Gaps in insurance coverage worry town officials

By George Lovyn
Herald Reporter

Last week's heavy rains, and the drenching that hit Manchester Sunday night and Monday have left the town's reservoirs overflowing. While officials say there is no danger of any dams breaking, the town has no insurance to cover the destruction that would occur if one was breached.

Similarly, if a member of the Manchester High School track team should trip in a hole while running on the school track and seriously hurt himself, the town would not be covered. Nor would the town have any insurance to pay claims if chemicals leaked from the town landfill and contaminated drinking-water supplies.

The potential cost to the town for such claims could be staggering. Taxes might have to be raised if other ways of paying the cost were unavailable — a prospect that officials say is frightening.

"It is," Finance Director Boyce Spinelli said today. "It's something that you need to stay on top of."

The town now pays all liability claims below $500,000 from a fund it created in 1982. Claims above that figure are covered by insurance purchased from private firms.

But there are gaps. Insurers are worried they may have to pay expensive liability claims or large court awards, so they decide not to provide the coverage in high-risk areas.

"There are certain exclusions which are becoming standard on an industrywide basis," Spinelli said in a report prepared last month for the town Board of Directors.

"Among these are athletic participation (of any type), environmental pollution, liability for dams, and liability for any street-related incident," Spinelli said. "The town is actually uninsured for the above-mentioned exposures."

Environmental pollution, for instance, is difficult for insurance firms to cover because it is uncertain what will be deemed hazardous in the future, explained Jerome Harleston, an insurance researcher for the state Legislative Research Office.

Chemicals or substances considered safe 10 years ago may be found hazardous now. "The risk has become totally unpredictable," Harleston said Tuesday.

Manchester is not alone. Kevin Maloney of the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities said Tuesday that other towns are also having difficulties.

"It is a common problem among municipalities to get certain types of liability insurance," he said.

The Manchester directors have planned to discuss the town's insurance coverage at a workshop Thursday on Town Manager Robert B. Weiss's proposed budget for 1987-88. The meeting will begin at 5 p.m. at Lincoln Center.

Besides the reduced availability of certain coverage, the cost of insurance and the terms of policies have changed.

"The amount paid for insurance premiums is staggering, both in terms of absolute dollars and in percent increases over a three-year period," Spinelli reported. "This increase is exacerbated by the fact that the product purchased ... is not what it used to be."

For example, in 1982 the town was only responsible for claims below $200,000. Now it must cover claims up to $500,000. And there is no longer a provision in which the private carrier will cover anything above a certain total amount spent by the town.

"This means the town could have an unlimited number of awards in a given year and, as long as no one award exceeded $500,000, the excess insurance would not kick in," Spinelli said.

Costs and claims are also increasing. In the 1982-83 fiscal year, the town contributed $238,509 to its self-insurance fund, and had claims of $106,841, leaving a fund balance of $547,489. This year, $112,238 was allocated, and it's estimated that there will be $390,977 in claims.

The fund is expected to decline from from the $1.1 million it grew to

Shultz says agreement is 'close at hand'

By Barry Schwed
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said today an agreement eliminating superpower medium-range missiles from Europe and likely leading to a summit in Washington is "close at hand."

But both Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze told reporters hard work remained before the superpowers could sign such an agreement.

Shultz held a news conference in Moscow after three days of talks with Communist Party chief Mikhail S. Gorbachev and other Soviet leaders.

"I think we made quite a lot of progress and perhaps we can see prospects with hard negotiations ahead, but prospects close at hand of reaching agreement in that area," Shultz said.

"Very considerable headway has been made and we should be able to work out agreement in this field with hard work and creative efforts," he said.

Shultz and Shevardnadze met for several hours before the secretary of state addressed reporters, and afterwards the Soviet foreign minister offered an upbeat assessment of the possibility of a superpower summit in Washington.

Shevardnadze said there was a "rather good prospect" of another summit meeting between President Reagan and Gorbachev. Asked what was needed, he said, "to tuck up our sleeves and work."

Gorbachev offered Tuesday to scrap short-range missiles in non-Soviet Eastern Europe and seek a compromise on the U.S. "Star Wars" program, the official Tass news agency reported.

Gorbachev also told Shultz he was willing to meet with Reagan to conclude a treaty on medium-range missiles and work out "key provisions" in three other areas, the agency said.

At his news conference, Shultz did not go into the specifics of Soviet proposals, but said he would be discussing the areas of negotiation with America's European allies in Brussels on Thursday.

Those areas are strategic offensive weapons, anti-missile defenses, and nuclear tests, it said.

Tass did not say whether Gorbachev would accept Reagan's invitation for a Washington summit this year. Gorbachev told reporters Tuesday that "generally, without reason, I do not go anywhere, particularly America."

U.S. officials in Moscow did not immediately respond to the latest Soviet report on the Shultz-Gorbachev meeting Tuesday. One U.S. official said earlier the two sides had agreed not to talk about the substance of Shultz's meetings with Soviet officials until after they were concluded.

Shultz met this morning at the U.S. Embassy with 19 Soviets who have been refused permission to join their spouses or other relatives in the United States.

He told the group he had told Reagan in a telephone conversation Tuesday evening that he would be meeting them.

"He sends you his best wishes," Shultz said. "You are always on our minds."

He also visited the grave of Soviet writer Boris Pasternak and had lunch at the U.S. Embassy with several Soviet intellectuals.

Radio Moscow this morning called Gorbachev's proposals "new ideas" but said the United States didn't seem interested in taking advantage of them.

On Tuesday night, Tass quoted Gorbachev as virtually daring the Reagan administration to take Moscow up on its offer.

"What are you afraid of?" the agency quoted Gorbachev as saying. "We are for a reliable agreement with the most stringent and all-bracing control."

Gorbachev "expressed the readiness to record an agreement on medium-range missiles (including) the Soviet Union's obligation to eliminate its shorter-range missiles within a relatively short and clearly defined time frame," Tass said.

dangerously were only "anecdotal accounts." Story on page 5.

Residents queue up on cue to pay Uncle Sam his dues

By Alex Girelli
Associate Editor

There was a steady line of patrons at the windows of Manchester's main post office today, most of them there to get their income tax returns postmarked before midnight tonight, the deadline set by the Internal Revenue Service.

The line moved rather quickly, held up from time to time when someone wanted to send his tax form by certified mail with a return receipt.

Thomas A. Tomkunas, superintendent of postal operations, said April 15 is always a busy day, both at the main post office and his branches on Broad Street, in Buckland and at Bolton Notch.

He said the volume of business on April 15 is more than triple that of a normal day. Because almost all material mailed in Manchester is sorted at the Hartford post office, Tomkunas had no piece-by-piece comparison.

But he said that while the Manchester post office normally has 1 1/2 containers of mail to ship to Hartford, it will have five containers today.

Every window in all the post office branches will be open all day. Normally some of them are unmanned for parts of each day.

The biggest volume, he said, will be at the Broad Street office, where

Office boosts hours

The main post office in Manchester will be open until 7:30 p.m. every Thursday beginning this week.

The extended hours will not be in force at the branches on Broad Street, in Buckland or at Bolton Notch, according to Thomas A. Tomkunas, superintendent of postal operations in Manchester.

There will be no change in the hours for the post offices in Andover, Coventry and Hebron.

Dennis McNamara, postmaster in Andover, commenting today on the extended hours elsewhere, said he can foresee the day when all post offices will be open one night a week and he parking is easier and where the nearby Parkade generates commercial and shopping traffic.

"There will be lines all day long," Tomkunas said.

The post office windows will close at 5 p.m. today. The last pickup from Manchester mailboxes begins at 5 p.m. today, Tomkunas said. Anything put in mailboxes after that hour will not get stamped before midnight today. One exception is the mailbox in front of the main post office at the Center. Mail from that box will be picked up at 8 p.m.

Manchester taxpayers who don't make the local mail deadline can go to the post office at 41 Weston St. in Hartford, where workers will be on

"We're in a customer-oriented business," McNamara said.

His words echoed the tone of a news release from William J. Dowling, general manager and postmaster of the Hartford Field Division of the U.S. Postal Service.

The flier says, "We are going all out to serve your postal needs. We hope that the extended hours will make it easier for you to use the post office."

McNamara said it is often difficult from business customers and others to get to the post office during normal daytime business hours.

Police officer mourned

Death a first for Milford

MILFORD (AP) — Several hundred police officers gathered today for funeral services for a Milford officer shot down during a routine car stop.

Uniformed officers from Connecticut, Vermont and New York attended a service for Daniel Scott Wasson, 28, who was killed early last Sunday. A Bridgeport man has been charged in the slaying.

"He had great pride in his work. He was humble and he acknowledged the good work done by others," Milford police Sgt. Paul Duff said of Wasson during the service in the Mary Taylor United Methodist Church in Milford.

Burial was to follow in Kings Highway Cemetery.

The first Milford police officer killed in the line of duty, Wasson had been commended three times for outstanding performance since joining the force on March 1, 1985.

He was a U.S. Air Force veteran who worked in the police canine unit. Wasson was engaged to be married to another Milford police officer.

Thomas A. Hoyesen, 33, has been charged with Wasson's murder. He is being held in a New Haven jail in lieu of $750,000 bail.

He was arrested less than an hour after the shooting by Bridgeport police using a description of the suspect's car issued by Milford police.

Wasson had radioed the dispatcher a description of the car he had stopped, a gray, 1977 Mercury Monarch, and had requested registration information before he was shot.

Bridgeport police detained Hoyesen on charges of narcotics possession, carrying a pistol without a permit and failure to appear in court on a motor vehicle violation. He was later charged with murder.

Hoyesen's older brother, Raymond Hoyesen, was shot to death by New York police after a robbery nearly 17 years ago, records show.

