Wilson questions charges

Edward J. Wilson, the independent candidate in the 13th Assembly District, filed a motion in court this morning seeking the dismissal of charges of neglect or fraud that were lodged against him in connection with petitioning irregularities.

The motion, filed by Wilson's attorney, Leonard M. Horvath of Manchester, called the affidavit used to arrest him "vague" and said the state had not filed sufficient evidence to justify a trial.

Manchester Superior Court Judge Raymond Morke has scheduled a hearing on the motion for 2 p.m. on Nov. 10, when oral arguments will be heard. Morke can either drop all charges or schedule a trial, attorneys involved in the case said.

After a police investigation into an abortive attempt by supporters of Republican gubernatorial candidate Gerald Labriola to force a May delegate primary in Manchester, Wilson was arrested on charges that he circulated a petition on which someone else's name was listed as the official circulator.

The crime is a misdemeanor under state law. If convicted, Wilson could face a maximum sentence of one year in prison and a $500 fine. A jury trial had been scheduled to start this morning.

The information filed in this case fails to cite or establish any laws or duties relating to elections or primaries which could invoke the provisions of the law," the motion said. The motion said that the affidavit used to arrest Wilson did not cite the state statutes being used and therefore "falls to charge an offense for which the defendant can be prosecuted."

Horvath declines to comment directly on the case or the motion. During the petitioning drive, supporters of Labriola collected enough signatures to force a primary and challenge a town committee-endorsed slate of delegates that mostly supported one of Labriola's opponents, Richard Bozzuto.

The primary bid was dropped after allegations of wrongdoing came to light. Both candidates eventually lost the GOP nomination to Julie Belaga in a statewide primary in September.

Police said Wilson had solicited a signature from one resident who signed the petition form where Wilson was supposed to sign as the official circulator. The petition was then certified.

Three other people were also arrested in connection with the petition drive. They were Republican town Directors Thomas H. Ferguson and William Diana, and notary public Elsie Tartaglia, who were Manchester State Bank. All have received accelerated rehabilitation, a probationary settlement that means all charges against them will be dropped if they are not convicted of a crime during the probationary period.

Manchester Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg addresses the crowd at Thursday's opening ceremony for the connector between Interstate 84 and Interstate 384. Looking on is Gov. William A. O'Neill.

Road link carries traffic

It is also known as the Wilbur Cross Highway.

Among Manchester people who attended the ceremony, in addition to the mayor, were state Sen. Carl Zinzer, Town Manager Robert Weiss, Assistant Town Manager Steven Werber, and Town Fire Chief John Rivera.

Also present were state Rep. Donald Bates of East Hartford, whose 8th Assembly District includes a part of Manchester, and other state legislators who represent East Hartford.

State Transportation Commissioner J. William Burns said he had participated in many ceremonies like the one Thursday, but he could remember none involving "such a significant and immediate benefit to so many thousands of people."

O'Neill said, "We are going to continue across the state, fixing roads that need to be fixed and building roads that need to be built."

About half an hour after O'Neill cut the ribbon, workers removed the cardboard that had been covering the Exit 89 sign on eastbound I-84. State police removed the plastic traffic cones, and vehicles began to flow onto the new road immediately.

Soviet leader promises to seek solutions

Reykjavik, Iceland - Soviet Leader Mikhail Gorbachev, promising to search for solutions "to the burning problems of the world," arrived today for a summit with President Reagan hailed by both sides as a chance to make progress on arms control and other issues.

Gorbachev held on to his hat to keep it from being blown away by blustery winds as he stepped off his Aeroflot jet with his wife, Raisa, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and other officials.

In brief comments at Keflavik Airport, Gorbachev said, "We have arrived here to start this meeting imbued with a sense of responsibility" owed to people around the world.

"We of course hope that the same sense of responsibility for the destiny of the world is the feeling brought here in the capital of Iceland by the meeting of the United States," he added. He said Reagan's call on Thursday for a successful summit was a good foundation for meeting.

"The time we are living through demands actions on the part of the great powers ... but also joint actions on the part of all states and people of the world," he said.

"We are prepared to look for solutions to the burning problems which concern people all over the world," he said.

The Soviet leader said the ultimate hope should be "the final elimination of nuclear weapons by the year 2000."

From the airport, Gorbachev traveled in a motorcade to his summit headquarters: a cruise ship docked in a Reykjavik bay for use by Soviet officials. They were hampered by a hotel room shortage in this country of 200,000 people.

Before Gorbachev reached Reykjavik, Andre Grachov, a Soviet spokesman, said, "I believe that the success of the Reykjavik meeting, which we all wish, will set a date" for a follow-up meeting in the United States.

Gorbachev's arrival created a protocol problem for his Icelandic hosts, who had hoped to send their top leaders to greet the Soviet leader. However, the event conflicted with the annual and long-

Wholesale prices up 0.4 percent in September

Wholesale prices rose 0.4 percent in September, according to the Labor Department's Producer Price Index, which seasonally adjusts its calculations to remove periodic, predictable influences, said new automobile prices rose 0.8 percent despite the end of the 1986 model year.

The September figures left the overall price index - not adjusted for seasonal variations - at 247.8, meaning that the same goods that cost $10 during a 1947 base period, now cost $247.8 last month.

"Prices for goods other than food and energy rose an overall 9.0 percent," the index said.

Economists said the price rise reflected the summer's partial agreement by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) to limit production.

Food prices, after rising 1.3 percent in August, declined 0.2 percent with a 1.3 percent drop in poultry prices and an 8.9 percent dip in egg prices leading the way.

The Labor Department's Producer Price Index, which seasonally adjusts its calculations to remove periodic, predictable influences, said new automobile prices rose 0.8 percent despite the end of the 1986 model year.

MCC student looks back

Now at MCC, Ntundumula had to flee Mozambique

By John Mitchell
Herald Reporter

Minizhu Jack Ntundumula, a first-year student at Manchester Community College, often sits in the lobby of the Lewis building reading a textbook on business law. At MCC, he is just another face in the classroom, concerned about upcoming examinations and his job at the college library.

About 20 years ago, however, Ntundumula was vice president of Mozambique's rising political party. He was imprisoned after the group attempted to overthrow the country's Portuguese dictatorship.

"I was very young to handle these national issues," Ntundumula said. Born in the province of Tete, he was the son of parents who were tribal chiefs. The royal blood automatically gave him influence.

Until the 1970s, Mozambique - a country with a population of 13.5 million and an area about twice the size of California - had been under the colonial dictatorship of the Portuguese for more than 500 years. It was during the Portuguese reign that a young Ntundumula helped form the Mozambique African National Council, MANC, in order to make the government

Across the nation

Record-breaking cold settled into the Great Lakes region today while rain was scattered across the Southwest, East Coast and South.

Temperatures dipped below freezing across much of northern Michigan and northeast Minnesota early today. Marquette, Mich., was 23 degrees below midnight, a record low for Oct. 9, breaking a 1982 record of 28 degrees.

Thunderstorms ranged from southwestern New Mexico across Arizona and Southern California.

Rain and thunderstorms dotted the New England Coast and were scattered from Virginia across Florida and the Gulf of Mexico coast.

Today's forecast called for showers and thunderstorms scattered across New Mexico, the Texas Panhandle and west Texas into northeast Texas; showers across the Atlantic Coast; and rain from central Florida across southeast Virginia.

Highs will be in the 40s to 50s from the northern Rockies across the upper Mississippi Valley, the Great Lakes and northern Atlantic Coast; 60s from Florida across the Gulf Coast through southeastern Texas; and 80s to 90s across the lower Rio Grande Valley, desert Southwest and interior valleys of California.

Temperatures around the nation at 9 a.m. EDT ranged from 24 degrees at Marquette, Mich., to 82 at Key West, Fla.

Almanac

Today is Friday, Oct. 10, the 283rd day of 1986. There are 82 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
The tuxedo is believed to have made its American debut 100 years ago on Oct. 10, 1886, at the first Autumn Ball in Tuxedo Park, N.Y. Socialite Griswold Lorillard and some of his friends showed up wearing dress coats without the customary tails, a breach of formality that was frowned upon.

On this date:
In 1813, composer Giuseppe Verdi was born.
In 1845, the U.S. Naval Academy opened in Annapolis, Md.
In 1911, revolutionaries under Sun Yat-sen overthrew the Manchu dynasty in China.
In 1913, the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans conjoined in the Panama Canal after U.S. engineers blew up the Gatun Dam.
In 1935, the American opera "Porgy and Bess," with music by George Gershwin and libretto by DuBoise Heyward and Ira Gershwin, opened on Broadway.
In 1943, Chiang Kai-shek took the oath of office as president of China.
In 1973, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, accused of accepting bribes, pleaded no contest to one count of federal income tax evasion, and resigned his office.

In 1978, President Jimmy Carter signed a bill authorizing the Susan B. Anthony dollar.

In 1980, about 4,500 people died when a pair of earthquakes struck northwestern Algeria.

Ten years ago: President Gerald R. Ford attended services at the First Baptist Church in Dallas, while Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter went to Chicago to address a meeting of Polish-American leaders.

Five years ago: Funeral services were held in Cairo for Egyptian leader Anwar Sadat, who had been assassinated four days earlier by Moslem extremists.

One year ago: U.S. fighter jets forced an Egyptian plane carrying the hijackers of the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro to land in Italy, where the gunmen were taken into custody.

Today's Birthdays: Actress Helen Hayes is 86. Author James Clavell is 82. Playwright Harold Pinter is 68. Former Illinois Sen. Adlai Stevenson III is 58. Enter-tainer Ben Vereen is 56. David Lee Roth is 31. Singer Tanya Tucker is 28.

Drivers take advantage of the new link between Interstate 84 and Interstate 384 after it was officially opened Thursday afternoon. State police said 1,275 cars per hour were using the road on the average.

I-384 becomes Hartford's problem

With the opening of a new eastbound link between Interstate 84 and Interstate 384 on Thursday, state police from Troop H at the Hartford barracks took over patrol of most of I-384 from Troop K in Colchester.

Under the new plan, Hartford-based state troopers will patrol I-384 to the Bolton town line and troopers from Colchester will patrol the highway only in Bolton.

A state police spokesman said the new access to I-384 made the change possible.

The East Hartford firefighters will also respond to calls on I-84 all the way to the West Middle Turnpike exit in Manchester.

Assistant Fire Chief David Dagon of East Hartford said today that other meetings will be held between the departments over responses on I-84, which is being widened.

Manchester firefighters may respond to accidents on the new 1.4-mile stretch of road that links the two expressways.

The agreement was reached at a meeting Wednesday of officials from the fire departments in the two towns, including Manchester's Eighth Utilities District Fire Department.

Because the eastbound link can be approached only from I-84, Manchester firefighters would have to go as far west as Roberts Street in East Hartford to get to it.

Manchester firefighters may respond to accidents on the westbound lanes of I-84 all the way to Roberts Street in East Hartford.

Town of Manchester Fire Chief John Rivosa could not be reached today for comment on the decision.

As for the prospects for extending I-384 through Columbia, James Byrnes of the state Department of Transportation said today that a consensus was reached Thursday under which the Army Corps of Engineers will require a supplemental environmental impact statement if DOT provides additional information indicating how it will replace wetlands "unavoidably lost" in the construction.

Byrnes said that could be done by creating new wetland by excavating areas and even importing wetland-type soils.

A Corps spokesman said the decision on the road will be made next week.

Campaign Notes

Thompson raps Swenson's trip

Former Manchester Mayor John W. Thompson, who is seeking to unseat state Rep. Elsie Swenson in the 13th Assembly District, criticized his opponent for ducking debate while finding time to "junket out-of-state."

Swenson has said she is too busy to debate Thompson. Thompson pointed out in a news release that Swenson announced intentions to attend a conference on the arts, tourism and preservation in Minnesota this week.

"The weak excuse of inadequate time has to be seen for what it is, a ridiculous cop-out," Thompson said. "Our district receives no benefit from the incumbent's travels out of state, but could benefit enormously from her participation in open debate on issues affecting our people."

Swenson has said that she is not good at debating and that the issues are discussed each day as the candidates campaign.

Munns wants debates with Bates

Paul R. Munns of Glastonbury, the Republican candidate for state representative in the 9th Assembly District, has challenged his opponent, Democratic incumbent Donald Bates of East Hartford, to a series of debates.

Bates has said he will consider the request.

Munns issued the challenge in a letter he delivered to Bates Wednesday night.

Munns said he and Bates should give people "a chance to question our leadership and viewpoints."

"It is important to give the people an opportunity to view their candidates' ability to represent them in well at the State Capitol," Munns said.

The 9th Assembly District includes Voting District 9 in Manchester.

In a Thursday news release, Munns said the state is obligated "not to leave municipalities holding the bag" when school financing under the Education Enhancement Act runs out in three years.

Munns said that as a state representative he would support a study dealing with the problem.

The act, which provides financial inducements for towns to increase teacher salaries, expires after three years.

Before the vote Thursday, Mayor Barbara Weinberg told Town Manager Robert Weiss that in the future she expects the administration "to be knowledgeable about every item that appears on the agenda."

After the meeting, Tomkiel said that bond attorneys normally want too long a description of bond issues on the voting machines. He said that by the time voters get to the end of ballot, where the bond questions will appear, they become confused if the language is too complicated.

Tomkiel said the confusion over the matter resulted from lack of communication.

In another decision Thursday, the directors changed the date of their next regular meeting from Nov. 11, a holiday, to Nov. 12.

Employees may strike Meadows late next week

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter

About 250 health care employees at the Meadows Convalescent Center on Bidwell Street are positioning themselves to go on strike if their union does not reach a contract agreement with management by Thursday, union officials said Thursday afternoon.

The strike threat echoes those at 23 other nursing homes in Connecticut where contract negotiations are under way. In addition to the Meadows, two other nursing homes where workers are represented by the New England Health Care Employees Union, District 1199, have contracts that will expire Thursday.

"We aren't as close as we had hoped," said Hopeton A. Scott, a District 1199 organizer, when asked about progress toward an agreement at the Meadows. "We have made progress. There are three years and an insurance plan in the current three-year contract."

However, Scott said that counterproposals made by the Meadows management during a six-hour negotiating session Thursday were "not very good."

Officials at the 512-bed Meadows — the state's largest nursing home — said the union is seeking a 10 percent raise in wages for each of the next three years and an insurance program. Scott said that the latest proposals offered by management concerning employees' medical coverage, insurance and wage increases were "frivolous."

According to Scott, the Meadows management has offered a 5-cent-an-hour pay increase for each of the next three years. The union wants an 8-cent increase. The sides now earn $7.60 an hour.

Furthermore, Scott said, the management is looking for a give-back on medical coverage. Under the current contract, employees only pay for medical coverage for dependents. Scott said he said management's latest proposal would require employees to pay an average of $20 to $25 a week for their own medical coverage.

Management's insurance proposal is slightly better than the one offered in the current contract, Scott said, but it still is not what the union wants.

At the Meadows, union and management officials have met five times in the last three months in attempts to work out their differences, Scott said. However, he said that the two sides still remain far apart.

At THE MEADOWS, union and management officials have met five times in the last three months in attempts to work out their differences, Scott said. However, he said that the two sides still remain far apart.

IF WORKERS WALK out at 8 a.m. Thursday, it will be the first time that Meadows employees have gone on strike, union officials said. Management and the union reached an accord three years ago just before the strike deadline.

Last week, union members at all 24 Connecticut nursing homes represented by District 1199 voted 518-27 to send out 10-day strike notices to nursing homes with expiring contracts. Federal labor law requires a union to notify employers 10 days before workers plan to walk out.

Scott said that the 10-day notices will be sent to each of the nursing homes as their contracts expire. A notice has already been sent to the Meadows, he said.

