NEW TRIAL FREES STUART IN MILFORD SEX MURDER

Hostage drama deadly

A police officer in Trenton, N.J., carries 6-month-old Ebony Sherie Gussin in his arms as he runs for cover Friday during a shootout. Ebony and her mother were held hostage for a half-hour, but the drama ended shortly after this rescue when police shot and killed the gunman. Story on page 2.

DERBY (AP) — A 35-year-old man was set free from prison for the first time in more than four years Friday after he was found innocent in his second trial on charges that he raped and murdered a 5-year-old girl.

"I can't describe it. I'm speechless," said the defendant, Daniel Stuart of Milford, after the Superior Court jury returned its verdict following almost two days of deliberations. "I haven't had Christmas in a while. Christmas is just another day in jail."

Stuart was convicted in 1983 of felony murder in the June 21, 1982 sexual assault and beating death of Constance Roberts of Milford, whose body was found behind a school.

Stuart won a new trial because a man who committed suicide while the jury was deliberating in Stuart's first trial left notes in which he apologized for raping and murdering an unnamed young girl about the same time Roberts was killed.

Former Superior Court Judge Alvin G. Rottman ruled last year that the suicide notes of Joseph Salamone were new evidence that could persuade a jury that Stuart was innocent.

The notes were never introduced as evidence in Stuart's second trial, however. Judge Hugh C. Curran ruled earlier this week that they were inadmissible.

"I think this proves the system does work," Stuart's attorney, Robert Casale, said Friday.

State's Attorney Michael Dearington left court immediately after the verdict. He was not at home Friday evening and couldn't be reached for comment.

In closing arguments Wednesday, Casale told the jury that the state's case was "riddled with reasonable doubt."

"From beginning to end, from start to finish, reasonable doubt runs throughout the case," he said. "After 4½ years of Danny Stuart rotting in jail, it is time for the truth."

Dearington told the jury that circumstantial evidence was enough to convict Stuart.

Two witnesses said they saw Stuart carrying a small child on his shoulders about 4:30 on the morning Roberts' body was found. Dearington reminded jurors.

The prosecutor said Stuart told police he was drinking heavily the night before the child's body was found and witnesses said Stuart told them he was looking for sex that night.

The defense maintained that some witnesses were trying to frame Stuart.

Dearington also said that hair and blood found on the victim's body were consistent with Stuart's hair and blood types. Casale noted that a forensic scientist testified that the blood and hair didn't point specifically to Stuart as the murderer the way a fingerprint might.

Trenton, N.J., police officer Richard Infantine runs for cover with 6-month-old Ebony Sherie Gussin after a gunman who took Ebony and her mother hostage

Friday began shooting. The gunman was shot and killed by police shortly after their rescue.

Gunman kills teenage hostage

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — A gunman took a 13-year-old boy, his mother and his infant sister hostage in their home Friday and shot the teenager to death before police entered the house and killed the assailant, authorities said.

The boy was picked up by officers after he staggered out the back of the dwelling a few doors from the assailant's home, said police Sgt. Robert Orlovski. The woman and her 6-month-old daughter escaped unharmed through an upstairs window during the 35-minute drama, which ended when police returned fire on the gunman.

Police could not determine the gunman's motive. "I have no idea what he was doing," said Orlovski. The victim, William Laster, suffered a gunshot wound just above the heart, said Orlovski.

The gunman was identified by police as Booker T. Ricks, 39, who Orlovski said had a history of arrests dating back to 1987 for disorderly conduct, shoplifting, assault and possession of marijuana.

The shooting first was reported at 2:15 p.m. and ended about 35 minutes later, said authorities.

"The radio room got a call about a man in a cellar with a gun and we dispatched a car. Police arrived, and shots were fired at them" from a ground-floor window of the three-story house, said Sgt. Robert Tedder.

As police surrounded the house and officers entered the back of the home, the boy's mother and sister made their way upstairs from the ground floor and were led through a window by police, authorities said.

Ricks fired through the ceiling at officers on the second floor and police returned fire, striking him, said Detective Joseph Constance.

Police tried to talk with Ricks before the final shootout, but negotiations were hampered by the home's lack of a telephone, Constance said. He said police tried to talk to Ricks by shouting through a window.

The boy and Ricks were declared dead at St. Francis Medical Center, authorities said.

The boy's mother was identified as Olamae Gussin, 28, and his sister was identified as Ebony Scherie Gussin.

Erskine Stafford, who lives across the street, said he first heard one or two shots, later followed by a rapid succession of about 15 shots.

Vets home wants to do better

ROCKY HILL (AP) — The state Veterans Home and Hospital has requested 79 more staff positions in its 1987-88 budget to reverse a deterioration of patient care and avert the closing of its 350-bed hospital.

Inadequate staffing and high turnover have been a concern among health professionals and officials at the institution in Rocky Hill for several years.

The budget proposal submitted by Commandant Nicholas Motto said state employees are needed to replace aging residents who work full time in the hospital and home.

Motto said the quality of hospital care has deteriorated and will continue to deteriorate if more regular staff is not hired.

There are about 330 residents in the home, about 160 of whom do such full-time jobs as moving patients, cleaning facilities, serving food and mowing lawns.

Motto also said 67 percent of the hospital's 310 patients now require total care in contrast to only 45 percent six years ago.

The state Office of Policy and Management is reviewing Motto's proposal, which would increase full-time staff from 464 to 543 at a cost of more than $1 million.

Town let man drive to death, suit charges

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Herald Reporter

The estate of a man who died last year in an automobile accident shortly after his arrest on drunken-driving charges is suing the arresting officer and the town, charging that police were negligent in allowing the man to return to his car.

Damages in excess of $15,000 are being sought in the suit, filed in Hartford Superior Court last week.

Manchester police officer Wayne P. Mora arrested the man, Charles H. Colling of Monson, Mass., at North Main Street and Oakland Street the night of April 19, 1985, after Colling failed a sobriety test, according to the estate's complaint. The complaint says that at 11:15 p.m., police made arrangements to transport Colling to his car, and at 11:44 p.m., Colling was involved in an automobile accident in Ellington in the northbound lane of Route 83.

Colling's blood alcohol content at the time of his death was 0.15 percent — far above the legal limit of 0.10 percent, the complaint says.

The complaint, filed by attorney Thomas L. Brayton of Waterbury, charges that Mora failed to meet the minimum standards of a police officer in allowing Colling access to his car after he was found unfit to drive. Furthermore, it charges that police failed to put Colling in protective custody as required by law, that they knew he was likely to harm himself or others until the effects of alcohol had disappeared, and that they knew that insufficient time had passed for Colling to regain his sobriety.

The complaint seeks damages — including funeral and burial expenses — on the basis that the death of Colling, who was an engineer at Hamilton Standard in Windsor, destroyed his earning capacity and his "ability to enjoy life's activities."

"We won't have any comment on (the suit) because it's in litigation," police spokesman Gary Wood said Friday. Neither Brayton nor Town Attorney John Cooney was available Friday night to comment on the suit.

OPEC members plan to pump less

GENEVA (AP) — Most OPEC members agreed in principle Friday to cut the cartel's oil production at least 5 percent in hopes of boosting oil prices to $18 a barrel from the current range of $13 to $16, two senior delegates said.

No final accord was reached, however, and the cartel leaders were scheduled to open a third day of talks Saturday, officials said.

Libyan Oil Minister Fawzi Shakshuki said that most of OPEC's 13 member countries, including his own, had accepted the proposal.

Supreme Court likely to get Route 6 appeal

By George Lovng
Herald Reporter

Opponents of the proposed Route 6 highway have voted to take their case to the U.S. Supreme Court in an effort to prevent the state from acquiring property for the expressway.

Edith Petersen of Manchester, a member of the Eastern Connecticut Citizen Action Group, which has long fought the $170 million project, said Friday that members voted earlier this week to appeal to the high court decisions by lower federal courts to dismiss their lawsuit.

The group went to court in March seeking to stop the state Department of Transportation from acquiring property for the 11.8-mile, highway that would link Bolton Notch and Windham until the road receives final approval. The road still needs state and federal environmental permits.

South Windsor attorney Jon Berman, who represents the highway opponents, could not be reached for comment Friday. However, in November he said he favored taking the case to the Supreme Court.

Berman warned at the time that if an believed to have killed most of the 81 passengers and crew members on board the flight.

Soviet plane crashes in fog; rescuers find few survivors

BERLIN (AP) — A Soviet Aeroflot jetliner crashed in heavy fog while approaching East Berlin's Schoenefeld airport Friday evening, killing most of the 81 people aboard.

The official news agency ADN said 12 survivors were pulled from the wreckage. Earlier the news agency had said there were 17 survivors, but it did not explain the discrepancy.

It said the exact number of victims "was not yet possible to determine."

Most of the people aboard were killed and the identification of the victims was "exceptionally" difficult because the bodies were burned, the news agency said.

ADN said most of the victims were East Germans. The plane was arriving from Minsk, the capital of Soviet Byelorussia about 600 miles to the east.

The news agency said the plane carried 73 passengers and a crew of eight. Initially, it reported that nine crewmembers had been aboard the plane.

There were no Americans aboard the Soviet Tupolev-134 jet, a U.S. Embassy spokesman in East Berlin told The Associated Press by telephone. East German authorities released no immediate information on the passengers' nationalities.

AP photographer Elke Bruhn-Hoffmann drove to within a half-mile of the crash site before being stopped by police. She said the plane appeared to have crashed in a wooded area just beyond East Berlin's city limits about two miles from Schoenefeld.

Bruhn-Hoffmann said local residents told her the crash occurred at about 5:30 p.m., after nightfall, in heavy fog.

Hundreds of East German police were deployed to restrict access to the crash site to official rescue vehicles arriving from downtown East Berlin, Bruhn-Hoffmann said.

East German television news said eight survivors were brought to East Berlin's Koepenick Hospital and that two were in critical condition.

The television reports showed the jetliner in pieces, with firemen hosing down smoldering wreckage. A report by the Soviet news agency Tass referred to "flaming debris."

Pieces of the airplane also were scattered among nearby trees.

ADN said a special commission under the leadership of Transport Minister Otto Arndt has been set up to investigate the crash.

West Berlin authorities said they were awaiting official information on the crash.

The Tu-134 is a small passenger jet, similar in size to the Boeing 737. It can carry about 90 passengers.

About 650 to 700 Tu-134s are in service, flown mainly by Aeroflot and East Germany's Interflug airlines.

Circuit Court of Appeals in New York, opponents argued that the lawsuit was timely because federal highway officials had already approved the project and property acquisitions have begun.

In November, though, the appeals court upheld Cabranes' ruling.

The proposed highway would extend from the end of Interstate 384 in Bolton Notch, through Coventry, Andover and Columbia, and connect with a stretch of uncompleted highway in Windham.

Proponents argue it will open up eastern Connecticut and mean safer transit.

appeal is made, the Supreme Court does not have to hear the case. Petersen, who was not present when ECCAG members voted, said she did not know if or when the appeal will be made.

DOT officials and the state attorneys who are involved with the case could not be reached for comment.

In July, U.S. District Court Judge Jose Cabranes dismissed the opponents' lawsuit on the grounds that the actual construction of the road had not begun. Cabranes said a suit could be filed once the road is given final approval.

However, in an appeal to the Second

Grant speeds group home renovation

By John Mitchell
Herald Reporter

The Transitional Living Center Foundation will begin renovating its group home for emotionally troubled teenagers next week and has received a $1,000 grant to help out.

The grant came from the Ruddell Charitable Trust, an organizer of the project said Friday.

William DiYeso, TLC Foundation's executive director, said the gift was generous "for a trust of that size."

The two-family structure at 17-19 North St. where the private non-profit organization will operate its home for 13- to 18-year-olds is expected to be completely repaired March 15 and ready for operation by April 1, DiYeso said.

"It's just a very gratifying thing to see it all come together," he said.

Officials plan to convert the building into a single-family unit so that it can function as a group home under Manchester zoning regulations.

DiYeso said officials of the foundation are discussing the possibility of letting teenagers who use the group home stay on a short- or long-term basis. "It may go from several months to several years," he said.

The foundation received a $75,000 challenge grant in August from the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving to help cover the cost of the project.

According to DiYeso, the group is now about $100,000 short of the $225,000 necessary for the renovation, furnishing and eventual purchase of the site, which the foundation leases from the Community Child Guidance Clinic.

"The money just comes in daily," DiYeso said.

One part of the fund drive was conducted at Manchester High School, where students made ornaments and wooden ducks in a drive sponsored by the Home Economics and Industrial Arts departments. All profits will be donated to the TLC.

Although final figures aren't available, DiYeso said the handicrafts are selling well.

The foundation receives no state funding, DiYeso said. The town and its Board of Education split a $90,000 appropriation for its first year of operation.

The Ruddell trust, which has also assisted in funding the pool for the Instuctors of the Handicapped, was established in the name of Manchester resident H. Louise Ruddell after her death.

DiYeso said "the town has been tremendous" in its support to raise money for the TLC. "The more people that we can get to feel a part of this home, the happier I am," he said.

Ex-Mott's may house retail shop

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter

Four "prominent retail stores" are interested in leasing the former Mott's Shop Rite building on East Middle Turnpike, the building's owner said Friday afternoon.

Warren Larrick, vice president of USLIFE Real Estate Service Corp. of New York, which owns the 21,000-square-foot building, declined to say what type of retail business is likely to move in and refused to name the stores his company was negotiating with.

But they are all retail, he said, "some national and some local." Supermarkets have not expressed an interest in leasing the space because the building is too small, Larrick said.

In September the Mott's Shop Rite grocery store closed its doors for the last time and ended nearly 25 years of business at the location. Store owners said at the time that consumers were looking toward the larger "super supermarkets," like the Super Stop & Shop in the Manchester Parkade. Some shoppers didn't agree and mourned the loss of the store.

USLIFE has been negotiating with potential tenants since Mott's closed. Larrick said Friday that the holiday season and concern over the new federal tax law have delayed the bargaining.

Although the tax changes will not affect a business leasing a building, many companies are spending much of their energy trying to learn the law's implications, Larrick said. That makes it difficult for USLIFE's negotiators to get in touch with key people.

"No deal will be made before the first of the year," Larrick said. Larrick said the building's location is good and will be an attractive place to put a retail outlet.

The United States and Canada signed two agreements in 1950 to avoid double taxation of their citizens and to prevent income tax evasion.

Fighting through a first New England winter

As soon as the first snowfall hits each year, it seems people jump out of their bathing suits, casually throw on the leather boxing gloves and baggy American flag shorts, and prance around in circles with their eyes to the heavens singing "Gonna fly now, trying hard now!" Wait, that's not right. I'm thinking of something else.

If I appear confounded, it's only because snow survival was never my strong suit. This winter is the first I'll have lived through as a New England Yankee, provided I don't get gored by a moose before season's end or, worse, have to read another book about Chuck Yeager.

In Texas, from whence I came, the fluffy powder was a rarity and did a terrible job of preparing me for life in a place "where every sunrise is like the beginning of a new day," as the ads for New England tourism proudly proclaim.

IN THE LONE STAR STATE, when the right person shakes too much Parmesan cheese on a beef pizza, schools have been known to close and important government officials with titles too long to remember request federal disaster aid.

Those few memories of Texas snows produce a fond picture in my mind of chipmunks roasting on an open fire and Jack Frost nipping at our noses. We'd give him a quarter, or our half-eaten sandwiches, and he'd go pick on some other kid around the playground.

The first time the "lint of the Gods" fell on my young life left nothing but confusion. Pappy, emitting a deep, warm chuckle, sat me up on his lap and, with a wink in his eyes, said "Run for your life, boy, the sky, she's explodin' an' I don't think ah' kin make it!" We didn't see him again for three weeks, that kiddo.

Some years were so lean winter-wise we'd be forced to throw scrap metal and dead batteries at each other and call it a snowball fight. The one true battle we did engage in was marred by controversy after "sources" discovered that Wally Dingle, the wimpy paperboy who lived down the street, had made clandestine snowball deals with our opponents. I never knew anything about this at the time, honestly. When we confronted Wally, he pleaded the Fifth Amendment.

WHENEVER THE SKY did rain white, we took advantage. My friend Bucky Nelson liked to build his snowmen upside down then watch the water run to their heads. Bucky, who constantly asked us to call him Joseph-Bob because "it's Texan, but refined, y'know," never did learn how to react when snowstorms hit. During the winter of his discontent, when he turned 17, a fluke blizzard left his pickup truck covered in a mound of snow, hours before a date with his then-cowgirl Bossy Sue. In an overzealous attempt to remove the crystalline flakes, Bucky accidentally scraped all the primer off.

Last month while spinning crazily out of control on a dark, icy Manchester street and careening off a pole into somebody's back yard, I realized how unprepared I was for New England. My wife told me a few days later that the incident could have been avoided had I been driving a car at the time.

The most important thing I've learned so far living up north, side-by-side with Mother Nature's marshmallow spread, is if you're going to make angels in a snowbank, by all means check to ensure that there's not a small but treacherous pond underneath. I'd like to say I was wearing the swim trunks but, to make a long story end, the boxing gloves began to stink afterward and the baggy shorts shrunk and need to be replaced.

John Mitchell is a reporter for the Manchester Herald. As anyone can tell, he recently moved to Connecticut from Texas.

Group buys house for home

The Shelter For Women Inc., a nonprofit group based in Hartford, has bought a house in central Manchester where it plans to run a group home for children with special needs.

The house and property, at 151 Hartford Road, was owned by Frank S. Findley and sold for $290,000, according to land records on file at the town clerk's office.

The Shelter For Women won approval from the Planning and Zoning Commission in September to run a group home on the property.

The house has three floors, a full basement and six bedrooms. Rose Senatore, the executive director of the Shelter For Women, could not be reached for comment Friday.

Snow puts off King meeting

The Martin Luther King Day committee organizing the Jan. 19 celebration of the holiday in town canceled its meeting Thursday night after between two and four inches of snow fell on Manchester.

The holiday panel has scheduled a meeting for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Lincoln Center, committee member Stephen Cassano said.

"We're under the gun time-wise," Cassano said. "It's hard to find time to meet with the holidays."

However, Cassano, who is also a Democratic member of the town Board of Directors, said he thinks the committee will finalize a package Tuesday for Martin Luther King Day. Guest speakers will be heard and other events will be held.

In a related matter, Cassano said late Thursday morning that although municipal offices will be open on King Day, the town will recognize the holiday by contributing funds for the celebration.

Local activists have criticized the decision to keep town offices open. Town officials have said that closing the offices would mean another holiday for municipal employees, something that must be negotiated between town and union officials.

Scranton Motors becomes a giant

VERNON — Scranton Motors will complete the purchase of Herman Motors on Monday and become the largest dealership in eastern Connecticut, company President Chris Scranton said Friday.

Scranton declined to disclose the sum paid to James Filkoff and Gershon Marohlin, the owners of Herman Motors. The former owners will not stay with the company, he said.