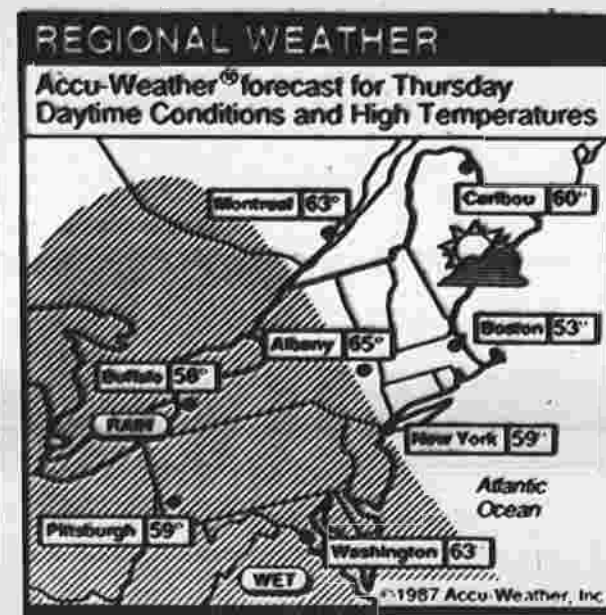

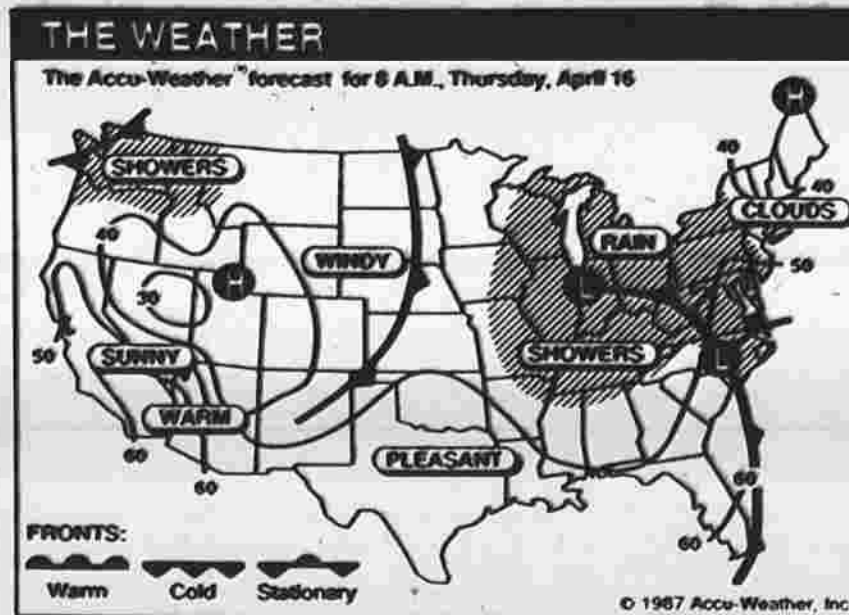

Raymond Hoyesen, then 24, was killed following a robbery and shooting of a gas station attendant on May 18, 1970. He was shot after a chase by police on Interstate 95 in Port Chester, N.Y.

Thomas Hoyesen also faces various narcotics charges stemming from his arrest in Stratford by state police on Jan. 7. Additional narcotics charges were added the next day after a search of "Hoyesen's parents' home in Bridgeport, authorities said.

New Haven Chief Probation Officer Flannigan Smith said that in October 1984 Hoyesen was convicted of possession of a sawed-off shotgun. He was sentenced to five years in prison, suspended after one year, and was to report to a probation officer for one year.

Manchester/Area Towns In Brief

Drivers face traffic delays

Several road construction and maintenance projects may be slowing down Manchester-area drivers this week. According to the state Department of Transportation, eastbound traffic on Interstate 94 in East Hartford has been diverted to the new roadway east of the Forbes Street overpass continuing into Manchester. I-94 eastbound has been shifted north onto two lanes of a new viaduct in East Hartford after the Main Street overpass. Exit 58 of I-94 has been moved west about a quarter of a mile. Motorists on Governor Street headed for Silver Lane or Roberts Street are advised use Main Street in East Hartford. Rehabilitation of the bridge carrying Route 2 over Main Street in East Hartford is expected to cause periodic delays as traffic is shifted during construction. Two lanes will be maintained in each direction.

Bolton library contract awarded

BOLTON — The Public Building Commission has awarded the contract for a high-school media center to the low bidder, DMC Construction of Manchester. DMC's bid on the project was $330,661, with an estimated completion time of 150 days. Two other companies bid on the project: Annulli Orlando & Sons ($348,348) and Alma Construction Co. ### Churches unite for sunrise service

Six Manchester area churches will be uniting for a special Easter sunrise service in Center Park on Sunday. The Rev. Paul Knight, associate pastor of Trinity Covenant Church, will be preaching on "Doubters Welcome." Accompanied by the Salvation Army Citadel band, a united choir of 75 voices will be singing with a special music and participation from several other churches and pastors. The service will start at 7 a.m. at the stone platform in Center Park, to the rear of Mary Cheney Library on Main Street. If the weather is bad, the service will be held across the street in the Salvation Army Citadel. The public is welcome.

'Adding legitimacy'

Youth commission is pleased by split

teen-agers together to discuss youth concerns and encourage participation in outside activities. Lately the group has been criticized for not being effective, largely because of a lack of interest by Manchester teens. Earlier this month, the commission decided to split in two, with one group composed of older students and the other of grade-schoolers, in hopes that two distinct groups would attract more members. Tuesday's meeting dealt specifically with the older group. According to Gregory Kane, an adult who drafted the resolution in an attempt to revive the committee, the group will keep the same goals. "This is an educational experience, like a field trip," Kane said. "The logistical part is to get the vehicle in motion." Choosing the committee members, Kane said, would be different than in past years. Under the new resolution, the group would be made up of two students from each of the town's public and parochial high schools and junior high schools, he said. Meetings would be held about once a month in the schools, Kane said, with adults playing an advisory role with no power of vote. "That would add legitimacy to the whole thing," he said. Present adult members agreed that they would bow out when the students become established, hopefully toward the beginning of next fall. The present commission expects to complete the resolution in May and submit it to the Board of Directors for approval. Mayor Barbara Weinberg said another group, made up of grade-school children and their parents, will be formed in the fall. The resolution will next be sent to principals and school officials around town for their comments. Martha Ramsey, a University of Connecticut student in Manchester who attended the meeting, said she was the Manchester Community College representative to the group in 1985 and grew disappointed with the lack of accomplishment. "That atmosphere has changed, she said. "Things are getting done," she said. "I'm very optimistic."

N. Elm panel plans Aug. bidding

A committee planning 24 apartments for the elderly on town-owned North Elm Street property is aiming for a construction bid opening on the project early in August and will go before the Planning and Zoning Commission June 1 for the approvals it needs. The committee, from the Manchester Housing Authority, met Monday with architect Alan Lamson and the town's public works department to discuss progress on the plans. Lamson said he is trying to find a way to put water heating systems on the main floor of each apartment instead of in the attics as he had originally planned. John FitzPatrick, a committee member, questioned the attic location because he was concerned about what might happen if the gas flame on the heaters were to blow out. Lamson said he will ask the town Public Works Department to do tests of the soil to determine how well on-site disposal of drain water will work. Betsy Kaemmerlen, landscape architect with Fuss and O'Neill Consulting Engineers of Manchester, said the plan is to build catch basins from which water will flow into dry wells. In the event of a heavy storm, any overflow from dry wells would go overland to the street and not into piping. Lamson said it appears each tenement will have a 10-by-10-foot storage area in the foundation of one of the six buildings in the project. He told committee members that when he filed preliminary plans from the town, he found that the site is about five feet narrower from east to west than originally thought. As a result, Lamson said he shifted the position on one building to get the needed distances between buildings. Kaemmerlen said she was unable to find room for a walk along each side of the main parking lot. Her plan showed the location of trash

Fargo suspects seek release

By John A. Dovic
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Two Puerto Rican nationalists awaiting trial since the fall of 1985 for a $7 million Wells Fargo robbery in Connecticut say they should be released on bail.

Lawyers for Filiberto Ojeda-Rios and Juan Segarra-Palmer, who have been jailed without bail for 18 months, argued before the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Tuesday that their continued detention was unconstitutional.

But federal prosecutors maintain the lengthy detention is due to complex pre-trial hearings that have delayed the case.

The three-judge appeals panel reserved decision.

"The question is whether under any circumstances we can release the defendants," said Michael Deutch, attorney for Ojeda-Rios, told the appeals court.

State taxes becoming fairer, prof claims

By Susan Okula
The Associated Press

NEW HAVEN — Changes in federal tax law are making Connecticut's state taxes more equitable, says a University of Connecticut Law School professor.

One of the bills, which has gained the support of Gov. William O'Neill, would adjust the state's capital gains tax, or the tax on profits made in stock sales.

The state and federal taxes on capital gains remain linked under state law. Under old federal tax code, only 40 percent of capital gains were taxed, while under the new federal law 80 percent is taxable. State officials have said the state could get as much as $200 million in extra money if the capital gains tax remains linked with the federal system.

The bill under consideration would keep the state capital gains base at 40 percent.

Another bill would drop the state corporate tax from 11.5 percent to 11 percent, said Ann Scheper, associate counsel for the Connecticut Business and Industry Association. Support for this bill is not as widespread as for the capital gains

Senator to file charges

HARTFORD (AP) — Senate Minority Leader Reginald J. Smith says the governor has left him no alternative to pursuing charges against the state tax commissioner over a confrontation last month.

Smith, R-New Hartford, said Tuesday he was disturbed Gov. William A. O'Neill has failed to order an investigation into the March 25 incident, during which Tax Commissioner John G. Groppo allegedly tried to use a dispute over unpaid car taxes to intimidate Smith.

Smith said there is a "high probability" he will file a criminal or civil complaint against Groppo as soon as GOP staff attorneys can review state law covering harassment of a public official and the use of confidential tax records.

"This is done really with a great deal of pain on my part," Smith said. "I had hoped we could have resolved this issue in a more diplomatic way."

Smith had said earlier he would have been satisfied with a public apology from Groppo and an explanation from the governor about how a confidential tax file on Groppo ended up on Groppo's desk after Smith had criticized Groppo's policies as tax commissioner. It is now too late for apologies, Smith said Tuesday.

"People in our caucus are concerned whether there exists within the Department of Revenue Services an enemies list and whether in fact tax records are being used for political purposes," Smith said. "I think that's a legitimate question."

"We feel we have to make some strong public statements because of the possibility that other legislators who would dare to move into sensitive areas would in fact be subjected to the same kind of actions," Smith said.

The GOP attorneys could be finished with their review as early as Thursday and a complaint filed with the chief state's attorney or the Hartford state's attorney, Smith said.

Smith revealed last week that Groppo visited him in his third-floor Capitol office on March 25, confronted him with a confidential tax file and accused him of attempting to evade taxes.

The file related to a dispute between the tax department and Smith's son over how much sales tax was owed on the 1982 purchase of a car. Groppo mistakenly believed the file belonged to Smith and accused the senator of failing to report the true purchase price of the car.

At the time of the incident, Smith was demanding disclosure of documents on waivers of tax penalties by the tax department.

Connecticut In Brief

Sixteen indicted on drug charges

BRIDGEPORT — Sixteen people have been indicted on drug charges in what officials believe to be a South American cocaine distribution network operating in central Connecticut, the U.S. attorney said.

United States Attorney Stanley A. Twardy said Tuesday that a federal grand jury returned a 25-count indictment against the 16 people, including Jaime Lemos of East Hartford and Jacinto Heredia of Newington who were arrested Tuesday.

Bond has been set at $500,000 for Heredia and $175,000 for Lemos, Twardy said.

The 16 are charged with distribution of cocaine, conspiracy to distribute cocaine, possession with intent to distribute cocaine, and use of the telephone to facilitate cocaine distribution in the Hartford area.

Striking workers look for help

HARTFORD — Leaders of 800 striking workers at the Colt Industries Inc.'s Firearms Division are recruiting businesses to help the people who have been out of jobs for 15 months.

Local 376 of the United Auto Workers union on Monday kicked off a campaign called Businesses in Support of the Colt Strikers.

Robert Madore, Local 376 president, said some Hartford-area businesses have already offered discounts on food and other merchandise to strikers.

Banks and landlords are being lenient with strikers who are overdue on mortgage and rent payments, Madore said.

