TODAY'S Real Estate by Norma Tedford INTERIOR ZONING Interior zoning involves the logical arrangement of rooms in a house. Ideally, every home should have three clear-cut zones. The three primary types of activities, living, sleeping and working. The living zone should be where the living, dining and family rooms. The work zone should consist of bedrooms, laundry and workshop. The sleeping zone should consist of bedrooms. Each zone should be separate from the others. A two-story house provides a distinct advantage in the benefits of separating the upstairs bedrooms, living and dining rooms. On the other hand, a split-level house can create problems if the living and working areas are on more than one level. In some respects, lifestyle habits can overcome poor zoning.

Down to town Linda Flavell of Andover takes her 4-year-old daughter, Summer, with her on a bicycle ride into Manchester to "take care of business" this morning. Flavell said she decided to ride her bike instead of driving in order to take advantage of the end-of-summer weather.

AIDS policy would allow schooling transmission in schools. The policy has been localized and takes school staff into consideration. Cormier said the policy reflects the state's approach in protecting that students with AIDS should attend public schools. "The policy states that an advisory committee would be appointed to review each case-stricken student's medical status as it relates to his or her educational needs. Policy guidelines would determine whether the student should be allowed into a regular classroom, should study at home or should be placed in a restricted environment. "The committee will make a recommendation based on the student's behavior, neurologic, physical condition and expected time of interaction in the school setting. The policy states, "We should not penalize parents or limit their rights. "The board will vote on the policy when it meets Sept. 22. AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome, is a crippling disease that destroys the body's immune system. At Monday's school board meeting, Kraatz commended the authors of the policy, which would cover all-transmissible diseases. For designing it before a school employee or child with AIDS steps forward. That situation, he said, will present itself to Manchester in the near future. Richard Cormier, the school system's director of special education, said the policy is based on recent medical studies as well as a book of state guidelines for students. "The Prevention of Disease

Ferguson gets probation deal in petition case

By George Loyne Herald Reporter Republican town Director Thomas H. Ferguson was given accelerated rehabilitation this morning on charges filed in connection with a forged signature appearing on a petition he circulated in an attempt to force a May GOP delegate primary. Under the conditions imposed by Manchester Superior Court Judge Lawrence C. Kiazack, Ferguson's rehabilitation period will end March 9, 1987. If Ferguson has not been convicted of a crime by that time, the charge stemming from the since-aborted gubernatorial primary effort will be dropped. With the sentencing of the four people arrested in connection with the signature-gathering effort, the case against Ferguson has been granted accelerated rehabilitation. The other two have pleaded innocent and are awaiting pre-trial proceedings. On July 23, Ferguson, a 29-year-old real estate broker, pleaded innocent to the misdemeanor charge of making a false statement. Pre-trial proceedings were to have started today but Manchester attorney Joseph P. English represented Ferguson, told the judge his client wanted to avoid a protracted, publicized trial. Diana said, however, that the case was "very triable," and maintained Ferguson was innocent. "He doesn't think he did anything wrong," Diana said. Assistant State's Attorney Cornelius Shea said one of Ferguson's petitioning efforts contained a forged signature. Shea said Ferguson did not reasonably establish the identity of the people who signed the form, as is required of a circulator. However, Diana said that after Ferguson obtained the names and addresses of Republican voters, he went to their homes, asked them if they were the same voters named on the GOP list, and then asked them if they would sign the petition. Diana said that Ferguson signed the petition, but not reasonably identify signers. Ferguson would not comment after Kiazack granted him accelerated rehabilitation. The arrest of Ferguson and three other people followed efforts by the GOP list to identify the victim as Frank Herbert Reed, 53, formerly of Malden, Mass. Embassy spokesman Christopher P. English said Reed directed the private Lebanese International School in West Beirut's Sanayeh district. A rash of politically motivated kidnappings occurred in west Beirut in 1985. As a result, most Westerners left west Beirut. The most recent kidnapping of an American was June 10, 1985 when gunmen abducted Thomas Sutherland, 53, acting dean of agriculture at the American University of Beirut, Lebanon. Polls open until 8

Manchester's 12 polling places opened at noon today and will remain open until 8 p.m., with a 6:55 Republican eligible to vote in the primary to decide which of three gubernatorial candidates will run against incumbent Democratic Gov. William A. O'Neill in the Nov. 4 election. Local Republican officials have predicted that only 38 percent of the eligible voters in Manchester and other Connecticut towns will turn out for today's primary. The three-way contest involves Richard Bozuto of Waterbury, Julie Belaga of Westport and Gerald Labriola of Naugatuck. Bozuto is the candidate endorsed by the Republican State Convention, and Belaga and Labriola are challengers. Voters who want rides to the polls may phone 646-4808, the home of Manchester Republican Chairman Donald Kuehl. Party workers have been phoning Republican voters who have asked for rides to the polls in the past, asking if they need transportation today. Following is a list of Manchester's 12 polling places: • District 1, Robertson School, 45 N. School St. • District 2, Bowers School, 141 Princeton St. • District 3, Buckley School, 250 Vernon St. • District 4, Martin School, Dartmouth Road. • District 5, Senior Citizens' Center, 549 E. Middle Turnpike. • District 6, Nathan Hale School, 160 Spruce St. • District 7, Waddell School, 163 Broad St. • District 8, Keeley Street School, 179 Keeley St. • District 10, Manchester High School, 134 E. Middle Turnpike. • District 11, Mahoney Recreation Center, 110 Cedar St. • District 12, Howell Cheney Regional Vocational Technical School, 791 W. Middle Turnpike.

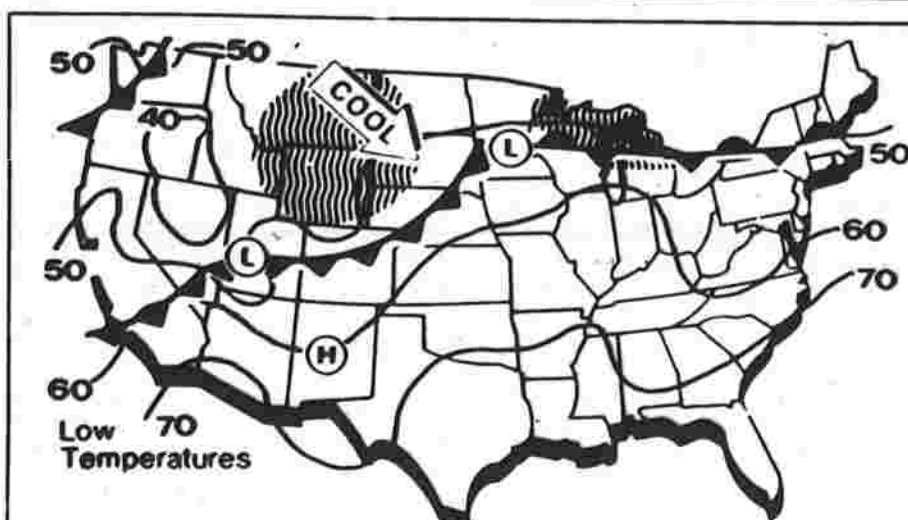

GOP candidates make final rounds

By Judd Everhart The Associated Press State Republican Chairman Thomas J. D'Amore Jr. said the race was too close to call and acknowledged that it may turn on personal style, rather than positions on issues. He's hoping history repeats itself. The last time there was a Republican primary was in 1970, when Thomas J. Meskill defeated incumbent Democrat Gov. John D. DeLoach to win the November election. Circumstances aren't quite the same this time, however. For example, Meskill wasn't running against an incumbent that November. Still, D'Amore and other top GOP strategists, and the candidates themselves, believe O'Neill is vulnerable, particularly on the issue of leadership. They say O'Neill does little more than preside over a network of cronies and places party loyalty above all else. Bozuto won the GOP endorsement last week. He is expected to win the November election. Today, Belaga and Labriola planned to greet railroad commuters in Fairfield County and southwestern Connecticut. Bozuto was on the stump a bit farther north, in Waterbury and New Britain. Please turn to page 8

WEATHER

FRONTS:
 Warm — Cold
 Showers Rain Flurries Snow Occluded Stationary

National forecast

Clear skies are forecast for most of the nation on Wednesday. Showers are expected from the Rockies to the northern Plains and in the upper Great Lakes.

Patchy clouds

Weather satellite picture taken at 4 a.m. shows patches of shower-producing clouds and thunderstorms over the Rockies. Patchy clouds are also over the Plains, Florida and North Carolina.

Connecticut forecast

Central, Eastern Interior and Southwest Interior sunny today with highs 70 to 75. Winds light and variable. Clear and cool tonight with fog forming. Lows in the 40s. Light southwest wind. Sunny Wednesday with highs 75 to 80.

Coastal forecast

Long Island Sound to Watch Hill, R.I., and Montauk Point: Winds west 5 to 10 knots becoming south this afternoon and southwest tonight. Increasing to southwest 10 to 20 knots Wednesday afternoon. Seas 1 foot or less through tonight.

Across the nation

Much of the East had unusually low temperatures today and a storm threatened to dump snow on Western high country.

Elsewhere, Tropical Storm Danielle was building strength toward becoming a hurricane. A strong storm system that was moving into the northern Rockies pushed rain across much of western Montana. Wet snow was expected to develop at high elevations in Montana, northwest Wyoming and northern Utah.

PEOPLE

Current quotations

"Those people talking about human rights and all those things must be expelled from the country or locked up." — President Augusto Pinochet of Chile, in a crackdown after being slightly injured in an assassination attempt.

"Through several channels we've made our position clear — the Soviet Union is aware of how serious the consequences will be for our relations if Nick Daniloff is not set free." — President Reagan, referring to American journalist Nicholas Daniloff, who is accused of spying.

"U.S.-Soviet relations should not be held hostage to this case of Daniloff. If both sides make serious efforts, I think it would be possible to find a mutual solution to this question." — Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov, referring to American journalist Nicholas Daniloff, who is accused of spying.

Cisneros submits

Henry Cisneros, the mayor of San Antonio, Texas, took a drug test as part of his drive to have city employees submit to random checks for drug or alcohol abuse.

