Across the nation

Heavy rains ended Friday in southeastern South Dakota and western Iowa, where rivers and streams remained at or near flood stage, while scattered showers and thunderstorms reached much of rest of the nation.

Flash flood watches were posted in south-central Iowa, where Shannon City got 6 1/4 inches of rain in the 24 hours ending at 3 p.m. EDT, and for South Dakota's Big Sioux, Vermillion and James river basins.

The record 4.42 inches of rain recorded so far this month in Sioux Falls, S.D., is an inch shy of its record for any month, while nearly 13 inches of rain has fallen 6 miles southeast of the city.

Elsewhere, showers and thunderstorms were scattered from eastern Missouri across Illinois into the lower Ohio Valley and Tennessee valleys, over the southern Texas and southwest Louisiana.

Rain also extended from northern California and southern Oregon across northern Idaho, and from parts of Montana across North Dakota and Minnesota into Wisconsin and western lower Michigan.

Snow was fell in the higher elevations of the Sierra Nevada mountains and the northern Rockies, and a travelers advisory for blowing dust was posted for the Antelope Valley and the Mojave Desert of southern California.

Midday temperatures ranged from the 40s over portions of the northern Rockies to the 90s over much of the southern Plains, the lower Mississippi Valley and southern California.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EDT ranged from 37 degrees at Yellowstone Park, Wyo., to 98 degrees at Cotulla, Texas. The low for the nation this morning was 24 degrees at Laramie, Wyo., Bryce Canyon, Utah, and Gunnison, Colo.

Ford winds up humor seminar

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Richard Nixon, asked to describe the biggest joke of his administration, relayed the question on presidential humor, replied, "John Dean."

Charles Manatt, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, relayed the question and answer Friday at Gerald Ford's three-day Humor and the Presidency Symposium conference in Grand Rapids.

Manatt said he saw Nixon on an airplane Tuesday.

"I asked the president what was the biggest joke of his administration, and he simply said 'John Dean,'" Manatt said. "But he also said 'Be sure and tell Jerry that Nixon's the one.'"

Lyn Nofziger, another panel member, said that 1968 Nixon slogan came back to haunt the administration. "Somebody once put up a drawing of a very pregnant girl and under it 'Nixon's the one,'" he said.

The symposium features various panel discussions on the effects and history of humor in the presidency.

Participants included comedians Chevy Chase, Mark Russell and Pat Paulsen, as well as a number of former presidential aides.

At a news conference after the symposium, Ford said he would like to see his museum become a repository of presidential humor.

"I think we started the process by which humor in the presidency and the White House can be recognized," he said.

Robert Barrett, a former Ford consultant who came up with the idea of the symposium, said many were taken aback when they received Ford's invitation.

"When the first letters went out it was thought that Ford was not the likely host of it," he said. "When he wrote to people, he said there are two ways to be an expert on humor: to be a victim of it and to be a perpetrator."

"He said 'I've been bugged by humor for a long time. My all-time favorite is Thursday night's sold-out performance by conference participants, including Ford's debut as a stand-up comic, most events were restricted to invitation-only crowds of 200."

Television rights were sold to Home Box Office Inc.

Guido Sarducci recruits priests

CHICAGO (AP) — Father Guido Sarducci has a new calling.

The caricature of a Roman Catholic priest, the "alter" of comedian Don Novello, is recruiting for an order of missionaries.

Sarducci, wearing his white-brim hat and clerical collar, appears in a full-page, one-time advertisement in Newsweek's college edition.

"Eat free at Italian restaurants," proclaims the headline over a photograph of Novello eating a plate of spaghetti.

Sarducci promises prospective priests such "padre perks" as "sleeping late, getting first crack at parish rummage sales and helping your fellow man."

The ad is part of a recruiting effort by the Missionary Oblates of Mary Immaculate, which has about 6,000 priests and brothers around the world.

Campaign Notes

Swenson plans fund raiser

State Rep. Elsie "Big" Swenson, R-Manchester, has scheduled a fund raiser Sept. 28 to help her re-election campaign for the 13th Assembly District.

The event will be held at 1 p.m. at her home at 580 Porter St. Swenson is seeking her fourth term in the 13th District, which includes most of southern Manchester. She is being challenged by Democrat John Thompson and Independent Edward Wilson.

Swenson said Friday one of the major issues of her campaign will be helping young people, particularly teenagers. She said she supports changing a current state law that requires police to release arrested youths after six hours.

Swenson said she has been arrested after being released late at night and have nowhere to go. She said if elected she will propose that police be allowed to hold such offenders longer.

In another matter, Swenson said she received a 100 percent ranking from the National Federation of Independent Business, an organization which evaluated the voting records of state legislators on issues of importance to small businesses.

Imelda denies all

Imelda Marcos, former first lady of the Philippines, insists she has no weakness for shoes, and that stories about her footwear collection, her wardrobe and her wealth are exaggerations.

"I wear very simple shoes which are pump shoes. It is not one of my weaknesses," Mrs. Marcos said in an interview to be broadcast on the CBS News program "60 Minutes" on Sunday.

The 3,000 shoes left behind at the presidential palace when Mrs. Marcos and her husband, former president Ferdinand Marcos, fled the Philippines were not all hers, she contended.

"I'm sure I don't have 3,000 pairs," she said.

Mrs. Marcos told interviewer Diane Sawyer that she and her husband now have no money, denying that they have a fortune in Swiss bank accounts. She also said she believes she is judged unfairly for her efforts to be beautiful.

"You see Dynasty, you see Dallas, and you see all of these beautiful women and beautiful people, and if it is for the white (people), it is correct, but if it is someone who comes from a Third World country like me, who has skin colored brown, it (does) not seem right," Mrs. Marcos said. "And yet it is a basic human right to reach for excellence, for life, for love and beauty and God."

Manchester/Area Towns in Brief

Listing available for disabled

COVENTRY — Senior citizens and disabled residents who want to be on the town's emergency list can call the Social Services office at 742-5324.

Those included on the list would be checked on during severe storms or emergencies. The listing is free.

Surplus topic of public hearing

ANDOVER — Townspeople will be asked how the town should spend $22,600 it is receiving as part of the state Town Improvement Program at a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the town office building.

Under the state program, part of the state surplus is being given to each of Connecticut's municipalities. Local allocation councils, composed of local legislators, are being set up to decide how to use the funds.

The Board of Selectmen must submit a spending plan to the council, which must then approve the plan before it can be put into action.

Retirement party set for Hesketh

A retirement luncheon will be held Oct. 2 for Peg Hesketh, a town of Manchester employee for the past 15 years.

Hesketh is a secretary in the Building Division. Before taking her present position, she worked at the Mayfair Gardens office of the Manchester Housing Authority and in the town's Engineering Division.

Her retirement luncheon will be held at the Manchester Country Club beginning at noon.

Tickets may be purchased until Sept. 26 from Gail Slater or Anita Verotta of the Building Division, Phyllis Derrick of the general manager's office, Sybil Zalcman of the Sanitation and Highway Division, or from Lillian Rubin or Barbara Monahan, retired town employees.

Bolton road painting scheduled

Crews will begin painting road markings on Interstate 394 from the junction of Silver Lane to the end of the highway in Bolton Notch, the state Department of Transportation has announced.

The work, which involves the painting of stop bars, lane-use arrows, lane lines, wrong-way arrows and crosswalks at exit ramps, should be finished within the next two months, the DOT said. The work is being done by Allied Striping, Inc. of Warrenton, Va., for $46,135, an amount which includes the painting of three other roads.

The project is being paid for entirely with federal funds, the DOT said.

Meeting set on mall funding

The Board of Directors and the Economic Development Commission have scheduled a meeting Monday to discuss a financing plan for public improvements for the proposed Buckland Hills Mall. The meeting is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. at the Lincoln Center.

The two panels will try to iron out details of a tax increment plan under which the town would pay up to $15 million for financing plan for public improvements for the proposed Buckland Hills Mall. The meeting is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. at the Lincoln Center.

Union talks may focus on school year

By Alex Girelli
and George Lovyn
The Manchester Herald

A longer working year for teachers might be one of the demands the town will make of the teachers' union when talks between the two sides begin in October over raising salaries, a member of the Manchester Board of Education said Friday.

While some board members refused to say what, if any, conditions the town might set for the talks, board member Richard Dyer said he felt there should be some consideration of a longer working year. Dyer, a Democrat, did not say how much longer teachers should work.

Catherine Mazzotta, head of the Manchester Education Association, the union that represents more than 500 public school teachers, said Friday that if the work year is extended more than one or two days beyond the current 180-day year, the union would want teachers to be paid more money.

"Negotiations between the MEA and the town are expected to be reopened by mid-October. A new three-year teacher contract was negotiated last year and took effect July 1.

However, the Connecticut General Assembly passed an education-aid bill in June, known as the Education Enhancement Act, which provides towns with education aid and money to raise salaries if municipalities open negotiations.

Under the legislation, Manchester could receive more than $4.2 million over three years if a new agreement is reached. Assistant School Superintendent Wilson E. Deakin Jr. said this week he does not expect any difficulties during the negotiations, and a pact should be reached by mid-November.

Mazzotta said Friday she will not know how the negotiations will go until preliminary talks are held in early October. However, if the contract has to be reopened if we are to get the (general education aid) money," said Republican Gloria D. DellaFera. She said she was confident the two sides would settle the issue soon.

"Teachers are going to be happy with the results," DellaFera said.

not be asked, she said.

The town Board of Directors this week authorized the school board to reopen negotiations with the MEA. The Board of Education is scheduled to decide Monday if it wants to begin talks.

A poll of school board members by the Manchester Herald on Friday found that there was no opposition to the talks.

"I would suppose it's a fair accomplishment as a result of the law," said Dyer. He said he hoped talks were limited to teacher raises. "I hope we would not be back and reinvent the wheel."

Republican Anne J. Gouvin also was reluctant to discuss the conditions of the talks, but said the Education Enhancement Act should help teachers. "It provides an excellent opportunity to bring teachers to a salary level that teachers have deserved."

"The contract has to be reopened if we are to get the (general education aid) money," said Republican Gloria D. DellaFera. She said she was confident the two sides would settle the issue soon.

"Teachers are going to be happy with the results," DellaFera said.

"The teachers and the administration are going to work it out in a reasonable matter," said Dyer. "I think it's very good idea," Democrat Susan Perkins said of the legislation. "The town stands to get a good sum of money."

Perkins said she was opposed to any preconditions for the negotiations. "We have to begin somewhere to reopen the talks," she said.

"I think we have to open it," said Republican H. John Malone. "I think it's the law."

Malone said the current contract, which provides for a 12 percent increase, is already generous for teachers. He said he was against any preconditions for the negotiations.

Democrat Francis A. Maffe Jr. said the state law would provide teachers with a good salary. However, he said he was concerned with what happens when the education act expires in three years.

Maffe warned that once state money is no longer provided, many smaller rural towns will be able to maintain the salary levels.

MEA backs McCavanagh and Meotti

By George Lovyn
Herald Reporter

State Rep. James R. McCavanagh, D-Manchester, and Michael Meotti of Glastonbury, the Democratic candidate in the 4th Senatorial District, have won the support of the Manchester Education Association, the union that represents more than 500 public school teachers.

MEA President Catherine Mazzotta said Friday the two received the group's support because of interviews that were conducted earlier this month with them and their Republican opponents. Mazzotta said McCavanagh's voting record and Meotti's experience on the Glastonbury Board of Education also played a part in the decision.

Meotti is challenging incumbent Sen. Carl A. Zinsner, R-Manchester, in the 4th District, which includes Manchester, Glas-tonbury, Bolton Hebron and Columbia. Mazzotta said Zinsner doesn't support raising teacher salaries, based on his responses to interview questions and his voting record over his past three terms.

While noting that Zinsner supported the Education Enhancement Act, which was passed this summer by the Republican-controlled General Assembly, Mazzotta said Zinsner opposed the plan to raise teacher salaries proposed by Democratic Gov. William A. O'Neill.

Zinsner has said he favors the Republican plan because it does not require towns to raise teachers' salaries, but strongly encourages them to do so. Under the governor's plan, towns would have to be required to increase salaries.

Zinsner did favor using some state surplus money for education, instead of distributing the funds to towns for them to spend as they chose. However, Mazzotta contended that Zinsner wanted the surplus to be used for areas other than salaries.

Zinsner said he disagreed with Mazzotta's comments, but declined to elaborate. "I will not dignify that comment with a response. I will let the voters decide."

Mazzotta said the MEA is not partial toward Democratic candidates. Many Manchester teachers are Republicans, she noted. In addition, before the MEA endorsement became official, they were approved by the union's executive board and representatives from each of Manchester's public schools, she said.

Mazzotta said McCavanagh, who represents the 12th Assembly District, rated a 100 on his votes on educational issues, according to a survey by the Connecticut Education Association. Republican John Tucci, McCavanagh's opponent in the district, which includes most of northern Manchester, said Friday he disagreed with the MEA on a number of issues.

Tucci said he does not support equal minimum salaries for all teachers. He said gym and home economics instructors should not earn as much as science, math or English teachers.

No endorsement was made for the three candidates running in the 13th Assembly District, which covers most of southern Manchester. Mazzotta said the candidates, Republican incumbent Elsie "Big" Swenson, Democratic challenger John W. Thompson and Independent Edward J. Wilson, each supported the MEA's stands and goals for education.

Although the MEA has supported Thompson in his past two unsuccessful campaigns against Swenson, Mazzotta said Swenson was strongly supported education her past two years in office.

MANCHESTER, N.H. — If your champagne cork goes "pop" instead of "puff," you're doing it all wrong. According to Bill Kroesing, president of Freixenet U.S.A., champagne and sparkling wine corks should not be shot out of the bottle with a resounding pop. Here's how to do it correctly: after removing the foil and wire harness, slant the bottle at a 45-degree angle away from you and your guests. Grip the cork and slowly rotate the bottle. The cork should ease out with a discreet puff.

If there is any leftover bubbly, place the handle of a silver spoon down the neck of the bottle, then refrigerate it, Kroesing suggests. The spoon helps to retain the bubbles and freshness without an additional covering. Reusable corks or bottle stoppers are also available.

Yale's president comes from line of dirt farmers

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Yale University President Benno C. Schmidt Jr. says he may not exactly fit the upper-class, white, Anglo-Saxon, Protestant mold set by many of his predecessors.

"I don't want to describe an artificial deviation from a group that I think is fine, but I come from a background of west Texas dirt farmers," he said this week in an interview with the New Haven Register.

Schmidt, 46, was scheduled to be formally installed in his new job as head of the Ivy League school on Saturday. The former dean of the Columbia Law School took over the position from A. Bartlett Giamatti on July 1.

Schmidt is the son of a wealthy businessman. He graduated from Phillips Exeter Academy in 1959, Yale College in 1963 and Yale Law School in 1966. He is Protestant.

His father, Benno C. Schmidt, is chairman of Memorial-Sloan Kettering Cancer Center, a lawyer and a law professor who helped found the nation's first venture-capital firm.

The Yale president said his paternal grandfather ran a household of "tremendous dignity and culture but didn't have two blades to rub together."

He said his maternal grandfather was "only a little better off. He ran a shoe store. He was a successful, great gentleman who took good care to see my shoes fit when I was a kid."

Wearing a brown tweed jacket with a white handkerchief jutting from a pocket, Schmidt leaned back in a 200-year-old rocking chair that was said to be a favorite of former Yale President Ezra Stiles.

"There's still a lot of west Texas dirt between my toes," he said. "Besides, most WASPs who fit the stereotype you're talking about don't have a first name like Benno."

