WEATHER

National forecast

Showers are forecast Friday from Texas to the Northeast. Warm weather is expected in the Southeast, but cooler air will move into the northern Plains.

Cloudy

Weather satellite photo taken at 3:30 a.m. shows thick clouds accompanying a frontal system from northern New England westward over the upper Great Lakes and into the central Plains. Thunderstorms also lie along the front from Lake Huron to Kansas. Layered clouds extend northward over the northern Plains and the upper Midwest.

PEOPLE

U of A halls Nancy

Nancy Reagan will receive a medal from Catholic University of America for her efforts in the fight against drug abuse. The Cardinal James Gibbons medal will be presented to the first lady on Oct. 11, the university said Wednesday.

The school's alumni association awards the medal each year to a person for distinguished and meritorious service to the Roman Catholic Church, the United States or Catholic University of America.

In particular, said spokeswoman Anne Smith, Mrs. Reagan is being honored for "service to the nation's families in helping to combat drug abuse."

Bruce comes alive

Bruce Springsteen and the E Street Band are in New York putting finishing touches on a five-album recording of live performances they have made during the last 10 years.

"The material spans Springsteen's entire recording career, including his seven Columbia albums," Columbia Records said Wednesday.

The set, to be called "Bruce Springsteen and the E Street Band, Live 1975-1985," will be released in late fall.

The band's last album, "Born in the USA," was the biggest selling album in history of Columbia, the company said.

Joey faces music

A grand jury in New City, N.Y., has begun hearing testimony in the assault and drug case against singer Joey Heatherton, authorities said.

Her attorney, William Kunstler, said he expected the Rockland County grand jury would indict the entertainer on charges stemming from an Aug. 30 attack at the Hillcrest home of Jerry Fischer, a musician.

Heatherton allegedly attacked Fischer with two knives during an argument over her career, police said.

The singer, who is free on $1,000 bail, was charged with felonious assault, menacing and possession of a controlled substance, police said. The substance was less than an ounce of a white powder believed to be cocaine, police said.

Rockland County District Attorney Kenneth Griebetz said he gave Kunstler until early next week to decide whether Heatherton would testify before the panel.

Kunstler said he planned to form a defense committee to give Ms. Heatherton moral and emotional support.

Shriver corresponds

Former "CBS Morning News" anchor Maria Shriver has been hired as a correspondent for NBC's prime time newsmagazine "1986."

Shriver, who signed a multiyear contract, will start work Sept. 22, NBC said Wednesday. She will cover a variety of stories and be based in Los Angeles, where her husband, actor Arnold Schwarzenegger, does film work.

Current quotations

"No nation can expect to continue freely exporting to others if its own domestic markets are closed to foreign competition."
— President Reagan, appealing to visiting Brazilian President Jose Sarney for more open trade.

"For hard drug dealers we need the death penalty."
— Rep. Bill McCollam, R-Fla., as the House took up sweeping anti-drug legislation.

"Peace remains the most important issue on our national agenda."

A 70 percent chance of afternoon and evening showers and a few thunderstorms. Highs in the middle 80s.

West Coastal and East Coastal: Breezy warm and more humid today with partly sunny skies. A 40 percent chance of late afternoon and evening showers and a few thunderstorms. Highs 80 to 85. Gusty southwest wind to 25 mph. A 30 percent chance of an early shower tonight, otherwise, hazy, warm and muggy. Lows 65 to 70. Mixed clouds, some sun, warm and muggy Friday. A 70 percent chance of afternoon and evening showers and a few thunderstorms. Highs 80 to 85.

Northwest Hills: Breezy warm and more humid today with mostly cloudy skies. A 60 percent chance of afternoon or evening showers and a few thunderstorms. Highs 80 to 85. Southwest wind to 20 mph cloudy, rather muggy and mild tonight. A 50 percent chance of showers. Lows 60 to 65. Mixed clouds and sun, muggy and warm Friday. Chance of afternoon and evening showers and a few thunderstorms. Highs in the middle 80s. Chance of showers 70 percent.

Coastal forecast

Long Island Sound to Watch Hill, R.I., and Montauk Point: Small craft advisory in effect. Winds southwest 10 to 15 knots increasing to 20 to 25 knots this afternoon and continuing through Friday. Seas in the ocean 2 to 3 feet this morning building up to 4 to 5 feet this afternoon through Friday morning and 1 to 2 feet in Long Island Sound this morning then up to 2 to 3 feet this afternoon through Friday morning. Visibility locally 3 to 5 miles in some patchy fog or haze through tonight and 1 to 3 miles in fog showers and possible thundershowers Friday.

Across the nation

Heavy thunderstorms that were blamed for two deaths rumbled across the Great Lakes region today, while snow was ending in the Rockies.

Showers and thunderstorms spread across Wisconsin and southern Michigan, prompting flash flood warnings in southeast Wisconsin and flood watches for small streams in southern Michigan.

An 18-year-old woman in the southern Michigan community of Stanton was killed and her sister and brother injured Wednesday night when lightning traveled down a metal-core clothesline through the roof on a milk shed where they were standing, police said. A 58-year-old Otego woman died when winds knocked a tree onto her car.

Thunderstorms also were scattered from Oklahoma across Kansas into the middle Mississippi Valley. A line of heavy thunderstorms extended from southwest Oklahoma into northwest Missouri. Rain spread from the eastern Dakotas across Minnesota.

Snow was diminishing in Colorado and ended elsewhere across the central Rockies.

Flowery send-off
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Patients undergoing surgery often get flowers in their hospital rooms. But what if the operation doesn't require an overnight stay? It was contract surgery performed by one of two Milwaukee ophthalmologists, the patients are surprised with a flowering plant when they go home the same day.

"When they get home, they usually are a little depressed and anxious," said Dr. Norman Cohen, one of the eye surgeons. "The plant boosts their spirit and gives them a real up feeling."

"It brings a smile to their face," said Cohen who works in a downtown clinic with Dr. Robert Sucher.

The program has been expanded since it began a year ago. Children get balloons, while second- or third-time surgery brings a gift package of assorted cheese and sausage.

Shop Rite's closing leaves stores vying for shoppers

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter

As the Mott's Shop Rite grocery store on East Middle Turnpike prepares to close its doors for the last time after nearly 25 years in business, its competitors are vying to soak up as many displaced customers as possible.

The closing of Shop Rite's 21,000-square-foot store — scheduled for Saturday — is leaving many people in need of a new place to buy groceries. And it is yet another step in the trend toward "super" supermarkets.

In Manchester, these include Stop Rite's Spencer Street store — a much larger outlet that rivals an Edwards Food Warehouse across the street and the Super Stop and Shop at the Manchester Parkade.

Barry Baskind, president of the Shop Rite division headquartered in East Hartford, says his company is doing what it can to lure customers from the East Middle Turnpike store to the one on Spencer Street. One thing the chain did was give special coupons to customers to be redeemed at the super stores.

"The retail food business today is an extremely competitive business," Baskind said in an interview Wednesday. "Every customer is an asset. Those customers have to go somewhere. Everyone in the business will be saying, 'Can I get that business on my side?'"

OTHER SUPERMARKETS

are going to let displaced shoppers to go to the Spencer Street Shop Rite without a fight.

Andy's of Manchester, which operates three stores in the area, including one on North Main Street, is increasing the circulation of its advertising fliers, according to Thomas Haugh, co-manager of the North Main Street store.

On Tolland Turnpike, A&P Food Store manager Chester Mounts is also taking steps to bring Shop Rite customers in. He said he has asked the company for special "blockbuster coupons," that would give some products away for free.

"We've had some first-time customers visiting our store already," Haugh said. He said the impending closing was "just a handful," but added: "That makes a difference."

On Saturday, Shop Rite will become the third small Manchester supermarket to close in the last year and a half. It will join Crispino's Supreme Foods, which shut its Hartford Road outlet in October, and Waldbaum's Food Mart in the Manchester Parkade, which closed in 1984.

"THIS IS THE AGE of the super store," said Tim Devaney, manager of Highland Park Market on Highland Street. "Medium-size stores are a thing of the past."

The East Middle Turnpike store "was born at a different time," said Shop Rite's Baskind. "It's going to be a 'What is the right kind of store for today's market?'"

Shop Rite's East Middle Turnpike store is scheduled to close Saturday.

GOP hears its candidates

Tucci, Munns and Klein attack Democrats

By Alex Girelli
Associate Editor

John Tucci, who is seeking to unseat Democrat James R. McCavanagh in Manchester's 12th Assembly District, promised fellow Republicans Wednesday night that he will wage a strong fight.

If he wins, Tucci said, he'll take on an active role in the Legislature. "I'm going to be an activist. I will fight for the things I believe in," Tucci said.

He was one of three candidates who addressed about 25 members of the Republican Town Committee at a meeting in Lincoln Center.

The others were Herschel Klein of Windsor, who will make a third attempt to unseat incumbent Democratic U.S. Rep. Barbara Kennelly, seeking a new term in the heavily Democratic 1st Congressional District; and Paul Munns of Glastonbury, who will oppose Democrat Donald Bates in Connecticut's 9th Assembly District, which includes East Hartford and a corner of Manchester.

Tucci said he and McCavanagh agree on a number of things, citing continued independence of the Eighth Utilities District, opposition to Housing and Urban Development constraints on the town and in education. Tucci said that the difference is that he will take action to promote what he believes in, something he charged McCavanagh has not done.

Klein said he has changed his mind since the time of the Republican convention when he reportedly indicated little enthusiasm for the campaign.

"That's all behind me now," Klein said. "I'm very enthusiastic about running now. If I don't win it won't be for lack of trying."

Klein was persuaded at the last minute to oppose Kennelly, and had not planned to run. He said it would have been bad policy for the Republicans either to endorse Kennelly or to allow her to run unopposed.

He said Kennelly never met a special interest group she did not like and has supported ideas that don't make any sense.

Munns said he has started door-to-door campaigning and has taken a number of campaign tips from Rep. Elsie Swenson, R-Manchester, who will seek a fourth term in the 13th Assembly District.

Munns said he feels he has a good chance of winning election. Bates is "the most effective legislator" in the General Assembly, he said.

Party gets headquarters help

Manchester Republicans will have a campaign headquarters for the November election with amenities they are not accustomed to, and members of the GOP Town Committee were delighted Wednesday night to learn about it.

The headquarters, at 150 N. Main St., will be opened Sept. 24 with appropriate ceremony, committee members found out at their meeting Wednesday.

Marion Targgart, vice chairman of the town committee, described the headquarters in glowing terms, explaining that it will have two restrooms, a kitchenette, good lighting, access for handicapped people and plenty of space on the ground floor of the building, which is at the corner of Main and North Main streets.

Political parties normally have to settle for less comfortable and convenient local headquarters.

When Mary Willhide, Republican registrar of voters, asked how much it would cost, Targgart said the cost would be only $400 for six weeks. She said the owner of the building — Victor Antico — recently changed political affiliation and joined the Republican ranks. He wants to make a contribution to the good of the party, she said.

