Grueling search turns up safe kids

By George Layno
Herald Reporter

A 5-year-old boy and his 2-year-old sister who had been missing since Thursday afternoon were found unharmed and in "very fine" condition this morning a mile from the Kimberly Drive home where they were last seen.

Manchester police Capt. Robert Guliano said the two were discovered just off Tonic Springs Trail when the 5-year-old, John Seubert, called out to searcher Michael Derewianca at around 11:30 a.m. Derewianca grabbed John and his sister, Lisa Marie, took them to a nearby house and called police, Guliano said.

The two had been missing for almost 24 hours and had eluded hundreds of searchers who prowled through thick woods and rough terrain near Case Mountain in southeastern Manchester. The effort involved volunteers from 14 towns, helicopters, an airplane, bloodhounds, horses and police divers.

The two apparently crossed over Case Mountain and spent the night in the woods, Guliano said. While the children appeared nervous, Guliano said John "did a nice job of keeping his sister with him."

The children and their mother, Linda Seubert, had come from their home in Elizabeth, N.J., to visit their relatives, the Crimauco family, who live at 92 Kimberly Drive. The children were noticed missing at around 12:30 p.m., according to John Crimauco, 13.

Speaking to reporters this morning, Linda Seubert said she felt "great." With tears in her eyes, she thanked the volunteers who helped look for her children.

"It's unbelievable how people pull together," she said. "It's fantastic. I'm going to volunteer my own service."

When asked how the two youths managed to survive in the woods alone, she said, "My son is tough."

John Crimauco said the Seuberts came to help his family plan a tag sale that was scheduled for Saturday. As he, his mother, Gloria Crimauco and Linda Seubert were going out to the look at some of the items for the sale, they accidentally locked themselves out of the house, he said.

After they managed to enter the home, they noticed the two children were missing, Crimauco said. At first they searched the woods behind the home on the assumption that the two had followed Crimauco's 8-year-old sister, Jacqueline, and two cousins who had gone off to play on one of the many trails behind the home, he said.

But when the three came back without the two children, the Crimaucos and Linda Seubert became nervous and called police. A massive search was begun Thursday afternoon. It was called off Thursday evening, but was continued again this morning at 4 a.m.

Guliano said searchers had already combed the area where the two were found. Sgt. Gary Waterhouse said that just before the two were found, a group of about 50 volunteers had been moving west toward Tonic Springs Trail and were a few hundred yards from the area where the children were located.

Guliano said Derewianca had been searching by himself for the children and was not part of a patrol sent out from headquarters on Kimberly Drive. The news of their discovery, Guliano said, brought tears to his and other officers' eyes.

"I haven't seen as many police officers crying..." he said, calling the search the largest he has seen in his 20 years with the Manchester Police Department. About 400 to 500 people, some from as far away as Rocky Hill and Wethersfield, helped look for the children.

Volunteers lined the front lawns of homes across from the Crimaucos, and searchers' cars bordered Birch Mountain Road, Sharon Drive and Kimberly Drive.

Hundreds volunteer to help

By Susan Vaughn
Herald Reporter

Hundreds of smiling people streamed from Birch Mountain Road at noon today after 5-year-old John Seubert and his 2-year-old sister, Lisa Marie, were found safe on Tonic Springs Trail late this morning.

"With a happy ending like this, it was worth spending the time," said Lee Armstrong of Manchester, who spent nine hours in the massive search effort Thursday night and today.

Members of the entire Robert Hyland family from Bolton, who also joined the search, praised the effort. "It was a real community effort," said Nancy Hyland. She said neighbors made 200 sandwiches and other groups provided drinks for the workers.

Twelve-year-old Jason Hyland said it felt good being a part of the team effort. Jamie Hyland, 9, said the entire crowd of searchers cheered and cried when the children were brought back to the Kimberly Drive home of their aunt, Gloria Crimauco.

"It is reassuring to know that if this happened to our kids, people would be out," said Robert Hyland.

Some volunteers were getting frustrated as they waited for instructions on where to go this morning, some searchers said. But most, like John Lowney of Columbia, said they felt the search covered every area of the thickly wooded Case Mountain area well.

"I have a son that's 2, that's all I need to say," Lowney said when asked what motivated him to join the search on his own.

Manchester police Capt. Joseph Brooks said the search this morning "went smooth as silk."