Schmidt said his first job that required a necktie was during his college junior summer when he worked as an aide for former New York Congressman John Lindsay in Washington. Schmidt said that job spurred his interest in law.

Prior to that, Schmidt said he worked odd jobs in pipeline construction in the southern United States.

He also worked on the construction of Constitution Plaza in Hartford, he said. He was a unionized "hod carrier" and hauled wheelbarrows filled with masonry.

"I used to be scared to death on the high floors," he recalled.

Schmidt had a bit part as a physician in Woody Allen's recent movie, "Hannah and Her Sisters." In the movie, he matter-of-factly informed Allen's character and his wife that they probably wouldn't have children.

Schmidt said the casting director of the film chose him for the role because the "thought I had an appropriate bedside manner."

Schmidt seemed to ponder seriously light questions, such as one about his hobbies.

"Hmmm," he said. "I have a fairly serious interest in music of all kinds but mostly classical now."

He said Mozart's Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola is his and his wife's "candidate for the most beautiful piece of music ever written in the symphonic repertoire."

Schmidt jogs and plays tennis and is also a self-confessed hockey fanatic. His team is the New York Rangers.

Among the few personal possessions in his office is a photograph of 1923 Yale graduate Bob Brooke, a forward with the Rangers.

Reagan's daughter stumps for Belaga

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Maureen Reagan called on Connecticut Republicans on Friday to work for GOP gubernatorial candidate Julie D. Belaga because her campaign "is a great opportunity" for the state and nation.

President Reagan's daughter was in Hartford to lead a Belaga fund-raiser, which raised about $34,000 for the campaign. Ms. Reagan also gave Belaga a check for $5,000 from the Republican Governors' Association.

"She is going to make a difference for the entire United States, not just Connecticut," Ms. Reagan told a cheering luncheon crowd. Some 170 tickets were sold for $200 apiece.

Asked if her presence carried with it an endorsement for Belaga from the president, Ms. Reagan said: "My father endorses all Republican candidates."

The president, she said, "is very keen on this race."

Belaga is challenging Democratic Gov. William A. O'Neill, who is seeking a second full term in November. Also on the ballot will be Unaffiliated Party gubernatorial candidate Frank Longo.

Ms. Reagan, the incoming co-chair of the Republican National Committee, accepted Belaga's invitation to speak in Hartford in August, several weeks before Belaga won a three-way primary for the GOP nomination.

"I had my own assessment of who was going to win that race," Ms. Reagan said. If Belaga had lost, Ms. Reagan said she would still have traveled to Hartford to help pay off any Belaga campaign debts. She promised to return at least once more before the Nov. 4 election.

Ms. Reagan said there are about 1,200 Republican women running for office this year and that five of the eight women running for governor this year are Republicans.

She said she had no immediate plans to seek office, but said she couldn't rule it out. For now, she said, her ambition is to make the Republican Party the country's majority party.

Elm tree holds up Ridgefield's plans

ELM TREE ON MAIN STREET center of controversy

RIDGEFIELD (AP) — For the past year, 75-foot elm tree on Main Street has been the center of attention, holding up the town's attempt to alleviate a traffic snarl and grant a super-market's wish to expand.

Hundreds of citizens have purchased purple "Save the Elm" T-shirts and more than 2,000 citizens have signed a petition in favor of keeping the 70-year-old tree. Red, white and blue string and yellow ribbons also have been tied around the elm.

Town plans for improving Main Street originally called for removing the tree, but they have been changed because of the controversy. Officials now have several proposals, all of which would keep the tree intact.

Still, some citizens say the proposals would still "mangle" the tree.

"You can only go so far toward that tree without doing damage, or it will kill the tree," said Maureen Glaser, a Ridgefield resident for 19 years and a leader of the citizens' group. "They would not cut the tree down today, but they would give the tree a slow death."

The supermarket's lawyer says Grand Union has the right to cut down the tree because the town has approved its $2.6 million expansion plan.

Attorney Rex Gustafson of Ridgefield said, however, Grand Union has agreed to several plans and has offered three proposals that would let the tree stand.

"The bottom line is Grand Union has the right to make the complete realignment and cut the tree down... but they want to cooperate and they're exploring other options, which would allow the tree to stay," Gustafson said.

Meanwhile, the town conducted a study last year to determine how to handle current and future traffic volumes. Last week, the town's Planning and Zoning Commission chose to table any decision.

Oswald Ingles, the town's planning director, said the commission tabled the action last week because its members want to find out how Main Street can be widened without hurting the tree. He said he expects the topic to be on this week's agenda.

"This isn't over yet," Gustafson said. "There are still those members of planning and zoning that feel any realignment could jeopardize the elm tree. But we have a special permit that allows us to start remodeling and construction and we will leave the realignment to the very end."

The citizens' group has contacted the Elm Research Institute in New Hampshire.

Better job needed on town roads

When the repaving jobs around Manchester are finished this fall, motorists will no longer have to worry about traveling to the stores through obstacle courses designed by state and town officials, and they probably won't have to get their cars aligned quite as often.

But completion of this year's projects will be no reason for highway officials to breathe easy. They should have a busy winter ahead of them, figuring out how to do a better job next year.

There's little question that the projects undertaken this year were necessary — including work on such busy thoroughfares as East Center and Vernon streets. Engineers found that repeated repaving had left street levels too high, interfering with drainage and causing other problems. That meant stripping the old surface to the base in many cases, leading to the discovery of woes long hidden.

Granted, it takes time to resolve such difficulties. Additional work is needed, and different contractors sometimes must be called in.

At the same time, the agony has lasted far longer than necessary. Tales abound about equipment standing idle for days at a time, and officials have admitted abominable coordination in some instances. The inefficiencies have produced frustrated drivers, abused vehicles and traffic tie-ups.

Even now, little is certain. Crews have fallen behind schedule, some streets remain striped, and East Center Street — the worst of the lot — will reportedly be only "80 percent" smoother until it is finished in October.

Perhaps it's fortunate that the cold months offer a chance for those who manage Manchester to practice coordination as they clear snow and ice from town streets. For motorists, the winter will provide the time to file damage claims; for their cars, it will be a recuperation period.

Whatever the reasons for the debacle that is about to end, they aren't sufficient to justify a repeat performance when road work commences again next spring.

TLC deserves help

It took the Transitional Living Center Foundation years to get this far. And now that the goal is near, the group needs a hand from the community.

The foundation, as many are aware, has been working toward opening a group home that will let emotionally troubled teenagers stay in town instead of being sent elsewhere for school. It has succeeded in changing the zoning regulations, finding a site and nailing down most other angles.

Two weeks ago, TLC officers — armed with a challenge grant from the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving — started the last leg of their journey, seeking funds from townspeople and local businesses. As of midweek, they had raised $15,000 of the $100,000 needed to gain the rest of the money pledged in the challenge grant.

When TLC opens its North Street group home in January, it will be giving deserving young people from Manchester a vital boost and saving the taxpayers money as well. Townspeople should do their part, as should any business looking for a worthy place to send a tax-deductible contribution. The address is TLC c/o William DiVeso, Manchester Youth Services, 494 Main St., Manchester 06040. Checks should be made out to TLC Foundation Inc.

All are Turkish Jews and South Africans

By Chuck Stone

An American educator kidnapped by Arabs. A reporter held hostage by Russians. Two Americans killed during the Karachi hijacking.

Once again, Americans are outraged over this nation's impotence in preventing a worldwide debauching of our citizens. We demand some kind of action to rectify these grievances.

Yet there is a weakness in our moral resolve. We will place a higher priority on individual desecrations of our national integrity than on mass murders in other countries.

A depressing case in point is the massacre of 21 Turkish Jews while they were worshipping in their Istanbul synagogue.

TERRORISTS ARE SAVAGES. They succeeded universally because there is no universal outrage.

Within hours of the atrocity in Turkey, spokesmen for worldwide Jewish groups, few Arab organizations, Israeli officials and President Reagan swiftly condemned the barbarism.

But they were lonely voices. There was no massive outpouring of indignation by the world's national leaders and religious authorities, none of whom attended the funeral service in Istanbul.

A few days ago, a long article in The New York Times was headlined: "The Roots of Terrorism Are

Public hearing needed on club

To the Editor:

The following is a copy of my remarks at a recent meeting of the Manchester Board of Directors.

A few weeks ago I stood here and expressed my concern in regards to the apparent sexual discrimination which had been publicly taking place at the Manchester Country Club. I also expressed my pleasure that this board was taking its rightful position in making sure this discrimination cease.

After sitting back down, however, I heard a number of other concerns expressed by Manchester taxpayers in regards to the Country Club — concerns I have heard expressed here off and on in eight years of attending Board of Directors meetings. As I have thought back through those years I remember concerned looks from members of the board and a few "we'll look into it."

This time around the board has referred the concerns to its country club subcommittee, and this time I certainly hope it comes back to this full board with a report and recommendations.

The concern expressed here a few weeks ago, and at other times in the past is that a type of economic discrimination is taking place at the country club. People who have identified themselves as "blue collar" type members feel they are being treated unfairly by the leadership of this publicly owned country club. I guess the major question is, "Are they?" As someone who does not belong to the country club, I honestly do not know. I do know, however, and firmly believe that if deep concerns and allegations are being expressed, this Board of Directors, the leadership of Manchester, the landlords of this club, have not only a legal obligation, but a moral obligation to make sure all Manchester people are being treated equally at this Manchester-owned facility.

I guess what I'm saying is, please, this time, members of the board, make sure the concerns raised in regards to the country club are addressed, at least reviewed. I would suggest the country club subcommittee hold a public hearing, perhaps right at the Country Club — as I've said, it is a town-owned facility. A public hearing for members and non-members and any Manchester resident to express their concerns or disagreement that equal treatment is not the policy of this Manchester owned facility.

Even if this club wasn't owned by the town and was privately owned, I think you would still have an obligation to make sure that equal opportunity and equal treatment of all people is taking place.

Through the years Manchester has been accused of many things. I ask this board to continually get the message out that discrimination of any type will not be tolerated in Manchester, Connecticut.

Who'd want Ed? I sure would

To the Editor:

Your vicious, unsigned attack on Ed Wilson was wonderful. Once again you have done a great service by exposing the evils and dangers that a man of Mr. Wilson's high moral fiber can bring to our town.

That old Ed Wilson must really be dumb to dare to take a stand on any subject — let alone controversial ones — and hope to get elected to public office. I mean, look what the Herald did to Gerald Labriola when he stated the fact that he was "pro-life." Never saw anything good written about him after that Mr. Wilson's honesty, his standing boldly for what is right, and his desire to represent the people are certainly to his detriment. He would probably be a real asset to our town. If elected, why who'd want him? It sure is a good thing that someone "knifed him in the back" in that editorial. We need to be alerted about people like Ed.

No, what we need is more "wishy-washy" politicians — real middle-of-the-road types who don't do anything or say anything. At least they won't step on any toes and we'll like them. It's important to have politicians who are "liked" so we can speak well of them. Our town will at least stand out as one with nice politicians. Now we may still allow abortion here — we may still have crime and drug abuse running rampant, but we'll have nice political leaders. That's what it's all about, isn't it?

Yes, who'd want Ed Wilson anyway? I mean, he stands for something and isn't afraid to say it. He has a definite set of right and wrong. That may hinder my right to do as I please. How can I like a man like that? He even says he stands for old-fashioned Christianity like our country was founded on. Doesn't he know times have changed? Doesn't he understand that Humanism is flourishing today and that unless he becomes a true humanist he won't get good press from the Herald?

Who'd want Ed Wilson? I would! I'd like more people just like him. Unfortunately, the guys in the white hats don't seem to win anymore and papers like The Herald seem to do everything they can to ensure that fact.

Ed Wilson can have my vote and the Herald can keep it's newspapers and editorials.

Fed foresters allow lumber giants to cheat

WASHINGTON — Smokey the Bear is not only blind to the cost of preferential treatment given to lumber barons who buy timber from our national forests, but he's deaf to the most blatant evidence of bid-rigging and conspiracy by the industry.

Forest Service brass hats' cozy relationship with their corporate customers includes providing unparalleled subsidies for the comfort and convenience of the timber industry, and bailing out lumber companies that bid too high through their own cupidity and stupidity.

Now we've learned that the bureaucratic guardians of the nation's timber resources have for years ignored reports from conscientious Forest Service employees that some logging companies have conspired to keep down the price they pay to harvest the public's trees. The rangers report what they know, but somehow the charges of wrongdoing always seem to get lost in the paper shuffle.

In fact, Forest Service management is so notorious that one ranger told Agriculture Department auditors he doesn't even bother to report alleged bid-rigging because he figures his bosses would leave him out on a limb instead of backing up his charges.

THIS RANGER WITNESSED one incident, for example, in which a timber buyer threatened his competitors, but it was not reported. Collision among rival bidders, however, is more common than threats.

The auditors' report, obtained by our associate Stewart Harris under the Freedom of Information Act, was based on records from 80 national forests in the Pacific Northwest and Georgia. It cites 18 cases of possible antitrust activities between 1961 and 1983; the Forest Service pursued only three.

Here are some of the discouraging highlights of the report:

• Two rangers overheard four timber buyers arranging not to bid against each other. The first bid ended in a four-way tie. Then a ranger saw the buyers flip a coin to decide who would win the second bid. The coin-toss winner's bid was 5 cents higher than the losers' bid. The Forest Service canceled the sale after the rangers reported the incident, but made no effort to investigate the perpetrators.

• A timber buyer asked for a recess during oral bidding so that, in his words, he could "wear the hat and the coat" about 50 percent of an hour. While the Forest Service officials quibbled at length over the propriety of recessing an auction, the two buyers left the room. When they returned, one withdrew from the bidding. The case was referred to the agency headquarters in Washington, D.C., but officials there let the matter die.

• The Forest Service dropped an investigation of alleged bid-rigging simply on the basis of denials by the three accused buyers, even though a witness submitted an affidavit charging that one of the suspects had admitted the plot. Agency officials also failed to interview another witness who had evidence of collusion among the three buyers.

Rangers in one national forest missed altogether a clear pattern of non-competitive bidding among four companies. Twenty out of 26 timber sales between January 1981 and June 1984 either had only one bidder, took competitive bids or a winning bid that was exactly the same as the lowest price the Forest Service would take for the timber.

According to the National Forest Management Act of 1976, all 18 cases studied by the auditors should have been referred to the Justice Department for investigation. Only three were: the Forest Service lost the paperwork on two other cases.

Footnote: Beginning Oct. 1, Forest Service officials will use sealed bids in timber sales to cut down on collusion among timber companies suspected of antitrust activities.

Mini-editorial

If you thought the $100 million OK 'd by Congress was the extent of taxpayers' largesse to the Nicaraguan contras, consider this: Heavyweight donors being asked to give $10,000 apiece to tide the contras over temporarily are being told they can write it off their taxes, even though the contra group that spends the money doesn't qualify for such a tax break. As a political consultant to the group explained, "They can make a grant to a foundation. The foundation will give it to the contra." If this is true, it's a loophole that should be plugged immediately.

U.S./World In Brief

Officials detail cost of Chernobyl
MOSCOW — Nearly $900 million has been spent to help people evacuated after the Chernobyl disaster and 14,000 people have been mobilized to provide medical checks for radiation contamination, officials said Friday.

The officials, speaking at a news conference, also said 11 people remain hospitalized from the April 25 accident at the atomic power plant 80 miles north of Kiev.

Finance Minister Boris Gosteyev said the direct costs of the disaster are estimated at 2 billion rubles, the same figure given by the Politburo on July 19 and about $2.95 billion at the current exchange rate.

Peace Corps volunteers reunite
WASHINGTON — More than 3,000 former Peace Corps volunteers, who toiled from Togo to Tonga, flocked here Friday for the 25th anniversary celebration of an organization that was formed in 1961 to help people in developing countries.