Scranton Motors, located on Talcottville Road, sells GMC trucks and cars built by Pontiac, Oldsmobile and Cadillac. Herman Motors, located on Windsor Avenue in Rockville, sells Chrysler-Plymouth cars. The name of Herman Motors will change to Scranton Chrysler-Plymouth.

"We feel Chrysler-Plymouth does an excellent, excellent job on the lower-end of the car market. We feel that the quality of the Chrysler product is very strong and the commitment from the Chrysler organization is strong," Scranton said when asked what motivated the purchase.

Scranton said that operations at Herman Motors would be expanded. Plans include hiring a sales manager, a sales staff of four to six people and a finance and insurance manager. He hopes to more than double sales at Herman Motors, which current sells about 30 to 40 new and used cars each month. He said that this year Scranton Motors will sell about 2,800 used and new cars.

Scranton added that service at the Chrysler dealership will be emphasized as much as sales. Ultimately, Scranton said he wants to move the Herman Motors operation to the Scranton location and construct a new building for it.

Raids in state net cash, cocaine and ex-U.S. prosecutor

HARTFORD (AP) — A former assistant U.S. attorney was among four men arrested in what police said Friday was an interstate smuggling operation that brought about $300,000 worth of cocaine a month into Connecticut.

State police Sgt. Daniel Lewis said the four men were principals in a drug ring that transported 3 to 5 kilograms of cocaine a month into the state by plane or car from Florida. Two men were arrested in Connecticut and two in Florida.

"We're talking about a substantial operation in this area," Lewis said.

Paul Sherbacow, 46, of Simsbury, an assistant U.S. attorney in Connecticut in the 1960s, was arrested Thursday and charged with possession of cocaine, state police said. He was released on $10,000 cash bail and scheduled to appear Dec. 30 in Enfield Superior Court.

Charles M. Kehoe, 34, of Hartford was charged with possession of cocaine and marijuana, possession of cocaine and marijuana with intent to sell, possession of controlled substances and conspiracy to distribute cocaine, state police said.

Police said Kehoe was held in lieu of $250,000 bail following arraignment in Hartford Superior Court.

State police said they seized an Uzi semi-automatic assault rifle, a half pound of cocaine, and $6,700 in cash.

Arrested in Florida were Thomas Cardillo, 37, of Wethersfield and Spring Hill, Fla., and John Novitsky, 31, of Clinton and of Spring Hill, Fla., Connecticut police said.

State police said they seized an Uzi semi-automatic assault rifle, a half pound of cocaine, and $6,700 in cash.

They said Cardillo and Novitsky were charged with trafficking in cocaine, possession of narcotic paraphernalia, and possession of marijuana. Both men were held in Brooksville (Fla.) County Jail in lieu of $500,000 bail, state police said.

Sheriff's officers in Hernando County, Fla., confiscated more than 1 kilo, or 2.2 pounds, of cocaine that was hidden in secret compartments in Cardillo's vehicle, Connecticut authorities said.

Sherbacow served in the U.S. attorney's office alongside David Margolies, currently the chief of the organized crime and racketeering section of the U.S. Justice Department's criminal division.

He had been a defense lawyer in Connecticut's largest marijuana importation case that resulted in the conviction of William F. Zimmerli, 37, of Glastonbury and Leonard Francolini, 36, of Canton. Zimmerli and Francolini were convicted in 1984 of running more than 72,000 pounds of marijuana into Connecticut on sailboats and speed boats.

husband's behalf, has no contact with DAS and has no day-to-day dealings with the company.

"I certainly have not put any influence on DAS," she said. "I've never spoken with anybody there about my husband's business."

Inspector General Henri F. Erkelens was not in his office Friday and did not immediately return calls. His office is responsible for ferreting out waste, fraud and abuse in state government.

Eaton said his committee agreed to turn the case over to Erkelens because Eaton thought it would be improper to have a legislative committee investigating a relative of a legislator.

He said the information on the lighting sales developed after he received a tip from a DAS employee. The tip was received as Eaton's committee was conducting a "performance audit" of DAS.

He said the committee considered asking the state's attorney or the ethics commission to look into the matter, but settled on the inspector general knowing that Erkelens could, if he thought it necessary, refer part or all of it to the state's attorney or the ethics commission.

Eaton said he had "no reason to believe she is anything but the fine person I have worked with for the last two years."

Senatorial wife's light link leads to probe

HARTFORD (AP) — The General Assembly's investigative committee agreed Friday to ask the inspector general to look into the state's purchase of thousands of dollars of lighting fixtures from companies represented by the husband of a state senator.

"There's the appearance of purchase fixing," said Sen. Richard S. Eaton, R-Guilford, co-chairman of the Program Review and Investigations Committee, which took the action.

"It appears that the purchasing was set up so that only one product available from only one firm would meet the specifications of the bid. That would make the bidding process a sham," Eaton said.

At issue is the purchase, by the state Department of Administrative Services, of at least $400,000 in fluorescent lighting equipment from two companies, both of which are represented exclusively in Connecticut by the John Mustone Co. Inc. of Meriden, headed by John Mustone, husband of state Sen. Amelia P. Mustone, D-Meriden.

The Hartford Courant reported Friday that the DAS decision to use those brands of fixtures exclusively had resulted in commissions of $20,000 for Mustone's company since 1982. DAS officials told the newspaper that they specified the type of fixtures they wanted so they would match existing fixtures and all would be standardized.

Mrs. Mustone is secretary of her husband's corporation. She said she has never dealt with any state official on her

Tennessee to join Trident fleet

GROTON (AP) — Electric Boat shipyard will launch the nation's ninth and most potent Trident missile submarine Saturday during ceremonies expected to draw hundreds of peace activists protesting against nuclear weapons.

The Tennessee will be the first submarine to carry the D-5 or Trident II missile, which has a 6,000-mile range and the capability of hitting within a 50-foot radius of hardened targets.

Each of the 24 D-5 missiles aboard the Tennessee could be armed with 10 to 15 warheads, each with an explosive power equal to 475,000 tons of TNT.

"The USS Tennessee represents a major escalation of the nuclear arms race," said Joan Cavanaugh of New Haven, a member of the Coalition to Stop the Trident.

"It's the first to carry this extremely accurate missile. The fact that it has this capability creates an incentive for either side to start a nuclear exchange because, obviously, the Soviet missiles will be useless unless they are launched first," she said.

Arms deals meant life in fast lane, feds say

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — Arif Durrani had it all — expensive cars, a million-dollar California home, a profitable corporation, international travel and a mistress at his side.

His route to wealth came through a family history of dealing arms, including some illegally targeted for Iran, federal documents indicate.

Durrani's life of luxury was abruptly interrupted in October when a Connecticut-based arms supplier tipped federal agents who arrested him in Danbury on a charge of illegally exporting Hawk guided missile parts, destination Iran.

In denying Durrani bail, U.S. District Judge T.F. Gilroy Daly wrote in November that the arms dealer "enjoys an exorbitant lifestyle replete with material luxuries and one which causes him to travel the globe to meet with his business associates."

Federal documents show Durrani owns two Porsche sports cars, a Mercedes Benz, a Rolls-Royce, an airplane, and a home in Westlake Village near Los Angeles he bought for $955,000 in 1984.

Durrani, 37, a Pakistani national, has been jailed since his arrest. He has blamed a Belgium corporation and a New York shipping firm for his troubles in a motion seeking release on bail.

The motion, filed this week in U.S. District Court in Bridgeport, contends that Durrani was merely a buyer, tracking down salvaged and reconditioned parts. It asks Daly to reconsider bail, especially in light of allegations the Reagan administration also sold arms to Iran.

"If, in fact, the government was shipping things out without customs approval, and, in fact, the policy of the government was to ship arms to Iran, it seems to me we ought to look at what my fellow's claimed to be doing in a very different light," said Ira B. Grudberg, the New Haven attorney representing Durrani.

He refused to say whether Durrani had any connection with the U.S. government arms dealings. U.S. Attorney Stanley Twardy said this week that Durrani has no connection to the Reagan administration, adding he plans to prosecute Durrani because Durrani was acting for "his own venal purposes."

Durrani was charged with illegally exporting $22,000 worth of parts for Hawk anti-aircraft missiles. The government also contends he purchased $347,000 worth of parts, including 25 Klystron tubes used in the Hawk missile radar system.

The government says the goods were to be shipped to Belgium and from there directed to Iran and other locations not specified. Daly wrote in his bail decision that some "munitions components contemplated by the indictment are compatible only with certain military-type helicopters that are used only in Iran."

Durrani was working as an agent for California-based Merex Inc., of which he was chairman. At the time of his arrest he sold his interest in the company for $500,000 to his partner, federal documents show.

Durrani told a federal magistrate at the time of his arrest that Merex sold aircraft components and had gross annual sales of about $16 million. As chairman, Durrani was paid about $50,000 a year, government records indicate. But he had only worked at the company office on six days between May and the time of his arrest Oct. 3, the documents say.

"His employment situation remains unclear," Daly wrote.

Durrani arrived in the United States in 1973 and received a master's degree in business administration from the University of Southern California shortly thereafter.

Connecticut in Brief

Ex-prosecutor switches jobs

WATERBURY — Former prosecutor Arthur M. McDonald has won an early release from prison and will go to work as a car salesman.

McDonald, 67, served 13 months of a two-year sentence for taking bribes to fix cases in Waterbury Superior Court. His case was a central issue in a 1985 feud between state police and former Chief State's Attorney Austin McGuigan.

State police accused McDonald of not investigating the McDonald case.

McDonald will go to work Monday in Derby at a car lot owned by New Haven Sheriff Henry Healey Jr.

Red Cross gripe to be aired

HARTFORD — The state Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities plans hearings next week on sex and religious discrimination complaints filed against the American Red Cross by an Avon woman who was fired by the post.

The complaints were filed by Laura Knee, who alleged that she was denied equal terms, conditions and privileges of employment because she is a woman. She also claimed that she was offered a promotion at a salary lower than the salary offered to a man who was eventually hired for the post.

In addition, Knee claimed that the Red Cross fired her because she is Jewish and because she complained about what she said was a discriminatory attitude on the part of the Red Cross.

Judge throws out verdict

NEW HAVEN — A Superior Court judge threw out the verdict in a civil case and ordered a new trial after a defense attorney acknowledged excluding blacks from the jury.

Lawyers said it was the first time they had heard of a judge in the United States overturning a jury verdict in a civil case on grounds that minority jurors were excluded.

"The use of peremptory challenges to remove all the possible jurors of (one) race seriously impairs the perception of justice," Judge Robert I. Berdon ruled in a Hamden accident case. "Members of a minority, under those circumstances, could never feel that they received a fair trial."

Teacher-training program works

HARTFORD — Declining enrollments in teacher-training programs came to a halt last year and may indicate that efforts to raise teacher salaries is having some effect, state officials say.

Colleges in Connecticut awarded education degrees to 753 undergraduates and 1,615 graduate students during the 1985-86 school year, a slight increase from a year earlier after a decade-long decline.

Ten years ago, Connecticut colleges granted 2,314 undergraduate and 3,337 graduate education degrees.

Mag fights Ivy Leaguers to keep name

HARTFORD (AP) — The Yale Literary Magazine, in a fight to keep its name, took another legal step this week with arguments presented to the Connecticut Supreme Court.

Its attorney, John Williams of New Haven, told the court on Thursday that the magazine was forced to go through a 1983 trial without the lawyer of its choice. The magazine lost the trial to Yale University, which wants to get "Yale" out of the publication's title.

The 1983 trial judge, Howard F. Zoarski, barred a law professor from Delaware from representing the magazine, said Kathleen Kilpatrick, president of the foundation that publishes the magazine.

The state Appellate Court ruled that Zoarski erred in that decision, but that the error was harmless. The ruling upheld the Superior Court ruling that told the publication to change its name.

Williams then took the argument to the Supreme Court, which could send the case back for a retrial or review by the trial court or uphold the Appellate Court's ruling.

Yale attorney William J. Doyle said the university does not want an organization using its name without permission when that organization could be mistaken for a university-sanctioned group.

Magazine editors bought the debt-ridden publication from a Yale student group for $1 in 1978. In 1981, they signed an agreement that the magazine would abide by Yale undergraduate regulations and in 1982 the school changed its rules about undergraduate organizations to state that students must control those organizations.

The magazines editors claimed in 1983 that Yale was trying to censor the publication's conservative views.

The magazine, intended as a quarterly, has only published one issue this year because of legal costs, Kilpatrick said.

'Helitorch' tries out nuke winter theory

By Jeff Wilson
The Associated Press

SAN DIMAS, Calif. (AP) — A helicopter spewed flaming napalm-like gasoline on a brush-covered mountainside Friday, igniting a long-awaited 600-acre fire to test whether atomic war may threaten the extinction of humans.

The "nuclear winter" theory that smoke from such a war might block the sun, disrupt agriculture and obliterate life from Earth got its first test in the mountains 30 miles east of downtown Los Angeles.

The $750,000 experiment had to be halted last week when the fire-starting torch tangled in telephone wires. The pilot escaped injury.

On Friday, a new "helitorch" dropped a thickened gasoline called Alumigel, a chemical relative of napalm, on the San Dimas Experimental Forest, said U.S. Forest Service spokesman Earl Clayton.

Flames leaped 50 to 60 feet into the air, but the fire burned slowly in green brush swelled by rainfall earlier in the week, and there was no wind to spread it quickly.

A towering plume of smoke hung over the San Gabriel Mountains, obscuring snow-capped, 10,064-foot Mount Baldy a few miles away.

The area had not been burned in 26 years, said U.S. Forest Service spokesman Bob Swinford.

"It is very mature fuel that is starting to decay and die, so it needs to be burned," he said. "The measure of success today is that we get it done safely, and get the plume of smoke we need."

About 55 scientists in five aircraft monitored the pillar of reddish-brown smoke that rose straight up Lodi Canyon toward Johnstone Peak, where about 50 reporters and photographers gathered. Other reporters viewed the flames from helicopters.

"At this point, we're satisfied. Any large smoke plume will be of benefit. I didn't expect this to be a very vigorous fire. It's still the first field measurement of a fire, and it is important," said Peter Lunn, program manager for the global effects division of the Defense Nuclear Agency.

He said that even after months of study, the 1983 "nuclear winter" theory of astronomer Carl Sagan and researcher Richard Turco will remain open to debate.

Sagan and the other proponents postulated that a pall of smoke and dust blocking sunlight after a nuclear war could plunge Earth into darkness, bring freezing temperatures even in summer, disrupt agriculture, cause mass starvation and possibly threaten humanity with extinction.

Other scientists maintain the effects would be less severe, creating a "nuclear autumn" of less drastic and shorter-lived temperature drops. Their scenario said extinction of the human race was less probable, but crop destruction still would threaten millions of people with starvation.

Project scientists and Swinford said it would be March before results of the test would be known.

A helicopter spews burning napalm Friday on a brush-covered mountainside near San Dimas, Calif. The flames ignited a long-awaited test blaze intended to discover whether atomic war would lead to a "nuclear winter."

Fire light forces jumbo down Passengers injured during evacuation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Trans World Airlines jumbo jet carrying 321 people made an unscheduled landing at Goose Bay, Newfoundland, Friday after a fire was suspected in the cargo hold.

The Federal Aviation Administration said that initial reports were that one passenger was injured and required hospitalization and several others suffered minor injuries in the emergency evacuation of the Boeing 747 after the plane landed at the Goose Bay airport.

TWA Capt. John Colpitts, the airline's director of flying, said the company was not aware of any injuries although he said that information was only preliminary.

Colpitts said preparations were being made to send another plane to Newfoundland to pick up the 308 passengers and crew of 13.

He said the landing was made "as a precautionary measure" after a warning light indicated a fire in the cargo area. But Colpitts said that after landing, "there was no evidence of a fire in the cargo bin."

There had been reports by some aboard the aircraft of smoke in the cargo area, he said. FAA spokesman Stephen Hayes said that when the plane landed, the pilot activated remote-control fire extinguishers in the cargo hold based on the report of smoke.

He said the crew then ordered the passengers evacuated from the plane on emergency slides.

Flight 741 was bound from Frankfurt, West Germany, to John F. Kennedy Airport in New York.

Hayes said that although the crew was not certain at the time there was a fire aboard, the decision was made to land as a precaution.

Dead cop told to pay for ride

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Anchorage three times sent a $160 bill to a police officer shot to death by a robbery suspect last summer.

After K-9 Officer Harry Hanson was shot July 17, his body was taken by ambulance to a hospital. On Aug. 7, the city sent Hanson a bill, and later sent two delinquent notices.

Wayne Anthony Ross, a lawyer who represents Hanson's estate, said Thursday he contacted the city finance department and was told the city routinely sends bills for ambulance services.

"For having his body sent from the murder scene to the hospital? I thought that's got to be a mistake," Ross said. "I contacted the city and was told it's routine."

Mayor Tony Knowles spokeswoman, Linda Duck, said the bill was sent by someone who did not realize Hanson had died. The bill has since been paid by insurance, she said.

"It's an unfortunate situation to have a deceased person sent the bill," Ms. Duck said. "We're going to look at the procedure and possibly have it changed so if a city employee is hurt on the job, the finance people can be told and the bill will be sent to the proper agency."

Reagan says flap over arms deal nocrippler

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan vowed Friday not to let the Iran arms crisis cripple his administration, as the chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee angrily accused Reagan's former national security aides of "deserting the country" by refusing to testify about the affair.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., went on the offensive in a variety of forums, strongly urging the former White House aides to divulge all they know so the Reagan administration won't be paralyzed for months to come. The White House confirmed, meanwhile, that Reagan met privately last week with two prominent elder statesmen that former aide Michael K. Deaver is said to have recruited in a campaign for the ouster of White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Deaver arranged the meeting in the White House family quarters Dec. 5 between Reagan and his wife, Nancy, and former Democratic National Committee chairman Robert S. Strauss and former Secretary of State William P. Rogers, to discuss the widening crisis.

Reagan reiterated Friday that "no doubt mistakes were made" in carrying out his decision to secretly sell arms to

Iran, and said he would not be satisfied "until all the facts are before the American people."

But, discussing his forthcoming domestic initiatives with a group of newly elected state legislators at the White House, Reagan declared: "We cannot, and we will not, let this stop us from getting on with the business of governing."

It was the refusal to testify by a third White House national security aide, Marine Lt. Col. Robert Earl, that prompted Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., Intelligence Committee chairman, to charge that the three military men, praised as "national heroes" by their supporters, weren't heroes in his book.

"If they're such heroes, then why are they deserting the country when put to the true test?" Durenberger asked. "Somebody is going to have to define what a national hero is," he added. "A national hero doesn't come in here and stiff the whole country."

Before Earl, former national security adviser, Vice Adm. John M. Poindexter, and Marine Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, had cited their Fifth Amendment rights in refusing to testify. Poindexter resigned on Nov. 25, and North, a NSC staff deputy, was fired the same day.

The Senate panel also was unsuccessful in efforts to question another witness, Howard Teicher, senior director of the National Security Council for political-military affairs, who claimed he needed more time to find a private attorney. Teicher's testimony was delayed until Tuesday.