An estimated 400 to 500 searchers were on the mountain this morning, which included two busloads from the University of Connecticut and several other towns, said police Capt. Robert Guliano. About 300 people searched Thursday night, he said.

Heritage sees crime in merger

By John Kirch
Herald Reporter

NEW HAVEN — The Manchester-based Heritage Savings and Loan Association has filed a federal lawsuit charging that seven senior officers of a savings and loan company that Heritage took over in 1984 were engaged in fraud and knowingly purchased bad loans involved in the deal.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court, charges that former officials of Fidelity Federal Savings and Loan Association knowingly purchased millions of dollars worth of bad loans without informing Heritage. The magnitude and poor quality of those loans were not disclosed to Heritage in the merger transaction, court papers say.

Those loans, which were acquired from the Landbank Equities Investment Corp., a brokerage firm in Virginia Beach, Virginia, comprised one-third of Fidelity's total assets, making Fidelity look like a more attractive merger prospect, the suit charges.

The July 18 suit names as defendants Fidelity President Peter G. Chipokas and officers Dorothy M. Musco, Barbara A. Scirocco, James A. Simoneau, David A. Chase, Frank W. Dammeling and Stephen L. Hilcoss, charging them with securities fraud, misrepresentation, negligence and legal malpractice.

The officers' actions were in violation of a number of federal and state laws — including the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization Act of 1970, the National Housing Loan Act of 1933 — the suit charges.

William Hale, president of Heritage, could not be reached for comment today. Nor could the principals in the suit.

"It's not a pleasant thing to sue the officers we merged with," Janet Hale, assistant treasurer of Heritage, said today.

However, she said that research into the matter was continuing and that Heritage is "looking at the possibility of entering into more than one suit."

Heritage, which completed a merger with Fidelity in August 1984, has been plagued by the bad loans acquired in the deal. The institution has posted large losses the last few years, including a loss of $2.9 million, or $5.29 a share, for the second quarter of 1986, which ended March 31.

Last month, Heritage walked away from a tentative merger agreement with the Suffield Savings Bank. State officials reported that Suffield changed its purchase offer after re-evaluating Heritage's assets.

The court papers say Heritage and the New Haven-based Fidelity had entered into a merger agreement in January 1984 and completed the merger in August 1984.

In that time, the suit charges, Fidelity senior officers "recklessly, or with the intent to defraud, engaged in a course of conduct which... but Fidelity in violation of (the merger) agreement and caused the agreement and other documents associated with the merger conversion to be materially false and misleading."

The officers obtained large volumes of loans consisting of mortgages that they "knew or should have known were... unenforceable, underappraised or unappraised," the suit charges.

GOP convention may last awhile

By George Layno
Herald Reporter

When the gavel sounds in the Hartford Civic Center tonight at the opening of the Republican state convention, it could signal the last round of the three-way fight for the GOP gubernatorial nomination.

However, it could also be the start of an emotional, drawn-out affair that may not resolve anything.

Candidates Richard Bozzuto of Watertown, Gerald Labriola of Naugatuck and Julie Belaga of Westport are battling for the support of 1,095 delegates from around the state. That total includes 16 from Manchester, three each from Bolton and Coventry and two from Andover.

To secure the nomination, one of them will have to secure 548 delegates. Bozzuto claims he has over 500 votes, and many political observers agree he is in the lead going into the two-day convention.

But while Bozzuto may win his party's nomination, most observers expect the fight to continue far beyond this weekend. Both Belaga and Labriola are considered strong enough to win the support of the 20 percent of convention delegates needed to force a September primary, from which any of the three could emerge as the party's choice to face Democratic incumbent William O'Neill.

Voting for the governor's spot is not scheduled to begin until Saturday. Tonight, nominating speeches for each of the candidates will be given. Republican Sen. Lowell Weicker will also deliver the convention's keynote address.

Roger Eddy of Newington, the only GOP candidate for Connecticut's other U.S. Senate seat, is expected to be endorsed to face incumbent Democrat Christopher Dodd this November.

Saturday, the real action is set to begin — and it could last into the early morning hours. According to Manchester Republican Chairman Donald Kuehl, each delegate will announce his or her vote to the convention instead of having the delegation chairman read off their town's breakdown.

Kuehl said it could take between three and four hours to complete one round of balloting, and others are saying that it may take about three or four such rounds to choose a nominee.

