For relatives of missing, the wait is painful, long

By George Esper
The Associated Press

BRIDGEPORT — Just before midnight, a young man rushed into the high school gymnasium, sobbing loudly, with the dreaded message.

"Oh dear God. Oh dear God. Oh dear God," she chanted softly over and over. "I am praying. I want him to know we're waiting for him."

There were tears in his eyes. "He's gone! They found him!" he cried out to relatives waiting for some word of the missing workers at the unfinished L'Ambiance Plaza housing project that collapsed Thursday.

William and Anthony Rinaldi were bachelors and had lived with their mother and cared for her until she died several years ago. A third brother, David, 68, died a year ago in April.

Mike Rinaldi, 29, a member of Operating Engineers Local 478, kept a lookout in frustration for his cousin Rocco Guerrero. "We're so goddamned unorganized," he said of the rescue operation.

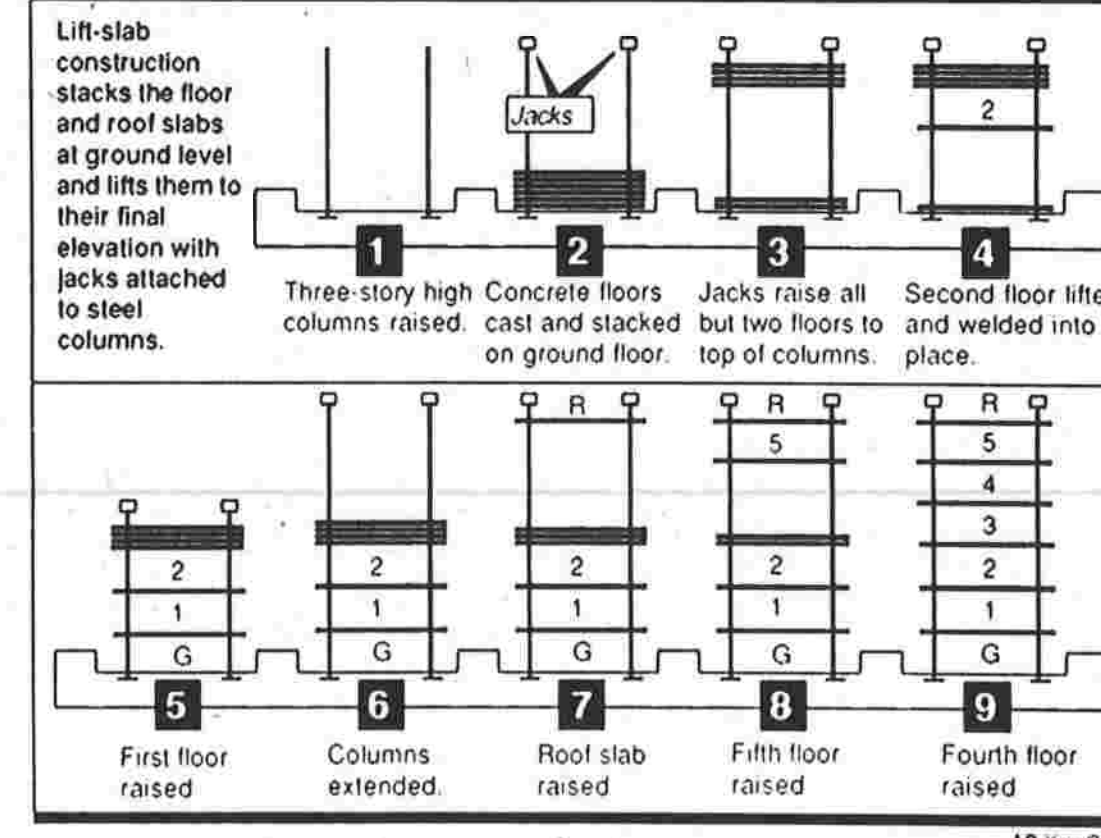

After learning that her husband was dead, the grieving wife of a construction worker killed in the collapse of a Bridgeport building is escorted from the scene by family members.

Experts say building method tricky, but not terribly risky

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — The "lift-slab" construction method used in the 13-story apartment complex that collapsed is no more dangerous than any other, but requires extreme structural stability in the early stages, experts say.

OPINION

Educators stalling on education

The Manchester school system, in its infinite wisdom, has decided to take its time reviewing a frankly worded booklet about AIDS before making any decision to use it in the schools.

The booklet was issued this week by the state Department of Education. It explains how the deadly virus is contracted and how it is spread, in language that a high school student can understand. It urges abstention from sexual intercourse and drugs as the best way to prevent AIDS.

Most Manchester educators haven't seen the booklet, but they're already declaring that it must be reviewed carefully before it can be introduced into the school system.

It's likely that the booklet will not be used in the schools until mid-fall, at the earliest. When 15,000 people have already died from the disease and an estimated 1.5 million are carrying the virus, one must wonder whether such caution is warranted. Most Manchester parents would probably prefer that their children be given the hard facts as soon as possible.

Why can't parts of the booklet be made available for distribution to Manchester parents, who can then discuss the materials with their children? Why can't the booklet be available in school nurses' offices? It is a fact today that large numbers of high school students are sexually active. The sooner they have access to this kind of information, the more likely it is that they'll survive the biggest public health threat of this decade.

Democracy in action

In Bolton, 20 people showed up at a town meeting this week to approve $58,000 worth of various public works projects. In Manchester's Eighth Utilities District, about 15 people chose to speak at a public hearing about the district's $1.2 million budget.

