Bobby Layne's friends will miss the 'player's player'

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Bobby Layne's friends say they miss him. They miss his long-time friend and Lions teammate Dick Walker. "He was a fighter all the way. Bobby never lost a game. Time just ran out on me," said Dallas defensive coordinator Eric Stautner, who roomed with Layne when they played with the Pittsburgh Steelers, after the Hall of Fame quarterback died Monday of cardiac arrest. He was 59.

Layne, who starred with the Detroit Lions and the Steelers during the '50s and '60s, had been hospitalized for more than two weeks in critical condition. He was admitted to Methodist Hospital in Lubbock on Nov. 15, suffering from internal bleeding.

Known as a "player's player" during his career, friends and teammates also remembered Layne for his competitiveness.

"He was a great guy and he was the greatest competitor I've ever seen," said Stautner.

"He was a fun-loving person that lived and played the game the right way," said former Dallas coach Tom Landry. "I knew Bobby from his days in the Chicago Bears, New York Jets, and the Pittsburgh Steelers. He was inducted this year.

Layne, the last player to play without a face mask, led Detroit to NFL championships in 1957, 1958 and 1959, and also played for the Chicago Bears, New York Jets and the Steelers in a 15-year professional career that ended in 1962.

"He quit one year too soon as far as I was concerned," Steelers owner Art Rooney said Monday. "We went right to the last game of the season (in 1962) and we talked about it often... that if he didn't quit, we would have won it."

Wherever he played after he began playing football during his high school days in the Dallas suburb of Highland Park, Layne was the star and the center of attention, on and off the field.

"He was visiting Michigan to present a Pro Football Hall of Fame ring and certificate to Dick Walker, who was inducted this year. He told reporters he hadn't gotten the city out of his system.

Another time, playing for the Steelers against Dallas, Layne kicked a fullback in the buttocks after a play. He later explained the fullback hadn't run the play properly.

When he joined the Steelers, according to one account, he took over a poker game in progress and answered a challenge from a disgruntled tackle by snarling, "I deal — I'm the quarterback."

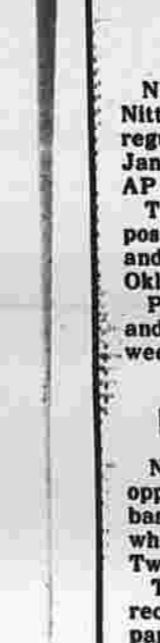

"I knew Bobby well. It wasn't a typical owner and player relationship. It was close to him. Rooney said, "He always had a reputation for being a carouser, for enjoying the night life, but I always thought that was overdone. I never believed he did that nearly as much as his reputation was."

During his 15-year career, Layne completed 1,814 of 3,700 passes for 26,780 yards and 196 touchdowns. He was elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1987.

"A lot of people thought he wasn't as good a player for us as he was for Detroit, but to me, he was in the prime of his career," Rooney said. "Bobby played some great games for us."

After retiring, Layne was quarterback coach with the Steelers from 1963-65, then with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1965. During 1966-67, he was a scout for the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1967.

In later years, Layne's interests included oil and business, but he expressed the following philosophy: "If a man works after noon, the job is too big for him in the first place."

UCLA brings back old-time religion

The UCLA Bruins brought back some of that old-time basketball religion to Pauley Pavilion Monday night.

Gaining what Coach Walt Hazzard called "one of UCLA's biggest wins," the unheralded Bruins knocked off top-ranked North Carolina 89-84 Monday night and avenged the worst defeat in their history.

"We demonstrated that our recruits are as good as anyone's, and our players can compete with anyone," said Hazzard, a one-time member of the national championship teams that used to represent UCLA in the 1960s.

The upset at Pauley was a bit of deja vu for the Bruins, who won 18 NCAA championships in the 1960s and 1970s. It also avenged last season's 107-70 embarrassment at Chapel Hill.

"The other check of my list," said UCLA forward Reggie Miller, who scored 32 points.

"I've got a lot of checks."

In earlier games involved the nation's ranked teams, it was No. 4 Purdue, Illinois State 54; No. 6 Kansas, St. Mary's 77; No. 7 Auburn, Arkansas 97; No. 8 Alabama, Furman 67; No. 15 Georgia Tech, 64; Penn 57; No. 11 Syracuse 82; George Washington 69.