In other developments: • The two key Middle East middlemen in the arms deal, Saudi billionaire Adnan Khashoggi and Iranian representative Manucher Ghorbanifar, said on ABC-TV's "20-20" program that North apparently controlled Swiss bank accounts through which up to $35 million was deposited in the secret Iran weapons transactions that he coordinated.

• At a meeting of NATO foreign ministers in Brussels, Belgium, Secretary of State George Shultz said Reagan's approach to the Iran crisis was "basically, let's get all the facts out as rapidly as possible." Shultz said he did not believe the refusal of Poindexter and North to testify would hinder congressional investigations of the Iran arms deal and diversion of profits to Nicaraguan insurgents.

"I think that as things move along, it won't place too much of a blockage in the getting out of information," said Shultz.

Honduras takes tough stand

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — President Jose Azcona Hoyo, under domestic pressure to solve Honduras' border problems, is taking a tougher stand against neighboring Nicaragua while trying to oust the Contra rebels from his country.

In line with his new policy, he sent the Honduran air force last week against what he described as an invading force of about 2,500 Nicaraguan soldiers.

He also has asked the United States for assurances that the U.S.-backed Contras fighting the Sandinista government would move their base of operations into Nicaragua as soon as possible, sources said.

The president told a news conference Wednesday that Honduras had been "too cautious" in dealing with Sandinista incursions in the past and would not tolerate any further border crossings.

"We are adequately prepared to repel these situations with the help of the United States and other friendly countries," Azcona Hoyo said. "We will no longer tolerate their presence on our soil."

The president said the air force attacked Nicaraguan soldiers who crossed the border, but he denied Nicaraguan charges that Honduran planes attacked inside Nicaragua. Two military sources in Tegucigalpa, speaking on condition of anonymity, said targets inside Nicaragua were raided.

In the past, the Honduran government largely ignored Nicaraguan incursions because it did not want to get too deeply involved in the conflict between the Sandinistas and the Contras.

Sandinista soldiers have crossed into Honduras in force dozens of times in the past few years, seeking to dislodge or disrupt the Contras who maintain camps along Honduras' southern border.

In March, about 1,500 Nicaraguan soldiers crossed the border into Honduras. Smaller groups of Nicaraguan soldiers patrol the area almost constantly.

The continuing conflict has driven thousands of Honduran residents from their homes in a large, triangular area known as the Las Vegas Salient, about 90 miles east of Tegucigalpa.

The 400-square mile area has become known in Honduras as "New Nicaragua" because of the presence of the Contras.

Terrorists look for revenge

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Abu Nidal terrorist group vowed Friday to strike Israelis "wherever they may be" to avenge a top commander killed during an air raid on Palestinian guerrilla bases in north Lebanon.

The Lebanese government said it would complain to the U.N. Security Council about the Israeli raid Thursday, in which it said nine people were killed and 21 wounded. One of the dead was Mohammed Selim, known as Abu Imad, the Abu Nidal commander in Syrian-occupied north Lebanon.

Police said five of those killed were Palestinians and all other casualties were Lebanese.

A statement distributed by the Abu Nidal group, the Fatah-Revolutionary Council, in north Lebanon's Nahr el-Bared refugee camp said it would take revenge for Selim's death by "striking at Israelis wherever they may be."

The 18th Israeli air raid in Lebanon this year was directed at the Abu Nidal headquarters on the edge of Nahr el-Bared, which means cold river in Arabic.

Libya and Syria support Abu Nidal, whose real name is Sabry al-Banna. He has offices in both countries and training camps in east and north Lebanon, where Syria has about 25,000 soldiers.

Israeli, Arab and Western intelligence agencies have accused the former Jerusalem school teacher of directing scores of terrorist attacks since he broke in 1976 with Fatah, the mainstream guerrilla faction led by Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat.

Among those were simultaneous assaults at the Rome and Vienna airports last Dec. 27 in which 20 people were killed, including four terrorists, and scores wounded.

His guerrillas also were held responsible for commandeering a Pan American jumbo jet Sept. 5 at the airport in Karachi, Pakistan. The terrorists opened fire inside the aircraft, killing 20 people.

The next day, 22 Jews were killed in an attack on a synagogue in Istanbul, Turkey, blamed on Abu Nidal.

U.S./World in Brief

November inflation edges up

WASHINGTON — The government said Friday that wholesale prices last month inched up 0.2 percent for the fourth consecutive increase, suggesting a return of inflation to levels that prevailed before world oil prices tumbled.

The November increase in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index is equivalent to an annual inflation rate of 2.5 percent.

However, over the past 12 months, wholesale prices have actually fallen 1.9 percent — most of that reflecting the more than 35 percent collapse of oil and gasoline prices that occurred earlier in the year.

Chernobyl-type plant to close

RICHLAND, Wash. — The only U.S. nuclear reactor with a design similar to the Soviet Chernobyl plant will be shut down for six months to make safety improvements recommended by an expert panel, the Energy Department said Friday.

During the shutdown, to begin in three weeks, $50 million in modifications will be made to the aging N Reactor at the Hanford reservation, Energy Undersecretary Joseph Salgado said.

Also Friday, the department awarded a $5 billion, five-year contract to Westinghouse Electric Corp. of Pittsburgh to be the contractor for management work at Hanford.

Shocked town picks new mayor

MOUNT PLEASANT, Iowa — Workmen scrubbed bloodstains at City Hall on Friday as the City Council held a subdued meeting across the street to name a temporary replacement for the popular mayor slain by a man irate over a backed-up sewer.

James Carson, picked as acting mayor by four of his colleagues, said, "I think the important thing now is to get this crisis behind us."

It was the first council meeting since Wednesday night's session ended with Mayor Edward King dead after being shot twice in the head and two council members wounded. Ralph Orin Davis, 69, was charged with first-degree murder in the death of King, who brought business to the southeastern Iowa city of 7,300 people despite a slumping Midwest farm economy.

GOP narrows city picks

WASHINGTON — The Republicans will hold their 1988 presidential nominating convention in Kansas City, Mo., New Orleans or Atlanta, the Republican National Committee announced Friday.

The RNC's site selection committee narrowed the field to those three cities after evaluating bids of 10 cities vying to host the Aug. 15-18 convention, said party Chairman Frank Fahrenkopf Jr.

He said Atlanta is on the list of finalists conditionally, because the city's Omni sports arena initially fell short of the seating space the GOP required. But Fahrenkopf said he had received a message from Georgia Gov. Joe Frank Harris and Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young this week saying they would modify the fixed-seating hall to construct about 1,000 more seats.

States may see taxes rise

WASHINGTON — Residents of 33 states will see their state income taxes increase, in many cases considerably, unless legislatures adjust their laws for the effects of federal tax changes, a bipartisan commission said Friday.

The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations said the impact of the new federal tax law will be so broad that, "in reality, many states are likely to alter their income tax structures in response to federal tax reform."

Louisiana, with a 28 percent rise, would see the biggest percentage impact on individual state taxes as a result of the change, the study said. Colorado was listed next at 22 percent.

The commission said 10 states would experience a net decrease in individual income taxes. The biggest decline, 11 percent, would be in Rhode Island and Vermont, followed by 10 percent in North Dakota, it said.

Company recalls chicken

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP) — Geo. A. Hormel & Co. on Friday recalled cans of its chunk chicken breast from stores in 22 states, including Connecticut, because of spoilage resulting from damaged can lids, Senior Vice President Charles A. Nyberg said.

The voluntary recall involves 6½-ounce cans of Hormel Chunk Breast of Chicken bearing the code date A07236HCC2 and plant number P11502, stamped on the can lids, Nyberg said.

The chicken was packed for Hormel by Crider's Inc. of Lincoln, Ga. Nyberg said the spoilage resulted from possible weakening or small fractures of the can lids by equipment that embosses the code date.

The chicken was canned July 23, he said, but the company has not received any complaints of illness. The problem was brought to Hormel's attention Friday morning by a store manager, Nyberg said. Hormel is working with the U.S. Department of Agriculture in the recall, he said.

The states from which the chicken is being recalled are: Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Nyberg said he did not have figures on how many cans of the chicken are involved or how much the recall would cost the company.

He urged consumers who brought the chicken with the recalled code number not to eat it and to return it to the store where it was purchased for a refund or exchange.

Consumers with questions can call 1-900-200-4200.

'Forbs' makes a point

NEW YORK (AP) — For a single issue, Forbes magazine will appear on newsstands as "Forbs."

America's schools are spending much and achieving little — so says the Dec. 29 issue of the financial monthly. And how more flagrantly to illustrate the point, Forbes editors decided, than to misspell their own magazine's name?

The featured article, "Are We Spending Too Much on Education," is a broadside against school officials who argue that "there is little wrong with education that more money won't cure."

The article sides with Education Secretary William Bennett who has argued recently for "college cost containment."

The deliberate misspelling, probably a first for any magazine, "is a humdinger of an idea. It is really hard to cut through the thinking of people. Changing the title of the magazine will do that," said Forbes spokesman Don Garson.

Observant readers, by the way, will find the missing red "e" tucked coyly on page four, above the table of contents.

Marjorie A. Reed

Marjorie A. (Smith) Eldredge Reed, 91, of Manchester, died Thursday at Manchester Memorial Hospital. She was the wife of the late Winthrop A. Reed.

She was born in New London on April 15, 1895, and had lived in Manchester for over 40 years. She lived previously in Tolland and Wethersfield.

A communicant of St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Manchester, she was a volunteer for many organizations and in 1985 was presented the Outstanding Citizen of the Year Award by Manchester Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg.

Giants in oil industry bleed and fight for life

By Rick Gladstone
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — It was a turbulent week for titans in the ailing oil business, marked by the sale of Exxon Corp.'s headquarters and electric subsidiary for nearly $2 billion, Schlumberger Ltd.'s $1.7 billion fourth-quarter charge and OPEC efforts to devise an $18-per-barrel pricing strategy.

Petroleum-industry analysts said they believed the asset sales by the world's largest oil company were part of a maneuver to amass a large supply of cash for a possible acquisition, most likely additional oilfield reserves to be tapped when demand pushes prices back up.

They said Schlumberger, the world's largest oilfield services company, was simply doing what competitors already have done: making bookkeeping adjustments and consolidating operations to reflect the sharply lower value of exploration and drilling work, which have been devastated by oil prices 50 percent lower than levels a year ago.

They said Schlumberger, the world's largest oilfield services company, was simply doing what competitors already have done: making bookkeeping adjustments and consolidating operations to reflect the sharply lower value of exploration and drilling work, which have been devastated by oil prices 50 percent lower than levels a year ago.

Many analysts focused on the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries summit in Geneva, where ministers of the once-mighty cartel met again to seek a mutually agreeable strategy for cutting output in an attempt to raise prices by about $4 a barrel from the current $14-$15.

The economies of all oil-producing countries have suffered severely from the year-old depression in prices, causing intense austerity and potential political upheavals.

"I think the financial pressures within OPEC are so tremendous it's irresistible," said Rosario Ilacqua, oil-industry watcher for the New York investment firm of L.F. Rothschild, Unterberg, Towbin.

"I think if they don't come up with something tangible to keep the price where it is or raise it, you'll have governments falling and maybe half these guys out on the street," he said. "I think we'll see $18 oil not too far down the road."

Others were more pessimistic, arguing that the 13-nation cartel faces enormous difficulties because of a persistent worldwide oversupply and internal differences over whether production cuts are necessary.

"They really have their work cut out," said Carol Epstein, managing editor at the New York-based research and publication firm Petroleum Analysis Ltd. "Eighteen dollar oil is nice, but how do you get it there?"

Exxon's sale of its 54-story New York

headquarters to the large Japanese conglomerate Mitsui & Co. for $610 million reportedly was the largest price paid for a single building in the city, but still $100 million lower than what the oil giant had expected. Exxon will lease part of the building back.

One day after that sale was announced, the company reversed one of its most controversial business moves by selling Reliance Electric Co. for $1.35 billion to an investment group.

Exxon's $1.24 billion purchase of the Cleveland-based motor manufacturer in 1979 was considered a major mistake by many industry analysts.

It came at a time when many large oil companies were flush with cash from huge profits and were diversifying into businesses they new little about, ranging from retailing to office furniture.

"As far as I'm concerned, Reliance never fit in with Exxon," Ilacqua said. "It's probably worth a lot more to someone else." The sale was the latest in a series of non-petroleum divestitures by oil companies, reflecting a broader effort by the industry to concentrate on positioning itself for an inevitable resurgence in oil prices.

In other major business and economic developments this past week:

• The government said wholesale prices in November inched up 0.2 percent for the fourth consecutive monthly increase, suggesting a return of inflation to levels prevailing before oil prices tumbled. Other government reports said U.S. business sales dropped 1.6 percent and inventories jumped 0.6 percent in October because of slumping car sales; retail sales rose 0.5 percent in November; and the trade deficit rose to a record $37.67 billion in the third quarter, dampening hopes that a weaker dollar will shrink the imbalance.

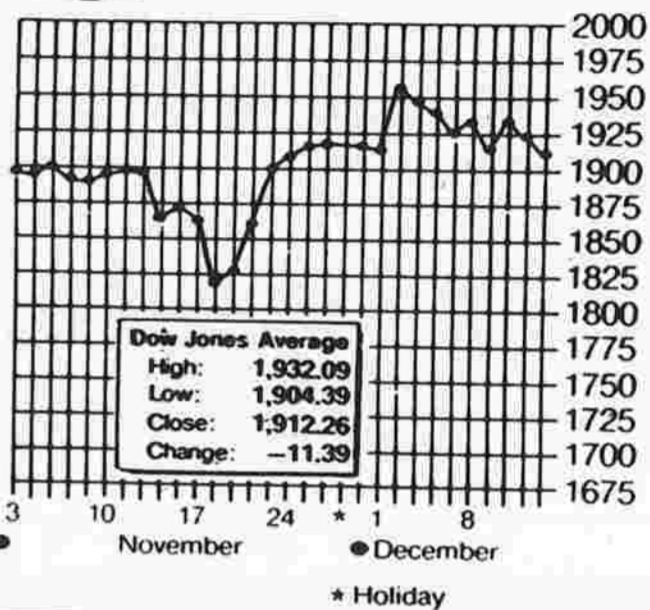

• The Reagan administration revised downward by a full percentage point its forecast for 1987 economic growth. The new prediction of 3.2 percent reflected what private analysts called White House embarrassment that previous forecasts of strong growth were consistently wrong.

• Manufacturer Owens-Illinois Inc. received a $3.32 billion acquisition proposal from Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co., the New York investment firm that specializes in leveraged buyouts, or acquisitions financed with loans repaid with the purchased company's earnings or sales of assets.

Emhart Corp. plans to slash 1,100 jobs

FARMINGTON (AP) — Emhart Corp. will sell 16 units and eliminate 1,100 jobs worldwide as part of its previously announced $150 million restructuring plan, the company said.

Based in Farmington, Emhart employs 34,000 and had sales of $1.78 billion in 1985.

The 1,100 jobs to be eliminated are about evenly divided between white- and blue-collar workers, Emhart announced Thursday. About 800 jobs will be eliminated overseas and 27 will be eliminated at corporate headquarters.

The 16 units to be sold are located in eight states and four foreign countries, and employ 4,000 people, Emhart said. The units had combined sales of $250 million last year.

U.S./World in Brief

November inflation edges up

WASHINGTON — The government said Friday that wholesale prices last month inched up 0.2 percent for the fourth consecutive increase, suggesting a return of inflation to levels that prevailed before world oil prices tumbled.

The November increase in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index is equivalent to an annual inflation rate of 2.5 percent.

However, over the past 12 months, wholesale prices have actually fallen 1.9 percent — most of that reflecting the more than 35 percent collapse of oil and gasoline prices that occurred earlier in the year.

Chernobyl-type plant to close

RICHLAND, Wash. — The only U.S. nuclear reactor with a design similar to the Soviet Chernobyl plant will be shut down for six months to make safety improvements recommended by an expert panel, the Energy Department said Friday.

During the shutdown, to begin in three weeks, $50 million in modifications will be made to the aging N Reactor at the Hanford reservation, Energy Undersecretary Joseph Salgado said.

Also Friday, the department awarded a $5 billion, five-year contract to Westinghouse Electric Corp. of Pittsburgh to be the contractor for management work at Hanford.

Shocked town picks new mayor

MOUNT PLEASANT, Iowa — Workmen scrubbed bloodstains at City Hall on Friday as the City Council held a subdued meeting across the street to name a temporary replacement for the popular mayor slain by a man irate over a backed-up sewer.

James Carson, picked as acting mayor by four of his colleagues, said, "I think the important thing now is to get this crisis behind us."

It was the first council meeting since Wednesday night's session ended with Mayor Edward King dead after being shot twice in the head and two council members wounded. Ralph Orin Davis, 69, was charged with first-degree murder in the death of King, who brought business to the southeastern Iowa city of 7,300 people despite a slumping Midwest farm economy.

GOP narrows city picks

WASHINGTON — The Republicans will hold their 1988 presidential nominating convention in Kansas City, Mo., New Orleans or Atlanta, the Republican National Committee announced Friday.

The RNC's site selection committee narrowed the field to those three cities after evaluating bids of 10 cities vying to host the Aug. 15-18 convention, said party Chairman Frank Fahrenkopf Jr.

He said Atlanta is on the list of finalists conditionally, because the city's Omni sports arena initially fell short of the seating space the GOP required. But Fahrenkopf said he had received a message from Georgia Gov. Joe Frank Harris and Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young this week saying they would modify the fixed-seating hall to construct about 1,000 more seats.

States may see taxes rise

WASHINGTON — Residents of 33 states will see their state income taxes increase, in many cases considerably, unless legislatures adjust their laws for the effects of federal tax changes, a bipartisan commission said Friday.

The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations said the impact of the new federal tax law will be so broad that, "in reality, many states are likely to alter their income tax structures in response to federal tax reform."

Louisiana, with a 28 percent rise, would see the biggest percentage impact on individual state taxes as a result of the change, the study said. Colorado was listed next at 22 percent.

The commission said 10 states would experience a net decrease in individual income taxes. The biggest decline, 11 percent, would be in Rhode Island and Vermont, followed by 10 percent in North Dakota, it said.

Company recalls chicken

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP) — Geo. A. Hormel & Co. on Friday recalled cans of its chunk chicken breast from stores in 22 states, including Connecticut, because of spoilage resulting from damaged can lids, Senior Vice President Charles A. Nyberg said.

The voluntary recall involves 6 1/4-ounce cans of Hormel Chunk Breast of Chicken bearing the code date A07238HCC2 and plant number P11502, stamped on the can lids, Nyberg said.

The chicken was packed for Hormel by Crider's Inc. of Lincoln, Ga. Nyberg said the spoilage resulted from possible weakening or small fractures of the can lids by equipment that embosses the code date.

The chicken was canned July 23, he said, but the company has not received any complaints of illness. The problem was brought to Hormel's attention Friday morning by a store manager, Nyberg said. Hormel is working with the U.S. Department of Agriculture in the recall, he said.