"We are going after as many additional businesses as we can attract," Madore said. "And we will be going door-to-door, getting as many more as we can."

The union supports strikers with payments from its treasury and pays their health insurance premiums. Donations to strikers for outside sources now total more than $125,000, Madore said.

Man kills self at East Hartford jail

EAST HARTFORD — Despite closed-circuit television monitoring, a 64-year-old man hanged himself with his shirt in a town jail cell, East Hartford police say.

Jacob E. Bogli, was found hanging from bars above the door of the cell at 1:51 a.m. Tuesday, according to Detective Robert F. Kenary.

Bogli's suicide was the first in the jail since 1974, but three other attempted suicides had been in the past month, Kenary said.

Bogli was being held on $250 bond after an arrest following an altercation with police Monday night.

Kenary said that department officials have been discussing ways to improve the quality of the pictures on closed-circuit televisions that monitor prisoners.

"We had this discussion two weeks ago. There were problems of seeing into the cell block," Kenary said.

Bogli was found hanging about 10 minutes after an officer had checked on him, Kenary said.

Sales-tax receipts drop in February

HARTFORD — The monthly state sales tax report for February shows an $8.5 million dip in revenues compared with the same period last year.

But budget officials said Tuesday it was the result of a one-of-a-kind $20 million tax assessment in February 1986. The assessment reportedly was made against United Technologies Corp. after an audit by the state Department of Revenue Services, but officials have consistently refused to confirm that.

Removing that one-time blip in the revenue picture, Edward C. Balda, chief of economic and revenue forecasting in the governor's budget office, said sales tax receipts continue to grow at about the rate expected.

"We are expecting 11.5 percent growth in the sales tax for the balance of the fiscal year, which ends June 30, Balda said.

Tuesday's report, which reflects sales tax receipts for February, showed sales tax receipts of $117.2 million, compared with $125.7 million in February 1986.

Suspected LSD dealer killed in blast

KOKOMO, Ind. — A man who got off a bomb in a briefcase, apparently killing himself and injuring 15 people during a break in his drug trial, told his mother he dreaded the four 100-year prison terms he could have faced.

Robert Gray, 42, charged with two counts of dealing a controlled substance, was "believed to be dead" in the blast Tuesday in the sheriff's office at the Howard County courthouse, said county prosecutor James Andrews.

The prosecutor, however, refused further comment on Gray's fate, as did other law enforcement officers.

Among the injured were Gray's lawyer, Charles Scruggs, who was hospitalized in fair condition, and Sheriff John Beatty, who was in serious but stable condition with burns over 40 percent of his body and other injuries.

Network writers to vote on contract

NEW YORK — CBS and the Writers Guild of America are each claiming victory after the settlement of a 6½-week strike by 400 new writers, editors and graphic artists.

"We have been able to fight back the network's attempts to gut our union contract and to take away our hard-earned gains in the area of job security," union leader Mona Mangan said Tuesday in announcing the settlement.

"The company achieved its objectives," said CBS spokesman George Schweitzer, citing flexibility gained in hiring, firing, layoffs and the union's agreement to allow non-union members to write news.

The proposed three-year contract was to be voted on by members today in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and Washington. If it is approved as recommended by the union's negotiating committee, workers could be back on the job later today.

Charity spends little on cancer

NEW YORK — An official of a large cancer charity has defended its practice of spending as much as 97 percent of its multimillion-dollar income on fund raising and management.

"I don't believe anyone is being cheated in this process," said Randall Grove, executive director of the United Cancer Council.

"No matter what agency you chose to contribute to, there are always overhead expenses. A portion of your dollar certainly goes to the expenses of the organization."

Grove on Tuesday confirmed a report by the National Charities Information Bureau that found that only 2.9 percent of the $5.2 million spent by the council in 1985 went to fight cancer.

Last year, the charity raised $7 million, with more than 93 percent, or $6.52 million, going to the for-profit fund-raising firm Watson & Hughey Co., based in Alexandria, Va., Grove said.

School buses on field trip collide

PARK RIDGE, Ill. — Two school buses collided during a junior high field trip, and 82 people were taken to hospitals, authorities said.

Police Lt. Robert Kaderabek said most of the passengers were taken to hospitals only as a precaution. Kaderabek said he knew of only one person admitted, and that was for observation.

According to Kaderabek, one bus from the Gower West School in Clarendon Hills rear-ended another Tuesday as they were taking 12- and 13-year-old students back to the school from a field trip to a theater in Park Ridge.

Doctor predicts rush on surgery

NEW YORK — A doctor who just returned from examining Parkinson's disease patients treated with daring experimental brain surgery in Mexico predicted that U.S. surgeons would rush to adopt the procedure.

"I think I witnessed history," said Dr. Abraham Lieberman, describing the treatment as a dramatic advance over existing methods.

Lieberman, chairman of the medical advisory board of the American Parkinson Disease Association and professor of neurology at New York University, also said the surgery could lead to better treatments for other brain disorders, such as Alzheimer's disease, spinal cord injuries and strokes.

About 1 million Americans suffer from Parkinson's disease, which is marked by tremors, rigidity and loss of movement. Lieberman told a news conference Tuesday.

Judge wants to review letters

WASHINGTON — A federal judge, told that John W. Hinckley Jr. corresponded with Florida death-row inmate Theodore Bundy, wants to review the presidential assassin's letters and papers to help evaluate his mental condition.

Hinckley, who is seeking a 12-hour Easter pass from the mental hospital where he was sent for shooting President Reagan in 1981, was ordered to produce all his letters, notes, postcards, poems and other writings.

Judge rejects recall of GM cars

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge, rejecting a proposed fine and recall of 1.1 million General Motors cars, said consumer complaints that the vehicles tend to stall and swerve dangerously, were only "anecdotal accounts."

U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson on Tuesday ruled against the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration in a suit alleging that GM's 1980 X-cars contained a design defect linked to 417 accidents, including 16 fatalities and 400 injuries.

The NHTSA, citing 4,282 complaints from its cars, wanted Jackson to fine the automaker $6 million and force it to recall all 1980 Chevrolet Cheletes, Pontiac Phoenixes, Buick Skylarks and Oldsmobile Omegas for alterations.

Jackson's 71-page ruling came more than a year after the close of a hard-fought trial in which the government emphasized the high complaint rates and the testimony of X-car drivers who experienced unusual stalling problems.

Jackson apparently agreed, stating: "There is simply no engineering evidence of any peculiar property of X-cars generally that renders them in any way exceptional insofar as having a predisposition to yaw (turn)."

An analysis of accident risks presented by GM from the trial

brake problem."

GM's defense stressed accident statistics and brake engineering tests that the automaker said showed no evidence of a defect, and averred that X-car complaints were more than a year after the close of a hard-fought trial in which the government emphasized the high complaint rates and the testimony of X-car drivers who experienced unusual stalling problems.

Jackson concluded that "anecdotal accounts of stalling events are not sufficiently reliable, i.e., are not competent evidence from which to infer the existence of any specific

"is consistent with the engineering test data in tending to prove the absence, not the presence, of a 'safety-related defect' in the X-car," Jackson wrote.

NHTSA Administrator Diane Steed said the agency still was reviewing the ruling and hadn't decided whether to appeal.

GM Chairman Robert B. Smith said the judge's decision "validates a whole generation of outstanding GM automobiles" and "reaffirms GM's longstanding leadership in safety."

'Honey trap' snares Marines

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a young translator for the Soviet government travel agency Intourist, Alexandra Costa was encouraged to flirt with foreign visitors, and if a relationship developed, the KGB wanted to guide it.

"One of the conditions of the job was that I was to report to the KGB," Costa said.

"I was seeing one of the British guys, but nothing really developed," she said in an interview last week. However, "one of the other girls fell in love with a British man," and the KGB wanted to run her as a "swallow" or seductress.

"My KGB handler complained that, 'the wrong girl fell in love. She won't talk to us."

The woman ended up marrying the man and moving to England, said Costa, who defected from the Soviet Embassy in Washington in 1978 and now works as a computer consultant in the Washington area.

The woman who refused to cooperate was an exception in what Costa calls a "totalitarian state" where "most people don't refuse to cooperate with the KGB. The state owns everything, and if you want a job or an apartment, you play the game."

The game is often the "honey trap," the oldest trick in the book of espionage, one that diplomats, businessmen and journalists are warned to avoid in the Soviet Union, but one into which many tumble nonetheless.

Official Washington reacted with outrage to revelations in Washington that Marines apparently traded sex for secrets at U.S. diplomatic missions in Moscow and Leningrad.

But over the past few decades, a British, a French and a Canadian ambassador, and a U.S. and a French military attaché, are among those known to have fallen into variations of the same snare.

Cases that receive publicity are often intelligence failures, security officials say, because the seduction comes to light before the victim can be blacklisted into betrayal.

Pay may be at heart of surrogate's appeal

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — An attorney for surrogate mother Mary Beth Whitehead said the court case over which she bore a child for $10,000 should be declared invalid because it violates labor and wage regulations.

State Assembly Minority Leader Alan Karcher, one of Mrs. Whitehead's lawyers, said Tuesday his client worked more than 6,000 hours for William and Elizabeth Stern of Tenafly, who paid Mrs. Whitehead $10,000 to be artificially inseminated with Stern's sperm and to carry the child.

The hourly wage amounted to $1.47 per hour, below the state and federal minimum rate of $3.35 per hour, Karcher said, giving reason

City's residents threaten parole

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP) — City officials in Antioch have gone to court to try to block the parole into their community of a man who maimed and raped a 15-year-old girl, saying he already has been threatened by angry residents.

The State Department of Corrections says it is looking into finding another area in which to release Lawrence Singleton, 59, who in 1978 raped a runaway hitchhiker, hacked off her arms below the elbow with an ax and left her to die. The victim survived.

Singleton was sentenced in 1979 to serve 14 years and four months in prison but earned an early release for good behavior and involvement in a work program in prison.

The city asked a Contra Costa County Superior Court judge for a temporary restraining order to block Singleton's parole.

Preserve rail line for future

There's no need for Manchester to spend millions of dollars to build a bicycle route or hiking trail along the abandoned path of the South Manchester Railroad. But the town should acquire the right of way to preserve it for recreation or possible transportation use in the future.

The "trails-to-trails" movement has come to Manchester, and it's overdue. Development here, as throughout the nation, has been eating up much of the land that was once available for hiking or walking. With that development and the arrival of new residents has come an increasing demand for more recreation facilities, as well as better maintenance of existing ones.

But some people along the 1.9-mile path of Cheney's Goat apparently don't want any more new neighbors, and they're petitioning against town purchase of the right-of-way. They say their privacy will be invaded by joggers, walkers and bike riders close to their back yards.

The petitioners apparently forget that the tracks once carried several trains a day, and if it weren't for a decline in gasoline prices, many would be talking about rebuilding the rails for commuter trains.

That potential for the north-to-south route could become greater as more restoration and rehabilitation takes place in the Cheney Historic District. The link at the North End to tracks to Hartford will become a more important consideration once rebuilt highways are unable to handle the ever-increasing automobile traffic, and when environmental concerns force a return to less-polluting modes of getting around.

