FAMILIES FLEE GAS LEAK

A TIME OF SORROW — Mrs. Gloria Goodwin is comforted by President Reagan during memorial services in Mayport, Fla., Friday for those killed on the USS Stark. Mrs. Goodwin is the sister of Jeffrey Sibley, 21, who was killed in the Iraqi attack. Story on page 3.

Plant emits ammonia but no one hurt

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Herald Reporter

About 60 people were evacuated from their homes late Friday night as town firefighters worked early this morning to contain an ammonia leak in the basement of Manchester Ice & Fuel on Bissell Street.

By midnight, about 10 people were staying at Nathan Hale School, where the American Red Cross set up a temporary shelter. No one was reported injured as a result of the leak.

Shortly before midnight, firefighters entered the basement of the building at 51 Bissell St. and attempted to contain the leaking gas by reducing it to a liquid. Deputy Police Chief Henry "Bud" Minor, on the scene with Mayor Barbara Weinberg, Town Manager Robert B. Weiss and other officials, said the exact location and extent of the leak was not known.

The leak was reported at 9:35 p.m., Minor said. Police blocked off Bissell Street from Main to Spruce streets and evacuated area residents soon afterward as a precaution.

"Better safe than sorry," said Weinberg, who was watching the scene on Bissell Street.

For Bissell Street resident Susan Anderson, Friday was not an auspicious beginning for the Memorial Day weekend.

Anderson was staying at Nathan Hale School along with her two in-laws, who were visiting Manchester for the weekend.

She said at first she ignored the police cars outside her home.

"I thought they were just going after somebody or whatever."

She said she smelled the strong odor of ammonia through the window.

"We were supposed to have a nice Memorial Day weekend," she said.

Nation ready to celebrate long weekend

By Richard Herzfelder
The Associated Press

Celebrations for the 200-year-old piece of parchment that became the U.S. Constitution highlight a Memorial Day weekend that will also be marked by the snarl of racing engines, the sweet sound of jazz and the rustle of millions of beach blankets on seaside sand.

Good weather and spring fever brought outdoor activities to the fore, with everything from inner-tube river races to kite-flying on the programs. Beaches and national parks were bracing for millions of visitors.

Veterans groups across the nation were planning Memorial Day observances shadowed by the deaths of 37 Navy sailors in the Persian Gulf on Sunday. President Reagan attended a service Friday at Mayport Naval Station, Fla., for the men who died when an Iraqi plane attacked the USS Stark.

Whether by land, sea or air, it was a sure bet travelers would not be lonely. Washington state officials warned of clogged ferries and overflowing airport parking lots and said aircraft would target speeders for a beelined-up squad of state troopers.

"In some cases, the travel increases by as much as 50 percent, with people visiting families, relatives, or going home from school over the weekend," said Howard Graf of the New Mexico Traffic Safety Bureau. The peaks, he said, will probably be late Friday and late Sunday.

THE MEMORIAL DAY WEEKEND was the first holiday test of the new 65 mph speed limit, and Utah police worried motorists would not notice the limit is still 55 mph in urban areas. For safety's sake, many states were sponsoring The Great American Buckle-Up.

The Spoleto Festival U.S.A. opened with a bright banner and brass fanfare Friday at Charleston, S.C., City Hall, where a bust of festival founder and artistic director Gian Carlo Menotti was unveiled.

Richard Strauss' "Salome" was bowing Friday night. B.B. King's blues and a performance by 19th-century marionettes were other highlights among more than 100 performances scheduled from now to June 7.

The Constitutional Convention opened 200 years ago Monday, and Philadelphia was kicking off a party with Friday night fireworks and a concert by jazz saxophonist Grover Washington Jr. More than a million people, including Vice President George Bush, are expected for the festivities.

In Boston, the USS Constitution, which is almost as old as the U.S. Constitution, will fire a 21-gun salute Monday to honor all veterans of American armed forces who died serving the country.

In Houston, organizers hoped 200,000 people would take part in a Saturday march to honor Vietnam veterans. A traveling replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, bearing the names of 58,132 who died, was dedicated Thursday.

BRANCH 103 of the Fleet Reserve Association planned to cast wreaths into the Mississippi River at Gretna, La., and in Delaware the Wilmington and Western Railroad was offering half-price fare Sunday to all veterans in uniform.

No War of 1812 markers were available when Hugh McCallister died in 1822 at 90, so his grave in Williamsburg, Iowa, was marked with a Civil War standard. He had 22 children, and this weekend several of his descendants are setting up the right marker.

The world of sports was crowded with everything from the NCAA Division II World Series in Alabama to the Indianapolis 500, where 33 cars will roar around a speedway oval Sunday before a crowd of 400,000. On Saturday, Lemboch, Mickey Mouse and "The Beaver" — Jerry Mathers — were to headline the "500" Festival Parade.

A more sedate event was on tap at Wildwood, N.J., where 90 kite-fliers are competing in the East Coast Stunt Kite Competition.

The pilots, as the kite-fliers call themselves, make the kites dip and dive at up to 90 mph in individual and team routines. Kite manufacturers will show off their latest models, which cost as much as $300.

Memorial Day 1987

Monday, May 25, 1987 is Memorial Day, a legal holiday.

Special events: Manchester's Memorial Day parade starts at 9:30 a.m. Monday at Bennet Junior High School; services will take place at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial and at Munro Park before the park returns to Center Park. In Andover, the parade will assemble Monday at 8:30 a.m. at Andover Elementary School and proceed to Cedar Hill Cemetery. In Bolton, the parade will start Monday at 10 a.m. at Bolton Elementary School and end at the town Green. In Coventry, the parade will begin Monday at 10 a.m. at Robertson School on Cross Street and end at the town garage.

Manicured governments: Town offices and schools closed Monday.

State and federal governments: Offices closed today and Monday.

Bus: Closed today and Monday.

Mail: Only perishable, special and express items will be delivered Monday. Offices closed.

Stores: Holiday schedules in effect Monday.

Manchester Herald: The Herald will not publish Monday and its offices will be closed.

Remagen heroes meet in Hartford

HARTFORD (AP) — The Americans who stunned the German army by taking the bridge at Remagen during World War II gathered in Hartford for one of several Connecticut events honoring the nation's service men and women this Memorial Day weekend.

"Every one of the men in our organization knew that bridge was mined and they knew the Germans planned to blow it up in our faces," said retired Army Lt. Col. William E. "Mac" McMaster, who was a first lieutenant commanding a unit that took the Ludendorff Bridge on the Rhine River.

"When I said, 'OK let's go, we're going to cross the bridge,' nobody flinched. We had one word in our vocabulary, and that word was patriotism. It's still a good word," McMaster said Friday.

No invading army had crossed the Rhine into Germany against German defenders in 190 years. The German morale was dashed when three infantry companies of the 27th Armored Infantry Battalion achieved the feat on March 7, 1945, including Company C under McMaster.

