with working together illegally over a four-year period to do away with double coupon promotions at their Connecticut stores, officials said. Attorney General Joseph I. Lieberman said one suit filed in Hartford Superior Court seeks civil fines of $250,000 for each violation of state antitrust laws.

Another suit already filed in U.S. District Court seeks damages equal to three times the loss suffered by Connecticut consumers because of the alleged conspiracy to end the money-saving promotions, officials said.

Lieberman said the state expected to name other defendants in the suit, which resulted from a state investigation based in part on information from former federal antitrust investigators. In double coupon promotions, stores match the face value of manufacturers' coupons to double the savings a customer receives by redeeming a coupon. Lieberman said the alleged conspiracy by Stop & Shop, Finast and the as yet unnamed defendants began as early as 1978 and continued until late 1982. He said the alleged illegal action was successful in eliminating double coupons during part of the four-year period. Stop & Shop of Quincy, Mass., has about 44 Stop & Shop supermarkets in Connecticut while First National of Ohio, parent firm of Finast, Edwards Food Warehouse and Pic-N-Pay stores, has about 45 stores in the state. Frank Burke, general counsel at First National's regional headquarters in Windsor Locks, said company officials had not had a chance to review the suit and thus could not comment.

Aileen Gorman, vice president for public affairs at Stop & Shop headquarters in Quincy, denied any wrongdoing.

"We certainly don't believe we have done anything wrong," Gorman said. She said Stop & Shop began offering double coupons in Connecticut in the late 1970s and discontinued them in 1983, but then resumed the promotion. "Our merchandising policy is to respond to what the competition is doing. We have been offering them the last three years in Connecticut," Gorman said.

South African police issue alert

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police today urged Johannesburg residents to be on the lookout for more bombs, and shopowners called for tighter security following the latest explosion in South Africa's biggest city. Three of the eight people injured in Tuesday's bombing remained in Johannesburg General Hospital, including a 2-week-old baby who was reported in stable condition with a lacerated ear. Also injured were five white women, a black woman and a 3-year-old girl, officials said Tuesday. The government suggested that the blast, along with nine other bombings since a state of emergency was declared June 12, was carried out by the outlawed African National Congress guerrilla movement. The ANC, in a telex sent from its headquarters in Zambia, said it had no comment on any of the explosions.

Experimental blimp crashes, killing 1

LAKEHURST, N.J. — A massive experimental airship built from a blimp and four helicopters crashed after one copter malfunctioned, killing a crewman during a test flight near where the Hindenburg exploded 49 years ago. Four other crewmen and a firefighter on the ground sustained only cuts and bruises when the 345-foot-long, 10-story Hel-Stat crashed Tuesday night at the U.S. Naval Air Engineering Station, authorities said. The craft, sponsored by the U.S. Forest Service, was designed for logging remote areas with a minimum of environmental damage. But some federal agencies criticized it for structural problems and for running behind schedule at a cost of $34 million, more than three times the original projection of $10.7 million. Gary Oleshki, of Bordentown, who was alone in one of the helicopters, was killed in the crash, Grand said. Tuesday was Oleshki's 39th birthday.

U.S. says allies getting tough on Libya

WASHINGTON — The State Department today said the expulsion of more than 100 Libyans from Western Europe in the past two months, says America's allies are making serious efforts to isolate the government of Col. Moammar Gadhafi. At the same time, a department spokesman says it's hard to judge whether the Western response has had any moderating influence on the Libyan leader. "It's a difficult call," spokesman Charles E. Redman said Tuesday. "There are a number of things which we believe may have had an impact on his behavior, but the extent of that impact... I think is just too difficult to evaluate."

In addition to the expulsions, governments of the 12 nations in the European Economic Community have increased cooperation among their law enforcement agencies to counter terrorism and have augmented surveillance of personnel assigned to Libyan "People's Bureaus" or missions, a department announcement said. "These actions illustrate the seriousness with which the Europeans have come to view the Libyan terrorist threat and reflect a major change over the past two months," it said. The campaign to get Europeans to crack down on the People's Bureaus was stepped up in April after the Libyan mission in East Berlin was accused of involvement in a West Berlin discotheque bombing in which two American soldiers and a Turkish woman were killed. Here is a country-by-country list of European actions cited by the State Department: Italy: Expelled six Libyan diplomats and 13 staff members from the People's Bureau in Italy and arrested a former Libyan diplomat in connection with an alleged plot to kill the U.S. ambassador in Rome. Another four dozen "non-official" Libyans were expelled. Italy is also investigating Libyan investments and reviewing legal status of about 3,500 Libyan residents. West Germany: Expelled 17 Libyan diplomats and ordered the People's Bureau to cut six non-Libyan employees from its staff. The three Western powers in Berlin — the United States, England and France — have banned People's Bureau diplomats in East Berlin from visiting the Western sector of the city. France: Expelled two Libyan diplomats for their alleged involvement in a plot to attack people waiting for visas at the U.S. Embassy in Paris. Turkey: Filed charges against the consul general and two other members of the People's Bureau for involvement in an abortive bombing of an American officers club in Ankara. Belgium: Announced the expulsion of seven diplomats and two staff members of the People's Bureau in Brussels and said the remaining staff cannot travel outside the city without permission. Denmark: Ordered the bureau to reduce its staff by five. Britain: Expelled 20 Libyan students. The People's Bureau in London was closed in 1984 after a policeman was killed by bullets fired from the embassy. Spain: Expelled six members of the People's Bureau, five Libyan teachers and three students. And Portugal: Reduced by five the number of officially accredited Libyans at the bureau and has required Libyan diplomats to seek authorization for travel 18 miles (30 kilometers) outside Lisbon.