The town committee will hold its October meeting in the headquarters. No date has been set for that meeting, at which the committee expects to develop a consensus on referendum questions to appear on the ballot Nov. 4.

For the Record

Republican gubernatorial candidate Julie Belaga won the GOP primary in Andover on Tuesday, receiving 34 votes from the town's registered Republicans. Town Chairman Tio Anson said this morning the Associated Press had incorrectly reported that Belaga had received six votes, with the other two candidates, Richard Bozotto and Gerald Labriola — each receiving seven votes.

Anson said in Andover, Bozotto came in second with 23 votes, while Labriola had 17. He said a total of 74 people voted, which is 18 percent of those eligible to cast a ballot.

Anson said E. Clayton Gengras Jr., Belaga's running mate, won the race for lieutenant governor with 32 votes. Bozotto's choice for lieutenant governor, Dennis Murphy, received 15 votes, and Leo Redgate, Labriola's running mate, had 11 votes.

Because it matters...

Super stores — like the Stop and Shop at the Parkade — sell almost anything from food to flowers, plants and books. As advertising is quick to point out, that means "one-stop shopping" for customers.

That scenario is prevalent in Manchester, where grocery store managers talk openly about a supermarket glut. As one manager put it, "It's a buyers' market."

"I've worked throughout the state," said Mounts of A&P. "Manchester is the most congested town I've been in."

For that reason, Manchester managers are looking at something much more significant than Shop Rite's closing: the planned opening of a Heartland store on Tolland Turnpike. That store is under construction now, and will be part of a 150,000-square-foot shopping center that also will include a Rickett's Home Centers store.

Those questions include one on municipal bonding for school building improvements and one on housing for the elderly on town-owned North Elm Street property. A third will concern changing the town charter to make it possible for the town and the Eighth Utilities District to consolidate without a separate vote by district residents.

At the meeting Wednesday, Dr. H. John Malone, a member of the Board of Education, told the committee that the board will consider a policy on admitting students with AIDS to school. There are no students with AIDS in Manchester, Malone pointed out.

Malone said most children with AIDS are innocent victims and deserve a formal education. But he said some physicians feel that the Connecticut Education Council is holding back some information on AIDS in saying that there should be no problem with AIDS victims in schools as long as teachers and other students exercise caution.

Coventry resident to appear at hearing on appointments

By Jacqueline Bennett Herald Correspondent

COVENTRY - Woodbridge Road resident Dorothy Wilnot will appear in person when her challenge of two appointments to the Town Council comes before the state Elections Enforcement Commission's 9 a.m. session Sept. 17 in Hartford, according to Ron Gregory, a state elections inspector.

"At this point the question the commission will determine to answer is whether or not a law has been violated," Gregory said. "Schwebel has argued that under the Coventry Town Charter, the Town Council is not the same as an Office of First Selectman."

Wilnot's complaint to the election panel contends that the Town Council is not a Board of Selectmen and is therefore governed by a different section of the Connecticut General Statutes.

WILNOT SAID Tuesday she would explain her reasoning on the matter at the hearing. "I won't comment on that now because it might damage my case," she said.

"The appointment question is likely to be the first public hearing on the agenda of the Elections Enforcement Commission's 9 a.m. session Sept. 17 in Hartford, according to Ron Gregory, a state elections inspector.

Hodge cited two matters which required action: the need for the Local Allocation Council - named to determine the use of $83,500 in state surplus money given to the town - to meet by Aug. 31, and the need to reopen contract negotiations with teachers before Sept. 1. In order to qualify for education funds from the state.

"I don't know anything about this. I haven't been contacted. I've written an opinion letter for the town, that's all I plan to say," he said. "All I can tell you is, if there's a hearing I'll be there."

The alternative to the appointments would have been to call a special election, which could have taken up to 15 weeks. Meanwhile, in August, Republican Michael Cleary's resignation from the Town Council had left the seven-member council without the five members needed to form a quorum and conduct business.

"HODGE SAID the urgency of that situation made the appointments crucial." "Something had to be done right then," he said. "A special election would have meant no government for the town for a period of months. According to the charter nothing could be accomplished because I need authority from the Town Council."

Hodge said Tuesday he was not aware of the hearing on Tuesday, but would attend if necessary.

Property seizure ruled unconstitutional

NEW HAVEN (AP) - A U.S. judge has ruled that part of a federal law allowing government seizure of personal property involved in drug dealing is unconstitutional.

The government can seize a convicted drug dealer's belongings by filing a complaint with a federal court clerk, who in turn issues a warrant to U.S. marshals to put a lien on the property, according to the Comprehensive Crime Control Act of 1984.

However, U.S. District Judge Ellen Bree Burns ruled Tuesday in New Haven that the law's failure to require a judge or magistrate's review of documents for probable cause to seize property violates the owner's constitutional right of freedom from unreasonable search and seizure.

U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy Jr. said he would give "serious consideration" to an appeal of the ruling. The law was challenged by Lois Pountney, 29, of Prospect, who was found guilty of possessing cocaine and marijuana and of cultivating marijuana after her arrest in April 1985.

Kevin Sheehan, 38, of Prospect, she is paying the federal government to continue living in the house. Pountney was placed on accelerated rehabilitation.

Homeless' tent city runs out of room

By Susan Okubo The Associated Press

NEW HAVEN - Room ran out at a tent city for the homeless this week, as it has recently at the area's emergency shelters.

Over the last year, hundreds of homeless families and individuals seeking emergency shelters have been turned away by public and private agencies that ran out of space due to increased demand on their facilities, officials said.

At least once this week room also ran out in a tent city, where homeless families pitched camp at a public protest against a lack of affordable housing.

"The night before last we ran out of room," said Elizabeth Shaw, who works with Christian Community Action as an advocate for the homeless. "We've also had someone sleeping outside the tents. There was no room for her under cover, but she said she felt safer sleeping near here."

Since Sunday, street people have been discovering the cluster of tents, which grew from seven to at least 14 tents. Another tent was planned by Wednesday night, Shaw said.

On the first night, seven street people took over the tent. By Tuesday night, it was 17, Shaw said. "The seven who started have been coming back each night. They've left their bedding," she said. "This says that shelter is a very serious problem in this city."

The tents were originally pitched by and on behalf of homeless families, usually mothers with children who have been evicted or burned out of apartments. Many have been living at government expense at motels, because they haven't been able to find affordable housing.

Two homeless families - one with six members - have stayed overnight in the tents, Shaw said. But many other families living in motels have been reluctant to turn to the tents, because they were told they would risk losing their motel rooms, Shaw said.

Many families chose to stay away so there would be more room for the street people, she said. The tent residents are getting breakfasts and supper, usually cooked by the welfare mothers and volunteers, Shaw said.

On Wednesday afternoon, most of the residents of the encampment were gone for the day, but a baby was napping in one of the tents. Shaw showed away passersby who wanted to walk through the tents.

"We want to protect their privacy," she said. "The tents were pitched by and on behalf of homeless families, usually mothers with children who have been evicted or burned out of apartments. Many have been living at government expense at motels, because they haven't been able to find affordable housing."

"You're called the scum of the street by people passing by, but that's not the case with every one of us," he said. "I went to college. I worked hard for a living."

McIntyre said he moved to New Haven a month ago after his wife died last year and the company he used to work for moved overseas.

He said he was a bookkeeper for 18 years before becoming a machinist.

"I came to New Haven and thought it would be fairly easy to find a place to live," he said. "I didn't expect to find a third-rate room charging $30 a night for a room."

McIntyre said he earned $23.50 daily working for a temporary employment agency in New Haven. "How can I get a roof over my head for that?" he asked.

Before he moved into a tent, McIntyre said he had been sleeping in a glass bus shelter on Temple Street because he gets out of work too late to find a place in a shelter.

Shaw said members of the Welfare Reform Coalition, a group health care for the homeless, would continue to work after the tents are taken down on Sunday.

Soviets respond to plea for release of reporter

By Michael Putzel The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - U.S. officials are studying Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's response to a personal request from President Reagan for the early release of imprisoned American journalist Nicholas Daniloff.

The president's acknowledgment late Wednesday that he had received the message from Moscow, along with word that Secretary of State George Shultz had met with Soviet Ambassador Yuri Dubinin, provided evidence that a spurt of diplomatic activity was under way to ease the superpower dispute over the reporter.

Reagan, speaking briefly with reporters at the close of a White House dinner for visiting Brazilian President Jose Sarney, revealed he had received the Soviet leader's reply.

But he declined to disclose its contents, saying, "I don't want to rock the boat." He said it was "not safe to comment" when asked whether the intense behind-the-scenes efforts were under way to cool the crisis, which has seen the Soviets charge the U.S. News & World Report Moscow correspondent with espionage.

The president, who had asked for Daniloff's release on the grounds that he is not a spy, also refused to predict when the impasse might be solved.

No information was available on the Shultz-Dubinin meeting, held at the State Department.

EARLIER, U.S. officials expressed optimism that the Soviets might soon agree to release Daniloff from the Moscow prison where he is being held.

One White House official, speaking on condition of anonymity, insisted there has been "no change in policy" regarding a swap of Daniloff for Soviet physicist Genady Zakharov, who is jailed in New York on espionage charges.

The official noted that the United States has yet to take any retaliatory steps against the Soviet Union for its jailing of Daniloff, although it appeared to be nearing a decision to bar administration officials from a privately sponsored visit to the Soviet Union.

Asked about a televised report that a breakthrough might be reached, one official familiar with developments in the case said, "Some people are going a bit too far. It's fair to say there is a lot of optimism" among administration officials working on the Daniloff case.

In Moscow, Daniloff said Soviet investigators liked the idea of releasing him to the custody of the U.S. ambassador pending his trial on spying charges, a colleague said.

SOVIET AUTHORITIES made clear, however, that the release would have to be reciprocal. Jeff Trumble quoted Daniloff as saying, "According to Trumble, who works with Daniloff at U.S. News & World Report."

The Washington Post, in today's editions, quoted an unidentified administration official as saying the United States is exploring the possibility of setting up rules and procedures for future spy cases. Neither Daniloff nor Zakharov has diplomatic immunity.

Meanwhile, the departure for the Soviet Union of six senior Reagan administration officials and more than 250 other Americans is on hold.

Although administration spokesmen said no decision had been made to order government officials to stay home from the privately sponsored conference in Latvia, Chautauqua Institution President Daniel L. Bratton said, "Some officials of our government said they cannot participate."

"We obviously will not go to the Soviet Union as long as there is this kind of situation," Bratton added.

John Wallach of Hearst Newspapers, one of the organizers of the trip, said Wednesday the group was scheduled to leave today but could postpone its departure for several days, inasmuch as the conference with Soviet officials and citizens isn't scheduled to begin until Sept. 20.

It would be highly inappropriate, if not immoral, to travel to the Soviet Union if Nick is still in prison," Wallach said.