Miller had seven points in the second half, and freshman Greg Foster and Trevor Wilson played key roles as the Bruins fought back, closing the game with two baskets and two free throws.

The Bruins led almost the entire way, opening a 13-point lead in the first half. Foster and Hazzard added six more in the final four minutes to shut the door on the Tar Heels, who had the opportunity to tie in the last 10 minutes.

Kenny Hill led North Carolina with 18 points. "We prepared," North Carolina Coach Dean Smith said. "In the second half, we got the shots we wanted. We were overrated, anyway."

No. 4 Purdue 66, Illinois St. 54; Troy Lewis scored 16 points and Everett Stephens and Melvin McEwen contributed 15 each as Purdue crushed four Big Ten opponents. The Boilermakers scored their second straight victory with a 21-2 burst in the second half when four Illinois State players found the hoop.

"There's really not a lot to say," said Purdue Coach Gene Keady. "We came out playing well and were them down. We hit the boards good and shot the ball well."

Illinois State Coach Bob Donawald.

"As the game developed by thoughts reflected back to 1976-77. It was (an assistant coach with Bob Knight) in Indiana. I think Gene was really kind, and it could have been a lot worse. That's the way we used to handle people (at Indiana). Now I'm getting my lunch handed to me."

No. 7 Auburn 94, Armstrong State 54; Jeff Moore had 20 points and four other players scored in double figures as Auburn defeated outmanned Southern State. The Tigers jumped to a 7-0 lead and increased it throughout the first half, holding a 58-24 advantage at halftime.

It was the fourth game in four days for the Pirates, who have lost three of the last four.

No. 17 Syracuse 62, George Washington 46; Greg Monroe scored eight points in the first 4 1/2 minutes of the second half and Syracuse used a pressing full-court defense to overcome a three-point halftime deficit and pull away from George Washington in the second half.

Monroe hit two three-point field goals and another long jumper as Syracuse reeled off a 15-5 streak to turn a 36-36 deficit into a 48-38 advantage with 15:30 remaining. Howard Triche added two baskets and Derrick Coleman had three free throws in the second half.

The Colonials benefited from Syracuse's 38 per cent shooting from the field and 16 personal fouls in the first half to take a lead that twice reached five points, the last time at 36-31.

Ways to calculate interest on CDs vary slightly

QUESTION: In October 1985, I obtained a bank certificate of deposit for $10,337.18, top compounded daily for three years at 10.25 percent. When the CD matured, the bankers said it had earned $3,243.14 interest. I argued that was no more than simple interest. After two weeks, they finally admitted they made a mistake and increased the amount of interest to $3,411. I insist the interest earned should be closer to $3,800. Who is right?

Investors' Guide

William A. Doyle

Daily compounding, of course, raises your effective annual yield substantially, because the interest earned each day is added to your balance to earn more interest. Check the provisions under which the CD was written. If, indeed, it did have a stated 10.25 percent rate, compounded daily, for a 10.85 annual effective yield, that bank owes you some $271.

I had to use the hedging words "approximately, about" and "some," because there are many small variations used to calculate exact amounts of interest earned. But none of them would result in a $271 difference in the interest on your CD.

Interestingly, you were quite right when you spotted the $3,243.14 interest originally paid on that CD as "more than simple interest." My calculator indicates that simple interest — without even annual compounding — would have resulted in your $10,337.18 earning approximately $3,240 after three years.

Since the bankers made that mistake, my recommendation is to make a hard study of the provisions spelled out when the CD was issued. If it turns out you are right and the bankers are wrong, demand the additional interest to which you are entitled.

However, you should be aware that the value of any such premium is counted as interest. And, if a bank or S&I pays a premium, the cash interest usually is reduced. When it's a fat premium, such as a TV set, no cash interest might be paid.

QUESTION: I am retired, living on Social Security benefits and withdrawing from my individual retirement account. My IRA is in bank certificates of deposit, from which I take only the interest each month. As each CD matures, I put the money into a new CD. But I cannot obtain one of the "bonus premium items," such as a free television set, the bank gives to people who put money into other accounts, including CDs. Can you tell me why?

ANSWER: Because your particular bank won't let you do that. If your bank was so inclined, it could give you a premium every time you renew a CD. Each bank and savings and loan association sets its own rules on what premium — if any — will be applied on each new account or renewal.

