

WEATHER

NATIONAL FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecasts colder weather for most of the northern half of the nation. Rain is expected from the eastern Gulf to the lower Midwest.

MORNING CLOUDS — Today's weather satellite picture, recorded at 2:30 a.m., shows layered snow clouds from northern Arizona and southern Utah across Colorado and northern New Mexico. These clouds are associated with a storm moving across the southern Rockies. Low clouds blanket a large area from the Midwest to the Northeast. High clouds stretch across Mexico and Texas.

Connecticut forecast

Central, Eastern Interior, Southwestern Interior: Tonight, mostly clear. Low around 20. Friday, mostly sunny. High in the middle 30s.
West Coastal, East Coastal Tonight, mostly clear. Low in the middle 20s. Friday, mostly sunny. High in the upper 30s.
Northwest Hills: Tonight, mostly clear. Low 15 to 20. Friday, mostly sunny. High in the lower 30s.

Coastal forecast

Long Island Sound to Watch Hill, R.I. and Montauk Point: Small craft advisories in effect. Wind northwest 15 to 25 knots and gusty today becoming west and decreasing 10 to 15 knots tonight. Wind west around 10 knots Friday. Seas 1 to 3 feet today and 1 foot or less tonight through Friday. Fair through Friday.

Across the nation

A Western storm spread south today and zeroed in on the Plains, while snow was widely scattered in the East and broad sections of the nation had fair skies.
The storm sent snow across much of Colorado and northern New Mexico and into western sections of Kansas and Nebraska.
In the East, snow was scattered across northern New England and the mountains of northwest Pennsylvania.
A warning for heavy snow was posted today for scattered Colorado. Winter storm warnings were in effect for the north-central and western mountains of New Mexico amid predictions that some sections could get at least a foot of snow.
The storm was moving eastward, and snow was likely to develop in central and east Texas and Panhandle and central Kansas. The National Weather Service said 4 inches or more of snow was possible by early Friday in a winter storm watch area that included the Texas and Oklahoma panhandles and northwest Oklahoma.
Travelers' advisories were issued for southern Utah, northern Arizona, central and southeast Colorado, northern New Mexico and the Texas Panhandle.
Skies were generally fair from the mid-Atlantic states and the Southeast into sections of Arkansas and Louisiana.
Fair skies also prevailed from the Dakotas and Montana across Idaho, the Pacific Northwest, California and Nevada, although some areas of Montana, Idaho and the Pacific Northwest had low clouds and dense fog early today.
Today's forecast called for snow widespread from the southern Rockies into the central Plains; rain scattered from central and east Texas and southeast Oklahoma through the lower Mississippi Valley; and snowshowers over northern Maine.
Highs should be in the 20s over the northern and Michigan and across northern New England; 50s to 60s over California and southern Arizona.

No trip for Ron

ABC's "Good Morning America" wanted Ron Reagan, the president's son, to tour the Soviet Union for a series of stories, but Soviet officials didn't like the idea.
"We're disappointed," producer John Goodman said after ABC's Moscow bureau was told Wednesday that the Soviet Union had turned down the request. He said ABC would not re-apply, "but hopefully they'll reconsider."
"Good Morning America" wanted Reagan, who has been a "Good Morning America" correspondent since July 1985, to tour the country from Jan. 19-30 for stories about Soviet life.
"Obviously, it would be interesting to see impressions of Soviet life through the eyes of our correspondent, who happens to be the president's son," Goodman said.

Honeymoon hill

U.S. Rep. Lynn M. Martin and a federal judge from Chicago are honeymooning after being married in a private ceremony in the Capitol.

Vice President George Bush was among about two dozen guests Wednesday when House Chaplain James David Ford united the Illinois Republican and U.S. District Judge Harry D. Leinenweber in the House Prayer Room.

House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., who had been at a meeting elsewhere, dashed into the chapel to kiss the bride.

Martin, 47, has two daughters from a previous marriage and Leinenweber, 49, has five from a previous marriage.
The newlyweds left for a honeymoon in Florida and Jamaica, her office said.

It's not a hit

Television producer Dick Clark apparently is having trouble with his company's initial public stock offering, less of a hit than he had hoped.
Dick Clark Productions Inc. said late Wednesday it has scaled back the size of the offering to 1.1 million shares from 1.6 million shares.

The company's underwriters priced the stock at $6.50 per share, as opposed to the $8 to $10 per share initially projected.
Clark, who has built his "American Bandstand" TV dance show into a modest entertainment empire, will retain about 86 percent of the company. Proceeds from the stock sales will be used to expand the company's development, production and distribution of TV programming.

First dog gone

First lady Dottie Lamm knelt down to cuddle Travis one last time and, with a wave and a quick goodbye, she turned Colorado's "fir dog" over to his new owners, a Denver minister and his wife.

Gov. Richard Lamm will leave office next week and has accepted a short-term teaching position at Dartmouth College. Their house in New Hampshire does not have a fenced yard, and Travis, a sad-eyed baset, would have to remain in the house if the family were not home, she said. "He would be miserable."

"I feel very sad. We've had Travis for 10 years," Mrs. Lamm said Wednesday as she gave Travis to Mark and Sue Deckings.
The Deckings, who were selected from 200 applicants, already had two baset hounds.
"I like them as people and I like their dogs," Mrs. Lamm said.

Mating flamingos

HIALEAH, Fla. (AP) — Some of Hialeah Park's famous flamingos are going to Dade County's Metrozoo for a visit that could lead to a little social activity.
The horse racing track, which opens its 1987 season Thursday, lent 50 flamingos from its flock of 500 to the zoo. In return, Metrozoo will set up a rare bird display at the park featuring green-winged macaws, blue and green South American parrots and red-billed toucans.
The zoo's 15 flamingos are old and haven't mated since moving to the facility from the old Crandon Park Zoo, said Metrozoo bird curator Ron Johnson.
"They are gregarious birds and they need a lot of social interaction," Johnson said.

Police and town set contract talks

Police union and town officials will begin negotiations for a new police contract on Tuesday, Assistant Town Manager Steven Wedner said Wednesday.
He and Officer Edward Wilson, union president, declined to comment on the possible agenda for negotiations. Werber said keeping negotiations closed to the press is one of the ground rules.
The present contract, signed in March 1985, went into effect retroactively July 1, 1984, and will expire June 30, Werber said. Negotiations for that contract, which included non-binding arbitration, lasted more than a year, running from January 1984 to March 1985, he said.
The negotiating team for the union is usually comprised of the union's executive board and has five to seven members. Werber said. Werber is the chief negotiator for the town's team, which also includes the police chief, the department heads and two captains.
Future meeting dates between the union and town officials will be decided Tuesday, Werber said.

Bids sought to rebuild fire truck

The Town Fire Department will take bids Wednesday on rebuilding a 1967 ladder truck that has been used only as a spare for the past several months.
Fire Chief John Rivoso said the department will decide how much work to do when the bids are received. The bid invitation seeks prices on several phases of work on the truck and its 100-foot ladder.
Rivoso said the open cab on the truck will have to be replaced with a closed cab, for safety reasons. But, he said, if repairing and modernizing the aerial platform proves too expensive, it may be cheaper to buy a new ladder.
Rivoso said it may cost as much as $100,000 for the work and take six months to complete. He said it would cost about $250,000 for a similar ladder truck with none of the extras the present truck has.
Only a little work needs to be done on the truck's engine, a diesel that replaced the original gasoline engine.
Other work to be done includes replacing the transmission with an automatic transmission, rebuilding the hydraulic pump system, updating the air brakes, installing new springs, a new cooling system, and a fuel tank, and rewiring the electrical system.

Union bridge replacement approved

Preliminary plans for replacing the Union Street bridge with a new span, while keeping up the old structure during construction, were approved by the town Board of Directors Tuesday.
The project will cost the town about $90,000 and will be done in 1988. The total cost is expected to be about $1.2 million, with state and federal money covering the remaining expenses.
The new bridge will replace the one built in 1924 that was closed for a few months in 1983 because of safety concerns. Vehicles over four tons are banned from the bridge.
Sections of Union Street leading to the bridge will be improved, although the width of the road will remain the same. Town officials decided to maintain the existing bridge during construction after residents complained it would be inconvenient to use alternate routes.

Town settles two injury claims

The town Board of Directors has agreed to pay over $10,000 to settle out of court with two people injured in separate incidents in 1983.
The board agreed to pay $9,000 to Joseph Salerno, who as a kindergarten teacher at Verplanck School suffered an eye injury during recess when another student hit him with a stick in October 1983. The settlement was recommended by a judge who handled pre-trial proceedings and by Assistant Town Counsel Thomas P. Cella.
The board also followed Town Attorney John W. Cooney's recommendation that the town pay $1,250 to Anna Panioto, who slipped on a Pleasant Street sidewalk in February 1983 while walking to work.

Board OKs library expenses

The Manchester Board of Directors voted Tuesday to pay a Vernon firm $28,350 more than expected to install an air-conditioning system for the reference and reading rooms of the Mary Cheney Library.
The higher costs are for additional work the town wants done, including conduit wiring throughout the building for more air conditioning in the future. The increase also was needed because inflation and overhead and profit were not accurate in previous estimates.
The firm doing the work, New England Mechanical Services, should be finished by summer.

