

East nine has 'potential' to go a long way

By Len Ausler

The 1987 East Catholic High baseball team has what Coach Jim Penders calls "potential."

Kevin Riggs, who batted .406 with a school-record eight home runs a year, will play second base for East Catholic High School this spring. Riggs will bat in the leadoff slot for the Eagles, who open the season Thursday against Manchester High at Moriarty Field.

level to go far," the veteran coach said, altering course twice in midstream.

But if anyone knows about clubs with "potential," the wily Eagle coach should. He's beginning his nineteenth year as head coach with a .622 winning percentage (221-130-1). His teams either won outright or shared seven titles in the Hartford County Conference along with two state championships in 1975 and 1983.

East's strength begins with an experienced, but young, pitching staff led by a pair of sophomores, left-hander Marc Mangiatico and right-hander Kevin Greene. Mangiatico posted a 3-4 mark a year ago but had the team's best earned run average. Greene was 2-1. Right-handed junior Pat Merritt, a transfer from Rockville High, is currently listed as East's No. 3 hurler with junior Rob Stanford also expected to see his share of mound service.

"With juniors and sophomores you cross your fingers," Penders said, "but Greene and Mangiatico pitched (variously) last year and so did Merritt and Stanford."

The Eagles, 13-9 a year ago (9-7 in the ACC), should be led offensively by a pair of Kevin's Kevin Bligs and Kevin Lawrence. The highly-touted Riggs, who is trying to decide between Old Dominion and East Carolina as his college choice — each has offered him a full scholarship — batted .406 a year ago with a school-record eight homers along with 28 RBIs. He'll man second base this season.

Lawrence, who was the Eagles' second baseman last year, will switch behind the plate with the injury to J.B. Kaldy. Kaldy, a senior, suffered a shoulder injury during the football season and won't be able to play this spring. Lawrence, who hit .306 in 1986 with 26 runs scored, did catch with the East Hartford Legion last summer.

East boys track lacking in depth...

By Jim Tierney
Herald Sports Writer

Lack of depth will be the main problem facing the 1987 East Catholic High boys' track team in its upcoming season.

Gone is last year's coach, Matt Walsh, and Sgt. Bob Russell, who works at the Manchester ROTC center, will be making his coaching debut in the 18 events. Russell will have to try and shape up the 30 Eagle athletes himself, considering his lack of an assistant coach. As has been tradition, Coach East Daraskevich in the 1000 and the 800 meters. The squad, topped by the list of senior co-captains Scott Kendall and Kevin Clagio, who earned all-state honors in cross country last fall. Kendall will be the main Eagle entrant in the 5000 meters while Clagio will concentrate on the 1000 and 800 meter races. Russell feels fortunate to have two fine leaders for East, especially in his first season as a coach.

"Clagio and Kendall are a tremendous help in the leadership department," Russell said. "They keep things running smoothly." Other key figures in the distance events will be senior Steve Carlson in the 1600 meters and senior Glen Daraskevich in the 1000 and the 800 meters.

At the senior co-captains, Scott Kendall and Kevin Clagio, who earned all-state honors in cross country last fall. Kendall will be the main Eagle entrant in the 5000 meters while Clagio will concentrate on the 1000 and 800 meter races.

Andrew Seeger is the top prospect in the 200 and 400 meters while juniors Aaron Albrico and Tim Carroll should be seen in the 100 and 200. Sophomore Tim Seeger, Andrew's brother, is the main 400-meter man and will also run the 800. Kendall remains the only threat in the hurdles (500) for the Eagles.

Seeger and senior Mike Sipples will be the prime candidates in the high jump while Tim Seeger is penciled in for the long jump. The weight events (shot put, discus, javelin) will be dominated by senior Spero Stamboules. Sophomore Dan Rankin will also see action in those three events.

"Depth and a shortage of seniors," Russell said, referring to his biggest problems on his team. There are only five seniors on the distance events, but are young in a lot of events. Basically, quite a few people will be doing several events.

Schedule: Apr. 10-11 Eastern Relays A, 13 Suffield A, 25-26 New Britain Invitational A, 28 Northwest Catholic/South Catholic A, 30 May 5 St. Joseph/St. Bernard A, 9 Fairfield Prep/Aquinas A, 12 Fairfield Prep/Aquinas A, 19 Notre Dame/Xavier A, 25 ACC championships. Weekday meets begin at 3:15 p.m.