However, you should be aware that the value of any such premium is counted as interest. And, if a bank or S&I pays a premium, the cash interest usually is reduced. When it's a fat premium, such as a TV set, no cash interest might be paid.

ANSWER: Through a trustee-trustee IRA transfer. Inform the second bank of your plans. You'll get papers to sign. As each of your IRA CDs at the first bank matures, the money will be moved to your IRA at the second bank.

How can I do this, without penalty or forfeiture of interest?

ANSWER: Because each transfer will take place when a CD matures, the first bank can't hit you with an early withdrawal interest penalty. And there's no federal tax penalty on a trustee-to-trustee transfer.

ANSWER: That depends on the CD's exact provisions. If the CD had a stated 10.25 percent rate, compounded daily, that made its annual effective yield 10.85 percent. My handy little calculator shows that would produce approximately $3,854 interest, making you right.

However, if that CD's annual effective yield was 10.25 percent, because its stated rate was approximately 9.75 percent, the interest would be closer to $3,800. Who is right?

Unilever bails Chesebrough out of hostile takeover bid

By Peter Coy, The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Unilever on Monday rescinded Chesebrough-Pond's Inc. from a hostile takeover attempt by American Brands Inc. and agreed to buy the consumer products company for $2.1 billion.

The definitive merger agreement calls for Unilever United States Inc. to pay $2.50 per share in cash for Chesebrough, well above the $66-per-share hostile tender offer launched Monday by American Brands, which amounted to about $2 billion.

The deal was announced after hours, but Wall Street had suspected American Brands' bid would be insufficient to capture Chesebrough. In competition with the New York Stock Exchange on Monday, Chesebrough's stock closed at $68.50, up $3 from Friday.

Unilever, the Anglo-Dutch giant with 1985 sales of $21.5 billion, is one of the world's largest manufacturers of consumer packaged goods and packaged goods. It employs about 300,000 people and operates in 75 countries.

Chesebrough-Pond's consumer products include Vaseline personal care products, Vaseline beauty products, Ragu spaghetti sauces, Prince Matchless cosmetics and Bass shoes. In 1985 its Consumer Products Group had sales of $1.6 billion and the Chemical Products Group had sales of $1.3 billion.

Unilever said it is considering selling "a significant part" of the Chemical Products Group, something that American Brands had also intended to do.

Ralph Ward, Chesebrough's chairman and chief executive, has agreed to become a director of Unilever United States Inc. According to a news release, he expressed confidence that the two companies would be mutually strengthened by the merger.

Chesebrough granted Unilever various options that appeared to be intended to thwart any effort by another company to wreck the definitive merger agreement.

American Brands said it began a tender offer for the roughly 42.6 million outstanding common shares of Chesebrough-Pond's Inc. after efforts to negotiate a friendly deal failed. American Brands said it had earlier offered to pay as much as $69 a share for the diversified consumer products company.

American Brands spokesman Brian Dobson, informed of the Unilever-Chesebrough deal, said American Brands' bid did not have any immediate content.

Since losing a bidding war for Richardson-Vicks Inc. to Procter & Gamble Co. a little more than a year ago, Unilever has been seeking a major U.S. acquisition in consumer products, analysts said.

Unilever was ranked as the 13th largest industrial company in the world at the end of 1985.

American Brands is a packaged consumer goods and financial service company, with consumer products including Sunshine cookies and crackers, Master Lock, Carlton, Lucky Strike and Tareyton cigarettes and Jergens personal care items.

Resignation won't end Perot-GM feud

Billionaire says he doesn't need 'fancy title' to stay

By Janet Brownstein, The Associated Press

DETROIT — A $700-million buyout may mean that billionaire H. Ross Perot is off General Motors Corp.'s board of directors, but his feud with the automaker and its chairman probably is not over, an industry analyst says.

Perot resigned Monday as chairman and chief executive officer of Electronic Data Systems Corp., which he founded with $1,000 in 1969 and sold to GM in 1984 for $2.5 billion. Three of his top executives also agreed to leave in return for a total of $50 million.

Perot had been GM's largest individual shareholder. He had blasted the nation's largest carmaker as top-heavy and slow-moving and said GM's management was out of touch with its workers. He had recommended eliminating executive parking and dining rooms.

"We've got to nuke the GM system," Perot said recently.