No local impact from fund dispute

The new Congress is offering President Reagan a second chance to sign legislation reauthorizing the nation's fight against water pollution — and a real embarrassment if he vetoes it again. But the dispute over extension of the Clean Water Act will apparently have no direct effect on the financing of Manchester's plans to upgrade its sewage disposal plant.
When Reagan used the pocket veto in January against extension of the act, Robert Norwood of the state Department of Environmental Protection said state funds will finance a $12 million grant for the Manchester work and provide a loan at a 2 percent interest for the rest of the improvements, estimated at $28 million.
But the lack of federal funding for the Clean Water Act will complicate matters for the state in financing similar improvements in the future, Norwood said.

Town and 8th tackle borders, fees

By George Layne Herold Reporter

Adjusting fire-jurisdiction lines between the Eighth Utilities District and the town of Manchester, and possible changes in sewer fees will be the focus of a Monday meeting between negotiators from both governments.
That agenda was agreed to Wednesday during a preliminary meeting of both negotiating teams at Lincoln Center. The hour-and-a-half discussion set the ground rules for future talks and saw both sides pledge that they will work hard to reach agreements on issues that have long divided the two governments.
"I really feel we can be successful," said Mayor Barbara Weinberg. "That does not mean it's going to be easy."
Eighth District President Walter Joyner said the upcoming negotiations provide an excellent chance to solve longstanding problems. "If we blow it, we're going to look like bums and we'll deserve it," he said.
The Eighth District is an independent authority that provides fire protection and sewer service to most of northern Manchester, while the town provides sewer service to the town's center and the area around the town's border.

Democratic town Director Stephen Penny, Republican town Director Geoffrey Naab and former Town Attorney Kevin O'Brien, who was not present Wednesday.
The two sides agreed to focus on six topics listed by the Eighth District team. The topics are sharing the Buckland firehouse, collecting user charges for the sewer service to the town, and fire-jurisdiction lines.
Both teams agreed to tackle the fire-jurisdiction lines and sewer-user charges first.
Penny said that jurisdiction changes involve simple tradeoffs of streets and buildings now covered by both departments. The talks will center on areas where the town district border weaves around buildings, or divides apartment complexes in half.

LaBelle said the jurisdiction talks should also include areas such as the Bryan Farms subdivision in northeast Manchester and the western end of West Middle Turnpike. He stressed that what is decided could have a bearing on the idea of sharing the Buckland firehouse — a town-owned facility that the Eighth District has in the past offered to buy.
Following the recommendation of Saries, the negotiators agreed to address "packages" of issues which an overall agreement will mean tradeoffs on different matters.
Lassow said that approach will allow both sides to "see what can be given for what," Penny agreed. As the major issues are addressed — the Buckland firehouse and Buckland sewer — one side may Wednesday's meeting was held in public, as future meetings will be, although Lassow had wanted private sessions. However, both sides agreed not to talk to reporters outside the meetings, to avoid public posturing that could lead to disputes.

The two teams also set a meeting Jan. 21, and agreed to meet every second Wednesday thereafter. Weinberg's proposal to set a deadline for the talks was dismissed. It was agreed to limit meetings to an hour and a half each.
The meetings between the two governments follow a decision by voters Nov. 4 not to remove the Eighth District's ability to fend off consolidation with the town. Throughout 1986, sharp rhetoric was heard on both sides, but a spirit of cooperation emerged after the vote.

6% Bennet hike likely to get OK

By Alex Girelli Associate Editor

A 6 percent hike in rents for the town-sponsored Bennet Apartments in Manchester has been recommended by the Community Development Corp. and indications are the recommendation will probably be approved by the directors of the Bennet Housing Corp. when they meet Tuesday.
Originally, CDC, which manages the 45-unit apartment complex for the elderly, had recommended an 8 percent increase, but that proposal failed to win approval of the directors at a Dec. 9 meeting.
With a 6 percent hike in rents, rents would range from $421 a month to $528 a month, including heat and hot water. The Bennet offers one- and two-bedroom units.
Robert Heavides, one of the Bennet directors, who strongly opposed the rent hike Dec. 9, said today that while he is not happy with the prospect of a 6 percent increase and would have preferred an increase as low as 3 or 4 percent, he may support the new proposal at the meeting Tuesday.

Called for 6 percent rent increases in 1985, 1986 and 1987, Cassano said he had believed that the 6 percent figure was a maximum, but that proved to be wrong, he said.
Cassano said he met with Steven Eric, managing director of CDC, John FIGGerald, chairman of the Bennet board, and Robert Huestis, town budget analyst, to discuss the Bennet rents after the Dec. 9 meeting. The 6 percent increase recommendation stemmed from this later meeting.
In a letter to members of the Bennet board, Eric said that the proposed budget for the year "is very close to that projected in 1983 in the original pro forma."
A copy of that projection was included with the letter. Garrity had asked for it during the discussion Dec. 9, which ended with no action on the budget or the rent increase.

The town of Manchester is owner of the building that houses the apartments. The Bennet Nonprofit Housing Corp. represents the town in the partnership that operates the project.
The Erie letter repeats some of the arguments Erie made at the Dec. 9 meeting. It says the rent increases have totaled 4 percent since the project opened, with a cumulative total of 12 percent, whereas the original projection was for an average of 6 percent with a cumulative increase of 18 percent from 1985 to 1987.
One of the reasons for the increase, he said, were insurance costs, which have risen 400 percent or $22 a unit, since the first year.

Hospital hopes drive boosts blood supply

The area's critical blood shortage has not affected surgery at Manchester Memorial Hospital, but officials are keeping abreast of the situation and are increasing their promotion for a blood drive at the hospital on Friday.
"We'll be making extra efforts," said Andrew Beck, spokesman for the hospital. "Hopefully, the public will respond positively."
On Tuesday at noon, Red Cross officials in Farmington declared the blood shortage an emergency.
"We're short," said Joan McGrath, blood services coordinator for the Connecticut Valley East chapter of the American Red Cross, which serves six towns including Manchester. She said the long holiday weekend and an increase in the number of accidents have left towns in short supply.
Beck did not know exactly how much blood the hospital had left. "From my understanding, it's sufficient," he said. "For the time being, it's all right."
Jane Latus, a spokeswoman for the Community Regional Blood Services in Farmington, which supplies all blood to Connecticut's 40 hospitals and where the local chapter sends its donations, said there are about 400 pints on hand, less than half a day's supply. "Obviously, it has to be better," she said. "We're already not shipping as much as the hospitals have requested."
Beck said there was always a great shortage this time of year. "Sadly, the last thing on people's minds is to give blood," he said.
The blood drive at the hospital will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Friday.
McGrath said there will be two blood drives Monday, one at Concordia Lutheran Church on Pitkin Street from 11:45 a.m. to 5 p.m., and another from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. at Wapping Community Church in South Windsor.

'87 session opens with call to share the state's wealth

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Connecticut may be at the pinnacle of prosperity, but Gov. William A. O'Neill says there are still many Connecticut citizens who have yet to share in the wealth.

O'Neill, in his state of the state address on Wednesday, urged the General Assembly to "be creative with prosperity" as lawmakers "confront poverty and despair."

"We have to anticipate and plan so that we may perpetuate our successes," O'Neill told the opening session of the 1987 General Assembly after he was sworn in for his second term as governor. "Nowhere in the world is there an economy as productive as that which we have fashioned here."

O'Neill, 56, was re-elected in November by a 167,000-vote plurality, one of the largest in decades, over Republican Julie D. Belaga. He became governor on Dec. 31, 1980 upon the resignation of Ella T. Grasso, who stepped down in failing health. She died five weeks later.

The hall was packed with 186 representatives and senators, their husbands and wives, cabinet officials and scores of others. They greeted O'Neill with thunderous applause after he entered the Capitol following the traditional inaugural parade through downtown Hartford that was capped by a 19-gun salute by howitzers manned by the Connecticut National Guard.

The lawmakers, too, were sworn in Wednesday as the 1987 session opened shortly after 10 a.m. Democrats are in firm control of both chambers: 91-59 in the House, with one vacancy, and 25-11 in the Senate.

O'Neill's 15-minute speech began with his recollections about taking the oath of office as a freshman state representation almost 20 years ago to the day, on Jan. 4, 1967. He was interrupted six times by applause.

The governor used the speech to talk about general proposals he planned to make during the five-month session. He called on lawmakers to expand the state's housing programs, its war on drugs and drunken driving, property tax relief for cities and towns, shelter for the homeless and assistance for the elderly and the family.

"Let us bring into the warmth of our society those who have been dwelling in the long chill night of despair. Let us never permit the glowing success of the few to blind us to the suffering of the many," O'Neill said.

Senate Republican Leader Gerald J. Smith said the governor's proposals sounded like they would cost a lot of money and may require tax increases.

"We're going to make them sweat ... by making damn sure that the people of the state of Connecticut are well aware of what's going to happen if all these expensive programs are put into place," Smith said.

But House Speaker Irving J. Stolberg, D-New Haven, said he saw no need to increase taxes, particularly with another healthy budget surplus of at least $143 million projected. If anything, he said, the state should be able to afford some modest tax cuts this year.

Rep. William R. Dyson, D-New Haven, said he was concerned that O'Neill appeared to be putting "too much of the burden on the General Assembly to deliver."

Stephen B. Heintz, the welfare commissioner, said O'Neill pinpointed "absolutely the right issues in my mind." Education Commissioner Gerald N. Tiruzzi said the governor's proposals should also help education because "housing and welfare are inextricably linked to the quality of education."

Gov. William A. O'Neill is sworn in for his second full term at the Capitol on Wednesday. Looking on at right is his wife, Nikki. O'Neill was sworn in following a colorful procession to the Capitol.

Seriousness to replace ceremony

HARTFORD (AP) — The General Assembly gets down to serious business today after devoting its official opening day to pomp, parties and the governor's inaugural ball.