"You learned much more than you gave," recalled Robert J. Mitchell, a 45-year-old cotton farmer from Fresno, Calif., who joined the Peace Corps on a lark in 1961 and spent two years in India's Punjab region.

The three-day event combined elements of a college reunion and an old-fashioned tent revival as former volunteers renewed acquaintances and listened to exhortations to keep working for world peace.

Mexicans honor victims of quake
MEXICO CITY — Solidarity Plaza has a fresh red and white pavement, fountains at each corner and a splash of flowers, trees and other shrubs. A year ago, it held the twisted, smoking wreckage of the Regis Hotel and a major department store, damaged beyond repair in a tremendous earthquake.

Mexico's capital marked the first anniversary Friday of the 2 1/2-minute quake that killed thousands of people.

President Miguel de la Madrid dedicated the new plaza, placing a wreath in front of a plaque that reads, "To the solidarity of all Mexicans." Workers had toiled around the clock to finish the site in time for the dedication.

Man held in shooting of officers
HAVRE DE GRACE, Md. — A shooting rampage that left four officers wounded prompted police to cord off this small community and warn frightened residents to stay behind locked doors until they captured a suspect Friday.

Frank Green, 27, of Far Rockaway, N.Y., was captured 10 hours after the first shots were fired, when a stolen car he was driving crashed into a sign, police said.

"I didn't do nothing," Green shouted as he was carried to a hospital by police. "They shot me for nothing."

Shots were fired during the arrest, but doctors later said Green suffered a cut on the leg and was not shot.

Duarte to rebels: 'We're waiting'
SESORI, El Salvador — Leftist rebels backed out of scheduled peace talks, but President Jose Napoleon Duarte came to this isolated farming village anyway Friday and proclaimed, "we are waiting for you."

"Do you remember we have a date here today?" I am waiting for you," Duarte asked the rebels rhetorically in an appearance carried on national television. "If you hear me, we are waiting for you to speak of peace and not war."

The rebels said they would not come to a scheduled third round of peace talks because of the army's occupation of this village 95 miles northeast of San Salvador.

Feds defend drug testing of cops
BOSTON — Mandatory drug testing of workers is no different from a fingerprint check and doesn't violate the constitutional ban on unreasonable searches, federal attorneys argued Friday in the first defense of the tests.

"Simply stated, in the context of the workplace, employees have no recognized, absolute expectation of privacy that precludes an employer from conducting reasonable inquiries into an employee's fitness for duty," said Assistant Attorney General Richard K. Willard.

The Justice Department filed the lengthy brief in U.S. District Court in support of Boston Police Department drug-testing program. The program is being challenged by a police union on the grounds that it violates the Fourth Amendment's ban on unauthorized search and seizure.

Black miners stop work to mourn
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The country's largest black miners' union asked its 250,000 members on Friday to stop work for one day to mourn 177 miners killed a mile underground in a gold mine fire this week.

The National Union of Mineworkers also charged that the owners of Kinross Gold Mine had refused to let mining experts from Britain, West Germany and Sweden visit the scene of Tuesday's fire at Evander, 62 miles southeast of Johannesburg.

However, Carl Netscher, senior director of General Mining Union Corp.'s mining division, said he knew of no such request. He said it would be considered if and when received.

Income and spending up in August
WASHINGTON — Americans' personal incomes climbed 0.4 percent in August while consumer spending, bolstered by a surge in car sales, shot up an even faster 1.1 percent, the government reported Friday.

While the spending gap was the biggest this year and the income rise was the largest since April, many analysts said the figures were not as strong as they appeared on the surface.

The Commerce Department said the 0.4 percent rise in incomes followed a 0.3 percent increase in July and no change in June. This represented a downward revision for July, which originally had been reported as a 0.5 percent advance.

Claiborne says FBI targeted him
WASHINGTON — Federal Judge Harry E. Claiborne, taking the stand for the first time at his Senate impeachment trial, testified Friday that he was the target of an ambitious chief FBI agent who was determined "to get rid of a lot of people."

Claiborne said the agent, Joseph Yablonsky, "was a very ambitious man and came into Las Vegas with the idea, in his words, of planting the American flag in the Nevada desert."

The imprisoned chief U.S. district judge for Nevada, convicted in 1984 on two counts of tax evasion, added, "I think his idea of doing that was to get rid of a lot of people, and unfortunately for me, I was foremost in his ambitious path."

U.N. chief threatens to withdraw
UNITED NATIONS — Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar on Friday threatened to withdraw the U.N. peacekeeping troops from southern Lebanon and blamed Israel for the "major crisis" facing the force.

France has asked for an urgent meeting of the Security Council to consider the U.N. chief's report, and shortly before the council met five French soldiers with the U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon were wounded.

Perez de Cuellar opened the council meeting with a report on the attack that he blamed on "extremist elements" of the council. "I regret to have to inform the council that the seriousness of the situation was again underlined, about three hours ago, by a further rocket attack by unidentified armed elements against a position of the French battalion in the northern part of the UNIFIL area," he said.

Aquino seeks relief for the masses

By Mitchell Lonsberg
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Philippine President Corazon Aquino, taking her inspiration from the Statue of Liberty, came to New York on Friday seeking relief for "masses of Filipinos still mired in poverty."

Aquino, fresh from a successful four-day visit to Washington, was hailed at City Hall as a champion of freedom and then was off to a private luncheon with bankers who hold a substantial share of the Philippines' $26 billion foreign debt.

She told the bankers — including the chairman of Chemical Manufacturers' Bank, Chemical and Chase Manhattan banks — that her people were willing to accept sacrifices, and called upon them to agree to an "appropriate restructuring program" for the debt.

Philippine President Corazon Aquino smiles as Mayor Ed Koch joins her outside New York City Hall Friday. Aquino, fresh from a successful four-day visit to Washington, was in New York as a champion of freedom.

At City Hall, Mayor Edward I. Koch praised Aquino for her "indomitable will and courage and foresight" and welcomed her "home" to New York City. He also praised her for her courage and sacrifice, and called upon them to agree to an "appropriate restructuring program" for the debt.

Later, delivering a lecture in the Time magazine distinguished speakers series at New York University, Aquino praised the international news media for its coverage of the Marcos regime and its overthrow. She asked that coverage of her government adhere to the same standards.

Citing the courage of the Philippine people in the revolution, she said, "Give them the benefit of the doubt... Do not turn a cynical eye on them."

Outside, about 600 supporters listened to the ceremony over loudspeakers in City Hall Park, which was festooned with balloons of bright yellow, the symbolic color of Aquino's crusade.

About 20 anti-Aquino demonstrators protested across the street, accusing Aquino of siding with the Communists who are seeking to overthrow her government.

Both Cuomo and Koch congratulated Aquino on the response to her speech Thursday before a joint session of Congress. Immediately following the speech, the House of Representatives approved an additional $200 million in aid to the Philippines. The measure is expected to encounter rougher going in the Senate.

"They have never done that since the world was created," Koch, a former congressman, said of the House action.

By eliminating the tax advantage for long-term capital gains after 1986," he says, "the tax proposals are also encouraging investors with big profits to take them before the end of this year."

A lot of this money is expected to be reinvested in the market, Johnson says. "I expect that the market will be very favorable. We expect stock prices, in time, to rise above 2,000. Most investors should continue to ignore forecasts of short-term market swings."

Robert Farrell, chief market analyst at Merrill Lynch, says an important determinant of individual investors' behavior will be their response to the tax bill.

"If financial assets remain more attractive than hard assets the realtor, a stamped check to stocks could occur during 1987."

Wall Street ends a tumultuous summer

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Streeters accustomed to grumbling about the volatility of the market had little reason to complain this year.

The summer of 1986 officially gave way to autumn, they can look back to a season that produced record trading volume in the stock market.

The market hit new highs just before July 4, took a sharp drop through the rest of the month, rallied vigorously in August, and then ran into another severe storm of selling after Labor Day.

As most analysts see it, the fall could well bring more sudden mood swings. It begins with investors' first look at a bill that makes drastic changes in the U.S. tax system.

A little more than six weeks away is the midterm election that will determine, among other things, the makeup of Congress in first full year of President Reagan's administration.

With all that the first question on Wall Street's autumn agenda focuses on the markets themselves.

Is the recent slide in bond and stock prices a temporary "correction" or the start of something more serious?

"We expect stock prices, as measured by the Dow Jones industrial average, to continue to consolidate and correct," says Hugh Johnson at the brokerage firm First Albany Corp. "We expect this process may last until November."

Nevertheless, looking further ahead, Johnson describes the outlook as "very favorable. We expect stock prices, in time, to rise above 2,000. Most investors should continue to ignore forecasts of short-term market swings."

Robert Farrell, chief market analyst at Merrill Lynch, says an important determinant of individual investors' behavior will be their response to the tax bill.

Nine sought in Paris bombings

PARIS (AP) — Police issued a nationwide alert Friday for nine suspects in a series of bloody bombings that has traumatized the French capital and led opposition political parties to rally around the conservative government.

Photographs of five men and four women wanted for questioning in the attacks were distributed to all police offices. They were described as dangerous and possibly armed.

Leaders of France's major political parties met with Premier Jacques Chirac and called for national unity in fighting terrorism.

President Francois Mitterrand returned from a four-day official visit to Indonesia and immediately met with Chirac, Interior Minister Charles Pasqua and Security Minister Robert Pinault to discuss the attacks. None of the officials issued any statement after the meeting.

Five bombs have exploded in Paris since Sept. 8, killing eight people and injuring 14.

A group calling itself the Committee of Solidarity with Arab and Middle East Political Prisoners claimed responsibility for the first four. The Parisians of Right and Freedom claimed all five, including the last one Wednesday at the Tail clothing and textiles store.

Police, however, are concentrating their efforts on the first group and believe it is linked to the Lebanese Armed Revolutionary Faction, whose reputed leader, Georges Ibrahim Abdallah, is jailed in France.

The Committee of Solidarity is seeking Abdallah's release. He has served two years of a four-year term for possession of weapons and

New group lobbies for school vote

A newly formed citizens' group plans to wage a publicity campaign to support an $8.8 million bond issue that would improve four elementary schools and Manchester High School.

The group, which is called Citizens for New Life for Old Schools, is headed by Theodore Brindamour, a former Manchester teacher. He is the brother of William Brindamour, a former president of the Manchester Education Association, the teachers' union.

The group will meet Thursday at 7:15 p.m. in the Board of Education meeting room, 45 N. School St. New members are welcome. Brindamour said.

Brindamour said Friday the organization has already contacted the parent-teacher organizations about backing the bond issue. He said the group is distributing fliers and plans to speak to civic groups.

The group, organized this summer by parents of students who go to the five schools, will recruit residents to support the bonding item that will appear as the sixth referendum question on the Nov. 4 ballot. If approved, renovations will be made to Verplanck, Nathan Hale, Bowers and Wadwell elementary schools, in addition to Manchester High School.

The work will cost Manchester taxpayers $8.8 million, with state funds covering the remainder. In August, the town Board of Directors approved putting the question on the November ballot, and no opposition has surfaced to the proposal.

However, Brindamour said the group wants to make sure the item is approved. In addition to addressing the work to be done will be put in each of the five schools.

Author treated for lung cancer

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Erskine Caldwell, author of "Tobacco Road" and "God's Little Acre," is undergoing treatment for lung cancer at a hospital here, a spokeswoman said Friday.

"He has lung cancer. This is his third incidence of cancer," said Vickie Austin, manager of communications of Scottsdale Memorial Hospital.

Caldwell, 83, was admitted Thursday night and was expected to be discharged over the weekend, Ms. Austin said.

Casket recovered in time for burial

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — A hearse was stolen during a funeral procession Friday, but police caught up with it, retrieved the casket and rushed it to the cemetery for a slightly delayed service.

Raymond Allston, who had been running alongside the procession, climbed into the hearse and laid on top of the casket, escorting traffic officers reported.

The driver and an assistant abandoned the hearse.

"We just bail out," driver Harold Standley said later. "I didn't know what his motives were. He was pretty strange."

Allston jumped in the driver's seat and drove off with police in pursuit. Lt. Tom Spivey said.

After several miles, a patrol car rammed the hearse, but it broke free, police said. The hearse soon hit a parked car, Spivey said.

Allston, 21, was not hurt and was being held at San Joaquin County Jail for investigation of vehicle theft.

Dr. William Keavy points to a scar made by reconstructive surgery on the forehead of Antonio Garcia, 14, who was brought to St. Joseph's Hospital in Stamford from Guatemala.

Boy starts surgery to rebuild his face

By Linda Stowell
The Associated Press

STAMFORD — A long black scar reaches from temple to temple on Antonio Garcia's forehead, a reminder of the fire that caused severe facial deformities when he was only two months old.

Garcia has undergone the first of four operations to reconstruct his face at St. Joseph's Hospital. The 14-year-old youth from Guatemala is abandoned and was brought to Stamford by the Covenant House, a child care agency in New York.

When he arrived at the hospital early last week, his right ear was half-burned off, he had no eyebrow on the right side of his face and no hair on parts of his scalp. His right hand is severely deformed.

Garcia suffered his injuries when he was two months old. A candle started a fire that burned his hand and severely deformed it.

"All they did was bandage him and he became all scarred," said Stephen Torkelson, senior vice president of Covenant House, an international organization that helps abandoned children and runaways. "He lives on the street, his mother sees him periodically, but she's really left him."

Covenant House, which is mostly funded by private contributions and receives a small amount of state and federal aid, supplies housing and schooling for Garcia and 18 other children around the world.

"He came to us when we were setting up a residence and school in Guatemala in 1981. He's very courageous — he even shakes hands with his right hand," Torkelson said Friday.

Covenant House arranged for the boy to receive the surgery from Dr. William Keavy, a New York plastic surgeon at St. Joseph's Hospital, at no cost.

"He's at adolescence and he was becoming shyer and shyer," Torkelson said. "Kids were making fun of him."

Senate moves toward vote on its election-year budget

By Steven Komarow
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Friday night tentatively approved an election-year budget plan that contained enough accounting tricks and sales of government assets to minimize the deficit.

Although a parade of senators blasted the measure and said it should have been better, the chamber by voice vote passed the major amendment containing the bulk of the package, and moved toward final approval.

The bill was "a perverted, phony, unrealistic approach" to the budget problem, Sen. J. James Exon, D-Nebr., said in a typical comment.

"I just don't think any senator should vote for this bill believing we have fulfilled the spirit of the budget act," said Sen. Bill Armstrong, R-Colo. "We're just digging ourselves in deeper for next year."

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, admitted the bill helped voters "not even close to a good solution."

Instead of raising taxes or cutting spending, the bill would shift around payments, sell some of Uncle Sam's properties and charge new fees for users of government services to produce a quick cash fix of about $1.3 billion.

The measure was carefully designed to avoid a veto by President Reagan, who has opposed tax increases and cuts in military spending, and to avoid a presidential election.

Garcia is in the sixth grade at school, although normally a 14-year-old would be in ninth grade. He never attended school when he was younger and has to catch up according to Torkelson.

Keavy estimated that it would cost about $20,000 to do the complete operation. He says he will give Garcia an eyebrow in the second stage of the operation, and reconstruct his ear in the third stage. During the last stage, Keavy will try to remove the burned scar on the right side of his face.

Garcia will travel back and forth to the United States for the operations.

Garcia said his friends won't think any differently of him after the surgery.

"They're my friends," he said. "They don't make fun of me. We play."

Breeders aim for 'super snail'

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Two small farmers are trying to breed a California "super snail" that would pack a palate-pleasing punch and pump up the domestic snail industry.