Contractors at five nursing homes expire Oct. 20. About 10 contracts expire Nov. 3 and others expire between November and February 1987, Scott said.

At Manchester's Crestfield-Fawcett nursing home, where District 1199 management officials have been trying for months to reach a contract agreement, no strike deadline has been set yet, Scott said. Unionsized employees there will vote next Tuesday on setting a deadline, he said.

Management's insurance proposal is slightly better than the one offered in the current contract, Scott said, but it still is not what the union wants.

A woman was injured Wednesday when a car hit the one she was driving from the rear and pushed it into the vehicle in front of her, police said today.

Sharon K. Braham, of 111 Russell St., complained of neck injuries after a car driven by Dwight Emmons, 23, of Hartford, struck her car from behind at around 3 p.m. as she was stopped in heavy traffic on West Middle Turnpike, police said.

The force of the collision pushed Braham's car into one driven by Lawrence R. Fish, 44, of 141 Ferguson Road, police said.

Police said Emmons' car and Braham's suffered extensive damage, while Fish's car was slightly damaged.

Crash injures woman

Emmons was charged with failing to maintain a proper distance. He told police he was looking in directions and not paying attention to the road, a report said.

Braham was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital, according to police, where she was treated and released.

Chernobyl benefit

Singer John Denver will perform a benefit concert in the Soviet Union next week to aid victims of the Chernobyl nuclear power plant disaster. Occidental Petroleum Corp. announced.

The concert next Thursday was arranged by Occidental's chairman and chief executive, Dr. Armand Hammer, who earlier this year got the Soviet government to agree to accept private U.S. medical help after the Chernobyl accident.

Thursday's announcement said Denver's concert will be at the 3,000-seat Ukraine Theatre in Kiev, about 80 miles from the Chernobyl site.

Goober offers aid

George Lindsey, who played Goober on "The Andy Griffith Show," has volunteered to promote tourism in his native Alabama.

The first official appearance by Lindsey, who grew up in Jasper, is scheduled for next month at the National Tour Association convention in Atlanta.

He will enter the room to the theme song from the 1960s television show, but instead of appearing as Goober, he will wear a tuxedo and will herald Alabama as a state whose "natural beauty has no equal," said Doug Benton, director of the Alabama Bureau of Tourism and Travel.

Daniloff book due

Houghton Mifflin Co. will publish Nicholas Daniloff's account of his month-long detention by Moscow on charges he was involved in espionage, his literary agent says.

The book will provide a daily account of the U.S. News & World Report journalist's 13 days of imprisonment in Moscow and the 17 days he spent at the American embassy before he was allowed to leave, said John Sterling, an editor at the publisher's Boston headquarters.

The book also will include material Daniloff had been researching about his great-grandfather, Alexander Frolov, who was sent to Siberia for participating in the failed uprising against Czar Nicholas I in 1825.

Daniloff's New York literary agent, Esther Newberg, said the agreement with the publisher was reached this week.

"He's leaving today to cover the summit in Iceland, and when he comes back, he's going on vacation," she said Thursday. "So I thought it was best to reach an agreement quickly and quietly."

On the defensive

Ron Ziegler took his lumps from the news media as President Nixon's spokesman, but he still defends the diligence of the press.

"I believe the American people are misled by the fact that we have the best and freest form of journalism anywhere in the world," Ziegler, now president of the National Association of Truck Stop Operators, told University of Montana Journalism students Wednesday in Missoula, Mont.

Ziegler said he remains in touch with Nixon, and he noted that Nixon is still actively contributing his thoughts on foreign policy through his books.

"He's not lying on the beach in San Clemente drinking Chivas Regal," Ziegler said. "He's in New York making contributions of thought."

On the road without a Kuralt or wheels
CHICAGO (AP) — A man who is walking across the world is telling people he's just like Charles Kuralt — without the motor home.

Like CBS newsmen Kuralt, Steve Newman has been on the road talking to people. Only Newman, 32, has been walking the road, and he says he has trekked more than 19,000 miles.

Four years ago, the former newspaper reporter left his hometown of Bethel, Ohio, for a walk. Next April, he hopes to become the first person to complete a round-the-world journey on his own.

"I want people to realize that adventure is still possible by an individual," said Newman.

Thatcher better

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher says her sprained left ankle is much better, but she isn't dancing yet.

The 60-year-old prime minister canceled plans to attend her Conservative Party's annual ball Thursday night to rest up for Thursday's keynote speech at the party's convention.

Manchester/Area Towns In Brief

Howart will do business locally

The Howart Development Corp. of Chicago, one of the developers of the Mall at Buckland Hills, intends to use its Manchester area consultants, contractors and suppliers as practical in the mall project, Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg announced this week.

In a letter to Weinberg, Howart Vice President Charles E. Howart II said his company will take competitive bids in all phases of the construction work. Contractors will be asked to solicit bids from qualified Manchester subcontractors and materials suppliers, he said.

In addition, Howart wrote, there will be between 175 to 200 tenants in the proposed 750,000-square-foot shopping center. When the mall is completed in 1988, an estimated 1,500 full- and part-time jobs will be available, the letter said.

Grant helps publish Coventry book

COVENTRY — A $10,000 publishing grant has been awarded to the 37th Anniversary Celebration Committee for "The Roots of Coventry, USA," a book written by Betty Meiser and Janet Aronson.

The book will tell the story of Coventry's early years, focusing on the history of the town's earliest settlers and their descendants.

The grant was awarded by the George Dudley Seymour Trust, through the Colonial Bank of New Haven. The book should be available in July 1987.

I-84 lanes to be closed for tests

The state Department of Transportation has announced that some lanes will be closed on Interstate 84 in Hartford during work scheduled Saturday night and Sunday night.

Clarence Wolf Associates of Glastonbury will take test borings on a section of I-84 for the city of Hartford. The DOT said information from the tests will be used in the city's plans for a future air-right-of-way structure over I-84.

The work will be performed on a 500-foot-long section of the expressway between the Trumbull Street and Main Street overpasses. Weather permitting, the work will be done Saturday between 12:01 a.m. and 7 a.m. and Sunday between 12:01 a.m. and 10 a.m.

Aetna gives $1,000 to Coventry

COVENTRY — Aetna Life & Casualty of Hartford has awarded the town a grant of about $1,000, to be used to help the volunteer fire and medical services.

The award came through the efforts of Aetna employee Katherine Muraski, a Coventry resident.

Cornerstone's banquet is tonight

The headmaster of the Christian Academy in Pennsylvania will be the keynote speaker when the Cornerstone Christian School holds its annual fall banquet tonight.

The event, which takes place at 6:15 p.m. at Kaiser Hall in Concordia Lutheran Church, 40 Pitkin St., will help promote Christian education and will raise funds to defray operating costs at the school, a news release said.

The Pennsylvania headmaster, Arthur Nazigan, who is the author of two books on teaching, will speak on "The Key to Success." Nazigan is president of the Mid-Atlantic Christian Schools Association and has served as chairman of the board for the Association of Christian Schools International, representing more than 11,000 schools.

LMC funds hinge on Bolton repairs

BOLTON — If high school building violations found in a state audit last year are not corrected, the school may not get a new library-media center, the Board of Education learned Thursday.

When Bolton High School was audited in 1985 in preparation for the proposed addition, about 100 code violations were found. Correction of most required simple upgrading to keep the building in compliance with new standards mandated by the addition at the school, which will be paid for largely by the state.

In August, the school board requested that the Board of Selectmen either correct the school violations in the Town Building Survey, an assessment of municipal buildings currently being done by a consultant, or put funds in the school budget for correction of the violations.

According to board member P. Perry Stearns, the town is responsible for the violations. The Board of Education had been informed that all town-owned buildings, including the three schools, will be included in the assessment being conducted by the consultant, Design Group One.

But other town officials say that isn't the case.

STEARNS SAID Thursday that a Sept. 26 letter from the Public Building Commission to the Board of Selectmen indicated that the town would not take responsibility for correcting the problems.

Philip A. Pines, a PBC member, said in the letter that "a detailed report on code violations similar to that prepared by the state Department of Education for the high school is clearly not part of the survey." Pines also noted that the projected cost of the current survey didn't cover the schools.

The school violations won't be considered until later, Pines said.

When the 2,800-square-foot library-media center is built, the state will bring a new set of codes into play, and "the commission felt that it would be prudent to assess possible violations in the context of these proposed codes rather than the existing 'house code' codes," Pines's letter said.

School Superintendent Richard Pachman told the school board he had talked to Robert Langer, an assistant state attorney general, who said that if the problems weren't solved, the state would not reimburse Bolton for 60 percent of the cost of the 600,000 library-media center, as planned.

Pachman said another factor has to be taken into consideration as well: if a student is injured as the result of any of the violations, "we'd have an extreme liability problem," he said.

Stearns told the school board when it met Thursday night that a decision is needed fast. "We have to take a strong stand on this and try and get them to do something quickly," he said.

The new policy will take effect with the class of 1988. Although the state requires students to earn 20 credits to graduate, studies have shown that most earn more than necessary.

Joseph Fleming, principal of the high school, recommended the change. Most students in last year's graduating class took 21 credits or more, Fleming said.

Board of Selectmen of the situation. "The seriousness was well pointed out," said Chairman James Moriandini.

Stearns said the question of who will correct the violations has been in dispute for the last year, adding that he was sure the PBC knew about the library's shabby future.

"If they don't know, they're not reading their mail," he said.

Also at Thursday night's meeting, the school board approved raising the requirements for graduation at Bolton High School from 20 to 22 credits.

"I think it's a good first step and I'd like to see it go further," said Moriandini.

Coventry enriches enrichment program

By Jacqueline Bennett
Herald Correspondent

COVENTRY — Expansion of the Challenge and Enrichment Program for gifted students was the main topic when the Board of Education met Thursday night.

Margaret Butler, director of pupil and staff programs for the public schools, said the program will be broadened this year to include students in lower grades.

Previously, it served only junior high school students, she said.

Two new instructors, Rhonda Buck and Kathryn Toland, have been hired for the program. Buck is a full-time position, is taking over the junior high program. "My goal is to have 20 percent of the student body in my program," Buck told the school board Thursday at Coventry High School.

To be considered for the exceptional classes, students must score in the 90th percentile on standardized tests, have above-average grades, and be recommended by Buck, a counselor, and one or more classroom teachers.

Board member Richard Frye objected to the rigidity of that criteria.

"I'm concerned about too many hard and fast rules," Frye said. He said one of the points of the program was to provide for students who have not been doing well because they had not been challenged. "I want to be sure we are not inadvertently omit them," Frye said.

He also questioned the limited class sizes.

Buck replied that exceptions would be made for entrance into the program, but class sizes would remain limited because of limited manpower.

One purpose of the program at the junior high school is to promote "learning to learn creatively through creative and divergent thinking," Buck told the board.

Exercises in reading, writing, visual arts, math and problem solving, and leadership will be used, she said.

Toland, a part-time instructor with expertise in math and science, will work with fourth-graders throughout the school system.

The program will focus mainly on "process and investigation skills," Toland said. She said she will emphasize the process of solving problems over learning content. She will extend her program beyond those identified as gifted and spend time with all fourth-grade students, she said.

The Joseph Renszull theory of challenge and enrichment is used in Coventry's schools. Renszull, a professor at the University of Connecticut, stresses the importance of extending such programs to all students because it is never known where "giftedness" might be.

Students are now being chosen and the program will become operational over the next few weeks.

Butler said the program will be expanded to the ninth grade at the high school next year.

In other matters Thursday night, Butler reported that a pilot testing program is being launched in the schools.

Following a comparative study of a dozen area schools, it was determined that Coventry students were being submitted to too many standardized tests, she said.

"The consensus is, we've been over-testing," Butler said. As a result, students were losing instructional time and were tiring from the process, she said.

In the past, about seven weeks of school were spent in testing in kindergarten through the fourth grade, she said.

School Superintendent Nathan Chester said that besides relieving students of the "testing grid," Coventry will save $5,000 in testing materials.

NLRB charges union broke law

HARTFORD — The National Labor Relations Board has accused leaders of Local 230 of the Laborers' union of failing to refer five new jobs to the union, as required by federal law, because the union members opposed the offer.

The new allegation comes a month after the NLRB accused Local 230 officials of colluding with a contractor to deny employment to Gary Wall of Wethersfield, who led an unsuccessful campaign earlier this year to oust the union's longtime business manager, Dominic Lopreato.

John H. Sauter, deputy officer in charge of the NLRB's Hartford office, said Wednesday that "the basis of the (new) charges is the union is not running its hall in a non-discriminatory manner."

An administrative hearing was scheduled for Nov. 17. Wall is one of the men identified as complainants in the NLRB's latest charge against the union.

Sauter would not discuss the complaints further.

Man charged with wife's murder

NEW LONDON — A Superior Court judge has ruled that a New London man should be charged with murder after police said they had evidence the defendant's wife had been beaten to death with a sewing machine.

A sewing machine found in Joseph M. Lyons' apartment beside the body of his wife was covered with "brain matter, skull fragments and hair," state police Detective Kenneth Bissonette testified during a probable cause hearing on Wednesday.

Judge Seymour L. Wendel ruled that Lyons, 36, should be tried on a murder charge instead of manslaughter, as defense lawyers had requested.

The body of Regina Lyons, who had also been stabbed several times, was found in the couple's apartment on Aug. 10. Her husband was arrested the next day after he was shot in the buttocks by a police officer as he fled from a stolen car, authorities said.

Police said the car belonged to a woman whom Lyons allegedly attacked. Lyons was also charged with first-degree larceny.

Eliza Koffman was pronounced dead at 5:28 p.m. Thursday at Lawrence & Memorial Hospitals in New London after the 3:11 p.m. accident, police said.

The accident is being investigated, police said, and no other details were immediately available.

EPA orders water line extension

BEACON FALLS — The Environmental Protection Agency has ordered 31 companies to extend a water line to Beacon Falls residents whose wells are threatened by toxic waste from an old dump.

The water-line extension, which will cost $2.5 million, was ordered after the companies failed to agree to do the work voluntarily, said Camille Connick, project manager for the EPA's regional office in Boston.

"We wanted their water line as quickly as possible because of the risk to the people living in the area," Connick said Thursday.

The companies identified by the EPA as former users of the dump must extend a municipal water line at least a mile to 54 homes along Skokorat and Blackberry Hill roads.

The dump was used by industries to dispose of rubber and chemical wastes from the 1920s until the late 1970s, according to the EPA.

Benzene, a cancer-causing chemical that apparently leached from the landfill, has contaminated at least two residential wells nearby.

EPA proposes stiff fine for UTC

HARTFORD — The Environmental Protection Agency has proposed a $40,000 fine against United Technologies Corp. for violating rules governing the use, storage and disposal of polychlorinated biphenyls, the federal agency said.

It would be the largest penalty imposed in Connecticut for PCB violations, the EPA said from its Boston regional office in a statement released today in Hartford.

The exact amount of the fine has not been determined, according to an EPA spokeswoman.

PCBs, used as a non-conducting coolant in heavy electrical equipment, are a suspected carcinogen and are known to cause liver ailments and chloracne, a persistent skin rash, in humans. Their manufacture has been outlawed.

O'Neill ahead of Belaga in funds

HARTFORD (AP) — Gov. William A. O'Neill's re-election campaign has raised three times the amount of money as that of his Republican challenger, Julie D. Belaga, according to newly filed campaign finance reports.

O'Neill has raised $1.87 million, compared with Belaga's $645,000, and has spent $1.78 million, while Belaga's expenditures total $444,300, papers filed Thursday showed.

There was no report from Unaffiliated Party candidate Frank Lago. Campaign finance laws require the reports to be posted no later than midnight Thursday. Another report is due the week before the Nov. 4 election.

O'Neill's latest report showed no loans or other debts.