On Wednesday, Gov. William A. O'Neill was sworn in as the state's 94th governor and the General Assembly officially opened its 1987 session. But little serious business got done.

O'Neill began his second full term with a colorful procession through downtown Hartford and a 19-gun salute outside the Capitol.

The Governor's Horse and Foot Guard, dressed in caped Colonial uniforms of blue, red and yellow and towering bearskin hats, escorted O'Neill to the Capitol from a downtown hotel, where he attended a pre-inaugural luncheon with members of his administration and legislative leaders.

Despite the balmy weather, O'Neill and other state officials made the quarter-mile trip to the Capitol in limousines and state police cruisers, bringing up the rear of the procession.

Members of the Foot Guard band, their brass instruments gleaming in the sun, drowned out the sounds of afternoon traffic with the strains of "Hail to the Chief" as O'Neill emerged from the hotel and continued with military versions of "The Star Spangled Banner" and "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Pockets of spectators, including state employees on their lunch hours and a few joggers circling Bushnell Park, gathered along the route. Many of them broke into applause as O'Neill and his wife, Nikki, passed in their limousine.

Employees in the attorney general's second-floor office on Trinity Street unfurled a banner that said, "Way to go, Joe," as the cruiser carrying Attorney General Joseph I. Lieberman and his wife, Hadassah, passed.

The 19-gun salute was actually fired by three 185mm howitzers booming in rotation as O'Neill stood at the Capitol steps, members of the Foot Guard at attention on either side of him. The cannons sent billows of white smoke down the hill the Capitol overlooks.

Minutes before, melting ice had fallen from the north facade of the Capitol onto spectators below. No one was hurt. The procession from downtown Hartford also included a state police color guard and officers of the Connecticut National Guard.

The inaugural ball was held in the cavernous state armory near the Capitol.

Palbearers carry the casket of Jerome Mendell of Easton, who was killed in the Dec. 31 blaze at the Dupont Plaza Hotel in San Juan, Puerto Rico. About 300 friends and relatives attended services for Mendell in Bridgeport on Wednesday.

Lawyer for state fire survivors calls lawsuits 'premature'

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — The Bridgeport lawyer representing some of the Connecticut survivors of the Dupont Plaza Hotel fire and families of several victims called the lawsuits already being filed by other lawyers "premature."

Attorney Richard Bleder, of Kookos, Kookos & Bleder, said Wednesday that his firm would not rush to file any lawsuits.

"When we have some facts, we will sit down with our clients and figure out what they want to do," Bleder said. "Right now they just have to live through this terrible period. They're really not interested in lawsuits right now. What they want more than anything is to be left alone," he said.

Bleder said between 12 and 16 people have contacted his office and he has begun meeting with them.

Neighbors, friends mourn fire victim

By Linda Stowell

BRIDGEPORT — Neighbors, friends and a rabbi said Jerome Mendell was a man who had everything to live for — a loving family, a business he had built from the ground, a beautiful home and the money to take nice vacations.

It was on a nice vacation — one he had called the best he'd had — that Mendell perished in the Dupont Plaza Hotel fire in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

On Wednesday, several hundreds of mourners, many openly sobbing, packed a small funeral home to grieve Mendell, 59, of Easton.

"Jerome Mendell was a happy man. He was happy with his lot in life," said Rabbi S. Jerome Wallin of B'nai Torah synagogue in Trumbull. "The main part of his joy was his giving."

Mendell, the owner of a fast-food restaurant in Easton, died in the New Year's Eve day. The blaze killed nearly 100 people, including at least seven Connecticut residents. Two state residents of about 30 who were at the hotel are still missing.

The services at Abraham L. Green and Sons Funeral Home in Fairfield, a brother, David Mendell of Fairfield, a sister, Gertrude Hermon of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and three grandchildren.

"Jerry was very well-respected by those who worked with him," Wallin said. "He was considered a father figure ... he was here for all of our problems ..."

WALLIN READ a poem written by a friend of Mendell's which read in part:

"Rest easy my friend knowing those who will never forget you. Rest easy my friend. We're so helpless without you."

After the service, the mourners left for the burial in Loyalty Cemetery in Fairfield.

John Benevento of Woodbridge, who injured his feet when he jumped out of a window in the burning hotel, sat quietly in his car. During the service, he sat in a wheelchair in the back, often holding his head in his hands.

"I didn't know him very well ... but this is very hard," Benevento said quietly.

The group of about 30 Connecticut residents had traveled to Puerto Rico to ring in the New Year. Group members said they liked the casino, the shopping and the beach outside the back door.

"We enjoy the good life of going out on these kinds of trips," said Benevento recently. "Most of the group is upper income. They have bucks. They would get limos, do it up, eat out all the time. We really looked forward to it."

In Bridgeport, Mendell's restaurant, Maracci's Dutchess, was closed. A scene on the door said, "We will be closed tomorrow (Wednesday) due to Jerry's death. We will reopen at 6 a.m. Thursday."

Leo Fisher, who had been a neighbor of Mendell's for 30 years, said the neighborhood was a close one.

"No one bothered anyone, but they are there if you need anything," Fisher said.

MANCHESTER HERALD, Thursday, Jan. 8, 1987 — 5

"When we have some facts, we will sit down with our clients and figure out what they want to do," Bleder said. "Right now they just have to live through this terrible period."

Bleder said decisions on filing lawsuits will depend on the results of a probe by prominent private investigator Bill Taylor of Florida into the New Year's Eve fire in the luxury hotel in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Taylor, who has already sent four of his investigators to Puerto Rico and will go himself today, probed the death of nuclear plant worker Karen Silkwood, the accident at the Three Mile Island plant near Harrisburg, Pa., and the 1981 murders of black children in Atlanta.

Bleder worked with Taylor on another case and calls him the best investigator in the country. Although no one is supposed to have access to the site of the fire until the FBI is through with their investigation, Bleder says he has no doubts that Taylor will gain access.

The law firm has also hired fire investigator John Connell, who investigated the MGM Grand hotel fire in Las Vegas, Nev., and the Great Adventure haunted house blaze in Jackson Township, N.J.

McCavanagh appointed to drug committee

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter

HARTFORD — State Rep. James R. McCavanagh, D-Manchester, was appointed to a special committee on drug abuse Wednesday as the General Assembly begins its 1987 session, legislative leaders said.

The select drug-abuse committee was one of three special panels the Legislature has created to focus on problem areas in the state. The other two include one that will study housing needs in Connecticut and problems in the work place.

McCavanagh was the only Manchester legislator appointed to one of the committees, officials said.

"It's (drug abuse) a serious problem in Connecticut," said House Speaker Irving J. Stolberg, D-New Haven. "We're going to look at it seriously as one of the priorities of the committee."

Stolberg said the General Assembly created the special committee apart from the legislative committees that usually tackle the problems. That was done, he said, to ensure that drug abuse, housing and problems in the work place are addressed.

State leaders have spoken with White House officials, Stolberg said, and are working with neighboring states to establish a program to combat the problem.

Drug abuse has expanded in Connecticut's schools, Stolberg said, while the state is seeing an influx from other states. Being located between two major cities like New York and Boston has contributed to Connecticut's problem, he said.

"I understand it will be an extremely active committee," McCavanagh said. "I was surprised and honored to be chosen."

Prescription aid, junk cars top town's legislative goals

By John F. Kirch
Herald Reporter

Manchester's town administration Wednesday released a list of eight legislative priorities it hopes the 1987 General Assembly will address this year.

At the top of that list is a call to expand the state's ConnPACE program, which is administered under the Department of Aging to help elderly people pay for prescription drugs.

Under that program, the state pays 50 percent of prescription bills for elderly single residents who are making less than $9,000 annually or couples making less than $12,000.

"There is a concern expressed by the middle-income seniors that there is a need to increase the upper income limits for eligibility for this program to allow more seniors to take advantage of this assistance," the town report says.

At least one Manchester legislator, Democratic Rep. John W. Thompson, has expressed interest in expanding the program and said he would co-sponsor legislation to get more elderly people assistance.

The town is also asking the legislature to consider a bill that would save municipalities time and money in removing abandoned motor vehicles from town roads.

Brooks Cook, a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency regional office in Boston acknowledged Wednesday that the EPA had sent EPA Regional Administrator Michael R. Deland a get-well card last fall that mentioned that the town had a plan to clean up the site.

"It was a formal notification," Cook said. "I think it was more done as a courtesy. It was really casual."

Pac, who has held the post since 1977, did not return calls to his office Wednesday and his spokeswoman, Margot Callahan, said she knew nothing more than what she had seen in the morning paper. The Hartford Courant reported in Wednesday's editions the communication between Pac and Deland.

for up to 90 days, secure titles for them, and then auction or destroy them.

Weinberg has called for a shorter storage time and has asked for legislation that would eliminate title requirements and allow towns to obtain certificates of destruction.

Also on the list is a town request that municipalities be able to get payment for attorneys' fees for the collection of delinquent taxes, assessments and water and sewer charges. Under present legislation, attorneys' fees may be collected only for delinquent water charges.

The town is also suggesting legislation that would extend the personal property tax now being levied on the telephone company to include cable TV property and to revise current law to include present and future land purchases in public watershed areas as being exempt from property taxes.

Manchester's legislators said they plan to meet with the town Board of Directors later this year to discuss town priorities.

Dr. Anthony Giangrosso, the state assistant medical examiner, said the victim appeared to have been dead for several hours and perhaps since Tuesday night, Giangrosso said the victim appeared to have been shot or stabbed in several places, including the lower back, upper chest and abdomen.