Escargots boast a somewhat exotic reputation, but between the snail and the garlic butter most of the snails now served in American restaurants lived in lowly cans.

Francis Herb and Elton Geist hope to change that with a snail that would be resistant to a host of parasitic mollusk diseases, would grow to maturity in five months, weigh 8 grams, and boast the ideal physique of 1 1/4 inches long, an inch wide and seven-eighths of an inch tall.

"This is a revolution in the American food industry," Tucker said in a recent interview. "People are revolting against the imports." The nation's first snail cannery.

And of course, its sublime taste would surpass that of the $300 million in snail meat that Americans eat each year. Most of it is imported, in cans, from Taiwan and France.

"We have set a standard now for the perfect snail. It's the juiciest, the most succulent, the tastiest. And we can sell it for $1 each," said Ralph Tucker, 68, president of the Snail Club of America, which is based in Fresno.

But only 5 percent of the snails being raised meet those specifications.

TORONTO (AP) — Dave Stieb survived a shaky start and went on to combine with two relievers on a nine-hitter to lead the Toronto Blue Jays to a 6-4 victory over Boston Friday night, halting the Red Sox' winning streak at four and reducing their American League East lead to 9 1/2 games.

Leading 3-2 going into the bottom of the sixth, the Blue Jays improved their lead with three runs off reliever Sammy Stewart. Rick Leach followed successive leadoff hits to Jesse Barfield and Ernie Whit with a run-scoring single and pinch-hitter Rance Mullins walked to re-load the bases.

One out later, Tony Fernandez singled home another run and Willie Upshaw capped the rally with a sacrifice fly.

Stieb, after throwing 30 pitches in Boston's two-run first inning, lasted only six innings. But he improved his record to 6-11 by allowing two runs in five hits. He struck out four and walked four.

Reliever John Cerutti gave up a bases-empty homer to Rich Godman in the seventh, his 18th of the season. The left-hander gave way to Tom Henke after Marty Barrett doubled and Bill Buckner singled to start the eighth. The Red Sox came up empty as Henke got Jim Rice and Dwight Evans on flyouts and struck out Don Baylor.

Boston starter Tom Seaver, 7-13, was forced to leave the game after four innings with a pulled calf.

At Detroit, Alan Trammell and Chet Lemon each homered to help Dan Petry earn his first victory since elbow surgery in June as the Detroit Tigers beat the New York Yankees 5-3 Friday night.

Petry, 5-8, allowed seven hits, walked one and struck out four in 7 1/2 innings, giving up a 9-3 string since his return to the Tigers' rotation in August. Petry left the game after giving up a two-run homer to Mike Easler in the eighth, his 14th, and Mark Thurmond and Eric King finished up.

Yankee starter Dennis Rasmussen, 15-4, was ripped for five runs on six hits in four-plus innings. He was relieved with no outs and the bases loaded with Tigers in the fifth.

Trammell tripled and scored on Larry Herndon's sacrifice fly in the Detroit first.

With two outs in the Detroit third, Lou Whitaker walked, stole second and rode home on Trammell's 29th homer. Lemon hit a solo shot, his 11th, in the fourth.

A bases-loaded sacrifice fly by pinch-hitter Bruce Fields in the Detroit fifth gave the Tigers a 5-1 lead.

Porter tied it with his double in the first following singles by Ruben Sierra and Pete O'Brien.

Yankees scored their first run in the fourth on Don Pasqua's solo homer, his 16th.

At Arlington, Texas, Charlie Goss pitched a six-hitter and Darrell Porter drove in all the runs as the Rangers beat the Minnesota Twins 4-1 Friday night.

The only run against Goss, scored by a four-hit batter Don Slaught as Salas and Herbek pulled off a double steal. Salas scored on the error.

Bosox not intimidated by past

By John Nelson
The Associated Press

The haunted feeling is over, and the exorcist, John McNamara, pronounced his house clean.

The Boston Red Sox can forget about 1978. They have cast out the demon of the Boston Massacre.

"We have instilled all along," the Red Sox manager said, "that we would not be intimidated by ghosts of the past."

"We never got involved in what had happened before. I didn't, nobody on this club did. It was somebody else who won. It had nothing to do with 1978."

Given abundant opportunity and simple excuse this season to fold, as they had eight seasons earlier, the Red Sox responded instead in the character of champions. Despite being held up to public ridicule — caricatured in editorial cartoons as the sinking Titanic — the Red Sox stayed afloat.

After struggling frequently during the months of July and August — victims of inconsistent offense and injuries to the pitching staff — the Red Sox won 11 straight games off September and expanded their lead in the American League East to as many as 10 games on Sept. 12.

"Good clubs will respond to the challenge of winning, especially at this time of year," McNamara said. "They kick it into gear."

"I'm not a horse race fan, and I don't bet on the horses. But pennant races are like horse races. You stay in position, stay in position — and you're there when they make the turn for home. We're on the homestretch now."

Laid to rest finally was the memory of '78. That was the year the Red Sox led the East by 12½ games in July, were swept in four games at home by New York in a September series subsequently dubbed the "Boston Massacre," then lost the division in a one-game playoff to the Yankees.

"I've said all year long that that has nothing to do with us," McNamara said. "There are only three players who can relate to it anyway — Bob Stanley, Jim Rice and Dwight Evans." They are the only three left from that club.

The 31-year-old Stanley, 15-2 with 10 saves and an ERA of 2.60 in 1978, is not bothered by ghosts when he pitches back to that horrible collapse. Like most of his teammates, he sees only realities.

"The first thing we've done that's different this year is that we've stayed away from major injuries, for the most part," Stanley said. "We didn't do that in '78. A lot of people forget that Rick Burleson and Fred Lynn got hurt that year. We've got a much stronger bench now, too."

The Red Sox have managed to survive their injuries this season, although those injuries were — for concern in Boston that this team would fold, too.

"All year, it seemed like people were on our tails," Red Sox catcher Rich Gedman said. "The Yankees were three back, then it was Detroit. Then Baltimore. And here comes Toronto. And then we started to play well again."

At midseason, the Red Sox had pitchers Bruce Hurst and Al Nipper on the disabled list. At the same time, Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd muffed off about not making the All-Star team, skipped a game, then was suspended. That was on July 11.

Then, during the All-Star break, Boyd was suspended again — following an alleged altercation with undercover detectives. On July 17 came word that he had checked into the University of Massachusetts Medical Center for testing.

And then the wild ride of midsummer began.

The Red Sox lost seven of eight from July 18-23, and the Yankees pulled within three games. On July 24, the Orioles were second, 2½ games out, with Cleveland 2½ back. On Aug. 5, the Orioles were 2½ out, and the Tigers clawed their way into the picture, 4½ back two days later. On Aug. 31, the defending AL champion Blue Jays were 2½ back, and that's about the time the Red Sox started their run.

"We went through one of those bad stretches that clubs will go through," McNamara said. "But it's a credit to the consistency of the club that we never lost more than four in a row. One by one they came after us, and we took care of them."

Along with the emergence of Clemens as the league's best pitcher, the acquisition of Don Baylor from the New York Yankees has made the biggest difference for the Red Sox. Besides providing clutch hitting, Baylor is Boston's kangaroo court and, more than any one player, has helped create a clubhouse where only individual stars existed before.

"It used to be 25 different ways, but that's not the way it is now. Now, there are 24 guys playing together," he said.

At seventh-ranked Washington, meanwhile, No. 1 Oklahoma entered Miami, next week's opponent for the Sooners, is idle.

Elsewhere, third-ranked Michigan, a 40-point favorite, is home against Oregon State. No. 5 Penn State visits Foxboro, Mass., for a night game against Boston College. Nebraska is at Illinois at night. No. 8 LSU entertains Miami of Ohio at night. No. 9 Baylor is home against Southern California and No. 10 Auburn entertains East Carolina, the school that gave Pat Dye his first head coaching job but currently is in the throes of an 11-game losing streak.

In the second round, TCU plays at No. 12 Arkansas. Clemson won't play in the Southeastern Conference. North Carolina at No. 15 Florida State. North Texas State has a night game at No. 16 Texas A&M. No. 17 Arizona is at Oregon Southern Methodist at No. 18 Arizona State at night. No. 19 UCLA at San Diego State at night, and No. 20 Notre Dame at Michigan State.

Florida had its 21-game home unbeaten streak snapped by Miami two weeks ago, but set an attendance record of 74,714 which could be broken against Alabama.

"We haven't lost any conference games so we do have a chance to win the SEC," defensive tackle Keith Wilma said. For the first time in three years, the Gators are eligible to win the conference title and a national championship.

Florida's five victories have all been at Alabama.

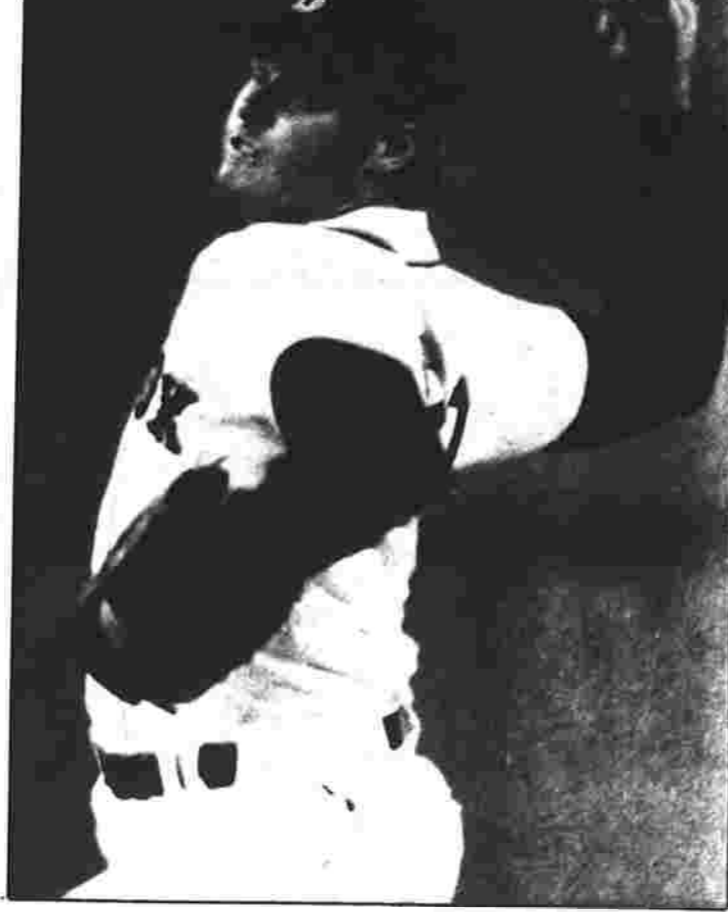

The teams last met in 1979, with Alabama winning 40-9 en route to the fifth and last Coach Bear Bryant's national championships. Florida, field one of college football's renowned quarterbacks, will be a new experience for this Alabama team.

"I have heard that this place is as hot as Tennessee and LSU," free safety Kermit Kendrick said. Piacemaker Van Tillin has "heard it is two or three times worse than LSU or Tennessee." But flanker Greg Payne noted that "the game is played on the field, and if we can keep the crowd out of the game, we can present." said Dr. Paul Meyer, who examined Balboni along with fellow team physician Dr. Steve Joyce.

"With an 0-2 start, we need a change," Bennett said. "By no stretch of the imagination am I blaming our two losses on Steve DeBerg. They were team losses, as they all are."

Right-hander Roger Clemens, with 23 wins and only four losses, has been one of the key reasons why Boston has been able to rid itself of the ghosts of the past. The Red Sox are headed for the AL East Division title for the first time since 1975.

Florida, Alabama renew long feud

By Herschel Nissensohn
The Associated Press

The Alabama-Florida feud is nothing new.

It just resurfaced last spring when the Southeastern Conference voted 9-1 to give Florida half the television and bowl revenue it lost while on NCAA probation.

The only vote against the Gators was cast by Alabama, and Coach Ray Perkins had some strong comments about teams that break the rules.

But the hard feelings go back to 1964, when Alabama claims it defeated Florida 29-0. Florida concedes the game was played, but says that prior to 1966 it did not consider football a varsity sport.

This, Alabama claims it leads the 16-5 white Florida shows 15-5.

The two long-time antagonists met Saturday for either the 21st or 22nd time when the fourth-ranked Alabama visits No. 13 Florida for an important SEC game.

The Crimson Tide has won all five meetings at Gainesville, while Florida's five victories have all been at Alabama.

The teams last met in 1979, with Alabama winning 40-9 en route to the fifth and last Coach Bear Bryant's national championships.

News for Senior Citizens

Nutrition program starts
Editor's Note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Senior Citizens' Center.

By Jeanette Cove
Center Director

The town's health department has scheduled a flu clinic on Oct. 29 from 9 a.m. to noon. Individuals are asked to donate $3 for the flu shot and $6 for the pneumonia shot.

No appointments are necessary. Seniors will be served on a first-come first-served basis.

A nutrition program series with Gloria Weiss, a registered nutritionist, will be held for six weeks beginning Oct. 9 from 9:30-11:30 a.m. Topics will include rip-off diets, optimum weight, low cholesterol, low sodium, calcium, and a finale of a polka luncheon.

The new blood pressure screening will be held Oct. 8 (A-K) from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Now that the weather is turning chilly, seniors are asking about winter travel. A travel agency will present a program and answer any questions.

If you are a single traveler, we may be able to match you with a compatible partner that will allow you to get a cheaper rate.

ON OCT. 25, we will be starting our Thursday programs, beginning with the Sunshiners. Other programs are scheduled as follows: Oct. 2 - The Senior Rockettes Oct. 9 - Energy Kits Oct. 16 - Al Cotton will entertain on the organ.

Supermarket Shopper
This coupon 'deal' is costly

DEAR MARTIN: Several months ago, I received a letter from SSC — Supermarket Shoppers Discount Corp., Inc. of Cleveland, Ohio. It said that I had been selected to receive coupons valued at $100 each month.

It seemed that all I had to do was send $3 for their catalog, but the offer seemed to have changed. In order to receive coupons from SSC, I would have to pay $9.99 for $25 worth of coupons, and $29.99 if I wanted $100 worth of coupons.

I sent the catalog back to SSC and requested a refund of my $9.99. In due time I received it, but I thought your readers should be alerted to the way this company promotes its business.

VIRGINIA MILLER
YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO

DEAR VIRGINIA: Thank you for sharing your experience with us. I can't see why someone would want to pay $9.99 for $25 worth of coupons. Most weekends, the coupon inserts appearing in the Sunday newspaper have coupons that are worth almost that much — sometimes more.

DEAR MARTIN: Have you ever heard of International Smart Shoppers? A lady in Illinois wants me to get involved, but I am a little dubious. Do you know if their coupon sales program is legitimate?

DORIS JEAN KORBER
JOHNSTOWN, PA.

DEAR DORIS: International Smart Shoppers (ISS) was a multi-level coupon sales program. I use the word "multi-level" because their phone sales were disconnected, and they no longer seem to be in business.

ISS offered monthly packages of coupons with a 800 fee. I have spoken to several people who have been members because members could not select specific coupons or brands.

The feature that seemed to appeal to the ISS members was the potential for members to make money over and above their coupon savings. When a member recruited three new members, the first member was to receive one percent of the savings made by the new members.

The new members were then induced to recruit another level of new members, and so on, and so on.

Laura Wilson of Highland, Ind., recruited members by bringing them her own sales brochure, which included a chart showing that nine levels of recruits could bring the original ISS member a monthly income of $70,000.

Laura dutifully sent ISS her $20 each month to stay current and qualify for the big money, but the promised quick shipment of her coupons turned into eight-week delays for the coupons she received in January and February. She has yet to see any coupons for her payments made in March, April, May and June.