... and EC girls face same problem

By Jim Tierney
Herald Sports Writer

Especially in track and field, where a multitude of events comprise a meet, depth is always a vital factor.

As is the problem on the boys' contingent, the East Catholic girls' track team also faces a major depth problem. Despite a better turnout (45) than the boys' team, Coach Kathy Kittredge knows her squad lacks personnel in many events.

"In the 100 meters, we can do really well," the 23-year-old Kittredge said. "The people we do have can do really well."

Mirroring the boys' team, the girls' distance events display the largest amount of depth due to the presence of several of the cross country members, whose team placed second in the State Open last fall.

Topping the list are seniors Kathie DeMarco and Tina Little. Both DeMarco and Little earned all-state honors in the fall. DeMarco will concentrate on the 3200 meters while Little will participate in the 1000. Senior Jennifer Taurus and junior Julie Ray will add depth in the 2000 while sophomore Glen Feehan, junior Dawn McCauley, and sophomore Sarah Thiers will all see action in the 1600 meters.

Other key distance figures are sophomore Betsy Dickinson and Lesley Perlmann.

The sprint list isn't very long for the Eagles. Senior Karen Lord and junior Sue Murphy are the best candidates at the present. Lord will run the 400 and Murphy will compete in the 200 meters and is the best Eagle long jumper. Two sisters, Jackie (junior) and Jennie (freshman) Johnson are East's top high jumpers. Kittredge feels strongly concerning the older Johnson's chances of clearing 5 feet, 5 inches, a mark which would place her in the state meet this year. Sophomore Kelli Stearns is also slated as a long jumper.

Kittredge has no quality factor in the weight events, a factor which obviously will hurt East in dual meets.

"We can sweep the distance events in a lot of meets," Kittredge said. "But we won't get many points the rest of the meet."

Schedule: Apr. 13 Suffield A, 24-25 New Britain Invitational A, 28 Northwest Catholic/South Catholic A, 30 May 4 St. Joseph/St. Bernard A, 9 Fairfield Public Invitational, 11 Aquinas A, 16 Manchester Invitational, 18 St. Mary's/Mercy A, 21 Hamden A, 28 ACC championships.

Norman confident heading into the Masters

By Ed Sheerer
The Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Australian Greg Norman is brimming with confidence going into the season's first major golf championship, the St. Masters, beginning Thursday on the Augusta National Golf Club course.

"I have no reservations," Norman said Tuesday. "I have no doubt in any part of my game. I feel confident. I feel relaxed. I'm not too keyed up."

The reigning British Open champion is coming off an incredible 1986 season in which he led the PGA Tour in money won and led all four major championships after three rounds.

1980 and 1983, tied for second in 1985 and was fourth last year. Longer, who has finished second twice and third once on the PGA tour this season, captured this title two years ago.

There are other foreigners to be considered. Sandy Lyle of Great Britain, a former British Open champion, won the Tournament Players Championship two weeks ago.

Japan's Tommy Nakajima, winner of five events in his country last year, and Taiwan's T.C. Chen, who challenged for the 1985 U.S. Open crown and won at Los Angeles earlier this season, also have to be considered.

"I remember reading (last year) that the best way to win the PGA is to win the St. Masters," Norman said of Nicklaus. "He's capable of winning again. He's ready to play. At 100 to 1 (odds on Nicklaus), it wouldn't be a bad bet to put a few shillings on him."

"I think Tom (Watson) will come back strong, and when he does, he'll be a real contender," Norman said.

Watson, a two-time Masters winner who was golf's dominant player in the late 1970s, hasn't won a tournament since 1984.

REAL VANILLA Desserts & Fantasies!

"Ah, you flavour everything, you are the vanilla of society!" So said the 18th century writer, Sidney Smith. Well put for the "Bouvier" that appears in more desserts than any other. Here, in these recipes for your wildest dessert fantasies, vanilla is both a star and an essential supporting actor. Pure vanilla extract — the real thing — has the wonderful property of adding its own characteristic flavor while it also mellows and blends the tart flavors of fruit.

