MANFREDI WALKS FREE AS PRIEST POSTS BOND

Killer can't see his kids

HARTFORD (AP) — Dr. Russell F. Manfredi was released on $250,000 bond Friday to await sentencing on his conviction in the bludgeoning death of his wife.

Manfredi was released at 11:20 a.m. from the Hartford Correctional Center and drove off with Caesar Noble, one of his defense attorneys. Manfredi declined to comment.

Another defense attorney, William Gallotti, said restrictions imposed under terms of Manfredi's pre-trial bond, including a ban on his visiting his children, will remain in effect. He said he expected Manfredi to return to Pennsylvania to be with his family.

Manfredi's three sons have been staying with a maternal aunt in Dunmore, Pa.

His release was made possible by Superior Court Judge Thomas Corrigan's ruling Wednesday that Manfredi's priest's cottage could be used to secure $125,000 of Manfredi's $250,000 bond, Gallotti said.

The Rev. James F. Leary, now at St. Joseph's Church in Bristol, was assistant pastor at the West Hartford church where the Manfredis were members and testified on Manfredi's behalf during the trial.

Manfredi, 33, was convicted Nov. 3 of first-degree manslaughter in the March 8, 1985, death of Catherine Billings Manfredi.

He was originally charged with murder, but the jury of eight women and four men convicted him on the lesser charge, finding that he had acted under extreme emotional distress.

Manfredi had been free on $150,000 bond during the trial.

He faces up to 20 years in prison when he is sentenced Dec. 15.

Fender-benders turn deadly as tempers in traffic flare

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It looked like a movie: the driver leaning out his car window, firing a gun at five youths during an argument over right-of-way in the heavy Saturday night traffic that clogs Hollywood Boulevard.

But the 9mm semiautomatic was real, and when the shooting stopped Nov. 15, 17-year-old Andrew Martinez was dying and 19-year-old Samuel Solis was wounded in the leg.

"One witness said they all thought it was a joke. It just didn't seem legitimate that someone would open fire in the middle of the street," said police Lt. Ed Hocking. The motive, he concluded this week as the gunman remained at large, was "strictly ... traffic tempers."

Authorities in Southern California have become aware of many incidents in which driver behavior has broken down, ranging from discourtesy to murder. Although extraordinary violence is still rare, officials are warning motorists to avoid confrontations, particularly on clogged streets where tempers flare hottest.

Police Chief Daryl F. Gates recently unleashed a blast at traffic managers, comparing congestion to a "catastrophic flood" and saying the situation was creating "an undisciplined group of drivers and pedestrians."

In February, two bullets hit a city bus 10 blocks past an intersection where it had swerved to avoid a car. The case was never solved, but police said the near-collision seemed the motive.

Detective Rick Jackson is still looking for a man who argued with two men after a June 26 fender-bender on a Hollywood street and then pulled a gun from his trunk, shot one man dead and wounded the other.

On Aug. 22, Patricia Dwyer was killed by a shotgun blast fired at the van in which she and her husband were rushing their son to a hospital. Michael Dwyer said he flashed the van's headlights at a car that pulled in front of him on the Riverside Freeway east of Los Angeles and slowed down. A 26-year-old air-conditioning installer has pleaded innocent to a murder charge.

Police don't keep statistics on traffic violence, but have seen some patterns. "Most of our accidents involving

Police in southern California say incidents of traffic-related violence like this are increasing. Los Angeles Police Chief Daryl Gates recently blamed the problem on congestion, saying it was "creating an undisciplined group of drivers and pedestrians."

fight are relatively minor in nature, and usually the fight is contained to a verbal argument or some pushing," said Sgt. Mark Lunn, spokesman for the Los Angeles headquarters of the state highway patrol.

Minor rather than major accidents are more likely to trigger fights, he said, and they are likelier during rush hour in a congested urban area than out on a highway. Temperature also changes temperment.

"We find an awful lot of argumentative confrontations that take place in heat," Lunn said. Robert Yates, who oversees city traffic control officers, said that "we're seeing a lot of gridlock, therefore you see a lot of frustrated drivers, a tremendous change in courtesy."

Jackson suggested there is enough risk to make a point of avoiding confrontations. "It's just not worth it," he said. "First of all, their car's dangerous enough, let alone (their) having a gun."

Scott Fraser, a professor of psychology at the University of Southern California who studies aggression, says the behavior of most people changes when they drive. "We're not suggesting that everybody who gets behind the wheel goes crazy," he said. "But you sure have a major alteration in a lot of individuals in terms of their sense of control, power, and the way in which they interact with others."

For example, he said, when drivers speed up and prevent another car from merging, "they are engaged in displays of power and control."

"But the person who never picks out guns and shoots them is not going to go and find a gun and blow people away when they get in a car altercation. And a person who slugs people but doesn't go around shooting also isn't going to do that," he said.

Fraser doesn't predict the unraveling of society because of uncivil drivers, but he is concerned about the level of tolerance of such behavior. "I would say this kind of behavior in the 20th century is just a precursor for more trouble down the road," he said.

Torso was Calif. man, FBI says

LITCHFIELD (AP) — A mutilated torso found wrapped in a quilt and a plastic garbage bag was identified Friday by the FBI, state police said.

Police said the FBI identified the remains as belonging to Jack Franklin Andrews, who had allegedly used the four aliases of Jack F. Walsh, Jack F. Welsh, Charles E. West and John E. Davison. The FBI was able to determine the identity of the remains by its fingerprints, police said. The body's head and legs had been cleanly severed, they said. Police said Andrews had a lengthy arrest record across the United States, but no record of arrests in Connecticut. They said Andrews had faced charges of burglary, possession of stolen property, providing false information and assault with a weapon.

The sexually mutilated remains of Andrews were found Monday morning by a truck driver who had stopped at a rest area near exit 40 northbound on Route 8, police said. The torso was found on the edge of woods that border the rest area.

Police described the rest area as a meeting place for male homosexuals, and said the killing may have been related to homosexual activity.

Police said Andrews was born in Garden Grove, Calif., and was between 25 and 27 years old, white, 5 feet 9 inches tall, 135 pounds, with red hair and blue eyes. Police said they had been unable to determine the exact date of birth because Andrews had used three different birth dates.

Police said they have no further information about Andrews' death, but urged anyone with information to contact them.

... Iran deal a big mistake

Lawmakers see Watergate in Iran deal

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter

As more information trickles out about the Reagan administration's arms deals with Iran and its links with the rebels in Nicaragua, local legislators have come to fear the impact on U.S. foreign policy.

But to some extent, views about the crisis are split along party lines.

In an informal survey Friday, members of Manchester's Democratic contingent at the Capitol said that in particular, the policy toward terrorism appears to be in confusion. But the Republican who has represented the 4th Senatorial District for the past six years called for caution and said Democrats and elements of the media are out to get the president.

Either Reagan withheld critical information from the American public or he was not in the driver's seat as White House officials pursued a major foreign policy initiative, the Democrats charged.

"My general reaction is it's hard for me to believe the president didn't know about it," said state Rep. James R. McCavanagh, D-Manchester. "If he didn't know, then he should have known. He's the president — that's where the buck stops."

White House aides face grilling under oath

"If it isn't illegal, I think it's a pretty serious breach of responsibility," said Democratic Sen.-elect Michael P. Meotti of Glastonbury.

Last week it was revealed that the United States had sold millions of dollars worth of military equipment to Iran. It was later learned that some of the profits from the sale were diverted to the contra rebels seeking to overthrow the leftist Sandinista government in Nicaragua, despite a Congressional ban on such aid.

Reagan has denied that he knew about the diversion.

"DEALING WITH IRAN was a mistake," said state Rep.-elect John W. Thompson of Manchester, another Democrat.

Thompson said he is not sure whether the transaction broke any laws. However, he and others said a review by Attorney General Edwin Meese III would not be enough to clear the air. Instead, a special independent counsel should be appointed to investigate the matter, they said.

"He's (Meese) appointed by the president," Thompson said. "There's a built-in conflict. There would always be a question about his objectivity."

Meotti called the money shipments to contra Swiss bank accounts "cowboy foreign policy" and agreed with Thompson that an outside attorney should be called in.

At least one Republican legislator offered a more cautious assessment of the arms deal: Republican state Sen. Carl A. Zinsser, who was defeated by Meotti in this fall's election and will step down in January, warned that the facts were not all out and accused the press and Democrats of blowing the situation out of proportion.

"CBS News has the gallows out," Zinsser said. "Some people in the media and the Democratic Party feel they can finally get to President Reagan. It's unfortunate that this happened."

ZINSSE SAID a special attorney is not needed, pointing out that Reagan has appointed a special bipartisan commission to investigate the National Security Council's role in the affair and that Congress will hold its own hearings. The Federal Bureau of Investigation is also involved, he said.

"How many people do you want looking into this thing?" Zinsser asked. "I should point out that the media found out about this, not because of some super reporting, but because the president told them about it."

All of those contacted agreed that selling arms to Iran was a terrible mistake that will hurt the Reagan administration for months or even his remaining two years in office. "There's no way this will go away," Zinsser said.

Ever since Nov. 13, when Reagan went on national television to explain why weapons were secretly sold to Iran, some people have to be compared the scandal to Watergate.

"It's not far from it," McCavanagh said.

Zinsser called comparisons to Watergate ridiculous.

"It's diverting our attention away from other issues — like arms control — that we should be focusing on now," Zinsser said.

Meotti and Thompson agreed, at least with that. "Now you're going to expend a lot of energy explaining what you did instead of what you'd like to do," said Thompson.

Butts keep women prisoners

ATLANTA (AP) — A federal study of smoking habits in 21 states and the District of Columbia indicates that more people than ever are trying to quit smoking, but women are doing it at a slower rate than men.

"More men appear to be stopping smoking than women, even though the smoking hazards for both men and women have been widely publicized," the Centers for Disease Control said in releasing the report Friday. "The 1980 Surgeon General's report indicated that smoking cessation is more difficult for women than men."

The study, conducted by the CDC's Center for Health Promotion and Education, surveyed 25,000 current and former cigarette smokers in 1985. A smoker who had gone at least one week during the year without a cigarette was defined in the study as an "attempter."

Among men, the median percentage of smokers who attempted to quit was 42.3, according to the report, summarized in the CDC's Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report. Among women, the median was 39.8 percent.

In 16 of the 22 jurisdictions, the percentage of male attempters was greater than the number of female attempters, the CDC said.

Tom Novotny, a CDC epidemiologist, said that past health warnings and anti-smoking campaigns have focused on men, and left many with a perception that the health risks of smoking are greater for men than for women. Also, cigarette marketing has been more effective with women in creating a glamorous image of smokers, he said.

"That (health) message has gotten through to the men," Novotny said. "The men have heard the message better than women."

But he said health officials are beginning to produce more anti-smoking literature aimed at women. Recent statistics showing that lung cancer has surpassed breast cancer as a threat to women are a part of the new message.

"The health risks for women are catching up," Novotny said.

Of 13 states that also were part of a similar study in 1981-83, the CDC found a median 5.6 percent decrease in male smokers and a 3.2 percent decrease in female smokers.

Wet times on the way

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coastal areas from Maine to Texas can expect stormy, wet weather this winter while the south central regions of the country are likely to have colder-than-normal temperatures, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration predicted Friday.

In a long-range forecast, NOAA said that warm Pacific Ocean waters, which could be the harbinger of another El Nino weather phenomenon, would likely make this winter a wet one with increased amounts of either snow or rain in much of the country.

The forecast for stormy weather over the next 90 days covered states along the Great Lakes and the coastal states from Maine down to Florida and across the southern part of Texas and into Arizona.

NOAA's 90-day forecast said that the chances for below-normal temperatures were centered in Arkansas and portions of the surrounding states of Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma.

NOAA said there was a 60 percent chance that the weather in this area would be colder-than-normal this winter.

Four lucky kids push the button on their town

A holiday tradition was born Friday night when almost 400 people gathered in front of St. James Church on Main Street to see four lucky youngsters turn on Manchester's Christmas tree lights and kick off of the holiday season.

One of the organizers of the affair, Alan Cashman of the Downtown Manchester Association, which sponsored the ceremony along with the Manchester Herald, said the large turnout has convinced the association to make the tree-lighting an annual affair. "It was a pretty hefty crowd," Cashman said. "It was much more than we anticipated. In fact, we had to go back three times for candy canes."

In all, about 180 candy canes were given away to children.

The four chosen children come roaring down Main Street on a firetruck with its siren blaring before pushing the button that lit holiday lights on Main Street and the town tree in front of the church.

The four youngsters, selected in a contest run by the Manchester Herald, were Angela Rizza, 5, of Elizabeth Drive; William Gary, 5, of Oak Street; Joshua Bechard, 7, of School Street; and Kristin DeBonne of Kent Drive.

Accompanying the children was Santa Claus, who along with Mayor Barbara Weinberg helped the children push the button.

Cashman said that although lighting the town's Christmas tree has been an annual affair, selecting children to ride with Santa Claus in a fire engine was something new this year.

"It made a pretty impressive sight," he said.

Unusual service has racy spirit

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Herald Reporter

The idea of a race can be a powerful religious symbol.

That, at least, is what the Rev. Andrew D. Smith told a gathering at St. Mary's Episcopal Church Thursday night at a service commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Manchester Road Race.

"Runners have much to teach believers," Smith said. "The special different life offered the world in Christ is not a spectator's enterprise. The believer must get out from behind the fence and into the course. It is a life which is lived, like a race, on the run."

The Rev. Joseph Kelly of St. James Church also spoke during the service. In addition, a choral group of five local churches, as well as the Nutmeg Brass Quintet of the Hartford area, performed. About 35 people attended the ceremony.

While highlighting the similarities between the race and the spiritual life, Smith pointed out that there are important differences as well.

"First of all, he said, the spiritual race is not competitive. 'Here, speed and time are not the issues. Getting each other across the finish line is the goal,' he said.

Another difference is between spiritual and physical grace, he said.

"Anyone who watches a foot race can see the natural, trained athletic grace of the strong, good runners," he told the crowd. "In the spiritual race, natural grace does not count for much. Supernatural grace does. Rather than something from within, supernatural grace is something from outside."

Asked afterward whether such a religious service was out of the ordinary, Smith said, "Very definitely." He said he was approached by race organizers to hold the service.

"Ecumenical services are common on national holidays, but it is unusual to have services that celebrate a particular event," he said.

Concluding his sermon, Smith said, "Race runners have much to teach believers. And believers have much to teach runners."

Kelly, who has participated in the last three road races, joked about his inability to finish at the head of the pack. But, he told the gathering, "It's an awful lot of fun to be a part of." He offered a prayer for all the competitors and volunteers in the race.

Smith said he had hoped members of the Temple Beth Shalom could have joined in the ceremony, but the fact that the service was scheduled for Friday made that impossible. In addition to St. Mary's, churches whose members joined in the ceremony included South United Methodist Church, Center Congregational Church, Assumption Roman Catholic Church and St. Bridget Church.

MCC prof talks Cheney In Road Race event

JOHN SUTHERLAND
... sometimes the bosses lost

By Alex Girelli
Associate Editor

Although members of the Cheney textile family were well represented on town policy-making bodies, they did not always get their way, according to the director of the Institute of Local History.

John Sutherland, director of the Institute at Manchester Community College, told an audience of about 150 at Manchester Memorial Hospital Friday that members of the Cheney family once argued at a town meeting in the 1890s in favor of building a high school. But townspeople were convinced that Hartford High School was good enough for Manchester's needs.

As a result, the Cheneys built the high school themselves, Sutherland said.

During his talk about southern Manchester, which was one of many events in the week-long celebration of the 50th anniversary of Manchester's five-mile road race, Sutherland cited the school incident as evidence that, contrary to popular opinion, the Cheneys were not always able to influence town decisions. Nor did they always have as sober a Manchester as they would have liked.

Sutherland said that while the Cheneys were not teetotalers — "I've talked to the maids" — they objected to having their employees drink because they were afraid of "St. Monday" holiday, the one that comes after a wet weekend.

Towns in Connecticut had the option of voting themselves wet or dry from time to time in the old days. Sometimes the Cheneys won. When they lost, the saloon on Main Street would open and the workers would hoist a few.

Sutherland, a history professor at MCC, frequently gives lectures on the history of workers in the Cheney Mills, and he seeks to dispel some myths about the Cheney dynasty, which lasted until the mill operation was sold in 1954.

Sutherland said one motive for the benevolence of the Cheney family was enlightened self interest.

"Why would anyone want to come to Manchester?" he asked, reminding his audience that the town was isolated and there were plenty of textile mills near New York City to which immigrants could flock.

Some of the amenities provided by Cheney Bros., like schools and housing, were the answer, he said.

But Sutherland said South Manchester under the Cheney influence was not utopia. Management and labor had conflicting goals and there was a strike in just about every decade.

It was at about that time that synthetic fabrics came into being, hurting the silk industry. Then came the Great Depression.

There was a brief recovery during World War II and immediately afterwards, Sutherland said, but by the time of the business was sold in 1954 to the J.P. Stevens Co., the mill was a losing enterprise.

Health team investigates death home

HARTFORD (AP) — Health Commissioner S. Douglas Lloyd led a team of state investigators Friday into the Windsor nursing home where an outbreak of salmonella bacteria poisoning has been linked to the deaths of five elderly patients and the illnesses of 20 others.

An official of the Mountain View Healthcare center said the five-member team spent the day reviewing medical charts and interviewing kitchen employees in attempts to trace the source of the bacteria, which is spread through infected food and feces.

Elinor Jacobson, the deputy health commissioner, said five people remain ill as a result of the outbreak. Two have been admitted to hospitals, she said.

"We believe that the outbreak is under control and that no one is any longer in danger," she said.

She added that a team from the department's licensing division also went to Mountain View Friday to check on the facility's compliance with the public health code. Results of the inspection were not immediately available, Jacobson said.

STATE OFFICIALS said earlier in the week that they suspected the source of the salmonella was pureed food served at the home a day or two before patients began exhibiting symptoms, which include diarrhea, fever and vomiting, on Nov. 14.

But Terrance Kuzman, regional vice president of Hillhaven Corp., which owns Mountain View, said state officials were also looking into the possibility that the bacteria was spread through a meatloaf, eggs, a dessert, employee contamination, or other means.

"More than likely there will not be a specific cause (identified)," Kuzman said. "There was no food remaining that they could culture."

Meanwhile, the brother of the most recent victim said he thought the nursing home should have acted more quickly in notifying the state of the outbreak and a state legislator said he was disturbed by the "cavalier" attitude exhibited by state health officials over the case.

Joseph Caesar of Windsor, whose 77-year-old sister, Anita Melesky, died Thursday at the nursing home, said another sister who visited the facility daily suspected their sister was ill two or three weeks ago.

He said he thought the nursing home, which notified the state several days after the outbreak began, waited too long to contact health officials.

"IT'S HARD TO condemn someone, but I only wish they had called someone in sooner," Caesar said.

He described the salmonella-caused death of his sister, who had Alzheimer's disease, as a "devastating way to see someone go." He said it was a "slow process, very painful."

"It's a shock to the community," Caesar said of the deaths.

Kuzman said the home did act promptly, instituting infection control procedures the day after patients began falling ill. Those procedures include careful handling of soiled linen to prevent transferring of any infection and limiting visitors, he said.

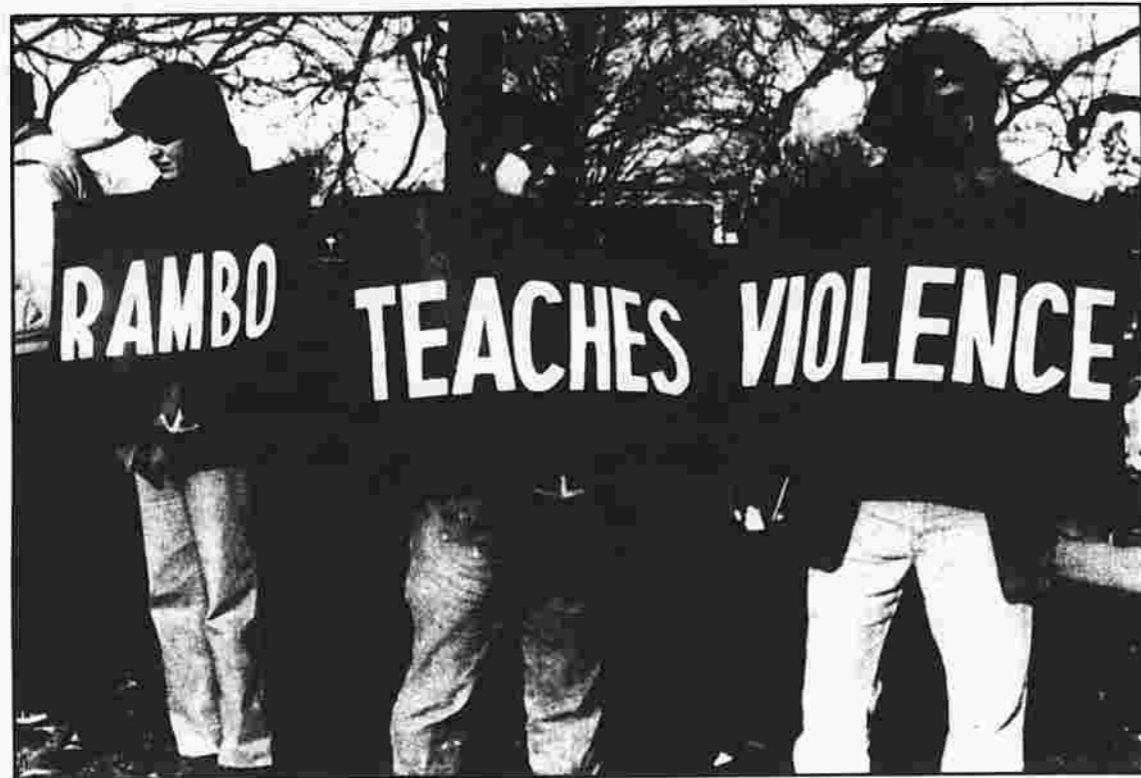

At first, home officials suspected a virus was the culprit, he said.

"The outcome would not have been altered one bit," if the state had been notified earlier," Kuzman said, noting that there is no cure or treatment for salmonella poisoning.

State Rep. Paul Gionfriddo, D-Middletown, said he has asked the legislative research office to investigate the case. Gionfriddo, scheduled to become the House chairman of the General Assembly's Public Health Committee in January, said he may hold hearings on the outbreak.

"INITIALLY THERE was almost a cavalier attitude among some of the health department officials," Gionfriddo said. He said their reasoning seemed to be, "It's unfortunate, but you have to understand that these people are sick anyway and wouldn't have died (of salmonella) if they weren't so sick."

Jacobson said state officials planned to remain at Mountain View throughout the weekend. The situation will be re-evaluated next week, she said.

Priest declares war on famine

HARTFORD (AP) — The Rev. Edmund Nadolny returned this week from a tour of famine-racked Ethiopia where $600,000 he helped raise since 1984 is being used to build 102 wells in as many villages.