If the party does not endorse someone on the first ballot, Bozzuto

Gold's ex-wife hits judicial system

By John Woodward
The Associated Press

WATERBURY — Barbara Pasternak — who saw her husband convicted for murdering her parents — says she found the "nightmare" is over.

New York stockbroker, was arrested on Oct. 5, 1974 and charged with their deaths. This was the fourth time he was prosecuted for their murder in the state's longest-running criminal case.

Barbara Pasternak said after the guilty verdict was reached that she had never before spoken willingly about the case because she was afraid it would cause a mistrial.

She decided to break her silence "because after all these years, there have been things I wanted to get out."

Double-murder questions 12 years old

HARTFORD — Here is a chronology of the events leading up to the conviction Thursday of Murray Gold.

On Jan. 6, 1976, Gold's first trial begins in Waterbury Superior Court.

On Jan. 26, 1977, Gold is sentenced to 23 years to life in prison. He is remitted to Somers State Prison in Somers, Conn.

On Feb. 5, 1985, the judge rules Gold incompetent to stand trial and orders him committed to Whiting Forensic Institute in Middletown, Conn. Gold undergoes treatment there.

A survivor of the Auschwitz concentration camp, Gold escapes in 1941, and migrates to the United States in 1944.

On March 1982, Gold marries Barbara Pasternak.

On Oct. 11, 1981, Bourassa and Yashenko are arrested on perjury charges relating to their 1976 testimony.

On March 11, 1976, the trial ends in a hung jury.

In December 1964, Gold and Barbara Pasternak are divorced.

On Sept. 26, 1974, Irving and Rhoda Pasternak are found slain in their Waterbury home by the Pasternaks' daughter and police.

On Oct. 11, 1976, Gold's second trial begins in Waterbury Superior Court. The testimony of Bourassa and Yashenko is kept from the jury.

On May 23, 1985, the judge again finds Gold still mentally incompetent to stand trial.

On Sept. 26, 1974, Irving and Rhoda Pasternak are found slain in their Waterbury home by the Pasternaks' daughter and police.

Myrna had been speaking to her mother by telephone and testified she heard a commotion downstairs where her father was apparently being assaulted.

On Nov. 8, 1985, Gold is found competent to stand trial.

On Aug. 19, 1985, Gold is again ruled mentally incompetent.

On Oct. 11, 1976, Gold's second trial begins in Waterbury Superior Court. The testimony of Bourassa and Yashenko is kept from the jury.

On Nov. 18, 1976, the trial ends in conviction.

On Nov. 8, 1985, Gold is found competent to stand trial.

On July 24, 1986, Gold is found guilty.

On Oct. 11, 1976, Gold's second trial begins in Waterbury Superior Court. The testimony of Bourassa and Yashenko is kept from the jury.

On Nov. 18, 1976, the trial ends in conviction.

On Nov. 8, 1985, Gold is found competent to stand trial.

On July 24, 1986, Gold is found guilty.

No sure way to determine when to switch funds

Investors' Guide

William A. Doyle

Question: My biggest investment is in a growth mutual fund. I've been reading a lot about "timing services" which tell investors when to switch from growth funds to money market funds and back again.

In recent years, there has been a proliferation of timing services claiming to be able to tell you when to do that — for a fee. Save your money and remember the time-worn saying: "Where are the customers' yachts?"

Question: In 1980, I invested $3,000 in a mutual fund. I have reinvested all dividends and capital gains distributions to buy more shares. As a result, my investment has grown substantially.

Or, you probably can start a periodic withdrawal of your mutual fund investment. Almost all funds have periodic withdrawal plans, through which investors can have checks sent to them on a steady basis, such as once a month or every three months.

Thursday effort saw many helpers, no sign of kids

By John Mitchell
Herald Reporter

After nearly 10 hours of fruitless leads and searching, police and fire officials Thursday night postponed the massive manhunt for two children who left a Manchester home around noon and disappeared.

"I appreciate everything you can do," Linda Seibert, the mother of John and Lisa Seibert, told a group of people late in the evening after refusing to answer questions earlier. She ran a hand through her hair, obviously upset. Then she abruptly turned back to the house and out of the glare of the harsh night lights that surrounded the police command post in the front yard at 92 Kimberly Drive.

The search started with a call to police at 1:30 in the afternoon by Seibert, who told them that the children were missing.

John Seibert, 5, of Elizabeth, N.J., and his sister, Lisa M. Seibert, 2, had come to Manchester along with their mother, an aunt and cousins to visit Gloria Crimando of Kimberly Drive, also an aunt.