HARTFORD — Environmental Protection Commissioner Stanley J. Pac would not confirm reports that he plans to resign, but an Environmental Protection Agency spokesman said Pac had notified an EPA official of his intention to retire.

Brooks Cook, a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency regional office in Boston acknowledged Wednesday that the EPA had sent EPA Regional Administrator Michael R. Deland a get-well card last fall that mentioned that the town had a plan to clean up the site.

cracy. Now, El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras are democracies, he said, and the leaders of the four nations want to see an end to strife in that part of the world.

Dodd's comments came at a news conference the day after he and Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., introduced a bill in the Senate to cut off any further U.S. aid to Nicaragua Contra rebels including the approximately $40 million in aid approved by Congress last year.

Dodd said Wednesday that as recently as two years ago, only one Central American nation, Costa Rica, could be considered a dem-

Bethel firm offers bonus to give up butts

BETHEL (AP) — A Bethel moving and storage company, concerned about the surgeon general's recent report on the dangers of passive smoking, is using monetary enticements and peer pressure to persuade employees to kick the habit.

For each employee of Shepard's Warehouse who quits smoking for six months or more this year there will be a $500 bonus. If all 10 smokers in the 32-person office quit by the end of 1987, everyone else who works there will be $250 dollars richer.

"We wanted a smoke-free office and we are willing to make a serious commitment to it," William J. Gilotti, the company's executive vice president, said Wednesday.

"There is a real team spirit about it, and that was the idea about getting the others involved," Gilotti said. "We want others to be helpful and supportive."

The General Assembly, which opened its 1987 session on Wednesday, is expected to consider a number of bills aimed at curbing smoking. One would require employers with more than 20 workers to set aside smoke-free areas.

The bonus idea, Shepard's belongs to company President Michael Goodman and was fueled by recent publicity about the dangers to people who don't smoke but inhale the smoke of others, Gilotti said.

Shirley La Pine, executive director of the local American Cancer Society chapter, said her organization often conducts quit-smoking clinics at businesses, but she never heard of such lucrative incentives.

"I never heard of a monetary encouragement, but I think it's wonderful," she said. "Somebody's trying to save your life and give you money to boot."

The incentives were announced to Shepard's employees Tuesday.

Jim Birrell, Shepard's director of sales, said he's smoked for 30 years, quitting once for a year.

Legislature backs smoking curbs

HARTFORD — The General Assembly has approved new restrictions on smoking in the Capitol or any office or room assigned to members and staff of the legislature beginning March 1.

The new rule, however, allows the Legislative Management Committee to determine which rooms will be affected.

The rule was approved Wednesday over the objection of several lawmakers who smoke, including Sen. George L. Gunther, R-Stratford, who said it amounted to "overkill" and a "paternalistic attitude" on the General Assembly's part.

"Maybe we ought to ban handshaking and kissing in the Capitol," he said. "Maybe we ought to ban anyone who has a contagious disease from coming to the Capitol."

Heroin dealer gets 10-year sentence

NEW HAVEN — A man law enforcement officials called a major heroin dealer in Hartford has been sentenced to 10 years in prison.

U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy Jr. said Manuel Rosario, 41, of Hartford and seven others, five from Hartford and two from Springfield, Mass., involved in his drug operation were sentenced Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Jose Cabranes.

Heroin dealer gets 10-year sentence

NEW HAVEN — A man law enforcement officials called a major heroin dealer in Hartford has been sentenced to 10 years in prison.

U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy Jr. said Manuel Rosario, 41, of Hartford and seven others, five from Hartford and two from Springfield, Mass., involved in his drug operation were sentenced Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Jose Cabranes.

All eight had pleaded guilty to racketeering, Twardy said. He said Rosario, who was also given a 10-year parole term, was known by law enforcement officials as "the largest heroin dealer" in the capital.

The other seven defendants were sentenced to terms ranging from six months to nine years, Twardy said.

OPINION

Ignorance of languages is appalling

While much of the rest of the world has at least a cursory understanding of the history of the United States and a working knowledge of the English language, Americans remain appallingly ignorant of other languages and cultures.

A good portion of that ignorance can probably be blamed on the country's schools. Many school systems — including those in Connecticut — require few, if any, courses in foreign languages.

However, a committee formed last year to consider educational issues in the state hopes to change the dismal state of affairs.

The committee has recommended, among other things, that every Connecticut high school graduate be able to communicate effectively in at least one foreign language. Although the recommendation is not binding, it is already creating a stir among state educators.

Foreign language teachers have predictably hailed the recommendation, calling the study of languages a necessity. Some educators, however, have maintained that while mastery of a foreign language is important for some students, it should not be required of all students.

While the study of another language might seem frivolous to some students and educators, it is not a luxury that can continue to be ignored. Technology has made the world an increasingly smaller place and will continue to do so.

Distant people who might otherwise have rated barely a mention in American classrooms are today's neighbors. To ignore their languages and customs is to deprive students of an opportunity to expand their view of the world and an understanding of how they fit into it.

The lack of foreign-language skills in the United States is not just a classroom problem. In an age where wholesale destruction is never more than a misunderstanding away, a shrinking pool of Americans able to communicate in other languages jeopardizes the safety of the entire nation.

State educators should re-evaluate their commitment to foreign-language instruction. A lot more is riding on it than just making sure students who visit other countries can ask for the restroom.

Sunbelt gives job seekers cold shoulder

The fortunes of the Sunbelt and Frostbelt seem to be reversed. The states with the lowest unemployment are in the Northeast while the worst states are mostly in the South and West. And Michigan, which once had America's highest jobless rate, now has a lower rate than Texas (8 v. 4.8 percent). Meanwhile, Louisiana stands at 12.9 percent; Mississippi, 11.1; and Alaska, 10.8 percent.

By contrast, every state in New England is at 4.2 percent or below. Curiously, however, when it comes to job opportunities, bad news seems to travel faster than good news.

Net outmigration from Michigan to Texas has halted as news of the "Long Horn" state's sour economy has spread. However, few Midwesterners are moving to New England where the economy is vastly stronger than in such states as Michigan, Ohio or Illinois.

Iran-contra probe fuels bid to rewrite Reagan's legacy

By Ben Wattenberg
As a prediction, I offer the year of 1987 — the Attempt to De-legitimize the Past Six Years of the Reagan Presidency.

The vehicle for this assault will be the Iran-contra investigations. But the not-so-hidden agenda of many of those interpreting the scandal will deal with the whole of the Reagan presidency.

Do not underestimate the past in politics. When you own the interpretation of the past, it is easier to control the present, and it enables the interpreter to try shape the future.

Washington is already awash in rumor, some morbid, some sordid. One hears it said that Reagan's luck has run out, that he's become an old man who's not always with it, that he's sick and will turn the presidency over to George Bush. That's the present.

Some of the personal criticism is probably valid. Reagan has known less about the operations of the government than any recent president. He is old; he may be losing some of his stuff.

Democrats may regret the big bash

WASHINGTON — As the incoming congressional Democrats and the tenacious surviving Republicans assemble in Washington to take up their respective dominions, they must warily pick themselves out of the shambles of Iranamuck.

The scandal has broken down the corded sanitaire around Ronald Reagan. But before the Democrats resume their Reagan bashing, they might hearken to the advice of Wilbur Mills.

Mills has advised them not to underestimate Reagan's bugaboo; the president's cheerful visage may yet loom above the wreckage.

Though Reagan may now be sagging in public esteem, he has always been able to exude a special calm. Mills predicted that, in the end, most Americans will feel the president is entitled to sympathetic national understanding.

MEANWHILE, a degree of paralysis has already been inflicted on the Reagan administration. This may excite and delight Democrats of narrow perspective, but those with broader vision are concerned about the damage to the credibility and stability of the United States.

IF IRANIAN revelations keep reverberating in the public dialogue, Mills said, the Democrats may lose more than they will gain. For bashing the president has its inherent dangers — hazards that will be tested in the 1988 presidential election.

Among the many constellations shaken by Iranamuck is George Bush. He achieved his place in the heavens as the tail to Ronald Reagan's comet, but on the descent, the tail appears to be ahead of the comet.

Bush is seeking the kind of sympathetic neutrality ascribed of the Lord in the story about the country boy who was intruding along a railroad track inside a long, narrow tunnel while a train bore down on him from behind.

Beirut attack kills 5 civilians

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Beirut's airport was bagged with shellfire today, and police said an empty jetliner was hit and exploded in flames. Muslim and Christian militias blamed each other for the attack and traded artillery fire, killing five civilians.

The shelling came a day after former President Camille Chamoun, now the finance minister, was wounded in an assassination attempt. A remote-controlled bomb car exploded in Christian east Beirut as his motorcade passed, killing four other people and wounding 35 passers-by.

The caller did not say why the group wanted to assassinate Chamoun. In today's airport bombardment, at least nine shells exploded on runways and the tarmac.

The plane had landed 30 minutes before the shelling started at 9 a.m., airport officials said. Its passengers had disembarked and the plane was being refueled for a flight to Cairo when a shell hit and exploded into a ball of flames.

Sources say North ran secret contra aid network

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fired White House aide Oliver L. North controlled cash and other funds to pay Nicaraguan rebel expenses during two years of secret contact with the Contras.

One focus of investigations into North's activities is whether his alleged diversion of profits from Iranian arms sales to the Contras in 1986 was just a later phase of his efforts to circumvent a 1984 congressional ban on assisting the rebels militarily.

North was fired Nov. 25 for his role in the Iranian diversion, although congressional investigators say they still don't know how much money with Swiss bank accounts controlled by North actually went to aid the rebels.