In these and any desserts you take the time to make yourself it's important to make sure you use the pure extract of vanilla. This is derived from vanilla beans, the delicate fruit of an orchid. Imitation vanillas begin with flavor synthesized from wood pulp or coal tar and typically leave a bitter aftertaste.

In our photo, top right, is an incredible Strawberry Cream Torte, rich with orange-vanilla cream filling between two layers of homemade sponge cake. Vanilla whipped cream frosts the top and sides, with a filigree of fresh strawberries. The parts — filling and cake — can be made ahead, separately, when it fits into your time schedule.

At center stage: A fresh fruit-filled cream puff in a pond of vanilla custard sauce. These cream puffs are not difficult to make; they can even be baked ahead and frozen up for three weeks before filling. In the Frozen Apricot Yogurt Parfait (at left) both dried apricots and apricot nectar are used with vanilla in the custard. The layers are crunchy vanilla cookie crumbs. The cookies are also served alongside.

Mixing and matching the separate parts of these recipes is another good idea. You could spoon the Vanilla Custard Cream Sauce over the sponge cake layers and top them with sliced fresh fruits. You could fill the Cream Puffs with Orange-Vanilla Cream Filling and serve with Vanilla Whipped Cream. Or, you could use the Vanilla Butter Cookies as dippers for small bowls of warmed Vanilla Custard Cream Sauce.

... REAL VANILLA ... REAL VANILLA ... REAL VANILLA ... REAL VANILLA ... REAL VANILLA ... REAL VANILLA ...

Vanilla beans and pure vanilla extract are truly treasures among food ingredients. They constitute real vanilla — a flavor as different from its imitators as day from night.

- Real vanilla comes from the fruit of an orchid. Of the thousands of varieties of orchids, the vanilla plant is the only one that has an edible fruit.
- It is the most labor-intensive agricultural product in the world. From planting the vine to bottling the aged extract, it is a long process and each step, up to extraction, must be done by hand.
- Even in its native habitat, vanilla was a rare and valuable commodity. The Aztec emperor Montezuma demanded vanilla as a tribute from the Indians who discovered and processed it.
- Madagascar: The Comoros Islands, and Reunion produce the world's top quality " Bourbon " vanilla beans. These islands off the east coast of Africa grow about 80% of the world's crop of vanilla beans.
- Imitation vanillas and "vanilla flavors" are based on synthetic vanillin, which comes from a by-product of paper manufacturing — the sulphite effluent. The Ontario Paper Company claims to be the world's largest producer of synthetic vanillin.

Homes are filled with danger

Sylvia Porter

Shocker: If you suffer a serious injury, the odds are it will be in your home.

There's no place like home. The most common site for injuries is not the streets, highways or industrial workplaces. It's your home.

What's more, this injury probably could have been avoided. As injury control gains recognition across the country, it is your time to become involved.

More than one-third of all injuries that disable a person beyond the day of the incident occur in the home, reports the National Safety Council. Another way to look at it: One disabling injury occurs every 10 seconds in the home.

Estimated costs of home "accidents" in 1985: $14 billion. The breakdown for this huge loss: medical expenses, $7 billion; loss of wages, $4.3 billion; loss of property, $2.7 billion; and insurance administration, $100 million.

THE WORD "accident" is a misnomer and should not be used when discussing injury, according to the Division of Injury, Epidemiology and Control, under the Department of Health and Human Services. An accident suggests something that's unpredictable and random, and little can be done to prevent it. The fact is, injuries are manageable and preventable.

Prime candidates for home injuries are the very young and elderly. But considering the number of sick days that result in missing work, it's clear that injuries affect people of all ages.

Most employers understand that a worker's safety leads to cost savings and increased productivity. As a result, strategies in the workplace have been developed to combat occupational injuries.

While more laws will be enacted to promote home safety, the most effective ways to control injury are educational and environmental change. For a basic start, keep in mind the following:

• Falls are the leading cause of death due to injury in the home. Adequate lighting, non-slip surfaces in the bathroom, hand bars on the bathtub for the elderly, and appropriate stairway design and upkeep are essential. For small children, window guards are crucial — and in some places required by law.

• Fires, burns and deaths associated with fires are next to the list of deaths due to home injuries. At least 25 states require smoke detectors in all new residential construction, and 22 states require existing houses to have smoke detectors. Reports the "Mid-Course Review Report for the 1990 Injury Prevention Objectives," put out by the DHEC.