Lebanese captors free American

BEIRUT, Lebanon — An American taken prisoner by Lebanese drug dealers almost two years ago was freed today, a Lebanese police spokesman said. The American, identified by the State Department and Lebanese police as Steven John Donahue of Hollywood, Fla., was not among the five Americans held hostage for political reasons by radical Moslems. Donahue was released near the extremist Shiite town of Baalbeck, 32 miles miles east of Beirut, Lebanese police said. Capt. Ashraf Riffi of the Internal Security Forces told United Press International that Donahue was kidnapped two years ago by Lebanese hashish merchants in the Bekaa Valley in eastern Lebanon.

Florida postpones Stano execution

STARKE, Fla. — Florida prison officials today postponed the execution of mass murderer Gerald Eugene Stano for 21 hours and said he would die Thursday with suspected serial killer Ted Bundy in the nation's first double execution since the reinstatement of capital punishment. Stano, who claims to have killed 41 people, also is appealing his death sentence to the Florida Supreme Court today. He received a three-hour stay Tuesday and was to be executed at 10 a.m. today, the 10th anniversary of the reinstatement of capital punishment in the United States. Corrections officials rescheduled the execution for 7 a.m. EDT Thursday, Florida State Prison Superintendent Richard Dugger said. Dugger stressed that the decision to postpone Stano's execution was made by corrections officials, not by the courts. He said it was a matter of logistics.

Chileans brace for national strike

SANTIAGO, Chile — Chileans crowded markets to stock candles, heating gas and food before a national work stoppage called by foes of their country's military government started today. People in long checkout lines said the buying spree was a precaution against violence that could keep them home, whether or not they supported the two-day strike. "Food stores around the capital's vast blue-collar perimeter reported sales up by as much as half Tuesday as workers spent end-of-the-month paychecks to stockpile large quantities of flour, cooking oil and tea. Sixteen firebombs or dynamite charges exploded overnight Tuesday in Santiago, damaging banks, buses, rail lines, a factory and a school. Police arrested 123 students who seized a closed administration building Monday at the University of Chile.

BOGOTA, Colombia — Pope John Paul II denounced the economic policies of the world's wealthy industrial nations, saying they inspire insurrection and fuel international terrorism. The pontiff's address to Colombian business and political leaders Tuesday night was considered one of his harshest criticisms of unbridled capitalism. Thousands of pilgrims today walked to Simon Bolivar park in Bogota, where the pope was to celebrate the first open air mass of his seven-day trip to Colombia. The pontiff, who arrived in Bogota at 3:05 p.m. Tuesday on a flight from Rome, told reporters on his plane the Vatican rejected requests from two of Colombia's main guerrilla groups to mediate their conflicts with the government. In his speech Tuesday night, John Paul warned that foreign intervention in political and economic affairs helped create a climate of violence.

Ruling sets stage for repression

The Supreme Court ruling upholding a Georgia sodomy law probably doesn't mean that hordes of police officers will soon be breaking down doors to catch people engaging in forbidden sexual activities. Nonetheless, it must be recognized as a significant defeat for individual rights, one that carries with it a host of frightening implications.

In yet another 5-4 decision, the court held Monday that the Georgia law, which prohibits "any sex act involving the sex organs of one person and the mouth or anus of another," did not violate Constitutional guarantees of privacy as they apply to homosexuals. Such statutes, Justice Byron R. White said in the majority opinion, have "ancient roots" in English law and religious beliefs and were common to almost every state as recently as the early 1960s.

The majority position, as Justice Harry Blackmun argued in a stinging dissent, is noteworthy for a variety of reasons, the most striking of which is its homophobic tinge. The court, addressing a law that governs the conduct of everyone who sets foot in Georgia, focuses only on homosexuals. "It relegates the actual statute being challenged to a footnote and ignores the procedural posture of the case before it," Blackmun wrote.

The incident that led to the ruling involved an Atlanta man who was observed by a police officer while engaging in a homosexual act in the privacy of his bedroom. When the lower court declined to prosecute the charge but left open the possibility of reinstating it, the man filed a civil suit on the grounds that his federal privacy rights had been violated.

In holding that such rights do not necessarily apply to homosexuals while declining to state whether heterosexual activity is protected, the justices have cloaked state aggression under the guise of judicial restraint. They have sanctioned the return of government to the bedroom, and, as Blackmun said, have opened the door to state prosecution of citizens "for making choices about the most intimate aspect of their lives."

Just what the ruling may mean is easily discernible from the local reaction. Of the five state legislators who represent parts of Manchester, only one was willing to stand up for individual rights in the context of the decision. "If it's between consenting adults," Rep. Donald Bates said of sexual activity, "the state shouldn't interfere at all."

Every other local lawmaker expressed a despicable willingness to consider laws governing private sexual conduct between adults.

"I'm against homosexual activity because of the problems it causes," said Democratic Rep. James McCannagh.

"If everyone did everything they wanted," said Sen. Carl Zimser, a Republican, "we'd have chaos." As things stand, Connecticut is one of 26 states where consensual sex between adults in private cannot lead to criminal penalties. But thanks to the Supreme Court's sodomy ruling and the parochial irrelevancies that govern the minds of politicians, that may not hold true for long. The only hope is that most legislators can be persuaded to see what the five justices refused to recognize: that infringing on the rights of the few is a threat to the many.

