Big banks raise key loan rate

By Vivian Marino
 The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Major U.S. banks raised their prime lending rate to 8 percent from 7.75 percent today, a month after the banking industry lifted the key rate a quarter percentage point.

Bond and stock prices fell following the announcement.

Citibank, the nation's largest bank, and Chase Manhattan, the third largest, were the first to announce an increase. No. 4 Manufacturers Hanover, No. 8 Bankers Trust Co. and First National Bank of Chicago, ranked 10th, made similar announcements shortly after.

Two other New York money center banks, No. 5 Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. and No. 6 Chemical Bank, announced their prime rate increases later in the morning.

Following today's announcement, bond and stock prices fell. The Dow Jones industrial average was off 9.80 to 2,276.56 in the first half hour of trading. The Treasury's key 30-year bond — up as much as 2 1/2 points on Thursday — fell more than 1 1/2 points, or $15 per $1,000 face amount in early trading, while its yield rose to 8.58 percent from 8.44 percent.

The prime is the benchmark used by banks to set interest rates on a variety of corporate and consumer loans, including some mortgages.

The prime had been 7.75 percent since March 31, when it was raised from 7.5 percent.

The last time the prime was at 8 percent was last summer, from mid-July to late August, when the rate was cut to 7.5 percent and remained at that level for seven months.

"This comes as no surprise," Maury Harris, a financial economist for the investment firm Paine-Webber Inc., said of the banks' latest move. "The wholesale cost of borrowing money has been up for some time. They had to protect their profit margins by raising their (lending) price."

In recent weeks interest rates have been rising on fears that the fall of the dollar will rekindle inflation and dampen the inflow of foreign money into U.S. capital markets.

The rise has hit all segments of the financial markets, from Treasury bonds to mortgages. In the first few weeks in April, for instance, rates on a 30-year fixed-rate mortgage rose a full percentage point, according to the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.

In addition, interest rates paid on three-month certificates of deposits, on which the prime is based, have recently risen to 8.75 percent, Harris said. By raising the prime to 8 percent that would provide banks with a spread that would ensure an adequate profit margin, he said.

Today's announcement came a day after Federal Reserve Chairman Paul A. Volcker confirmed that the central bank had tightened its credit policies in response to the falling dollar.

Harris said Volcker's statement made it politically easier for banks to increase their prime rate. "You can point to the Fed as the reason for the prime going up," he said.

Game encourages violence, foes say

By John F. Kirch
 Herald Reporter

Church leaders and townspeople Thursday criticized a developer's plans to open a laser-gun entertainment center on East Middle Turnpike, while a handful of teen-agers called the idea a good one.

Between 100 and 150 people of all ages attended a meeting at Community Baptist Church Thursday night to air their opinions and outline a plan of action against a proposal to open LaserQuest in the former Mott's Shop Rite building.

The opponents, who contend the game will encourage violence and bring a negative element to their neighborhood, organized an eight-member steering committee to lead the attack on the developer's plans.

Whatever action the committee takes would be coupled with a townwide petition drive already under way. The petitioners, organized by church leaders, already have gathered hundreds of signatures. The petitions are addressed to the town Board of Directors.

"Let's get together and fight this down, it's violence," said Russell Elliott, a member of the Second Congregational Church board of trustees. "If we've got to go out and stand out there, let's do it."

The Rev. Newell H. Curtis Jr. of Center Congregational Church attacked violence in general, and said the opposition to LaserQuest was an opportunity for Manchester to make a broader statement against violent behavior.

"We are thinking globally and acting locally," he said later. In a speech to the group, he said: "We live in a violent society. Why do we engage in violence. We put all our emphasis on destruction; when are we going to put our emphasis on construction?"

Company describes game's rules

Ever since Laser Games of Hartford Inc. introduced plans to open a high-tech entertainment center in the former Mott's Shop Rite building on East Middle Turnpike, neighbors have shown some confusion over what the game is all about.