The results of Monday's test were not immediately available.

"The drug abuse problem is so dangerous to our society and has permeated so many levels of our institutions that those in positions of leadership should be willing to lead by example," Cisneros said.

Cisneros agreed to the test after officials with the San Antonio Police Officers Association said they favor random drug testing of officers.

"I am perfectly supportive," he said. "I think we need to work together with the police chief. We need to work out the details."

Change in clothes

Dawan McPeak watched her gown take the victory stroll down the Convention Hall runway at last year's Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City, N.J.

McPeak hopes her gown is just as lucky this year because she'll be wearing it.

McPeak, who turned 25 on Monday, is Miss New York, competing against 50 other representatives from every state and the District of Columbia in Saturday night's Miss America Pageant.

McPeak said she was competing in the pageant in Texas last year when officials of the Miss Mississippi contest saw her wearing a white gown with fox fur on the shoulders.

After the pageant, in which she was fourth runner-up, Miss Mississippi asked her if their state queen, Susan Akin could wear the gown here. Akin, of Meridian, Miss., went on to become Miss America 1986.

"I had another white gown this year. I think it's even prettier," said McPeak.

Martina aspires higher

The "Aspire Higher" campaign to promote women's sports has gotten a big boost from U.S. Open champion Martina Navratilova.

Navratilova on Monday donated $150,000 to the Women's Sports Foundation's campaign and issued a challenge to other athletes to donate 1 percent of their annual earnings.

Immediately accepting the challenge were Navratilova's doubles partner, Pam Shriver and professional golfer Hollis Stacy, Amy Alcott, Pat Bradley and Patty Sheehan.

The campaign is a two-year fund-raising and public relations effort to raise at least $3 million for the national programs and services of the Foundation, said executive director Deborah Anderson.

Dr. Anthony Geroulis' reunion asked each other "What's new?" they found the answer staring them in the face.

New noses, new figures and newly polished egos were the main topics of conversation as about 150 of Geroulis' patients gathered Monday night at his office to thank their plastic surgeon.

"To see everybody looking so good and feeling so good about themselves, it's almost like utopia," said Rich Kulisek, who had his nose straightened.

Others boasted larger breasts, flatter tummies, slimmer thighs and lighter facial skin as testaments to the cosmetic surgeon's work.

Geroulis, 37, said he and his staff at the North Shore Center for Cosmetic Surgery came up with the party idea to give his patients an opportunity to meet and share their experiences.

"Many of them have seen each other in the waiting room or passed each other with bandages on or with casts on their noses, but you don't really talk to people in a waiting room," he said.

Geroulis said nasal surgery is the most popular cosmetic procedure, followed by the surgical removal of fat. Eighty-five percent of his patients are women, he said, but all his patients just want to look as good as they feel.

Kulisek, 30, of the Chicago suburb of Lombard said the party guests made a good-looking group, but he laughed off the label "beautiful people."

"We're not a bunch of actors and actresses," he said. "We're just normal people. But because we feel so much better, we look better."

The Spoils of War

California became a state 136 years ago today. Soon after the Mexican War, President Zachary Taylor asked Captain William Sherman to explore California and the other newly acquired lands of the Southwest.

Sherman spent two years in the arid, cactus-ridden lands of California, Arizona and New Mexico. He then told the President to go to war all over again with Mexico. Surprised, Taylor asked why. Sherman replied, "To make 'em take the darn country back."

DO YOU KNOW — Who is the current governor of California?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Nelson A. Rockefeller was Vice President under Gerald Ford.

Panel to monitor family life courses

By John Mitchell
 Herald Reporter

The formation of an advisory committee that will review changes in family life courses recommended by teachers was approved Monday by the Manchester Board of Education.

Members of the committee — an extension of an existing group which recently completed a year-long review of the school system's family-life courses — will serve one-year terms. School Superintendent James P. Kennedy said.

Allan B. Chesterton, director of curriculum and instruction for the town public schools, will serve as chairman of the eight-member committee and will vote only when the needs to be broken, under the proposal endorsed by the board. The committee will be composed year had 13 members.

The advisory committee that reviewed the courses earlier in the

At the end of the year-long review, the ad-hoc committee endorsed most of the family-life programs used in kindergarten through grade 12. The major course the group found fault with was "Focus on Wellness," an eighth-grade course that dealt with such issues as suicide, child abuse and divorce. Although some of the committee members recommended withdrawal of a section of the course after the review, the majority approved retaining it.

The advisory group, Chesterton has said, will meet only when there is an aspect of curriculum to be discussed.

In other business at its meeting Monday night, the Board of Education approved a grant of $1,330 to fund 11 weeks of training for children in the Manchester Public Schools. Kennedy said the program for the visually impaired has increased in funding more than any other program in the school system, "an indication of excellent support by the state of Connecticut."

MMH seeks kids for cardiac study

Children are needed for a study being undertaken by the cardiac rehabilitation program at Manchester Memorial Hospital, the hospital said this week.

The children of parents who have developed heart disease before age 30 are the focus of the hospital's three-year study.

Doctors have said there is growing evidence that coronary disease begins early in life, and that countries with increased risk factors for heart disease in adults show increased frequency of the same risk factors in children. The children of parents with coronary artery problems show the risk factors at an earlier age.

The program, through evaluation and consultation, will seek to prove whether early intervention can reduce the chance of risk factors being carried into adulthood.

Any parent who has had cardiac trouble before age 50 and is interested in having a child between 12 and 18 participate in the program should call 666-1222, extension 2168.

School population posts a gain

School enrollment figures this year represent the first time in at least 10 years that the population has risen, the school superintendent said Monday.

As of Sept. 8, there were 7,178 students attending classes in the Manchester public schools. The preliminary figures show that exactly 100 more students are attending classes than last year.

School Superintendent James P. Kennedy said.

The population enrollment report, according to Kennedy, includes Head Start students and those at the Regional Occupational Training Center.

The number is 122 above the projected Oct. 1 estimate, according to Kennedy, who predicted about 30 more students would enter the system by that date.

Town Director Stephen T. Penny and two administrative officials from Manchester will be panelists for the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities holds its 20th Anniversary Convention in New Haven Sept. 16.

Penny, the Democratic majority leader on the Board of Directors, will be a member of a panel on ethics in municipal government. Ronald Kraatz, town health director, and Ellen Jones, director of social services, will be members of a panel on innovative programs in Connecticut human services.

Jones said she will report on Manchester's conservator program, under which the town provides a public conservator who supervises the affairs of people who are deemed unable to do so themselves by the Probate Court.

Manchester was the first town to have such a conservator on staff, Jones said.

Kraatz will report on the operation of the town's Mental Health Team, Jones said. The team, formed by the Manchester Community Services Council in 1980, coordinates the work of a variety of social services agencies. An employee of the council works under Kraatz's supervision in the coordination effort.

Jones said the team, made up of town social services personnel and representatives of the social service agencies, coordinates mental health treatment both generally and in specific cases.

Penny said that while he has not prepared his material yet, he assumes emphasis will be on ethics in municipal government and on the work of the Ethics Commission, an advisory body.

Other members of his panel are Robert Franklin of Manchester, retiring president of the Connecticut Public Expenditures Council, and Carol Lewis, an associate professor of political science at the University of Connecticut.

Town Director Stephen T. Cassano is first vice president of the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities and will be at the Sept. 16 convention as well.

Cassano will also attend the annual convention of the National League of Cities Nov. 29 to Dec. 3 in San Antonio, Texas. He is second vice president of the league's Small Cities Task Force and will be elected first vice president at the San Antonio conference.

Cassano is also a member of the league's steering committee on Energy and Environment, which will report on the league's energy policy. Cassano said the committee held its latest meeting last week at Charleston, S.C.

By John F. Kirch
 Herald Reporter

A proposed change in the Manchester zoning regulations that could mean more commercial and industrial development in the North End was put on hold Monday night by the Planning and Zoning Commission.

The change is being sought by one of the developers of the Mall at Buckland Hills, which is planned on 138 acres in the Interstate 84 corridor. If the developer's proposal were adopted, it would amend the regulations dealing with the town's intensive Urban Development zone, the highest-density classification on the books.

Currently, the regulations specify how much commercial, industrial and residential development can take place in the zone. If the change is approved, developers will be able to decide the mix themselves.

New York developer John Figuerra, one of the mall developers, is seeking the rezoning. In two other applications, he is also seeking a rezoning of nearly 115 acres near the mall site from Rural Residence — the lowest-density zone in town — to CUD.

The commission, which met Monday in Lincoln Center, held a public hearing on each of the proposals until its Sept. 22 meeting. In proposing the CUD rezoning, Figuerra is seeking to increase the amount of commercial and industrial development allowed in the zone. As it stands, 70 percent of the construction in a CUD area must be residential, while 30 percent can be commercial.

Figuerra is proposing to eliminate the required ratio and allow the developer and town to be "more flexible" in the planning stages of CUD construction. The proposed amendment would permit a long list of uses in the CUD zone, including retail stores, office buildings, restaurants, hotels, theaters, churches and multi-family housing — many of which are allowed under the current regulations.

Figuerra's proposal does not mention single-family houses, which are allowed under the current CUD classification.

Planning Director Mark Pellegrini supported the change, saying it points the town in the direction of a more diverse economy.

In its new Comprehensive Plan for the town, which is being updated this month, the town has designated the I-84 corridor as a special mixed-use district, calling for the type of development Figuerra's amendment would encourage.

Figuerra's partnership, Manchester Terrace Condominiums, has teamed up with the Homart Development Corp. of Chicago, a subsidiary of Sears, Roebuck and Co., in planning the 750,000-square-foot Buckland Hills mall. The group has worked closely with the town on the proposed rezoning, Pellegrini said.

"Hopefully this will work out to everyone's benefit, especially the town's," Pellegrini said during an interview before Monday's meeting.

Architect Alan Lamson, who represented Figuerra during the three public hearings Monday, said the Capitol Region Council of Governments reviewed the change before it was approved. "The question is not whether this site will be developed, but when and how," said Tolland attorney Peter Ference, who represented the developers.