Belaga's last report showed her $97,000 in debt, but a spokeswoman for her campaign said the candidate hadn't borrowed any more money during the three-month period covered by the latest report.

Stockwoman Irene Shub did not know whether the $87,000 debt was still outstanding.

O'Neill had no immediate comment on his fund-raising success.

Belaga told reporters she was satisfied with the pace of her campaign, although she said, "You never have enough."

She said the power of incumbency allowed O'Neill to "turn on the spigot that pours out money."

The report filed by unsuccessful Democratic gubernatorial challenger Toby Moffett showed he raised $227,887 during his campaign, which ended at the July convention when he failed to get the support he needed for a primary.

Moffett's debts totaled $254,688.

Unsuccessful GOP gubernatorial candidate Gerald Labriola's report showed he had raised $202,882 and owed $184,211.

There was no report yet from unsuccessful gubernatorial candidate Richard C. Bozuto.

Bozuto and Labriola lost in the three-way primary with Belaga on Sept. 9.

Connecticut Yankee malfunction 'trivial'

HADDAM (AP) — A valve leading to a reactor containment building at the Connecticut Yankee nuclear power station was opened in violation of technical specifications, the operators of the plant reported.

No radiation was released and there was no hazard to the environment during the incident, which occurred at 5 p.m. Wednesday, Northeast Utilities spokeswoman Linda Oleski said Thursday.

The valve was opened for less than an hour, she said.

Technical information from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission about the valve incident, a two-way telephone call between the station and the NRC's office in King of Prussia, Pa., she said. Regular telephone communication was maintained, said Oleski.

"It's fairly trivial but because it involves the NRC hotlines it is a higher classification" than the valve incident, she said.

The manual valve was opened so that operators of the plant could replenish water in a tank designed to shield the interior of the reactor containment building from bombardment by neutron particles, Oleski said.

"They have to do this in order to fill the neutron shield tank," she said. "Later when reviewing technical specifications it was determined that this valve should not have been opened during plant operation."

Opening the valve breached the isolation of the interior of the reactor building from the environment, Oleski said.

Oleski said the NRC hotline was still inoperable Thursday afternoon and that AT&T was servicing the hookup.

Eddy offers $10,000 prize in drawing

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Republican U.S. Senate candidate Roger W. Eddy is trying to draw attention to his underdog campaign by offering a $10,000 cash prize in a drawing from the names of respondents to a recent poll on the record of his opponent, Democratic Sen. Christopher J. Dodd.

The survey is part of advertisements Eddy placed in about a dozen daily newspapers in the state starting today. It asks respondents to rate Dodd's record on nine issues and on five other statements about Dodd, including two incidents in Washington in which Dodd was allegedly involved.

In one, The Washington magazine reported that about two years ago, Dodd and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., took some pictures of the wall of a restaurant and smashed them on the floor as they "laughed hysterically."

In the second incident, The Washington Post reported that Dodd and some friends threw doughnuts and milk cartons around in a doughnut shop at 4 a.m. and then left a waitress $100 to cover any damages.

"Dodd has not shown that kind of energy during daylight hours; he's missed so many votes that he ranks in the bottom quarter of senators in average attendance," states the Eddy ad.

"It's been very difficult in this campaign for me to get anyone to pay any attention to how he's voted," Eddy told a state Capitol news conference on Thursday. "I think it's a legitimate way of calling attention to Mr. Dodd's record and alerting the public to it."

Dodd, who met Eddy in the first debate of their campaign on Thursday, called the episodes in Washington "gossip-column stuff."

"I'm not going to dignify it with a comment," he said.

Regarding Eddy's idea to hold a drawing, Dodd said, "Democracy and Senate seats are not lotteries."

Eddy's advertisement describes Dodd's voting against President Reagan's proposed income tax cuts; in favor of education, medical care, Social Security and other free benefits to illegal aliens; against a bill aimed at protecting the identity of American intelligence agents working in foreign countries; and in favor of loans for students who fail to register for the draft.

Respondents are asked to rate the incidents and the votes as "very important, somewhat important, or not important."

Respondents to Eddy's survey can clip it out of the paper, fill in their names and their responses and send it to the Eddy campaign. Some time after Oct. 20 and before the election, Eddy said, he will draw one of the questionnaires out of a barrel.

Fishing cooperation urged

MYSTIC (AP) — If states don't cooperate in regulating commercial and sport fishing, the federal government may step in and do the job instead, fisheries officials were warned.

Norville S. Prosser, vice president of the Sport Fishing Institute, told delegates to the 48th annual meeting of the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission that Congress has held hearings on proposed fishing regulations.

The proposals include rules that would tax fish caught or accept bids for fishing rights much like the government now leases oil exploration rights, he said on Wednesday.

He said the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration has also asked that the federal government be allowed to overrule state fishing regulations at sea and in upstream waters.

Cooperative management programs for species of fish that travel through waters controlled by different states and by the federal government could prevent the enactment of national regulations for the fishing industry, Prosser said.

"Finfish, being traveling creatures, may find themselves jurisdictions of numerous human jurisdictions over the course of their lifetimes," he said.

In other topics discussed during the three-day conference, which ended on Thursday, a biologist said that preliminary findings from a year-long study showed safe levels of cancer-caused PCBs, or polychlorinated biphenyls, in bluefish.

Malcolm Meaburn, a research scientist for the National Marine Fisheries Service, said a study by several federal agencies analyzed tissue contents of some 40,000 pounds of bluefish caught at 11 sites.

MCC student may return to Mozambique some day

Ntundumula's position or the party he was affiliated with due to the violent political climate at that time.
"We fought for independence and freedom," Ntundumula said. "People must express their rights freely."
In 1964, members of the party, including Ntundumula, were arrested and imprisoned for their attempts to overthrow the regime. He said. After six years in jail, Ntundumula said, he was even more determined to help bring peace to the country.
While he was in jail, Ntundumula said the remaining members of the Mozambique Revolutionary Committee. After he was released from prison, the MRC asked him to be their president. Ntundumula said he said, "no, I am very, very tired," he said. Instead, he became treasurer of the party. But he eventually grew apart from the group.
"To fight them, you have to work hard," he said. "I found there was nothing there in the party."
He distanced himself from the MRC by going to school, serving as an adviser when needed, he said. Then on June 25, 1975, the nation became independent after the president of Portugal was overthrown. The country soon fell under Marxist rule, a situation Ntundumula described as "bigger trouble than before."
Ntundumula said the Marxist government began killing all politicians opposed to communism and he was forced to flee with his wife and four children.
"They're killing even now," he claimed.
To Claudette Cyr, supervisor of the Immigration department at the International Institute of Connecticut in Bridgeport, Ntundumula was a typical political refugee who left the country when his life was endangered.
Cyr said the volunteer agency, which helps resettle refugees, helped Ntundumula and his family find a home in New London in 1981. She said his biggest problem was the lack of people from Mozambique in the area.
Ntundumula said he likes MCC, where he enrolled in five courses, including math, accounting and economics.
"It's a good school," he said. He has originally planned to get a degree in political science, but, like many students in the field, discovered it would be "too hard to get a job." He instead opted for business.

The future, Ntundumula said, is open. He said he might someday go back to Mozambique "if the situation allows me to."
In the meantime, he said he is learning from his experiences in the United States.
"This is the way a country should be handled," he said. "It's a country where people can live, express."
He said Mozambique is currently an empty and dangerous place, especially in politics, where emotions such as jealousy and greed can get a leader killed.
Ntundumula said the biggest problem he faces now is taking care of his wife, who doesn't speak English and is ill.
She is, however, safe, and that is most important at this time, Ntundumula said.
"We are OK here," he said.

Illing's DePasqua coaches girls' basketball for MHS

By Len Auster
Herold Sports Editor
And the answer is Joe DePasqua. Manchester High School wasted little time filling one of its varsity coaching positions as Illing's DePasqua head girls' basketball coach today.
DePasqua succeeds seven-year coach Steve Armstrong, who resigned at the start of the current school year.
DePasqua, 31, was the boys' junior varsity basketball coach at MHS for four years, from 1981 through 1986. He has never coached girls in basketball before, but he doesn't see it as a problem.
"Basketball is basketball," he was on collegiate squads that made the Division II Final Four. "I don't think it matters whether you coach boys or girls."
"When you coach boys in junior high you adjust. That's part of coaching. Things you do at the junior high level you (sometimes) can't do at the high school," he added.
Mike Simmons, MHS athletic director, said the school got the man it wanted. The names of two finalists, out of 11 people who applied, were submitted to Principal Jacob Lodes, who made the final decision.

Zaccaro arraigned
NEW YORK (AP) — Geraldine Ferraro says her life has been a nightmare since she ran for vice president, but her husband's bribery trial will end their worst nightmare.
Ferraro sat in the front row of a Queens courtroom Thursday as her husband, John Zaccaro, was arraigned on bribery and grand larceny charges for allegedly demanding a payoff to influence the awarding of a cable television franchise.
The school got the man it wanted. The names of two finalists, out of 11 people who applied, were submitted to Principal Jacob Lodes, who made the final decision.

Mets jump all over Ryan's power failure

By Michael A. Lutz
The Associated Press
HOUSTON — The New York Mets could see the power failure in Nolan Ryan's RBI single and a two-run triple by Keith Hernandez.
They weathered a 1-2 hitless inning Thursday night until Wally Backman broke through for the first hit off the Houston flame-thrower, which opened the way for a 5-1 victory over the Astros and a 1-1 deadlock in their National League championship series.
"The first time I came up I just got a brief glance at his fastball," Mets third baseman Ray Knight said. "He threw it right by me — and he may pitchers can get it by me."
The next time I came up he either had lost a little off his fastball or he didn't get the location he wanted."
After Backman's first hit, the Mets eventually scored their first two runs of the series on a double by Gary Carter and a sacrifice fly by Davry Strawberry.
The Mets continued to batter Ryan in the fifth inning with three more runs on Backman's RBI single and a two-run triple by Keith Hernandez.
"You've got to get to Ryan early before he gets his rhythm going," Strawberry said. "His fastball was exploding at the start of the game. But later on, he didn't have quite as much on it."
The best-of-seven series now shifts to New York's Shea Stadium for the next three games, beginning Saturday, and the Mets are happy to be going home with a split.
"We knew we had to come in here and get at least a split," Knight said. "We can go back home now and try to win three or at least two in good shape."
Ryan has few goals left to achieve in baseball, but one is to pitch for the Astros in a World Series. He was disappointed following Thursday's game.
"I thought that I had pretty good stuff, but I let it get away from me," Ryan said. "After Mike (Scott) won last night, we wanted to go in there winning two in a row."
Scott struck out 14 Mets batters, tying a major league playoff record, and the Astros won the opener 1-0 Wednesday night on Glenn Davis' second inning home run.
But Ryan couldn't keep pace with Scott, and Mets starter Bob Ojeda got the victory with a steady performance, scattering 10 hits.
"The Mets' success has been based on getting their first two hitters, Len Dykstra and Backman, on base and having Hernandez, Carter and Strawberry drive them in."
It worked Thursday night, with Dykstra and Backman each getting two hits and scoring three runs between them.
"They are the table setters," Mets Manager Dave Johnson said of Dykstra and Backman. "When they get on that gets us going."
Johnson also gets Ryan three at Dykstra prior to his fifth-inning single.
"When Nolan threw the ball up over Dykstra's head, I sensed some emotion in our dugout," Johnson said. "That inspired us to go out and score more runs."
Despite having several chances, the Astros didn't break up Ojeda's shutout until the seventh inning, when Billy Hatcher reached base on a grounder that forced pinch hitter Terry Puhl at second and eventually scored on a single to right field by Phil Garner.
"I think we had enough hits but we didn't have them at the right time," Astros Manager Hal Lanier said. "We didn't get the runs. You also have to give credit to their pitcher, Ojeda. He pitched a fine ball game."
Ryan has been on the Astros disabled list twice this season with an elbow injury. But Lanier said Ryan's elbow was the cause of his pitching problems.
"I thought he threw the ball well, but not where he wanted," Lanier said. "That's what happened in the fifth inning. He threw what he wanted to Carter but not where he wanted it. He had a good change-up at the start of the game."
Dykstra grounded out to start the inning but Hernandez followed with a sacrifice fly to left field, scoring Hernandez.
In the next inning, Ojeda scored after reaching base on a fielder's choice grounder.

The Mets were a lot happier Thursday night than the evening before as they evened the NL Championship Series with the Astros with a 5-1 victory. The celebrants are (from left) Ray Knight, catcher Gary Carter and winning pitcher Bob Ojeda.

Candelaria calm, 'Oil Can' fidgets as AL playoffs resume in Anaheim

By Ken Peters
The Associated Press
ANAHEIM, Calif. — John Candelaria of the California Angels and Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd of the Boston Red Sox were studies in contrast as they prepared for their starting assignments in Game 3 in the American League playoffs.
Candelaria, leaning casually against a podium, said he wasn't feeling the least bit nervous.
Boyd, on the other hand, fidgeted, wiggled his fingers incessantly and said he's going to try to "key down."
The best-of-seven series is tied 1-1 heading into tonight's 8:25 p.m. EDT contest at Anaheim Stadium.
"I'm not nervous," Candelaria said Thursday while talking at an informal news conference prior to the Angels' workout. "I'll just go out there and throw the best I can and hope I'm throwing well. I'm looking forward to it. I haven't had this opportunity (to pitch in the playoffs) for a few years."
Candelaria, who last threw in a postseason game in 1978 with the Pittsburgh Pirates, came back from elbow surgery early this season to post a 15-2 record with a 2.55 earned run average.
Boyd rebounded from some mid-season personal problems. He was suspended by the team on July 11, one day after throwing a tantrum in the clubhouse when he learned he wasn't selected for the All-Star team. He apologized to the team on July 13 and was set to return when he was suspended again on July 16, 24 hours after an alleged altercation with police near his home. He admitted himself to a hospital for a series of tests, including some for possible drug use.
The Red Sox reinstated Boyd on July 31, paying him for the previous 17 days, and establishing a counseling and support program for the right-hander.
Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd of the Red Sox talks to the press Thursday at Anaheim Stadium. Boyd will be the starter for Boston in Game Three tonight against the Angels.

He had an 11-4 record before the first suspension but finished with a 16-10 mark and a 3.78 ERA.
Boyd, 27, who said he sometimes just gets too excited when he's pitching, said he hopes to hold his emotions in check when he takes the mound for his first playoff appearance.
"It's going to be hard," Boyd said at a late-afternoon news conference. "I'm real keyed-up sometimes when I'm pitching, the manager lets me know, holds his arms up and signals me to slow down."
"I just want to key down and go out there and throw the baseball."
Asked if a good performance might blot out some of his past problems, Boyd said that he wasn't thinking in those terms, but added, "When you win, everybody jumps on the band wagon, pats you on the Len Dykstra of the Mets is sent sprawling as he gets out of the way of a pitch aimed at his head by Houston starter Nolan Ryan in the fifth inning Thursday night. Dykstra got up and slapped a single. The Mets won, 5-1, to even the NL playoffs.

