WEATHER

THE WEATHER

The Accu-Weather forecast for Thursday shows generally sunny skies for most of the nation. Showers are expected in the Northeast, Southeast and the Texas Gulf.

REGIONAL WEATHER

Accu-Weather forecast for Thursday Daytime Conditions and High Temperatures

Connecticut forecast

Central, Eastern Interior, Southwest Interior: Tonight, becoming cloudy with showers likely late at night. Low around 40. Thursday, showers likely in the morning, becoming mostly cloudy in the afternoon. High in the mid 50s.

West Coastal, East Coastal: Tonight, becoming cloudy with showers likely late at night. Low 40 to 45. Thursday, showers likely in the morning, becoming mostly cloudy in the afternoon. High around 50.

Northwest Hills: Tonight, becoming cloudy with showers likely late at night. Low around 40. Thursday, showers likely in the morning, becoming mostly cloudy in the afternoon. High 50 to 55.

Across the nation

Snow piled up in the wind-whipped Plains today as a powerful storm pushed slowly to the northeast, while broad sections of the nation had fair weather. The storm that was sending snow and strong winds across the northern and central Plains was centered over eastern Nebraska.

Today's snow and winds of up to 40 mph extended from western Kansas to northern Colorado, western and central Nebraska to the Dakotas.

Rain spread from eastern South Dakota into Minnesota, Iowa, the lower Missouri Valley and the Great Lakes region across the northern Atlantic, western and central Nebraska to the Dakotas.

Fair weather prevailed from the central Atlantic Coast region through the eastern Great Lakes region and New England across the Atlantic, Mississippi Valley and much of the southern Plains, and from the northwestern states into California.

Blighted warnings were in effect in central sections of Nebraska and South Dakota while high wind warnings were posted in southwest Nebraska.

Heavy rain flooded creeks and streams in sections of Nebraska, Kansas and western Iowa. Grand Island, Neb., has had 82 inches of rain this month, making it the area's wettest March on record, beating a record of 5.37 inches set in 1972.

Today's forecast called for snow and gusty winds from Minnesota across the northern Plains, rain from the lower Missouri Valley to the upper Great Lakes; showers and thunderstorms scattered from the southern Appalachians to the southern Atlantic Coast states; and rain widely scattered across the southern Rockies and western Washington.

Highs were forecast in the 30s to 40s from the Rockies across the northern and central Plains to the upper Mississippi Valley.

FOCUS

Tomato Taxing Tomatoes
Trade legislation now before Congress could raise prices for many imported goods. About 100 years ago, a tariff on tomatoes imported from the West Indies led to a major Supreme Court battle. Under the Tariff Act of 1883, only fruits could be imported duty-free. Because tomatoes are a technically a fruit of the vine, importer John Nix challenged the duty on tomatoes. The Supreme Court ruled the tomato a vegetable on the grounds that it is served for dinner, not dessert.

Budget cut could slow police plan

By George Lovins
Herold Reporter

Plans to improve and reorganize the police department could be delayed by a couple of months if the budget proposed by Town Manager Robert B. Weiss is adopted by the town Board of Directors, Deputy Chief Henry Minor said today.

The department has asked that the town hire an administrative captain, a crime-prevention officer and a patrol division lieutenant in the 1987-88 fiscal year. These changes were based on recommendations made by a 1986 study of the town's police department.

However, Weiss declined not to include the additional sworn personnel when he released his spending plan earlier this week. In his proposal, he said the decision was made "after considerable deliberation."

Weiss said the administrative captain position could be filled in the latter half of the 1987-88 fiscal year, depending on whether there is enough money left in the department's contingency fund and whether there is "substantial work completed" in other policy and procedural changes suggested by the study.

Minor, though, said the department wanted to have the authority to hire the three officers, and planned to do so by January 1988, when the other work is scheduled to be finished.

CDC doc speaks on AIDS

By John Mitchell
Herold Reporter

Prevention was the key word Tuesday morning when 250 teachers and health-care professionals met for breakfast at Valle's in Hartford and got a full helping of AIDS information, provided by the Community Council of the Capitol Region.

The speaker, Dr. Mary Chamberland, a Hartford native studying AIDS at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, provided an overview of the crippling disease.

Nationally, Chamberland said, blacks and Hispanics represent 75 percent of the heterosexual cases.

Dr. Steven Uranga McKane, Hartford's director of health, said the numbers are misleading and represent only the tip of the iceberg. "For every AIDS case, there's probably ten people with AIDS-related complex," he said, meaning those who are carriers.

"We're talking about 15,000 individuals that are in need of medical attention," he said.

All said the problem would get worse, calling for preventive measures and behavioral changes to curb the spread.

McKane said the state is working to develop counseling and testing sites.

New Re-entry director sees the Nigerian side of justice

By John Mitchell
Herold Reporter

When Johnson Omokaye was growing up in Lagos, Nigeria, he witnessed a prison system in which people could be locked up without a trial and with little chance of getting out again.

"It's horrible. It's not up to standard," the new coordinator of the Project Re-entry program said.

It was partly what he saw in Africa that prompted Omokaye, 30, to study criminal justice in America. "If I hadn't had the chance to come to the United States, I probably would have gone into the military to enforce change," he said.

Enforcing change is a major priority for him in his new role as coordinator, which he held for less than a week. The program, sponsored by the Manchester Area Conference of Churches and the state Department of Corrections, helps former prisoners return to society.

In DECEMBER, the program temporarily closed its doors when its coordinator, James Foley, left to accept a position with the Department of Corrections in Litchfield.

"It's going excellent. I love it," Omokaye said Monday from the Re-entry office at 64 Church St. Behind him, taped on a bookshelf, were pictures of his wife, Carolyn, whom he met while studying in Chicago, and his daughter, Johanna.

After receiving a bachelor's degree at Northeastern University in 1983, he began work on his master's degree at the State University College at Buffalo.

He made a side trip to Manchester in December and fell in love with the town. "The peace and tranquility of this town makes me comfortable," he said.

Omokaye, who has lived in America for nine years, still makes the 400-mile drive to Buffalo each week to finish his degree. He expects to graduate in December.

"The trek is fine with him. 'It's a challenge,' he said. 'I'm the kind of person that likes to be on the move.'"

HE WAS OFFERED the $16,000 job armed only with a volunteer stint in Buffalo, where he counseled former prisoners at halfway houses.

Nancy Carr, director of MACC, admitted he didn't have much experience. "This is an entry-level position," she said. "We didn't have a lot of people banging down the door."

Carr said what got MACC interested in Omokaye was a "super recommendation" from Buffalo.

"He certainly exhibited the attitude and abilities we wanted to see," she said. "We were very pleased when he said yes."

Although he came into a leadership program, Omokaye said it wasn't in disarray. "There were people keeping up with what needed to be done," he said.

CURRENTLY THERE are about 12 clients under Project Re-entry. Foley was helping 10 and Omokaye brought five in. Those five, he said, have not been let out of prison yet.

Omokaye oversees a staff of one full-time and one part-time employee.

Omokaye said he expects understanding from the community with a program such as Project Re-entry. "Society has to be prepared to lend a hand," he said. "That's why there's so much recidivism."

He has no doubt he will get it in town. "The community is not such a large one, which makes a big difference," he said. "People are more aware of the programs around them."

Short-term plans include visiting the Department of Corrections at least once a week to work more closely with prisoners.

"I can work with them to make life easier," he said. "That's why I'm here."

Annual bonhead

Billionaire H. Ross Perot has been named Bonhead of the Year by the Bonhead Club of Dallas for receiving a whopping $700 million in severance pay but dawdling on his way to the bank with the check.

Perot recently resigned his top job at Electronic Data Systems, get $700 million for it, and then not cash the check — that's a genuine bonhead," said Paul Dishman, one of the club's 57 members.

Perot banked the check about four weeks later.

Clark dropped

Former Attorney General Ramsey Clark was dropped as speaker for a Jewish benefit after complaints about his legal work for the Palestine Liberation Organization and an alleged Nazi collaborator.

United Jewish Fund director Morris Sherman denied the decision because the theme was changed from civil rights to Israel, a subject on which Sherman said Clark is not an expert.