He said about 25 members of Company C planned to attend the reunion in Hartford through Monday. Last year in St. Louis, 150 attended, he said.

McMaster called the Iraqi missile attack on the Navy frigate USS Stark in the Persian Gulf "a damned shame" and said nations like Germany and Japan that get more of their oil from the region should help maintain security there.

But said he thinks the United States still has got "to maintain a presence around the world... We just can't stand back and give the whole world over to the communists."

Elsewhere in Connecticut this weekend, thousands of college students are receiving undergraduate and graduate degrees. Parades, memorial services, antique shows and other events also are scheduled.

The University of Connecticut will award degrees Sunday during its 104th commencement, awarding honorary degrees to actress Susan St. James, ornithologist Roger Tory Peterson and former Virginia Gov. Charles S. Robb.

UConn's Law School also will hold commencement exercises Sunday, when U.S. District Judge Jose A. Cabranes will speak.

At Yale University in New Haven, a weekend full of ceremonies culminates in commencement on Monday. In keeping with the Ivy League school's custom, names of honorary degree recipients were kept secret.

Tornado hits Texas town; at least 12 dead

SARAGOSA, Texas (AP) — A tornado ripped through this tiny town in a remote part of west Texas on Friday night, killing at least 12 people, injuring at least 42 and trapping some people in the town hall, officials said.

"The town is gone," an unidentified amateur radio operator said about the community of 125 residents about 100 miles east of El Paso.

"Our office in Pecos said there are at least 12 people dead and several injuries," said Department of Public Safety spokesman Mike Cox.

"The town is without power, the roads are impassable and we have reports of people trapped inside Saragosa Hall."

Jan Knott, assistant administrator at Pecos Memorial Hospital, said a short time later that at least 42 people had been injured and were en route to the hospital.

The tornado hit about 8 p.m., and rescue units from throughout the area were being sent to the scene, Cox said. "It probably wiped out the whole town," said Tommy King, a sheriff's sergeant in neighboring Ward County.

A spokeswoman at Reeves County Hospital in Pecos, about 46 miles away, said she had been warned to expect casualties, and the Red Cross was preparing nearby schools for people left homeless by the storm.

The storm was moving northeast toward Fort Stockton, and the National Weather Service reported that funnel clouds had been sighted within 26 miles of the town.

Meanwhile, heavy thunderstorms dumped marble- and golfball-size hail 2 inches deep near Whiteface about 45 miles west of Lubbock, Rockley County sheriff's deputies said.

The storm was among a series of intense thunderstorms crashing the western half of the South Plains, the weather service said.

Weather spotters reported a tornado in Cochran County about four miles southeast of Whiteface, but sheriff's dispatcher Steve Dunn said no damage was reported.

Water fills basement of Cheney Hall

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Herald Reporter

The basement of Cheney Hall was under 6 feet of water on Friday after a water pipe broke sometime between Thursday and Friday morning.

Town firefighters spent most of Friday pumping the basement, getting the water level down to about 9 inches late Friday night.

Donald N. Kuehl, vice president of the Cheney Hall Foundation, said the flooding was apparently caused by a broken sprinkler pipe. He said no structural damage is expected.

The water probably would not set back renovation work on the historic hall on Hartford Road, Kuehl said.

He had no estimate on the cost of damage.

"I really don't think anything serious has happened to the building," Kuehl said.

The flooding, which was restricted to the basement, occurred sometime after about 10 a.m. Thursday.

The flooding was restricted to the building's basement. The basement contained debris and shutters, which were being stored there before being reattached to the building's exterior. A wooden floor in the basement might have been damaged, but renovations called for tearing it out anyway, Kuehl said.

The shutters "probably just got cleaned," Kuehl said, noting that they were covered with bird droppings.

Cheney Hall, considered a key attraction in the Cheney Historic District, is being renovated into a center for the performing arts.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. REAGAN AT MEMORIAL SERVICE... talk with families of Stark crew at Mayport, Fla.

Reagan, families mourn crew

MAYPORT NAVAL STATION, Fla. (AP) — Families struggled to gain strength from one another's hugs and President Reagan's words of comfort during a memorial service Friday at which 1,200 people paid tribute to 37 USS Stark sailors.

Sailors in dress whites, young women holding babies and gray-haired mothers were among those crowding into the helicopter hangar used for the service at the Stark's home port. Several women wore dark glasses as they clutched relatives. One had to be helped out of the service shortly after it began.

An estimated 200 to 300 relatives of the 37 sailors killed during an Iraqi air attack in the Persian Gulf on Sunday comforted one another as Reagan spoke. One young sailor hugged the women seated on either side of him as they dabbed their eyes with tissues.

Most of those who were not relatives were sailors from Mayport and two other Navy bases in the area. Many wore small purple ribbons — the official color of the Stark.

Several members of the Stark crew, those who had left the ship before Sunday, were among those sitting on chairs set up in the 300-foot-long hangar.

Behind the podium where Reagan delivered his remarks hung the official emblem of the USS Stark, bearing the motto "Strength for Freedom."

"The men of the USS Stark have protected us," Reagan said. "They have done their duty."

He defended America's presence in the Persian Gulf.

"Peace is at stake here; and so too is our nation's security, and our freedom.... The fallen sailors of the USS Stark understood their obligations. They knew the importance of their job."

Following the 30-minute memorial service, Reagan and his wife, Nancy, moved down the long rows of family members. They greeted and hugged each relative, wives and husbands standing side by side, many of their faces streaked with tears. The process took more than an hour.

The service also featured admirals reading from the Bible and a 21-gun salute. The sounds of sobs mingled with the playing of taps.

An earlier, private service also was offered to relatives at the tiny base chapel. By presidential order, immediate family members of those killed were flown in at Navy expense. Local hotels provided free rooms.

"It was a great comfort that he (Reagan) took time out to pay tribute to our boys," said Nancy Erwin, who lost her only son, Steven, 22, of Troy, Mich.

"I think it helps to know that other people care," she said, adding that she was moved by the ceremony attended by officials including Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, Navy Secretary James Webb, Gov. Bob Martinez and several congressmen.

Webb told the family members that they would always be a part of the Navy.

"Your sons, fathers and husbands purchased that guarantee," he said. "I pledge to you that neither you nor they will be forgotten."

Sullivan is a Presidential Scholar

Erin Sullivan, valedictorian of the Manchester High School graduating class, is one of the nation's 140 (graduating high school seniors who have been named Presidential Scholars.

Erin Sullivan

The Presidential Scholar honor is the nation's highest distinction bestowed on exceptional high school seniors. Sullivan will be invited to Washington in June to receive the Presidential Scholar medal and participate in a week of activities in honor of the recipients. She will also receive a $1,000 gift for educational use. Sullivan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sullivan of 87 Tanner St., plans to major in science or mathematics at Harvard University. She has a sister and a brother also enrolled at Harvard.