According to company spokesman Sherman Tarr, LaserQuest would be an adventure game that challenges a player's powers of observation and intuition.

Although the exact price has not been calculated yet, players would pay about $4 to participate in the 10-minute game.

The player would wear a light-sensitive vest, carry a "laser device" and walk through a maze of hallways and hidden rooms. The inside of the building would simulate the inside of an alien spacecraft housing three-dimensional "space inhabitants."

A computer would control what the aliens do. In some cases, players would shoot a harmless infrared beam at unfriendly monsters, collecting points for hits. In other cases, points could be gained while responding peacefully to an alien, Tarr said.

"There are a wide range of choices a player will face," Tarr said.

The player's vests would be used to calculate when a player has been hit by an enemy laser, Tarr said.

Tarr would not specify what the "laser device" used to shoot at monsters would be like. He also refrained from calling it a laser gun.

Asbestos removal may boost cost of school renovations

By Alex Girelli
 Associate Editor

If Manchester decides to remove all the asbestos from the five schools it is about to renovate, the $8.88 million bond issue for the renovations won't be enough and more money will have to be sought, the town Building Committee discovered Thursday.

But Paul Phillips, chairman of the committee, said this morning he will call a special committee meeting to try to reduce the cost.

During a meeting Thursday night, the committee received an estimate of $6.7 million for asbestos removal from Donald Weekes, an engineer at TRC Consultants of East Hartford, which has done work at several other Manchester schools. That figure far exceeds the amount originally anticipated when the bond issue was approved by voters last November.

The $6 million estimate, based on figures supplied by the state Department of Health Services, includes $4 million for the removal of asbestos from pipe tunnels, which are normally accessible to only a few people.

While the committee did not take a formal vote on the question, the consensus among members was that the town would have to postpone work in the pipe tunnels and confine the removal to classrooms and to boiler rooms.

The committee authorized TRC to continue to prepare plans and bid specifications for removal of asbestos from all areas, so that the plans will be available for the tunnels when and if they're needed.

Phillips said this morning, however, that he plans to meet with state officials to see what possibilities there are for omitting the pipe tunnel work. Other options could include encapsulating the asbestos or blocking access to the tunnels, he said. The tunnels have the lowest priority because only a few people, maintenance workers mostly, have access to them.

When the referendum on the $8.88 million bond issue was held, removal of asbestos from pipe tunnels was not included.

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — Rescuers believe the construction workers killed in the L'Ambiance Plaza collapse had enough time to try to dash out, and the search for the missing is focusing on the rubble's perimeter.

Ambulance sirens wailed briefly at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, marking passage of a week since the partly completed project fell like a house of cards. A 23rd body was recovered, leaving five construction workers still unaccounted for.

Jonathan Best, director of the rescue effort, said that officials still hoped to find survivors, although there were no indications of life.

"We're beginning to come to the conclusion that perhaps before the building fell, some people headed for the exits," said Best. "It just has to do with where we're finding people, that maybe they had the opportunity to run."

Using $130,000-per-day worth of heavy equipment donated by construction companies, the rescue workers eliminated the last of the above-ground rubble Thursday, leaving only the wreckage of the project's basement level. Rescuers have expressed hope that below-ground air pockets saved some of the workers.

Two psychics offered to help find bodies Wednesday. A newspaper report said the psychics were escorted around the collapse area by police.

"We've gotten millions of calls from millions of people offering all kinds of service," Best said when asked about the psychics. "We listen to them, because we don't want to take anything for granted."

Meanwhile, families of victims continued burying the dead.

In Washington, Sen. Lowell Weicker Jr., R-Conn., introduced legislation to provide federal money to help Bridgeport pay expenses from the cleanup and rescue efforts. City officials estimated the cost of police, fire and public works services at the scene totals $60,000 a day.

A spokesman for Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., said the Senate Appropriations Committee approved the bill and it would reach the full Senate for vote within two weeks.