Star Wars scientist resigns

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - One of the top physicists working on President Reagan's "Star Wars" program has quit, and scientists say the loss will deal a severe blow to the project.

Peter Hagelstein, creator of the basic theory for building an X-ray laser at the heart of the space-based missile defense system, is leaving Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory on Oct. 1, officials said Wednesday.

Hagelstein, who has accepted a teaching and non-military research post at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, refused to say why he is leaving Livermore, a key research facility for the defense program.

But a colleague at MIT, where Hagelstein received his degree, said Hagelstein had problems with the management style at Livermore, was troubled about working on weapons and wanted to return to an academic environment.

"He'll be missed greatly," said Steve Maxon, a senior physicist with the lab's X-ray laser program. "I'm not in a position to say."

Hagelstein said of his reasons, "A lot of people are in an awkward position, and I am too."

Hagelstein, 32, won the Department of Energy's top award for his work on the X-ray laser weapon in 1984. His work was the basis for Reagan's call for a defensive shield against ballistic missiles.

"He'll be missed greatly," said Steve Maxon, a senior physicist with the lab's X-ray laser program. "I'm not in a position to say."

Others should take debate cue from 4th

It was odd that campaign staffers for Michael Meotti, the Democratic candidate in the 4th Senatorial District, had trouble finding the time to get together with aides for Carl Zinsser, the Republican incumbent, to schedule a series of debates.

It was odd because it was Meotti who issued the challenge to debate. And it was odd because a challenger, not an incumbent, almost always has the most to gain by debating.

Meotti's challenge, fortunately reiterated today with an offer to debate at any time and at any place, will give voters in the 4th district a chance to learn their candidates' positions on the issues.

On Wednesday, it appeared that a debate or series of debates had become unlikely because the campaign managers had been unable to meet with each other. Had that impasse continued, the voters once again would have been done a disservice by their candidates.

Because most election results unfortunately reflect decisions about personalities rather than about issues, it is unlikely that debates will change the course of the campaign. But the candidates owe their constituents a chance to find out what they're getting before they pull the levers in the voting booths.

It was a welcome surprise to learn last month ago that Zinsser — a debate-evader in past campaigns — had accepted Meotti's challenge to a debate. In accepting, Zinsser went beyond what was asked of him: He suggested a series of debates, one in each of the five towns in the 4th District.

Zinsser's agreement to debate must have come as something of a shock to his colleagues — particularly the state representatives from Manchester, who have cited innovative excuses to avoid the tough questioning that occurs in debates.

This year, Republican Elaine Swenson of the 13th Assembly District became the first Manchester incumbent to refuse a debate, turning down Democrat John Thompson's challenge as she has in two previous campaigns. Swenson's flat "no," though hardly innovative, was probably a wise decision for her. But she would have enhanced her credibility if she had accepted Thompson's request.

In other Manchester districts, challenges haven't yet been issued. But if they are, it's unlikely the voters will ever see one-on-one debates. The unwritten rule sadly crosses party lines: Incumbents aren't supposed to debate; voters must be kept in the dark.

Two years ago, the state representatives in the 12th, 13th and 55th districts refused to debate. And every where except in the 4th, history is likely to repeat itself this year — unless voters let the politicians know how they feel about incumbents ducking their opponents.

Drug bill runs into protests

By Larry Margosak, The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House is rushing to pass a bill to reinstate the war on drugs, but liberals say they are being betrayed by a bipartisan agreement allowing votes on the death penalty and other issues.

Scores of Democrats and Republicans spoke in favor of the bill Wednesday, but as the day wore on, differences grew among a once-united army of supporters.

Although the legislation is expected to pass overwhelmingly, House liberals said they would wage vigorous fights today against amendments to impose the death penalty for individuals involved in a continuing criminal enterprise who intentionally cause the death of another individual.

Permit illegally obtained evidence to be admitted at criminal trials if a police officer acted in good faith during a warrantless search.

And deploy sufficient military personnel and equipment to halt entry of ships and planes carrying illegal drugs into this country.

The overall legislation is a mammoth effort to escalate anti-drug efforts by pouring money into enforcement, education, rehabilitation, crop eradication and withholding aid from uncooperative producer countries.

THE CONGRESSIONAL Budget Office estimates the measure could cost $6 billion through 1991 if all new programs are fully financed and new enforcement personnel are retained.

However, the bill only sets spending ceilings and there's no guarantee that all the funds will be appropriated.

A liberal leading the effort against the three amendments, Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., said the bill would "sail through" the House, but could be endangered by a Senate filibuster — especially against the death penalty.

Edwards, who predicted 30 to 50 House members might oppose the bill if any of the three amendments pass, said liberals "felt betrayed."

From the beginning, NASA's engineers faced problems they had not before dreamed of. Still, they overcame the most appalling obstacles to land the first space explorers on the moon.

But since the Challenger accident, which had the effect of a bucketful of sand on a humming machine, NASA has been paralyzed by a pervasive anxiety. The same engineers are now plagued with nagging doubts about their performance of tasks and trusts they once thought they could do better than anyone in the world.

Meanwhile, the need to replace worn-out satellites is beginning to grow. The backlog of satellites ready to be launched is building, with little relief in sight before 1989 at the earliest. By 1993, three-fourths of the communication satellites now in orbit will need to be replaced.

"The nation has allowed its space technology base to erode," the NASA Advisory Council declared, "leaving it with little technological capability to move out in new directions should the need arise."

Yet NASA's problems are inherently solvable. The critical question has more to do with the remorseless turn of the clock, with the capacity of the American political process not only to do the right thing, but to do it within a time frame that exhibits some sense of priority, order, purpose and cohesion.

THE NATIONAL YEARNING for a space shuttle that is fail-safe cannot be indulged much longer. Our political leaders must face the reality that space, like every other frontier, cannot be explored without risk.

President Reagan is involved directly and prominently in the timetable. Although he has set bold goals in space, he must now move the space program ahead not only safely but swiftly. The need is to face squarely the questions of substance, cut through the bottlenecks of procedure, conciliate the principled opposition and give to the space program the stature of a national undertaking.

Failure to meet the space challenge could develop into a fiasco that would be laid on the White House doorstep.

Group denies Beirut kidnapping

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Islamic Jihad today denied it kidnapped American educator Frank Herbert Reed in west Beirut and called upon the "real kidnappers to come forth boldly and shoulder the responsibility."

The denial came in a typewritten Arabic-language statement delivered to the west Beirut office of a Western news agency along with a photograph of David Jacobson, one of four other Americans missing in Lebanon.

Earlier this week, a telephone caller claiming to speak for Islamic Jihad, a Shiite Moslem group espousing the teachings of Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, claimed responsibility for Reed's abduction and charged he was a CIA spy.

Reed, 33, director of west Beirut's Lebanese International School, was kidnapped on Tuesday by four men totting silencer-equipped pistols as he drove to play golf at a war-scarred course on the city's outskirts.

Shortly after the abduction, the anonymous caller claiming to speak for Islamic Jihad told a Western news agency that the organization kidnapped Reed because he was a spy for the CIA.

The caller said Islamic Jihad would soon distribute a picture of Reed, but no picture has yet been released.

Israeli militiamen clash with Shiites

By Rodeino Kenon, The Associated Press

TYRE, Lebanon — Israeli-allied militiamen clashed today with Moslem guerrillas in south Lebanon, but a U.N. peacekeeping official denied a claim by Lebanese security sources that Israeli helicopter gunships strafed the guerrillas.

Israel also denied the claim. The guerrillas had said three of their fighters were killed and two were wounded in the alleged Israeli attack.

Timur Goksel, spokesman for the U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon, said five Lebanese peacekeepers were wounded by mortar fire as the militia and guerrillas fought near the troops' position in the village of Sidqin. He said the position "received many direct mortar hits."

"We observed Israeli helicopters hovering over the area but there was no firing from the helicopters," Goksel told The Associated Press in Tel Aviv in a telephone interview later. "We saw them on and off for two hours this morning. We would know if there was any strafing and there was none."

The Lebanese security sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the fighting began when Shiite fighters tossed grenades on a hilltop position of the Israeli-allied South Lebanon Army militia near Kafra and Yater villages.

The sources said Israeli helicopter gunships then strafed the guerrilla positions. A statement issued in Tyre in the name of the Islamic Resistance Front also claimed Israeli Cobra gunships fired on its fighters, killing three and wounding two others.

But an Israeli army official in Tel Aviv said no Israeli forces operated in south Lebanon Wednesday night or early today. The official spoke on condition of anonymity.

Goksel said the five wounded Lebanese soldiers were evacuated to a field hospital in the Lebanese border town of Naqura.

The local security sources said the Lebanese position was hit by shells from South Lebanon Army and Israeli gun positions in the Jewish state's self-designated "security zone" in south Lebanon.

The statement, issued in the name of the Islamic Resistance Front, an alliance of Iranian-backed Shiite extremist groups, said that in a 90-minute battle its fighters managed to capture a position from the militia at Hilban Hill.

The front said 20 SLA militiamen were killed or wounded, but there was no independent confirmation.

The guerrillas later retreated and were fired upon by militia gunners, according to local security sources who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Shiite guerrillas are fighting to force Israel from the 6-mile-deep border enclave it has maintained since withdrawing most of its occupation army from Lebanon in June 1985 following a three-year invasion.

Guerrilla gunfire and bomb attacks have killed three French soldiers and one Irish officer from the U.N. force since Aug. 11,

Arbitration helps when divorce occurs

LEWISTON, Maine — The most difficult issues in a divorce revolve around children — how much child support the absent parent will pay and what access he or she will have to the children.

Maine has fashioned two major problem-solving mechanisms that ought to be considered by other states.

"We don't use the word 'custody' in Maine anymore. We talk of shared rights and responsibilities," and "primary residence with," said professor Richard Wagner of Bates College, one of the state's first divorce mediators.

"What the courts are pushing is an allocation to be shared of rights and responsibilities between the parties, so people don't feel adversarial toward one another and scared they will lose their children. That does away with 'custody' which tends to carry with it a sense of possession," he told me.

Not only has the law been changed to emphasize the continuing partnership of parents in bringing up children, Maine has also created a system of mandatory mediation in any contested divorce involving minors.

IN DESCRIBING IT, Dr. Wagner puts the spotlight on the couple, not the role of mediator: "Maine's law has given people an incentive to work out their own divorce agreement. Therefore, they have more of a stake in its success. They are more committed to their agreement than they are when a judge tells them what to do."

"It removes the win-lose feature of divorce, and it places the focus on the children much more than a typical divorce litigation before a judge. All considerations of property can be tied to a package that is best for everyone — especially for the children," he continued. "The couple has an opportunity to practice working together in working out a settlement, which is a good model on how to resolve future disputes without going to court."

There were 3,600 mediations last year.