Rabbi Abraham Cooper, associate dean of the Simon Wiesenthal Center, said, "We're not telling Mr. Clark who to defend or how to make his living, but it's just not appropriate for him to be paid to speak to a Jewish audience, given his associations."

Sherman said Clark would still receive his $2,000 to $2,500 fee.

Clark was in Europe and unreachable for comment Tuesday, his New York office said.

Clark's clients include the P.L.O. in a suit brought by the family of Achille Lauro hijacking victim Leon Klinghoffer and Karl Linas, an Estonian immigrant seeking to avoid deportation to the Soviet Union, where he could face death for allegedly participating in Nazi atrocities during World War II.

Accident causes power outage
Power was knocked out to 122 Manchester customers Tuesday night when a car slammed into a utility pole at the corner of Margaret Road and Loomis Street, officials said today.

The pole snapped, bringing down live wires and a transformer that hung by a wire over the vehicle and dripped oil, but the driver was not injured and the car was driven away from the scene, said Eighth Utilities District fire department spokesman Thomas R. O'Marra.

The driver of the vehicle was Paul LeGeyt, 22, of 37 Kerry Street, police said today. LeGeyt was charged with traveling too fast, police said.

O'Marra said the accident occurred at 10:17 p.m., and was cleaned up at 2:10 a.m. He said the oil was contained by firefighters using sand.

Officials from Northeast Utilities and the state Department of Environmental Protection determined that it did not cause a contamination.

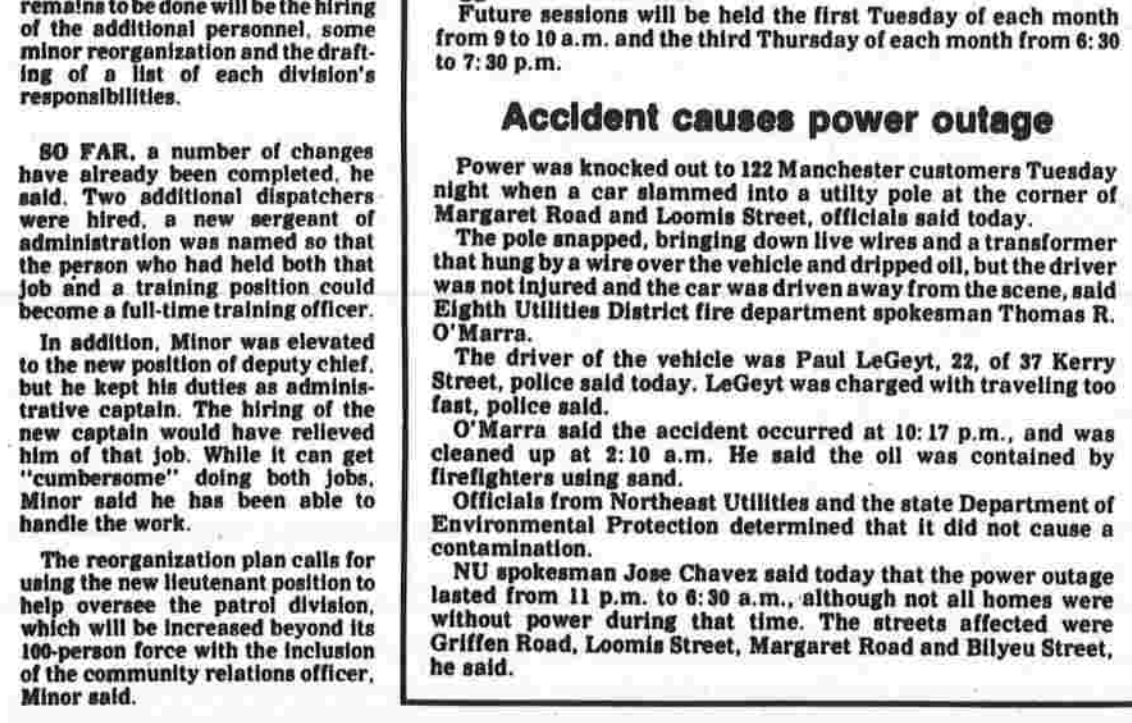

NU spokesman Jose Chavez said today that the power outage lasted from 11 p.m. to 6:30 a.m., although not all homes were without power during that time. The streets affected were Griffen Road, Loomis Street, Margaret Road and Bilyen Street, he said.

Connecticut In Brief

Insurance rate review approved

HARTFORD — A legislative committee has unanimously approved a measure that would create rate review and consumer services divisions within the state Department of Insurance.

In the measure approved by the insurance committee Tuesday, the rate review division would employ insurance actuaries to make sure insurance rates are based on risk factors and not market forces. The consumer division would handle consumer complaints and compile records of problems.

A consumer group called the Connecticut Alliance for Insurance Reform has said the measure doesn't go far enough to bring down insurance rates, which rose sharply during the past two years.

The group has called for an independent consumer advocate similar to the consumer counsel who represents the public in rate cases before the state Department of Public Utility Control. It also wants the insurance department to have the authority to approve or deny proposed premium increases.

Crew accidentally breaks gas line

CANTON — About 75 people were evacuated from businesses along a quarter-mile stretch of Route 44 when an excavation crew accidentally broke a connection in a natural gas line, police said.

Police Lt. David Whirly said people were allowed to return to offices and stores about 12:15 p.m. Two hours after the leak was reported. Traffic was also diverted away from the area, he said.

Workers from the Connecticut Natural Gas Co. repaired the damage at 183 Albany Tpk., a building containing a motorcycle dealership and a kitchen supply outlet, Whirly said.

He said the accident occurred while a crew was digging a trench to install water lines.

"In the process of excavating this trench, they exposed a service line from the Connecticut Natural Gas Co. and... there was a cave-in of one of the trench's walls and the force of the wall separated a connection of the gas service (line)," Whirly said.

Legislators want more road funds

HARTFORD — The co-chairmen of the legislature's Finance Committee are calling for $670 million more in state spending on road building over the next decade.

And Sen. William A. DiBella, D-Hartford, and Rep. Ronald L. Smoko, D-Hamden, say they reject Gov. William A. O'Neill's proposal to freeze automobile license and registration fees.

DiBella and Smoko said the fees should continue to increase as planned under the state's 10-year, $5.5 billion renewal program for roads and bridges begun in 1984.

The lawmakers have proposed that the state contribute slightly more than $1 billion and towns pay $440 million for road, water, and sewer line repair and replacement. The rest of the money for the $5.5 billion program is coming from the federal government.

Under DiBella's and Smoko's plan, the state's Transportation Fund would be increased by 1 percent a year for the next decade for a total of $670 million. The other $400 million of the state's contribution would come from auto fees and gasoline taxes.

During his re-election campaign last fall, O'Neill proposed that the fee for a driver's license be frozen at $32 and that the fee for a registration be frozen at $62.

SNET installing hearing aides

HARTFORD — Southern New England Telecommunications Co. is installing volume-control amplifiers on many pay telephones to assist the hearing impaired, company officials said.

Such devices already exist on about 1,100 pay phones across Connecticut, and about 4,800 phones will be outfitted by the time the program is completed in April 1989, Ellias Jenny, a SNET spokeswoman said Tuesday.

SNET said a button on the front panel of specially-designed pay phones allows callers to triple the volume of the voice on the other end of the line.

"It seemed to us as a company that this was something we'd be interested in doing," said Michael McCann, a SNET spokesman.

McCann said the program's cost, expected to be about $480,000 over several years, will probably be passed on to ratepayers.

SNET began an amplification program two years ago after the General Assembly passed legislation requesting it, McCann said.

Boy loses three fingers in blast

SOUTHURY — Police said they'd go to a local high school today in an effort to retrieve blasting caps from students after one of the sensitive devices detonated in the hands of a boy, severing a thumb and two fingers.

State police Sgt. Daniel Lewis said about 50 of the explosive caps were recovered Monday night after an unidentified 15-year-old boy was maimed while playing with blasting caps and a group of friends had found in a barn.

Another boy turned over a cap he had been chewing on, Lewis said.