Bozzuto sews things up and keeps busy

Apparently the candidates for governor in both political parties will continue their word battle over how many delegates support them right down to the state conventions in Hartford later this month.

It is a game of bluff, counter-bluff and — let's be realistic — is awfully boring to the public. Most of the candidates are positive about their claims. Only one, Republican Julie Belaga of Westport, provides us with a switch. She ain't talking — about her own list. She challenges the numbers her rivals are throwing around and she says they are wrong in their assessments of her strength.

But while this little exercise dominated the coverage of the campaign in recent weeks, one of the candidates was moving quietly to take over key posts at the Republican State Convention. Dick Bozzuto's people used the majorities they have on the four major convention committees to elect chairmen in each case.

COMMITTEE ACTIONS AND REPORTS must be approved by the full convention, of course, but Bozzuto will go into the July 25-26 event with an advantage.

He will have State Sen. Jamie McLaughlin of Woodbury chairing the rules committee, State Rep. Carol Hershkowitz of Southbury heading resolutions. Richard Rittenband of South Windsor on credentials and Deputy House Speaker Richard Belden of Shelton chairing organization.

One disturbing proposal last week by the Bozzuto people, who obviously are savoring their strength, would have imposed a rule to oust a third-running candidate from the hunt after the

"Junior's giving up on law — he's enrolling in business school to major in leveraged buyouts and insider trading."

Stories hurting good town family

To the Editor:

Many of us in our neighborhood continue to be sorry that the Walter Senkow case has not been resolved in a way which would seem more equitable.

There seems to have been such a lack of clarification in some respects that it must appear to the casual reader that Mr. Senkow has committed a heinous crime. Perhaps the cartoon, or whatever the pornographic material really was, should be printed in the newspaper so that Manchester residents might decide for themselves whether it is similar to Playboy and like magazines — which repose on coffee tables in some Manchester homes, in full view of children of all ages (I am neither condemning nor condoning this practice since it is one's personal option) — or whether it actually called for the firing of an eighteen-year town employee. He apparently was a very hard worker whose work was of high caliber. If it wasn't he should have been fired long ago, or at the very least had professional counseling.

As for the book "Looking For Mr. Goodbar," it is rather typical of the paperbacks found in our reputable bookstores and drug stores. I read it, as have many of my friends, and while I certainly did not find it high quality reading material, it is no more offensive than many paperbacks read today by intelligent people throughout the country. It is, I have been told, on the shelves of some libraries for public consumption, paid for by the taxpayer.

Having worked with the excellent staff at Martin School, teaching, tutoring and trying to protect the tender feelings of the young, including the three Senkow children, it hurts to see them so humiliated day after day.

week after week in the headlines, sometimes on the front page. This is Manchester, not some huge, far away city with little care for the hurts of fellow church members and neighbors.

Perhaps my fellow educators and I are supersensitive, because most of us care so much about helping personalities to grow in a healthy way, and fine characters to develop. We feel that the Senkows also made every effort to do this, and are still trying, even while enduring this terrible trauma. After all, this is not the Von Bulow case, and Von Bulow has been exonerated. He is wealthy and seems to have achieved hero status. He does not have to wonder where to find his daughter's UConn tuition this summer, nor how he will support his family.

Some of us are trying to help the Senkow family hold themselves together with dignity, so that they may soon return to the extremely quiet life they previously enjoyed. We may not have known this family very well before, but we respect them for the valiant effort they are making to survive this struggle. We sincerely hope that they make it. When a responsible and highly respected town official and his family suffered so much hurt when his child received such adverse criticism for his unacceptable behavior, most of us felt a deep sense of compassion for the family. We should — it could happen to any family and it happens in the finest of families. Somehow compassion for a good family seems lacking in this case — something appears to be amiss.

If Mr. Senkow cannot be forgiven for a breach of good judgment, may we hope that the "family name," in all decency, soon may be removed from the headlines so that innocent family members may once again lift up their heads and begin to try to rebuild a good life.

I ask for your indulgence and understanding in once again having to express myself. This was one of my respected Martin School families which I continue to hold in high regard.

Technocrats at war with politicians

WASHINGTON — Mexico's serious economic problems have brought on a crucial struggle at the highest levels of the country's political system. The outcome will have a great impact on the United States, for it could decide whether our neighbor struggles out of its desperate situation or succumbs to violent revolution.

The battle for control of the government — and ultimately for the hearts and minds of the Mexican people — is between the "technocrats" (technocrats) who are now in control and the "politicos" (old-line party bosses) who yearn to regain their old power.

The struggle has drawn close scrutiny by U.S. analysts, and is summarized like this in the most recent, highly classified National Intelligence Estimate:

"In contrast to the first six presidents in the modern Mexican system, (President Miguel) de la Madrid and his two predecessors all rose to the top largely by dint of their performances as regime bureaucrats. All three appointed men of similar backgrounds to most of their Cabinet posts, and most of (de la Madrid's) current Cabinet secretaries have never held elective office.

"Opposition to this trend comes from the older generation of state and regional political bosses and from others concerned with economic mismanagement. One critic lamented the declining role of the old political hands and predicted that they will have to be brought back into positions of influence to help guide the country through its current problems. They fear that the new class of technocrats will be unable to maintain the support of the masses."

