NORTH HAD SCHEME TO DIVERT $$$

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Col. Oliver L. North wrote an undated memo for his White House files outlining the plan to divert to Nicaragua's contra rebels profits from secret arms sales to Iran, a source close to the House Intelligence committee said Friday.

At the same time, Attorney General Edwin Meese III, following testimony to the House panel, revealed that North, on the weekend of Nov. 22-23, had told him that President Reagan did not know of the transfer of arms sales proceeds to the contras.

While the Justice Department has been unable to establish the time the North memo describing the plan was written, the source said. "My impression was ... it was April (1986) ... It gave the outline of the plan ... to divert profits from the sale of arms to Iran, to support the contras."

Meese also described as "a very rough approximation" his statement of Nov. 25, that from $10 million to $30 million related to the Iranian arms sales was diverted to the contra forces. The attorney general said "nothing I have heard at any time, from anybody, would give me conclusive proof that the money did in fact get to the contras."

Vice President George Bush, in a speech in Iowa, called on North to tell what he knows about the Iran-contra connection, while prominent lawyer Lawrence E. Walsh, the newly appointed independent counsel in the case, promised a "fair and thorough investigation."

The Capitol Hill source quoted Meese as saying North was shocked when the memo — apparently the first documentary evidence of a diversion plan — was discovered in his National Security Council files late last month.

North was fired by Reagan on Nov. 25.

But one committee member, who listened to Meese's testimony, said North had only fragmentary knowledge of how much money might have been realized in profits on the arms sales and how much of that might have reached the contras.

The member, Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., said Meese told the committee that his original estimate that between $10 million and $30 million in arms sales profits had been diverted to the contras was based on "extrapolating" from data provided by North and did not represent a hard figure.

"He said Colonel North could not give him details of the amounts of money," Brown quoted Meese as saying. "He said that Colonel North did not have that information and that he (Meese) did not have it."

"He left him (Meese) with the impression that Colonel North didn't have that information," Brown said. The congressman said that Meese told committee members the matter is under intense investigation by the FBI.

After testifying before the House intelligence panel late Friday, Meese told reporters that "nothing I have heard at any time from anybody would give me conclusive proof that money did in fact get to the contras. I only know that people told me that it was intended that money would be made available to the contras."

As President Reagan flew to Camp David, Md., for a weekend respite from the tangled controversy engulfing his administration, Bush urged North and former national security adviser, Vice Adm. John M. Poindexter, to "answer

Walsh pledges fair probe of Iran-contra connection

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judicial panel Friday chose former judge Lawrence E. Walsh as independent counsel to probe the gravest crisis of the Reagan presidency, investing Walsh with virtually limitless parameters for an investigation of the Iran-contra connection.

Walsh, of Oklahoma City, was asked to lead a criminal inquiry that will range far beyond the one requested by the Reagan administration. It will delve into covert arms sales to Iran, diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan rebels, and the entire contra supply network.

A former Vietnam peace negotiator and top deputy in the Justice Department in the second Eisenhower administration, Walsh was described by the three-judge court as "one of the outstanding lawyers of the nation."

U.S. Circuit judges George E. MacKinnon, Walter R. Mansfield and Lewis R. Morgan said the 74-year-old Walsh "brings to this very broad investigation... the judgment and ability acquired through years of experience as a prosecutor, federal judge, government official, trial lawyer and as a recognized leader of the bar of the nation."

Sworn in immediately, Walsh pledged a "fair and thorough investigation," and said the chief judge of the U.S. District Court here, Aubrey E. Robinson Jr., has already begun to assemble a grand jury.

Walsh pledged to meet with chairman of congressional committees investigating the affair "in order to minimize any possibility of conflict." Both the House and Senate have established Watergate-style panels which will begin work next year.

Walsh declined to comment on whether anyone would be granted immunity. President Reagan has asked that fired National Security Council staff deputy Oliver L. North — the key figure in the controversy so far — and his former boss, now-resigned NSC adviser, Vice Adm. John M. Poindexter — be granted immunity to testify before the Senate Intelligence Committee. Both have taken the Fifth Amendment.

The court, which establishes the crucial parameters of the probe, agreed in part with Attorney General Edwin Meese III's Dec. 4 request that the counsel investigate arms sales to Iran and diversion of proceeds to insurgents fighting the Nicaraguan government.

Meese praised the appointment. As he entered the Capitol for a closed-door meeting with the House Intelligence Committee, he told reporters, "It's an excellent development today."

Also agreeing with Meese, the court mentioned only one name — that of North — as an investigative subject, but said those acting in concert with the Marine lieutenant colonel also should be investigated. But from that jumping off point, the court ranged far beyond the Meese request, and included suggestions made to the judges by Democrats from the House and Senate Judiciary committees.

Following the suggestion of the Democratic lawmakers, the judges said the investigation should include "the provision or coordination of support" for the contras since 1984, which would appear to encompass the entire supply network. It was in 1984 that Congress cut off appropriations for military assistance to the rebels.

Within the Iran-contra connection itself, the court said the investigation of arms shipments should cover the period from "about 1984 down to the present." Meese's starting point was "in or around" January 1985.

In addition, the court directed an inquiry into "the financing or funding of any direct or indirect sale, shipment or transfer" of weapons — an inquiry that could involve Swiss bank accounts reportedly established by North and the work of arms merchants used in the transactions.

Two Canadian investors have told CIA Director William Casey through an intermediary that they supplied millions of dollars to middlemen to finance the sales and had not been paid back.

On the diversion of arms sales profits, the court said the probe should look not only at possible transfer to the contras but "any faction or body of insurgents in any foreign country."

The court order did not specifically mention a request from the House Judiciary Committee Democrats to investigate possible obstruction of justice by the Justice Department.

EX-JUDGE LAWRENCE WALSH named independent counsel

At a glance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the developments Friday in the controversy over U.S. arms sales to Iran and the diversion of the resulting proceeds to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

SECRET MEMORANDUM FOUND — Attorney General Edwin Meese III testified that a written memorandum outlining plans to divert the Iran arms profits to the Contra rebels was found in the files of Marine Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, a source close to the House Intelligence committee said.

Meese told reporters Friday that when he called North on Nov. 23, the former national security deputy told him that President Reagan did not know about any funds going to the contras.

INDEPENDENT COUNSEL — Former federal judge Lawrence E. Walsh, 74, of Oklahoma City, was appointed as independent counsel to lead a criminal inquiry into the Iran-Contra deal. The federal judicial panel that picked Walsh also gave him virtually unlimited parameters for his investigation.

VICE PRESIDENT BUSH — Vice President George Bush called on North and Vice Adm. John Poindexter, the former national security adviser, to waive their constitutional rights if necessary to reveal whether they told President Reagan about diverting Iranian arms sale profits to Nicaraguan rebels.

CIA DIRECTOR CASEY — Doctors said CIA Director William Casey is recovering satisfactorily from his surgery for a probably cancerous brain tumor, and a White House spokesman said Reagan had no plans to remove Casey from his job. Casey, 73, underwent surgery at Georgetown University Hospital for 5 1/2 hours on Thursday.

IRANIAN: U.S. BRIBERY — The speaker of Iran's parliament said the United States was trying to bribe his country, a statement apparently supporting the allegation that the secret arms shipments were in exchange for the hostages in Lebanon.

Parliament speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani, according to a report on the Iranian news agency monitored in Cyprus, said Iran will mediate with the pro-Iranian kidnappers if Washington releases frozen Iranian assets. Previously, only frozen arms purchases had been mentioned.

Bush: 'Answer just one key question'

just one key question" before Christmas.

Declaring that "the country cannot wait any longer," Bush said that question is whether the two former national security aides told Reagan about the diversion of Iranian arms sales profits to the Nicaraguan insurgents.

"I am satisfied the answer will be 'no,'" Bush said in a speech prepared for delivery in Altoona, Iowa.

Bush spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the speech was cleared in advance by the White House. "I think everyone, including the president, had a chance to look at it," he said.

Bush also conceded in his speech that the administration may not have done the best job of presenting its side of the story. "I know we haven't explained this properly to the American people," he said.

The White House, meanwhile, said that Reagan has no plans to replace CIA Director William J. Casey, who underwent surgery Thursday for removal of a cancerous brain tumor.

A Georgetown University Hospital spokesman said Casey, 73, was "in stable condition and doing well" Friday, and that his doctors believe he "will be able to resume his normal activities" at an undetermined time.

After testifying before the House panel, Meese also said there was no indication that any of the money wound up in the hands of domestic political organizations. Earlier published reports have said that some of the arms profits were funneled to conservative U.S. organizations which used the money to lobby for Reagan's Central American policies and oppose his critics in Congress.

Meese told reporters that when he called North on Nov. 23, the former national security deputy told him that only three people in the U.S. government knew about the funds diversion — himself, Poindexter and former national security adviser Robert C. McFarlane.

"Colonel North told me at the time that I talked with him that the president did not know about any funds going to the contras," Meese said.

Also, the attorney general said that "at this stage we don't know exactly how much money was involved" in the funds diversion.

Walsh, 74, sworn in as independent counsel at the federal courthouse a few blocks from Capitol Hill, is a former prosecuting attorney, U.S. district judge, deputy U.S. attorney general and president of the American Bar Association who was a U.S. negotiator at the Vietnam peace talks in Paris in 1969.

The three-judge panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals that appointed Walsh expanded the mandate for his criminal investigation beyond the immediate controversy over arms sales to Iran and diversion of profits to the Contras.

Walsh was authorized to investigate "the provision or coordination of support for persons or entities engaged as military insurgents in armed conflict with the government of Nicaragua since 1984," which might have violated congressional restrictions or prohibitions on aid to the U.S.-backed rebels.

Walsh told reporters that a grand jury already was being formed, and that he intended to confer with Meese soon to "work out a transition of all the investigations."

He promised a "fair and thorough investigation," but refused to say whether he would grant immunity to anyone involved in the Iran-Contra controversy.

Meese praised the appointment of Walsh.

As he entered the Capitol for a closed-door meeting with the House Intelligence Committee, he told reporters, "It's an excellent development."

"I have already talked to Mr. Walsh and told him that the Justice Department will cooperate fully with him as the independent counsel," he said. "He is already in touch with the FBI and will be talking with them and with other representatives of them and the department today and within the next few days."

The White House denied a report of another secret diplomatic overture — one toward Libya — that reportedly was authorized by National Security Council authorities.

A high-ranking Italian foreign ministry official said he was told last spring by Poindexter, who resigned Nov. 25 as Reagan's national security adviser, that William A. Wilson, the U.S. ambassador to the Vatican, had been permitted by previous NSC directors to make secret contacts with Libya.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said he could find no evidence of such a go-ahead being given to Wilson, who was replaced as ambassador this year after his meeting with Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi was disclosed.

In other developments:

—The Wall Street Journal said in Friday's editions that when an American cargo plane was shot down over Nicaragua on Oct. 5, Felix Rodriguez, a former CIA operative with close ties to Bush, notified North that the plane was missing.

The newspaper quoted unidentified U.S. officials as saying North flew immediately to El Salvador to try to prevent details of the Contra supply mission from becoming public and to arrange death benefits for survivors of the two Americans killed in the crash.

—Budget director James Miller said on NBC's "Today" show that the administration's proposed fiscal 1988 budget will contain a request to increase the $100 million in Contra aid approved for 1987, but conceded that the current controversy "makes it more difficult to obtain funding for the Contras."

—The White House said it does not have any tape-recording system in the Oval Office like the one installed during the Nixon administration, but does patch some of Reagan's calls with foreign leaders through the White House "situation room" so they can be taped.

Speakes said he was unaware of any time, except for those calls, that Reagan's telephone conversations have been taped. He was commenting on a Washington Post article which said there was "a sophisticated White House communications system," involving taping and computerized storage of documents, which "may contain information on the secret Iran arms affair."

Friday wasn't a good day for Route 6 foe

By George Lavyn Herald Reporter

ANDOVER — While the state Department of Transportation has so far won every legal challenge to the proposed Route 6 highway, it is having a difficult time winning the public relations battle.

The latest defeat may have come Friday when a DOT appraiser came to Laurei Houle's home on Bunker Hill Road to assess the value of her home and property so it can be purchased for the highway.

Houle, a vocal critic of the state's plans to build the 11.8-mile road from Bolton Notch to Windham, said she was not angry with the man who visited.

"I can feel for the appraisers because they don't like what they are doing," she said as the man walked with her husband in her back yard.

Houle said she is upset with the DOT for taking the home her husband built himself eight years ago on six acres of his father's property.

For one thing, she argued that her home, situated next to her brother-in-law's home and across the street from a circa-1789 house owned by her sister-in-law, is more than just a house and land.

She said she cherishes the beautiful view of an open field bordered by the Hop River, and the peace of mind knowing that her two sons, ages 3 and 6, can freely run about with their cousins and be watched over by her in-laws.

"It's something you see on 'The Waltons,'" she said.

So far, the DOT has acquired eight of the 10 homes in the first 3.3 miles of the road path, and the other two are in the process of being taken, DOT Rights of Way Director James Lewis said Friday. In addition, the agency has acquired 29 of 33 parcels of land in that section, he said.

Lewis said the 13 homes and 44 properties in the second 4.4-mile section, which includes Houle's property, are still being appraised, and offers should be made in January and February. He said acquisitions should be complete by spring or summer.

In the third section, there are five homes and 26 properties that Lewis said should be acquired by early 1988.

Houle and others, though, are planning to take their case to the U.S. Supreme Court to stop the acquisitions.

The DOT has won two previous decisions in lower federal courts, and there is no guarantee the top court will agree to hear the case.

While the highway opponents have emphasized family, home and protecting nature, supporters of the road rely on statistics and schedules to make their case.

The supporters argue that the new road will make traveling to and from eastern Connecticut more convenient, help revitalize the economies of area towns, thereby helping to stabilize local property taxes and lessening the need to use the existing two-lane Route 6, which many feel is a high-speed death trap.

Houle said opponents have so far raised $5,000 for the legal challenge. "We chose to live here and it just really breaks our heart," she said.

"There's no question about it," said DOT Deputy Commissioner William Lazarek. "It certainly hasn't made us too popular."

Cops have two suspects in phone company theft

Police are seeking warrants for the arrest of two suspects in the Nov. 29 theft of about $4,000 worth of telephone equipment from trucks parked behind the Southern New England Telephone Co. building on Center Street, a police spokesman said Friday.

The spokesman, Officer Gary Wood, said that one of the suspects is among the six teenagers police have arrested in connection with the Dec. 5 break-in at the old Highland Park School on Porter Street. In that incident, police said, office equipment valued at more than $10,000, including a computer, a copier and typewriters, were taken from the offices of the Visiting Nurse and Home Care Inc. of Manchester.

Although Wood declined to name either of the two suspects in the telephone company break-in, he did say that the two were adults. He said that additional warrants may be sought for two minors suspected in the incident.

Police have so far arrested four 16-year-olds suspected in the burglary at the school: Jonathan Thulin of 61 Bruce Road, John Limberger of 150 Pine St., Matthew J. Irwin of 130 Birch St. and Jonathan Zupnik of 139

Butternut Road. Also arrested were Thomas Henry Shea, 18, of Ellington, and John Oshman, 19, of 21 Shady Lane.

Newspaper reports have indicated that two of those involved in the school break-in obtained computer access codes in order to make free, and apparently illegal, long-distance calls through a Hartford-based communications company. One of the two is reported to have said that the purpose of the telephone company break-in was to obtain such access numbers.

In addition, the same individual is said to have obtained access numbers to computers at the Travelers Insurance Cos.

John Sears, the president of Radius Telephone Service, said Friday that although no suspects have yet been pinpointed, his company is investigating unauthorized use of long-distance access numbers with the intent of prosecuting those illegally using the numbers.

Alan Fletcher, a public relations administrator at the Travelers, confirmed Friday that an investigation is being conducted in connection with use of computer access codes by suspects in the school break-in.

Nativity group nears goal

The Manchester Nativity Scene Committee has received about $12,600 in donations and hopes to raise about $3,000 more, William R. Johnson, committee co-chairman, said Friday.

The committee bought two new nativity scenes to replace two damaged in a fire Oct. 17, and plans to store and maintain the scenes permanently.

Kenneth Lappen, a committee member, said he has not yet filed documents incorporating the committee. Daniel Reale will be president of the corporation and Johnson vice president.

The committee has paid about $14,500 for the two scenes. Some of the money has come from loans made by Reale and by the Savings Bank of Manchester. Johnson is president of the bank.

Committee members estimated that a recent meeting that they have about $1,000 to pay for erecting and dismantling the scenes this year and for other costs involved in maintaining them.

Part of the fund may pay for a sign at Robertson Park, where one of the scenes is displayed, but committee members hope the sign will be donated. Johnson said Friday he is trying to arrange for the donation.

The sign would identify the committee as the owner of the scene to make it clear that it is not owned by the town.

Town Attorney John Cooney has advised that displaying a nativity scene in a public park is lawful as long as it is accompanied by a sign indicating its ownership.

Mayor Barbara Weinberg said she is trying to make arrangements to have a photo made of the larger scene, displayed on the lawn of Center Congregational Church, so that it can be used on a postcard or on note paper. The card and notepaper could be sold to provide funds for future maintenance of the nativity scenes.

The two nativity scenes damaged in the fire were bought from public donations more than 15 years ago. Some of the figures from one scene were restored by art students at Manchester High School and have been added to the ones at Center Congregational Church.

Boy dragged by school van

GREENWICH (AP) — A 10-year-old boy was dragged 70 feet by a school van while French-speaking students screamed at the driver who could not understand their cries to stop, police said.

Stephen Roth of Greenwich was in satisfactory condition Friday at Greenwich Hospital, where he was taken with a broken pelvis after the incident on his way home from school Wednesday, police Capt. James Gleason said.

The driver of the van, identified as Frank Norberto, 59, of New Rochelle, N.Y., was charged with reckless driving and making an unsafe start, police said.

Gleason said the van had traveled from Larchmont, N.Y., where Roth is a fifth-grader at The French-American School of New York. The van stopped at the boy's home in Greenwich, where Roth got out and closed the door behind him.

Police said Roth's knapsack got tangled in the van's seat belt as he closed the door. The van pulled away and the boy tried to run alongside the van but could not keep up and fell to the street.

As the van dragged Roth, the van's three passengers, students who do not speak English, began to yell to Norberto.

"The kids speak French and he (Norberto) heard them but he didn't understand them," Gleason said.

Norberto stopped the van and Roth was found lying on the ground just in front of the vehicle's right rear tire, officials said.

"If it had gone one or two more feet more, he would have been crushed," said the boy's mother, Christina Roth.

Police said children in the van told police through their mothers that the driver was playing the radio loudly and they had to shout over it. Police said an officer at the scene also found the radio playing loudly.

Norberto's supervisor, Vincent Parisi, who owns Bayview Taxi Corp. in Larchmont, said Norberto was an experienced driver and had a good record.

Norberto was released on a promise to appear in Stamford Superior Court on Jan. 7.

Local News in Brief

Road crew's holiday nixed

BOLTON — The Board of Selectmen unanimously voted down Tuesday night a request from the town road crew for four days off during the holiday season, including the day before and the day after Christmas and Jan. 1. The vote came after Selectman Michael Zizka said that such action might be considered failure to bargain in good faith with the four unionized workers, who have been without a contract since March of 1985.

"We were told by the town attorney that we could not offer the increase (in vacation) we offered to all other town employees because they are unionized," Zizka said after the meeting, adding that the additional days off could be seen as an effort to undermine the union.

In other action, the selectmen voted unanimously to reappoint Dr. C. Wendell Wickersham and Ronald L. Buckman to two-year terms as director of health and assistant director of health, respectively. Also reappointed to two-year terms were Judy Verchow as dog warden and Robert Vaughn as assistant dog warden.

Andover Library to close

ANDOVER — The Andover Public Library will be closed for painting from Wednesday through Jan. 1. It will be open Monday and Tuesday.

Students who need to do research during the holidays are urged to use the libraries in Columbia, Bolton, and Willimantic. An up-to-date library card from Andover will be needed to take out books from another town.

For more information, call the Andover Library at 742-7428.

The library will reopen Jan. 2 with its regular schedule.

Women's health confab set

Registration for a half-day seminar titled, "Intimate Choices: A Women's Health Conference," is being taken at Manchester Memorial Hospital, officials said this week.

The seminar, which will be sponsored by the hospital, will be held March 28 from 8:45 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and will include breakfast. Hospital officials said that space will be limited.

Following the breakfast, women attending the conference will be able to attend two of the four seminars.

They include: "When To, When Not To, and What To Do When You Do," focusing on playing the waiting game, sexuality and childbirth after 30; "A Picture is Worth a Thousand Words," exploring medical images; "Doctor, Do You Hear Me?" on communicating with the physician; and "Mother, Wife, Professional — It Can Be Done," which will be led by two female physicians.

Mary Ollie Newman of WFSB-TV 3 News will be the guest speaker during breakfast.

Church members prepare a drive-through scene at Church of the Nazarene. The two-day event ends tonight at 9. This is the third year the church has offered the drive-through, which is free. Church members collected food and money for the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

Drive-through gets rolling at Church of the Nazarene

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter

Kathy Levesque was one of the three Wise Men Friday night. At least she looked like one.

Levesque, along with about 50 others, volunteered her time on a chilly night to take part in the Church of the Nazarene's third annual Christmas drive-through. About 2,000 people are expected to view the two-day event before it ends tonight at 9.

Seven holiday scenes were set up in the church's parking lot off Main Street. A line of cars slowly passed each one as volunteers playing parts in the exhibits waved and wished everyone a merry Christmas. Hot chocolate and cookies were available at the end of the line.

"I thought it would be a good time for people to realize they could seek him (Jesus) like the Wise Men did," said Levesque, who was dressed in a long robe and wore a fancy "Wise Man" type hat.

"Giving is very important," she said. "But that shouldn't be the main focus (on Christmas). The fact that the Lord was born should be the main focus."

Levesque was part of the live nativity scene, which featured the baby Jesus (there wasn't a real baby playing that part), Mary and Joseph, the three Wise Men and live animals, including a sheep and a donkey. Next to that scene was a modern-day shopping scene, Christmas carolers and a minister preaching to his flock.

Each exhibit had its own special meaning, organizers said. "The real meaning we're trying to get through in the Lord's presence can be real in people's lives today," said David J. Blaney, the director of youth ministries at the church. He was the main organizer of the exhibit, which was called "Wise Men Still Seek Him." The last scene was a family in their living room. A passage from the Bible was written across the top of the scene's wooden background. It read: "As for me and my family, we will see the Lord each day." Although "each day" is not actually in the Bible, it was added to show how families should carry Jesus with them throughout the day, Blaney said. "It's important all year round," Blaney said. "But at Christmas, Christmas is about Christ." "Jesus is as alive today as he was back then," said volunteer Herb Bailey. The free drive-through opens tonight at 6.