Selection of the scholars is based on test scores, transcripts of grades, a questionnaire and essays. The program is in its 33rd year.

Sullivan identified Dr. Abraham Moses Kennert as the high school teacher who has had the most impact on her education. He will be invited to Washington to take part in the Presidential Scholars Recognition Week and to receive a certificate of excellence.

Bolton honors its vets

Bolton will honor its deceased veterans Monday with a parade. Marchers will assemble at 9:30 a.m. at the Bolton Elementary School, and the parade will start at 10 a.m. Among those in the line of march will be the selectmen, the school band, the fire department and its auxiliary, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts. If it rains, units should meet in the new fire house for ceremonies at 10:30 a.m. The speaker will be Lee Brendle.

Bolton students compete

Chill festival at the band shell

The third annual Manchester Chill Country Fair will be held July 11 at the Manchester Bicentennial Band Shell. Proceeds go to benefit Manchester's efforts to train citizens in cardiopulmonary resuscitation. Contestants will compete for the title of "Best Chill East of the River." For more information on how to enter the chill competition or to help run the event, phone 847-4758 or 847-4752.

Library's reference room closed

Because work has fallen behind schedule in the installation of air conditioning at Mary Cheney Library, the reference room will not reopen today as planned. The reference room will remain closed Tuesday and Wednesday and reopen Thursday.

Dr. Abraham Kurien, left, head of the cardiac rehabilitation program at Manchester Memorial Hospital, talks Friday night with two program graduates, Donald Papanian, center, and Bill Morande. Papanian and Morande spoke during a dinner commemorating the program's third anniversary.

Cardiac rehab grads extend MMH some heartfelt thanks

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Herald Reporter

Bill Morande was stuck in traffic Friday afternoon on his way to a dinner for former cardiac patients at Manchester Memorial Hospital. But rather than getting upset over the 30-minute tie-up, Morande practiced what he learned in the MMH Cardiac Rehabilitation Program. Stopped in his car on Main Street, he let out a few deep breaths and did some exercises to relax himself. That helped calm him down, but one motorist, who got the wrong idea, knocked on the car window and asked Morande if he was all right. "I must have looked like I went into some kind of fit." Morande told about 50 graduates of the rehabilitation program at the MMH conference room Friday night. The occasion was a dinner marking the program's third anniversary. Morande, a 1988 graduate of the program, praised the program for helping him recover from a heart attack. And he called for expansion of the program to include ongoing, lifetime therapy for cardiac patients. At present MMH offers a 12-week physical therapy program for coronary unit patients. An expanded program would go a step beyond coronary unit care and initial therapy to what is called "Phase Three" therapy. Such therapy would allow patients to continue physical training in a group setting. Donald Papanian, a 1985 graduate, also addressed the group. He remembered the day he finished the program and was given an electrocardiogram. "Great test, Donald," the doctor told him. "That was the greatest Christmas gift I had ever received. That was the gift of life and good health," Papanian said. Papanian gave a plaque of thanks addressed to the cardiac program and its head nurse, Beverly Grady. "The greatest appreciation we can get from you is that you're here and that you're healthy," said Dr. Abraham Kurien, the program director.

Junk car bill goes to governor

A bill that would make it easier for towns such as Manchester to get rid of abandoned motor vehicles has cleared the state Legislature, and now goes to Gov. William A. O'Neill's desk to become law. The measure changes the existing state law to allow towns to take immediate title to a vehicle worth less than $100 after it is taken into custody. Towns could then have the vehicle destroyed after 18 days. The money from the sale of the vehicle to a scrap yard could be used by the town to cover its towing and storage costs if the vehicle's owner does not claim that money within one year. The owner could claim those funds before then, and also any profit from the sale of the vehicle by the town. State Rep. John W. Thompson, D-Manchester — who proposed one of a number of junk car bills this session — said this provision accomplishes most of what Manchester town officials wanted. Manchester Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg and other officials had urged the General Assembly to make it easier to dispose of junk cars. The holding period for vehicles worth less than $100 is currently 30 days. However, the measure does not lessen the amount of holding time for vehicles worth more than $200. That would be kept at 90 days. The original proposal called for shortening the period to 60 days. Manchester officials had complained that the longer period is expensive for towns because storage fees can range up to $10 per day. But Thompson said that state legislators were concerned that shortening this would violate a property owner's right to due process.

Local News in Brief

Safe Rides volunteers honored

Adult volunteers who help a group of teenagers operate the Manchester Safe Rides Program were honored Sunday by the young people at a recognition ceremony.

The young members of the group drive young people who might otherwise be tempted to drive after they have been drinking, or those who are forced to rely on someone who has been drinking for a ride. The adults are those who help if there is an accident or if problems arise.

Among those honored were Matthew Moriarty Jr., a corporate sponsor who donates his Mazda showroom as a base of operations; Bruce Marcus, who supplies radio equipment; and the Rev. Martin Scholsky, who donates the use of St. Bartholomew Church for monthly meetings.

The awards were presented at the church. In all, 28 persons received the Safe Rides Mug in appreciation for their help.

Sidur to live with French family

Robert Sidur, son of Stanley and Andrea Sidur of Brandy Street, Bolton, will spend the month of July living in France in the Nacel French Homestay Program.

Sidur, a student at Bolton High School, has been studying French for three years. He will spend four weeks with a French family. The Nacel program is seeking families in this area to host students from France and Spain. Interested persons should contact Suzi Smith at 853-8549 or write her at Post Office Box 231, Canton, 06019.

Organizers of booze-free party at MHS reach their $6,000 goal

Parents planning an alcohol-free party for Manchester High School seniors after graduation exercises June 22 have met their $6,000 fund-raising goal.

Joyce Waser, a member of the group, said the goal was reached last week after last-minute donations from parents, area businesses and civic organizations. "We're excited about that. Things are moving along real well," said Waser.

The seven-hour party will go on at Manchester Community College with a number of free events during the all-night affair.

The graduating seniors must arrive at the party between 10 p.m. and midnight. None will be admitted after midnight. The celebration will end at 5 a.m.

No alcohol or drugs will be permitted. Any student who leaves the party will not be permitted to return.

The party includes a number of raffish prizes, including a television, a stereo and a chauffeur-driven limousine ride and a night on the town for four students. The committee planning the celebration has sent a letter to parents of the seniors outlining the events, which include live stage shows, a D.J. contest, Monte Carlo casino games, a roving photographer, door prizes, tapes of activities at MHS, snacks throughout the night and a breakfast, which will be served beginning at 3 a.m. There is no charge for the event, which is open to graduating seniors only. Guests are not allowed.

The planning committee is made up of Waser, Becky Janenda, Sue Berte, Amory Stansfield and Minna Noone.