Condos opposed

The Planning and Zoning Commission postponed action on a proposal for construction of 96 condominiums on Oakland Street after five residents voiced opposition to the project during a public hearing Monday night.

Visions Unlimited Inc. of Tolland has proposed to build the condominiums in 12 buildings at 205 Oakland Street during the hearing. The plan calls for a rezoning of the land to be from residential to CUD.

The 14.8-acre site is currently zoned Residence A and Industrial. Visions Unlimited wants that changed to Planned Residence Development, which allows up to 10 housing units an acre.

Monday marked the second time the developers presented their plans to the commission. A public hearing on the proposal in July was nullified after an error was detected in the notice the town is required to publish in local newspapers announcing the rezoning.

It also marked the second time residents from the area said they opposed the rezoning because of congestion on the building's local surrounding roads was sufficient reason for the PZC to reject the condominiums.

"We feel that Oakland Street is at traffic capacity," said Karen Fallon, president of the 14-member residents' association at the Oakland Terrace Condominium, which is located across the street from the site on which Visions Unlimited has proposed to build the project. "As residents there, we do have a problem ... getting out, turning left and right."

But traffic experts hired by the developers said the project would not worsen conditions on the road. They said that the site would generate less traffic as a residential zone than as an industrial one.

The rezoning on the parcel is zoned for industrial use.

"The question is not whether this site will be developed, but when and how," said Tolland attorney Peter Ference, who represented the developers.

Parker Street housing wins zoning approval

The Planning and Zoning Commission gave New York developer Edward Lapidus the nod Monday night to build 136 units of multi-family housing off of Parker Street.

Under the plan approved by the commission, PZC, Lapidus will build the condominiums in 28 buildings in 16 acres just south of the Stony Brook subdivision, which contains single-family housing.

The condominiums will range from 800 to 1,250 square feet in size. A recreational area with two basketball courts will be located to the north.

The land is zoned Residence M, a classification no longer in the

Bolton Fire Department prepares for move to new home

By George Lovins
 Herald Reporter

BOLTON — With the town's new station nearly finished, the fire department is ready to begin moving any day now, Capt. Raymond Soma told members of the Public Buildings Commission Monday.

Soma said it should take a couple of days to move the 35-member department's five trucks, firefighting gear and furniture into the new building. Before the move gets under way, though, the town must issue a certificate of occupancy for the structure at the corner of Bolton Center and Notch roads.

The PBC Monday fulfilled one of the requirements for the certificate by approving a certificate of substantial completion for the building. That document, drawn up by project architect Alan Wiedie, will take effect Sept. 17 if most of the remaining work is finished.

Wiedie said the firehouse will be complete when a new backup generator is installed, the building's boiler is hooked up and operating, and some other minor items are finished. All this should be done by Sept. 28, when a formal dedication ceremony is scheduled, he told the PBC at Monday's meeting in the Community Hall.

when the firehouse is completely finished, he said.

The Sept. 28 dedication ceremony is scheduled to begin at 3 p.m. An open house is set for the same day from 2 to 7 p.m.

In a related matter, the PBC Monday accepted a bid from John L. Zatoski of Bolton to install a new communications system at the firehouse. Zatoski's bid of $6,855 was the lowest of two received.

The other bid was from Marcus Communications of Manchester, which offered to put in the same Midlands radio equipment for $8,657. The commission selected Zatoski's bid because it was the lowest and also because Zatoski — a member of the fire department and part-time radio repairman who lives on School Road — has serviced the department's equipment for the last few years.

The bid now goes to the Board of Selectmen for consideration.

Sad drama at home in Connecticut

In New York City, there are countless welfare hotels where children compete with drug addicts, rats and roaches for a place to play. The hotels are "emergency housing," defensive officials are quick to say, and are far from permanent shelter for the people who are forced to call them home because there's no other place to live.

Given its prosperous economy, Connecticut's story should be different.

But it isn't. And in some instances things are even worse, since the state allows its homeless people to be kicked out into the street after brief stays in temporary housing.

This week, advocacy groups decided to dramatize the plight of those who can't find a place to live by placing a tent city on the New Haven Green.

It was clear from comments Sunday that not every inhabitant was happy to be there. "I hate it," said a woman who had just been told to move on after two weeks in a hotel. "My son won't even come because he's so embarrassed..." Look at all these people who don't even belong here looking at us like we're derelicts.

Unfortunately, the drama was necessary, sad as it may be.

Connecticut is in the midst of an election campaign in which phantom tax cuts and hollow promises about hiring more police officers, stopping drug abuse or making abortion illegal are being carried the day. Yet the real and growing problem of homelessness seems invisible to the candidates and to ordinary citizens alike.

Clearly, the time has come for a comprehensive attempt to address the state's housing crisis.

In a week or less, the tent city in New Haven is scheduled to disappear, but the people staying in the tents will not. They'll probably just fade back into the streets and out of the public eye.

That should not be allowed to happen. Promises, task forces and approaches of the past aside, incumbent Gov. William O'Neill and his Republican challenger should be pressed to address the issue in the current campaign.

Already, indifference has persisted for far too long. If there's any doubt, just head for New Haven and join the rest of the gawkers who have jobs, a place to stay and better things to do.

Don't ignore primary today

As state Republicans prepared to vote in today's three-way gubernatorial primary, the most optimistic observers were hoping for a turnout of around 30 percent.

If that figure is not exceeded, it will be a pretty sad commentary on the party and on the political process in general.

Republicans in Manchester and other Connecticut towns, who are notorious for ignoring opportunities to make their opinions felt at the polls, should prove the observers wrong between noon and 8 p.m. today.

Whether their candidate is insurance broker Richard Bozuto, state Rep. Julie Belaga or Naugatuck pediatrician Gerald Labriola, the Republicans should get out and go to the polls. Otherwise, the victor tonight won't have much to crow about.

WHILE THE AUTHORITIES from both nations sort out what may or may not have happened, Yankets sitting at home with their newspapers might want to ponder some of the implications of this incident, or even ask their congressmen to pose some questions to the administration.

For instance, are we sending armed American lawmen into Mexico without telling the authorities there? If we are, it is a flat-out violation of Mexican sovereignty. With or without guns, the administration in Washington has said that they've got DEA agents south of the border. What are they doing there? Trying to enforce American law on Mexican soil? That's illegal. Trying to enforce Mexican law on Mexican soil with American drug cops? That's illegal too. Trying to gather information on drug deals in order to arrest people in the United States? That's legal and highly desirable, but they've got to learn to do it without sidearms and without violating Mexican law and custom.

Even putting the best interpretation on what Mr. Cortez was doing slinking around Jalisco State, it would appear that the publicity storm blown up in Washington over the incident goes to the administration's conviction that the solution to America's drug problem is to be found in Mexico. We've fallen into the habit of blaming foreigners for our drug addiction.

Beer barons use trickery to sneak by

WASHINGTON — The rule among Capitol Hill lobbyists is this: If at first you don't succeed, try something really bizarre.

The nation's beer wholesalers failed to get a Senate vote on legislation to exempt them from antitrust laws — thanks to opponents' threat of a filibuster and our embarrassing disclosure that the beer barons had raised $25,000 for Majority Leader Robert Dole. R-Kan., at a bash in February. So their lobbyists tried a new tack: They got a friendly member of the Senate to add their amendment to an appropriations bill.

What makes this peculiar is that it was the Treasury's appropriations bill. And while the senators behind the beer bill note that the Treasury Department does include the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, BATF would have nothing to do with enforcement of the antitrust amendment. That chore would be handled by the Justice Department, like all other antitrust actions.

But it seemed like a good idea at the time to the beer lobbyists. The plan was perfected in "strict confidence," according to a memo to the National Beer Wholesalers Association sent to distributors nationwide.

THE MEMO, dated Aug. 15, was obtained by our associate Stewart Harris. It describes proudly the R-S.D. chairman of the appropriations subcommittee that oversees the Treasury. "Wholesalers in South Dakota were instrumental in obtaining Sen. Abdor's agreement" to tack the legislation onto the Treasury bill, the memo explained.

With Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., a subcommittee member who also happened to have introduced the original beer bill, Abdor was able to ramrod the amendment through the subcommittee. Caught off guard, the beer bill's opponents had little time to challenge it when it wound up before the Appropriations Committee in its new form as a Treasury amendment. Meanwhile, according to the industry memo, beer wholesalers mounted a nationwide telephone campaign to persuade members of the full committee, while the lobbyists did their own number in person.

The Treasury bill passed the Appropriations Committee with the beer language intact. "This entire process once again demonstrated the effectiveness and viability of the National Beer Wholesalers Association's greatest asset, its grassroots network... you, the beer wholesaler," gushed the memo. "It was a damn slick maneuver," conceded one opponent.

BUT THE BEER LOBBYISTS may have slipped on their own side. The opposition has now been alerted. When the Senate takes up the Treasury bill sometime after it returns from summer vacation today, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, has threatened "extended debate" if the beer rider isn't deleted — no idle threat coming from the Senate's current filibuster king.

Even more formidable is the opposition of Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., chairman of the Judiciary Committee. In addition to his distaste for any industry's exemption from antitrust laws, Thurmond complained that the beer legislation had no business in an appropriations bill.

"The Treasury Department appropriations bill, which contains funding for many important agencies and functions, should not be hopelessly tied up," he explained. But time is on the side of the beer Congress. In the crush of last-minute activity as Congress rushes to adjourn for the fall political campaigns, Senate leaders may feel pressured to pass the Treasury appropriations bill by a continuing resolution. This would leave the language intact and short-circuit any chance for floor debate.

Twenty-one Navy employees almost beat the rapper in a 6-year-old case involving alleged tips to hotel maids in Philadelphia. One of the Navy's big butter-and-egg men claimed to have tipped maids $70 during the group's 19-day stay, but Navy investigators said the maids told them they had actually been stiffed. That employee was ordered to pay the Navy the entire cost of his trip: $1,401. The other employees were also charged with claiming phony tip reimbursements. But the comptroller general has now overturned the Navy's decision and ordered the employees to pay their trip expenses.