Democracy in action? Or apathy in action?

"I LIKED Gary Hart until he started railing against personal greed."

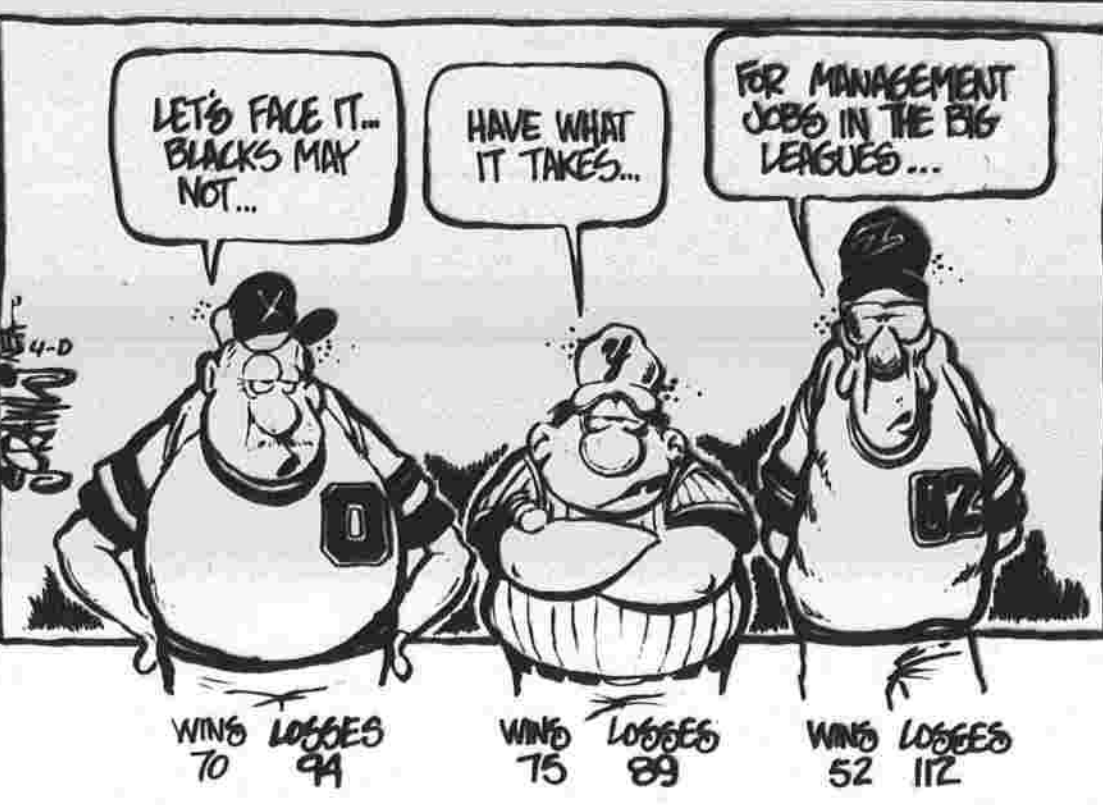

A new attempt to write social injustice

The XX's have it over the XY's according to the newest Supreme Court decision on affirmative action. Crudely put, the court has told the country's employers they may discriminate in hiring and promotion against white males in favor of people of other flavors. Indeed, an employer may now lawfully hire someone who, on paper at least, is less qualified than a white male applicant for the position.

The decision has people tossing confetti around the offices of liberal civil rights organizations, but the cheering is premature. Only the thoughtless who mistakenly believe a sweeping court decree has vast social consequences can believe that the decision is going to result in any significant change in the economic status of women. This is not the first decision of this sort the courts have handed down. We've been getting them for a better part of a generation and the hard numbers show that women make about 85 cents for every dollar men make, which is approximately the same ratio it was 30 years ago.

AS OFTEN AS NOT, court decisions bearing on the broadest questions of social and economic policy are a snare and delusion. They may make the partisans on one side or another feel good or bad, but they don't change much. This decision, permitting companies to discriminate in favor of women, isn't going to change much either because most companies are run by men who don't want to discriminate against other men and aren't going to do it.

There is one important exception to that observation. Companies will discriminate against men when they believe that they can bring women

Budget hearing had competition

To the Editor:

The administration deserves some credit for the small turnout for the budget hearing by scheduling the hearing for the same evening as the regularly scheduled meeting of Alfred Steffert's PZC. Most taxpayers know their priority and ability to influence change favors the PZC over a budget hearing. In any case, public hearings should not be held in competition with each other.

The budget information I received at the hearing is just too summary to make an informed judgment on its merits. As in the past, we are asked to respond to the town manager's requests for improvements "he feels are vital." There is no opportunity to address overall town needs and priorities. A highest priority, a vital need in Manchester, is the creation of an independent transportation-traffic agency. This authority would regulate traffic-driven road improvements and development patterns. It is needed today while there is still time and land for building an effective road network throughout town.

A first step toward traffic regulation will be the dead-ending of Slater Street to redirect some 3,000 to 4,000 vehicles daily to Buckland Hall access roads north of Interstate 84. The decision is fully resolvable within the town of Manchester. We will subsidize these access roads to the tune of $20 million. The failure of the PZC, the administration and the Board of Directors to limit mail access to roads north of I-84 only will confirm the feeling of an increasing number of voters that our "city of village charm" is being sold down the (development) river.