Now, the Roman Catholic priest from Naugatuck wants to raise at least $100,000 more for clothing, education, water and other projects in several African nations.

"In 10 years there will be another famine," Nadolny predicted. "Unless we continue to help them with water, agriculture, medical, nutritional, educational programs, they're going to be right back where they started from."

"So the thing is not to stop with the help now but to continue it."

Nadolny, pastor of St. Vincent Ferrer Church in Naugatuck, and others from the Connecticut Ethiopian Fund just returned from a two-week trip to Senegal and Mauritania in west Africa and Ethiopia in the east.

"My purpose was to see how the money from the Connecticut Ethiopian Fund was being spent and see firsthand what Catholic Relief Services is actually doing with their donated money," he said.

Among his observations:

- The wells in Ethiopia are flourishing. Thousands of people have been benefiting from the water.

- Catholic Relief Services has remained in areas recovering from starvation while many other agencies have departed.

- Over 99 percent of the $734 million worth of U.S. food earmarked for famine relief and nutrition programs has been delivered.

"We're building 102 wells to keep women from walking five miles for a bucket of water. Now they only have to walk 15 feet," Nadolny said. "We're building 102 wells in 102 villages, which is going to transform their whole life."

"But there are 13,000 villages in Ethiopia."

Nadolny, whose group raised money as well as 100,000 T-shirts donated to clothe children, says now it wants to raise $25,000 to clothe 2,000 orphans in Eritrea; $34,000 to build sleeping quarters for children in Nazareth; and the remainder to build grain silos in Senegal and wells in Mauritania.

He said the new donations would be distributed through Catholic Relief Services offices in the affected areas.

Governor may spend time on trial

MIDDLETOWN (AP) — A Superior Court judge says he anticipates Gov. William O'Neill will be notified soon that he has been picked for at least one day of jury duty sometime in December of January.

Judge Walter R. Budney mentioned the governor's pending selection to a group of prospective jurors during an orientation briefing on the new "one-day, one-trial" jury system.

Because O'Neill is officially a resident of East Hampton, he appears on the Middletown court's jury roll.

The one-day, one-trial system is a pilot program that allows fewer exemptions from jury duty than the current system.

Under the old system, nine groups — including physicians, lawyers, police and fire officials, ambulance personnel, people 65 or older and members of the General Assembly during regular and special sessions — could claim exemption from jury duty.

The new system eliminates all those exemptions except for legislators.

Also disqualified from service, however, are those convicted of a felony in the past seven years, defendants in pending felony cases, incarcerated people, anyone unable to understand or speak English, and those who can show good cause to be exempted for some other reason.

Judges also may use the old exemption groups as guidelines in weighing cases of extreme hardship.

A clerk at the courthouse said she had "heard rumors about it" but added that she and most other court officials do not know if someone has been chosen for jury duty until the day they arrive in court.

Neither Jay Jackson, O'Neill's legal adviser, nor Budney could not be reached by telephone at their offices for comment late Friday afternoon.

Although the "one-day, one-trial" system allows fewer exemptions than the old jury system, its chief aim is to make jury duty less of a time-consuming burden for jurors.

Under the old system, jurors were on call for four weeks. The new system requires jurors to serve only one day unless they are selected for a trial.

After serving their single day, jurors cannot be summoned again for three years.

But if they are chosen for a trial on their day of service, jurors must serve for the duration of the trial.

Many boys getting raped, counselors in state finding

DANBURY (AP) — Robin Anthony's organization is experiencing an increased demand for its rape counseling services, with many of the new clients being boys and men.

"We're seeing a 93 percent increase in male clientele — children, adult males, and secondary victims, such as fathers. Their trauma is just as great," said Anthony, program director for rape crisis at the Women's Center of Greater Danbury.

A rapist will select a man or boy if that victim possesses two qualities all rapists look for — availability and vulnerability, Anthony said.

"Boys are victimized as much as little girls, it just doesn't fit into the male stereotype. People think they're not as vulnerable, but they are, just like women," Anthony said.

The Danbury rape crisis center, which serves 10 towns, is one of the few in the area to provide male counselors, Anthony said. She said the problem of male rape victims is not new — but that people are feeling more comfortable in reporting male rape.

The increased rate of reporting male rape is not limited to Connecticut, but has been recognized nationally, according to Fern Ferguson, president of the National Coalition Against Sexual Assault in East St. Louis, Ill.

"I would say we've seen a 30 percent increase in reporting male rapes in Illinois, and nationally, the percentage is larger," Ferguson said. "Forty percent of our clients are male — and all have been sexually assaulted."

Norwalk faces shooting lawsuit

NORWALK (AP) — The estate of a 27-year-old Norwalk man shot to death by police in July has filed a notice of intent to sue the city.

Ralph E. Fuller Jr. was shot by Officers Thomas Cummings and Michael King outside his home on July 9. Police said the officers were responding to a call when they encountered Fuller, who ignored their demands to drop his rifle.

Fuller, who fell to one knee after he was shot, continued pointing the rifle at the officers and was shot a second time, police said.

Family members said Fuller didn't drop the gun, but denied that he pointed it at either officer.

Raymond B. Rubens, the attorney handling Fuller's estate, charged in a letter notifying the city of his intent to sue that Norwalk is liable for the man's death as the officers' employer.

She said the statistics around the country vary depending on whether the centers have a clearly identified male program, and therefore, keep accurate numbers.

"My perception is that the reporting of sexual assault against male adults and children is up by a significant amount," Ferguson said. "The reporting of (raping) little boys is the largest jump and that's because of all of the community education and media coverage regarding the whole issue. It's no longer as mystical as it once was."

"By raising the awareness, it is no longer shameful to report it," she added.

The person who rapes a man or boy is someone who doesn't deal well with his peers and has great difficulty forming any meaningful relationships, said Pat Mazzacane, a male volunteer counselor at the Danbury rape crisis center.

"There's a national awareness that it's OK for the male victim to talk about it," said Mazzacane, 29, who was raped 16 years ago by two men.

There are two groups — the regressed rapist who has had a disaster in his life and goes back to a simpler time by befriending a child. The man probably has a wife and children, but also has the emotions of a child. The fixated rapist focuses on children as objects.

Too often people think the male rapist commits rape because of homosexual tendencies, experts say. But rapes are acts of violence, not sexual acts, experts say.

Bomber blows SALT II limits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States violated ceilings in the unratified SALT II nuclear arms treaty Friday when another Air Force B-52 bomber capable of carrying atomic-tipped cruise missiles became operational.

The treaty's numerical limits were breached when the eight-engine B-52 arrived at Carswell Air Force Base in Texas after having been modified to carry up to a dozen of the low-flying cruise missiles.

It is the 131st B-52 which has been modified, putting the United States over the limit in the treaty which permits only 130 cruise-equipped bombers if no other atomic weapons are eliminated from the U.S. arsenal.

The Navy isn't retiring an aging Poseidon missile-firing submarine from the U.S. force to keep America under the total limits of various types of weapons permitted by the 1979 treaty, the Pentagon said earlier this week.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, concluding a visit to India, criticized the U.S. decision, saying, "I regard this as a major mistake, which will make it more difficult to search for the approaches for disarmament."

Several Democrats in Congress also criticized the U.S. action.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who will become chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee in January, said in a statement, "I believe the president's decision gives the Soviet Union a military advantage, with its near-term missile production capabilities, as well as a substantial world propaganda advantage."

"It will cause our allies abroad considerable political discomfort and it will now be much harder to reach a bipartisan consensus on strategic weapons and arms control here at home," said Nunn.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., incoming chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, termed the U.S. action "a very bad decision" that was being taken now because it "shores up Ronald Reagan with the right wing."

Aspin, interviewed on the "CBS Morning News," said conservatives are unhappy with the SALT II pact and are feeling "such unhappiness with Ronald Reagan over the hostages-for-equipment swap and the way that that was done."

Shell fire marks cease-fire's start

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinians and Shiite Moslems ignored a cease-fire Friday and blasted each other with artillery, tank cannon and rocket fire.

Sources in Damascus, the Syrian capital, said a truce agreement was reached with the help of Syrian, Libyan and Iranian officials. The boom of shell fire reverberated through Beirut at 3 p.m., when it was scheduled to take effect.

Fighting that began Monday in the hills above the ancient southern port of Sidon spread to the Palestinian camps on Beirut's south fringe where a sporadic war has been fought for 18 months.

Thick columns of black smoke rose over Beirut as gunners of the Shiite militia Amal gunners poured artillery, tank cannon and mortar fire into the camps. Guerrillas of the Palestine Liberation Organization responded with rockets fired from multi-barreled launchers mounted on trucks.

Hospital sources said at least 10 people were killed and 97 wounded in battles between the PLO and Amal at the refugee shantytowns which are surrounded by Shiite slums.

PLO chairman Yasser Arafat's Fatah guerrilla faction said its fighters drove off Amal assaults on the Chatilla camp launched behind sustained barrages of 100mm cannon fire from Soviet-built T-55 tanks supplied to Amal by its Syrian sponsors.

Amal is trying to keep Arafat from regaining the Lebanese base he lost in the Israeli invasion of 1982. More than 1,200 people have been killed and 3,500 wounded since the Shiite-Palestinian war began in May 1985.

Police said casualties in the south Lebanon fighting since it began Monday were 216 killed and 441 wounded.

As demonstrations continue elsewhere in South Africa, moderate black and white leaders in Natal Province approved a plan to hold South Africa's first multiracial election. Above, black children run through the debris of the demolished Mofolo squatters camp in Johannesburg's black Soweto township.

'History in the making' in Natal

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Moderate black and white leaders Friday approved a proposal to hold South Africa's first multiracial elections and form an integrated government in Natal Province.

The unprecedented plan can be implemented only with permission from the white-controlled national government. National leaders have given no indication how they will respond.

The eight-month talks in the Natal port of Durban were shunned by militant anti-apartheid groups, which want black voting rights nationwide, and were denounced by far-right whites. The national government did not participate but sent observers to the talks.

The key participants included officials of the current all-white government of Natal, one of the country's four provinces, and leaders of the self-governing KwaZulu black homeland, which lies within Natal's borders.

Thirty-three other organizations were represented in the negotiations, known as the Indaba, a Zulu word for peace talks.

"People are very excited that they have managed to reach an agreement," said Peter Mansfield, a white who served on the constitutional committee formed during the talks.

"They don't know what the government's reaction will be, but there is a sense of history in the making in that this could be the start of major constitutional changes in South Africa," he said.

The Indaba proposal calls for Natal and KwaZulu to be combined and governed by a two-chamber legislature elected by voters of all races.

Under apartheid, South Africa's 24 million blacks can vote in segregated elections in black homelands or townships but cannot vote in provincial or national elections. The 5 million whites control the economy and maintain separate districts, schools and health services.

The proposed lower chamber in Natal would have 100 members elected through a proportional representation system. The 50-member upper chamber would consist of 10 representatives each from Natal's black, Asian, Afrikaners and English-speaking communities, plus 10 at-large members.

A prime minister would be elected by the lower chamber, making it likely he or she would be a black since blacks comprise almost 80 percent of Natal-KwaZulu's population.

U.S./World in Brief

Hawaii lava flow reaches sea

KALAPANA, Hawaii — A lava flow collided with the sea here Friday, sending clouds of smoke and steam billowing skyward as tourists watched from a nearby hiking trail on the Island of Hawaii, officials said.

The eruption from Kilauea Volcano already has destroyed nine homes and threatened six others Friday, said Hawaii County Civil Defense Administrator Harry Kim. The lava spread into three streams of molten rock over the sparsely settled hillsides of southern Hawaii Island, he said.

One stream coursed into a tidal pool within view of a short trail leading to the coast from Hawaii Volcanoes National Park's Waialeale Visitor Center.

Contras fear scandal could hurt aid

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — Nicaraguan rebel leaders, acknowledging they cannot defeat their country's Marxist government without more U.S. aid, fear that a deepening White House scandal could seriously damage or even destroy their cause.

"It could wind up having negative consequences, depending on the intensity of the scandal," said rebel spokesman Pedro Joaquin Chamorro. "It clearly is not going to help us."

Alfonso Robelo, a top leader of the rebels, called Contras, put it even more succinctly: "What a mess! It is a major setback."

Syria strikes back at Bonn

DAMASCUS, Syria — Syria on Friday ordered three West German diplomats and an unspecified number of West German military attaches to leave the country, one day after Bonn accused Syria of aiding a bomb attack and ordered the expulsion of five Syrian diplomats.

Syria also said it was withdrawing its ambassador from Bonn until further notice. President Hafes Assad's government has denied involvement in international terrorism.

The reciprocal moves came five weeks after Britain cut diplomatic ties with Damascus, also citing Syrian involvement in a terrorist attack.

Israeli nuke technician faces death

TEL AVIV, Israel — Mordechai Vanunu, who told a London newspaper that Israel has more than 100 nuclear weapons, was charged Friday with aiding an enemy and could face a death sentence, the Justice Ministry said.

The former nuclear technician is accused of giving The Sunday Times of London classified information he allegedly obtained at the Israeli nuclear facility where he worked.

Vanunu, whose case is considered one of the most severe security breaches in Israel's history, was charged with aiding an enemy in wartime and with two counts of aggravated espionage, the statement said.

Israel is technically at war with several Arab nations, but no specific enemy was named. Aggravated espionage, which means passing information with intent to harm, carries a maximum life sentence.

Airline fined after cocaine seized

MIAMI — The U.S. Customs Service fined Avianca, the Colombian national airline, $4.7 million Friday after 293 pounds of cocaine was discovered in a Thanksgiving shipment of flowers, a Drug Enforcement Administration agent said.

The drug was found in four of 2,500 cartons of roses and carnations, said special agent Jack Hook. He said smugglers routinely believe such highly perishable items have a good chance of being rushed unnoticed through customs.

Customs agents at Miami International Airport check flower shipments by pushing probing rods through the boxes.

U.S. bank offers cheap loans

WASHINGTON — A new program of the government's Export-Import Bank is offering up to $200 million in subsidized loans to Indonesia and Thailand in an attempt to wrest business away from Japan and other competitors, the bank says.

"We are tired of seeing highly qualified American suppliers lose orders because of unfairly subsidized financing from Japan and Europe," John A. Bohn Jr., president of the bank, said in a statement.

Reagan aides face grilling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two House committees Friday increased pressure on the White House for more information about the diversion of money from Iranian arms sales profits to Nicaraguan rebels.

At the same time, both congressional intelligence committees also plan to question key White House figures in the case, according to Capitol Hill sources who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., vice-chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said, "the committee will issue subpoenas" but declined to say who would get them.

The latest calls for further Reagan administration disclosures came as President Reagan continued a Thanksgiving vacation at his California ranch amid what has become the most serious foreign policy crisis of his six-year presidency.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee wrote Reagan to ask that the panel be provided with relevant papers and the House Judiciary criminal justice subcommittee released a report supporting the panel's call for appointment of an independent special prosecutor to investigate possible violations of U.S. laws.

In other developments: It was learned Friday that one path being pursued by the Justice Department is to account for all the money in the transactions. "We'll see what we can find out about the money," one Justice source said, adding that the inquiry would include the possibility of personal gain if any evidence of that emerged.

An Oregon businessman says government sources told him early this year that the Pentagon was planning to use profits from the sale of arms to Iran to buy arms for the Contras, The New York Times reported Friday. Richard J. Brenneke, said he informed a military assistant to Vice President George Bush and was told, "We will look into it."

In Nicosia, Cyprus, Iran's parliament speaker, Hashemi Rafsanjani, said Friday that Iran would still consider helping free American hostages in Lebanon if the United States delivers weapons bought by the late Shah.

U.S. officials reacted coolly to the offer. "We are standing by the president's remark of last week" that no more U.S. arms would be sold to Iran, said a State Department official who spoke on condition he not be further identified. Another department official said he did not expect any formal response to Rafsanjani's offer.

Several congressional committees are investigating the sale of U.S. weapons to Iran, the private U.S.-backed network that was set up to help the anti-Nicaraguan guerrillas, and the administration statement earlier this week that money from the arms sale went into a Swiss bank account controlled by Contra leaders.

In announcing the connection between the two controversial programs, Attorney General Edwin Meese said the Justice Department would conduct a full investigation of whether any U.S. laws were violated.

PRESIDENT REAGAN ... still on vacation

ment would conduct a full investigation of whether any U.S. laws were violated.

Reagan fired Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North, the National Security Council aide identified by Meese as overseeing both programs, and accepted the resignation of North's boss, national security adviser John Poindexter. Meese said only North knew the full scope of the Iran-contra link.

Entrepreneur Jeffrey Nightbyrd of Austin, Texas, looks over some of the urine samples he plans to sell for $49.95 a bag. Nightbyrd's Byrd Laboratories touts itself as "Your Urine Specialists," advertising "100 percent pure urine" that is "suitable for unanticipated urine demand." Nightbyrd has filled over 200 orders.

'Urine specialist' puts potential jobs in the bag

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An entrepreneur is selling drug-free urine for $49.95 a bag in a business that a civil libertarian says could boom as drug tests become more common.

Byrd Laboratories' advertisement in an entertainment-oriented Austin newspaper says the urine is "for experimental purposes only." It guarantees "100 percent pure urine ... suitable for unanticipated urine demand."

The business touts itself as "Your Urine Specialists."

Lab owner Jeffrey Nightbyrd, 32, said he was not interested in what customers did with the product. But he speculated that the most common use could be to beat on-the-job urine tests for drug use.

"The government says they have a right to take bodily fluids. I just decided I'd make some money off that because people are going to resist," he said in a recent interview.

Nightbyrd said he had shipped more than 200 orders from his Austin warehouse. The urine is tested, then packaged in plastic bags that include a tube through which it can be poured.

"I'm really startled that anybody would pay $49.95 for urine. I have a $5 pamphlet on how to beat the tests," he said.

The urine customers are "yuppies and students going out into the job market," according to Nightbyrd.

Gara LaMarche, director of the Texas Civil Liberties Union, praised the idea, predicting there will be "a flourishing black market in clean urine" as the drug tests become more widely used.

"Isn't that great?" asked LaMarche, whose group maintains that urine tests are an unconstitutional invasion of privacy.

LaMarche said the sale of clean urine could spark second thoughts about the whole testing process.

"You are either going to have a test which isn't monitored, in which case the results are useless once this kind of clean urine market gets off the ground. Or you will have tests so degrading and intrusive that most people are going to find it very distasteful."

Obituaries

Harry Squatrito dies; MHS hoop star of '30s

Harry Squatrito of Port Charlotte, Fla., the last of four brothers who made sports history in Manchester during the 1930s, died at his home on Nov. 19. He was the husband of Janet Squatrito.

Salvatore, the oldest brother, died in 1981. Dominic, a high school football All-American, died in a car accident in 1932. Ernest was killed in action in the South Pacific in 1943 during World War II.

Harry and Ernest were members of the Manchester High School basketball team that captured the state title and later the New England Championship in 1938. Harry played football and broke his brother Dominic's record in the shotput in his senior year. He was a member of Manchester High School's Class of 1939.

During World War II, Harry Squatrito served with the U.S. Marine Corps in the Pacific and later graduated from Fordham University, where he played football. After receiving advanced degrees from the University of Miami and Columbia University, he taught school in Newark, Del., for many years before retiring and moving to Florida.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two sons, Randy Squatrito and Gary Squatrito, both of Port Charlotte, Fla.; a daughter, Julie, in St. Petersburg, Fla.; four sisters, Rose Squatrito and Margaret (Queenie) Lloyd of Miami, Fla.; Dorothy Cassie of Prospect Heights, Ill.; and Jennie Vecchiolla of Windsor; and three nephews, Dr. Salvatore Squatrito of Glastonbury, and Dominic Squatrito and Marc Antonio Squatrito, both of Manchester.

Donna (Santos) Guy

Donna (Santos) Guy, 46, of Manchester, died Thursday at her home after a long illness.

She was born in New Bedford, Mass., and had lived in East Hartford most of her life, moving to the Manchester area about three years ago.

She worked at the United States Defense Contract Administration Services, (DCAS) of Hartford for the past 10 years, retiring in 1985. She was also active in the DCAS Federal Women's Program. She was past president and a longtime member of the DCAS Bowling League of East Hartford. She was president of the Constellation Bowling League of East Hartford.

She is survived by her stepmother, Yvonne Santos of New Bedford, Mass.; one sister, Robin Santos of New Bedford; a friend, Howard G. Huschka of Manchester; and many nieces and nephews.

The funeral will be Monday at 10:15 a.m. from the Callahan Funeral Home, 1602 Main St., East Hartford, followed by a mass of Christian burial at 11 a.m. in St. Mary's Church, East Hartford. Burial will be in Hillside Cemetery, East Hartford. Calling hours are Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

James F. Poirot

James F. Poirot, 65, of Vernon, husband of Dorothy (Staples) Poirot, died Friday at Hartford Hospital after a long illness. He was the father of James F. Poirot of Manchester.

He is also survived by four other sons, William K. Poirot of North Andover, Mass., Thomas E. Poirot of Vernon, Stephen R. Poirot of West Hartford, and Richard R. Poirot of Harbor Springs, Mich.; a sister, Marjorie (Poirot) McCusker of Rocky Hill; and 14 grandchildren.

The funeral will be Monday at 9:15 a.m. from the Rose Hill Funeral Home, 580 Elm St., Rocky Hill, with a mass of Christian burial at the Church of the Incarnation in Wethersfield at 10 a.m. Burial will be in Rose Hill Memorial Park, Rocky Hill. Calling hours are Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Memorial donations may be made to the Ed Poirot Kidney Fund, care of the Windsor Federal Savings, Windsor, Conn.

Marie W. Dziedzic

Marie Walters Dziedzic, 28, of 114 Linwood Drive, daughter of Gilbert C. and Marguerite (Ferguson) Walters, died Friday at the Baystate Medical Center in Springfield, Mass.

She was born in Hartford and lived most of her life in Manchester. Besides her parents, she is survived by her brother, Michael Walters of Manchester, and sister Linda Walters of East Hampton.

Services will be held Monday at 8:15 a.m. at the John F. Tierney Funeral Home, 219 W. Center St., with a mass of Christian burial at the Church of the Assumption in Manchester. Burial will be at St. Mary's Cemetery in New Britain.

Calling hours are Sunday from 6 to 8 p.m. Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

John C. Hughes Jr.

John C. Hughes, Jr., 58, of Stuart, Fla., formerly of Dudley Street in Manchester, died Thursday at the Miami Heart Institute in Miami, Fla.

He was the husband of Claire (MacDonald) Hughes. He was born in Gardner, Mass., on May 23, 1928, and had been a resident of Manchester for 28 years before moving to Florida 10 years ago. He was a graduate of Gardner schools and was a member of of the Manchester Police Department for 22 years before retiring in 1975.

He was a communicant of the Church of the Assumption in Manchester, a member of the Manchester Lodge of Elks and the Stuart-Jensen Lodge of Elks, the Manchester Veterans of Foreign Wars and the International Policemen's Association. He attended the Police Training Academy.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, John C. Hughes III of Manchester; two daughters, Kathryn A. Klein of Somers and Nancy L. Martell of Vernon; a brother, Neal Hughes of Glastonbury; a sister, Claire Hiron of Gardner and eight grandchildren.