IN OTHER WORDS, the party bosses will be needed to sugarcoat the bitter pill of austerity the technocrats have prescribed for Mexico.

"The tension between technocrats and politicians is one that is heavily freighted with historical and psychological baggage," the intelligence estimate continues, "because the former bear a striking resemblance to the 'scientific' — the scientific ones who came to control the country's political economy in the years before the Revolution. That violent upheaval had many causes, but high among them was the arrogance and detachment from the masses of the president and his circle of technocratic advisers."

Even if the technocrats are peacefully ousted, it would have serious implications for the United States. The Harvard-educated de la Madrid is probably the most genuinely pro-U.S. president of Mexico in decades.

The president's popularity is slipping, though how widespread the slippage is cannot be determined. The derisive whistles that greeted him at the World Cup soccer opening — considering the high prices of the tickets — indicated only that middle and upper class Mexicans are unhappy over his austerity program.

"LOOK AT THE REALITY," budget director Carlos Salinas told us recently. "If the government of de la Madrid didn't have the political skill to avoid a social crisis with such tremendous economic problems, then what's politics about? (What else) but the capacity to conciliate interests in order that the national interest gains? And this administration has been able to do that."

Foreign minister Bernardo Sepulveda said: "In my experience someone who belongs to the presidential Cabinet and has political responsibilities cannot survive if he is only a technico. He has to have the political sensitivity to realize what Mexico is all about. If not, he will not be there."

As for the president himself, a few days after his nomination by the ruling PRI party — which has been tantamount to election for more than half a century — a journalist asked de la Madrid if he was a technico or a politico. "Politicians are the ones who win the nominations and the elections," he replied.

Strong sentiments

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, who is co-chairman of the Coalition for Peace through Strength, received some suggestive gifts from supporters the past year: a hand-tooled .45-caliber pistol valued at $1,000 from the Mexican-American Republicans of Texas, a 12-gauge Remington shotgun valued at $778 from a Texas couple — and a bronze elephant valued at $300 from a fan in Santa Cruz, Calif.

Political notes
Tom Mc Larney, a retired Democratic registrar of voters in Waterbury, has written an informed comment on the May 20 delegate primary ado in his city. In a column printed by the Waterbury Republican-American, Mc Larney notes that in 30 years, "not one registrar of voters or town clerk has ever been charged with an election offense. He blamed the "permissive" trend in legislation that allows all manner of election "helpers" to muddy the waters. And that goes for easing registration rules as well, he says. "Making it easier may well have been noble in purpose," writes Mc Larney. "If we really want it this way, we must be prepared to pay the price."

ballooning. They were sure, naturally, their man would lead. Balancing that effort at overall was probably the best news to come along yet in this otherwise dreary campaign. Bozzuto's people saw that House Majority Leader Bob Jaekle of Stratford was named convention chairman. And while that must also be ratified, it was a welcome sign that some sanity and brilliance is left among politicians.

JAEKLE IS EASILY one of the most respected legislators in either party on Capitol Hill. His colleagues named him No. 1 in a poll done last fall for Connecticut Magazine. He has maintained a strict neutrality in the politics of this year's contest for the gubernatorial nomination. That hasn't been easy, because one of his deputies is Belaga and he must answer to House Speaker R.E. Van Norstrand of Darien, who supports Bozzuto.

In the two years of tension between House and Senate leaders, Jaekle has played a constant and

Pratt gets order for 110 engines

EAST HARTFORD (UPI) — Pratt & Whitney has announced that Singapore Airlines has placed a turbofan engine order totalling more than $200 million to power a new fleet of Boeing and Airbus Industries jetliners. The order calls for delivery of 110 of Pratt's newest large engine, the PW4000, including spares, the company announced Tuesday. Singapore Airlines has placed 14 firm orders for Boeing 747-400 jetliners, with options for an additional six aircraft. Singapore also ordered two Airbus A310-300 jetliners with an option.

'At the market' buy should not have taken a day

QUESTION: I telephoned my broker at 11:30 a.m. EST March 20 and asked for a price on a certain stock on the New York Stock Exchange. He said it last traded at 93 1/4 - 93.875 a share. I told him to buy 26 shares for me 'at the market.' The confirmation slip I received from my firm, a NYSE member, showed the transaction took place on March 21 at 95%. When I asked him about this, he said the transaction hadn't gone through the day I phoned because too few shares had been traded. He said he "threw it in the box the next morning." Actually, 800 shares were traded the day I placed the buy order. I have been feeling uncomfortable about this ever since and I have checked the stock tables in two different newspapers. Both show the high price of that stock on March 21 was 95%. Given the odd-lot differential of 1/4, I feel my maximum cost should have been 95% per share - not 95%. Do you agree with me?

ANSWER: Yes. Your broker and/or his firm fouled up. An odd-lot transaction - involving fewer than 100 shares - on an exchange can be handled in a number of different ways. Because you gave the buy order "at the market" - meaning at the best available price - during the NYSE's trading hours, the stock should have been purchased for you that very day. The broker's statement about too few shares being traded doesn't hold water. Your purchase could have been executed at a price based on the next round-lot trade of 100 shares, plus the 1/4 odd-lot differential. Or, it could have been filled at the odd-lot differential of 1/4. In the specialist's book at the time the order reached the exchange floor - without an extra odd-lot fee. Your broker as much as admits he goofed by not sending in the order on March 20. That's his fault. In that case, your order could have been executed through a process called "Opening Automated Report Service" (OARS) for short - when the NYSE opened on March 21. Many brokerage firms execute odd-lot transactions through OARS without extra fees. Some lay on the 1/4 differential. Your brokerage seems to have charged more. In your shoes, I'd ask for a complete explanation from the broker.