Capt. Robert Guliano of the Manchester Police Department decided around 9 p.m. Thursday to set up listening posts overnight in the Case Mountain area.

"You never know, you just might hear something," Guliano said. Bloodhounds helping in the search were fully rested when it resumed at around 4 a.m. today.

Guliano said the family last saw the children around noon on Thursday when they went off into the woods to play.

He said police were so concerned about the children because of their ages and their unfamiliarity with the area.

"It's a very dense, very watered area," he said. More than 250 officers joined in the search, including 12 to 20 motorcycles and off-road vehicles, and helicopters. Volunteers were too numerous to be estimated and at one point Guliano said, "There's just too many people here."

Fire departments and volunteers from the Eighth Utilities District and nearly every area town helped form search parties that combed the woods of Case Mountain.

Sgt. Patrick Reeves said that officers and volunteers conducted "lines of skirmish" across the mountain within five to ten yards of each other.

Reeves said he couldn't speculate on why the children went into the woods alone.

"Who knows why they do what they do," he said. In the evening, state police from Kentucky and New Hampshire brought in extra bloodhounds to replace the four that had been searching throughout the afternoon.

Connecticut trooper Andrew Rebmann said the out-of-state police were in Connecticut to train with the dogs when they unexpectedly got the chance to gain some quick experience.

"We didn't expect anything like this," one of the Kentucky troopers said on the scene.

Officials formulated search strategy at the post, consulting the map constantly and drawing lines where search parties had been or could go again. The tired bloodhounds bayed at anyone who got too close to the trees to which they were tied.

Cousins of the lost children played games on the second-story porch of the house while the search continued.

Andrew Kawczynski, 10, said that his cousin John was "crazy" and probably went into the woods to explore. "Lisa always follows him," he said, explaining why she had gone.

Another cousin, Shannon Sivartsen, 9, said that she and some others had gone into the woods. She thought the two "were trying to follow us and find us."

Kawczynski said that the children's mother "just keeps saying that they're going to be found."

Around 6 p.m., police said a 10-year-old girl reportedly had heard someone "crying for their mommy and daddy" near 46 Kimberly Drive. After going through a house being constructed next door, the dogs sniffed a wrapped-up ball of the children's clothing and got a "good scent," according to police, then took off running. The search came up empty after about 15 minutes.

Another report from a man who said he saw two children on the median of Interstate 384 by the Wyllis Street exit at about 5:15 p.m. also proved to be a dead end.

In addition to searching, police had to direct traffic on Kimberly Drive, which became so jammed that police cruisers parked in middle of the dead-end road. As dusk approached, police requested that all the outdoor lights in the neighborhood be turned on. In hopes that the children would be drawn to them.

Volunteers used sticks to feel out the ravines and the underbrush they walked through. State helicopters and those from television stations roamed the skies above the searchers.

Most volunteers said they had just come to help out. One, who asked that his name not be used, said he saw the news on television and was a "concerned" parent.

"I've got a daughter who is 2½," he said.

James Preuss, chief of the Bolton Volunteer Fire Department, said he had been out, like Reeves, said he couldn't speculate on why the children went into the woods alone.

"Who knows why they do what they do," he said. In the evening, state police from Kentucky and New Hampshire brought in extra bloodhounds to replace the four that had been searching throughout the afternoon.

Manchester Police Capt. Robert Guliano talks with Sgt. Roy Abbie Thursday about search efforts for a 5-year-old boy and his 2-year-old sister who had been missing since the afternoon. The two were found safe this morning in woods off Tonica Springs Trail.

Searcher would have kept going

Curtis Walker, a volunteer with the Town Fire Department, said this morning he planned to keep searching for John and Lisa Marie Seibert until they were found.

Walker said a fear of many of those who volunteered was that the children would be found dead somewhere — especially in nearby reservoirs that divers had dredged.

"We got our fingers crossed that the only thing they find is snapping turtles and mud," he said. When the news broke that the two had been found safe, rescuers gathered at the command post and applauded as the ambulance pulled into the driveway with the two children safe and secure.

The efforts of hundreds of volunteers were well rewarded.

Walker said he had searched most of Thursday afternoon and had been out for two hours combing territory between Birch Mountain Road and Spring Street. He described the thick brush as "very rugged" and was at a loss as to how the two young children could make their way through it.