Calling hours are Monday from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. Memorial contributions may be made to the charity of the donor's choice.

Blood clot forces comedian to cancel

Comedian Hal Roach canceled his show at Manchester High School Friday after suffering a blood clot in his lung, one of the organizers said Friday evening.

Roach was reported hospitalized and had to cancel other stops scheduled for his tour, said organizer P.J. Tierney of the Shamrock Athletic Club.

BUSINESS

Americans spent $12 billion on toys in 1985, up about $1 billion from 1984. Analysts predict a so-so buying season this year, but the shoppers flooding U.S. stores didn't seem to be listening.

Tax law spurs station sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sales of 166 radio and TV stations were approved Friday by the Federal Communications Commission, just in time for sellers to qualify for favorable year-end tax treatment of their profits.

It is the largest number of transfers approved on any one day, said FCC spokeswoman Maureen Peratino.

A sale completed after the first of the year will fall under the revised tax law, which taxes at a higher percentage any profits from the sale of an investment property.

The FCC was flooded with applications as the deadline neared and staff worked overtime to get the paperwork in order.

Normally, routine transfer applications are approved by staff after a 30-day comment period and do not go to the full five-member commission unless there is a serious question raised.

World glut drives java prices down

CHICAGO (AP) — Frigid weather may be on its way for most of the nation, but coffee drinkers have the warming news that world prices are settling in, too.

Shoppers are frequently paying under $3 a pound for coffee at some supermarkets and there are predictions that prices can come down 25 cents more by the end of the year.

As usual when coffee prices fluctuate widely, the size of the world's supply is the driving force, and now there is a glut.

Mobs flood stores to buy gifts

By The Associated Press

Spurred by special sales and short supplies of the most sought-after gifts, shoppers mobilized at the crack of dawn Friday to embark in earnest on the 1985 Christmas shopping season.

Americans packed malls, invaded ritzy and cut-price stores alike and strolled down famous shopping avenues to snatch up the items heavily advertised as the year's hottest gifts: infrared light-firing "laser" guns; stuffed animals both talking and mute; electronics; and clothing.

"We're mobbed," said Robert Dahms, manager of the Sears, Roebuck & Co. store in Holyoke, Mass. "Three hours into the day it's turning out to be spectacular."

Many retailers have been pushing Christmas merchandise for months, but shoppers stuck with tradition by coming out in force on the day after Thanksgiving, the biggest shopping day of the year.

And they came out early, with a number of national and local retailers opening early with special sales.

K mart Corp. stores nationwide opened at 7 a.m., backed by national television and newspaper advertising for its "eye-opener" sale. Some of the chain's 2,189 outlets would stay open until 10 p.m., said Teri Kula, a spokeswoman at K mart's national headquarters in Troy, Mich.

Helen Brigman said she traveled 100 miles from her home in Marshall, N.C., to the East Towne Mall in Knoxville, Tenn., the nearest major mall. "We left home at 5:30 and were here when the doors opened at 8," she said.

Besides special sales, there were other attractions. Dayton's stores in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area gave away boxes of Cracker Jack, with one box at each store containing a certificate for a $500 shopping spree.

And then there was Santa. "I might lift two tons of kids today," said a Santa Claus at the Green Hills Mall in Nashville, Tenn., before he faced a line of children and their parents already waiting for him.

OPINION

Slow down in Coventry

If the Coventry Board of Education expects to obtain support for a plan to reorganize the town's two elementary schools, it had better come up with a more convincing argument than the one it presented at a meeting of concerned parents last week.

Under the proposed plan, kindergartners through second-graders would attend classes at Coventry Grammar School, while third- and fourth-graders would attend George Hersey Robertson School. Both schools currently offer all five grades.

School board members who have studied the issue say the reorganization would allow for better coordination of staff and equipment, save money, offer more class-placement choices and eliminate the north-south competition that currently envelops the activities of the two elementary schools.

Such arguments apparently did not carry much weight with the 50 or so parents who attended a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Organization last week. Many of them asked the school board members in attendance why the change was necessary when school officials have themselves said that Coventry Grammar and Robertson offer their children an equally good education.

Lawrence Mickel, one of the board members who helped draft the realignment plan, said the board had no statistical support for its position. Instead, he cited the benefits experienced by school systems in towns similar to Coventry that have restructured their elementary schools.

It is unlikely that Coventry will experience similar benefits if it forges ahead with grade reorganization without the support of most parents. Many of them have voiced legitimate concerns.

They asked, for instance, why it is necessary to bus their young children to a school across town when one in the neighborhood is doing an adequate job under the current system.

Unless the school administration can adequately address such concerns, it is likely to meet with continued resistance on the issue of grade reorganization — and with good reason. Without making a convincing case for the change, administrators will essentially be asking parents to back a plan that could throw two good schools into chaos, add to the time their children spend on the bus and eliminate what may be a healthy rivalry between the two schools.

More meetings on the plan are scheduled, and the school board should take the time to address parental concerns. At the very least, it should slow down and give grade reorganization further study.

The board's proposed implementation date of September 1987 is unrealistic and, given the prospect of rapid growth in Coventry, could prove disastrous.

Traveling pope's magic gone

The two most familiar sights on American television are Ronald Reagan protecting himself from reporters' questions under the helicopter's whirling blade and the pope, in white cassock, climbing down the steps of his jet to kiss the native soil of yet one more heathen land. The sight of this tough old man ceaselessly moving about the earth is moving and slightly ludicrous. These tiring voyages seem both apostolic and silly; a man out of his time, bearing a message to an indifferent world.

A generation ago popes never went anywhere; they hardly left Rome for their summer palace in the country and they never, never left Italy. By its very rarity a papal trip seemed like an historic event; now it's so commonplace that the recent announcement that the peripatetic John Paul II would be coming back to the United States was received with something less than electric excitement.

GIVEN HIS ENORMOUS physical exertions we ought to have a pooped pope on our hands, but John Paul is just now ending another heroic trip to Australia and a dozen places in between. The pope popped up the other day in almost totally Moslem Dhaka, Bangladesh, to deliver his message. That message is often humane and wise, but, increasingly, what's coming across to this particular part of the heathen masses is that the heart of Roman Catholic Christianity is not using birth control, not practicing abortion, not advocating a different place for women in their hierarchies of religion. Actually the pope says many other things, but it's the do-nots pertaining to sex and gender which reach our ears and force their attention on us.

For the hundreds of millions, really billions of us, who aren't Catholic and are busy trying to get from one day to the next, and who therefore must listen with but half an ear, he seems to be saying St. Peter's gate is open only to the Christian who has the baby she doesn't want, the child he can't afford to rear. Is it any wonder that the streets of Dhaka were reported to be empty when his holiness blew by in the Popemobile? In truth the impoverished masses of that diseased and overcrowded land have probably never heard of this or any other pope, so their absence wasn't really an editorial comment.

THAT'S NOT THE CASE elsewhere. Recently I went to high mass at Notre Dame in Paris — that is, in a cathedral which is an ineffably beautiful expression of the genius of Roman Catholicism at its zenith. The great building was crowded — with tourists. There were signs posted explaining to the milling visitors that this was a house of worship and not simply a museum. France, for centuries "the eldest daughter of the church," has rejected her mother and her mother seems to have rejected her in turn.

Articles from the Vatican these past months have repeatedly noted that the pope is putting faith for his church's growth in the Third World. It sounds as though he believes that the simpler brown and black peoples will harken to the message which the jaded, overly sophisticated and ungrateful eldest daughter thinks she's too good for.

A CATHOLIC CHURCH which dies in the West will, no matter how many converts it may garner in Africa and Asia, be a languishing, diminished institution, one no longer with a message for all mankind. And the crisis which has decimated the French church may now be infecting America, once the youngest and most obedient of Rome's daughters.

Beyond the unfathomable pontifical fascination with sex, the difficulty is that John Paul wants to roll back the changes instituted by John XXIII a generation ago; he wants to go back to some of the old ways, but part of the power of the old ways was their seemingly ageless continuity and once that's broken, the magic is gone.

Secret post has control over phone links

WASHINGTON — Tucked away in the Washington suburb of Arlington, Va., a stone's throw from Arlington National Cemetery, the Pentagon and the high-rise office buildings that make landing at National Airport so breathtaking, is a secret military facility whose very existence is virtually unknown outside a small group of high-ranking officers and civilian experts.

Its ambiguous title — the National Coordinating Center — gives little clue to its importance. But the fact that it occupies the second floor of the Defense Communications Agency gives a hint of its function. The DCA oversees the armed services' communications in peace and war, and in a national emergency would have top-priority use — and control. If need be — of the nation's commercial telephone lines and other communications networks.

The center is staffed 24 hours a day by Pentagon, State Department and CIA officials, as well as representatives of nearly a dozen of the nation's largest communications companies, including AT&T, MCI, GTE and RCA.

FEW WOULD ARGUE the necessity of pre-empting communications lines for the military in time of war. It's the authority to take over in a "national emergency" that bothers some civil liberties advocates. They worry that the Pentagon could control the nation's telephone lines and other communications every time some vague "emergency" is declared. The National Coordinating Center is generally off-limits to outsiders, but our associate Donald Goldberg was given a tour of the classified facility, and has obtained a copy of its "Implementation Plan."

Communication is the backbone of the Pentagon's ability to defend the United States by ordering and coordinating troop movements and collecting vital intelligence. But it could also be the weakest link because 90 percent of Pentagon communication is carried on leased commercial facilities, from phone lines to satellite signals.

Until the breakup of AT&T in 1984, the Pentagon could deal simply with the experienced and cooperative Ma Bell. Now it must deal with a multitude of competing companies to ensure the same service AT&T used to provide singlehandedly. The coordinating center was set up to solve the problem, its $10 million annual cost shared by the companies and the taxpayers.

A 1934 LAW gives a president authority to take over private communications companies in a national emergency, and so far this power has not been abused. But several times the Pentagon has tried to redefine "national emergency" in ways that would make the takeover far easier. Communications industry executives expressed concern at this potential threat in lengthy discussions prior to the organization of the coordinating center.

In the absence of a declaration of emergency, the commercial communications companies provide services to the government strictly on a voluntary basis. In the first six months of this year, the National Coordinating Center had to get involved only 12 times. An official of the coordinating center said there has yet to be an instance when requested service was refused.

Critics are still leery of a mechanism that makes it so easy for the military to control the nation's communications.

Mideast policy is in tatters

LONDON — The United States has worked hard for the last five years to develop a unified Middle Eastern policy among its European allies. But recent events have left these efforts a shambles.

It seems likely that, at least over the short term, most key Western nations will be going their own way in dealing with Middle Eastern powers.

What happened? First, there was Britain's break with Damascus over revelations concerning Syrian involvement in the attempted El Al bombing in London. Then there was a loss of credibility suffered by the United States because of its low-key response to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's actions against Syria. That was followed shortly thereafter by the admission that the United States had been negotiating with and sending arms to Iran.

GIVEN THE STRONG U.S. STANCE against state-supported terrorism, the evidence of Syrian complicity presented at the London trial of Nezar Hindawi — who was sentenced to 40 years in prison for his involvement in the bomb plot — would seem to have called for the strongest possible reaction from Washington. However, while backing Thatcher in the abstract, the practical U.S. response fell far short of complete support, possibly because of reluctance to anger Syria, an important power in the region.

Had Washington done more than recall our ambassador for consultation, most other Western allies would have been under pressure to back Britain and impose harsh sanctions against Hafez al-Assad's government. But when the Reagan administration vacillated, several nations, led by France, quickly broke ranks with London.

With six French hostages being held in Lebanon and bombs going off all over Paris, the conservative government of French Prime Minister Jacques Chirac has been in a state of near-crisis ever since it came to power last March. Chirac has made the hostages' freedom and a cessation of the bombing his top priorities. France has worked for these ends by improving relations with the main powers in the region: Iran and Syria.

FRANCE IS CURRENTLY HOLDING Lebanese guerrilla leader Georges Ibrahim Abdallah, who is scheduled to go on trial in February for the 1982 assassinations in Paris of U.S. military attaché Charles Ray and Israeli diplomat Yacov Barsimantov. The recent bombing and kidnappings seem designed to win Abdallah's release.

French police suspect Abdallah's four brothers — and other members of the Lebanese Armed Revolutionary Faction, based in a Syrian-controlled section of northern Lebanon — are behind the bombings and at least some of the kidnappings.

There have been reports in the French press, denied by the government, about a deal in which the Abdallah brothers would be allowed to leave France. Reportedly, the government also promised to be lenient when Georges Abdallah goes on trial, and, more recently, it said it would try to block any stiff sanctions against Syria. In return, the bombings would stop (they have) and hostages would be released (two were freed recently.)

MANY OF THOSE ATTENDING a meeting of Common Market foreign ministers here to consider Britain's plea for unified harsh sanctions against Syria expressed similar private opinions about Chirac's strange interview with Washington Times editor Arnaud de Borchgrave. In the interview, Chirac said that Chancellor Helmut Kohl had told him West Germany believed the whole El Al bombing plot had been a setup by Mossad, the Israeli intelligence agency, working with elements in the Syrian government opposed to Assad. Chirac, who later claimed he had been speaking privately, was quoted as saying he believed the theory to be true. But Kohl has denied the story. Many of the foreign ministers believe this was Chirac's way of sending a message of French support to Damascus.

In what has been described as a stormy session, Britain was only able to win agreement from European allies on a set of watered-down sanctions, which allowed the Thatcher government to save face, but put little pressure on Assad.

The agreed-upon sanctions include an arms embargo, suspension of exchange visits by high-level officials and tightening surveillance of Syrian embassies and of Syrian Arab Airlines operations.

Humorist preaches

Humorist and musician Nat Needle will share his experiences at the 10:30 a.m. service on Sunday at the Unitarian Universalist Society, East, 153 W. Vernon St. The service is followed by a fellowship hour.

Church snooping suit dismissed

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Lutheran and Presbyterian leaders have lost a first round in their attempts to block government use of undercover informants to spy on church congregations.

U.S. District Judge Charles Hardy recently dismissed claims by three congregations and their parent denominations that such action by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service violated religious rights.

It means the federal government "can come into any church, any time, with a tape recorder, and without a warrant," said the Rev. James A. Oines of Alzona Lutheran Church here. "And they have said they would do it."

Thoughts

I thank God that the Bible urges us to think about a person as a soul. I don't believe that's a physical organ. It's more like the essence of a person's life; those principles that are the driving force behind life.

Jesus once asked a profound question: "What good will it be for a man if he gains the whole world, yet forfeits his soul?" A probing question.

Perhaps the driving force behind one person is career advancement. All that person's energy and thought and time is devoted to being a success. But once the success is achieved there is no one to share it with, for spouse and children have been put aside to press on with the goal. Then having achieved, there are these new young workers equally eager to replace you. Further, one needs to think how many people were alienated as you manipulated them toward your success.

Soul is important. It's intangible but there is a formula for the proper development of soul that Jesus expresses in Matthew's Gospel. "If anyone would come after me, he must deny himself and take up his cross and follow me. For whoever wants to save his life will lose it, but whoever loses his life for me will find it." (Matt. 16:24-25.) We affirm this every Veterans Day; whenever someone sacrifices for another. Intrinsically, we know this is the ideal. Jesus not only knew it, he did it on a cross. He exemplifies a properly developed soul.

"What you do I cannot do and what I do you cannot do but together we can do something beautiful for God." So says Mother Teresa. And so we did. Together We've done something beautiful for God and for one another.

We're still celebrating the biggest, best-ever Thanks Sharing Day we've ever had in Manchester, thanks to you and 334 Thanksgiving baskets.

Some Thanksgiving pictures to remember: Bob Martin and the wonderful crew from the Town Firefighters Union, Local 1579 including Bob Lovett, Richard Thompson, Art Kapitke, Andy D'Appollonio, Dave Mayer, Tom Ruffini and Ron Fienzo, who patiently waited while we tried to match turkeys and boxes and the delivering boxes and boxes of food. They were dynamite.

All the faithful and long-suffering packers and deliverers, including Elsie Werner, Martha Reichenbach, Nancy Gutrich, Barbara Baker, Mildred Scott, Raymond and Leona Lavery, Hank Poirier and John Green, Russ Peterson, Sandy Montie, Beth and Neil Patterson, Helen and Ambrose Diehl, Janet Metheny, Faith McCann, Ray Gelling, Joe Donahue, Paul Dutelle, Mary Breen, Karen Lepak, Pat Maneggia, Charlie and Margaret Levin and little Margaret Besser, who must weigh all of 100 pounds. The food she came to deliver probably weighed more than she does.

Buckley School came to the rescue with 11 boxes crammed with food. There was enough to help us make baskets for the last-minute referrals. Temple Beth Shalom, Bolton Congregational Church, Seven Eleven Food Stores in Manchester, Steve Chang, Edith Howland and the jazzercise classes of the Manchester Recreation Department carried out badly needed food collections.

And special thanks to the students at Manchester High School. The students had their food collection snowed out but brought us $400 to help.

N.Y. Diocese takes anti-Vatican stand

NEW YORK (AP) — In implied criticism of recent Vatican moves, the New York Episcopal Diocese recently passed resolutions deploring any muzzling of "freedom of biblical and theological scholarship and diversity of expression."

Without specifically mentioning Vatican restrictions on some scholars and church officials, the diocesan Episcopal convention said that in concern for Christian unity it deplored "any action which narrows the realm of free debate" and "any misuse of authority anywhere."

On May 1, 1986, five men and a woman became the first people since 1909 to reach the North Pole by dogled without resupply, says National Geographic.

help buy produce. Wonderful kids. And thanks, too, to Marilyn Turner, who even included fresh flowers in the boxes of food for her adopted family.

Just want the Rotary folk to know that the 20-pound fresh-killed turkey won by Peter Lawrence was given to us. Thanks to Pete and thanks to Tom Parker for reserving five of the Hartford Jaycees' turkeys for Manchester.

Fifty-five turkey dinners with all the trimmings were delivered Thanksgiving Day by dedicated Meals on Wheels volunteers, including Melanie Moroney, Norma and Frank Conti, Libbie Becker, Fred D'Angelo, Teresa McKeon, Bill Reale and Randy Jones.

We already have folk doing something beautiful for Christmas. Kathy Sinnamon and Paige LeBlanc have been going to tag sales all summer, buying pieces of toys and making whole sets for the Toys for Joy distribution. And since both of them had babies last year, they are baby sitting for one another so that they can help us with toy sorting.

The Toys for Joy distribution of new and good-as-new toys to low-income parents is scheduled Dec. 19 and 20 at St. Mary's Episcopal Church. Beginning today you can leave your toys, gifts for elderly and shut-ins, and non-perishable foods for food baskets at the Center Street fire station next to Town Hall, the Eighth Utilities District fire station, 32 Main St., the Manchester Mall at 811 Main St., and the Main Street offices of Heritage Savings and Loan. If you can help us pick up or sort or work at the distribution, please call us at 646-4114.

Annual question and answer: Why are toys given to parents and not directly to the kids? The heart of Seasonal Sharing is to share the true joy of Christmas with others. In Toys for Joy, we choose to give low-income parents the joy of giving to their own children.

Thinking of wonderful ways to help one another, Betty Sadowski took advantage of the February sales and bought seven beautiful warm winter coats and jackets as gifts for seven of the youngsters on our referral lists. Now, that's thinking ahead! A truly caring and thoughtful way to share.

Christmas, here we come. Our thanks to recent Seasonal Sharing contributors: Manchester High School Student Activity Fund, Bertha L. Hart, Felici and Lynn Vitale, Prestige Printing, Bolton Congregational Offering, Tina DePumpo, Harold and Virginia Falls, Florence Johnson, Calvin and Joan Hutchinson, Charles and Delores Swallow, David and Carol Sutcliffe, George and Catherine Mutter, John and Diane Burg, Jr., Bruce and Dale McCubrey, Alfred Sieffert, Sr., Joseph Schuster and Patricia Kean.

Your donation to the Seasonal Sharing appeal will enable us to provide hot meals and a gift on Christmas Day to 50 elderly and/or handicapped shut-ins. It will also allow us to buy meat, fresh fruit and vegetables for Christmas baskets and gifts for each family referred by local social workers, teachers, nurses and elderly outreach workers.

Your donation supplies vouchers redeemable in local stores. These are given to those in special need to buy essentials such as shoes, boots, underwear and blankets. The vouchers also pay for "Just for You" gifts, a special Christmas program which reaches isolated patients in Manchester convalescent homes. Your donations to MAAC-Seasonal Sharing are tax deductible and can be mailed to P.O. Box 773, Manchester, Conn. 06040.

Notice: The monthly MAAC prayer vigil is planned Friday at 8 p.m. at Concordia Lutheran Church, 40 Pitkin St.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
by Eugene Brewer

An anonymous punster wrote: "Some people really bring their children up; others let them down." When a man and woman beget and bear a child, they are, in cooperation with God, instigating an eternal existence. Such a responsible act is not to be undertaken lightly.

There was a time when parents generally understood that their first responsibility was their children. No price was too great for their physical, moral, educational, economic, and spiritual welfare. That price might be in terms of unremitting toil, selfless devotion of time, inner pain of applied discipline, and bearing unpleasant relationships to provide a secure environment.

Where is that dedicated, self-sacrificing spirit today? It has been lost in the selfish "do it my way" philosophy so pervasive of our times. But God still holds parents responsible for training up their children in his nurture and admonition, Ephesians 6:1-4.

Concert helps the arch

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Senior Citizens' Center.

By Jeanette Cave
Senior Center Director

Thanksgiving is such a great time to reflect upon the many blessings that we have received. I always appreciate the weather, regardless of its conditions, because I am alive to feel the cold breeze and the cold rain, and to see the falling white snow. We can all remember someone with whom we would have enjoyed sharing these special moments.

Seniors are invited to end a nice holiday weekend by attending a 1786 Colonial Concert entitled "Orchestral New England" at the Center Church on the corner of Main and Gold streets in Hartford, Sunday at 3 p.m. Free parking is available in the Travelers' lot. This program, sponsored by Southern New England Telephone, will benefit the Memorial Arch in Bushnell Park. For ticket information, call 1-800-233-3312.

Please make note of the following activities:

Chaplain counsels garbagemen

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The Rev. Jack Vander Laan isn't offended when he's referred to as the "garbage chaplain." The title has stuck over the years because he's the only pastor whose "flock" includes garbagemen scattered around the state.

"I don't know of any other garbage company in the country that has a full-time chaplain," said the 32-year-old Protestant minister in his Fort Lauderdale office at Waste Management Inc. of Florida.

Vander Laan is chaplain-pastoral counselor for the statewide garbage disposal company. His primary function, he says, is helping employees with personal and family problems, the most common being alcohol and drug abuse.

On the average, he spends three days a week visiting garbage companies from Pensacola to Key West to counsel 1,800 employees — garbage handlers to company executives. On occasion, "Reverend Jack" officiates at wedding and funeral services.