Northern Perspective Michael J. McManus

Mediation was begun a decade ago as an experiment encouraged by Maine Chief Justice Vincent McKusick. The earliest cases were on small claims cases — not divorce cases. "That's how any other state ought to begin mediation, with cases that are not too complex or emotional as divorce cases tend to be," said Lincoln Clark, Director of the Court's Mediation Service almost since its inception.

ONLY ONE OTHER STATE has mandatory mediation in divorce settlements — California. That program is substantially different from Maine's in that its mediators are professional counselors, while Maine uses volunteers, such as retired businessmen or those whose careers allow both the time and the ability to work for only $75 a day.

"A large part of the program's success arises from this volunteer element," says McKusick. "We do not have a professional corps of mediators but such people as active school superintendents or executives of major corporations with broad experience in the world who bring some judgment, and who could not be hired for $75 a day."

"This is important in selling the concept to judges who do not want to turn their job over to a largely bureaucratic — but to prominent community leaders. It is important to the parties who come to court thinking they will get a judge. They don't want to see a 23-year-old with no credentials. Written on all over our mediators is the fact I am doing this as a public service."

If children are not to be pawns caught between hostile parents, they need a law of "shared rights and responsibilities," and mediators to implement it.

"It is better in the sense of satisfaction of the parties who go away from court and the probability that the judgment based on mediation will be carried out without further intervention of the court to compel compliance. In an adjudicated case, a judge does not have much choice. He makes one winner and one loser. That means 50 percent of the parties will be happy with a court-imposed settlement and 50 percent will be unhappy."

"Know what we're giving our new grandson? Low cost children's term insurance!"

They gave us the idea, at the Savings Bank of Manchester. They explained how we could get him a lot of coverage for not a lot of money. (And that's kind of important when you're on a fixed income.)

We understand their rates are lower than most insurance companies because SBLI is sold directly through the bank. It's convenient, too.

If you're also interested in a good deal on life insurance, stop by any office and ask. Or phone 646-1700.

Or use the coupon."

"We want to see him set for the future."

Gender not an issue

she would continue hammering away at her call for restoring pride in state government — "pride in performance," she calls it. "He has not established standards of excellence and so we have mediocrity," she said of the governor.

She refused to say how much money she thought she would need but said she was confident she could raise enough for the rest of the eight-week campaign. Much of the money will be spent on television advertising aimed at Fairfield County — a GOP stronghold — as she had done during the primary campaign, she said. The Republican State Central Committee has raised about $125,000 to be used by the primary winner and expects perhaps $50,000 more from Republican organizations based in Washington, according to state GOP Executive Director Peter W. Gold.

Edward J. Wilson, independent candidate for state representative in the 13th Assembly District, opens his campaign this morning with an attack on incumbent state Rep. Elsie Swenson, R-Manchester. Wilson held a news conference at his campaign headquarters at 503 E. Middle Turnpike.

Wilson campaigns against Swenson

Wilson said his only quarrel was with her voting record, which he said he would discuss in greater detail as the campaign progresses. In his lengthy statement, Wilson listed legislative programs he plans to introduce if elected. One would be to strengthen the rights of employers "to deny jobs to sex perverts and the disease they have introduced into our society."

Wilson said he favors restoring the death penalty as passed by the Legislature but vetoed by Gov. William O'Neill. Among other priorities on Wilson's list are creating an agency to regulate insurance rates, providing stiff penalties for drug dealers, eliminating the office of inspector general and replacing it with an office of inventory control to eliminate waste in government.

Wilson said he has pledged allegiance to no political leaders and will be "a voice, not an echo." Three supporters were with Wilson at his campaign headquarters this morning when he issued the statement to reporters. He said his campaign committee includes about nine people.

Wilson said a July 24th newspaper report said Swenson was not sure how she would vote on allowing abortion or on a homosexual rights bill. Wilson, a former state employee, attacked Swenson's voting record in the General Assembly. He said she voted against medical insurance for state retirees and in favor of a raise for herself.

Wilson said she voted to include state legislators as full-time state employees for purposes of receiving benefits. "Therefore giving herself full medical benefits paid for by the taxpayers."

In a terse reply this morning to Wilson's statement, Swenson said "It is unfortunate that Mr. Wilson has decided to take this form of attack and it is not worthy of my response." Swenson was at a meeting of a legislative committee when she was told of Wilson's statements.

Wilson said a "more personal picture of Mrs. Swenson would show her to be a good woman, a good wife and mother."

"I am proud to call her my friend and I bear her no ill feelings," he said.

Meotti is ready to debate at any time, at any place

By John F. Kirch
Herold Reporter

Democrat Michael Meotti, who is seeking the 4th Senatorial District seat held by state Sen. Carl A. Zinsner, R-Manchester, is ready to debate the incumbent at any time. Meotti's campaign manager said this morning.

"If he (Zinsner) really wants to debate just tell us when and where," said Nick Paindiris, Meotti's Glanbury campaign manager. "We're busy, yes, but whatever it is, we'll cancel it (for a debate)."

Meotti, the majority leader of the Glanbury Town Council, reiterated that by telephone from New York, where he was on a business trip today. He said he would debate Zinsner at any time.

Citizen suit in federal court fights Route 6 land purchase

In an attempt to stop the state Department of Transportation from continuing to buy land for the proposed Route 6 highway, opponents of the roadway have filed an appeal with the Second Circuit Court of Appeals in New York.

The appeals court clerk said oral arguments for the appeal will take about 20 minutes and consist of questions being asked of both sides by a three-judge panel. The clerk said a record of the dismissed lawsuit must be filed by Sept. 22 and both sides must file their briefs by Sept. 29.

John Berman, the attorney representing ECCCAG, has said the purpose of the appeal is to reverse a decision by U.S. District Court Judge Jose Cabranes, who in July threw out the group's lawsuit that sought to stop property purchases.

Berman said the suit was premature because construction had not begun on the purchased property, and the land could be sold back to owners if the highway project does not proceed.

STEAL has 8th's secret poll

By George Lovyn
Herold Reporter

The private political advocacy group STEAL, which supports Manchester's Eighth Utility District, is in possession of a copy of the controversial telephone polling questions being used by an advertising firm hired by the district.

STEAL, President Robert Blechman said Wednesday. Those questions have been kept from the public by the district Board of Directors even though the Journal Inquirer, a Manchester-based newspaper, has filed a complaint with the state Freedom of Information Commission on the grounds that they are public information.

The district hopes to use those questions and the results of the telephone survey to design a publicity campaign against a November referendum question that, if approved, would eliminate the district's right to veto consolidation.

Blechman said the dispute between the district and the Journal Inquirer also prompted him to keep the questions secret. A copy of the questions were accidentally observed by a Herald reporter after they were left on a chair at the Whitton Memorial Library, where STEAL was meeting Wednesday.

District President Walter Joyner has said the polling information will probably be made public at the directors' meeting on Monday. Blechman, an attorney, said the Adams firm finished the polling earlier this week by using the telephone in his law office.

Town Democratic leaders, who support a merger between the district and the town, have publicly questioned the legality of the district's polling efforts. They have said the advertising campaign may be illegal because tax money gathered by the district is being spent on an effort that takes a political position.

Jeffrey Garfield, executive director of the state Elections Enforcement Commission, has said under state law tax money cannot be used to urge residents to defeat the November referendum. He said a publication funded by the district would be illegal only if it were objective.

District officials have said they want only to present factual information demonstrating the extra cost of consolidation to all Manchester residents.

Clemens has enough left to beat O's

By Gordon Beard
The Associated Press

BALTIMORE — After traveling to the White House to meet President Reagan, Roger Clemens had a little trouble getting back down to earth.

But the Boston ace had enough left to notch his 22nd victory, pitching six innings of a 9-4 decision over the Baltimore Orioles Wednesday night as the Red Sox won their 11th in a row.

Jim Rice and Bill Buckner each had a home run and three singles, with Rice driving in three runs, as the Red Sox extended their lead in the AL East to 8½ games over Toronto, which had its game postponed.

The 11-game streak is Boston's best since 1971, while Clemens' victory will give him the highest total for a Boston pitcher since Mel Parnell recorded 25 in 1969.

"I was sluggish and I was tired," said Clemens. "I got up at eight in the morning. But if I had to do it all over again, I'd do it. It kind of makes baseball seem small."

Clemens, accompanied by teammates Don Baylor, Joe Sambito, Mike Greenwell, Al Nipper, and club officials, said he presented Reagan with one of the balls he used to strike out 20 batters on April 29.

The President, he said, congratulated him on that nine-inning record and talked about his early sports broadcasting career and the movie in which he portrayed pitcher Grover Cleveland Alexander.

"I told him, that I hope we see him again in October," Clemens said, an obvious reference to the World Series.

"It was a busy day, an exciting day. I was beat," Clemens said back just before the team bus left for the park. Now I've got to get back to civilization and do what I should be doing."

Clemens, who has not given up more than five earned runs in any game this season, yielded four in the fourth to a Baltimore team that has lost 19 of its last 24.

Larry Sheets and John Stierso just missed hitting homers in the third. The Orioles stranded two runners in that inning and two more in the sixth before Calvin Schiraldi took over and notched his eighth save.

Boston's Jim Rice (14) trots around the bases with a first-inning home run as Baltimore shortstop Cal Ripken Jr. can only watch Wednesday night. The Red Sox won their 11th in a row, 9-4, and now lead the AL East by 8½ games.

on RBI doubles by pinch-hitter Andre Thornton and Carmen Castillo. Darrell Miller led off the California 14th with a single against Rich Yeti. 4-3. Miller took second on Dick Schofield's sacrifice and moved to third on a fly ball. After DeCinces was intentionally walk, Mark Reul grounded a single past third baseman Brook Jacoby.

"When you're in a situation like that, sometimes it's easier to take it if you get beat by somebody who's not so well-established," DeCinces said. "I knew I wouldn't get another shot at it," he said. "It wouldn't have made sense to pitch to me."

Chuck Finley, 2-0, the eighth California pitcher, got the victory.

Steve Sax was 4-for-4 and Orel Hersher and two relievers scattered nine hits as Los Angeles ended Houston's four-game winning streak.

Sax had three singles, an RBI double and scored twice. He has his only run in the eighth on Monday and 19 on Tuesday.

"They were very fired up," said Mets' catcher Gary Carter of his ex-teammates. "They saw the writing on the wall when they came in here, and they were going to do everything they could to prevent it from happening. No way did they want us to clinch in New York against them."

The Mets quickly scored four runs in the first inning off Sergio Valdes, a 22-year-old right hander making his major league debut after being recalled from Class A West Palm Beach on Sept. 8.

Len Dykstra started the inning by drawing a walk. He was on third when Hernandez hit his 12th home run this season. Carter followed with a single to left and one out later, while he hit his ninth over the right center field wall.

The Mets added two more runs in the seventh on Darryl Strawberry's sacrifice fly and a run-allowing error by third baseman Wayne Krenchick.