Sports In Brief

Soccer club hosts second tournament
The Manchester Soccer Club, at the request of the Connecticut Special Olympic directors, will host a second Special Olympics Soccer Tournament at MCC's Cougar Field on Sunday, Oct. 3. The event will be co-sponsored by the Regional Occupational Training Center staff and MCC.

Special Olympics teams from Danbury, Newtown, Waterford, Hartford, Enfield, Suffield, Putnam, Willimantic and Manchester will be involved. A Connecticut select team will be formed from the participants and they will compete at the Special Olympics International games next summer at Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind.

The UConn women's soccer team will also put on a demonstration for the Special Olympics.

For further information, call Richard Donnelly at 649-1734 or Gerry Kelley at 647-4999.

Johnson defends boxing crown
INDIANAPOLIS — World light heavyweight champion Marvin Johnson is 22 and doesn't want any history lessons as he prepares to defend his World Boxing Association title against Jean-Marie Emebe of Cameroon.

The two meet Saturday in a 15-rounder at Market Square Arena, in Johnson's hometown — the same place where he won the title by stopping Trinidad's Leslie Stewart in February and where he lost the World Boxing Council title to Matt Franklin in 1979.

"It doesn't matter that I lost the title the first time I defended it," said Johnson, the only fighter to rule the 175-pound division three times. "What matters is what happens when I get in the ring this time. I'm determined not to go down in history as the only light heavyweight to lose a world title 3 or 4 times. I like being the champion and I'm ready for this fight."

McNeil upsets seeded Fernandez
LARGO, Fla. — Unseeded Lori McNeil withstood two match points against her to upset eighth seeded Eddy Fernandez 6-3, 3-6, 7-6 in the quarterfinals of the $125,000 Eckerd Tennis Open Friday.

In Saturday's semifinals, McNeil will face sixth seed Terry Phelps, who defeated Elise Burgin 6-4, 6-1 Friday.

KC's Balboni may not need surgery
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Doctors who examined the ailing back of Kansas City Royals slugger Steve Balboni Friday say he may not be suffering from two ruptured discs as earlier diagnosed.

"Surgery is not the answer at this time. The symptoms commonly associated or found with ruptured discs were not present," said Dr. Paul Meyer, who examined Balboni along with fellow team physician Dr. Steve Joyce.

Barr leads Milwaukee Open golf
MILWAUKEE — Canadian Dave Barr, taking advantage of soft greens and an afternoon starting time, shot a second-round 8-under-par 64 Friday for a two-stroke lead in the $400,000 Greater Milwaukee Open.

Barr's two-round total of 11-under 133 led David Frost and Morris Hatalaky, who coped with fog, rain and wind in the morning to finish at 9-under after 36 holes.

Four players followed at 8-under 136: Hubert Green, Chris Perry, Tom Byrum and Andy Bean.

Crampton shares Seniors lead
CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Bruce Crampton shot a 69 Friday to tie fellow Australian Peter Thomson for the second-round lead in the Pinebush World Senior Invitational golf tournament at Quail Hollow Country Club.

Thomson, whose opening-round 65 Thursday set a tournament record, shot even-par 72 Friday.

Young stars start for Bucs

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tampa Bay Buccaneers Coach Leeman Bennett said Friday that Steve Young will start at quarterback Sunday against the Detroit Lions.

Young, the former USFL star who started the last five games of the 1985 NFL season for the Bucs, replaces 10th-year pro Steve De-Berg. DeBerg was intercepted nine times in Tampa Bay's first two games of 1988, both losses.

"With an 0-2 start, we need a change," Bennett said. "By no stretch of the imagination am I blaming our two losses on Steve DeBerg. They were team losses, as they all are."

Council supports the town's stand on AIDS in school

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

By Nancy Carr MACC Director
One of the most difficult aspects of coming to grips with the AIDS problem is the effort involved in sifting through the mass of information, much of it frightening, which we have been bombarded in the last few years.

recommended by the Manchester Health Department at its regular meeting Wednesday. The MACC board advisory committee... recommended by the Manchester Health Department at its regular meeting Wednesday.

is the AIDS virus? What is the real danger of contracting AIDS from a classmate, a fellow parishioner, a family member? How can we accurately update medical information to the community, particularly the religious community?

CONSIDERING that some members of the religious community believe that AIDS is God's vengeance for a sinful way of life, the theology of AIDS is compatible with our understanding of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, and how caring and supportive pastoral care be offered to AIDS victims and their families?

The Department of Pastoral Care began to research the AIDS issue last winter when some of our clergy began to see the extraordinary physical, social and emotional suffering faced by AIDS patients and their families.

Thank you to the hard working crew who spent many days and hours standing and applying three coats of polyurethane to the old oil floor at the emergency shelter. The results are magnificent and saved us close to $1,000.

'Walking dead' find an angel in desert

By Lisa Levitt Ryckman The Associated Press
GREEN RIVER, Utah - When the walking dead and the defeated war warriors wander in from the wasteland the woman who people call the Highway Angel takes them under her wing.

Tom Kuehne, unit supervisor of Grand County social services, said the county informally supported Murray's efforts but had the same liability concerns as Emery County.

Murray said she plans to move her trailers to property she owns in neighboring Grand County. "I cannot do the work God set in front of me," she fumed in an interview. "I can and will. What I do in my own house is my own business. You still have the right to have who you want in your house, whether it's a bum or a millionaire."

The story behind the story

By Josie

Q. Please tell me about Joan Lunden of "Good Morning, America": her background, where she's from, etc. We think she has a very pleasant personality. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stechner, Linwood, N.J.

Joan Lunden

A. She's 36, from Sacramento, Calif., where her mother sold real estate to support her and her brother after their father was killed in a plane crash when she was 13. After high school, she spent a semester with the World Campus Afloat and then studied Spanish and anthropology at the University of the Americas in Mexico City.

She broke into TV in 1972 as the weather-person for KCRA-TV in Sacramento and in 1975, moved to the New York ABC affiliate WABC. It was at WABC that she changed her name from Blunden to Lunden after a colleague pointed out that her given name sounded too much like "blunder." It was a rare bit of helpful advice, though; mostly she felt ill at ease among the seasoned, ethnic reporters in New York who resented her, she knew, for her blond, California WASP looks.

She thought about giving up and going home but another colleague talked her into staying, convinced that she would make it eventually. She did of course, when she got the spot on "GMA." She's kept it and succeeded at it partly because of the personality you describe, partly because she has grown as an interviewer and partly because she hasn't threatened the established star, David Hartman. "GMA" has been slipping in the ratings, the ABC brass has made no secret of its intention to re-evaluate the show, but Lunden just signed a new contract and got the official co-anchor designation she wanted.

Bob Barker

Q. Did Bob Barker ever remarry? Pearl Bass, South Bend, Ind.; Dorothy Shirley, North Cape May, N.J.

A. We asked an associate of his

Q. Would you relate the feats of Audie Murphy, the most decorated soldier of World War II and of Neville Brand, the second most decorated soldier? John Farnestad, Yankton, S.D.

A. Murphy's feats included destroying a German tank in Sicily and leaping onto a burning tank in Western France and firing until the Germans retreated. All told, it was estimated that he killed, captured or wounded 240 Germans on his own, and for these and other efforts, was awarded 24 medals from the U.S., including the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart. Belgium also awarded him a medal and France awarded three, including their Croix de Guerre.

Neville Brand, who, according to reports at the time, was listed as the fourth most decorated soldier in the war, won a Silver Star for capturing a German machine gun position, killing a German soldier and capturing 11 others, singlehandedly, and other medals for taking part in the raid on Dieppe, a raid after which he was one of only 99 out of 3,000 men who returned to England.

Audie Murphy

He also fought in Lord Mountbatten's elite Commandos, landed on Omaha Beach on D-Day, fought against Rommel in Libya and in the Battle of the Bulge.

and were told that he is still a widower — his wife Dorothy Jo died several years ago — and at this time, his plans are more professional than personal: the possibility that if "The Price is Right" does well in the ratings against "The Cosby Show," an edition of it could be aired in prime time.

Q. I would like to know everything there is to know about Jeff Bridges. Barbara Woods, Chicago, Ill.

A. He's 36, the son of Lloyd and Dorothy Bridges, both actors (although Dorothy retired to take care of the kids), as is his older brother Beau. Jeff started acting early, at the age of 4 months to be exact, in the movie "The Company She Keeps." His real debut, meaning dialogue, came at the age of 8, though, when he appeared in his father's series "Sea Hunt."

After graduating from high school, he moved to New York to study acting and soon began acting in films. His first, in 1970, was "Halls of Anger," followed by something called "The Yin and Yang of Mr. Go." He really hit his stride with his third film, "The Last Picture Show," for which he won the first of his three Academy Award nominations. He followed that with the critically acclaimed cult film "Fat City," directed by one of the industry's best, John Huston.

While his career accelerated, though, he began to become more depressed, feeling that he was only successful because his father was, and that he wasn't a real actor. After co-starring with some real actors — Robert Ryan, Lee Marvin and Frederic March — in a production of Eugene O'Neill's classic "The Iceman Cometh" and doing well, he was forced to realize that he was a bona fide actor after all.

His second Oscar nomination, for "Thunderbolt and Lightfoot" the next year confirmed it, as did his notices for the films that followed: "Hearts of the West," "Rancho Deluxe," "Stay Hungry," "Winter Kills" and "Cutter's Way." He even got good reviews in certifiable bombs, such as the remake of "King Kong," "Somebody Killed Her Husband," "Kiss Me Goodbye," "Tron" and the biggest bomb of all time, "Heaven's Gate."

Recently, his films have started to do much better; his reviews are still top-notch: in "Starman," he surprised even his fans and won his third Oscar nomination in the process, "Against All Odds" and "Jagged Edge" did well too (the recent "8 Million Ways to Die" disappeared from theaters pretty quickly).

His next two films should be worth watching: "The Morning After," co-starring Jane Fonda, is due out in January and this month, he starts shooting "Nadine" with Kim Basinger.

He and wife Susan have three young daughters. The family lives in Santa Monica and, when he can get away from Hollywood, on a ranch in Susan's native Montana.

Francesca Annis

Q. Please tell me about Francesca Annis of PBS's "Partners in Crime." Whitney, Scranton, Pa.

A. She's 41, the daughter of an English actor so handsome that he used to double for Clark Gable and Laurence Olivier, and a strictly brought up Brazilian woman who was so dazzled by this handsome actor when she met him on a film set that she eloped with him three weeks later.

Their daughter was born in London, but the family moved to Rio de Janeiro when she was an infant. When they returned when she was 6, she had to learn English because she knew only Portuguese.

She was enrolled in convent school and later, ballet school, but at 11, she switched to acting school and began to work steadily while still in her teens. At 14, she hosted a music show on British TV and several years later made her film debut as one of Elizabeth Taylor's handmaidens in the movie remake of "Cleopatra."

The latter break convinced her that she should take acting seriously, so when she returned to London, she devoted herself to it, winning a role in "The Tempest," then in the musical "The Passion Flower Hotel" in the West End, leading up to "Romeo and Juliet" with the Royal Shakespeare Company and Chekhov's "A Month in the Country" with the National Theater.

She also starred opposite Nicol Williamson in "Hamlet" and had the attention-getting role of Lady Macbeth in Roman Polanski's film of "Macbeth," attention-getting partly because of her nude sleepwalking scene.

She also starred as "Lillie Langtry" and "Madame Bovary" on PBS, in "Coming Out of the Ice" and this season's opener of "Magnum P.I." on CBS and in the films "Krull" and "Dune." Next up: the miniseries "I'll Take Manhattan," now filming.

Minority opinion

I have read, with interest, Sondra Stave's story about the Valley Fish Market, Route 83, Ellington.

It appears that her opinions are, indeed, in the great minority, to say the least!

We have been an almost weekly patron since it opened some 14 years ago, which includes family members and friends. That, in itself, has to be definite proof that the food, service and atmosphere has not varied in its excellence in all that time. You must get there early to avoid long waits — another indication of its popularity.

Personally, I have eaten fish prepared in many places, in this country and abroad, and have yet to match the superlative taste of Valley Fish, or its usual generous portions. Neither have I found any fish place in the area, as Mrs. Stave suggests, where my friends and self might do better.

A female football fan speaks out

Women who know the pigskin have to have a thick skin

By Rosina Mibson

I know what a secondary is and I know about nickel defense. A few of the penalties escape me, but sometimes I'm convinced they change from week to week. Even Redskin runningback John Riggins, brilliant player though he is, once forgot it was illegal to walk through the end zone during a time-out on his way back to the bench.

Yes, I am a football fan. Men's attitudes are peculiar toward women who are knowledgeable about football. Some downright resent it, as though we have tread on their last sanctuary of masculinity. Some refuse to accept it; they insist on repeating basic rules over and over so we will understand.

A few enjoy it and are happy to go out with a woman able to discuss last week's game. Still others are not fans. One man I dated got bored and left in the middle of the first game of the season. Can you imagine?

A few weeks later I explained to this same man why I simply could not go on a romantic weekend in the mountains without a TV set. I tried to impress upon him the importance of that week's game, but there was no communication. He just didn't understand. Finally, he wailed in despair, "But you're not supposed to like football."

On a recent date with another man, the evening was strained until football came up. We both became much more comfortable having finally reached a common interest. I wouldn't recommend it as a basis for a long-term relationship (although I don't see it as impossible), but it has saved an evening now and then.

Sometimes men understand, but not other women. I had a friend who watched the games with a rowdy group — all male.

afternoon, I have nothing else to worry about except who will win. It's more than guys beating each other up. There is strategy and excitement, and yes, a physicalness that perhaps lets steam out of some sort of buried valve.

During a playoff game last year, my cousin popped in with her four children. I'm not sure all four of them made it through the afternoon. I vaguely remember some screaming. I didn't really mind as long as it didn't happen in front of the TV set. That is my time to scream, yell and forget the world.

And the problems aren't restricted to my personal life. One stumbling block men have in accepting a female football fan involves betting at the office. Even the men who accept my being a true dyed-in-the-wool fan have trouble when it comes to football pools.

What does football really provide for me? It's incalculable, really. It goes beyond suffering and exaltation to a sort of "family of man" syndrome. I remember the 1972 Superbowl. My team had lost. I was depressed.

A local sportscaster that night said, "This is ridiculous. There is war in the world. There is poverty, hunger, hardship. And what are we sitting around upset about? A football game."

I began to feel sheepish and silly like yeah, well, maybe it is just a game. Then he looked up into the camera, and I swear he had tears in his eyes, and he said quietly, "I wish they'd won."

Welcome to the family.

Here are some of the basics for the uninitiated

Don't let anyone tell you that football is complicated or brutal. Once you get the general idea, you just may get hooked. Here's the general idea:

- A coin is tossed and the winner receives the kickoff.
- The game is not one of continuous action, like soccer. Football is a series of plays, beginning with the quarterback receiving the ball (taking the snap) and ending when the player with the ball is down.

- There are two separate units to each team, the offense and the defense. These two units consist of totally different players. Don't worry about the name of each individual position. There are a number of them, but you only need to know a few to start out.

The offensive unit of one team takes the field against the defensive unit of the other team. The offense's job is to move the ball down the field to their goal line.

The defense's job is to stop them. The offense keeps the ball until they fumble (drop the ball and lose it to the defense), are intercepted (the quarterback's pass is caught by a defensive player) or fail to gain 10 yards in four successive plays.

- After the huddle, the quarterback takes the snap. He has three options:
  - a) Hand the ball to a runningback who will run down the field.

- b) Throw the ball to a receiver who is open (not well guarded, able to catch the ball).

