Soviets hope for summit

By Andrew Rosenthal
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The top Kremlin arms negotiator today entered special talks with a high-level U.S. delegation saying the Soviet Union was eager for a new superpower summit.

But Viktor Karpov also said U.S. arms control policy suggests the White House is not interested in progress toward disarmament, a prerequisite often cited by the Kremlin for setting the date of the next U.S.-Soviet summit.

When asked about the possibility of a summit this year, Karpov said, "We would do anything for that. So it depends on our partners."

Karpov spoke briefly outside the Foreign Ministry to an ABC-TV crew, acting as a pool for American television networks. He then left for the start of talks with a U.S. delegation headed by Paul Nitze, President Reagan's arms control adviser.

The U.S. Embassy and members of the American delegation declined comment on the talks, taking place in a government guest house in the Lenin Hills near central Moscow.

There was no official comment from the Soviet government or the state-run press. Karpov declined to discuss the talks in detail, saying they were confidential.

The talks, scheduled to last two days, were seen as important preparations for a Sept. 19-20 meeting between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze.

That meeting is intended to set an agenda for a summit this year between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

The two leaders agreed to hold a second meeting in the United States after their summit in Geneva last November.

Echoing the Kremlin position on arms control, Karpov stressed the importance of negotiating a treaty to ban nuclear testing. The Soviet Union's unilateral moratorium on such tests expired Wednesday, but the Soviets haven't said whether the ban will be extended.

"A nuclear test ban is a problem that I think is very important to be solved," Karpov said. "As you know, we suggest the solution — a total ban, or at least bilaterally for the start of it."

Karpov insisted that the Soviet proposal for a test ban was intended to speed disarmament talks and said "the Americans (have) some other attitude to that."

Asked if he meant that the United States does not want disarmament, Karpov replied, "If you put all the things together, it looks like that."

Although plans for the special Moscow talks were announced in the Soviet press, the Communist Party daily Pravda, the only national newspaper that publishes Monday mornings, made no mention of the arrival of the U.S. delegation.

In a departure from protocol that suggested the Kremlin is trying to play down the significance of the meeting, no Soviet delegation was sent to Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport to meet American officials Sunday.

One U.S. diplomat, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said he was surprised by the absence of an official Soviet group, but did not know how significant it was.

None of the U.S. officials would comment when asked if their trip, made during the summer recess in the Geneva arms control talks, signals progress toward a disarmament agreement.

The Soviet media have complained in recent days that portions of Reagan's recent letter to Gorbachev on arms control were leaked to Washington journalists.

Senior television commentator Valentin Zorin, appearing Sunday on the program "Studio 9," called the leaks "an obvious and crude violation of the confidentiality."

Coast Guard prepares to aid fishermen in disputed waters

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The crew of a Coast Guard cutter met with captains of U.S. fishing vessels today to lay plans to recover 150 crab pots in disputed waters where Soviet ships chased one of the boats for nearly two hours.

The crew of the 378-foot Midgett, based in San Francisco, arrived late Sunday to meet with skippers of the Katie K of Seattle and at least two other crabbers about 120 miles west of St. Matthew Island and 40 miles from the crab pots, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Glenn Rosenholm in Juneau.

The Coast Guard planned to provide aerial reconnaissance for the retrieval with an HC-130 airplane from Kodiak, about 780 miles away, said Lt. J.g. Edward Sinclair.

In the event of resistance by the Soviets, especially a show of force, plans called for the crew of the Midgett to send a radio message asking for instructions from the State Department, Sinclair said.

The Midgett carries a five-inch gun at the bow and 50-caliber machine guns, Rosenholm said.

It could take anywhere from three or four hours to two or three days to complete the recovery, depending on the weather, how far apart the crab pots were placed and how many fishing boats join the mission, said Arne Aadland, president of the North Pacific Fishing Vessel Owners Association.

Poor visibility could force the cutter to escort each fishing vessel to the crab pots individually, Aadland said in a telephone interview from his home in Seattle before leaving to join his own vessel, the Arctic Wind.

"The last week or so it's been just pea-soup fog up there," he said. "I'm sure that's one reason they were able to get away (when the Soviets gave chase)."

Most of the pots, valued at $200 to $300 each, were from the 168-foot Katie K, but some also were believed to be from at least two other boats, he said.

The Katie K was one of about 60 boats fishing for tanner crabs near St. Matthew Island when it was approached Wednesday by a Soviet inspection vessel and another Soviet ship of unknown nature, the Coast Guard said.

The Katie K was about 160 miles west of the island in an area claimed by both the United States and the Soviet Union. The area has been disputed since the Soviet Union sold Alaska to the United States in 1867. The dispute is over whether a dividing line was an international or a less significant maritime boundary.

The Soviets told the Katie K it was fishing in Soviet waters. As one Soviet boat attempted to come alongside, the other fired two flares and started lowering a small boat, the Coast Guard said.

The Katie K turned for the U.S. coast and was pursued for an hour and 40 minutes before the Soviet vessels turned back.

O'Brien says club golf rules violate lease

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter

It appears that the Manchester Country Club is in violation of its town-owned lease because it does not grant women the same rights as it does men, the town attorney said today, adding that a formal opinion on the matter will be released later this afternoon.

"It looks to me that there are provisions in the lease that give equal rights to all members," said Town Attorney Kevin O'Brien. "That would appear to preclude them from having different playing rules for different players. The lease calls for equal rights."

The attorney's opinion could lead to the termination of the club's lease, which the town holds. But O'Brien said he believes the country club would probably change its rules rather than risk losing its lease.

John Pickens, the club's vice president, said he could not comment until he heard from the town. "I don't think I should comment until I get all the facts," he said.

O'Brien's opinion was prompted by Town Director Stephen T. Penny, who asked the attorney to look into the matter after a handful of female club members said they were being discriminated against because they were not allowed to tee off at the same time as men during the prime weekend morning hours.

According to O'Brien, the club's rules prohibit this kind of practice.

The club makes the rules, which are attached to the lease, but the town must approve them, O'Brien said. He said that the club's Board of Governors may have been changing the rules without getting approval to do so from the town. However, O'Brien said he did not think this was intentional, but rather an oversight.

"I think people have not paid attention to it (the lease)," the town attorney said. "I think the club has to be reminded of what the lease says."

O'Brien's formal opinion will be given to Penny, who can then make a request that the town take some action.

This could include a meeting between town and club officials to straighten out the matter, or the town could issue a "notice of default" that gives the country club five days to correct the lease violations, O'Brien said. If those violations are not addressed, O'Brien said, the club could be forced to "vacate the premises."