Columnist unkind, needs prayer, too

To the Editor:

Not only as a minister of the Gospel, but as a fellow human being, I am writing to take issue with the unkind derogatory inferences by columnist Nicholas von Hoffman ("Not the first time," April 10).

While I am cognizant of the fact that this is a syndicated column, it is indeed regrettable that a columnist would stigmatize many of the evangelists by his thoughtless remarks. To say that the president has invited "white trash" front and center in our country — based upon the fall of one TV evangelist — is doing a positive disservice to the work of the kingdom of God. He also has made other remarks which unfortunately will be believed by too many readers. As they have not been apprised of the real truth behind this instance, they will be influenced by this article by a well-known columnist. I think now the best thing Christians can do is not only keep the Bakers in their prayers but also Mr. Von Hoffman.

Democrats would serve community

To the Editor:

For many years Nellie Bolsvert has been in a position of serving the public. During that period she has amassed the sort of experiences that an expanding town such as Andover needs.

Through her experience, Nellie can help Andover to:

- gain free state assistance to help deal with ingrained problems associated with inevitable growth;
- gain better control over the development potential of both commercial and residential properties; and
- gain all available state funds to help the town.

Not only does Nellie have the experience to effect such progress, but she also has the pulse of the community ingrained in her outlook after her years of serving Andover.

Complementing those offerings are the abilities of Kevin Ouellette, who is sharing the Democratic ticket with Nellie. Kevin's training — largely centered in engineering — makes him well qualified to help guide Andover through the wave of growth that has not yet crested. He also has legal and business administration credentials to further equip him for a leadership role in an ever increasingly complex field such as town government.

Between the two candidates, Nellie Bolsvert and Kevin Ouellette, there is offered experience, expertise, and perhaps most important a sincere willingness to serve and lead the community for the best interests of all.

I think now the best thing Christians can do is not only keep the Bakers in their prayers but also Mr. Von Hoffman.

OBVIOUSLY, a flat-broke insurance fund can't operate with that kind of firmness — and this is precisely what hundreds of daredevil S&L managers are counting on. As long as they know the FSILC can't afford to foreclose, they'll continue the dangerously speculative lending and investment practices that brought them to the brink of failure in the first place.

What Wright and his supporters are banking on is that $5 billion will assure that the FSILC is a lame "sheriff." There will be no "High Noon" face-off with the black-hatted S&L wheeler-dealers as long as the enforcer is a toothless tendorfoot.

Gone with the wind

A whole gentle way of life has been swept away by the spread of terrorism in recent years. The once-comfortable life of American diplomats overseas has been replaced by the nagging fear that just being an American will be enough to invite terrorist violence. The new atmosphere is illustrated by a single dry financial statistic: The State Department hired more than 13,000 local guards to protect American diplomats and their families last year, at a cost of $78 million. Department sources say the protection program is certain to expand as the threat of international terrorism continues unabated.

Wright keeps ailing S&Ls in business

WASHINGTON — House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, did his arm-twisting best to keep the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. so broke it can't afford to close down S&Ls in Texas and elsewhere that are for all practical purposes bankrupt.

Wright's intense pressure on his Democratic colleagues succeeded. It was a victory for hundreds of high-flying S&L managements across the country. As long as the FSILC doesn't have the money to shut them down and pay off insured individual deposits up to $100,000, the reckless thrift managers will be able to accept more depositors' money and make still riskier loans in hopes of an economic miracle that will render them solvent again.

The hard reality is that the government insurance fund now contains a little over $1 billion to guarantee nearly $1 trillion in insured S&L deposits. Yet thanks to Wright's high-pressure tactics, Congress is about to pass a mere $5 billion recapitalization of the FSILC.

TREASURY SECRETARY James Baker has been warned by his experts that the billion is a drop in the bucket, hopelessly inadequate to douse the prairie fire of S&L failures that could be ignited by a panic almost anywhere in the system. A more realistic recapitalization figure would be $50 billion, Baker was told. The administration favored a bill much larger than the $5 billion.

Wright, determined to keep his home-state thrifts in business, took unusual steps to see that the House Banking Committee, according to congressional sources, he personally attended closed-door meetings of the committee, and kept day-to-day track of the recapitalization bill.

Wright's arm-twisting was so severe that he gave some insiders the impression that he would work to unseat the committee chairman, Fernand St. Germain, D-R.I., if a bigger bailout figure were approved.

We've been reporting for nearly two years that the FSILC was essentially insolvent and would need a congressional rescue effort to make good on its deposit-insurance guarantees. Earlier this year, congressional auditors with the General Accounting Office confirmed this, and urged a quick transfusion of money to revive the moribund insurance fund.

THE LATEST AUDITS of the FSILC show that it is facing a drain of $8 billion from failed and failing S&Ls in the immediate future. This would leave an insurance fund at least $8 billion in the red. Over a five-year period, the losses could multiply fivefold, the auditors warned.

Insiders told our associate Michael Binstein that the entire S&L industry is a tinderbox that could be ignited by the slightest spark of bad news or rumor. And a devastating run on one thrift could spread quickly to others — as the panics in Ohio and Maryland demonstrated.

The best way to prevent such a wide-ranging panic would be to have a healthy FSILC that could step in quickly and decisively, closing a bankrupt S&L and paying off its depositors. This would calm depositors' jitters and quell the run on deposits before they brought down the whole system.