QUESTION: What is meant by the "bid" and "asked" prices in the over-the-counter market? ANSWER: The bid quotation is the highest price at which a "market-maker" - a securities dealer inventorying the particular stock - will buy that stock. The asked quotation is the lowest price at which a market-maker will sell that stock. Naturally, the bid is lower than the asked. The bid and asked prices are posted by market-makers and are quoted to brokerage firms. When you, as a member of the public, sell, you receive the bid price - minus a markdown or commission. When you buy, you pay the asked price - plus a markup or commission. QUESTION: I expected the broker to hold on to the certificate for stock I bought. Instead, he sent it to me. Can I sell this stock even though the broker doesn't have the certificate? ANSWER: Of course. Just place your order to sell and deliver the certificate to the broker within the five-business-day "settlement period."

Doubts surface over expected rebound

Growing doubts that the U.S. economy will strengthen later this year have intensified forecasts of lower interest rates, helped send stock prices higher and contributed to a decline in the dollar's value, analysts say. The Commerce Department said Tuesday that the Index of Leading Indicators, its main economic forecasting gauge, crept up only 0.2 percent in May, well below increases of the previous three months. The department also said construction spending rose 0.4 percent in May, with the gain caused largely by increased government projects and masked a decline in private building, one of the economy's few growth areas.

GTE acquires lighting firm

STAMFORD (UPI) — GTE Corp. has announced it has reached an agreement on terms for a $90 million cash tender offer for a British lighting company that distributes products around the world. GTE said Tuesday it will acquire all common and convertible stock of Rotaflex PLC, a manufacturer of residential and commercial lighting fixtures and systems based in London. Rotaflex products are manufactured primarily in western Europe and distributed in 44 countries around the world. The firm has sales last year of $75 million and projects sales this year will exceed $90 million. GTE, headquartered in Stamford, reported combined revenues and sales for 1985 of $15.7 billion. Its lighting businesses are based in Danvers, Mass. "This is a natural fit for both companies and supports our long-range strategy of supplying the world market with high-performance lighting products, equipment and systems," said Allan L. Rayfield, senior vice president of GTE Corp. and president of GTE Diversified Products. The acquisition and additional financing from GTE will allow Rotaflex to speed up development of its products and take advantage of GTE's new lamp technology, the company said. Rotaflex will continue to be headed by its current chairman, Michael Frye, and his management team, GTE said. GTE's lighting businesses include GTE's S. Lighting Division and GTE International Lighting Division and GTE Lighting Special Products Division. The lighting operations employ more than 16,000 people and have 45 facilities worldwide. The GTE divisions produce household, industrial, commercial, automotive, miniature and photographic lighting products. Those products include more than 6,000 types of lamps under the Sylvania and Claude brand names, as well as fixtures.

Supermarket Shopper

Bacon offer cloudy

By Martin Sloane
United Feature Syndicate

DEAR MARTIN: The television commercial for Sizzlean said to look for the packages marked "half price." I found one of those packages at the supermarket. When I got to the checkout counter, I asked the cashier to make sure she charged me half the marked price. She pointed to the back of the package, and for the first time I noticed that there was a mail-in offer.

The offer required me to mail in a proof of purchase. In return for this, I would receive a coupon worth one-half off on my next Sizzlean purchase.

I wonder about advertising like this. What do you think?

Obviously, spelling out these details takes up valuable commercial time and doesn't sound as appealing as a simple "Come and get it at half price!" But there are laws against deceptive advertising, and consumer-protection agencies, both local and state, to enforce them. Shoppers who believe an advertisement is deceptive should not hesitate to register a complaint.

I recently registered a complaint with Ann Goodwin, a public-relations representative of Popple Industries, when she told me about a "hot" promotion the company was planning this summer. She said an advertisement in newspaper coupon inserts would challenge consumers to compare new improved Fudgecicle fudge pops to any other fudge or pudding pop. The advertisement promises "82 Sizzles We're Fudgier!" In the ad are 30-cent and 20-cent coupons and a mail-in form offering an additional $1.50 in coupons to those who agree that Fudgecicle fudge pops are fudgier.

What happens if a consumer doesn't think Fudgecicle fudge pops are fudgier? "If they send in," said Goodwin, "we will send them back a 35-cent coupon on any other brand of frozen treat."

It certainly sounds like the Popple people are stacking the deck with their offer of $1.50 to those who agree and 35 cents to those who disagree. Could they be planning to use the results for publicity?

"Absolutely not," said Goodwin. "We are not really interested in consumer feedback. We are just trying to get people to sample this new product."

I still object. Offers like these are an insult to shoppers.

DEAR G.R.S.: It doesn't sound kosher to me!

It's true that in a typical 30-second television commercial, the advertiser has a difficult time including every desired selling point. Words are cut and sentences are squeezed to fit the limited amount of time. But this is no excuse for an advertisement that makes an offer, but tells only half the story.

In the situation you describe, where an item is offered "half price," the commercial should clearly tell viewers that a full-price purchase is necessary and that the same item can be purchased at a later date at half price after the required proof of purchase is mailed in along with the mail-in form on the back of the package.