No home for the holidays

Weekend vigil planned for homeless

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A weekend candle-light vigil will help to remind people that, for some of their less fortunate fellow human beings, there is no home for Christmas, an organizer of the vigil says.

"We want to increase awareness, especially during the holiday season," said Cynthia DeLouise, who runs Columbus House, an emergency shelter in the city.

Columbus House and the Downtown Cooperative Ministry are planning to begin the hour-long downtown vigil at 5 p.m. Sunday, DeLouise said Friday.

The organizers plan a procession around the New Haven Green, ending at the spot where a homeless man was found dead on Dec. 3. His rain-drenched body was found on a park bench, DeLouise said.

An autopsy found that the man had died of natural causes, DeLouise said.

DeLouise and New Haven police Sgt. James Sorrentino said the man's name was Howard Sneider. DeLouise said he occasionally stayed at Columbus House, but did not seek a bed there every night.

"He was a very sweet and a gentle man," DeLouise said. "He was very interested in doing something for himself and finding his own place in the community."

DeLouise said the vigil would also emphasize "the need for additional permanent shelter and the development of low-income housing for the poor."

"We will also pray for those homeless who are currently without shelter," she said.

DeLouise said the cold winter weather has aggravated the problems of the homeless in New Haven.

Columbus House, the only shelter for singles in the city, has 88 beds, she said. But the shelter has been turning away an average of 10 people a night, she said.

"We're trying not to turn people away," she said. "It's dangerously cold. We're doing all we can, but so far we are not legally able" to let more people sleep there, she said.

City fire regulations have limited the number of beds in Columbus House, she said.

Judge won't drop charges against girl who kept mum

DANBURY (AP) — A Superior Court judge on Friday refused to drop criminal contempt charges against a minor teen-age girl who refused to testify in a sexual assault case against her 28-year-old former lover.

Superior Court Judge Francis M. McDonald in a lengthy memorandum took the 16-year-old girl off adult probation and put her on juvenile probation for two years, but didn't drop the contempt charge, said Michael Courtney, a public defender who is representing the girl in the effort to overturn the criminal contempt sentence.

Courtney, who said he didn't know if his client would file an appeal, called the decision a "Pyrrhic victory."

"She's still in contempt and she's still on probation," Courtney said.

The teen, who lives in Danbury, refused to testify earlier this month in the second-degree sexual assault trial of a bus driver she said was her lover. McDonald put the girl in juvenile detention for a brief period and then sentenced her for criminal contempt of court for her refusal. The driver later was acquitted. The girl turned 16 on Thursday.

Robert M. Axelrod, a Meriden lawyer and chairman of the Connecticut Bar Association's criminal justice section, said the case has "huge ramifications."

"If a child can be penalized for failing to testify, there may be a chilling effect on other children," Axelrod said.

Axelrod, who said it could become much more difficult to get at the truth if children can be held in contempt for failing to testify, said this is an important "children's issue."

"If they can be held in contempt at 15, can they be held in contempt at 5 or 9?" he said. "The possibilities are very worrisome."

Axelrod has appointed a sub-committee of the association to look into the issue.

Robin Anthony, director of the Rape Crisis Service in the Women's Center in Danbury, said Friday's decision will "have a negative impact on future victims."

Drug suspect seeks jury trial

HARTFORD — One of four men arrested last week in an alleged drug trafficking network has pleaded innocent to the charges and requested a jury trial.

Charles M. Kehoe of Hartford, was arrested along with three other men including Hartford lawyer and former U.S. attorney Paul Sherbacow, entered his plea Thursday and requested a jury trial on charges of possession of cocaine with intent to sell; possession of marijuana with intent to sell; possession of cocaine; possession of marijuana, and possession of a controlled substance.

Sherbacow was charged with possession of cocaine and is scheduled to appear Dec. 30 in Enfield Superior Court.

Also arrested in Florida were Thomas Cardillo, 37, of Wethersfield and Spring Hill, Fla., and John Novitsky, 31, of Clinton and Spring Hill, Fla.

Top cop moves after allegations

NEW HAVEN — The city's highest-ranking uniformed police officer has been reassigned following reports that a federal grand jury and the FBI are investigating the department on drug-related allegations.

Patrol Cmdr. Richard Fiorillo was assigned to administrative duties in the department's inspection services unit Thursday, Chief William Farrell said.

Farrell said he transferred Fiorillo "for the good of the department." The head of the department's detective division, Cmdr. John Maher, was temporarily put in charge of uniformed officers.

Fiorillo's lawyer, Ira Grudberg, said earlier this week that he had advised Fiorillo not to testify before the grand jury, which the Jackson Newspapers reported was investigating allegations that evidence from drug cases was missing.

Norelco to replace rechargers

STAMFORD — Norelco has offered to replace more than 500,000 recharging stands it made for two types of electric shavers because a possible assembly error may cause minor shock or overheating of power cords, the company said Friday.

The company said people who have new Norelco shaver models HP1337 or HP1323 should return the recharging stand unused to Norelco. Norelco will replace the stand and refund the postage, the company said in a statement.

Controversial labor issues head for General Assembly

HARTFORD (AP) — Three controversial labor bills — advance notice for plant closings, limiting heart and hypertension benefits for police and firefighters, and raising the minimum wage — will come before the General Assembly next year.

Barry Williams, secretary-treasurer of the Connecticut State Labor Council, AFL-CIO, said Friday that 1987 may finally be the year that Connecticut requires companies to give six months' or a year's notice before closing a plant or making a major layoff.

"A company doesn't just decide to move out of the state a month beforehand," he said. "It takes at least a year of planning."

"This is not just a good idea for workers, but for the communities as well," Williams said. "If we can get six months' notice, the workers get the training they need and the community will have a better chance to rebound."

He said a couple of twists have been added this year: his organization would like to have companies moving out that have received tax incentives from a town or the state repay any savings received with interest. In addition, he said, workers should have the right of first refusal if the plant is put up for sale.

Williams estimated that 30,000 Connecticut workers lost their jobs in 1985 because of plant closings.

The Connecticut Business and Industry Association, the state's largest business lobby, said this week that it would fight any plant closing measure. The CBIA calls it the "industrial hostage" bill and claims that it would seriously damage the state's ability to attract new business.

The CBIA has put together a voluntary code for use by its 6,000 member companies when a plant is closed or a layoff is planned.

Gov. William A. O'Neill has consistently opposed plant-closing legislation, although he has not said whether he is open to change in 1987.

The heart-and-hypertension bill is another that has been around for years. If a police officer or firefighter develops a heart problem or hypertension, the law presumes it is a result of stress on the job and towns must pay benefits.

The Connecticut Conference of Municipalities plans to try again in 1987 to get the law changed so that a town could present evidence that the ailment was not job-related but due to something like heavy smoking or being overweight. This "rebuttable presumption" approach has failed in the General Assembly in the past.

Williams says he sees no reason why it should succeed in 1987.

Two years ago, the issue "got a full airing" and lawmakers on both sides of the aisle recalled major changes, Williams recalled.

Another key labor bill next year will be one raising the minimum wage to $4.50 and hour, up from the current $3.37.

CL&P says power back after storm

By The Associated Press

Connecticut Light & Power Co. said it restored power to 7,800 customers who lost electricity early Friday when high winds blew trees onto power lines around the state.

Power company spokesman Jeff Kotkin said about 2,800 customers in areas around the state had been restored to service by noon and most of the remaining outages — concentrated in the Stamford-Darien area — were back in service by about 3 p.m.

Kotkin said the utility received reported wind gusts of 50 mph in Madison where more than 1,000 customers were without power before 8 a.m. The National Weather Service reported gusts of 35 mph in Hartford and Bridgeport.

Kotkin said there were 25 or 30 separate problems across the state caused by high winds following a storm Thursday and Friday that dumped up nearly 2 inches of rain in central and eastern Connecticut and about 2 1/4 inches of snow in the western portions.

Sniper stalks streets, dampening yule spirits

NORTH SMITHFIELD, R.I. (AP) — In the quiet neighborhoods of northwest Rhode Island, where quaint wooden homes sit surrounded by trees, the houses on Greenville Road tell a grim story.

Closed curtains and drawn blinds hide most of the Christmas trees, the colored lights visible around the edges of window frames the only reminder of the holiday at hand. The decorations are hidden at the request of police.

Five times in the past two weeks, shots have been fired into homes in North Smithfield and the neighboring towns of Cumberland and Bellingham, Mass. A truck driver was shot at as he drove through this town of about 10,000 people 15 miles from Providence.

A .22-caliber gun, most likely a rifle, was used in each of the shootings, the latest of which was Tuesday night.

Christmas decorations were visible from the street at all five homes, and one man was decorating his tree when he was grazed by a bullet. Some investigators believe hatred of the holidays is motivating the sniper, and have asked residents to keep their living rooms out of the view of passers-by.

Whatever the motive, the apparently random attacks have dampened holiday spirits in the largely rural communities.

"This is supposed to be the happiest time of the year, but everyone seems very depressed," said Cumberland Police Chief John J. Partington.

"No one will leave their home because they don't want to leave their wife, husband or children alone," he said. "It's depressing. And it's frightening. This guy is trying to kill people."

"I wish I could convince everybody to just go about enjoying Christmas, that we'll get this guy, but it isn't that easy."

Customers in restaurants are hesitant to sit near windows.

"We've always had the blinds on those windows open before, but now we've got them closed," said Rachael Narodowy, manager of the Village Haven restaurant in North Smithfield.

Beverly A. Holt, who has lived here for 30 years, can't block the view of her tree. She has no drapes.

"The night before last I was very apprehensive because I was home alone," she said Friday. "I just kept the lights out and moved around in the dark. I certainly will be very happy when he's caught."

Dr. William Malamud, a psychiatry professor at Boston University School of Medicine, said the sniper likely is a lonely, bitter person who shuns relationships and resents people enjoying life.

"This person could be chronically unhappy, hating holidays and parties. If all that anger is directed, it can be explosive," Malamud said in a telephone interview.

Police have few leads, and say there is no connection between the targets of the attacks, one of whom remains hospitalized with a neck wound. None of the others was seriously injured.

Two men and a boy were arrested Wednesday for allegedly firing guns in a wood, but police don't think the three are responsible for the attacks. Nevertheless, .22-caliber bullets seized from them have been sent to the FBI for comparison to bullet fragments collected by investigators.

Artificial heart implants: Are we entitled to know?

PITTSBURGH (AP) — When surgeons in Texas implanted an artificial heart two months ago in a dying man, only a select group learned of the operation, sparking debate over whether use of artificial hearts always should be made public.

Although the doctors who performed the Oct. 13 implant say they have a right to decide when and where to release their findings, others argue that the public, at least when it comes to artificial hearts, is entitled to know immediately.

"There's a need for the public to have some sort of information about how public funds are being used in medical research. It's our money," said Dr. John Watson, chief of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute's devices and technology branch.

"The degree of interaction is something else again," he said Thursday. "Should the public go to visit the patient? Should they be reported on every day, on every newscast, or should they be reported on periodically? I don't know the answer to that."

Surgeons at the Texas Heart Institute in Houston were simply interested in saving a life when they implanted a Jarvik-70, a scaled-down version of the Jarvik-7 artificial heart, into a dying 48-year-old man.

It was only the second time the mechanical pump had been used at the institute as a bridge to transplantation. The first implant was performed on Feb. 3 amid publicity, on Harris Kent. The 41-year-old retired Army major from El Paso, Texas, went on to receive a human heart and remains hospitalized.

"We don't consider it an unusual event," said Dr. O. Howard Frazier, who performed both implants along with Dr. Denton A. Cooley.

"Any research program, any study you do, any treatment with terminal illness is confidential and not scientifically reported until there is something of consequence," Frazier said in an interview Wednesday after being questioned about the second procedure.

Because of liver failure, the second patient was too ill following implant surgery to be considered for transplantation, Frazier said. He died Oct. 17.

"The hope was that with the pump the liver would improve, but it didn't," he said. "We didn't have a chance."

The implant was reported immediately to Symbion Inc., which manufactures the Jarvik heart. Also notified was the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, which had granted permission to the hospital to implant the experimental device.

Otherwise, few knew what happened. "I didn't know there was an implant," Texas Heart Institute spokeswoman Patti Jamison said when questioned this week.

Dr. Don Olsen of the University of Utah said he has no quarrel with the surgeons' decision, the first known instance in which a U.S. hospital has failed on its own to publicly divulge an artificial heart implant.

Olsen, in fact, originally had suggested that Barney Clark's permanent artificial heart implant, the first in the world, be kept a secret until 24 hours after it occurred and that the patient's identity be withheld.

"It was pointed out to me that such possibilities were out of the question," he said. "But I'm glad now that every patient who receives an artificial heart is not on the menu for the evening news."

Fifty-one artificial hearts have been implanted in seven countries since the procedure was first performed by Cooley in 1969, according to Olsen, who keeps a world registry. Thirty-nine have been performed this year alone.

People with problems write to the Christ Child

CHRISTKINDL, Austria (AP) — Each Christmas season, thousands of people from all over the world pour out their hearts to the postmaster of this remote hamlet named for the Christ Child.

Most of the mail comes from children, but adults also write, some of them telling of problems such as ill health or lack of money.

The content varies, but the address is always the same: Christ Child. The letters started arriving 36 years ago, when a post office was set up next to a baroque church to do business over the Christmas season. The post office, with a staff of 22, is the only one in Christkindl, which has only a couple hundred residents.

Postal officials say the original idea was to give Austrians a chance to send Christmas letters with a special Christ Child postmark.

About 42,000 letters cleared the post office in the first year. Last year more than a million were processed between Nov. 28 and Jan. 6. The letters now come from as far away as Mexico and Australia, the bulk of them from people seeking the postmark along with a special stamp. Others, containing a wish or other personal information, amount to less than 10 percent of the total.

But those are the most remarkable ones, particularly letters from adults in trouble, said postmaster Alfred Wallner.

"Dear Christ Child," wrote a Vienna man on Dec. 2. "My wish for Christmas is to be able to earn a bit more money in an honest fashion so that I can offer my new family a nice home. "We have already sold everything we can to be able to buy our son something. It is not at all easy to remain honest, but I have the firm desire to make it in an honest way."

A West German suffering from hearing loss said in his letter:

"Because Christ Child is at a place of pilgrimage, I would like to ask for a prayer and a consecrated cross to help me get over my illness. Light a candle for me."

Hasenus home for Christmas

MARINETTE, Wis. — Freed gunrunner Eugene Hasenus shopped for a Christmas tree Friday, his first day back home after two months in a Nicaraguan prison.

Hasenus arrived home late Thursday to embraces from his children and congratulations from relatives and friends but kept silent about his activities in Nicaragua. He said the FBI had told him not to discuss the incidents related to his capture, trial and release.

The 45-year-old former Marine was captured by Nicaraguan soldiers Oct. 6, the day after his plane was shot down on a mission to supply rebel Contra forces. Hasenus was tried before a three-member People's Tribunal and sentenced to 30 years for terrorism and other crimes. After spending more than two months in jail, he was pardoned Wednesday by Nicaragua's National Assembly and released.

Sakharovs freed by Gorbachev

NEWTON, Mass. — Dissidents Andrei Sakharov and his wife, Yelena Bonner, learned directly from Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev that they were being freed from internal exile, their relatives said Friday.

Gorbachev told the Sakharovs the news in a telephone call just one day after they were permitted to have a telephone installed in their Gorky apartment, said Tatiana Yankelevich, Mrs. Bonner's daughter.

Calm returns after Soviet riots

MOSCOW — The government said Friday that calm had returned to Alma Ata, the Kazakhstani capital where a demonstration by several hundred students led to riots this week.

The trouble began late Wednesday after Dinmukhamed Kunayev, a Kazakh who led the republic's Communist Party for a generation, was retired and replaced by a Russian, Gennady Kolbin.

Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir F. Petrovsky told a news conference Friday that "hooligan elements" were responsible for violence that followed the student demonstration.

Kremlin may delay nuke tests

WASHINGTON — Soviet Ambassador Yuri Dubinin said Friday the Kremlin is prepared to delay a resumption of nuclear weapons tests and to consider a step-by-step ban if the Reagan administration will start negotiations on a test ban by Jan. 1.

At a news conference, Dubinin said his the moratorium imposed by Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev in August 1985 carried certain risks to the Soviet Union's national security that could not be endured any longer.

'Star Wars' may upset partners

WASHINGTON — In a policy reversal likely to upset America's European, Japanese and Canadian partners in the space station, the Defense Department has decided it may want to use the $8 billion facility for "Star Wars" research after all.

In soliciting participation by other countries in the station the last two years, NASA and State Department officials have played down military uses and stressed its operation as a research laboratory for government and industry. In congressional hearings, Defense Department witnesses have disavowed any interest in using the station.

'Loneliest woman in America' dies

KNIFE LAKE, Minn. (AP) — Dorothy Molter, the last permanent resident of a million-acre wilderness in northern Minnesota who was once called the "loneliest woman in America," has died at 79.

Ms. Molter was found dead Thursday in the log cabin she'd lived in for 56 years in the Boundary Waters Canoe Area. Officials said she apparently died of natural causes.

Her remote, hardy existence attracted many journalists and, in 1952, the Saturday Evening Post called her "The Loneliest Woman in America."

However, some years as many as 6,500 visitors signed the guest book in her cabin, and she told a reporter in 1984, "I've never been lonely in my life."

Ms. Molter was known to many visitors as the "Root Beer Lady" because she would sell homemade root beer to the summer canoeists who stopped by her cabin on Isle of Pines. In the winter, snowmobilers would stop to visit her.

At one time, she routinely snowshoed through the forest or paddled her canoe 30 miles across the area's lakes to Ely to buy supplies and pick up her mail.

Several years ago the U.S. Forest Service installed a radio in her cabin, allowing her to call the agency's offices in Ely. She had failed to call for several days this week, and a Forest Service airplane was sent Thursday. Rangers found her body in the cabin.

Her body was flown to Ely, where funeral arrangements were pending.

"Dorothy has always been a treasure to the Forest Service and, really, to the wilderness," said Larry Gadt, deputy supervisor of the Superior National Forest. "She was a part of the past, one of those wonderful people who for so long contributed so much to the BWCA and its visitors."

Ms. Molter, who grew up in the Chicago area, graduated from a Chicago nursing school. She first came to Knife Lake in June 1930, when she was 23, to fish with her parents. They stayed at a small resort owned by Bill Berglund.

Ms. Molter had been unable to find a job as a nurse in Depression-era Chicago so she agreed to stay on to help Berglund.

"I figured, heck, it beats sitting by the phone at home. It was a real adventure for a young woman," she said in a 1980 interview.

When Berglund died in 1948, he willed the three islands to Ms. Molter, and she stayed on alone.

Although the million acres that now make up the Boundary Waters had many cabins and resorts when Molter arrived there, the Forest Service gradually acquired and razed those structures.

Miami family buried wrong body

MIAMI (AP) — The family of Raul Reina gathered 100 people at a funeral and spent $5,000 to bury their relative only to find out they had mourned the wrong man.

Dade Medical Examiner Joseph Davis called Reina's wife, Filomena, on Thursday to tell her the man the family buried was not her husband, who was still at the coroner's facilities. The body released to Reina's family was apparently a man whose corpse had been unclaimed for a month.

"We went through all the pain and everything all over the wrong body and now we have to go through it again," said the dead man's sister-in-law, Vivian DiMartino.

The family had suspected something was wrong at the funeral home Tuesday night when the visitation was delayed because employees were having a hard time embalming the decomposing body.

Antoinetta Setaro, a cousin, also said the body looked too dark. But the family thought the problems might have had something to do with his cause of death, a drug overdose Monday night.

The error was discovered after the medical examiner's office realized the month-old corpse had disappeared, Davis said. The mixup probably occurred because someone misread an identifying tag, he said.

Coventry board halts school plan

By Jacqueline Bennett
Herald Correspondent

COVENTRY — The Board of Education has put the brakes on a proposal to realign the town's two elementary schools. School Superintendent Nathan Chesler said this week.

"We are geared to get all the information from all the committees," Chesler said Friday. "Once we have all the findings, we will make a decision."

The plan calls for holding kindergarten through Grade 2 classes at Coventry Grammar School and placing students in Grades 3 and 4 at Robertson. Special-education classes would continue at both schools, which currently have all five grade levels.

Chesler said that during a meeting Thursday night, members of the Board of Education listened to a report from the District Realignment Committee, which is co-chaired by Lawrence Mickel and Patricia Watson. Following criticism by about 150 parents who attended PTO meetings in November, Mickel advised forming five subcommittees to further study the project.

Those committees include transportation, growth, other towns, educational impact and communications. Members are parents, school staff and board members.

A public hearing set for January was canceled, Chesler said, and will be rescheduled when the board has the information to answer questions raised by the parents in November.

At that time, parents voiced concerns over long bus rides, educational validity and success of similar plans in other towns, and the accommodation for growth. Another issue is the quality of education at the two schools. Some parents believe that Coventry Grammar School offers more and has a better academic reputation.

Robertson School Principal Clarence Edmonson has called that an old myth that grew out of the rivalry between North and South Coventry when the two ends of town attended different high schools. That was before Coventry High School was built in the early 1960s, he said.

Consumer prices up modest 0.3 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose a modest 0.3 percent in November, with increases in food and automobile costs offsetting slightly lower energy prices, the government reported Friday.

With 11 months now in for 1986, analysts said it appears that inflation for the full year will end up at or slightly under 1.3 percent, which would be the lowest annual rate in 22 years.

But that low figure is due almost entirely to the plunge in world oil prices early this year.

Both government and private analysts are predicting that inflation will heat up in 1987 to about 4 percent — roughly the pace that prevailed before world oil prices tumbled earlier this year.

The November increase in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index followed a 0.2 percent rise in October and translated into an annual inflation rate of 3.3 percent.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said that, "as 1986 comes to a close, it will be remembered as a year when inflation rose at a slower rate than in any year since 1964."

"With personal income rising steadily and inflation held in check, American workers are seeing higher earnings buying more goods and services," he said.

In 1964, consumer prices increased a meager 1.2 percent. By contrast, prices rose 3.8 percent in 1985 and 4 percent in 1984.

For the first 11 months of 1986, prices have increased at an annual rate of 0.9 percent. Analysts said they expect December prices to show the same modest increase that occurred in November, pulling up the full year figure by several tenths of a percentage point.

"Rising prices will erase some of the increased purchasing power that consumers received from the collapse in oil prices," said Sandra Shaber, an economist at Chase Econometrics. "But even if inflation returns to the 3.5 percent to 4 percent level next year, that is certainly not bad."

Stacy Hoffman, an analyst with the Economic Forecasting Center at Georgia State University, said inflation next year will average a shade over 4 percent. "We are looking at a slightly higher rate, maybe 5 percent, if oil prices firm up," he said.