"I find it very difficult the kids could get through that stuff," he said.

For the Record

An account in Thursday's Herald of the meeting of the Republican Town Committee was incorrect in reporting that J. Winthrop Porter said three people who had a right to vote stayed out of the caucus for the 13th Assembly District. What Porter said was that three people with authority to vote in the 12th Assembly District did not attend the caucus for that district.

Gary Dumas made high honors for the final marking period at Manchester High School. Thursday's Herald contained incorrect information.

The search early this morning included dredging nearby Case Reservoir and Howard Reservoir. It also included the use of nine bloodhounds, a state police airplane and helicopters, helicopters from two Hartford television stations and divers from Tolland and Andover.

The terrain around Case Mountain was described as "very rough" by searchers. Thick underbrush, rocky inclines and abandoned mining caves made the area potentially treacherous for the two small children.

The path the two took or why they became lost in the woods was not known. John Crimando described his cousins as "quiet" and not the adventurous type.

However, he said he would not be surprised if John Seibert had gone after his sister if she wandered off into the woods.

Bolton loses Cal Hutchinson

By Alex Girelli
Associate Editor

BOLTON — H. Calvin Hutchinson has resigned from his multiple posts and will become a building inspector in Manchester Aug. 4.

In his letter of resignation, Hutchinson said he was "weary" of trying to do a good job in all four of his positions.

Hutchinson, who has worked Bolton for 15 years, has been building inspector, sanitarian, zoning agent and assessor.

In Manchester, he will fill a post in the Building Department left vacant by the resignation of John Barneck this spring. Barneck had been a building inspector for about 18 months.

The Bolton post paid $25,400. The salary range for a building inspector in Manchester is $22,105 to $25,588, but the town administration and the Manchester Employees Group, which represents building inspectors, is negotiating over a new contract that will probably raise the scale.

Bolton First Selectman Douglas Cheney could not be contacted for comment today on Hutchinson's resignation.

Karen Levine, administrative assistant in Bolton, said that the town has advertised for a new building inspector who will also be the town's sanitarian.

She said the town is also seeking a new engineer, who will also be the zoning enforcement officer.

She said the question of who will be tax assessor is still open and added that it might be filled by someone already employed by the town.

Levine said a plan to combine the positions of town engineer and zoning agent was already in place when Hutchinson submitted his resignation.

Hutchinson complained to the Bolton Board of Selectmen March 18 that he did not have enough time to handle his four positions. He said the town was losing tax revenues and was in danger of being sued because of incomplete records and inadequate building, health and septic inspections.

At that time, Cheney told Hutchinson that when an engineer was hired, he would help Hutchinson in some of his duties and that the engineer's clerk would assist with some of the record-keeping.

She is survived by her son, three grandchildren, Craig Arcari and David Arcari, both in Massachusetts, and Jocelyn Arcari of Clinton; and a cousin.

The funeral and burial took place in Maryland.

McEnroe back in action

By Tim Liotto
The Associated Press

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — In the six months since he walked away from tennis, John McEnroe raised a lot of questions about whether he could ever return to the sport. In one night, by playing the world's No. 1 player, Ivan Lendl, on near-even terms for three hard-fought sets, he answered almost every query. McEnroe may have lost 6-4, 3-6, 7-6 (7-4), but he knew the match demonstrated something: "I proved that I'm back," he said. "I was excited to be playing again." He had every right to be. Throughout the match, McEnroe reached into the dazzling arsenal of shots that had made him the No. 1 player in the world and did not come away empty-handed. But, after not having played competitively since losing to Brad Gilbert in the finals of the Masters Tournament in January, McEnroe did lack the match toughness that has been his trademark. McEnroe tied in the final set, squandering a 4-1 lead and letting Lendl back into the match.

Lendl, who looked listless through most of the second and third sets, then rallied, recognized that McEnroe was erratic. "If it was the old McEnroe, it would have taken more to win," Lendl said. "I didn't know what to expect." "Nobody knew what to expect." "I think this is a tough time for him to come back," Johan Kriek said. "I think he should have started in a smaller tournament rather than a spectacle like this." Kriek defeated Jimmy Connors 6-4, 6-4 in an earlier match. The victory over his arch-rival sat well with Lendl. "I feel good, obviously," Lendl said. "I didn't look good for me there for a while. I didn't get the lead until 5-4 in the tiebreaker." In the end, it was physical fitness that decided it. Lendl had been off just three weeks since his loss in the Wimbledon finals to Boris Becker. McEnroe had been gone almost six months and he had some work to do before he finds his top form. "Most of it is physical conditioning," McEnroe said. "I'm headed in the right direction. I'm happy about that."