A revised Route 6 bill advances

Homeowners in the path of the proposed Route 6 expressway would be able to remain rent-free in their homes longer than they can now under a measure passed by the state House of Representatives.

The proposal, which now goes to the state Senate, would allow residents to remain in their homes for four months without paying rent to the state after their properties are acquired, according to its sponsor, state Rep. Edith G. Prague, D-Columbia.

Currently, residents can remain in their homes up to 90 days but must pay rent after 30 days. When the bill was passed last month by the Government Administration and Elections Committee, it was changed to call for unlimited rent-free stay.

However, Prague has said the four-month period is more realistic. Prague also proposed Thursday that affected homeowners be given the first opportunity to repurchase their homes if the highway project is canceled. The proposal was defeated Thursday, she said.

The state can now offer the property to other interests first. The state Department of Transportation had been opposed to changing this, but a compromise was reached under which the home would be sold at market value minus administrative costs.

Prague said today that other legislators opposed that revision when it was considered Thursday, so it was dropped rather than jeopardize the entire measure. She said she hopes to have the change passed next year.

The bill passed Thursday had the support of the DOT according to the department's legislative liaison, Rita O'Connor.

Those who remain in their homes after the four-month rent-free period would pay a rent equal to one-twelfth of 5 percent of the property's value, Prague said. Currently, the rate is based on one-twelfth of 8 percent of the value.

Homeowners would also be allowed to remain in their homes until the state obtains all necessary permits to build the highway, which would extend from Bolton Notch to Windham. Once that occurs, residents would have 90 days to leave after being notified.

Crucial environmental permits for the proposed 11.8-mile road are still pending. They must be obtained before construction can begin. One of those is an application to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to create more than 60 acres of wetlands to replace those that would be destroyed by the expressway.

Ned Hurie, DOT assistant environmental planner, said Wednesday that application probably will not be submitted until mid-June because additional information is required. The DOT originally planned to submit the proposal in February.

In medieval times, the word "garbage" applied to a combination of chicken heads, feet and innards stewed to a delicacy by creative chefs.

Connecticut in Brief

Morton declares candidacy

BRIDGEPORT — State Sen. Margaret E. Morton of Bridgeport on Friday declared her candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Congress to succeed the late U.S. Rep. Stewart B. McKinney, saying she decided to run because no one had asked her to.

"I thought I was being ignored" by party leaders, Morton said before declaring her candidacy to about 50 supporters in City Hall.

Morton, who is expected to have the support of the city's 67-member delegation to the congressional district convention on June 30, said she has twice been elected to the state Senate without the full support of her party.

The special election has been scheduled for Aug. 18 for the 4th District post McKinney held for 17 years.

Senate OKs business-tax bill

HARTFORD — A bill allowing cities and towns to tax commercial property at higher rates than residential property was praised as a much-needed break for homeowners and assailed as "a nail in business' coffin" as it passed the state Senate Friday.

"This nail is being driven in with a sledgehammer. This has been a very, very anti-business session," said Sen. James H. McLaughlin, R-Woodbury.

But Sen. Joseph H. Harper Jr., D-New Britain, said the measure would have little impact on the business climate in Connecticut and rejected McLaughlin's argument that it could keep companies from moving into the state.

Further, Harper said, "If we're going to rely on the property tax as the workhorse for cities and towns, at the very least we should make that tax as fair as possible."

O'Neill leans toward wage hike

HARTFORD — Gov. William A. O'Neill said Friday he was leaning toward signing a bill that would make Connecticut's minimum wage the highest in the country.

The bill, on the governor's desk after approval Thursday in the state Senate, would boost the minimum wage from $3.37 an hour to $3.75 an hour on Oct. 1, and to $4.25 on Oct. 1, 1988.

House passes tough cable bill

HARTFORD — The state House of Representatives, reacting to recent cable TV rate increases, approved tough legislation Friday that drastically shortens franchise periods unless cable companies agree to some state control of their service.

The House abandoned a compromise bill already passed by the Senate and instead voted to reduce the franchise period from 15 to five years unless a cable company agreed to state control, in which case a 10-year franchise would be granted.

Senate passes bonding bills

HARTFORD — The state Senate on Friday approved bills authorizing the state to borrow up to $878 million to pay for a wide variety of projects, ranging from highways to housing, college dormitories to park improvements.

The total of the bills is 36 percent higher than the borrowing authorized this year and about $111 million more than proposed by Gov. William A. O'Neill. The state borrows money by selling bonds.

The three bills approved Friday only authorize borrowing for specific projects; the full $878 million will not necessarily be spent during the coming budget year.

Plywood roofs leak at prison

ENFIELD — The plywood roofs on 10 buildings at the state's new $16.6 million minimum-security prison are deteriorating and may have to be replaced, says a consultant hired by the state.

The deteriorating plywood is the probable cause of extensive leaks in the prison's roofs, according to Lewis J. Colavecchio, a Hartford-based engineering consultant for the Department of Administrative Services.

Colavecchio's report, released Thursday, recommends investigations of all the roofs at the prison. The tests would include determining whether faulty plywood was sold to the state, the $10,000 report says. State officials said Friday they plan to remove 6,000 square feet of roofing for the inspections this summer.

Glass factory site in Coventry gets named to Historic Register

By Jacqueline Bennett
Herald Correspondent

COVENTRY — A 32-acre site near Route 44 and North River Road has been approved for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places. The site, known as the Coventry Glass Factory Historic District, got the OK from the state Historic Preservation Board.

"The approval came just recently and we were notified a couple of weeks ago," Town Manager Harold Hodge said last week.

"Down the road it could be a tourist attraction," Hodge said. "With so much history in this area, it will be one more thing people will want to see." Coventry is also the birthplace of Colonial patriot Nathan Hale.

Built in 1815, the glass factory was destroyed by fire between 1849 and 1850. Other than fragments of glass, little evidence of the building remains at the site.

However, according to Hodge, the Coventry Historical Society has contacted the Connecticut National Guard and applied to have Guard members take an aerial photo of the area with infrared film. Using that technique on other historic sites, the Guard has been able to obtain an outline of structures that once were there, Hodge said.

"It's an interesting situation," Hodge noted.

The site around the former factory, including 11 houses and other buildings from the 19th century, was proposed for historic recognition by resident Jesse Brainard in 1979.

Brainard was away and could not be reached for comment.

"He will be very happy," his son, William Brainard, said Thursday. "He spent a lot of years working to have the recognition become a reality."

In an interview not long ago, Jesse Brainard showed a rare collection he owns of items produced at the factory. Among those products were bottles in a variety of shapes, ink stands, and figured or "portrait" flasks, considered to have the highest value among collectors because they originated at the Coventry factory.

Of special interest in the collection is a blood-red rolling pin. According to legend, Brainard said, a craftsman made the item for his sweetheart from leftover glass.