IN SHORT, A STABLE, nationwide distribution system of job letters, wholesalers and retail outlets exists for illegal drugs just as it does for milk, eggs and butter. That also means tens of thousands of retail drug merchants doing business at the same time and in the same place every day. This kind of distribution system depends on regularity and dependability. Whether it's milk and yogurt or crack and grass, the customers must know where and when to buy.

So I ask you. Is it possible that such a system could function without the police knowing who the hows, the whens and wheres? Could Albertsons, IGA, Safeway or A&P operate without official knowledge? The obvious inference is that we don't have to look to Mexico to suspect massive and pervasive official corruption. Our problems are of our own making and so also will be their solution.

Firefighters give service to town

To the Editor:

After reading the article in last Tuesday's Manchester Herald about the lumber company fire having about 125 firefighters involved, and of that amount 60 were volunteers from the Eighth District Fire Department, I am wondering why we are trying to destroy the free service they offer our town.

Yes, we also have mutual aid from surrounding towns but it takes a longer time for them to get to the scene of a fire.

We have a shortage of paid firemen in town, and our budget doesn't allow funding for more help.

Fire protection is badly needed in the southeastern section of town, so let's concentrate on giving Manchester more, rather than taking away what we now have.

America's drug problem begins and ends at home

We're mad at the Mexicans again. The Justice Department in Washington and the American Drug Enforcement Administration agency, was picked up by the Jalisco State Police in Guadalajara, taken off and "tortured."

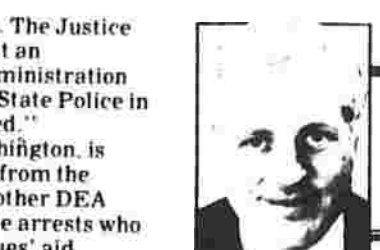

The incident, as explained in Washington, is anything but clear. It would appear the Gringo version that there were two other DEA agents across the street watching the arrests who made no effort to go to their colleagues' aid because they didn't want to blow his cover, as they were to say in this world of violent melodramatics.

The Mexican account of what happened to DEA agent Victor Cortez Jr. is that he and a Mexican national had drawn the suspicion of neighbors on themselves by staking out a house in Guadalajara several days. Evidently the American and this second man, an "informant," were so conspicuous that the folks next door called the police who, according to the Mexican government's version, found that Cortez was carrying a gun but no identification.

WHILE THE AUTHORITIES from both nations sort out what may or may not have happened, Yankets sitting at home with their newspapers might want to ponder some of the implications of this incident, or even ask their congressmen to pose some questions to the administration.

For instance, are we sending armed American lawmen into Mexico without telling the authorities there? If we are, it is a flat-out violation of Mexican sovereignty. We've fallen into the habit of blaming foreigners for our drug addiction.

several decades this and previous administrations have blamed the Turks, the Thais, the Laotians, the Chinese and the French (they're still playing "The French Connection" on TV) for the easy availability of drugs in the United States.

Drugs may be grown and manufactured in any and all of these places, but it's not the duty of foreign governments to enforce our laws and maintain the integrity of our borders. That's our job. However, it's easier for baffled and ineffectual politicians to point the finger at foreigners and say it's their fault. It's doubly easy because everybody knows — doesn't everybody? — that foreigners are corrupt and foreign government officials are getting rich off the drug trade. And maybe they are. Nevertheless, we do ourselves a favor if we looked around at the daily patterns of trade in illegal substances here in our own country. It is scarcely an exaggeration to observe that wherever you can buy an automobile you can buy cocaine. Not in the same stores, obviously, but in the same vicinity.

IN SHORT, A STABLE, nationwide distribution system of job letters, wholesalers and retail outlets exists for illegal drugs just as it does for milk, eggs and butter. Whether it's milk and yogurt or crack and grass, the customers must know where and when to buy.

So I ask you. Is it possible that such a system could function without the police knowing who the hows, the whens and wheres? Could Albertsons, IGA, Safeway or A&P operate without official knowledge? The obvious inference is that we don't have to look to Mexico to suspect massive and pervasive official corruption. Our problems are of our own making and so also will be their solution.

Autopsy set for body found in river

FARMINGTON — An autopsy was scheduled for today on a skeleton remains that authorities believe to be those of a teen-ager who is believed to have drowned during a fishing trip on the Connecticut River last March.

The body of 14-year-old Stephen Curley was never recovered when he fell from a 12-foot motor boat as it sank in Enfield near the Suffield border on March 29, just seconds after it was launched.

Officials at the chief state medical examiner's office said a preliminary investigation shows a body found Sunday along the east bank of the river in South Windsor is probably that of a teen-age male.

Enfield Deputy Police Chief Herbert Foy said Curley was wearing a hooded sweatshirt when the motor boat sank. There was a hooded sweatshirt with the words "Built like a Mack Truck" on the remains being examined today.

South Windsor Police Chief William Ryan said the body will have to be identified through dental records.

Mother of marine questions death

NAUGATUCK — The mother of a Marine from Naugatuck who collapsed and died on an obstacle course at Fort Devens in Massachusetts over the weekend says her son was supposed to be on a reduced exercise program.

Brian Stack, the mother of Pfc. David R. Stack, said Monday that her son collapsed three months ago during training at Camp Geiger in North Carolina. She said it was her understanding that, after the June collapse, her son went through a battery of tests and was placed on a reduced exercise program.

David wasn't supposed to be running, I didn't mind sharing him with the Marines. I never wanted them to take him away forever," she said.

According to the Marine Corps, the 19-year-old Stack collapsed and died Saturday evening of apparent cardiac arrest. It was his last weekend of reserve duty after six months of active service. A funeral was scheduled for today.

Sgt. Greg Berry, a Marine Corps spokesman, said Stack was not on limited duty — which is normally reserved for temporary injuries such as a sprained ankle or broken bone.

115th District candidate bows out

HARTFORD — As candidates jockeyed for position in today's primaries for 28 seats in the General Assembly, voters in West Haven's 115th District had a choice made for them by one office-seeker.

Democrat Thomas Gallagher Monday dropped out the three-way primary for the House seat from West Haven.

An affidavit issued Friday by the attorney general's office charged that 54 signatures on candidate Gallagher's petition for primary were improperly notarized and invalid.

Gallagher, in announcing his withdrawal, cited the high costs of the legal battle to stay in the race and his political future as reasons for dropping out.

In the past seven to 10 days, it has become apparent to me that certain technical and legal aspects of my primary petition might not withstand the review of our courts," Gallagher read from a prepared statement.

Gallagher was cleared of any wrongdoing, but "some of the allegations in the affidavit would be legally difficult to defend," said Steven G. Mednick, Gallagher's attorney.

Across the state, there are 24 state House primaries and four for seats in the state Senate.

UTC considers move to suburbia

HARTFORD — United Technologies Corp. officials are studying the feasibility of moving their corporate offices to a suburban location, a company spokesman said Monday.

"Our space needs have been increasing over the past few years," said UTC spokesman Franklin J. Parisi. "We are studying a lot of different options. We are looking at anything that makes sense."

The company now occupies all or part of nine floors in the Gold Building in Hartford, in addition to other offices in Hartford and East Hartford, and offices in Farmington for the Hamilton Standard and Oils elevator divisions.

Parisi said the company has received a number of proposals from developers, builders and real estate managers about the feasibility of moving UTC's corporate headquarters.

Parisi said company officials were not ready to discuss specifics, such as when the move might take place or where the company might move.

Hijacked jet's co-pilot back home

THOMPSON — After a long, dangerous trip that saw his jet hijacked in Pakistan, Conway Dodge returned home tired and unwilling to talk about his experience.

"I'm very tired. But I do want to take a minute just to come out here to say hello to you folks and express my appreciation for your concern for me and my family," Conway Dodge said Monday night to reporters waiting outside his home in this small, northeastern Connecticut town.

Dodge is the co-pilot of Pan Am Flight 73, which was hijacked Friday in Karachi, Pakistan. The hijacking ended in a burst of gunfire and grenades that left 18 people dead and another 127 wounded.

circumstances of the nature. This insured the aircraft could not be operated."

But some pilots said they would have stayed with the aircraft.

Mrs. Dodge complained she had been harassed by television and newspaper reporters since the hijacking. The reporters, she said, have camped out on her lawn, flooded her house with lights until 11:30 p.m. landed helicopters on her back yard and on the campus of nearby Marianopolis School.

She said she especially resented the reporters' questioning her children.

Dodge has been flying for Pan Am for two decades. He moved in 1971 to Thompson, a rural town of about 8,300 that is popular with airline pilots because of its proximity to airports in Hartford, Providence, R.I., and Boston.

Each state group makes its compromise, the results will be telephoned to the center, compared, and presented Thursday to the chairman of the House and Senate budget committees and to an administration representative.

A group of professional lobbyists will play the game Wednesday night in Washington. Their decision won't count toward the national figures — just as the District of Columbia lacks a vote in Congress — but the center will compare how establishment Washington fares against the more grass-roots efforts.

Congress is groping for ways to close the budget gap. Fiscal 1987 begins Oct. 1, but the lawmakers have yet to pass any of the 13 annual spending bills.

THE GAME INCLUDES 41 options for cutting spending or increasing taxes to close the gap. For example, trimming Reagan's "Star Wars" space-based defense program would save $4.8 billion, while ending mass transit and highway aid would cut another $5.6 billion. Eliminating the federal tax deduction for local property taxes would bring $19.1 billion into the Treasury.

FREE MONEY SEMINAR

Critics charge administration too soft on highway safety

By H. Josef Hebert
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Twenty years ago the federal government began regulating auto safety, and as cars became safer the number of people killed on the nation's highways each year dropped dramatically. Yet as the government begins its third decade of setting auto safety standards, critics charge that under the Reagan administration it also is backing away from making cars as safe as they could be. Federal highway safety officials dispute contentions from some safety advocates, including consumer activist Ralph Nader and many of his disciples, that the government today is making life easier for automakers at the expense of safety. The Reagan administration points to the steady decline in the highway fatality rate through the Reagan years. Those are "the bottom line numbers," insists Diane Steed, head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, the government's principal auto safety agency. The head of the same agency during the Carter administration in the late 1970s is among the current administration's sharpest critics.