Last year, the AP reported that North used intermediaries to manage an aid network which provided the Contras with money, advice and weapons throughout the two-year congressional aid ban. The White House has denied violating that ban.

The administration official said North began collecting money from private donors for the Contras in October and November 1984 and put "the money in his office, in his safe drawer." The official said North apparently used his safe "before he could set up bank accounts" for the funds, but the official said he did not know how much money was kept there or precisely what it went for.

Get all your debts under one roof now.

And beat the new ceiling on interest deductions.

Connecticut National's Equity CreditLine gives you an important break on your taxes. And if you apply by January 31, you'll get another break: no upfront costs.

Beginning in 1987, the new tax law puts a ceiling on the deductions you'll be allowed for interest payments on personal loans. This year, only 65% of your interest will be deductible. In four years, none of it will be. But there's an exception to the new ceiling. And it's as big as the roof over your head.

Jan. 9, 1987

There will be a noticeable improvement in your social life in the year ahead. It looks like you'll be moving in a new circle with people whose company you'll truly enjoy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your personality is very dynamic and charismatic today. Don't be surprised if people who haven't communicated with you in the past suddenly have a lot to discuss. Try to patch up a broken romance! The Matchmaker can help you understand what it might take to make the relationship work. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o The Matchmaker, Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You can bring critical issues to happy conclusions today. If you have any loose threads hanging, press a trifle harder to eliminate them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This could be a very lucky day for you, especially if you're working on a new project about which you feel enthusiastic. Go for the gold.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your material prospects are exceptionally strong today. Rewards to which you're entitled could suddenly break loose, and they may even produce extra dividends.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Today you'll be luckier for yourself than you will be for other people. Focus on advancing your self-interests and personal ambitions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're close to a profitable situation, but it's of your own making. See if you can offer some type of contribution today so you can share in its benefits.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your greatest asset today is your ability to improve upon and expand the good ideas of associates. You'll have two opportunities to use your skills.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Even if you have to work a few extra hours today, do everything within your power to please the boss. Your industriousness will be noticed and rewarded.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An exceptional day is in the offing for you if your attitude is hopeful, positive and humorous. Your enthusiastic spirit will generate lucky vibes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Big, positive changes will be in the air for you and your family are stirring at this time. They're still slightly screened and difficult to perceive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is a good day for you to negotiate agreements. You'll be clever enough to get a good deal for yourself, yet you'll be scrupulously fair to all.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Yesterday where you met obstacles you will now find opportunity. Retrace your steps if there's something important you want to correct to your advantage.

Fighting off temptation

By James Jacoby

Several of the themes in this week's deals have been inspired by the book "A New Approach to Play and Defense" (Eddie Kantar, P.O. Box 427, Venice, CA 90291; $9.95 postpaid).

It's a safe bet that many of our readers would bid four spades with the South cards after the one-heart overcall by East. That would be wrong. Of course you plan on playing in four spades, but jumping to game immediately would deny any possible interest in slam. Although it's not true on this deal, many times a minimum opening facing South's hand would produce 12 tricks. Making a forcing bid of one spade and then bidding game at his next turn was the right way for South to bid his hand.

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is "Jacoby on Card Games," published by Pharos Books.

The simple winning play, if you haven't already noticed, is for declarer to play A-K of hearts immediately, pitching the ace of diamonds. Now he can cash K-Q of diamonds in dummy, throwing two clubs away. He will then lose only the spade ace and two club tricks, making his contract.

1,000 GE workers in Lynn face layoff

BOSTON (AP) — General Electric Co. expects to lay off about 1,000 of its 12,000 employees in Lynn this year because of competition and reduced demand for the engines it makes for jet fighter planes, a spokesman said.

William Kennedy said he expects 700 to 800 hourly employees and several hundred salaried employees in the aircraft division will be laid off as well as 500 to 600 employees in the non-defense business.

About 8,400 of the Lynn employees work on defense contracts. Kennedy said he expects the aircraft layoffs to come late in the year.

One blow to the company was the Defense Department's decision to get a second source for engines used in F-404 jet fighters. The Pratt & Whitney division of United Technologies

Unusually high yield indicates risk

Investors' Guide

QUESTION: I bought 100 shares of common stock in an electric utility company with a 10 percent yield. I reinvest my dividends. I am thinking of buying another 100 shares and continuing to reinvest dividends. I figure, at the time I am 65, I can start drawing the dividends to help my pension and Social Security.

ANSWER: Absolutely, providing you have picked a stock in a good company with no serious financial problems or concern that the dividend might be cut or reduced.

You cite the basic reason most people use dividend reinvestment plans. With such a plan, every dollar automatically is used to buy more full and fractional shares, usually to the third or fourth decimal place. Unless the company reduces its dividends, each subsequent payment is larger and your investment grows.

By the time you retire, you should have a bundle and, by then taking your dividends in cash, you should have nice checks coming in.

Many dividend reinvestment plans have "optional additional investment" features, allowing participants to send in money and purchases will more shares. If your plan has that arrangement, why not buy the 100 additional shares you mention that way?

Now, a word of caution. That 9 percent yield — annual dividend payments divided by the stock's market price — is high these days. As I write this, the average yield on the 15 electric and gas company stocks used in the Dow Jones utility average is 7.45 percent. A higher than normal yield usually indicates additional risk.

Before buying more shares of that stock, I'd advise you to do some research on it.

QUESTION: I purchased 100 shares of stock in 1978 and reinvested my dividends until 1986. If I sell, I need to know how to report this on my income tax return.

ANSWER: You can sell any or all of the shares you own — from one to the total number. You're correct

Auto sales hit record in '86

DETROIT (AP) — A record number of cars were sold in the United States in 1986 with imports dominating the market, but analysts said they expected a weaker year in 1987.

Total U.S. car sales hit 11,442,726 in 1986, the most cars sold in this country since 11,110,126 were purchased in 1979. The new record is 3.7 percent higher than 1985's sales of 11,032,215 cars.

Total car and light truck sales for 1986 were 16,847,306 vehicles, up 4 percent from 15,433,955 in 1985, the companies reported Wednesday.

Foreign makers increased their share of the 1986 U.S. car market to 28.2 percent, the highest level in history. They included Hyundai Motor America, which set a U.S. first-year import record by selling 168,882 cars, up 14.2 percent from 1985, and a record 926,984 imported passenger trucks, up 20 percent.

Domestic makers also increased their car and truck sales over 1985 figures, but only slightly. They sold 8,214,671 cars, up 0.1 percent from 1985, and 3,677,597 trucks, up 4 percent from 1985.

Thomas O'Grady, an analyst with Integrated Automotive Resources Inc. in Wayne, Pa., attributed the record sales to low gas prices, auto financing incentives last fall and the year-end rush to buy before federal tax changes eliminated sales tax deductions.

About 250,000 of the December car sales could be credited to the elimination, O'Grady said. Luxury car dealers especially benefited because their customers had the most to gain.

But the factors that favored sales in 1986 will hurt this year, he predicted.

"Fortunately, there was a lot of room for the domestics. They didn't suffer as much as they will this year," O'Grady said. He added that the market was growing in 1986.

"That won't happen this year. We had to borrow from the future" by making sales in 1986 that normally would have occurred in 1987, he said.

With many industry analysts and executives predicting 1987 car sales from 10.4 million to 11.1 million, makers will be fighting for pieces of a smaller pie. O'Grady said domestic makers will find sales slow until they offer more incentives.

According to the figures, domestic car sales from Dec. 21-31 jumped 17.3 percent over the period in 1985. Ford's sales jumped 26.1 percent. Chrysler's were up 14.6 percent and GM's improved 4.4 percent.

Whalers singing the Blues, lose Lawless

The Blues' Rob Ramage (5) takes control of the puck from teammate Jim Pavese (35) and Hartford's Stewart Gavin (7) in their NHL game Wednesday night in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Power plays, normally a potent weapon in the hands of the Hartford Whalers, let them down Wednesday night. "We went ahead 1-0, then they score on three straight power plays and suddenly we're behind by two goals," said Whalers coach Jack Evans after the St. Louis Blues beat his team 6-3. "When we went on the power play, we hit the post twice and (Greg) Millen made some great saves. The power play was the difference."

The Whalers went 0-3 with a man advantage while the Blues scored his 30th career goal late in the third period. "That was our advantage," said Evans. "The wide-open game was obviously to the advantage of the Blues' Bernie Federko, who scored his 30th career goal late in the third period."

"Federko is a great player, a guy who can beat you 1-on-1, a guy who makes some great passes from behind the net on the power play," said Evans. "It was an honor to score against him (Hartford goalie Mike Liut) in a spot where I always used to beat him in practice," said Federko, a teammate of Liut's for his second goal in St. Louis. "I hit it right over his glove on the far side."

Mark Hunter and Doug Wickenheiser had two goals apiece for the Blues. Federko, who has spent all of his 11-year career with St. Louis, extended his point-scoring streak to nine games, during which he has had three goals and 12 assists. He recorded his 30th goal at 16:24 of the third period for the final score of the night, running his record to 10 goals and 30 assists for the season. Hunter notched his 21st and 22nd goals and added two assists. Wickenheiser scored his eighth goal and his 21st assist. The Blues' Greg Paslawski added the Blues' fifth goal, his 13th at 8:16 of the third period.

Hartford opened the scoring at 8:15 of the first period when Dave Semenko slapped in Dave Babych's centering pass for his fourth goal of the season. Miller scored on one of two power-play goals from Hartford to St. Louis for Liut and another player two seasons ago, shut out Hartford for the next 56:41, including a standstill of 1:31 when Hartford had a two-man advantage.