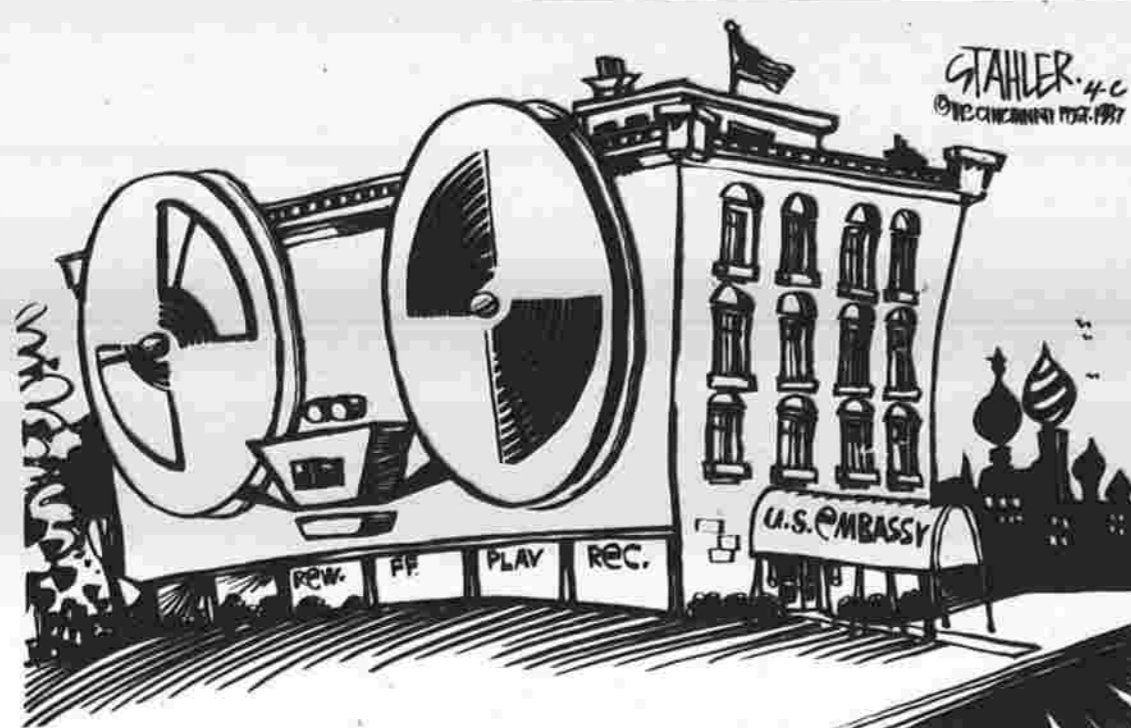

In the meantime, though, the recreational opportunities of the railroad right-of-way could be exploited at little cost. There's no need to pave a trail. Town officials could look at the rail-to-trail plans for the 20-mile Manchester-to-Willimantic rail line, and perhaps they could come up with a way to acquire and make use of the local line for less than $2.5 million.

The South Manchester Railroad line has a better use than preserving the privacy and expanding the lots of abutting landowners.

Vote Duchesneau to lead Andover

To the Editor:

On May 4, Andover residents will choose a new first selectman to head their town government. We need someone with good leadership qualities and network abilities. She must bring our town together and take us through the new range of development that has and is coming our way.

Earleen Duchesneau is just that person. She is a business woman with a background in administration. She is the creator and founder of her own financial services business. She is a go-getter who started with a loosely knit group of neighbors concerned about development, and created ACRE (Andover Concerned Residents for the Environment). This is pilot program developed with the state Department of Environmental Protection.

ACRE's primary function is to educate the public and our commissions about environment and development issues. It's a pilot program, the first of its kind in our state. It's in Andover and it was engineered by Earleen Duchesneau - all because she recognized a need to bring more knowledge and expertise on these issues to our own and its government. That's leadership.

Earleen Duchesneau has the administrative and leadership qualities we need. She is a newcomer to our political scene. However, with Pete Maneggia and his 12 years' experience in town government we have the winning combination of leadership and expertise. We are at a threshold of change, want it or not, highway or not, it is coming. Let's continue to make Andover what we want it to be now and ensure its future. Elect the winning combination: Earleen Duchesneau and Pete Maneggia on May 4.

Good philosophy of grandparents

To the Editor:

We, as grandparents, are a "small creek" in the mainstream of your life, but, my dear young people, we're your Mom's or Dad's Mom and Dad. Our views are quite "way out" - so you say. But listen a little longer, and you will hear a pretty good philosophy.

We, as older citizens, have had our stress and problems. We, too, attended school and had years of teaching and hopefully assisted our children, as we still do, because we love and need each other - every day. Love and respect should be two of your most important priorities, but that doesn't seem to be the case at all. Our love of you, perhaps isn't shown, momentarily, but we're here.

The next time you're impatient with your "Gram" or "Gramp," try to realize you will be a "gram" or "gramp" someday, too!

Slow runaway world growth

To the Editor:

By the year 2000, our tiny planet will have enough new people to make four new Europes! Conflict arises when growing populations compete for a shrinking resource base.

If we do not act as expeditiously as possible to slow down runaway population growth, the security and stability of the world will be in great jeopardy. Explosive population growth in the Third World sows the seeds of conflict, terrorism and international disorder.

The week of April 20 to 25, 1987, is "World Population Awareness Week," a time for all of us to reflect on the implications of our crowded earth.

So far this year, 37 U.S. governors have recognized World Population Awareness Week in their states. I am pleased and proud that our governor has signed a proclamation to focus attention on this important issue.

Grants bound for minorities go to insiders

WASHINGTON - The Commerce Department's inspector general recently found "evidence that insiders are more prone to benefit from special awards" by the Minority Business Development Agency. These non-competitive "special awards" amounted to 18 percent of the agency's budget in fiscal 1984 and 1985.

We previously reported charges by an agency official that the special grants were being used to lure blacks and Hispanics into the Republican Party. Agency Director James Richardson Gonzales denied that politics was behind any of the special awards made at his discretion.

Inspector General Sherman Funk told our associate Stewart Harris that Richardson Gonzales was cleared last September of any criminal wrongdoing. And Funk's report stops short of accusing Richardson Gonzales of playing politics with the grants, but says the award process provides evidence of insiders benefiting and raises questions about favoritism.

The director conceded that improvements should be made in management of the special awards. He doled out $13.1 million worth in 1984-85. The agency's budget for those two years was just less than $80 million.

The agency "has used scarce federal funds on projects rather common and often costly," the inspector general reported, "and activities that, in many instances, duplicated established programs."

An example cited by the inspector general involved a proposal by Richardson Gonzales to make a special award of $200,427 to a Sherman Oaks, Calif., company, ARVCO, to provide services. The inspector general said were essentially the same as those already provided by a minority center in the area.

"The director's recommendation was especially distressing because the recipient may not have been the best qualified firm to manage the project," the inspector general wrote. In an earlier competition to run a minority development center, he explained, ARVCO had finished behind four other applicants.

ARVCO WAS ALSO identified in an affidavit by MBDA's San Francisco regional director as one of the groups that benefited from Richardson Gonzales' alleged use of agency grants as a Republican Party recruiting tool. The head of the company, A.R. Villalobos, is prominent in the California GOP. He could not be reached for comment.

Richardson Gonzales withdrew his award of a special grant to ARVCO after the inspector general's objections. But since then the proposal has been resubmitted with what the inspector general considers only one major change: a $90,000 increase in the amount.

For the future, the inspector general recommended that the Minority Business Development Agency set up a review panel to pass judgment on proposed special awards before they are sent to the director for approval.

The agency should be more selective in the grants it hands out, the inspector general warned. Of the 15 special projects his investigators studied, eight either conflicted with the agency's charter or duplicated services already being provided.

IN ADDITION, the inspector general's report faulted the agency for funding overpriced projects. One shocker was a grant of $228,389 for five one-day seminars to make young Hispanics aware of private enterprise's possibilities. This amounted to $1,068 for each student's day of instruction.

"We learned that private industry charges fees ranging from $80 to $196 per student for similar one-day seminars," the report states.

In another example of extravagance, the investigators found that one grant recipient leased wastebaskets in California for $29 each per year. The wastebaskets' original price was about $7.

The inspector general also recommended closer attention to basic accounting procedures. For example, according to the report, the Commerce Department is still trying to collect from a grant recipient who spent part of the money for a condominium and a Mercedes.

Hey, look us over! The Justice Department confiscated from drug busts and other criminal enterprises $460 million in money and property in 1986, and the department's files think it should get more publicity. An internal memo urged that Attorney General Edwin Meese and other top officials be available for public ceremonies at which checks are presented to state and local governments for their help in the arrests. About $39 million was turned over last year.

Conservatives gear up to aid Kemp in '88

Conservative Republicans are moving on separate fronts in Connecticut to establish a base for long-shot presidential hopeful Jack Kemp and to gain a greater presence on the party's statewide policy body.

The first movement appeals to those who like to stick pins in U.S. Sen. Lowell Weicker and, with more gusto lately, U.S. Rep. Stewart McKinney or anyone else who thinks Vice President George Bush should succeed Ronald Reagan in the White House.

The pro-Bush sentiment is across the board in the state's delegation in Washington, but Weicker and McKinney are particular targets for conservatives because they fall the basic test of loyalty to President Reagan in much of their voting.

Kemp people have been at it for a year now, confident he would become a candidate. They will shortly name George Lewson of Danbury as coordinator of the campaign in this state. Lewson handled that job for Reagan in 1980. An informal committee for Kemp has met twice in recent weeks for a start on what Lewson says will be a grass roots campaign with organizations in every town.

THIS WEEK, supporters of Bush began to get serious about organizing for their man in his former home state. At some prodding from Bush's Washington campaign headquarters, they met for the first time and named former GOP State Chairman Brian Gaffney of New Britain as co-chairman and Betsy Hemingway of Greenwich as co-chairman.

And while Lewson's supporters were saying money wasn't their big concern yet, the Bush people weren't that fussy. They will run a $1,000-a-ticket luncheon in Hartford on June 9 and probably a similar function in Stamford.

Capitol Comments
Bob Conrad

Lewson says the budding Kemp campaign has the benefit of advice from Roger Stone and Charles Black, a couple of former state residents who, with Paul Manafort Jr. of New Britain, run a conservative-oriented, top-flight consulting firm in Alexandria, Va., across the Potomac from you know where.

Meanwhile, conservatives are among others who will probably gain seats on the Republican State Central Committee when its 72 members are elected May 12 in the 36 State Senatorial Districts. The new chairman, Bob Pollner of Durham, will be watching that closely because at least 11 members who voted to bring him over state Rep. Dick Foley of Oxford are not seeking re-election and a half dozen other pro-Pollner folks may lose to challengers who would have favored Foley.