Lewis said more of the devices are believed to be circulating among pupils at Pomperaug Regional High School. He said he planned to go there today to ask pupils to turn over any more of the caps to authorities.

"We believe that there may be more out there," Lewis said. "We went to the barn last night and got some from other students who had them. We were told that others are around," Lewis said.

Yale wins in high court

HARTFORD (AP) — Yale Literary Magazine, an independently run publication, has been told once again that it can't use the Yale name.

The state Supreme Court Monday upheld a lower court ruling, handed down in 1983, which prohibits the 151-year-old magazine from using the school's name, ending a five-year fight by Yale.

Another lawsuit over the issue is also pending in U.S. District Court. Lawyers William J. Doyle and Mark R. Kravits, who represented Yale University, said Monday that they were pleased with the Supreme Court decision.

"We're happy to see this thing come to an end," Kravits said, "and we think it will shortly end in federal court too, frankly."

Lawyer John R. Williams, who represented the magazine, said he and his clients have not given up hope.

"We're bloody, but unbowed at this point," he said.

The debate over the "Yale" name began in 1978, when the magazine was bought from a Yale undergraduate organization for $1 by Andre Narvoux, Narvoux, a Russian immigrant and Yale graduate, is divorced from Kathleen Kilpatrick, publisher of the magazine.

The university claimed the magazine historically was an undergraduate publication owned and controlled by the university.

Union approves contract

WALLINGFORD (AP) — Grave-diggers for the Catholic Cemeteries Association in the Archdiocese of Hartford were set to return to work today after ratifying a new contract.

The eight-day strike by grave-diggers for 28 Roman Catholic cemeteries ended Tuesday with ratification of the contract, and the graveyards began scheduling 101 burials delayed by the job action.

Richard Fleck, a spokesman for the state Department of Labor, said the members of United Steel Workers Local 14323 voted, 27-14, in a hall here to approve the contract, hammered out during a day-long negotiating session Monday.

The 47 grave-diggers will go back to work today, said Richard Meagher, executive director of the Catholic Cemeteries Association.

"We are scheduling (burials) as fast as possible and one possibly will be scheduled for (Wednesday)," Meagher said.

He said the burials should be finished by next week at the latest. All interments scheduled for today will take place, he added.

"I'm very happy that the families who have been inconvenienced by the strike are now going to be able to have the interments take place," Meagher said.

Union representatives didn't return telephone messages left in their headquarters.

The strike was the first by grave-diggers since 1977, when a seven-week walkout delayed the burial of 376 bodies.

The new three-year contract, reached with the help of federal and state mediators, provides hourly pay raises of 40 cents in each of the first two years and 30 cents in the third, Meagher said.

Under the old contract, workers made between $9.25 and $10.43 per hour, except for trainees, Meagher said. He said full-time workers are guaranteed overtime and make an average of $23,000 a year.

The new contract also says the first worker to leave through attrition will not be replaced.

GOP leaders want tax list

By Judd Everhart
Herold Reporter

HARTFORD — Two top Republican legislators want the tax commissioner to immediately release a list of taxpayers who were allowed to escape payment of some $6.5 million in delinquency penalties over the past seven years.

Commissioner John G. Groppo of the Department of Revenue Services said his legal counsel, Sam Karam, was reviewing the request from Senate Minority Leader Reginald J. Smith, R-New Hartford, and House Minority Leader Robert G. Jaekle, R-Stratford.

Groppo said he would have a response today, but he added, "anything that we have here as far as taxpayers, as far as we are concerned, is confidential."

He noted that his department must make public lists of those owing taxes for more than 90 days, but those Smith and Jaekle are talking about have already paid their taxes.

Smith and Jaekle said there was no legal basis for keeping the names and the penalty waivers received confidential.

"On the contrary, we believe there is a compelling public interest at stake here, namely, the continued confidence of the vast majority of honest taxpayers who are attentive to and forthcoming in complying with state tax laws," Smith and Jaekle said in their letter to Groppo.

A state law requires that the Office of Policy and Management make public each year the list of delinquent taxpayers and the penalties they had waived by the state Tax Review Committee, made up of the tax commissioner, the state comptroller and the head of OPM.

Restaurateurs want full ban on smoking

up unhappy even under current restrictions because smoke drifts near their seats.

"It makes seating very difficult," he said.

The bill approved Tuesday would allow smoking only in rooms used for private parties and in bar areas where no food is served. It does not affect non-public work areas.

"Why don't they just outlaw smoking altogether and say anyone who smokes would receive a mandatory five-year sentence?" said Rep. Janet Polinsky, D-Waterford, a smoker.

Several cities, including Beverly Hills, Calif., and Aspen, Colo., have banned smoking in restaurants, but no states have taken such action, according to Allison Johnson of the American Lung Association of Connecticut.

Cambridge, Mass., recently banned smoking in all public places, exempting restaurants with 25 or fewer seats.

Restaurants in New York state with seating capacities of 50 or more have to set aside 70 percent of their space for non-smokers starting in May.

Current Connecticut regulations, Dottie Volpone, hostess at Leon's Restaurant in New Haven, said non-smoking customers often end

HARTFORD — Some restaurateurs say their lives would be much easier if Connecticut abandoned current requirements for non-smoking sections in restaurants and went with a complete ban.

The legislature's Public Health Committee on Tuesday narrowly approved a measure to do just that, despite complaints from several lawmakers that the proposed ban is an attack on individual freedom.

"It takes the problem away from us," said Guy Carbone, owner of Carbone's Ristorante and Gaetano's Ristorante in Hartford. Current law requires restaurants with seating capacities of 75 or more to set aside areas for non-smokers.

"Before they were asking us to be policemen," Carbone said. "Now we don't have to be policemen, we're just following the law."

Connecticut would be the first state in the country to ban smoking in restaurants if the bill wins approval by the legislature. The measure, approved Tuesday on a 9-7 vote, now goes to the Senate, where its fate is uncertain.

Cutting budget won't be easy

As the Board of Directors begins its review of the town manager's recommended budget for 1987-88, its members should examine what the manager has already cut from agency and departmental requests, and the directors should also review their past policy-making actions that could dictate spending decisions.

There always will be room for cuts in a budget as large as Manchester's, but the directors had better wield the knife with great care or they could risk a reversal of Manchester's progress toward long-term goals.

The $66.7 million recommendation by Town Manager Robert Weiss is, as usual, a well-prepared spending plan. It spells out the town's problems and opportunities, with full documentation of each request. It could be better only if the town government adopted the planning, programming and budgeting system used by the Board of Education, which accounts for all spending by program instead of by line item.

With few exceptions, the $66.7 million budget proposed by Weiss maintains the current level of town services. In his budget message, Weiss noted that he added only those improvements which he considered vital to the community.

And they are vital: The Finance Department needs more help to handle increasing service demands.

A special traffic study is warranted by new development and changing traffic patterns.

With the increased building activity, including the anticipated construction of the Mall at Buckland Hills, the building-inspection operation needs assistance.

Added positions in the highway and parks departments of the Public Works Department will merely handle work now done by contractors or neglected maintenance jobs throughout town.

A third mechanic at the police station is a long-overdue addition, considering the near-doubling of the cruiser fleet and tripling of the responsibility of traffic-signal maintenance. And the town can no longer put off hiring a housing-code inspector to make sure rental housing meets the minimum standards of health and safety.

The town manager's budget doesn't give every town department what it wanted. Before sending his plan to the directors, Weiss trimmed about $72,000, most of it from police and education requests.

The education reduction — $100,000 from a spending plan of more than $31.8 million — was insignificant, and the Board of Directors should not tamper with the school budget any further.

The police budget, however, deserves a closer look. The $179,317 cut from the police chief's request was substantial, and it could halt efforts to implement the reorganization plan accepted by the directors last year.

Weiss decided not to recommend the addition of police officers until more progress was made on developing the new policies and procedures suggested by last year's study. But the town manager's reasoning, though quite logical, could deny the department the help it needs to prepare the new policies and procedures.

The Board of Directors must also consider one major capital improvement not contained in the budget proposal, but for which there may be special revenue available.