OBVIOUSLY, a flat-broke insurance fund can't operate with that kind of firmness — and this is precisely what hundreds of daredevil S&L managers are counting on. As long as they know the FSILC can't afford to foreclose, they'll continue the dangerously speculative lending and investment practices that brought them to the brink of failure in the first place.

U.S./World in Brief

Personal income makes weak gain

WASHINGTON — Personal incomes rose 0.3 percent in March, the weakest gain in four months, while consumer spending advanced 0.3 percent, the largest increase reported today. The Commerce Department said the income gain, the weakest since a similar 0.2 percent rise last November, followed a 1.3 percent increase in February. However, the department said part of the decline came from a drop in farm subsidy payments to farmers.

Personal consumption spending, which includes virtually everything except interest payments on debt, had risen a sharp 2.4 percent in February, in part a rebound from a 2.0 percent January decline.

Disident leaves Soviet Union

MOSCOW — Dissident psychiatrist Anatoly Koryagin left the Soviet Union today, two months after being freed from a labor camp. He said he was sad to go but felt he must because of "what has happened to me and my family."

The 48-year-old Koryagin, who was sentenced to a labor camp in 1981 for accusing authorities of sending some dissidents to mental institutions, cleared customs at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport with his family and boarded a flight to Zurich, Switzerland.

The flight departed on schedule at 4:45 p.m. local time, Swiss Air reported.

Koryagin arrived at the airport at midafternoon in a Swiss Embassy car along with his wife, three sons and his elderly mother.

Speaking briefly to reporters before going through customs, Koryagin denied he was being forced to leave the Soviet Union.

Sri Lanka vows to eliminate Tamils

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — The Sinhalese-led government vowed today to wipe out Tamil separatists blamed for massacring more than 230 people during the past week.

Ministers at an emergency session of Parliament on Thursday said air force planes bombed Tamil guerrilla outposts in the north for the second straight day. They put the two-day death toll from the air raids at about 100.

"We have decided to wipe them out," said Lord Minister Gamini Dissanayake. "It may cost many lives, but it cannot be avoided."

The Tamil rebels, who have been fighting since 1983 for independence in Sri Lanka's north and east, "have decided to kill people like mosquitoes," Dissanayake said.

Sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said the air force used helicopter gunships and Italian-made Marchetti warplanes in the attacks.

Stanford out as Reagan library site

STANFORD, Calif. — A foundation raising $100 million for a Ronald Reagan presidential library and policy center has dropped plans to build at Stanford University after four years of wrangling with the faculty.

The foundation said Thursday it will seek a new site in Southern California.

Stanford's trustees, acting on a recommendation by the faculty senate, had voted against the plan in 1984 because the center would have been controlled by the Hoover Institution, a semi-independent campus think tank.

Last month, 12 former chairmen of the faculty senate said the library should be scaled down or moved farther from the center of campus. The proposed 20-acre site was approved by Reagan two years ago.

The trustees had been scheduled to take up the issue on May 12.

Flight attendants want smoking ban

WASHINGTON — The largest flight attendants union is urging Congress to ban smoking aboard jetliners, saying it is concerned about the health effects of drifting tobacco smoke on airline cabin crews.

The union wrote letters of support this week to Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, as well as to Reps. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., and Robert Torricelli, D-N.J., all of whom have introduced airline smoking ban legislation.

Energy costs help boost inflation rate

WASHINGTON — Moderately higher energy prices more than offset declining food costs as consumer prices posted a 0.4 percent gain in March, the government said today.

Gasoline prices rose 2.3 percent, but that was down sharply from February's 6.6 percent jump. Food prices fell 0.1 percent after a 0.3 percent gain in the previous month.

The rise in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index matched the overall 0.4 percent February increase and amounted to an annual price increase of 5.1 percent.

For the first three months of 1987, consumer prices have risen at an annual rate of 5.2 percent. That compares to the scant 1.1 percent increase for all of 1986, a rate paced by last year's collapse of world oil prices.

Private economists are generally predicting inflation of 4 percent to 5 percent for all of 1987, with higher import prices from the dollar's rise, which in Tokyo fell today below 140 yen for the first time since World War II, accounting for much of the upward pressure.

Clothing prices last month rose 1.7 percent, the steepest gain in nearly 15 years. Analysts said the introduction of more expensive spring and summer merchandise, particularly women's clothing, was largely responsible.

As for energy, home heating oil prices rose 1.6 percent after a 2.8 percent gain in February. Gasoline prices rose 2.3 percent, but that was down sharply from February's 6.6 percent jump.

The overall price index is not adjusted to remove the effect of predictable, seasonal features — as are the figures in the report reflecting changes from one month to the next.

As for the effect of the dollar, which has plunged nearly 50 percent against the Japanese yen and more than 40 percent against some key European currencies since 1985, analysts note that a weaker dollar makes imports more expensive.

South African court lifts restrictions

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A provincial Supreme Court today overturned extensive restrictions on reporting of unrest and security force actions that President P. W. Botha imposed in December.

Earlier today, three suspected African National Congress guerrillas were killed and four policemen were injured in a shootout in a black neighborhood near Durban, police reported.

The Pietermaritzburg Supreme Court judgment is legally binding in Natal province. According to South African custom, it will be followed in the other three provinces unless another Supreme Court makes a different ruling. The Appellate Court is the final arbiter.

The court did not provide an immediate explanation of its ruling.