"Since Ronald Reagan took office, the agency's motor vehicle standard setting activities have virtually stopped," complained Joan Claybrook of Public Citizen, a lobbying group often at odds with government policy. She accused the Reagan administration of "forfeiting critical opportunities" to improve car safety standards. Federal auto safety regulation dates back to Sept. 9, 1966, when President Lyndon B. Johnson signed two laws that ushered in scores of other highway regulations over the ensuing years. They cleared the way, for example, for the government to tell automakers how to make windshields, what safety belts they should put into cars and how much of an impact a car should withstand to protect its occupants. At a news conference Monday, the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety pointed to these regulations and standards — as well as the 55 mph speed limit — as the prime reason for the nation's highway death toll dropping during the last two decades. Here are the cold statistics. There were 52,641 people killed in highway accidents in 1965, a rate of 5.72 fatalities for every 100 million vehicle miles traveled, according

Big doings at MMH

When Karen Newcomb delivered a 12-pound baby boy Friday morning at 10:11, she was as surprised as the doctor and the rest of the maternity staff at Manchester Memorial Hospital. "I was shocked. I didn't expect it to be that big," she said, adding that her obstetrician, Dr. Ilush Or, had predicted about two weeks ago that the baby would weigh at least nine pounds. Newcomb said she thought then that the baby would be no more than 10 pounds. Newcomb, 27, and her newborn son, Dana Martin Newcomb, became immediate celebrities on the maternity floor because of Dana's unusual size. Members of the nursing staff kept stopping to see "the lady who had the 12-pound baby," Newcomb said. "No one can remember a bigger baby," said Patricia Murdoch, clinic coordinator of the maternity staff, although she added that Manchester babies tend to be on the large side. Despite the baby's size, Newcomb said it wasn't a difficult birth. She was able to deliver Dana using natural childbirth with her husband, Bill Newcomb, present. When she first held Dana, Newcomb said, he did not look unusually large. But when she saw him next to the other babies, she said, "I knew he was a big baby." Big babies run in the Newcomb family. The Newcomb's first son, Trevor, now 2, weighed a hefty 9 pounds, 7 ounces at birth. Trevor's father, Bill, weighed about nine pounds at birth, Karen Newcomb said. The family lives on North Elm Street.

Karen Newcomb happily cuddles her new son, Dana Martin Newcomb, who weighed in at 12 pounds when he was born Friday morning at Manchester Memorial Hospital. Dana and his mother became immediate celebrities in the maternity wing, since none of the nursing staff could remember a bigger baby born at the hospital.

Rebels say volunteers armed by Nicaragua are in danger

By Carl Manning
The Associated Press

TEGUICIGALPA, Honduras — Nicaragua is luring weapons to foreign civilian volunteers, thereby converting them into potential targets for Contra rebels, the military commander of the largest rebel force says. "They are part of the enemy. We have warned them not to go into the war zones or carry weapons. We cannot be responsible," said Enrique Bermudez, one of seven directors of the Nicaraguan Democratic Force rebel group. "These people are at risk of being killed by our forces, especially if they are wearing uniforms, carrying weapons and riding in military vehicles," he said in a weekend interview.

Bermudez, leader of the U.S.-backed Contra group known as FDN from its Spanish-language initials, was referring to thousands of volunteers, mainly from Europe and the United States, who work in Nicaraguan building houses, health clinics and schools. He buttressed his charges by showing documents including gun permits he said were taken from three foreigners killed in a July 28 Contra attack on a government military installation near Zompopera in northern Nicaragua. Bermudez said the documents were taken from a slain Swiss national, a Frenchman and a West German. They included a Swiss passport, Sandinista gun permit, identification cards and a membership card for the Sandinista National Liberation Front.

fraud or neglect when he was arraigned Aug. 6. His case has been continued to Sept. 30 for pre-trial proceedings. Police alleged that Wilson circulated a petition sheet even though someone else had signed the form as official circulator. The incident occurred by mistake, police said, when one of the people Wilson approached for a signature accidentally signed where the circulator was supposed to. However, police said they lodged the charge because the mistake was not corrected. If convicted, Wilson could face a maximum penalty of a one-year prison term and a $300 fine. Tartaglia's case has been continued to Thursday. She was charged with falsely certifying that Wilson was the circulator of his petition — a felony that carries with it a maximum penalty of three years in prison and a $1,000 fine. She pleaded innocent on July 23.

They tried to focus not on each other, but on O'Neill, who has been in office for the past six years. Bozuto and Belaga have been classified as moderate-to-liberal Republicans. Labriola is more conservative. Also at the convention, the gubernatorial candidates made their choices known for their running mates and all three of those would-be lieutenant governors qualified for Tuesday's primary. Bozuto's choice was East Lyme First Selectman Dennis J. Murphy, who won the convention endorsement. Belaga selected West Hartford businessman E. Firehouse talks at a standstill

By George Lovyn
Herald Reporter

With both sides apparently unwilling to change their positions, talks between the Eighth Utilities District and the town of Manchester over sharing the controversial Buckland firehouse remain at a standstill. John D. LaBelle Jr., legal counsel for the Eighth District, said this morning the district has no plans to respond to letters from Town Manager Robert Weiss that were sent in early August. "Bob Weiss knows our position," LaBelle said. "We are negotiating team." "Nothing has changed," he said. Although Weiss has said the town has made its final offer, he said last month he was waiting for the district to reply to his letter. In an appeal to the town Board of Directors in hopes of reaching a sharing agreement. District leaders also urged that the district go ahead with efforts to build its own firehouse — which would be located two lots away from the town's station on Tolland Turnpike. Plans to build that station at a cost of over $400,000 were shelved in April when the town and the district agreed to consider sharing the existing Buckland station. The town built its Buckland firehouse in the mid-1970s when fire jurisdiction in the Buckland area was in dispute. The state Supreme Court eventually upheld the Eighth District's authority in Buckland, and the town's firehouse has not been able to serve all the area it was intended to protect.

Feast Fest II promises enough for all

By Nancy Pappas
Herald Reporter

Last year, as Mary Jane Viara of Manchester Seafood was preparing for the town's first Feast Fest, she ordered 10 dozen rolls in which to pile her restaurant's well-known lobster salad. She cut each roll in half because she estimated that she'd sell about 240 portions of her lobster roll during the two-day festival. So much for professional predictions. It took two hours, not two days, to go through those 240 portions. By the end of the Feast Fest, Viara had sold 10 times more lobster than she'd expected, along with huge quantities of clam chowder and mountains of clams on the half shell. It's a wiser Viara who's preparing for this year's Feast Fest, which opens Friday at 11 a.m. "Last year we had people spending their time running around from supermarket to supermarket, buying up every hot dog roll they could lay their hands on," Viara recalled last week. "We had to switch from our homemade rolls, but there was just no choice. Then when we were finally on top of the bun situation, we ran out of paper goods. We had to hit the Paperama for plates." Servers at the Hungry Tiger booth apologized because servings of the nutty butter ice-cream pie were rather soft. They explained that the guests were eating the pies as fast as they were being prepared; unfortunately, each pie should have served a half-day in the freezer before it was cut and served to the public. No one had anticipated how enormous the crowds would be for the first year of such an event. The sponsors, the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce and the Downtown Manchester Association, had hoped to attract a few thousand guests. Instead, an estimated 8,000 to 10,000 people visited the event — some of them returning several times. "We saw some people return in as many as four different outfits during the course of the weekend," said Bobbie Bagnany of the East of the River Tourism and Convention District. "That tells us that they liked it at lunch, so they were back for dinner. Maybe they came a few times without their children, and then they came back with their kids." THEY WOULD HAVE BEEN pleased to break even on the event, Bagnany said. Instead, they had

Just the facts on the Feast

Manchester's second Feast Fest will be open Friday from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m., Saturday from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 6 p.m. Dishes cost a maximum of $3; the average price is $1.50 per serving. Tickets for the foods will be sold at Feast Fest. They are also available now, at all banks on Main Street, for those who would prefer not to stand in lines on the weekend of the festival. 50th bash takes place underwater

Janet and Robert Smith, former Manchester residents, celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary in St. Croix. They took 15 members of their family along.

On their 50th anniversary, Janet and Robert Smith were underwaternauts in the Caribbean, looking at fifteen members of their family, including children, spouses and grandchildren, were underwaternaut with them. A year of planning was required for the Smiths to arrange this party. People scattered over the country had to take coinciding vacations. But the Bureaucratic Hotel in St. Croix in the Virgin Islands, where they have spent vacations before, seemed the perfect place to celebrate. The Smiths were wed on Aug. 28, 1936, and spent their married life in Manchester, until three years ago when they moved into Bushy in Hartford. Robert Smith still commutes to Robert on the day itself all 17 persons boarded a Catamaran, the Sea Rover, and sailed to Buck Island, the first underwater national park of the United States. Putting on snorkels, they expected exhibits that were labeled as carefully as those in the Wadsworth Athenaeum, where Janet Smith does volunteer work. THE STORY BEGAN when Janet Gray Simon, daughter of Scott A. Simon who established and later owned the Carlyle Johnson Machine Co., married her Manchester High School classmate, Robert Hyde Smith, son of Robert J. Smith, who served for a time as state welfare commissioner. The Rev. James Stuart Neill performed the ceremony at St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Manchester. They moved into a house on Henry Street built by the bridegroom's father as part of a development known then as Elizabeth Park, which seems to have lost its identity in the intervening years. "It was a model home that had been decorated by Watkins Bros.," says Janet Smith. "James Pasco had done it, and Swedish modern was the style that year, so that was it. But I had been an art history major and I had my own ideas on decorating, and well, I gradually changed it." They gradually added rooms, and even with five children, the Henry Street house served until they moved into 131 Hartford Road, the former home of Charles Cheney Now who are apartment dwellers whose apartment overlooks the Wadsworth Athenaeum. ALTHOUGH ALL children grew up in Manchester, they had to gather from distant parts. Walker big headache to Giants in debut

By Denne H. Freeman
The Associated Press

IRVING, Texas — If his NFL debut is any indication, Herschel Walker is going to cause a lot of headaches for opposing defenses.