At issue are the tee-off times allotted to men and women at the club on weekends. For years, men have been allowed to draw lots to tee off between 6 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. on Saturdays and Sundays, while women have had to wait until after 11:30. The practice led to a drive last fall by a small minority of women who said they were being discriminated against.

In June, the club's governing body voted unanimously to give women the equal playing time, but rescinded that vote last week after men and women protested the action.

The club's male members, who, according to some sources, outnumber females by about four to one, brought a petition to the club's Board of Governors Tuesday, saying that if women want equal rights, they should pay the same annual membership rates and lose a special Ladies Day designated each Thursday that gives women special tee-off times.

Both men and women pay $480 a year for a single membership, while a family rate is set at $720. Some men have requested that the family rate be eliminated, arguing that the woman in the family does not pay the full share.

Area roads to get new surfaces

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter

The state Department of Transportation will be busy in Manchester and the surrounding area over the next few weeks, as a number of roadways are slated for resurfacing and improvements.

Two major roadways in Manchester and one in Andover will be resurfaced over the next few weeks, while a bridge deck is being replaced on state Route 6 in Bolton, the DOT said in its weekly projects report.

None of the projects, which fall under the state's program to resurface 500 miles of state roads this year, will require detours for residents in the area. DOT officials said this morning.

In Manchester, the state will resurface a 2.81-mile stretch of Charter Oak Street, which changes into Highland Street and Camp Meeting Road as it goes east. The project will cost $398,000 and will begin Friday, the DOT said.

The work, which will take five days between 7:30 a.m. and 4 p.m., will start at the Charter Oak intersection with South Main Street and end at the Bolton town line.

The second project in town is already underway and includes a 2.03-mile portion of state Route 83 from Lewis Street in Manchester to Mountain Road in Glastonbury. The resurfacing project, which will cost $1.2 million, started three weeks ago when the state stripped the street. Resurfacing began

Robert D. Ballard, who led the recent mission to explore the wreck of the Titanic, is taking time off to write a first-person story for National Geographic. Ballard, 44, who left for Montana on Friday, also has a series of speaking appearances scheduled and is planning a book about his submarine dives to the bulk of the luxury liner that sank after striking an iceberg in 1912, killing 1,513 people. The senior scientist at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution has exclusive rights for one year to the 57,000-plus photographs and more than 50 hours of videotape taken during 11 dives to the Titanic, said Gary Walker, Woods Hole assistant director for finance and administration. Ballard said the speeches and article are "not a blatant commercialization. I do not consider it unethical or unreasonable."

Blooming attorney

Cyril Hyman isn't your garden-variety federal attorney. With only $25 in government seed money and a home-grown knowledge of plants, the veteran of more than 20 years with the U.S. attorney's office has justice flowering literally at Brooklyn's federal courthouse. The boxlike granite building's stark glass-and-steel entrance now is peppered with petunias and phlox, and even summer squash thanks to Hyman. "A little law and a lot of cow manure will make anything bloom," said Hyman, 57, who as deputy chief of the Justice Department's Civil Division in Brooklyn, N.Y., spends his working hours representing federal agencies in civil suits. "I get a lot of pleasure out of it," he said of the gardening. Thirteen huge stone planters were placed in the courthouse plaza last winter as anti-terrorist crash barrier, but there was no money in the budget for plants and upkeep. The double row of empty urns became an eyesore, gathering cigarette butts and lunchtime debris. "It was rather disgraceful," said U.S. District Judge Mark A. Costantino, who suggested Hyman as resident horticulturist.

He'll be back

Jazz pianist Ellis Marsalis is moving to Virginia to teach music, but says he'll be back in New Orleans someday. "Everything about me is New Orleans. I was educated here. I taught school here, and the music I play was all developed here," said Marsalis, who for years has been a mainstay of New Orleans nightclubs. Marsalis, his wife, Dolores, and his two youngest children are moving to Richmond, where he will be Commonwealth Professor of Music at Virginia Commonwealth University. "I'm not leaving for a closed amount of time. I'm sure I'll be back, maybe to live," he said. Marsalis is the father of two of the country's hottest young performers, Wynton and Branford Marsalis. He taught a generation of jazz musicians at the New Orleans Center for the Creative Arts, and cites a dwindling number of students as one of his reasons for moving.

Iacocca swinging

Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca says Donald Regan is running the country and that he doesn't know what President Reagan believes in. In a salty interview in the September issue of Newsweek, Iacocca also took swipes at Sen. Gary Hart and Rep. Jack Kemp. Iacocca, touted as a potential 1988 Democratic presidential candidate, said both Reagan and former President Jimmy Carter won office after running against Washington insiders. They "ran against what people want me to run against. It seems it's a never-dying spirit," he said. "Anybody who comes up and says, 'Those... in Washington are no good,' they start applauding you no matter what your party is." Iacocca is not registered with either party, and has said he doesn't want to be president. He has told a committee working for his nomination to cease its efforts. In the interview, Iacocca criticized potential candidates and lambasted Reagan. "I don't know what... Reagan's convictions are," Iacocca said. "I know he hates Communists and I know he hates taxes. Other than that I don't know a... thing about him." Iacocca called Regan, the White House chief of staff, the country's actual president.

Today is Monday, Aug. 11, the 232nd day of 1986. There are 142 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history: In 1965, rioting and looting broke out in the predominantly black Watts section of Los Angeles after white police officers arrested a black man suspected of drunken driving. In the week that followed, 34 people were killed and more than 1,000 injured as mobs set fire to buildings and battled police and National Guardsmen. Also on this date: In 1909 the S-O-S distress signal was first used by an American ship. In 1954, a formal peace took hold, ending more than seven years of fighting in Indochina between the French and Communist Vietnam. In 1977, New York City postal employee David Berkowitz was arrested in connection with the 44-caliber gun killings committed by "Son of Sam."

Meotti calls on Zinsser: 'let's debate'

By John F. Kirch Herald Reporter

Michael Meotti, the Democrat seeking the state Senate seat held by Carl A. Zinsser, R-Manchester, has challenged his opponent to a series of debates in the five towns that make up the 4th Senatorial District.

Meotti, majority leader of the Glastonbury Town Council, said this morning that he will send Zinsser a letter later today requesting the forums, adding that he would like to begin as soon as possible. "I'd like to get started in September," Meotti said. "I think there's a lot to talk about. Let's go throughout the district. Let the voters see us together."