Weiss's recommendation to set aside $1,100,000 for capital improvements should be followed, and the directors should go further, taking steps to begin expansion of the Municipal Building.

Money for an elevator, added vault space and other work could come from hurricane-damage reimbursements, unanticipated revenues from land-record fees and state infrastructure grants.

The long-term goal for capital improvements is to raise spending to the equivalent of 2 mills by the end of the decade. The 1987-88 plan, which represents 1.6 mills, might be the easiest place to reduce the budget, but it should be the last target of the directors.

Americans need rescue from lawyers

WASHINGTON — America has become overpopulated with lawyers, who endlessly complicate their procedures and increase their fees while justice languishes.

In a real sense, the legal profession has transformed the American system into a government of the lawyers, by the lawyers and for the lawyers. They now control the judicial branch, dominate the legislative branch and intimidate the executive branch.

What America needs is another revolution to free the people from the tyranny of the lawyers. They are about like Lilliputians who have entangled the American giant in red tape and legal snares until he can't move without consulting an attorney.

This has led to an explosion of litigation, which has burdened the paying public with billions in legal bills. These are paid by all the people in the form of higher costs, higher prices and lower productivity.

MEANWHILE, the courts are hopelessly clogged with cases; the verdicts are erratic and unpredictable; insurance is unavailable or unaffordable. Entrepreneurs have been driven out of business, doctors have abandoned their practices, journalists have stopped exposing wrongdoing, manufacturers have shut down plants, local governments have cut off services — all because they can no longer afford the high cost of defending lawsuits.

But Paul Revere rides again. Dashing into this legal nightmare on his charger is James K. Coyne, a modern Revere in pinstripes, who heads the American Tort Reform Association. Though not a lawyer, he has, in various public forums, out-argued, out-shouted and out-manuevered some of the nation's best trial lawyers.

During one debate, a prominent trial lawyer lost his decorum and stung Coyne in the face. Coyne resisted the temptation to retaliate, but the professional already has so many Americans suing one another that the whole civil liability system has gone berserk.

RECENTLY, the American Bar Association pulled back a bit from its no-compromise position and endorsed some legal reforms. The attorneys refused, though, to limit pain-and-suffering awards, which would reduce their own contingency fees. The few reforms that were adopted, snorted Coyne, left "loopholes big enough to drive a trial lawyer's Mercedes through."

In Coyne's revolution to win the country away from the lawyers and give it back to the people, the new Bunker Hill will be Capitol Hill. Coyne is preparing for the battle, but he needs the support of some modern revolutionaries. If you are in favor of reforming the legal system, you can obtain information from the American Tort Reform Association, Seventh Floor, 1250 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C., 20036.

Under other governments, those who sue, if they should lose, are required to pay all the legal expenses of the winners. But under the American system, anyone can sue you without risk. All he needs is an attorney who is willing to accept his case for a contingency fee. And the country is crawling with lawyers who are drumming up contingency cases.

IF YOU SHOULD get hit by one of these lawsuits, it doesn't cost the plaintiff a dime. He doesn't have to pay his attorney unless he wins. The attorney invests only his time, plus incidental expenses. Sometimes he can generate publicity that repays him in free advertising. The only one who will lose is you, the hapless defendant. If the verdict comes up tails against you, you lose heavily. If the verdict comes up heads in your favor, you still lose. For the case will cost you time, legal expenses and lawyers' fees.

Of course, some provision must be made for the poor, who are entitled to recourse to the courts if they are injured. But the real victim in America has become the defendant who loses even when he wins.

Mini-editorial: Foregoingness is sweeping the Reagan administration. The latest to take a cue from his selectively amnesiac leader is Vice President Bush's security adviser, Donald Gregg. Bush assured "60 Minutes" that Gregg wasn't lying when he denied having discussed the Nicaragua contra situation with a key player in their secret supply network. He just forgot about the discussion, Bush said. Years ago, comedian Steve Martin recommended "I forgot" as an alibi to use for failure to pay one's income taxes. Surely Martin hasn't been signed on as a White House consultant... has he?

Ex-employee sues Pratt over firing

HARTFORD (AP) — A former worker at the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft plant in Southington is suing the company, alleging he was fired because he refused to cooperate with an investigation into a cocaine-trafficking ring he said existed inside the plant.

The lawsuit, filed by Bruce Paradis, 31, of Bristol, claims that P & W violated pledges of confidentiality, non-discrimination and non-retaliation when it tried to use him to catch drug dealers by setting up drug purchases inside the plant.

The suit was served on the secretary of the state's office Tuesday morning, a spokeswoman in that office said. That is necessary because Pratt & Whitney is a division of United Technologies Corp., which is incorporated in Delaware.

Sandra Ahearn, a company spokeswoman, said Tuesday that company would not comment on the suit or any of the allegations.

Attorneys to interview arms supplier

BRIDGEPORT — Attorneys for the U.S. government and a Pakistani national accused of illegally exporting weapons plan to travel to Portugal this week to interview an arms supplier who has been subpoenaed by the government but who refuses to come to this country.

The attorneys said they will interview the arms supplier, Manuel Pires, and possibly videotape his testimony.

Pires has been identified by the Pakistani national, Arif A. Durrani, as a key figure in the shipment of Hawk missile parts to Iran last year.

Durrani testified in court Tuesday that he discussed the shipment of Hawk missile parts to Iran with former National Security Council aide Lt. Col. Oliver North during a meeting in London last September.

Durrani said he met with North on one occasion at a Hilton Hotel in London.

"HE WANTED to reconfirm from me that I would be able to provide those parts," Durrani said. Durrani said he told North that he was having trouble getting an export license. He said North said, "Don't worry about it. Just get those parts."

Durrani maintains he was part of the U.S. effort to exchange arms for American hostages held in Lebanon.

"Originally it was just sending just weapons and then it turned into exchanging them for hostages," Durrani testified.

"It was a condition imposed by the U.S. ... that we would send weapons and they would deliver hostages," he added.

Durrani's attorneys said they subpoenaed North, but his lawyer said North would invoke his Fifth Amendment right not to incriminate himself. North was dismissed for his role in the Iran-Contra arms affair.

Durrani, 37, is charged with exporting $2,000 worth of missile parts to Iran. He has been jailed since his arrest on Oct. 3, 1985 on charges of exporting weapons without a license and exporting without a registration. "He (North) wanted to get the oscillators instantly," Durrani said, referring to parts of the missile guidance systems. "I tried to reassure him they would be available."

Durrani, who operates an aircraft parts business in Westlake, Calif., also said he met in Europe with Richard Secord, a retired Air Force general. He described Secord as the person who "coordinated all shipments to Iran for the U.S. government."

Durrani also said he met with Pires of Lisbon, who "was a supplier for small arms to Mr. Secord."

"I was told of transactions ... approved by the U.S. that were channeled through Israel to Iran," he testified.

During cross-examination on Tuesday, Durrani testified that he came to the United States in 1973 and received a master's degree in business administration from the University of California. He said he did not have a job from 1975 to 1977 and during that time, if he needed money, he got it from his mother.

"I didn't want to work for anyone," Durrani said. "If I needed $5,000 or $10,000, I'd just ask my mother."

HE ALSO SAID he bought a $120,000 home during that time and generally had three or four cars, including a 1968 Porsche, all paid for by his mother. He said his mother had maintained a Swiss bank account since the 1960s.

He said he was forced in 1964 and 1965 to dispose of his stock in Mexico, because he had declared "personal bankruptcy."

He also said he purchased a home, which cost about $1 million, in 1964 with money his mother gave him.

The government rested its case Monday. Durrani's attorneys said that they have also subpoenaed Robert McFarlane, former national security adviser.

Durrani testified that he has been in the arms business since he was a child and worked in his father's defense company. He said dealers in the international arms business belong to a small community.

"There is a handful of people ... if you are part of them, sooner or later, you know of every movement of weapons throughout the free world," Durrani said.

Open Forum

Condo owners are overtaxed

To the Editor:

Some residents of Manchester seem to be under a misconception as to the relationship between the town and the condominium complexes of Manchester (e.g., "Open Forum" by Nancy Hutchinson, Feb. 10). Condominium owners in Manchester pay the same mill rate on their property as any other homeowner. For the single-family homeowner, the town supplies snow removal on his street, pays for street lighting, provides animal control, and removes trash. The town does not provide these services for condominium complexes, regardless of taxes paid.