- c) Run the ball himself — this is usually a last resort.

- The field is 100 yards long, but the offense can move the ball in successive 10-yard increments toward their goal line. The offense has four tries to gain 10 yards. These tries are called "downs."

- First and 10 means they have gained 10 yards and can try again for 10 more. Second and four means they have gained six yards on the first play and have three more tries to gain the remaining four.
  - If they don't gain 10 yards in the first three tries, then they should punt the ball back to the other team on their fourth down. Sometimes on a fourth down, when they should punt, they will try again for the 10 yards (when there are just inches to go, for example). If they miss, the other team takes over at that spot on the field.

- The job of the defense is to stop the offensive unit of the other team from completing a play, or advancing the ball toward their goal line. Simply:
  - a) They try to tackle the runningback if he's plowing downfield with the ball.
  - b) They prevent the receivers from catching the ball thrown by the quarterback.
  - c) They try to tackle the quarterback before he can run or pass the ball. That's called a "sack" and he will lose yardage.

There are a number of penalties that complicate matters, but that's it in a nutshell. Of course, the whole point is to get the ball into the end-zone for six points; a kick afterward is worth one extra point. If a team is facing a fourth down within a reasonable distance of the goal post, they will attempt a field goal rather than risk losing the ball. That's worth three points.

Sue Lucek swims across Globe Hollow pool while training for her final triathlon meet Sunday.

What makes Sue swim & swim ...

By Susan Vaughn

When Sue Lucek begins her one-mile swim Sunday in the New England Toyota Triathlon Series Championship in Sharon, Mass., she will be entering her 13th multi-sport event this summer and hoping for her 8th win.

Lucek, a 25-year-old Manchester native, also hopes to finish the three-sport competition well enough to be ranked among the top 10 women triathletes in New England.

"I think I will do well," she said. "I actually started enjoying them instead of killing myself ... And I'm doing better."

That's an understatement, considering she only started entering triathlons a little more than a year ago.

She backed into the competitions, almost literally, by accident. She got hooked on running marathons in 1983, but an old knee injury forced her to let up on the running. Last summer she switched to biking and swimming to strengthen the knee.

Lucek said she had not considered taking up those two sports until friends who were competing in triathlons encouraged her to try the sport.

Her first competition was Manchester's Silk City Triathlon in July 1985. The mini-event has attracted about 100 participants for the past three years.

She was disappointed that she was not able to officially finish the event because her bike had a flat tire.

She continued training and competed in August 1985 in the U.S. Triathlon Series in Boston. In that event, Lucek said, she finished fourth in her age group among the amateur competitors. "I did surprisingly well. I was encouraged," she said.

This year Lucek wreaked her revenge on the Silk City Triathlon by finishing first and even setting a course record of 2 hours, 14 minutes and 11 seconds among women competitors.

Lucek fits her training — sometimes between 15 and 18 hours a week — into every available hour in a full-time work schedule. She spends weekends traveling to towns she has never even heard of to compete.

"You have to be really efficient. You have to plan everything and hope that nothing goes wrong," she said. She recalled how frustrated she got while working two jobs and trying to fit a social event into her life along with the rigid training schedule.

"It's definitely a change in lifestyle, but I think it's a positive change. I had to give up things I used to do, but I'm healthier and I really do enjoy the training and feeling of being really fit. I think it's worth it," she said Monday. The day before she had placed first in a triathlon in Danbury. The event was her 7th triathlon win of the summer.

Although she had to push hard in Sunday's event, Lucek said she did not feel sore. "Just a little bit tired," she said.

Before Lucek started taking triathlons seriously, however, she had only considered herself a mediocre runner. She recalled coming in "dead last" in one

When she's not training for a triathlon, Sue Lucek is a secretary in West Hartford.

Sue Lucek, in the white shirt, heads out with the pack of runners at the start of the running portion of a triathlon earlier this summer at Globe Hollow pool. The race was one of 13 multi-sport events she competed in this year.

race in high school. She had never biked competitively, and had not swum in meets since junior high school. Instead, she had concentrated on ski racing in high school and at Colorado State University, where she earned a degree in animal science in 1983.

Growing up in an athletic family probably has something to do with her competitive nature, Lucek said. Her mother, Millie Arnold, teaches tennis and is the girls' tennis coach at Manchester High School. Her sister, Sharon Lucek, has competed in triathlons in Colorado.

But another very simple factor has drawn Lucek into triathlons. "It's an interesting sport. You don't get too bored," she said. "It appeals to people like me who don't excel in any one sport. It doesn't take as much out of you as a running race," she added.

Triathletes are now defying the old belief that cross-training in too many sports at once can be damaging to muscles. Lucek said she believes that training and competing in three sports at once is less taxing on the body than running a marathon.

Lucek is 5 feet 7 inches tall, and has a slim athletic build. She said she has to work hard to keep her weight at 125 pounds.

The controlled diet is the hardest part of training for her. "I have the biggest sweet tooth in the world. I could live on ice cream and Gummie Bears."

Her boyfriend, Ken Forzley of Manchester, has helped her learn more about nutrition, she said. He's also competed in triathlons.

Ironically, she also finds it hard to eat more — a must before a competition, when athletes pack in the carbohydrates. "It's a mental adjustment," she said.

Like most other local triathletes, Lucek holds down a full-time job. She does her triathlon training during any spare moments she can fit into her day. During the summer, she swims during her lunch hour or runs on one of the high school tracks close to her secretarial job at Hirschfeld Properties in West Hartford.

Triathlons cost big bucks

The term triathlon is so new that it is not even listed in the dictionary.

The first triathlon was held in February 1978 when two Navy men stationed in Hawaii challenged each other to a contest of swimming, running and bicycling.

From that simple beginning, the sport has become one of the fastest growing in the U.S. In 1981, there were 85 triathlons. Two years later, there were 1,000 with 250,000 participants, according to Health magazine. Last year 1.1 million people competed in 2,100 triathlons.

Those who take up triathlons tend to be better educated, people. Many claim that the sport stretches their minds as well as their bodies. A survey reported by Business Week in February 1985 said that the average triathlete is a 34-year-old college graduate earning $45,000 a year.

Accommodating these well-heeled athletes has become big business for the sports industries, which are marketing $2,000 racing bikes and special "tri-suits."

Sue Lucek does not go in for fancy gear or even an expensive bicycle. Hers cost $250. But even on a modest scale, she estimates that she wears out three or four pairs of running shoes a year, two or three bathing suits, at least two or three bicycle tires and countless bicycle parts.

"At least you always have enough T-shirts," Lucek said, noting that competitors usually get T-shirts for every event they enter, no matter how well they do.

& bike & bike & bike?

Springtime is the time for pushing the training, which she does up to 18 hours a week. She trains indoors during the winter months. "Most look at winter as a time to take a break, but we don't want to get out of shape," she said. She can cut the training down to five to seven hours a week once the triathlon season is in full swing.

Triathlons can vary considerably in size and format. A mini-triathlon, such as the Silk City triathlon, consists of a one-mile swim, a 17.7-mile bicycle ride and a 6.3-mile run. A "short course," which is mostly what Lucek races, is based on standards set by the U.S. Triathlon and TriFed (Federation International Triathlon) Series. The short course is a one-mile swim, a 25-mile bike ride and a 6.2-mile run. In contrast, the iron man triathlons consist of a 2 1/2-mile swim, a 112-mile bike ride and a 26.2-mile (standard marathon) run.

Unfortunately, the cost of the sport has increased in proportion to its popularity.

Lucek qualified earlier this summer to compete in the U.S. Triathlon national championship meet in Hilton Head, S.C., in late September, but said she could not afford to go.

Fees can be high. Large triathlons charge $40 entrance fees and up to $100 for iron-man competitions. That does not include the individual expenses of a good bicycle, helmet, running and biking shoes, swimwear and the travel to get to the events.

Lucek's goals for next year will be to compete in the national championship in Hilton Head, and, possibly, in an iron man. But she conceded that even triathletes get tired of training and competing continually.

"I'm kind of looking forward to the end of the season and just lying around," she said. ■

It's really him

LOS ANGELES (AP) - That really is Dick Van Dyke playing the bad guy in Andy Griffith's new NBC series, "Matlock." Van Dyke makes a guest appearance in the premiere episode on Tuesday, Sept. 23, as a judge who kills his mistress and then predares over a trial in which another man is accused of her murder. "I so rarely get the chance to play the bad guy, and this guy is really bad," said Van Dyke. "He tries everything to get an innocent man convicted." Van Dyke, 60, is best remembered for his good guy role as Doc Petrie on "The Dick Van Dyke Show" in the 1960s.

THE ELLEN BURSTYN SHOW
Ellen Burstyn (center) plays Ellen Brewer, a witty college professor who insists on her independence, even though her mother (Elaine Stritch, l.), divorced daughter (Megan Mullally) and grandson share her home. "The Ellen Burstyn Show," a new ABC series, premieres SATURDAY, SEPT. 20.

Aussies have a funnybone

By Bob Thomas

Australia has proved with "Breaker Morant," "My Brilliant Career," "Gallipoli" and other films that it is capable of brilliant drama. "Crocodile Dundee" demonstrates that Australians have a talent for comedy as well.

It's a joyful movie, full of the wonder of vintage Frank Capra, with an ingenious hero plunked down in the big, bad city. This guy is so innocent that when a couple of hookers offer to give him "a free one," he asks: "A free one what?"

Linda Koslowski plays the Jean Arthur role to Paul Hogan's Gary Cooper. She is an American reporter on assignment in Australia. She persuades her editor (Mark

Bob Thomas reviews movies for The Associated Press.

Andrews hard to categorize

By Bob Thomas

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Most movie star careers follow the pattern of an arc, rising to the highest point and then curving downward. But not Julie Andrews.

She started at the top in 1964, winning an Academy Award for her first movie, "Mary Poppins," and followed that with "The Sound of Music," which became the top money-making film.

Then there were more box-office winners: "Torn Curtain," "Hawaii," "Thoroughly Modern Millie."

After three failures, "Star!" "Darling Lili," "The Tamarind Seed," she abandoned films for a series of TV specials and a quiet life in Gstaad, Switzerland.

Since 1979, her films have been comedy hits made by her husband, Blake Edwards: "10," "S.O.B.," "Victor/Victoria."

Julie Andrews will appear this fall in two disparate movies: "Duet for One," based on the Tom Kempinski play, directed by Andrei Konchalovskiy and co-starring Alan Bates and Max Von Sydow; and "That's Life," directed by Blake Edwards and co-starring Jack Lemmon, Sally Kellerman and Robert Loggia.

Miss Andrews recently talked about the two movies and other matters at her 16th-floor office in a Century City high rise, part of the Blr. e Edwards Enterprises complex.

"Duet for One" happened very fast," she said. "I heard about it last November, and I started shooting in London in February. At first I thought, should I go or Blum) to allow her to stay over so she can investigate a legendary hunter, Mick (Crocodile) Dundee, who is supposed to have crawled miles to safety after a crocodile bit off his leg.

She arrives in the wilds of the Northern Territory to discover the story was exaggerated. But Dundee is indeed a larger-than-life hero. She follows him through enough gorgeous scenery to start another tourist rush down under. Then she thinks it would be a dandy idea to bring him to New York and record his impressions.

"Crocodile Dundee" is best when it sticks to its native turf. Russell Boyd's photography is stunning, and the characters are rich and rounded. The easy pace of Peter Faiman's direction fits the surroundings. Not so in New York, where the scenes lack crispness and characters are too often undimensional. And it's a bit of a jolt to learn that the enterprising reporter is really the daughter of a press czar (Michael Lombard). Paul Hogan is simply marvelous in his movie debut. He is no stranger to cameras, being Australia's premiere television performer (American viewers know him from the beer and tourism commercials). Tall, blond and brawny, he displays a sly humor and a laid-back charm. He is also convincing with his fists.

New Yorker Linda Koslowski makes a good impression in her first movie role. John Meillon, one of Australia's best character actors, adds flavor as Dundee's partner.

Hogan wrote the original story and collaborated on the script with Ken Shadie and John Cornell. Produced by Cornell, the film is being released in the United States and Canada by Paramount Pictures. The rating is PG-13, possibly for language and the hookers. Running time: 105 minutes.

not? Should I uproot the children and take them along? The answer was yes. It was too good an opportunity to miss.

"It was also the hardest work I've ever done — six-day weeks, and extended days at that. It was an eight-week schedule because Konchalovskiy had an opera he had to direct.

"I played a concert violinist who at the prime of her career becomes a victim of multiple sclerosis. The story concerns how her family and others around her handle it. I did a lot of research on the subject and discovered that some families rally around the victim, but some husbands simply quit, unable to cope with the situation."

Miss Andrews also discovered something about the violin: "It is the most killingly difficult instrument to learn. I would have required 10 years to play as well as I should have. I went through a number of four-hour sessions, my neck and shoulders developing bursitis all the while. I asked the director if I couldn't be a pianist. I can turn out a passable tune on the piano. He said no."

The movie project, "That's Life," was something else.

"Blake was sitting in the Jacuzzi one day and he said, 'You know what I'd like to do next? An intimate piece about a family. And I'd like to do it for ourselves.' That surprised me, and I thought he might forget about it. But six weeks later he was ready to go," she said.

The cast of "That's Life" includes Lemmon's wife Felicia Farr and son Chris. Edward's daughter, Jennifer, and Miss Andrews' daughter, Emma. However, the Edwards' adopted Vietnamese children, Amy, 12, and Joanna, 11, are not in the movie which was primarily shot at the Edwards' Malibu compound.

Miss Andrews' devotion to her family has been partly responsible for the lapses in her film career. "We try to spend Christmas and summer together at Gstaad," she said. "This summer we couldn't, because Blake was filming 'Blind Date.' So afterward we did my second-favorite thing: We all went to British Columbia, chartered a boat for 2 1/2 weeks and went fishing."

Film capsules

Aliens (R) — Sigourney Weaver, Carrie Henn, Paul Reiser, Michael Biehn (Thriller) Even if you try and follow the plot — Warrant Officer Ripley, after a 57-year nap in outer space, goes back into combat with those slimy extraterrestrials — you'll soon tire from clutching your seat in fear. This film continues the screams that were instigated by 1979's "Alien." Director James Cameron has created perfect summer fodder to keep us hoarse for days, but Weaver is a problem. Running around in her underwear playing Ramboette, she needs to hone her acting. Luckily, the success of "Aliens" rests on the special effects, and not Weaver's histrionics. Grade: B-plus.

Malcolm (PG-13) Colin FIELDS, John HARGREAVES, LINDY DAVIES (Comedy) This Australian comedy features a childlike adult character named Malcolm, whose mechanical wizardry sharply contrasts with his social maturity. He builds an array of magnificent gadgets, including a car that splits in two (and keeps on running) and cardboard scale models of Australian trams. But what excitement develops when Malcolm rents a room to a humbling bank robber, played with verve by John Hargreaves! Colin Fields brings tenderness and an ingenuity to Malcolm. The music, by the Penguin Cafe Orchestra, is the finest film accompaniment in many seasons. Grade: B-plus.

Vamp (R) — Chris Makepeace, Sandy Baron, Robert Rusler, Dedee Pfeiffer, Grace Jones (Horror Drama) "I wanted the film to be funny," says producer Donald Borchers. "But always within the confines of a situation based in reality." Borchers had failed. This plotless exercise in inanity features: a hissing Grace Jones covered by nothing but breast coils and body paint (courtesy of Keith Haring); dialogue fit only for the dead; and staid humor. Imagine the scripts that Hollywood rejected! Without a doubt, the worst film of the year. Grade: F-minus.