In another report Friday, the Labor Department said Americans' average weekly earnings rose 0.8 percent in November after adjusting for inflation, the best performance in eight months. The increase, which put earnings 1.3 percent ahead of where they were a year ago, came from a rise in average hourly earnings.

Business in Brief

Coleco moves game operations

HOLBROOK, N.Y. — Coleco Industries will move the operations where its Trivial Pursuit and Scrabble games are manufactured from Long Island to existing upstate New York plants to reduce its overhead, the company said Friday.

The board games are manufactured by Selchow and Righter, which Coleco purchased earlier this year for $75 million. A plant and an office employing 100 people are to be shut down by the end of the first quarter of 1987, according to Barbara Wruck, a spokeswoman for the West Hartford, Conn.-based Coleco.

The properties have been put up for sale and the employees have been offered transfers, she said. Coleco has manufacturing and packaging facilities in the upstate communities of Amsterdam, Mayfield and Gloversville, where products including its Cabbage Patch Kids and Wrinkles toys are handled.

Business women elect five

Five women were elected officers of the American Business Women's Association during a recent meeting at the Manchester Country Club. Grace Lyons was elected president; Mary Leduc, vice president; Sue Ferguson, recording secretary; Helen Litwin, treasurer; and Kathleen Kaminsky, corresponding secretary.

The American Business Women's Association is a nonprofit organization. Its main purpose is to raise scholarship funds that are awarded each year at the May meeting. Last year's four scholarships were awarded to area students.

Investors buy town warehouse

Prudential Realty Group, a division of the Prudential Life Insurance Co., has sold a warehouse in the Manchester Industrial Park to Oryx Inc., a Connecticut-based company owned by foreign investors.

The 150,000-square-foot building was sold for $3.8 million and was completed earlier this fall.

In the deal, Oryx agreed to become landlord of the building, which is leased by Pratt & Whitney Aircraft for storage of airplane engines and parts.

Carbide unit sale complete

INSTITUTE, W.Va. — Union Carbide Corp. on Friday completed the sale of its agricultural products unit, a division outpaced by bigger competition and reeling from a series of poison gas leaks in the last two years.

The $575 million cash deal with Rhone-Poulenc Inc., providing Carbide money to help pay for its defense of an unsuccessful takeover bid, includes equipment, products and 3,000 employees. All of Carbide's agricultural products plants worldwide were sold, except for the plant at Bhopal, India — the site of the world's worst industrial disaster.

Big Board has busiest day ever

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rallied Friday as the quarterly "triple witching hour" unleashed a torrent of trading late in the session that gave the New York Stock Exchange its busiest day ever.

The exchange said 244.68 million shares changed hands, more than 100 million of them in the last 30 minutes. The previous record of 240.49 million shares was set Sept. 12.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, the market's best-known indicator, jumped from a 1.12-point deficit a half-hour before the close to end the day up 16.03 at 1,928.85.

Stocks rising in price led falling issues by 5 to 2 on the NYSE.

The "triple witching hour" refers to the four times a year when a series of stock-index futures, stock-index options and options on individual stocks trade for the last time.

On some occasions in the past, the "witching hour" has been marked by wide swings in stock prices as professional traders engaged in computerized trading programs close out a variety of positions held in various securities.

Benjamin Franklin demonstrated the relationship between lightning and electricity in 1752 when he flew a kite in a storm in Philadelphia.

Compromise best course on smoking

With the release this week of a report by the surgeon general documenting a link between tobacco smoke in the environment and lung cancer in non-smokers, smokers are certain to face renewed calls for strict curbs on when and where they may practice their habit.

Citing several studies that showed non-smokers may face health risks from second-hand smoke, or "passive" smoking, U.S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop called on employers to establish smoke-free workplaces.

"If this evidence were available on another environmental pollutant, other than environmental tobacco smoke, we would have acted long ago," Koop said.

In Connecticut, several lawmakers have already begun drafting bills that would restrict the sale and use of tobacco products.

While Koop's stated goal of a smoke-free America by the year 2000 is a healthy one, it is also almost certainly impossible to achieve. Some people, regardless of the amount of evidence on the deleterious effects of smoking or the number of regulations in the workplace, will be unwilling to give up cigarettes, pipes or cigars — and that choice is perfectly within their rights.

Readily available substances that pose health risks are too common to list. Yet no lawmaker is rushing to draft a bill that would restrict a person's ability to consume large quantities of alcohol, salt or aspirin, in part because their consumption does not harm non-users.

Smoking poses a more difficult situation. The issue has the potential to cause hard feelings and needlessly divide employees and the public at large unless it is handled with care.

Employers should be encouraged to discuss the issue with their workers and to negotiate workplace arrangements that can reasonably be expected to accommodate both smoking and non-smoking employees.

At the same time, those who would like to see smoking become a thing of the past ought to accept reality and direct their efforts toward making sure that non-smokers do not have to unwillingly breathe the smoke of others.

Despite the dramatic conclusions of the surgeon general's report, lawmakers should avoid the temptation to bombard the issue with legislation.

Underregulation is a far better alternative than hasty overregulation.

Reagan needs lie-detector test

By Chuck Stone

The crisis that continues to bedevil national amity in this season of good will is not hair-splitting over legalities in the Iran-contras arms-for-hostages deal, but whether the president is telling the truth.

President Reagan's confession of "mistakes" doesn't absolve him of guilt, but it does reveal a human fragility that eluded Richard Nixon. In the long run, an admission of vulnerability may save Reagan from an orgy of presidential bloodletting that Nixon's arrogant duplicity inspired.

Nonetheless a Niagara of polls continues to wash away Reagan's credibility.

It's difficult to believe that only four months ago Americans were kissing Reagan's ring. "Why is this man so popular?" gushed Time magazine in a July 7 cover story.

"What Managers Can Learn From Manager Reagan," a headline read for the cover story of the Sept. 15 issue of Fortune (the business member of Time's corporate family).

For a history-shaking exercise in political education, read those reportorial con jobs. If you can do so without retching, "You're a better man than I am, Gunga Din."

"RONALD REAGAN has a genius for American occasions," fawned Time. "He is the Prospero of American memories, a magician who carries a bright, ideal America like a hologram in his mind and projects its image in the air."

Fortune practically established him as the model CEO incarnate. "Surround yourself with the best people you can find, delegate authority and don't interfere," Fortune quoted Reagan. "When I've heard all I need to make a decision, I don't take a vote. I make a decision."

Two months after he dispensed his managerial wisdom in the pages of Fortune, Americans are painfully split over its merits.

Republicans tend to give him the benefit of the doubt. Democrats are convinced he's lying.

Outgoing Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill has ruled out any born-again credibility.

"... I honestly believe the president knew," O'Neill told an interviewer. (If we can have any faith in the president's managerial style as outlined in Fortune magazine, he did indeed know.)

O'Neill then went on to cite a series of interviews with generals, colonels and lieutenant colonels. He asked them if they could conceive of Lt. Col. Oliver North "accomplishing this by himself." "They laughed," O'Neill said.

AMERICA IS EITHER laughing or agonizing.

This divisive denigration of the presidency must not endure.

President Reagan has an obligation to put suspicion and mistrust to rest, prove he's telling the truth or admit he lied.

Only one fail-safe method can restore Reagan's credibility. A polygraph test.

There's ample precedent for public officials. Besides, it's the president who established the "Caesar's wife must be above suspicion" standard for his administration with the issuance on Sept. 15 of executive order No. 12564. It requires that federal employees holding sensitive positions submit to urine tests designed to detect drug use.

Let the president confront the worst crisis in his presidency by setting a personal example of probity. Take the polygraph test.

"If this machine says a man lied, he lied," boasted former Philadelphia Mayor Frank L. Rizzo on Aug. 14, 1973, just before he flunked a lie detector test.

One prominent Washingtonian — who requested anonymity — wryly observed: "Reagan is such a good actor. He's probably the only person in the world who could lie and the polygraph wouldn't know the difference."

Vietnamese crime gangs go Down Under

WASHINGTON — The export of criminal techniques from Australia to the United States began in Gold Rush days, when the "Sydney Ducks" were running wild on San Francisco's Barbary Coast. The favor was returned in recent years as motorcycle gangs modeled after the Pagans and Hell's Angels have spread death and drugs across the Australian states.

Now we've learned that Vietnamese gangs similar to those operating in U.S. cities have been infiltrating the underworld Down Under. Details of their operations are contained in an internal report prepared by police officials in Victoria, the populous state on the southeast corner of Australia. Our associate Donald Goldberg has a copy of the report.

The problem has caused growing concern among Australian authorities. There are 86,000 Vietnamese in the country now, and 80,000 more waiting to immigrate.

The report — based on a police investigation called "Operation Bao Ve" (loosely translated as extortion) — describes Vietnamese gang activities dating back to 1982. The first major incident occurred in the summer of that year, when a hotel manager was stabbed by gang members trying to kidnap two sisters from their room.

The record over the next few years included hit-and-run shootings, armed robberies and assassinations. By 1985, it was clear that many local merchants were paying extortion to finance arrested gang members' costly legal fees.

The authorities' first big break came in August of last year, when a courageous Vietnamese shopkeeper told police that gangsters were demanding protection money from her. That opened the floodgates, and other merchants began to come forward.

Two suspects were soon in custody, charged with blackmail, armed robbery and other crimes. But potential witnesses were threatened with retribution if they testified; shop windows were smashed and other acts of intimidation discouraged the witnesses.

Eventually, the police were able to identify three main Vietnamese gangs and their splinter groups in eastern Australia. One piece of information was particularly alarming: Four Vietnamese men tried to purchase military uniforms and insignia. When asked what the material would be used for, one gang member replied that it was for the operation of a training camp.

Investigations thus far have brought to light a definite and identifiable hierarchy or structure within these individual gangs and also between the gangs," the Victoria report states. "The more senior a gang member becomes, the less actual direct involvement with gang activities occurs."

In a typical operation, teenage gang members of 15 or 16 actually threaten shopkeepers, while their older colleagues wait nearby to add weight to the intimidation. The younger gang members also vandalize stores of uncooperative merchants.

"It is apparent, however," the report continues, "that the offenses involving physical violence, i.e. murder and serious assaults, are performed by the more senior members. The reason for this is to maintain a high level of personal esteem with their followers."

The report sums up the situation this way: "It can be seen from the history of the Vietnamese gangs in Victoria and their associated involvement in criminal activities, coupled with a reluctance of victims to cooperate with authorities, that the task of policing these gangs is an extremely daunting one. The problems we are currently facing are language and culture, similar to those in America."

Chipping away

U.S. makers of the newest type of personal computer chip — the 80386 — will have a much bigger world market if, as expected, Congress approves new export regulations governing the sale of technology, according to a recent issue of "Infoworld."

The 80386, which is expected to become the new standard in personal computer chips, has a performance level that is too high for export to any but our NATO allies. It has such a high performance measure that it can't be sold to about 70 other "free world" countries, which are limited to lower capacity chips. The new regulations would raise the permissible performance level for exports to those countries.

The intent of restricting export of high-performance computer chips is to keep them from finding their way to Soviet Bloc countries. Because of the new regulations, our sources say, the super-chips sold to the 70 countries — or even to the NATO allies — might eventually end up in Moscow.

Watch on waste:

Did the Air Force use the University of Maryland as a cloud cover from which to shoot down the government's $240-a-day limit on contract employees? Rep. Robert Mrazek, D-N.Y., suspected as much when he learned that computer experts were getting $1,000 a day for Star Wars research done for the Air Force at the university. He asked the comptroller general to take a look.

But the comptroller general ruled that the Air Force didn't break the law, because the computer experts were technically being employed by the university, which had a contact with the Air Force. The comptroller general's decision did question the Air Force's use of the university as a front to "procure the use of experts of consultants."

In addition to their $1,000 a day, the computer experts also drew travel expenses.

Madden's name belongs on field

To the Editor:

We are fast approaching the anniversary of the death of Police Capt. William F. Madden. On a cold January night Capt. Madden and a subordinate police officer were carefully making the rounds of the Cheney silk mill factory complex, for earlier that day a tip had been phoned into the administrative offices that a robbery was scheduled to take place.

A group of men (the count has been set at four or five) was spotted at Elm Terrace, which is located on the northern end of the industrial site and near the vaults that housed the expensive silk stock. Capt. Madden ordered the men into their vehicle and while standing on the running board of the driver's side he told the suspects to drive down to the firehouse at Pine Street and Hartford Road. Meanwhile the other police officer stood on the opposite running board.

As the vehicle approached the corner of Pine and Pleasant streets a shot rang out in the cold night air and struck Captain Madden. Though severely injured he managed to hang on until the next block, Pine and Forest, where he fell from the moving vehicle and there expired while doing his duty. The murderers were apprehended some time later and brought to trial for their cowardly deed.

Bill Madden has given to Manchester more than any other single citizen. He was a military veteran, a high school athlete who later won national acclaim while a student at Trinity for his outstanding feats in sports. He was voted Trinity's finest athlete by a wide margin. Bill Madden was also a professional boxer and wrestler. There has never been a greater athlete or hero in Manchester than Police Capt. Madden.

It is reprehensible that a sports field is not named after him. The Recreation Commission and Board of Directors should work together to make known the fact that we in Manchester appreciate the many sacrifices of Police Capt. Madden and the many honors that he brought to the town of Manchester.

The young people of Manchester do not need professional athletes with their soda as role models; they don't have to scour the history books for a military hero; they do not need Greek mythology with its heroes who gave their lives for nation and principles. The young people of Manchester have all of that in Police Capt. William F. Madden — Spanish-American War veteran; Trinity College scholar and wrestling star, and finally, the heroic policeman who gave his life in the line of duty. To not name a sports field after this gentleman is a sin.

Film Capsules

Jumpin' Jack Flash (R) — Whoopi Goldberg, Stephen Collins, John Wood, Carol Kane. (Comedy-Adventure) Whoopi Goldberg plays a lonely and bored transactions clerk who starts getting strange messages on her computer terminal — and suddenly finds herself in the middle of an international spy plot. Goldberg has a wonderfully expressive face, and she is ably assisted by Stephen Collins and Carol Kane, among others. This one won't start anyone pondering the meaning of life or the nature of the universe, but it is good diverting fun. Grade: B.

The Name of the Rose (R) — Sean Connery, F. Murray Abraham, Christian Slater. (Mystery) How do you adapt a 200,000-word mystery novel set in a 14th century cloister? Surprisingly, Umberto Eco's best-seller, directed by Jean-Jacques Annaud ("Quest for Fire") makes the transition with style and wit. Connery has his best role in years as monk-turned-sleuth William of Baskerville, and Abraham relishes his role as Grand Inquisitor. This wholly original film deserves to be seen. But the screenplay is taxing; pay attention to the action to reap the benefits. Grade: B.

Peggy Sue Got Married (PG-13) — Kathleen Turner, Nicholas Cage, Barry Miller, Catherine Hicks, Joan Allen, Kevin J. O'Connor. (Comedy) Turner goes to her 25th high-school reunion, faints and is thrust back to the time just before her graduation. "Back to the Future — Part II"? Hardly. Director Francis Coppola has crafted — at least for the first hour — a charming and engaging set of circumstances that explore the traumas of unresolved relationships. But Coppola loses control halfway through, and an outrageous scene involving mysticism and a weepy conclusion destroy the mood. Grade: B-minus.

The Color of Money (R) — Paul Newman, Tom Cruise, Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio. (Drama) "Two brothers and a stranger" is a hustler that Fast Eddie Felson teaches his pool protege Vince. Unfortunately, the audience is the stranger who gets taken. You expect the cool Newman and untamed Cruise to put on a good show, but they founder in disjointed subplots — unresolved sexual tension between Felson and Vince's girlfriend; threatened revenge from Felson's spurned pool shark. Meanwhile, director Martin Scorsese, with grandiose close-ups and glossy imagery, makes nine-ball the real star. Biggest con of the season. Grade: C.

Children of a Lesser God (R) — William Hurt, Marlee Matlin, Piper Laurie, Philip Bosco. (Drama) This Tony-award winning play makes the transition from stage to screen with dignity intact. Both Hurt and Matlin deserve Oscar nominations for their physically and emotionally draining roles as a teacher and student who fall passionately in love. Matlin is especially wonderful, and her transcendent beauty and unique expressiveness are inspirational. This is the first must-see fall film of 1986. Love does have a language all its own. Grade: A-minus.

Crocodile Dundee (PG-13) — Paul Hogan, Linda Kozlowski, Mark Blum. (Comedy) The leather-skinned Dundee, best known for his Australian tourism commercials, makes a likable leading man in this comedic travelogue. An attractive reporter (Kozlowski) meets Hogan in the Australian bush, takes him to New York City and falls in love with him. Yuks abound when the naive Dundee makes his way around the big city, and there is just enough action (crocodile killing, snake wrestling, fish spearing) to keep audiences from squirming at the silliness. This is light fall fare. Grade: B-minus.

Stand by Me (R) — Richard Dreyfuss, Wil Wheaton, River Phoenix, Corey Feldman, Jerry O'Connell. (Adventure-Drama) It's a shame Rob Reiner's latest film is rated R (for strong language), because those who stand to gain the most — the under-17 crowd — can't see it without parental supervision. The skeletal plot is based on Stephen King's autobiographical novella, "The Body." Four boys, living in the '60s, journey to find another boy's dead body. There is no horror, simply well-defined characters, liting comedy and one of the best studies of friendship and coming of age to hit the screen. The case is flawless, and Reiner has directed with a heartwarming sensitivity. Bring tissues! Grade: B-plus.

'Malcolm' is delightful fun

By Bob Thomas
The Associated Press

Cinema Review

Malcolm (Colin Friels) is so shy he can hardly speak to anyone, but he is an absolute whiz as an inventor.

He is fired by the transit company when he takes his homemade trolley for a pre-dawn spin on the company's tracks. Strapped for cash, he takes a boarder into his gadget-filled home. Frank (John Hargreaves) is an ex-con who is planning a bank robbery. Malcolm joins him, contributing robots to carry off the heist by remote control.

That's the premise of "Malcolm," a far-fetched, amoral but thoroughly delightful new comedy from Australia. It is the work of first-time producers, Nadia Tass and David Parker. He also wrote and photographed the film, and she directed it. There seems to be no limit to the amount of film talent emanating from down under.

Malcolm and Frank resemble Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid in modern Melbourne. Their accomplice is the lusty waitress Judith (Lindy Davies), who agrees with reluctance to join the caper.

She is convinced by Malcolm's inventive genius. Among his devices is a getaway car that splits in the middle so Malcolm and Frank can escape separately.

For the robbery itself, Malcolm has dreamed up a plan so complex it makes the jewel theft in "Topkapi" seem like a routine burglary. The heist is to be carried out by moving ashtrays equipped with TV cameras, gas bombs and guns. Such goings-on would seem bizarre and unbelievable except for the feathery touch of director Parker and the subtle playing by the actors.

Colin Friels, who resembles a blank-faced Alan Bates, captures all the ingenuous wonder of Malcolm. He delighted with the new friends who have brightened his solitary life, and he plans their heist with the innocence of building a model train. John Hargreaves' Frank is like a coiled spring; he is an actor with vast inner energy. Lindy Davies wonderfully rounds out the trio wonderfully, playing earth mother to the two delinquents.

"Malcolm" is loaded with surprises and delights, and at least two sequences can evoke uncontrollable laughter. You can't ask much more of a film nowadays.

Released by Vestron Pictures, "Malcolm" is rated PG-13, perhaps because of language, bed scenes and the theme that crime does pay. Running time: 90 minutes.

Gifts and donations flood in

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

By Nancy Carr MACC Director

Mittens, mufflers and megabots, transformers, turkeys and trucks, afghans and apples, shawls and slippers and every shade of sweater, bikes, books and blankets, bears, bedsocks and bedlam.

Gifts and donations are flooding in and MACC staff and volunteers are picking up, sorting through food and gifts, getting shopping lists together to fill in the giving gaps.

Love wore so many beautiful faces this week. Anna McCann and Leona Wescott, both in their 90s, knitting lap robes for other elderly. They are members of Brewer Circle of North United Methodist Church who brought in stacks of lovely vests, knee and leg warmers, scarves, shawls, slippers, shawls and lap robes.

Lynn Jacobs responding to our appeal for the elderly with bags of Avon products. The women of the FINE group standing outside grocery stores in cold weather collecting food and money for food.

The wonderful young people of Boy Scout Troop 7 (Bill Auden) and Girl Scout Troop 661 (Linda Warrander) helping get the toys sorted and ready.

Little Christmas stockings hanging on the walls at St. Bartholomew Church with an invitation to share with a neighbor on the back of the stocking "girl? boy? or "adult male, elderly" and a little too-headed boy standing beside his mother saying "I want to adopt somebody just my size."

Some of the good-as-new used toys are really lovely. A reminder to Manchester/Bolton low-income parents or guardians that they can pick up a gift for their children today until noon at St. Mary's Episcopal Church at the corner of Park and Church streets.

MACC News

Lutheran Church

Lutheran Church has been partially replenished. The student council spearheaded a drive that raised 1,000 cans and boxes of non-perishable food and the Vocational and Industrial Club of America collected another 1,000.

Still needed are peanut butter, canned meats, pasta and sauces, treats, candy and baked goods.

Non-perishable foods can be left at the collection centers - the town's Center Street fire station, the Eighth Utilities District fire station at 32 Main St., the Manchester Mall at 811 Main St. or Main Street offices of Heritage Savings and Loan.

The deadline for perishable foods (meats, milk, eggs) is 9 a.m. Tuesday at Concordia Lutheran Church, Pitkin Street. Fruits and vegetables and baked goods can be left Sunday and Monday.

All across town, mini-Christmas centers have been set up by churches and community groups who have "adopted" families and are preparing Christmas food baskets and gifts.

Among those adopting families is St. Bartholomew Church which has adopted a grand total of 50 families.

SPECIAL THANKS to the churches, individuals and groups who have adopted needy families for Christmas baskets. They include: East Catholic High School, Trinity Church, Second Congregational Church, North United Methodist Church, St. Mary's Church, Center Congregational Church, Concordia Lutheran Church, South United Methodist Church, Community Baptist Church, Assumption School and John Schwarz.

Also, Manchester Assembly of Rainbow, Mary Byon, Marie Garaventa, Eighth District Firehouse, Martin School PTA, Cigna Corporation, Debbie Duff, Salvation Army, Karen Chorbach, Buckley School PTA, J.C. Penney, Heritage Bank Employees Club, St. Ann's Mother's Circle, Updike, Kelly, Spellacy, anonymous.

MANY BEAUTIFUL GIFTS have arrived at MACC offices and the fire stations. Among the generous donors are Widows-Widowers Association Chapter 11 and CBT Mortgage ROTB of East Hartford.