THE REPORT also points to the glaring reality that dwellings of the poor not only lack smoke detectors, but are the areas most likely to have a fire. But the overall increase of smoke detectors is encouraging, as is the increase in marketing campaigns and fire awareness in general, mainly attributed to the mandated reduction of smoke detectors' cost.

One key point the report cites: Hot water is the leading cause of scalds and of all hospital admissions for burns. Lowering your water heater thermostats to 120 degrees Fahrenheit in most cases eliminates the problem. It also results in lower energy bills for you.

Poisoning by solids or liquids and vapors are essential. For example, The American Association of Poison Control Centers estimates that 2.5 million people had some type of poisoning in 1985. In 1986, 25 percent of the country had access to regional or metropolitan area Poison Control Centers.

On Tuesday, wearing a maroon chair robe, she linked couple No. 4,483: Robert W. Johnston and Carmella Lee White. McDaniel, a widow since 1969 and one of 15 justices of the peace in Pulaski County, hopes to honor a request from her 1938 campaign manager, who wanted her to serve 30 years and unite 5,000 couples.

The bride and groom, both 20, were in jeans. After inspecting their marriage license, McDaniel led the couple into the parlor of her gay farmhouse, which doubles as her office.

After the ceremony, McDaniel explained the warranty. The bride should buy a frame for the small white warranty certificate, then hang it in a prominent place. "Let it be a reminder of the beautiful occasion when they were united."

Be affectionate, first thing in the morning and before bedtime. "Say to each other, 'Mary, or Bob, or whatever, I love you with all my heart. I'll always be loyal. I'll always be true.'"

Beware of "misunderstandings that sometimes arise. Remember that smart people are the people who can admit they're in error and can ask each companion to forgive them."

Admit mistakes. "Never let the sun rise in the east and set in the west without being big enough to say, 'We've made a mistake, but we're going to stay together until death do we part.'"

Supermarket Shopper

Some stores work extra hard to avoid scanner errors

By Martin Stone
United Feature Syndicate

DEAR MARTIN: I read the letter from the reader who worried about mistakes on scanner-equipped checkout counters and would like to respond. I work in a supermarket and am responsible for making sure the store's computer has the correct prices. I believe the reason people don't trust scanners is that they don't understand how they work or how hard we work to make sure our prices are correct.

First, we have 20,000 items in the store. Each is listed in any computer, and every week I verify one of the articles to make certain that the prices for the items on the shelves are the same as those in my computer. And every week I verify all price changes, including the prices on sale items.

Mistakes do happen, but at our store we train the cashiers to correct them on the spot. The shoppers also have a greater opportunity to find mistakes, because the name of each item purchased is printed right on the register tape. This was never so before scanners.

So please give grocery stores a break. We work very hard to make sure our customers get the item they select at the proper price.

A SCANNING COORDINATOR
FORT WAYNE, IND.

DEAR CONCERNED COORDINATOR: You are right.

Most consumers do not know the steps supermarkets take to check and then double-check their prices.

Checking prices as groceries are rung up has always been important. When electronic scanners started to appear in supermarkets a few years ago, it became even more critical, since it now serves as a final double-check of the computer.

Today, more than half of the nation's supermarkets have them. At a scanner-equipped checkout counter, cashiers run the product's Universal Product Code across the scanner, and the store's computer identifies the code. The computer then searches its memory and finds the price, which the computer then transmits to the cash register.

It is the job of the scanning coordinator to make sure that all price changes have been accurately entered into the computer. It is a demanding job that calls for tremendous attention to detail, and it requires a person who is strongly motivated to see that the public is charged the correct prices.

Yes, mistakes do happen, but I think the attitude of this scanning coordinator from Fort Wayne shows why the system works as well as it does. Keep up the good work!

Beef dish calls for brandy

Make the marinade for this recipe the night before so that the flavors have time to come together. Note that the recipe calls for brandy. Don't worry about the extra calories the brandy adds since many will evaporate during the cooking process.

This is a Sunday company dish without saying that it will win rave reviews from the family any day of the week.