GM Chairman Roger Smith reported last week by calling Perot impatient and saying he "is not very familiar in total" with the business. Smith said Perot's office at EDS in Dallas "makes mine look like Shantytown."

GM directors voted Monday at a meeting in New York to buy out the three EDS executives at $33 a share.

But including contingencies money paid under an agreement reached when GM bought EDS, Perot and executives Morton H. Meyerson, J. Thomas Walter and William K. Gayden were paid about $60 a share, more than twice the stock's market value.

Perot said that although he had accepted the offer, he wasn't going anywhere.

"I will be here as the founder of the company and will be doing exactly what I have been doing," he said. "I don't need any kind of fancy title to stay here at EDS."

"Ross Perot is not the type of person who limps away weakly when he's disappointed," he said, the opposite. "I think he will launch a massive retaliatory fight on EDS' behalf," said computer industry analyst Steve W. Jellison of Merrill Lynch in New York.

EDS will be incorporated into a new GM business unit along with Hughes Aircraft Co., Delco Electronics Corp. and GM's defense operations. The unit will be led by Donald J. Atwood, a GM vice president and director.

EDS President Lester Alberthal will succeed Perot as chief executive officer of the subsidiary, Smith said.

H. Ross Perot

H. Ross Perot makes a point during a news conference Monday afternoon at the headquarters of the computer services company he founded in Dallas. Perot sold 11.3 million shares of General Motors stock and resigned as Electronic Data Systems chairman on Monday.

Analysts predict turmoil at new airline

By Rick Glodstone, The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Now that Eastern Airlines officially is part of the Texas Air Corp. empire, many industry analysts predict a speedy showdown between the parent company and Eastern's employees over slashing costs.

"For the next three to six months, I expect a lot of labor turmoil at Eastern," said Louis Marcheseano, who follows the airlines for Janney Montgomery Scott Inc., a Philadelphia investment firm. "There's going to be name-calling and everything else."

Eastern shareholders approved the merger with Texas Air this past week, the last hurdle in the Houston-based airline company's effort to complete the $676-million acquisition negotiated in February when Miami-based Eastern was facing collapse and searching desperately for a buyer.

The merger approval quashed a last-minute rival bid that a coalition of employees had attempted to arrange.

Immediately after the approval was announced the Eastern board of directors moved to oust union leaders Charles Bryan and Robert Callahan, who have held seats as part of a 2-year-old agreement that gave labor a voice in management. Airline sources said Bryan and Callahan were not renominated.

That move reflects what many airline employees call the anti-labor position of Frank Lorenzo, chairman of Texas Air. He has vowed to change union work rules regarded as unproductive and slash the pay of Eastern's machinists, whose contract does not expire until late next year.

When Lorenzo became chairman of Eastern Oct. 15, he installed as senior executives several associates who three years ago helped him defeat the unions of Texas Air's other major subsidiary, Continental Airlines. They sharply cut wages as part of Continental's reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws.

Students lend nativity scenes a touch

By John Mitchell Herald Reporter

Mixing deft brush strokes and community spirit on their palettes this week, a group of Manchester High School students gave the town an early Christmas present.

As a volunteer service project, eight students at the school restored fiberglass animal figures from the municipal nativity scenes damaged in an Oct. 17 fire.

Betty Kirby, chairwoman of the MHS Fine Arts Department, said the students spent two afternoon cleaning and painting five white sheep, a dog, a donkey and an immense ox. The stable from one of the damaged scenes has also been repaired and will be used when a new nativity scene is placed in the center of town later this week. "They had to do a lot of sanding and stuff to kind of clean them up," Kirby said. "The kids worked hard on this." Kirby said before the students—all but one

Board ignores critics, backs mall bonding

By George Lovvo Herald Reporter

The proposed Mall at Buckland Hills received all but final approval Tuesday when the Manchester Board of Directors voted unanimously to support preliminary plans and a financing scheme, but the action prompted strong criticism and the threat of a lawsuit.

The proposal approved by the board could result in as much as $22 million being spent for road, water and sewer projects to reduce development costs for the mall, which is planned in northwestern Manchester. The improvements would be made on 193 acres north of Interstate 84 between Buckland and Slater streets around the site of the 785,000-square-foot shopping center.