Toys and food collections have been fruitful - gifts for elderly and money to pay for vouchers to families of special needs hot Christmas day meals and a gift for some 50 shut-ins.

But meats and fruit, gifts for all the "unadopted" households are still lagging behind. Contributions to MACC Seasonal Sharing can be mailed to Box 773, Manchester 06040.

THANK YOU for Seasonal Sharing donations:

THE BIBLE SPEAKS by Eugene Brewer

Recently, the question was posed in a study group: "Why is it that some people who are unfeeling 50 weeks out of the year become so pleasant two weeks before Christmas?" There may be several reasons for this - none of them justifying the contrast.

The mood of the season tends to subdue the tendency in some people to let their emotions run amuck. This demonstrates their ability to exercise self-restraint at all seasons, one of the Christian graces (2 Peter 1:5-7).

The spirit of good will generated by the season is not to be despised because it is short-lived. Indeed, efforts should be exerted to build upon it for the long-term. Perhaps one might ask the offensive person why he/she does not maintain the seasonal cordiality at all times. Properly worded and sincerely posed, this question just might give rise to some genuine reflection.

Admission to the museum is 50 cents for children and $1 for adults.

Poem of the month

Wit and Wisdom Writers Club selected June L. Mita as poet-of-the-month for December for her poem, "Trailblazing." She wrote the poem while thinking of her grandmother, who recently died. The club selected Dorene Sullivan of Vernon for second place for "Creative Frost." Both first and second place poems for each month contest will appear in the illustrated anthology the club plans to publish. The poet with the most poems will be the poet laureate of the area. Joseph Morin of Manchester won third place for "Come to the Stable." Mita lives in Tolland and writes with the name Julya S. Pride. This is her prize-winning poem:

Trailblazing

Snowshoe shod,
A muffled coverlet I tread,
Before me, an unmade trail
Needs breaking.
Stinging latticework
Leave wet lashes
On frozen cheeks,
To turn me back,
To leave unwrinkled
The snowy cloak.
In an apple-misted glade
Another trail crosses
Where I wish to go,
Tempting me to penetrate no farther,
Tempting me to walk easily
Where someone else has led.
Of where I passed
Lay each individual print
Melting into a single line,
Flowing ahead or back,
Discovery or loss.
Our paths diverge,
I forge beyond.
A wall of stone then blocks the way,
Secured beneath the darkness of white.
On the other side there leads a trail
Into the comforting wood,
Downwind, a wooden gate,
Slightly ajar,
Creaks its welcoming sigh.
Through it I walk
To follow the trail.
I know where this one ends,
Looking back to where I trod,
No prints are left behind,
Just a trail to discover,
A trail which needs breaking.

Man drops ladies who show up in pants

DEAR ABBY: I do not enjoy looking at women who wear pants — especially the polyester kind. I am an old-fashioned man, who wants to be able to tell the difference between men and women, front or back. Men are not allowed to dress like women in public, but women are allowed to dress like men. This is unfair.

In the first place, very few women look good in pants — and the ones who look the worst in them are the ones who insist on wearing them.

When I date a woman who shows up in slacks, I would not embarrass her by asking her to change. After all, she dresses to please herself, and I have no right to tell her to change to suit me, so I just do not ask her out again. No explanation necessary.

Perhaps other readers also have feelings that should be aired. And how do you feel about it?

AL IN SANTA BARBARA

DEAR AL: You're being both foolish and unfair for summarily writing a woman off without telling her the reason is because she showed up in pants on the first date!

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

A quality woman would appreciate knowing in order to (a) change, or (b) write you off.

DEAR ABBY: My wife flashed your article on the aggressive male driver under my nose, and you played judge and jury after hearing only her side of it.

Suppose I tell you that my wife is a backseat driver, and for 40 years she has been a nervous wreck in every car she rides in. She claims she is a better driver than me, but she refuses to drive because she's afraid of criticism.

She tells me how fast to drive, what lane to use and when to turn. She always asks me questions such as, "Why is that motorcycle so close to us?" and, "Why is that truck in our lane?" Also, "Why are you speeding?" (I am doing 56 miles an hour in a 55-mile zone.) She keeps turning the air conditioning on and off, while making the windows go up and down.

She's always yelling, "Look out!" "Be careful!" "Watch it!" "Did you see that car?" She is driving me bananas! Now I ask you, who needs counseling?
HASSLED HUSBAND

DEAR HASSLED: You both should sit down with a family counselor and learn how to fight fair. Be up-front with your backseat driver and let her know before you turn the key that she is not to warn, direct or "help" you drive.

And your wife needs to learn how to relax and control the urge to "help" you. A 40-year-old habit is not easy to break, but my readers tell me that it can be done, and their only regret is that they didn't start sooner.

DEAR ABBY: When is an in-law out? My daughter was married and had two children. She divorced the father of her children and married a second time. Meanwhile her first husband married again, too. My daughter had no children with her second husband, whom she divorced after four years to marry another man. She had no children with her third husband either, whom she later divorced.

Last year my daughter died. Am I still a mother-in-law to any of the men my daughter married?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: No. When your daughter ended her marriages, the legal relationship with your sons-in-law ended.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's barber, a 40-year-old divorced woman, has invited my husband to her birthday party — for men only!
I am outraged. What do you think?
HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You are overreacting out of sheer insecurity. There's safety in numbers, so curb your outrage lest you give them both ideas.

To get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

In 1925, St. Bonaventure became one of the first Catholic colleges in the United States to establish a graduate school. In 1950, St. Bonaventure's status was raised to that of a university.

Child's mind wanders

DEAR DR. GOTT: My grandson, 7, is in the first grade. He's a sweet and willing boy, but his mind wanders in class. Would vitamin B-6 help his concentration?

DEAR READER: It would not, unless his diet is deficient. I'd pay more attention to what is happening in the classroom than at the dinner table. Does his teacher make the classwork interesting? Is your grandson bored? Is he being "mainstreamed" in a school where attention is lavished on poor learners rather than on the bright kids? On the other hand, could he be overwhelmed by the first-grade work? Most 7-year-olds' minds wander; that's wonderful part of childhood that we adults tend to forget. I suggest that your grandson's parents ask for a meeting with the teacher to establish what is going on. Then the grownups can more effectively deal with the problem of concentration, if a problem exists.

Incidentally, high doses of vitamin B-6 can cause liver damage, riboflavin deficiency and nerve disorders.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 83 and my wife thinks I work too long in hot, humid weather. I do not work after 1 p.m. I do perspire freely and am soaked with sweat when I come in. Is it normal for someone my age to sweat this much, or am I overdoing it?

DEAR READER: Sweating is a way that an active person gets rid of body heat. Perspiration is not necessarily a valid indicator of whether you are overdoing. If you are used to hard physical work and if you use good judgment — such as stopping when you are tired — I don't believe that, at 83, you have to slow down. Listen to what your body is telling you, and have a relaxing shower after work.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Last week we bought a hamster, and it bit me on the finger. The teeth went all the way in and it bled a lot. The hamster died 48 hours later. Our local health department said it does not run rabies tests on caged animals. I'm still worried. Is there anything I should do?

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR READER: Domestic caged animals ordinarily do not carry rabies. However, healthy animals do not die 48 hours after biting someone. If the health department won't check the animal for rabies or other contagious diseases, ask your veterinarian to perform an examination (which can be done even if the animal has been dead for several days). It's important to determine if the dead hamster was infected with a disease that could affect you. The veterinarian can advise you.

Dr. Gott's new Health Report on Mental and Emotional Illness describes the different types of illnesses and the treatment available. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

Singer spreads cheer with free performance

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mezzo-soprano Kimball Wheeler's way of spreading Christmas cheer is by refusing to charge for her performances with the financially strapped New Orleans Symphony.

"I was thinking about getting in the Christmas spirit," said Wheeler, of New York. "It just seemed like a good way for me to celebrate the holiday season by doing something generous."

Through Friday, she will sing Gustav Mahler's "Songs of a Wayfarer" under conductor Maxim Shostakovich. Her performance Wednesday drew a standing ovation. Two paychecks behind this season, the symphony announced a new plan last week to cope with more than $4 million in debts.

The story behind the story

By Josie

Q. I'm an avid fan of Robert Culp but no one ever prints anything about him. Can you help? R.H., Trenton, N.J.
A. He's 55, from Berkeley, Calif., the son of an Oakland lawyer and a homemaker whose family had come west to California in the 1890s. He was fascinated by acting as a child, and at 10 he was staging basement marionette shows; by 14 he was performing in community theater.

In high school, he also showed artistic talent — he earned extra money by drawing cartoons for several Bay Area magazines. He was also a track star and was offered several athletic scholarships to colleges.

He turned them all down and instead went into the theater department at the College of the Pacific in Stockton, followed by San Francisco State and the University of Washington in Seattle. After graduation, in 1951, he moved to New York.

Trying to become a stage actor in that city produced the usual routine of spotty employment and months of near starvation, but he did get a major break in 1955 when he was cast in a play starring the famed actress Katherine Cornell and later in the first American production of the now-classic play "Waiting for Godot."

The fledgling TV industry, though, gave him the most work, a situation that continued after he moved to Los Angeles in the 1960s. His first series was "Trackdown," but the one that established him (as well as his co-star Bill Cosby) was "I Spy" in 1964; a more recent series was "The Greatest American Hero."

He's also done a lot of appearances in others' series and movies such as "Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice" and "Turk 182," as well as directing — one movie he directed, "Hickey and Boggs," teamed him again with Cosby. Most recently, though, he acted in a movie-for-TV called "Combat High." It's due to air on NBC later this season.

He's been married five times, has four grown children and a 4½-year-old daughter from his fifth marriage.

Q. Tell me about Barbara Cook. She sings so beautifully, S.K., Granger, Ind.
A. She's 58, from Atlanta, but she grew up listening to Judy Garland and opera on the radio and always imagined coming to New York and going into show business. At 20, she and her mother did plan a visit to New York, but she packed everything she owned, something that seemed a bit strange to her mother until she announced that she didn't plan to return home. She didn't, and immediately put that beautiful voice to work in local nightclubs.

Within a couple of years she was on Broadway, first in the musical "Flahooley," then in classics such as "The Music Man," "Candide," "Carousel" and "Oklahoma" as well as non-musicals such as "Little Murders" and "Any Wednesday."

By the early '70s, though, she was past the ingenue stage, the category of most of her roles, and had gained a good deal of weight — over 100 pounds — so she was ready to move into other venues, specifically the concert stage and nightclubs, where she's been, very successfully, ever since. Currently, she's continuing in concert but has plans for a new album and may return to Broadway if a projected musical version of the Stephen King novel and movie "Carrie" materializes.

Buddy Ebsen
Anything you'd like to know about prominent personalities? Write to Josie, Between the Lines, King Features Syndicate, 239 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017.

Q. I really enjoy the reruns of "Barnaby Jones" and I was wondering what Buddy Ebsen and Lee Meriwether are doing now. B.B., Waterbury, Conn.
A. You're not alone in being faithful to the series. There is an organized fan club that meets once a year to have lunch and pay homage, and both Ebsen and Meriwether have attended recent lunches.

Otherwise, Ebsen is, according to his agent, checking out scripts for possible series (His last regular series appearances, you may remember, were in the TV work, but most recently she's turned her attention to the stage. She just finished a production of he play "The Artful Lodgers" in San Francisco, in which she appeared with her new husband, actor-writer Marshall Borden. She and Borden plan to do other productions together and are currently staging a tap version of the show "I Do! I Do!" to take on the road. short-lived "Matt Houston.") He wants to get back to steady work.

Meriwether, on the other hand, has done some episodic

Peter Weller
Q. I just saw Peter Weller in "Apology" and I think he's gorgeous. Where is he from and what is he doing now? D.S., Archbald, Pa.
A. He was born in Stevens Point, Wis., but his father was an Army Air Force pilot and the family moved all over the U.S. and Europe, settling down for stretches in Germany and Texas. He went to college in Texas — North Texas State University — and got a degree in music (his specialty was trumpet) but after graduation, he moved to New York and started acting. Currently, he's shooting the movie "Robocop" with Nancy Allen.

Q. Please settle a debate between my boyfriend and me. Did Bruce Willis of "Moonlighting" play in the movie "The Pope of Greenwich Village" as Charlie and then change his name to Mickey Rourke? Debbie, Orland Park, Ill.
A. Interesting thought, but Mickey Rourke, who uses his own name, played Charlie in the movie. Bruce Willis wasn't in it. (He will, though, be making his movie debut soon in the comedy "Blind Date" co-starring Kim Basinger.) We can see why you might have confused them. There is a definite similarity in attitude, and hairline.

Q. I'd love to know about Bernadette Peters: single? nationality? current projects? E.G., Atlantic City, N.J.
A. Single, Italian — her real name is Bernadette Lazzara, but she took her stage name from her father, whose first name is Peter. Current projects: After leaving her Tony-winning Broadway role in "Song and Dance" she returned to the road, doing her one-woman show. She just finished a stint in Orlando and is due in your city December 27 for a week of shows.

Concerts with the symphonies in Atlanta, Toronto and Dallas follow, after which she may do a special for PBS. Also possible is a return to the stage in London, re-creating her role in the musical "Mack and Mabel."

Christmas mission had no ending

By Rosemary Breckler

As often happens with true stories, I don't know how this one ended, but each year as I look up at the Christmas stars I can only wonder.

It was the first winter following the end of World War II. Jobs for young men were scarce, as everyone was hiring the returned veterans. The world was in a hurry to get back to normal, but for one 16-year-old boy bearing the full burdens of his father who had died in a car crash, there seemed to be only one way to earn the money needed for his sick mother — by taking a job that no veteran wanted.

That winter I was the new girl in town in Visalia, Calif., the gateway to the high Sierras. I was trying to be a reporter. Late in the day, my phone rang.

"Not with a story," the assistant to the town's leading florist said to me. "I just thought since you're from back East you'd like to see some of our back country under the stars. I have to deliver someone up there tonight."

"Someone? You mean flowers, don't you?"
"Nope. Someone. I'll pick you up in an hour. He can't wait until morning. I'm taking a young shepherd up to a winter station."

"A shepherd? At Christmas?" I giggled. I was still that young. I was sure I smelled fish. "Stop pulling my leg!"

"It's the truth. I'll see you. One hour."

"Wait! First, can I talk to Mrs. Kondit?"
Mrs. Kondit was his boss's wife, and very active at her church. I knew I could believe her.

"I know it sounds unreal," she said solemnly, "but it's true, and rather a sad story. But nothing that you can write about. It's just something very personal and a very beautiful drive. We thought you'd enjoy it."

"No story? Are you absolutely sure?" All my wires were vibrating. "There has to be..."

Bill came back on the line. "Absolutely nothing for you to write about! Can't you ever do anything just for fun?"

After a quick supper at the drugstore across from the big Victorian rooming house where I lived, I stood on the bottom step and waited for him.

It was a lovely soft, crisp, clear night. I marveled at how bright the stars all seemed. Since I owned no car I was happy to be going for a ride under those stars.

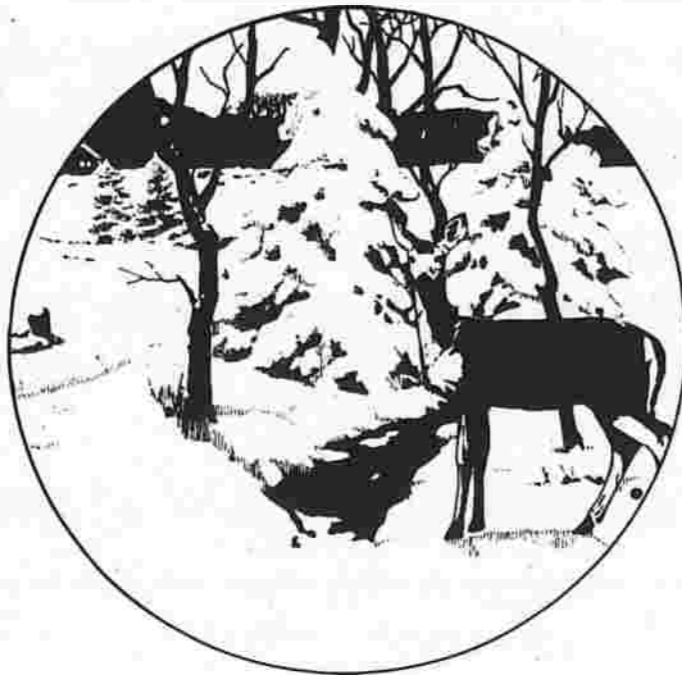

I was humming "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" when Bill arrived with little Dan. He was 16, looked 13, had freckles, and rusty-colored hair that stood up stiffly like a small palm tree on one corner of his head. He scrambled quickly out of the car to let me sit in the center.

"I thought you would be older..." I said.
"I'll be 17 in February," he said quickly. "I'm a senior."
"A senior. Then why..." I stopped. This wasn't supposed to be a story. "Is your dad a shepherd? Are you going up to see him for Christmas?"

After a long pause, Dan answered me. "No, Dad's not up there. We lost him during the War. Accident. Not in the Army."

Then he seemed to sink down in the seat and get even smaller.

"Where are we headed?" I asked.

The moon bathed the mountaintop in a soft, silver glow and the silence was like satin and velvet.

"To a ranch atop one of the lower ridges just outside of Sequoia National Park. In the spring I'll go up to the high range." Dan sounded proud.

His sleeping roll, clothing, spare blankets, candles and lots of batteries for his small radio filled up all the crevices. The box that kept knocking on my noggin was a very large box of licorice twists. I figured they were his substitute for tobacco.

"But why," I couldn't resist asking as we ascended higher and higher into the mountains, "are you giving up your senior semester — the prom, graduation? Was it your grades?"

"No," little Dan said wistfully, quietly, slowly. "I've always been near the top. I skipped seventh grade. I won't have any trouble catching up next year. I'll...well, I'll get my diploma." It was as if he wasn't talking to me but rather to himself.

Shut up, I warned myself. When we arrived at the sheep station it was a startlingly beautiful night. We had been climbing for over an hour, traveling on ranch roads and had opened and shut several dozen gates. Now we were right up there under the stars that seemed like huge diamonds, hanging almost low enough, I thought, that you could reach up, pick a handful and let them drip through your fingertips. The moon bathed the mountain top in a soft, silver glow and the silence was like satin and velvet. There was not a sheep in sight.

"You'll find everything you need," he said to Dan. "Hope your mom makes it." He dodged around us and headed down the hill as if he was fleeing. Somewhere, far off, sheep baaed.

"What's wrong with your mom?" I asked at last.

Dan buried his head in the back of the car, pulling his gear onto the ground. "Bill can tell you on the way home," he whispered. "But don't you put anything in the paper! That would kill her sure. She can't stand anyone knowing her business."

After looking around, Dan mumbled as if to himself, "Guess I'll do some whittling — make things for Mom." My tongue came loose again. "What happens if you get snowed in, or sick?"

"This is the winter range. It's below the snow line. I take the sheep up to the high range in April. If anything happens — well, I have some rockets wrapped in oilskins..."

His voice didn't sound brave and his eyes looked frightened. I put my hand on his shoulder.

After all, I was a couple of years older.

Somehow, neither Bill nor I could make the first move toward leaving. But finally Bill climbed in the car and started it up. He revved the motor a few times to warn me that I'd better get in, so I reluctantly seated myself.

The last words I heard little Dan say were "No girls...there are no girls up here."

Throughout my life those words have haunted me, especially when Bill told me the truth: Dan had sold one year of his life to the sheep rancher in exchange for medical care for his mother who had cancer. There was no Medicare or anything else then and little Dan was the only man in the family.

Early in the spring I was offered a job in San Francisco. I've never been in Visalia again.

Tough guy has a soft heart

Kirk Douglas fights for seniors' rights

By Jane Ardmore

Kirk Douglas chuckles telling you, "These two guys once pulled the last great train robbery on the famous Golden Flyer, got caught, were sent to jail, and the picture opens with the day they get released 30 years later, wearing the same clothes, and walking out into a different world — L.A. in the '80s. Is that a wonderful springboard for a picture? I loved it and had only one stipulation. 'Team me with Burt Lancaster and let's go!'"

"Burt of course had the same reaction, and as it turned out, James Orr and Jim Cruickshank had written 'Tough Guys' with us in mind. Remember the Oscar show last year when my son Michael introduced Burt and me? Well, several people had the same idea at the same time. Team 'em again was the idea."

Young Kirk and young Burt started their movie careers when director Hal Wallis caught their respective shows on Broadway and summoned them to Los Angeles to work together in "I Walk Alone." 1947.

They went right on to make film history, each in his own right, and from time to time, they have teamed again for such nifties as "Gunfight at the O.K. Corral," "The Devil's Disciple," "Seven Days in May," "The List of Adrian Messenger" and "Victory at Entebbe"; in '81, they returned to the stage together in "The Boys of Autumn" portraying Huckleberry Finn and Tom Sawyer.

Well, here they go again. "I can only tell you we had fun making it," Douglas says of the movie that was recently released, and he certainly reflects the enjoyment — his classic face is as handsome as it was at the Corral, his build is strong and taut, and as we talk, he is curled up in a chair, arms around his denim-clad knees, totally relaxed.

"The real fun in acting is that you are like a kid again. When I was a kid, we were too poor for me to even have a toy train. My parents were immigrants. Illiterate. I taught my mother to write her name when I was 12. Her name was Bryna, now the name of my production company. My father was a peddler. He had a horse and cart and peddled fruit and vegetables, whatever was in season, and sometimes, when nothing was in season, junk.

"Believe me, I was thinking of them when I participated in the Liberty Weekend. The first thing my parents saw when they came to the end of what must have seemed an endless voyage, was the Statue of Liberty. I'm proud of that generation. They didn't miss the boat. If they had, where would I be now? I don't know what I'd be doing in Russia.

"But, the kid who didn't own a toy train has a big real one to play with, the famous Southern Pacific 4449 steam locomotive — the train that carried the body of Bobby Kennedy. I could ride it, I could drive it, and when it goes hurtling across the desert, there's Burt and me running across the top of it!"

One of the endearing qualities of this man who has come to personify such diverse characters as Vincent Van Gogh and Spartacus is his undisguised joy in doing so. "We couldn't have done this without each other," Douglas goes on.

"Burt is the more conservative character. I'm the wild, impulsive type, he's always trying to calm me down, and I'm always involving him in crazy ideas he wants no part of in the first place. Can you imagine these two, still thinking 1950s, walking out into the '80s world? They have their choice: to accept the requirements of parole and modern-day retirement, or to go for one last caper, involving the same great train now scheduled for its final run.

"Well, you can guess what they choose.