Branded beef

1 pound boneless beef round steak, cut 1/4- to 1/2-inch thick
1/4 cup brandy or apple juice
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 clove garlic, minced
1/4 teaspoon dried dill weed
1/4 teaspoon ground allspice
1/4 teaspoon coarsely ground pepper
1 large carrot, sliced
1/2 cup French-style green beans
1 medium onion, cut into wedges
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon instant beef bouillon granules
Non-stick spray coating
1/4 teaspoon cooking oil
Partially freeze beef; slice into thin bite-size strips. Place meat in plastic bag; set in bowl. For marinade, in a small bowl combine brandy or apple juice, vinegar, garlic, dill weed, allspice, pepper and 1/4 cup water; pour over meat. Close bag. Marinate meat in refrigerator several hours or overnight; turn bag occasionally. Drain meat, reserving marinade. In a medium saucepan combine carrots, beans and onion. Add 1/4 cup water. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Simmer, covered, about 8 minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender; stir to separate beans. Drain; keep warm.

For sauce, in a small mixing bowl stir together cornstarch and 1/4 cup cold water. Stir in reserved marinade and bouillon granules. Set aside.

Pat meat dry with paper towels. Spray a wok or skillet with non-stick coating. Preheat over high heat. Stir-fry half the beef 2 to 3 minutes or until done. Remove beef. Add oil, if necessary. Stir remaining beef 2 to 3 minutes or until done. Return all beef to skillet. Stir sauce; add to wok. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir 2 minutes more. To serve, arrange vegetables on platter; spoon meat mixture on top. Makes 4 servings.

Pastas can vary by region

Pasta products keep getting more convenient to use and quicker to cook. The availability of these specialty pastas varies by region and supermarket. If you don't find them at your store, ask the manager to look into stocking them for you.

Shell-stable tortillas: Even though it's filled with meat, cheese, you can store this filling tortillas in a cupboard shelf, saving refrigerator or freezer space. Both dried and vacuum-packed tortillas are available, but the latter cooks in half the time.

No-boil lasagna noodles: To use these noodles, simply wet them with water and sauce, then bake or micro-cook. They are available in many areas.

Micro-meal: Also find lasagna sheets, precooked and frozen. Use them straight from the package as you would a cooked lasagna noodle.

Fresh and fresh-frozen pastas: Spinach fettuccine, egg capellini, and tomato and egg ravioli are just a start of the list of varieties available. Check out the selection at your supermarket or specialty pasta store. Fresh and fresh-frozen pasta cook four to five times faster than dried pasta. The smaller and thinner the pasta, the quicker it cooks.

Advice

Punk rocker says she's really tender

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "A Nice Leather-Loving Girl," who says she dresses like a biker and looks tough, but she's really a nice girl underneath. She says she can't meet any decent guys because of the way she dresses. Abby, you told her maybe she should change her style of dress.

I disagree with you totally. You see, I am a punk rocker and my style of dress is outrageous, but I have no trouble meeting nice guys. Guys who are turned off by a girl who dresses wild or different aren't worth knowing. They are rude and ignorant for not wanting to know us "weirdos" better. Underneath, we are just like everyone else.

TRYING TO BE ME IN BALTIMORE

DEAR TRYING: The way a person presents him (or her) self is a conscious statement. So if you choose to go around with a purple and orange Mohawk, a safety pin through your ear and a ring in your nose, it's your privilege. But please don't label people "rude and ignorant" if they're so turned off by your outrageous appearance that they have no interest in knowing the "real" you.

PLANNING AHEAD IN ILLINOIS

DEAR PLANNING: Did I get letters and pictures galore of headstones — purchased, engraved and erected in advance. Read on an interesting story:

DEAR ABBY: I am surprised that you didn't know that many people put up their tombstones in advance. City folks and country folks have different ways of handling this, but here in the Midwest you can walk through small cemeteries and see your friends' and acquaintances' names on markers with the date of their birth and even marriages. This alleviates the grieving spouse of choosing a headstone. After death, all the family has to do is see that the date of death is engraved on the stone. (It's usually prepaid.)

My husband and I have already chosen ours. I wanted the following engraved on mine: "I'm going straight to heaven because I've already been through hell," but for some reason my husband refuses to approve it.

Thoughts

Living the hard choices

Jesus brings to man more than an ethical teaching. He shows us with certainty how to approach all of life. At 12 years old he asserts himself to be responsible to something greater than himself. At his baptismal commission he begins to assert that his life is under compulsion of the Father; not the grumbling of a will-less slave, but the compulsion of a free choice.