He often goes to landfill sites or tracks down a garbage truck to talk to a troubled employee.

When a Florida subsidiary of the parent Waste Management Inc., an international waste collection concern, holds an employee meeting, Vander Laan is usually there. Using a series of video tape and slide presentations, he lectures about drug and alcohol abuse.

On such occasions, troubled employees seek his advice and help. He generally steers them to appropriate community agencies where they can find specialized assistance.

To make himself available whenever there is an emergency, he gives employees telephone numbers where he can be reached day or night.

Mom's surprise visits leave one wife fuming

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law just left after one of her surprise visits, and I am ready to explode. Mummy has no husband and can come and go as she pleases. She lives 20 miles away and we never know when she's coming or how long she'll stay. (Overnight? For the weekend? A week? Two?) It's maddening! Arthur and I work different shifts. We have two children and our free time is limited. I work from 11 p.m. until 7 a.m., so I need to sleep in the morning. Mummy always brings her dog, who barks all morning and ruins my sleep. I've asked her to please not bring him, but she brings him anyway.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Yesterday, Arthur and I spent our only day off together in two weeks entertaining her. We had made other plans, but had to cancel them when she showed up.

How can we tell Mummy to back off without offending her? Arthur is her only child. Lord have mercy on us! We've begged her to please call and let us know when she's coming, but she says, "I'd rather 'surprise' you — that way I'm sure you won't go to any extra trouble."

Abby, can you — or perhaps one of your readers who has had to handle this problem — help me? Arthur says, "Just don't pay any attention to her." But you know that can't be done.

HATES SURPRISES

DEAR HATES: There appears to be a communication gap here big enough to jump a horse through. Sit down with Mummy and stress the inconvenience and unfairness of her surprise visits. If your pleas are ignored, then your husband's solution seems the most practical. Don't change your plans; just go about your business as though she weren't there and spend whatever time you have available with her. The barking dog problem is one Arthur should handle — and firmly! Dogs can be trained to be quiet, you know. And if this one isn't, he should be banished from the premises.

DEAR ABBY: With the holidays just around the corner, many people are wondering what they can give an elderly parent or friend who "has everything." I'd like to share with you a gift I gave my mother.

Mother was a great cook, but her eyesight was failing, and she had a difficult time reading her recipes, so I printed all her favorites with a felt-tip pen in large block letters and put them into a three-ring binder under plastic-covered pages. We all enjoyed her delicious meals until she died at 89.

With a felt-tip pen, I made an alphabetized file of the addresses and phone numbers of all the friends and relatives she wished to correspond with. This, too, I wrote in extra-large letters, and easy-to-read numbers. I included the doctors she saw regularly, utilities, store, emergency numbers, etc.

Mother was a thoughtful, active woman and these small things I did helped her to remain independent and better able to take care of herself.

BETTY JO MINGS,
GARDEN GROVE, CALIF.

DEAR BETTY JO: Thank you for an excellent suggestion. Helping an older person to remain independent is one of the greatest gifts one can give; it's also one that money can't buy.

Let your own MD decide

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband and I are in our 70s and are in pretty good shape. How often should we have complete physical checkups, and just what examinations should these checkups include?

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR READER: I believe that most people in their 70s should have annual medical examinations. Ideally, these should be performed by a family physician who is familiar with the patients. The checkups should include a history, physical examination and stool blood analysis. Other tests — such as blood counts, blood chemical determinations, cardiograms, X-ray evaluations, Pap tests and proctoscopic exams — are best left to the discretion of the examiner who can individualize depending on the patients' needs and states of health.

My comments are meant to give general guidelines.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My wife had a sinus infection that left her with a ringing in her ears and sensitive upper right molars. Neither our dentist nor an ear, nose and throat specialist could find anything wrong. Now the right side of her jaw under her right eye is painful. Sometimes she can hardly open her mouth. What might her problem be?

DEAR READER: Your wife could have a common condition called temporomandibular joint dysfunction. This ailment is not related to sinus infection, but can imitate it. TMJ dysfunction is due to an inflammation of the jaw joint on one or both sides of the cheek, next to the ears. It can cause headache and facial pain. There are many treatments for it, including biteplates or surgery, depending on the severity of the affliction. If your wife's sinuses are no longer infected, have her ask her dentist for a referral to a specialist who diagnoses and treats TMJ dysfunction.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Recently my husband was told that he has polycythemia rubra. His body makes too much blood. Is there any medication to control this disease?

DEAR READER: Polycythemia can be a primary disease or it can be secondary to other conditions, such as emphysema.

The primary type is treatable with drugs that depress the blood-forming tissue within the body's bones. Polycythemia causes the blood to be too thick. Therefore, phlebotomy (withdrawing blood) sometimes helps reduce viscosity until the medicine has had time to work.

The story behind the story

By Josie

Tatum O'Neal

Q. I watched Tatum O'Neal in a movie called "Circle of Two" on cable and wasn't too surprised that she did a nude scene but was pretty shocked to see her with a bulging tummy and fat hips. Was she already expecting when she made that movie? B.W., Scranton, Pa.

A. No, she'd just gained a little weight. That movie was shot back in 1981 and her pregnancy occurred more than four years later; she gave birth in May of this year.

Q. I would like to know what Betty Buckley is doing. Is she still in "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" on Broadway? Dee Leslie Bradford, Stockton, Calif.

A. No, she left that show a couple of months back, did a few concerts and made a movie in Canada. On October 6, though, she did return to Broadway but in another show, "Song and Dance," replacing Bernadette Peters, who had won a Tony in the part.

Q. Can you please tell me everything about Richard Kiley? No one ever prints anything about him. Mary Gentile, Waterbury, Conn.

A. He's 64 (born March 31, 1922), from Chicago, one of three children of a railroad statistician and his wife, a talented amateur singer. As a child, he was shy, something his prankish classmates in high school took advantage of when they conspired to have him cast in the lead role of the school play, a production of "The Mikado." To everyone's surprise, he loved it and did well.

After spending a year at Loyola University, he transferred to Chicago's Barnum Dramatic School, but his studies were cut short by the onset of World War II. He spent three-and-a-half years as a gunnery instructor in Pensacola, Fla., before returning to Chicago and appearing on various radio soap operas. He made his professional stage debut shortly afterward in summer stock in Michigan and the next year, 1947, he moved to New York.

He worked in off-Broadway productions pretty steadily, but made little money, so he decided to give up the stage and go into forestry. Just as he was about to make his move, he was cast as Anthony Quinn's understudy in the national tour of "A Streetcar Named Desire." He eventually replaced Quinn in the part, that of Stanley Kowalski, and his career was finally off and running. Television brought him to national attention. Starring in such classic drama series as "Playhouse 90" and "Omnibus" established him as a major dramatic actor. He also continued to work on the stage: He made his Broadway debut in a revival of Shaw's "Misalliance" in 1953 and won various awards for the performance; later that year, he made his Broadway musical debut in "Kismet."

Movies followed: "The Blackboard Jungle," "Spanish Affair," "Pendulum," but he preferred the stage to movies and appeared in "A Moon for the Misbegotten" at the Spoleto (Italy) Festival, followed by a string of Broadway shows: "Redhead," "Advise and Consent," "No Strings," "Here's Love" and "I Had a Ball."

During the run of the latter show, he was offered the unlikely dual role of Miguel de Cervantes and his famous character Don Quixote in a musical to be called "Man of La Mancha." The show was a long-running smash and increased his stardom considerably.

More recently, he's concentrated on films and TV, among the productions: "Looking for Mr. Goodbar," "The Little Prince," "The Thorn Birds" and "Do You Remember Love?" His next project due on NBC at Thanksgiving is "A Day in the Life of..." a TV movie about a day in the lives of citizens of a small town. He lives in a small town, Warwick, N.Y., he's married and is the father of six.

Q. I just saw the movie "Stand By Me" and thought that River Phoenix was great. Can you tell me if he'll be in anything else? Chris Thiel, Modesto, Calif.

A. Indeed. After finishing the CBS TV movie "Circle of Violence" that aired in October, the 15-year-old portrayed Harrison Ford's son in the movie "The Mosquito Coast," which is due out next month. Currently, he's filming a movie called "Jimmy Reardon" that, like "Stand By Me," is set in the past, specifically 1959.

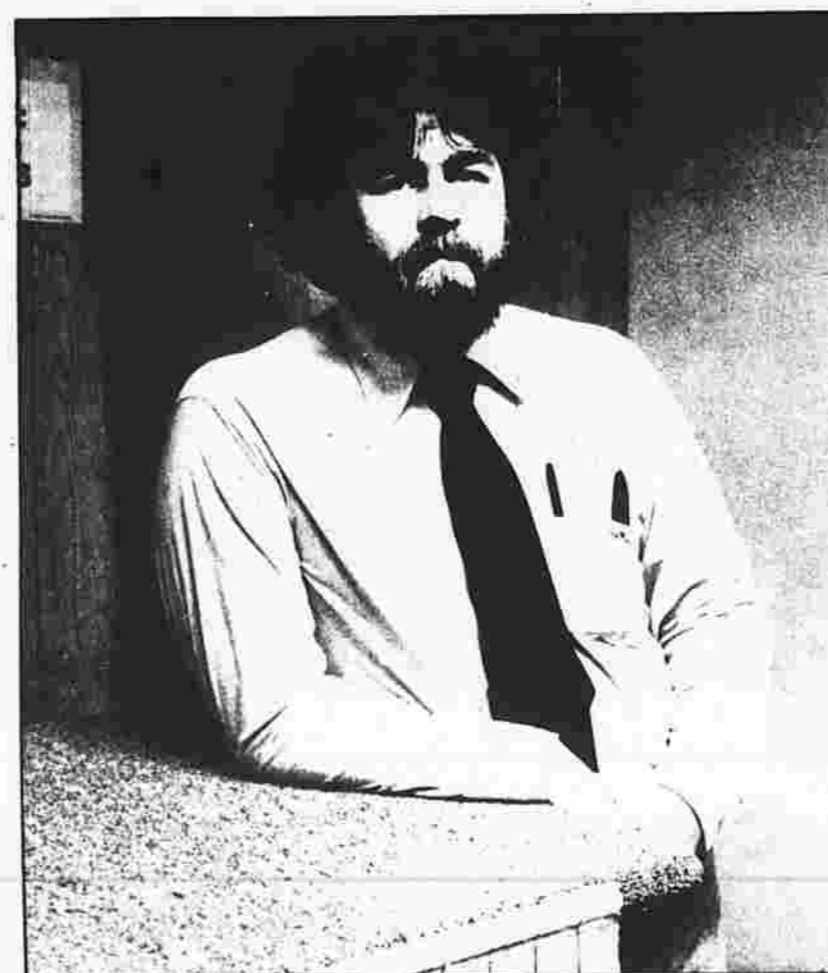

Bronson Pinchot

Q. Please tell me about Bronson Pinchot. After viewing "Perfect Strangers," I'm in love. D.K.B., New Orleans, La.

A. He's 27, from South Pasadena, Calif., the son of the Russian father and an Italian mother who named him for a hero of theirs, Bronson Alcott, author Louisa May Alcott's father. He was a bright kid who won a scholarship to Yale where he majored in English and theater and began to dabble in student productions. A stint on the New York stage followed, including a role in the comedy "Poor Little Lambs" set at Yale, before he broke into movies with small parts in "Risky Business" and "The Flamingo Kid."

A casting agent spotted him in the latter film and suggested him for "Beverly Hills Cop," which, as you probably know, was his big break. With an outrageous accent adapted from that of an Israeli makeup woman whom he met on the low-budget film "Hot Resort," and the name and pronunciation of a Swiss caterer for whom he once worked ("Serge" pronounced "Sairge"), his gallery employee character stole scenes from Eddie Murphy. When the movie came out, he was very hot but already committed to what would be a short-lived series, "Sara." After that folded, though, he was cast in "Perfect Strangers," and since the ratings are good and his reviews have been great, he should be on view there for a while.

Forget the tea leaves, read the cup

Your workplace coffee mug may speak louder than you do

By Rachel Cope Goldfarb

You can throw away your astrology charts and forget about analyzing hair follicles. If you really want to find out all about a person, just take a quick gander at the receptacle from which he or she takes each day's fluid refreshment.

One's personal mug is a barometer of humor, self-image, appetite, hygiene and social status. It is a symbol of individuality, creativity and even perseverance.

For example, examine the sipper from a pristine porcelain teacup on which tiny blue blossoms nestle harmoniously amongst delicate bouquets of heather.

Without dropping my gaze below her well-turned wrist, I know that she is wearing sensible, though expensive, pumps which match her leather belt and purse (one she searched a tri-state retail market to locate).

She works at a desk on which Lady Di could take tea and Nancy Reagan could pose for photos.

Her car is taken for tuneups a month before manufacturer recommendations (just to be sure) and she is deeply in love with her three cats (who are all toilet-trained).

She is somewhat different from the gulper who pours his morning java into his body out of an encrusted 18-ounce mug which announces to all the world "I May Be Getting Older But I Refuse to Grow Up."

I'm certain this individual gets his kicks from trying to convince co-workers that it's payday a day early, answering his phone with "Yello?" and reading the morning paper over another's shoulder.

He gets where he is going in a four-wheel-drive vehicle with a funny horn, loves to eat chili that corrodes the lining out of the pot, and romps along with his St. Bernard puppy before reporting to work each morning.

I can't plot an in-depth personality analysis of each coffee/tea/postum/bouillon drinker I come in contact with. However, I suspect after a glance that someone who drinks from a cup which reads "Never Try to Teach a Pig to Sing - It Wastes Your Time and Annoys the Pig" may lack the patience to instruct me in the art of glass-blowing.

Gary Tucker/Manchester Herald

I further suspect that a person who carries about a mug filled with dark liquid which states "I Hate Mondays" (or anything else for that matter) may lack the positive outlook I prefer to find in my supervisors.

I discover instantaneously that anyone quaffing each morning from a mug lettered "I'm in No Shape to Exercise" or "I Kill for Chocolate" may be sipping cocoa from that container, with or without marshmallows, and is a good source for coffee-break snacks (which they are usually delighted to share with a colleague).

On the other hand, I appreciate the opportunity to sit amongst persons at a meeting who are drinking from their own mugs. Guesswork is at a minimum when one person tips a sip to her lips from a cup which states "Because I'm the Boss, That's Why" and whose every suggestion is met with smiling nods.

Similarly, the fellow who clutches a mug which indicates his profession repeatedly like "Teacher, Teacher, Teacher," or humorously like "Lawyers Never Lose Their Appeal" may be telling those around him that he worked hard to get where he is (or maybe he's contemplating a job change).

It's also a lifesaver for a person like me (who never forgets a face but couldn't remember a name on the first introduction on pain of toenail removal) to look around a conference table to find half the attendees sporting a cup on which they are named. I consistently address those individuals, by name, during meetings and develop rapport impossible if not for their considerate cups.

The real stumper, though, is the guy who insists upon drinking from a styrofoam substitute for a mug of his own. I always wonder what he is trying to hide. Is he afraid his choice of drinking pots would be offensive or perhaps uncomfortably revealing? ■

Astrograph

Nov. 30, 1986

The coming year will be an exciting one for you because you will be more enterprising and fearless. Favorable developments are in the offing, provided your boldness doesn't exceed your common sense.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Tolerance could be something that you reserve for outsiders today. If a family member displeases you, you might show disrespect for his intelligence, you might invite a squabble.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) Do not misinterpret a friend's independent behavior as disloyalty today. You want to be your own person, and so does he or she.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you are uncooperative with family members today, it could start a chain reaction of bickering in your household. Consideration can stop this before it starts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In most instances, you're a person who looks for the good in others, but today you may see only their faults. Don't voice your observations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you go shopping today with too long a list and too little time, in your haste to get things done, you may end up buying a whole bunch of things you'll later wish you hadn't.

William Devane:

'I don't like to relax, to sit still,' actor says

By Kathy Larkin

The hoofbeats drum against the turf as they come riding into the fading late afternoon sun, a tangle of humans and horses, four black-clad riders against four white-shirted ones, careening down the 300-foot polo field at 30 miles an hour. The riders swoop over their ponies' necks to aim mallets at a small white target little bigger than a baseball.

Smack! The number 2, black-shirted rider has backhanded a long fast shot out of the melee and down the field toward the opposing goal. Almost as one, ponies and horsemen turn to pursue the rapidly traveling speck as a roar goes up from the estimated 5,500 spectators watching this Volvo/Piaget-sponsored classic, watching the celebrities racing for charity.

Number 2, now far down the field on a gray pony, is tall, intense William Devane, familiar to watchers of that prime-time CBS-TV nighttime soap "Knots Landing" as devious former Senator Gregory Sumner, now masterminding the family business.

Racing right behind Devane are two other members of the celebrity "Chukkers for Charity" team: "Knots Landing" co-star Doug Sheehan and former "Dynasty" star Pamela Sue Martin. The fourth team member, Alex Cord, formerly of "Airwolf," was sidelined 24 hours before by broken ribs contracted at full gallop. He was replaced by Devane's younger son, Jake.

Polo is a dangerous sport staged on a fast track. That doesn't faze Bill Devane, the actor who once moonlighted as a cab driver and carpenter while working for Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival. His first stage role: a spear carrier in "Merchant of Venice" at $10 a week.

This afternoon, Devane — thick gray-flecked black hair shooting above a wide smile and a very definite chin, a man whom New York Times critic Clive Barnes once described as dominating the stage "like a bank robber with a gun" for his work in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," sits in an unfamiliar country club explaining how his polo career began.

Devane grins. "Easy," he says in clipped, definite tones. "Stefanie Powers cornered a group of us who could ride to do a charity event for the William Holden Wildlife Foundation in Africa. That first game raised over $100,000 for charity. This year our Chukkers for Charity team has traveled over 200,000 miles and raised about $1.5 million for different charities."

He adds, "Speed is a relative thing. The more you play polo, the faster you go trying to hit that ball. It takes concentration. But the horse becomes just like your legs. You don't think. You don't yank the reins. The horse is going where you're going. You're both together."

Riding comes easy to Albany-born Bill Devane. "My mother's people in upstate New York were farm people. I spent summers with them, so I was around horses all my life."

And the actor — who lives in a Spanish-style house in Sherman Oaks, Calif., invested in Utah ranch property to raise Arabian horses. He recently donated the ranch to Robert Redford's Sundance Institute, most of the horses sold.

But the string of 18 Devane polo ponies — shared by slender, attractive wife Eugenie, sons Josh and Jake — are stabled in Utah. And the family flies often to their nearby wood-and-rock home clinging to the side of a mountain and surrounded by 100-foot fir trees.

Devane, direct and independent, is a man who likes the land, an environmentalist who starred in and co-produced the highly acclaimed "Wilderness Journal," a PBS documentary on wildlife in five Western states. He is not optimistic about our resources.

"There's no way to be hopeful," says Devane impatiently. "God Almighty! Look what we've done! Everything's a chemical spill now. What people are dumping into the ground now is frightening."

Bill Devane had an early training in activist causes. "I've been lucky. I started my career in New York at the New York Shakespeare Festival with Joe Papp. All the people there were blacklisted actors. And Papp was the only guy who hired them. That was the beginning of my political education."

He came to acting after a childhood spent in tough city streets, four years in as many high schools, a semester in college, and a chance 1959 trip to New York with a would-be actor friend that landed him in the prestigious American Academy of Dramatic Arts. It was there that he met wife Eugenie.

In fact, the real Bill Devane, son of Joe and Kate Devaney, and the rich ex-Senator Greg Sumner of "Knots Landing" are lifetimes apart. Ask what they have in common and the booted man slouched in the silk-upholstered antique chair laughs. "On TV, I'm one of those wealthy, well-suited guys. But I come from working-class Irish people."

He adds, "My neighborhood was a world away from places like this. I wasn't a very good student and probably a disturbed youngster to some extent. But the Italian/Irish neighborhoods I grew up in were not unlike black and Puerto Rican neighborhoods now. It was the same psychology. Combat and survival, every second, from the time you wake up until you go to sleep."

He shrugs. "I think that has been a kind of detriment to my career. I always had a real quick tendency to get defensive and say what I think."

His Uncle Leo was foreman of the New York Daily News composing room. And Bill

Devane's father, Joe, ran a linotype machine there — in between chauffeuring FDR's car when he was governor. "My father worked for the state out of Albany and he printed the Sunday paper on weekends, working midnight until 8 a.m. from Thursday night."

Often the young Bill Devane came with him, wandering through the world of giant, thundering presses and cynical, card-playing newspapermen. Today, his brother is a teamster; his sister runs the Albany Arts Council.

But for Bill Devane, show business was almost inevitable. In 1973, he and Eugenie and their two young sons drove from New York to California in a U-Haul truck, arriving Christmas Day. "I couldn't make a living in the East," he says simply. "I was tired of constantly auditioning and being rejected for $90-a-week jobs."

Soon after he hit Hollywood, in 1974, Devane won an Emmy nomination for his portrayal of John F. Kennedy in "The Missiles of October." He followed that with a second Emmy nomination for his performance as blacklisted 1950s broadcaster John Henry Faulk in "Fear on Trial." He also picked up two Los Angeles Drama Critics' Awards for directing the stage hit "Are You Now or Have You Ever Been?" and "The Changing Room."

He did a much-acclaimed TV portrayal of Sergeant Milt Warden opposite Natalie Wood in "From Here to Eternity" and a spinoff series that sank in the ratings. His movies: "Marathon Man" with Dustin Hoffman and Laurence Olivier; "Yanks" with Vanessa Redgrave and Richard Gere.

And what about "Knots Landing"?

Devane chuckles. "Well, its like being in a Broadway hit except the character constantly changes. That's kind of interesting."

He adds, "I make suggestions. I wanted Gregory Sumner to have a two-pronged, human image — snug at home with the family and kids in his private life; outside, accused of all sorts of things. I wanted a balance in the character of good and bad."

He shrugs. "I have a good time. I'm making a considerable amount of money, which is nice." Then, pausing, he says wryly, "But in one section of my brain, I still hear Joe Papp shouting, 'Why aren't you doing something important?'"

There is a definite suggestion that Bill Devane, a restless man, may be growing impatient with the development of his character on this season's series — despite the recent kick-off which included older son Josh playing his father in a flashback.

"My contract is up, like Kevin Dobson's and Doug Sheehan's, at the end of this year," says Devane. "I don't think any one of us is not interested in continuing on 'Knots Landing,' but who knows? Now for me, when you bring on a Peter Hollister and put me in the role of guiding his political career, you're just taking a lot from my character. I'm sitting static, behind a VIP desk, just running the family business."

Meanwhile, he has completed a CBS-TV movie, "Timestalkers," a romantic adventure with Lauren Hutton and Klaus Kinski in which he plays a college professor who travels back into 1886 with a heroine from the future, both seeking to prevent a murder.

A restless, intense man, he admits candidly, "I don't like to relax, to sit still."

Eugenie — riding, skiing, talking, acting, traveling — keeps pace. Are they alike?

After a pause, Bill Devane grins broadly. "No. We're still a little combative. That keeps it interesting." ■

William Devane plays Senator Gregory Sumner on TV's "Knots Landing."