Zinsser said today that he was sure the two would debate during the campaign. However, he refrained from commenting on Meotti's request until he sees the letter. "It's always an advantage for the challenger to debate the incumbent — if for nothing else but to get exposure," said Zinsser, a Manchester real estate broker.

Each candidate has insisted that he is well known in the district — especially Glastonbury — while charging that the other is virtually invisible to the public.

Zinsser laughed, adding: "I talk to people in Glastonbury all the time, and they don't know who he is."

Crenshaw sentencing scheduled for Aug. 20

Manchester man convicted of killing his 16-month-old daughter last year will appear in court next week for sentencing, his attorney said this morning.

Marshall Crenshaw, 25, of 40 Olcott St., is being held at the Hartford Correctional Center pending sentencing, said attorney Richard Kelly.

In June, Superior Court Judge Francis R. Quinn delayed Crenshaw's sentencing for a second time pending further psychiatric testing at White Plains Institute in Middletown.

Crenshaw pleaded guilty in April to a charge of murder under a plea-bargaining agreement. Under the Alford Doctrine, Crenshaw didn't admit to killing his daughter, but recognized the state's evidence as being enough to cause a jury to convict him, Kelly said.

Crenshaw, a former service station attendant, had also given police a written statement saying that he suffocated his daughter because he wanted his life with the child's mother, Susan Lard, to be like it was before Dale-Lyn was born.

Tentative deal reached on sale of water firms

By George Lovno Herald Reporter

A tentative deal has been reached to sell Manchester's L & M Water Co. and the Elm Water Co. in Coventry to the man appointed by the state Department of Public Utilities Control to operate the firms since the death of the former owner George Koppleman died, said this morning by West Hartford Probate Court and the state Department of Public Utilities Control.

Wittenzeller said public hearings will be held in both Manchester and Coventry as part of the DPUC's review. According to a 1983 DPUC evaluation, the last one completed, the L & M Water Co. was valued at $27,994 with $58,929 in assets. The Elm Water Co. was worth $6,334 with assets totaling $67,345. However, the evaluations did not include the repairs that have since been made to both systems, nor the potential revenues.

Wittenzeller said if the sale is approved, then he will begin paying off the taxes owed to Coventry since 1973 and Manchester since 1978. In Coventry, that amounts to about $50,000, while $19,463 is owed to Manchester.

Wittenzeller is responsible for the taxes owed both towns since 1983, when he became receiver. Money to cover that amount has been set aside, he said. The liens could not be paid off while the utilities were in receivership because under state law, any tax money paid would be applied to fund with its share of the funds. An earlier hearing will be held Wednesday in Hearing Room W-52 of the State Capitol Annex, beginning at 10 a.m.

At both hearings the state's energy assistance program, which provides for spending $52 million for low-income energy assistance and weatherization efforts, will be discussed.

Zinsner said, "I plan to recommend that the Department of Human Resources be given increased jurisdiction over agencies that implement the energy assistance program locally."

A good offer on the town's sewage plant

Ironically, Manchester's position with respect to financing work needed on the town's sewage disposal plant seems to be improving with each new development.

In the long effort to find financing for the plant, Manchester officials have jumped at every opportunity that came along, fearing it might be the last chance to get outside money. But as each opportunity disappeared, a new one was created.

The concern in each case has been that if the town passed up a chance for some outside money, town taxpayers might find themselves paying the full cost, or virtually all of the cost, of the sewage treatment improvements ordered by environmental authorities who are determined to improve the condition of the Hockanum River downstream waters.

The town's most desperate move was claiming that Manchester should be "grandfathered" for a 90 percent state and federal grant because it had actually begun planning improvements to the plant before the 90 percent figure had been reduced to 75 percent. If the town had succeeded in making that claim stick, the local cost would have been less than $3 million. It was a good try, but it never had a chance.

The town made a big effort to be in a position to accept $10 million in federal money in case the town of Winchester had to turn it down. That, too, proved to be wishful thinking. Winchester will get the money.

But a good solution has come along and it did not come without effort.

Part of the solution comes from a plan to split between Manchester and Sufficient a $11 million fund that is available because Groton is not ready to use it.

Republican state Sen. Carl Zinsner had something to do with that, but it could not have been done without Democratic cooperation.

And part of the solution comes from a state program which will give the town a grant for 20 percent of the total cost and a 2 percent loan for whatever is not covered by the combined grants.

So the town ends up with outside money for about half the total cost, and a loan for the rest at an interest cost well below the rate it would normally have to pay.

In Washington, Senate and House conferees are working on terms for funding future improvements to sewage disposal plants, but is highly unlikely they will come up with any plan as generous as those of the past.

Whatever they do come up with can't be better than this last, best offer to Manchester.

In addition, the hundreds of citizens who volunteered to assist the search effort are to be applauded and thanked for their time and efforts.

In an emergency situation such as this there are many individuals and agencies which deserve thanks and it is impossible to mention them all. However, the Red Cross deserves particular mention for their quick action in their offer of assistance. U.S., allies still dealing arms to Iran

WASHINGTON — The United States and the Western allies continue to conduct secret talks and cut secret deals with Iran while the Ayatollah Khomeini's terrorist lackeys control the fate of three surviving American hostages — and several Europeans.

We've reported before on the secret tilt towards Iran by the Reagan administration's top policymakers. We have declined to detail the extent and exact nature of the contracts because they are so closely intertwined with the fate of the remaining hostages.

Primarily at Syria's instigation, the Iranian-controlled Moslem terrorists in Lebanon released the Rev. Lawrence Jenco, but there is no indication that they are willing to give up the other three. Associated Press reporter Terry Anderson and David Jacobson and Thomas Sutherland of the American University in Beirut. Intelligence reports show the hostages are moved frequently to avoid rescue, and were taken recently from the Bekaa Valley to Beirut.

Meanwhile, our allies are trying to placate Iran and two other terrorist states — Syria and Libya — by supplying them with arms and making profitable trade deals with them. These backdoor arrangements give Iran, Syria and Libya the wherewithal to support and train terrorists — and provide Iran with the munitions and replacement parts it needs to continue the six-year-old war with Iraq.

Here are just some of the more outrageous weapons deals made by Western European nations with the terrorist states in pursuit of appeasement and profits:

■ France. The state-owned conglomerate Luchaire has secretly shipped hundreds of thousands of artillery shells to Iran. Some of the transactions have been shielded by arranging them through Luchaire's affiliate, S.E.A., in Turin, Italy.