"This picture is really a story of friendship and how a couple of guys are there for each other; and in our own way, Burt and I have been. Not close friends but always there for each other. We met, of course, when Hal Wallis cast us together in that film. He'd seen me in a play in New York called "The Wind is Ninety," but when he suggested I come to California, I was shocked. I was a stage actor; in about eight months I was going to be in David Merrick's first play. Then "The Wind is Ninety" closed, Michael was a baby, I had a wife, Diana Dill, and I had to make a living. I started wondering if Hal Wallis was still interested in me. It took courage, but I did it — made a long distance call, N.Y. to L.A. The next day I was on a train.

"On the picture, I met Burt. We always got along in a crazy kind of way. We still do. We disagree on everything, but we get along, we argue, we fight. He has his style of working, and I have mine, and in pictures like "Gunfight at the O.K. Corral," it works. If something came up, if I needed Burt, he would be there; and if he needed me, I'd be there. Sort of without saying it, we've developed a relationship. It's almost miraculous when you realize that after 40 years, two people are still working together, far less talking to each other.

"And I mean talking. Discussing. Loudly. I think the arguments have mellowed more Michael. We were comparing notes the other day. I was telling him how pleasant it was to shoot "Tough Guys" so close to Palm Springs that Ann, my wife, and I could stay in our own house down there. Michael shot "Romancing the Stone" in Morocco. It was hotter than hot and encompassed so much international manipulation that as producer he had to take on the whole world. He's happy that his next picture, with Glenn Close, is being shot in New York, which is where he lives with his wife and small son.

"Michael and I would like to do a picture together. He has his own company. (Peter has his own company and soon Eric will too.) And producer Joel who has worked with Michael ever since "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" is now in France developing some European projects. He just married a French girl he met during filming of "Jewel of the Nile." I tell Michael we'd better make our deal soon. What with the Emmy nomination for "Amos" and if "Tough Guys" is as good as they say it is, I may become too expensive." He laughs and shakes his handsome head.

"I've been lucky with my kids. You do the best you can, and if they really turn out, a lot of it is luck. I say you have to be careful how you handle your kids when they're young; you never know what they're going to turn out to be. I certainly did everything in my power to talk them out of show business (they represent, you know, several different generations, ranging in age from 25 to 40).

"It wasn't that I didn't love the business; but I think it poignant, a difficult field. The chances of success are so remote, the odds are so strictly against you. I always say it's for someone who revels in rejection. But if you can't talk them out of it, if they still want to do it, well, what you really want for your kids is that they function, so you give them the best advice you have."

And, in the case of the Douglasses, they're functioning! "At this point, I'm learning from them. When I talk with Michael and Joel or Peter or Eric, I get a different point of view. Very valuable. Eric is 25. He was recently in a play in Kansas City, "Butterflies Are Free." It was the first time I really felt that he has something." ■ Including children, Lancaster's daughter, Joanna Lancaster, was one of the producers of "Ruthless People" and his son, Billy, is writing scripts.

"Then, of course, there are my kids," says Douglas. "I don't have to tell you about

Stop smoking for Christmas

Cigarette smoking harms the people you love most

By Richard R. Grayson, M.D., and June Grayson, R.N.

If you haven't finished your Christmas shopping for those you love, here's an idea: Promise them you will stop smoking or promise them you will never start.

It seems that every medical journal — no matter what part of the body it specializes in — reports one or more new research projects proving that smoking is bad for you. That would be reason enough for a rational person to stop smoking. But not only do you hurt yourself, cigarette smoking harms the people you live and work with, even the ones you love the most.

Here is a sampling of those reports, just from our recent mail:

Men who smoke run three times the risk of having a stroke as those who do not. Men who smoke and also have high blood pressure have 20 times the risk of having a stroke as men with normal blood pressures who do not smoke. (British Medical Journal 293:6, 1986).

Smokers have twice as many auto accidents as do non-smokers, according to the researchers at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center, Worcester, Mass. Smokers also received almost twice as many citations for speeding, running red lights and other moving violations as non-smokers. Smokers were twice as likely to use illegal drugs and three times as likely to be arrested for drunk driving. (American Medical News, October 10, 1986).

Cigarette smokers who smoke more than one pack of cigarettes a day have four times the chance of developing Alzheimer's disease as non-smokers. Those smoking less than a pack a day are one and a half times as likely to have Alzheimer's disease as non-smokers. (Internal Medicine News, September 15-30, 1986).

Smokeless tobacco (snuff and chewing tobacco) can cause mouth cancer and gum disease and lead to early death in the young people who use them. The nicotine in the products can cause addiction just as smoking tobacco does.

In a government survey of teen-agers using smoking tobacco, almost 40 percent of such users reported that they had a white, wrinkled patch in their mouth. This is called "leukoplakia" and is a precancerous condition. An additional group the same size reported that they already had some other form of sore, ulcer, blister or lesion of the gums, lips or mouth. Some also had gum disease, tooth loss, tooth abrasion and stained teeth from the use of smokeless tobacco. (Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, October 17, 1986).

Cigar and pipe smokers who inhale large amounts of tobacco smoke may harm their heart and lungs, just as cigarette smokers do. The best thing is to quit smoking entirely. But if you have switched to cigars and pipes hoping to escape the risks of cigarette smoking, at least limit the amount you smoke and the amount you inhale. (Cardiovascular Medicine, July 1985).

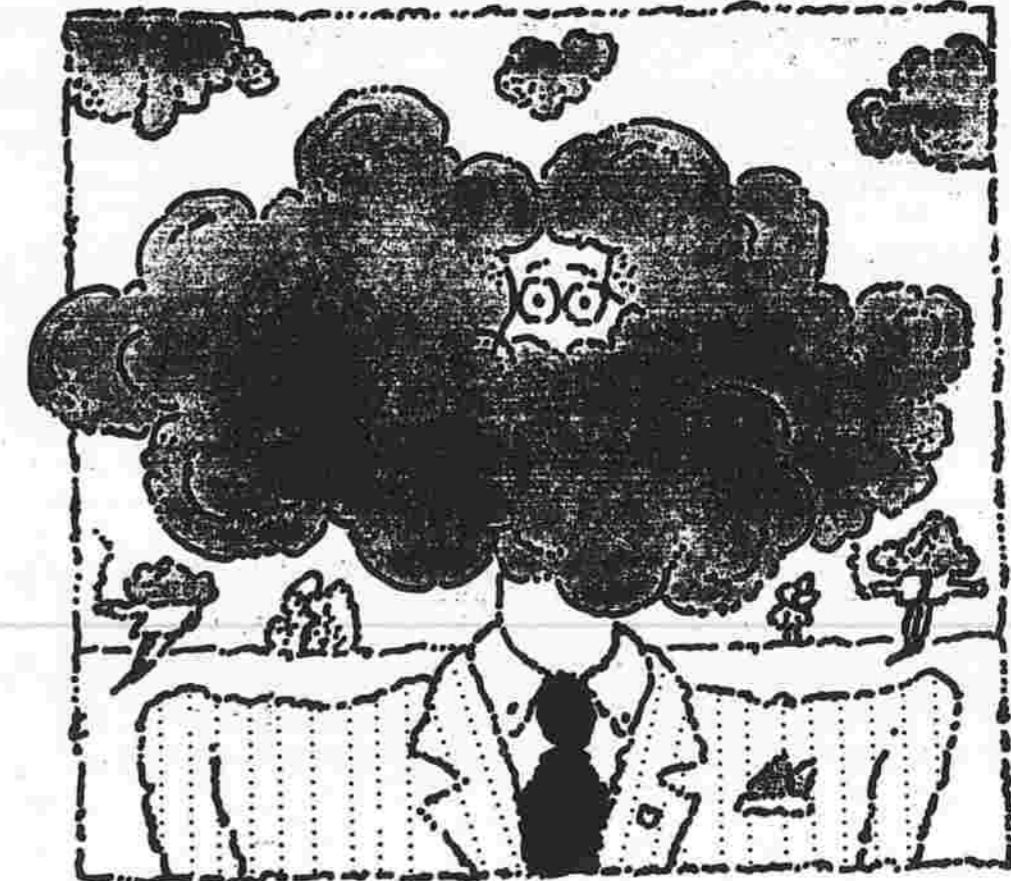

There is no such thing as a "less hazardous" cigarette. Smokers who switch to low-tar cigarettes are only kidding themselves because they unconsciously change their smoking habits so that they will still obtain the same nicotine dose. (Journal of Respiratory Diseases, September 1986).

Parents who smoke either before or after their children's births risk the health of their children. One study in England showed 50 percent more cancers in children whose mothers smoked 10 or more cigarettes a day during their pregnancies than in children whose mothers did not smoke at all.

Children under 5 whose parents smoke have more respiratory tract infections such as bronchitis and pneumonia than children whose parents do not smoke. Children of parents who smoke are even more apt to develop lung disease as adults than children from non-smoking homes. (Journal of Respiratory Diseases, September 1986).

If this makes you want to quit smoking, sign up for a behavioral modification program as your Christmas present to someone you love.

LOW-CHOLESTEROL DIETS
Low-cholesterol diets aren't for everyone. Parents who get too zealous about lowering the cholesterol and fat content of their little children's meals run the danger of stunting their growth, according to Robert Olson, M.D., at a recent meeting of the National Institutes of Health. So far, low-cholesterol diets have only been tested in middle-aged men with high cholesterol levels and the same conclusions may not apply to young children.

(Modern Medicine, from the Journal of the American Medical Association, August 1986)

NO EASY WAY

Don't plan on using a gastric balloon to help you lose weight permanently. The only satisfactory treatment is a life-long change in eating and exercise habits. The balloon can cause complications, such as nausea, vomiting, crampy pain, gastric ulcers and intestinal obstruction. (The Medical Letter on Drugs and Therapeutics, August 15, 1986)

HELP FOR WOMEN WHO HAVE FREQUENT MISCARRIAGES

Women who have trouble carrying a pregnancy long enough to deliver a live baby may find help in current immunology research programs at several United States medical centers. In some women with an immune problem, the mother suffers a "transplant rejection" sometime during the first three months of pregnancy.

The treatment involves immunizing a woman with the father's white blood cells, which may stimulate her body to later accept the fetus, rather than rejecting it. The University of Michigan, Thomas Jefferson

University in Philadelphia and the University of Utah in Salt Lake City are three of the centers, among others, in the United States. (Medical World News, August 25, 1986)

MISSING CHILDREN

According to the American Academy of Pediatrics, parents may have been misled about the dangers of kidnapping. In figures from 1984, although there were 350,000 cases of missing children, only 67 of them were kidnapped by strangers. Almost 95 percent of this total were classified as runaways. Some children were involved in child custody and visitation rights disagreements.

According to the academy, fingerprinting rarely helps locate a missing child. Parents and children should use preventive safety measures but not be frightened into fingerprinting and identification programs.

As safety measures, the academy suggests the following: Never leave your young children unattended; babysitters should be well-known to the parents and should be responsible people; children should learn their names and phone numbers as soon as they are old enough, and also the name and phone number of the babysitter. Children should also be taught they have the right to say no to any adult who makes them uncomfortable or tries to touch them. (AFP, vol. 34, no.3)

DRUG ABUSE AND SIDS

Children of mothers who use addicting drugs have five to 10 times the risk of dying from Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) as children from mothers who don't use drugs. Sally Ward, M.D., of Children's Hospital, Los Angeles, studied 27 infants whose mothers had used various drugs.

She found that these children slept longer, had a slower heart rate and experienced more interruptions in their normal breathing habits than the children of mothers who did not use drugs. (American Journal of Diseases of Children, as reported in American Medical News, October 10, 1986) ■

Loretta Young stars in a Yuletide movie

By Jerry Buckley

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Loretta Young, sitting in a sunny room in her Beverly Hills home, is nursing a cold she caught making her first film in 23 years. She caught the cold in Toronto, where she went to film "Christmas Eve," which NBC will telecast Monday.

"I packed for the North Pole, but the climate was nice and the clothes all went to waste," says Miss Young, dabbing at her nose with a tissue. "There was just one really cold day and that was the day we worked outside. The prop man got me warmers for my hands and feet. I think it was the wind."

On this day she is wearing a brown woolen skirt and a bulky, fuzzy brown-and-white sweater. Sunlight streams in through the huge windows onto a room decorated with Chinese and Oriental artifacts.

Her cold notwithstanding,

Sexuality

Peeping Toms' drug has other uses

A careful reading of drug names turns up a question

By Dr. June Reinsch

The Kinsey Report

DEAR DR. REINSCH: In discussing Peeping Toms, you stated that part of the treatment involved the hormone Depo-Provera (medroxyprogesterone acetate) to reduce or eliminate sexual desire.

If so, why is this hormone given to postmenopausal women? Does it have the same effect on them.

DEAR READER: This is an excellent question, and I commend you for your careful reading of drug names. Depo-Provera and Provera are both brand names for preparations of medroxyprogesterone acetate, a synthetic hormone that acts like the naturally occurring hormone progesterone. Depo-Provera is supplied as an injectable solution; Provera is supplied in the form of oral tablets. Both have been associated with changes in sex drive in both men and women.

In general, the two drugs differ in dosage, route of administration and number of days the drug is used. These differences depend on why the drug is being prescribed.

When medroxyprogesterone is injected in male sex offenders, the goal is to achieve a steady dose with a long-term effect at a high enough level to reduce problem behaviors. Research has shown that Depo-Provera reduces compulsive behavior and lowers the sex drive; that psychological counseling has a better chance of changing future sexual behavior. The drug appears to affect the brain and lower testosterone levels.

When medroxyprogesterone acetate is prescribed for postmenopausal women, it is as an oral drug and is given in short-acting doses. These mimic the cyclic pattern of the natural progesterone production that characterizes women's reproductive years. During these years, the progesterone level is higher for about 10 consecutive days each month. Taking this form of progestin for 10 days, along with an estrogen drug for around three weeks each month, reduces the risk of endometrial cancer that is found when only estrogen is taken.

The effect of replacement hormones (especially a progestin) on sexual desire appears to vary from woman to woman. For example, some women have premenstrual discomfort during the stage of their natural cycle in which progesterone is highest. These women may have similar premenstrual symptoms when they take hormone-replacement drugs. One common premenstrual symptom is lowered sexual desire and sexual activity.

If a woman is taking hormone-replacement therapy (HRT) and experiences negative side effects (such as lowered sex drive) during the 10 days she is taking the progestin drug, she should ask her physician about changing the amount of progestin or trying a different progestin drug.

Several forms and dosages of progestin are available. Four different chemical forms of progestin are usually used: Norethindrone (Norlutin is one brand name), norethindrone acetate (Norlutate), norgestrel (Ovrette) and medroxyprogesterone acetate (Provera). The first three may have more androgenic (male-like) side effects for some women, such as growth of facial hair; however, they may be more likely to maintain or increase sex drive because they are slightly androgenic.

Each woman on HRT must work closely with her physician to determine which drugs, and in what doses, are most effective for her. It may take several months to decide at what level symptoms (such as hot flashes) are eliminated without creating negative side effects (such as reduced sexual desire).

Size query

DEAR DR. REINSCH: I believe you could do a great service in talking about penis size. I have always wondered if mine was small. This is because I had a friend whose penis, when it was soft, was nearly as big as mine is when it is hard. I never saw his get hard, so I never knew how big it could get.

DEAR READER: Research by Masters and Johnson determined that during sexual arousal, penises that were smaller while Flaccid (soft) had a proportionally greater size increase during erection than did penises that were larger while flaccid.

In other words, the size difference you perceived may have existed only when the two penises were flaccid.

Hysterectomy

DEAR DR. REINSCH: I am thinking about getting married again.

I had a complete and total hysterectomy. Since I do not have a vagina, are my partner and I going to get any pleasure out of sex?

DEAR READER: Most women who have had a hysterectomy can indeed have a satisfying and pleasurable sex life following the surgery. However, some points in your letter need further clarification.

A complete hysterectomy does not usually include removal of the vagina. The phrase "complete hysterectomy" generally refers to surgical removal of the uterus (the medical term is hysterectomy), both ovaries and both Fallopian tubes — the tubes that carry eggs from the ovaries to the uterus. This complete removal of the ovaries and Fallopian tubes is called a bilateral salpingo-oophorectomy.

In many cases, the cervix (the passage between the upper end of the vagina and the uterus) is removed with the uterus; in some cases, this also includes a portion of the vagina — but not the entire vagina.

The surgery can be done by two routes, depending on the

“When medroxyprogesterone is injected in male sex offenders, the goal is to achieve a steady dose with a long-term effect at a high enough level to reduce problem behaviors. Research has shown that Depo-Provera reduces compulsive behavior and lowers the sex drive.”

Doc dispels rumor

DEAR DR. REINSCH: I believe that if I had started to masturbate at age 12 instead of waiting until 17, I would have had a larger penis.

DEAR READER: According to my mail, there are probably as many men who think the opposite: They believe that their penises are too small because they started at 12 instead of waiting until they were older. There is no relationship between penis size, any type of sexual activity or the age at which any activity began.

After removal of the ovaries, estrogen is no longer produced. This usually causes thinning and shrinking of vaginal tissues and a loss of vaginal elasticity. These changes could conceivably lead to the impression that the vagina is not there anymore, but a change this severe would be rare. Many of these changes can be reversed by proper treatment.

Make an appointment with a gynecologist for a premarital (before-marriage) examination. This is a good idea for women of any age and is a common request. Ask the physician if you might have trouble having sex, and if so, how any problems can be treated.

If you no longer have ovaries, you may have difficulty lubricating, no matter how sexually aroused you become. Replacement-hormone medications and other treatments have helped many women to regain full sexual functioning. If your vagina has shortened, ask the physician about treatments that involve gradual stretching of the vagina.

If your vagina was actually removed during your surgery, ask for the name of a qualified sex therapist or counselor. He or she can tell you about sexual positions and techniques that can provide full and pleasurable sexual satisfaction for both partners, even if intercourse is not possible. Some physicians also have been trained to provide this information in a comfortable, supportive manner.

The Holidays

The reality of change

We miss the heart-pounding eagerness of holidays past

By William C. Brisick

As the parents of four children, we've grown used to their ages and stages, or so we think. Change is part of their lives, and we've tried to ride with them over the bumps and sail with them through the rocky places. But the reality of change strikes especially hard at Christmas. We've had to adjust; it hasn't been easy.

Our Christmas celebrations, particularly the giving of gifts, had always focused on the children. As they have changed, so too has our manner of celebrating. And we can't help but feel that something has been lost.

When our boys were small, it was easy to buy Christmas gifts for them. They took us through the rocking-horse, fire engine, tricycle and bicycle stages and then gravitated to their special interest. For one it was cowboys — six-shooter, holster, 10-gallon hat and all. For another it was sports — the new basketball, the baseball uniform.

But their interests were diverse enough that we could always surprise them with something. We managed to fill the space beneath the tree with packages of all sizes and shapes, and the stockings with the silly-putty, the candy treats and whatever else we could fit in.

On Christmas mornings we relished the moments of feverish activity as they opened packages, the astonishment, the innocent bursts of happiness: "Just what I wanted. Gee, thanks, Mom and Dad."

Then, as the years went by we found it harder to produce those kinds of surprises. The boys began to put aside childhood pursuits and unwittingly began to move us away from the kinds of Christmas gifts we had known.

Their interests had narrowed — skateboards and later, surfboards, video, headphones — and they began to plan that little else would satisfy them. Clothes were a substitute; they were now the arbiters of their own taste and would have to approve in advance anything we chose. Their gift list centered on one or two items, and in the case of a skateboard or surfboard it had to be custom-made, sometimes not arriving until after Christmas.

As parents how could we keep alive the spirit, the anticipation, the surprise of Christmas?

Jennifer was born into our family, and the renewed cycle of gift buying for a little one provided a buffer against the changes being wrought by her older brothers. She took up the questions they had ceased to ask: "How can Santa Claus come down the chimney tonight when we have a fire in the fireplace?" Can I please open just one early present tonight?"

But Jennifer is the only small child left in the family, and our Christmas has reflected that change.

We've seen it in the pace of our activity as it takes on a new cadence. Christmas Eve, once a night of last-minute, frenzied movement, is slower now, more tranquil. In years past we could get very anxious, faced as we were with the prospect of wrapping presents in the small hours of Christmas morning.

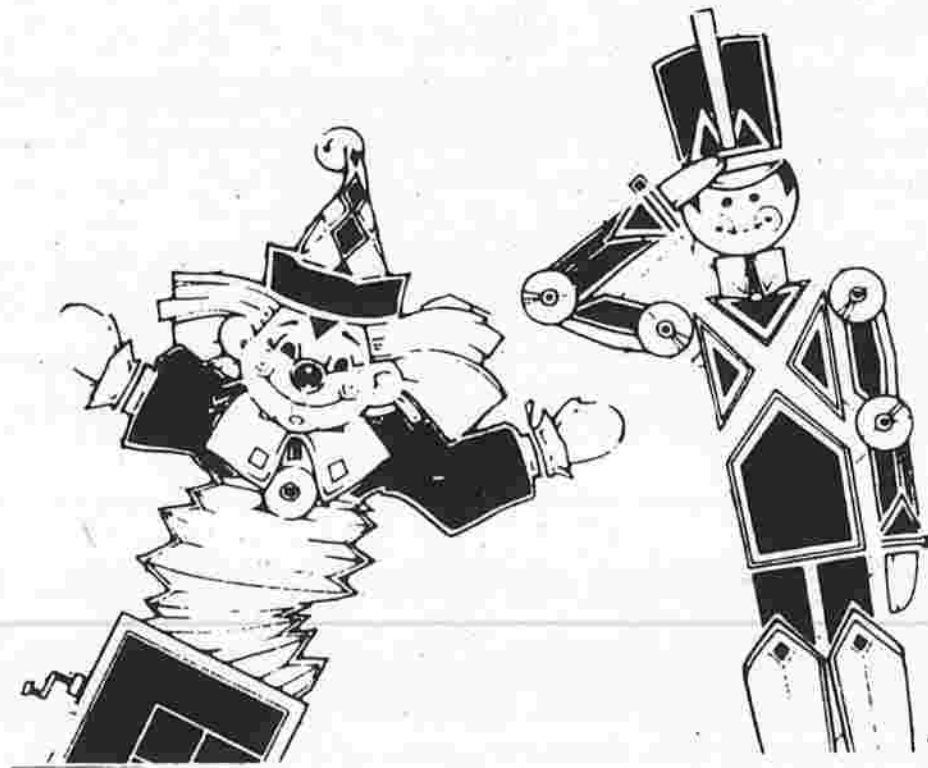

We never trusted ourselves to do it before that; our house lacks the attic and cellar where you can tuck things safely away from the inquisitive eyes of young children. We kept the presents in brown paper bags in the tops of closets and hoped that their conventional exterior would resist any peeping. Only when the children were soundly asleep did we dare begin the gift-wrapping.

We accomplished this task in my study, where the clipping of the scissors and the whirring and snapping of the tape would be muffled. Never foresighted enough to have on hand more than one roll of tape or one pair of scissors, we compounded the anxiety of these moments.