About Last Night... (R) — Rob Lowe, Demi Moore, James Belushi, Elizabeth Perkins. (Drama) What seems like a one-night stand — two Yuppies meet in a bar, then race home to display their ample sexual gymnastics — is actually a poignant tale. This couple wants to be in love, despite interference by friends who insist commitment is an '80s faux pas. Ed Zwick has made a self-assured feature film debut, but what makes the film real is the acting. Lowe sheds his Brit Packer image and turns in an unabashed performance, but Demi Moore steals the film. Baring her soul (when not baring her breasts), Moore proves that the talents she exhibited in "St. Elmo's Fire" were not flukes. Grade: B.

At Close Range (R) — Sean Penn, Christopher Walken, Mary Stuart Masterson. (Drama) Sean Penn lives in the rural South with his tired grandmother, broken-down mother and foolish brother. Then one day, dad comes back to town — with money, flashy cars and the promise of success. But there is one small problem: Dad is a thief. Walken infuses his role with a delicious evil, and Penn, who must make some rather brutal decisions, has never been better. The last 20 minutes are devastating. Not for the entire family. Grade: B.

Big Trouble in Little China (PG-13) — Kurt Russell, Kim Cattrall, Dennis Dun, James Hong, Victor Wong. (Comedy Adventure) Twentieth Century-Fox bills this as a "mystical action adventure comedy kung-fu monster ghost story." Sounds like trouble? You bet. Russell plays pig salesman Jack Burton who, caught among underworld Chinatown ghosts, battles creatures with such foreboding names as The Sewer Monster, One Ear and Neddies. There are special effects, inane dialogue and more special effects. John Carpenter has too much to work with here; he compensates by directing with a manic pace. If there was more focus — and less frenzy — "Big Trouble" would have been a big, fun film. Grade: C.

Club Paradise (PG-13) — Robin Williams, Peter O'Toole, Rich Moranis, Jimmy Cliff. (Comedy) This is a Club Med for the big boys: Dope, drink, women donning and doffing their bikinis. This is also bad comedy. Director Harold Ramis ("Caddyshack") fails to ignite this tale of Chicago fireman Jack Moniker who, suffering from burnout, invests his pension and disability money into rejuvenating a tacky island colony into a Garden of Eden. What could have been a funny movie is simply a bad stretch of amusing one-liners and many unfunny moments. Williams' vapid character forces him to act manic, and '80s icon Twiggy graces the landscape in a thankless role. Grade: C.

REM members write lyrics

By Ethlie Ann Vare

When the group REM made its first video, "Radio Free Europe," the director asked the band to please send along a lyric sheet for the song, so that he could create a better visual interpretation of their meaning.

The bandmates informed the director that they had no lyric sheet; in fact, they weren't entirely sure what the words were altogether.

Times have changed for the folksy Georgians. Not only are they selling records, but they have learned to write.

For their video of "Fall on Me," the lyrics will be the star performers of the clip — no bandmates, just letters scrolling across the screen. "I needed to see the words," shrugged vocalist Michael Stipe.

Top video director Russell Mulcahy is moving to the opposite end of the spectrum with his next project. Best known for his work with the less-than-macho Duran Duran, Mulcahy has been tagged to direct the next episode of "Rambo," filmdom's answer to Judas Priest.

"First Blood III," or whatever it's going to be called, will bring Sylvester Stallone into personal combat with the Russian army as he invades Afghanistan single-handedly. Mulcahy did, at least, get a taste of on-screen gore when he directed "Razorback" and "Highlander" — and there were those nasty scratches in "Hungry Like the Wolf."

General Public is releasing its long-awaited followup to "All the Rage" early in October. It will back it up with an American tour scheduled to run through the Thanksgiving and Christmas season.

Why did the English Beat spinoff band spend so long between albums? Well, for one thing, five members of the recording project — bandmates Dave Wakeling and Ranking Roger, the album producer and two engineers — all became fathers during the album-making process.

"Sorry if you had to wait," smiled new daddy Ranking Roger. "Take it up with the babies!"

More details are leaking out on the Bob Dylan film project. "Hearts of Fire," Dylan, who hasn't taken a dramatic on-screen role since his well-received debut in "Pat Garrett & Billy the Kid" (1970), will play a retired rock star living in seclusion, who is convinced to make a comeback. The flick, currently shooting in England, is being directed by

The State of California is funding a series of anti-drug videos and public service announcements through a program called RAD: Rock Against Drugs. Performers signing up to participate include Belinda Calise, Gene Simmons of Kiss, Moon Zappa and her little brother Dweezil.

Meanwhile, CBS Records has started a fund for a music industry anti-drug program called "Crack Down." Most major labels are expected to contribute, and plans for an all-star benefit concert in the South Bronx are being formulated.

You can cancer-proof your child

Diet has key role early on

By Frances Sheridan Goulart

What kids' disease is feared most by 66 percent of all U.S. parents? Cancer — and with good reason. Every year there are 6,000 new cases of juvenile cancers recorded, according to the American Cancer Society. It is the second leading killer of children between 1 and 14. The cancers that disable or kill are leukemia, bone cancer and kidney, eye and lymph system cancers.

A conscientious parent can help cancer-proof his child for life through better nutrition and good habits. A healthier diet alone can reduce your child's cancer risk by 40 percent, says the National Cancer Institute. Here are 20 tips for parents:

1. Reduce saturated fat. This step reduces the risk of cancer more than any other factor besides keeping your child slim and trim, says the American Cancer Society. The typical American kids' diet is 40 percent fat.

You can lower it to 30 percent or less by switching to low-fat or skim milk, fat-reduced cheeses and dairy desserts, using vegetable oils in place of butter, serving fresh vegetables in place of high-fat potato chips, fresh fruits instead of cake and cookies and other processed foods high in "hidden" fats.

2. Make fewer trips to your child's favorite fast-food restaurant. Fast foods are fatty foods, and fatty foods promote obesity, high blood pressure, stroke and heart disease as well as cancer. A child should have no more than 5 to 6 teaspoons of fat a day. Fast foods provide an average of 5 to 19 teaspoons per serving.

3. Cancer-proof cooking. Use no-stick cookware which requires no oils or fats. Bake, broil or roast meats rather than pan or deep-fry. And limit your barbecuing. The charcoal grilling of meat results in the formation of cancer-causing substances, warns the Center for Science in the Public Interest, when fat drippings combine with heated coals.

4. Raise a fat-free kid. Studies of population groups suggest that fat kids are at a higher risk of certain cancers, especially breast and colon. Get him into a sports program and keep the fridge stocked with low-calorie nutrient-rich fruits and vegetables to help him maintain normal weight.

5. Serve more meatless meals. According to the Vegetarian Information Service, vegetarians have less cancer. Substitute lean fish and poultry. And when you have meat, skin it and trim it to lower calories and reduce fat by 30 to 50 percent. For more information, order the FDA leaflet "Vegetarian Diets" (address below).

6. Make fewer trips to the ice-cream shop. An ice-cream sundae is as rich in cancer-promoting fat as a cheeseburger, says the CSPI. Buy ice milk or tofutti instead, or make your own.

NICE CREAM

1 cup water, pineapple juice or orange juice
1 cup raisins
1/2 cup pecans, chopped
2 cups frozen fruits

Use peaches, pineapple or apricots or a combination of all three. Put juice and raisins in blender and puree. Add frozen fruit. Liquefy. Fold in nuts and chill. 200 calories per 1/2-cup serving.

7. Put milk on the menu. Two to three glasses of skim or low-fat milk a day helps protect the intestinal tract by raising reserves of calcium and vitamin D, conclude new studies by researchers at the University of California at San Diego. Non-milk drinkers in their study had nearly three times the risk of cancer as kids and adults who drank two or three cups a day.

8. Put pectin-rich foods on the menu. Pectin is a fiber found in fruit and vegetables that's more beneficial than bran. Pectin-rich after-school snacks to serve: apples, grapes, strawberries and unsweetened fruit jams and jellies and sugar-free frozen juice bars.

9. Avoid additives. You reduce your child's cancer risk by 10 percent just by refusing to use foods containing artificial colors, flavors and preservatives. Red Dye 40 is one of the two major suspected causes of lymph gland cancer, one of the five cancers seen the most in children, says the government's Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

For a list of others to avoid, write the Center for Science in the Public Interest, 1501 16th Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

10. Don't serve spoiled foods. Aflatoxin is one of the 26 cancer-inducing chemicals that occurs naturally in foods and is very hard to detect, says the International Agency for

Serve more meatless meals

Turn to protein-rich foods

Research on Cancer. It develops in peanuts and other nuts, also corn, figs and grains. Buy nuts and seeds in the shell and buy a good quality peanut butter.

11. Avoid artificial sweeteners. Saccharin is a potent promoter of bladder cancer in both kids and grownups, according to cancer specialist Clifford Grobstein of the University of California at San Diego. Pass up sugarless gums and diet sodas; serve maple syrup or pure honey and limit your use of aspartame (NutraSweet, Equal) which puts your child at a risk of brain damage or epilepsy, says the CSPI.

12. Watch for these seven warning signs of cancer: a change in bowel or bladder habits, a sore that does not heal; unusual bleeding or discharge; thickening or lump in breast or elsewhere; indigestion and difficulty in swallowing; obvious changes in a wart or mole.

13. Raise a cabbage patch kid. Cabbages — red, green and Chinese — contain cancer-fighting crucifers which provide protection from cancers of the lung, colon, rectum and stomach, and improve the body's protection of tumor-inhibiting enzymes. Other crucifer vegetables: Brussels sprouts, broccoli and cauliflower. Serve cole slaw or stuffed or steamed cabbage once a week.

14. Prevent leukemia (cancer of the blood forming tissues) with naturally processed meats. Nitrites and nitrates are two suspected causes of this No. 1 kid's cancer. Nitrites are found in cold cuts, ham, bacon and hotdogs. Buy naturally cured bacon, cold cuts preserved with potassium sorbate.

And when your child eats foods containing nitrites at restaurants (worst offenders are junk-food snacks), make sure he takes vitamin C, too, which helps reduce nitrite's impact.

15. Put cancer-proof nutrition in the cereal bowl. The fiber in whole-grain cereals helps prevent cancer, especially of the stomach, says the Linus Pauling Institute of Menlo Park, Calif. Four kids' ready-to-eats that are high in fiber, low in calories: shredded wheat, oatmeal, bran flakes and puffed wheat. Put anti-cancer fruits and vegetables, not snack chips, in the lunch box.

The 12 best, according to the Sloan Kettering Cancer Center's children's ward, are grapefruit, melon, potatoes, beans, peas, spinach, kale, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, nectarines, peaches and berries.

16. Bake it, don't burn it. The most potent mutagens (chemicals that cause genetic changes in cells) are pyrolysates — created when food is charred. They result from charcoal-broiling steaks and burgers and in lesser degree, toasting bread too dark. Saute, bake or stir-fry meats instead. This method also supplies more cancer-blocking fibers, says the American Cancer Society.

17. Serve more beans, fewer burgers. The fiber in dried beans fights fat. Baked beans, split pea soup and cold bean salads provide twice the fiber of wheat bran. Serve baked beans once a week; and instead of salted peanuts, keep roasted soybeans in the family snack dish.

18. Keep your child away from cigarette smoke. A teen-ager who uses nicotine is at a 10-fold risk of developing lung cancer. The risk is higher for pre-teens. Smoking is the direct cause of 30 percent of all cancer-related deaths, says the International Cancer Patients Organization.

19. Ninety percent of common skin cancers are linked to over-exposure to the sun. Broad-brimmed hats, long-sleeved shirts, gauzy fabrics all help block the sun's rays and reduce the risks of cancer.

20. Beta-carotene (pro-vitamin A) is one of the three nutrients that protects kids from cancer — especially of the respiratory system. One carrot contains 4,758 mcg. of beta-carotene. Other good sources are pumpkin, squash, leafy greens and oranges. Here's how to put beta-carotene on your Sunday brunch menu:

CARROT CREPES FOR KIDS

1 cup finely grated carrots
2 whole eggs
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
2 tablespoons wheat germ or bran
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
pinch nutmeg or cinnamon

Mix ingredients until smooth. Spoon by the tablespoon onto a no-stick skillet. Cook until brown. Turn and finish cooking. Serve with warm honey.

Does everything have to change?

By Fred Rogers with Barry Head

"Mommy," the 4-year-old asked, walking hand-in-hand with her mother down the long airport corridor. "If I walked backward, could I get to yesterday?"

That's the kind of a question that can delight a parent with its whimsy and yet startle with its simplicity and logic, with its ability to reveal to us the child we were... and still are. Haven't we all, at all ages, wondered where yesterday went, where yesterday is now? Some of us may even want yesterday back, just as some of us may dread the coming of tomorrow. We do everything always have to change?

The chances are that no one was able to answer that question for us when we were little, and there won't be many parents who can find a satisfactory answer for their children. All we know is that as time goes by, everything does change. So where can we find the stability we all seem to need — adults and children alike?

I believe there's no time in life when stability is more important than it is in early infancy. That's because there's no time, either, when the world is so new, so unfamiliar, seeming to change so constantly, and no time when we as infants have so little experience to bring to its understanding. Fortunate infants find the stability they need in the constancy of a face, the face of a constant caregiver. With the help of a constant caregiver, a baby may find stability in a regular cycle of body functions, in the predictable relief from discomfort and the recurring hurts of hunger.

It isn't long before babies begin finding out that their hands and feet belong to them, that they have bodies of their own, but as they learn to creep and crawl and toddle, they learn, too, that their very own bodies are changing all the time.

Can't anything be trusted not to change? For some children, the answer, happily, is "yes": the constancy of care. There may be more caring faces now, more people who provide that care. Their ways of providing care may take different forms, may change as our early needs change, but the fact that we are cared for doesn't have to change. And if, in those early years, it doesn't change, babies can grow to be children who can care for themselves, and then to be adults who can care for others.

That early, deep sense of the constancy of care may be our most important resource in coping with the perpetual changes in the world around us and in our lives. As children experience the sometimes unsettling transitions of day to night, summer to winter, they need to know that even in the darkness and cold there will be care until light and warmth return.

They need to know that as their bodies change in dramatic and even alarming ways, people will care for them. Our consultant, Dr. Margaret McFarland, remembers how a young neighbor brought her the first one of her teeth to fall out. "Do you want me to keep it?" Margaret asked, and when the little girl said yes, they put it carefully in a little cup in a special place.

The girl visited Margaret again and again to make sure her tooth was really safe. Margaret knew that taking care of the tooth was a way of taking care of that child right then, and I those children who find they can count on constancy of care from both parents, from grandparents and from others as well. Constancy of care. Perhaps that's all we can hope to find that doesn't change. But what a lot that is! Without it, we may spend the years of our lives trying to walk backwards to yesterday or trying to halt our steps toward tomorrow. But when we know that care will be there, life can seem well worth living, even in the rough-and-tumble, ever-changing now. ■ no doubt that Margaret's care helped that little girl learn that there could be people beyond the family who knew how to care for children and their feelings.

Children need to know, too, that when accidents happen, there will be care to help stop the pain. They need to know the same thing about times of emotional pain. The children who are most likely to "survive" a divorce — even come to find new growth and strength through a divorce — are

What next? Cobalt in cat food

By Sonja Heinze

I have been feeding a stray cat that stays in my garage. I read the ingredients in cat food and they are sickening. One of them is cobalt. Isn't cobalt used in X-rays, and isn't this a cancer-causing substance? — B. Bernstein, Wheeling, Ill.

The director of pet food product development, L.G. Miller, Ph.D., of Calreco, Inc., manufacturers of Fancy Feast cat food, explains that there are nine forms of cobalt. Each of the nine forms has a different weight. The form of cobalt that is used in cat food has a mass of 59. The radioactive form of cobalt used in diagnostic procedures, such as x-rays, has a mass of 60. Cobalt-60 is indeed radioactive, but cobalt-59 is the natural form of cobalt.