Wacky new comedy stars an Australian-born actor

By Jerry Duck

LOS ANGELES — Australian-born Rod Taylor stars as an Old West outlaw who becomes a sheriff and is zapped to computer-age Houston in a wacky new comedy series CBS will introduce in midseason.

Taylor, no stranger to time travel in former roles, laughs as he talks about the premise of "The Outlaws," in which he and an outlaw gang jump from 1888 to 1986, horses, guns and all.

"Basically, we're these five rough, tough outlaws," he says, "and one of them — me — suddenly sees Jesus and decides to become a sheriff. After the gang robs a bank, I corner them in a box canyon. Lightning hits. Zap! They go from 1888 to today. What're they gonna do to earn a living now? They open a detective agency."

It's a wild premise, but time travel worked wonderfully for the movies "Back to the Future" or "Peggy Sue Got Married."

Interestingly enough, Taylor's

Jerry Duck covers television for The Associated Press.

First AIDS antibody tests prove false

Personal risks are low if follow-up tests are negative

By Dr. June Reinisch

The Kinsey Report

DEAR DR. REINISCH: Last December, while having some other blood work done, I asked to be checked for AIDS. The test (the ELISA test that's used for screening blood donations) came out positive. I felt that I was dead. Two weeks later I had the more definitive Western blot test, and it was negative. Six months later I had the Western blot again, and it was again negative.

Recently a woman has appeared in my life, and she has given me joy. We have not engaged in intercourse. Is there any chance whatsoever that somehow she could be in danger if our relationship eventually leads to intercourse? I called one doctor who said, "Sir, if your Western blot was negative, you haven't come in contact with the virus. You don't need to be calling cross-country to an AIDS specialist. Find someone to calm you down."

DEAR READER: At a recent meeting of researchers at the National Institutes of Health, it was reported by an American Red Cross representative that of the first 5.5 million units of donor blood tested with the ELISA (enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay) screening test, 65,000 reported as positive for the AIDS antibody on the first test, 18,000 were positive when given a second ELISA tests, and 1,675 were positive when tested by the Western blot method. In summary, this means that 97 percent of the positive results on the first test were possibly or definitely wrong (a "false positive").

Researchers say there are several reasons for the high rate of false positives on the ELISA: an antibody to the white blood cells in which the virus is grown to produce the test; previous transfusions (even with uncontaminated blood); alcohol-induced liver disease; and some tropical diseases, such as malaria.

AIDS is a recently discovered

"If your personal risk factors are low and you have had two negative Western blot tests, your likelihood of carrying the AIDS virus would be extremely low, according to current scientific understanding. In this case, the risk to your partner would also be low."

trouble putting your false positive test behind you.

Male virginity

DEAR DR. REINISCH: When is a man not a virgin? I did not have any sexual contact with anyone until I was 64, and that was with another male. So am I a virgin or not?

DEAR READER: A virgin is generally defined as someone who has never had sexual intercourse with another person. So, strictly speaking, you probably would no longer be considered a virgin.

The concept of virginity has historically been applied to women, so most definitions are based on whether the hymen (a membrane that partially blocks the vagina in some females) is still intact. However, few women have vaginas that are closed by a hymen until the first act of intercourse—so the definition doesn't work very well for women, either.

Frankly, the word "virgin" is not very useful in scientifically describing exactly what a person has or has not done sexually.

Problem with sperm

DEAR DR. REINISCH: After not being able to impregnate my wife for more than a year, I visited a urologist. Testing showed a low sperm count and adequate hormone levels. A bilateral testicular biopsy showed that there was good sperm production. I was told that the size of my vas deferens prevented release of enough sperm.

Is this common? Can it be corrected by surgery? Should I seek a second opinion?

DEAR READER: About 5 percent of men with fertility problems have a blockage in the system of ducts and tubes that transport the sperm from the testicles to the penis.

A blockage or partial obstruction of the vas deferens functions somewhat like a vasectomy (the cutting of the vas deferens): Sperm are manufactured, but do not appear in the ejaculate. Causes of trouble with the vas deferens include scarring from chlamydia, gonorrhea or other infections.

Blockages in the vas deferens are corrected in the same way that vasectomies are reversed: by surgical reconstruction of the vas deferens. This is a complicated procedure that requires a skilled surgeon, using a microscope, and involves spending several days in the hospital. Some surgeons are experimenting with using lasers for vas surgery and have had good results.

"Researchers say there are several reasons for the high rate of false positives on the ELISA: an antibody to the white blood cells in which the virus is grown to produce the test; previous transfusions (even with uncontaminated blood); alcohol-induced liver disease; and some tropical diseases, such as malaria."

A second opinion should be sought whenever any major surgery is recommended. Therefore, before you have surgery, try to locate a fertility specialist or fertility clinic to evaluate both you and your wife. Perhaps non-surgical options are available, since you do have some sperm in the ejaculate.

Moreover, most fertility experts recommend that three or four sperm tests be done before assuming that a man's count is permanently low.

Fertility problems are equally shared by men and women: Half of all cases are due to husbands and half to wives. Therefore, your wife should have her reproductive capacity tested before you assume that your vas deferens is the only factor blocking conception.

A fertility specialist can help you to determine all possible causes and treatments and can refer you to the most skilled surgeon available in your area if surgery is necessary.

Annual Pap smear?

DEAR DR. REINISCH: Is it necessary for a woman to have an annual Pap smear if she has had a complete hysterectomy? Some doctors say no, but others (including the gynecologist who did the operation) have told me yes, and that I should have an annual test.

DEAR READER: The need for Pap smears (and their frequency) depends on exactly what was removed and why the surgery was done.

In most, but not all, cases a hysterectomy (surgical removal of the uterus) includes removal of the cervix (the opening between the vagina and the uterus). If you still have your cervix, you must still have regular Pap smears on the schedule recommended by your physician. This is usually once a year.

If cancer was the reason for the hysterectomy, you must still have Pap smears on a frequent and regular basis, even if your cervix was removed.

If cervix cancer was not involved, you probably will need less frequent Pap smears. However, Pap smears are still necessary, since they can detect pre-cancerous changes in the vaginal lining, some vaginal infections and problems associated with low estrogen levels.

In any event, women who have had hysterectomies still need regular (usually annual) pelvic examinations, even if a Pap smear is not necessary. This is especially important for women whose ovaries were not removed during the hysterectomy.

For any women, the frequency of examination depends on her physician's assessment of her individual situation and family history, including her risk factors for various diseases. For example, a woman who no longer has ovaries would no longer be at risk for ovarian cancer, but she would still need to have regular checkups for breast cancer.

Dr. Reinisch is director of the Kinsey Institute for Research in Sex, Gender and Reproduction, Indiana University - Bloomington.

Meals for one or two can be creative

By Philomena Corradeno

I first became aware of the problems in cooking for a small family a long time ago when one Sunday my mother took three whole chickens out of the oven. She, my father and I were the only ones left at home.

For several years she had cooked great meals for nine: my father, his aunt and uncle, herself and five kids. Suddenly she found herself with only two other bodies at the table.

When I asked, reasonably, why she cooked for nine, she said, "I can't shop and cook for only three of us." It did occur to me that we had been eating leftovers a lot and my father wasn't too crazy about leftovers.

"Besides," she added, "you never know who'll drop in." It wasn't unusual for family friends to visit on a Sunday with a last-minute telephone call or with no notice. That's how it used to be, and not only in our home.

Sure enough (and thank goodness or I'd still be noshing on those chickens today), my sister and a brother, their spouses and a couple of kids did stop in that night. Naturally, they were looking for a snack.

True, cooking for six or eight can be a lot more simple than for the one- or two-member household. If you work outside the home it's easy to look on meal-making as a time-consuming chore you'd like to avoid. The tendency is to fry a lot because it's a nuisance to turn on the oven for one or two. The solution is a toaster-oven — or a microwave, especially now that they come in mini sizes. You might even consider a versatile combination microwave-convection oven that does a fantastic job.

Well, you could always stop at one of the fancy take-out shops and pick up a high-priced meal, or buy some of the excellent entrees or the newer improved complete meals in the supermarket freezer.

On the other hand, you could eat out and avoid preparation and cleanup as well as cooking. But on a regular basis, that's tiresome, boring and not very satisfying, not to mention expensive.

The best thing is to have a good stock of staples, such as canned beef and chicken broths, soups, frozen vegetables, rice, pasta, canned tuna, salmon, chunk white chicken now available in broth or water-pack, condiments, green Spanish olives, pickles and ripe olives. Buy small cans of ripe olives because once opened they do not keep for long periods, even in the refrigerator. On weekends, chop up onions, green and red bell peppers and celery, pack each in small bundles and freeze. You won't use them in salads but they'll be a time-saver in cooking.

On the way home from work, or on lunch hours if you have a refrigerator in your work place, pick up the fresh ingredients you need for your menu.

You can whip up the good meals you deserve, with little effort, and in less than an hour you'll be enjoying a fine and gracious meal.

To make things easier for myself, I most often cook more than one serving so I can eat one now and freeze one or two for future meals. It's neither practical nor economical to cook only one serving of some foods.

Rice, for example, takes about the same time to cook whether it's a half-cup or two cups. It keeps, properly covered, up to a week in the fridge and freezes beautifully (divide it into one-serving packets.) To reheat it, combine rice with 2 tablespoons water or broth per cup of rice, cover and heat about 5 minutes.

Cooked, undressed pasta freezes well too. It can be dropped into boiling water and heated through, drained and sauced. Or dropped into boiling soup for a quick meal.

All of the recipes that follow were developed for one or two. They're quick and easy but have the air of high cuisine. If you're eating alone, freeze half for a future meal.

As you might suspect, the first two are rice dishes. While the rice cooks, you can prepare the other ingredients. Either needs only a leafy green salad to round out the meal.

Gingered Shrimp and Spring Rice has an Oriental piquant, gingery flavor.

Rely on veal scallops and boned chicken for quick, tasty dishes. Veal Scallops and Herbed Vegetable Rice Dijonnaise is excellent. Use veal one night, chicken a week later and you won't feel you're repeating yourself.

GINGERED SHRIMP AND SPRING RICE
 1 1/2 cups water
 1/2 cup rice
 1 to 2 tablespoons soy sauce
 1/4 pound fresh asparagus, cut into 1-inch pieces*
 1/4 cup diced red bell pepper
 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
 1/4 pound large shrimp, peeled and deveined, with tails intact

This gingered shrimp and spring rice has an Oriental piquant, gingery flavor.

2 cloves garlic, minced
 2 teaspoons finely grated fresh ginger or 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
 1/8 teaspoon dried red pepper flakes
 1/2 cup dry white wine

Bring water to a boil in small saucepan. Stir in rice and soy sauce. Cover and simmer 20 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in asparagus and red pepper. Let stand covered while preparing shrimp. Heat oil in medium skillet. Add shrimp, garlic, ginger and red pepper flakes. Cook, stirring constantly, 2 minutes. Add wine. Continue cooking and stirring over medium heat until shrimp are cooked through. Serve over rice.
 Yield: 2 servings.
 *Note: 1/4 cup frozen cut asparagus, thawed, may be substituted for fresh asparagus.

VEAL SCALLOPS AND HERBED VEGETABLE RICE DIJONNAISE
 1 1/2 cups water
 1/2 cup rice
 1/2 pound veal scallops, pounded 1/8-inch thick* salt and pepper, to taste
 1 1/2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 1 clove garlic, finely minced
 1 medium green onion, cut into 1-inch pieces
 1/4 cup coarsely shredded carrot

1/4 teaspoon dried tarragon, crushed
 1/2 cup dry white wine
 1/4 cup plain low-fat yogurt, at room temperature
 2 teaspoons Dijon-style mustard

Bring water to a boil in small saucepan. Stir in rice. Cover and simmer 20 minutes. Meanwhile, season veal scallops with salt and pepper. Melt butter in skillet. Add veal and garlic. Cook 1 to 2 minutes per side or until veal is cooked through. Remove from skillet and keep warm.

Remove rice from heat. Stir in green onion, carrot and tarragon. Let stand covered while finishing veal. Add wine to drippings in skillet. Bring to a boil and simmer uncovered 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Whisk in yogurt and mustard. Heat, but do not boil. Spoon sauce over veal and serve with vegetable rice.
 Yield: 2 servings.
 *Note: Two chicken breast halves, boned, skinned and pounded 1/8-inch thick may be substituted for veal scallops.

Barbara Kafka, noted cookbook author, gave me this one. It adds a touch of elegance to solo dining and can be doubled or tripled. Chicken is poached in white wine accented with a salt-free packaged herb and lemon blend.

ORIENTAL POACHED CHICKEN BREASTS ON STIR-FRIED SPINACH
 1 tablespoon salt-free lemon and herb seasoning
 1 cup white wine
 1 skinless, boneless chicken breast
 2 teaspoons vegetable oil
 1 1/2 cups washed and stemmed spinach leaves

Combine lemon and herb seasoning and white wine in small saucepan. Bring to a boil, then reduce heat to simmer. Cook 5 minutes. Poach chicken breast in simmering liquid for 7 minutes. Remove to plate and cover loosely.

Heat vegetable oil in wok or deep skillet. Quickly stir fry spinach leaves just until wilted. Remove from heat and toss with 1 teaspoon poaching liquid. Arrange spinach on plate. Slice chicken 1/2-inch thick across the breast. Fan slices on top of spinach. Dress with 1 teaspoon poaching liquid. Serve immediately.
 Yield: 1 serving. ■

The Victorian Lady

By Sondra Astor Slave

The Victorian Lady is Willimantic's gentrified restaurant. It arrived at 877 Main St. at the time that redevelopment was begun and it fits in well with the rehab nature of much of the downtown area. The menu has a little that is Italian, a lot that is Mexican and a few items inspired from Louisiana. Most of it works fairly well and, with careful selection, a most pleasant meal can be enjoyed.

The restaurant makes a studied attempt to evoke a Gay Nineties' mood and the brick walls, real wood paneling, railings, tables and chairs look totally authentic. There are even advertising signs that may not go back as far as the turn of the century but may remind you of your childhood.

Many of the Victorian Lady's appetizers seem designed for sharing. Certainly, there was more than enough for two in the super nachos with jalapeno peppers, salsa, guacamole and sour cream over the tortilla chips, beef and spiced beans beneath and cheese any place there was nothing else. The chips remained crisp and were not too salty; the whole succeeded. On previous visits, we found the fried zucchini, mushrooms and chicken tidbits each lightly battered and competently cooked.

A bowl of fish chowder when described had sounded to me as if it would be tomato based. All the more reason to be disappointed when it arrived with fresh fish pieces but in a too thick creamy broth. I was sorry that I had not ordered the chili which on past visits had been the best in the area: almost all meat, spicy and covered with a topping of flavorful cheddar and chopped onions.

Tossed salad comes with some entrees and consisted of mixed greens, tomato wedges and the thinnest slices of cucumber,

Both bleu cheese and creamy dill dressing were among the choices. I ordered the latter and received what tasted like a combination, a most pleasant error if that is what occurred.

Among the nine Mexican platters, tequila chicken sounded the least like Mexican fast food. This chicken breast was sauteed in tequila with green chiles, scallions and diced tomatoes and topped with a spicy, creamy cheese sauce. While I doubt that it is prevalent south of the border, I don't think it would displease either a Mexican chef or a Mexican diner. The platter was completed with refried beans and lots of shredded lettuce.

Blackened tuna was a special of the day and at $10.95 it was a good value. The large and thick hunk of fish was not as spicy as this type of preparation in many other area restaurants, but the fresh fish was well cooked on the outside while still pink within with wonderful moistness and texture: it left nothing of which to complain. The accompanying star cut baked potato was a little undercooked which is not a virtue for this root vegetable, but the julienne of squash was most appealing, still in the crunchy stage. The menu features four other blackened specialties as well as a dozen main dishes of chicken, seafood, veal or beef.

Marvelous sounding chocolate truffle cake was unfortunately unavailable. Amaretto cheesecake hinted only slightly of liqueur but was pleasantly smooth-rich despite not being as heavy as this degree of creaminess usually requires. Chocolate chip cookie pie tasted somewhat floury and underbaked even to this devotee of totally raw tollhouse cookie dough.

The more than a dozen appetizers at the Victorian Lady range from $2.75 to $4.95; sandwiches span from a $2.25

superdog to a crabmeat and sealeg croissant at $6.95; main dishes vary from $8.95 to $12.95. The Victorian Lady has such a wide ranging menu that only the pickiest of diners would not find something to their liking. Some of the dishes are quite good, others at least pleasing. And for those in Willimantic at Sunday brunch time, the pickled herring, lox and cream cheese, bagels and other baked goods and fruit salad were particularly good when we last tried them. ■

Aquino continues effort to crush 'forces of evil'

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Corazon Aquino replaced two more Cabinet ministers Friday in the wake of last weekend's alleged coup plot and told supporters the "forces of evil" will keep trying to destabilize her government.

Former Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, who was linked to the plot, received a high government decoration in his first public appearance since resigning Sunday.

Mrs. Aquino appointed Vicente Jayme, president of the Philippine National Bank, as minister of public works and named Carlos Dominguez Jr., a deputy minister of agriculture, as minister of natural resources.

They replaced Rogaciano Mercado and Ernesto Maceda, who were among officials that the military had recommended be replaced for incompetence.

Mrs. Aquino swore in Dominguez shortly after her announcement but said Jayme will assume his new post after he returns from the United States, where he is negotiating new loans.

The Cabinet changes were the first since Sunday when Mrs. Aquino asked for and received the resignations of all 25 Cabinet ministers. At the time, she accepted only Enrile's resignation.

Her move came after Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, chief of the armed forces, said a coup plot had been foiled. Government sources have said the plot was hatched by officers close to Enrile.

In announcing Friday's changes, Mrs. Aquino said her Cabinet had been plagued by dissension and wrangling because of the presence of "strong-willed men and women."

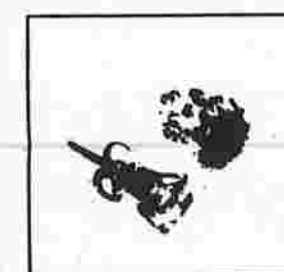

"It was not easy to get persons of such caliber to work well together," Mrs. Aquino said in a national television address. "And so I am compelled by the national interest to make some changes in my government with a view to hammering it into an effective instrument of progress."

Mrs. Aquino later addressed a rally to drum up support for ratification of a draft constitution, which she says will restore constitutional rule and help bring stability to the nation.

RANDY TRAVIS
... new career move

Travis becomes regular in Opry

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Randy Travis, who won the Horizon Award for career development this year from the Country Music Association, says he's going to be a regular performer on the Grand Ole Opry.

"They've asked me to join the Opry," said Travis, whose "Storms of Life" album already has sold more than 500,000 copies. "And I think that means more to me than anything else."

Travis said no date has been set for his debut.

The Opry, a live country music broadcast that began in 1925, has approximately 60 regular cast members and airs on radio and cable television's Nashville Network.

Its radio presentation is billed as the world's oldest continuously running broadcast.

Nashville's song

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Warner Bros. Records has released the song "I Still Hear the Music of Nashville" by Crystal Gayle, the winning entry in a contest to pick the official tune for "Music City USA."

The song released Monday was written by Nashville composers Chris Waters and Kix Brooks and was picked from more than 90 entries in the contest.

Miss Gayle, a Nashvillean, premiered the song in June at the city's annual Summer Lights Festival.

Betty Hutton coming back

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Betty Hutton, who was the screen's Annie Oakley and made her last movie in 1957, is making a comeback in the record stores.

There hasn't been a Hutton record out since 1954, when RCA released the sound track for an NBC musical special called "Satin and Spurs" and Warner Bros. issued the LP "Saints and Sinners."

A number of records featuring Hutton are becoming available again.

"A Square in the Social Circle" from Capitol has been remastered in France and includes many of her Capitol hits, such as "It Had to Be You" and "My Rocking Horse Ran Away."

The sound track from Paramount's 1952 film "Somebody Loves Me" has been reissued on Canada's "Motion Picture Tracks" label. The company has also reissued the "Satin and Spurs" sound track. EMI in England is releasing "Blonde Bombshell," which includes some of her hits and some obscure 1940s recordings.

The Christmas Story
As told in the music of the Middle Ages

THE WAVERLY CONSORT's "The Christmas Story" is a very special holiday event. The production is based on some of the most important medieval manuscripts detailing the story of Christmas. In the timeless tradition of the medieval church dramas and mystery plays, eight singers and five instrumentalists, beautifully costumed and playing reproductions of medieval instruments, enact the message of the archangel Gabriel, the journey of the Magi, the scene at the manger in Bethlehem, the intrigue of Herod and his court, and celebrate the glorious tradition of Christmas in drama and in song.

Film Capsules

Jumpin' Jack Flash (R) — Whoopi Goldberg, Stephen Collins, John Wood, Carol Kane. (Comedy-Adventure) Whoopi Goldberg plays a lonely and bored transactions clerk who starts getting strange messages on her computer terminal — and suddenly finds herself in the middle of an international spy plot. Goldberg has a wonderfully expressive face, and she is ably assisted by Stephen Collins and Carol Kane, among others. This one won't start anyone pondering the meaning of life or the nature of the universe, but it is good diverting fun. Grade: B.

The Name of the Rose (R) — Sean Connery, F. Murray Abraham, Christian Slater. (Mystery) How do you adapt a 200,000-word mystery novel set in a 14th century cloister? Surprisingly, Umberto Eco's best-seller, directed by Jean-Jacques Annaud ("Quest for Fire") makes the transition with style and wit. Connery has his best role in years as monk-turned-sleuth William of Baskerville, and Abraham relishes his role as Grand Inquisitor. This wholly original film deserves to be seen. But the screenplay is taxing; pay attention to the action to reap the benefits. Grade: B.

Peggy Sue Got Married (PG-13) — Kathleen Turner, Nicholas Cage, Barry Miller, Catherine Hicks, Joan Allen, Kevin J. O'Connor. (Comedy) Turner goes to her 25th high-school reunion, faints and is thrust back to the time just before her graduation. "Back to the Future — Part II"? Hardly. Director Francis Coppola has crafted — at least for the first hour — a charming and engaging set of circumstances that explore the traumas of unresolved relationships. But Coppola loses control halfway through, and an outrageous scene involving mysticism and a weepy conclusion destroy the mood. Grade: B-minus.

The Color of Money (R) — Paul Newman, Tom Cruise, Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio. (Drama) "Two brothers and a stranger" is a hustle that Fast Eddie Felson teaches his pool protege Vince. Unfortunately, the audience is the stranger who gets taken. You expect the cool Newman and untamed Cruise to put on a good show, but they founder in disjointed subplots — unresolved sexual tension between Felson and Vince's girlfriend; threatened revenge from Felson's spurned pool shark. Meanwhile, director Martin Scorsese, with grandiose close-ups and glossy imagery, makes nine-ball the real star. Biggest con of the season. Grade: C.