It's true that in a typical 30-second television commercial, the advertiser has a difficult time including every desired selling point. Words are cut and sentences are squeezed to fit the limited amount of time. But this is no excuse for an advertisement that makes an offer, but tells only half the story.

In the situation you describe, where an item is offered "half price," the commercial should clearly tell viewers that a full-price purchase is necessary and that the same item can be purchased at a later date at half price after the required proof of purchase is mailed in along with the mail-in form on the back of the package.

Advice

Last ride to church too late

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I thought this was so, more people should see it. It's written in a half-teasing way, but there's a lot of truth in it. It came with our church newsletter.

DEAR ABBY: I hope it makes your column.

DEAR V.M.: I did. Dear Church Member: Don't wait until the hearse hauls you to church. If you do, you will go, regardless of the condition of your body.

Green paces shoot-out field

CROMWELL — Preliminaries and lunaries were the order of the day at Tuesday's warm-up for the Canon Sammy Davis Jr. Greater Hartford Open at the Tournament Players Club in Cromwell.

Hubie Green emerged from an eight-man field to win $3,500 of the $10,000 "shoot-out" on Tuesday. The Celebrity Pro-Am is today, with four more days and rounds of big-game hunting on the links to follow.

Green won a chip-off with 1984 GHO winner Peter Jacobson on the final hole.

Ray Floyd finished third, followed by Fuzzy Zoeller, defending GHO champ Phil Blackmar, Tom Watson, Lee Trevino and John Mahaffey.

The shoot-out consisted of some light-hearted by the competitors, before the serious stuff begins on Thursday. Jacobson, in particular, was his nonsensical sense, performing several imperfections for a crowd that is expected to blossom into record numbers before the Fourth of July weekend is over.

Murphy is looking to win second time

HARTFORD (AP) — Veteran Bob Murphy is hoping the game before his next PGA Tour victory will be shorter than the 11 years he waited to win last week's Canadian Open.

Murphy, 43, won by three strokes last week to take the first prize of $100,000, nearly $9,000 more than he earned on the tour in all of 1985. But his last victory before that was in the 1975 Inverrary Classic.

As he arrived for this week's $700,000 Canon-Sammy Davis Jr. Greater Hartford Open, Murphy said he felt good because, as a past winner, he always receives a warm welcome when he comes to the PGA's Connecticut stop.

"It feels doubly good this year coming after the Canadian Open," Murphy said, stepping off the practice tee Tuesday at the Tournament Players Club course of Connecticut. The par-70, 6,796-yard course redesigned three years ago by noted golf architect Pete Dye.

"You have a new pride in your game. After not having won in 11 years, I had begun wondering if I was ever going to win again," Murphy said.

"I don't think I did very much different last week than a lot of the times when I finished second or lost in a playoff. So, you have to wonder when you win all of a sudden, and win by three strokes."

Greg Norman, the runner-up in the Canadian Open and whose earnings of $547,779 this year has already set a single-season mark.

DEAR READER: Although I am delighted at your good news, I have difficulty figuring out what went on. Tagamet is an anti-ulcer medicine; your symptoms don't fit with those of peptic ulcer. Lactobacilli are harmless bacteria; lactobacilli are not antibiotics. I would guess that your digestive system is not working properly, and you may have been deficient of certain nutrients as a result. Food allergy is a possibility, but you don't mention making dietary alterations. You might have had a "spontaneous cure" that was unrelated to anything you did. This can happen in many diseases.

Your story is certainly intriguing, and your improvement was nothing short of miraculous. I'd welcome comments from readers who might have some thoughts about why you got better when you did.

AL roundup
 By Ed Burns

Tom Seaver did all his new team asked of him Tuesday night — pitch well enough to win.

The pitcher who answered to Tom Terrific when he won three Cy Young Awards for the New York Mets, scattered seven hits, walked two and allowed four runs in seven innings to help the Red Sox to a 7-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

"You pitch seven innings and you know you did a good job," Seaver said of his 126-pitch performance. "You get through it and thank God it's over."

Seaver, 36, who was acquired from the Chicago White Sox on June 17, had been victorious in his last 10 starts. Rich Bordi pitched the final three innings for his third save.

Indians 9, A's 0
 At Oakland, Calif., Mel Hall hit a pair of two-run homers and Tony Bernazard added a pair of solo blasts to break the seven-hit pitching of John Butcher, 1-5. Rick Langford hit to lead off the first inning. Steve Lyons on June 29th, picked up his first win since April 23rd and the 30th of his career, more than any other active pitcher.

Rangers 3, Twins 0
 At Arlington, Texas, Pete O'Brien hit two-run homers to support the five-hit pitching of Charlie Hough, 8-3. The snap snapped the Twins' four-game winning streak and dropped Mark Portual to 2-8.

White Sox 5, Angels 3
 At Anaheim, Calif., Ozzie Guillen doubled home two runs to key a five-run third inning that broke the three-run lead of the Angels, 4-4. Four runners and eight hits over five innings and Bob James pitched the final two innings for his 12th save.

Mariners 6, Royals 5
 At Seattle, pinch hitter Ricky Nelson hit an RBI single with two out in the eighth inning to ignite a four-run uprising. The loss was Kansas City's fifth in a row. Reliever Pete Ladd, 4-2, pitched 2-3 innings for the victory.