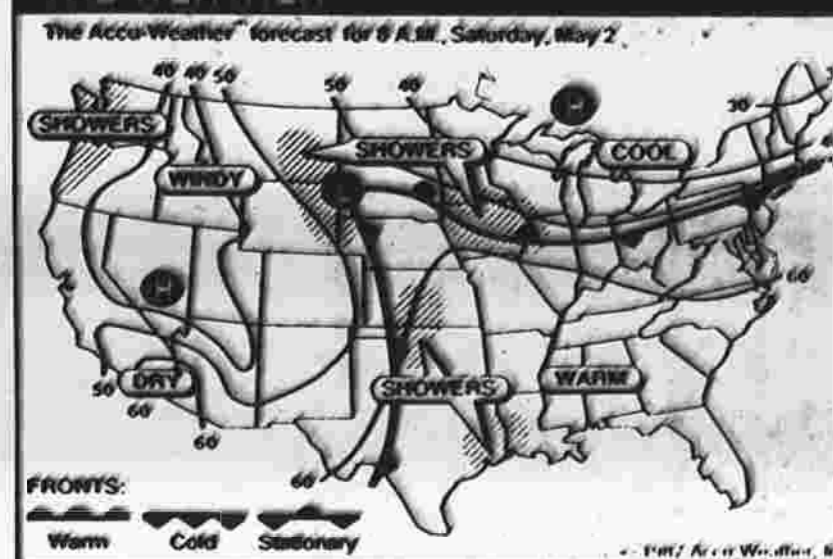

The primary insurer on the project, agreed Thursday to pay up to $2 million in claims for rescue and cleanup operations before liability for the catastrophe is determined.

Royal Insurance Co., based in Charlotte, N.C., said it had been assured by other insurance carriers that its action would not be construed as an admission of liability, and that it would be entitled to reimbursement if a company insured by another carrier is eventually found to be at fault.

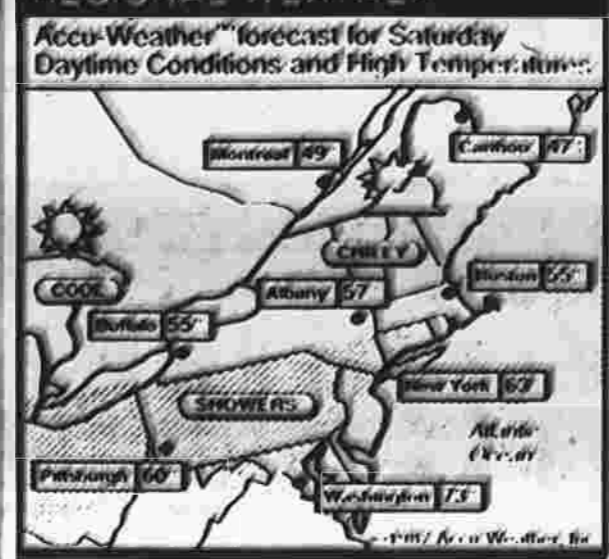

Also Thursday, the first lawsuit in the collapse was filed in federal court by a subcontractor against the city. Lift Frame Builders Inc. of Elmford, N.Y., claims that the city through negligence or carelessness was responsible for the collapse of the partially completed building. The subcontractor is seeking immediate access to the site to ensure preservation of evidence.

Money, borders take center stage for negotiators

By George Loyig Herald Reporter

With the major aspects of a settlement between the Eight District and the town of Bolton in place, the debate over the gritty Thursday night raised some tempers, but no new compromises were made.

THE TOWN WANTS to keep the area around the two schools, and also draw the line farther east of where the Eight District put it.

Other agreed-to points are: The town will reimburse the Eight District for the estimated $158,000 cost of a new sewer in the Buckland section in northwest Mancheater.

THE SEWERS have been carrying themselves - we have not been subsidizing the sewers," Joyner maintained.