At 1 a.m. it was easy to get irritated with your spouse who was taking too much time, monopolizing the scissors and tape. One Christmas Eve we got into a terrific fight about it; it was either that or an accusation that one of us had marked a package "To Steven" when it should have read "To Jamie." After angry remarks, we clipped and taped in stony silence for 10 minutes until we realized how ridiculous we were. That night we laughed our way through the rest of the gift wrapping.

It's different now. The boys go out to parties after dinner, and somehow we keep Jennifer occupied enough to get all the wrapping done early — no more late night sessions of giftwrapping, no more funny fights. Somehow I miss them.

Nor does Christmas morning work out quite the way it used to. When they were small, the children could not sleep much past 5:30 a.m. They would come into our bedroom and ask with whispering voices — just loud enough to wake us up:

"Is it time to open our presents now?" "Give us a few more minutes sleep, kids," we responded.

A wishful thought. The children would gather at the top of the stairs and strain to see the tree, and with giggles and more whispers, try to guess what was in the packages. Sometimes we made it as late as 6:30 before we started; sometimes we were finished opening gifts well before that.

The boys sleep in now till after 7 and Jennifer, who on Christmas Eve still goes to bed with "butterflies in the stomach," has to singlehandedly rouse the rest of us out of bed. Next to her high-pitched excitement the rest of us seem muted; we have to force a little.

Her gifts, in big boxes, dominate the scene, and we feel guilty that we don't have enough for the boys. We try to supplement with a crisp $10 bill or the staples of socks and T-shirts, but they take up little space under the tree and contain little of the old Christmas magic. And the silly-putty and clay have disappeared from the stockings, replaced now by such practical and mundane items as pencils, erasers and pads of paper.

We miss the heart-pounding eagerness of those Christmases past, the satisfaction of hearing the children say — and they said it nearly every year without detracting from its truth. "This was the best Christmas I ever had."

The boys' tones are subdued now as they tell us, "Thanks for the money." They say it over and over, as if to reassure us. Perhaps they sense in our enthusiasm a missing edge, and they try to compensate for it with a profusion of gratitude.

Perhaps they are trying to reassure themselves too, for they have come to realize that as young adults the joys of being a little child at Christmas will exist only in their memories. ■

Simplify, simplify

Do you have a harried cook on your gift list?

By Sandra Scott Klink

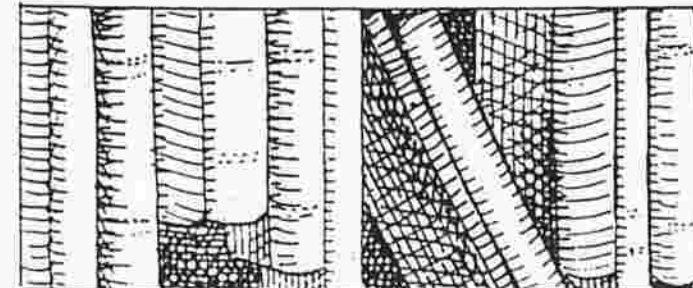

As our lives become more complicated and our tastes in food more sophisticated, we are posed with a dilemma: how to cook interesting food... simply. The cookbook writers of America have been listening to you harried folks, and they have come up with an increasing number of new books which address that problem in plenty of ways.

How to Cook: An Easy and Imaginative Guide for the Beginner by Raymond Sokolov (Morrow, $16.95) fills a real void — a literate, easy-to-understand but not condescending book for someone who knows nothing, absolutely nothing, about cooking.

And there are more of them than you'd imagine, too: students, kids curious to try their hand in the kitchen, and (sorry) many men. "Demystify" is the word Sokolov uses, and it's appropriate. By the end of the book, you're reading about buerre blanc — and if you've paid attention you should be able to do it perfectly (well, almost).

Simplicity without being ordinary is the goal of Simple Pleasures: Casual Cooking for All Occasions by Helen Hecht, Atheneum, $16.95. Hecht aims at the Walter Mittys of the kitchen who couldn't — and have no desire to — turn out food on the level of La Cote Basque restaurant but at the same time want something with character. Some of the recipes are overly basic, and she has an undue passion for lemons and oranges (they're everywhere), but it's a helpful little volume.

The 15-Minute Chinese by Elizabeth Chiu King (Macmillan, $16.95) has an ambitious goal. I'm not sure all of these recipes can really be put together in 15 minutes, but it's a worthy idea because speedy preparation is what Chinese food is all about.

Gourmet by Elizabeth Chiu King (Macmillan, $16.95) has an ambitious goal. I'm not sure all of these recipes can really be put together in 15 minutes, but it's a worthy idea because speedy preparation is what Chinese food is all about.

Despite some too-full pages and too-small type, the recipes are appealing, a mix of old friends like wonton soup and some fresh newcomers: Turkey With Zucchini and Spicy Chicken With Cashews are particularly tempting.

Deliciously Simple: Quick-and-Easy Low-Sodium, Low-Fat, Low-Cholesterol, Low-Sugar Meals by Harriet Roth (NAL, $17.95) offers up over 300 recipes that are not only simple, but are also healthful. Roth is the former director of the Pritikin Longevity Center Cooking School and her recipes are put together with great nutritional savvy. Most of them can be prepared in 30 minutes or less and yes, they are deliciously simple.

This eclectic mix includes Peruvian, Italian, French, Indian, to name but a few. No fancy artwork, drawings, photos here, but plenty of practical, useful recipes for the health-conscious time-saver.

Chef and prodigious cookbook author (11 other books) Michele Evans simplifies cooking in quantity in Fearless Cooking for Crowds: Beautiful Food for Groups of Eight to Fifty (Times Books, $17.95). With the aid of this book, timid cooks will gather much courage and forsake some of the boring old standbys they might otherwise serve a crowd. Organization is key, and Evans provides it with step-by-step recipes, instructions on making more or fewer servings, and an excellent introductory chapter on strategic planning.

International in scope, this book should soothe anyone frantic at the idea of feeding a big group. As Evans says, "Preparing a meal for fifty is not ten times more difficult than preparing a meal for five; it's just that there's more food to work with." Reassuring, no?

AND FOR THE HOLIDAYS... Restaurant critic and food writer Mimi Sheraton has updated and expanded her Visions of Sugarplums (Harper & Row, $6.95), a bargain of a paperback just full of holiday confections. She has revised some recipes and included a new chapter with recipes from friends, an impressive lot of bakers if ever there was one. Traditional foods and symbolic holiday dishes from all over the world are included, making this not just an excellent cookbook but an informative lesson in holiday traditions.

Baking cookies? Richard Sax has a new paperback out that is just in time for those in need of fresh holiday cookie ideas. The Cookie Lover's Cookbook (Harper & Row, $7.95) has some old favorites, but is brimming over with new temptations like Chunky White Chocolate Macadamia Cookies, Espresso Bars (which he calls "brownies for adults"), Chocolate Mousse Sandwiches. For those who have run their cookie repertoire dry, this is a must. He's even included cookie hotlines for those in trouble in the kitchen.

The Holidays: 21 Menus for Elegant Entertaining from Thanksgiving to Twelfth Night by John Hadamuscin (Crown, $19.95) is by a man who obviously loves the holiday season and has many happy memories of it. As he says, his hope is "that this book will help people make new memories with new flavors." He has included a lot of do-ahead ideas as well as menus for every imaginable holiday event, including a Rose Bowl Indoor Tailgate Party... followed by a Back-on-the-Diet Dinner — an inspired touch.

The book is embellished with color photos throughout and is a warmhearted guide for the season. And the chapter on cookies for Santa is worth the entire price.

Stewart, Tabori and Chang, creators of the ultimate coffee-table books, has two blockbusters out just in time for holiday gifts. They're both beautiful, slick and could almost be thought of as travel books as well as cookbooks.

Roger Verge's Entertainment in the French Style ($45) whisks the reader directly to the south of France with the three-star chef, his childhood memories and evocative photographs by Pierre Hussonot. Recipes, while certainly not for the beginner, are not unduly complicated. The book is a visual and culinary feast.

The Taste of Mexico by Patricia Quintana ($35) qualifies in the same category. Authentic dishes from the eight regions of Mexico tempt on every page, and they're not the old standbys you'll find elsewhere. This book would be a perfect gift for anyone even remotely interested in Mexico and its culinary offerings.

The food in all of its lavish variety tells so much about the country itself — from Mexico City to the Yucatan. Many of the recipes are laden with oil, so calorie-counters beware. But you can look. The photos are gorgeous. ■

DEDICATED
CHALLENGE OF A GROWING COMMUNITY.

Through the years, the vibrant growth and continuing excellence of Manchester Memorial Hospital's medical staff has paralleled the rapid expansion and growth of the East-of-the-River community.

This development has had mutual benefits. The challenges inherent in a growing area provide talented, dedicated physicians with unique opportunities to serve. The quality of life has attracted the majority of our 150 physicians to live or have practices East-of-the-River. Our community benefits from their special interest here—a bond that furthers the commitment to initiating responsive services, needed programs and important medical innovations.

Traditionally, our medical staff, working closely with the hospital, has been at the forefront of advancing services and programs. In the 1950s they were influential in beginning Progressive Patient Care, which led to the Intensive Care Unit concept. In the 1960s they helped introduce the nation's first Lamaze labor-delivery facility in a community hospital. In the 1980s our physicians played a leadership role in the establishment of Cardiac Rehabilitation and area-wide emergency medical care programs.

Our medical staff's dedication and attention to excellence extends to every phase of Manchester Memorial Hospital's medical services, providing the area with a superior array of medical and surgical specialties.

A true indication of the vitality of a community is the quality of its medical care, and more importantly, the commitment of its medical professionals.

At the heart of the Manchester Memorial medical staff is a desire to make this an even better place to live. Their neighborliness and sense of closeness to the area is something you won't find just anywhere. And best of all they are here, dedicated to the challenge of a growing community.

A crucial holdup play

By James Jacoby

Holding up aces in a no-trump contract is a basic strategy with which all of us are familiar. How about in suit contracts? Although it may not be as easy to see, holding up an ace at the first lead of the suit may be crucial to success. H.W. Kelsey cited this example in a recent publication.

When the king of diamonds was led, declarer could see that he had work to do. He also needed a bit of luck. He decided that diamonds were not likely to split 5-1, so he played low from dummy at trick one. From that point on, he could not be beaten.

He won the diamond continuation with the ace, cashed the ace of clubs and came to his hand with the spade ace. Next he ruffed the jack of clubs and came to his hand with the spade king, happily noting the fall of the queen. He cashed the club king, discarding a heart, and played a heart. There was no problem anymore. Since West had passed as dealer, he could not hold the ace of hearts along with his K-Q-J of diamonds and queen of spades, so declarer played the nine of hearts and East could do no more than cash two heart tricks. The king of hearts was a parking place for the losing diamond, and the contract was made.

Needless to say, if declarer had rushed to take his diamond ace at the first trick, the contract would have had to fail.

Taxing

The income tax became the major source of federal revenue during World War I. The government previously depended on tariffs, excise taxes and customs duties for its income.

Morris may stay with the Tigers after all

By Ben Walker
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Jack Morris' "can't refuse" offer was rejected Friday by the Philadelphia Phillies and put on hold by New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner. The free agent pitcher said he might have to consider staying with the Detroit Tigers, after all.

Morris' agent, Dick Moss, said the Philadelphia Phillies and Minnesota Twins rejected the same plan and said he expected the California Angels to do the same. Morris said the similar responses convinced him owners are conspiring to drive down spiraling salaries, including his.

The flurry of negotiating came hours before Morris had to decide whether to accept the Detroit Tigers' offer of salary arbitration. The deadline was midnight and Morris said he had not made his decision. Morris, the winningest pitcher in the 1960s, reiterated he was "still not interested" in returning to the Tigers, although "I may have to consider that option yet."

If Morris agreed to go to salary arbitration, he would be considered a signed player. If he declined, the Tigers would have until Jan. 8 to re-sign him or lose that right until May 1.

"I feel like Jackie Robinson must have felt," Morris said. "The owners are all saying, 'Jack, you're a fine player, but you can only play under our own rules.'"

"I'm getting the same answers over and over," Morris said. "They say 'I'm worth the money, but that they won't pay it.'"

"I talked to Jack Morris and Dick Moss this afternoon on the phone and rejected their offer to accept arbitration as a means to decide Morris' salary if he signed with the Phillies for one year," Bill Giles, Phillies president said Friday.

"There is too great a risk on letting a third party decide Morris' worth. I do not believe that Morris, or any pitcher for that matter, is worth the kind of money that I would anticipate them asking in an arbitration hearing. The history of arbitration procedures is just too uncertain," Giles said.

Morris and Moss met with Steinbrenner Thursday in Tampa, Fla., and presented him with the option of giving Morris a one-year contract with the salary to be determined by an arbitrator — an offer Moss called a "can't refuse" proposition.

"We asked the Yankees to put themselves in the position the Tigers were in," Moss said.

But Steinbrenner, who built World

Series champions in the 1970s with high-priced free agents like Reggie Jackson and Catfish Hunter, said he needed more time to study the proposal.

"Given an 18-hour time constraint by Jack Morris' agent, Dick Moss, I am not able to come to a decision this quickly," Steinbrenner said in a prepared statement.

"The Yankees have a sincere interest in Jack Morris. However, I can't give a definitive yes-or-no without taking into consideration free agents Willie Randolph and Ron Guidry, both of whom may choose arbitration."

The Yankees have offered salary arbitration to their free agent co-captains, and neither had accepted by mid-afternoon.

Steinbrenner called Morris' proposal "unique," but said it had "pitfalls."

Mets' pitcher Dwight Gooden (left) gestures while answering questions at a press conference Friday in Tampa as his attorney, Ron Cacciatore, listens.

Gooden urging all to stay calm

By Fred Goodall
The Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — New York Mets pitcher Dwight Gooden, arrested last weekend after a brawl with police, said Friday that "nobody wants this kind of attention, but hopefully in due time things will get better."

Gooden, flanked by his attorneys and agent, spoke publicly for the first time since the Dec. 13 incident left him with minor injuries and charged with disorderly conduct, resisting arrest with violence and battery on a police officer.

The 1985 Cy Young Award winner was also cited for careless driving after his silver Mercedes was stopped for a possible traffic violation and he and four companions scuffled with Tampa police.

Gooden began a news conference at the office of his agent, Jim Neader, with a brief statement wishing everyone "Merry Christmas" and urging that calm prevail in Tampa where racial tensions were heightened by his arrest.

"Let's be safe for the holidays and enjoy it with your family and everybody," the 22-year-old pitcher said. "And I'd like to apologize to my neighborhood."

Gooden was not allowed to answer questions related to his case. Neader and attorneys Charles W. Ehrlich and Ron Cacciatore intervened repeatedly during the conference.

Facial bruises suffered in the altercation were visible and there was still some redness in the pitcher's left eye. Gooden, however, said he felt fine and is looking forward to next season.

"I don't think (the arrest will) have any effect," he said. "I think being back on the field, I'll be more relaxed."

Gooden said he has received calls from friends and teammates who have inquired about his well-being and expressed their support.

He admitted that he holds some bitterness as a result of the incident "because nobody wants to go through this." But he said he holds no grudge against Tampa, where he was born and raised.

"I still like Tampa," he said. "I'd like to continue to make it my home."

Witherspoon was 'clean'

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Tim Witherspoon did not have marijuana in his system during his one-round title loss to James "Bonecrusher" Smith as was reported earlier this week by the New York State Athletic Commission, chairman Jose Torres said Friday.

"I knew I was clean," Witherspoon said in a telephone interview from his home in suburban Philadelphia. "I've been clean for a year."

Witherspoon was fined $25,000 when he tested positive for marijuana after he won the World Boxing Association title from Tony Tubbs last Jan. 17 at Atlanta. He also was ordered by the WBA to give Tubbs a rematch. Smith replaced Tubbs, who said he injured his left shoulder in training.

"It was a critical error," said Torres, who reported Wednesday that Witherspoon had tested positive for marijuana in tests before and after he was stopped in the first round last Friday night.

"Somebody made a critical error in putting 'positive' when it should have been 'negative.'"

Witherspoon said that under conditions by set the boxing commission in Atlanta he could be tested for drugs at random and that he had tested negatively in Atlanta Nov. 8.

"They could call me at any time so I had to be clean," said Witherspoon, adding he also said he passed a test the week before the fight.

Torres said he called to Witherspoon and apologized at 1:30 a.m.

"He said he appreciated me calling," Torres said.

"I think Don King and Torres are in it together," Witherspoon said.

"Don King (the promoter) is trying to blackball me." "I don't want to fight for him no more. Don is the promoter and the manager. I don't fight for Don."

Carl King, Don's son, is Witherspoon's manager of record. He also is co-manager of Smith. In the week of the fight, Witherspoon tried to get out of his managerial contract as well as the contract to fight Smith.

"They didn't take care of me," Witherspoon said.

"I do see litigation," Dennis Richard, an attorney representing Witherspoon, said by telephone from Miami.

"That's good," King said of the Witherspoon's drug clearance. The promoter who was on the set for an episode of Miami Vice, added: "I have no axe to grind, but I think he did himself irreparable harm by not being ready to fight."

"They chose to embarrass Timmy to the world by announcing to the press but not to Timmy that Timmy tested positive," said Richard. "People governing fights became involved in all of the outside controversy on the side of King."

"There were government officials involved in threats to Tim." Richard and Witherspoon contend Torres threatened Witherspoon with suspension and loss of title if he did not fight.

Richard also doesn't believe the three-knockdown rule was in effect in which a fighter knocked down three times in one round loses. Witherspoon went down for the third time at 2:12 and referee Luis Rivera invoked the three-knockdown rule.

Torres said it was made clear at the rules meeting the day before the fight that the rule was in effect and that trainer Slim Robinson signed a paper to that effect. Richard said Robinson signed nothing.

Dykes makes his debut in Independence Bowl

By Herschl Nissenson
The Associated Press

SHREVEPORT, La. — For the second year in a row, a college head coach will make his debut in the Independence Bowl Saturday night.

Until a year ago, it had only happened once — when Charley Pell left Clemson for Florida after the 1978 regular season and Danny Ford coached the Tigers to a 17-15 victory over Ohio State in the Gator Bowl.

Then Lou Holtz fled Minnesota for Notre Dame three weeks before last year's Independence Bowl and his successor, John Gutekunst, debuted with a 20-13 triumph over — ironically — Ford and Clemson.

Now, it is Texas Tech's turn. In his first season as a head coach, David McWilliams led the Red Raiders to a 7-4 record and their first bowl bid in nine years.

But earlier this month, McWilliams was hired by his alma mater, the University of Texas, to replace Fred Akers. Tech promptly gave defensive coordinator Spike Dykes a five-year contract as head coach.

Dykes was asked Friday if he would prefer that his first game as head coach were not a bowl clash with 7-3-1 Mississippi.

"I'm just glad to have a first game," he said. "It's an awkward situation, certainly, but one that comes with the territory."

McWilliams probably will be rooting for the Red Raiders — but from a distance. His departure after just one year stirred some bitterness among Tech's players and supporters and the team told him that Lubbock — and Shreveport — wasn't big enough for both of them.

Mississippi hasn't been without distractions, either, to mar its first postseason trip since the 1983 Independence Bowl.

Sports in Brief

Whalers play two on the road

HARTFORD — The Hartford Whalers (16-9-4), who are tied for first place in the Adams Division with Boston and Montreal after Thursday night's 6-5 win over the Bruins, take to the road this weekend. The Whalers will play Detroit on Saturday (7:30 p.m., Channel 61) before traveling to New York for a game with the Rangers on Sunday. Hartford returns home to the Civic Center Tuesday evening for an important Adams Division clash with the Bruins.

EC hoop, MHS wrestling tourney

The East Catholic boys' basketball team will tap off its 1986-87 season tonight on the road in Hartford against arch-rival South Catholic at 7:45 p.m. The Eagles, coming off a dismal 2-18 record last season, will try to make amends for last year's disappointing season. Manchester High will sponsor its annual holiday wrestling tournament today beginning at 10 a.m. The eight-team tournament will feature the Indians and cross-town East Catholic. The Indians are hoping to place in the top three in the highly competitive tournament. Manchester is coming off a fine 10-6-1 mark a year ago and appear just as strong this year.

MHS, East hockey action tonight

The East Catholic and Manchester High hockey teams will both be in action tonight. East will host Fairfield Prep at the Bolton Ice Palace at 8:15. Meanwhile, Manchester, 0-2, will be on the road to face Farmington High at the Hartford Arena on Route 5 in a late start at 9:45 p.m.

Little League holding sign-ups

Manchester Little League will conduct sign-ups for the 1987 season on consecutive Sundays, Jan. 4 and 11, 1987, at the American Legion Hall on Legion Drive between the hours of 1 and 4 p.m. Signups are for all children between the ages of 7 through 12. Youths must be seven before July 31, 1987 and not turn 13 after July 31, 1987. Birth certificates are required at time of registration and either a parent or guardian must accompany each youth.

League registration fee is $10 per player or $15 per immediate family. Tryouts are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, March 21 and 22, weather permitting. Anyone interested in coaching, umpiring, serving as a commissioner or in any other capacity is asked to be at the signups.

For further information, contact Ed Detorre at 643-4482 or Paul Scheinblum at 649-6470.

Sports in Brief

Quenneville out two months

HARTFORD — Defenseman Joel Quenneville of the Hartford Whalers underwent surgery for a separated right shoulder Friday and will be sidelined for two months, the NHL team announced. Surgeons at St. Francis Hospital placed a pin in Quenneville's shoulder, team spokesman Frank Pulmascsek said. Quenneville was injured when he was checked by Boston's Cam Neely and slid into the boards during the second period of a game at Boston Garden Thursday night.

Yanks deal Wynegar to Angels

NEW YORK — The New York Yankees traded catcher Butch Wynegar to the California Angels on Friday in exchange for pitcher Ron Romanick and a minor league player to be named later. The trade, which had been discussed at last week's winter meetings, was completed after Wynegar and the Yankees settled a grievance the catcher had brought against the team for placing him on the restricted list last season. Terms of the agreement were not disclosed. Wynegar, 30, was placed on the restricted list in August after leaving the team for personal reasons. In an interview earlier this month, Wynegar said the problems were caused by the pressure of playing in New York. Romanick, a 26-year-old right-hander, had a 5-8 record and a 5.50 ERA with the Angels last season before being optioned to Edmonton in the Pacific Coast League. He was 2-3 with a 5.71 ERA at Edmonton.