In all of his ministry Jesus takes time to show his disciples what lies beyond the immediacy of this life. Nothing more exemplifies this than the way in which Jesus faces the cross. Strength of choice here came

Infection of tonsils causes bad breath

DEAR DR. GOTT: My grand-daughter, 17, changed from being a sunny and good-natured girl with good grades to being sullen, angry, lazy and a poor student. Her parents had her tested several times for drugs, but they found only very low blood sugar. The girl refuses to flow the strict diet prescribed by the doctor. Could low blood sugar be responsible for her personality change?

DEAR READER: It's highly unlikely that hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) is the sole cause of your granddaughter's change in behavior. People with hypoglycemia have transient episodes of sweating, palpitation, anxiety, weakness and hunger that appear when the blood sugar falls below about 50 mg/dl. Therefore, this isn't a constant condition and wouldn't explain an entire personality change.

It seems more likely that your granddaughter is experiencing an adolescent adjustment reaction. Her parents should ask her doctor about the possibility of getting her some psychological counseling.

Make your own bits

NEW YORK (AP) — Dry out the leafy tops of celery for seasoning soups and stews, says household hints expert Mary Ellen Pinkham in Family Circle magazine.

Chop the leafy tops into small bits and spread on a cookie sheet. Put the sheet into the freezer briefly (or into the oven with just the pilot light on), and the leaves will dry out. Store them in a small jar for later use. Green onions can be treated the same way.

Opening light has its price
By James Jacoby

I've always liked opening the bidding light. There's a little larceny even in honest souls, and we take diabolical satisfaction in stealing a hand now and then. But there can be a price to pay in South overcalled East's light opening.

South overcalled the 10, possibly a false-card. However, East apparently had cleft, so he cue-bid two diamonds. At three clubs by South and three hearts by North, South decided he is likely to have the spade queen as that his full 14 high-card points just South, who rose with the spade king, dropping East's queen and making his nine-trick no-trump game. When diamonds were led, declarer regretted not being in five clubs. Although making 11 tricks in clubs might require guessing the location of the heart jack, the worst result would be one away. In a Card Games, published by Phoros Books.

Shish kebabs take some effort
By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — I made some shish kebabs on my barbecue, and they were a flop. The mushrooms dried up and fell off the sticks. I used good beef, mushrooms, bell peppers and pineapple chunks. What could I have done to make them better? — F.W.

DEAR F.W. — I prefer to cook the meat separately from the vegetables. Skewer the meat (marinated, if you like, for extra juiciness and tenderness) on as many skewers as needed and start grilling them. When the meat is almost done, put the vegetables, also on skewers, on the grill, brush with a little oil and grill a few minutes until lightly cooked. The oil and brief cooking should keep the mushrooms and other vegetables moist and tender, a perfect complement to your excellent meat. Happy barbecuing! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Here's my favorite recipe for a lower-calorie "but-ter." Place 1 pound room-temperature margarine in a bowl and beat with an electric mixer. Slowly add 1 cup buttermilk while beating until fully mixed, light and fluffy. This gives soft texture with a real butter taste. Enjoy! — NELL

DEAR POLLY — Here's my "original" potato recipe. Boil 6 medium potatoes with the skins on. While still hot, cut a 1/2-inch slice off the side lengthwise. Scoop out the cooked potato in chunks, leaving about 1/2-inch of potato around the inside of the shell to make a serving cup.

Put the scooped-out chunks into the hot pan. In a small saucepan, heat 1/2-cup 2-percent milk, 2 tablespoons diet margarine, a small amount of pepper and 2 teaspoons dried basil. Stir into potato chunks. Fill potato cups with the heated potato filling. Put the potato caps (sliced-off pieces) on top of the filled potatoes, set the potatoes in a pan or skillet and cover tightly. Heat on top of the stove on low heat until potatoes are heated through. Serve with any meat and salad. — A.D.

People are staying married longer

By Randolph E. Schmid
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — America's families seem to be stabilizing, with divorce rates now down to the lowest level in more than a decade, government statistics report.

The leveling off of the divorce rate likely stems from a combination of older first-time brides and grooms and a change in social attitudes toward maintaining marriages, Jeanne E. Moorman of the Census Bureau said.