FOLEY, INCIDENTALLY, is showing up at GOP functions all around the state. He says many of his appearances had been booked prior to the March 10 election of a new chairman. And he insists he is merely saying thank-you to people who supported him in that contest with Pollner. Foley says the doctrine of fair play is paramount as Pollner struggles to put the party on better footing. Foley, in other words, has no secret plan to challenge Pollner when the policy committee meets in June and elects its chairman for a full term.

But, conservative or not, pro-Foley or not, many changes are expected in the May 12 elections for committee seats. Some that are seen as likely are: Former state Rep. Rosario "Joe" Vella of Enfield for the retiring Sylvio Prell of Windsor Locks. Alan Richard Rittenband of South Windsor for Katie McGuire of Waterford, formerly of Ellington; Brian Anderson of New Haven for Raeanne Curtis, who will be moving from that city to Hamden; Bob Kats of Bridgeport for Ed Mak of that city; Les Spaulding of Hamden for Frances Mulqueeny of the same town; former State Chairman Fred Biebel for James McMellon, both of Stratford; and possibly Jim Pablonia of Willimantic for Bob Duffney of Plainfield.

PAT COPLIN of Westport has a tough challenge from Mari Nilson, the GOP vice chairman there. An attorney in Norwalk who says he doesn't talk to columnists, Ken Garfunkel is "thinking about" challenging Sally Bolster of that city. But Walter Gawrych of North Haven, contrary to earlier information, will stay on. Virginia Butler of Westbrook, who intended to step down, is facing intense pressure to reconsider.

But the new committee, Pollner take note, will bring a lot of new and conservative faces. And that is a straw in the wind for the 1988 races.

Victim's kin wants hearing on Law Day

The brother of a Burlington man killed in a 1984 motor vehicle accident involving Manchester attorney Anthony F. Pagano has asked Hartford Superior Court that the hearing on whether Pagano should be allowed to resume his legal practice be held on May 1 — Law Day.

"What better way to flaunt this honorable day for our judicial branch of government than with the reinstatement of a felonious lawyer to the bar," Denis Charest said in a letter sent to the court on Monday.

The hearing had originally been scheduled for May 1, but was moved to May 8. Members of the three-judge panel conducting the hearing could not be reached today for comment on why the date was changed.

Charest is opposed to the removal of Pagano's indefinite suspension, although last week a review committee recommended that the suspension be lifted. The committee argued that the decision on lifting the suspension should be based on the fitness of the person asking to practice again — not whether the attorney committed a felony.

The suspension was imposed in 1985 on the condition that Pagano overcome any substance abuse and emotional problems he might have had. At a January hearing, Pagano presented evidence he had done this.

In 1984, a vehicle driven by Pagano collided head-on with one driven by 31-year-old David Charest, who was killed. Pagano was convicted of misconduct with a motor vehicle, a felony.

Police Roundup

Teen-ager charged

An East Hartford man was charged Monday with four counts of indecent exposure and impairing the morals of a minor in connection with a series of incidents at the end of March, police said.

Paul A. Lefebvre, 18, was charged in connection with incidents in which a 15-year-old Manchester girl was followed for about a week in March. The girl was subjected to obscene comments and the man exposed himself, police said. Other incidents involved a man exposing himself March 30 at Squire Village apartments on Spencer Street and March 24 at Shop Rite on Spencer Street, according to a police report.

Lefebvre was released on $1,000 non-surety bond pending appearance April 20 in Manchester Superior Court.

A Terryville man charged with drunken driving early Tuesday morning was arrested again after he tried to return to his car, police said.

William Fetzter Jr., 20, was arrested at about 2 a.m. when he was found sleeping in his idling car parked on New Bolton Road, police said. In that incident, he was also given a written warning for having alcohol in a vehicle operated by a minor.

Fetzter was arrested again at 8:40 a.m. when he returned to his car, ignoring orders by police not to do so, police said. He was again charged with drunken driving, with an added charge of driving with a suspended license.

Fetzter was held on $250 bond. He is scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court April 22 and 28.

duty in the circular driveway to take envelopes from motorists as they drive through.

Some of the added business at post offices is not because of the IRS, Tomkins said. Some of it stems from the mailing of Easter cards.

The only other day like April 15, he said, is Dec. 24, the day before Christmas.

Among those in the line this morning at the Main Street post office was Mary Blish, who has gained a reputation in getting grants to help in the renovation of Manchester's Cheney Hall. She was mailing income tax forms hours before the deadline.

"Sometimes I get my grant applications in just before deadline," she said. "And besides, it's different when I'm getting money."

Assistant Town Attorney William Shea was there with a small handful of official-looking mail.

"Income tax?" a reporter asked him.

"Among other things," he answered.

Bond denies claims, nixes test

ATLANTA (AP) — Veteran civil rights activist Julian Bond described reporters as "sharks in the water" and complained bitterly about coverage of his wife's allegation, since recanted, that she used cocaine.

"I've never used cocaine. Never at all," Bond said on a radio talk show Tuesday.

At a news conference earlier, the former state senator said he was satisfied with his estranged wife's retraction of her allegation to police. "As far as we are concerned, the matter is closed," he said.

He said he had "not committed or been charged with any crime" and pledged cooperation with a federal grand jury which, according to news reports, is interested in the matter.

However, Bond vowed he would not take a drug test. "I think it's a real invasion of my privacy, as this whole thing has been," he said on the talk show.

"First, this involves a domestic dispute. And that's, although typically not for the Atlanta newspapers, but that's good newspaper fare."

"Secondly, it involves drugs, and particularly the magic drug of today, cocaine. That's on everybody's lips and far too many people's noses and it's a hot subject today....

"Then there's a hint of some police impropriety and there are black political figures involved. So mix all this together and these people become like sharks in the water. There's a bond and they're after it," he said.

Alice Bond has been separated for six months from her husband of 23 years. On March 18 she walked into the city police narcotics unit, and told officers her husband was abusing cocaine, according to a confidential police memorandum cited in reports by Atlanta television stations. ### '86 gubernatorial candidates still owe plenty

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Five months after his landslide re-election victory, Democratic Gov. William A. O'Neill still has a campaign debt of almost $70,000, according to his Republican rival, Julie D. Belaga, still owes more than $112,000, records show.

Previous spending records were shattered by the November gubernatorial race in which the five major candidates spent $6.6 million. The 1982 spending total for gubernatorial hopefuls was less than $3 million.

Since Bakker admitted his extramarital encounter, the hotel has had callers wanting to stay in the room or buy anything from the room. However, Kimball said, the bedspread, curtains, beds and even the carpeting were replaced during a remodeling after Bakker's visit.

Kimball said the hotel has been receiving two to three telephone calls a day from radio disc jockeys from cities around the country.

Tourists, curious vie for evangelist's room

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Room 538 at the Sheraton Sand Key, though not much different from the other 389 rooms at the hotel, has become an attraction since television evangelist Jim Bakker admitted he had an afternoon tryst there.

"It sells so good I'm thinking about buying the room," said a fellow at the Institute of Politics at Harvard, raised $1.38 million and spent $1.65 million.

Her most recent report, filed Jan. 28, showed her with $47,890 in vendor debts and $24,880 in outstanding loans.

Belaga won a three-way primary for the GOP gubernatorial nomination in September, defeating former state Sens. Richard C. Bozzuto of Watertown and Gerald Labriola of Naugatuck.

Bozzuto, who won the party endorsement at the nominating convention, raised $626,687 and spent $693,810, according to his most recent report, dated Dec. 1. He showed debts of $3,500 and loans outstanding of $174,900.

Labriola, whose most recent report is dated Dec. 8, raised and spent $711,539. He showed debts of $5,573 and outstanding loans of $183,000.

Unaffiliated Party gubernatorial candidate Frank J. Longo of Bristol raised $913 and spent $881. He gave the $31,811 he had left to the Republican State Central Committee.

His April 7 report showed he raised and spent $2.73 million to beat Moffett and, later, Belaga.

Insurance gaps worry officials

In 1985-86 to 1985, 120 Spinnelli said that about 75 percent of the money spent on claims in 1986-87 will be for workers' compensation.

In his budget proposal, Spinnelli has proposed not adding to the fund this year because of the other insurance costs. Instead, he is recommending a study to determine what the fund level should be, and how much the town should contribute each year.

Meanwhile, the cost of private coverage has more than doubled in three years. It jumped from $408,129 in 1983-84 to $1,072,596 proposed for 1987-88.

There are no clear solutions to these problems, although Spinnelli's report noted a number of hopeful signs.

The increase in the cost of premiums to reduce their risks appears to be leveling off, he said. In addition, the state Legislature last year passed tort-reform legislation.

The new law allows for deferred payment of damages, and it eliminates joint and several liability. The legislation was expected to help municipalities, but the impact can't be measured yet.

Additional funds also are available if municipalities use tax-exempt bond money for insurance costs, he said.

Last year, the state also created a Municipal Liability Trust Fund that provides money to towns so they can study how to reduce their risks. This could include surveys of streets and sidewalks, although Manchester has not yet used this money, Spinnelli said.

Hop like a bunny?

Make your dinner ahead & relax this Easter

By Nancy Pappas
Herald Reporter

Wouldn't it be great if the Easter bunny would present your Easter Sunday dinner to you?

It would be lovely to find a complete meal — from soup to nuts — instead of just hardboiled eggs in your Easter basket. Then Easter Sunday afternoon might feel a lot more relaxed for cooks who want to spend time with their families.

While we cannot get in touch with the Easter bunny on your behalf, we can suggest a menu that's done entirely the day before. That way, you'll be able to enjoy your guests.

The meal could start with a bowl of homemade herb cheese, served in the living room with vegetables, crackers and party rye breads. Follow this, at the dining table, with small plates of fresh asparagus, steamed and served cool, on a ruffled leaf of red lettuce.

As the main dish, you'll serve a baked ham, with mustard sauce and tossed salad. Try an almond torte as your dessert.

If wine seems appropriate to the occasion, offer a bottle of white burgundy, or a less-budgobusting zinfandel.

Herb cheese
1 8-ounce package cream cheese, at room temperature
1 stick butter or margarine, at room temperature
1 cup large curd cottage cheese

Mustard mousse
3 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons dry mustard
1 envelope plain gelatin
1/4 teaspoon ground turmeric
1 teaspoon celery salt
2 large eggs, at room temperature
1 cup water
1/4 cup white wine or cider vinegar

Almond torte
4 eggs, separated
1 cup sugar
Grated rind and juice of 1 lemon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1 1/4 cups almonds
1/4 cup toasted dry bread crumbs

Lemon-orange custard
3 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice
4 tablespoons orange juice
One-third cup water
1/4 cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
3 beaten egg yolks OR 1 whole egg and 1 egg yolk
1/4 teaspoon grated lemon or orange rind

Crumbs
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
Lemon-orange custard (recipe below)

Powdered sugar
Separate eggs when they are chilled. Beat yolks until lemon colored, then add sugar gradually. Beat until very creamy. Add rind and juice of lemon, and nutmeg. Grind almonds in a food processor or blender. Combine with toasted bread crumbs and add to egg yolk mixture. Blend in extract.

Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold lightly into batter. Bake about 40 minutes in an ungreased pan with a removable rim, called a springform pan. Let cool in the pan.