The states from which the chicken is being recalled are: Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Nyberg said he did not have figures on how many cans of the chicken are involved or how much the recall would cost the company.

He urged consumers who brought the chicken with the recalled code number not to eat it and to return it to the store where it was purchased for a refund or exchange.

Consumers with questions can call 1-900-200-4200.

'Forbs' makes a point

NEW YORK (AP) — For a single issue, Forbes magazine will appear on newstands as "Forbs."

America's schools are spending much and achieving little — so says the Dec. 29 issue of the financial monthly. And how more flagrantly to illustrate the point, Forbes editors decided, than to misspell their own magazine's name?

The featured article, "Are We Spending Too Much on Education," is a broadside against school officials who argue that "there is little wrong with education that more money won't cure."

The article sides with Education Secretary William Bennett who has argued recently for "college cost containment."

The deliberate misspelling, probably a first for any magazine, "is a humdinger of an idea. It is really hard to cut through the thinking of people. Changing the title of the magazine will do that," said Forbes spokesman Don Garson.

Observant readers, by the way, will find the missing red "e" tucked coyly on page four, above the table of contents.

Town slights great leader

Probably no man has had a greater impact on the lives of American blacks than Martin Luther King Jr., the civil rights activist who was assassinated in Memphis, Tenn., in 1968.

But King's many contributions to the causes of peace and equal rights notwithstanding, it was not until two years ago that the federal government saw fit to designate a holiday in his honor.

While most federal, state and local offices will shut their doors Jan. 19 in observance of Martin Luther King Day, municipal offices in Manchester will again remain open.

Assistant Town Manager Steven Werbner has defended the decision to keep offices open on the grounds that paid holidays are covered by union contracts that are not scheduled to be renegotiated until January.

Whatever the merits of that argument, the business-as-usual attitude sends a poor signal, particularly since Manchester has for years been fighting the perception that it is a hostile place for members of minority groups to live and work.

The town should make every effort to give Martin Luther King Day the status it deserves.

Van's smoker

State House Speaker R.E. Van Norstrand has come up with a turkey of a bill.

On Wednesday, the Darien Republican said he plans to introduce legislation that would tax the sale of illegal drugs.

"If the dealer doesn't register with the state and pay the tax, he is in violation of the 'grass tax' law," Van Norstrand said. "If he does register, then we get him for the sale of illegal substances."

By Van Norstrand's apparent reasoning, the law would send drug dealers scurrying to register with the state for fear of prosecution. Unfortunately, the nature of their business forces dealers to live daily with the threat of long prison terms, and prosecution under a "grass tax" law would likely be among the least of their worries.

In addition to ignoring common sense, Van Norstrand apparently forgot a few principles of law when he maintained that such a law would make it easier for the state to obtain convictions.

People accused of selling drugs would have to be convicted of that crime first before they could be convicted of violating the tax law — and if the aim of such a law is to increase the drug-conviction rate, it is simply unnecessary.

The "grass tax" proposal is bound to make taxpayers and fellow legislators wonder what the speaker has been smoking.

TV and ideas don't mix

WASHINGTON — J. Peter Grace, a politically conservative New Yorker, was repeatedly frustrated when he sought to purchase air time to broadcast a television commercial criticizing the size of the federal government's budget deficit.

Fred Ross, a politically liberal San Franciscan, was similarly thwarted when he attempted to persuade television stations to sell him time to show a documentary program challenging this country's involvement in Central America.

Grace and Ross are among the countless people who have discovered that although the nation's television networks and stations aggressively seek to sell air time to marketers of commercial products ranging from antacid tablets to underarm deodorants, they routinely rebuff those seeking to buy time to debate public policy issues.

Grace is board chairman of W.R. Grace & Co., a conglomerate corporation that paid $300,000 for the production of a compelling 60-second commercial depicting children placing their parents on trial in the year 2017.

THE IMPOVERISHED youngsters, clad only in rags, accuse their elders of bankrupting the nation's future generations by allowing the federal deficit to grow to unmanageable proportions late in the 20th century.

Both the CBS and NBC televi-

sion networks initially rejected the ad on the grounds that it was too controversial, although CBS subsequently relented and agreed to carry it.

ABC, possibly believing that only insomniacs and vampires are sturdy enough to survive exposure to controversial issues, will carry "The Deficit Trials: 2017 A.D." and similar commercials — but only after midnight.

Ross is executive director of Neighbor to Neighbor, an organization opposed to this country's military intervention in Central America, especially its support of the anti-government contras in Nicaragua.

At a cost of $127,000, it has produced a film, "Faces of War," that illustrates the deleterious effects of U.S. involvement in the region through dramatic portraits of widowed mothers, starving children and other victims of war.

Although more than 40 television stations throughout the country have agreed to sell time to air the film, almost three times that number have refused to broadcast it.

TO DRAMATIZE ITS FLIGHT last year, Neighbor to Neighbor produced a briefcase stuffed with $5,000 at a demonstration in front of a San Francisco television station that earlier had rejected the money because it did not want to sell air time for the film.

Other organizations that have encountered only limited success in persuading television stations to sell them broadcast time span the entire political spectrum and seek exposure for productions that range in length from 60 seconds to 60 minutes.

That list includes Physicians for Social Responsibility, Center for Science in the Public Interest, American Security Council, National Rifle Association and Handgun Control Inc.

A leading distiller, Joseph E. Seagram and Sons Inc., became involved in a protracted dispute with the television networks several years ago because it could not buy time for a series of commercials that claimed liquor, beer and wine all contained equivalent amounts of alcohol.

Planned Parenthood Inc. has publicly complained that television networks and stations enthusiastically sell time for such intimate products as vaginal deodorants and sanitary napkins but reject commercials promoting condoms.

Despite the imposition of often arbitrary and capricious restrictions, there is mounting pressure for advocacy advertising on television. According to one estimate, $2 billion will be spent on issue-oriented commercials this year.

Independent stations and those in smaller markets are most receptive to the ads, while network affiliates and outlets in larger cities would rather deal with laundry soap and cold remedies than issues and ideas.

Drew Pearson did anything to get a story

WASHINGTON — This column, the nation's oldest, has been keeping a watch on Washington for 55 years. Its founder Drew Pearson, had he lived as long as he had intended, would be 89 today.

Far back in the bleak year of 1931, he conceived of a column such as had never been seen before — a column that would appear not in several papers but in several hundred, that would be read not only by intellectuals and political junkies but by great numbers of ordinary people running into the tens of millions.

It would specialize in the butchery of sacred cows: politicians who would bankrupt the commonwealth to benefit special interests, lawyers who endlessly complicate their procedures while justice languishes, economists whose materialistic rules are obliterating social mores, polluters whose wastes foul the soil and seas, agri-businessmen who would poison and destroy the land tomorrow so that it might yield a bigger crop today.

But if Drew had one emotional spring that ran deepest, it was his sympathy for the downtrodden and the derelict. He championed the helpless against the mighty, the duped against the dupers, the dissenter against the organization, the small enterprise over the octopus, the abused against their malefactors.

FOR ALL THE FIRE, art and ingenuity he brought to journalism, he saw it as essentially a tool to fight every form of institutionalized greed and violence. His columns and broadcasts were to him weapons in a just war, with truth as their only acknowledged restriction — and truth was often a subjective matter.

Drew did not believe reporters could overcome the unscrupulous by submitting to the canons of good taste, by furnishing the facts and then standing aloof. He believed that to get the job done he must intrude during all phases of the battle. Not only would he expose the abuse, he would hound the tribunal until it investigated, instruct witnesses in their testimony, propagandize the galleries, help draft the remedial legislation and write the popular history of the affair.

I was always impressed by Drew's ethics on the grand scale, his foul-weather championship of the rights of the weak, his convictions on the moral objectives of the newspaper column and the just society. But I disagreed with, and am not yet reconciled to, his subordination of the rules of journalism to "larger" considerations — his mixing of reporting with political activism, his climbing into bed with what he judged the lesser offender in order to bag the greater, his occasional use of deduction to carry on from where investigative fact left off.

DREW BELIEVED DEVOUTLY that good will overcome evil if the actors are seen and the facts are known. And so he became a scandal-monger, who cared more about getting the story than how he got it. I felt that an investigative reporter, unlike the government for example, should have ethics that prevent him from burglarizing files, intercepting mail, buying information or planting paid spies.

The best way to accomplish good, Drew believed, was to personalize the abstract, to name actual thieves and perjurers rather than to lament theft and misrepresentation. I do not disagree, but my libel attorney often does.

The stricter reporting and lawyering standards that I established have taken some of the fire out of the column, and there are times when I long for the freewheeling style of the great Drew Pearson. Who knows, the experience of our time may bring him out right.

Our world is being vandalized and poisoned piece by piece by tidy specialists who scrupulously obey the codes of their narrow professions but claim no responsibility to larger realms. Shouldn't the media be held accountable, for example, for the chaos it sometimes creates?

Drew Pearson tried to see the world whole and to subject his specialty to that ordered vision. He had the journalistic imagination and boldness, the surging hope born of idealism, the toughness and courage to act on his better impulses in the worst weather. The memory of those qualities was the heritage he left to those who knew him.

Individuals made America strong

To the Editor:

Amidst the uproar caused by the so-called "Iranian Deal" the one light which should be shed on the situation seems not to have been considered.

The attitude which made the United States of America strong was that the country's strength is in the individual's courage.

We went to war over individual rights and have always protected each citizen at home and abroad with the whole might of our free government.

Ours is the most sought for citizenship because of our ready protection of it.

Chamber leader thanks the town

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce, I would like to thank the many individuals and organizations who helped make the townwide carol-singing to benefit the Nativity Scene Replacement Fund such a huge success.

Special thanks to Bill Johnson, David Morse the evening's carol director, Pat and Carol Castagna and Joyce Trainer for setting up the refreshments, the downtown merchants, MARC bakery, the members of the Nativity Scene Restoration, and all the Manchester churches who participated.

Adding to the evening's festivities were special performances by the Manchester townwide fifth and sixth grade chorus directed by Cheryl Hilton and the Bennet Junior High School Band under the direction of Tony Sousa and the Gilbert and Sullivan singers.

Two new nativity scenes, replacing those destroyed by fire, have arrived for all of the residents of Manchester to enjoy this season. This was made possible through the generous loans by Bill Johnson and The Savings Bank of Manchester and Dan Reale and the Manchester Board of Realtors.

Tipping fee just another tax

To the Editor:

Only the writer of the editorial "Waive trash charges for town condos" can be naive enough to believe that the chief purpose of the tipping fee at the town landfill is to discourage the use of the landfill. The tipping fee is nothing more than an added tax.

Politicians have learned to use these hidden fees and taxes to tax certain groups that don't have large voting blocks. The tipping fee was meant to hit the small businessmen that use dumpsters, small family run restaurants, package stores and garages. The large users will just pass this tax on to the consumer.

As long as the Democratic Party in power keeps giving away town assets, giving tax abatements to certain businesses and issuing tax increment bonds, taxes will have to rise. Spending equals taxes. The duty of the minority party is to keep checks on the majority party. The Republican Party in Manchester has cheated the people of that check and balance.

The tax on garbage is another example of how small business may pay the burden of taxes while big business, like the Mall at Buckland Hills, benefits.

Father Joe Manning and Father Robert Thoms of the New Creation Team Ministries will give an in-depth Bible study this evening at the Church of the Risen Savior, 9 Ellington Ave., Rockville. The Bible study is part of the monthly fellowship supper series. A potluck begins at 5 p.m., followed by the program at 6 p.m. Child care is provided. For more information, call 289-5889.

Observe deadlines

All items submitted for use on this page must be received by the Manchester Herald by Tuesday morning.

Changes in the religious services listing must also be submitted Tuesday morning.

Thoughts

I should use this last day of "Thoughts" to say something profound about the Christmas season. But, to be honest, I only want to think and write in terms of simple, common sense.

My Savior was brought to earth in the most simple, common way. To simple, common parents, in a simple, common stable. He was brought up in a family and given the same education and life as other children. His earthly parents knew that the day would come when His Heavenly Father would take over and Jesus would soon begin a new life.

God's plan included humble beginnings for the Savior of the Earth. How better for Christ to understand us and be willing to die for us when He had actually lived like us.

I'm grateful — eternally grateful — that God's plan for Christ included a humble start, a miraculous life and a forgiving death — for you and me.

Come to Sunday's carol sing

Editor's note: This column is provided by the staff of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

By Nancy Carr
MACC Director

Practice your scales, your tral-las, your rum-tum-tums. Sunday night is our annual Community Christmas Carol Sing. We'll gather at 6 p.m. at the Salvation Army Citadel to sing all the beautiful old Christmas carols and maybe a few new ones. I know you already associate Christmas carols with Salvation Army bell ringers and brass quartets but our Manchester Salvation Army Band and Songsters are just extra special.

The Salvationists and Second Congregational Church have planned a Christian celebration for the whole family. We will be extending our carol with a candlelit singing pilgrimage to visit the Christ child in the nativity scene at Center Church. Then we'll head back to the citadel for refreshments.

The community carol sing is scheduled early so that you can have the little ones home in time for a hot bath and regular bedtime. See you Sunday night at 6.

Santa drops by on Thursday

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Senior Citizens' Center.

By Jeonette Cave
Senior Center Director

During this holiday period, activities do not cease at the center. All seniors are invited to meet Santa at the Christmas party on Thursday.

Don't forget to bring a grab bag gift ($2) to exchange with a fellow center member. Please indicate whether it is for a "male" or "female." Don't forget to make your reservations for lunch before noon Tuesday.

A big thanks is in order to our volunteer dried-flower instructors Leona Juros and Peggy Herrick. Their efforts, along with the class participants, helped contribute to the success of our holiday fair.

The center is collecting canned goods and money to bring good cheer to the needy. Canned meats and such items as coffee and tea, are badly needed. Donations may be brought to the center's office. Your efforts will be appreciated.

The meals program will end Dec. 23 and resume on Jan. 5, 1987. We applaud the kitchen staff and the ROTC students for providing nutritious, well-balanced meals for all to enjoy.

However, I am reminded by the

kitchen staff that there is a discrepancy between the number of persons who make reservations and the number who actually appear for the meals. We base the purchase of food upon the number of reservations and find that we have an increasing amount of food left over. This translates into higher costs to operate the meals program. Canceling reservations after food has been ordered does not help the situation. Please make sure you do not make reservations if you think you may not be able to attend. We have not increased the price of meals in more than five years and would like to continue to offer low-cost lunches. Your consideration can be a major factor.

The senior center, in conjunction with the American Association of Retired Persons, will conduct another driver's education program Jan. 27 and 28 from 12:30 to 4 p.m. Those who complete the course will receive 5% reduction in their insurance premiums as required by state law. Fee for the course is $7. A check, made payable to AARP and dated Jan. 27, 1987, is required at registration.

Square dancers are reminded that there will be no class on Dec. 23.

Beef and coffee ladles in ad hall of fame

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Clara Peller, the "Where's the Beef?" lady of Wendy's television commercials, and Virginia Christine, who as Mrs. Olson has been pouring Folger's coffee for years, have been inducted into an advertising hall of fame.

Peller and Christine are the first humans to join such ad greats as the Jolly Green Giant, Speedy Alka Seltzer and the Pillsbury Doughboy.

The induction ceremonies into the hall of fame established by San Francisco's Museum of Modern Mythology took place Thursday night.

All the Wendy's commercials and more than 300 of the Folger's commercials broadcast in the last 21 years will be kept on file at the museum, said curator Ellen Wels.

MAGAZINE

The story behind the story

By Josie

Q. Anthony Hopkins is my favorite actor but no one ever writes anything about him. Could you please fill me in on his background? J.S., Nfld., Canada

A. He's 48 (born December 31, 1937) from Port Talbot, Wales, the only child of bakery owners who worked long, hard hours to support him. He was taunted frequently during his childhood, and partly to get him away from such negative influences, his parents shipped him off to an exclusive boarding school 30 miles away in the town of Glamorgan. He hated it. He was a terrible student, useless at sports and was snubbed totally by his upper-crust classmates.

After he left, he went immediately to work in a steel foundry near Port Talbot and, as an amusement, became involved with local theater group. Finally, he found something he could do and could do well, so he began to attend classes at the Cardiff College of Drama.

In 1961, he entered the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art and began to perform as well with various repertory troupes around the country. In 1964, he made his London stage debut in a production of "Julius Caesar" and began to work toward his goal: membership in the National Theater under Laurence Olivier's leadership.

It took him two tries, but with Olivier himself sitting in on the audition, he was admitted. After portraying an extensive array of roles with the Old Vic, he was awarded the "Promising New Actor Award" by the London critics in 1970-1.

The London hit "Equus" introduced Hopkins to American stage audiences in 1974; film audiences first saw him as "Richard the Lion Hearted" in "The Lion in Winter" six years before. He followed that film with "Hamlet," "The Looking Glass War," "When Eight Bells Toll," "Young Winston," "A Bridge Too Far," "International Velvet," "Magic," "The Elephant Man," "A Change of Seasons" and "The Bounty."

His TV appearances have included roles in "War and Peace," "QB VII," "The Lindbergh Kidnapping Case," "The Bunker," "Mussolini: The Decline and Fall of Il Duce" for HBO and the original "All Creatures Great and Small."

Now: "He's committed to the London stage for the next 18 months," explains his agent. He and his wife, Jenny, have also recently moved back to London after spending 10 years in California. He has a teen-age daughter from an earlier marriage.

F. Murray Abraham

Q. I would like to know what F. Murray Abraham has been in, where he's from and what the F. stands for. Jane C. Miller, McAllen, Texas

A. The F. stands for Fahrid, which reflects his half-Syrian heritage, but he never uses it. He's from El Paso, Texas, where his parents still live, as does his Oscar for "Amadeus"; his mother has custody of the statuette.

For years, pre-"Amadeus" he was a hardworking, unknown actor who did a lot of off-Broadway and commercials (in perhaps his most famous appearance, he was a leaf in a Fruit of the Loom ad) before he started to get progressively more noticeable roles in films — "All the President's Men," "The Big Fix," "Serpico" and "Scarface." On TV, you may have seen him in "Marco Polo" and more recently, as Abraham Lincoln in "Dream West."

"Amadeus" made him famous temporarily, but he still goes largely unrecognized on the streets of Brooklyn, where he lives with his wife and two teen-agers. Currently, he's in "The Name of the Rose" with Sean Connery, but the majority of his time is spent at Brooklyn College, where he's a professor of theater.

Q. Please tell me a little bit about the girl who plays Samantha on "Who's the Boss?" Where is she from, and what is she doing now? Philip Angarone and Dan Rafferty, Hamilton, N.J.

A. Alyssa Milano is 13 (she'll be 14 on December 19), from New York City and has been acting since the age of 8 when she was cast in a touring company of "Annie." She returned from the road 14 months later, did a lot of off-Broadway and later was cast in this show. You may also have seen her in her film debut, playing Arnold Schwarzenegger's daughter in "Commando." Besides working on "Boss," she's currently putting together a dance/workout video for kids.