■ Paris has also signed secret deals with Libyan dictator Moammar Gadhafi for 128 Omomat shipborne missiles (of joint French-Italian manufacture), Mirage jet fighter-bombers and dozens of Exocet anti-ship missiles. Exocets wreaked deadly havoc on the British fleet in the Falklands war, and could endanger the U.S. Sixth Fleet if it maneuvers in the Gulf of Sidra again.

■ West Germany. Perhaps primarily to make terror safer for its citizens, Bonn has agreed to supply Iran with four Type 209 diesel submarines, among other weapons. The carnage these underwater craft could produce in the Persian Gulf oil-shipping lanes can easily be imagined.

■ Intelligence sources tell us the extent of West Germany's secret deals with Iran has made Luthansa safer to fly than any other airline — with the possible exception of El Al, which relies on painstaking security measures rather than Israeli appeasement of terrorist-sponsoring governments.

■ Austria, Greece, Sweden — and Israel. According to a startling report in this month's Reader's Digest by senior editor Nathan Adams, these supposedly anti-terrorist countries have also put the almighty dollar above the ethical and humane considerations involved in weapons dealing with countries that encourage terrorist activities.

■ Italy. Nearly half of Libya's $10 billion worth of business with West Europe each year is with Italy, its former colonial ruler. Last May, a former Italian intelligence chief disclosed that he had helped Gadhafi obtain arms and advised him on intelligence matters to secure better deals for Italian firms doing business with Libya. Heavy weapons provided by Italian companies include missile-equipped warships, self-propelled howitzers, missiles and thousands of acoustic mines and torpedoes.

And the clock stops running, he says, "at about 12:17, yes, very often at 12:17. The warden says he has the body removed, he dismisses the witnesses, and, though he does not want it to sound callous, he goes home for a good night's sleep."

The rest of the people at Angola go to sleep as well. The warden says the 4,700 prisoners do not rattle their bars in mourning after an execution. He says they know that the law is the law, and, besides, he says, "A lot of them must believe in capital punishment, because they kill people all of the time."

Carbide says employee sabotaged Bhopal plant

DANBURY (AP) — Union Carbide officials suspect a disgruntled employee caused the 1984 accident that killed more than 2,000 people at its fertilizer plant in Bhopal, India.

"Our investigations to date demonstrate that the Bhopal tragedy was a deliberate act," company spokesman Harvey Covert said Sunday.

"These investigations are now focusing on a specific individual of the Bhopal plant who was disgruntled and who had ample opportunity to deliberately inject the large amount of water into the storage tank, which caused the massive gas release," he said.

Unhappiness with their jobs can make employees "sick"

By Susan Okulo
The Associated Press

NEW HAVEN — People who think their office buildings are making them sick often don't realize that job dissatisfaction may be the real culprit, says an expert on human health and the environment.

Jan A.J. Stolwijk, chairman of Yale University's Department of Epidemiology and Public Health, thinks the lack of satisfaction can cause a worker rebellion at the office.

But the complaints won't necessarily be about bosses or the nature of the work, he said in a recent interview.

Instead, workers may complain that their computer terminals or the buildings themselves are causing physical problems. Stolwijk said

Stolwijk said the majority of workplace-related complaints in the NIOSH investigations were made by women and he doesn't see that as a coincidence. Women often make up the majority of lower-power clerical jobs in an economy that is turning more toward the service industries, he said.

Stolwijk said clerical work in the service industries is often separated into an assembly-line fashion into many separate tasks.

by the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health into 75 different buildings where workers were complaining of ailments.

In most of the cases, the buildings did not contain any health hazards, he said. Stolwijk said he recently saw the same situation at a private office building in Connecticut.

"Sometimes you can improve it by increasing ventilation. Usually it results in a decrease in complaints but I think that comes more from the fact that something is done and people notice there has been a response to their complaints."

"The way to get improvement in a situation is when you improve the labor-management climate and get recognition of the value of the work being done by the people," he said.

"People complain about headaches, about eye irritation, throat irritation. They complain about dry skin. They complain about nasal problems. It is a very common kind of description," he said.

Stolwijk is regarded as an expert on indoor pollution and has written and spoken about what he calls "the sick building syndrome." He recently reviewed investigations

For example, many female clerks now work all day on video display terminals where workers measure their output, he said.

They may perform one set of tasks repeatedly and may not feel that their jobs are making recognizable contributions to the company, he said.

"As a result, people do not feel accountable for their jobs and view them simply as a way to make money," he said. Production may also suffer, he said.

"There is a degradation of the quality — not of the quality of the workplace environment, but a degradation of the social environment in that workplace," he said.

Stolwijk said that people rebel against the working conditions, often vented in the complaints that "this machine makes me sick" or "this building makes me sick."

The epidemiology professor said dissatisfaction on the job can be regarded as a public health problem.

He noted that studies have shown that people in lower-level jobs are more likely to die at younger ages than those in higher-level positions, and that unhappy people have a higher likelihood of developing diseases.

11th-hour accord prevents SNET strike

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Workers at Southern New England Telephone Corp. are on the job today, thanks to an agreement ironed out less than two hours before the strike deadline.

The agreement calls for a 7½ percent wage increase over three years, rising up to 10 percent if inflation demands it, a spokesman said.

SNET and the Connecticut Union of Telephone Workers reached a tentative agreement about 10:30 p.m. Saturday, shortly before the midnight strike deadline. The decision, which must be approved by CUTW workers, effects 9,700 employees, a spokesman said.

After the breakup of AT&T in January 1984, the regional companies and AT&T began bargaining separately with unions. While SNET worked out its new contract, other regional phone companies — including the systems serving New York, much of New England, and 12 Western states — failed to reach agreements.

George M. Sherwood, president of the CUTW, said: "This bargaining period has been unique. It's the first time in twelve years that the union and SNET have ironed out the major items of the wages and the benefits," because of the break-up of the Bell system.

"Through intense negotiations, we hammered out a solid compensation and benefits package for our membership. It is an attractive contract and we hope for early ratification," Sherwood said.

Other parts of the agreement include a pension improvement plan of 4½ percent, going into effect in February 1987 and February 1988, and major improvements to the employment security and savings plan," a union official said.

Other improvements are an improved comprehensive medical plan, with better dental and eye examination coverage, and what a union spokesman called "a better transfer procedure."

Charlie Judd, assistant vice president and chief negotiator of SNET, said, "This is a win-win agreement. The contract recognizes the contributions of our employees, while at the same time it is responsive to our ratepayers and customers needs," he said.

CUTW represents operators, customer service representatives, technicians, secretaries and repair personnel.