"I think I contributed," Walker said in a classic underatement after scoring two touchdowns, including the game-winner with 1:16 left Monday night in the Dallas Cowboys' 31-28 victory over the New York Giants.

Walker, one of the USFL's brightest stars with the New Jersey Generals, convinced even the grumbling Tony Dorsett he was worth $1 million a year in his NFL regular season debut.

Ironically, it was Dorsett's sprained ankle in the first half that gave Walker his chance at tailback.

"When I went in I was really scared at first about remembering all the plays," said Walker. "I said 'Please Lord, let me remember the plays.'"

Walker scored on a one-yard plunge in which he looked like he jumped off a three-meter diving board. He set up another score with a 10-yard run on a reverse.

Then he dashed 18 yards up the middle on a third-down draw play off the spread formation to the game-winner.

Dorsett, who had objected to Walker's huge five-year guarantee salary and demanded a trade, was one of the first Cowboys to shake his hand after the game was over.

"Tony told me 'congratulations,'" Walker said. "He's helped me a lot."

Walker's worksheet read 10 carries for 64 yards, as well as 24 receptions for another 32 yards. "I feel at home now," Walker said.

Dorsett, who said he will be able to play Sunday against Detroit, said "Herschel played extremely well. He had the opportunity to play and took advantage of it."

Dorsett scored on a 36-yard screen pass from Danny White before his ankle stiffened up on him.

Walker, who also lined up as a flanker, said the Giants didn't know where he was going to line up.

"I don't think they (the Giants) knew what to expect," he said.

Walker said he had already discovered a big difference between the USFL and the NFL — linebackers.

"Football is football, but the linebackers on the Giants are the best I ever saw," Walker said.

Walker wasn't perfect. In fact, he stood a chance to be the goat of the game in the third period.

Linebacker Harry Carson recovered Walker's fumble at the Dallas 14 and Joe Morris, who agreed to a new four-year, $2.2 million contract just hours before the game, scored from two yards out to give the Giants a 21-17 lead.

"I don't fumble that much," Walker said. "I just need to take a few more snaps. Once you start thinking about mistakes you can't play."

The Cowboys and Giants then traded touchdowns. Thornton Chandler caught a 1-yard scoring tip from White, while Carson intercepted Dallas' fourth quarter pass to put Dallas back in front. New York's Bobby Johnson made a spectacular 44-yard interception with 5:24 to go to put the Giants back on top, 28-24.

But after the Giants' go-ahead score, Dallas charged 72 yards in six plays with Walker catching a 24-yard pass on the game-winning drive. A 35-yard pass from White to Tony Hill set up Walker's score.

A desperation pass by Phil Simms at the final gun was batted down in the Dallas end zone by rookie Cornell Gowdy.

Walker even made Dallas Coach Tom Landry smile.

"Herschel played great, he's a football player that's all," said Landry. "It's exciting to watch him work. We might use Herschel more. He has so much power."

Landry said Walker wouldn't have been at tailback if Dorsett hadn't hurt his ankle in the first half.

"We (Walker) wouldn't have played tailback in the game unless Dorsett was hurt," Landry said. "Tony showed great courage."

"Herschel was working at tailback in case an injury happened. He was ready as you saw."

Simms, who hit 22 of 45 passes for 300 yards and two touchdowns, summed up the Giants' impressions of Walker: "I hate him!"

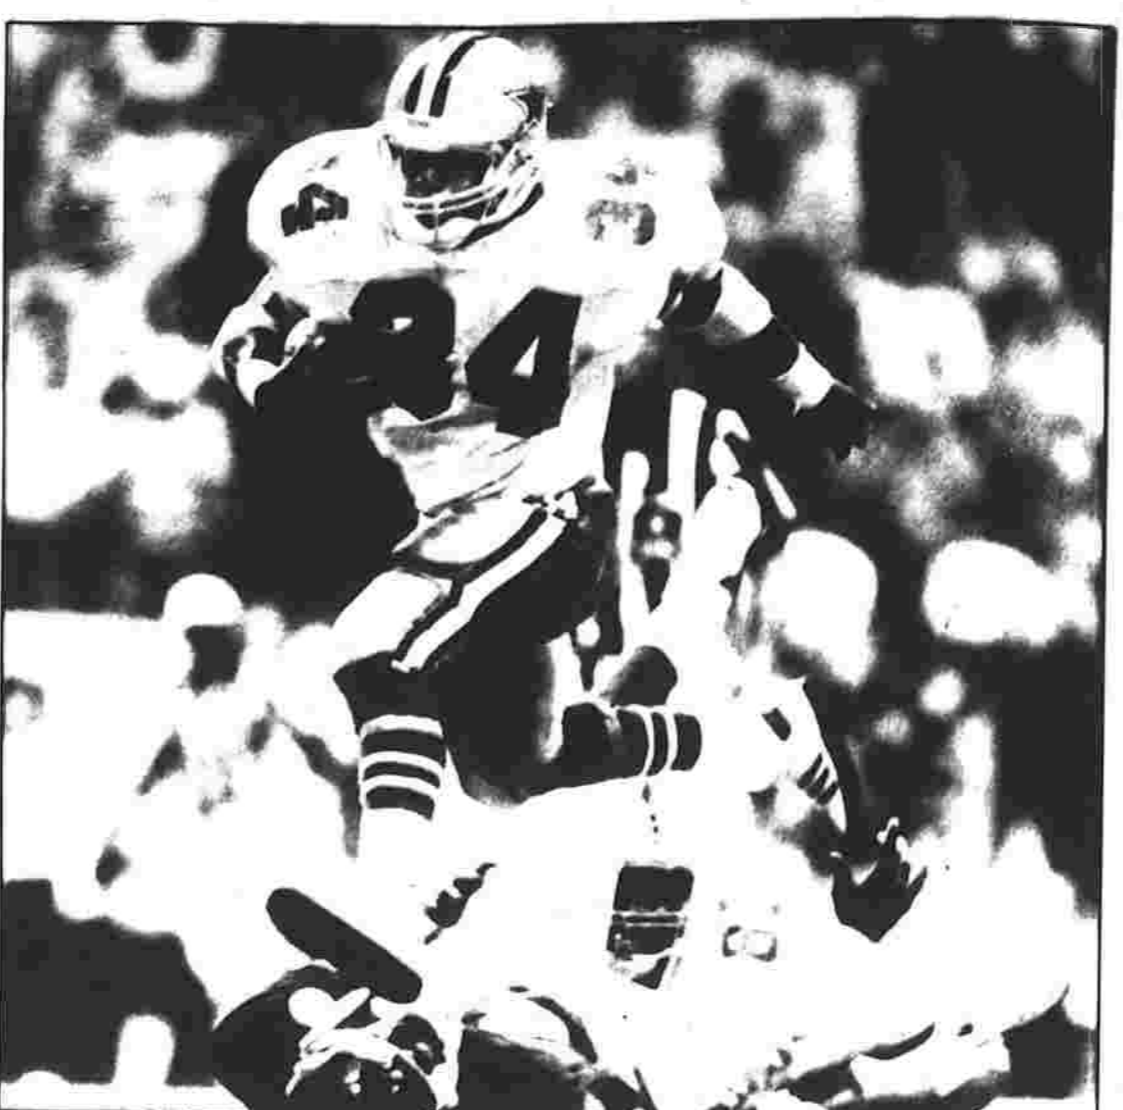

Giants Coach Bill Parcells said "It was another one of those guys we've been having with the Cowboys. Walker did very well for the first time he's strong. He broke a lot of tackles."

It was Dallas' 21st opening victory in the last 22 years and upped their all-time record against the Giants to 23-13.

This was all very exciting," said Walker, a Heisman Trophy winner at Georgia, who has the professional rushing record at 2,411 yards in one year with the Generals in 1985.

After a scoreless first period, the Cowboys built a 14-0 lead on Dorsett's touchdown and Walker's one-yard run following a Simms fumble.

Simms hit Johnson and Stacy Robinson with singles and a double to tie it 14-14, but Dallas took a 17-14 halftime lead on Rafael Septien's 35-yard field goal as time expired.

Red Sox pad AL East lead

By Gordon Beard
The Associated Press

BALTIMORE — The Boston Red Sox blew numerous scoring opportunities, but they didn't mull a chance to pad their expanding lead over the East.

After stranding 12 runners, seven of them in scoring position, the Red Sox exploded for six runs in the 11th inning and beat the Baltimore Orioles 9-3 Monday night in one of two AL games.

In the other, Kansas City beat Minnesota 5-0.

The victory was Boston's ninth in a row, its longest streak since 1980, and gave the Red Sox a seven-game lead over the idle second-place Toronto Blue Jays with 25 games remaining.

It was the Orioles' 24th defeat in 31 games since they pulled to within 2 1/2 games of Boston on Sept. 2 in the 11th inning and manager Earl Weaver revealed he would not be returning for the 1987 season.

The Orioles scored two runs in the ninth to force extra innings and deny Boston starter Tom Seaver his 32th consecutive victory.

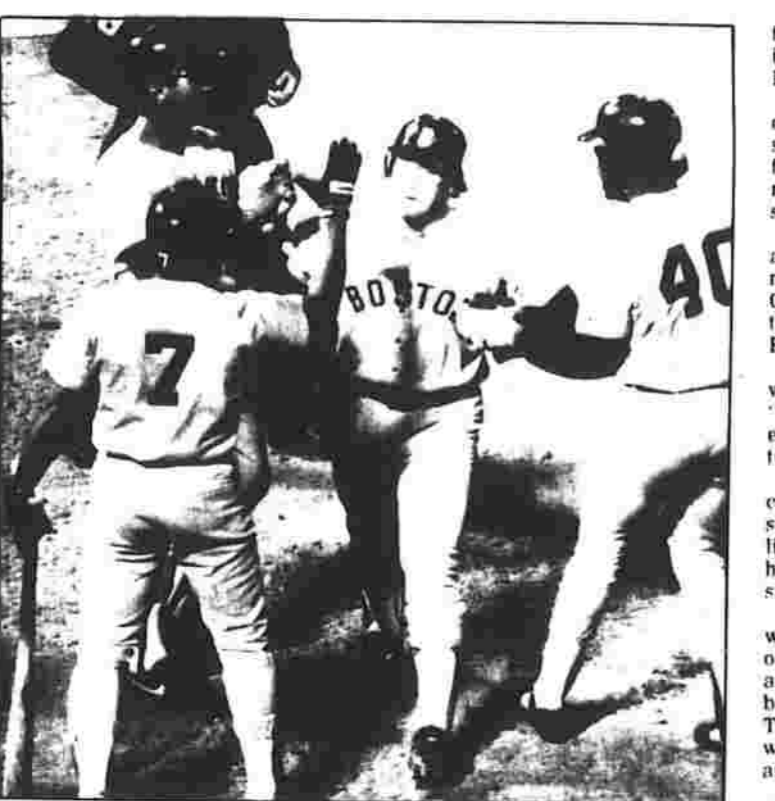

"We haven't relinquished any leads in the ninth," said Boston Manager John McNamara. "But we were able to hold them off until we put some runs up."