As the town will not come in the complexes and remove trash, the complexes must contract with private haulers. Until June of 1986, 1 and 1/2 percent of the single-family homeowner pays for trash removal. The town then levied a "tipping fee" for waste carried to the town dump by private haulers. Although residents of Manchester were exempted from this charge, condominium complexes soon found a separate, exorbitant "tipping charge" added to their trash-removal bills.

Town officials did not oversee or regulate the ridiculous amounts the complexes were being charged and supposedly exempted from. Based on figures provided by the Manchester Public Works Director, we are paying for trash removal equal to the amount that would be produced by eight people living in every single condominium unit — including one-bedroom units. Looked at another way, the trash haulers are charging us for producing over 10 pounds of trash per person per day, every day of the year. The addition of the "tipping charge" means that I pay 250 percent of what the single-family homeowner pays for trash removal.

As I saw it, the proposal put forth by the Northfield Green Association was for the town to rebate the $40 per home portion of property taxes earmarked for trash removal (which the town is not providing for condominiums anyway) in return for accepting the "tipping charge." A "free lunch" or "special breaks" that single-family homeowners do not receive had nothing to do with the situation.

I have heard an analogy that choosing to live in a condominium is similar to choosing to send children to a parochial school rather than tax-supported public schools. Using this analogy in the trash-removal situation, it is as if condominium owners wish to have their children attend the public schools their taxes pay for, but the town refuses to allow them to attend. Exorbitant parochial school tuition must then be paid on top of school taxes. The town, adding insult to injury, levies an additional fee on all parochial school students equal to the tuition paid.

It is as if condominium owners are being punished for not using the services that the town will not provide us.

On Feb. 2, the town board passed a proposal to end the "tipping charge" on condominiums, returning us to the inequitable situation of June 1986, when condominium owners paid 237 percent of the amount single-family homeowners pay for trash removal. No tax reduction or rebate occurred.

The condo owners of Manchester are not all a bunch of Perrier-slipping Yuppies sunning themselves by the pool and expecting something for nothing. The situation is the opposite of what some apparently think. Condo owners pay taxes at the same rate as all other homeowners and get few services. We are, in effect, subsidizing trash removal, snow removal, animal control, and street lighting for single-family homeowners. Twenty percent of my maintenance fee pays for services my taxes supposedly provide me with.

Raising needed funds will keep GOP busy

The new face in charge of state Republicans will be joined in May by 20 or so others on the party's top policy body and together they will share one compelling obsession — finding the cash to keep the darned operation going.

Bob Poliner, the Durham attorney who was elected chairman on March 10, is starting out as though hardly anything else matters. Poliner obviously believes that a political party can't be easy until it's solvent, and he wants to get there right away.

Judging from what he is saying at closed-door meetings with GOP insiders so far, that won't be easy. Poliner told House Republicans, for example, he needs $100,000 and he has something in excess of $4,000 to work with.

The $15,000-plus which House Republicans cleared at a social for Poliner last week won't help. That money was earmarked for their speciality ticket to help GOP candidates for the House.

BO POLINER is coming out of the box with one clear message wherever Republicans lend an ear to the new chairman. It was as basic for the House caucus as it was earlier that day when liaison staffers met with him in Hartford. He'll welcome their input as long as it's garnished with bright ideas on bringing in the sheaves, so to speak.

Capitol Comments

Bob Conrad

A troubled organization. The turnover this time won't be unusual, but the GOP in 1987 is as flattened financially as it is politically. The new chairman and the newly-constituted policy body have to deal with that.

AT LEAST 17 incumbents are not expected to seek re-election and others may lose their seats in May 12 contests. Two have moved out of their districts: Katie McGuire from Ellington to Waterford and Raeanne Curtis from New Haven to Hamden.

Robinson facing big decision about his future in basketball

By Hot Rock
The Associated Press

The decision weighs heavily on the broad shoulders of Midshipman 1st Class David Robinson, who continues to sweep college basketball's Player of the Year awards.

Does he become a part-time NBA player while completing his two-year Navy commitment? Or does he hang onto his amateur standing and play in this summer's Pan American Games and next year's Olympics?

For Robinson, who won the Eastman Award on Tuesday, his final days at the U.S. Naval Academy, where he set 33 school records, are clouded by the dilemma. "I am confident I'll be successful no matter which way I go," he said. "But I think one way might be better. The question is, which one?"

Robinson thoroughly enjoyed last season's world championships and suspects the Pan Am Olympic amateur perfect would be just as rewarding an experience. He is almost certain, however, to be a lottery pick in the NBA draft and the right Navy assignment would permit him to start his pro career immediately.

There are other factors involved for the 7-foot-10 Robinson, whose size disqualifies him from sea and air duty and reduced his military obligation from five years to two. One is which NBA team drafts him. Another is the experience of his friend, Ensign Napoleon McCullum.

McCullum, a record-setting running back at the Naval Academy, was drafted by the NFL's Los Angeles Raiders. He has combined his Monday-through-Friday Navy duty with a pro football career on Sundays.

"We talk a lot," Robinson said. "For Napoleon, it has been real hard. Practicing all the time working in the Navy, putting the two together have been real tough."

When he graduates May 26, Robinson will be commissioned in the civil engineer corps on a restricted list billet, which limits his duty because of his size. When he enrolled at Annapolis, he was 6-7. He just kept growing beyond the limits that planes and ships can accommodate.

"I went to the Academy because I wanted a great education," he said. "Basketball was secondary to me. I felt I had more (academic) potential than I showed in high school. I felt I needed a little discipline. With the emphasis on academics and the military, the Academy is a tough place to develop your game. It's easy to get distracted from basketball if you're not a great player with great talent."

"Big men who are prospects will still go to the other schools," he said. "If you're not a college basketball Player of the Year after receiving the trophy Tuesday in New York.

You might figure, 'Why waste my time?' I'll be offered will come to the Academy. I was not a great player and it was not a great program. We had trouble getting 1,000 fans to a game. As I grew, the program grew. That was to my advantage."

Not to mention the Academy's. Now, Robinson thinks Navy is a viable option for high school players interested in getting a quality education in a program that is not a total stranger to the Top 20. "I think a lot of guys want the education," he said. "That's real important today with the emphasis on academics. I think scholastic athletes will go that route, especially shooting guards or small forwards. If they are realistic about their pro potential and remember the small percentage of players who make it to the pros, they'll take a chance."

"Big men who are prospects will still go to the other schools," he said. "If you're not a college basketball Player of the Year after receiving the trophy Tuesday in New York.

Leafs feel right at home with victory at Buffalo

By Ken Roppoport
The Associated Press

The Toronto Maple Leafs are no great shakes on the road this year, but things are a little better when they play in Buffalo. Then, it's almost like a home game.

"We get a lot of support here," Toronto Coach John Brophy said after the Leafs' 6-5 NHL victory over the Sabres Tuesday night.

Brophy credited the large number of Maple Leaf fans that made the two-hour drive from Toronto to Buffalo for his team's "most" victory, only the rebound of Smith, who banged the puck into the net for the game-winner.

The victory was Montreal's first at the Colisee in Quebec in two years and it gave the Canadiens a 3-3 win record against the Nordiques this season.

The Nordiques trailed 3-2 heading into the final period but Michel Goulet's second goal of the game tied it.

"I like the way we're playing up the ice," Brophy said. "We're playing with a lot of energy and we're scoring goals. We're playing with a lot of energy and we're scoring goals."

The Canadiens moved five points up the ice Boston Bruins (62-77) in the battle for second place in the Adams Division standings.

Warren Young scored at 8:45 of the third period to boost Pittsburgh into a tie with Philadelphia. Young's goal put a rebound past Glenn Resch for his seventh goal of the year as the Penguins rallied from a 2-0 second period deficit on goals by Billy Lindstrom, Ruskski and Willy Lindstrom.

Buffalo head coach Ted Sator said he was disappointed by his team's performance.