NFL Capsules

Green Bay (4-11) at N.Y. Giants (13-2)

12:30 p.m., Saturday, CBS
Giants have clinched NFC East title and a host spot for divisional playoffs on Jan. 3 or 4. Victory over Packers would guarantee home field advantage for the NFC championship game should New York advance. Giants never have won 14 games in a season. Packers have won two of last three, including last week's 21-7 victory over Tampa Bay. New York beat St. Louis 27-7 for eighth straight win. Packers defeated the Giants last year 23-20 to increase overall series lead to 26-18-2. Green Bay QB Randy Wright was 14 of 25 for 190 yards and ran for a 6-yard TD against Tampa Bay. Wright has thrown for 3,048 yards, fourth-highest total in club history. WR James Lofton has 64 catches for 840 yards. CB Mark Lee is tied for second in NFC with eight interceptions. Giants' Joe Morris ran for 179 yards on 28 attempts, 3 TDs against Cardinals. He is second in NFL rushing with 1,401 yards. QB Phil Simms connected on only 5 of 21 passes for 82 yards as New York. TE Mark Bavaro has 61 catches for 942 yards, breaking club record for tight ends set by Bob Tucker with 59 catches in 1971. Sean Landetta leads NFC in gross punting average (44.8 yards) and net (37.2). LB Lawrence Taylor leads NFL with 20 1/2 sacks. Giants are No. 1 in NFL against rush with 77.7 average yield.

New York Jets (10-5) at Cincinnati (9-8)

1 p.m. Sunday, NBC
New York has lost four straight but clinched at least wild card spot in playoffs. Cincinnati has won 7 of 11, but must beat Jets in hopes of getting playoff berth. If New England loses to Miami Monday night, then Jets are AFC East champions. Bengals need a loss by either Patriots or Chiefs to make first postseason trip since 1982. Jets have qualified for playoffs four times in past six seasons. They have won three in row over Cincinnati and lead series 7-3. Last week, Jets lost to Pittsburgh 45-24. Bengals lost AFC Central showdown with Cleveland 34-3. New York RB Freeman McNeil gained 137 yards on 23 carries vs. Pittsburgh. QB Ken O'Brien completed 20 of 30 passes for 197 yards, with three interceptions and one TD. TE Mickey Shuler caught 8 passes for 69 yards. Jets' defense gave up 28 fourth-quarter points vs. Pittsburgh. Dave Jennings had four punts, giving him 1,084 in career to break John James' NFL-record 1,083. PK Pat Leahy became 12th kicker to reach 1,000 points. Bengals' QB Boomer Esiason connected on 14 of 31 passes for 151 yards with two interceptions vs. Browns. RB James Brooks gained 43 yards on 12 carries and 75 yards on 7 receptions. He passed the 1,000-yard rushing mark (1,000) for first time. Bengals lead AFC in rushing (155.2 per game). Offensive line has given up 26 sacks this season compared with 41 last year.

Kansas City (9-6) at Pittsburgh (6-9)

1 p.m. Sunday, NBC
Kansas City can clinch first playoff berth since 1971 by beating Steelers. A New England loss Monday night would mean a wild card host spot for Kansas City. Pittsburgh leads series 9-4, including a 36-28 win over Chiefs last season when Gary Anderson kicked 5 FGs. Steelers have won four straight in Three Rivers Stadium and five of last eight (two of three losses were in OT). Chiefs set themselves up for playoff spot and allowed Jets to back in with 20-17 win over Los Angeles Raiders. Pittsburgh beat Jets 45-24 with 28 fourth-quarter points. Kansas City produced seven turnovers (four interceptions, three fumbles) to preserve win. Chiefs QB Bill Kenney was 15 of 31 passing for 180 yards and 1 TD. WR Stephone Paige caught four passes for 53 yards, including 26-yard TD. His 21 TDs over past two seasons are most by any NFL wide receiver. S Deron Cherry and CB Kevin Ross each had two interceptions against Raiders. Cherry's 9 interceptions tie for NFL lead. Chiefs' 30 interceptions lead AFC. Chiefs have had 12 takeaways (8 interceptions, 4 fumbles) and only one fumble in last 2 weeks. Pittsburgh's Earnest Jackson rushed 23 times for 101 yards against Jets. Mark Malone completed 16 of 27 passes for 189 yards and 2 TDs with one interception. WR John Stallworth caught 5 passes for 94 yards. KR-CB Lupe Sanchez leads AFC with 25.5 kickoff return average. Steelers have given up only 19 sacks this season.

Buffalo (4-11) at Houston (4-11)

1 p.m. Sunday, NBC
Bills looking for only second road victory in past 25 games, while Oilers try and match last season's 5-11 finish. Houston leads series vs. Buffalo, 17-9, but has lost last two meetings, including 20-0 decision last season. Oilers Coach Jerry Glanville was Bills' assistant in '83. Last week, Bills lost to Indianapolis 24-14, while Oilers knocked Minnesota out of playoff contention 23-10. Bills' Jim Kelly threw for 188 yards on 11 of 19 passing with a TD and an interception vs. Colts. Kelly is 261 of 441 for 3,332 yards, 20 TDs and 15 interceptions in his first NFL season. WR Chris Burkett caught 5 passes for 145 yards and a 42-yard TD. WR Andre Reed had 6 receptions for 87 yards. Seven of Bills' 11 losses have been by a TD or less. Houston's Tony Zendejas kicked 3 FGs and defense had six turnovers vs. Minnesota. Warren Moon hit on 22 of 37 passes for 280 yards and 1 TD. WR Ernest Givins caught 6 for 108 yards and has 1,013 yards on 59 receptions. Oilers have No. 2 pass defense in AFC (184.5-yard average yield) and have held opposing quarterbacks to 45.2 percent of their passes. Defense has held opponents to under 200 yards passing in 10 of 15 games.

Atlanta (6-8-1) at Detroit (5-10)

1 p.m. Sunday, CBS
Lions beat Falcons 28-27 last season for 12-4 series lead. Last week, Atlanta lost to New Orleans 14-9, while Detroit lost to Chicago 16-13. Falcons' Turk Schonert completed 24 of 36 passes for 238 yards, 1 TD with two interceptions vs. Saints. Gerald Riggs in third among NFL rushers with 332 carries for 1,302 yards. Falcons are second in NFL rushing with 160.3-yards per game. WR Charlie Brown has 60 catches for 983 yards. C Jeff Van Note will retire following Sunday's game after playing 245 games with Falcons, second to Minnesota's Jim Marshall (270) for most with one team. Lions QB Chuck Long, making his first start, threw for 167 yards, 1 TD with one interception vs. Chicago. Detroit gained only 56 yards rushing against Chicago. WR Leonard Thompson had four receptions for 54 yards. WR Jeff Chadwick has 53 catches for 995 yards, but suffered a bruised leg against Chicago.

Tampa Bay (2-13) at St. Louis (3-11-1)

1 p.m. Sunday, CBS
Bucs have a six-game losing streak and a loss at St. Louis would assure them of second consecutive No. 1 NFL draft pick. Tampa Bay leads series 3-1, including a 16-0 win over Cardinals in '85. Both teams come off losses, Tampa Bay to Green Bay 21-7 and St. Louis to the New York Giants 27-7. Blocked punt by Bucs' Ivory Sully vs. Green Bay was third in club history. Steve Young completed 10 of 20 passes for 104 yards with one interception before yielding to backup Steve DeBerg. Young leads NFL quarterbacks with 5 rushing TDs. St. Louis' Neil Lomax was 20 of 27 passing for 153 yards with one interception vs. Giants. WR Roy Green caught 5 passes for 40 yards. Earl Ferrell had 5 receptions for 34 yards, giving him 54, most ever by a Cardinals' fullback.

Washington (11-4) at Philadelphia (5-9-1)

1 p.m. Sunday, CBS
Redskins will host wild card playoff game and await loser of Los Angeles Rams-San Francisco 49ers showdown. Eagles hold three-game unbeaten streak, including wins over Raiders and Dallas. Redskins lost to Denver 31-30 last week, while Philadelphia overcame Cowboys 23-21. Washington's Jay Schroeder completed 15 of 33 passes for 285 yards, 2 TDs with two interceptions vs. Denver. George Rogers rushed for 93 yards on 24 carries. WR Art Monk had 6 receptions for 129 yards. WR Gary Clark is questionable for Eagles with ankle injury. Redskins have won 30 straight games when one of its running backs gains 100 yards. DE Dexter Manley has 17 1/2 sacks, second in NFL. Eagles' Matt Cavanaugh threw for 260 yards on 15 of 27, with one interception and 2 TDs to WR Kenny Jackson. Jackson had decisive 31-yard TD with just under four minutes left to clinch victory. DE Reggie White had three sacks against Dallas for 17 overall. Keith Byars led the rushing attack with 14 carries for 41 yards.

New England (10-5) at Miami (6-7)

9 p.m. Monday, ABC
Crucial game for both teams: Despite 10-5 record, Patriots need to win to be assured of playoff spot. Miami will know by Sunday whether it can make the playoffs. A New England win would clinch first AFC East title since '78; Patriots still could be wild card team with a loss, but would need a combination of two losses by Cincinnati, Seattle or Kansas City. For wild card berth, Miami must beat Patriots and hope for losses by Raiders, Cincinnati, Seattle and Kansas City. This will be final game for Dolphins in Orange Bowl. Miami will play in Dolphin Stadium next season. Miami is second to Raiders in Monday night victories (24-22). Patriots Coach Raymond Berry has 18-3 mark against AFC East teams, including 31-14 win over Dolphins in '85 AFC championship game at Orange Bowl. Patriots beat Dolphins 34-7 Oct. 5 to narrow Miami's series lead to 25-16. Last week, New England lost second straight game, 29-24, to San Francisco, while Miami beat Rams 34-31 in OT. Patriots' Tony Eason connected on 22 of 37 passes for 227 yards, with two interceptions and one TD. WR Stanley Morgan caught 3 passes for 121 yards. He has 8 100-yard games this season and leads AFC with 1,343 yards on 76 catches, 8 TDs. PK Tony Franklin leads NFL with 130 points. Dolphins' Dan Marino completed 29 of 46 passes for 403 yards, 5 TDs and one interception vs. Rams. WR Mark Duper had 5 catches for 145 yards and 3 TDs. WR Mark Clayton had 4 receptions for 84 yards. Duper has 63 for 1,245, 11 TDs and Clayton has 55 for 1,056, 8 TDs. Miami leads NFL in passing offense (300.9 yards per game) and total offense (385.7).

Denver (11-4) at Seattle (9-6)

4 p.m. Saturday, NBC
Denver has clinched AFC West title and will host all conference playoff games prior to Super Bowl if it wins and Cleveland loses. Seattle must win, plus hope for losses from any two teams among New England, Cincinnati and Kansas City, to gain wild card berth. Broncos have won four division titles in past 10 years. They lead overall series 12-7 and beat Seahawks 20-13 Oct. 26. Denver beat Washington last Saturday 31-30, while Seattle won fourth straight, 34-24, over San Diego. Denver QB John Elway connected on 20 of 35 passes for 282 yards, and passed for one TD and ran for one. RB Sammy Winder had two second-half TDs. RB Gerald Willhite leads club with 58 catches for 483 yards and is second in AFC with 11.1 punt return average. DE Rulon Jones leads club with 13 1/2 sacks, tied for third in AFC. Denver is 11-0 in 1986 when it scores 20 or more points. Broncos' defense is No. 1 in AFC against the rush. Seahawks QB David Krieg was 15 of 21 for 305 yards and 4 TDs, including 10 of 10 in one stretch vs. San Diego. WR Steve Largent caught 6 passes for 96 yards, 2 TDs vs. Chargers. He became third player in NFL history to gain over 11,000 yards (11,028). Curt Warner rushed for 83 yards on 28 carries and leads AFC with 1,289 yards. KR Bobby Joe Edmonds leads NFL with 12.9-yard average.

New Orleans (7-8) at Minnesota (8-7)

1 p.m. Sunday, CBS
New Orleans is looking to tie best mark in club history ('79 and '83), while Minnesota win would give team best record since 9-7 in '80. Last week, Saints beat Atlanta 14-9, while Minnesota was eliminated from playoff contention, 23-10 by Houston. Vikings lead series 8-4, but New Orleans won last meeting 30-23, in '85. Saints QB David Wilson scored on a 9-yard bootleg with 1:55 left to beat Falcons. Wilson was 13 of 23 passing for 170 yards with one interception. Rueben Mayes rushed for 51 yards on 27 carries. He is fourth among NFL rushers with 1,292 yards. LB Rickey Jackson had four sacks against Falcons. Morten Andersen needs 4 FGs (106 made) to qualify for NFL career field goal accuracy (96 of 120 for 80 percent). CB Dave Waymer is tied for league lead with 9 interceptions. Vikings' Tommy Kramer is NFC's top-rated passer (208 of 372 for 3,000 yards, 24 TDs, 10 interceptions). Wade Wilson replaced the injured Kramer and completed 11 of 27 passes for 147 yards with 3 interceptions. WR Anthony Carter had 6 catches for 86 yards. TE Steve Jordan, held without a catch against Houston, has 51 for 774 yards, 4 TDs. Vikings lead NFC with 365 points, including a league-leading 142 in first quarter.

NFL Capsules

Indianapolis (2-13) at L.A. Raiders (6-7)

4 p.m. Sunday, NBC
Raiders have slim chance to become wild card team; They must beat Colts and hope for losses by Kansas City, Seattle and Cincinnati. Indianapolis has won two straight after 13 consecutive losses. Los Angeles has won last four games over Indianapolis and leads series 4-2. Ron Meyer got his second win as Colts' coach, 24-14, over Buffalo. Raiders lost to Kansas City 20-17 for third loss in a row. Colts' Gary Hogeboom completed 23 of 33 passes for 318 yards and 2 TDs. WR Matt Bouza had 7 receptions for 79 yards. For the season, he has 69 catches and 804 yards. WR Bill Brooks has caught 59 passes for 1,046 yards, 7 TDs. Rohn Stark leads NFL in gross punting average (44.8 yards). Raiders couldn't overcome seven turnovers (4 interceptions, 3 fumbles) vs. Kansas City. Jim Plunkett passed for 143 yards (15 of 29) and one TD. TE Todd Christensen caught 4 passes for 32 yards and leads NFL with 86 catches for 1,049 yards, 6 TDs. S Vann McElroy is third in AFC with 7 interceptions. Raiders lead NFL with 60 sacks and DE Sean Jones leads team with 13 1/2. Los Angeles tops AFC in total defense with 292.9-yard average yield.

Chicago (13-2) at Dallas (7-8)

4 p.m. Sunday, CBS
Chicago is the NFC Central champion for the third straight year and will host the Rams, 49ers or Redskins in the division playoffs Jan. 3 or 4. Dallas will have a non-winning record for the first time in 22 seasons. Dallas leads series 10-4, but Chicago routed the Cowboys 44-0 last season. Win over Dallas, plus Giants' loss to Green Bay, would give Chicago home-field advantage throughout playoffs. Last week, Bears beat Detroit 16-13. Dallas lost to Philadelphia 23-21. Chicago has No. 1 defense in NFL with 258-yard average yield and has allowed an NFL-low 177 points. Bears have given up only one TD in 13 games this season and no rushing TDs in last eight games. Doug Flutie (13 of 24, 130 yards, 1 interception) saw action vs. Detroit when starter Mike Tomczak left game with bruised knee early in first quarter. He will start against Cowboys. Walter Payton rushed 19 times for 83 yards. Kevin Butler had 3 FGs, including 22-yard game-winner with no time remaining. He leads NFC with 114 points. Dallas RB Herschel Walker had 292 combined yards with 8 rushes for 122 and 9 receptions for 170. 2 TDs, vs. Philadelphia. Walker has 1,541 combined yards this season (807 receiving, 734 rushing). Mike Saxon has put 27 punts inside opponents' 20-yard line to lead NFL.

San Diego (4-11) at Cleveland (11-4)

1 p.m. Sunday, NBC
Browns won second consecutive AFC Central title by beating Cincinnati 34-3 last week. Cleveland can clinch home-field advantage throughout playoffs with win over Chargers. San Diego lost to Seattle last week 34-24. Browns have won 10 of last 12, including four straight. Cleveland has won past two meetings between clubs to cut Chargers' series lead to 5-4-1. Chargers' Dan Fouts completed 21 of 38 passes for 237 yards, one TD and one interception vs. Seattle. He is second all-time in pass attempts (5,212) and yards (40,287). TE Kellen Winslow caught 8 passes for 105 yards, one TD. Gary Anderson leads AFC running backs with 71 catches for 766 yards, 7 TDs. San Diego is second in NFL with 59 sacks. DE Lee Williams leads AFC with 15. Browns held Bengals to 223 yards after Cincinnati had averaged 450 yards and 29 points previous five weeks. Bernie Kosar connected on 13 of 29 passes for 246 yards and 1 TD. RB Kevin Mack rushed 23 times for 93 yards and two 1-yard TDs. WR Webster Slaughter caught 3 passes for 75 yards, including a 47-yard TD and a fumble recovery in end zone for a TD. Slaughter has at least one reception in every game this season. Cleveland is 10-1 when it scores 20 or more points in a game, 6-0 when it rushes for over 100 yards.

Giants, Broncos look to gain home field edge for playoffs

By Rick Warner
The Associated Press

The New York Giants and Denver Broncos will try to gain homefield advantage throughout the NFL playoffs with victories Saturday in their final games of the regular season.

The Giants have clinched the NFC East title but need a win over the Green Bay Packers or a loss by the Chicago Bears on this final weekend to get the home field edge should they make it to the NFC title game.

The Broncos, champions of the AFC West, can claim the home field throughout the playoffs with a victory over Seattle and a loss by the Cleveland Browns. The last weekend of the regular season began Friday night when the Los Angeles Rams played the San Francisco 49ers for the NFC West title. Sunday's schedule has Buffalo at Houston, Indianapolis at the Los Angeles Raiders, Kansas City at Pittsburgh, the New York Jets at Cincinnati, San Diego at Cleveland, Atlanta at Detroit, Chicago at Dallas, New Orleans at Minnesota, Tampa Bay at St. Louis and Washington at Philadelphia.

NFL Roundup

The regular season ends Monday night when New England visits Miami in a game that will determine the AFC East champion. The Giants have won eight straight to raise their record to 13-2, but they are not expecting an easy game against the 4-11 Packers in East Rutherford, N.J. "You have to be ready to play, especially against this team and that offense," wide receiver Phil McConkey said. "They have some weapons."

One of the Packers' main weapons, wide receiver James Lofton, will not play Saturday. Coach Forrest Gregg suspended the nine-year veteran on Thursday after he was arrested and accused of sexually assaulting a woman. Lofton was released on $10,000 bail pending formal charges next week. At Seattle, 11-4 Denver faces a hot Seahawks team that has an outside shot at the playoffs. The 9-6 Seahawks, who have won four straight, must beat the Broncos and hope for two losses among the Patriots, Chiefs and Bengals to gain a wild-card berth.

Seattle quarterback Dave Krieg has completed 67 percent of his passes, including nine touchdown tosses, during the winning stretch. "I can't really come up with any one reason why we're playing so well now and why we weren't playing very well earlier," he said. The NFC already has its five playoff teams, but two spots remain open in the AFC. The remaining berths will be largely determined by the outcome of three Sunday games — Chiefs-Steelers, Jets-Bengals and Colts-Raiders. Kansas City, 9-6, can clinch its first playoff berth since 1971 by beating 6-9 Pittsburgh. If the Chiefs lose, they can still make the playoffs if the Raiders, Bengals, Seahawks and Dolphins lose.

The 10-5 Jets will try to halt a four-game losing streak before heading into the playoffs. Tight end Mickey Shuler said the team has something to prove. "A lot has happened the past four weeks to hurt our image around the country," he said. If the Dolphins lose Monday night, the Jets win the AFC East title. Otherwise, they enter the playoffs as a wild card.

Sabres upset the Canadiens

NHL Roundup

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Mike Foligno, returning to the lineup after a five-game absence with a bruised kidney, scored two goals Friday night to spark the Buffalo Sabres to a 3-2 NHL victory over the Montreal Canadiens.

The loss prevented Montreal from taking over sole possession of first place in the tight Adams Division race. Montreal entered the game tied for first with the Boston Bruins and Hartford Whalers with 36 points apiece.

It was the first victory for Buffalo in four meetings with Montreal this season. The Canadiens had beaten the Sabres twice and skated to a tie in another game with Buffalo in three previous meetings.

John Tucker put Buffalo in front 1-0 at 8:23 of the first period with a 10-foot shot after taking a pass in front of the net from Dave Andreychuk.

Devils 6, Capitals 4

At East Rutherford, N.J., Kirk Muller and John MacLean scored 19 seconds apart early in the third period to snap a tie and lead the New Jersey Devils to a 6-4 NHL victory over the slumping Washington Capitals Friday night.

Mel Bridgman scored two goals and added an assist as the Devils won their third straight and their first in 15 games against Washington goalie Al Jensen, now 13-1-1 versus New Jersey.

The loss was the fourth straight for the Capitals and came in a game in which they scored three goals on three shots in the opening 1:21.

Muller snapped a 4-4 tie at 1:09 of the final period, beating Jensen with a 15-foot shot to the glove side.

MacLean stretched the lead to two goals, taking an Aaron Broten pass off the skates of Washington's Gaetan Duchesne and beating Jensen from 10 feet.

The opening 22 minutes produced eight goals and a 4-4 tie that was highlighted by Washington's big burst against Devils goalie Alain Chevrier.

The game-opening goals by David Jensen, Greg Adams and Mike Gartner were the only shots Chevrier faced and he was quickly yanked and replaced by rookie Kirk MacLean, who stopped 23 of 24 shot the rest of the way in recording his second NHL victory.

MHS misses opportunities and drops 1986-87 opener

WINDHAM — It was a game of missed opportunities for the Manchester High boys' basketball team in its 1986-87 opener. The Indians were a poor 5-for-16 from the foul line and that proved disastrous as they fell to host Windham High, 64-53, in CCC East Division play Friday night.

"It wasn't that they hurt us but rather we had opportunities to pull ahead by 4-5 points and didn't take advantage of them," cited Manchester second-year coach Frank Kinel.

Kinel illustrated his point by noting the Indians were a poor 1-for-9 from the charity stripe in the third period. That's when Windham went from a 29-28 halftime deficit to a 41-38 advantage. Manchester could never recover from falling behind at this point.

"We shot terrible," Kinel understated. "We were ahead or tied in the third quarter but we missed a lot of foul shots and they're too good of a team to let off the hook."

Windham was one of the pre-season picks in the CCC East along with East Hartford High and Hartford Public.

Any hopes Manchester had of coming back in the fourth quarter were dashed by Mike Allen, who hit his last 6 foul shots in succession. Allen finished with a game-high 23 points, including three 3-pointers from the 19-foot, 9-inch line. Windham hit four 3-point shots while Manchester's Mike Lata had a pair.

Windham had a 17-15 lead after one period before the Indians took the upper hand after 16 minutes of play. But Manchester's inability to hit from the foul line, along with the field, proved its undoing.