But the government was granted the right to file an appeal on Monday, which means the ruling will not take immediate effect.

The challenge to the December regulations came from the United Democratic Front, the largest coalition of anti-apartheid groups, and from the Release Mandela Campaign, formed to urge the freedom of African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, imprisoned since 1964 for sabotage and conspiracy to overthrow the government.

Censorship rules imposed under the state of emergency ban or restrict reporting about unrest, security force actions, treatment of detainees, most forms of peaceful protest and a broad range of statements the government considers subversive.

A police spokesman, who declined to be further identified, said riot police surrounded a house at about 2 a.m. today in Umhlati, 10 miles south the Indian Ocean port of Durban. After police ordered the inhabitants to come out, two women were shot dead.

A man opened fire from the back of his house. He was hit by police gunfire and ran back into the house, the spokesman said.

As the exchange of fire continued, another man came out of the house and was shot dead. Police threw hand grenades into the dwelling and the resulting blast destroyed the house. The spokesman said the bodies of two men were later found inside, along with AK-47 assault rifles.

One of the injured police, all of whom are white, was reported in serious condition with a bullet wound in the head.

The outlawed ANC is the main guerrilla movement seeking to overthrow white control of the government and end apartheid.

By law and custom, apartheid establishes a racially segregated society in which the 24 million blacks have no vote in national affairs. The 5 million whites control the economy and maintain separate districts, schools and health services.

In Johannesburg, blacks began to trickle back to work as a three-day strike of hundreds of thousands of blacks to faller. The strike, enforced by township youths, began Wednesday to protest the eviction of black residents of Soweto who have not paid rent.

Bus and rail service from the township, which had been sharply down over the last two days, was reported running at about 70 percent capacity.

Boesky's help could figure in sentencing

NEW YORK — The judge sentencing former speculator Ivan F. Boesky will weigh the nature of his crimes along with his help in unraveling the insider-trading scandal that has rocked Wall Street, a prosecutor says.

Boesky, 50, pleaded guilty Thursday to a single count of violating securities law and could receive up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine at sentencing Aug. 21 by U.S. District Judge Morris E. Lasker.

The plea was entered in a deal made with prosecutors in November under which he also agreed to pay the Securities and Exchange Commission a record $100 million penalty and cooperate in the government's investigation.

The plea bargain banned him for life from the U.S. securities business.

Boesky's information led to charges against Boyd L. Jefferies, founder of a major stock trading house in Los Angeles; Michael Davidson, formerly Boesky's head trader; and Martin Siegel, a former top investment banker at Kidder, Peabody & Co.

The full nature of Mr. Boesky's criminal involvement will be made known to the judge. That part of the agreement, as well as the full nature of Mr. Boesky's cooperation, said U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani.

"The judge will have to decide how you balance one against the other," he said.

Looking subdued and exhausted, Boesky entered his plea before Lasker in a packed Manhattan courtroom.

The judge asked whether he understood it was in the judge's power to sentence him to the maximum. Boesky said he understood. He was released without bail and left the courthouse without comment through a side door.

Giuliani said the plea would not end Boesky's cooperation with the wide-ranging government investigation, and he might be called to testify at some trial.

Federal investigators were led to Boesky by former Wall Street merger specialist Dennis B. Levine, charged in a separate insider trading case nearly a year ago. Levine was sentenced Feb. 20 to two years in prison and fined $382,000.

Bridge

The dangers of a little learning

By James Jacoby

Declarer had been reading some bridge books about play of the hand. He was particularly intrigued by hold-up plays. So it was a natural thing for him to allow the queen of hearts, played by East, to win the first trick. But when that defender's lead at the second trick was the spade jack, South had a nagging recollection of what the lesson was in the second chapter on holdup plays. As you might imagine, the title of that second chapter was "When Not to Hold Up."

South played the spade queen with a sinking feeling. West won the king and continued the suit. Later, when the diamond finesse was unsuccessful, the defenders took two more spade tricks to set the contract. In this deal the holdup at the first trick just made no sense. By taking the heart ace immediately, declarer can guarantee his contract. If the diamond finesse loses and East has another heart to play, then West started with only a four-card suit and cannot take enough tricks to harm declarer.

There's a lesson here. Don't become so enamored of any special play that you fall into the bad habit of making it any time you have the opportunity. Instead, always consider the deal in its entirety and look for a plan of play that will guarantee you the needed tricks before the opponents can take enough tricks to set you.

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is "Jacoby on Card Games," published by Pharos Books.

More land in the United States is taken up by golf courses than is in the entire state of Rhode Island (1,214 square miles).

Her secret recipe for macaroni dish

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY - Read the recent letter concerning the leftover macaroni salad made with mayonnaise. The reader warned the dish up, and her mayonnaise-hating husband loved it. Everyone has always raved over the macaroni and cheese casserole that I've made for years. I usually never reveal the secret to them unless they insist on the recipe, which includes the addition of 1/4 cup of mayonnaise; it truly enhances the flavor. When I taste other macaroni and cheese dishes without the mayonnaise, it always seems something is missing. The mayonnaise makes a big difference. - GOLDIE

DEAR POLLY - I think I have a cute idea for an outdated cloth calendar. If I have a grandchild born that year, I circle the date in red marking pen. Then, for his or her first birthday, I make a pillow out of the calendar. I double it over and put in a piece of foam for the filler. The child can play with the pillow. Whenever it gets soiled, the mother just puts it in the washer. I have 14 great-grandchildren, and just about everyone has had a pillow. - IRENE

DEAR IRENE - Thanks for a lovely Pointer - and congratulations on a wonderful family! - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - Making tape placed on the bottoms of shoes or boots gives them a better grip. This is especially helpful on new ones that are slippery. - M.H.W.