In other NL games, Los Angeles beat Houston 5-1. San Diego beat Atlanta 9-4. Cincinnati thrashed San Francisco 14-2 and St. Louis beat Pittsburgh 4-3. One of the few failures of the Mets' season so far: three-game losing streak at home.

losing streak in which their pitchers were clobbered for a combined 35 hits, settled down and defeated the Montreal Expos 6-1 Wednesday night.

Hernandez and Mookie Wilson hit two-run homers and starter Ron Darling allowed five hits in eight innings.

Combined with Philadelphia's 8-7 loss to Chicago earlier Wednesday night, New York reduced its magic number to two and stretched its lead to 22 games over the second-place Phillies.

"It will be nice to clinch in Philadelphia," said Mets Manager Davey Johnson. "We should have done it here. But it wasn't meant to be. It gives us a chance to beat the only team in our way. This way, we won't back in. In his exit, I have a nice warm feeling about this."

They begin a three-game weekend series against the Phillies on Friday, with their ace starter Dwight Gooden, 14-5, facing Bruce Ruffin, 7-3.

"It'll be awesome," said Gooden. "All my life, I dreamed of pitching the clincher. I'm glad the way this came out, falling right into my hands. It'll make up for some of my losses this year."

"It'll be pretty tough to sleep these next couple of nights. I want to take it as another game, but it will be tough."

Darling, 13-5, struck out four batters and walked three. He gave up his only run in the eighth on singles by pinch hitter Wallace Johnson, Mitch Webster, and Tim Lincecum.

"Darling was lucky," said Expos Manager Buck Rogers, whose club took two of three in the series. "We used up all our hits in the first two games."

The Expos banged out 16 hits on Monday and 19 on Tuesday.

"They were very fired up," said Mets' catcher Gary Carter of his ex-teammates. "They saw the writing on the wall when they came in here, and they were going to do everything they could to prevent it from happening. No way did they want us to clinch in New York against them."

San Diego broke a 3-1 tie with six runs in the eighth inning and broke its five-game losing streak with a win over Atlanta.

Craig Nettles broke the tie with a single. John Kruk, who went 4-for-5 with a homer and three RBI, singled in a run and winning pitcher Len McCullers finished the scoring with a two-run double.

Dale Murphy homered, went 4-for-4 and drove in all four Atlanta runs.

Reliever Ray Soffi, 3-0, pitched two hitless innings for the victory.

Todd Worrell pitched one inning for his 33rd save.

Barry Bonds hit his 15th homer, leading off Pittsburgh's first inning.

Cardinals 4, Pirates 3
Vince Coleman's ninth-inning triple scored Jose Oquendo with the tie-breaking run. St. Louis had the game in the eighth on an RBI single by pinch-hitter Jim Lindeman.

The Indians, who had 17 hits, led 4-1 after five innings. Joe Carter drove in three of the runs with a double and single.

Rangers 3, Mariners 2
Ruben Sierra's second double of the game drove home pinch-runner Bob Brower from first base, leading Texas over Seattle.

Toby Harrah led off the bottom of the 10th with a single against Mike Young, 7-8. Oddie McDowell popped out trying to sacrifice and Scott Fletcher struck out, but Sierra doubled into the left-field corner and Brower scored without a throw.

Greg Harris, 9-8, pitched 2.3 innings of one-hit relief for the victory. The lone hit against him was Scott Bradley's game-tying, RBI single in the eighth.

Jim Presley homered for the visiting Mariners, his 28th of the season. It was his second in two games and sixth against Texas.

Tigers 11, Brewers 7
Kirk Gibson and Darnell Coles both hit a pair of two-run homers and Detroit pounded Milwaukee in a game featuring an AL-high eight home runs this season.

The Tigers tied team records with six homers in the game and four in one inning.

Chef Lemon led off the fourth with a homer and Mike Heath followed with an inside-the-park shot.

Alan Trammell doubled with one out and Gibson homered over the right field roof at Tiger Stadium, chasing Chris Bosio, 6-4. After Darrell Evans drew a walk from Alan Trammell, Coles hit his 18th homer.

Rob Deer hit his league-leading 33rd homer and Rick Cerone also homered for the Brewers.

A's 6, White Sox 2
Jose Rijo pitched a five-hitter and struck out 10 and Donnie Hill hit a three-run homer as Oakland won in Chicago.

Rijo, 7-10, walked two in his fourth complete game. Pete Fillion, 6-1, lost in his debut with the White Sox.

Hill's homer, his fourth, capped a four-run third inning that gave the A's a 4-0 lead.

Chicago's Ron Haseby hit an RBI double in the fourth, his fifth straight hit over two games.

Patriots' Berry is not thrilled with NFL schedule

By Barry Wilner
The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD N.J. — If Raymond Berry had his way, the NFL would outlaw games on Thursday.

But Berry will lead his New England Patriots into Giants Stadium tonight to face the New York Jets in a nationally televised game. He has no choice — the schedule says that his AFC champions and the team he beat in the wild-card playoff game last December will play on that day.

Berry doesn't have to like it. "It's one of the oddest things approaches anyone has ever invented to play football." Berry said of Thursday games, which the NFL schedules for the second and third weeks of the season, plus on Thanksgiving. "Maybe someday they will phase Thursday games out."

"I don't like putting players on the field who are recovering from a Sunday war and then have to go into a Thursday war. It's like a pitcher going nine innings, then you put him out there two days later."

"And fatigue leads to injury. I don't want to see that where you're recovered."

However, Berry did find something positive to say about this particular Thursday game.

"If you have to play one, I guess this is the ideal time to do it — early in the season," Berry said. "We just played at home, and it's a short trip from Boston."

The Patriots, who beat the Jets 26-14 in that wild-card game, come off a 33-0 rout of Indianapolis. New York beat the Bills 28-24 in Buffalo.

"Buffalo isn't the easiest place to play, especially with quarterback Jimmy Kelly making his first start."

Ashford loses her first 200 in eight years

By Geoffrey Deeny
The Associated Press

ROME — Said Aouita, the winner of the 1985 IAAF World Grand Prix, says he doesn't look at opponents during races, as he thinks there is no one who can beat him over 5,000 and 10,000 meters.

"I never think about opponents. I run against the clock and not against other athletes. In competition I never look at them," said Aouita, who comfortably won the 5,000-meter event in the final of the Grand Prix in Rome Wednesday.

"I'm the strongest in the world at the 5,000 and 10,000 meters. I don't see any real opponents to me," Aouita, a Moroccan who has lived in Italy for the last three years, said.

In an upset at the Rome meet, Olympic champion Valerie Briscoe-Hooks dealt fellow American sprinter Evelyn Ashford her first defeat in eight years in the 200 meters. Briscoe-Hooks had a strong finish to win in 22.30 seconds, edging past early leader Ashford at the tape by .01 second.

Asked about losing her 8-year-old record, Ashford said, "I don't keep up with that." Jordanka Donkova of Bulgaria took lead in the women's standings with 69 points after a 12.97 seconds victory in the 100-meter hurdles.

Aouita, who set the world record in the 5,000 meters in Oslo last year with a time of 13:00.40, plans to move back to Morocco and begin training for next season on Nov. 1.

"The next year will be very difficult. I want to win both the 5,000 and 10,000 meters in the World Championships in Rome next August. I also want to set new records for both distances," the Moroccan said.

"I've been running close to 13 minutes this year. I think I can arrive at 12:50 with intense training. I thought I could break the record this year, but I didn't get in enough training this winter and as you know that is fundamental for an athlete," Aouita said.

Asked whether there was any other runner in the world who could break 13 minutes, Aouita replied, "Not unless I'm running. If I don't race forget it."

The men's 100 meters produced an early upset when world record holder Calvin Smith of the United States was eliminated in the heats. He was fifth in 10.46.

In the final, Johnson led from start to finish. Chidi Iroha of Nigeria, who had a poor start, produced a great final kick to come in second with 19.88, beating European champion Linford Christie of Britain, third in 19.15.

There was no drama in the women's 400 meters, which Koch dominated in 49.17 seconds, considerably better than her own world record of 47.60. Briscoe-Hooks was a distant second in 50.21.

UConn looks for better balance

By Chris Dahl
The Associated Press

STORRS — The University of Connecticut football team is hoping a better balanced offense will help tip its scale to the win side after a loss-heavy 1985 season.

Jeff Gallaher has a year of experience and Coach Tom Jackson says the speedy running back is ready to step into the starting lineup fulltime to add another dimension to the team's pass-happy offense.

"We tried to run the ball in the first half, but we didn't have a tailback. The second half of the season, when Jeff came along, we ran the ball a lot more," Jackson says.

"I think the tailback needs the ball 25 times a game. I don't know if that's all going to be Jeff, but he's going to be getting the ball most. We'll still throw it around, but I think 40 to 50 throws and 35 runs should be a pretty good combination for us," the fourth-season coach says.

On the way to a 4-5 overall record and a 1-4 mark in the Yankee Conference last season, the Huskies rushed for just 93 yards per game. Without an effective runner for most of the season, quarterback Peter Lane passed an average of 32 times a game.

The balance between running plays and throwing plays was fairly even last season, but the Huskies' production on the ground was just 2.8 yards per play. Lane averaged nearly 13 yards per completion.

"We worked hard at getting better balance," Jackson says. "With the development of our tailbacks, particularly Gallaher, we should get that. We think Gallaher can be a premier player in our league and take some of the pressure off Lane."

Gallaher acknowledges that it took him most of his freshman season to learn how to play out of the "I" formation after running from the "wing-T" at Middletown High School.

Lane put a scare into the football team last spring when he contracted mononucleosis and his weight dropped below 150 pounds. But he's regained 20 pounds on his 5-foot-11 frame and says he's fully recovered.

The biggest question on defense is whether converted linebacker Andy Scott and Eric Napostol can fill the formidable holes left at the defensive ends by the departure of Mark Michaels and Mike McNamara.

Connecticut, a Division I-AA school, meets in-state rival Central Connecticut State University, a Division II school, in the football opener for both schools Saturday at Memorial Field in Storrs at 1 p.m. A good-sized crowd is expected for the first meeting ever between the schools.

Sufferers of jet lag have hope

Limit your caffeine and alcohol and take a walk

By Susan Vaughn
Herald Reporter

Surrounded by colorful travel posters, Gail Slover of Glastonbury opened a seminar in a Glastonbury travel agency recently by pointing to an ad with the slogan, "The sun never sets on British Airways."

Slover wasn't trying to give the airline free advertising. Rather, she was pointing out the phenomenon known as jet lag, a special kind of fatigue and disorientation which affects people who travel through time zones.

"I'm here tonight to give you moral support," she told about a dozen people. All were looking for ways to beat jet lag and each had paid $20 to $25 to attend her one-night seminar.

Slover bases her instruction on a program developed by Charles F. Ehret, author of the book, "Overcoming Jet Lag." The program involves diet, exercise and the timing of caffeine intake.