McEnroe was back in action Thursday night at the Forum in Inglewood, Calif. It was McEnroe's first competition, other than charity matches, since January. # Love, Pierot lead Buick Open golf

By Harry Atkins
The Associated Press

GRAND BLANC, Mich. — With a name like Davis Love III and a golf swing that can easily drive a ball over 300 yards, you're bound to attract some attention. And Love, who shared the first-round lead with Billy Pierot in the $500,000 Buick Open, was able to handle the situation like a veteran Thursday. Love and Pierot started today's play at 7-under 65, one stroke ahead of Ed Fiori.

Players Association circuit. "I tried seven or eight times to qualify for the (PGA) Tour," said Pierot, who lives in Ruston, La. "There are a lot of guys like me who are trying to break through. The guys out there, the really good players, don't care who's leading in the first round. They'll wait for guys like me to make the mistakes. They might wait a long time, however. Pierot won the TPC event in Chattanooga last year, proving he can go the distance. To win the Buick Open, a player must shoot birdies — lots and lots of birdies. The event is played at Warwick Hills Golf & Country Club, a rolling 7,014-yard, par-72 course south of Flint that is set up for the pros about the way it is for club members. Fiori, a three-time Tour winner who hasn't struck paydirt since 1982, took advantage of the perfect summer conditions Thursday. He birdied six of the last seven holes, including the final five, for a back-nine 30 and a 65.

There were 75 rounds under par on Thursday. That means anyone who fails to break par after 36 holes will be getting a head start to Oak Brook, Ill., home of the Western Open, next week's Tour stop and the warm-up to the PGA Championship Aug. 7-10 at Toledo, Ohio. Jim Colbert, who led the third hole, was one of six players at 5-under. The others were J.C. Snead, Howard Tivity, Brad Faxon, Tom Byrum and Jim Rutledge.

Colbert, playing in the morning, was getting a head start to Oak Brook, Ill., home of the Western Open, next week's Tour stop and the warm-up to the PGA Championship Aug. 7-10 at Toledo, Ohio. Jim Colbert, who led the third hole, was one of six players at 5-under. The others were J.C. Snead, Howard Tivity, Brad Faxon, Tom Byrum and Jim Rutledge.

"I'm stunned and overwhelmed of times and want to do my own job. Deep down, though, I know it was the right decision," Detroit's Jack Morris, taken out by Manager Sparky Anderson after eight innings with the Tigers leading by 11 runs Wednesday night. Love said, "When I'm swinging like I am now, I feel like I can hit most fairways. I put real well today and hit a lot of greens. I think I only missed two." If Love is golf's equivalent of a blue bird, Pierot is strictly blue. Pierot spent four years playing in Europe and Asia, then the last two years on the Tournament

Theismann's career is over

By David Ginsburg
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The time and the place still has not been pinpointed, but one thing seems certain: Washington Redskins quarterback Joe Theismann's NFL career is over. Theismann, who led the Redskins to the Super Bowl and was the league's Most Valuable Player in 1983, is expected to announce as soon as today that he has failed a physical and will retire after 12 NFL seasons. Theismann, who broke his leg last season while being sacked by two New York Giants Nov. 18, has already flunked his physical, according to today's editions of the Washington Post. Team officials would not verify the report. However, speaking on radio station WAVA Thursday, Theismann said, "The team will make the first move."