DEAR POLLY - If you're knitting a sweater that you want worn by both a boy and a girl (such as when he has outgrown it), try this. Make button-holes on each side of the front band. When the sweater is to be worn by the girl, sew buttons over the buttonholes on the left band. When the sweater is to be worn by a boy, move the buttons over to cover the holes in the right side. - JANET

Yogurt cheese, frozen yogurt, yogurt salads, main dishes and bread are just a few of the delicious recipes you'll find in Polly's newsletter "Cooking with Yogurt." Hope fades for 19 trapped workers

After one such eerie silence early today, Gary Riz, who came to help from another site, said, "There's nobody left alive down there. There's just not enough pockets for people to be in. It's just flat like a pancake."

City officials asked for help from Florida, California and Mexico, where authorities have experience dealing with major natural disasters. Joe Grabarz, assistant to Bucci, said today.

The New York City Fire Department also sent a thermal-imaging camera that lets rescuers see the outline of objects emitting heat.

Richard Morales, who lives across the street from the site, said he was walking down the street when the building collapsed. "It was like two planes crashing together," Morales said. "At first, all I could see was smoke and white clouds. And then all we could see was people jumping."

"She saw the people when they were flying down. They waved their hands and look like pigeons. The buildings trembled and people started to scream and wave their hands," said Andy Lopez, translating for his wife, Carmen, who also saw the collapse from across the street.

"We heard the top floor hit the floor below it, and boom, I knew it was coming down," said Joe Murray, a plumber. "It sounded like a bomb went off."

Bonanza is reopening with a new look

For the last few years, Bonanza restaurants across the country have been changing from cafeteria-style steak houses to family restaurants with an expanded menu.

Robert Gardiner, who along with Joe Kilraine owns five Bonanza restaurants in Connecticut including one on Spencer Street in Manchester, has been a part of that change.

On Monday, the Bonanza restaurant in the Shop Rite shopping plaza will reopen after a week of renovation.

Instead of receiving food cafeteria-style at a counter, families will now sit at tables and wait for waitresses to serve them. "Bonanza has done studies and found people like that style,"

Gardiner said. "We don't want to be just a steak house. We want to be a family restaurant."

Customers will still carry their salads, drinks and food back to their tables on a tray. But once main-dish orders are placed at the counter, a waitress will bring meals to the table. In the past, orders were placed at the cash register and served over the counter.

The new style is getting the credit for increased sales at franchise stores across the country.

Bonanza, which has 562 restaurants in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico, announced the style change to its franchise owners about three years ago, Gardiner said.

Since then, about 75 percent of the stores have been remodeled.

Gardiner said, and sales are jumping. During the week of March 22, Bonanza restaurants made $10 million, the highest amount ever in Bonanza's 22-year history.

Gardiner said he and his partner saw a 25 percent increase in business at their recently renovated Willimantic Bonanza and a 40 percent increase at their West Haven restaurant, where the business made $1 million in sales in 1986.

"It's more of a psychological thing," Gardiner said. "People like eating more in a more pleasant atmosphere."

Kiwanians get a welcome return

The Kiwanis Club of Manchester received more than it bargained for. And the Kiwanians aren't complaining.

On April 14, the Kiwanis Club held a raffle to raise money for the Kiwanis Children's Pediatric Trauma Center at Hartford Hospital and the Manchester Scholarship Foundation.

The prize was a 1988 Lincoln Town Car or $20,000 in cash. The effort raised $8,000 for the children and the scholarship foundation.

But the stars didn't end there.

The Purdy Corp. of Manchester, which designs aircraft parts, won the raffle during the drawing at the Manchester Country Club. To the surprise of many, the company donated the cash prize back to the Kiwanis Club, adding $20,000 to the money already raised for charity. The club never had to buy the car from Moriarty Bros.

Now, the Kiwanians may start a trust fund for the pediatric center, Gerald P. Rothman, club president, said today.

Juice bar draws teens to Vernon

'There's good music and a good crowd, no druggies or alcoholics.'

By Anita M. Caldwell
Herald Reporter

If you're old enough to remember Dick Clark's "American Bandstand," then the dancing you see at Jamin's juice bar might take you down memory lane.

Jamin's has been providing a bandstand for teenagers on weekend evenings since December. It's located in a lounge in Court House One, a Nantuxit and Fitness club on Hartford Turnpike in Vernon, at the Manchester border.

Disc jockey Brett Metzger, a University of Connecticut student, spins the hits. Judging by the crowd of teenagers, his records rate a 10.

Jenn Keeney, 15, of 10 Edgerton St., said she's been coming to the club for a month. "There's good music and a good crowd, no druggies or alcoholics," she said.

THE IDEA BEGAN with George Medeiros Jr. of Ellington and Greg Morrell of South Windsor. Medeiros had been a disc jockey at area clubs. He visited a friend in Florida last fall who was managing a teen club. Medeiros researched the Manchester area and decided to open a teen lounge here.

Because he'd worked as a disc jockey for the Court House One lounge, he approached the management with his idea. He called his longtime friend, Morrell, and plans were set in motion.