"There seems to have been a period when divorce was the easiest answer. Now, there is more of a feeling that people should try harder, should work more at it. Marriage is important, and we should not be giving up so easily," she said.

Ms. Moorman and Arthur J. Norton of the bureau's Population Division discuss the stabilizing family in a new study, "Marriage and Divorce: Patterns of U.S. Women," published in the February edition of the Journal of Marriage and Family.

In addition to the change in attitudes, Ms. Moorman said in a telephone interview, "Marriages occurring later seem to be more stable marriages... and the consequence is the stabilizing of divorce rates."

A 1985 survey found that nearly one-third of women aged 35 to 39 had ended a first marriage in divorce, and they projected that as many as 56 percent of this group would divorce eventually.

That is more divorce than is expected for women either older or younger than that group, the authors said, since those in their late 30s are unique and "represent the vanguard of the post-World War II baby boom."

These people are "at once dependent and trend setters whose extraordinarily high divorce experience, although somewhat anomalous, also helped to establish new normative social standards that permit a generally high rate of divorce," they said.

Factors increasing this rate — more than double the 24 percent rate expected for women aged 35 to 39 — include economic cycles, political events, technical advances in fertility control, the rising employment of women and other social, cultural and psychological changes.

Norton and Moorman found that divorce was most likely for women who first marry while still in their teens and for those who give birth within seven months after being married. Divorce is also higher among women with incomplete educations.

White studies have found that 95 percent of women eventually marry, the low marriage rate among younger groups may portend a decline in that total to around 90 percent, the report speculates.

Insane baby killer influenced Hinckley

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Hinckley Jr. held in mental hospital for shooting President Reagan, says he was influenced by a woman who killed her sleeping 10-year-old daughter with a shotgun.

Federal prosecutors opposing Hinckley's request to make an unsupervised weekend visit, interviewed Hinckley in February.

He concluded that "Hinckley has changed substantially since 1981" when Miller first evaluated him, according to a March 23 letter by St. Elizabeths officials recommending the weekend visit.

Miller detected one of the "pathological thinking" that was found during the 1982 evaluation, the letter said.

Psychiatrists at St. Elizabeths are asking a judge to allow Hinckley "to visit with his family and friends over the Easter holidays at a date, time, and place agreed upon by the hospital."

Hospital officials noted that Hinckley has made "steady progress" since a 1983 suicide attempt.

The visit would be "beneficial and therapeutic" and give Hinckley "the opportunity to test out the insights he has gained through his treatment."

Hinckley and Ms. DeVeau, a one-time Washington socialite, met at St. Elizabeths after she was acquitted of murder, by reason of insanity, after the 1982 shotgun slaying of her daughter.

Ms. DeVeau, whose history of mental illness included several suicide attempts, shot herself in the arm after shooting her sleeping daughter, according to the prosecutor's memo.

The arm was amputated as a result of the shotgun wound.

Sex abuse unreported by shrinks

By Daniel G. Honey
The Associated Press

BOSTON — Psychiatrists should be required to turn in colleagues who have sexual relations with their patients, because they usually fail to report this unethical conduct voluntarily, a research report concludes.

Dr. Nanette Gartrell and co-authors said it should be mandatory for psychiatrists to inform the state licensing board or the local ethics committee of the American Psychiatric Association if they learn of a fellow therapist's affair with a patient.

"Psychiatrists are not feeling comfortable reporting colleagues who they know are abusing patients," said Gartrell, a psychiatrist at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston.

Psychiatrists generally agree that having sexual contact with patients is wrong, and therapists even can lose their state licenses to practice if such indiscretions are proven.

A survey by Gartrell and colleagues at Harvard found that two-thirds of psychiatrists reported treating patients who say they were sexually involved with other therapists. Yet they turned in their colleagues for unethical sexual behavior in less than 10 percent of these instances.

In an earlier report, she found that six percent of psychiatrists admit having had sex with patients. "It's happening all too frequently," she said. "We see that there are a lot of patients out there who are being harmed because of unethical practices by psychiatrists and other therapists."

Dr. William L. Webb Jr., chairman of the Ethics Committee of the American Psychiatric Association, said he opposes mandatory reporting because it might not always be in the patient's best interest.