Children of a Lesser God (R) — William Hurt, Marlee Matlin, Piper Laurie, Philip Bosco. (Drama) This Tony-award winning play makes the transition from stage to screen with dignity intact. Both Hurt and Matlin deserve Oscar nominations for their physically and emotionally draining roles as a teacher and student who fall passionately in love. Matlin is especially wonderful, and her transcendent beauty and unique expressiveness are inspirational. This is the first must-see fall film of 1986. Love does have a language all its own. Grade: A-minus.

Crocodile Dundee (PG-13) — Paul Hogan, Linda Kozlowski, Mark Blum. (Comedy) The leather-skinned Dundee, best known for his Australian tourism commercials, makes a likable leading man in this comedic traveltogue. An attractive reporter (Kozlowski) meets Hogan in the Australian bush, takes him to New York City and falls in love with him. Yuks abound when the naive Dundee makes his way around the big city, and there is just enough action (crocodile killing, snake wrestling, fish sparring) to keep audiences from squirming at the silliness. This is light fall fare. Grade: B-minus.

Stand by Me (R) — Richard Dreyfuss, Wil Wheaton, River Phoenix, Corey Feldman, Jerry O'Connell. (Adventure-Drama) It's a shame Rob Reiner's latest film is rated R (for strong language), because those who stand to gain the most — the under-17 crowd — can't see it without parental supervision. The skeletal plot is based on Stephen King's autobiographical novella, "The Body." Four boys, living in the '60s, journey to find another boy's dead body. There is no horror, simply well-defined characters, lulling comedy and one of the best studies of friendship and coming of age to hit the screen. The case is flawless, and Reiner has directed with a heartwarming sensitivity. Bring tissues! Grade: B-plus.

'Soul Man' mild but amiable

By Bob Thomas
The Associated Press

Did you believe Dustin Hoffman as the soap opera actress in "Tootsie"? If so, you might be able to accept the WASP actor C. Thomas Howell as a black law student. That is vital for the enjoyment of "Soul Man," a mild but amiable farce from New World Pictures.

With beige makeup and a wig that seems out from an old Persian lamb coat, Howell would never be mistaken for Eddie Murphy, though he does look like scores of blacks who have Caucasian features.

"Soul Man" isn't designed for realism, nor does it aim at any lofty moral. It was concocted strictly for laughs, and it delivers an adequate number.

Howell plays Mark Watson, a callous son of the rich who is bright enough to gain entrance to Harvard Law School. But then his father, acting on his shrink's advice, withdraws financial support. Howell discovers a scholarship for black students is open. He takes an overdose of tanning pills and applies. His buddy and fellow law student, Ayre Gross, goes along with the scheme.

Complications multiply after

Cinema Review

Howell arrives at Harvard. He falls in love with a black student, Rae Dawn Chong, whose chance for the same scholarship he has robbed. He is pursued by his landlord's randy daughter, Melora Hardin, who believes the myths about black men as lovers. He arrives at a sedate and conservative black students meeting dressed like a revolutionary. Then his parents arrive at his apartment as he is trying to hide the landlord's daughter and placate his sweetheart.

Howell is exposed and tried before a faculty-student tribunal, where Gross defends him in a movie-stealing scene that is the film's high point.

The biggest improbability of "Soul Man" comes when Howell is allowed to remain at Harvard after declaring his intention to make amends.

Carol Black's script exploits the farcical possibilities, and Steve Miner's direction maintains a light touch throughout. But "Soul Man" is no social treatise, and Howell learns virtually nothing about being black. Only at the end does he deck a few white students who have been exchanging racial jokes throughout the film.

Howell performs his chores ably, but Ayre Gross has the best lines. Rae Dawn Chong provides much-needed warmth though it's hard to believe that she couldn't see through Howell's masquerade. The same for the professor, James Earl Jones, who makes John Houseman's Professor Kingsfield seem like a pussycat.

Rated PG-13 for language, bed scenes and pot-smoking. Running time: 110 minutes.

Colors cheer prison

MARION, Ill. (AP) — Soothing earth-tone walls and gleaming, razor-sharp barbed wire.

The two images mix easily in the view of Gary L. Henman, who last June became warden of the nation's toughest prison, the U.S. Penitentiary at Marion.

The 46-year-old Henman is in charge of a major, three-year renovation inside the maximum security prison. He says he wants to give the much-maligned prison a more humane look. The work began before he took over, but Henman plans to add a personal touch.

"I'm big on graphics and earth tones. It gives you a little sense of warmth," Henman said. "We want to make the place as bright and cheerful as it can be."

He mentioned research that shows certain "soft" colors have a quiet effect on behavior, and quiet behavior is something there is often a shortage of in the confining, confrontational world at Marion, where most inmates remain in their cells 23 hours a day.

"If it looks like a cage or looks like a hole, that's what it is," Henman said.

With that softer image in mind, Henman ordered decorative changes for the prison's interior.

Security, however, is never far from his mind. In addition to new paint, inmates will be getting new furniture — all of it made of concrete. Concrete bed frames, shelves, tables and desks.

Something seemingly so innocent as a chair leg or metal footlocker can be deadly inside Marion, Henman said.

"Metal and wood are prime targets for making weapons," Henman explained.

There are no earth tones in Henman's view of Marion's "mission," as it is commonly referred to by the federal Bureau of Prisons. That mission, according to Henman, is to separate the most violent, escape-prone inmates from the rest of the federal system so that other prisons are safer and more open.

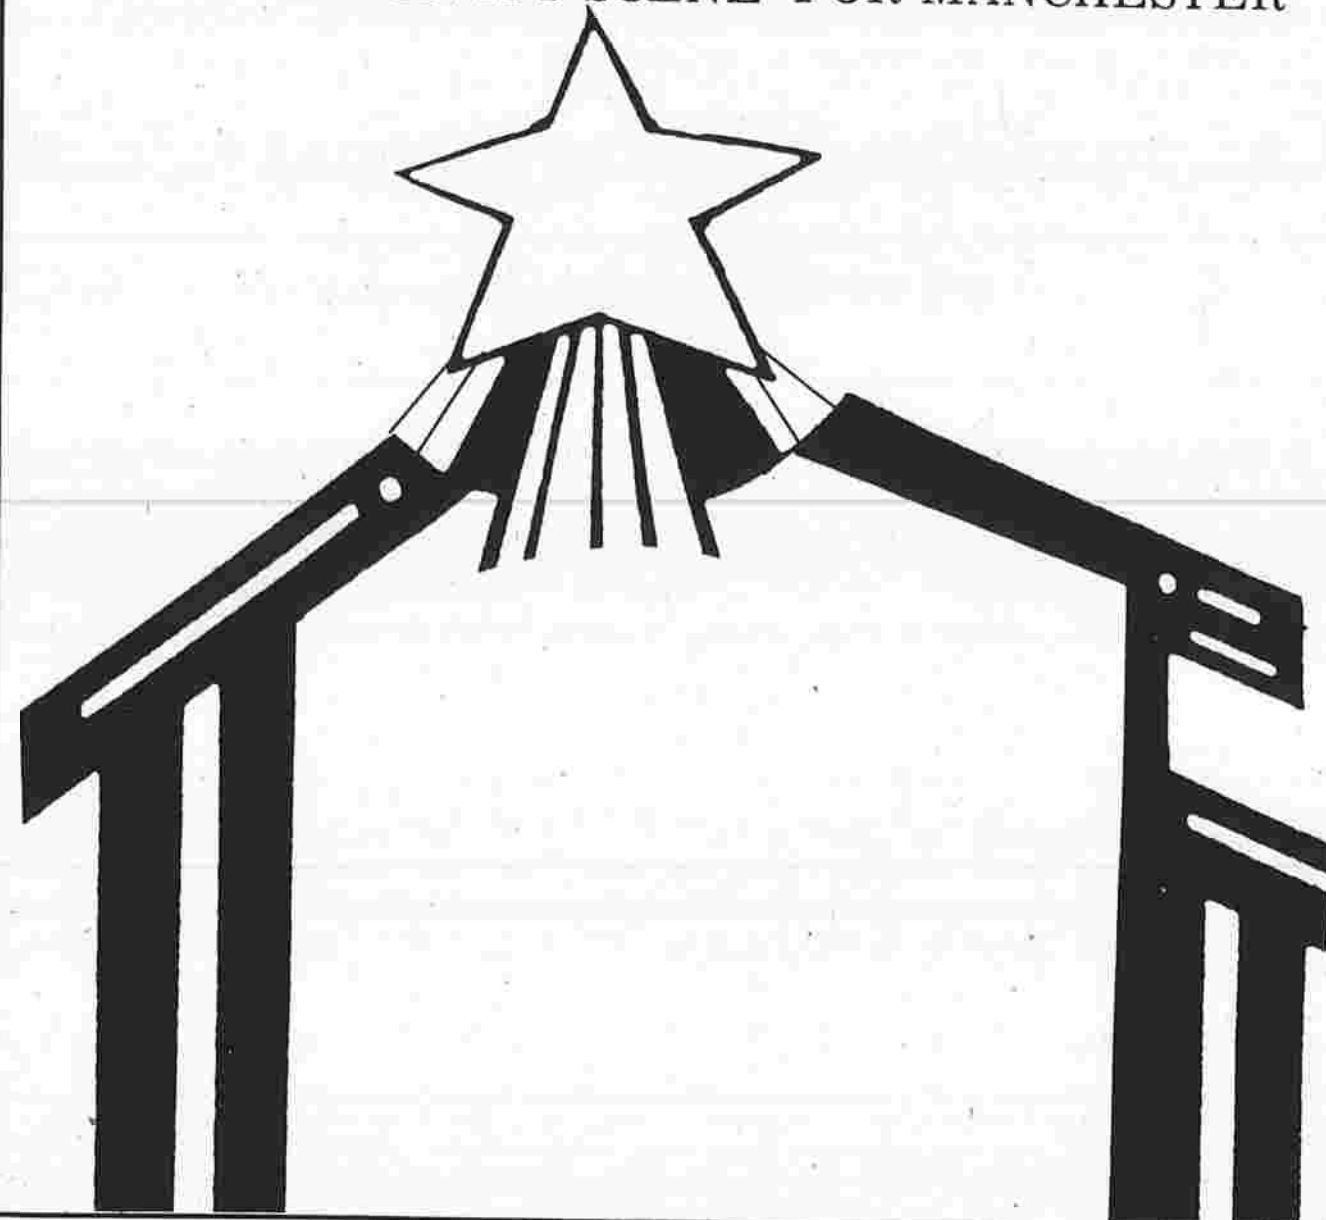

"These inmates are the failures from throughout the Bureau of Prisons," he said. "When you get here, you're at a dead end. This is it."

Marion has been locked down since 1983, when several guards and inmates were killed in prison violence.

Johnson wants bigger bucks from the Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Davey Johnson, manager of the World Series champion New York Mets, says he will not attend baseball's winter meetings next month and will not function in any managerial capacity until the club renegotiates his contract. Newsday reported Friday.

The newspaper also said that the Mets have withdrawn their offer to sign third baseman Ray Knight, winner of the Most Valuable Player award in New York's 1986 World Series triumph over the Boston Red Sox.

Johnson has two years remaining on a $225,000 per year contract with the Mets. But after the World Series, he disclosed that the agreement contained a clause that obligated the club to increase his salary if the manager of the New York Yankees received an increase. A short time later, Yankees Manager Lou Piniella was given a two-year contract worth more than $600,000.

Mets General Manager Frank Cashen acknowledged the clause and has offered an undisclosed "adjustment" in Johnson's contract. But Johnson wants to renegotiate.

He was quoted by the newspaper as saying, "I don't even know if I'm going to be under contract to them next year. What do they think of me?"

"I don't know what Cashen has in mind for the team," Johnson reportedly told the newspaper. "I'm not going to work with the ballclub. My input has not been called upon and probably will not be."

He added that he wouldn't attend the winter meetings at Hollywood, Fla., "not if they don't want to negotiate my contract."

As for the Knight situation, Mets Vice President Al Harazin was quoted as saying, "I think this will come to a head very soon. We want to know when we go to Florida (for the meetings) what the third base situation is."

New York Mets' manager Davey Johnson says he won't do any work for the club until the newly crowned World Series champs renegotiates his current contract.

Golf's Skins Game a matter of pride

By Bob Green
The Associated Press

LA QUINTA, Calif. — More than money — and there's a lot of that — is at stake this weekend in golf's Skins Game.

There is a matter of pride. "All our prides and egos," said Masters champion Jack Nicklaus.

"Nobody likes to be embarrassed," said Nicklaus, who will compete against Arnold Palmer, Lee Trevino and Fuzzy Zoeller in the made-for-television match Saturday and Sunday.

They will play for $450,000 in the 18-hole Skins Game at the new PGA West course, a Stadium Golf facility that is ranked as the most difficult course in the country.

"One of the toughest, if not the toughest, I've seen," Zoeller said.

"A very, very difficult course. It's entirely possible that a bogey could win a skin," Palmer said.

Designed by Pete Dey, the par-72 PGA West course can play to more than 7,700 yards, but will be cut back to about 7,200 for the Skins Game. The format calls for nine holes of play Saturday, with another nine on Sunday.

Each of the first six holes is worth $15,000, each of the next six carries a $25,000 value and each of the last six has a $35,000 prize. If there is not a clear-cut winner on a hole, the prize money is carried over to the next hole.

McEnroe destroys Gilbert

By Tom Saladino
The Associated Press

ATLANTA — John McEnroe needed just over an hour to destroy Brad Gilbert 6-1, 6-2 and Yannick Noah overcame a temper tantrum in the opening set to down Miloslav Mecir 6-4, 6-2 Friday to advance to the semifinals of the $500,000 AT&T Challenge tennis tournament.

In night matches, the No. 1 player in the world, Ivan Lendl, played Mikael Pernfors, who already has been eliminated after losing his first two rounds. Lendl already has clinched a spot in Saturday's semifinals as the only undefeated player in the eight-man, round-robin tournament with a 2-0 record.

In the other night match, Boris Becker, the two-time Wimbledon champion, ranked second, met No. 3 Mats Wilander.

Sunday's title match, worth $150,000 to the winner, will be televised nationally over ABC-TV beginning at 4 p.m. EST.

McEnroe, who came back from a six-month layoff in August, was back playing near his previous No. 1 ranking form. He needed only 66 minutes to dispose of Gilbert in the opening match Friday of the day-night session.

McEnroe had five aces and never let Gilbert in the match. The 27-year-old left-hander broke Gilbert's serve in the second game, held his own and breezed to the first-set victory in 28 minutes.

Gilbert, who upset McEnroe in the opening round of the Nabisco Masters in January — McEnroe's last tournament before his self-imposed hiatus from the sport — won his serve to open the second set, then fell behind 5-1 before holding service again in the seventh game.

"There was no fooling around today," said a smiling McEnroe. "I played well. This is an eight-man exhibition, but this was a big match for me."

"I'm happy about the way I played. I got on top and put him away convincingly," said world's 12th-ranked player.

"He played well and I just never got untracked," said Gilbert, ranked 13th in the world, who now has lost to McEnroe nine times in 10 meetings.

Noah, ranked fifth, was tied 4-4 with the ninth-ranked Mecir serving at break point. Noah on the verge of going up 5-4 when the chair umpire Leon Lipp called a shot down the line by Noah out.

The 28-year-old Frenchman exploded and threatened to quit.

"I'm not playing anymore. The tournament is over for me. The ball was right under his nose on the line. The guy is cheating me," Noah said to officials who tried to calm him.

After about a seven-minute delay, Noah agreed to play. He won the next two points to go ahead 5-4 and took the match on his serve.

He then eliminated the Mecir with precision tennis in the second set.

Cowboys need fix

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys have 10 days to figure out what went wrong with their NFL season, but it could already be too late for them to find a magic key to the playoffs.

The Seattle Seahawks inflicted a 31-14 Thanksgiving Day licking on the Cowboys only four days after Dallas was humbled 41-14 by Washington.

Dallas' defense collapsed in both games and the Cowboys, 7-6, have lost four of their last five games. They still have an outside chance at a second wild card in the NFC East.

"I don't think we really know what's going on," said linebacker Jeff Rohrer. "These guys are going out there and really trying hard."

Alabama not sure where it's going

By Herschel Nissenon
The Associated Press

Alabama's travel plans are up in the air pending Saturday's traditional season finale against Auburn.

Fourteenth-ranked Auburn, 8-2 overall, 3-2 in the Southeastern Conference, has a Citrus Bowl date against Southern California locked up. Seventh-ranked Alabama (9-2, 4-1) also is going bowling but doesn't know where.

Alabama needs a victory to tie LSU for the SEC championship. No. 5 LSU hosts Tulane Saturday night. If Alabama and LSU both win, the Sugar Bowl Committee will meet Sunday to pick the host team against Nebraska.

One committee member said he would try to delay the decision until the Associated Press releases its final regular-season poll Monday.

If LSU, which beat Alabama 14-10, is the Sugar Bowl's choice, the Crimson Tide will play Washington in the Sun Bowl.

Three other games involving a member of the Top Twenty find No. 12 Arizona vs. Stanford in Tokyo (1 a.m., EST, Sunday), Notre Dame at No. 17 Southern Cal and Georgia Tech at No. 18 Georgia. In addition, Brigham Young visits San Diego State for a key Western Athletic Conference game and Tennessee can nail down a trip to the Liberty Bowl by winning at Vanderbilt.

Two top bowl pairings were decided Thursday night. Top-ranked Miami, minus quarterback Vinny Testaverde, defeated East Carolina 36-10 to complete an 11-0 regular season and finalize its national championship Fiesta Bowl showdown with No. 2 Penn State. And 10th-ranked Texas A&M won its second straight Southwest Conference crown and a berth in the Cotton Bowl against Ohio State by downing Texas 16-3.

What can Alabama and Auburn do for an encore in a series that has seen the last four games decided by a total of eight points?

How about a tie? There has only been one (6-6 in 1967) in this bitter intrastate rivalry (Alabama leads 30-19-1) but it could happen again if you listen to the rival coaches.

"I think that perhaps they (Auburn) are the best team that we've played since we've been here (four years)," says Alabama's Ray Perkins. "I say perhaps. I know they're the most talented team we've faced since we've been here."

Auburn's Pat Dye calls the Crimson Tide "without question the finest Alabama team we have played against since we have been at Auburn (six years)." What makes the Alabama-Auburn rivalry extra special is that so many families in the state have ties to both schools.

"It is a special event," says Perkins. "It isn't just teams vs. teams, players vs. players, coaches vs. coaches. It's people vs. people — Alabama people vs. Auburn people."

"To Coach (Bear) Bryant, there was nothing bigger than the Auburn game. He said it was bigger than any championship game, bowl game, anything. I feel the same way that Coach Bryant did."

"When the game is over," says Dye, "there is 100 percent elation for the winner, but I don't know a word that describes how the loser feels."

Nevertheless, Dye has changed his approach to the game. After heart-breaking losses in 1984 (17-15) and 1985 (25-23), Dye insists that "I'm not going to let this game ruin my year, or my life."

The outcome of Saturday's game will not destroy what we have built in the last six years. Winning can be as destructive as losing if we don't handle it properly. The outcome won't destroy our dream because we will have a chance to play Alabama every year."

But if every game is like last year's there won't be many survivors on or off the field. Van Tiffin's 52-yard field goal as time ran out gave Alabama its triumph. Tiffin got his chance only after Al Bell ran 20 yards on a fourth-down reverse and Mike Shula passed 19 yards to Greg Richardson, who got out of bounds at the Auburn 35 with six seconds left.

"I think the two teams displayed as much class as two college teams can display," Dye said. "The lead changed hands four times in the fourth quarter and that is a good indication that both teams were laying everything they had on the line to win. There wasn't any choking on either side. I think the game will be close like it has been the last few years."

In 1984, favored Auburn disdained a chip-shot field goal with less than four minutes left that would have put it in the Sugar Bowl. The Tigers were turned back on fourth-and-goal at the 1 and missed a 42-yard field goal attempt with nine seconds remaining.

In 1983, Bo Jackson rushed for 256 yards, including touchdown runs of 69 and 71 yards, as Auburn won the SEC championship with a 23-20 victory.

After nine consecutive victories in the series, Bryant lost his last Alabama-Auburn game 23-22 in 1982. Jackson's one-yard run with 2:25 left provided the winning points as Alabama blew a 22-14 fourth-quarter lead.

Tulane Coach Mack Brown doesn't think the Sugar

Bowl situation will have any bearing on LSU's effort Saturday night.

"I think LSU is a team that plays with a lot of pride, and I don't think that they really need an incentive to win any game," he says. "LSU, obviously, is one of the best football teams in the country. They are the best team we've faced in the two years since we've been here."

However, Brown laughingly goes out of his way to remind the LSU players that "Tulane has absolutely nothing to say about who goes to the Sugar Bowl. I like those guys. They're wonderful people and I don't want them mad at us."

Although Notre Dame leads its series with Southern Cal 30-23-4, including three in a row, no other opponent has beaten the Irish more times than the Trojans. This is one of the nation's foremost inter-sectional rivalries and has been played every year since 1946.

"It's difficult to know what to tell our players after the tough losses we've had the last couple of weeks," says Notre Dame Coach Lou Holtz. "We've been so close, but we just haven't done the little things to win the close games against the great teams."

"We're not going to have a winning season now (the Irish are 4-6), but I don't think that will affect anything this week. It's a pride situation and it's a rivalry that's always been a great one for both teams."

Lou Holtz will lead the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame against the USC Trojans in their regular-season finale today.

Akers expects he will be back

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Fred Akers says he expects to be back as head football coach at the University of Texas next season and several Longhorn players say they hope he is.

Akers' fate will be decided Saturday when Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds meets with the school's athletics council. The 10-year UT coach has been the subject of firing rumors throughout the season, which ended as the Longhorns' first losing campaign in 30 years.

Texas A&M beat Texas 16-3 Thursday night to give the Longhorns a 5-6 record.

Throughout the season Dodds said Akers' performance would be reviewed after the final game.

Akers' record is 88-31-2 for a winning mark of nearly 74 percent. He succeeded Darrell Royal in 1977, after Royal ended a 20-year career as the most successful coach in Southwest Conference history.

Asked if he felt he had earned another year at the UT helm, Akers said, "Of course I do."

"If it's up to me, I'm going to be back. We have gotten used to rumors around here and we try to tune them out," he said.

Longhorn defensive tackle Brian Espinosa said "it would be a crime" if Akers did not return as coach.

"He's taken a lot of heat for our losses. It's not that man's fault. He's a good coach, a very good coach," Espinosa said.

Maryland winds up positively

By Joe Macenko
The Associated Press

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Bren Lowery and Tommy Neal helped Maryland's Terrapins end a disappointing football season on a positive note.

Lowery ran 71 yards for a touchdown on Maryland's first play from scrimmage, and Neal added three one-yard scoring runs Friday as the Terrapins posted a 42-10 Atlantic Coast Conference football victory over the Virginia Cavaliers.

"That really got us off to a good day," Neal said of Lowery's scoring run.

Neal also downplayed his three touchdowns.

"On the goal line they just gave me the ball and opened some holes," he said. "I like it down there."