Dana Murzyn accounted for two goals in St. Louis, his sixth, at 5:56 of the third period. Stewart Gavin added the Whaler's third goal, his 12th, at 12:32. The Whalers lost left winger Paul Lawless, who was coming off a club-record six-point performance against Toronto on Sunday, in the first period when he tore a medial collateral ligament in his left knee.

Hartford goalie Mike Liut (1) makes a stick save as a shot while the Blues' Bernie Federko (24) comes up looking for the rebound in first-period action. The Blues won, 6-3.

Bird-less Celtics pound Bucks

By Bill Barnard
The Associated Press

With four days off to rebuild their strength, the Boston Celtics were ready to pound injury-plagued Milwaukee — even without Larry Bird to join them.

Kevin McHale scored 28 points as the Celtics beat the Bucks 119-92 Wednesday night for their sixth straight victory. Boston's last loss was 129-106 to the Bucks in Milwaukee on Dec. 20.

Bird missed the game with a lower back strain, but guard Danny Ainge said that being off since last Friday helped the Celtics overcome his absence.

"When Larry's out, you know there's no room for a letdown," said Ainge, who scored 17 points. "But we had three good days of practice and our intensity level was up. We would have been tough to beat by any team."

The Bucks, whose leading scorer was Jerry Reynolds with 15 points, played without injured starters Sidney Moncrief and Paul Pressey.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was New Jersey 116, Washington 96; Philadelphia 109, Atlanta 102; Detroit 122, New York 111; Dallas 108, San Antonio 103; and the Los Angeles Lakers 147, Denver 109.

McHale scored 22 points in the first half as the Celtics rolled to a 58-36 lead.

"Kevin McHale is the best inside player in the league," Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson said. "He has a great understanding of double-teaming, and you have to double-team him. He's been tough for us and he seems to be getting better."

Milwaukee, which had played at home on Saturday and Tuesday before traveling to Boston, got no closer than 14 points in the second half.

Fred Roberts, starting in place of Bird, scored 15 points. The starters sat out most of the fourth quarter after the Celtics extended their margin to 84-58.

Lakers 147, Nuggets 103
Los Angeles, which has won eight straight games by an average of 22.1 points, crushed Denver, 147-103.

The Nuggets, who have lost five in a row, led 31-21, but the Lakers scored 12 of the final 16 points of the first quarter to trail 25-33.

Los Angeles then went ahead for good with a 9-0 streak to start the second period. It was 73-57 at halftime and the Nuggets got no closer than 16 points after that.

Alex English led Denver with 17 points.

NBA Roundup

76ers 109, Hawks 102
Philadelphia handed Atlanta its second loss in 14 games at the Omni this season as Cliff Robinson scored 31 points and Charles Barkley added 25 points and 15 rebounds.

The 76ers took the lead for good in the second quarter when Maurice Cheeks and rookie David Wingate scored four points apiece in a 16-4 spurt that broke a 43-43 deadlock. A 9-0 run gave them a 59-47 lead early in the second half.

Dominique Wilkins, who scored 22 of his 32 points in the last two periods, helped the Hawks get within five after trailing by as many as 14, but they could get no closer.

Lakers 147, Nuggets 103

Los Angeles, which has won eight straight games by an average of 22.1 points, crushed Denver, 147-103.

The Nuggets, who have lost five in a row, led 31-21, but the Lakers scored 12 of the final 16 points of the first quarter to trail 25-33.

Los Angeles then went ahead for good with a 9-0 streak to start the second period. It was 73-57 at halftime and the Nuggets got no closer than 16 points after that.

Alex English led Denver with 17 points.

Nets 116, Bulls 96
Buck Williams had a season-high 28 points and 18 rebounds as New Jersey beat Washington for its sixth straight home victory.

Williams and Orlando Woolridge, who along with Mike Gminski had 20 points for the Nets, led New Jersey runs after the Bulls had narrowed big deficits in the second and third quarters.

Jeff Malone had 13 of his 19 points and Moses Malone, who was 2-for-14 from the field in the first half, had 10 in the third period as Washington trimmed a 60-44 Nets lead to 70-67 with 3:01 left in the quarter. Woolridge then scored eight points in the next 2:26 for an 81-60 lead.

Pistons 122, Knicks 111
Detroit shook off the absence of leading scorer Adrian Dantley and got 33 points and an NBA season-high 19 assists from Isiah Thomas against New York.

The Pistons, with Dantley sidelined by bruised ribs, led 100-79 in the fourth quarter before a 16-2 Knicks run got them within seven at 6:32 to play. But that was as close as they could get.

Patrick Ewing led New York with 30 points and 14 rebounds, while Bill Laimbeer had 24 points and 13 rebounds for Detroit.

The Celtics' Fred Roberts (31) splits the Bucks' defense and goes up with a left-handed layup in NBA action Wednesday night at Boston Garden. The Celtics, without Larry Bird, beat the Bucks, 119-92.

play elsewhere. The Braves originally presented Horner a three-year contract worth $4.5 million, but withdrew the offer. Atlanta General Manager Bobby Cox said the team's newest offer would pay Horner more if he meets certain incentives.

Cox said the Braves have offered their other free agent, Doyle Alexander, a two-year deal for $1.7 million. "We just can't get together," Cox said. "They turned down everything. That's where we're at."

"If they choose to go out, they'll be out," Cox said. "Then, maybe we'll get them in May, but it will be for a lot less."

The Red Sox have offered Gedman a two-year contract worth $750,000 per season, but he wants more. This week, Jack Sands, Godman's agent, told the Yankees the All-Star catcher would like to play for them, but was rejected.

"There hasn't really been any negotiation," said Steve Feit, one of Dawson's agents. "I don't really expect anything to happen."

"Our offers are on the table," Montreal vice president Bill Stone-man said.

Hornor, of Atlanta, and Gedman, of Boston, also seemed prepared to sign with the Red Sox or be declared free to sign with any other club — except the Red Sox — before May 1.

May says Skins can stop Taylor

By David Ginsburg
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Redskins offensive tackle Mark May says he has come up with a few infallible ways to stop New York linebacker Lawrence Taylor.

Controlling Taylor, who had three sacks Dec. 7 in the last meeting between the teams, has been the main topic of conversation at Redskins Park this week as Washington prepared for its NFC championship game with the Giants on Sunday.

Speaking Wednesday before the Redskins, who have lost twice to the Giants this season, went through their initial practice of the week. May claimed he had a few novel ideas on how to control Taylor this time.

"We're going to chip in all our payoff money and hire someone to kidnap him," May said. "If that doesn't work, we're going to line up nine guys to the left of the football and attack him."

While May was joking around, defensive end Dexter Manley was shockingly stoic and subdued.

Manley, one of the league's most outspoken players, answered "No comment" to about half the questions posed to him by a host of reporters.

"I'm just taking a different approach this week," said Manley. "I usually handles interviews a lot like the same fashion as did his boyhood idol, Muhammad Ali."

Manley, named an All-Pro for the first time following the finest season of his career, said he was not specifically instructed to be quiet. But Coach Joe Gibbs and owner Jack Kent Cooke both viewed the interview from a window overlooking the practice field, and Manley knew it.

"I didn't tell Dexter to be quiet," Gibbs insisted later. "I told the whole team not to say anything stupid."

None of the players did say anything inflammatory. In fact, most had gushing words of praise for Taylor, an All-Pro selection whom May called "phenomenal."

"No matter what you do, he's tough to stop," May said. "I wish I could talk about this morning and will work on it this week."

Containing Taylor, the NFL Player of the Year and back-leader with 20½, will not be solely Jacoby's responsibility, according to Gibbs.

"We want to move him around so much that it's impossible to tell where he's going to be," Gibbs said. "So it won't be Jacoby on him all the time."

Jacoby, who has a broken hand, and guard Russ Grimm, who is nursing bruised ribs, both went through contact drills, as did wide receiver Gary Clark, who has been slowed by a sprained ankle.

Five minutes later Benson was still in the Giants' training room. "Attention members of the press, Brad Benson will not be able to talk to you today because he has the Dexter Flu," nose tackle Jim Burt said over the loudspeaker in the locker room. "His dog went to Dexter again for this week."

Oilers embarrassed at home by the Kings

By Ken Rappoport
The Associated Press

Last Saturday night, the Los Angeles Kings really embarrassed themselves at home against the Edmonton Oilers.

Wednesday night, it was the Oilers' turn to be embarrassed. "We were bad and they were very good. It was that simple," said Edmonton captain Wayne Gretzky following a 6-1 NHL shellacking by the Kings at the Northlands Coliseum. "There was just no chemistry."

It was a dramatic rebound for the Kings after their 8-1 pasting by the Oilers in Los Angeles just four nights earlier.

"That was as sharp as I've ever seen them play positionally," Kings Coach Pat Quinn said. "Whenever the Oilers moved the puck, we were in position to challenge them."

The Oilers' comeback came at 11:15. Vancouver's 3, Montreal 2, Pittsburgh 5, Washington 2, Philadelphia 6, New York Rangers 3, Chicago 4, Toronto 4, St. Louis 6, Hartford 3, and Buffalo 4, Vancouver 2.

Rookie Luc Robitaille had a goal and assist and the Kings scored three power-play goals in six attempts en route to their victory over the Oilers. The triumph enabled the Kings to even the season series with the Oilers at 2-2.

Robitaille scored his 24th goal at 2:50 of the first period, banging the third rebound behind goaltender Andy Moog. He later assisted on a goal as the Kings built their lead to 3-0 after the first period and 5-1 by the end of the second, preventing the Oilers from mounting any offensive threat in the third.