Slover calls herself a chronobiologist. She is specializing in a relatively new field of science that explores people's biological rhythms. A former biology teacher, Slover said she has done extensive research on chronobiology. The field is so new that there are few courses offered on the subject. She took a course on chronobiology in 1979 from the National Science Foundation, and she published many articles on the subject in scientific journals.

Slover said she is probably the only person in the United States who is conducting seminars on overcoming jet lag for the lay person.

"Our body is like a symphony with all of our rhythms having peaks at different times," she said. One example of body rhythm is body temperature, which usually peaks around 6 p.m. every day, she said.

"When we go through time zones, the body doesn't know what to do. It takes about one day for the body to adjust to each time zone," she said.

There are many factors that affect the degree of jet lag a person can suffer, Slover said. These include differences between eastbound and westbound travel and the number of time zones crossed.

Personality differences come into play, too, she said. Whether someone is most productive in the morning or in the evening can make a difference. Those with regimented lifestyles and those with flexible lifestyles are likely to react differently to jet lag. So are extroverts and introverts.

... jet lag expert

Morning people have an easier time traveling east because they find it easier to get up in the morning, Slover said. Night people, on the other hand, will travel to California or westbound, much easier because they can sleep later and get up later.

Traveling to Chicago "is no big deal," said Slover, but traveling to India, through 10 1/2 time zones, as some of the people in the seminar were planning to do, can raise havoc with the body's time clock.

INTROVERTS HAVE a harder time adjusting to a new time zone, particularly when traveling east, Slover said. She recommended that everyone, and especially introverts, leave their hotel rooms immediately upon arrival at their destination and get out and mix with people.

Regimented people will find it easier to use the three-step anti-jet lag program because it must be done on a prescribed schedule.

The plan starts three days before the trip. Diet alternates between "feast" days and "fast" days, with careful avoidance of caffeine except at prescribed times.

She advises travelers to plan their meals several days before the trip. Slover demonstrated a series of simple exercises the traveler should do on the plane one-half hour before destination.

FOLLOWING the program will not necessarily avoid all jet-lag symptoms, but should greatly minimize them, Slover said.

Sig Aune of Glastonbury, who had taken an earlier class with Slover, described his success with the anti-jet lag plan on a trip to Norway. "I followed the book closely, though I really didn't believe it," he said. He said he felt no jet lag in Norway, with a six-hour time zone difference.

Others who attended the seminar, such as Manchester resident Charles Ponticelli, said he'd probably try the jet lag program before his trip to India in November with the Friendship Force. Jack Jost of Manchester hoped to use it to prepare for his trip to Africa this month.

Slover said a jet lag pill is in the works, but is not yet on the market. But the anti-jet lag diet has been recognized enough now so that it will be attached to major airline tickets in about a year, Slover said.

Celebs blame goofs on 'lag'

For some international personalities, journalists, heads of state, diplomats, and even dancers and Olympic athletes, jet lag has proven to be more than just an inconvenience.

Former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles blamed his decision on the controversial Aswan Dam crisis in Egypt in the 1950s on weariness from jet travel.

Radio commentator Lowell Thomas collapsed from what was a suspected heart attack in 1963. It was later determined that it was really severe jet lag from crisscrossing the globe for months.

Greg Luginis, a 1979 finalist on the U.S. Olympic Diving Team, said jet lag was to blame for loss of his precision timing when he hit his head on a 10-meter platform during a reverse dive at the Olympic trials in Moscow.

Other famous international travelers, such as U.S. president Lyndon Johnson, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Ronald Reagan, have devised ways of trying to beat jet lag so that they can perform at their best during diplomatic talks.

For instance, Reagan, during a recent visit to Japan, made several stops along the way to ease the crossing through time zones.

On his international jaunts, LBJ stayed on U.S. time, adjusting his meetings with diplomats accordingly.

Volleyball officials needed for Rec

The Manchester Rec Department needs volleyball officials for the adult volleyball leagues. Anyone interested should contact Carl Silver at 647-3084.

'A' League needs another hoop team

The Manchester Rec Department has an opening for a team in the Men's Basketball League 'A' Division. Interested teams should contact Carl Silver at 647-3084. League play begins in November.

Swim Club tryouts set for Sept. 29

Tryouts for the Manchester Swim Club will be held Monday, Sept. 29 at 6 p.m. at the Manchester High School pool. Any boy or girl under 18-years-old is eligible. Candidates will be required to complete a 25-yard crawl stroke with proper breathing mechanics. Swimmers should bring a suit and towel. Parents will be given information about the club and its functions. Anyone not able to attend on the 29th may try out during the week, any day, at 5 p.m. For further information, call Coach Ron Anderson at 648-1025.

Perno joins The Dumont Group

BRISTOL — Dom Perno, former University of Connecticut basketball coach, has joined The Dumont Group, a Bristol-based insurance, real estate and financial services company, as vice president-corporate marketing. Perno said he selected the appointment after considering several offers from Connecticut and out-of-state corporations. Perno will spend the next three months acclimating himself to the business sector.

Jones and Butz cited by the NFC

NEW YORK — Running back James Jones of Detroit and defensive tackle Dave Butz of Washington were named co-defensive players of the week at the National Football Conference's offensive and defensive players of the week.

Jones carried 20 times for 174 yards as the Lions beat Minnesota 15-10 in his 30th career game in a Detroit single-game record he had held jointly with Billy Sims. Butz had eight tackles, including two sacks, in Washington's 31-14 NFL win over Philadelphia.

NFL lowers boom of Bears, Cards

CHICAGO — The National Football League has lowered the boom on the Chicago Bears and the St. Louis Cardinals, fining 51 players a total of $20,300 for their fight-marred Aug. 23 preseason game at Soldier Field.

The fines are in addition to the $2,000 levied earlier against Chicago defensive tackle William Perry for body-slaming Cardinals quarterback Neil Lomax. The fines announced against 25 St. Louis players reportedly ranged from $600 to $2,300 and totaled more than $15,000. Meanwhile, Chicago team officials said 26 Bears received fines between $600 and $1,500 for a total of $14,300.

Defending champ Maleeva wins

FUJISAWA, Japan — Defending champion Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria, the world's ninth-ranked women tennis player, defeated Grace Kim of the United States in straight sets to advance to the quarterfinals of the $300,000 Pan Pacific Open Tennis Tournament.

Others advancing to the quarterfinals were Maleeva's younger sister, Katerina, Americans Robin White, Melissa Gurney and Wendy White, and Catherine Tanvier of France. Steffi Graf of West Germany, ranked third in the world and the No. 1 seed, had a first round bye and meets Japan's Akiko Kijimura today in her first singles match.

Unseed Skoff upset tennis winner

STUTTGART, West Germany — Unseeded Horst Skoff of Austria upset Spain's Emilio Sanchez 6-1, 6-1 in the second round of the $188,350 Mercedes Cup Nabisco Grand Prix tennis tournament.

Other key match results saw Guillermo Vilas of Argentina defeat Barry Mohr; Paul McNamee of Australia down West Germany's Tore Meinecke; Cassio Motta of Brazil beat sixth-seeded Eric Jelen of West Germany and David de Miguel of Spain beat seventh-seeded Stobdan Zivjovic of Yugoslavia.

Andries retains his title

By Robert Millward
The Associated Press

LONDON — Dennis Andries confirmed his status as Britain's only world boxing champion, then wondered why he's not more popular in his own country.

After he stopped countryman Tony Sibson in the ninth round of their World Boxing Council title fight Wednesday, the 25-year-old Guyana-born light-heavyweight launched a verbal attack on his critic.

Asked why people did not appear to like him, Andries replied, "I don't know why. All I do is win. Britain should love me. We have had so many losers at soccer, cricket and tennis. It's time the British started to love the winners."

"We have got one world champion and people should learn to love the champion," Andries said. Although Andries fights out of London, the vast majority of the support at Alexandra Pavilion was for the 25-year-old challenger who hails from a town 100 miles to the north.

Andries, unbeaten for 414 years and holder of a 22-6 record, was even jeered as he stepped into the ring and Sibson, whose 66 other fights have been as a middleweight, delighted his fans by bending down to kiss the championship belt around Andries' waist.

Floored three times in the ninth round before British referee Sid Nathan stopped the bout, Sibson, 24-6-1, said he never got into the fight.

"I just couldn't get going," he said. "I got pretty lonely out there."

Sibson, who was stopped in six rounds by Marvellous Marvin Hagler three years ago in a bid to win the undisputed world middleweight title, had to bridge the 15-pound gap between the two weights.

Andries softened up the challenger with his jab and then battered him with combinations. Andries defended his unorthodox style by comparing it with Michael Spinks, who moved up from light heavyweight to become the International Boxing Federation heavyweight champion.

Advice

Wife wonders if encounter qualifies as husband's affair

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've been happily married for 10 years and you just don't do that. They say that if we couldn't afford a wedding, we shouldn't have one. I have been to very few weddings, but some did pass the hat and some did not. Neither way did I find improper or lucky. Please answer in the paper because like myself my mom reads your column regularly and this is not a topic I wish to discuss with her again unless necessary to her approval of the wedding. I am not a fan of the hat. I am not a fan of the hat. I am not a fan of the hat.

DEAR ABBY: Re family code words: During World War II, my "little brother" was in the infantry when he was being shipped out to a secret destination. How we worried and longed to know where! Then he sent a letter containing this sentence: "Please say hello to that little old lady who always passes by our house - I can't remember her name." Well, the lady's name was "Mrs. Solomon." Then we knew he was in Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands! Today my "little brother" is 6 feet tall and 65 years old, but I am still his loving... BIG SISTER IN SAN JOSE.

Disorder's effects not clear

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: For years ago, my daughter then 21, was diagnosed with endometriosis. The gynecologist told her she would have to have surgery. There were worse things in life than not being able to have children. Kids: What exactly is endometriosis, and how does it affect fertility? DEAR READER: Endometriosis is a disorder that has been estimated to affect 15 percent of women. It consists of an area of tissue that grows outside the uterus. These endometrial "islands" can be found on the uterine surface and elsewhere in the reproductive tract, as well as in scars, the bowel wall, and even the brain. No one knows what causes this abnormality. The symptoms depend on which organ is involved because endometrial tissue outside the uterus reacts to the hormones of the ovary. There may be worse things in life than not being able to become pregnant, but it seems to me that such a comment by a gynecologist and infertility often occur. As the misplaced endometrium bleeds month after month, it causes cysts that may have to be surgically removed.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My son, now 20, was born with hydrocephalus. He is mildly retarded, works slowly, forgets things, and has to have directions repeated over and over. Is this to be expected from the hydrocephalus? What causes hydrocephalus? Did I do something wrong during pregnancy? Was my doctor and labor was induced. My nephew also had this problem, but it corrected itself in a few months. DEAR READER: Hydrocephalus is a disease marked by a buildup of spinal-fluid pressure within the compartments of the brain. The pressure can result from excessive fluid production, deficient reabsorption, or blockage of the normal flow of fluid through the ventricles. As the pressure increases, it tends to compress normal brain tissue. In infants, the pressure causes enlargement of the head. Hydrocephalus can produce mental retardation and brain damage. The condition is the result of birth defects, infection injury or tumors. Surgery by shifting excess spinal fluid out of the brain is often successful in minimizing injury to sensitive nerve cells. But the operation must be performed early in the course of the disorder, before brain damage has taken place. I cannot say whether your son's hydrocephalus was related to your pregnancy or his birth. However, the mental consequences you slowly, forgets things, and has to

"I came to bring division, not peace... That's troubling to many people. How could Jesus have said something like that? In the context in which it was said, Jesus was a molecule that stimulates bone growth and may be the key to effective new treatments for osteoporosis and to healing fractures that fail to knit. Dr. Edward Puzas says the research is based on natural body processes for replacing lost bone tissue. Certain cells control this process by releasing a factor that causes generalized cells to become bone cells. Like this factor is a molecule called HBP, which causes unwanted bone growth in muscle tissue. Puzas thinks HBP could be used to stimulate bone growth where it is wanted as in unhealed fractures and osteoporosis.