Meanwhile, prepare lemon-orange custard.

To assemble, use knife or string to cut cake in half, lengthwise. Spread middle with custard, then top layer back on. Sprinkle with powdered sugar. Refrigerate a day or so.

Eather Armstrong of Manchester displays an apple pie that was made from the same recipe she used Sunday at a contest in West Brookfield, Mass. Her secret ingredient: Ritz crackers.

Armstrong gives secret of her contest apple pie

By Nancy Pappas
Herald Reporter

Ritz cracker crumbs are the secret ingredient in Eather Armstrong's apple pie.

These little crumbs — two handfuls of them — propelled Armstrong and her apple pie through three levels of competition for champion pie baker of New England.

On Sunday afternoon, Armstrong, who lives on Weibull Street, competed in the grand champion round of the bake-off at the Salem Cross Inn, West Brookfield, Mass. The owners of the 170 inn sponsored the contest.

It was the first time Armstrong had ever entered a cooking contest.

In February, Armstrong's recipe was judged along with 489 others. Judges determined that these Ritz cracker crumbs, scattered over the bottom crust, made the recipe just different enough.

"We were looking for ideas that were just a bit different," said Martha Salem, who owns the inn. "But we wanted pies that would still represent the best in classic New England apple pies."

Contestants were invited to preliminary bake-offs in March, and given instructions on baking techniques. In this contest, bakers must use the inn's brick beehive oven, which is heated with 3-foot lengths of oak, maple, cherry and apple wood.

The oven is heated until the bricks reach a temperature of 425 degrees. "They claim they know it's right if they can hold their arm in for a minute, without singeing themselves," Armstrong said.

The ashes and embers are removed. The oven is whisked clean and the contestants' 10 pies are set inside.

The brick oven gives a deep, rich color to pie crusts, said Armstrong, and the baking temperature is very even. However, there is no way to peek at the pies as they bake.

"After 45 minutes, they took out all the pies and let us check on them," said Armstrong. "That was it. They said you can't look in much because each time you do, the oven loses its heat rapidly."

Out of those original 400 contestants, 11 were chosen to take part in Sunday's bake-off. The winners, a team of centerians from a nursing home in West Brookfield, were clearly the hometown favorites. "But nobody really minded," said Armstrong. "We congratulated them when they won."

Armstrong's prizes included a free dinner, a $50 gift certificate and a coffee mug. Does this "loot" give her a yen to enter more contests? "Probably not," she said. "I really don't do much cooking anymore, now that my children are grown."

But she does have her sights set on next year's apple pie contest at Salem Cross. "Mrs. (Louise) Wald was 105 when she won," said Armstrong. "I just hope I won't have to wait that long."

Armstrong shared her apple pie recipe with Herald readers, along with a family favorite, her fried chicken, which she learned to make in 1945.

Fried chicken
1 frying chicken, cut in pieces
1 beaten egg
1/2 cup milk
2 cups melted vegetable shortening
1 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons sugar

Roll out second crust and fit to the top. Crimp cut slots to allow steam to escape. Brush with milk, then sprinkle with a small amount of sugar.

Bake for 50 minutes in a preheated 400-degree oven. Allow to cool briefly before serving.

Armstrong's apple pie
5 1/4 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup vegetable shortening
4 tablespoons cold water
3 handfuls Ritz crackers, crushed
7 cups peeled, cored and sliced apples (preferably Cortlands or Granny Smiths)
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons milk
Sprinkling of sugar for top
Combine flour and salt. Cut in

Following the manufacturer's directions, cook chicken in a pressure cooker 12 minutes, or until done. Drain well in a colander.

Mix egg, milk, 3 tablespoons of the melted shortening, flour, salt and sugar. When all ingredients are well blended, dip pieces of chicken into this batter.

Meanwhile, heat remaining melted shortening in a deep, heavy skillet. Fat should be about 2 inches deep. When fat is 300 degrees, add chicken pieces. If fat is the right temperature, chicken will take 5 minutes or less to fry on each side. (Remember, it is already fully cooked in the middle.)

Pat chicken on paper towels and serve immediately. Serves three or four.

Longest-tape contest winner used almost 1,300 coupons

By Morfin Sloane
United Feature Syndicate

In my last column, I announced that the winner of the Longest Tape Contest was Cindy Dorgan of Eaton, Ind. The coupon deductions on her register tape measured 18 feet 3 inches and represented savings of $1,285.65! It was all done on one shopping trip. And the store where she laid her shopping spree was not offering double-value coupons.

How did Cindy do it?

First, to dispel any lingering doubts that you can accomplish a feat like this using the ordinary cents-off manufacturers' coupons you find in newspapers or magazines, you can't. Cindy used almost 1,300 coupons for this shopping spree, but they were almost all manufacturers' "free product" coupons she obtained from her refunding.

Cindy's secret is that every time she sent in labels and other proofs of purchase in return for a manufacturer's offer of a free product, she saved the free-product coupon for her shopping spree.

Like most avid refunders, Cindy can't depend on her local supermarket as her sole source of refund forms. One of her secrets for getting all of these manufacturers' free-product coupons is refunding conventions. Cindy and a friend go to as many as a dozen a year, often driving hundreds of miles to attend. One of her favorite conventions takes place each year in Indianapolis, where hundreds of refunders from all parts of the country gather for two days of marathon refunding.

Cindy also has the advantage of having friends and relatives saving all their national-brand box tops and labels for her. This multiplies her refunding abilities. Cindy's organizing abilities also helped make her shopping spree an award-winning success. When all the free-product coupons were ready, she made a list of every item she intended to buy on her shopping spree, and Pat Blevins checked off the items he needed to be in advance. So Cindy would not clean out the shelves. More than 12 full cases were waiting at the front of the store when Cindy arrived last Dec. 1.

At 7:30 a.m. Cindy and her husband, Bob, arrived at the Ross store in two cars and a rented U-Haul. Even with many of the items already waiting, it took four or more hours to make all the selections and several more at the checkout counter. The shopping was not over until 4:30 that afternoon. Cindy says that it took another five hours to unload all her purchases and put them away — for a grand total of 14 hours!

Cindy's shopping spree is the culmination of a year of outstanding savings. In 1986, she had a summer shopping spree that included a year of free groceries. In addition, cash refunds added up to $1,029.99, and there were premium offers that brought Cindy and Bob and their sons, Richard and Jeremy, free T-shirts and dozens of other useful gifts worth many hundreds of dollars.

Cindy Dorgan of Eaton, Ind., is the winner of the Longest Tape Contest and the title of "Smartest Supermarket Shopper of 1986," and she will receive a check for $100 to add a final chapter to a wonderful smart-shopping adventure.

Clip out this file and keep it with similar cash-off coupons — beverage refund offers with beverage coupons, for example. Start collecting the needed proofs of purchase while looking for the required forms at the supermarket, in newspapers and magazines, and when trading with friends. Offers may not be available in all areas of the country. Allow 10 weeks to receive each refund.

These offers require refund forms:
BLISTEX/BLISTIK $1 Refund Offer. Send the required refund form and the Universal Product Code symbol from the cartons of two Blistex and/or Blistik, along with the required cash-register receipt with the purchase price circled. Expires May 31, 1987.

BUFFERIN $2.50 Refund Offer. Send the required refund form and the entire carton from Bufferin or Extra Strength Tablet 616, along with the cash-register receipt with the purchase price circled. Expires June 30, 1987.

COMTRES up to $3 Refund Offer. Receive the purchase price refund (up to $3). Send the required refund form and the Universal Product Code (bar code on the bottom panel) from one package of Comtrel Multi-Symptom Cold Reliever (any size except trial size), along with the labels for her. This multiplies her refunding abilities. Cindy's organizing abilities also helped make her shopping spree an award-winning success. Cindy's shopping spree is the culmination of a year of outstanding savings. In 1986, she had a summer shopping spree that included a year of free groceries. In addition, cash refunds added up to $1,029.99, and there were premium offers that brought Cindy and Bob and their sons, Richard and Jeremy, free T-shirts and dozens of other useful gifts worth many hundreds of dollars.

Cindy Dorgan of Eaton, Ind., is the winner of the Longest Tape Contest and the title of "Smartest Supermarket Shopper of 1986," and she will receive a check for $100 to add a final chapter to a wonderful smart-shopping adventure.

4-serving-size package reduced calorie instant vanilla pudding mix
1 cup skim milk
8-ounce carton low-fat vanilla, peach, or lemon yogurt

Cherry glazed ham
1 boneless fully cooked 4-pound smoked ham half
1 can (12 ounces) pineapple juice
1 recipe cherry glaze (see recipe below)

Place ham fat side down in a 3-quart casserole. Pour pineapple juice over the ham. Cover and microwave at full power for 5 minutes. Turn ham fat side up. Cover and microwave at 50 percent (medium-low) for 30 minutes. Remove ham from microwave and cap front edge with foil, secured with wooden picks. Also shield any overcooked areas that may appear later in cooking. Give the dish a half turn, cover and microwave at 50 percent (medium-low) for approximately 40 minutes, or until meat thermometer inserted in the center of the ham registers 180 degrees F. Prepare glaze. When ham is done, drain liquid from casserole, and garnish with pineapple rings, if desired. Spread glaze over the ham. Cover and microwave at 50 percent (medium-low) for 5 minutes. Remove from microwave and let ham stand fully covered in aluminum foil for a minimum of 10 minutes before slicing. Yields 8 servings.

Escalote soup
Cherry glazed baked ham
Fresh peas with arcticcheres
Pineapple cheese salad
Assorted rolls
Cheesecake topped with fresh strawberries

Ham bakes beautifully in the microwave, but ham weighing more than 5 pounds tends to dry out and becomes too brown before it is heated through. If you are serving a large number of people, and are using a ham weighing more than 5 pounds, we suggest that you cook the ham by traditional methods, and use your microwave for cooking of other parts of the meal.

A uniformly shaped pre-cooked ham of the semi-boneless type is the best choice for microwaving. It will need to be shielded along the front edge, and also the sides to prevent over-browning. Shielding may also be necessary for any places along the top of the ham that cook quickly. Small strips of aluminum foil secured in place with wooden toothpicks will prevent over-browning and drying. Watch the ham closely during the last half of the cooking time and shield as necessary.

Ham is available in many forms. Canned and boneless rolled hams are fully cooked and ready to eat, although their flavor improves with heating. These hams should be heated to an internal temperature of 130 degrees F. Bone-in hams may be labeled either fully cooked or cook before eating. If the ham is not labeled, it is probably of the cook-before-eating variety, and should be cooked to an internal temperature of 160 degrees F. Once the ham has cooked to the correct internal temperature, it should be removed from the microwave and covered with a tent of aluminum foil. The ham should be allowed to stand, covered in the tent, for at least 10 minutes. The internal temperature will continue to rise 15 to 20 degrees during standing time.

The standing time for the ham will be an important factor in meal management. Ham will stay hot and at serving temperature for 40 minutes after removing it from the microwave. If it is completely and lightly covered with foil, quick-cooking vegetables and other dishes can be cooked during this standing time, or dishes prepared ahead of time can be brought quickly to serving temperature. Rolls can be heated just before serving.