Ryan's knockdown pitch triggers Mets' explosion

Clemens to go in Game Four

By Dave O'Hara
The Associated Press
ANAHEIM, Calif. — Boston ace Roger Clemens will start Game 4 of the American League playoff off the California Angels in Saturday's Game 4, starting for the first time this season on three days rest.
"I'm a workhorse. It doesn't matter," the 6-foot-4 right-hander said Thursday after being told by Manager John McNameera of his plan for the best-of-seven series tied at one victory apiece.
"It's just going to be a day earlier," Clemens, 24-4 with a 2.48 earned run average during the regular season, said. "I'd pitch tomorrow if I had to. I can pitch on adrenaline just like anyone else. I'm going to throw it to do anything I can to win."
Clemens, who allowed 10 hits and eight runs, seven earned, in throwing 145 pitches in Tuesday's 8-1 loss, indicated he was looking for another shot at the AL West champion.
"I have to go out there and be Roger Clemens now, and try not to really to redeem myself, but try to pick my teammates back up again," he said. "I feel 'em down and I have a bad taste in my mouth because I feel I didn't do everything I should have done in Tuesday's game."
Clemens claimed he was not bothered Tuesday by an elbow bruise suffered when he was struck by a line drive in his last regular-season start on Oct. 1. Instead, he said, he may have been too strong from lack of work, having gone 1-3 in innings and throwing 30 pitches in that game.
Assuring everyone that he is healthy, the hard-throwing strikeout artist said:
"I got an arm and I'm out here throwing. This is the last part of the season and every game is crucial. I'll pitch in my regular, short relief, start anything."
"I don't feel the other night took a whole lot out of me. I just want to go out there and win."
"I think you ought to have your best pitcher available to pitch three times in a seven-game series," McNameera said.
After left-hander Bruce Buratt went nine innings in the Boston 9-2 victory Wednesday, McNameera had right-hander Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, 18-11, ready to start in Game 3 tonight.
The manager elected to go with Clemens rather than Al Nipper, 10-12, but inconsistent as a starter since knee surgery in May.
McNameera said it had been his "intention right along" to start Clemens in the fourth game since veteran Tom Seaver suffered a knee injury on Sept. 19.
"When Tom Seaver went down (pitching Coach) Bill Fischer and I talked, we went back over Roger's year and all," McNameera said. "There was no doubt in our minds. We knew what we wanted and we named only three pitchers with an option for the fourth game on what we wanted to do."
"There is no doubt about his ability to pitch on three days rest," McNameera said. "He has had a full complement of rest. He pitched nine innings in a scoreless game we eventually lost against Toronto (on Sept. 20), then had four days of rest before he went against Baltimore. That's the night he hit on the elbow."
"The other night he threw a lot of pitches early, but was all right after that."

Interim manager Ferraro is fired by the Royals

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Mike Ferraro, who took over as manager of the Kansas City Royals on an interim basis following the All-Star Game when Dick Howser underwent surgery for a brain tumor, has been fired by the club, according to a published report.

Kansas City General Manager Jock MacInnes and Howser could not be reached for comment, but Ferraro confirmed his dismissal Thursday night.

"Yes, I have been fired," Ferraro told The Fort Lauderdale News and Sun-Sentinel.

Ferraro, 42, a resident of nearby Tamarac, was notified Thursday afternoon by Howser that he wasn't being retained by the club in its capacity. Ferraro had been Howser's third-base coach in 1985 and 1986 and the first half of 1988 before stepping in for Howser.

"It would have been easy for the club to fall apart after the announcement of Dick's problem," Ferraro said, "but I thought we held it together well, played hard and had a good year when you consider the circumstances."

The Royals finished 76-86 and tied for third with Oakland in the American League West, 16 games behind California. Under Ferraro, the club was 36-38.

"When you're the defending world champions and don't win," Ferraro said, "you can expect changes. Last year, I felt if we hadn't made such a strong run at the end and won the world championship that there would have been changes then."

"I leave Kansas City with a very good feeling," Ferraro said. "I did a good job for those people."

"They called it an 'organizational move,' but I was always an outsider there. I was never part of the organization. It was only because of Dick Howser that I was in Kansas City."

"Things always happen for the best," Ferraro said. "Today isn't so good because I don't understand why, but I'm determined to make the best out of it. And, I will."

"I've always been competitive," he says. "Even when they've been losing, they've been losing by a point or two. They were still good."

Xavier's defense has been stinging in the early going, but the Falcons have two shutouts in their credit and have allowed only one touchdown. Kelly sees the Falcons' defense as "exceptional. It's just a matter of time."

Ferraro began his playing career in Fort Lauderdale in 1962, and he managed the Fort Lauderdale Yankees of the Florida State League in 1976. He also coached for the New York Yankees from 1979-82 and began the 1983 season as manager of the Cleveland Indians. He was fired July 31 after 101 games with the Indians.

After 25 years in baseball, the native of Kingston, N.Y., said he isn't sure of his future, but he'd like for it to be in baseball.

Danehy, Hodina pace Coventry

COVENTRY — The Coventry girls' soccer team scored an impressive 4-0 victory over Cromwell Thursday afternoon in Charter Oak Conference action.

The win raises the Patriots' record to 7-1 for the season while Cromwell drops to 2-5.

High-scoring Leslie Danehy and Monica Hodina scored two goals each to pave the way for Coventry.

Danehy, who had 40 goals in 1985, now has 19 this year. An overwhelming shot advantage for Coventry (26-0) combined with stellar defense led to an easy win for the Patriots.

Danehy opened the scoring at the 21-minute mark of the first half with Hodina adding another four minutes later which gave Coventry a 2-0 lead at the half.

"I was one of our best team efforts of the season," Coventry coach Paul Lombardo said. "I was very pleased with the way we really played together."

Danehy and Hodina closed out the Patriots scoring at 7:17 and 15:38 of the second half to ensure the victory. Lisa Talaga had two assists for Coventry. Anna Wurf made four saves for the winners while Robyn Alsop recorded 15 saves in the conference and 1-0 overall.

Flyers open season with surprise in goal

By Ken Ruppogor The Associated Press

On a night of surprises in the NHL, the biggest one of all was the goaltender that Philadelphia Flyers Coach Mike Keenan named to start against the Edmonton Oilers.

"After (Bob) Froese's year last year, it was a gutsy decision to start him," Edmonton Coach Glen Sather said after the Flyers, keyed by rookie Ron Hextall, stopped his Oilers 2-1 Thursday night.

Hextall was the surprise starter on opening night over Froese, who led the NHL in goals-against average last year. Keenan said he decided to give Hextall the start over Froese to show his confidence in the 22-year-old, a sixth-round draft choice in 1982.

"To make this hockey team as a goalie was a real outside chance," Keenan said. "I wanted to show the young man that he belonged on the team."

Meanwhile, the lowly Toronto Maple Leafs shocked the defending Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens 7-4. The Pittsburgh Penguins turned back a favored Washington Capitals team 5-4 and the highly-regarded New Jersey Devils took a 5-3 victory over the New York Rangers, the surprise team of last year's Stanley Cup playoffs.

Elsewhere, it was Calgary 5, Boston 3; Quebec 6, Detroit 1; Winnipeg 3, Buffalo 2; Chicago 3, New York Islanders 2; and St. Louis 4, Los Angeles 3.

After Edmonton scored on a power play in the first two minutes, Hextall was too tough for the Oilers, shutting them out over the final 58 minutes.

"He got stronger as the game went on. He just got better and better," Edmonton center Wayne Gretzky said.

Peter Zezel scored the game-winning goal for Philadelphia at 14:24 of the third period. Zezel deflected teammate Brad Hackett's shot off Edmonton goaltender Grant Fuhr's pad and then blasted a 15-foot rebound into the goal.

The Oilers had taken an early 1-0 lead on a goal by Jari Kurri. The Flyers tied it in the third period on a goal by Ron Sutter.

Leafs 7, Canadiens 4

Tom Fergus scored three goals, including the game-winner with 14:23 left in the third period, as Toronto came back after blowing a 4-0 lead to defeat Montreal in John Brophy's NHL debut as the Maple Leafs coach.

Montreal's Chris Nilan tied the game 4-4 seconds into the third period, stopping a shot from just inside Toronto's blue line past screened goaltender Ken Wreggett.

Fergus' best Montreal goaltender Patrick Roy - the hero of last year's playoffs - with a 25-foot wrist shot along the ice to put Toronto back on top 5-4. Wreggett scored from center ice to complete his three-goal game. He also had two assists.

"We didn't start the way we wanted to, that's for sure," Montreal center Bobby Smith said. "The Leafs were really ready to play and it didn't seem as if we were."

Penguins 5, Capitals 4

Randy Cunneyworth scored three goals, two in the third period, to lead Pittsburgh over Washington. The hat trick was Cunneyworth's first in 97 NHL games.

Trailing 3-0 early in the second period, the Penguins scored five consecutive goals to beat Washington for only the second time in 15 games over the past two seasons.

Cunneyworth broke a 3-3 tie at 5:09 of the third period, putting a 10-foot shot between the pads of goalie Al Jensen. He scored again at 6:46, beating Jensen with a shot rounded out of the right circle.

"We were behind 3-0 but it wasn't really indicative of the way the game was going," Pittsburgh Coach Bob Berry said. "It was really encouraging the way we held our composure when we fell behind. You couldn't have a better effort. It was great."

Devils 5, Rangers 3

Mel Bridgman's short-handed goal triggered a three-goal burst in the second period, carrying the Devils to a 5-3 victory over the Rangers. Trailing 2-1 after one period, the Devils took control in the middle period as Bridgman scored his goal with 4:07 gone, then assisted on the tie-breaking goal by John MacLean at 17:06.

Kirk Muller gave the Devils a 4-2 lead and their eventual winning goal at 17:06.

Along with their short-handed goal, the Devils also converted two power-play opportunities in their first four tries. The Rangers were unable to convert on seven attempts until Lucien DeBlois scored midway through the third period.

Flames 5, Bruins 3

Lanny McDonald's second goal at 5:51 of the third period broke the third and final tie and sparked Calgary over Boston. The Flames, who lost to Montreal in last season's Stanley Cup finals, went ahead 4-3 when McDonald's 10-foot shot from the right wing beat rookie goalie Bill Ranford.

Colin Patterson gave the Flames a two-goal lead less than two minutes later, pushing a 10-foot backhand past Ranford at 7:47.

Calgary came into the game on a roll, having posted an 8-1-1 preseason record, while Boston was 6-3.

Nordiques 6, Red Wings 1

Paul Gillis scored two goals to break over Quebec's victory over Detroit.

The Nordiques were nursing a one-goal margin when Gillis tipped a pair of wrist shots past Red Wings goaltender Greg Stefan late in the second period to clinch the victory.

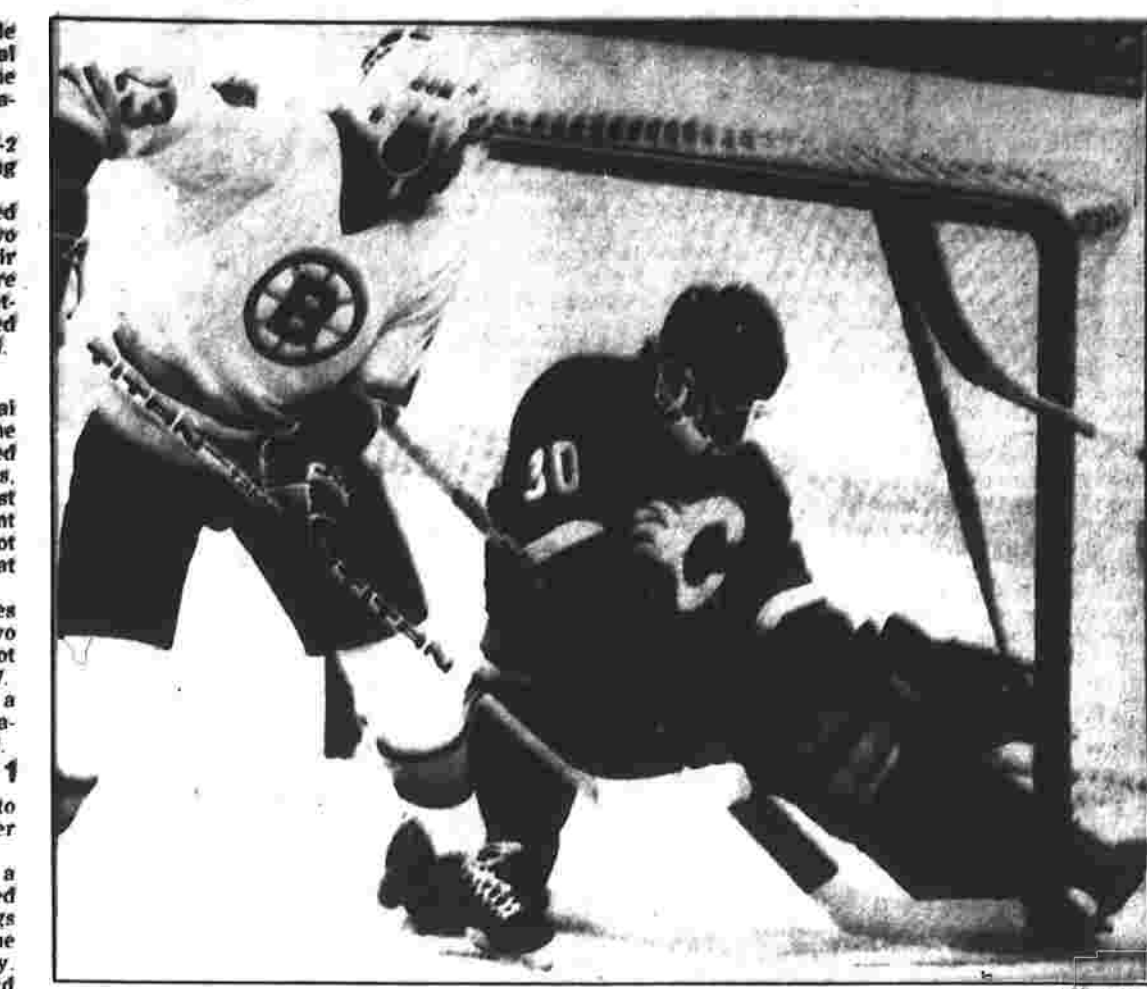

Defenseman Robert Picard scored a goal and assisted on Anton Stastny's goal for Quebec. Randy Moller scored with 8:27 remaining in the game, and Michel Goulet rounded out the scoring with 6:11 left when he tipped in a slapshot.

Peter Klimka was the only Red Wing to beat Nordiques goaltender Clint Malarchuk.

Jets 3, Sabres 2

Laurie Boschman scored at 12:45 of the third period as Winnipeg beat Buffalo. Boschman tapped in the puck after Buffalo goaltender Tom Barraso stopped defenseman Randy Carlyle's drive.

The goal came just over a minute after Finnish rookie Christian Ruutu had tied the game 2-2 for Boston's Charlie Simmer is turned aside by Calgary goalie Mike Vernon in their NHL opener Thursday night at Boston Garden. The Flames beat the Bruins, 5-3.

Blackhawks 3, Islanders 2

Doug Wilson's 50-foot slapshot late in the second period broke a 1-1 tie and led Chicago over the Islanders. Steve Larmer's rebound shot midway through the final period provided the Blackhawks with their eventual winning goal.

New York's Brent Sutter got the final goal of the game with five seconds remaining after the Islanders pulled goalie Billy Smith for an extra attacker.

Blues 4, Kings 3

Bernie Federko scored two second-period goals as visiting St. Louis rallied from a 2-0 first-period deficit to beat Los Angeles.

Federko tied the game 3-3 with his first goal at 13:25 of the second period. With 29 seconds left in the period, Federko scored again to lift St. Louis to a 4-3 advantage that stood up.

Marcel Dionne, second on the NHL's all-time scoring list, picked up two assists. His first, which came on Robitaille's goal, gave him 1,800 points in his 18-year career.

Buffalo's Brian Mullen and Doug Small also scored for Winnipeg, Gilbert Perreault scored in the second period for Buffalo.

rest. Their first round will be completed today, and the second round will be pushed back until Saturday.

PGA officials said at that point they would decide whether to play 36 holes Sunday or drop the final round, reducing the tournament to 54 holes instead of the usual 72.

Among those stranded on the course was Vantage Cup leader Bob Tway, who also is trying to vault ahead of Greg Norman, not entered here, to the top of the money list. Tway, with $47,584, needs only $6,052 to catch Norman.