Collections of glass produced in Coventry can also be found on display at Old Sturbridge Village, the Corning Museum in New York, and the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

Bolton residents to get newsletter

By Andrew Yurkovsky
Herald Reporter

BOLTON — The Board of Selectmen has agreed to seek funding for a newsletter publicizing town events.

Resident Don Costello suggested the idea during a selectmen's meeting Tuesday night in Community Hall.

The newsletter on local events could make townspeople more involved in the community, Costello told the board.

Costello said the newsletter could include notices of school events, meetings of the town's boards and the activities of local civic groups. He estimated that publishing a four-page newsletter on a quarterly basis, including postage, would cost about $1,200.

The selectmen voted to seek funding for the newsletter from surplus money in the 1986-87 budget. The move would require approval from the Board of Finance.

Costello said after the meeting that the idea for the newsletter was raised at the end of last year, when the newly formed Friends of the Library was unable to get any press coverage. It came up again this year when he and other members of the Friends of the Library learned about the budget hearings only through their involvement with the library, he said.

Although the town is covered by three newspapers, residents cannot get all of the news from one source, he said. "For the longest time, I didn't know who was running (in the municipal elections)."

The selectmen did not specify how the newsletter would be published, but Costello said putting the library in charge of the effort would make the most sense because the library is the information center for the town.

He volunteered to edit the newsletter for the next two years, with the assistance of other members of the Friends of the Library.

Costello said he would like to start publishing the newsletter this September. In other action, the board voted to notify the Zoning Commission of complaints from residents on Tumblebrook Road about cows and buffaloes wandering from the Bolton Riding Stables. Administrative assistant Karen Levine and Selectman Sandra Pierog said that they had received three complaints each over the weekend about the animals, which were reportedly roaming on laws and on the street. Levine said that on the average the board receives a complaint every six months about animals roaming from the stable.

O'Neill denies deal to name black judge

HARTFORD (AP) — Gov. William A. O'Neill said Friday that his office did not try to strike a deal with black legislators by nominating a black judge to the Supreme Court in exchange for their opposition to an election bill backed by liberals.

Capitol sources said this week that the governor's office had tried to make such a deal.

Asked about it Friday, O'Neill said the allegation was "absolutely, totally, completely untrue."

One member of the legislature's Black and Hispanic Caucus, Rep. Eric D. Coleman, D-Bloomfield, has also denied the claim, saying there was "no connection between our vote and a Supreme Court justice."

Last week, O'Neill nominated Superior Court Judge Robert D. Glass to the state Supreme Court. If confirmed, Glass would be the first black on the state's highest bench.

The bill would have made it easier for candidates to qualify for primary elections and was supported by many of those who last year supported Toby Moffett in his attempt to wrest the Democratic gubernatorial nomination from O'Neill.

After a bitter campaign, Moffett fell just short of the support he needed to qualify for a primary against O'Neill.

Some supporters of the bill, which failed in the House, said the governor had turned the debate into a loyalty test for O'Neill.

"It seems to me that whenever anything is done for the party (by) me as the leader, as the governor, it's the side of darkness and doom and gloom that prevails," O'Neill told reporters.

"When it's the other way, it's the side of right and light."

"I kind of think that we're just as right and just as light as any other group in the building," the governor said.

On one other topic, O'Neill said hope was fading that a new correction commissioner would be found and nominated before the current legislative session ends on June 3.

He said it was "very possible" that a candidate would be given an interim appointment and then confirmed when the 1988 General Assembly convenes.

The governor decided not to reappoint Raymond M. Lopes as correction commissioner after the governor staff concluded he was guilty of dereliction for failing to pursue allegations that a staff doctor was trading drugs for sexual favors among inmates.

Lopes remains as acting commissioner while a search for a successor continues.

Construction strike talks recess after five hours

By The Associated Press

Representatives of striking heavy equipment operators and the Connecticut Construction Industries Association met for five hours Friday without settling the 8-day-old walkout that has brought the state's construction industry to a standstill.

"We made considerable progress today," state Labor Commissioner P. Joseph Ferraro, who called both sides to the table, said in a statement. "However, there are still areas that need consideration. We'll return to the bargaining table at 10 a.m. Wednesday."

Some 1,500 heavy equipment operators walked off the job Monday after rejecting three contract proposals made by the CCIA, which negotiates on behalf of more than 300 contractors.

Among the projects affected are most road and bridge repairs financed through the state's $5.5 billion infrastructure program. The strikers also work in quarries and cement and bituminous plants, meaning other contractors not directly affected by the strike cannot get materials.

On Friday, State Transportation Commissioner J. William Burns said: "Just about all the state projects are shut down."

"A very few haven't shut down — those being done with non-union contractors are not affected, and there's a couple where continuing work is a matter of public safety and the striking union hasn't shut them down."

He said he was disappointed no settlement was reached, but encouraged by plans for another negotiating session after the Memorial Day weekend.

"Every day that you miss this time of year in construction, you can't make it up in the winter time because the jobs do close down," Gov. William A. O'Neill said. "So it's very important that they get back to work as soon as humanly possible."

"At the same time, the state and its municipalities shouldn't get in to try to dictate the settlement," O'Neill said. "That's between labor and management. I would hope some solution would come out ... if not today, as soon as possible."

The major issue in the dispute is pay. The CCIA's last contract offer to the engineers was a 16 percent increase over three years, according to Bill Huebner, director of public affairs.

The Hamden-based International Union of Operating Engineers Local 478 is requesting a $4.50 hourly increase in wages and benefits for heavy equipment operators and highway construction workers, and $3.60 for compressors, pumps, welders and others, according to Eileen Defkin, executive secretary.

U.S./World in Brief

Donovan trial in turmoil

NEW YORK — The judge in the larceny and business fraud trial of former U.S. Labor Secretary Raymond J. Donovan on Friday excused a juror who apparently suffered a mental breakdown and ranted in the courtroom.

Juror Milagros Arroyo, surrounded by five guards, clutched a Bible and chanted, "The Lord is my shepherd" repeatedly. She also recited the 23rd Psalm before being led out by officers after she talked to the judge.

Justice John P. Collins said he was considering a defense request to declare a mistrial.

Following an examination of the juror by a psychiatrist, Collins said, "The court finds this juror grossly unqualified to continue to sit as a juror in this case."

Compromise reached in Fiji

SUVA, FIJI — The governor general retained executive power in a compromise Friday with Fiji's paramount chief, but the colonel who led last week's coup appeared firmly in control behind the scenes.

Ratu Sir Penaia Ganilau, the governor general, said in a broadcast to the nation that he would swear in a 19-member advisory council to administer the South Pacific archipelago under a state of emergency until elections can be held in about six months.