Roland Melanson stopped 28 shots in the Los Angeles net and assisted on Errey's goal, faked a pass on a break and flipped a backhand pass to Bob Mason at 15:58.

"The best thing about the game was that when we got the lead, we didn't sit back," Quinn said. "We challenged them with the lead ... I

"We don't care who scores goals at this point," Pittsburgh coach Bob Berry said, alluding to injuries that have his team's top two scorers, Mario Lemieux and Terry Ruskowski, on the shelf. "We need them. We have to have four lines going and they're going to get chances."

Canucks 3, Canadiens 2
Rookie David Bruce scored 1:26 into overtime to lift Vancouver over Montreal. The Canucks sent the game into overtime when Steve Tambellini scored a goal with 3:06 left in regulation.

Canucks goaltender Richard Brodeur made 44 saves, including some game-saving stops in the overtime period. Brodeur got his right toe on Brian Skrudland's low shot and then felled Claude Lemieux seconds later when he blocked a wrist shot from the slot to keep the Canadiens at bay until Bruce connected from 10 feet past Canadiens goaltender Brian Hayward.

"The defenseman came out at me and I had no other choice than just to one-time it and get it on net," Bruce said. "This (the Montreal Forum) is a great place to score in and I'm glad this happened for the team."

Bob Galsey and Kjell Dahlin scored for Montreal and Tony Tanti scored Vancouver's other goal.

Penguins 5, Capitals 2
Bob Errey, Randy Hillier and John Chabot scored within 3:32 of the first period as Pittsburgh beat Washington. The revitalized Penguins won their second consecutive game after ending an 8-3 streak Saturday.

After Gaetan Duchesne gave Washington a 1-0 lead at 2:42 of the first period, the Penguins struck back.

Errey scored at 12:26. Hillier tallied at 13:34 and Chabot, who assisted on Errey's goal, faked a pass on a break and flipped a backhand pass to Bob Mason at 15:58.

The Blackhawks' Gary Nulund (31) tries to move Toronto's Rick Vaive (22) out in front of the Chicago net as goalie Bob Sauve (31) tries to get to the puck in their NHL game Wednesday night. The Blackhawks won, 6-4.

Entering the game, the Sabres had a record of 8-18-2 when they trailed after two periods. Arnel admitted a sense of satisfaction after scoring the tying goal. "I wanted to see someone get that tying goal. I wanted to win this thing," he said.

Arnel was traded to the Sabres on June 21 in exchange for Gilles Hamel.

Alabama cooks host Wildcats

By The Associated Press

Alabama forward Jim Farmer had the recipe that ruined No. 9 Kentucky's home cooking.

"You got to do a lot of things well here," Farmer said of Rupp Arena, the 23,000-seat building the Wildcats call home and where they had won 24 consecutive games.

"You've got to shoot well, play good defense and keep the crowd out of the game, and we did that."

Farmer scored 20 of his 32 points in the second half to lift Alabama to a 69-55 Southeastern Conference victory Wednesday night.

The Sabres were the first in Rupp Arena for Kentucky Coach Eddie Sutton and the worst suffered there by the Cats since Alabama — who also came up here 76-64 on Jan. 12, 1980.

"We came up here with it in mind that we could win and we did," said Alabama center Derrick McKey, who had 25 points and nine rebounds. "We knew if we kept working hard, our defense would come around, and we worked hard."

The victory improved Alabama to 9-2 overall and 3-0 in the SEC, while Kentucky fell to 7-3 and 1-2. In other Top Twenty games Wednesday night, No. 16 Georgetown beat No. 10 St. John's 66-46; No. 13 Auburn defeated Georgia 62-58 in overtime; No. 17 Duke beat St. Joseph's 63-43; and No. 20 Clemson remained unbeaten with a 73-69 victory over No. 18 North Carolina State.

"I think Alabama is the best team in our league and they played really well tonight," Sutton said.

Jeff Moore led the Tigers with 16 points, while Frank Ford had 14 and Davis 11. Dennis Williams had 16 points in the first game of the season. Anderson added 15.

"I know people thought coming in that we would come down here and get blown out," Georgia Coach Hugh Durham said. "But that was not the case. I am proud of this team for the way they regrouped and hung together after all the distractions."

Kentucky got no closer than 59-53 on center Rob Lock's three-point shot with 5:52 left. The Wildcats didn't score again until Lock's short bank shot with 30 seconds left.

No. 10 Georgetown 60, No. 16 St. John's 66-46; No. 13 Auburn 62, Georgia 62; No. 20 Clemson 69, Alabama 55.

No. 17 Duke 63, St. Joseph's 62; No. 18 North Carolina State 69, Virginia 56; No. 19 Virginia Tech 62, Wake Forest 56.

Other Games: Tom Sheehy's 16 point led Virginia to a 66-50 victory over Missouri; Andrew Moten and Vernon Maxwell scored 24 each as Duke blasted Mississippi State 106-86; Pervis Ellison's 18 points led Louisville to a 73-64

Coghlan's demerol as runner greatly exaggerated

By Bert Rosenholz
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Ireland's Eamonn Coghlan, the fastest indoor mileer in history, said yesterday that reports of possible career-threatening injuries when he was bitten by a dog in Dublin were greatly exaggerated.

"The media scared a lot of people more than the dog scared me," Coghlan, the three-time champion of the Manchester, Conn. Road Race, which is held each Thanksgiving Day, said by telephone from his suburban home.

"The incident was bad enough. I got bitten five times and had my left hand broken. But afterward, people were writing that I might not be able to run this indoor season and by not running indoors, I would lose $75,000.

"That's not true.

"I had said afterward that if I missed two days of training, it could affect my indoor season. I missed only 10 days.

Despite suffering three bites on the right leg, two on the left leg, both under the thigh, and a broken patella bone on the left hand, which required surgery and five stitches, the 34-year-old Coghlan is anxiously looking forward to the indoor season.

He plans to run the mile next weekend in the Eastman Kodak Invitational at Lake City, Tenn., against 1976 Olympic 1,500-meter gold medalist John Walker of New Zealand and Ray Flynn of Ireland.

"I can't get into full speed by now. I will change to the two-mile," Coghlan said.

"I've trained too well to let this bother me. I've had worse things than dog bites. If I had a stress fracture, I would be more concerned."

Coghlan began working out only three days after the dog attacked him during a training run Dec. 27.

On Dec. 30, one day after being released from Mater Hospital in Dublin, he worked out on a stationary bike in a gym. The next day, he ran seven miles, then went 10 miles each of the succeeding three days, before returning to the United States last Saturday night. He ran 10 miles again Sunday, before getting back onto the track Monday for repeat workouts of three-quarter miles.

Coghlan's most serious wounds are on the right calf — "which will be bandaged for about another month, there's the danger of infection setting in," he said — and one on the left leg, where the bandage might come off this weekend.

"The wounds are deep. The one on the back of the right calf is the most severe. You can still see the muscles through the skin. It's about 1 1/2 inches deep. They couldn't stitch it up because they were dead tissue and an uneven cut. It could get more infected, if they did."

Coghlan said the bad wound on the left leg "is a hole about 1 1/4 inches deep in an area where there is little muscle, mostly tendons. But fortunately, it didn't get tendons."

"The first few days of training for Coghlan were extremely painful. "It felt like the muscles were tearing open where the holes are," Coghlan said. "It's still not comfortable. I have to hold the muscles tight. I can't relax. If I relax, I feel some tingling in my leg."

"But my body has responded well. Each day it's getting better. "I feel good and I feel strong. The only thing I lost last week by missing those two days of training was some power. And by the end of this week, I should have that back. Right now, I'm a little weaker and I'm not as fast as I was before."

The incident was triggered when two teen-age boys were crossing a street on their bikes against a traffic light.

"A car honked its horn at them," he said, "and the kids cursed at the driver."

Meanwhile, there was a woman crossing the street with a little girl and Coghlan asked the youngsters to stop their foul language.

"They then cursed at me," Coghlan said. "I ran at them to scare them, and I guess they got confused. The dog started to go for my legs, and the kids said, 'Get him.' Then, they threw their bikes over their heads and ran away. I guess there was nobody being hit at all. I just wanted to scare them."

Coghlan also said he was back to his normal weight of 144-145 pounds. Prior to the 1986 indoor season, he weighed 142 and lost 10 pounds, and had a disastrous campaign, both indoors and outdoors.

"I was very weak and dehydrated indoors," he said. "And I think the effects of the indoor season lingered over to the outdoor season."

His season ended Aug. 13, after a race at Zurich, Switzerland. "I was performing very poorly. I was a mile best of 3 minutes, 49.78 seconds in 1983 and won the 5,000-meter title in the World Championships that year. "I was hitting every step."

He took five weeks off, before returning to training in late September.

"Now, I feel fine," he said.

Bobcats take wild affair from East icemen

By Paul Orlin

SOUTH WINDSOR — It wasn't exactly old time hockey.

When East Catholic and South Windsor High played on Wednesday night at Hartford Arena, they borrowed a chapter from the Smythe Division hockey text: Shoot and score.

And when senior co-captain Mike Wash's enemy netter — his third goal of the evening — led a 9-7 Bobcat victory, the official score sheet looked as if it were wired in directly from Edmonton or Winnipeg.

But the second period for example, when 11 pucks crossed the goal line — four on the power-play, one short-handed and two on a pivotal 5-on-3 South Windsor advantage.

With East defenseman Craig Riendeau sitting out a double minor for tripping and an additional unsportsmanlike conduct, South Windsor broke a 4-4 second period tie with power-play tally by Bryan Gavini and Wash and never relinquished the lead.