In 1983, SNET workers were part of a three-week strike by 675,000 members of three unions.

Taking the last steps on Death Row

Since the U.S. Supreme Court lifted a moratorium on capital punishment in 1977, more than 600 people have been executed in America. Prison authorities report that by mid 1986 there were more than 1,700 convicts on various death rows, mostly in the Southeastern states.

perhaps a photograph of his family, and he also has telephone privileges. He is watched closely, of course, and his food and utensils are monitored to prevent a poisoning or, more likely, a suicide.

The warden says the prisoner may receive family visitors, legal counseling, and spiritual help. And the parade to his cell can be lengthy.

The activity, however, normally ends at 10 p.m. on the night of the execution, when the last meal has been eaten and the appeal process has essentially run its course.

Tick tock ...

Blackburn is the warden at the sprawling Louisiana State Penitentiary here where the Mississippi River begins the final part of its rush to the Gulf of Mexico. And the people in his grip are an assortment of thugs and desperados who have been convicted and condemned for capital crimes of murder.

The warden says the contradiction between his personal and professional characteristics is awesome. It's not easy to tie a someone into an electric chair. But he adds that he has made peace with the contradiction by concentrating on the administration rather than the emotions of the job.

In other words, he sees to it that the state executions are carried out with discretion. He makes sure the condemned are at least dispatched with precision. The warden has officiated at four of the seven executions that have been held in Angola since 1977, and he says they've gone off like clockwork.

Tick tock ...

The count begins 72 hours before an execution is scheduled. Blackburn says the prisoner is transferred then from the Death Row area of the prison to the Death House. The latter is located in a remote pasture at the institution, near a pelican refuge, ironically, and access is tightly restricted.

The prisoner is placed in one of five pale green cells. He's allowed to have toilet articles, a book,

The prisoner may make a final statement into a microphone. He has an audience of nine witnesses who are seated from the chamber by a glass wall. The warden stands by the controls, the guarantors of a humane and swift execution, and they may include members of the condemned man's family.

The prisoner is led to the wooden chair at about 12:05 a.m. He is strapped down, an electrode is placed on his left ankle, and his head is covered with a metal cap and hood. The warden stands near two telephones, a final link to official record (but, he points out, he has never had a last-minute bid).

The warden nods. The punishment is now in the hands of a man known only as "Sas Jones." He is a licensed electrician who operates a switch from the security and anonymity of a windowless closet. He says he tries to kill people without "smoking or burning," and is paid $400 for each assignment.

Tick tock ...

The warden says Sam Jones shoots 2,000 volts into the prisoner. He adds, "I think the man is dead right away." To make certain, the voltage is lowered to 500, raised again to 2,000, and lowered for a final time to 500. The warden says it takes about a minute, and there are body sounds for a few minutes more.

Then Blackburn calls in two physicians to verify the death. And the clock stops running, he says, "at about 12:17, yes, very often at 12:17. The warden says he has the body removed, he dismisses the witnesses, and, though he does not want it to sound callous, he goes home for a good night's sleep."

The rest of the people at Angola go to sleep as well. The warden says the 4,700 prisoners do not rattle their bars in mourning after an execution. He says they know that the law is the law, and, besides, he says, "A lot of them must believe in capital punishment, because they kill people all of the time."

Crash into barrier kills two men

MARLBOROUGH — Two 20-year-old Hebron men were killed and two others injured when their Volkswagen hit a concrete barrier at a construction site head on, state police say.

John E. Davis and Allan R. Terranova were pronounced dead at the scene of the 7:56 p.m. accident Saturday, police said. Two passengers sitting in the back seat were injured, police said.

Police said Davis was driving the car, apparently at a high rate of speed, when it hit a concrete barrier on West Road in Marlborough. The road had been completely blocked with Jersey barriers while reconstruction was underway on a nearby bridge, said Lt. Ed Dalley, a spokesman for the state police.

Injured were passengers Shawn McLaughlin, 19, who was treated and released from Hartford Hospital, and Timothy McGuire, 15, also of Hebron, who was listed in stable condition Sunday night at St. Francis Hospital in Hartford.

Unidentified body found in river

EAST HARTFORD — East Hartford police say they found the body of an unidentified man floating in the Connecticut River.

The man was between 5-foot-10 and 6-feet and was wearing two pairs of pants, work boots, a dark blue cardigan sweater and a heavy denim jacket, police said.

The body, which apparently had been in the water for quite some time, was noticed at about 8:30 a.m. Sunday by a city parks department employee near the Founders Bridge, police said.

It was pulled out of the river by two police men in a boat and was taken to the chief state medical examiner's office in Farmington. An autopsy is expected to be completed Monday, police said.

Ex-senator seeks primary in 6th

NEW BRITAIN — Former state Senator Paul Amenta has filed papers to force a primary runoff for the Democratic nomination to represent the Sixth District.

Amenta, 63, of New Britain will face Harold D. Hansen of New Milford, the party-endorsed candidate, on Sept. 8. The winner will face incumbent Republican Nancy L. Johnson of New Britain in the November election.

Amenta announced his candidacy Friday.

"I think I'm different from Harold Hansen," Amenta said. "I'm from New Britain. I'm from the largest city in the district. I have a background of working with the unions in the district."

Amenta said he expected to raise about $10,000 for the primary battle and Hansen, another former state senator, said he plans to raise between $15,000 and $20,000.

Classmates mourn teen victims

AVON — More than 450 mourners, including classmates dressed in their summer best, turned out for a memorial service for 14-year-old Colleen Merriman, who died last week in a crash that claimed four lives.

Two other teen-agers and a 64-year-old Avon man were killed and a third teenager was critically injured in the head-on collision Thursday in Farmington — the worst accident in that town's history.

"Words do not come easily at this time of sorrow, for we are perplexed and confused," the Rev. Donald Ketchum said during the 40-minute service Sunday at Avon Congregational Church.

Large bouquets of flowers decorated the white clapboard church, filled with Avon High School students, their parents, and friends of Colleen Lynn Merriman. About 150 people who could not be seated in the sanctuary were directed to the fellowship hall, where mourners gathered after the service to speak with Colleen's family and talk in muted tones about the tragedy.

Funeral services were scheduled today for the two other teen-agers who died — 15-year-old Derek Tranchida and 14-year-old Adam Groth. Funeral arrangements for the fourth victim, 64-year-old Edward Bridgman, were not disclosed.

Farmington police said Timothy Frahm, 18, was driving his parents' Mercedes-Benz when he struck across the center line on Town Farm Road, slamming head-on into a Cadillac driven by Bridgman.