Peas and arcticcheres
2 packages (9 ounces each) frozen arcticcheres hearts
1/2 cup butter
3 tablespoons chopped onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
dash of pepper
3 cups fresh peas, shelled, or 2 packages (10 1/2 ounces each) frozen green peas

Arcticcheres packages in oven. Microwave at high 4 1/2 to 7 minutes, or until packages are clean. Microwave butter and onion at high 2 to 3 1/2 minutes, or until onion is tender. Add salt and pepper. Stir in arcticcheres hearts, tossing to coat. Set aside.

Place peas in a 1 1/2-quart casserole. Microwave, covered, at high for 6 to 9 minutes, or until tender. Drain. Stir in arcticcheres. Microwave, covered at high 2 to 4 minutes, or until heated through.

Herb buttered potatoes
3 pounds (about 20) tiny new potatoes
5 cups hot water
5 tablespoons butter
1/2 teaspoon fresh basil

Escalote soup
3 cans (10 1/2 ounces each) condensed chicken broth

Whalers find themselves on the edge

By Jim Tierney
Herold Sports Writer

HARTFORD — The mood of the Hartford Whalers' postgame locker room genuinely reflected the story of their recent first-round playoff loss against the Quebec Nordiques and, moreover, their best season on record since joining the NHL eight years ago.

After suffering a heart-breaking 7-5 loss to Quebec Tuesday night in Game 5 of the Adams Division semifinals, Hartford realizes that the Nordiques, who now lead the series, 3-2, can prematurely vanquish any visions of Lord Stanley and his famed Cup traveling to Hartford. The two combatants will square off Thursday night for Game 6 in Quebec — a locale the Whalers have not won in this season.

Quebec, which utilized John Ogronick's three-goal hat trick and in the process scored five power-play goals, has thoroughly outplayed Hartford at Le Colisee during the playoffs. After the Whalers overcame a two-goal deficit in the third period to tie the score, 5-5, the Hartford faithful along with the coaching staff thought the game was in its hands. Just as the crowd was settling in for an apparent overtime session, Whaler defenseman Dana Murzyn attempted to clear the puck and ended up hitting teammate John Anderson's foot. The puck bounced off Anderson to the Nordiques for a 4-2 break and Paul Gillis fed Ogronick, who knocked the puck past a poorly positioned Mike Lut and for the game-winner with 1:07 left to play.

"It was a very tough loss for us to accept after coming back from a two-goal deficit," Whaler Coach Jack Evans said. "I thought we'd win the game when we came back to make it 5-5. Then that bounce went against us when Dana tried to clear it (the puck) and it hit Anderson in the leg and popped out. That was the ballgame."

The Whaler fans had expected their team to advance through the first couple of rounds, but now Hartford's greatest season capped off by its first divisional title since joining the NHL, could be lost in the embers of Quebec City on Thursday night.

"It's frustrating," Whaler center Ray Ferraro said. "But the thing is it's not over. We've got one strong effort for Quebec City. If we win, we go to Game 7. If we lose, we play golf. I don't want the summer of not making it past this round."

As has been the scenario in each of the first five games, Quebec got on the board first when Robert Picard scored a power-play goal at 7:17 of the first period. Whaler captain Ron Francis countered to tie the score, 1-1. Defenseman Mike McEwen, playing in his first game in the series, blasted home a 55-foot slap shot for a power-play goal and a 2-1 Hartford lead. Jeff Brown tied the game on Quebec's second power-play goal. Ferraro gave the Whalers a 3-2 lead after the first period on a screeching 25-foot slap shot which came out from the net so quickly, it appeared to have hit off

Ogronick scored the lone goal of the second period on the power-play to even the contest at 3-all. Kevin Dineen, who has been held off the net by a masterful plan on Quebec's part, saw his disappointment harden into frustration as he was sent off with Ferraro at 2:27 of the third period. Dineen had checked Peter Stastny as Stastny was making his way to the net. "We're going up there with the intention of winning."

For the Whalers their worst nightmare could become reality Thursday night in Quebec.

WHALES NOTES — If there is a Game 7, it will be at the Civic Center on Saturday night at 7:30.

Hartford's Kevin Dineen (11) tries to get a shot on net as Quebec's Robert Picard (24) defends. Dineen was held off the net.

Referee Don Koharski points at Quebec goalie Mario Gosselin after hitting him with a slashing stick in the second period of Tuesday's game at the Civic Center. The Nordiques won, 7-5, to take a 3-2 lead in the Adams Division semifinal series.

Ulf Samuelsson sat out last night due to a second game misconduct acquired in Game 4 in Sunday. Scott Kleinendorst, Shane Curcio, Gord Shevren, Wayne Babych, and Dave Semenko were the other Whaler scratches. The Whalers and Nordiques set a new playoff record for penalties (179) in a series.

Penalty-box occupancy is not helping the Whalers

HARTFORD — For being pacifists, the Hartford Whalers are sure racking up the penalty minutes in the playoffs.

And that fact has put the Adams Division regular season champs on the brink of elimination in the 1987 National Hockey League Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Whalers fell behind in games, 3 to 2, to the hungry Quebec Nordiques, 7-5, Tuesday night at the Civic Center and the culprits were the specialty teams — the power-play unit and the penalty killers. The Whalers were a miserable 1-for-9 on the power play, bringing their five-game total against Quebec to four goals in 30 attempts, hardly ever shattering.

Quebec on the other hand was a stellar 5-for-9 against the Whalers Tuesday with John Ogronick scoring two of his three goals with the Nordiques on the power-play. Oddy, Ogronick's excuse-me goal that won it with 1:07 left was even strength.

The Whalers began the playoffs as the least penalized club in the NHL, averaging 18.7 minutes per game. Going into Tuesday's affair, the Whalers were the most penalized playoff club with an average of 66 minutes per game. They trimmed that average by one-third, netting 22.

Those were 22 penalty minutes the Whalers couldn't afford.

The two clubs are two minutes away (58) from equaling the NHL playoff mark of penalty minutes in a series. It's far from what Whaler fans would've expected.

"We have to cease getting penalties that put us in trouble," said troubled Whaler Coach Jack Evans, who in one day has to find the answer the Whalers haven't been able to solve all year — beating the Nordiques at Quebec Colisee in Quebec City, including the playoffs, the Whalers are 0-5-1 on Nordique ice. That doesn't bode well for a seventh game back at the Civic Center Saturday night.

Evans sees the Whalers taking "careless penalties." Two in a row, both at 2:27 of the third period, cost the Whalers two goals. Frustrated Kevin Dineen, the Whalers' leading scorer during the regular season with 40 goals and once again held pointless by the Nordiques in Game 5, and Ray Ferraro, who was in the penalty box checking Quebec power-play goal, were assessed cross-checking and slashing minors for taking down Whaler nemesis Michel Goulet.

The Nordiques turned the two-man advantage into goals from Ogronick and Goulet in a 38-second span. That made it 5-3 at the 4:08 mark. "We're getting a lesson on what it takes to win in a playoff situation," Evans said. "They're letting their emotions run away with themselves. That's called growing pains."

The Whalers, with their incessant penalties, are now owners of two of the NHL's longest penalty minutes in '87. The first goal — again — Tuesday night could be classified as soft. Lut didn't have a good night. And when he's not on the Whalers' don't get a vintage Lut performance, and somehow learn how to win in Quebec. Their season is going to be over Thursday night.

Oilers' firepower is more than enough to oust L.A.

By Ken Rappoport
The Associated Press

It wasn't Wayne Gretzky's night. But, then again, it didn't have to be. Although their star performer was virtually taken out of the play by a specially-designed defense, the Edmonton Oilers still had more than enough firepower Tuesday night to knock the Los Angeles Kings out of the NHL playoffs.

"When you play at a high pace, as we did, the intensity starts to wear down and when it does the players with more talent will surface."

Kings Coach Mike Murphy said that still held a 3-2 lead in that best-of-seven semifinal.

Elsewhere, it was the New York Islanders' 4-1 victory over the Philadelphia 3, New York Rangers 1 in the Patrick Division; Quebec 7, Hartford 5 in the Adams; and the Winnipeg Jets-Calgary Flames series. The Jets were beaten 4-3 by the Flames on Tuesday night, but still held a 3-2 lead in that best-of-seven semifinal.

Nipper, Sox have formula that's escaping the Rangers

By Dave O'Hara
The Associated Press

BOSTON — Al Nipper of the Boston Red Sox still is looking for his first major league shutout.

The Texas Rangers are just looking for a winning formula over the second week of the 1987 American League season.

Nipper came within five outs of the elusive shutout Tuesday before settling for the victory in the Red Sox' 4-1 decision over the Rangers.

Nipper's flirtation with his first shutout in 79 starts with the Red Sox ended with Pete Incaviglia's home run with one out in the eighth inning.

"I was thinking about all the way when I went out there for the eighth inning, but it wasn't to be," Nipper said. "I can't worry about shutouts, though. Winning the game is the most important. It's the only thing that matters."

The Rangers know only too well what Nipper means. They managed nine hits, including the homer and three doubles, and collected four walks, two from reliever Calvin Schiraldi in the ninth. However, they left 11 runners on base in dropping to 1-4 with their fifth loss in a row.

"Our emotion and competitiveness have been there, we're just lacking a little bit of killer instinct," Texas Manager Bobby Valentine said. "I think our guys can put things in the right perspective."

We've got a long season ahead. There's a lot of baseball to play yet. We'll be all right."

Nipper, whose last complete game victory at Fenway Park was in an 11-1 romp over Toronto on Sept. 18, 1985, threw 142 pitches in eight innings before turning over the job to Schiraldi, who struggled through the ninth for his first save.

"I didn't think I threw that many pitches and I was surprised by the manager (John McNamara) told me after the eighth," Nipper said. "I had a good fast ball, slider and screwball today, but the curve may have been my best pitch. It got me out of a couple of jams."

Nipper retired his last batter, designated hitter Don Baylor, who had a single, moving him to within 13 hits of his goal of 2,000 for his career.

"I can't think about it, but getting 2,000 hits means a lot to me," he said. "Last year I was getting 300 home runs. I made it. This year it's getting 2,000. Every year it's something different."

The Red Sox, 3-4, wind up their first home stand of the season today, sending southpaw Bruce Hurst to the mound. Hurst, a two-hit shutout victor over Toronto last Friday, was due to be opposed by the Rangers' Charlie Gough, a veteran knuckleballer with a 0-1 record.

Mets feeling fine after win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — New York Mets Manager Dave Johnson and pitcher Ron Darling have had their differences in the past, but everything was fine between the two on Tuesday night.

Darling, 1-0, allowed eight hits over the first five innings and made up for them by striking out three in the sixth. Johnson followed with his 48th career home run to give the Phillies a 5-3 lead.

"I thought I only managed to had pitches tonight," to Hayes and Schmidt," Darling said. "Fortunately I was able to stay in the game and make up for them. Luckily, the team picked me up."

The Mets won the game in the ninth off Steve Bedrosian, 1-1.