"Anytime you can get a 5-on-3 situation when the game is close and you get two goals, it's like a gift from the other team," South Windsor coach Bob Wahlberg said after his team won its second game of the season against three defeats.

"South Windsor played a much better game," a dejected East coach Dr. Eric Russo said. "We didn't have any discipline on the ice, neither in the way we played or our attitude. We didn't deserve to win."

East won 2-3.

Wahlberg pined the victors with three goals and three assists and linemate Rob LeBlanc added two goals and an assist. Scott Kendall had three points (one goal, two assists) while Greg Mahoney and Jeff Morin netted two goals for East. Riendeau, Lou Lanter and Scott Jensen also had two points for the Eagles.

It didn't take long for the Bobcats to make their presence known. In the first period, East scored three goals in the first 10 minutes. Thirty-nine seconds into the game, Gavini's 35-footer skipped past Eagle goalie George Jordan's stick and South Windsor had an early 1-0 lead.

South Windsor made it 2-0 when Junior defenseman Kevin Salkeld hooked Kendall at the door and Jeff East cut the lead in half when Kendall and Luster set Mahoney up for a wristed that beat Bobcat goalie Eric Easton at the 9:36 mark of the opening period.

"I was glad to see us get the first couple goals in the game. It was the lead, even at times build on in the wild second period."

In contrast, the third period was a defensive battle featuring steady goaltending at both ends. East's completely undisciplined fashion, there is no excuse."

East is back in action Saturday at 7:15 p.m. against Immaculate High of Danbury, the defending Division II champions, at the Bolton Ice Palace.

Sports in Brief

Youth soccer registration is set

Manchester Rec Department will continue youth soccer registration for two more consecutive nights, Jan. 12 and 16, from 6-8 p.m. at the Hilling Junior High cafeteria each night.

There are four divisions: Age 6-7, Midget (ages 8-9), Junior (ages 10-11) and Intermediate (ages 12-14). Fee for each child is $5.00. There are no registration fees for boys and girls separately. Age is determined as of Dec. 31, 1986.

A Rec membership card is required at time of registration and there is a $5 registration fee.

To speed registration, Rec membership cards may be purchased at the East Side Rec, Community Y, Mahoney Rec Center and Highland Park Community Center.

There is a maximum number of participants that will be accepted and once that number is reached, no further registrations will be accepted. There will be no registrations accepted after Jan. 28, 1987.

Little League holding sign-ups

Manchester Little League will conduct its second and final sign-up session for the 1987 season on Sunday at the American Legion Hall on Legion Drive between the hours of 1 and 4 p.m.

Signups are for all children between the ages of 7 through 12. Youth must be seven before July 31, 1987 and not turn 13 after July 31, 1987. Birth certificates are required at time of registration and either a parent or guardian must accompany each youth.

League registration fee is $10 per player or $15 per immediate family.

Tryouts are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, March 21 and 22, weather permitting.

Anyone interested in coaching, umpiring, serving as a commissioner or in any other capacity is asked to be at the signups.

For further information, contact Ed Detore at 643-4482 or Paul Scheinblum at 649-6470.

'We Love the Whalers' breakfast set

HARTFORD — The third annual "We Love the Whalers" breakfast will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 24, at the Parkview Hilton Hotel. The breakfast is organized by the Greater Hartford Convention & Visitors Bureau to show community support for the Whalers.

All the Whaler players will be on hand at the breakfast and most tables will have at least one player or a team representative.

Proceeds benefit the Whalers Charity, the UConn Children's Cancer Fund.

Tickets are $20 per person or $18 per table of 10. For reservations, information, contact the Convention Bureau, One Civic Center Plaza, Hartford, Ct., 06103, or call 728-6789.

O'Grady, Calcavecchia share lead

CARLSBAD, Calif. — There was "a little magic in the air" for Mac O'Grady during the first round of the Tournament of Champions golf tournament.

But it wasn't his alone.

O'Grady, however, left some of that magic out on the La Costa Country Club course.

While O'Grady, once a maverick but now "attempting to use the best judgment possible," was talking about "a special aura" that descended on him during a round of 65, Mark Calcavecchia found some homemade magic of his own.

Calcavecchia played the last seven holes in seven under par — an eagle and five birdies — and tied O'Grady for the first-round lead Wednesday in the $500,000 event that brings together only the winners of PGA Tour events from the previous 12 months.

Greg Norman, the Australian who won the British Open and dominated world golf in 1986, was another shot back at 69. And he was very much on O'Grady's mind.

"I'll be surprised if Norman isn't doing a tap-dance at the end," said O'Grady, who won at Hartford last summer.

Davis, Uphaw top fame possibles

CANTON, Ohio — Los Angeles Raiders owner Al Davis and Gene Uphaw, current head of the players' union, both known for their feuds with the NFL hierarchy, held the list of finalists for the 1987 class of enshrinees to the Pro Football Hall of Fame announced today.

Joining Davis and Uphaw as finalists are 13 former players, including wide receiver Fred Biletnikoff, offensive tackle Bob Brown, running back Larry Conka, quarterback Len Dawson, defensive tackle Joe Greene, quarterback Bob Griese, running back John Henry Johnson, offensive guard Jerry Kramer, center Jim Langer, offensive guard Larry Little, wide receivers Don Maynard and Tommy McDonald and defensive tackle Alan Page, as well as former Cleveland Coach Blanton Collier.

The finalists, determined by the Hall of Fame's 30-member board of selectors, will be considered for enshrinement when the Hall's selection committee meets in Anaheim, Calif., Jan. 24.

Blanchi lined $1,500, suspended

NEW YORK — Al Blanchi, assistant coach of the Phoenix Suns, was fined $1,500 and suspended without pay for one game by the NBA Wednesday and three players were fined for fighting during the Suns' game with the Lakers in Los Angeles last Friday night.

Frank Brickowski of the Lakers was fined $2,500 and his teammate Wes Matthews was assessed $1,000 while Grant Goddard of the Suns was fined $750.

Gretzky NHL player of the month

NEW YORK — Wayne Gretzky of the Edmonton Oilers, who led NHL scorers with 18 goals and 18 assists in 13 games in December, has been named Player of the Month for December, the league announced Wednesday.

The perennial All-Star center, an eight-year veteran, now has won the award 22 times since its inception in the 1980-81 season. His 36 points during December led the Oilers to a 10-1-1 record.

MHS grapplers remain undefeated

The Manchester High wrestling team continued its winning ways Wednesday by easily defeating Xavier High of Middletown, 56-10, in a dual meet at Clark Arena.

The Indians captured 11 out of the 13 matches, including first in the 110 and 125-pound divisions. Winners for the Indians included Walter Lee, Corey Craft, Scott Jensen, Chris Egan, Erik Gremmo, Pete Fongeme, Aaron Dixon, John Dixon, Todd Grossman, Jordan Grossman, Greg Fongeme and Aaron Dixon are freshmen. Girls Basketball MHS nipped

HARTFORD — Still looking for new glasses when it's over.

The network will start coverage at 11:30 a.m. EST with DePaul-Georgetown. That will be followed by the 1985-Celtics game at 1:30 p.m. and a two-hour Super Bowl pre-game show at 4 p.m.

By the time the Super Bowl is played in Pasadena, Calif., and the post-game interviews and ceremonies are completed, it should be past 10 p.m. in the East.

Will anyone finish the sports-watching marathon?

"I'm sure there'll be some," Richardson said. "Sports junkies have a lot of staying power."

Richardson has some advice for those who plan to spend the day camped in front of a television.

"Load up on pasta the night before for energy," he said. "Also, get a lot of water. You'll need it. It saves you all those trips to the refrigerator."

Last year, NBC gave Super Bowl coverage to 14 million viewers. This year, NBC gave Super Bowl coverage to 14 million viewers. This year, NBC gave Super Bowl coverage to 14 million viewers.

Ice Hockey MHS edged

BOLTON — Improvement.

That's one way to look at Manchester High's 2-1 loss to Fermi Friday night in the 1100-pound ice hockey action Wednesday night at the Bolton Ice Palace.

Manchester is the winner in eight of its 13 games. It has a record of 4-4 with the victory in the first game of the season. Fermi took a 1-0 lead in the first period.

CBS is turning Super Sunday into The Longest Day.

Before starting its extensive Super Bowl coverage on Jan. 25, the network will televise the DePaul-Georgetown college basketball game and an NBA contest between the Philadelphia 76ers and Boston Celtics.

That means sports fans will be able to watch more than 10 straight hours without changing the dial.

"Some people are going to have fried eyes," CBS spokesman Doug Richardson said. "They may need new glasses when it's over."

Yale bows

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Grant Evans said a seven-foot turnaround in the lane with 32 seconds left as Holy Cross edged Yale 69-67 in college basketball.

After taking a timeout Wednesday night, Yale moved the ball down the court but missed on a desperation shot. Holy Cross rebounded and held on until the clock ran out.

Yale, 5-4, led 35-28 at the half, but the Crusaders went away with 15:38 to play on a pair of free throws by Dwight Fennell, who led Yale with 14 points for Holy Cross, which improved to 2-1.

Glen Trofi and Dennis Aherm each scored 14 points for Holy Cross, which improved to 2-1.

Chris Dudley topped Yale with 16 points. Paul Muley 14 and John Rice added 10.

Manchester's Greg Vincent tangled with Hartford Police's Skip Hayes at the recently held Manchester Holiday Tournament. Vincent won that match, and won again Wednesday against Xavier in a dual match.