Alyssa Milano

Q. What has Lauren Hutton been doing? How did she become famous and why did they fill in the gap in her teeth? M.H., DeWitt, Iowa

A. Making movies. She recently finished the movie "Flagrant Desire" in France and is currently shooting "Malone" with Burt Reynolds. She became famous somewhat accidentally: She'd come to New York with the intention of catching a tramp steamer to Morocco (traveling is her passion), needed money, saw an ad for a house model at Christian Dior and was hired.

Over the next few months, she tried to put together a modeling portfolio because photographic models made more money, but she got nowhere until somehow, she landed in editor Diana Vreeland's office at Vogue. Vreeland thought she was terrific and sent her to see top photographer Richard Avedon, who had already met and refused to photograph her.

This time, however, he didn't say no and the results were modeling history. Some of her high-fashion clients didn't appreciate the space between her teeth, though, and she was fitted with a fill-in piece. She takes it off when she isn't working.

Q. Could you settle a disagreement? My friend says that Vanna White has a child but no husband. Was the father the man who was killed in a plane crash months back? Mrs. McKinley, Upland, Calif.

A. No to everything. She has no children, also no husband. She did have a fiance who was killed in a plane crash several months ago, but they had no children.

Excuses, Excuses:

Try this test for rating your excuses

By Frances Sheridan Goulart

Beverly Sills' excuse when she's late for an appointment is a long-distance phone call or a sick poodle.

Actor-director Michael Douglas lays the blame on color blindness when he's caught speeding. Debbie Allen uses a stuck zipper as her excuse.

Are excuses getting to be a habit with you, too? An excuse is handy as a sometime thing, but as many as 20 percent of American adults use excuses so much they become destructive to their emotional well-being, say Dr. Charles Snyder, Raymond Higgins and Rita Stucky of the University of Kansas, authors of "Excuses: Masquerades in Search of Grace."

"When excuse-making develops into a habit, it can stand in the way of healthy changes in personality because it destroys an understanding of one's problems."

"Those most likely to make excuses are those likely to be mistrustful of other people, individuals who have a fragile regard of their own worth and who are highly sensitive to criticism," adds Arlene Kagle, Ph.D., a practicing psychologist in Manhattan.

What are your excuses telling the world? Take this tell-all test, then check out the tips:

1. You've been dieting for a week. At a friend's house you eat a dessert that uses up a whole day's allowance of calories. You tell yourself:

- a) It's only a little piece. Before going on my diet, I would have had one twice this size.
- b) I can't hurt my friend's feelings.
- c) I have no will power; I'm the sort of person who can never lose weight.
- d) I shouldn't have done it.

2. You have not finished a report for the boss (teacher, supervisor). You tell him:

- a) The computer is down and my report is buried in the microchips.
- b) I wrote it at home, but then my husband (roommate/mother) used it to line the garbage pail.
- c) My colleagues (co-workers/friends/librarian) didn't give me the information I needed.
- d) I just didn't get around to it. Sorry!

3. You're in an expensive shop and you run into a doctor (dentist/mechanic/vet) you haven't paid in six months. You think:

- a) If she/he can afford to come here, she/he obviously doesn't need my money.
- b) She/he had a lot of nerve charging me so much anyway. I'll pay when I'm good and ready.
- c) I had so much on my mind I forgot. I didn't mean to let it go this long.
- d) If I can afford to come here, I can afford to pay her/his bill.

4. You miss a date with the dentist (dermatologist/hair stylist/exercise class) and forget to cancel, so you're billed. You call and say:

- a) It's your office's fault; no one reminded me.
- b) I tried to call, but your phones weren't working.
- c) I was wrong; I should have called.
- d) I got stuck in a business meeting (class/traffic snarl) and couldn't call.

5. You forget your anniversary. Your husband (boy or girlfriend/partner) reminds you and you say:

- a) Now we're even. You forgot last year.
- b) What do you expect? We've been married (together/in business) for ages.
- c) This is the first time I've ever done this. I don't know what's wrong with me.
- d) I must have been angry with you and that's how it came out.

6. A perfectly nice person who is also a bore presses you to accept an invitation to dinner. You beg off, saying:

- a) This is a busy time (semester/week) for me, so I'm not accepting any invitations.
- b) I'm on a new starvation diet and I hardly eat at all.
- c) I'm getting ready for a bike trip up the Amazon.
- d) I don't think a friendship between us would work.

7. Assume you gave answer 1a or 1b and then you run into the woman at someone's else's party. You explain:

- a) If I hadn't accepted this invitation months ago, I wouldn't be here.
- b) My diet was so bizarre, I gave it up.
- c) I lied to you.
- d) I finally got an assistant at work, so I'm not as busy now.

8. Your first assignment on a new job (in a new class/in a new therapy group) is to coordinate an annual sales conference (meeting/group trip). You do your best but there's one mix-up after another. You tell yourself:

- a) It isn't my fault. The (fill in) people said they'd take care of everything.

Michael Douglas blames speeding tickets on color blindness.

Beverly Sills has excuses for being late.

don't like. SCORING

Locate the category below that most closely matches your answers:
I. 1b, 2a, 3b, 3c, 4d, 5a, 6a, 7d, 9b, 11b, 11d and 14c. You're a "justifier." You're using excuses to convince yourself, not others, that you're OK.

II. 1a, 3a, 5b, 8c, 9c, 10c and 11c. You're a "minimizer." You admit what you've done but try to lessen its negative aspects.
III. 1c, 5c, 9a, 10b, 11a, 12b and 13b. You're a "yes-but" type. You like to plead that you weren't your usual self, giving yourself an easy way out by saying you were not at your best.

IV. 2c, 4a, 8a, 8b, 10a, 12a, 12b and 13c. If you gave several of these answers, you tend to shift responsibility for your actions to others.
V. 2b, 4b, 6b, 6c, 7b, 13a, 14a and 14b. You're the "extremist." Ask yourself why you're giving such farfetched excuses. Maybe you're losing touch with reality.
VI. 1d, 2d, 3d, 4c, 5d, 6d, 7c, 8d, 9d, 10d, 12d, 13d and 14d. You're the "no-excuse-for-excuses" type. Congratulations, you're one in a million!

TIPS
Excuse makers are daydreamers. Learn to concentrate or take a self-help course in improving your relations with others.

Excuse makers are late comers. Get a watch with all the extras and wear it everywhere. Set it before you go to sleep. If this doesn't work, get a wake-up service.

Fine yourself every time you catch yourself making excuses. If it gets costly enough, you'll stop.

If you're going to make an excuse, at least make it a good one. Her are some to pick from next time you're caught exceeding the speed limit:
• My speedometer must be wrong (or broken).
• I was trying to find a rest room.
• This is someone else's car. I'm not used to it.

• I was going downhill.
• I'm almost out of gas.
• My accelerator stuck.
• I'm allowed to do that where I come from. ■

Sigourney Weaver: It's her turn

This year has been a big one for the talented actress

By Kathy Larkin

The world has rediscovered Sigourney Weaver. To reach her for this interview means bypassing a tangle of wires, TV lights and camera crew in the hall outside her New York hotel suite. Not that Weaver was ever really lost. It's hard, after all, to overlook this talented 5'10½" actress willing to try — and succeed — in such varied productions: in the movies with "Eyewitness," "The Year of Living Dangerously" and "Ghostbusters"; on Broadway in the much-applauded "Hurlyburly."

Pretty good, right? But this year has been even better. This is prime time for Sigourney Weaver; with three films, including that summer blockbuster, "Aliens," and her newest "Half Moon Street" co-starring Michael Caine.

And before that, her recent, first-time marriage to director Jim Simpson. They met, she and Jim, at the Williamstown Theater Festival in Massachusetts. She was onstage in "Old Times" by Harold Pinter. Simpson — former child actor, founder of Boston's Rebob Theater Group; ironically director of the Yale Cabaret, and 1981 graduate of the same Yale School of Drama his wife-to-be was graduated from seven years before his arrival — was directing another production and teaching young acting hopefuls.

Weaver remembers that meeting. Just ask her. This late afternoon, thick dark hair winging smoothly up, up and away from the wedge-shaped chin that makes her face more than beautiful; her dinosaur-shaped earrings and shoes with cat-faced toes accenting the soft blue dress collapsing in folds across the bland hotel couch, she recaps the beginning.

"I kept hearing about this guy. The kids thought he was great. But up in Massachusetts, we only had a short conversation."

When Simpson accepted an invitation to one of Weaver's "quiet" parties — famous for surprise special effects, from costumed witches to dancing goblins — things changed a bit. "He had a great time. And I thought, 'Here is a man who really loves life.' So," she mimics a sexy growl, "I asked him out to dinner — to talk about the theater."

With his support she survived a year crammed scene-to-scene with work. And challenges.

"I was in Europe on location for a French film when the idea for 'Aliens' popped up, the first I'd heard of a sequel. I flew home to discuss it. But five days after my movie wrapped, I was due to start 'Half Moon Street.' It was," she grimaces, "quite a schedule. I was in the middle of one film, having taken on two more and just gotten married — a little like being caught up in a whirlwind. I was a bit frightened."

She told her new husband she did not want to be away from him for the time it would take to make all three films.

"He was great. He just said, 'Go for it!' And he turned down work to spend most of the 'Half Moon Street' filming time with me in London."

She adds practically, "We were both thinking in terms of when we start a family, that it would be good for me to finish a body of work before that happens."

Is Weaver, in fact, a workaholic? She grins. "I wouldn't have thought so; but I realized I do have such a huge appetite for my job." "Aliens" was that pulse-racing, audience-screaming, money-cloning hit wherein Warrant Officer Ripley ("Rambolina" to Sigourney) battles outer-space monsters to save the child of her heart, if not her body. Time gave her a cover story for that.

"Half Moon Street" is a galaxy away from outer space; but it focuses on still another world of terror — this one, beneath the law, bounded by the ghettos and outer-chic limits of London night life. And call girls.

Weaver is Dr. Lauren Slaughter, a Harvard Ph.D. homing to England after three repressive, well-spied-on years in China. She's a woman who takes an offbeat turn, becoming a call girl to supplement her meager research income, falls in love with client diplomat Lord Bulbeck (Michael Caine), only to find herself trapped in a state of terror where her life is worth less than the toss on a penny-ante game.

Not exactly type casting for Sigourney Weaver, who is certainly intelligent and definitely not one of life's victims.

Still she understands the film's slightly askew heroine.

Sigourney Weaver has survived a year crammed scene-to-scene with work. And challenges. Her latest film is "Half Moon Street," in which she plays a Harvard Ph.D. who turns to prostitution to supplement her meager income from research.

"Lauren has so much confidence in herself that she feels she isn't subject to rules governing other people. She uses her own name with the escort service. She arrives at dates still wearing glasses and carrying her office briefcase. Then, it all becomes a thriller. It's quite a shattering film in terms of what happens to her."

"That's the movies for you. Weaver herself is a definite individualist."

This, after all, is the same woman who joined anti-Vietnam War protests as a member of Stanford's guerrilla theater group; the beginning actress, at a stage when most beginners would be grateful for a walk-on part, who spoke frankly to NBC-TV brass about her soap role in "Somerset." (She was eventually fired.)

Weaver is not your usual interview.

Her vocabulary, ranging easily through Webster's dictionary, is proof that parents Sylvester "Pat" Weaver, president and pioneering programmer of NBC-TV during the 1950s, and his British actress wife, Elizabeth, spent their money well when they sent their only daughter to Manhattan's chic Brearley and Chapin schools, to Connecticut's Ethel Walker School, California's Stanford University and the Yale School of Drama. It was a well diversified education.

Not without its rocky points. Weaver never did like the Yale School of Drama, where she arrived in 1971 from a free-wheeling Stanford theater group to join some famous classmates: playwrights Christopher Durang, Albert Innaurato and actress Meryl Streep.

"I'd come to Yale in a very irreverent frame of mind. I'd been doing everything from Shakespeare to comedy. At Yale, I felt squelched."

Advised she had "no talent for any dramatic career," Weaver says candidly, "I persisted partly out of spite. I didn't want the Yale critics to be right."

Today, she and husband Jim share a three-room New York City Upper West Side apartment — while hunting for more space. "We wanted this to be an exotic kingdom decorated with things brought back from all over the world. But it's less exotic than cluttered," says the well-traveled Weaver frankly. Still, there was a time, early in her career, when she existed in a studio neighborhood on the Hudson River railroad tracks. "Day and night, you suffered through this ugly screaming as they assembled the trains and one car backed into another."

It was 1980, when she and Yale classmate Christopher Durang collaborated on the critically acclaimed, wacky off-Broadway farce "Das Lusitania Songspiel." Today, they are locking adjectives over a movie script based on their recent, jointly written Esquire magazine parody of a Broadway actress and author clawing to the top.

Weaver admits frankly she has a thirst for the written word, a desire for input into her movies. "I worked with director Bob Swain on 'Half Moon Street' and we rewrote a lot of the scenes with Bulbeck."

You can beat holiday depression

By Mary Lance

In a New Yorker cartoon, a character, his arm resting on the mantel, says to his wife, "Of course you're depressed, 'tis the season to be jolly."

In one sentence, the cartoonist has summarized what's popularly called "the Christmas blues." For thousands of dejected Americans at Christmastime, the question isn't "why me?," it's "why now — why do I feel so down when I'm supposed to be so up?" Rather than joy, many people have the jitters; instead of being uplifted, they're stressed out.

Unfortunately, there's a reluctance to admit or give in to these feelings. As humorist Erma Bombeck puts it, "Christmas is the only holiday in the entire year when no one is permitted to be depressed. You could die from terminal joy."

Although it might be comforting to know that statistically the so-called Christmas depression is both mild and transient, still 'tis the season when man's search for meaning is made more difficult in the midst of swaying tinsel and jostling crowds. Here are some tips to help you plunge into the holiday season in a healthful and satisfying style.

Forgive yourself. If you're feeling blue, give yourself permission to feel blue; forgive yourself for not being riotously happy. There's no reason to add a burden of guilt because you're not feeling the way society expects you to.

Plan a holiday getaway. If you are recently divorced or widowed, or away from your family for the first time, you can surmise that the upcoming season may be difficult. Schedule, if finances permit, a trip to a place you've always wanted to visit — or return to a favorite nearby haunt. People are reluctant to break with tradition, but being away from the jingling bells and buttered-rum rush of parties might be just what you need.

Don't be alone. It's up to you to make that phone call. If you don't receive an invitation, extend one. Organize a potluck dinner with friends, or take advantage of the special meals and celebrations held in most cities for senior citizens, military personnel and others known to be alone at Christmastime.

Avoid overdoing it. Use restraint when shopping, eating and drinking. Christmas shouldn't be an excuse for pulling out all the stops. Set limits.

Suggest alternatives. Instead of holding the annual office party, suggest playing Santa to a charitable organization or donating wrapped presents for a local children's home. Many people will welcome the chance not to be tempted by more food and drink.

Shop early. This is probably the simplest way to avoid the crunch many people feel at Christmas. Take advantage of sales. Order from catalogs. Giving yourself the time to shop throughout the year for that perfect gift can lift your spirits — and spare you stress.

Be creative. Give a coupon for a home-cooked meal, a drive in the country, a clean closet or even a backrub. You don't have time to bake at Christmas? Give a coupon for January cookies. Coupon "cashing-in" can double the pleasure of a gift.

Drink sensibly. Remember that alcohol is a central-nervous-system depressant, and a week's round of liquor at parties will probably have an effect on the way you feel. Since alcohol consumption is down nationwide, more hosts are ready to accommodate guests who want soft drinks or juice.

Be realistic. Even though it's Christmas, Aunt Mamie may still be as irritable as ever, and that simmering feud between you and your spouse may not magically be resolved. And just because it's the season to be jolly, long-standing money worries won't disappear. Lowering your expectations will result in more satisfying experiences.

Keep active. If you're feeling bad, don't isolate yourself. Volunteer at a social service agency, visit others who are alone, reconcile differences with an estranged friend or deliver meals to shut-ins. Don't wait for the Christmas spirit to strike — take charge. Realizing that the holidays are a time of vulnerability and planning remedies is your responsibility.

The original message of Christmas, that of peace and goodwill to people everywhere, is timeless and powerful. ■

Share your Christmas with others to beat the holiday blues.

Talking horse

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joan Rivers is going to co-star in a theatrical movie with a horse that can answer her question, "Can we talk?"
Rivers, who recently began her own talk show on the Fox Broadcasting Co., has agreed to star in the movie "Hot to Trot" next March, according to Richard Grant, a spokesman for the actress. She has not yet signed a contract. The story calls for her to move in with a talking horse.
Steve Tisch will produce the movie, which was originally written for a man.
Rivers will work on the film during the day and do "The Late Show Starring Joan Rivers" at night.
Rivers has been looking for a big screen vehicle, Grant said. She was in the 1968 movie "The Swimmer" with Burt Lancaster. In 1978 she wrote, directed and financed the movie "Rabbit Test," which starred Billy Crystal as a pregnant man.

Parton's movie sets are sent to Dollywood

By Jerry Buck

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dolly Parton said she thought about the story of a movie star going back to her home in Tennessee for Christmas for several years before turning it into her first television movie.

She wrote six original songs for the movie, "A Smokey Mountain Christmas," which ABC will telecast on Sunday. Henry Winkler, known for his role as "the Fonz" on "Happy Days," makes his movie directing debut.

Miss Parton plays a star who is not looking forward to the Christmas holidays and decides to spend them in seclusion at a friend's cabin in the Smokey Mountains. But she finds the cabin occupied by seven orphans, who quickly put her into the holiday spirit.

"Henry's especially good with the kids, and it's not easy working with children," said Miss Parton. "I'd never met Henry, but it was my partner, Sandy Gallin's idea, to use him. I kept saying the director had to be somebody with a feel for family and children. We talked to several directors, but they weren't right. Henry has a childlike spirit. He got caught up in the excitement."

The movie also stars Lee Majors as a mysterious mountain man, Bo Hopkins as the sheriff and Anita Morris as a mountain witch, plus Dan Hedaya and Rene Auberjonois. John Ritter makes an appearance as a judge.

The film was produced by Miss Parton's own company, Sandollar, which gets its name from Sandy and Dolly.

The sets for the movie, which was filmed in Los Angeles, were dismantled and shipped to Dollywood, her theme park in Tennessee, 200 miles east of Nashville. The park opened last May and will undergo a $6 million expansion this winter. ■

Seeing specialist helped a couple realize a dream

By Dr. June M. Reinisch

DEAR DR. REINISCH: You are right in telling people who can't get pregnant that they should not give up until they've been to a fertility specialist. My husband and I wasted three years and went through severe emotional problems because we were loyal to his urologist and my family doctor, both of whom claimed to be doing as much for us as could be done anywhere. My family doctor finally reached the point of telling me that he didn't want to hear about my personal problems.

I finally got the nerve to call a medical school two hours away and made an appointment. We were tested in ways that had not been done in our home town. We were also told about several new methods of insemination. We elected to try something called "sperm washing." After two tries, I became pregnant, and we have a beautiful baby.