Among the hurdles they faced was finding the right name for the club.
Morrell, a science teacher at East Hartford High School, asked his students to pick a name from a list he gave them. The students chose Jamin's, which coincidentally was the name Medeiros used when he was known as "DJ Jamin' George." The doors to Jamin's opened Dec. 12 and the club has been entertaining about 150 teenagers a night.

AT FIRST, the Court House One management was worried that the juice bar might interfere with the health club's clientele.

But the influx of young people hasn't affected business, said a Court House One spokesman, who declined to be named. The juice bar is on a month-to-month leasing agreement, and the club provides security personnel, he said.

Police report no incidents at the club as a result of the lounge.

"Everything seems to be OK," said Gary Wood, a Manchester police spokesman. He said police have visited the lounge on one occasion "to see if they were still not serving liquor."

TIM FORBUSH, 21, a Tolland resident and business major at Central Connecticut State University, has been managing Jamin's since it opened.

"Kids pretty much understand this is a nice place and they don't take advantage of it," he said.

Kelly Kenton, a 17-year-old from Ellington, serves drinks at the juice bar. She agreed with Forbush. "It's a place where kids can meet without the influence of alcohol."

As the young people lined up last week to be let into the bar, anticipation filled the air. Boys exchanged playful punches and girls exchanged giggles, and everyone checked each other out.

Girls wore ankle-light pants, a sweater big enough for dad, and graceful flat-heeled shoes. All colors of the rainbow were represented.

The boys made a fashion statement of their own. Tough-looking jackets, neatly styled hair, and Don

Some of the teenagers get away from the music and crowd on the other side of the juice bar.

Gews DiPietro of New Britain says it's worth the trip.

Manager Tim Forbush has been with Jamin's since it opened.

John Koch, the bouncer at Jamin's, is majoring in criminal justice at the University of New Haven.

Johnson-style white-on-white were big.

LAST FRIDAY NIGHT, the dance floor with strobe lights and pulsating music was empty of couples for the first hour as boys draped themselves over the video games, bouncing to the music.

The boys looked like hot rods in fast idle waiting for the perfect moment to kick into gear. On the other side of the room, girls had already begun to dance; their agile frames moving to the beat.

New Britain resident Gews DiPietro, 16, came to the club with three friends. The drive was worth it, he said. He came for the music and the girls, and, no, he didn't mind going to a place without alcohol.

"It's a place to be to have fun and to dance," said 14-year-old Carlie Starski of Lyness Street.

Most teen-agers interviewed agreed that it was a great night out without alcohol and without fights.

DRINK PRICES range from 75 cents to $1.25, and include a variety of non-alcoholic beer and wine. Juices and sodas. However, the most popular drinks are Coke and Sprite. The other drinks are a bit when "drink specials" are offered.

Though the juice bar is for teens, the management plays by adult rules.

The $6 cover charge, for instance, is serious money for high school students.

The lounge even has a bouncer.

John Koch, a 20-year-old from Vernon, has worked in that capacity since January.

Koch, a criminal justice major at the University of New Haven, stood last week at the lounge's entrance, looking very much the part. Those who left the bar were told they'd have to pay the cover charge to get back in.

No one seemed to argue with him.

Jamin's in Court House One, Vernon, is open Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays from 8 p.m. to 12:30 to those who are 18 to 20. Proper attire is required. The Court House One Lounge is open to members and guests during the rest of the week, serving liquor.

Teens hit the dance floor amid strobe lights and a driving beat.

Astros are just perfect at friendly Astrodome

By Barry Winner
The Associated Press

Indoors or out, the Houston Astros feel like winners. Indoors, at the Astrodome, at least, that's exactly what they are.

Houston has been perfect at home this season. The defending National League West champions won their ninth straight game as hosts this year by beating the Atlanta Braves 5-3 Thursday night.

Kevin Bass, who led the Astros into a three-way tie for the division by knocking in three runs and getting three hits, knows why Houston is so dominant under the dome.

"This is our domain and we just

NL Roundup

With the Braves ahead 3-0 on first-inning RBI hits by Dale Murphy and Ken Griffey, the Astros began chipping away in the second. Bass led off with a single. Joe Judge hit a home run, and scored when Craig Reynolds doubled.

Billy Hatcher extended his hitting streak to all 16 games with a leadoff single in the third. He went to second on an grounder, to third on a Davis single, and scored when Baseball groundball forced Davis at second.

Terry Puhl started the Astros' three-run seventh with a pinch-hit double and moved to third on Bill Doran's grounder. After a walk to Hatcher, pinch-hitter Phil Garner doubled in Puhl. One out later, Bass bounced a two-run single into right field.

Field. Rookie Dave Meads, 1-6, got the win in relief, striking out the only batter he faced. Dave Smith recorded his fifth save, pitching 1-3 innings of scoreless relief.

"I think the majority of our innings is mental," Garner said. "When you can't win and you're struggling, you don't know how to find it. Now, no matter how the game goes, we know sooner or later we're going to beat them."

Reds 3, Padres 2

Dave Parker had been fanned his first three times up by Andy Hawkins. But you don't hold down a superb hitter like Parker for long, and Hawkins couldn't handle him in the eighth inning.

Keith Moreland homered for the Cubs.

Second baseman Tom Herr left the game in the third inning with a knee injury, and Cardinals manager Whitey Herzog said Herr might be placed on the disabled list.