In other words, the nine forms of cobalt consist of eight that are radioactive and one that is not, cobalt-59. Cobalt-59 is required by the cat in its metabolism, and is a component of vitamin B-12. Cobalt is therefore added just in case the cat's diet becomes deficient in this vitamin.

There would be no purpose for a company to add an ingredient to pet food that would make a cat radioactive, for such an animal would either glow in the dark or die, neither condition of which would be advantageous to the manufacturer.

NUTRITIONAL VALUE OF RAMEN NOODLES
My family loves Rop Ramen Noodles from Nissin Foods. I have often wondered about their nutritional value but have been unable to obtain any facts on this. Can you help? — Sheri Jordan, Security, Colo.

According to a nutrition analysis sheet sent by Nissin Foods, a 3-ounce package of Top Ramen Noodles contains about 400 calories. Going on the basis of what the government says an individual requires every day in order to exist, called the U.S. RDA (which, incidentally, is currently in the process of being revised), a 3-ounce package should provide 15 percent of protein, 4 percent of vitamin A, 2 percent of vitamin C, 30 percent of vitamin B-1, 15 percent of niacin, 2 percent of calcium and 15 percent iron.

Additionally, each package contains about a teaspoon of salt. This is 10 times the amount of salt you actually require for each day.

The package consists of both noodles and a powder with many ingredients including monosodium glutamate (MSG), cottonseed or palm oil, sugar, citric acid and caramel coloring. The flavors are naturally derived — that is, from plant and animal sources as opposed to artificial sources.

In short, this is a highly processed, salty food. Anyone concerned about sodium intake should not make a daily habit of it.

WHAT IS UREA?
Could you please tell me what the urea is? I have noticed urea in hand creams and other cosmetic items. — Annette Stuart, Upland, Calif.

Urea is a substance that functions as an antiseptic and deodorizer. You can find it in shampoos, lotions, hand creams, roll-on deodorants, dentifrices, mouthwashes, hair colorings and various other drugstore products.

You can also find it in human urine, or the urine of any mammal. When you eat protein and it breaks down in your system, one of the end products is urea. Urea is produced in the liver and then carried by the blood to the kidneys, where the urea is removed from the blood and excreted in the urine.

This doesn't mean that the urea in your hand cream is made from urine. Rather, it's synthesized in a factory by combining carbon dioxide and ammonia, emerging as colorless, odorless crystals. Urea also had a cool, salty taste, and is used, oddly enough, to "brown" baked goods such as pretzels. It has no known toxicity.

Urea's largest use is as a fertilizer, and in the manufacturer of resins and plastics.

CALORIES IN IMITATION CRAB
Can you please tell us how many calories there are in imitation crab salad meat? We used Jana Seafood Flakes. — Mrs. John Ravenscraft, Safety Harbor, Fla.

For every 3 ounces of Jana imitation crab meat there are 72 calories. Real crab meat has slightly fewer calories, about 60 for 3 ounces. Imitation crab meat has a variety of added ingredients. The product you use, made by Jana, has added potato starch, sugar, sorbitol, salt, crab extract, sweetened sake, and polyphosphate. The crab meat is also artificially colored.

LOOKING FOR ALL-COTTON QUILTS
Can you please tell me where my mother can buy 100 percent cotton quilts? She has looked from Florida to California with no luck so far. Hope you can help. — D. Horwath, Fresno, Calif.

Offhand I know of two sources for buying all cotton quilts. One of them is the woman who made my futon. Futon is the overall Japanese term for bedding, and not too long ago I decided to go oriental in that regard. The futon I sleep on is constructed of a cotton batting to which some wool has been added, and it's covered with a thick muslin material.

This person will custom make all-cotton quilts to your specifications. If you are sensitive to chemicals of any kind, the muslin used is not chemically treated.

Write to: Judith Jantz, 502 Bonnardel, Sebastopol, CA 95472.

Another source to contact is Essential Alternatives, 38 Center Street, Rutland, Vt. 05701. In addition to cotton quilts they sell futons, bed frames, pillows, bolsters, comforters and mattress pads. Ask for their catalog.

READER FEEDBACK: ODORS IN OLD FURNITURE
Barbara Dalba, Newmarket, N.H.: "Regarding your column in which a lady had an odor problem with an old cherry bedroom set, I would like to offer my solution to the problem. I inherited an old trunk that had brought all the worldly goods of a young lady who had immigrated to this country from Italy around 1900. The trunk was stored, empty, in a clean and dry basement for some time and had the musty smell that one would expect."

"I tried a number of remedies to get rid of the odor, all to no avail. Then my brother suggested vanilla, the liquid used for cooking, and it worked. I put two cotton balls in a saucer and soaked them with vanilla, then put the saucer in the trunk and closed the lid for several days."

"This worked so well that I used the trunk to store keepsakes in for several years. I have heard that the same means has been used with upholstered pieces of furniture that have acquired bad odors. The vanilla was put under the furniture and then the whole thing wrapped as tightly as possible with a large piece of plastic." ■

Potato potpourri

Don't worry — spuds are not that fattening

By Janet Lorimer

Some people still believe the potato is fattening. The truth is that a potato contains about the same number of calories as an apple of the same size. Some people think the skin is not edible and should be peeled off. The truth is the skin is one of the best parts of the potato. Some people think potatoes aren't very nutritious. The truth is an average-sized potato contains a number of vitamins, notably Vitamins B and C, some minerals and a small amount of protein.

So, now that we've dispelled this medley of myths, let's look at a mixture of potato recipes.

GARLIC ROAST POTATOES

4 large potatoes
1/2 cup butter
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 large clove garlic,
finely chopped
dash paprika

Boil the potatoes in the jackets. When cool enough to handle, slice boiled potatoes into 1" slices. Place slices in a single layer in a large glass pan. In a small pan melt butter over low heat. Add olive oil, garlic and paprika. Heat butter mixture well. Brush butter mixture over potatoes until all sides are coated.

Refrigerate potatoes for about an hour. During that time, turn them twice. Place coated potatoes on broiler rack. Broil potato slices until they are hot and golden brown on each side. Brush frequently with excess butter mixture while potatoes are broiling. Serve hot.

Serves 4-5.

This recipe is a good company dish.

POTATOES ROMANOFF

6 large potatoes
1 1/2 cups sour cream
1 1/2 cups grated
Cheddar cheese
1/2 cup green onions,
finely chopped
dash salt and pepper
dash paprika

Boil potatoes in their jackets until tender. When cool enough to handle, shred potatoes. Add the sour cream, grated Cheddar cheese, green onions and seasonings.

Turn the potato mixture into a buttered 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle the top with paprika. Refrigerate covered for several hours or overnight. Bake, uncovered, at 350F for about 30-40 minutes.
Serves 8.

Of course sometimes it's fun to treat the family to one of those "special" company dishes.

POTATOES WITH WINE AND HERBS

3 tablespoons olive oil
1 teaspoon whole-wheat
pastry flour
4 raw potatoes, sliced
1 medium onion, sliced thin
1 clove garlic,
finely chopped
dash salt and pepper
1/2 cup dry white wine
1/2 cup chicken broth

Potatoes Romanoff is made with cheddar cheese and sour cream.

1 tablespoon mixture of thyme, marjoram and oregano
1 teaspoon parsley

Heat olive oil in large skillet. Add the flour and brown it. Add the potatoes, onion, garlic, salt and pepper. Cook slowly, turning often until potatoes are brown. Add the wine, chicken broth and herbs. Cover pan lightly and simmer until potatoes are tender and liquid is absorbed. Garnish with parsley.
Serves about 4.

These can be served for dinner as a side dish — a different way to use potatoes.

POTATO ONION PANCAKES

2 cups grated raw potatoes
1/2 cup grated raw onion
2 eggs
2 tablespoons whole-wheat
pastry flour
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
dash salt and pepper

In large bowl mix all ingredients, stirring after each addition. On a griddle, melt a little butter and cook batter as you would cook pancakes.
Serves 4.

Note: This is quite good served with hot applesauce on top.

Here's a little number that makes life much easier, especially if you're in a rush.

QUICK AND EASY OVEN-FRIED POTATOES

4 medium-sized potatoes
1-2 tablespoons vegetable oil

dash salt
dash paprika

dash salt
dash paprika

Preheat oven to 400F. Wash the potatoes thoroughly. Cut them into quarters. Pour oil into the bottom of a shallow oven-proof glass dish, spreading oil evenly over bottom of dish. Sprinkle salt and paprika into oil.

Turn the potato quarters over and over in the oil to be sure all sides are coated. Place the potato quarters with skin side up in the remaining oil in the dish. Bake for about half an hour, or until potatoes are tender.
Serves 4-5.

This recipe is always good. It offers a different taste twist to the usual potato salad.

GERMAN HOT POTATO SALAD

6 medium-sized potatoes
2 strips nitrite-free bacon
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup vinegar
1/4 cup water
dash honey
dash salt
dash paprika
1 sweet pickle, chopped

Boil potatoes in their jackets until tender. When cool enough to handle, slice potatoes into bite-sized chunks. In skillet, cook bacon strips. Drain, crumble and set aside. Pour off excess bacon grease from skillet. Turn heat to low and add onion and celery. Sauté for a minute or two.

Add vinegar, water, honey and seasonings. Turn heat up to medium low. Stir mixture thoroughly. (You have added enough honey if dressing has a sweet-sour taste.) Add pickle, bacon crumbles and potatoes. Stir everything together until potatoes are well-coated with dressing. Remove from heat. Serve hot.

Serves 6-8.

Here's a colorful way to cook vegetables and potatoes together.

CARNIVAL POTATOES

4 large baking potatoes
3 tablespoons butter
dash salt and pepper
dash of hot milk
1 (4-ounce) can pimentos,
chopped
1 1/2 cups steamed green peas
1 cup sliced carrots,
steamed until tender

Preheat oven to 400F. Clean the potatoes thoroughly. Bake at 400F for 45-60 minutes or until done. When potatoes are cool enough to handle, cut the tops from them. Scoop out the centers and mash the potato centers with butter, seasoning and enough hot milk to moisten the potato mixture.

Add the chopped pimentos, peas and carrots. Mix thoroughly, stirring carefully. Stuff the potato-vegetable mixture back into the shells. Reheat in the oven at a low temperature for a few minutes.
Serves 4.

So you see, a potato is not just another vegetable. It's a potpourri of nutrition, versatility, economy and delicious taste. ■

La Strada West Restaurant

By Sondra Astor Steve

One cannot help having different expectations for a meal depending upon the cost. The more one pays, the more one has the right to anticipate. On this basis, La Strada West, at 471 Hartford Road, leaves little to fault with a menu whose most expensive entree is $8.95 and where several selections are only $5.25.

The decor is typical for a restaurant of its type: leatherette booths, composition tables, wood paneling and a few nondescript pictures on the wall. Service is businesslike; one is not encouraged to linger. Food is competently prepared and offers good value for the dollar.

We began our meal with the small antipasto which provided enough for three to sample the slices of pepperoni, the wheels of ham and cheese and the tuna, lightly mixed with celery, all on a bed of lettuce with slices of tomato. We were surprised to be offered dressing for the plate and chose to try the house creamy garlic which went well with the lettuce and tomato but seemed at odds with the meats and cheese.

Non-pasta main dishes are served with two choices among soup, salad, potato, vegetable and pasta. The soup of the day was cream of broccoli, hearty Italian sounding, but a thoroughly pleasant coarse puree of vegetables in a creamy broth.

The side salad was the usual combination of iceberg and tomato. Bleu cheese dressing had a good amount of cheese chunks, perhaps justifying the 40-cent surcharge, but it would have been appreciated if that charge had been noted when the list of dressings was delivered.

The bread provided was a pleasantly eggy, semi-braided loaf. The garlic bread, for which there is a charge of $1.50, uses a similar bread. The topping spares the butter or oil and is as generous with paprika and cheese as it is with garlic.

Veal parmigiana began with a piece of real veal, thin, but of good size. It was cooked a little drier than I would have preferred, but with its thin layer of breading, homecooked tomato sauce, and topping of cheese, the end product was quite satisfactory. One of four pasta choices was green noodles and they were cooked al dente under their tomato sauce covering.

A weekend special was hip steak. The piece was relatively small, but at $8.50, a good value since it was at least one inch thick with proper beefy taste. Potatoes O'Brien were a sort of home fry with pieces of onion and pepper.

Another special, and the best of our entrees, was calamari fra diavolo. While the sauce was not as hot as the devil's might be, the linguini was perfectly cooked and the squid pieces had the texture to which all cooks aspire and few achieve. Both the tentacles and body rings were that ideal combination of tenderness and crunch with not even a hint of rubberiness.

Portions are substantial, but not so large that dessert is out of the question. We were therefore disappointed that only one pie (chocolate cream) was on the menu, and even that was no longer available. With vanilla ice cream as the only other alternative, we regretfully chose to try the rice pudding and were pleasantly surprised. The pudding was creamy, not too sweet, with tender grains of rice and a fresh cinnamon topping. With cups of hot coffee, it provided a satisfying conclusion to our meal.

Appetizers at La Strada, including fried mozzarella, chicken fillets and an assortment of salads, range from $1.25 for a small salad or soup to $5.95 for the large antipasto. Main dishes include five featuring veal, six various combinations of seafood, two preparations of chicken and half a dozen that are primarily pasta. Pizza and grinders are also available as are daily specials.

La Strada is a prototypical Southern Italian restaurant, Connecticut style. Its good food and reasonable prices make for an enjoyable dinner. ■

A NEIGHBOR FOR LIFE.

A good neighbor—pursuing the best interests of the community, always there, always caring. Since 1919, Manchester Memorial Hospital has consistently worked towards these ideals, while striving to meet the unique needs of the East-of-the-River community with innovative, sophisticated, responsive care.

INNOVATIVE

Part of being a good neighbor is always looking for new ways to help. Manchester Memorial has a long tradition of innovative care. A family-centered labor and delivery suite in a hospital setting was instituted here, when it was just an experiment at other hospitals.

Continuing commitment to innovation has gained Manchester Memorial regional and national attention as a hospital that provides a superior level of progressive services and programs. Manchester Memorial even innovated with food. Before it was fashionable, we introduced a restaurant style menu with gourmet items like lobster, elevating our food to a status worthy of review by Parade Magazine.

SOPHISTICATED

As part of our sophisticated, high-quality services Manchester Memorial Hospital provides the community with programs like: The Family Birthing Center, family-centered pediatrics, parenting services, one day surgery center, nutrition counseling, a cardiac rehabilitation program, cancer support groups, medical support for the local paramedic team, a vascular laboratory, CT scanning, comprehensive inpatient and outpatient psychiatric programs, and diabetes education. We also have an active medical staff of 150 highly skilled physicians representing a full array of medical and surgical specialties and sub-specialties.

RESPONSIVE

At Manchester Memorial we work hard to achieve our goals. Part of that job is being able to read the pulse of the community.

In response to your need for quality walk-in medical care, Manchester Memorial created PromptCare, where over 7,000 of you have received care in seven months of operation. We also sponsor services like: community health education classes, blood pressure clinics and a speakers bureau. These services are tailored to your needs and designed to improve the quality of life in the community.

But possibly the biggest advantage Manchester Memorial has is our closeness to the community. We know our neighbors better than anyone and understand their needs. Many of our staff live right here and have a special commitment to the East-of-the-River area. The sense of closeness and neighborliness at Manchester Memorial is something you won't find just anywhere. And best of all, we're here anytime you need us.