People need to know that going to a specialist is worth the extra trouble to get off work and make a trip whenever it's time to ovulate. We had been afraid that in a big clinic, we would feel lost or like cattle. The opposite was true: The clinic staff was even more supportive than our local doctors, because they were more familiar with the emotions involved.

or become immobilized within the first hour after ejaculation. It's speculated that this is sometimes caused by an antibody.

Some clinics have successfully reduced the antibody level by separating the sperm from the rest of the ejaculate and washing the sperm with several different chemical solutions. The washed sperm are then used to inseminate the woman when she is ready to ovulate (release an egg ready for fertilization).

This technique is worth considering in some cases in which tests have shown that both partners appear to have normal reproductive functioning and no explanation has been found for their fertility problems.

There are many other new techniques which one is more likely to find, and they're more likely to be available at a clinic specializing in fertility problems. ■

DEAR READER: Thank you for writing. Fertility specialists and centers are quick to know about new findings, since they first hear of them informally — such as by word of mouth. With more traditional paths of communication — such as scientific journals — there can be a delay of several months, or even a year, between the time a report is submitted and the time it's published.

Sperm washing is a relatively new technique that has been used successfully when a man's sperm appear to clump together

Send questions to Dr. Reinisch in care of The Kinsey Report, P.O. Box 48, Bloomington, IN 47402. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest may be discussed in future columns.

Bake healthy holiday treats with the kids

By Frances Sheridan Goulart

Nothing says loving like something from the holiday oven, and there's no better way to spend a Christmas or Hanukkah afternoon than in the old-fashioned way. Here are five cookies that are a piece of cake to make — even for the littlest kid:

WHOLE-WHEAT CHRISTMAS CRITTERS
2 cups whole-wheat flour plus 1 cup all-purpose flour, or 2½ cups all-purpose flour plus ½ cup wheat germ
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ cup butter, room temperature
½ cup honey or to taste
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup milk
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
red cinnamon dots
currants or raisins
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg or allspice

Combine flours and baking powder and set aside. Fork-whip butter for 1 minute and drizzle in honey and vanilla, and beat until fluffy. Add dry ingredients and milk to the butter mixture, alternating them and beating after each addition. Combine with flour. Divide in half. Cover; chill several hours or overnight.

On floured surface, roll half the dough to ½-inch thickness. Using large cutters, cut into holiday shapes (Santa, gingerbread man, bells, stars, trees, etc.); reroll dough as needed before each new cutting. Place cookies on ungreased baking sheets. Combine sugar and spices and sprinkle over critters. Decorate with dots and fruit. Repeat until all dough is used. Bake each batch in a 350F oven for 12-14 minutes or until done. Remove to cool on a wire rack.

Makes about 36.

8-MINUTE CINNAMON SNAPS
¼ cup unsalted butter, softened
¼ cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons molasses
1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons all-purpose or whole-wheat pastry flour
1 egg yolk, lightly beaten
In a large bowl, beat butter until light. Gradually beat in sugar, molasses, spices and baking soda.

Add flour ¼ cup at a time. Mix in egg yolk, and work into a soft dough. Wrap in freezer paper and chill 30 minutes. Shape cookie dough into a sausage-shaped roll. Slice dough crosswise with a sharp knife into ½-inch thick "snaps." Place on a lightly buttered baking sheet. Bake 8 minutes (or until golden) in a preheated 325F oven.

An even faster yummy? Try these.

UNBAKED BROWNIES (SUGARLESS)
1 cup rolled oatmeal
½ cup carob powder or cocoa powder
¼ cup ground seeds (sesame, poppy, etc.) plus ¼ cup crushed toasted sunflower seeds or ½ cup of either
¼ cup honey or maple syrup (or to taste)

2 cups chopped nuts
extra milk powder, cocoa or carob for dusting red and green Christmas sprinkles

Mix oatmeal, carob powder, sesame seeds, sunflower seeds, honey and nuts. Press into a lightly greased square pan. Cut into squares and roll in milk, carob and cocoa powder, or in red and green Christmas sprinkles.

And what's for kids who can't eat wheat?

WHEAT-FREE FRUIT CAKE COOKIES
2 cups filberts (hazelnuts) or walnuts, shelled
1 large egg, separated
½ to ¾ cups maple syrup or honey
½ teaspoon orange or lemon peel, grated (optional)
½ cup dried fruit pieces

Beat egg white until stiff. Grind the 2 cups of mixed nuts to a powder. Mix nuts with egg and sweetener; fold in dried fruits and egg white. Spoon batter by teaspoonfuls onto an oiled baking sheet. Bake at 325F about 45 minutes, until dry and firm. Makes about 1½ dozen dainty little cookies.

And when baked-goods boredom sets in, make a nutty and seasonal batch of these. ■

Drunks with their car keys worry everyone

DEAR ABBY: A couple of weeks ago, my husband and I were outside when we noticed a neighbor attempting to get into his car. He was obviously very drunk and in no condition to drive. (He could hardly walk.) My husband took his car keys away from him, and tried to talk him into going home. He refused and demanded that my husband return his keys. They argued for about 10 minutes, then this drunken neighbor became very belligerent, physically overpowered my husband and retrieved his car keys. Then he got into his car and took off like a bat out of hell. That's when we called the police. Please understand, we never get involved in other people's business, but this was important. The neighbor was picked up. When we questioned our friends, parents, etc., we were told that it wasn't our business, and we could have been sued for harassment. Abby, if it wasn't our business, whose business was it? By the way, we're not a couple of old fuddy-duddies. We are a 29-year-old couple who have a drink or two ourselves once in a while — but not when we're driving. Please comment. PEOPLE AGAINST DRUNKS

Dear Abby

DEAR PEOPLE: It is your business, my business, and the business of every person to do whatever is necessary to prevent a drunk from driving. You acted responsibly when you confiscated the man's car keys and called the police. Others could learn from you.

DEAR ABBY: Twice this past year my gentleman friend went to a benefit for a sick friend. Both times he went without me, saying it was for men only. I had no reason to doubt him and forgot all about it. Afterward he casually said they went very well and a lot of money was collected for said friend. I thought it was nice, until one night while we were at a party, several women mentioned what a good time they had at both benefits. Louie immediately changed the subject. Two days later we met two other women friends of his while taking a walk. Louie hadn't seen them since the two benefits. He nearly went through the sidewalk when they commented on the great time they had at the benefits. Now he tells me that next week there is going to be another benefit, and this one also will be for men only. What do you think? KITTY IN NYC

DEAR KITTY: I think you would benefit enormously if you got rid of Louie. He's not behaving like either a gentleman or a friend.

DEAR ABBY: After reading about the woman who let her neighbor use her telephone, and then found out the neighbor had made $200 worth of long-distance phone calls, I think the woman got off cheap. We operate a small telephone company in northern Wisconsin, and this has happened to our customers more times than one would think. The other big problem comes when people rent their house while they're away on an extended vacation. Before leaving, they do not notify us to discontinue their telephone service; then they come back and find out their renters ran a bill up to the sky! (We're told that this happens to electric, gas, sewer and water bills, too.) Our advice to anyone who has a neighbor come over and ask to use the phone, saying his is "out of order." Go right to your phone and call the telephone repair service and request that your neighbor's phone be repaired. Then ask your neighbor what number he wants to call and dial it yourself to be sure it's a local call. SYDNEY THE MANAGER, NIAGARA, WIS.

A failing heart is like a stopped-up drain

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is congestive heart failure? What causes it? Is it progressive or curable?

DEAR READER: When the heart beats inefficiently or ineffectively, fluid seeps into lung tissue, causing difficulty breathing. Fluid from the blood also leaks into other tissues. Because of gravity, the fluid tends to accumulate in the lowest portions of the body, like legs and feet. Therefore, congestive heart failure is a condition characterized by excess body water and swelling.

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

Ineffective heart beating can come from diseased valves or any factor that reduces the strength of cardiac muscle contractions, including poor oxygen supply due to arteriosclerosis. There are three primary treatments for congestive heart failure. Cardiac stimulants, like digoxin, increase the force of cardiac contractions and can reverse the fluid buildup by circulating more blood through the kidneys, where the liquid is extracted and excreted. Diuretics, which enhance the kidneys' extraction of fluid, are used by themselves or, often, in conjunction with digoxin. Diuretics stimulate the kidneys to excrete more urine, literally sucking extra fluid out of the body. Finally, drugs called vasodilators can be used to decrease the work of the heart and to permit it to function more effectively. The failing heart can be compared to a storm drain during a downpour. Flooding is starting to take place because the drain is blocked with leaves. Digoxin works like the person who wades in and cleans the leaves away from the drain; the drain can accept more water and the flooding diminishes. Diuretics act like a pump that is hooked up to the flooded area to relieve pressure and take away water by another means. The drain is still partially stopped up, but the water is drained off by an alternative route. Vasodilators are analogous to the letting up of rain; the drain remains plugged, but there is less water entering the flooded area, so less flooding takes place. The astute reader may have guessed that the best answer to the flood would be to employ all three techniques. Indeed, this is sometimes done with the heart when the doctors must use all three classes of drugs simultaneously.

Film Capsules

Jumpin' Jack Flash (R) — Whoopi Goldberg. (Comedy-Adventure) Whoopi Goldberg plays a lonely and bored transactions clerk who starts getting strange messages on her computer terminal — and suddenly finds herself in the middle of an international spy plot. Goldberg has a wonderfully expressive face, and she is ably assisted by Stephen Collins and Darol Kane, among others. This one won't start anyone pondering the meaning of life or the nature of the universe, but it is good diverting fun. Grade: B.

The Name of the Rose (R) — Sean Connery, F. Murray Abraham, Christian Slater. (Mystery) How do you adapt a 200,000-word mystery novel set in a 14th century cloister? Surprisingly, Umberto Eco's best-seller, directed by Jean-Jacques Annaud ("Quest for Fire") makes the transition with style and wit. Connery has his best role in years as monk-turned-sleuth William of Baskerville, and Abraham relishes his role as Grand Inquisitor. This wholly original film deserves to be seen. But the screenplay is taxing; pay attention to the action to reap the benefits. Grade: B.

Peggy Sue Got Married (PG-13) — Kathleen Turner, Nicholas Cage, Barry Miller, Catherine Hicks, Joan Allen, Kevin J. O'Connor. (Comedy) Turner goes to her 25th high-school reunion, faints and is thrust back to the time just before her graduation. "Back to the Future — Part II"? Hardly. Director Francis Coppola has crafted — at least for the first hour — a charming and engaging set of circumstances that explore the traumas of unresolved relationships. But Coppola loses control halfway through, and an outrageous scene involving mysticism and a weepy conclusion destroy the mood. Grade: B-minus.

The Color of Money (R) — Paul Newman, Tom Cruise, Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio. (Drama) "Two brothers and a stranger" is a hustle that Fast Eddie Felson teaches his pool protege Vince. Unfortunately, the audience is the stranger who gets taken. You expect the cool Newman and untamed Cruise to put on a good show, but they founder in disjointed subplots — unresolved sexual tension between Felson and Vince's girlfriend; threatened revenge from Felson's spurned pool shark. Meanwhile, director Martin Scorsese, with grandiose close-ups and glossy imagery, makes nine-ball the real star. Biggest con of the season. Grade: C.

Children of a Lesser God (R) — William Hurt, Marlee Matlin, Piper Laurie, Philip Bosco. (Drama) This Tony-award winning play makes the transition from stage to screen with dignity intact. Both Hurt and Matlin deserve Oscar nominations for their physically and emotionally draining roles as a teacher and student who fall passionately in love. Matlin is especially wonderful, and her transcendent beauty and unique expressiveness are inspirational. This is the first must-see fall film of 1986. Love does have a language all its own. Grade: A-minus.

Crocodile Dundee (PG-13) — Paul Hogan, Linda Kostlowak, Mark Blum. (Comedy) The leather-skinned Dundee, best known for his Australian tourism commercials, makes a likable leading man in this comedic travelogue. An attractive reporter (Kostlowak) meets Hogan in the Australian bush, takes him to New York City and falls in love with him. Yuks abound when the naive Dundee makes his way around the big city, and there is just enough action (crocodile killing, snake wrestling, fish spearing) to keep audiences from squirming at the silliness. This is light fall fare. Grade: B-minus.

Stand by Me (R) — Richard Dreyfuss, Wil Wheaton, River Phoenix, Corey Feldman, Jerry O'Connell. (Adventure-Drama) It's a shame Rob Reiner's latest film is rated R (for strong language), because those who stand to gain the most — the under-17 crowd — can't see it without parental supervision. The skeletal plot is based on Stephen King's autobiographical novella, "The Body." Four boys, living in the '60s, journey to find another boy's dead body. There is no horror, simply well-defined characters, lulling comedy and one of the best studies of friendship and coming of age to hit the screen. The case is flawless, and Reiner has directed with a heartwarming sensitivity. Bring tissues! Grade: B-plus.

Latest 'Trek' is a bit much

By Bob Thomas
The Associated Press

You don't have to be a trekkie to enjoy "Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home," but it surely helps. Never in the long history of the fabled television series and subsequent film epics has credulity been stretched so thin.

"Star Trek" plots are almost impossible to recount with any brevity. This one is further complicated by a time-travel element, transferring the crew of the USS Enterprise to 1986 San Francisco. But this time they are without their beloved spaceship, which was destroyed in "Star Trek III." They are required to travel in a Klingon "Bird of Prey" ship.

In the 23rd century, the planet Earth's very existence is being threatened by a huge dark space craft with a protruding, glowing ball that is causing havoc with climate and energy. The Federation Council meets in a desperate session to seek a solution. Enter Admiral James T. Kirk and Captain Spock.

The problem seems to be that the hostile craft seeks to communicate with humpback whales. But this is the 23rd century, and whales have long been extinct. How to find them? It's easy: send Kirk, Spock and crew back to the 20th century and have them return with a few whales.

A pair of humpbacks are found at an oceanarium in today's San Francisco. But how to transport them on a spaceship, using 20th century materials? The combined intelligence of the crew will find a way.

Many hands apparently conceived the "Star Trek IV" script. The story is credited to director-star Leonard Nimoy and producer Harve Bennett, based on Gene Roddenberry's characters. The screenplay was written by two teams: Steve Meerson and Peter Krikes; Harve Bennett and Nicholas Meyer — which may explain the film's hodgepodge nature.

The ecological message is commendable, and there are some amusing situations with the space travelers in contemporary scenes. Nimoy's direction keeps a lively pace and the special effects are state of the art, as always.

The pleasant thing about the "Star Treks" is that you can always rely on the characters. Kirk (William Shatner) will be stalwart, Spock (Nimoy) will be omniscient and confused by emotions, McCoy (DeForest Kelley) will brighten things with his wisecracks, and Scotty (James Doohan) can fix anything and beam anybody up, including humpback whales. The Paramount release is rated PG, with excitement for the very young. Running time: 118½ minutes.

By James Jacoby

A great player can sometimes see the handwriting on the wall. If it tells him that he is going to be set in his contract if there is normal distribution, then he should surely play for abnormal distribution. Look at the problem confronting declarer Augustin Santamaria of Argentina in today's deal.

When the two-club opening bid was passed, it was clear that West would not hold as much as the spade ace. The bidding now continued until Santamaria ended up having to play four spades. Declarer won dummy's ace of clubs and led a low diamond. East grabbed the ace of diamonds, cashed the king of clubs and played a second diamond. What would happen if East held the A-J or A-10 of spades? When declarer played to the spade king,

East would take the ace. Then, hoping for his partner to hold a spade high enough to force out the remaining honor in dummy, East would play back a club. That defense would be effective whenever East had started out with either of the above-mentioned spade combinations.

Since Santamaria knew he would be set if either of those distributions existed, he played for that split of the cards that would let him make his four-spade contract. He played a low spade from his hand. When West followed low, he played a low spade from dummy. The spade ace from East had to beat the air, and the game contract was made.

TOWN OF MANCHESTER, CONNECTICUT
NOTICE OF
ADOPTION OF AMENDMENT TO ORDINANCE

In accordance with the provisions of Chapter 3, Sections 1 and 9 of the Town Charter, notice is hereby given of the adoption by the Board of Directors of the Town of Manchester, Connecticut, on December 9, 1986.

AMENDMENT TO ORDINANCE

BE IT ORDAINED by the Board of Directors of the Town of Manchester that Section 13-41(e)(1) of the Code of Ordinances be deleted and the following be substituted therefor:

(e) Retirement by policeman

(1) Any provisions of this article to the contrary notwithstanding, the policeman and officers of the police department may retire and receive pension payments provided they shall have completed at least twenty-five (25) years of service in the police department and have met the age requirement on the appropriate effective dates listed below:

- a. Effective July 1, 1974 attained age fifty-five (55).
- b. Effective July 1, 1975 attained age fifty-three (53).
- c. Effective July 1, 1976 and thereafter attained age fifty (50).

Policemen and officers may retire and receive a pension commencing the first day of the month following the completion of the above requirements. Effective July 1, 1975, each policeman and officer will be required to take a physical examination, as determined by the general manager, once he attains his fifty-third (53rd) birthday. Beginning July 1, 1976, such physical examination will be required after each policeman's and officer's fiftieth (50th) birthday. Once a policeman and officer attains his fifty-fifth (55th) birthday, he must, by written application, request that the general manager extend his period of employment on a year to year basis beyond such policeman's and officer's fifty-fifth (55th) birthday, and, if such application is approved by said general manager, said general manager shall notify the pension board, in writing, of such approval; however, each policeman and officer must retire at age sixty (60). IN EXCEPTIONAL CASES, THE GENERAL MANAGER, UPON WRITTEN REQUEST OF THE POLICEMAN OR OFFICER, MAY EXTEND HIS EMPLOYMENT ON A SIX (6) MONTH BASIS BEYOND SUCH POLICEMAN OR OFFICER'S SIXTIETH (60TH) BIRTHDAY. FAILURE TO APPROVE SUCH REQUEST OF A POLICEMAN OR OFFICER BY THE GENERAL MANAGER SHALL BE FINAL AND BINDING AND SHALL NOT BE SUBJECT TO JUDICIAL OR ADMINISTRATIVE APPEAL. Each policeman and officer included in the plan shall be required to contribute to the retirement fund an amount equal to five (5) per cent of his wage or salary exclusive of any maintenance payments and other special payments or remuneration, but including overtime pay. Beginning July 1, 1974, such contribution shall increase to five and one-half (5½) per cent and to six (6) per cent effective January 1, 1976. Such contributions shall be deducted from the payroll and shall be entered in a separate fund known as the "Retirement Allowance Fund." The monthly amount of pension payable to a policeman or police officer who retires under this paragraph on and after July 1, 1970, with at least twenty-five (25) years of service shall be an amount equal to one-twelfth of fifty (50) per cent of his final average annual wage or salary. If a policeman or police officer shall complete in excess of twenty-five (25) years of service in the police department, he shall be entitled to an additional two (2) per cent of his final average annual wage or salary for each full year and fractions thereof to the nearest completed month of such service in excess of twenty-five (25) years. The maximum pension payable under this plan shall be sixty-six and two-thirds (66⅔) percent of a policeman's and officer's final average annual salary.