Wade Boggs, who had three hits and a run, did most of the improving his league-leading average to .352, launched the winning rally with a single off Don Aust. The relief pitcher has fallen onto hard times of late.

In his last five appearances, including three losses, Aust has allowed 13 hits and 10 earned runs in 2-3 innings.

After advancing on a passed ball and an infield grounder, Boggs scored on a double by Bill Buckner, who previously left four runners stranded in scoring position.

Dwight Evans, whose two-run homer had given Boston a 2-1 lead in the fourth, added a two-run double and Rich Gedman hit a three-run homer to finish the outburst. It was his 20th home run for Evans, who reached that plateau for the sixth straight season.

Jim Rice, who contributed one of four fine defensive plays that helped Seaver in the early innings, also homered for Boston.

After the Orioles scored on a double by Larry Sheets in the first, Seaver allowed only two more hits through the next seven innings.

But he was lifted after Sheets and Jim Traher opened the ninth with singles and winner Calvin Schiraldi's 2-1 yielded a two-run pinch double to Juan Beniquez.

"There was no trouble of when to come out," Seaver said. "We won the ballgame. I feel ecstatic. It means I contributed to a winning effort."

"We feel bad that Tom couldn't get the win," Buckner said. "That's his second in a row like that. Calving got the win but he'd rather have gotten the save."

"We got the nine wins when we needed them," Buckner said of the streak. "We can't take anything for granted. It's got to be a little discouraging to Toronto. They've had a lot of wins, but they're not picking up any ground."

Weaver won't return as Orioles' manager

By Gordon Beard
The Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Earl Weaver, disappointed that he could not produce a winner in his second stint with the Baltimore Orioles won't be back as manager in 1987.

Whether he remains as skipper for the remainder of the current season apparently will be decided by team owner Edward Bennett Williams, who talked Weaver out of retirement in the middle of the 1985 season.

"If you can't think of anything else to do, you might as well play golf or go to the races," Weaver said in reference to an extended slump after the Orioles lost 9-3 to Boston in 11 innings Monday night — their 24th loss in 31 games.

The slump has dropped the Orioles into sixth place in the American League East, 16 games behind the Red Sox and just 1 1/2 games ahead of last-place Milwaukee.

After Weaver's revelation, General Manager Hank Peters said he would have no comment until the principals involved have a "thorough discussion."

The most logical candidates to replace Weaver, especially should a change be made before the Orioles' coaches Cal Ripken Sr. and Frank Robinson, who had won six straight games since his last loss on July 27.

Leonard, who had lost seven straight games since June 4, outdistanced Minnesota's Bert Blyleven 15-11, who had won six straight since his last loss on July 27.

Leonard, 7-11, struck out six and walked two. He was also aided by three double plays in the first five innings.

Williams said he made his decision some three weeks ago, about midway through the current slump, which has dropped the Orioles 16 games off the pace after they had pulled to within 2 1/2 games of first-place Boston in the AL East.

At the time, Weaver said the only limitation about the club's functions. Anyone not able to attend on the 29th may try out during the week, any day, at 5 p.m.

For further information, call Coach Ron Anderson at 646-1025.

Kittredge has record-breaking season at Bentley

Thanks to a record-breaking season with the Bentley College women's track team, former East Catholic High standout Teressa Kittredge won the most valuable runner award.

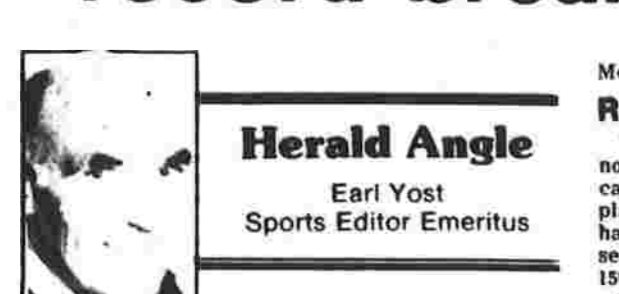

Earlier this year, Kittredge, a sophomore, was named the most valuable performer with the Bentley cross country squad.

Kittredge, one of a family of top track standouts, set indoor records in the 1,500 and 3,000 meters, was a member of two record-breaking relay teams and qualified for the NCAA meet for a second straight year.

The Vernon resident also established school records last spring in the 1,500 and 3,000 events. In addition, she won the Northeast Conference individual cross country championship, the Brandeis Invitational and was awarded All-New England and All ECAC laurels.

Alex Hackney, retired head golf pro at the Manchester Country Club, reports Paul Azzinger, now a successful member of the PGA Tour, has signed a lucrative promotional contract with Wilson. Azzinger's parents, Hackney said, met while playing golf at the local club.

Fred Nassiff reports the annual St. Jude Golf Tournament, staged for the first time this season at Blackledge, realized over $5,000 for the fine cause.

Reason to smile

Rick Lawrence is all smiles these days after notching the first hole-in-one in his 16-year golfing career at Ellington Ridge. The former standout soccer player at Manchester High and in college noted 14 years have been registered at the Ellington course this season. Lawrence used a 6-iron on the par-3 174-yard 15th hole.

Once again this year the annual The Athletics Congress national cross country championship will be staged the Saturday following Thanksgiving — November 29 — which means at least a few top Eastern distance runners may pass up Manchester again as they did last Turkey Day. However, the local field won't be lacking class by any means with announcement of the top name runners expected shortly that will challenge defending champion John Treacy.

Gary Bryant, greens superintendent and his crew at the Manchester Country Club, drew rave notices from tennis referee and umpire for several years.

Perreault, 35, has played 16 seasons in the National Hockey League before announcing his retirement last fall. He was an eight-time NHL all-star and is 12th on the all-time scoring list.

Best wishes for a speedy recovery are extended to Leo Cyr who was stricken and hospitalized. It seems like only yesterday that the little fellow was starring on the baseball field with Manchester High and the American Legion.

Indoor season opens

Indoor tennis season at the Manchester Racquet Club opens Monday with Phil Hyde, Tom Rodden and Cherie Dow Baker handling the court activities.

Eamonn Coghlan, winner of the recent Thanksgiving Road Race in Manchester, will be one of the favorites in the Fifth Avenue Mile run in New York City Saturday.

Peter Kasavaga, of Manchester, was one of the working officials at the U.S. Open tennis championships in Flushing Meadow, N.Y., and during the 10 days took time out to pay a short visit with friends in Manchester. The former Manchester High and UHartford athlete has been a top-ranking pro circuit tennis referee and umpire for several years.

Claude Larose, assistant coach with the Hartford Whalers, is no novice with the golf clubs. Among his achievements are a hole-in-one and a recent record in which he collected five straight birdies. The local resident hits a long ball.

Girls have 'potential'

By Len Auster

KIM JARVIS ... leads junior class

Over the years, the Manchester High girls' cross country program has had, what's known in coaches' parlance, as "potential." There have been those who've come up from the junior high ranks with tremendous potential, yet never met those lofty expectations.

That's the way it has almost always been for Coach Phil Blanchette, who launches his 11th season at the helm Saturday with the Windham Invitational.

Blanchette has seen those with "potential" come and go without full realization of their talents.

But despite, the negative, there has been plenty of positives with his program.

A year ago the Indians won the CCC East Division title posting an 11-1 mark in dual-meet action, and went on to take third in the state Class LL championships.

And while two highly touted runners will not be with the Manchester squad in 1986, there's still plenty on hand for the always optimistic Blanchette to believe a fine line season lies ahead.

"We have potential to win a state title if we put our minds to it," Blanchette says unhesitatingly. "I is going to take some time for the team to get but it can win a state title," he continued.

Blanchette has a solid junior potential in Kim Jarvis, Mindy Forde, Chris Nielsen and Jessica Marshall to begin with. He calls them "the backbone" of the team. He has a trio of seniors, Jamie Ross, Carolyn Fahey and Kathy Coleman, coming off of injury-filled seasons. Ross suffered from a knee problem as a junior but is healthy again. Fahey "is really healthy this year and should be among my top three," Blanchette predicts.

She suffered from shin splints last year.

And Comeau was bothered by asthma a year ago. Blanchette is hoping for an early frost.

The two notable absentees are Steve Veal, a junior who is no longer runner due to medical problems, and freshman Beth Cool. The latter received full blessing to continue on the high school team but "she threw her knee out and needs surgery."

"If we had Cool and Veal we could have been awesome," said

Blanchette, not one for understatement. "but I feel we now have a strong team but with some question marks. These kids have the potential to win a state championship. I feel they don't realize how good they can be."

Manchester will get an idea of its strength early when the Indians oppose CCC East Division foe Rockville, the defending state Class LL, champs. "It's too bad Rockville is in the league," Blanchette noted.

Rockville and Windham are Manchester's chief rivals for CCC East honors. "I feel we're in one of the toughest leagues in the state. Repeating won't be a walk in the park but if the girls do what they are capable of, they can beat both these teams."

Blanchette could think of what if. "But doesn't plan on it. I go with seven-plus runners to go. I can't think of who is not there. I feel very confident with this crew."

Schedule: Sept. 13 Windham Invitational, at Fernald with Rockville, 20 Bethel Invitational, 23 at Enfield with Hartford Public, 30 South Windsor Invitational.