The top prize here is $54,000. Andy Bean, who is trying to catch Tway in the race for the $50,000 Vantage Cup first prize, was at 70. With only three weeks of competition left, Bean needs a victory and two top-10 finishes while Tway must finish out of the top 25 in the remaining tournaments.

One stroke behind the leaders were Rex Caldwell, Wayne Grady and Bob Murphy. Nine players were tied at 67.

Sluman, a Rochester, N.Y. golfer who played at Florida State before turning pro in 1980, finished fifth in the Bahamas Classic in January but began to struggle in March, missing the cut in four straight tournaments before rebounding although the Bahamas finish remains his best of the year.

"When the tour went south my game went with it," Sluman said. "I was afraid I wouldn't get it airborne for awhile. Since the end of May, though, I've played pretty well."

Byrum, of Onida, S.D., played so poorly last year that he lost his tour card. But he obtained a special exemption for the Hardee's Golf Classic in July and finished second. Then he came in third last month at the Boston Classic.

"It's been a good year all around," Byrum said. "Starting this year all I wanted to do was get back to playing good solid golf and get back to tour school."

Fall fun harvest Don't let this season end without at least one visit to a nearby farm

By Nancy Pappas Herald Reporter

Sure, you can buy your pumpkin in a shopping mall. And your apples can come home in a plastic bag from the supermarket. But it's ever so much more fun to get out onto a farm, and pick the pumpkin from the vine, or pluck the apples from the trees.

It's great for the kids, of course. But adults, too, will enjoy the natural fireworks of fall colors: In addition to the spectacular leaves, we can enjoy the orange of pumpkins, bright red and gold of apples, and the brown and purple of Indian corn.

Here's a primer detailing some of the ways we've discovered to enjoy the harvest season. Hope you'll find something here to enjoy:

- A is for apples, as everybody knows. Unfortunately, this has not been a great year for apples, orchard owners say. There was a late spring frost, and the weather was unseasonably cool through August. This has meant a lighter-than-usual, earlier-than-usual crop. Many farms where you can usually pick apples through the first week of November are planning to close this week.

Johnnie Appleseed's in Ellington, for example, is normally a good destination for apple lovers looking for an outing. But the farm closed for the season a few days ago. Here's what we found in the way of pick-your-own orchards that are still open:

Belltown Hill Orchards, 483 Matson Hill Road, Glastonbury, 633-2789. Pick your own apples and late-harvest raspberries, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays; 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekends. Open through Oct. 18.

Mountain View Farm, Marlborough Road, Glastonbury, 633-4372. Pick your own apples, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday. Open through Oct. 25.

Szozda's Farm, 464 Woodland St., Glastonbury, 633-4004. Pick your own apples, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., seven days a week. Open through end of October.

- C is for cider. You'll enjoy watching it being pressed: Old Cider Mill, 1287 Main St., Glastonbury, 633-4880. Watch cider being pressed, sample that day's pressing. Country collectibles, jams and jellies also sold. Open 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., seven days a week. This year, the harvest was too light for picking your own apples, and the mill hasn't been able to hire enough help to operate its pick-your-own pumpkin fields.

- P is for pumpkins. Brown's Harvest, 60 Rainbow Road, Windsor, 683-0286. Families take a short hayride to the pumpkin field, where they pick their own pumpkins. Price determined by weight of pumpkin. Apples and cider from a nearby orchard sold at the fruit stand. Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., by appointment only. Saturday and Sunday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., no appointment necessary. Open through Halloween.

Jimmy Bascom, 2, sits on a giant pumpkin at the Hurst farm in Andover. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bascom of Hebron and the grandson of the farm's owners, Mr. and Mrs. James Hurst. Area farms offer pumpkins, apples and all kinds of fun this fall.

Edmondson, 2827 Boston Turnpike, Coventry, 742-6124. Children have a fine time peering through face holes cut in boards painted to look like witches, scarecrows, ghosts and jack-o'-lanterns. Be sure to bring your camera. Also, the pumpkins are on the stands, not out in the fields. But you'll have a good time, anyway.

Hurst Berry Farm, East Street, Andover, 646-0538. Kids take a short hayride out to the pumpkin field, then pick out any pumpkin they like. After the ride back to the barn, they hear a story about pumpkins, eat pumpkin cookies and drink cider. $2 per child, accompanying adults are free. Monday through Friday, by appointment only. Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., no appointment necessary; rides leave on the hour. Children under 6 must be accompanied by an adult.

Smith Berry Farm, 75 East St., Hebron, 228-9644. Peggy Smith hopes you'll be able to pick your own pumpkin during the last two weeks of October. So far, however, there hasn't been enough rain for her pumpkins to ripen. Anyone for bright green pumpkins?

Woodford and Sons, Nod Road, Avon, (1 1/4 miles past Avon Old Farms Inn.) Take a short hayride to the pumpkin field. Weekdays you'll pay $2.25 for the ride, glass of cider and any pumpkin in the field. Saturday and Sunday, the hayride is free and you'll pay for the pumpkin by the pound, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. While you're out there, you can also pick

Sports In Brief

Midget gridders back in action tonight The third week of the Manchester Midget Football League, washed out last Friday night, will be played tonight at Mt. Nebo with the traditional doubleheader.

The Jets and Chargers, both with 1-1 records, meet in the opener at 6:30 p.m. with the league-leading Eagles, 2-0, against the Giants, 0-2, in the nightcap.

Whalers send Cote to Binghamton HARTFORD - The Whalers sent defenseman Sylvain Cote to the minors Thursday in order to trim their roster to the appropriate number before the regular season opens Saturday at the Civic Center against Calgary.

Cote, 26, was sent to the Binghamton Whalers of the American Hockey League. The Whalers trimmed their numbers to 24 and made their final cut to a seven-man defense. Cote spent the entire season in Hartford in 1984-85 before playing in the World Junior Championships and with Hull of the Quebec Major Junior League last year.

Jury rules in Martina's favor RIVERHEAD, N.Y. - A jury found that tennis star Martina Navratilova did not injure a 44-year-old photographer when she took his camera and exposed his film at the U.S. Open Tennis Championships in 1982.

The six-member jury, however, did award Arthur Seitz $50 for the roll of film that Navratilova exposed during a skirmish following her quarterfinal loss to Pam Shriver on Sept. 7, 1982. Seitz had claimed in a $2 million suit that Navratilova injured his elbow and shoulder during a battle for his camera.

Figueras-Dotti British golf leader SOUTHPORT, England - Marta Figueras-Dotti of Spain shot a 6-under-par 68 for a one-stroke lead after the first round of the 87,000 British Women's Open golf tournament.

Tied for second at 69 were England's Beverley New and Scotland's Catherine Pantan.

New Zealand yacht still unbeaten FREMANTLE, Australia - New Zealand beat previously unbeaten America II in preliminary competition of the America's Cup that will determine the challenger to Australia.

Stars & Stripes, the only other undefeated boat, scored its fifth win with a come-from-behind victory over USA.

In other races, Azurra scored its first victory by defeating winless Courageous IV, White Crusader beat Challenge France, Italia trounced Heart of America and Canada II edged French Kiss.

Gonzalez in tie for Pensacola lead

By Bill Koczor The Associated Press

PENSACOLA, Fla. - As a newlywed last year, Ernie Gonzalez said he had trouble sleeping while on the PGA Tour. He also had trouble making the cut in Professional Golfers' Association tournaments.

But this year the 25-year-old from Chula Vista, Calif., is taking his wife along, and his ability to sleep and golf game have both improved greatly.

Gonzalez, with his wife Judy in the gallery, finished in a three-way tie for the lead on Thursday with Jeff Shuman and Curt Byrum in the rain-suspended first round of the $300,000 Pensacola Open.

Only half of the 156 golfers had completed the round when driving rain brought play to a halt. Those golfers stranded on the course were scheduled to complete the first round today.

"Last year I had a little insomnia problem," Gonzalez said after carding a 6-under-par 65 on the 7,093-yard Perdido Bay Resort course. "This year I have my wife with me. I'm more relaxed."

Gonzalez, whose best finish this year has been 10th in the Bank of Boston Classic, has earned $33,548 and is tied for 10th in the money list. "This year I had the opportunity to bring my wife out and it's been a lot easier on us. Now I have no reason to go home except to relax and rest." Their first round will be completed today, and the second round will be pushed back until Saturday. PGA officials said at that point they would decide whether to play 36 holes Sunday or drop the final round, reducing the tournament to 54 holes instead of the usual 72.

Whitaker remains unbeaten

NEW YORK (AP) - Undefeated Pernel Whitaker of Norfolk, Va., the 1984 Olympic gold medalist, extended his streak to 10 victories Thursday night with a unanimous 10-round decision over Rafael Gandarilla at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum.

There were no knockdowns as the 22-year-old Whitaker, 135-lb., earned all 10 rounds from the three judges. The 27-year-old Gandarilla, 135, a native of Mexico who now lives in Harlingen, Texas, dropped to 55-17-3.

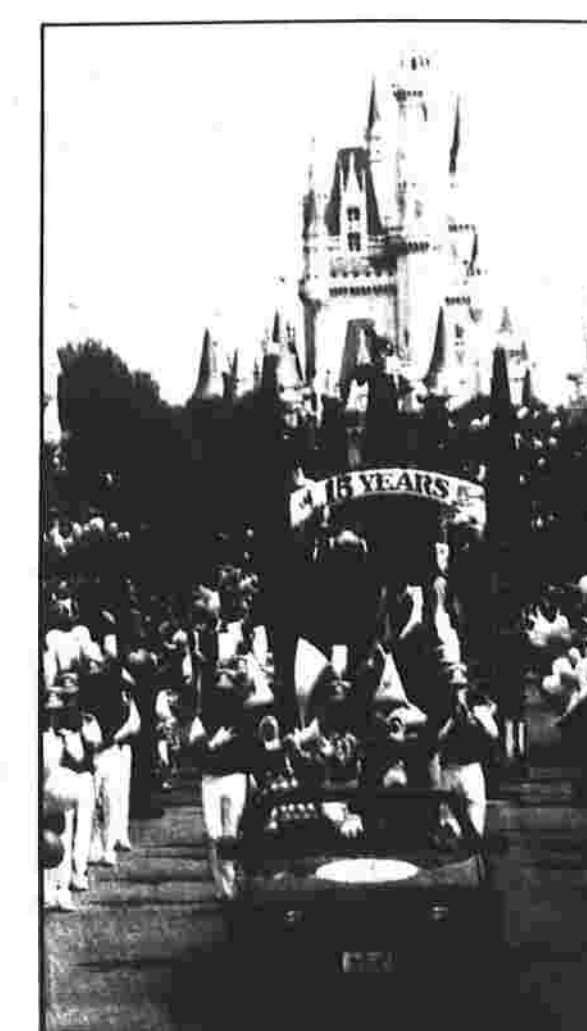

Following the bout, Hector "Macho" Camacho, the World Boxing Council light weight champion, teased Whitaker.

Whitaker responded: "He's scared of me. I'll punch him in the mouth. Tonight I showed no weakness and was in complete control."

"All Camacho has is a tough mouth. I guarantee you he'll never sign a contract. He's afraid to get into the ring with me."

Whitaker returned to the ring after a layoff of two months.

Main Street USA in Disney World features a daily parade of Disney characters in their party finery. The press was treated to a nighttime electronic parade in honor of Disney World's 15th anniversary.

It's terrific - but costly A skeptic visits Disney World

By Richard M. Diamond

Nobody throws a birthday bash like the Walt Disney organization and nobody can come up with more reasons to hold a birthday party. So it came as no surprise when Disney World, the home of the Magic Kingdom and Epcot Center in Orlando, announced elaborate plans for a combined celebration of its own 15th birthday and the 50th anniversary of the United States Constitution, with retiring Chief Justice Warren E. Burger as its honored guest. The surprise was Disney's decision to invite 10,000 media representatives to its gigantic, three-day celebration Oct. 2 to 5.

The invitation read: "You and a guest are invited to both enjoy and report on one of the most exciting and patriotic events ever conceived. This celebration will be the largest gathering of press representatives ever assembled and promises to be an unforgettable weekend."

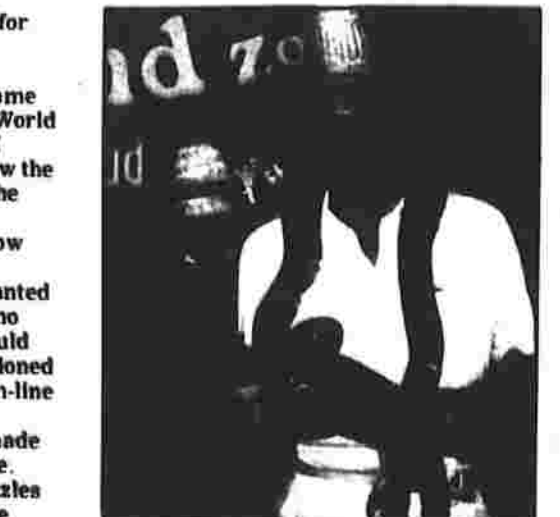

The response was overwhelming, though some larger news organizations boycotted the event. They were put off, no doubt, by the questionable news value involved and by the not-so-subtle hint that publicity was the quid pro quo for the free trip.

FOR MY PART, curiosity overcame my cynicism. I had visited Disney World shortly after it opened in 1971, and I welcomed the opportunity to see how the Magic Kingdom had transformed the Orlando area in its short years. Additionally, I was curious about how Warren Burger would be used or misused for the occasion. Last, I wanted to see whether a private company, no longer run by the Disney family, could maintain its credibility as it championed patriotic themes in search of bottom-line profits.

I can only say that the weekend made true believers out of my wife and me. The magnitude of Disney World dazzles the imagination. The 28,000-acre site, which is nearly twice the area of Manchester, is a landscaped wonderland that is still 80 percent undeveloped. Despite resort hotels with 5,500 rooms, 1,100 campsites, 565 vacation villas, major convention facilities and two major theme parks, Disney World is still remarkably free of unsightly billboards and blatant commercialism. Disney World is a marked contrast to the side-by-side hotels and fast-food establishments clustered in Orlando some 15 miles away.

THE HEART of Disney World is the Magic Kingdom, whose "six lands" represent major Disney themes. This

Porn protest backfires

GILLESPIE, III (AP) — A drugstore who was asked to pull pornography from his shelves did just that and more. He emptied his magazine racks of everything from Playboy to Woman's Day. I even thought about taking out the newspapers, but I didn't. I'm a pharmacist Ed Dippold said Thursday.

"I did it to make a point," he said. "What is pornography to one person might not be to someone else."

The drugstore took exception to a letter sent to him and three other businesses by the Gillespie Ministerial Association, asking that they stop handling pornographic magazines and videotapes.

He said the letter contended the materials "degrade men and women, turning them into objects of sexual pleasure" and "violate the law of God."

"Since I didn't have divine guidance to determine what was obscene and what was not, I decided to take out all the magazines."

So when he quit selling Playboy and Penthouse three weeks ago, Sports Illustrated, Newsweek, TV Guide — "just the whole gamut" — disappeared as well along with several tabloids, including the National Enquirer.

Another of the four businesses in the town of 3,700 people, located about 40 miles northeast of St. Louis, honored the request but two refused.

"I never heard so much to do over something so little and so foolish," the manager of the Warco Country Market, Mary Contratto, said after she removed copies of Playboy, Penthouse and Out magazines.

"I just took them out because you get so tired of the hassle with the ministers coming in and out," she said. "It's easier to take them out than to have to listen to them."

But Rita Davis, who manages the Huck's Convenience Store, said she refused to accede to what she thought was an unreasonable request.