Bob Tway (left) helps teammate Mike Hulbert line up a putt during second round play Friday in the Chrysler Team Championships in Boca Raton, Fla. The pair led by two strokes after two rounds of play.

Tway, Hulbert lead

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Bob Tway and Mike Hulbert maintained a deft putting touch to produce a 10-under-par 62 Friday and increase their lead to two strokes halfway through the $600,000 Chrysler PGA Team Invitational.

Hulbert scored a 30 on his own ball with six birdies on the back nine, and Tway added four birdies of his own as they ended the round with a best ball of 23-under 121.

The first-time team of Larry Rinker-Danny Briggs made a charge Friday with a 61 to move into second place at 123. Rinker recorded nine of the team's 11 birdies.

Gary Hallberg-Scott Hoch and Gary Koch-Tom Purtzer are at 124. Hallberg-Hoch shot a 63 Friday, while Koch-Purtzer fired a 62.

Another stroke back are Bob Murphy-Mike Reid and Brad Faxon-Denny Hepler. Murphy-Reid shot a 62, and Faxon-Hepler had a 63.

In Thursday's opening round, Tway carried the leading team with seven birdies and an eagle in Thursday's opening round. Friday, it was Hulbert who took over.

"The name of the game is to get yourself up for two shots at a birdie," Tway said. "When you have two people putting for birds on every hole there's no strategy to it."

The field of 75 starting duos will be cut to 28 plus ties for Sunday's finale. Many of the teams had to finish rain-halted first round Friday morning before playing their second rounds on different courses. Three courses are being used in the first three rounds.

The Tway-Hulbert, Rinker-Briggs and Hallberg-Hoch teams played the par 72, 6,778-yard No. 2 course at the Boca West Club. Murphy and Reid made their run at nearby Broken Sound Golf Club's par 72, 6,510-yard layout.

Boca West's par 72, 7,233-yard No. 1 course, which will be the site of the last round, is the third course used.

Ray Floyd and Hal Sutton, the defending champions, are down the list in a tie at 130, while the Nicklaus team of Jack and Jack II, turned in a 63 on No. 2 course to climb into a tie at 128, seven strokes back.

Kevin McReynolds, newest member of the New York Mets, talks to the press at a news conference in Little Rock, Ark., following the trade Thursday that sent him to the 1986 World Series champs.

McReynolds glad to be with Mets

By James Jefferson
The Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Outfielder Kevin McReynolds, the newest member of the World Series champion New York Mets, said Friday that playing with the best should bring out the best in him.

It was no secret that McReynolds had been unhappy with the San Diego Padres, and he was traded by the National League team to the Mets in an eight-player deal announced Thursday night.

"I'm most certainly pleased," McReynolds said at a Friday news conference in Little Rock. "I think it'll be good for me, even though I'll be about like a fish out of water in New York. Hopefully, it'll be good for the team. Hopefully, I can help them in the next few years to win some more championships."

McReynolds will play left field for the Mets, next to Len Dykstra in center and Darryl Strawberry in right. The Mets plan to bat him sixth in the lineup, after Strawberry.

McReynolds, 27, who lives in Little Rock, was accompanied at the news conference by his mother, Kathryn McReynolds.

There have been no contract negotiations, but McReynolds said he would like to have a three-year deal with the Mets.

He earned $275,000 in 1986 and was on his way to arbitration with San Diego asking for $275,000 for next season.

McReynolds said he looks forward to playing in New York, but said he probably won't live there, though he acknowledged the city holds additional opportunities for lucrative endorsement contracts.

"If there's really a lot of them, I'll probably just weed through and do the things I'm most comfortable with," he said. "I'm not going to put on any front for anybody."

McReynolds was drafted by the Padres in 1981 after starring for the University of Arkansas-Fayetteville baseball team for three years. He played with the Padres' minor league teams at Reno, Nev., and Amarillo, Texas, in 1982. McReynolds was at Class AAA Las Vegas in 1983 before being called up to the Padres the following year.

He had a less-than-impressive 1985 season but bounced back to bat .288 with 26 home runs and 96 runs batted in last season.

Still, McReynolds said he felt pressured in San Diego and wanted out. With the Mets' lineup of proven players, he said plans to excel in what he sees as his role: power hitting and driving in runs. "I think 25 home runs is realistic, year in and year out," he said.

Baseball marketplace was slow at 85th annual winter meetings

By Ben Walker
The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. — The World Series champion New York Mets got their man in Kevin McReynolds, while Jack Morris and Andre Dawson made bold moves to challenge the free-agent freeze.

The Kansas City Royals filled a hole with Danny Tartabull and the Los Angeles Dodgers filled in their pitching staff.

Most of the other teams left the 85th annual baseball winter meetings with nothing more than a suntan. The week-long gathering was the slowest ever, with just seven trades for 21 major-league players.

"There are a lot of reasons. There are no trading deadlines and you're not sure about free agents," Los Angeles Manager Tom LaSorda said. "Now you call a team about a player and the other team ask you how much he is making and does he have a no-trade contract. It's tough to make a trade."

But, the Mets made it exciting at the end. The most aggressive club on the field last season, they used the same approach Thursday night in completing an eight-player deal with the San Diego Padres that fetched McReynolds.

"This is a team that's won the World Series and can do it again," McReynolds said from his Arkansas home Friday in a conference call.

That's just what the Mets were thinking.

Determined not to suffer the same fate as previous World Series winners, the Mets traded part of their future to solidify their present.

No team that has won the World Series has won its division the following year since the New York Yankees in 1976, and the Mets were well aware of that trend.

"The fastest way to go downhill is to stand pat," said Joe McIlvaine, the Mets' vice president for baseball operations.

The Mets built much of the team that won 108 games by developing young talent. But they broke that pattern this time — a move they would not have made a few years ago but felt they needed to make now.

To get McReynolds, relief pitcher Gene Walter and minor-league infielder Adam Ging, the Mets traded two of their most prized prospects, outfielders Stanley Jefferson and Shawn Abner, along with highly regarded pitchers Kevin Armstrong and Kevin Brown, plus multi-purpose Kevin Mitchell.

"It's a great break for me," McReynolds said. "I talked to (Manager) Davey Johnson last night and he said, 'We have a young team and you'll be part of it.' Now, it's up to me to make the most of it."

McReynolds, 27, batted .288 with 26 home runs and 96 RBI last season. He will play left field and combine with Darryl Strawberry and Len Dykstra to form one of the most versatile and all-around outfields in baseball.

McReynolds will bat sixth in the New York lineup, behind Keith Hernandez, Gary Carter and Strawberry.

Mitchell, a San Diego native and the only major-leaguer to start at six positions and bat in eight places in the lineup last season, will be the Padres' third baseman and Jefferson will start in center field.

Like the Mets, Morris and Dawson were also aggressive this week. The two free-agent All-Stars said through their agent Dick Moss that they would not return to their teams next season — Morris to Detroit and Dawson with Montreal.

In doing so, they will be taking on the owners' recent indifference to the free-agent market. Last year, top free agents like Kirk Gibson said they got no offers from other than their own teams, a practice that resulted in the players' union filing a charge of collusion.

Morris said he wants to play for either the New York Yankees, California, Philadelphia or Minnesota, and Dawson listed his preferences as the Chicago Cubs followed by Atlanta.

Still, it remains to be seen how receptive those targeted teams will be now that they are on the spot to break ranks from the pack. So far, they are showing very lukewarm interest for the proven performers.

Phillies President Bill Giles, asked if his team felt fortunate to be on Morris' list, said, "I'm not so sure."

Twins Vice President Andy MacPhail tried to avoid talking about Morris, instead commenting, instead, that Moss was "sharp."

The Mets' willingness to make a major trade was in sharp contrast to the stance most teams take after winning the World Series. The pitching-rich, hitting-poor Royals won the World Series last year and did not make a deal, turning down a winter meetings offer for San Francisco outfielder Chili Davis for pitcher Mark Gubicza and two lesser players.

This season, the Royals led the American League in pitching but finished 12th in batting and wound up 76-86 and tied for third in the weak AL West, 16 games behind.

This week, Kansas City got Tartabull from the Seattle Mariners for pitcher Scott Bankhead, Mike Kingery and a prospect.

Tartabull, who will play the outfield, was one of the most productive rookies in the league last season, batting .270 with 25 homers and 96 RBI.

Tartabull had not endeared himself to Mariners' management by refusing to play winter ball this year, and the Royals were happy to take him off Seattle's hands.

The Mariners made one other trade, sending reliever Matt Young to the Dodgers for promising starter Dennis Powell and a prospect. Young, an All-Star as a rookie in 1983, led the Mariners with 13 saves and had an 8-6 record with a 3.82 ERA.

"We'd like to improve ourselves if we can, but we'd also like to get to the beach," Seattle General Manager Dick Balderson joked.

The usually shrewd Dodgers also acquired pitcher Tim Lary from Milwaukee for first baseman Greg Brock. Lary went 12-12 with a 4.21 ERA while Brock is a power hitter who is inconsistent at the plate.

In other deals this week, the Yankees sent Mike Easter, a career .294 hitter who had demanded a trade, and a minor-leaguer to Philadelphia for pitcher Charles Hudson and a minor-leaguer. Also, Oakland traded infielder Donnie Hill to the Chicago White Sox for pitcher Gene Nelson and a player to be named later, possibly Bruce Tanner, and Baltimore sent reserve catcher John Stefero to Montreal for a player to be named later.

BLACKSBURG, Va. — Armed with a 4-year contract, Dale T. "Dutch" Baughman went right to work Friday in his new job as Virginia Tech's athletic director.

After Virginia Tech President William E. Lavery introduced his new athletic director to the media at a Friday morning press conference, Baughman said he would immediately begin his search for a new Hokies' football coach.

Baughman, most recently the associate commissioner of the Southwest Conference, replaces Bill Dooley, Virginia Tech's athletic director and football coach the past nine years who is stepping down from both jobs at the end of the year.

Baughman, who will earn $75,000 per year as athletic director, will work with Virginia Tech's athletic council to find a new football coach to replace Dooley, who came to Virginia Tech in 1978 following 11 seasons as football coach at North Carolina.

Sports in Brief

Jim McMahon undergoes surgery

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Jim McMahon may have to wait until July before he knows if he can play quarterback again for the Chicago Bears, according to the doctor who performed surgery on his right shoulder Friday.

"My gut feeling is that he's going to do it (play) because there are so many factors involved with a person who holds his job," Dr. Frank Jobe said after performing two hours of surgery at Centinela Hospital. "One (factor) is his desire to return to the game and ability to work hard, and I believe that he will work hard at it. So the surgery is only about half of the treatment."

Jobe said some of the rotator cuff in McMahon's shoulder was trimmed during the surgery, and that it also was necessary to reconstruct part of the front of the shoulder because the ball tended to slip out of the socket.

Henshaw named Tulsa head coach

TULSA, Okla. — Alabama's George Henshaw, named Friday as head football coach at the University of Tulsa, said he intends to restore a strong passing attack to the Golden Hurricane offense to pack the stadium on Saturday nights.

Henshaw, 38, an assistant at Alabama for the past four years, was hired to replace Don Morton, who left Nov. 28 to take over the football program at the University of Wisconsin.

Tulsa Athletic Director John Benn introduced Henshaw as the coaching candidate with "an exceptional track record athletically as a coach and as a player, a super recruiter and someone held in high esteem in the profession."

Henshaw said Tulsa fans can expect a new brand of football, both unpredictable and exciting.

Broncos' Kay put on reserve list

DENVER — Denver Broncos tight end Clarence Kay was placed on a reserve list for four weeks because of drug use, the NFL club confirmed Friday.

Club spokesman Jim Saccamano at first said Denver Coach Dan Reeves had suspended Kay so he could receive treatment for drug use but later said Kay technically was placed on the club's reserved-non-football illness list.

Reeves indicated that it has been a four- to five-week problem in length that had not surfaced before that, Saccamano said. He confirmed Kay's drug problem was discovered four or five weeks ago during "normal" urinalysis testing approved by the league.

The spokesman said he didn't know what specific drug was involved, whether the treatment would be in-patient or out-patient or the location of the treatment center.

Chavez keeps WBC title

NEW YORK — Julio Cesar Chavez combined hard left hooks to the body with short, sharp punches to the head and kept the World Boxing Council super lightweight title on a 12-round unanimous decision over Juan LaPorte at Madison Square Garden Friday.

It was Chavez's 51st victory without a loss. It also was his eighth successful title defense, his fifth this year. "The bout, a preliminary to Tim Witherpoon's World Boxing Association heavyweight title defense against James 'Bonecrusher' Smith, was action-packed from the first bell.

LaPorte, 128 1/2, of Puerto Rico, landed several hard hooks and right hands to the head and also some solid body shots. But the champion, 129, of Mexico, was devastating to the body and scored to the head in four rounds.

Nevada-Reno players suspended

RENO, Nev. — Two Nevada-Reno football players were suspended from playing in Saturday's NCAA Division I-AA semifinal playoff game after urinalyses showed they had used steroids.

The players are Scott Martin, a starting defensive tackle from Las Vegas, Nev., and Lindon Lilly, a backup defensive tackle from San Francisco.

"(The loss of) Scott Martin, in particular, obviously will affect some things we want to do defensively," said UNR head coach Chris Ault. "It's a shame to lose two people who have been a part of a 13-0 team at this point for something like steroids. I'm disappointed as much for the players as for our team."

Chargers have held past 2 opponents under 200 yards (134, 177) for first time since '79; past 2 opponents with TD first time since '77.

Minnesota (8-6) at Houston (3-11)

4 p.m. Sunday, CBS.
NFC Central Vikings in Wild Card competition and need to defeat Oilers and Saints plus either 2 losses by Los Angeles Rams or one loss by San Francisco to clinch based on better record in common games vs. Rams (6-2 to 5-2) or overall record against 49ers. Last week Minnesota routed Green Bay 32-6 while Houston was routed by San Diego 27-0. Minnesota took 2-1 series lead with 34-14 win in '83. Vikings QB Tommy Kramer is NFL's top ranked passer via 205 of 359 for 2,953 yards, NFC-high 23 TDs, 10 interceptions. RB Darrin Nelson gained 71 yards rushing, had 5 catches for 67 yards receiving and 1 TD. TE Steve Jordan has 51 catches for 774 yards, 4 TDs. Vikings have 22 giveaways (12 interceptions, 10 lost fumbles), fewest in NFC. Minnesota has scored 355 points, including a 142 in first, most by any NFL team in any quarter. Oilers QB Warren Moon did not play vs. San Diego because of an injured thumb, but might return against Vikings. Oliver Luck directed the Oilers and threw for 110 yards on 10 for 26 passing and 2 interceptions. Houston held the ball for only 21:47 and earned only 9 first downs (compared to Chargers 23). Oilers have the No. 2 rated pass defense in the AFC, as opponents have only been able to complete an NFL-low of 46.3 percent of passes against them. Defense has held opponents to under 200 yards passing in 9 of 14 games.

Pittsburgh (5-9) at New York Jets (10-4)

12:30 p.m. Saturday, NBC.
Jets are losers of 3 straight after 10-1 start and have never beaten the Steelers (8-0 against New York). Jets need one win to clinch playoff spot. Teams played on Saturday of 15th week in '83 at home with Jets playoff hopes on the line (7-7 at the time) and Pittsburgh routed New York 34-7. Last week Steelers beat the Detroit Lions 27-17, while Jets lost to San Francisco 24-10. Steelers totaled 421 yards against Lions. QB Mark Malone threw for 232 yards on 18 of 32 passing, 2 interceptions and 2 TDs. RB Ernest Jackson rushed for 147 yards on 28 carries. Jackson is the third leading rusher in the AFC with 754 yards on 179 carries, 5 TDs. WR Louis Lipps caught 8 passes for 150 yards and 2 TD passes (12 and 39-yards). DE Keith Willis has 11 sacks. Donnie Shell had an interception vs. Lions and became first NFL SS to pick off 50. CB Lupe Sanchez's 27.4 kick off return average leads the AFC. QB Ken O'Brien continues to lead the AFC passing ratings, but suffered his worst game of the season against San Francisco (20 for 44, 198 yards, 3 interceptions). However, he did engineer the Jets first TD drive in 11 quarters. WR Al Toon (4 for 57 vs. 49ers) has 78 catches this year for 1,105 yards. Jets held to 38 yards rushing against San Francisco with RB Freeman McNeil a paltry 12 for 35. RB Johnny Hector has 605 yards, 8 TDs this season, but is doubtful with hamstringing. P Dave Jennings has AFC-leading 24 punts inside opponents 20. Jets waived starting LB Charles Jackson and DE Elvis Franks; NT Joe Klecko and DE Marty Lyons plan to see action against Steelers.

Miami (7-7) at Los Angeles Rams (10-4)

4 p.m. Sunday, NBC.
Dolphins can win AFC Wild Card berth by winning final 2 games plus 2 losses each by Cincinnati and Los Angeles Raiders and 1 loss apiece by Seattle and Kansas City. Rams can clinch second straight NFC West title with one more win or a loss by runner-up San Francisco. Los Angeles clinches at least a Wild Card if Minnesota loses. Last week Miami edged New Orleans 31-27 while Los Angeles downed Dallas 29-10 Sunday night. Dolphins lead overall series 3-1; Rams only win was in '76. Miami QB Dan Marino threw 3 TDs (against Saints) for the 7th time this year. Marino was 27 of 41 for 241 yards. He has thrown a TD in 21 straight games, longest active streak in NFL. RB Lorenzo Hampton gained 88 yards rushing on 17 carries and caught 7 passes for 64 yards. Miami has NFL's No. 1 pass offense in NFL and No. 2 AFC total offense. Offensive line has given up NFL-low 16 sacks. Dolphins have converted 51.2 percent of 3rd down attempts. Rams QB Jim Everett completed 14 of 25 passes for 212 yards, 1 interception and 1 TD. RB Eric Dickerson rushed for 106 yards on 28 carries vs. Dallas. WR Ron Brown (3-100 but separated shoulder vs. Cowboys) is doubtful for Sunday.

Chicago (12-2) at Detroit (5-8)

9 p.m. Monday, ABC.
Teams face off for 115th time with Bears leading overall series 65-44-5. Chicago tied with New York Giants for best record in football, but if both teams win final 2 games, Giants would gain home field advantage for playoffs due to better NFC record (Giants 11-1, Bears 10-2). Chicago needs just 1 win to host divisional playoffs on Jan. 3 or 4. Last week, Bears mauled Tampa Bay 48-14 as Detroit lost to Pittsburgh 27-17. Chicago is NFL's No. 1 rushing team (169.9-yard average). Chicago used QBs Mike Tomczak (7-11-1-108) and Doug Flutie (2-7-0-79) vs. Buccaneers and plans same type of action against Detroit. RB Walter Payton gained 78 yards on 20 carries. He is fifth in NFC rushing with 1,199 yards, 289 attempts. Chicago has not allowed a sack in past 4 games. PK Kevin Butler leads NFC with 104 points. Bears have given up only 164 points (NFL-low) and rank first in total defense (265-yard average yield). Lions QB Joe Ferguson threw for 207 yards (23 for 39, 3 interceptions, 1 TD). He has been bothered by a sore knee, so Chuck Long will start. WR Jeff Chadwick caught 5 passes for 53 yards against Pittsburgh. This season he has 53 receptions for 995 yards.