MAJOR OBSTACLES remaining are where the new fire jurisdiction lines should be drawn, the additional compensation for the Eight District's sewers, and the amount of compensation for the Buckland firehouse.

Andover race: Veteran vs. novice high-tech manufacturing, she also said Andover needs a professional building and a drug store.

Both have lived in Andover for at least 20 years, and both say new development is the main issue facing the town.

Both are also grandmothers. Boisvert is an avid fan of the Boston Red Sox and Boston Celtics, while Duchesneau plays the organ in her church choir, and occasionally sings solo.

Both candidates said they would support holding board meetings at night, if they are held during the day. Duchesneau said she would like to see a newspaper newsletter for townspeople to inform them about what town government is doing.

It is possible that both could be elected to the Board of Selectmen, which is comprised of a first selectman and two selectmen. Under Andover's election procedure, two candidates run for first selectman and two for selectman.

BOISVERT TOUTS her years in government, which she said is better experience for a first selectman than being in private business.

BOISVERT SAID she favors attractive clean industry, such as some sections, such as land along Route 6, so that light industry could move in.

MCC wins

The Manchester Community College baseball team (18-9) topped Quinsigamond Community College, 6-3, Thursday afternoon at McCormick Field. Two runs scored, with the benefit of two wild pitches, in the sixth inning proved to be enough for MCC. Reliever Joe Budaj notched the save after entering the seventh inning with the bases loaded.

Ridgefield museum shows latest trends in art world

By Anne McGrath The Associated Press

RIDGEFIELD — The smell of fresh paint is in the air at the Aldrich Museum of Contemporary Art. The fumes are the result of the museum's recent renovation, but wet paint isn't only covering the walls.

BY 1963, Aldrich had made up his mind to throw himself completely into contemporary art. "I was no longer interested personally in the early collection and I was so deeply involved in the contemporary area that I had the choice of either wrapping them (the paintings) up and leaving them for my heirs... or should I dispose of them and have the money to indulge my whims in contemporary art," he recalled.

Widow's heart, not calendar, determines mourning period

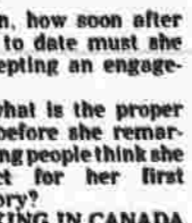

DEAR ABBY: When a wife has lost her mate through death, how long should the mourning period be? Also, how long must she wait before dating members of the opposite sex so people won't talk? Then, how soon after she has started to date must she wait before accepting an engagement ring?

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, my son left Ohio to take an executive position in Denver. While there he met "Sue." To make a long story short, he divorced his wife of 16 years to make Sue his new bride. I flew to Denver, checked into a hotel and attended the wedding. I

And finally, what is the proper waiting period before she remarries without having people think she has no respect for her first husband's memory?

DEAR ABBY: I have been bothered by me for a long time, but I haven't seen a doctor about it because I'm too embarrassed. I am a 15-year-old

DEAR ABBY: Obviously, Sue's manners leave much to be desired, but where is your son in all of this? He is equally guilty of ignoring the receipt of "several" wedding gifts as well as gifts for their baby.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have been a born-again Christian for six years. Every day on the TV and radio I hear testimony of a miraculous healing. However, two children I know have died of cancer.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter has had four sets of tubes put in her eardrums for fluid behind her left eardrum. She's only 4, and the doctor says she will need four or five more sets. To me, cutting eight or nine holes in her eardrums is definitely unnecessary if medication will dry up the fluid. Of course, why should the doctor give me $15 worth of prescription drugs when he gets $400 out of surgery?

Healing isn't a simple matter second, that the healing might not be of physical illness itself, but an "inner healing" of the patient's emotions and attitudes.

DEAR READER: I think that I should stay out of religious controversy. Nonetheless, I will say this: Although miracles do happen and the power of prayer is strong, I believe that a sick person's best hope for recovery comes from scientific medicine. It's true that therapy does not always work, but, for example, childhood cancer is more treatable and curable than ever before in history.