"I guess that's our most intense game from start to finish this season," Brophy said. "We were very fortunate to hang on and win the game, there's no doubt about it."

In his briefest post-game meeting with the press since becoming Buffalo head coach, Ted Sator said he was disappointed by his team's performance.

The Toronto Maple Leafs are no great shakes on the road this year, but things are a little better when they play in Buffalo. Then, it's almost like a home game.

"We get a lot of support here," Toronto Coach John Brophy said after the Leafs' 6-5 NHL victory over the Sabres Tuesday night.

Brophy credited the large number of Maple Leaf fans that made the two-hour drive from Toronto to Buffalo for his team's "most" victory, only the rebound of Smith, who banged the puck into the net for the game-winner.

The victory was Montreal's first at the Colisee in Quebec in two years and it gave the Canadiens a 3-3 win record against the Nordiques this season.

The Nordiques trailed 3-2 heading into the final period but Michel Goulet's second goal of the game tied it.

"I like the way we're playing up the ice," Brophy said. "We're playing with a lot of energy and we're scoring goals. We're playing with a lot of energy and we're scoring goals."

The Canadiens moved five points up the ice Boston Bruins (62-77) in the battle for second place in the Adams Division standings.

Warren Young scored at 8:45 of the third period to boost Pittsburgh into a tie with Philadelphia. Young's goal put a rebound past Glenn Resch for his seventh goal of the year as the Penguins rallied from a 2-0 second period deficit on goals by Billy Lindstrom, Ruskski and Willy Lindstrom.

Buffalo head coach Ted Sator said he was disappointed by his team's performance.

"I guess that's our most intense game from start to finish this season," Brophy said. "We were very fortunate to hang on and win the game, there's no doubt about it."

In his briefest post-game meeting with the press since becoming Buffalo head coach, Ted Sator said he was disappointed by his team's performance.

Medicare as secondary plan helps you, government

Saving money to reduce the enormous federal deficit is the government's battle cry. But just how can cost-saving measures affect you is a question that only you can answer. Or can you?

Sylvia Porter

The trend over the last three years has been to encourage Medicare beneficiaries to elect their employer's or their spouse's employment-based health insurance plan as primary coverage. As a result, Medicare would become your supplemental insurance plan. Using Medicare as the secondary plan not only saves the government money, but also could be beneficial to you.

Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA). Opting for Medicare as a secondary payer works this way: You are over age 65 and working, or your spouse, any age, is working. An employer with 20 or more employees must offer workers age 65 or older the same health insurance benefits as offered to younger workers. If you DECIDE to accept the employer's plan as your primary plan, it pays first for any covered health care services you receive. If your employer plan does not cover all the expenses, Medicare may help with the remaining charges. You must examine the employer's plan carefully to decide whether you want to accept or reject this option. If you do not accept yours or your spouse's employment-based plan, Medicare will be your primary payer. The employer cannot provide supplemental coverage and you may lose your employee health insurance benefits, according to my research associate, Beth Kobliner.

ITS DIFFICULT to say just how many Medicare beneficiaries will opt to have already opted for their employer's plan, but according to HCFA, the savings to the government for fiscal year 1986 total more than $1 billion. The federal government estimates it will save about $100 million on the new provision that includes the disabled. But if you are among the more than 20 million older adults covered by Medicare or the 5 million disabled Medicare beneficiaries, are you even aware of these changes? "So far there has not been a massive education program," says Stephanie Kennin, legislative representative for the American Association for Retired Persons (AARP). "Some people just woke up and realized that there's a trend here," she adds. Many older workers are often confused by the sudden discovery that Medicare can be their secondary payer. And then there are many of you who do not realize that you are entitled to primary coverage under a wife's or husband's employment-based plan. AND IT'S NOT just the recipients that lack the education. As hospitals develop new manuals and insurance companies underwrite the cost provisions, more must be done to inform the press on the street. "We are trying to get the hospitals to add if the person or the spouse is employed," notes Sylvia Porter, HCFA's new beginning to educate the public. According to a spokeswoman from Congresswoman Claude Pepper's subcommittee on Health and Long-Term Care, "As usual, the administrative staffs miserably failed to provide the necessary information to hospitals and the elderly. They feel people should get information on their own."

Note: In general, if you accept the employer's plan, you should also apply for Medicare hospital insurance. ## Spring Fling

Marjorie Boland, Ellen Burns, Betty Sadioki and Carol Lingard prepare centerpieces for the Spring Fling dinner-dance planned April 3 at the Army and Navy Club to benefit the Eighth District Volunteer Fire Department's centennial celebration. A buffet is planned for 7 p.m., followed by dancing to the music of the Dubaldo Brothers from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Tickets cost $12.50 and should be purchased by Friday. For information, call Burns at 640-1256 days or 646-3083 evenings, or Sam Longest at 643-2301 evenings.

More rebate-related promotions are planned by the Philadelphia-area IGA supermarkets, and it is likely that other supermarkets around the country are considering IGA's success and thinking about ways they could promote their general merchandise (non-food) sales by using manufacturers' rebate offers.

Supermarket Shopper Refund forms boost sales

By Martin Sloane
United Feature Syndicate

Finding manufacturers' refund forms in the supermarket is often difficult. And it isn't easy convincing store managers that refund forms are an important consumer service either. But help may be on the way, and it comes from an unexpected source — small-appliance rebate offers. IGA supermarkets in the Philadelphia area carry small appliances and have always had a difficult time competing with the local mass merchandisers and discount stores. Last summer, Western, a national supplier of the IGA stores, came up with an idea to make IGA more competitive. Western urged IGA to promote national-brand small appliances whose manufacturers were offering rebates. "Our idea was to offer shoppers prices that were every bit as good as a discount," says Ron Turner, Western's manager for general merchandise. Twenty-five small appliances, ranging in price from a $5 travel iron to $25 toasters and blenders, were selected. But the key to attracting consumer interest was the rebate offer for each item. Special signs were set up on the shelves under each item showing the usual price, the sale price, and the final price after the consumer had received the manufacturer's rebate. The rebate was available at the checkout counter.

Rice dishes in microwave welcome menu during Lent

Rice dishes are a welcome addition to Lenten menus. Rice can be cooked in a microwave oven in a matter of minutes. It is a protein-rich and a starch-rich food. It is also a good source of B-complex vitamins, iron and calcium. Plain rice contains approximately 85 calories per half-cup serving. Rice can be flavored during cooking by using either chicken or beef broth for the cooking liquid. Give these rice recipes a try, your family will surely appreciate the flavor and variety they will add to your menu.

Two writers get arts fellowships
WASHINGTON (AP) — Writers Thomas McGrath and Grace Paley have been awarded senior fellowships of $40,000 each by the National Endowment for the Arts. The fellowships, which are not open for application, were established to honor those writers who have made a major contribution to American literature during their lifetimes. McGrath, 70, has published 30 works of poetry, fiction and children's books. His most recent publication is "The Labyrinth." Paley, 68, is the author of three collections of short stories. Last year, she published her first book of poems, "Learning Forward."

Rice ring around
4 cups water
2 cups regular uncooked rice
1 teaspoon instant chicken bouillon
4 tablespoons margarine
1/2 cup evaporated milk
2 large eggs, beaten
1 can (2 ounces) mushroom pieces, drained and chopped
1/2 cup chopped green onions with juice
In a 2-quart casserole, bring water to a boil on high, about 7 minutes. Stir in rice and bouillon; cover and microwave on high for 3 minutes, then on 50 percent (medium-low) for 12 to 15 minutes, or until liquid is absorbed. Fluff with a fork, re-cover and let stand for 5 minutes. Put butter into a microwave bowl, just or ring mold and microwave on high for 1 minute. Fill pan or ring with butter costs all sides. Pour excess into rice. Mix milk, eggs, mushrooms and green onions with rice; pack into prepared pan using the back of a wooden spoon. Microwave on high for 70 percent (medium-high) for 12 to 15 minutes, rotating dish once during cooking. Yields 6 to 8 main dish servings.