Your Birthday
Sept. 12, 1986
The year ahead will be a very active one for you socially. You're going to participate in several new involvements that you've never tried before. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions in general are very favorable for you today and regardless of your involvements, your actions will win the approval of others. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Before today, you will be pleased with something that develops. It will benefit you materially. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21) The busier you are today, the better you will perform. When you press your pedal to the metal, you'll function with an effectiveness that may surprise even you. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Overall conditions look good for you today where your financial interests are concerned. More than one opportunity may present itself. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today, you are in the minds of several people who are proud to call you their friend. Don't be surprised if you get more phone calls than usual. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) In the past, you've done your fair share of good deeds for others. This is a day when they'll remember and you'll be on the receiving end. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Several friends will have helpful information for you today and they'll be eager to get in touch with you. Leave your where you can be reached. ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you have been putting forth your best efforts recently, the rewards you've been anticipating will start coming in. Your benefits could be substantial. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't discard ideas you get today even if they are more grandiose than your usual conceptions. Big plans have good chances of working. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Follow your own instincts in commercial matters today rather than the guidelines set down by others. You'll be able to spot beneficiaries who are not aware of it. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Good things could happen for you today, because you'll be lucky for your companions and they, in turn, will be lucky for you. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Dedicate your energies today to the biggest and most important task in that confronts you. You'll get the job done and you'll do it well.

Figuring out what you need
By James Jacoby
The right play in a suit is determined by how many tricks you need. Look at the spade suit in today's deal, which is taken from Frank Stewart's "Contract Bridge Quiz Book" (Prentice-Hall, 1986). To make six three-trump, you will need either three or four spade tricks, depending upon whether the heart finesse works. And your best percentage play is dictated by how many tricks the spade suit must provide.

Step one is to take the heart finesse. If that loses to the king in the West hand, then you are in the unfortunate position of needing four tricks in spades. You must hope that the spade queen is with West and that the suit divides 3-3. So you lead a spade to the jack and pray. Things are entirely different if East holds the heart king. Now you will win four heart tricks and therefore need only three tricks in spades. You can then afford to cash the king and ace of spades before leading up to dummy's jack. This is an insurance policy against the possibility that East holds the doubleton queen of spades. In bridge, one of the best times to take out insurance is when you are in a slam contract.

Youth indicted in park slaying

NEW YORK — A teenager was indicted in the strangulation of a girlfriend during a sexual tryst on a grassy knoll in Central Park.

Robert Chambers was charged with one count of intentional murder and a second count of conduct showing "depraved indifference to human life" in the death of Jennifer Levin, said District Attorney Robert Morgenthau.

"The evidence shows he cut off her air by applying substantial pressure to her neck for a substantial amount of time," Morgenthau said. The indictment was returned Tuesday.

A bicyclist found Levin dead on Aug. 26 in a patch of grass behind the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Police said her body, nude from the waist down, bore bruises and bites and her skirt was pushed up.

Chambers, 19, watched from nearby as detectives investigated the death scene, according to police. When arrested on Aug. 27, he had scratches on his face.

Chambers admitted he had killed Levin, 18, but said it happened accidentally while they were having rough sex.

Worker says Pentagon lab poor

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon's laboratory for identifying the remains of Americans killed in the Vietnam war is run by people who lack experience or scientific training to perform the delicate job, a former employee of the lab told Congress on Wednesday.

The criticism followed by Sam Dunlap to a House subcommittee the latest attack on the Army's Central Identification Laboratory, which has come under renewed scrutiny in the past year.

Pentagon and Army officials appeared before the House Armed Services investigations subcommittee and told the congressmen that the procedures are sound.

The lab in Hawaii is the chief site for identifying remains returned from Southeast Asia in recent years. Dozens of partial sets of bones and other remains have been returned in recent years, although the Pentagon says still lists 2,434 Americans as unaccounted for more than a decade after the end of the war.

Tanker spills oil in Delaware River

GIBBSTOWN, N.J. — A tanker spilled 150,000 gallons of crude oil into the Delaware River on Wednesday.

"The total environmental impact will not be determined until morning," said Coast Guard Lt. Jg. Aaron Davenport of the Gloucester City Station. "It's a major oil spill."

Late Wednesday night, a 10-mile oil sheen was present from the Commodore John Barry Bridge in Bridgeport to the mouth of the Schuylkill River in Philadelphia, Davenport said. The oil was expected to reach the New Jersey and Pennsylvania shores by morning.

The vessel, the Viking Osprey, was carrying 550,000 barrels of oil and was docking at the Mobil Oil Co. refinery when the spill was discovered at 2:40 p.m., Davenport said. The refinery is located across the river from Philadelphia.

The vessel, which is registered in Singapore, was under contract to deliver the oil to the refinery. Mobil spokesman Edward Koloski. A barrel is 42 gallons.

It was not known how the spill started, Davenport said.

Typhoon kills more than 100

BANGKOK, Thailand — More than 100 Vietnamese were killed and 800 injured when Typhoon Wayne swept through northern provinces of the communist nation, official Vietnamese radio said today.

The Voice of Vietnam broadcast, monitored in Bangkok, said the storm collapsed thousands of houses, uprooted trees and severed power and telephone lines in Thai Binh and Ha Nam Ninh provinces on Friday and Saturday.

Thousands of acres of rice fields were flooded by torrential rains that accompanied the typhoon, the radio said.

The radio said a few hours after the storm subsided, trucks were dispatched from Hanoi, the capital, and from other areas to Ha Nam Ninh, bringing medicines, clothing, building materials and other necessities.

Jury indicts two utilities

By Mark Fritz
The Associated Press

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — A grand jury has charged two utility companies and an engineer with lying to the government by claiming a nuclear plant complied with a safety rule that would have required costly modifications.

The companies named Wednesday in a nine-count federal indictment were Indiana and Michigan Electric of Fort Wayne Ind., which operates the Cook Nuclear Plant at Bridgman in southwest Michigan, and American Electric Power Service Corp., which provided technical and engineering services for the plant.

The corporations are subsidiaries of American Electric Power Co. of Columbus, Ohio.

Also indicted was Jude G. Del Percio, 33, of Sayville, N.Y., a senior nuclear engineer in American Electric Power Service's nuclear safety and licensing section.

The grand jury said the defendants "engaged in a pattern of criminal conduct" by telling the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in 1981 that the plant complied with a rule aimed at ensuring a safe, controllable shutdown in case of a fire.

"If control of the nuclear reactor is lost, sufficient heat may be generated to cause a reactor core meltdown," the indictment said.

American Electric Power spokesman John Brennan denied the charges.

"We're really shocked by this whole thing," he said. "I can tell you we intend to fight this situation vigorously."

The charges carry maximum penalties ranging from $5,000 to $10,000 in fines. The counts against Del Percio carry maximum prison terms ranging from two to 10 years.

The defendants are to be arraigned Sept. 22.

Nuclear power plants are required to have duplicate components, or backup systems, for shutting down a reactor. In 1980, the NRC issued new rules to ensure that a fire could not damage both shutdown systems.

American troops will stay in Bolivia

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — U.S. troops taking part in an anti-drug campaign aimed at destroying Bolivia's $600-million-a-year cocaine industry will remain for at least another month, the interior minister indicated.

The 170 Americans were scheduled to leave Sunday at the end of the two-month anti-drug campaign agreed upon in July by Bolivia and the U.S. government.

Interior Minister Fernando Barthelemy on Wednesday said his government had not officially requested a continued U.S. presence.

But he said if the Americans left now it would "provide drug traffickers with a truce during which time they could arm themselves and return with greater force."

Edward Rowell, U.S. ambassador to Bolivia, said recently: "We cannot pressure traffickers for one or two months and then leave."

The government says up to 90 percent of the drug trafficking in Bolivia has been halted since the U.S. troops arrived to help police uncover clandestine operations in the jungles of the Beni region.

One U.S. official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said:

"Most cocaine labs have shut down and traffickers taken a forced vacation waiting for the raids to end."

Barthelemy said the U.S. soldiers, six Black Hawk helicopters and communications equipment would remain at least 30 days but no more than 60 days. He said that would be long enough to train Bolivians to use the equipment. The U.S. government would provide.

The United States has not decided whether to donate or lease the helicopters, boats and other equipment Bolivia needs to combat the billion-dollar illicit drug industry, said U.S. officials in La Paz, speaking on condition they not be identified further.

American soldiers will remain until they complete the transfer of equipment and arrange for the training of Bolivian personnel, Barthelemy said.

The U.S. personnel arrived July 14 aboard five C-5A and C-41 transport planes to support drug police in destroying cocaine labs in the tropical flatlands east and northeast of La Paz.

Bolivian police, traveling by helicopter, have since raided at least 10 laboratories capable of producing a total of five tons of cocaine a week.

Studies link suicides to news, movies

By Daniel G. Honey
The Associated Press

BOSTON — Television movies that try to prevent suicides by increasing awareness of the tragedies may instead have the opposite effect, prompting teen-agers to kill themselves in imitation, a new study concludes.

Another report released today suggests that news accounts of suicides and even feature stories about the subject seem to trigger these deaths as well.

Both studies found increases in suicide attempts and deaths after the movies and news reports were broadcast. However, another researcher noted that neither of them showed that the victims had actually seen the programs.

"I think the important thing we have to do is examine the relationship between those stories and individuals," said Dr. James Mercy of the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. "We need to know whether a specific teen-ager saw the program and the effect it had on him."

The two studies were published in the New England Journal of Medicine, along with an editorial by Dr. Leon Eisenberg of Harvard Medical School, who said it's unclear how news and entertainment should handle suicide differently.

"I don't think we should not tell the public that the suicide rate is going up. That would be ridiculous," Eisenberg said in an interview. "Yet if this is right, that may be some sort of stimulus to people who are thinking about it. I don't know what the solution is."