In recent years, many religious groups and "mainstream" churches have shown renewed interest in spiritual healing. However, most of these groups note that, first, medical care is a necessary part of healing; and,

Overcoming a 5-0 split

By James Jacoby
After South's opening bid, North had plenty of high cards to make a strong jump shift into spades. This jump shift is not usually based on a four-card suit, but North intended to support hearts next, and I certainly have no quarrel with the bidding. Note the jump to five no-trump. North was relying on South to hold first-round club control and at least the diamond king.

East showed out. Declarer still had a workable plan. It would simply run diamonds until West stopped. He could then overruff with dummy's heart ace, pick up trumps and make the contract. However, what if West refuses to ruff and discards spades instead? In that case, it behooves declarer to score some spade tricks first. And just how many? The answer is two. If declarer can cash two spade tricks safely and if West follows to two diamonds, everything is simple. The answer is two. If declarer can cash two spade tricks safely and if West follows to two diamonds, everything is simple. The answer is two. If declarer can cash two spade tricks safely and if West follows to two diamonds, everything is simple.

DEAR POLLY - I'm a bargain-shopping addict. I city and use codes of coupon and I returned on a regular basis. Recently I purchased a slightly damaged 18-ounce box of cereal which was reduced to 65 cents from an original price of $1.39. One side of the box had three cereal coupons which could use for a total of $1.75. Another coupon let me use for a coupon for 50 cents off bananas. Even if I don't double the three cereal coupons, which I probably will, I've already done exceptionally well with the $1.75 coupon value. Don't you agree? - ALICE.

Would you choose a hospital that boasts of low mortality rates through advertisements in the local newspaper? Could a particular television commercial or billboard persuade you to seek a specific treatment or operation? Do catchy jingles on the radio influence your choice of a health-care institution? Many hospitals are betting that the majority of Americans would respond to these questions with a resounding yes. The recent spate of media advertising by hospitals has struck a controversial note in the already turbulent world of health-care providers.

IF EXTRAVAGANCE IS not what you are after, there are also deals offering low-budget, fixed-cost maternity care with guaranteed prices if there are no complications. 'Special delivery' and 'Birth of a nation' are just some of the names given to these packaged services offered by hospitals. In our cost-conscious health-care environment - where federal programs push for shorter hospital stays, and employers seek preferred provider arrangements - hospitals are indeed trying to drum up some business by publicizing the quality services they offer at low cost. One major irony: While hospitals are trying to reduce expenditures, advertising budgets have skyrocketed. It's true that dollars spent on advertising typically account for a very small portion of a hospital's overall budget - in many cases, as little as 0.5 percent of the total expenses. However, in 1982, $500 million was spent on ad campaigns as compared with $104 million in 1984 and $312 million in 1985. Regardless of the implications, it is clear that hospital advertising is growing. Be aware of that fact and cautious of how it influences your medical decisions.

you to make you understand that he is somebody special," she said in early April, two days before her son's second transplant. "But like him, there are a lot of other kids who should have the same right. It's a fact of life. This is why attention has to be called."

Childhood obesity on increase

By Daniel Q. Haney
The Associated Press

BOSTON — More American children are getting fat and that's likely to lead to a big bulge in dangerous adult obesity, say researchers who blame the trend on television watching and lack of exercise.

The study found racial, social, regional and seasonal differences in youngsters' weight problems. Black children are thinner than whites, but are quickly catching up. Poor children are less likely than better-off youngsters to be heavy, but here, too, the gap is narrowing. Children and teenagers also tend to be fatter in the inner city than in the suburbs.

North tried twice to interfere with probe, FBI chief says

By Pete Yost
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Fired White House aide Oliver L. North twice sought to interfere with an FBI investigation into people North was using to raise money for the Nicaraguan Contras, it was disclosed at a congressional hearing.