Chesapeake bay scallops
6 ounces fresh mushrooms, sliced
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 pound bay scallops, or 1 pound sea scallops, quartered
1/4 cup vermouth or dry white wine
2 tablespoons lemon juice

U.S./World In Brief

Casey suspected as mastermind

WASHINGTON — Congressional investigators believe former CIA Director William J. Casey got former White House aide Oliver L. North to organize a military supply operation to the Nicaraguan Contras that would hide CIA involvement, a published report says today.

The New York Times quoted two unidentified senators and a representative on the special committee investigating the Iran-Contra affair as saying they have clear indications that Casey, who is hospitalized with a brain tumor, masterminded the Contra aid effort.

The newspaper quoted other lawmakers and legislative aides as saying Casey turned to North to mask CIA's involvement and to avoid having to report the matter to Congress. From 1984 to 1986, Congress banned military aid to the Contra rebels fighting the leftist Nicaraguan government.

Hundreds of Afghans reported killed

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Soviet air attacks and commando raids killed hundreds of civilians and Moslem guerrillas in northern Afghanistan in retaliation for a guerrilla rocket attack on Soviet territory, guerrilla officials said today.

A Pakistani newspaper, meanwhile, reported that the toll from a series of Afghan bombing attacks on Pakistani border villages in Islamabad on Tuesday was 147 dead and 176 injured. Government officials in Islamabad on Tuesday put the losses at 40 dead and 15 wounded. Jamiat-islami, the dominant guerrilla group in northern Afghanistan, said new reports described massive destruction in Afghanistan's Kunduz province along the Soviet border, with waves of Soviet jets and helicopters bombing villages and towns.

Second Marine charged with spying

WASHINGTON — A second former Marine guard at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow is in custody at a Virginia Marine base on suspicion of espionage, a corps spokesman says.

Cpl. Arnold Bracy, 21, of Woodside Queens, New York City, was transferred from the Marine base at Twentynine Palms, Calif., to Quantico late Tuesday, said spokesman Lt. Col. John Shotwell.

"He has not been formally charged as yet," Shotwell said. "But he is suspected of espionage and related charges. He will appear before a military magistrate who will determine whether his continued confinement is justified."

Shotwell said Bracy was arrested as a result of investigation into the case of Sgt. Clayton J. Lonetree, 35, currently held at Quantico.

Court finds bias against diplomats

WASHINGTON — A federal appeals court says it finds evidence that the State Department has discriminated against women in the assignment and promotion of foreign service officers.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, finding numerous legal and factual errors, revived 11-year-old sex discrimination claims rejected by U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith Jr. in a 1985 ruling.

"The district court unreasonably rejected a major portion of appellants' evidence that the promotion decisions at issue were affected with a discriminatory motive," the three-judge appellate panel said in a 67-page opinion Tuesday.

The unanimous opinion, written by Chief Judge Patricia Wald, found the State Department had discriminated against women in making two types of assignments and in the granting of a coveted performance award.

Air controllers to vote on union

WASHINGTON — The nation's air traffic controllers, who have been without a union since a 1981 strike that saw 11,400 controllers fired, will vote on forming a new union.

The National Air Traffic Controllers Association, which has been organizing the controllers for a year, and the Federal Aviation Administration reached agreement Tuesday on a union election June 11.

The secret ballot election will be held under the auspices of the Federal Labor Relations Authority.

"This means a prompt election and it gives controllers finally an opportunity to have a unified voice when dealing with Congress and the FAA," said John Thornton, the association's national coordinator.

The air traffic controllers have not had union representation since August 1981, when thousands of controllers walked off their jobs in an illegal strike and were fired within days by President Reagan.

Draft budget includes tax increases

WASHINGTON — Senate Democrats are discussing a draft budget employing a combination of tax increases and spending cuts that would miss Congress' fiscal 1988 deficit target but achieve the Gramm-Rudman law's goal of a balanced budget by fiscal 1991.

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, briefed other Democratic members of the panel Tuesday on a draft four-year budget plan. Chiles hopes a consensus based on the draft could be presented publicly late this week or next week, said committee staff members who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

The proposal would trim about $38 billion from the anticipated deficit for fiscal 1988, bringing the total down to about $18 billion. The Gramm-Rudman law mandates a deficit no larger than $100 billion next year.

Fewer rich people avoiding taxes

WASHINGTON — High-income Americans are finding it more difficult to escape the federal income tax, but 325 well-heeled citizens still managed to put together enough big deductions to pay nothing, the Treasury Department says.

Another 3,000 couples and individuals with incomes above $200,000 paid a tax of less than 10 percent — less than that paid by a typical two-earner, four-member $40,000-a-year family.

But the percentage of over-$200,000 earners paying no tax on 1985 returns dropped to the second-lowest level since Congress began requiring the annual reports in 1978. About one of every 1,000 top earners got off scot-free on returns filed in 1985, less than half the figure of a year earlier, when 579 paid no tax.

Swaggart calls Bakker 'cancer'

By Morfin Steinberg
The Associated Press

Jimmy Swaggart, rejecting accusations he masterminded a "diabolical plot" to seize the $172 million PTL empire from Jim Bakker, suggested the evangelist was a "cancer" that needed to be excised from the body of Christ.

In TV interviews Tuesday night, Swaggart repeated denials he was behind any attempt to take over the 500,000-member PTL television ministry by revealing that Bakker had had an extramarital affair.

He also criticized Bakker ally Oral Roberts for his $8 million, do-or-die fund drive, and denied he forced a fellow Pentecostal minister in Louisiana to resign by spreading sexual misconduct allegations.

Bakker resigned last week from the South Carolina-based TV ministry, admitting he had an affair with a woman seven years ago and saying he had been blackmailed. On Monday, he said he quit to thwart a "diabolical plot" to take over PTL, which stands for Praise the Lord or People That Love People.

Bakker's attorney, Roy Grutman, on Tuesday identified Swaggart as being behind the takeover plot.

In an interview with the WBRZ-TV of Baton Rouge, La., Swaggart said the charges were a "smokescreen" to cover Bakker's "sordid" activities.

On "The Larry King Show" Tuesday night on the Cable News Network, Swaggart said: "In one sense of the word, it's a sad day for the church of the Lord Jesus Christ. And in another, it's a very glad day, because this cancer has been excised that I feel has caused the body of Christ untold reproach."

And on ABC's "Nightline," in an interview that Swaggart said would be on the subject, he asserted that Bakker's resignation was "a very painful experience, but it's something that needed to be done."

Asked about Roberts' fund drive, he said, "I think it's very inappropriate. I think that this terrible situation in Tulsa and this situation going on in South Carolina is bringing terrible reproach to the Kingdom of God."

Roberts has said God told him to raise $8 million by March 31 or he would be "called home."

In New York, Grutman told a news conference Swaggart had gone to prominent believers and at least one newspaper with "exaggerated and distorted" information about Bakker's sexual liaison of seven years ago.

"It was part of a plan that would have accomplished the ouster of Jim Bakker and if that had occurred, would have enabled Jimmy Swaggart to take over PTL," Grutman said.

Swaggart was not involved in blackmailing Bakker for $115,000, but found out about it and tried to use the information against Bakker, Grutman said.

He warned Swaggart that if he engaged in further intrigue his own secrets would be revealed: "We will have to take action to defend ourselves. And if we do that, I suspect that you will ... bring down the pillars of the Temple upon your own head like Samson."

Swaggart, who admitted he passed on rumors about Bakker's extramarital affair to superiors at the Assemblies of God, the country's largest Pentecostal denomination, said he wasn't worried.

"Whatever so-called dirty laundry he may have he's free to air to the whole world," Swaggart said. Bakker and his wife, Tammy Faye, meanwhile, got support from Roberts, who said a demonic conspiracy to sow discord among Christians is behind attacks on the Bakkers and on him for his fund-raising drive.

Using his head

Clayton "Rabbi" Veach, a Nashville, Tenn., man jailed after being on the run for almost two weeks, waits for help earlier this week after getting his head stuck in a small hole in the door of his Nashville jail cell. Veach, who has been arrested at least 68 times and is known as an escape artist, had to be freed with the help of firefighters.