Jets are in need of a victory

NFL Roundup

By Barry Wilner
The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The glory days for the Pittsburgh Steelers are long gone. They were the NFL's dominant team in the 1970s. In this decade, the Steelers have been nowhere men. On Saturday, they will continue playing out the season, taking on a desperate New York Jets team that needs a victory to snap a three-game slide and clinch at least a wild-card playoff berth. The 5-9 Steelers have played their best football in the last four weeks, despite gaining only a split of 'hose games. They beat Houston and Detroit, lost overtime games to Cleveland and Chicago, the leaders of the AFC and NFC Central divisions, respectively. "It's been a different feeling in Pittsburgh because the people are used to a team that dominates the NFL," Steelers quarterback Mark Malone said. "I can't put my finger on what happened since the (1984) AFC Championship Game we lost to Miami. "We won't make the playoffs but we are working hard. We want to win our last two games for respectability. "The Jets want much more than that. After a nine-game winning streak established them as the NFL leader with a 10-1 mark, they've fallen apart. The offense, which averaged more than 30 points a game during the string of victories, has produced a total of 16 in the three defeats which followed. Still, they could win the AFC East and have the homefield edge for the entire playoffs by winning their last two games and having New England lose one of its remaining contests. Jets Coach Joe Walton cut linebacker Charles Jackson, a starter in all but one game this season, during the week. He also plans some juggling on the offensive line, which has spring leaks recently. Right tackle Reggie McElroy returns from a knee injury on Saturday. The other good news for the Jets is the status of nose tackle Joe Klecko and defensive end Marty Lyons. Both are expected to start on Saturday for the first time in a month. "The people who are back will step in and contribute," Walton promised. "They are important players to us. "We may do a little more alternating on the offensive line, see different guys in different spots, take advantage of some people's strengths, keep them fresh. Quarterback Ken O'Brien, who has fallen from the top of the league passing rankings with three mediocre outings, might find the Steelers' pass defense (No. 18 in the league) to his liking. But he must rediscover the touch that made everything the Jets tried on offense during the streak work as planned. For Pittsburgh, several key players have returned from injuries which contributed heavily to a 1-6 start. Most notable, of course, is Louis Lipps, the dangerous wide receiver who was bothered by hamstring and back problems and a concussion. Last week, in a 27-17 victory over Detroit, Lipps had eight receptions for 150 yards and two touchdowns. "I was overdue," Lipps said. "I haven't had the big play on the passing game all year," said Malone, who was benched earlier this season for rookie Bubba Brister. "With Louis back and getting some of those big plays, it loosens the offense up to do so many more things. "Now, defensively, what do you try to stop?"

The Pittsburgh running game has been on track most of the year, with both Earnest Jackson (754 yards) and Walter Abercrombie (719) in position for a 1,000-yard season. They will need a couple of big games, but the Jets' run defense has not been stingy during the losing streak. "Pittsburgh is playing very good football now," Walton said. "They look very much like the old defense, they're running very well and Lipps has gotten better as he has gotten healthier. "But they're not going to make the playoffs. The Jets will feel a lot healthier if they beat the Steelers and qualify for the postseason. "We have our fate in our hands."

In games Sunday, San Francisco is at New England; Minnesota at Houston; Miami at the Los Angeles Rams; Green Bay at Tampa Bay; New Orleans at Atlanta; Philadelphia at Dallas; St. Louis at the Giants; Buffalo at Indianapolis; Cleveland at Cincinnati; Kansas City at the Los Angeles Raiders and Seattle at San Diego. Chicago visits Detroit in the Monday night game.

'Other Reggie' a great player

By Dick Joyce
The Associated Press

Even Northeastern University gets confused when it comes to Reggie Lewis.
"Meet Reggie Williams, er, Lewis," slipped Jack Grinold, the sports information director, as he introduced the Huskies' top player to a writer at the Carrier Classic in Syracuse, N.Y.

It's nothing new for Lewis. The school's all-time scoring leader with 2,204 points is used to taking a backseat to the Hoya star.
Northeastern's Reggie was a bench-warmer behind Georgetown's Reggie at Dunbar High School in Baltimore, where he never started a game.

There were lots of other reasons Lewis didn't see much action at Dunbar, 59-0 during Lewis' last two seasons. Their names are David Wingate, Tyrone Bogues, Michael Brown, Keith James and Tim Dawson.

And while Williams gets greater exposure playing in the Big East, Lewis toils in the low-profile ECAC North Atlantic Conference, which includes Siena, Niagara, Boston University, Canisius, Vermont, Maine, Hartford, New Hampshire and Colgate.

But he's trying his best to give Northeastern respectability. It is a three-time conference champion and Lewis is a two-time player of the year.

The slender 6-foot-7 senior forward was the nation's seventh leading scorer last season with a 23.8 average, and led the Huskies in rebounding (9.3), steals (2.8) and blocks (2.1).

The Huskies made the NCAA tournament five of the last six years, including the three seasons Lewis has been aboard. Each year, however, they were knocked out in the first round.

"Reggie's such a great player that he's able to raise us to a different level," first-year coach Kari Fogel said. "He makes everybody better and he's a team-oriented player."

"You seldom see a leading scorer who leads the team in rebounds, steals, minutes played and blocks," Huskies assistant Dennis Walsh said. "He does a nice job in other areas, too."

Fogel, who was the Huskies' chief recruiter, "discovered" Lewis, which wasn't easy.

"I spent a lot of time in the Baltimore-Washington area," he said. "It's the best. There are more players off the bellways than anywhere. I saw him play as a junior and I knew he was a good one."

"When I used to go to Dunbar games for his senior year, I'd just hope it wasn't a blowout so Reggie could get in. Not too many people knew about him because he didn't play too much," he said.

Lewis remembers being the most valuable player in a high school all-star game in Johnstown, Pa., even though he was a reserve.

"Coach (Fogel) was the only scout there," Lewis said. "I was the sixth man on a great team at Dunbar, but he told me I could go a lot further as a player."

"I also helped him grow two inches," added Fogel, who landed Lewis as a 6-5 player.

Fogel's first night as Northeastern coach was one he's likely to remember.

Led by Lewis' 32 points, the Huskies beat NCAA champion Louisville 88-84 in overtime in the first round of last month's Great Alaska Shootout.

"We knew they didn't have experience at guard and we were able to take advantage of it," Lewis said.

Then came a Shootout victory over Utah State and a loss to Iowa in the same tournament. It was enough to give the Huskies a No. 19 ranking nationally.

Though no longer ranked, Northeastern has a capable backcourt with John Williams and Andre LeFleur, forward Wes Fuller, and a solid reserve in Derrick (no relation) Lewis. It still lacks a scoring force at center with 6-8 Kevin McDuffie.

Lewis, meantime, is averaging 24.4 points and nine rebounds a game.

"We don't get the cream of the crop," Fogel said, "but because of Reggie we've been able to attract a lot better players. Next year, we'll have seven scholarships available and we've signed three players."

By then, Lewis will have gone to the National Basketball Association, probably as a middle first-round pick.

"Reggie Lewis is a great player," Syracuse Coach Jim Boheim said. "You're not going to stop him; he's going to get his points. All guys named Reggie are pretty good players."

Hoop Preview

After enduring a somewhat disappointing campaign last season, winding up with a 9-12 ledger and a tie for fourth place in the Central Connecticut Conference East Division, this year's edition of the Manchester High boys' basketball team will certainly be out to improve upon its mark a year ago and stake its claim as a legitimate division contender.

Second-year Indian coach Frank Kinell is a bit suspect concerning his squad at this stage of the preseason, but feels confident in his teams' ability. "We have more ability this year," Kinell said. "My concern now is them playing well as a team."

Five players return from last year's team, including its top two scorers — 6-foot-1 forward Michael Lata and 6-5 forward Bruce Rosenberg averaged better than eight points an outing last season. Two junior guards return who saw a good amount of playing time a year ago — 6-3 Matt Vaughn and 5-11 Troy Peters.

A promising young big man for Manchester this season is 6-4 sophomore Paris Oates. Oates was a member of the undefeated Bannet Junior High varsity team last season. Kinell expects big things from the promising youngster.

"He (Oates) is an outstanding prospect," Kinell remarked. "He's only 15 years old, but he can play. We don't really play a center. But, when we play a pivot position, he (Oates) will be the center. He will be a very important member of our team."

A player who will be looked upon highly by the Indians this year is and will see plenty of action is 5-10 senior guard Rob Greene, who possesses a tremendous amount of natural ability. "He (Greene) will be playing a lot," Kinell said.

Another returnee from last year is 6-foot senior guard Sam Henderson, who is likely to see a lot of action this year for the Indians. Among the other key reserves for Manchester are sophomores Calvin Meggett and Jason Goddard, and 6-foot senior guard Jason Stansfield.

Another promising player for the Indians is 5-9 senior guard Cinque Barlow, a transfer student from Loomis-Chaffee and originally from Manchester. "He (Barlow) is very quick," Kinell said. "He will be an important player off the bench."

Two players from a year ago who saw a lot of action, seniors Shaun Brophy and Jon Roe, will not be on the team this year. Brophy, an All-Stater in cross country this past fall, has opted to compete in indoor track. Roe has decided to concentrate on baseball where he plays second base for the Indians.

"We have particular depth in the backcourt, but not in the frontcourt," Kinell explained.

Connecticut has employed the three-point shot this season in high school basketball, as has the colleges. Connecticut is the only state in New England to adopt the three-point shot, which is measured at 19 feet-9 inches. As deep as the Indians are at the guard slot, Kinell refuses to believe that the 3-pointer will have a major effect on his team or any other high school team.

"Most high school players aren't going to shoot the three-pointer," Kinell said. "It will take an unusual player to make that shot consistently." Kinell's main goal for his club this year is to compete at a higher level within the CCC East.

"Our first goal is to become a contender in the CCC East," Kinell said. "The top three teams are Windham, East Hartford, and Hartford Public." Manchester opens its season Friday on the road against the Whippets in Willimantic. "We want to close the gap on them. Naturally, we want to be in the state tournament." Manchester qualified for the tournament a year ago, bowing out in the first round to Weaver High School.

Penguins wallop the Leafs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mario Lemieux scored four goals, three in the first period, to lead the Pittsburgh Penguins to an 8-3 NHL victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs Friday night.

Lemieux, who had only two goals in his previous eight games, completed his third career hat trick in the first 13:42, then matched his career high for goals in a game with a second period score. He also had two assists.

Lemieux scored on a power play at 5:01 of the opening period, then made it 2-0 at 9:35. After Russ Courtnall scored the first of his two goals for the Maple Leafs, Lemieux one-timed a Kevin LaVallee pass past goalie Ken Wregget.

Courtnall scored late in the first period to cut Pittsburgh's lead to 3-2 but the Penguins scored three times in the first 7:49 of the second.

With Borje Salming already in the penalty box, the Maple Leafs were given a minor for leaving the bench too soon at the end of the first period and Terry Ruskowski scored during a two-man advantage.

Dan Quinn scored before the second penalty expired and Craig Simpson added an even-strength goal to make it 6-2.

Lemieux scored his 26th of the year at 14:16 but Wendell Clark got his 17th 19 seconds later for Toronto.

Quinn scored in the third period for Pittsburgh.

Wregget allowed six goals on 16 shots and was replaced by Alan Bester. Toronto has lost five of its last six games.

to Jeff Malone, who put up a shot that missed. Moses Malone grabbed the rebound, spun outside the lane and hit a fallaway shot that gave the Bullets the lead.

After two more timeouts, Detroit guard Joe Dumars put up a 15-footer that bounced off the rim as time expired.

Jeff Malone led all scorers with 30 points, while Moses Malone finished with 27 for the Bullets.

The Pistons were led by Dumars' 22 points. Adrian Dantley and rookie Dennis Rodman each scored 16 for Detroit.

Nets 123, 76ers 90

At East Rutherford, N.J., Tony Brown had a season-high 22 points and Buck Williams and James Bailey each had 18 Friday night as the New Jersey Nets snapped a five-game losing streak, rolling to a 123-90 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers.

New Jersey, which had lost 13 of 14 games, fell behind 13-2 at the outset as Philadelphia's Maurice Cheeks tallied a pair of three-point plays. But the Nets, now 4-17, battled back to take the lead at 23-22 late in the first period.

Charles Barkley led Philadelphia with 15 points, while Sedale Threatt added 14.

Hawks 130, Kings 120

At Atlanta, Dominique Wilkins scored 15 of his 28 points in the fourth quarter as the Atlanta Hawks quelled a Sacramento rally en route to a 130-120 NBA victory over the Kings Friday night.

The Kings, who had trailed since the second quarter, closed to 105-102 with 8:52 left in the game. But the Hawks then reeled off an 11-0 streak, with the last seven points on Wilkins' two field goals and three free throws.

MCC enters tourney finals

JOHNSTOWN, N.Y. — Behind a balanced attack, Manchester Community College men's basketball team maintained its winning ways in the opening round of the Key-Mart Tournament Friday night with an 82-65 decision over New York City Tech.

Host Montgomery-Fulton Community College met Middlesex, Mass., Community College later Friday to determine MCC's opponent in the championship game which is scheduled for noon today.

He scored 14 of those markers in the first half where MCC assumed a commanding 37-21 lead after 20 minutes. Tyrell Hartfield chipped in 17 points and Donald Cost and Bernard James added 14 apiece. ## Is Morris set to join Twins?

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tigers pitching ace Jack Morris plans to sign a contract next week to play in 1987 for the Minnesota Twins, the right-hander said Friday.

"I'm told that I'm going there to sign a contract," Morris said by telephone on Detroit's WXYZ-TV of a planned trip Monday to Minnesota.

Morris said earlier Friday he didn't think there was any chance of signing again with the Tigers.

Morris, who was 21-8 in 1986, reportedly was offered a two-year contract worth $2.5 million by the Tigers, but had said he wanted a longer term on the pact. Detroit General Manager Bill Lajoie declined to say whether the Tigers would improve their offer.

"I intend to (sign a contract) and I think there's a good chance I will," Morris said.

Morris, the winningest pitcher in the major leagues in the 1980s, earlier listed the Philadelphia Phillies, Twins, California Angels and New York Yankees as teams he would like to pitch for next season.

Morris, 31, is a native of St. Paul, Minn.

Top seeds ousted

LONDON (AP) — The world's top-ranked doubles team of Andres Gomez and Hans Gildemeister were eliminated in five sets Friday by John Fitzgerald and Tomas Smid, who advanced to the semifinals of the $255,000 Masters Doubles championship at the Royal Albert Hall.

Also advancing were Frenchmen Yannick Noah and Guy Forget, who defeated Emilio Sanchez and Sergio Casal of Spain 6-2, 6-2, 7-6.

Australia's Fitzgerald and Smid of Czechoslovakia beat Gomez and Gildemeister, 7-5, 4-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4.

After losing the opening set, the favored South Americans, who have won five tournaments together this season, grabbed the initiative and stormed ahead.

But neither was able to sustain his control or accuracy. Gildemeister missing volleys and simple groundstrokes, Gomez mixing up inspired winners with the same costly errors as his partner.

Without ever being spectacular, Smid and Fitzgerald played their way back into the match, evened at two sets all and let their opponents make the mistakes in the final set.

On Saturday, Fitzgerald and Smid will play Noah and Forget, with Gary Donnelly and Mike DePalmer taking on Stefan Edberg and Anders Jarre.

BOSTON — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 14 of his 26 points in the fourth period as the Los Angeles Lakers rallied from an eight-point deficit and ended the Celtics' 48-game Boston Garden winning streak Friday night with a 117-110 victory over the NBA defending champions.

Magic Johnson scored 31 points and James Worthy added 25 as the Lakers became the first visiting team to win in the Garden since Portland's 121-103 victory over the Celtics on Dec. 6, 1985.

Abdul-Jabbar, who sat out 18 minutes of the first half after picking up three fouls and then spent another four minutes on the bench in the third period after another foul, returned to action at the outset of the fourth quarter with Los Angeles trailing 94-88.

Kevin McHale and the Lakers' Michael Cooper exchanged field goals and Fred Roberts cashed two free throws, giving the Celtics a 98-90 lead less than two minutes into the fourth period.

Abdul-Jabbar, the all-time NBA scoring leader, then went to work against Boston's 7-foot Robert Parish. The Los Angeles veteran sank two skyhooks, triggering a 19-6 run that moved the Lakers into a 109-104 lead with just over four minutes left.

McHale and Abdul-Jabbar swapped field goals before Boston's Dennis Johnson cut the margin to 111-108. Abdul-Jabbar then sank two more baskets on hooks and Magic Johnson hit from the outside to cap the victory.

Boston was led by Larry Bird with 26 points. Parish had 23, McHale 22 and Johnson 21.

Shelter proposals a first

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter

Manchester will soon have a first-of-its-kind refuge for teenage girls if proposals to turn six years of dream planning into reality.

Shelter For Women Inc., a non-profit organization that operates the Hartford-based Lodge treatment facility, hopes to open the home for girls with minimal social support in a safe environment by early summer. Executive Director Rose Senatore said today.

The home would provide a safe haven for girls who are almost ready to live independently but still lack some skills needed for self-sufficiency, Senatore said.

She said the state does not have any facilities of this kind. The pressure on younger teenagers to leave home to live on their own is increasing. Many do not have a place to go home to, Senatore said. "These are adolescents who have any family support system," she said. "We are the only group. It will be very oriented."

UNDER THE PLAN, a new facility on Hartford Road would be the residence of eight girls between 16 and 18 years old, all of whom would attend Manchester schools. The teenagers would be supervised by one director and a number of child-care workers who would teach them skills such as budgeting and interviewing for jobs.

The state Department of Social Services and Youth Services, which issues licenses for such facilities, would set the rates and pay a daily fee of $50 per child, Senatore said. It would cost about $50 a month for each child at the home.

Shelter For Women has an operating budget of $185,000 for the first year, she said.

Most of that would come from the state, but the organization is looking for contributions to cover the rest. Grants from private groups have been exhausted for now, she said.

EACH TEENAGER would be required to have a part-time job in town while attending school and may stay until 18. Senatore said that exceptions could be made for girls needing further service.

Shelter for Women has already bought a house on Hartford Road for $290,000. Senatore said she hopes to raise at least $30,000 more to get the house up to fire and safety standards.

Senatore said her group is planning the operation for the next six years and picked Manchester because the town has shown interest in supporting other projects of its nature.

Already in the works is a plan to open a group home for teenagers on North Street. The plan, which has received support from the town, was developed by the Transitional Center Foundation Inc.

"We chose Manchester because of the community support," she said. "I feel Manchester is a warm and caring community."