Ballet opens season

The new season at the Hartford Ballet is off to a most auspicious start, with three performances of "Carmine Burana." It is based on a series of early poems written by a band of renegade clerics in the 13th century. The score will be sung by the Hartford Chorus, as the dancers perform choreography by Ernst Uthoff. Performances are tonight and Saturday at 8 p.m., and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are from $10 to $35. For reservations, call 266-6997. All performances are at Bushnell Memorial Hall, Hartford.

For the birds

There's a full day of activities planned on Saturday at the Connecticut Audubon Society Hartford Brook Center in Glastonbury. It all begins at 8 a.m. with a bird walk through the 38 acres of Earle Park. Breakfast will be served in the Holland Brook Center, following the walk. Then the family fun begins, with pumpkin decorating, leaf and flower printing, autumn crafts and other activities. All of this is free, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The center is at 1361 Main St.

A well-tended show

To see beautifully shaped bushes and well-tended flowers, head for the University of Connecticut's horticulture show, in the Ratcliffe Hicks Arena, Route 193, Storrs. It's open Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission is free.

This fare is fair

Schooner Fare, a trio from Maine that's often been compared with the Kingston Trio, will present a concert Saturday evening at 8 at the Sounding Board Coffeehouse. Their musical repertoire ranges from songs of the sea to original compositions to singalong tunes. The coffeehouse is in the First Church of Christ Congregational, 12 S. Main St., West Hartford. Admission is $8. For reservations call 583-3285.

Adopt an animal

Looking for a pet? On Saturday, the Lutz Children's Museum will host a Connecticut Animal Welfare League Pet Adoption Day. The league will be at the Lutz from noon to 4 p.m., with cats, dogs, kittens and puppies, parrots. All animals will have had their shots, and will have been checked for worms. They will be given free to anyone who can give them a good home.

Gliding the lily

The Hartford Stage production of "The Glided Aged," a sprawling tale of post-Civil War America adapted from Mark Twain's first novel, opens this weekend. Performances are from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Nov. 4, and tickets are $16 and $20. For more information, call 527-5151. The Stage Company is at 38 Church St. in Hartford.

The British are coming

Some members of the English pop groups which took the world by storm in the 1960s are getting back together. Here, members of The Searchers, The Mindbenders, Gerry and the Pacemakers, Freddie and the Dreamers, and Chad and Jeremy, take a break in rehearsals for a reunion show, which is coming to the Oakdale Musical Theatre in Wallingford on Saturday evening. Tickets are $18.50 for the 6 and 9:30 p.m. shows. For reservations, call 265-1501.

Kid'riflic's terrific

For five hours on Sunday, Main Street in downtown Hartford will be closed to traffic, and open to children of all ages as a festival is put on by the Downtown Council. The festival features children's theater and musical groups, clowns, magicians, jugglers and carnival rides. There will be pony rides, storytelling by children's authors, break-dancing workshops and a special guest appearance by Maria from the cast of public television's Sesame Street. Staff members of the Wadsworth Athenaeum will encourage children to draw huge pictures on the street in chalk.

Admission to the festival is free. For food, games and rides there will be fees, and proceeds will go to RIF (Reading is Fundamental), a national organization devoted to helping children enjoy reading.

Peanutbutterjam is back

Peanutbutterjam, the Manchester-based musicians who have gained regional popularity, will present a concert on Saturday at the Student Union ballroom, University of Connecticut at Storrs. Tickets are $3.50. For information on tickets and concert times, call 486-2865.

Harvest abounds

Although much of the harvest has been depleted, the Farmers' Market still has pumpkins, apples and late autumn vegetables. Area growers will have their stands up on Main Street in front of St. James Church Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Vereen has turned into a sex symbol

By Mott Wolf
The Associated Press

LONDON — The star of "Sid and Nancy" is being touted as one of the best young British actors around. But to hear Gary Oldman tell it, it might not have happened that way.

"There are two things you do in the background. I come from: You're either a policeman or a villain," said the 26-year-old actor, who grew up the son of a welder in Bermondsey, in South London.

"That's what opened my eyes. I didn't want to do either, so I thought I'd compromise and become an actor."

Oldman's electrifying portrait of the doomed punk rocker Sid Vicious, The Sex Pistols' deceased bass guitarist, in Alex Cox's "Sid and Nancy" debuted at the New York Film Festival on Oct. 3. It opens in New York and Los Angeles on Oct. 12.

THE $4 MILLION film drew mixed reviews in London but unanimous praise for Oldman and co-star Chloe Webb, who plays Nancy Spungen, Vicious' American groupie-girlfriend.

Spungen was found dead in New York's Chelsea Hotel on Oct. 12, 1978. Vicious, born John Simon Ritchie, died of a suspected heroin overdose four months later.

Oldman said acting in "Sid and Nancy" was often painful and depressing. He lost 28 pounds off the actor, but has since put back the weight.

"I got a bit obsessive; I became a bit anorexic, I suppose," he said. "I was nervous because I had a very, very big part and, to tell you the truth, I didn't know I could do it."

Oldman has appeared mostly on the stage in London's fringe — the equivalent of off-Broadway.

With the critics' validations and encouragement, Oldman felt more relaxed on his second film role. At the end of August, he finished shooting "Prick Up Your Ears," based on John Lahr's biography of the subversive British playwright Joe Orton.

"I got a bit obsessive; I became a bit anorexic, I suppose," he said. "I was nervous because I had a very, very big part and, to tell you the truth, I didn't know I could do it."

OLDMAN PLAYS Orton, author of such comic masterworks as "Loot" and "Entertaining Mr. Sloane," Alfred ("Letter to Breach") Molina appears as Orton's male lover and murderer, Kenneth Halliwell. Stephen Frears, who made "My Beautiful Laundrette," directs from a script by Alan Bennett, author of "A Private Practice."

Following up Sid Vicious with Joe Orton was bizarre, he said: "They were both to shock in their own way: one (Vicious) through bad language and no vocabulary; the other (Orton) with a great command of words."

Oldman said he feels a duty when portraying real people on screen.

"I could have made Joe a screaming queen; I could have made Sid a nutcase," he said. "But I, Gary, have a responsibility towards people who are left behind. Whether that's right or wrong, I don't know."

He also feels a responsibility towards the theater, the medium where he says his heart lies.

In 1985, his performance as Scopy in Edward Bond's "The Pope's Wedding" earned him the Actor award from Drama Magazine in a tie vote with Anthony Hopkins in "Pravda."

This summer, he appeared at the Royal Shakespeare Company playing an American radical from the 1960s in Trevor Griffiths' "Real Dreams." In December, Oldman goes north to Manchester's Royal Exchange Theater to play Horner in William Wycherley's 1873 Restoration-era classic, "The Country Wife."

"I've got no great ambition to go abroad and be lured by movies," he said. "To be a film star you've got to have a certain equipment I don't think I possess. I'll leave it to the big boys to get all that."

Alan Shepard became the first American in space when he rocketed from Cape Canaveral, Fla., May 5, 1961.

Advice

Man reacts to pregnant waitresses

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Five weeks ago my wife and I had dinner out to relax after opening our new restaurant. In the cocktail lounge of this very nice restaurant we were served by a pleasant young lady who was well along in her pregnancy. Then in the dining room, an equally pregnant young lady served us dinner.

I believe that women and children are important — to be loved and cherished — but being served by two pregnant women in one evening was, I thought, a little too much.

"My wife had a 'so what?' attitude. I was upset. Do you think my reaction was wrong?" And if so, why?

STORK-RAVING MAD

DEAR MAD: As a man who claims to "love and cherish women and children," perhaps the sight of two pregnant women working so far along in their pregnancies made you feel guilty. Or were you embarrassed to be reminded of how babies get here?

If you still cling to the notion that pregnant women should not show themselves in public, consider this: Pregnant waitresses would rather be home soaking their swollen feet, but they continue to work because they need the money. Examine your feelings. Then you will know why you were upset.

DEAR ABBY: I have a mother-in-law problem. When "Joe" and I announced our engagement, his mother gave us a down comforter. It wasn't a new one: It was one she had had for a long time that belonged to her mother. My own mother gave us a brand-new down comforter, not knowing that I had already received one.

Joe and I have been married a year and we're using the comforter we got from my mother. My mother-in-law was at the house yesterday and noticed that we were using the new comforter. So she asked me to give the one she had given us to her daughter who didn't have any.

Abby, the one from my mother-in-law has a lot of sentimental value attached to it, and just because we're not using it doesn't mean we don't want it. I suppose you'd call me selfish if I have two and refuse to give one to my sister-in-law who doesn't have any. But I don't really think I am. What should I do?

ON THE SPOT

DEAR ON: Once a gift is given, it becomes the property of the recipient to use, put away, throw away, sell or whatever.

However, with two comforters, you have more comfort than you can use, so why not give one to your sister-in-law to warm and comfort her? Were you to keep them both, I would not call you "selfish," but there's much to be said for keeping peace in the family.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old girl with an important question. Why are your readers so hung up on sex? I like your column, but it seems that about one-third of your readers are about sex. Personally I think bowling is a lot more fun. Judging from the few times I've had sex, I thought it would get more enjoyable, but it didn't.

Unfortunately, high school peer pressure about this overrated activity is still with us. "Who did you score with?" is still a hot topic at school.

This sex is boring. Besides, with AIDS to worry about, it's not worth the risk. Also, the world already has more people than it can feed.

Give us more letters about people who are too fat, too tall, too short or were born on Christmas. Or hassle with the phone company, the neighbor's dog barking at 3 a.m. — anything besides sex for a change.

OPTING FOR ABSTINENCE

DEAR OPTING: Thanks for the candid input. I appreciate knowing my readers' preferences. Readers?

mean? Is it a condition that needs treatment?

DEAR READER: Anisocytosis is present when the red blood cells vary in size. This can represent ineffective blood production. Therefore, I urge you to ask your doctor to investigate the cause of your blood abnormality. You may be deficient in certain vitamins and minerals.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My friend is a healthy 87, but in the winter she sleeps in the basement near the furnace with her four cats, who never go out, and her dog, who sheds a lot. I think the animals are taking oxygen from her. Is it healthy to live like that?

DEAR READER: Far be it from me to criticize a healthy 87-year-old's lifestyle. The cats' fur and the dog may be competing with her for the oxygen supply, but she seems to have developed an arrangement that works for her. However, she should be sure that her gas furnace is vented properly so that carbon monoxide does not harm your friend or her menagerie.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am climbing the walls because of the itch I have in my eyebrows, corners of my eyes and behind my ears. I had a rash on my back, which went away, but then this itching started. Could it be caused by diet? I take hydrochlorothiazide, potassium and aspirin.

DEAR READER: The hydrochlorothiazide could be causing your itching, or you might have a skin disease such as scabies. Check with a dermatologist for further advice.

Help available for incontinent people

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband had a prostate operation a year ago and he has had no control of his water since then. The doctor gave him an incontinence clamp to use to go to work, but he is starting to get infections. We are both getting frustrated and are wondering what to do next.

DEAR READER: Incontinence is a recognized, but rare, complication of some forms of prostate surgery. I believe that there is little chance of curing your husband's condition. However, you can obtain support and useful advice from H.I.P.: Help for Incontinent People, P.O. Box 544, Union, SC 29379.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am 80 and when I lie down to sleep, my nose stops up and my throat gets very dry after about two hours. If I sit up, it clears right up. I was told to get rid of my dog, feather pillows and wool rug which I did, but I still have no relief. Is there any help for me?

DEAR READER: I suggest that you see an allergist. Once the allergic factor in your environment is identified, you may be helped by specific therapy, such as desensitization injections.

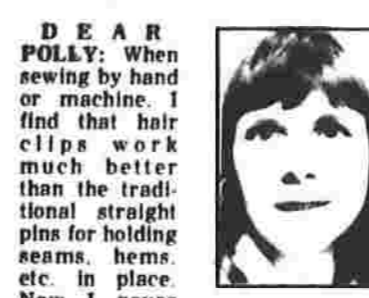

DEAR DR. GOTT: After a recent blood test, I was told that I had slight anisocytosis. What does this mean? Is it a condition that needs treatment?

DEAR DR. GOTT: My friend is a healthy 87, but in the winter she sleeps in the basement near the furnace with her four cats, who never go out, and her dog, who sheds a lot. I think the animals are taking oxygen from her. Is it healthy to live like that?

DEAR READER: Far be it from me to criticize a healthy 87-year-old's lifestyle. The cats' fur and the dog may be competing with her for the oxygen supply, but she seems to have developed an arrangement that works for her. However, she should be sure that her gas furnace is vented properly

Hair clips handy for marking hems

Pointers
Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY: When sewing by hand or machine, I often find that hair clips work much better than the traditional straight pins for holding seams, hems, etc. in place.

Now I never prick my finger or step on lost pins. The clips can be quickly removed, particularly when sewing on a machine. They are easy to find if you drop them. I am sure needle workers will find many other uses for hair clips.

BOBBIE

DEAR POLLY: Don't forget your age by the years you've known. But by the friends you have made

DEAR POLLY: When using bias material cut from the same or contrasting material to trim a garment, stretch the bias slightly while sewing it on, and it will lie flat. Then, for a special look, mark the waist or three lines around it with matching or contrasting thread for an inexpensive trim.

When opening tall juice cans, set the electric can opener at the edge of the sink so the can will extend into the sink.

I covered a small electric fan with a mesh onion bag to keep fingers from touching the blades. I keep a razor blade fastened with tape to the inside door of my kitchen cabinet for convenience. (Polly's Note: Be sure it's not accessible to children!)

To protect a sore finger while working in water, I keep a package of balloons handy and put one on the sore finger until the task is finished.

DEAR POLLY: I find that cutting ribcush with a pair of scissors is much easier and faster than cutting with a knife.

These bartender tips may save a life

By Cindy Woodlyo
The Associated Press

JOLIE T. III — Some bartenders have been collecting a lot of tips lately.

But the tips aren't in money. They are in nuggets of knowledge on how to keep customers from overindulging and how to handle those who are drunk.

In a day seminar called TIPS — Training for Intervention Procedures by Servers of Alcohol — even veteran bar owners said they had learned things they hadn't known.

The program, offered four times in Joliet during the past year, was designed by the Health Education Foundation in Washington, D.C.

"You learn a little more how to handle the people that are rowdy," said Edward Kucinic, a bar owner for 19 years. "You learn to smile at them and talk to them in a slow, moderate voice."

Bartenders also learn about the law and liability, said Kucinic, who owns Kuch's, in Joliet.

"If a person came in here intoxicated and we never served him, by law we still are required to get that person not to drive and to get him home safely," he said.

Also, Kucinic said, bartenders learn how to handle underage drinkers.

"Don't be crazy and chase them out," he said. Instead, try to get phony identification away from them.

Shirrel Hall, owner of The Diamond Bar in Diamond, said that when someone who is drunk wants another drink, she drags her feet in serving him.

"I can always be busy at the most important that we are as careful with what we put into our hearts and minds as we are with what we put into our mouths."

Lord, grant me grace throughout this day. To walk the straight and narrow way. To do whatever in Your sight is good and perfect, just and right — Hulsman

'Outrageous' is the word for Lionel Richie's career

By Walter Press The Associated Press

Lionel Richie is on his new world tour, 'Outrageous.'

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Lionel Richie's favorite word, "Outrageous." It's also the title of his new world tour and the best way to describe his meteoric music career and massive record sales. The singer-songwriter has passed Paul McCartney, Stevie Wonder and Cole Porter for the most consecutive years of having a No. 1 song on the charts and is tied with Irving Berlin at nine. A record-setting 19th year ago, Richie's "Dancing on the Ceiling" was the title track of his new top-selling LP. But in the soft-spoken native of Tukuege, Ala., success always is something of a surprise. "I can never get used to the idea of an album or a song going platinum," the 37-year-old musician says. "I can never get used to the idea of an album or a song going platinum."...