If Theismann chooses to leave the Redskins, he will be paid a certain amount. Washington Redskins Washington Coach Joe Gibbs would not verify Theismann's imminent retirement, but earlier this week talked about the number of changes his team is going through, including the quarterback position. The Redskins' quarterbacks all reported to training camp in Carlisle, Pa. last Saturday, but Gibbs said he wanted to see Theismann as much time as he wanted before taking the physical that would determine whether he was fit to play. Theismann suffered a compound fracture of his right leg last year after he was sacked during a Cleveland Browns game against the Giants in RFK Stadium. He vowed then that he would return, but several doctors expressed doubt that he could recover from such a serious injury. Last May, a discouraged Theismann declared that his rehabilitation was lagging and it would take a "miracle" for him to play this season. Theismann broke the leg in the midst of what he admitted was one of his worst seasons as a pro. The seemingly unbreakable quarterback, who had not missed a game since 1974, had his iron-man streak ended while he was trying to twist away from New York linebacker Lawrence Taylor. Taylor hit him low, and when linebacker Gary Reasons fell on Taylor, Theismann's right leg crumpled under the weight. Theismann is reportedly insured by Lloyd's of London for $1.4 million in the event of a career-ending injury. Under the terms of the policy, he must fail physicals by three doctors before being eligible to collect. Team officials would not say how many physicals Theismann has already undergone, but his right leg is now shorter than his left and it would be virtually impossible for him to drop back in the pocket and put any weight on the injured leg. Theismann, who owns three restaurants bearing his name in Virginia, is expected to take a job with CBS-TV this season as a color commentator for NFL telecasts. Redskins officials would say whether he will be paid by the team for this season.

Earlier tax cuts pushed

By Jim Luther
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - House negotiators united Friday behind a demand that individual tax rates be slashed next Jan. 1, six months ahead of the schedule in the bills approved by the House and Senate.

"There is a lot of concern about" the fact the rate cuts would come after deductions are reduced or eliminated, Rep. Donald Pease, D-Ohio, told reporters. The concern, he added, is about "actual fairness, perceived fairness and from the viewpoint of the economy."

Senate and House conferees met separately in closed sessions Friday and planned to meet at a conference meeting later in the day. Five days into their work, the negotiators have yet to make the first decision about what will go into the final tax-overhaul plan.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the conference, predicted one of the first decisions by the lawmakers would be to use the lower individual tax rates in the Senate bill as a starting point for writing a compromise. However, he indicated House members will insist on raising the Senate rates if that is necessary to provide adequate tax relief for middle-income people.

Either bill being considered by the conference committee would sharply reduce individual and corporate tax rates and take away or reduce some deductions and exclusions. The Senate version would mean lower rates and fewer deductions than would the House bill; the House plan would impose a bigger burden on corporations and produce bigger individual tax reductions.

For individuals, the House bill would have a top rate of 38 percent, compared with 50 percent under existing law. Like the House bill, the Senate measure would tax most people at a 15 percent rate. Most other taxpayers would pay a 27 percent rate, although many upper-income earners would pay a maximum 32 percent and, in some cases, even more.

Members in both houses have expressed concern that either bill would take away existing tax benefits six months before reducing individual rates. For millions of people, that would mean considerably smaller tax cuts than expected for 1987; in many cases it would produce sizable tax increases.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., also has urged the conference to find a way to make the rate changes - and thus the tax cut - effective at the start of 1987, rather than next July 1.

Eight Utilities District firefighters John Flaherty, left, and Douglas Boland receive awards from Deputy Chief John Mace. The two were honored for being the top firefighters in Company One and Company Two. Also taking part in the ceremony is Axe, the department's Dalmation.

Reagan stays firm on missile defense

By Michael Putzel
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - President Reagan formally responded Friday to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's most recent arms proposal with a plan that sources said offered to delay - but not to sidetrack or curtail - his "Star Wars" missile defense program.

The White House announced in a brief written statement that Reagan's long-awaited response had been sent but described it as "a private letter" to the general secretary and gave no indications of its contents.

However, administration sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said Reagan proposed to delay deployment of a nuclear weapons defense system for five to seven years in exchange for an agreement that such a system could be deployed by either side for several years after an agreed-upon date.

Administration officials and scientists have said the president's Strategic Defense Initiative, as the "Star Wars" research program is formally known, is not expected to produce any deployable weapons for several years, if ever.

SDI envisions the use of futuristic technology, perhaps including super-powered laser and particle beams, to shoot down incoming missiles.

He identified the most enjoyable parts about his job is helping people, recalling responding to a call on Starkweather Street to find a man who was not breathing. At first, the chances of reviving him did not look good, Flaherty said. But by the time the ambulance arrived, the man was talking.

TODAY'S HERALD

Search ends happily

When 5-year-old John Seubert called out from the thick underbrush to Michael Derewianka late Friday morning, he put an end to what police Capt. Robert Gullano called the largest search he has seen in his 20 years with the Manchester Police Department.

Warm and humid

Warm and humid today with a 60 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms. High in the mid-80s. Mostly cloudy and not as warm Sunday with a 40 percent chance of showers. High near 80. Details on page 2.