Coventry panel appointment is stalled by legal questions

By Jacqueline Bennett Herald Correspondent

COVENTRY — Concern over minority representation has postponed the appointment of Democrat Elizabeth Paterson to the Town Council, according to Town Manager Harold Hedge.

Hedge indicated Saturday he was having second thoughts about making the appointment, which he was expected to do today.

That question was raised by the five-member council's lone Republican Philip Bouchard on Thursday night when Democrats tried to name Paterson to the council at a special meeting at the Town Office Building.

Bouchard objected to the appointment because he said it would create a six-member body with a 5-1 party imbalance, and he claimed that it would violate a minority representation requirement of a 4-2 ratio.

Democrats said they wanted Paterson seated to maintain a quorum in the absence of Town Council Chairman Joan Lewis, who would be on vacation this week.

Paterson said this morning she had been unaware of the postponement but planned to remain a Lano was charged with failure to grant right of way in the incident, which police said occurred around 2:30 p.m. Police charged Cavendon with operating a motorcycle without a license.

Lano told police that he looked back, making the turn and did not see the motorcycle, police said. Police said witnesses said Lano turned into the path of the motorcycle.

Cavendon, as well as a rider with never ignored the men's petition, and adopted another one that was drafted by some of the club's women.

nominee for the council seat. Bouchard said Saturday he would like to vote on both the replacement appointments for Donovan and Cleary on the 18th. He said that to protect minority representation it is "logical to fill them at the same time."

The Republican Town Committee will meet Thursday at 7 p.m. at the Town Office Building to nominate a replacement for Cleary. Bouchard returned to the council table Friday night for a special meeting after Lewis promised that the Paterson appointment would be tabled. The council had not been able to get a quorum together since mid-July, leaving a backlog of unfinished business.

Friday night, the council approved a $1,000,000 federal Farmers Housing Assistance loan that will help residents cover the cost of hooking up the town's new sewage treatment plant. The council also authorized Hedge to obtain an additional $2,000,000 liability insurance.

Bouchard, who had been considering resigning, said Saturday he was pleased with the conduct of his fellow council members Friday night, and believed they acted in "good faith."

Bouchard said Lewis has asked him to stay on the council, and he made do that. "I've yet to put it on the table," he said, referring to his possible resignation. "I've never had any trouble working with Republicans and Democrats so long as they act in the best interest of the town," he said.

Bosox enjoy nice weekend

By Ben Walker The Associated Press

For a team supposedly in trouble, the Boston Red Sox enjoyed a very nice weekend.

The Red Sox, after watching their grip on the American League East start to loosen, stabilized themselves by beating Detroit three straight times at Tiger Stadium, including a 9-6 victory Sunday.

Rich Gedman's pinch-grander slam capped a five-run rally in the eighth inning that gave the Red Sox their fourth straight triumph.

Boston is now back on top by six games — only one game less than its lead at the All-Star break.

The Red Sox had won only six of 19 since the break, and the rest of the contenders began to close in. Since that time, the Tigers had played the best ball in the division, reducing their deficit from 13 games to 4½.

But that was before Boston came to town. "It was a very big win for us," Boston Manager John McNamara said. "We're not gloating. There's still a long way to go."

MB's stay alive in Twi playoff

By Len Auster Sports Editor

The combination of home run power, sturdy defense, and stout relief pitching with some unusual umpiring thrown in to amuse the Sunday afternoon crowd — were the ingredients served up as Moriarty Brothers emerged alive in the Jack Rose Memorial Twilight League playoffs with a 4-4 win over the Newington Capitols at Moriarty Field.

Jeff Johnson's leadoff solo homer in the bottom of the sixth inning proved to be the difference as the MB's are still viable in the double elimination play.

Johnson's fifth in the regular season and now 2-1 in the post season as it also has the Imaginers on Saturday by a 3-1 count behind the eighth pitch of Dave Bidwell, will face Society for Savings, a 5-4 loser to second place team, on Monday at 6 p.m. at Moriarty Field. In the other game on Sunday, Mallove's remained alive by eliminating Superior 12-3.

Two-run homers from Bill Chapulis in the first inning, a towering Dave Schmidt, cleared the right field fence, and by former Manchester High standout Ray Gihla, a rocket blast that whistled over the left field barrier, was the other offense generated by the MB's. "Home run power, amen," said MB manager Gene Johnson. "We didn't hit that well in the last six games prior to the playoffs. It was like silent movies."

The big defensive play by Mike Johnson on the relay kept it tied. And Jeff Johnson, Mike's younger brother, won it with his circuit cut. "When you get pitching, defense and home runs, you should win," said Coach Johnson.

Mike Johnson and Sullivan at shortstop came up with Major League relief pitcher Scott Cormier, a bad-top single, for his mental miscue by lining a two-run homer to make it 4-1 after three frames. "When you let one in and drive in two, that's okay," Johnson said in jest. Newington added a run in the fourth and two more in the fifth, chasing MB starter Brian Labbe, to knot it up.

The big defensive play by Mike Johnson on the relay kept it tied. And Jeff Johnson, Mike's younger brother, won it with his circuit cut. "When you get pitching, defense and home runs, you should win," said Coach Johnson.

Mike Johnson and Sullivan at shortstop came up with Major League relief pitcher Scott Cormier, a bad-top single, for his mental miscue by lining a two-run homer to make it 4-1 after three frames. "When you let one in and drive in two, that's okay," Johnson said in jest. Newington added a run in the fourth and two more in the fifth, chasing MB starter Brian Labbe, to knot it up.

Norman's coronation is put on hold

By Rusty Miller The Associated Press

TOLEDO, Ohio — The coronation of a new PGA Championship king will be a little later. But the man who is just a step from the throne looked at the wait as just a formality.

"Just to hang around another day is a little sad. We'd like to wrap things up as soon as we can," Greg Norman said Sunday after rain forced a suspension of play in the final round of the 88th PGA Championship golf tournament at the Inverness Club.

Sixty of the 73 players were to pick up today where they left off when play was stopped Sunday afternoon. Of the 13 players who completed play before the postponement, Hale Irwin was the leader at over-par 207 after a final-round 68.

The rains came early to the 882-yard, par-71 course, washing away virtually everything but Norman's four-shot lead over Bob Tway. No one else was within seven shots of the leader.

Newington's Peter Bartlewski looks up, and can't believe it, but home plate umpire Brian McKeown reinforces his call of out in the sixth inning when Bartlewski tried to stretch a hit into a triple. He was thrown out on an excellent relay by second baseman Mike Johnson.