St. Louis has nearly lost catcher Tony Pena (broken hand) and pitcher John Tudor (broken bone in knee).

Expos 6, Phillies 5

Vance Law hit his third homer of the season and Reid Nichols had three hits to pace the home-staying Expos. Montreal trailed 4-5 entering the seventh inning, but Dave Eagle singled to center, scoring one run. Another home came when Phillies centerfielder Bill Thompson misplayed the ball.

East remains unbeaten as it topples St. Joseph

TRUMBULL — For four innings, Coach Jim Peders had visions of last year repeating itself when the Eagles fell to St. Joseph pitcher Tom Montelli. Montelli was the hero to the Kadets' 6-5 win a year ago in Trumbull. But East caught up with Montelli in the fifth inning with St. Joseph in on a 1-2 win over St. Joseph in all Connecticut Conference baseball action Thursday afternoon.

The win leaves the Eagles, No. 3 in an unofficial state coaches' poll, unbeaten in 1987. The Eagles, who were No. 4, fell to 3-3 Kadets, who were No. 4, after a still test Saturday when it combats equally unbeaten St. Bernard's at 11 a.m. in Uncasville.

Montelli was the mound and Peders remembered him all too well. He had an injury, and he had had off a strike. He was ahead of the hitters," Peders said.

East, however, erased a 3-1 deficit in the fifth inning. David Price singled and Kevin Riggs blasted a shot off the first baseman, sending Price to third. It was scored an error. Pat Merritt then singled in the tying run. Riggs was thrown out attempting to steal third base with John Gaglioti at bat. Gaglioti walked and designated hitter Doug Rizzuto drove in Merritt with the game-winning run with a single to left center field.

"I finally started to hit the ball hard and got to him," Peders said. "He was starting to doubt himself, and I think after today he'll have his confidence back. (St. Joseph) are not the weakest hitting club around."

Mangiofoco and Price added two hits apiece to East's 13-hit attack.

Stars name Brooks coach

By Mike Model
The Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — Herb Brooks is a hard worker, not a miracle worker.

Brooks, the driving force behind the U.S. hockey team, "Miracle On Ice" in the 1980 Winter Olympics, said he doesn't have a "magic wand" but will instantly turn Minnesota North Stars from champs to NHL champs.

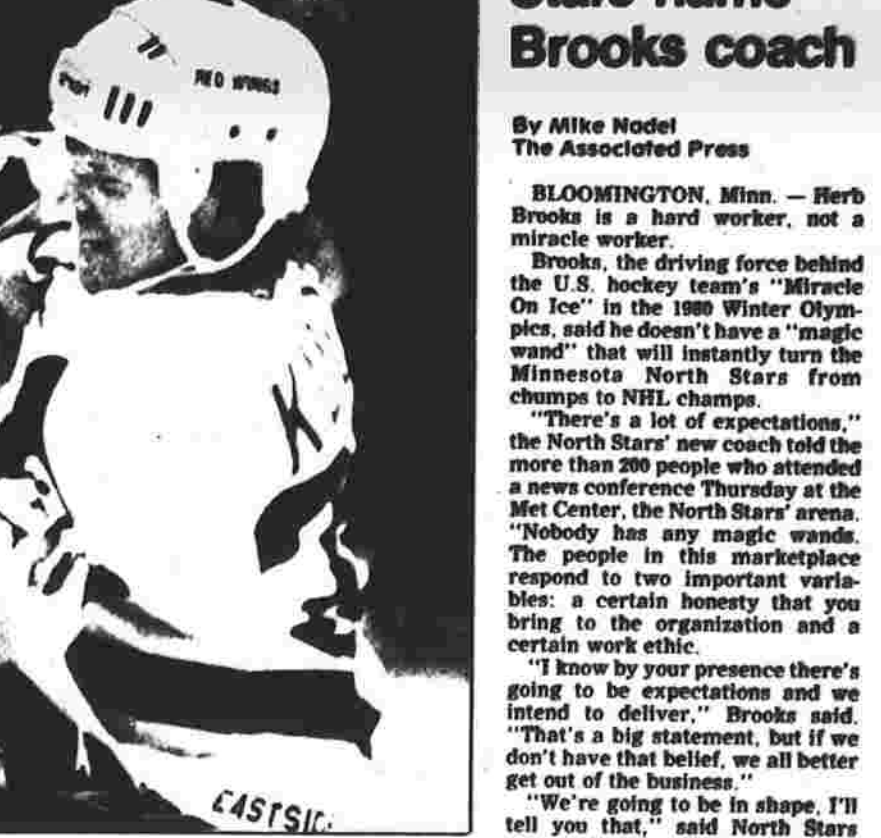

"There's a lot of expectations," the North Stars' new coach told the more than 200 people who attended a news conference Thursday at the St. Paul Civic Center. "Nobody has any magic wands. The people in this marketplace respond to two important variables: a certainty of success and a belief in the organization and a certain work ethic."

"I know by your presence there's going to be expectations and we intend to deliver," Brooks said. "That's a big statement, but if we don't do that better, we'll all get out of the business."

"We're going to be in shape. I'll tell you that," said North Stars center Steve Valdemar. "We're under Brooks and the only U.S.-born player in NHL history to score 100 points in a season. He's a hard worker and a great motivator."

"He's not a miracle worker. He's not a God. He's not going to wave a wand and win the Stanley Cup for us." Brooks said.

"I'm very happy," Nanne added. "I think it's been a long time coming."