Many members of the council were chosen by Lt. Col. Sitiveni Rabuka, 38, who precipitated the crisis by marching into Parliament with a group of soldiers May 14 and seizing Prime Minister Timoci Bavadra and his Cabinet.

AIDS education a success

SAN FRANCISCO — Three studies have found that the city's "safe sex" education efforts have significantly reduced the percentage of homosexual men getting infected with the AIDS virus.

A study conducted by the San Francisco Department of Public Health found that less than 1 percent of gay men in the city became infected with the AIDS virus last year.

A study by the University of California at Berkeley in conjunction with the National Institutes of Health found that less than 5 percent of gay men became infected with the AIDS virus in 1988.

A third study of local gay men, conducted by epidemiologists at San Francisco General Hospital, found a negligible increase in AIDS-infected male homosexuals in 1988.

Mozart works sell for millions

LONDON — A mystery buyer on Friday paid a record 2.565 million pounds ($4.34 million) at auction for a bound volume of nine complete symphonies of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart in his handwriting.

Sotheby's auction house, which conducted the sale, described the work as "the most important music manuscript to be auctioned this century."

The manuscript was purchased by London picture dealer James Kirkman, who declined to say for whom he was buying it, for 2.35 million pounds ($3.55 million). Sotheby's charges an additional 10 percent commission.

The manuscript was sold by a private collector on the European continent, who wished to remain anonymous.

Joan Rivers bounces back

LAS VEGAS Nev. — Joan Rivers may have been bounced as permanent host of "The Late Show," but she continues to draw sellout crowds and standing ovations on the Las Vegas Strip.

"First of all, you're looking finally at someone who has figured out how a woman can make Johnny Carson happy," Rivers said in opening her stint at Caesars Palace.

The comment was the only reference she made to her celebrated battle with the "Tonight Show" host over turf rights for late-night television. She made no comment about her departure as Fox's first lady of comedy.

The remainder of her show featured her stock-in-trade caustic comments directed at celebrities and herself, and frank discussions with members of the audience about subjects such as sex.

MARK HIRT OF MISSOURI
in "Spirit of Kansas City"

Pilot abandons Lindbergh flight

NEW YORK (AP) — A pilot trying to duplicate Charles Lindbergh's 1927 solo New York-to-Paris flight abandoned the attempt after 7 1/2 hours Friday and landed his plane in Canada when he realized he was burning too much fuel, a spokesman said.

Mark Hirt, 24, landed the "Spirit of Kansas City" safely in St. John's, Newfoundland, at about 2:30 p.m. EDT, said Win Perkins, a spokesman for the project.

Hirt took off from Kennedy International Airport at 7:12 a.m. with 100 gallons of fuel. He had hoped to land about 22 hours later, late Saturday morning French time, at Le Bourget airfield, as Lindbergh did 60 years ago this week in the "Spirit of St. Louis."

"His fuel burn was higher than he anticipated," said Perkins. "He elected to terminate the flight at that point while he still had an airport beneath him."

Perkins said it was unclear what caused the experimental airplane's problem. "I think climbing to 7,500 feet, he used a lot more fuel to get up there than he thought he would."

Hirt had packed chicken soup, potato chips and soft drinks along with extra fuel and survival equipment for the journey. A brisk tailwind and clear skies aided him after takeoff.

About five hours after takeoff, the plane was 300 miles southwest of St. John's, and Perkins said the flight was on schedule with no reported problems.

"He got to Newfoundland, the last place he could make a decision like this, and decided it would not be prudent to try and make it across the ocean," said Perkins.

Perkins said Hirt was "a little dejected right now." Hirt, of Kansas City, Mo., said his interest in planes began early, with model airplanes, then radio-controlled planes, then the real things.

Iron starts fire that kills 7

CHICAGO (AP) — A clothes iron ignited bedroom carpeting in a basement apartment Friday, touching off a smoky fire that killed five children and two women, investigators said.

Smoke inhalation and carbon-monoxide poisoning were blamed for the fatal fire.

"We recovered the iron from dead center" of the blaze, on the floor, said Detective Robert Sherwin of the police Bomb and Arson Squad. "The iron apparently ignited the bedroom carpeting and the fire spread to a nearby mattress where one of the children was lying," he said.

"That place wasn't fit to live in," said Felix Winfield, 21, whose sister and her four children died in the fire. "There was only one way out, and there wasn't any smoke detector."

Chicago Fire Department spokesman Jerry Lawrence said the victims apparently were asleep when the fire broke out, and confirmed that there were no smoke detectors in the apartment though they are required in residential units.

Detectors "might have provided the early warning necessary for the residents to escape, particularly considering how minor the fire was," Lawrence said.

Sherwin said the apartment may have also been in violation of city housing code because it had just one exit. But the city inspection department said officials had not determined whether it was large enough to require a second exit.

The landlord, Henry Kao of Winnetka, told reporters at the scene that he had purchased the building recently and was in the process of renovating it.

The victims included Angilia Winfield, 25, and her children Michael, 4, Latola, 5, and Quintina, 7, according to the Cook County medical examiner's office. Also killed were Reethan Boyd, 3, and his mother, Valerie Boyd, 29.

Ms. Winfield's 1-year-old daughter, Adora, died later Friday in Children's Memorial Hospital, spokeswoman Joan Benzies said.

Sherwin said the apartment had been rented to Ms. Boyd and Charles Winfield, another brother of Ms. Winfield. Ms. Winfield and her four youngsters moved in after a recent fire at their previous apartment, he said. Charles Winfield was visiting his father at the time of Friday's fire, Sherwin said.

TWO HEART TRANSPLANT PATIENTS MEET IN BALTIMORE
... in first appearance since their surgery 12 days ago

Transplant pals keep in touch

BALTIMORE (AP) — The nation's first living heart-transplant donor and his recipient agreed Friday that they would keep in touch and closely watch each other's progress after their rare "domino donor" transplant.

The subdued meeting Friday before a small number of journalists was the second for heart patient John Couch and Clinton House, a cystic fibrosis victim. Less than two weeks ago, House gave his healthy heart to Couch while he received a heart and lungs from an unidentified automobile accident victim. "Right now ... this is actually probably the best I've felt in several years," said Couch, a 38-year-old bookkeeper from Yardley, Pa. He had been bedridden with congestive heart failure for seven months.

Couch, sitting with House in a patients' lounge at Johns Hopkins Hospital, said he was grateful to the 28-year-old refrigeration worker, adding "you usually don't get a chance to meet your donor."

"Fortunately in my case, I didn't have to die to donate," said House, of Essex, Md. "Unfortunately, my donor had to. He's the star in all this."

Couch agreed, saying he hoped their transplants would encourage more organ donations.

"There are people on waiting lists who do die," Couch said. "They don't get the chance to get an organ."

House, whose lungs were nearly destroyed by his inherited disease, said he didn't hesitate for a moment when Johns Hopkins surgeons suggested the dual transplants May 18. The operations were finished the next day.