Jacques Olmet was also in double digits from Windham with 16 points. Bruce Rosenberg had 13 points and played a steady game to lead Manchester. Lata and Rob Greene were also in double figures for the Indians with 12 and 10 points, respectively. Greene, however, was a woeful 0-for-8 from the foul line that hurt the Indians' cause.

Manchester is back in action Tuesday night in its home debut at Clarke Arena against Glastonbury High in Intradivision play at 7:30.

WINDHAM (46) — Henry Hunter 0-1-2, Jacques Olmet 8-0-16, Ken Valliere 1-2-2, Mike Allen 6-8-23, Jim Hunter 2-3-6, Stan Ryboz 2-0-4, Joe Wynn 1-0-2, Pete Vanderholde 2-4-6, Fernando Tirodo 0-1-2, Totals 23-14-24.

MANCHESTER (33) — Matt Vaughn 2-0-4, Troy Peters 1-0-2, Bruce Rosenberg 6-1-23, Mike Lata 5-0-21, Paris Coles 3-0-6, Rob Greene 5-0-10, Jason Stonefield 2-2-2, Cinque Barlow 1-2-4, Totals 23-14-23.

3-point field goals: Manchester-Lata (2), Windham-Allen (3), J.Hunter (1).

Bolton topped

CROMWELL — With John Dillon hitting for all 17 of his points in the second period, including three, 3-point field goals, Cromwell High overpowered Bolton High, 62-33, in the Charter Oak Conference basketball opener for both schools Friday night.

It was a slow-starting affair with the host Panthers holding a 7-3 lead after one period. But with Dillon showing the way, Cromwell moved to a 34-12 lead at halftime. Bolton missed 7 of 10 foul shots in the second quarter to see what could have been a closer game, widen considerably.

"Dillon was hitting some from downtown," admired Bolton coach Craig Phillips, who noted his own club wound up 14-for-50 from the field. "We had a disappointing first half. We had some shots we should have made. But you can't do anything if you have good shots and don't score," he added.

Cromwell's lead was 47-26 after three quarters of play.

Jon Woods and Dan Grace were also in double figures for Cromwell with 16 and 13 points, respectively. Mike Yavinsky paced Bolton with 12 points. "We played better in the second half," Phillips noted.

Bolton is back in action Tuesday night against non-conference foe Valley Regional in Deep River in a 7:30 start.

CROMWELL (42) — Don Grace 5-3-13, Leif Dana 0-2-2, Steve Alsop 0-0-0, Jon Woods 8-0-16, Mark Corroll 1-2-4, John Dillon 5-4-17, Shelby Jones 1-2-7, Peter Khong 0-0-0, Tom Reilly 1-0-12, James Perry 1-0-2, Totals 23-13-62.

3-point field goals: Cromwell-Dillon (3).

Coventry wins

COVENTRY — Rallying in the second half, Coventry High topped cold shooting Vinal Tech, 62-43, in the Charter Oak Conference opener for both boys' basketball teams Friday night.

Vinal led, 32-30, at halftime before the Patriots took command in the third period. Vinal went ice cold from the field and foul line, shooting a poor 3-for-10 from the latter. "We couldn't hit anything in the second half," said Vinal coach Todd Salva.

Jon Seymour led the Patriots with 15 points with sophomore guard Jack Ayer adding 14. Ayer fired home four 3-point field goals among his five from the floor.

Frank James led Vinal with 12 points.

Coventry's next outing is Monday at home against E.O. Smith.

COVENTRY (42) — Jon Seymour 7-15, Rich Reagon 3-0-6, Larry Walsh 2-0-4, Jason Garick 3-0-6, Keith Breault 1-3-5, Jack Ayer 5-0-14, Robert Gibbs 5-0-10, Ron Gardner 1-0-2, Totals 26-4-62.

VINAL TECH (43) — Cedric Young 4-0-10, Paul Serrre 3-2-9, Frank James 3-6-12, Mike Scianno 2-0-4, Rich Reynolds 0-1-1, Jay Mounts 2-1-7, Totals 14-11-43.

3-point field goals: Vinal-Young (2), Mounts (2); Coventry-Ayer (4).

Girls Basketball

MHS thumped

"We're young and we're going to take our bumps against good teams," said first-year Manchester High girls' basketball coach Joe DePasqua after his Indians were thumped by Windham High, 55-33, Friday night in the CCC East Division opener for both clubs at Clarke Arena.

Windham is now 3-0 overall while the Indians are 0-3 for the season.

Manchester is back in action Tuesday night at Glastonbury High.

Windham had a 19-7 lead after one period and spread it to 31-13 at halftime.

"They were just much bigger and better than us," said DePasqua. "We couldn't box them out. They were getting a lot of second and third shots," he added.

"They're a good team and well coached," DePasqua said of Windham. "We're young and it's just going to take some time."

One area Manchester showed improvement in was in the turnover department. The Indians had 22 against the Whippets, nine less than what they had been averaging. "We still have to cut it down more," DePasqua said.

Piper Beaudette and Colleen Healy each netted 12 points for Windham. Junior guard Val Holden, on 8-for-9 shooting from the floor, had a game-high 16 points for Manchester. Anna Riggio had 6 rebounds for the Indians.

WINDHAM (33) — Heather Webb 1-2-4, Colleen Healy 5-2-12, Laura Smith 2-4-6, Mel Moreau 5-0-10, Kim Teller 2-0-4, April Hunt 1-3-5, Piper Beaudette 6-0-12, Kristin Coleman 1-0-2, Deb Shaw 0-0-0, Totals 21-8-18-55.

MANCHESTER (33) — Kris Cool 0-0-0, Anne Riggio 16-2-2, Val Holden 8-0-16, Kris Volzins 1-0-2, Barb O'Brien 1-0-2, Jen Fober 0-0-0, Jen Mistrutto 0-0-0, Lisa Corlier 1-3-4, Kristie White 0-0-0, Totals 15-3-33.

East upended

Both clubs experienced cold spells early on. Berlin High was the first to warm up, and that proved to be the difference as the visiting Redcoats downed East Catholic, 53-40, in non-conference girls' basketball action Friday night at the Eagles' Nest.

Berlin is now 2-0 for the season while the loss drops the Eagles to 2-1 for the campaign. East is back in action at home Monday night at 7 against All Connecticut Conference rival St. Bernard.

Berlin had an 8-4 lead after one quarter and 25-21 bulge at the half. Its margin went to 38-32 after three periods. East was able to bring the Redcoats lead down to six points late in the game, but couldn't come any closer.

"We got ourselves in a hole and couldn't come back," said East coach Donna Ridel. "We were quicker than them but we had some mental lapses and they scored some easy baskets."

Robyn Treveltham and Tammy Borkowski each had 15 points to lead Berlin. Karen Mozdzierz led East, also with 15 points, while Amelia Bearse added 10 for the Eagles. Theresa McCreedy and Katy Fisher each grabbed 5 rebounds for the Eagles.

BERLIN (53) — Robyn Treveltham 7-1-2, Tammy Borkowski 5-5-15, Maria Cruby 2-9-13, Debbie Larson 3-0-1-6, Curtis Reibling 0-4-4, Stacey Saules 0-0-0, Totals 17-19-27-55.

Cheney Tech guard Tom Dowd (32) gets ready to launch a shot in Friday night's game against East Hampton. The Bellringers' Dennis Mann (25) tries to get in Dowd's path. Cheney won the opening contest for both schools, 61-60.

Cheney opens with a win

By Jim Tierney
Herald Sports Writer

Cheney Tech basketball coach Aaron Silvia couldn't have asked for a better ending for his club's opening contest Friday night against Charter Oak Conference foe East Hampton.

Junior Willie Ortiz' follow-up shot off a Tom Dowd shot with two seconds remaining lifted the home-state Beavers to a dramatic come-from-behind 61-60 victory over the Bellringers. Ironically, for Ortiz, the winning basket was his only two points of the second half.

"He (Ortiz) was doing a strong job rebounding," Silvia remarked. "That was his strength all game, putting in the rebound. We were very lucky to win." Ortiz finished the game with 11 points — one of five Beavers to hit double figures — and had a game-high 11 rebounds. Cheney, which hadn't led in the contest since the first quarter (17-16), trailed by as many as seven points in the fourth quarter before its final rally. Two free throws by Dowd with 31 seconds left brought the Beavers to within one, 60-59.

Cheney was then forced to foul East Hampton and sent Dave Videll to the line with 13 seconds to go. Videll missed the front end of a one-and-one opportunity and Dowd aced down court with the ball. Dowd launched a running right-hander which caromed off the backboard to a perfectly positioned Ortiz stationed directly in front of the basket, and he promptly dropped the ball through the hoop with two seconds left on the clock for the game-winner.

Silvia, who watched his team play catchup all game, felt his team would finally get over the hump against the under-sized Bellringers. "I thought it would be a matter of time, but I didn't think it would be in the last four seconds."

The Beavers, led by Mack Hawkins' six first-quarter points came out of the gate quickly against East Hampton and led by as many as five points in the opening stanza. However, a three-point play by East Hampton's Dan Lawless and a hoop by Craig Hyland to end the quarter gave the Bellringers an 18-17 lead after the first turn.

"We had far too many turnovers," Silvia said. Cheney's front line of the 6-foot-3 inch Ortiz, 6-5 sophomore center Terrance Phillip, and 6-2 senior Troy Norman gave the Beavers the necessary size inside, however, they were unable to utilize it (size) to its fullest. "We didn't make advantage of our mismatches," Dan Emmen and Hyland paced

East Hampton with 8 and 7 points, respectively, in the first half, and led at intermission, 29-27. East Hampton inched its lead to three points, 39-36, after three quarters, however, Cheney went into the bonus situation at the 2:36 mark of the third stanza. Phillip asserted himself in the second half by scoring 10 of his 12 points after intermission.

Dowd, who led Cheney with 15 points, scored 10 of those in the fourth quarter. Also hitting double figures for Cheney was Troy Norman with 11 points and Hawkins added 10. Emmen led the visitors with 15.

"I think it was a big win," Silvia said. Cheney was very confident heading into this season and wants to improve on its 6-14 record a year ago. "I think early in the season they'll need some wins to confirm it (confidence). These were the games we lost last year. It (the win) might make them think they're different."

Celts routed by the 76ers

NBA Roundup

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Julius Erving got right to the point.

Erving scored 24 points to lead the Philadelphia 76ers to a 122-100 rout of the NBA defending champion Boston Celtics Friday night.

He wasn't surprised at the margin of victory over the Sixers' bitter rivals.

"They are not blitzing the league this season," Erving said of Boston. "They're a beatable team. We're able to succeed against them."

Roy Hinson added 21 points, 13 in the final period, and Charles Barkley recorded a triple-double with 15 points, 11 assists and 14 rebounds as the 76ers snapped a four-game losing streak.

Philadelphia, winning its second triumph in three games with Boston this season, pulled away from the Celtics with a 10-2 surge in the final period. It boosted Philadelphia to a 103-85 lead with 7:04 left.

Erving noted that seven of the Sixers scored in double figures, and he said it meant a team meeting Thursday had produced the desired result.

"We had some guys playing so-so, some not playing at all. Tonight, everybody played well and that's what it takes to win."

"We recaptured the things we were doing earlier. The coaches put in some new things, and Boston didn't respond to them too well."

"And the crowd (a sellout 17,967) got into the game. Even at the end, when we had a 22-point lead, they were screaming, 'Kill 'em!' What do they want?"

Boston Coach K.C. Jones said "timing is everything. We couldn't get untracked. Hinson, (Cliff) Robinson and Erving had great games."

"Erving was really flying. It just wasn't a good game (for us). You get those sometimes."

Kevin McHale scored 26 points to lead the Celtics, followed by 21 by Robert Parish and 20 by Larry Bird. Philadelphia led 28-21 after one period and 57-49 after the first half.

Boston rallied early in the third quarter to pull within 65-63 with 6:04 left. But Philadelphia came back with a 12-4 rally to lead 77-67 and was in front 86-79 starting the final period.

Pistons 114, Spurs 84

At Pontiac, Mich., Adrian Dantley and Isiah Thomas led a third-quarter surge Friday night that lifted the Detroit Pistons to a 114-84 NBA victory over San Antonio, the Spurs' lowest output of the season.

The Spurs led by as many as 16 points in the first quarter. But Detroit, behind Dantley's 10 points, chipped away in the second quarter and trailed 53-51 at the half.

Dantley, who finished with a game-high 26 points, scored the Pistons' first seven points in the third quarter and gave Detroit its first lead, 58-57, on a three-point play with 10:12 remaining in the period. With Thomas scoring 10 of his 14 points in the remainder of the third quarter, Detroit took an 88-70 lead into the final period and eventually built its advantage to 104-74.

Jazz 134, Cavaliers 128

At Richfield, Ohio, Darrell Griffith scored 38 points, including a three-point shot to tie the game with one second left in regulation time, as the Utah Jazz defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 134-128 in a double overtime NBA game Friday night.

Ron Harper, who finished with 29 points, had put Cleveland ahead 113-110 on a long jump shot with five seconds left in regulation before Griffith sank his game-tying basket with three Cavaliers surrounding him.

Griffith was one of six Jazz players to come off the bench and combine for 77 points.

Mavericks 141, Nuggets 118

At Dallas, Mark Aguirre scored a season-high 33 points, 11 of them in a fourth-quarter Dallas spurt, as the Mavericks defeated the Denver Nuggets 141-118 in an NBA game Friday night.

Aguirre's surge led a 27-9 run that gave Dallas a 129-111 lead with 4:33 left. The two teams had entered the final quarter tied at 102.

49ERS NFC WEST CHAMPS

SAN FRANCISCO — Joe Montana threw two touchdown passes and rookie cornerback Tim McKyer made two interceptions Friday night as the San Francisco 49ers claimed the NFC Western Division title with a 24-14 victory over the Los Angeles Rams.

The 49ers, who finished 10-5-1, overtook the Rams, 10-6, in the division race by winning their final three games. Los Angeles goes into the NFL playoffs as a wild-card entry and will play the Redskins in Washington on Dec. 28.

The 49ers' convincing victory in the nationally televised season finale avenged an early season 16-13 loss to the Rams in the first of eight games Montana missed because of a back injury requiring surgery. He completed 23 of 36 passes for 238 yards and also made a 17-yard run, his longest of the season.

Montana, the quarterback who has taken the team to two Super Bowl championships, hit Jerry Rice on a 44-yard touchdown pass in the first period soon after the 49ers opened the scoring on a 30-yard field goal by Ray Wersching.

Safety Vince Newsome's interception set up a Rams' touchdown early in the second period. Eric Dickerson, the NFL rushing leader, ran 15 yards for the TD but managed only 68 yards in the game for a season total of 1,821.

The 49ers made their lead 17-7 before halftime with a 92-yard drive. Montana's first pass on the drive was dropped, but then he went 5-for-5 on the march which ended with Joe Cribbs' 2-yard touchdown run.

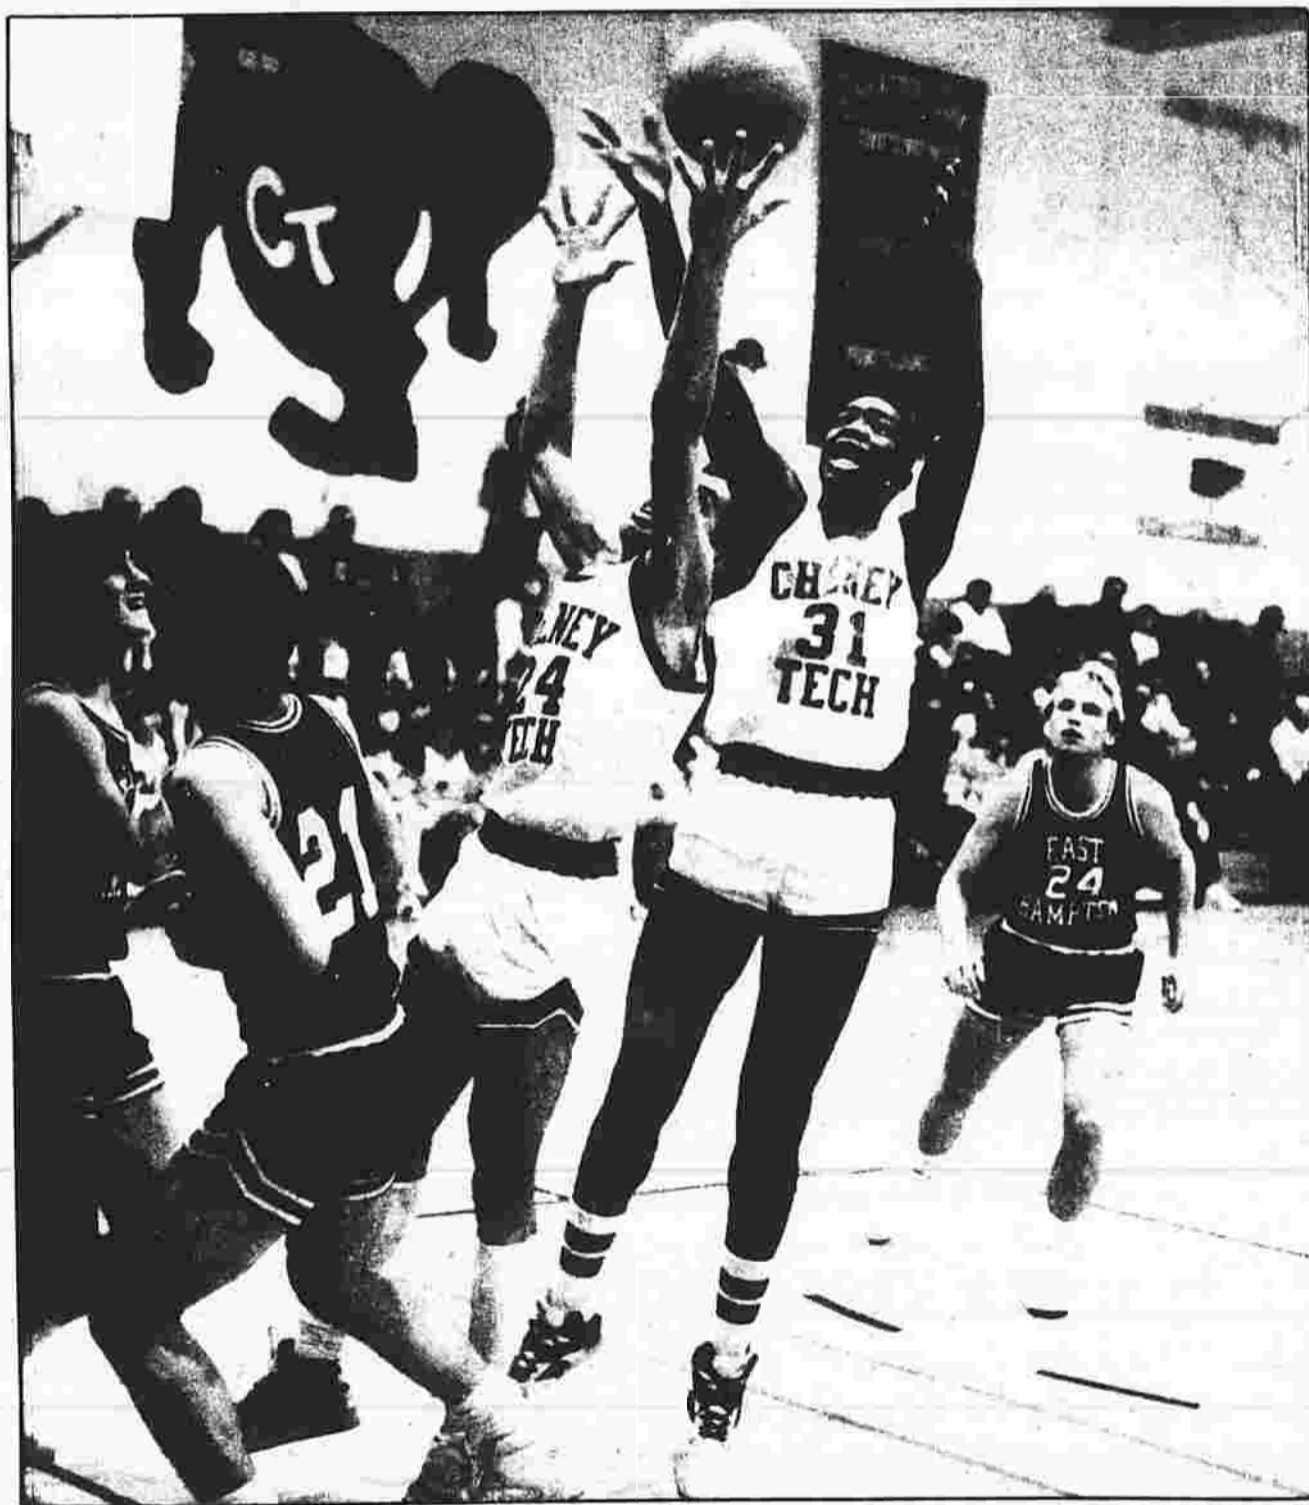

Tight end Russ Francis made a one-handed catch of a 1-yard pass from Montana in the third period for his first touchdown of the season. That touchdown came after McKyer's diving interception and 11-yard return.

The 49ers protected their 24-7 lead with two more interceptions, by McKyer and safety Ronnie Lott, off rookie quarterback Jim Everett late in the third period.

Everett threw a 13-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Michael Young, concluding a 68-yard drive, with 4:31 remaining in the game.

San Francisco, which trailed the Rams by 1½ games with three weeks left in the regular season, was rewarded with a longer rest as well as its fourth division title in six years.

The 49ers will be off until taking to the road to play either the Chicago Bears or New York Giants in a conference semifinal game the weekend of Jan. 3-4.

Iran get for

By Susanne M. Schafers
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate panel investigating arms sales to Iran might limit immunity for White House officials and seek help to learn the truth about the transactions, says the committee chairman.

"I'm not closing any doors," Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-Hawaii, chairman of the Select Committee, said in an interview with ABC's "This Week With Walter Cronkite."

"If it takes a grant of immunity to get to these questions, it should be considered, yes."

Inouye, whose panel is investigating the diversion of profits to the Reagan administration, also said he would proceed cautiously because of the political implications of the investigation.

"I think the potential for a scandal before us can be very high," he said.

The former member of the original Watergate panel said the "appropriate time" to open the inquiry would be after the president's inauguration to aid the inquiry.

"I don't see Iran being a picture at all," Inouye said.

Congressional investigators from both parties have asked for testimony from the two figures in the controversy. Col. Oliver L. North and John Poindexter — is kept the mystery of what happened and how such a deal hatched.

North was fired from the National Security Council. Poindexter resigned as a security adviser. Both have refused to answer questions about the deal before congressional panels. Their constitutional right to self-incrimination.

Last week, President Reagan asked Congress to grant immunity to Poindexter to compel them to testify.

But lawmakers differ on the question of whether immunity should be granted.