The Terrapins won their 15th straight game over Virginia and their 17th in the two schools' last 18 meetings. Maryland, the three-time defending ACC champion, finished 5-5-1 overall and 2-3-1 in the ACC.

"We have been playing better each week," Coach Bobby Ross said. "But this was almost too easy, too fast."

Ross said he will make a decision in the coming days on his future as Maryland's coach. He has three years remaining on a four-year contract.

Ross said he has scheduled a team meeting for 7:30 a.m. Monday to discuss his future.

"I told them there are some things I have to deal with," he said. "I don't even want to get into it right now because I've got so many things to be thinking about." Virginia, after three straight winning seasons, wound up 3-8-0 and 2-5-0.

"We're going to put this year under a microscope," Coach George Welsh said. "We have to examine everything and not take anything for granted. We have to get back to doing the fundamental things that a good football team does."

Welsh said his team's concentration "wasn't very good. It couldn't have been with all the mistakes we made."

Sports in Brief

UConn hoop opens tonight

STORRS — The University of Connecticut basketball team will open its 1986-87 season tonight at 8 at the Field House against the University of Massachusetts. It will mark the coaching debut of first-year UConn coach Jim Calhoun. The Huskies' newest face will be freshman point guard Tate George. The clash with UMass begins a busy early-season schedule for UConn as the Huskies will play a total of seven games during the first 15 days of the regular season. UConn will have 6-10 Cliff Robinson, 6-10 Jeff King, 6-9 senior captain Gerry Bessellink and 6-4 sophomore guard Phil Gamble in the starting lineup with the 6-5 George.

UMass is led by a pair of guards, 5-11 senior Carl Smith and 6-2 Junior Lorenzo Sutton.

Whalers battle Montreal tonight

MONTREAL — The streaking Hartford Whalers will visit the defending Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens tonight at 8 at the Forum in a key Adams Division matchup. The Whalers will try to atone for their recent 3-1 loss to Montreal in the Civic Center. Hartford (10-6-3) is currently in third place in the division with 23 points and trail Montreal, the divisional leader, by only four points.

Suns activate William Bedford

PHOENIX, Ariz. — The Phoenix Suns activated rookie center William Bedford on Friday and placed veteran center James Edwards on the NBA's injured list, club officials said.

Edwards is suffering from Achilles tendinitis in his left heel and will sidelined a minimum of five games, said Suns spokesman Tom Ambrose. Bedford, the Suns' first-round draft pick last June out of Memphis State, underwent arthroscopic surgery Oct. 12 to remove bone chips in his right knee. He complained of pain the night before during a preseason game in Tucson.

Isray unhappy with Dowhower

INDIANAPOLIS — Robert Isray, owner of the 0-12 Indianapolis Colts, says he's not happy with Coach Rod Dowhower, and that he is prepared to put "out a huge sum of money" for University of Miami quarterback Vinny Testaverde.

Of Dowhower, Isray said, "I'd be a liar if I said I was happy." Dowhower is in the second year of a three-year contract, but has a two-year option. Isray made his comments in an interview published Friday with The Indianapolis News.

"We just don't keep the pressure on to get into the winning column," he said. "We go off like a bat out of hell and then stop. The reason for that will have to come from the coach."

Pro Football Today

Game of the Week
Cincinnati, 8:40, at Denver, 9:30, 4 p.m. EST.

The Broncos lead the series 8-6 and have won the last two games and four of the last five.

The Bengals' 38-21 victory at home in 1981 is their only win over Denver in 10 years.

Spotlight
"I just felt like I was a scapegoat at that point, and I think all the scapegoats throughout history have always fought back, whether it be the blacks or the Jews or Boomer Eason." — Cincinnati quarterback Boomer Eason on his benching at Houston Nov. 9.

"I think he's the type of guy that if he gets a good start, he can pass for 300 or 400 yards. But if you can get on him early, you can get him rattled a little bit." — Cleveland linebacker Clay Matthews on Houston quarterback Warren Moon.

Tough Guy Points
Rick Bryan of the Falcons has played in every game this season despite breaking his leg in training camp. He has six sacks, a fumble recovery.

"It hurts. Heck, yes. It hurts. The crack in there is bigger than before. They kept telling me it would be okay. But I guess it would be OK if you didn't collide into people for a living."

Modesty
"I figure we've been carrying (the team) since Day One." — Chicago defensive end Richard Dent on the Bears' defense.

Held That Telecast
The Saints and the NFL have gone to court to stop 14 saloons and restaurants from showing satellite transmissions of blacked-out Saints home games.

As of Friday, approximately 14,000 tickets were unsold for the game against New England at the Superdome, spokeswoman Sylvia Alforth said. At New Orleans' last home game on Nov. 9, 2,019 tickets were not sold.

The Saints and the league are asking for an injunction to stop the showings until a trial is held, and are seeking $10,000 in damages from each bar and restaurant involved.

Lies At The Bottom
Blaise Winter, a tackle drafted by Indianapolis in 1984 and waived Oct. 14, said he has trouble believing that the Colts are winless.

"With the personnel they have, I can't believe it. But with their attitude, yes, I can," said Winter, who was signed this week by San Diego. "That's the No. 1 problem with the team. They have a lot of talent. The most important thing is to have the right frame of mind, the right attitude."

Indianapolis ranks last in the AFC in rushing, 12th in offense and 10th in passing and rushing defense.

Numerology
Detroit's 22 points in the first half in its 44-40 loss to Green Bay were the most the Lions have scored in a first half this season.

Dallas' 31-14 loss to Seattle was the Cowboys' fourth defeat in 19 Thanksgiving games and their first since 1979.

Sports in Brief

Purdue after Ron Meyer

INDIANAPOLIS — Ron Meyer, a former Purdue player and assistant coach who also coached the New England Patriots in the NFL, is expected to be named head football coach of the Bolleymakers, according to a report published Friday.

The Indianapolis Star said an official announcement could be made Monday or Tuesday that Meyer would succeed Leon Burtnett, who resigned after five years as Purdue's head coach.

Meyer, reached Thursday by The Star at his home in Dallas, would not comment. "I know rumors are running rampant," he said. "But there's nothing I can say at this time."

The only hitch would be if Meyer, 45, decides to remain with his highly successful Dallas agency that represents professional athletes, the newspaper reported.

Meyer is a former head coach at Nevada-Las Vegas and Southern Methodist.

He turned losing programs into winners at both schools before going in 1982 to the Patriots.

Wade Boggs a father again

TAMPA, Fla. — The wife of American League batting champion Wade Boggs has given birth to an 8-pound 2-ounce boy, Brett Anthony, the hospital announced Friday.

Deborah Boggs gave birth to the couple's second child Wednesday at 3:20 p.m. EST.

"Both mother and baby are healthy and happy," said Amy Abbott, spokeswoman for Humana Women's Hospital-Tampa.

Boggs, a third baseman for the A.L. champion Boston Red Sox, is a native of Tampa and is a resident during the off-season.

The Boggs have an 8-year-old daughter, Meagann.

Eight in running for Outland

OKLAHOMA CITY — Eight college football linemen are finalists for the 1986 Outland Trophy, which honors the outstanding interior lineman in the country. The winner of the award is to be announced Saturday night.

Players eligible for the Outland include center Ben Tamburello of Auburn and offensive linemen Chris Conlin of Penn State, Dave Croston of Iowa, Paul Kiser of Wake Forest and Danny Villa of Arizona State. Also nominated were defensive linemen Jerome Brown of Miami, Jason Buck of Brigham Young and Danny Noonan of Nebraska.

O'Neill delays discipline decision

MONTREAL — A decision on whether to discipline members of the Montreal Canadiens or Boston Bruins for a brawl has been delayed until at least Monday.

"All I can say is that it won't be made today," a spokesman for Brian O'Neill, executive vice president of the National Hockey League, said Friday.

O'Neill is investigating a fight-filled game between the Canadiens and the Bruins in Boston on Nov. 20.

Goring making playing comeback

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia — Butch Goring, a 16-year NHL veteran who was recently fired as head coach of the Boston Bruins of the NHL, will make a playing comeback with the Nova Scotia Oilers of the American Hockey League.

Glen Sather, coach and general manager of the parent Edmonton Oilers, said Thursday that Goring, 37, has agreed to a 25-game tryout with the minor-league team.

"Butch is one of the most dedicated athletes I know and he's also the kind of player we would be happy to have in our organization," he said in a prepared statement.

Goring, a fourth-round draft choice of the Los Angeles Kings in 1969, was traded to the New York Islanders in 1979-80 and played on four Stanley Cup-winning teams.

Goring, who couldn't be reached for comment, is expected to arrive in Halifax next Friday. He won both the Masterton and Lady Byng trophies in 1977-78 and was the Conn Smythe winner as the most valuable player in the 1980 Stanley Cup playoffs.

His best season was in 1978-79 when he scored 36 goals and 51 assists for the Islanders.

Atlanta (5-6-1) at Miami (6-6)

4 p.m. Sunday, CBS.
Miami has won only 4 games teams have played and is trying to go over .500 mark for 1st time this season. Atlanta is 1-6-1 over last 8 weeks. Last week, Falcons shutout by San Francisco 20-0 while Miami routed New York Jets 45-3 Monday night. Win was Dolphins' most lopsided since 43-0 victory over Jets in '75. Atlanta QB Turk Schonert completed 21 of 35 passes, 1 interception and 227 yards. Falcons are 2nd in NFL history rushing with 158.8-yard average. Atlanta has allowed more than 2 TDs in a game only twice and has yielded only 14 TD passes in '86. Dolphins scored on 7 of first 8 positions vs. Jets. QB Dan Marino threw 4 TDs with no interceptions for 2nd straight week. He was 29 of 36 passing for 288 yards. Marino has thrown a TD in 19 straight games, longest streak in NFL. WR Nat Moore caught 7 passes for 99 yards vs. New York, including 21-yard TD. RB Lorenzo Hampton ran for 148 yards, 3 TDs vs. Jets No. 1 rushing defense. Miami leads NFL in total offense (391.9 average) and pass offense (297.5). Defense has yielded only 280 and 261 total yards in last 2 games.

San Diego (2-10) at Indianapolis (0-12)

1 p.m. Sunday, NBC.
Chargers have won 3 straight over Colts, including 38-10 in most recent '84 meeting for 4-2 series edge. Last week Chargers dropped 37-31 OT decision to Raiders on Thursday night as Colts lost to Oilers 31-17 on Sunday. Chargers QB Mark Herrmann relieved starter Tom Flick with team trailing 31-10 and led TD drives of 71, 39 and 66 yards. QB Dan Fouts is probable vs. Colts. RB Gary Anderson caught 7 for 113 yards; he leads NFL running backs with 61 for 636 yards, 6 TDs. San Diego has 47 sacks and is tied with Denver for the NFL lead. RB Curtis Adams had 3 rushing TDs (19, 1 and 13 yards). Colts QB Blair Kiel replaced injured Jack Trudeau and threw for 156 yards on 7 for 15 passing. WR Bill Brooks caught 7 passes for 105 yards, including TDs of 16 and 37-yards. WR Matt Bouza (56 catches for 674 yards, 4 TDs) has caught 3-or-more passes in each game this season. P Rohn Stark leads NFL with 45.8 gross average and AFC with 37.2 net average.

Houston (3-9) at Cleveland (8-4)

1 p.m. Sunday, NBC.
AFC Central co-leader Browns have won 4 of past 5 and try for 3rd consecutive season-sweep over Oilers. Cleveland has defeated Houston 5 straight, including 23-20 win Sept. 14. Last week Houston won 2nd game in 3 weeks 31-17 over Colts. Browns completed sweep of Pittsburgh for 1st time since '69 with 37-31 OT win. Houston led 31-3 before 2 4th quarter Indianapolis TDs. QB Warren Moon threw 3 TDs on 22-35 passing for 294 yards, 2 interceptions. WR Ernest Givins caught 7 for 102 yards. WR Drew Hill was 5 for 74 yards and RB Ray Wallace 4 for 77. RB Mike Rozier led the rushing attack with 67 yards on 12 carries. Oilers have No. 2 pass defense in AFC: have allowed opposing QBs to complete only 44.6 percent of passes. Browns QB Bernie Kosar completed 28 of 46 passes for 414 yards, 2 TDs, including 36-yard TD to WR Webster Slaughter 6:37 into OT for win. Slaughter hauled in 6 receptions for 134 yards, while WR Brian Brennan caught 5 for 87. RB Kevin Mack rushed for 106 yards on 24 carries in 1st 100-yard game this year after 1000-yard season in '85. PK Matt Bahr is out for season following knee injury against Pittsburgh. Cleveland is 8-1 in this year when they score 20-or-more points.

Philadelphia (3-9) at L.A. Raiders (8-4)

4 p.m. Sunday, CBS.
First meeting between clubs since Super Bowl XV when Raiders topped Eagles 27-10. Raiders have won 8 of 9 games and trail Denver by 1 game in AFC West. Raiders hold a 41-15-1 record against NFC including 3-1 over Eagles. Eagles are 29-23 against AFC. Last week Philadelphia lost to Seattle 24-20 as Raiders won 37-31 OT game over San Diego. Eagles QB Randall Cunningham (8 of 63 vs. Seahawks) leads team in rushing with 422 yards on 45 carries. He also completed 22 of 37 passes for 215 yards. Eagles have given up NFL-record 73 sacks. Raiders' RB Marcus Allen scored a 28-yard

Jim Plunkett (16) has led the surging Los Angeles Raiders. They host the Philadelphia Eagles on Sunday.

TD run 8:33 into overtime for victory. QB Jim Plunkett completed 23 of 40 passes for 348 yards, 2 TDs and 1 interception. TE Todd Christensen had 11 catches for 173 yards and took over NFL reception lead with 76 for 924 yards, 6 TDs. P Ray Guy has not had punt blocked in past 598 kicks, 2nd longest streak in NFL history to Jets Dave Jennings (623 with N.Y. Giants, 1976-83). Raiders lead AFC in total defense (281.3 average yield).

Washington (10-2) at St. Louis (3-9)

1 p.m. Sunday, CBS.
Redskins can clinch at least a Wild Card playoff spot with 1 win, based on overall record. Cardinals have insured 2nd straight losing season. Washington has won 13 of last 15 vs. St. Louis, including 28-21 victory on Oct. 19. Both teams come off wins: Redskins dominated Dallas 41-14 while Cardinals gained unofficial Missouri championship, beating Kansas City 23-14. Redskins led 34-0 for most points ever scored vs. Cowboys in 1st half. QB Jay Schroeder threw for 325 yards on 16 of 31 passing, 1 interception and 2 TDs. WR Gary Clark had 8 receptions for 152 yards against Dallas; he leads NFL with 66 catches (1,126 yards, 6 TDs). RB George Rogers rushed for 75 yards in 10 carries, 1 TD before leaving game with injury. RB Kelvin Bryant scored twice, 22 and 1-yard TD runs. Redskins have at least 1 sack in 43 straight games, longest active NFL streak. Cardinals QB Neil Lomax returned to starting lineup vs. Chiefs and completed 17 of 29 for 185 yards, 3 TDs with 1 interception. WR J.T. Smith caught 4 and 25-yard TDs and has 57 receptions for 728 yards.

Tampa Bay (2-10) at Minnesota (6-6)

1 p.m. Sunday, CBS.
Vikings have 4 straight wins over NFC Central rival Buccaneers, including a 23-10 win Sept. 14. A Vikings loss or Chicago win clinches division title for Bears. Last week: Buccaneers lost to Detroit 38-17 while Minnesota fell to Cincinnati 24-20 for their 4th loss by total of 15 points in past 5 games. QB Steve Young was 23-32 passing for 218 yards, 2 interceptions and 2 TDs. Young's 7 interceptions are fewest among active NFC QBs. RB James Wilder ran for 130 yards on 24 carries. He also caught 7 passes for 91 yards. Vikings QB started for Tommy Kramer and completed 15 of 32 for 181 yards. Kramer (thumb) is questionable this week. CB Issiac Holt, 49ers Ronnie Lott and Patriots Ronnie Lippett each have 8 interceptions to tie for NFL lead. WR Anthony Carter caught 4 passes for 79 yards; he has 6 TDs in his 24 catches this season. Vikings 21 turnovers (11 interceptions, 10 lost fumbles) are 2nd fewest in NFC.

N.Y. Giants at 49ers (7-4-1)

9 p.m. Monday, ABC
49ers looking for 3rd straight home victory against NFC East co-leader Giants, who have won their last five. Giants can clinch at least a Wild Card playoff berth with a win. Giants have not won 6 in row since '70. New York leads overall series 10-7, including a 17-3 first round playoff victory last year. Giants outlasted Denver 19-16 last week on Raul Allegre 34-yard FG with 6 seconds left. San Francisco scored all their points in the first half and shutout Atlanta 20-0 to stay one-half game behind leading Los Angeles Rams. Allegre made 4 FGs vs. Broncos had 5 the week before against Minnesota and is 19 of 25 since signing with Giants Sept. 25. QB Phil Simms was just 11 of 20 for 148 yards against Denver. RB Joe Morris rushed 23 times for 106 yards and has 1,146, 2nd behind Rams Eric Dickerson. Mark Bavaro leads NFC tight ends with 47 catches, 691 yards. Giants tied with Bears for NFC sack lead (45). LB Lawrence Taylor leads the league with 16½. 49ers QB Joe Montana completed 21 of 32 passes for 233 yards, 1 TD and no interceptions. RB Roger Craig rushed 17 times for 101 yards against Falcons. WR Dwight Clark caught 4 passes for 83 yards and became the 7th player to catch a pass in 100 consecutive games. WR Jerry Rice continues to lead the NFL with 1,281 yards receiving on 65 catches. DE Charles Haley had 3 sacks against Falcons. S Ronnie Lott is tied for NFL interception lead at 8. 49ers are No. 1 in NFC offense (372.9-yard average).

Pittsburgh (4-8) at Chicago (10-2)

1 p.m. Sunday, NBC.
A Bears' win or Vikings' loss clinches third straight NFC Central division title. Steelers win keeps alive hopes for .500 season. Chicago holds a 13-4-1 overall series mark against Pittsburgh, including 7-0 record at home. Last week Pittsburgh lost overtime game to Cleveland 37-31 as Chicago defeated Green Bay 12-10. Steelers came back to tie Cleveland 4 times, including PK Gary Anderson's 40-yard FG with 7 seconds left in regulation. QB Mark Malone was 17 for 28, 197 yards, 1 interception and 2 1-yard TD runs. RB Walter Abercrombie rushed for 91 yards on 15 carries, including 2 TDs (1 and 38-yard runs). Steelers have not allowed 4th quarter TD in past 6 games; have scored last 16 times inside their opponents' 20 (14 TDs, 2 FGs). Bears QB Jim McMahon started against Green Bay, but had to be taken out after re-injuring right shoulder on late hit by Packers Charles Martin (resulting in 2-game Martin suspension pending appeal). DE Dan Hampton had 3½ sacks and a safety against Packers. RB Walter Payton (17 carries, 85 yards vs. Green Bay) has 1,031 yards this year, extending consecutive 1,000-yard seasons to 10. Payton will play in 17th NFL game; only game he missed was against Steelers in '75. Chicago has allowed just 140 points and has league's leading defense (262-yard average yield).

Cincinnati (8-4) at Denver (9-3)

4 p.m. Sunday, NBC.
Game showcases 2 of 4 AFC Division leaders. Cincinnati is tied with Cleveland for Central lead and Denver is one game ahead of Los Angeles Raiders in West. Broncos have taken last two games and lead overall series 8-6. Bengals have the No. 2 AFC offense (381.3 avg.) and No. 1 AFC rushing offense (147.4 avg.), while Broncos have No. 3 AFC defense (283.7 average yield) and No. 2 AFC rushing defense (85.5). Last week Bengals edged Vikings 24-21. Broncos lost to Giants 19-16. Bengals offense had over 400 yards for 3rd straight week and defense gave up only 48 yards in 2nd half to beat Minnesota. Bengals QB Boomer Esiason was 17 of 25 passing for 252 yards and 1 TD. WR Eddie Brown caught 5 passes for 92 yards. RB James Brooks is 2nd in AFC with 775 yards on 153 carries. Denver had tied Giants at 16 but a Raul Allegre FG gave Giants the win. QB John Elway threw for 336 yards on 29 of 47 passing and 2 interceptions. RB Sammy Winder is 3rd in AFC rushing with 664 yards on 185 carries, 6 TDs. WR Mark Jackson (3 catches for 47 yards vs. Giants) leads all AFC rookies with 20.6 yard per catch average (25 catches for 514). Broncos 47 sacks tied for NFL lead with San Diego, DE Rulon Jones leads AFC with 13½. Broncos are 9-0 this season when they score 20-or-more points.

L.A. Rams (8-4) at N.Y. Jets (10-2)

1 p.m. Sunday, CBS.
Two division leaders feeling pressure to keep winning. Rams have slim one-half game lead over San Francisco, while Jets margin narrowed to one over charging New England. Teams are 2-2 in overall series following Jets 27-24 OT win in '83. New York is 2-0 against NFC West (28-23 over Saints; 26-14 over Falcons). Los Angeles is 1-1 against AFC East (24-7 over Colts; lost to Patriots 30-28). Last week, Rams beat New Orleans 26-13 as Jets were pounded by Miami 45-3 on Monday night, ending 9-game winning streak. Rams RB Eric Dickerson gained 116 yards vs. Saints and leads NFL in rushing with 1,116 on 299 carries. QB Jim Everett was 7 for 20 passing, 56 yards, 2 interceptions and a 4-yard scoring run. PK Mike Lansford accounted for 14 points with 4 FGs (32, 47, 29 and 44 yards) and 2 PATs. S Nolan Cromwell had 2 interceptions and forced a fumble vs. New Orleans. Rams opponents have converted on NFL-low 27.2 percent of 3rd downs (46 of 169). Jets yielded 189 rushing yards to Miami, including 148 for Lorenzo Hampton. New York's defense, however, still leads AFC vs. rush (78.8 yards allowed per game). Jets QB Ken O'Brien continues to lead NFL passers with 104.8 points. He was 11 for 21 against Dolphins, throwing for 168 yards and 1 interception before yielding to Pat Ryan in 2nd half. WR Al Toon is 2nd in NFL with 70 catches for 988 yards, 8 TDs. His partner WR Wesley Walker has caught 42 for 912 and leads AFC with 12 TDs. P Dave Jennings has AFC leading 21 punts inside opponents 20.