Softball tourneys begin play tonight

The town softball playoffs will be twice as fun this year, with two separate double-elimination tournaments — the 'A' and the 'B' — both slated to start tonight. Both tournaments consist of 12 teams each. The 'A' field includes the top four clubs from the 'A' Central, East and West Leagues. The 'B' contingent includes the top two teams from six leagues: Charter Oak, Pagan, West Side, Northern, Rec and Dusty. Opening night action in the 'A' tournament showcases two games at both Robertson Park and Fitzgerald Field. Monday's 'B' tilt will be at Nike Field and Pagan Field. In the 'A' Division, Game 1 at Robertson at 6 p.m., the West's fourth-place Cummings Insu-

49ers look awesome in routing the Raiders

By Barry Wilner
The Associated Press

As San Francisco 49ers Coach Bill Walsh observed, the Los Angeles Raiders usually don't do very well in the NFL preseason. But a 32-6 shelling might be a bit too slow of a start.

The 49ers' defense registered 12 sacks, five by rookie linemen, and four of the five touchdowns were scored by rookies as San Francisco routed the stumbling Raiders Sunday.

"Basically, we were playing quicker than the Raiders," Walsh said. "But Los Angeles, traditionally, doesn't start off well. You can't use today's game to measure their ability."

The Raiders better hope Walsh is correct.

"It's not panic time. That's what these games are for," running back Marcus Allen said.

The Raiders have gone 1-3 in exhibition play the past three seasons but reached the playoffs all three years and claimed one Super Bowl title.

"It's probably an understatement, but we played poorly," Raiders Coach Tom Flores admitted. "It's pretty obvious that we have some work to do."

The offensive line certainly needs work after allowing first-year players Charles Haley (three) and Larry Roberts (two) to go sack crazy. And the defense allowed touchdown passes by Joe Montana and Jeff Kemp.

The rookies who scored for San Francisco were fullback Tom Rathman on 1-and 3-yard runs, halfback Tony Cherry from nine yards and light end Ron Heller with a 13-yard pass from Kemp.

"We were very pleased with the movement and quickness of our team and with our younger players," Walsh said.

The Raiders weren't the only team shut out this weekend. Dallas, which scored only six points in losing to NFL champion Chicago in London last week, fell to San Diego 20-0 on Saturday. Kansas City blanked Cincinnati 20-0. Also, it was New England 18, Washington 7; Green Bay 38, the New York Jets 14; Chicago 33, Pittsburgh 13; Cleveland 19, Buffalo 17; St. Louis 26, Tampa Bay 10; Minnesota 30, Miami 16; and New Orleans 10, Denver 7.

On Friday, Seattle beat Indianapolis 21-14, and Philadelphia downed Detroit 17-9.

Chargers 20, Cowboys 0
San Diego, known only for its strength on offense in the 1960s, might have found a strong defense under new defensive coordinator Ron Lynn. The Chargers limited Dallas to 125 yards total offense Saturday night.

A gambling style featuring stunts and blitzes and all-out aggression is how Lynn hopes to turn around San Diego's fortunes on defense.

"We're heading in the right direction and this certainly helped," Lynn said.

"We're trying to develop a personality that people will respect," said linebacker Fred Robinson. "We're not going to be real rowdy or mouthy. The production is what counts."

San Diego's defense was so dominant that it forced 12 Dallas punts. And the Chargers' passing offense was in high gear behind Mark Herrmann, who hit seven of 10 passes for 133 yards. The running game scored the two touchdowns and piled up 150 yards.

Chiefs 20, Bengals 0
The Chiefs converted a fumble recovery and an interception into 10 points in a 13-point second quarter.

"In the first half, they had a couple of drives on us. I was real pleased when we were able to stop them," Kansas City Coach John Mackovic said. "The best part of our defense was creating turnovers when the Bengals were driving on us."

Patriots 18, Redskins 7
Tony Eason hit on 20 of 32 passes for 282 yards and one touchdown to lead New England. Eason, who was benched in the 46-10 Super Bowl loss to the Bears after missing on his first six pass attempts, teamed with Craig James for a 38-yard completion, the Patriots' first play of the game. Later, he directed a 94-yard drive that ended with a 3-yard scoring toss to Stephen Starring.

Packers 38, Jets 14
Five Jets turnovers and second-year running back Gary Ellerson's two first-half touchdowns were the keys for Green Bay. Ellerson scored on touchdown runs of six and 35 yards to help Green Bay to a 21-0 halftime lead.

Saturday's paid attendance of 73,859 in Camp Randall Stadium at the University of Wisconsin was the largest home crowd in Packers history.

Bears 33, Steelers 13
Third-stringer Mike Tomczak threw three touchdown passes, including a 61-yard fourth-quarter pass to Thomas Sanders. Tomczak completed 17 of 23 passes for 236 yards and hit on his final nine passes of the first half.

The Bears showed no adverse signs after their preseason game in England. It was the Steelers' first loss in their last 16 preseason games.

Browns 19, Bills 17
Allen Green's 2-yard touchdown run with 50 seconds left lifted Cleveland to victory. The Bills led 17-8 after rookie Carl Byrum ran two yards for a touchdown less than a minute into the fourth quarter.

But quarterback Mike Papez pulled the Browns within 17-12 when he ran one yard for a score with just over eight minutes to play. Then Papez led the winning drive.

Cardinals 26, Bucs 10
Niko Noga and Lionel Washington each ran back interceptions for touchdowns and John Lee kicked three field goals to lead St. Louis.

Noga picked off Steve Young's pass and went 15 yards for a second-quarter score. Washington grabbed third-stringer Alan Risher's throw and returned it 38 yards for a 20-3 Cardinals lead.

Vikings 30, Dolphins 16
The Vikings led 10-6 entering the third period. Then rookie Neal Guggenmos returned an interception 20 yards for a touchdown and Chris Dooleman also picked off a pass that led to another score.

Miami All-Pro quarterback Dan Marino set out the game.

Salts 10, Broncos 7
Morten Andersen kicked a 51-yard field goal with 6:01 left in the game to give New Orleans its victory. Both New Orleans scores were set up by Denver turnovers. Willie Tullis intercepted a tipped John Elway pass and returned to it the Broncos' 14-yard line, setting up the Saints' first score, fullback Wayne Wilson's 1-yard run.

With nine minutes left in the game, Denver running back Gerald Willhite fumbled and line-backer Joe Kohlbrand recovered at midfield. Andersen subsequently kicked the 51-yard field goal.