A skeptic visits the land of the Magic Kingdom

A second theme park, Epcot Center, opened in 1982 and its Future World complex focuses on the technologies of the future. The Living Seas, presented by the United Technologies Corp., is the newest of Future World's seven major attractions. In addition, Epcot features impressive exhibits from 16 foreign countries.

Attending all of this to the 16,000 members and guests in the press contingent was a logistical problem that the Disney organization, experienced in handling daily crowds in excess of 125,000, took in stride. All of us were put up in Orlando hotels, with daily shuttle buses provided. The shuttle service even included transportation to non-Disney attractions.

THURSDAY EVENING we were treated to a spectacular open-air extravaganza of food, artistry and music featuring the Florida Symphony Orchestra in a patriotic pyrotechnic salute. All this took place on the shores of Lake Eola in downtown Orlando and was presented by the Orlando/Orange County Visitors Bureau.

Friday morning was the welcome ceremony at the Orange County Civic Center, with the chief justice making the keynote address. In a dignified but uninspired fashion, Burger spoke about the significance of the Constitution, while outside a small group of gay activists protested his lack of commitment to their civil rights.

Then, in the most dramatic moment of the three-day celebration, Burger introduced a surprise guest — Nick Daniloff, the recently released Moscow correspondent for U.S. News and World Report.

In a 10-minute address, Daniloff contrasted the legal safeguards afforded an individual by our Constitution with the Soviet system's. He ended his talk with a plea for action on behalf of Terry Anderson, the Associated Press correspondent held in Lebanon, while the audience cheered and some, overcome by emotion, wept.

ON FRIDAY NIGHT Disney opened the Magic Kingdom for the press only. Our enthusiasm made up for our lack of numbers. Crystal Gayle sang "Don't It Make My Brown Eyes Blue" while The Temptations and the Miami Sound Machine, among others, made a lot of loud but pretty music. The big event, however, was the premiere of the new 15th Birthday Main Street Parade, an updated version of an event that has thrilled 210 million visitors since Disney World opened its doors in 1971.

The following night the press contingent took over Epcot Center. The bands, floats and fireworks that made up the We the People parade was inspiring. We enjoyed the chance to sample foreign dishes at the restaurants located in the Showcase of Nations.

Despite all the hype, we found "Captain EO," the three-dimensional 17-minute movie starring Michael Jackson, a bit disappointing, but perhaps our age is showing. Dolly Parton provided the finale with an hour-long show, and no one was disappointed by her performance.

EVEN WITHOUT all the perks enjoyed by the press, Disney World lives up to its reputation and is well worth a visit. It can be costly, however. Disney hotel rooms run more than $100 a day. Orlando hotels offer adequate, if not luxurious rooms, at $30 a night, with shuttle service to Disney World.

Admission to the park is also something to be considered. A four-day package, for example, is $99 for adults and $69 for children. For a family of four, this works out to $62 daily for admissions but includes all rides and exhibits. If you can resist some of the high-priced food and souvenirs inside the park, you might just stay within your budget.

Disney World is a treat for the entire family. It is well-run, well-maintained and full of surprises for all ages. As it moves beyond its 15th birthday, with ambitious projects such as a Disney/MGM Studio and a Pleasure Island nightclub complex on its drawing board for 1988, we hope it retains the image Walt Disney sought to project. We also hope the complex does not use up more than its share of the natural resources in the area.

Roy Disney put it best at the opening in 1971 when he said: "Walt Disney World is a tribute to the philosophy and life of Walter Elias Disney and to the talents, the dedication and the loyalty of the entire Disney organization, that made Walt Disney's dream come true. May Walt Disney World bring joy and inspiration and new knowledge to all who come to this happy place... a Magic Kingdom where the young at heart of all ages can laugh and play and learn—together."

Michael Jackson appears in a new Captain EO movie at the Kodak exhibit in the Epcot Center. Jackson didn't go over big with the media rep from Manchester.

DOT lauds Conrail sale agreement
WASHINGTON — The Department of Transportation says a long-awaited agreement to sell Conrail is a major victory because it contains safeguards for the health of the once-troubled freight railroad.

A House-Senate committee announced agreement Thursday on a compromise package to sell government-owned Conrail in a public stock offering. The agreement must still be approved by the House and Senate as part of a spending-reduction package. The final package provided victories for the Reagan administration and for Philadelphia-based Conrail, which was created by the federal government in 1976. Conrail and the administration had been bickering for two years over the manner in which the freight railroad should be sold.

For Conrail, the agreement was welcome because the railroad would be allowed to remain independent.

Arafat sends guerrillas to Lebanon
KUWAIT — PLO chairman Yasser Arafat announced Thursday that he has sent guerrillas to south Lebanon to defend Palestinian camps against Shiite Muslim militias and Israeli forces.

Arafat said an unspecified number of commandos had been sent to Lebanon "with orders to defend the camps until death." Speaking to a meeting of Palestinian union members, Arafat charged that Amal, the largest Shiite militia in Lebanon, was cooperating with Israeli forces in south Lebanon for a "new massacre" of Palestinians.

"I have told the Arab leaders to carry out their duty in defending the camps and the door for the Palestinian people to defend their existence and revolution," Arafat said.

There have been reports that Palestine Liberation Organization fighters have been filtering back into southern Lebanon and Israeli warplanes have recently attacked Palestinian refugee camps in the south.

Reagan gets insurance-pool bill
WASHINGTON — Congress, stopping far short of tort-law changes sought by an insurance industry coalition, is sending President Reagan legislation designed to address the so-called liability insurance crisis.

Sponsors say the bill, which cleared the House by a voice vote Thursday, should ease problems faced by many businesses and professionals in finding liability coverage at reasonable prices. The legislation would relax state regulatory barriers that are preventing the formation of risk pools among particular businesses and professional groups, according to Rep. Norman Lent, R-N.Y.

He said the proposal is "the most and the least we can do" to help people who have either been denied liability coverage or have seen their insurance rates rising to record levels.

Soviets monitor sunken submarine
WASHINGTON — A small Soviet salvage ship is standing over the Atlantic Ocean site where the Soviets lost a nuclear submarine earlier this week, and a research vessel is steaming to the site, Pentagon sources say.

The research vessel, believed to be operated by a civilian crew and attached to the Russian Northern Fleet, should arrive in the area sometime late tonight or early Saturday, the officials said.

The officials, who agreed to discuss the matter Thursday if not identified, said the salvage ship is not large enough to attempt to raise the sub, which sank Monday after experiencing a major fire and explosion on Oct. 3.

Rather, the Soviets apparently intend to use the salvage and research ships to test radioactivity, fix the sub's precise location on the ocean bottom and ascertain as much as possible about its current condition, the sources said.

LaRouche aides held without bond
ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Two top aides to political extremist Lyndon LaRouche are being held without bond on obstruction of justice charges, and prosecutors say another indicted LaRouche associate is cooperating with the government.

Jeffrey and Michelle Steinberg, charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice by trying to thwart a grand jury's investigation of the LaRouche organization, were ordered by a federal magistrate Thursday to remain in custody and to be taken to Boston, where they face arraignment Oct. 12 in federal court.

At Thursday's federal court hearing, an FBI agent also testified that a former Ku Klux Klan member who worked with LaRouche and who is cooperating with authorities has told of a conversation in which LaRouche said the federal prosecutor handling the case "should get a bullet between the eyes."

Derailment kills one, injures 33
FALL RIVER, Wis. — An Amtrak train carrying more than 300 people derailed while changing tracks, killing one person and injuring 33 others, and authorities investigated whether a switch was in the wrong position.

Crewmen worked through the night under floodlights to clear the wreckage blocking the track. Trains, meantime, were being detoured to Stevens Point, 30 miles north.

The Seattle-to-Chicago train was pulling 15 cars, including five private cars carrying railroad buffs to a convention in Milwaukee, when it derailed Thursday afternoon.

Council hits shuttle plans
WASHINGTON (AP) — NASA's planned flight schedule for its space shuttles appears to be overly optimistic, according to a report by a National Research Council panel of experts.

The panel, asked by a congressional subcommittee to assess NASA's shuttle flight capabilities in the wake of the Challenger accident, came up with more conservative estimates than the space agency projects.

"They can really be overbooked in terms of a realistic schedule, and they have to be very careful of that," Eberhard Reichen, president of the Aerospace Corp. in Los Angeles and a member of the panel, said in a telephone interview Thursday after the report was released.

The panel concluded that under the best conditions, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration could launch eight to 10 flights per year with its current fleet of three orbiters and 11 to 13 annually with four orbiters.

The experts emphasized that those projections would be possible only if none of the orbiters were lost or out of service for more than several months every few years, outside of planned maintenance.

The estimates also are based on improvements, including better launch processing facilities at Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

Israeli government changes hands

Jerusalem — Prime Minister Shimon Peres resigned today, beginning an unprecedented transfer of power to his rival, Yitzhak Shamir. Hours before the resignation, both men underscored the fragility of the next government.

Peres, leader of the left-leaning Labor Party, will head a caretaker administration until Shamir, currently foreign minister and head of the rightist Likud bloc, is sworn in by Parliament, probably on Tuesday or Wednesday.

"Mr. President, I respectfully hand in my letter of resignation as prime minister according to the existing coalition agreement," Peres said in a brief statement outside the office of President Chaim Herzog to whom the resignation was submitted.

Herzog replied: "I wish you well and congratulate you on all you have done."

Peres and Shamir trade jobs under an arrangement made in September 1984 after an election stalemate made it impossible for either party to govern alone.

Peres, speaking on Israeli Radio hours before handing in his resignation, said a Shamir-led government would not last if it failed to pursue his Middle East peace initiatives.

If Shamir's government "does not keep to the peace policy guidelines, it may endanger itself," he said.

Shamir told Army Radio that he would stick to the coalition accord, which calls for trying to persuade Jordan to enter into peace talks.

But asked what would happen if Jordanian King Hussein made proposals the Likud bloc could not accept, Shamir said: "If the things will be so important to Labor that they will justify breaking up the unity government, then the government will fall."

Shamir nevertheless said he expected the government to last through his scheduled 25-month term because "this is the national necessity at this moment."

Under Israeli law, Herzog must approve no matter of confidence in the prime minister. Since the two largest parties have agreed to the swap, this process is only a formality but is expected to take until Oct. 14.

Before he is sworn in Shamir must win a vote of confidence in the 120-member Parliament, which was not expected to convene before Oct. 14 or 15.

"There had been last-minute haggling over Labor's demands for a higher profile in economic policy and Likud's insistence on reinstating a former minister, Yitzhak Modai, to the Cabinet.

Peres forced Modai's resignation as Justice Minister in July after the minister repeatedly harshly criticized the prime minister in public.

Peres, who returned to Israel today from a two-day visit to France, told reporters in Paris on Thursday: "I would not hesitate to provoke a rupture if the (peace) process is frozen. Maintaining the peace process is the most important consideration. I do not think there is much chance that the government would last if it halts the process."

Budget impasse threatens shutdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is preparing to shut down on the eve of President Reagan's talks with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Reagan left Washington for Iceland on Thursday without settling his dispute with House Democrats over a series of arms control provisions attached to a bill authorizing federal agencies to spend their fiscal 1987 allowances.

Reagan said the provisions, including a requirement he live within the limits of the unratified LT II arms treaty, would tie his hands at the U.S.-Soviet summit. Pressuring Congress to knuckle under, the president said he would approve no more stopgap legislation because he wanted lawmakers to finish the long-term bill to his liking.

Two emergency spending bills have kept the government operating since fiscal 1987 began Oct. 1, but that spending authority was expiring at midnight tonight. The president's stance appeared to rule out his signing a third interim spending bill, which the Democratic-controlled House was expected to consider today. The new measure would last through Oct. 15.

Unless the government is authorized to spend money, it is required to shut down except for essential services, such as the military and air traffic control. Because of the three-day holiday weekend, little impact was expected until Tuesday, officials said.

"If there's no (spending bill) by midnight Friday, nothing very dramatic happens," said Ed Dale, spokesman for the Office of Management and Budget.

Federal agencies were being told to have employees report as usual Tuesday.

Some senators critical of Claiborne trial

By Robert M. Andrews
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON—Harry E. Claiborne was back in prison today, stripped of his judicial robes and his $70,000 salary by a Senate conviction that left some senators troubled over claims that he was the victim of a government vendetta.

After a 10-day impeachment trial, the first in more than half a century, the Senate overwhelmingly pronounced Claiborne guilty Thursday of three of the four articles of impeachment the House unanimously approved July 22.

Flinched by his lawyers, Claiborne sat with arms folded across his chest as the Senate convicted him of "high crimes and misdemeanors" by willfully cheating on his 1979 and 1980 tax returns.

The roll call votes on those two counts were 67-10 and 90-7, with Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, voting "present."

The Senate also concluded on an 89-8 vote, with Stevens again voting "present," that Claiborne had "betrayed the trust of the people of the United States" and thereby brought disrepute on the federal courts and the administration of justice.

But senators acquitted him of Article III, which said his 1984 criminal conviction on two counts of tax evasion was "an independent and sufficient basis for his removal from office." The vote was 66-17, with 35 senators voting "present."

Claiborne's battle to clear his name was lost, however, on the very first roll call because a guilty verdict on a single article of impeachment is sufficient for conviction.

In that instant, the Senate effectively removed Claiborne from the federal bench and took away his salary, which he had been collecting while serving a two-year prison sentence in Alabama for failing to report $160,000 in legal fees on his 1979 and 1980 tax returns.

After the convictions, Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., and Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., said they would press for a Senate investigation of Justice Department "suing operations," and expressed concern that Claiborne might have been unfairly targeted for prosecution.

"I feel there is enough smoke to justify whether or not a fire exists," Heflin told his colleagues after the impeachment vote. Pryor said he had concluded that Claiborne had been

"targeted by the FBI in a very arbitrary and capricious manner."

Heflin said he will introduce a proposed constitutional amendment next year to overhaul the Senate impeachment process. "A 100-man jury is too cumbersome and unworkable," he said, suggesting creation of a judicial inquiry commission and a court of the judiciary to handle complaints against federal judges.

Sen. Daniel Evans, R-Wash., said he opposed Claiborne's conviction "not because I don't think he is not guilty" but because the Senate refused to hear testimony from witnesses during the trial.

When it was all over, Thurmond declared that Claiborne had been ordered removed from office immediately. Claiborne stood erect and strode out of the Senate chamber, led by Sergeant at Arms Ernest Garcia and followed by a federal marshal.

Claiborne, as a federal prisoner, was forbidden to speak to reporters after the trial held at the Marine brig at Quantico, Va., during the trial, he was to return to the federal prison camp at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

U.S. District Judge Harry Claiborne leaves the Senate floor during his impeachment trial this week. Claiborne has left "kinds like a piece of meat strung out to a couple of dogs."

'Paper profits' are not taxable

Investors' Guide

William A. Doyle

QUESTION: Are paper profits on mutual funds immediately taxable, like certificates of deposit? Or, are taxes deferred until the shares are sold, like stocks?

ANSWER: A "paper profit" is an increase in share value. If you buy 100 shares of XYZ mutual fund at a cost of $10 per share and the share value rises to $11, you have a $100 paper profit.

No tax is due, unless you redeem the shares. You don't "sell" mutual fund shares. You redeem them by turning them back to the fund.

However, mutual funds pay dividends and most make capital gains distributions, both of which are taxable. There's an exception in the case of municipal bond mutual funds, which pay dividends not subject to federal income tax.

Except for municipal bond funds, you're required to report and pay tax on mutual fund dividends and capital gains distributions. When you have invested in a mutual fund, you get an annual Form 1099 listing the amount the tax status of all dividends and capital gains distributions.