The hearing, which came in 1985 and 1986 during a two-year congressional ban on U.S. military assistance to the Contras, was detailed Thursday at a Senate Intelligence Committee confirmation hearing for FBI Director William Webster to head the CIA.

Edwin Meese III disclosed that funds from the Iran arms sales had been diverted to the U.S.-backed Contra rebels fighting Nicaragua's government, the newspaper said.

Reagan, asked about the Channel case Thursday night, said: "I'm kind of a stranger to this whole thing. I never knew anything about it."

U.S. intelligence officials looked the other way. One of Channel's contributors, Imman Brandon, an Atlanta lawyer, said in an interview with the Atlanta Constitution that he agreed to give $100,000 to the Contras after being assured by a Channel assistant the money would be used for humanitarian purposes.

Webster told the committee it wasn't until a few weeks ago that FBI headquarters in Washington became aware of North's involvement in the Zadeh case.

Immigration problems expected

By Sandy Johnson
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Even before historic immigration reforms take effect next week, critics are saying the government has botched the law so badly that extensions may be necessary to accommodate a flood of illegal aliens applying for amnesty early this year.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service's final rules governing the immigration law were published today in the Federal Register. Just two business days before the opening of the amnesty program and a month before the start of employer sanctions, there were few changes from draft regulations issued early this year.

In addition to the delays, critics charged Thursday that the Reagan administration was choking off amnesty relief by refusing to adequately finance it or to bend on its strict regulations.

An immediate concern was the one-year amnesty program. On Tuesday, an estimated 2 million to 4 million illegal aliens can begin applying for legal status at 17 new INS offices around the nation.

The Reagan administration considers Ortega's government a threat to regional security because of its close ties to the Soviet Union and Cuba.

Benjamin Linder, an engineer working without pay on a rural electrification project, was "assassinated by mercenaries following orders from the CIA," Ortega said in a speech at Linder's funeral Thursday.

Linder's slaying Tuesday "should move the conscience of those in the U.S. government so that (funeral) bells should toll no more, so that aggression ends and they accept to dialogue with Nicaragua," he said.

The Contras said Linder was killed in a clash between their forces and Sandinista militiamen accompanying him, and blamed the Nicaraguan government for the death because it allowed him into a war zone.

On Thursday, the Sandinista government posthumously awarded him the Order of Commander Jose Benito Escobar, the country's highest non-military citation.

Ortega calls for negotiations

By Andrew Selsky
The Associated Press

MATAGALPA, Nicaragua — President Daniel Ortega helped carry the coffin of an American volunteer killed in an attack by U.S.-backed Contra rebels and said his death should move the Reagan administration to negotiate for peace.

Benjamin Linder, an engineer working without pay on a rural electrification project, was "assassinated by mercenaries following orders from the CIA," Ortega said in a speech at Linder's funeral Thursday.

Linder's slaying Tuesday "should move the conscience of those in the U.S. government so that (funeral) bells should toll no more, so that aggression ends and they accept to dialogue with Nicaragua," he said.

The U.S. Embassy in Managua first said it would send congressional officials to northern Nicaragua to investigate the slaying, but later said it would not because Sandinista authorities were not cooperating and the area was too dangerous.

Linder, 27, of Portland, Ore., came to Nicaragua in 1985 shortly after he graduated from the University of Washington as a mechanical engineer. He was one of about 200 American volunteer workers currently in the country.

On Thursday, the Sandinista government posthumously awarded him the Order of Commander Jose Benito Escobar, the country's highest non-military citation.

A crowd of 1,000, including Linder's family and about 50 fellow American volunteers who sang "We shall overcome," marched 25 blocks to the hilltop cemetery on the south side of Matagalpa. Ortega served as pallbearer part of the way.

Technology offers clues to city's vitality

WASHINGTON (AP) — To determine the vitality of a city, count its telephone calls and penetration of tele machines may be a more appropriate barometer of a city's economic health and vitality, says Mitchell L. Moss, professor of planning and public administration at New York University's Graduate School of Public Administration, in a report released Thursday.