Orioles 7, Brewers 3
 At Baltimore, Fred Lynn drove in three runs with his ninth home run. Steve Blass pitched six innings for his 12th save. Milwaukee, Mike Flanagan, 2-5, earned his first victory since April 17. He had been victorious in his last 10 starts. Rich Bordi pitched the final three innings for his third save.

Track, ACC undergo facelifts
 Facilities. That's what Pete Wigren Track at Manchester High School will be facing this month. That's what the All Connecticut Conference, formerly the Hartford County Conference, will be experiencing. And that's what the MCC New England Relays should expect.

The work that will be done in July, Dion said.

The fix-up of the track will mean a facelift for the entire Memorial Field complex. The first project included the football field, which was left a wreck after the Thanksgiving Day game in the mud last November. The "Feds" did not allow for rolling the field the day after and it suffered the consequences. When work was finally done, it included aerifying, dragging, fertilizing and reseeding the track of labor and material is in the neighborhood of $4,000. That does not include the labor cost of using those on the high school maintenance crew to help the project move forward.

East Catholic has no intention of joining the former member list, says Tom Malin, East's director of athletics. "No way," he said emphatically. "We're staying where we are. We like the competition."

Malin admitted to being annoyed by the pullout of Northwest and South. Each school underwent a $5.6 million renovation project three years ago and now it is part of an $8.8 million dollar project to help bring it along with four elementary schools into compliance with state codes? Just seems kind of strange, you know.

Adding bran helps disorders

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have diverticulosis and recently added bran to my diet. Can bran cause problems or be dangerous in any way?

DEAR READER: I am not aware that the sudden addition of bran to anyone's diet is dangerous, providing the amount of bran is not gigantic. However, if you notice digestive problems stemming from your new-found healthy diet, back off and use your own judgment.

Long lines and tall ships rule New York on celebration eve

By John Hanover
United Press International

NEW YORK — On the eve of the official start of Liberty Weekend, tourists jammed lower Manhattan for a glimpse of the stately tall ships, or to gaze at the flotilla gathering around the center of all the attention, the Statue of Liberty. Middle American families with maps and binoculars joined foragers with exotic accents and expensive cameras and sailors from all over the world to celebrate the statue's centennial, which officially kicks off Thursday. Police predict up to 15 million people will visit New York to celebrate the 100th birthday of the Statue of Liberty. For those already here, the main attractions Tuesday were the seven tall ships already in port, and New York Harbor, with its view of Lady Liberty. They stood good-naturedly on long lines to get aboard the tall ships docked at South Street

Seaport, and waited to see the remainder of the 21 tall ships that were to enter New York waters today. In the harbor, a flotilla is gathering around the statue, with ferries and private power and sail boats dwarfed by the aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy. William Kraus, 16, a naval cadet on the USS Nashville, stood in line to get actor Cliff Robertson's autograph at a christening ceremony Tuesday in Battery Park for a sculpture called Prairie Ship Liberty. "This is a blast," he said, grinning from under his spottless white cap. "We're part of history." His crewmate, Edgardo Ortiz II, also 16, agreed. "This is a once-in-a-lifetime experience," he said. Lee Iacocca, the Chrysler chairman who headed the fund drive to repair Lady Liberty and restore Ellis Island, left a cruise to fly to New York Tuesday and reassure a news conference about the statue.

"The work is all done and take my word for it, she's good for another 100 years at least," he said, adding that $277 million in cash and pledges had been raised for the restoration. Iacocca defended the commercialization of Liberty Weekend, which included selling television rights to ABC for $10 million. "There is nothing wrong with tying commercialism and patriotism together," he said. "I don't feel bad at all. That's what the centennial is all about." He dodged questions about his feud with Interior Secretary Donald Hodel and protests over the ousting of the four-day festival, the cost of which Iacocca estimated at $30 million. He said he thought the weekend would pay for itself. The Rev. Jesse Jackson was expected to address a Liberty Vigil for the Homeless today, with buses bringing about 500 homeless people from shelters.

The Statue of Liberty will celebrate her 100th birthday in just two days. All is ready for Thursday, when President Reagan will re-light the torch, but the lady definitely could use some makeup to conceal her pock marks.

Town Charter showdown set for November

By George Lavno
Herald Reporter

In a 52 vote that went along party lines, the Manchester Board of Directors Wednesday decided to conduct a referendum this November on the removal of portions of the Town Charter that give the Eighth Utilities District the power to veto consolidation with the town.

The move came after Republican Director Geoffrey Naab and Democratic Majority Leader Stephen Fenney engaged in a sharp debate — one that reflected months of heated arguments over consolidation.

It is not fair, it is not the democratic way — the American way — for the majority to eliminate the political rights of the minority argued Naab who voted with fellow Republican Director Thomas Ferguson against asking townpeople to vote on the charter changes.

Republican Minority Leader William Diana and Democrat James Fogarty were absent Wednesday.

Penny and fellow Democrats Kenneth Tedford, Peter DiTosa, Stephen Cusano and Barbara Weinberg all supported putting the question on the ballot. Speaking for the majority — which in January formed the Charter Revision Commission that last month recommended the changes — Penny said the revisions would allow consolidation to take place under the state's Home Rule Act.

"We here in Manchester would like to have the same rights enjoyed in other parts of the state," Penny said. He added that under state law, there are "appropriate" protections for residents of the independent utilities district in northern Manchester to stop consolidation.