"The problem with that kind of thing is that it does not allow you any flexibility in looking at the patient's needs in the situation," he said. "But certainly our position is to strongly encourage people to report."

However, Dr. Carol Nadelson of Tufts Medical School, said mandatory reporting should be considered as one way to combat unethical sexual behavior.

Workers must be notified before layoffs, bill says

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Companies would have to give workers 90 days' notice before a plant closing or major layoff or face a new tax on business to increase job benefits and to pay for job retraining programs for workers who lose their jobs.

The bill, favored by organized labor and many Democrats and opposed by business and many Republicans, also imposes a new tax on business to increase job benefits and to pay for job retraining programs for workers who lose their jobs.

The measure was approved Tuesday on a 9-5 vote in the Labor and Public Employees Committee and, because of the tax provision, sent to the Finance, Revenue and Bonding Committee. The first draft of the bill called for 180 days' notice of plant closings or major layoffs.

Any company not giving the required 90 days' notice would be fined $5,000 per employee affected by the closing or layoff. The bill applies to companies with at least 100 employees and defines a major layoff as one affecting at least 10 percent of the company's workers.

Rep. Francis X. O'Neill of Guilford, ranking Republican on the Labor Committee, said the measure was "detrimental to its roots to business. This is wrong."

But Rep. Craig P. Taylor, R-Bristol, said it was only fair to give employees advance notice, recalling a Bristol company that he said

"closed its doors and left under cover of darkness" one night, leaving workers high and dry.

Taylor, who tried unsuccessfully to get the bill amended to require 180 days' notice, called the measure "a very wonderful and uncontrived version" of the plant-closing bill first proposed eight years ago, which would have required two years' notice.

Tuesday's bill, Taylor said, was "a pro-people piece of legislation."

Committee Co-Chairman Rep. Joseph A. Adamo, D-West Haven, and Sen. Steven Spellman, D-Stonington, opposed Taylor's amendment because they said it would make it too difficult to get the bill passed into law.

The 90-day proposal, Adamo said, "represents a bill we think is passable."

Janet C. Spegele of the Connecticut Business and Industry Association said the bill would be "very detrimental to the state's economy" and would hinder Connecticut's efforts to attract business.

CBA has put together its own voluntary code for plant closings, which calls for as much notice as possible, but leaves that decision up to the individual business.

Barry R. Williams of the Connecticut State AFL-CIO said the bill was not anti-business and called it a reasonable compromise, although labor had strongly pushed the six-month notice bill.

"We're going to push the compromise bill as hard as we can,"

Williams said. "It's an emotional issue."

The new tax amounts to one-twentieth of 1 percent of a company's payroll each year. Adamo estimated that would bring in $5 million a year. The departments of economic development and labor would use that $5 million out of the $5 million — for re-training programs. Republicans worried that the bill would apply to companies that closed for reasons beyond the control of management such as one case when a fire destroyed a company that was the major contractor with a second company, forcing the second company to lay off workers.

But Adamo and Spellman said they thought the bill would not apply in such a case, because the bill deals with "planned" layoffs and closings.

Spegele said such language in a law would be "certainly open to interpretation."

Under the bill, jobless benefits would be boosted using money from the new tax. The amount of the increase would be equal to the difference between what the worker is permitted under standard unemployment compensation and two-thirds of his average weekly salary.

Gov. William A. O'Neill, who has opposed plant-closing legislation in the past, said he would have to study the bill if it gets to his desk.

with a year, said Laurie White, spokeswoman for the state Department of Economic Development.

Hanna will manufacture electrodes and bench-type instruments as well as conduct research and development for the high technology products at Woonsocket's Highland Industrial Park, according to company statements.

Other Hanna products include pumps, oxygen meters, industrial instruments and dosing pumps.

A 20,000-square-foot building, currently under construction, will be leased to Hanna and should be ready for occupancy May 1, said Thomas E. Devlin, vice president of Design Ventures, the building's contractor.

Woonsocket Mayor Charles C. Baldelli welcomed Hanna's decision. "They're the type of clean, growth industry we're looking for," Baldelli said.

He said it shows how the Woonsocket industrial highway, which will link the industrial park with the Interstate highway system, makes the city an attractive place for companies to locate.

Hanna, founded in 1976, employs 250 people in Italy, Singapore and West Haven.