You're required to pay tax, whether you take your funds out or not. Mutual fund management companies by check or reinvest them to buy additional shares.

I suspect that's what you're thinking about, in drawing a comparison to CDs. You pay tax on CD interest, even if you leave it to accumulate.

Reinvested mutual fund dividends and capital gains distributions, however, increase your "basis" — cost for tax purposes.

Let's say you made the $1,000 fund investment mentioned above and the fund for a number of years, reinvesting dividends and capital gains distributions totaling another $1,000, and end up holding 200 shares worth $12 each. At that point, your basis would be $2,000. Your investment would be worth $2,400. If you redeem all your shares, you'll take a $400 profit on which tax will be due. Over the years you held the ever-increasing number of shares, you would have paid tax on the $1,000 you reinvested.

QUESTION: My wife and I have invested in several mutual funds, all within the same no-load fund "family" and have accumulated large amounts — nearly 85 percent of our investment assets. Is there any inherent risk dealing with one mutual fund organization?

ANSWER: Not really. Each mutual fund is a separate company. Its assets are not mixed with the assets of other funds run by the same management company.

Many mutual fund management companies handle groups of funds, which they like to call "families." If one of the funds in a group doesn't do well, there will be no direct effect on the other funds in the group.

It's convenient to invest in a number of mutual funds in the same group, because it's easier to keep track of your holdings. And you can move your investments from one fund to another within a group by placing a phone call.

QUESTION: You consistently advise against investing in mutual funds with 12b-1 plans, which increase shareholders costs. A mutual fund in which I have invested for a number of years recently asked shareholders to approve a 12b-1 plan. I voted "no." But the plan was approved by majority vote of other shareholders. Would you advise me to close my account with that fund and move that investment to another fund in which I already hold shares?

ANSWER: Generally, yes. But I do have to hedge a bit. If the mutual fund that just adopted the 12b-1 plan has an outstanding investment record — meaning the value of its shares has risen better than most other funds in general and your other fund in particular — I'd say stay with it. But keep a sharp eye on its future performance.

Most likely, that fund's future performance will suffer — for the simple reason that a 12b-1 plan increases a mutual fund's expenses, thereby reducing the value of the fund's share.

Healthy future predicted for HMOs

By Lee Linder
The Associated Press

BLUE BELL, Pa. — Leonard Abramson, a former pharmacist who built his health maintenance organization into one of the biggest and fastest growing in the nation, recently contributed $1 million for cancer research and has pledged to give $4 million more.

"I made my money in health care and I want to give some of the money back," he said recently.

It costs a lot of money to run a quality health care, a lot of money to do research. I think American business people have an obligation to donate money to health care and to research.

"When I got involved in this program, I said we would do what we can to make life better for our people. One of the scourges of society is cancer. They are doing a phenomenal job at the National Cancer Institute, and I felt a need to help them that's what you're talking about, in drawing a comparison to CDs. You pay tax on CD interest, even if you leave it to accumulate.

Reinvested mutual fund dividends and capital gains distributions, however, increase your "basis" — cost for tax purposes.

Dollar rises while gold prices fall

LONDON — The U.S. dollar rose against all currencies except the British pound and the Canadian dollar in early European trading today. Gold prices fell in quiet trading.

Foreign exchange dealers said trading was quiet and the market was waiting for the release of the U.S. September producer price index later in the day to provide fresh news to trade on.

Although general market sentiment is still bearish toward the dollar, dealers said the market has been hesitant to push the U.S. currency lower because of fears of central bank intervention.

Financial markets in Tokyo were closed for a national holiday but the dollar was stronger against the Japanese yen in London. It was selling for 155.15 yen compared with 154.23 yen in Tokyo at Thursday's close.

In London, the pound strengthened against the dollar. Dealers said the market apparently decided to wait for a speech by Chancellor of the Exchequer Nigel Lawson next Thursday before judging Britain's economic prospects.

Panel expects little economic growth

HOT SPRINGS, Va. — A blue-ribbon panel of business executives forecast today that the U.S. economy will continue to muddle through the next two years without a recession but without much pickup in growth either.

In its semi-annual economic outlook, the Business Council expressed a general uneasiness and said "concerns about the economy abound."

"A disappointing performance in trade and lingering weakness for U.S. industries have prevented the economy from growing up to expectations," the council's report said.

The Business Council, made up of executives from 65 of the country's largest corporations, forecast economic growth, as measured by the gross national product, of 2.8 percent this year, weaker than last year's 3.7 percent performance.

The group predicted GNP growth would climb modestly to 2.9 percent in 1987 and 3.1 percent in 1988.

These forecasts are far below the expectations of the Reagan administration, which is looking for growth to top 4 percent next year.

UConn teaches entrepreneurs

STORRS — A new program that opens the door to innovative research and teaching in the field of entrepreneurship has been established at the University of Connecticut.

Ronald J. Patzen, dean of the UConn School of Business Administration, said the Thomas J. and Bette Wolff Family Program in Entrepreneurship will bring top executives of leading corporations to the Storrs campus. The program will acquaint honors students with advantages and pitfalls of the business world.

Thomas J. Wolff, who heads the Wolff-Zackin and Associates insurance agency of Vernon, said, at the first session of the program, that its objective is to provide young people with an understanding of how the American economic system works. Wolff is a 1986 graduate of UConn who majored in economics.

Patzen said the program this fall includes a series of luncheons with the visiting executives and honors students from any field of study. The program is not limited to business majors, he said.

Conti becomes officer of bank

HARTFORD — James M. Conti has been promoted to officer in Connecticut National Bank's Consumer Banking, North Division. He is manager of the Frost Road Office in Waterbury.

He came to the bank in 1983 as a supervisor in the Security and Protection Department and joined the bank's Professional Development Program the following year. He was appointed manager of the Frost Road Office in Waterbury.

He is a graduate of Purdue University.

Conti is a United Way representative for the bank's Northwest Region and serves as a member of the Hunger Project.

He resides in Manchester.

Temporary workers like the challenge

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — A new national survey of temporary personnel in office and light industrial positions indicates the challenge of new situations is more appealing to them than the income, with 57 percent finding "tempting" more challenging than permanent employment.

Half of those questioned in a survey conducted by Uniforce Temporary Services said they are seeking work with great interest, with 70 percent of those with children aged 1-5, up from 17 percent in 1985

Lawyer guilty of fraud in trading scheme

NEW YORK (AP) — A Wall Street lawyer says he's guilty of securities fraud, mail fraud and "gross stupidity" for participating in the largest insider trading scheme ever uncovered.

Ilan K. Reich, 31, pleaded guilty to one count each of mail and securities fraud in federal court Thursday for passing insider information on proposed corporate transactions to Dennis Levine, the central figure in the scandal.

In a statement issued by his lawyer outside the courtroom, Reich said, "I pleaded guilty because I am guilty — guilty of criminal conduct, guilty of gross stupidity and guilty of betraying my family and my (legal) partners."

U.S. District Judge Robert Sweet released Reich without bail and set sentencing for Jan. 23.

In a related development, the Securities and Exchange Commission announced it has filed a civil action against Reich and David Brown, 31, a former investment banker who also pleaded guilty to securities fraud in federal court Thursday for passing insider information on proposed corporate transactions to Dennis Levine, the central figure in the scandal.

Levine, 34, a former managing director at Dresel Burnham Lambert Inc., pleaded guilty to four felony counts earlier this year after federal officials charged him with making more than $12 million in illegal profits over five years.

Prosecutors have described Levine as the ringleader of a group of Wall Street professionals who swapped confidential information and used it to their own advantage.

Federal law forbids corporate executives, investment bankers and others with access to non-public information from using it to trade in securities.

Reich once considered a top corporate takeover lawyer, was indicted last week on one count of securities fraud for passing non-public information to Levine in August, 1984 concerning G.D. Scarle & Co. Levine traded on the information, making $615,000 in profits, prosecutors said.

The indictment also charged Reich with mail fraud for passing insider information to Levine in July 1984 concerning SFN Companies, a textbook publisher, allowing Levine to make $125,316 in profit.

Captured American claims plane was on CIA mission

By Andrew Sarsky
The Associated Press

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — An American plane captured after the Sandinistas captured the plane and CIA officials have insisted the U.S. government has no connection with the supply flight.

Assistant Secretary of State Elliot Abrams said Thursday that the plane was not being used to transport supplies to the Contras. He said the plane was captured by the Sandinistas and CIA officials have insisted the U.S. government has no connection with the supply flight.

Speaking on ABC's "Good Morning America," Singlaub today reiterated that Nicaragua "is not working for me. I've never heard of him until this incident. And actually I'm not involved in flying arms and ammunition into the Contras." Singlaub said his group sends its non-lethal supplies to New Orleans, where the Contras or other Nicaraguan opposition groups pick them up.

Nicaragua authorities on Thursday handed over to the U.S. Embassy the bodies of the plane's pilot, William J. Cooper, and co-pilot Wallace Blaine Sawyer Jr. A third victim has not been identified but is believed to be American.

Policy protest

Washington Thursday. The medals were renounced by veterans protesting the U.S. government's involvement in aiding Nicaraguan rebels.

Rural residents learn how to keep neighbors healthy

Unidentified Vietnam veterans and members of their families stand together while looking at medals placed at the foot of the Vietnam Memorial in Washington Thursday.

Good neighbors are crucial in Hertford County. Many of its 23,368 residents live in isolated pockets among fields of peanuts, corn and tobacco.

Shepherd stressed that the advocates were not intended to replace or compete with doctors but to increase their effectiveness. In fact, he said, the program could not operate without the support of the local medical community.

CHAP uses no federal or state funds and has a modest operating budget because it relies so heavily on volunteers. Said project coordinator Lisa Tucker.

"I've said ALL along, get the bill to conference and we will be able to cabage something to better and send it to the president," said Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., the chief Senate sponsor.

Other volunteers have held yard sales and collected donations to buy medicine for people who can't afford it. One is running a food bank. Another is running a "voter's advocate" program.

All are trained in first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation. All are prepared to provide referrals on safety, mental health, alcoholism, nutrition, aging, birth control and other health issues.

House Immigration bill has temporary amnesty provision

WASHINGTON — Immigration legislation is entering a House-Senate conference, with sponsors hoping to pass the bill before the end of the session.

The bill has new wrinkles — a temporary amnesty for refugees from El Salvador and Nicaragua and provisions for foreign farm workers — but its foundation has not changed from past legislation.

The House bill would allow immigrants to stay in the country until nine months after the bill's passage. It also would allow them to remain in the country until nine months after the bill's passage.

At the same time, it would allow immigrants to remain in the country until nine months after the bill's passage. It also would allow them to remain in the country until nine months after the bill's passage.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev arrives in Iceland Friday for his summit meeting with President Reagan. The U.S. House of Representatives voted to give Reagan his way on arms negotiations, but a government shutdown remained possible.

Quake in Salvador destroys and kills

By Byron Brennan
The Associated Press

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador - A strong earthquake and aftershocks wrecked buildings in downtown San Salvador on Friday, and uncounted reports said scores of people had been killed. Dazed residents wandered the littered streets.

Radio station YSU said more than 150 people had been killed in the collapse of the 16-story Ruben Darío building. Another report, by Radio Cuscatlan, said 30 people, mostly children, died in the Santa Catalina building. Neither report could be confirmed immediately.

A young girl cried as she wandered under the hot sun, and a young woman clutched a bleeding child to her chest as she searched for medical help.

Some downtown buildings were reduced to bent and twisted steel, and officials warned that other buildings in this city of 500,000 people might collapse.

Volunteers were working in the downtown section to dig out victims trapped in a store when a five-story building collapsed.

Officials worked to pull buried victims out of other buildings, and helicopters ferried injured victims to hospitals. Army and national police security forces were in the streets for several hours.

Some downtown high-rise buildings had sunk into the ground, and shards of glass were hanging from the collapse of the Santa Catalina building. It said most of the victims were children.

Military sources said the bodies of 15 children were pulled from a school in the southeastern part of the capital. It was not clear if it was the same building mentioned in the radio report.

Radio station YSU said in a report heard in Bogota, Colombia, that at least 150 people died in the collapse of the Ruben Darío office building, but the report could not be immediately confirmed.

Maria Jimenez, who identified herself as a resident of the Satele neighborhood of southeastern San Salvador, told a radio station in Honduras she saw at least nine bodies and that other people were injured.

Earlier, the Spanish news agency EFE reported that Salvadoran Red Cross was taking bodies out of the Ruben Darío, which also houses a cinema.

Cuscatlan reported some looting.

The U.S. Geological Survey said an earthquake measuring 5.4 on the Richter scale, centered about 10 miles northwest of San Salvador, struck at 1:40 p.m. EDT, 11:40 a.m. Salvadoran time. At least seven or eight aftershocks were felt in San Salvador over the next three hours.

According to the Guatemalan Seismological Station in Guatemala City, a second tremor registered 4.5 and struck at 2:04 p.m.

An official from the Salvadoran Health Ministry told the radio that the earthquake caused the collapse of a building in the Satele neighborhood of southeastern San Salvador, which also houses a cinema.

The physician said he panicked after striking her and dropped his wife out of their bedroom window. He said he placed her body in the car to drive her to the hospital where he ran the car into the utility pole accidentally.

Police said Manfred told them his wife left their home by herself and attempted to drive to the hospital after she woke up vomiting blood.

House vote gives Reagan free hand in arms talks

By Steven Komarow
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - House Democratic leaders on Friday agreed to back away from arms control provisions that were the key roadblock to passage by Congress of its largest-ever spending bill.

Ed Dale, spokesman for the Office of Management and Budget, said government agencies were still being told to prepare for a shutdown, as their authority to spend money was expiring at midnight Friday.

However, the effect of the shutdown would be limited because of the three-day Columbus Day holiday weekend.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes, in Iceland with Reagan, said the president wanted domestic issues in the spending bill resolved before he agrees to a short-term measure extending government operations.

"The president wants the domestic issues resolved before he agrees to sign any agreement that might be needed to carry us over technically until the middle of next week," he said.

Dale said government employees deemed essential, such as the military and air traffic controllers, would continue to work through the weekend. The full impact of any shutdown would occur Tuesday, when "non-essential" workers would be sent home if spending legislation remained stalled.

President Reagan had threatened to veto any new spending measure unless the House dropped its insistence on arms control provisions, including a requirement that the president abide by the SALT II arms treaty.

A House-Senate agreement announced Friday dropped all the major arms control requirements in the House bill, except a continuation of a ban on final tests of anti-satellite weapons.

"This will break the logjam I think the question is resolved," said House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas. He and Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., telephoned the president in Iceland, where Reagan was preparing for this weekend's summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

However, there were dozens of other disagreements between the House, Senate and White House in the huge fiscal 1989 spending bill, which totaled $58 billion in the House version and $58 billion in the Senate version.

Manfredi cites pressure

Wife was first to use bat, cardiologist says

HARTFORD - A West Hartford cardiologist accused of murdering his wife testified Friday that on the night of her death, she struck him first with a baseball bat while the two argued over her strict disciplining of one of their three children.

Dr. Russell Manfredi, 32, said he never intended to kill his wife, 35-year-old Catherine Billis Manfredi, by hitting her with the baseball bat on March 8, 1985 in their suburban home.

Defense attorneys are not contesting the prosecution's claim that Manfredi caused his wife's death, but they say he may have been legally insane or acting under extreme emotional disturbance.

Manfredi testified that there were many pressures on the couple's 10-year marriage, particularly the burden of raising three young sons, and his wife had become increasingly demanding of him.

The physician said he panicked after striking her and dropped his wife out of their bedroom window. He said he placed her body in the car to drive her to the hospital where he ran the car into the utility pole accidentally.

Police said Manfredi told them his wife left their home by herself and attempted to drive to the hospital after she woke up vomiting blood.