Disabled Canadian completes 25,000-mile fund-raising trek

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — When Rick Hansen left a Vancouver shopping plaza 26 months ago vowing to circle the globe in his wheelchair, some thought he'd be lucky to reach Seattle.

But 34 countries and 25,000 miles later, Hansen burst through a yellow "Welcome Home" ribbon Friday in bright sunshine and completed his odyssey as a national hero.

"I almost think I'm in a dream or something," he said as he entered Oakridge shopping center, where his trip began.

About 20,000 people lined streets and parking lots in a boisterous welcome, many waving yellow ribbons at Hansen, who wore a blue athletic shirt. He waved back to the left and right.

Organizers estimated that he turned the wheel of his customized wheelchair 16.4 million times to complete a journey he had dreamed of for a decade.

"It's an incredible feeling to travel this far for so long and to finish off on a positive note," he said as his "Man in Motion" tour resumed Friday.

The 38-year-old wheelchair athlete, whose spinal cord was severed in a pickup truck accident when he was 15, propelled himself across the Swiss Alps, met Pope John Paul II and ascended the Great Wall of China on a journey to raise awareness about handicapped people and raise money for research. His convoy-like entourage, including a motor home, became a familiar sight on Canadian highways as he zigzagged across the country.

His total mileage exceeded the Earth's circumference.

Hansen lost track of how many gloves he wore out rolling his extended-frame wheelchair. And he dismissed the setbacks, such as the theft of customized clothing in New Zealand and a motor home crash in Florida.

In Shanghai, half the wheelchair athletes who joined Hansen on the road folded up their wheelchairs and walked away after he left. The incident became known as the "Great China Miracle."

When he began the final push across Canada last August, there was just $129,000 in a trust fund Hansen had hoped would reach $7.5 million before he was through. But funds poured in as schoolchildren, housewives, workers and the disabled welcomed him on the westward trek to his home province of British Columbia. The total was expected to hit nearly $11.25 million because of a last-minute flurry of donations.

Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, calling Hansen "a fantastic ambassador," pledged $750,000 from the government.

PTL brass tells Bakker he must return bonuses

FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) — PTL ministry officials said Friday they have accounted for $80 million out of $92 million in missing donations and called on former chairman Jim Bakker to return a hefty bonus he received in the first three months of 1987.

"The plane that was in a dive, we've pulled up and gotten it stabilized," said Chief Executive Officer Jerry Nims.

The ministry also announced it had raised $3.5 million in one week and was hoping to raise an additional $500,000 with an auction Saturday of items including a 7-foot bronze giraffe, a 1927 Franklin car and an environmental shower that includes a sauna.

Nims said Bakker and his wife got $400,000 during the first 10 days of February alone. Hefty bonuses also went to former PTL President Richard Dortch, aide David Taggart, and Taggart's brother, an interior decorator used by PTL.

"Usually you get bonuses for success, but at the time they took the bonuses, this ministry was going down $1 million to $4 million per month. Those bonuses, when you add them up, are in seven figures," Nims said.

Bakker resigned as PTL chairman March 19 after admitting to a 1980 sexual liaison with a church secretary, and turned the troubled cable television ministry over to the Rev. Jerry Falwell. Dortch resigned a few weeks later.

On Friday, Bakker's daughter, Tammy Sue, had harsh words about Falwell.

"All Jerry Falwell did was lie to my father, just outright lie to him," she told reporters. "Telling him you can come back anytime you want and you can have the ministry back ... and then what does he do on TV, tells Dad right on TV, 'You cannot ever come back to Heritage USA.' Now if that's not a lie I don't know what is."

Falwell, reached by telephone Friday night at his Lynchburg, Va., home, told The Associated Press he sympathized with the Bakker children and said "they need and deserve our love and prayerful support."

"It is very understandable that the daughter would feel quite strongly regarding this matter," he said.

The Washington Post on Friday reported further allegations about Bakker's sexual activities, quoting a circus ringmaster turned preacher as saying he once found Bakker "frotting in the nude" with three men in a steam room.

Mexico economy still in recession

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico, with the developing world's second-highest foreign debt, will probably qualify for $200 million in special foreign loans to help pull its sluggish economy out of recession, government and private economists say.

The $200 million account was provided for when the Mexican government recently negotiated a $7.7 billion loan agreement with its bank creditors. The agreement provided that the extra money would be made available for investment projects if the economy was slow to recuperate in the first quarter of the year.

Both economists and government officials indicate it was.

The slow performance of Mexico's economy is a fresh sign of the economic woes of the Latin American debtor nations. Earlier this week, Citicory, the second-biggest U.S. banking company, set aside $3 billion to cover possible losses on foreign loans. It also gave a gloomy economic forecast for the region.

The Mexican economy has been hurt by falling oil prices, inflation and a delay in negotiating the loan agreement.

A high-level government official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Mexico will likely be able to tap the additional loans.

"Most likely that (money) will be drawn," he said in a recent interview.

"They will get the money," said Rogelio Ramirez de la O, who has a private economic forecasting firm in Mexico City. The economy as a whole, he said, "is very weak yet" and is unlikely to begin turning up until July.

Neither the government nor the bankers has made an official announcement about disbursement of the money.

Under terms of the arrangement, Mexico would be eligible for the money if economic activity increased less than 1 percent in the first quarter of the year, said a government analyst, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The index of manufacturing production, used as the trigger for the account, fell a hefty 5.7 percent in January and 8.5 percent in February, he said.

Fears of revived inflation spook Wall Street traders

NEW YORK (AP) — Fears of revived inflation have spooked Wall Street's financial markets in recent weeks.

But if some analysts are right, traders who have been scared out of stocks and bonds have only been seeing ghosts.

"We still expect that the 'last great inflation scare' will be over by the end of the summer," said Edward Yardeni, economist at Prudential-Bache Securities. "That's because the economy still looks fairly anemic."

The optimism on the inflation outlook got something of a boost Friday, when the Labor Department reported that the Consumer Price Index rose 0.4 percent in April, matching its increase in the two previous months.

Before the report was issued, fears had been mounting that it might contain a nasty surprise or two.

Talk of a pickup in the inflation rate has been prompted by two primary factors — the dollar's decline against other currencies and a recent upsurge in commodity prices, as measured by an index published by the Commodity Research Bureau.

On May 11, the commodity index took one of its biggest single-day jumps ever. Charles LaLoggia, a Rochester, N.Y., investment adviser, maintains that a chart of the index shows "an important upside breakout."

"The commodity markets are telling us that inflation has seen its low point for the time being and that the inflation figures in the months ahead are likely to show bigger increases," he says.

What prompted this rise? "The plunge in the value of the dollar is a principal cause of the runup in commodity prices," said Jack Lavery, economist at Merrill Lynch.