Oct. 13 Wickham Park Invitational, 16 at East Hartford, 23 Divisional Meet, and 30 State Class meets and Open TBA.

NL roundup Ryan a Red cooler

By Ben Walker
The Associated Press

Nolan Ryan turned up the heat and cooled off Cincinnati's chances of catching the Houston Astros in the National League West.

Ryan struck out 10 during six shutout innings and combined with Charlie Kerfeld on a three-hitter in two runs, leading Chicago past visiting Philadelphia.

"I've been waiting for this game all year," Ryan said. "My adrenaline was flowing. I was ready."

Ryan, 10-8, gave up two hits and walked three before being taken out by Houston Manager Hal Lanier. Ryan has been bothered by a strained elbow ligament and is limited in how many pitches he throws.

"He was strong from start to finish and he was at the number of pitches I wanted him to be at, so I brought in Charlie," Lanier said.

Kerfeld gave up a run in the eighth on Buddy Bell's RBI for-ecout and then closed out the visiting Reds.

"I didn't want to blow this one because of the way Nolan pitched," Kerfeld said.

Expos 9, Mets 1

Rookie Bob Seba pitched a five-hitter and Mitch Webster connected for a two-run homer as Montreal rapped 16 hits and stopped New York's four-game winning streak.

Seba, 4-3, lost a chance at his first major-league shutout when Darryl Strawberry hit his 20th home run of the season with two outs in the ninth inning.

Bob Ojeda, 6-5, took the loss, ending his four-game losing streak.

Webster homered during a five-run seventh inning, an outburst that included Tim Lincecum's 1,000th career hit. Andre Dawson had three hits, including a two-run single.

Pirates 3, Cardinals 2

Bob Patterson won his first major-league start and pitched a five-hitter as Pittsburgh beat St. Louis.

Patterson, 1-2, gave up five hits in seven innings, leading his ninth career appearance.

Cubs 7, Phillies 4

Leon Durham hit a three-run homer and Keith Moreland drove in two runs, leading Chicago past visiting Philadelphia.

"Ed Lynch, 5-4, pitched 5 1/3 innings for the victory and Lee Smith worked the final inning for his 26th save. Mike Maddux, 2-6, lasted just three innings and gave up five runs on four hits.

Durham connected in the first inning for his 17th homer following singles by Ryne Sandberg and Morland.

Giants 4, Padres 3

Condy Maldonado had three doubles and drove in two runs and rookie pitcher Terry Mulholland won his first big league game in seven tries as San Francisco topped visiting San Diego.

Mulholland, 1-6, got relief help from Jeff Robinson and Scott Garretts with Garretts going the final two innings for his eighth save. The loser was Ed Whitson, 1-2, since returning to the National League two months ago.

Maldonado doubled home a run in the first inning and drove in the Giants' eventual game-winner with an RBI grounder in the fourth that gave San Francisco a 4-1 lead. Bruce Bochy accounted for one of San Diego's runs with his eighth homer of the season.

Dodgers 7, Braves 0

Bob Welch pitched a four-hitter and Mike Scioscia's solo home run ignited a three-run fifth inning as the Dodgers defeated Atlanta. Welch, 7-11, struck out four and didn't walk a batter in pitching his third shutout and seventh complete game this season. The shutout was the 19th of his career.

MHS boys shoot for a state title

By Len Auster

The 1985 boys' cross country season did not go into the annals as one of the greatest for Manchester High. While it was successful, it was not one of the toughest leagues in the state. But the Indians also find some competition within the West. East as Rockville and Windham High once again will provide formidable roadblocks. "We have Rockville in our first dual meet and we're in one of the toughest leagues in the state. Repeating won't be a walk in the park but if the girls do what they are capable of, they can beat both these teams."

Those memories, though, are all in the past. A new season, which is launched Saturday morning at the Windham Invitational, awaits. And with a new season comes renewed hope.

"This team could be in contention for a state title at the end of the year," said veteran coach George Sutor, who begins his 13th year at the helm. He has 10 letter winners back from the '85 campaign, among them junior Shaun Brophy and seniors Bob Dickson, Steve Gallacher, Sean Gorman and Tom Lyon. "Brophy has looked good so far and Gallacher, Gorman, (Junior Sean) Toland and Dickson have, too. And Lyon has done a good job coming back in shape," Sutor said.

"Some have done the work needed in the summer and others don't do as much so we will feel our way to see what happens. If we progress, we could be real good."

Berlick is concerned about Tyson title fight

By Robert Mocz
The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — World Boxing Council heavyweight champion Trevor Berlick expressed reservations Monday about his upcoming bout with undefeated Mike Tyson.

"The winner of the Berlick-Tyson fight is scheduled to meet the winner of the upcoming Tim Witherspoon-Tony Tubbs World Boxing Association title fight."

Jim Kelly, former USFL quarterback, was impressive in a losing cause in his NFL debut as quarterback of the Buffalo Bills. The Bills, despite Kelly's three TD passes, dropped their opener to the Jets, 28-24.

Jim Kelly quite impressive against Jets in NFL debut

By John F. Bonifati
The Associated Press

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Following the NFL debut of Jim Kelly, New York defensive end Mark Gastineau compared the Buffalo quarterback with two of the best in the league — Dan Marino and Dan Fouts.

But Bills quarterback coach Bob Leahy said Monday he thinks of a former great quarterback when he watches Kelly, the former United States Football League most valuable player who signed a five-year, $8 million contract with Buffalo on Aug. 18.

"He really is the closest thing I've seen as far as personality to Terry Bradshaw," Leahy, who played with the former Pittsburgh great from 1970-72, said. "He's real outgoing, real personable. Leahy said of Kelly, "He doesn't run as well as Terry but he can do the things Terry could do as far as throwing the ball. He probably has a little better touch."

The Bills, 2-14 in each of their past two seasons, would settle for something less from Kelly than the four Super Bowl Bradshaw led the Steelers to during the 1970s.

After Kelly's performance Sunday in the Bills' 28-24 loss to the Jets, Buffalo fans have reason to be optimistic.

Kelly completed 20 of 33 passes for 292 yards and three touchdowns. More impressive to those who have watched Bills quarterbacks over the past few years.

Kelly was sacked only once. Still, the Jets, led by AP-Pro's Gastineau and Joe Klecko, hammered Kelly to the ground enough times that the quarterback had trouble deciding what body part hurt the most Monday.

"Write anything you write and you'll be right," Kelly said when asked whether he hurt the most. "It's the same way I felt after every game in the USFL, so I should be used to it by now," he said.

After the game Sunday, Kelly said he was pleased with his performance but might not feel the same four minutes left and you want to win the game, the defense has to give you the ball.

But Monday, Kelly said he was pleasantly surprised. "I felt better after I watched the film," Kelly said. "I didn't miss as much as I thought I did. The routes were pretty good, and the line blocked all right."

Kelly made several references to the inability of the Bills defense to get the ball back after his touchdowns pass to tight end Pete Metzelaus brought the Bills to within four points with just under five minutes to go. But he said he was not upset at the defense.

"They didn't play bad," he said. "It's just a matter of when you've got to have the ball back and you have four minutes left and you want to win the game, the defense has to give you the ball."

LEGAL NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

In accordance with the provisions of Section 126, Title 23, U.S. Code, as prescribed in the Federal-Aid Highway Program Manual, Volume 7, Chapter 7, Section 5, dated December 30, 1974, from the Federal Highway Administration, the Town of Manchester, with the assistance of the Connecticut Department of Transportation, will hold a design public hearing for State Project No. 76-152, Federal Project No. 1XDM-252(1), "The Reconstruction of Tolland Turnpike," on Wednesday, September 17, 1986, at 7:30 P.M. on the first floor of the Senior Citizens Center, located at 549 Middle Turnpike East, Manchester, Connecticut.

This hearing will be concerned with the Town's recommended plans for the reconstruction of Tolland Turnpike between North Main Street and Deming Road.

The project begins approximately 600 feet east of the intersection of Tolland Turnpike with Buckland Street and Adams Street and terminates at the intersection of Tolland Turnpike and Deming Road.

Approximately 10,000 linear feet of Tolland Turnpike and 400 feet of North Main Street will be reconstructed, along with the realignment of the intersection of Tolland Turnpike and North Main Street.

Tolland Turnpike, beginning of the intersection with North Main Street, is proposed to be a uniform 32-foot wide pavement within a proposed 60' right of way. An eight-foot bituminous concrete bikeway is being proposed along the north side of the proposed roadway and will run the entire length of the project. A five-foot concrete sidewalk is proposed along the south side of the roadway, beginning of North Main Street and ending in the vicinity of the Jester's Court. Tolland Turnpike between the intersection of Adams and Buckland Streets, including a section of North Main Street, is being proposed as a uniform 52-foot wide roadway.

This project is being funded under the Federal-Aid Interstate Trade-In Program, a Federal, State and local cooperative effort to improve traffic circulation and roadway safety in urban areas.

It is anticipated that this project will have no significant social, economic, or environmental impacts, in accordance with the provisions of the Federal Highway Administration/Urban Mass Transportation Administration environmental regulations, 23 CFR, Part 771.115, and, as such, will be recommended by the Connecticut Department of Transportation to the Federal Highway Administration as a categorical exclusion.

Tentative schedules for the right-of-way acquisition and the construction of this project will be discussed at the public hearing. The relocation assistance program will also be discussed at the hearing.

Plans showing the recommended proposal are available for public inspection in the following locations:

Town Clerk's Office
Manchester Town Hall
41 Center Street
Manchester, Connecticut 06040
Monday-Friday, 8:30 A.M. - 4:30 P.M.

Connecticut Department of Transportation
Engineering Office
160 Pascone Place, Room 414
Newington, Connecticut 06111
Monday-Friday, 8:30 A.M. - 4:00 P.M.

Written statements and exhibits in place of, or in addition to, oral statements made at the hearing may be mailed or delivered to the office of the Manchester Town Clerk at the above address no later than 4:30 P.M., October 1, 1986.

All persons interested in this matter are welcome to attend the public hearing.