Reagan has 'pen ready' for highway veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has "his pen ready" to veto a multibillion-dollar highway bill, despite accusations it would cost hundreds of thousands of jobs and kill a speed limit increase he supports.

As the president stood ready to veto the measure, Senate Republicans who supported the bill were lining up in an effort to prevent a veto override and restore Reagan's tarnished image.

Congressional Democrats and a builders' group struck back quickly Tuesday after Reagan said the bill passed last week is "really a lemon." It authorizes nearly $88 billion in highway construction across the country.

But Daniel J. Hanson, president of the American Road and Transportation Builders Association, said, "If President Reagan vetoes

Koop urges pregnant women to undergo test for AIDS

By Jerry Estill
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Surgeon General C. Everett Koop and a national blood bank official are urging women to have themselves tested for AIDS before becoming pregnant.

"That advice, which came separately Tuesday from Koop and Edwin A. Steane, president of the American Association of Blood Banks, is based on the high probability that a pregnant woman with the virus will pass it to her infant and that the child runs a substantial risk of developing the fatal disease."

Although neither Koop nor Steane cited statistics, some researchers say 50 percent to 70 percent of infected mothers will transmit the AIDS virus to their babies either prior to or at birth.

"Moreover, AIDS experts are finding that children infected with the virus seem to develop the disease itself, acquired immune deficiency syndrome, more readily than infected adults."

Koop, a pediatric surgeon who specializes in treating newborns with life-threatening defects before becoming surgeon general, is holding a conference on AIDS in children next month in Philadelphia.

He made his statements regarding pregnant women during a question-and-answer session at the National Press Club in which he was asked about mandatory AIDS testing for people applying for marriage licenses.

"I can't understand why it is so controversial," he said. "I would think anybody who is getting married today would want to be tested and would want to know whether his or her intended spouse had the AIDS virus."

"One of the things I think is most important about this ... is my great concern for the babies who are born to ... positive mothers," he said. "I think no woman should contemplate a pregnancy without voluntarily wanting to be tested for the AIDS virus."

Koop, a strong opponent of abortion, picked his words carefully when asked whether abortion is an option for a woman who discovers she has the AIDS virus after becoming pregnant.

"If you wanted to give her all the possibilities that were available to her, you would have to mention abortion," he said.

Stearns, at a briefing on the state of the nation's blood supply, said there is no compelling reason for most people who received a transfusion before blood donations were routinely screened for AIDS in 1985 to get the test.

"It all depends on your outlook on life," Steane said. "If there is a one in a million chance of a plane crashing, some people assume they will be the one. Others assume they will be among the 999,999."

Exceptions, Steane said, are female transfusion recipients of childbearing age who contemplate pregnancy.

The blood tests determine whether a person has formed antibodies against the virus, and thus whether the person was infected by the virus at one time.

Teachers in Alabama turn to lectures in wake of book ban

By Garry Mitchell
The Associated Press

MOBILE, Ala. — History teachers are lecturing more and more during their lessons on the history books discriminated against "the very concept of religion ... by omissions so serious that a student learning history from them would not be apprised of relevant facts about America's history."

Hand on March charged that the sending students to the encyclopedia since a federal judge banned 44 texts from Alabama classrooms as promoting what he called the religion of secular humanism.

"I'm using handouts, maps and original documents," Billie F. Schwartz, a teacher at 3,000-student Murphy High School, said Tuesday.

Schwartz said her 30 years teaching in public schools had prepared her well to finish her 11th grade history course without the textbook "History of a Free People" when U.S. District Judge W. Brevard Hand banned it this month.

Kidnappers renege on reprieve

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Moslem extremists recanted a reprieve for French hostage Jean-Louis Normandin, one they released a videotape of the captive saying they had dropped plans to kill him.

"The organization announces that the execution of the spy, Normandin, was not postponed and was not canceled," the Revolutionary Justice Organization said Tuesday in a one-page handwritten Arabic statement.

The statement, delivered to the independent An-Nahar newspaper, also said the organization again had put Normandin on "trial." In a statement issued last week, the group claimed Normandin confessed to spying for France and Israel.

Tuesday's statement came with a photograph showing Normandin from the knees up and wearing a red and blue skull suit. He wore a beard and appeared to be healthy.

Revolutionary Justice had threatened to kill Normandin on Tuesday unless France spelled out its policies on terrorism and arms supplies to Iraq, Iran and Iraq have been at war since September 1980.

On Monday, the group released a four-minute videotape in which Normandin said the group suspended plans to kill him after appeals from Shiite religious leader Sheikh Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah and Greek Catholic Bishop Hilarion Capaldi.

Tuesday's statement, however, said the organization was "studying the apologies and excuses that have been put forward by the French government as well as the promises and pledges that it has assured anew."

Assault leaves town frightened

CANTON, Ill. (AP) — People in this town of 14,000 left their doors unlocked when they turned in for the night. That is, until a 60-year-old man was slashed in the throat by a burglar who burst into his bedroom.

Harvey Larson required 300 stitches to close the knife wound from his left ear to the middle of his throat after the attack early Feb. 18.

"It put a black eye on this town," said Mayor Don Edwards. "It really shook people up."

A 24-year-old ex-convict who lived down the street but whom Larson had never met was charged with the attack. The man apparently was looking for a home to burglarize and found Larson's doors unlocked, said Detective Dean Putman.

Town talks break

By George Layne
Herald Reporter

Talks between the town of Manchester and the Eighth District nearly broke Wednesday after the town gave up control of its firehouse in exchange for the Eighth District's entire operation.

The proposal, one of several discussed Wednesday by town negotiators to solve longstanding problems involving fire protection service, drew an angry response from Eighth District negotiator John D. LaBelle.

"I don't think we got much to talk about," said LaBelle.

"If you want to take a hard line on you — it's on you," responded Director Geoffrey Nash, the town negotiator.

THE EXCHANGE

A 20-minute period of emotional changes at the end of the bargaining session, the town since talks began in January.

Town negotiators claimed that their Eighth District parts have failed to come up with alternative proposals as well as has, while negotiators from the Eighth District — which handles fire protection and sewer service for most of northern Manchester — claimed the town's new proposal was still unreasonable.

Despite the strong rhetoric, the sides agreed to meet Wednesday. Wednesday's session was a meeting last month in which compromises were made earlier by both sides.

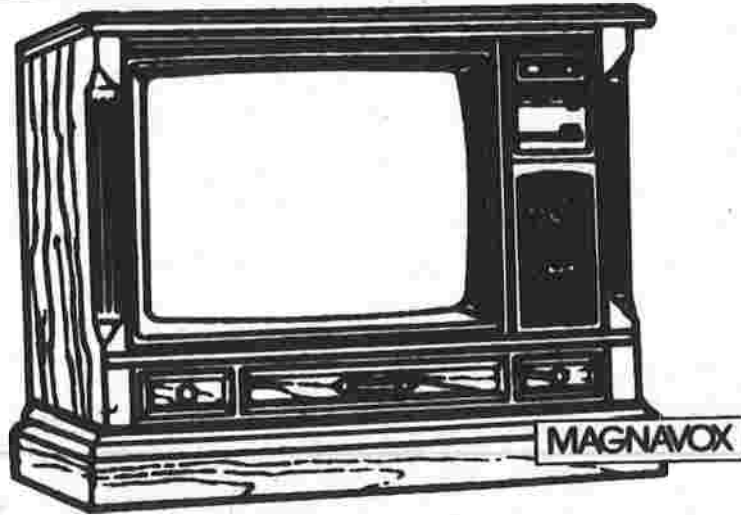

AT THE START of Wednesday's meeting, the town put forth offers on the table.

The second of these offers was the most comments. It called for the town to take over the Buckland firehouse on the Turnpike and some town services from there, including Bryan Farms subdivision in the east Manchester.

In return, the Eighth District would give up control of the sewer system. So far, the Eighth District has been willing to give up sewers in the section in northwest Manchester. LaBelle dismissed the ### Budget plan m...

House and Senate following weeks of struggles, emerged with proposals that failed to meet congressional deficit goals despite about $1 billion in new taxes. Democrats on the Budget Committee announced a tentative agreement on