The study by Dr. Madelyn S. Gould of Columbia University found that teen-age suicide attempts I opened while still working. Series E bonds currently worth approximately $11,000 and a $17,000 whole life insurance policy.

Two brokers advise me to liquidate the mutual funds and cash the E bonds. But the tax on the profit from the mutual fund shares and the tax on the accumulated E bond interest would kill me. Besides, the brokers want to sell me other things. That makes me suspicious.

Today there are more blocks in the United States than in any country except Nigeria or Zimbabwe, says National Geographic.

Surrogate mother is denied custody

By Pamela Brownstein
The Associated Press

HACKENSACK, N.J. — A judge has given temporary custody of a 5-month-old baby to the couple that agrees to pay for its birth, and is permitting the surrogate mother to visit the infant for just two hours a week.

The attorney for Mary Beth Whitehead, who gave birth to the baby, objected to Wednesday's ruling by Superior Court Judge Harvey Sorkow with an editorial in the national, according to the director of the New York City clinic that arranged it.

to terminate.

Whitehead has also said the pregnancy convinced her that surrogate parenthood is wrong because it is "playing God."

The legal battle over the contract's validity and custody of the child whom court papers refer to as "Baby M" is the first of its kind in the nation, according to the director of the New York City clinic that arranged it.

The court-designated visitation conditions stipulate two one-hour visits at a county child welfare home under the supervision of the baby's court-appointed attorney and sheriff's officers.

Whitehead, who has two other children, cared for and breast-fed Baby M until the infant was seized a month ago under court order.

Whitehead has not signed the $10,000 contract promised after birth, although the Sterns paid her hospital bills.

Surrogate mother Mary Beth Whitehead and her husband, Richard, leave the courthouse in Hackensack, N.J., Wednesday after a judge ruled that temporary custody of "Baby M" will remain with William Stern, the natural father, and his wife, Elizabeth. Whitehead won visitation rights of two hours a week under supervision.

BUSINESS Concerned retiree should relax

QUESTION: I am a 61-year-old, single, retired female, receiving $22,596 annually from an annuity. I pay $272 monthly on my home mortgage, which has a $23,000 balance and 19 more years to run.

Investors' Guide
William A. Doyle

Actually, I feel "rich." But I scream a lot every April 15. What should a person in my situation do to stop so much going up in tax smoke?

ANSWER: Try relaxing and enjoying retirement. You're far better off than most people who write to this column.

You have a well-diversified investment portfolio. Some changes should be made and others could be made. But there's no real need for drastic revisions of your holdings.

First, move most of the money out of that low-interest savings account. The tax-free mutual fund would be a logical place to put it. As your T bills and CDs mature, you can shift more money there.

You're wise to hold off redeeming the mutual fund shares and the E bonds until you're in absolute need of money, thereby postponing additional taxes.

With your income, you should have no trouble living well. So, if you're not already doing so, arrange to have your mutual fund dividends reinvested to buy more shares. That way, the total value of your fund holdings should increase.

You might consider putting more into a tax-deferred annuity, where you won't pay tax until you make withdrawals. But I've never been enamored with annuities, because of the high commissions and/or other fees, some of which are hidden.

We all "scream," a little or a lot, come April 15. That's the price we pay for monstrous government.

QUESTION: I am a woman, 32, single and a captain in the Air Force with a possible chance of retiring. I have no investments. I want to put $2,000 into an individual retirement account for 1986, even though I am aware I might not be able to make IRA contributions for future years because of the new federal tax law.

I am confused by the choices of IRA investments — high risk, low risk, no risk, etc. What would you recommend?

ANSWER: For a young person putting money away for the long

New camera

A toy maker's staff member demonstrates how to load an automatic pocket-sized camera into a small radio-controlled vehicle called "Radica" at the Tokyo Toy Fair recently. By using a control unit, you can click the shutter, flash lights, wind the 110-film cartridge and change its standard lens angle up to 90 degrees. The battery-powered Radica may be marketed in the near future at about 105 U.S. dollars

Business In Brief

Mary Kay's Williams receives honor

Donna Williams of Coventry was honored for being one of the top saleswomen in the Mary Kay Cosmetics organization at a recent convention.

Chairman of the Board Mary Kay Ash named Williams as a consultant of Personal Sales, placing her among the top 1 percent in Mary Kay nationwide. Approximately 6,000 saleswomen and sales directors attended the gala awards event, the climax of Mary Kay's national seminar.

Four consecutive three-day meetings were needed this year to accommodate the nearly 25,000 independent businesswomen arriving at the Dallas Convention Center for product and sales training, motivation and recognition.

DeLucco joins real estate firm

John T. DeLucco Jr. has joined Corrent & LaPenta Real Estate of Manchester as a realtor.

DeLucco, a Manchester native, graduated from Manchester High School in 1973 and attended Manchester Community College. At the college, DeLucco concentrated his studies on mathematics and business law and said recently that he specializes in all phases of real estate — especially commercial, residential and industrial.

This will be his first full-time job in the real estate industry, he said.

Smith attends skills seminar

Ginny Smith, supervisor with AAA Travel in Manchester, recently participated in a seminar on communication skills in Cambridge, Mass., sponsored by the National Institute of Travel Agents.

A resident of Manchester, Smith is active in the Wellesley, Mass.-based Institute of Certified Travel Agents, which awards the nationally-known CTC (Certified Travel Counselor) designation to travel industry professionals. To earn the CTC — similar to the accounting industry's CPA or the insurance industry's CLU — candidates complete four graduate-level, travel management courses and a special project. They also pass four, 4-hour exams and acquire at least five years' full-time travel industry experience.

Over 7,800 CTCs have been certified to date, and there are more than 7,000 candidates nationwide studying for the designation.

Bellew joins Mintz & Hoke

Jan Beehner Bellew has joined Mintz & Hoke Advertising and Public Relations of Avon as public relations account supervisor for several agency accounts.

Bellew comes to Mintz & Hoke from CIGNA Corp. in Hartford, where she was manager of communications for the Individual Financial Group. Before that, she was senior account executive at Dorn Public Relations in Minneapolis, Minn., where she supervised such accounts as Ciba-Geigy, Honeywell and Van Dusen Air.

She also has been an account executive for Gibbs & Soell Public Relations in Carmel, Calif., where she handled national publicity for Chevron Chemical Company's Ortho Division.

A resident of Manchester, Bellew has been with Mintz & Hoke for her public relations work in both print and broadcast media.

Pirkey qualifies for council

Agent Ronald Pirkey of Manchester has qualified as a member of the 1986 Executive Council of New York Life Insurance Company, according to Paul B. Gavvita, general manager of the company's Hartford general office in Rocky Hill.

Council membership is based on 1985-86 sales performance. As an Executive Council member, Pirkey is invited to attend a three-day educational conference at Champion, Pennsylvania.

CBS founder named to lead network

By Fred Rothenberg
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — William S. Paley, the 84-year-old founder of CBS, has returned to lead the network after turbulent months marked by hostile takeover bids, plummeting ratings and public criticism by some of its stars.

The CBS Inc. board named Paley and Laurence A. Tisch, who controls the largest block of CBS stock, to replace Thomas H. Wyman, who resigned Wednesday under pressure. CBS said Paley would be chairman and Tisch, chief executive officer, until a replacement could be found for Wyman, who held both posts.

The first word of the shakeup came in a dramatic ad-libbed announcement by anchor Dan Rather at the end of 7 p.m. "CBS Evening News."

An industry source with access to the board meeting said Wyman came to the meeting with proposals to relieve the tension within the board and the company. The proposals were well-received, the source said, but Paley and Tisch were immovable and irrefutable.

"The Paley-Tisch faction didn't have a majority of votes, but had 33 percent of the stock and was able to influence the proceedings, and Wyman's resignation was a surprise," said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Loews Corp. conglomerate said

"I think the main job now is bring the company back to the standards and heights that Mr. Paley set for this company over his many years in charge of this company."

Tisch said he will serve until a new chief executive officer is selected.

Paley, a cigar-maker's son who bought a struggling radio network for $400,000 in 1928, controlled CBS for more than half a century as president or board chairman of its radio and TV networks and its film, publishing, recording and other subsidiaries.

His return was viewed by some within the industry as symbolic and his actual role in the day-to-day running of CBS would likely be smaller than when he ruled the Columbia Broadcasting System with an iron hand.

His 8 percent block of shares is the second-largest.

Before the announcement CBS stock fell $3.75 a share to close $140 in New York Stock Exchange composite trading with 258,700 shares trading hands.

In addition to the ratings slump, CBS last year had to fend off takeover bids by broadcaster Turner and supporters of conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. The battles were costly, however, and CBS announced last summer it would buy back more than a fifth of its outstanding shares for nearly $1 billion.

Good schools called key to U.S. edge

By Mike Robinson
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Sharpening America's competitive edge requires better schools and high-tech development as well as a partnership between business and labor, according to a Senate Democratic study group.

"The alternative, which is going out of work, is becoming increasingly clear," Sen. John D. Rockefeller IV, D-W.Va., told a news conference Wednesday called after the Senate Democratic Working Group on Economic Competitiveness.

A set of proposals unveiled by the group ranged from stepped-up technological development to an independent Council on Industrial Competitiveness that would propose initiatives to the president and Congress.

The senators said the concepts were along the lines of a January 1985 report by the President's Commission on Industrial Competitiveness, which called U.S. industry a laggard in productivity, research and development in comparison to the Germans and Japanese.

The chairman of the Democratic group, Sen. Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M., said the proposals were being offered with only a few weeks to go in the congressional session in recognition that "most of the work will have to be done next year."

He also emphasized that the recommendations were not trade measures such as the tariffs and quotas debated in Congress over the last two years. Instead, he said, they were designed to spur U.S. competitiveness, a term increasingly tied to product quality and productivity.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige told the House Energy and Commerce Committee on Tuesday that U.S. companies could not be competitive until they regained control of quality and costs that was lost in the 1960s and 70s.

entering or leaving the workforce

The recommendations were:

- Improved and broader dissemination of information about technological developments in Germany, Japan and other nations where trailblazing research is taking place.
- Support for "excellence in development of U.S. technology."
- "Excellence" in education and training for all Americans.
- Greater mobility for workers moving from one job to another or entering or leaving the workforce.

• And an independent Council on Industrial Competitiveness that would enable business, labor, the academic community, government and public interest groups to work together "to meet the competitiveness challenge."

Q = At what time of day do you feel your best: in the morning, the afternoon, or the evening?

back of the head with a pistol but he was forced out the campus seafont faculty gate and bundled into the trunk of a waiting car. Police reported finding blood stains and Cicippio's broken eyeglasses near the gate.
West Beirut was the scene of a spate of kidnappings and assassinations in 1984 and 1985 after Moslem militias wrested control of the sector from the Lebanese school's acting controller, who was kidnapped at 6:45 a.m. at the door to his campus apartment building in Moslem west Beirut.
There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the abduction. Police said witnesses told them one gunman hit Cicippio on the