Pinch-hitter Len Dykstra opened with a walk and stole second while pinch-hitter Lee Mazzilli was striking out on a fly to left.

"I wasn't looking over my shoulder in the eighth inning," Darling said. "I'm usually the last person to know that I'm coming out."

The Phillies trailed 3-1 going into the fifth inning, but Von Hayes hit a two-run double and Mike Schmidt followed with his 48th career home run to give the Phillies a 5-3 lead.

Dodgers showing some life

By Bill Barnard
The Associated Press

Pedro Guerrero's back, the Los Angeles relievers are back and so are the Dodgers.

Guerrero was out of the starting lineup for four games as Los Angeles lost its first five, hit a pair of two-out RBI singles and included the game-winner in the 12th inning, as the Dodgers rallied for a 3-2 victory over the Houston Astros on Tuesday night.

"We needed this game," Guerrero said. "It was important for us, especially with Mike Scott pitching (tonight)."

It was the fourth consecutive victory for the Dodgers after their 0-4 start, which saw their relief pitchers falter.

But in two victories over Houston, Brian Holter allowed only one run in five innings on Monday night and the Dodgers' relief corps shut out the Astros for the final seven innings on Tuesday, including the last two by Tom Niedenfuer, 1-0.

San Francisco extended the margin to 3-0 in the third after starting pitcher Mark Davis missed his first major-league home run by inches. He settled for a triple off the left-center field wall and scored on Chili Davis' groundout.

Expos 9, Cardinals 4

Montreal became the last major-league team to win its first game of the season as Jeff Reed drove in four runs and Jay Tibbs pitched eight shutout innings against St. Louis.

Reed had a three-run double in the first inning and an RBI single in the fifth, and Tim Lincecum added three RBI with a sacrifice fly and a two-run single for the Expos.

Eric Davis and Kal Daniels both homered as Cincinnati improved its record to 6-1 by beating Atlanta on Tuesday night.

Daniels had a leadoff homer in the sixth inning that broke a 3-1 tie, and three Cincinnati pitchers held the Braves to five hits. Ted Power, 1-0, allowed five hits in six innings. Ron Robinson pitched two hitless innings and John Franco got the last three outs for the Reds.

Davis, hitting nearly 500, hit a three-run homer after David Oliver, who had a home run in the first inning, and Terry Francona to open the game.

Yankees find answer in playing Cleveland

By Ben Walker
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The New York Yankees, who have been scoring plenty of runs but giving up almost as many, found a way around the problem. They played the Cleveland Indians.

Joel Skinner hit a tiebreaking grand slam in the fifth inning against reliever Steve Carlton on Tuesday night and the Yankees went on to beat the pitching-poor Indians 10-6.

Mantle out of hospital

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Following the release of baseball legend Mickey Mantle from a hospital, a doctor said the Hall-of-Famer's heart appeared normal and that chest pains he suffered were probably caused by his busy schedule.

Mantle, 56, was released in good condition Tuesday from Irving Community Hospital after treatment in the hospital's intermediate coronary care unit, officials said.

Well, it hasn't been very pretty. Manager Pat Corrales said the Yankees' fifth straight loss left them at 1-7. The Yankees, who have scored 50 runs and yielded 47, are 5-3.

Rickey Henderson started the pounding early, opening the Yankees' first with a home run against Phil Niekro. Henderson, who set an American League record with nine leadoff homers last season, later tripled and singled and Claudio Washington had a pair of RBI singles among New York's 11 hits off five pitchers.

"The biggest hit was Skinner's first career slam."

With the score 3-3 and two outs in the fifth, Carlton walked Dave Winfield and Mike Pagliarulo doubled. Carlton, 0-1, then intentionally walked Willie Randolph, bringing up Skinner.

"Who would you rather pitch to, Randolph or Skinner?" Corrales said.

Mr. Mantle has had no previous history of heart problems. He does have evidence of bronchitis and has had physical symptoms suggesting stress syndrome — chest pains, shortness of breath and dizziness," said Dr. Michael Rothkopf.

He had released a brief statement saying that he was tired but feeling well. He was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 1974.

Jackson puts up number as Royals rout Detroit

By The Associated Press

Seven. A football number. Bo Jackson made it a baseball number.

The 1985 Heisman Trophy winner had a three-run homer and a grand slam Tuesday night as the Kansas City Royals beat the Detroit Tigers 10-1 and the former Auburn running back led his team over the American League lead with 13 runs batted in and improved his batting average to .344.

Touchdowns now seem a distant memory, replaced by long home runs.

"Everybody doubted Bo but Bo," said Jackson, who has 14 hits in seven games. "I like to make a bar out of people who doubt me. When I set my mind to do something, 99 and three-quarters percent of the time I do it. I continue to believe in myself."

He got it done, just ask Detroit starter Dan Petry, who struck out Jackson three times in a spring training game.

"I knew he was going to come with his breaking pitches because that's what he struck me out on three times in spring training," Jackson said.

Petry, 0-1, knew Jackson would be looking for bled pitches.

"The whole philosophy is you do that until he's proven he can hit it," Petry said. "After the first two at-bats, he proved to me he can hit it. Now it's just a matter of me adjusting more."

In other AL games Tuesday night, Boston beat Texas 4-1; New York defeated Cleveland 10-6; Milwaukee remained undefeated with a 4-0 decision over Baltimore; Toronto edged Chicago 4-3 in 13 innings; Minnesota beat Oakland 9-8; and Seattle defeated California 6-4.

Jackson, the No. 1 overall pick by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in the 1986 NFL draft, now leads the Royals in hits, runs, home runs, RBIs and average.

Kevin Seitzer, the fourth-to-onto pitcher, threw one perfect inning for his first decision of the year.

Mark Eichhorn, the fourth-to-onto pitcher, threw one perfect inning for his first decision of the year.

Chicago starter Floyd Bannister had scattered five hits and allowed only one run in five innings for his eighth.

Twins 9, Athletics 8

Minnesota failed to hit a home run in a game for the first time this season but the Twins managed 13 hits and held on after taking a 7-0 lead.

Reed had a three-run double in the first inning and an RBI single in the fifth, and Tim Lincecum added three RBI with a sacrifice fly and a two-run single for the Expos.

Eric Davis and Kal Daniels both homered as Cincinnati improved its record to 6-1 by beating Atlanta on Tuesday night.

Daniels had a leadoff homer in the sixth inning that broke a 3-1 tie, and three Cincinnati pitchers held the Braves to five hits. Ted Power, 1-0, allowed five hits in six innings. Ron Robinson pitched two hitless innings and John Franco got the last three outs for the Reds.

Davis, hitting nearly 500, hit a three-run homer after David Oliver, who had a home run in the first inning, and Terry Francona to open the game.

Paul Molitor, Robin Yount, Jim Gantner, Rob Deer and Greg Brock came off Baltimore starter Ken Dixon, 1-1.

Kal Ripken's hit his third home run of the season and Ray Knight struck out two in five innings for his third game for the Orioles.

Jays 4, White Sox 3

Rich Leach's single through the infield in the 13th inning gave the Jays the come-from-behind victory. Leach, who had entered the game

BUSINESS

Stock orders should be filled

QUESTION: I placed a limit order, good till canceled, with a brokerage firm to buy 500 shares of common stock in a utility company at 17 1/2 — $14.875 a share. A few days later, the New York Stock Exchange tables in two newspapers listed that stock at low as 16 1/4 — $16.75 a share.

The brokerage did not buy the 500 shares for me. They claim the 16 1/4 quote might have been on some exchange other than the New York Stock Exchange. Do you agree with their contention?

ANSWER: It's very possible that the stock did not trade at 16 1/4, or even at 16 1/2, on the New York Stock Exchange but did trade at those prices elsewhere. Nonetheless, the brokerage firm should have bought the stock for you.

New York Stock Exchange news-papers and other newspapers carry "consolidated" reports of trades in NYSE-listed stocks on that exchange. Five regional exchanges around the country and in the over-the-counter market. Many stocks are "dualy listed" on the NYSE and regional exchanges. Brokerage firms are required to use the Intermarket Trading System (ITS) electronic communications network to execute customers' orders in daily listed stocks at the best prices available in any of the ITS-linked markets.

When the stock you wanted to buy traded at low as 16 1/4, that price was reported on the up-to-the-minute nationwide Composite Quotation System. There's no good reason the brokerage couldn't have purchased 500 shares for you, at no more than 16 1/4.

QUESTION: About a month ago, I gave a discount brokerage firm an order to sell 20 shares of preferred stock at 89 1/2 — $96.50 a share. Since then, according to newspaper stock tables, that stock has traded higher than 96 1/2 on at least three occasions.

When I telephoned and asked why my share order had not been sold, I was told the brokerage wanted to sell the stock just as much as I do; the stock is thinly traded; the price quotations I saw in the paper may have been wrong.

Can you explain this? Is 10 shares still a round lot in preferred stock?

ANSWER: Ten shares is a round lot "unit of trading" in some preferred stocks, including the one named in your letter. Those are thinly traded stocks in which there is not much activity. Most stocks, of course, trade in 100-share round lots.

There's little doubt that the brokerage wanted to make the sale so that it can earn a commission. That's its reason for being in business.

And, remembering the slogan of padded brassiere manufacturers (No body's perfect) you must admit that newspapers occasionally make mistakes. However, inaccuracies in stock tables are rare. If that brokerage firm expects you to believe papers carried incorrect price quotations on the same stock at least three times, then you'll be asked to believe in the tooth fairy.

QUESTION: You say there is no such thing as a "stop loss order" and that the correct term is "stop order." I have seen the phrase "stop loss order" printed many times and I recently heard a financial adviser on radio say "Stop loss orders."

What is your reaction to that?

ANSWER: Some people say "stop loss orders," because they don't know any better. Others do it out of habit.

Still others — especially some less-than-forthright members of the brokerage fraternity — use that phrase to give the mistaken impression that it guarantees the sale of stock at a predetermined price and protects the customer against any possible loss.

It does no such thing. A stop limit order, on the other hand, sets a price but does not provide assurance that the stock will be sold or bought at the limit price. So there's no guarantee against loss with a stop limit order, either.

Stocks fall in busy day

NEW YORK (AP) — Continuing inflation worries and soaring interest rates have prompted another wave of selling on Wall Street, pushing prices lower in the market's second-busiest day ever.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 34.20 points to 2,329.58 on Tuesday, bringing its losses this week to more than 80 points.

About 266.5 million shares changed hands on the New York Stock Exchange in a session surpassed only by the 302.39 million-share day Jan. 23.

Interest rates in the bond market have risen to their highest levels in more than a year during the past two weeks, depressing stock prices. Rates have risen mainly because of the sharp fall of the dollar against foreign currencies, which many investors believe will mean higher inflation.

The dollar fell again on Tuesday. Separately, the Commerce Department announced the U.S. trade deficit in February rose to $15.1 billion from $12.3 billion in January, a bigger gap than expected by many analysts.

Because the Reagan administration has been relying on a weaker dollar to help ease the trade deficit, stock and bond traders speculate the weak trade report could signal further dollar declines.