The report, "Telecommunications: Shaping the Future," disputes predictions made in the last two decades that American cities would decline and fall under the stress of race riots, fiscal crises, higher oil prices, the decline of manufacturing and demographic shifts.

Advances in communications technology from facsimile transmission machines to express mail services have infused new life into American cities, Moss said.

Today, he found the beginnings of a new urban hierarchy, in which certain cities will function as international information capitals, with the most extensive electronic infrastructure and richest opportunities for human interaction.

Other cities will serve as regional information hubs, linked to the principal international capitals, but with a less-extensive geographic reach," Moss predicted.

At the grave site, Linder's father poured a cupful of soil from his native Oregon over the coffin. In a brief eulogy, David Linder said his son "believed that through work he could make life better for (the Nicaraguan) people and help strengthen democracy... It is clear to me that people here understand what he did. My family and I are very proud to have Benjamin interred in your city."

Eric has had his drive near his home on Croft Route for two years. He worked hard at organizing the route when he first started and still works hard at customizing his deliveries for his customers. The only thing that he doesn't like about carrying the Herald is delivering in the rain. However, "It's fun," he says and adds that he also likes the money. Eric hopes to soon purchase a 35mm camera with the money that he has saved. He also enjoys his other activities such as Manchester Soccer Club (The Rowdies), and liling

Junior-High band, track and soccer. Because of the outstanding job that Eric has done juggling his school sports, scouting, and Herald Activities, we Honor him as Carrier of the Month for April. Congratulations, Eric, for an excellent job!

Carrier of the Month

There is something that seems to be frequently forgotten about Herald carriers, they have personal lives in addition to their Herald routes. Our Carrier of the Month for April, Eric Christensen, blends his responsibilities of school, soccer and track teams, scouting and band activities with delivery of the Herald — and he does well at all!

Firestone will move to Chicago

AKRON, Ohio (AP) - Firestone has been to Akron what Ford was to Detroit, but is moving its headquarters from the one-time rubber capital of the world to Chicago 75 years after the tire company's founding here.

The move, which will affect about 450 of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.'s 1,300 employees here, was announced Thursday after a meeting of the board of directors of the nation's No. 2 tire company.

"We believe there exists (in Chicago) a benefit for senior firestone management to be one of the nation's leading regional transportation, financial and retail centers," said Firestone spokesman Jim Strandberg.

Thursday's announcement was the latest blow to this city of 300,000 people, which has seen a tremendous movement with the tire and industrial rubber industries and was once known as the rubber capital of the world.

Trade game can have no real winners

Trade-retaliation bill threatens to escalate battle

By John Cuniff The Associated Press NEW YORK - The game of trade is becoming deadly, and a very real threat exists that none will win and everyone might lose.

UNLIKE poker, in the game of trade nobody has a superior hand for long, but all players fight mightily to assemble such a hand.

IN THE VIEW of Americans, something of that sort has developed in relations with major trading partners.

AMERICANS ALSO have been denied access to American goods by means of hidden market restraints, while simultaneously subsidizing exports to the U.S. market.

R.I. House approves bill on bank mergers

The deal was announced March 1986.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) - A bill introduced on behalf of Fleet National Bank that will speed up its merger with

The measure passed 81-0 Thursday, will permit Rhode Island banks to merge with banks outside of Rhode Island beginning Jan. 1, 1988, instead of July 1, 1989.

The law now permits Rhode Island banks to merge with other New England banks but not with any outside the region.

The measure was sponsored by Rep. Albert G. Brien, D-Woonsocket, and Rep. Elaine T. Bucci, D-Providence.

We're obviously pleased about the House action," said Bruce P. Crooks, Fleet public affairs manager. "We of course would like to see the bill reviewed and approved by the Rhode Island Senate and signed by the governor.