The major difference between the Town Charter and the Home Rule Act is that the charter requires a separate, favorable vote by district residents before a merger can take place. This, in effect, gives the district — which has provided fire protection and sewer service to most of northern Manchester for almost 100 years — the power to veto any consolidation attempt.

Under the Home Rule Act, a single townwide could lead to the demise of the district's authority. Many say the charter change would increase the likelihood that a merger would be approved because a majority of Manchester's residents live outside the district and it is assumed most of them would support consolidation. Manchester Democrats, who have controlled the Board of Directors since the early 1970s, have been vocal backers of consolidation.

Oil firms are sued by state

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state has filed suit accusing four major oil companies of violating antitrust laws by charging different prices to wholesale and retail customers. Attorney General Joseph I. Lieberman said today.

Lieberman said the suit filed in Hartford Superior Court invokes a section of state law that has never been used before and seeks civil penalties that could reach into the millions of dollars.

The suit accuses Exxon Corp., Mobil Corp., Sun Oil Co. and Texaco Inc. of violating antitrust laws by selling the same grades of gasoline at higher prices to their retail dealers than to wholesale customers.

Lieberman said some difference is allowable in the prices charged to retail dealers and wholesalers, but said the difference reached 20 cents a gallon or more at times earlier this year.

Lieberman said the alleged setup where retailers who lease their stations from the major oil companies paid more for gasoline than wholesalers discouraged competition in gasoline pricing in the state.

The lawsuit, centering on the period from January until April of this year, seeks civil penalties of $250,000 for each violation of state antitrust laws. Lieberman said at a news conference.

He said it could take years for the courts to decide the case.

Unemployment dips slightly in June

By Don Carmichael
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Unemployment dropped to 7.1 percent in June, the Labor Department reported today, despite the strike against AT&T and more job losses in the oil and gas industries.

The June figure was an improvement over the 7.3 percent unemployment level recorded in May and returned the level of American joblessness to the number reported in April — also 7.1 percent.

"In the service-producing sector, the strike by some 155,000 American Telephone & Telegraph (Co.) workers, since settled, affected not only the communications industry within transportation and public utilities but also trade," the Labor Department said.

Even after adjusting the figures because of the strike, the government said, there was weakness in transportation, public utilities and wholesale trade.

"The June figures showed that 8.4 million Americans were out of work — about the same level of the past four months.

Factory employment was down in June — largely because of the strike by the Communications Workers of America against AT&T.

Following a trend, another 15,000 workers lost their jobs in the oil and gas industries in June, the figures showed.

Since employment in those industries peaked in March 1982, almost 320,000 oil and gas workers have been thrown out of work.

Construction — usually very strong in June — added fewer jobs than expected. After seasonal adjustment, there was a decline of 30,000 jobs in the construction industry.

"Strikes in June also affected employment levels in the service-producing sector, because about 40,000 of the strikers were in the sale and retail trade, and more than 85,000 were in the communications industry," said Janet L. Norwood, chief of the Labor Department's statistics division.

"However, these industries showed very weak growth even after adjustment for workers on strike," Norwood said. "These workers are already back at work because the AT&T strike has since been settled."

Unemployment levels among most groups of workers was about the same in June, although the jobless rate for adult men edged down slightly to 6.2 percent — partly offsetting a rise in May.

Other jobless rates in June were: 19.1 percent for teenagers; 6.4 percent for adult women; 6.1 percent for whites; 15.1 percent for blacks; and 10.6 percent for Hispanics.

The unemployment for black (tenagers in June was a staggering 40.2 percent).

A companion measure of unemployment — counting members of the armed forces in the United States — was 7 percent in June, down from 7.2 percent in May. The military-included figure mirrors the civilian unemployment rate, rising and falling in tandem.

The average duration of unemployment rose in June — and the number of Americans out of work for 27 weeks or more also increased by 150,000 people. The number of people out of work for less than five weeks also dropped.

The average duration of unemployment was 15.2 weeks, the Labor Department said.

Also continuing a marked trend, the services industry continued to show strength in June — particularly finance, insurance and real estate.

During June, 145,000 jobs were added in the services industry by itself. This industry has accounted for almost 50 percent of the entire increase in jobs during the past year.

The Labor Department said there were 1.1 million "discouraged workers" in June — that is, people who have given up looking for work because they do not believe they can find one.

Fogarty reported OK after bypass surgery

Town Director James Fogarty underwent open heart surgery Wednesday morning at St. Francis Hospital and Medical Center in Hartford and friends report he is in good condition after the operation.

Fogarty, 62, reportedly underwent a quadruple bypass operation.

He admitted himself to the hospital Monday night by pre-arrangement, but not before attending a final meeting of the Independence Day Committee planning Friday's townwide celebration.

Hospital officials and family members declined any comment on the operation or on Fogarty's condition.

Fogarty, a Democrat, has been a member of the Board of Directors since 1981. A lifelong Manchester resident, he is retired from the Town of Manchester Fire Department, in which he held the rank of captain.

Fogarty is active in the Army and Navy Club and has been a top booster of the townwide Independence Day celebration.

Mayor Barbara Weinberg said today that Fogarty may have to miss the August meeting of the Board of Directors, but will probably be at its September meeting.

Moral support
Sammy Davis Jr. cheers on amateur golfers at the first Wednesday during the Greater Hartford Open. Davis, who recently underwent hip surgery and was walking with a cane, did not play. Nevertheless, he teed off once for the crowd.