During Tuesday night's three-hour session in Lincoln Center, town officials said that the cost of bonding for the public improvements would be recouped in about eight years through real estate taxes collected on the property. They also argued that the development would provide many new jobs.

"In my opinion, the town will benefit greatly from this project," said Director Geoff Naab, a Republican.

But Michael Dworin, president of the Manchester Environmental Coalition, said after the board's vote that his group would file a lawsuit "as soon as the first shovel goes in." That is expected to be in the spring.

He said the suit would seek to force an all-quality impact study of the project, something Town Manager Robert Weiss said the town already has done. Weiss said the developer, Homart Development Corp. of Chicago, to do.

Dworin said his group had found an all-quality study done and development in the area would exceed national standards by 500 to 600 percent. He said if and when a study is done by Homart, it will verify that finding.

If the coalition files a lawsuit over that matter, the suit will join several others already pending. In addition, the town of South Windsor is seeking to block the project. (See story on page 3.)

Other concerns raised Tuesday were that the mall would create large amount of traffic for Tolland Turnpike and Union and Slater streets, which would make up one of three non-highway routes to the mall. Some residents proposed making Slater Street a dead end to prevent traffic entry from South Windsor.

But Naab said a State Traffic Commission report on the mall indicates that only 10 percent of the traffic would go that way, and Planning Director Mark Pellegrini contended that it would not be necessary to create a cul-de-sac. Traffic on those streets would not

Reagan knew details, Hollings says

By Tim Ahern The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A member of the Senate Intelligence Committee said today congressional probes into the Iranian-Contras scandal are headed nowhere and called on President Reagan to end his "charade" and admit the knew what was going on.

"While President Reagan might not know anything about the Education Department, about the Energy Department, he knows about Contras," Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said on NBC-TV's "Today" show. "He likes that policy and he was kept informed on that particular policy. I'm positive of that."

While saying that he trusted the president, Hollings said he did not believe that Reagan has "held the complete picture" and that other high-ranking members of the administration knew about the matter.

"I think now's the time for President Reagan to appoint himself to level with the American people," Hollings said. "The cabinet members knew it, while they duped it." Hollings said "The secretary of defense, the secretary of state, they all knew

Drought watch is over

By John F. Kirsh Herald Reporter

The drought watch in Manchester is over and the threat of mandatory restrictions on water use has been lifted because of the wet weather in recent weeks.

More than seven inches of rain fell in November, raising town reservoirs to near-normal levels. Water and Sewer Administrator Robert Young said today.

However, in a memo to Public Works Director George Kendra, Young said the town would continue to use ground water until reservoirs have reached 85 percent of capacity. Surface water is currently at 72 percent capacity. Young said.

"We've picked up 92 million gallons of water in the last month," Young said.

The Buckingham Reservoir is full, he said, adding that flash boards have been put up to keep it from overflowing. The flash boards add another 20 million gallons to the supply.

As of Monday, the town had 266 million gallons available for use. Young said. Last week there were 225 million gallons. Last month, the supply was down to 174 million gallons, or 47 percent of capacity.

U.S. students can't write, survey finds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Writing skills among American students are weak and demonstrate inability to think critically or communicate effectively, according to a survey released today by an education review group.

"Performance in writing in our schools is, quite simply, bad," said Archie Lapointe, executive director of the National Assessment of Educational Progress in an introduction to "The Writing Report Card."

The national survey was based on writing samples from 58,000 public and private school students in fourth, eighth and 11th grades. Their written responses to 15 tasks were categorized as unsatisfactory, minimal, adequate or elaborated.

"Most students, majority and minority alike, are unable to write adequately except in response to the simplest of tasks," the survey found. "American students can write at a minimal level, but cannot express themselves well enough to ensure that their writing will accomplish the intended purpose."

The results further indicate that "students at all grade levels are deficient in higher-order thinking skills," said the report card, written by the review group's associate director Ina Mullis and Stanford University professors Arthur Applebee and Judith Langer.

"Fewer than one-fourth of the 11th-graders performed adequately on writing tasks involving skills required for success in academic studies, business or the professions."

Analytic writing was most difficult for students across the board. The easiest task asked students to compare and contrast; 25 percent of the 11th-graders, 18 percent of the eighth-graders and 2 percent of the fourth-graders wrote adequate or better answers.

"About half the 11th-graders and 2 percent of the fourth-graders wrote adequate or better answers."