New England (9-3) at New Orleans (6-6)

1 p.m. Sunday, NBC.
Patriots find themselves riding 6 game win streak and only 1 game behind AFC East-leading Jets. Saints fighting for first winning record in teams 20-year history. New England has won only 3 games teams have ever played. Last week, Patriots rallied past Buffalo 22-19 as New Orleans lost to Los Angeles Rams 26-13. Patriots TE Greg Batty scored 1st NFL TD (13-yard reception) with 1:40 left vs. Bills to seal win. QB Tony Eason completed 24 of 33 passes for 229 yards, 1 interception and 1 TD. RB Tony Collins caught 8 passes for 84 yards against Buffalo; he has 50 catches, 541 yards, 4 TDs this season. WR Stanley Morgan (3-45 yards) has 60 receptions for 1,064 yards, 7 TDs. PK Tony Franklin has made 14 consecutive FGs and has a FG in 17 straight games. He leads the NFL with 120 points. Patriots are only team to score 20-or-more points in each game this season. Defense is 1st in AFC vs. pass (164.9 average yield). Patriots are 7-0 this year when they score 1st. Saints Rubeen Mayes leads NFL rookies in rushing yardage with 881 on 182 carries. QB David Wilson passed for 236 yards (24-43), 1 TD and 4 interceptions. WR Eric Martin caught 7 passes for 67 yards, including a 4-yard TD. KR-WR Mel Gray has a 27.5-yard kick off return average for 2nd in the NFL.

Buffalo (3-9) at Kansas City (7-5)

1 p.m. Sunday, NBC.
Bills coach Marv Levy returns to Kansas City where he was head coach from '79-82 to try and end 22-game road losing streak; last win was at Arrowhead Stadium, 14-9, in '83. Bills lead series 14-11-1. Both teams lost last week: the Chiefs, 23-14, to cross-state rivals St. Louis, while the Bills lost to New England 22-19. Trailing 15-0, Buffalo scored 19 straight points, but lost on Greg Batty 13-yard TD catch with 1:40 remaining. Bills QB Jim Kelly completed 22 of 32 passes for 250 yards, 2 interceptions and 1 TD. RB Robb Riddick caught 6 passes for 95 yards, 1 TD. Bills mustered 49 yards on ground in 20 attempts. Buffalo called for 9 penalties, 65 yards. PK Scott Norwood made 4 FGs (28, 33, 34 and 48-yards) against Patriots. Buffalo defense has held last 3 opponents to under 100 yards rushing. DE Bruce Smith leads club with 11 sacks. Kansas City fell behind Cardinals 23-0 before 2 Bill Kenney to Stephane Paige TDs. Kenney threw for 223 yards (24-43) and 2 interceptions. WR Henry Marshall had 6 receptions for 83 yards as Chiefs used 11 receivers. WR Paige has 35 catches for 605 yards, 8 TDs. Chiefs defense still has not allowed 100-yard rusher or 300-yard passer.

Bears can clinch division

By The Associated Press

The Chicago Bears, becoming accustomed to playing without first-string quarterback Jim McMahon and winning with a first-string defense, can become the first NFL team to clinch a division title this season.

The Bears, four games ahead of the Minnesota Vikings in the NFC Central with four games remaining, can wrap up their third straight division crown Sunday with a victory at home against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The Super Bowl winners, with a 10-2 record, also can become division champions if the Vikings are upset at home by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

In other NFL games Sunday, it will be the Los Angeles Rams at the New York Jets, Washington at St. Louis, Cincinnati at Denver, Houston at Cleveland, New England at New Orleans, Philadelphia at the Los Angeles Raiders, Buffalo at Kansas City, Atlanta at Miami and San Diego at still winless Indianapolis.

Monday night, it's the New York Giants at San Francisco. The long NFL weekend began Thursday, with the Green Bay Packers outscoring the Detroit Lions 44-40, and the Seattle Seahawks upsetting the Dallas Cowboys 31-14.

The injury prone McMahon, who has led the Bears to victories in his last 23 consecutive starts, is out for the season with a shoulder injury and faces surgery next month. Without McMahon, who has been sidelined much of the season with the shoulder problem and was knocked out of commission for the year last Sunday on a late hit by the Packers' Charles Martin, the Bears' offense has been struggling.

However, the defense, ranked No. 1 in the league, has been outstanding. It has allowed only 140 points, fewest in the NFL. It has allowed only three touchdowns in the last five games. It has allowed only four rushing touchdowns TDs this season. And it has sacked opposing quarterbacks 17 times in the last three games.

"I figure we've been carrying (the team) since day one," said defensive end Richard Dent, the most valuable player in the Bears' Super Bowl victory over New England last January.

"We've been having quarterback troubles all season long — so it won't be any different. The way I see it, it's a defensive struggle."

Coach Mike Ditka acknowledged that the defense has been carrying the Bears.

"Our defense is having fun," he said. "They're playing football the way it should be played."

"We don't worry about what's happening on offense," linebacker Wilbur Marshall said. "Of course, we want them to score. But... if we keep playing like we've been playing, then we won't have anything to worry about."

With McMahon out, the Bears will start Mike Tomczak at quarterback. Behind him are veteran Steve Fuller and rookie Doug Flutie.

The Steelers, 4-8, have been eliminated from playoff contention, but are trying to salvage something out of their worst season since they were 1-13 in 1969.

"There's no excuse for... (a letdown) at this level," Steelers' center Mike Webster said. "You're cheating your teammates when you allow that to happen."

NFL Roundup

The Vikings, 6-6, have lost four of their last five games, the four setbacks by a total of 15 points, and have virtually fallen out of playoff contention. They are hoping that quarterback Tommy Kramer, bothered by a thumb injury, will be ready to play against Tampa Bay, 2-10.

The Rams-Jets game will be a matchup of division leaders. The Rams, 8-4, lead the NFC West by a half-game over San Francisco, while the Jets, 10-2, are ahead of New England by one game in the AFC East.

Los Angeles has the league's leading rusher in Eric Dickerson, but rookie quarterback Jim Everett followed a sensational debut two weeks ago with a disappointing performance last Sunday.

The Jets had their nine-game winning streak snapped Monday night in a disastrous 45-3 performance against Miami. They still are hurting defensively, with injuries to linemen Mark Gastineau, Joe Klecko and Marty Lyons, linebacker Lance Mehl, and defensive backs Russell Carter and Johnny Lynn.

Washington, 10-2 and tied with the Giants for the NFC East lead, has played exceptionally well the last two games, beating San Francisco and Dallas. However, the Redskins could be without standout running back George Rogers, bothered with a shoulder injury, against St. Louis, 3-9.

The Cincinnati-Denver game is another matchup of division leaders. The Bengals, 8-4, are tied with Cleveland for first place in the AFC Central. The Broncos, 9-3, are on top in the AFC West.

The Bengals have specialized in close games. They have been involved in seven games decided by seven points or less and won six.

The Broncos have been winning with defense, while their offense has sputtered — quarterback John Elway has thrown only three TD passes while being intercepted eight times in the last six games.

Cleveland's offense has been thriving on the passing of Bernie Kosar, who has thrown for more than 400 yards in two of the last three games. Against Houston, he will be facing the AFC's second-ranked pass defense.

New England, the only NFL team to score at least 20 points in each game this season, takes a six-game winning streak and a 9-3 record against New Orleans, 6-6 and seeking its first winning record in the team's 20-year history. But the Patriots are hurting. Six players, including linebackers Andre Tippett and Steve Nelson, and wide receiver Irving Fryar, are likely to miss Sunday's game.

50th edition will be hard to match

Main Street, Manchester, Ct., USA, on Thanksgiving morning in 1986 was a shining example of which every community in this great country of ours would have been proud to boast.

The 50th anniversary of the Manchester Road Race is now just another page in the history book but any one of the record thousands that congregated at vantage points on Main Street can attest to a spectacle that will be hard to match. Total attendance around the course was estimated at 40,000.

Unofficially, more than 6,400 men, women and children, attired in an assortment of colors and racing gear took part in the Golden Anniversary run over Manchester's paved streets.

Each year it's a thrill to view the start, and finish, of the race, at least from this writer who has seen them all since 1930, and Thursday's promotion was no exception. It's a carnival atmosphere unequalled.

Just standing in the 44-degree temperature, which was chilly under a bright blue sky, listening to Jim Balcome, race director, count down the seconds at intervals leading up to the 10 a.m. start was done with a touch of top Hollywood showmanship.

The runners, led by the favorites up front as is customary for all races, could be seen checking their stop watches while awaiting the word go.

Behind were thousands of also-rans, the bulk of the field, in designated time slots as to their expected times to cover the full distance.

When starter Lee Fracchia raised his gun which sent the runners south on Main Street, at exactly 10 on the Savings Bank of Manchester clock, the record crowd roared its approval, along with hundreds of runners who can now boast they ran with former Olympians Geoff Smith, Bill Rodgers, John Gregorek and winner John Doherty.

It required two minutes and 22 seconds before the last runner in the field reached the official starting line, Main Street was blanketed from sidewalk to sidewalk with runners, 25 to 30 abreast, of all shapes and sizes heading for the goal... the finish line. Most made it although there were dropouts along the 4.77-mile route.

There is no promotion in Manchester that brings the town more favorable publicity than the Road Race. The event has put Manchester on the map, known today from coast to coast as the home of one of the premier road races in the country.

Main Street, Manchester, Ct. won't have as much life again for another year.

I told you so

Tim Moriarty, who has had a big hand in luring Irish-born runners to Manchester over the last decade along with P.J. Tierney, correctly predicted last June that John Doherty would enter and win the Road Race in Manchester in 1986. "He's an Irishman who was born in England," Moriarty quipped. Both Doherty's parents are Irish.

Henry Minor, deputy police chief, and in charge of policing the record crowd last Thursday, said 54 uniformed men from his department were assigned to strategic areas, complemented by members of the Eighth District and Manchester Fire Departments. Crowds control was A-1.

Don't ever tab Steve Gates superstitious. The veteran local runner has, at his request, worn No. 13 in all his Road Race appearances dating back 15 years.

Special numbers, too, were worn by Charlie Robbins, Amby Burfoot and Paul Phinney Robbins had No. 1 for being the oldest in point of races, 35 in a row, 41 overall;

Burfoot for being a nine-time winner; Phinney as a reminder of a shell that shattered his leg in World War II.

He fought doctors to save the leg, recovered and eventually resumed running. He's a former coach at Manchester High, now coaching at Falmouth, Mass., High and the Massachusetts Maritime Academy.

Flaws noted

Once again area news photographers, with credentials, were told their assigned area at the finish line was out of bounds. And the media was left holding the bag while waiting to interview champion Doherty in the press room at the Army and Navy Club. Doherty never made it. And once again the press room was anything but, with more non-media in attendance just enjoying a social hour. Lack of a public relations director is more noticeable each year. The race has grown and gained big league status in many respects but it can still stand improvement in a number of areas.

Three of the top four finishers in the grandmaster's division (60 and over) got together after the race Thursday at the awards ceremony at Nathan Hale School. (From left) John Treeworthy, of North Haven, who finished third, Charlie Robbins, who took fourth, and Frank DiMarco, of South Windsor, who took the division, talk things over.

Testaverde's injury got Paterno's attention

By Walter Berry
The Associated Press

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Penn State football Coach Joe Paterno said Friday that he feared the national championship game between his second-ranked Nittany Lions and No. 1 Miami (Fla.) in the Jan. 2 Sunbist Fiesta Bowl was history when Hurricanes senior quarterback Vinny Testaverde got hurt.

Testaverde suffered severe cuts and bruises when he crashed his motor scooter Tuesday night and missed Miami's regular-season finale Thursday night against East Carolina in a game the Hurricanes had to win to ensure the Fiesta Bowl matchup.

"When I first heard, I said 'Oh, boy.' My first reaction was 'Ah, nuts!'" Paterno said in a telephone conference call. "But my second thought was, 'They'll pull through.' Miami is so talented, they still do so many things well even without Vinny. They sucked it up and just played a little harder."

With senior backup Geoff Torretta passing for 328 yards and three touchdowns, the Hurricanes won 36-10 and wrapped up their first undefeated regular-season at 11-0.

Penn State also is 11-0. The 16th annual Fiesta Bowl, played in suburban Tempe, will mark the first time since the 1973 Sugar Bowl that two unbeaten and untied teams will meet in a bowl game.

"To be able to play in a game of this magnitude is thrilling," Paterno said. "Having a football game as highlighted as this has got to help college football."

"We've very excited about it," said Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson. "We think that it'll be a great ballgame."

Johnson, who was riding in a car behind Testaverde at the time of the accident, said, "Luckily Vinny had his helmet on. The only injuries he suffered were abrasions. He's still very sore, but he will be able to play in the bowl game."

It'll be the first time the two schools have met since 1981 and the first time ever in bowl competition. In the overall series, Penn State leads 5-3, but Miami has won two of the last three games — in 1979 and 1981.

The Hurricanes, who won the national title in 1983, are 5-7 in bowl games and 2-0 in Jan. 2 games. They won the 1981 Peach Bowl and 1984 Orange Bowl on that date.

Penn State, which won a national title in 1973, is 14-7-2 in bowl games with wins in five of its last six outings. The Nittany Lions have won all three of their previous Fiesta appearances — in 1977, 1980 and 1982.

Miami lost 39-37 to UCLA in the 1985 Fiesta Bowl in its only previous visit.

"They're as strong a team as there is this year," Paterno said. "They have as much offensive talent as we've ever played against and they're the best offensive team we've played as far as balance. They have a super quarterback, outstanding running backs and superior wideouts. Defensively, they're very strong and tough. They're a great all-around football team."

Penn State used gadget plays in the 1980 and 1982 Fiesta games, and Paterno said "we may need some more against Miami. How many, I don't know. We may have to use a lot of things."

Johnson said the Nittany Lions are "the most experienced team I've seen. They have 14 senior starters. We have seven — five on offense and two on defense. When they have that much experience, you know they're not going to turn the ball over. We can't afford to either."

Both Paterno and Johnson scoffed at insinuations that their club's unblemished records are tainted because they played weak schedules this year.

Sabres saw off Bruins

By The Associated Press

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Phil Housley scored two power-play goals Friday night and Paul Cyr netted the game-winner as the Buffalo Sabres snapped an eight-game winless streak with a 4-3 NHL victory over the Boston Bruins.

It was the first victory for Buffalo Coach Craig Ramsay since he officially took over the team on Nov. 6. In four games against Boston this season, the Sabres have won three and tied the other.

Scott Arniel had Buffalo's other goal. Cam Neely, Tom McCarthy and Keith Crowder scored for Boston. Arniel gave Buffalo a 1-0 lead at 2:46 of the first period, banging a rebound through the legs of Boston goalie Pat Riggin for his first goal of the season.

Housley made it 2-0 at 16:33, blasting in a 15-footer after taking a drop pass from Lindy Ruff.

North Stars 6, Maple Leafs 3

At Bloomington, Brian Lawton scored two goals and set up another and Craig Hartsburg added three assists as the Minnesota North Stars continued their mastery over the Toronto Maple Leafs with a 6-3 NHL win Friday night.

Minnesota, which hasn't lost to Toronto in the teams' last 11 meetings, closed to within 6 points of the Norris Division-leading Maple Leafs. The North Stars won their third straight to improve their record to 8-11-2, while Toronto fell to 10-9-4.

Blues 2, Red Wings 1

At Detroit, Mark Hunter's second goal of the game at 4:10 of overtime lifted the St. Louis Blues to a 2-1 NHL victory over the Detroit Red Wings Friday night.

Doug Evans, called up from the Blues' farm club in Peoria, Ill. on Thursday, assisted on both St. Louis goals, his first assists in the big leagues.

Hunter took a pass from Bernie Federko, skated over the Detroit blue line and blasted an slapshot through the legs of Red Wings goalie Sam St. Laurent for his 11th goal of the season. The puck appeared to nick St. Laurent's pads, but still had more than enough steam to go the remaining 10 feet into the net.

Flyers 4, Capitals 2

At Landover, Md., Peter Zedel broke a 1-1 tie on a power play goal at 5:40 of the second period and the Philadelphia Flyers went on to defeat Washington 4-2 Friday night, extending its NHL mastery over the Capitals.

Philadelphia, first in the Patrick Division, extended its unbeaten streak to five in a row while Washington failed to win for the ninth consecutive game. The Flyers have a 42-17-8 lifetime record against the Caps.

Zedel's go-ahead goal came 38 seconds into Philadelphia's second consecutive powerplay attempt. He deflected a shot from the right point by Brad McCrimmon between the legs of goalie Bob Mason.

Ron Hextall, a rookie who leads the NHL in victories, made 25 saves while beating Washington for the third time and increasing his record 14-3.

Wolfpack plays beat the clock

By The Associated Press

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Walker Lambiotte sank two free throws with no time showing on the clock Friday as the 17th-ranked North Carolina State Wolfpack held off Texas 69-68 in the opening round of the Great Alaska Shootout.

In the first game, 10th-ranked Iowa used a balanced scoring attack led by Roy Marble's 18-point effort to offset a 37-point performance by Alaska-Anchorage's Jesse Jackson for a 91-81 victory.

UNLV 78, Temple 76

At New York, Gerald Paddio hit a three-point goal at the buzzer to give Nevada-Las Vegas a 78-76 victory over Temple Friday night and a berth in the championship game of the National Invitation Tournament Classic.

East Catholic quarterback T.J. Allibrio is hit by Manchester's Fran Jurewicz (70) in their Thanksgiving Day game. The Eagles won, 21-7, to finish the regular season at 9-1-1. They'll play Masuk for the Class MM championship next Saturday afternoon.

East gridders battle Masuk for MM title next Saturday

Having become king of Manchester on Thanksgiving Day, the East Catholic High football team will try to add the state Class MM championship to its list of accomplishments this year next Saturday afternoon against Masuk High of Monroe at Southington High at 1:30.

Connecticut Interscholastic Athletic Conference officials made the announcement of sites and dates on all state championship games Friday.

There will be three games next Friday night with two more Saturday afternoon and the Class LL championship game, pitting No. 1

Trumbull High (11-0) against No. 2 Notre Dame of West Haven (10-0-1), capping the title games Saturday at 6 p.m. at Derby High School.

East goes into the championship game with a 9-1-1 mark and is the top-ranked school in Class MM. The Eagles will face a Masuk team that is coming off a 14-0 loss to Immaculate of Danbury in the Western Connecticut Conference title game Thanksgiving Day. Masuk goes into the title game with an 8-4 mark. This will be East's second trip to the Class MM championship game, its last venture in 1983 a winning one against Hand High of Madison.

The rest of the championship schedule has: West Haven (10-0-1) against Hall High of West Hartford (11-0) in the Class L title game Friday night at 7:30 at Willow Brook Park in New Britain; Platt (11-0) vs. Watertown (10-1) in the Class SS title game Friday night at 7:30 at Muzzy Field in Bristol; and Immaculate (11-0) vs. Derby (10-1) in the Class S championship Friday night at 7:30 at Wilton High School. On Saturday, Stratford (11-0) faces Ledyard High (9-2) for the Class M championship at 1:30 at Palmer Field in Middletown.

Erving 14 each. Kiki Vandeweghe had 22 points and Kersey 21 for Portland, which lost its third straight.

Philadelphia guard Maurice Cheeks, who suffered a bruise of his right thigh in Tuesday's game against Boston, sat out the game. Cheeks had started 120 consecutive games for the Sixers.

Pistons 120, Bucks 99

At Pontiac, Mich., Adrian Dantley scored 25 points and led a third-quarter surge Friday night that carried the Detroit Pistons to a 120-99 NBA victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

The victory was Detroit's third straight and the Pistons' first over Milwaukee in three meetings this season. The Bucks, 4-6 on the road, are 10-6 overall.

Dantley scored 19 points in the third quarter, including six in a 12-2 run early in the period that ended with a Dantley field goal and gave Detroit a 72-51 lead with 8:15 left. After a three-point field goal by Craig Hodges, Detroit ran off eight straight points, taking an 80-54 lead with 5:27 left in the third quarter.

Bill Laimbeer scored 20 points for Detroit, while Joe Dumars had 17 and Vinnie Johnson and John Salley added 13 apiece.

Jerry Reynolds led Milwaukee with a season-high 26 points, including 12 in the fourth quarter. Terry Cummings added 15.

Pacers 126, Nuggets 102

At Indianapolis, rookie Chuck Person scored seven of his 20 points in a decisive Indiana spurt to start the second half as the Pacers beat Denver 126-102 Friday, snapping their four-game losing streak and the Nuggets' four-game winning streak.

The Pacers scored the first five points of the second half, taking the lead for good on a Herb Williams jumper followed by three points from Person. That gave Indiana a 62-58 advantage and ignited a 21-6 Indiana spurt which gave the Pacers a 78-64 lead with 7:33 remaining.

Mavericks 119, Nets 94

At Dallas, Mark Aguirre scored 26 points to lead Dallas to a 119-94 triumph over the New Jersey Nets Friday night, the Mavericks' fourth straight NBA victory.

The win, coupled with Indiana's 126-102 victory over Denver, gave the Mavericks, 9-5, sole possession of first place in the Midwest Division.

Boston Celtic Robert Parish (00) and San Antonio's Alvin Robertson have their eyes glued on the basketball and go after it during National Basketball Association action Friday night at the Boston Garden. The Celtics buried the Spurs, 111-96, for their 48th consecutive home triumph.

Parish netted a dozen in the victory. The Celtics' next 'home' game will be Tuesday night at 7:30 at the Hartford Civic Center, the first of three appearances in Hartford by the NBA champions, against the Washington Bullets.

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — Larry Bird had 31 points and four other Boston starters scored in double figures Friday night as the Celtics rolled to their 48th consecutive home court victory with a 111-96 NBA romp over the San Antonio Spurs.

Kevin McHale, who has scored at least 20 points in all of Boston's 14 games this season, connected for 23. Dennis Johnson had 21, Danny Ainge 15 and Robert Parish 12. It was the Celtics' 15th consecutive victory over San Antonio in a streak dating to April 1, 1979.

The Celtics, 7-0 this season and unbeaten at home since last Dec. 6, spotted San Antonio a six-point lead before outscoring the Spurs 18-7 for a 31-26 first-period advantage.

With Bird scoring 18 points, McHale 16 and Johnson 13, Boston virtually wrapped up the game in charging to a 64-44 halftime lead.

The Celtics widened the advantage to 22 points before encountering a letdown in the third period. The Spurs closed within 76-65 before Boston regrouped and took an 88-73 lead into the fourth period.

San Antonio got to within 11 again midway through the finale, but Bird hit a 25-footer for three points and Parish hit from the baseline to kill the Spurs' last hopes.

Boston improved its record to 10-4. San Antonio dropped to 5-9 despite 30 points by Alvin Robertson. Johnny Dawkins was next for the Spurs with 13 points and Tyrone Corbin had 12.

76ers 116, Blazers 112

At Philadelphia, Charles Barkley powered his way to 31 points and 21 rebounds Friday night as the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the Portland Trail Blazers 116-112.

Barkley, playing in his third game after missing nine with a spleen injury sustained on Nov. 4, tallied 21 points in the second half. The victory was Philadelphia's third straight.

A jumper by David Wingate gave Philadelphia a 113-104 lead with 2:09 to play, but Portland went on a 9-2 surge and Jess Kersey's free throw with 28 seconds to go cut the Philadelphia lead to 114-112.

The 76ers held a 96-85 advantage with 10:30 to play, but Portland rallied to 98-95. Barkley then scored on two successive power moves to give the 76ers a 102-95 edge at the 6:17 mark.

Cliff Robinson had 17 points for the Sixers and Wingate and Julius