Cool Richmond drives away with title

By Mike Harris
The Associated Press

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. — Instinct tells Tim Richmond to push his right foot to the floor when he's driving a race car.

Harry Hyde, the veteran crew chief who guides Richmond's team, usually tells him to "cool it."

Richmond listened to Hyde on Sunday, using his head and his right foot in concert to win the insurable Budweiser at the Glen NASCAR stock car race.

He muscled past Darrell Waltrip just 12 laps from the end, then ran off a 1-45-second victory, his fourth in an eight-race stretch during which he has also finished second three times and earned $334,480.

"It's not my style, but I held it back for awhile," said the 31-year-old racer. "I didn't give the car its head until late in the race."

"Flat out probably came with eight laps to go. Then I developed a lead on Darrell and got a little conservative again. I wanted to make sure I had a car at the end."

Hyde, who at age 61 is something of a father figure to Richmond, said: "We told Tim he'd have to smooth it out and go for the win."

"In qualifying (in which Richmond won the pole) and in practice, he was lashing the curbs, shifting at a big RPM (engine revolutions per minute) and getting the car sideways all the time. We had to tone him down."

"But Tim just doesn't know how to back off. You have to tell him every four or five laps; otherwise he'll use the car up."

Hyde smiled and added: "We tell him about how hard he can run and he's learning to do it. He's got a terribly good feel for the car and he's very smart. He's just so aggressive, you have to keep reminding him."

Richmond's teammate, Geoff Bodine, actually led more laps than Richmond and had leads of up to 10 seconds over Richmond and Waltrip as late as lap 42 in the 90-lap, 119-mile event.

But Bodine, from nearby Cheung, N.Y., and a favorite of the partisan crowd, self-destructed when he spun on lap 63 and fell all the way to 10th.

Bodine later had overheating problems and never got back into the chase, finishing 19th.

Richmond earned $50,944 for his eighth career victory, averaging 90.464 mph in a race slowed by four caution flags for a total of 16 laps.

Winston Cup point leader, Dale Earnhardt, came on strong at the end to finish third, followed by Bill Elliott, Neil Bonnett and Rusty Wallace.

Earnhardt leads Waltrip, the defending Winston Cup champion, by 151 points and Richmond by 170. Richmond was trailing leader Elliott and Waltrip when the green flag came out on lap 77 following the final caution period of the day.

By the end of the first trip around the seven-turn, 2.428-mile course, Waltrip was leading and Richmond was hounding Elliott.

On lap 78, Richmond was in second, dogging Waltrip. And on the back straightaway on lap 79, Richmond dropped low on the track and squeezed past Waltrip into the lead. He stayed there the rest of the way.

Frost of France, who had been second with 44 points, slipped to fourth after leaving the race with mechanical problems.

Piquet won the first Formula One race ever held in a Communist-ruled country after sneaking his Williams-Honda past Senna on the 6th of 76 laps around the 2.5-mile Hungaroring track.

Piquet averaged 96.168 mph and had a 17-second lead at the finish.

back-up electrical system) and smoothed out. The car was flawless the rest of the way.

The event was the first stock car race at historic Watkins Glen International since 1965, when now-retired Marvin Panich won. Panich, by the way, earned $1,475 for that victory, $20 less than Jocko Maggicomo got Sunday for finishing last.

Track officials estimated the crowd at 88,000, which was reminiscent of the throngs that attended Formula One races at the upstate New York circuit in the 1960s and 1970s.

MOST AGENTS will not ask for money from you in advance of you taking an apartment. In most states they can ask for it only after they've found you an apartment you agree to rent. The real estate agent cannot ask for money prior to finding you the apartment, although you may be asked to sign an agreement in which you promise to pay should the agent locate that perfect apartment.

Once that apartment is located, real estate brokers usually will request one or two months' advance rent, a security deposit and, of course, the real estate agent's fee.

The service offered in an advance fee scheme varies with the region, and usually reflects the scarcity of the type of apartment desired in a tight housing market or jobs in a region of high unemployment. Most consumer services are paid for after the service is performed, not before. So if you are offered a service for which an advance fee is required, at least check the reliability of the company with your local Better Business Bureau.

Also, the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York has reports available on such topics as modeling and apartment referral vendors. These reports are free — and can be had just for asking. No fee, advance or otherwise, is needed.

Beware ads that promise 'dream' jobs

So you want to be a model. Or you were just offered that perfect apartment with an eat-in kitchen facing the park. Or that terrific job. But each potential employer wants money from you in advance. What should you do?

Be cautious. In several areas, including modeling, real estate and job placement, charging an advance fee before the service is provided can be a clue that you are a possible victim of a scam.

Are you among those aspiring models who responded to an ad in the "help wanted" section of your newspaper? Did you call the telephone number in the ad to make an appointment for an interview, and show up, only to be told you had to pay several hundred dollars up front for a portfolio or training session? You're not alone.

You're not alone. warns the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York. In recent years, there has been a major increase in the number of modeling agencies, particularly in the New York area. It can be difficult to find out whether the agency you are about to deal with, and give your money to, is a reputable one.

NO LEGITIMATE modeling agency charges an advance fee, or a fee by any other name, such as a "registration" or "consultation" fee. In fact this practice is prohibited in New York state, since managers cannot accept advance payments in return for service unless it represents repayment of expenses actually incurred by the agency on behalf of the prospective model, or represents commission as a result of obtaining employment.

In addition, it is contrary to Better Business Bureau standards to advertise in the "help wanted" section unless jobs actually are being offered. Many modeling agencies counter this argument by stating that jobs are available — if the model qualifies.

In many states, employment agencies are forbidden to collect a fee unless and until they find you a job that you accept. If they charge an advance fee, they're violating the law and should be reported.

Despite all the controls, curbs and laws, schemes do emerge, particularly in areas where jobs in the field are scarce and/or unemployment is high. The applicant is told to pay a fee and register for a job, and then finds no such job exists.

MOST AGENTS will not ask for money from you in advance of you taking an apartment. In most states they can ask for it only after they've found you an apartment you agree to rent. The real estate agent cannot ask for money prior to finding you the apartment, although you may be asked to sign an agreement in which you promise to pay should the agent locate that perfect apartment.

Chamber winners

The Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce Environment and Beautification Committee has announced six winners of summer beautification awards. Three firms won awards for the landscaping of newly constructed or remodeled commercial buildings and three won for continuous maintenance. They are pictured on this page and on page one.

The chamber's beautification awards are given on the basis of lighting, landscaping, and regular maintenance of property.