"Because most commodities are priced in dollars, a weaker dollar means that more dollars are needed to buy those commodities."

In addition, the weaker dollar lifted inflation expectations, which further boosted precious-metals prices, and raised estimates of agricultural export demand, which boosted grain prices, a large component of the CRB index.

However, Lavery is sticking with a forecast of a 5 percent inflation-rate this year. For one thing, he says, "commodity prices are only one input in the production process."

"Labor costs, comprising about two-thirds of total costs, are far more important. Unit labor costs were up only 1.7 percent during the past year, and labor costs show no sign of accelerating despite the drop in the unemployment rate."

Such reassurances were not enough to keep the stock market from posting its second straight broad decline in the past week. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 29.22 to 2,243.20.

Prices push inflation to 6 percent annually

By Tom Rasm The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Higher prices for food, energy and some imports nudged up consumer prices 0.4 percent in April, bringing inflation to an annual rate of 6 percent so far this year, the government reported Friday.

Economists suggested a weak economy could be keeping prices from going even higher.

Recent declines in the value of the dollar, which are making many foreign goods more expensive, accounted for some of the April increase in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index, analysts said.

But one category that bucked the trend and went down in April — by 0.4 percent — was home appliances and electronics goods, of which imports comprise a major share.

"Technology is still beating the dollar," said David Wyss, senior economist for Data Resources Inc.

The drop in these prices also indicated that the imposition by the Reagan administration last month of $300 million in tariffs on Japanese televisions, computers and power tools was having no immediate impact on U.S. consumers.

In fact, television prices actually declined 0.8 percent during the month. "People just bought Korean TVs instead of Japanese ones," Wyss suggested.

The April CPI increase, which alone was equivalent to an annual inflation rate of 5.5 percent, matched 0.4 percent rises in March and February. Prices had gone up 0.7 percent in January.

In another report, the Commerce Department said that the economy, as measured by the Gross National Product, grew at a 4.4 percent annual rate from January to March, the fastest pace in nearly three years.

But most of the strength came from an unwanted buildup of business inventories. Economists predicted far weaker results in the current April-June quarter as production tapers off to reduce the inventories.

The new GNP figure marked a slight revision from the 4.3 percent increase the Commerce Department had initially reported for the first quarter. The economy grew by 2.5 percent last year. Most analysts expect it to grow around 3 percent for all of 1987.

In other government reports: • The Commerce Department said orders for "big ticket" durable goods inched up 0.1 percent in April, the poorest showing in three months.

The same agency said after-tax corporate profits fell 5.3 percent in the first quarter, the biggest decline since a 9 percent drop in the first three months of 1986.

"Overall, the economy looks like it's very sluggish," said Michael Penser, vice president and senior economist for the Bank of America in San Francisco. "With the economy so sluggish, it would be difficult to envision much higher rates of inflation."

Still, inflation this year, if not approaching the double-digit pace of the late 1970s and early 1980s, was dwarfing the scant 1.1 percent increase posted for all of 1986 and was running well above the 3.8 percent rate projected for 1987 by the Reagan administration.

Some economists said they were heartened that the consumer price figures were not higher, citing last week's report that wholesale prices in April had surged 0.7 percent, or at an annual rate of 5.9 percent.

April's price increases were wide-ranging. Food costs were up 0.3 percent, after declining 0.1 percent in March, with most of the increase coming from sharply higher fruit and vegetable prices.

Energy prices, still rebounding from last year's collapse in world oil prices, also rose 0.3 percent. Gasoline cost 0.7 percent more at the pump than it did the month before; home heating oil was up 2.5 percent. But these increases were partially offset by a 0.3 percent decline in natural gas and electricity costs.

Goods other than food and energy — the category that most reflects the higher cost of imports — were up 0.5 percent in April.

Business in Brief

Bill requires CL&P rebates

HARTFORD — The state Senate on Friday approved a bill requiring the Connecticut Light & Power Co. to return to customers what are known as excess profits beginning next year.

Currently, any CL&P profits above 16 percent must go into a ratepayer fund to be used to offset future requests for electric and gas rate increases.

Under the bill approved Friday and sent to the governor, future profits above 16 percent would have to be returned to CL&P customers on or before July 1, 1988, presumably through credits on their bills.

Any money in the ratepayer fund after that date must either be used within a year to offset a rate increase or be returned to customers.

Battiston's opening delayed

VERNON — Battiston's 18th store, to be located at Route 83 and Dobson Road, will not be celebrating its grand opening on Wednesday. The statewide strike by construction equipment operators has canceled work that was to be completed this week, the company said.

According to owner Leonard Battiston, "We are very unhappy about delaying our opening because we set our original schedule back a few months last spring to allow for the removal of the Benjamin Talcott house."

A new date cannot be set until the strike is over and paving and sidewalk work is rescheduled, he said.

First Federal gets stock OK

EAST HARTFORD — George Stewart, president of First Federal Savings and Loan of East Hartford, has announced that the bank has received approval to issue stock in connection with its conversion from a mutual savings and loan to a stock chartered savings and loan.

The $200 million savings and loan expects to complete the conversion by the end of June, subject to the final approval of Federal Home Loan Bank Board in Washington, and the approval of the voting association's members at a special meeting to be held June 15.

First Federal has eight offices and more than 125 employees.

Kjellson served as delegate

Ernest J. Kjellson of Manchester served as a delegate to Lutheran Brotherhood's 22nd general convention, held May 16 in Minneapolis.

Kjellson was one of 276 individuals representing more than 900,000 Lutheran Brotherhood members nationwide. The general convention, held every four years, is the supreme governing body of the fraternal benefit society.

Airline, feds fight over cash

MINNEAPOLIS — Northwest Airlines and the federal government are squabbling in court over who will keep $1.2 million in suspected drug money found in a crate at Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport.

The Minneapolis-based airline says it should be allowed to keep the money.

However, federal officials say all money from illegal activity belongs to the government.

The two sides met in a pretrial conference before U.S. Magistrate Jan Symchych on Friday morning. A schedule for submitting briefs and motions was established, but no trial date was set.

People's to open loan office

People's Bank, taking advantage of Manchester's highly active mortgage market, will open a mortgage and loan center on Broad Street June 8, a company official said Thursday.

The office, which will be located in the former Frankie's fast-food restaurant, will originate first and second mortgages, car loans, personal loans and equity credit lines, Chandler J. Howard, vice president of consumer banking, said.

He said the branch would start with four employees and will probably expand in the next few years.

"This office is being geared specifically for the Manchester market," Howard said. "We

Mutual fund ad is a loser

QUESTION: I invested $30,000 in a mutual fund the broker said was "the safest around." He told me it would "fluctuate," but "only pennies a day."

Well, I paid more than $1,500 commissions at the time of purchase. Then, the value of my investment dropped another $600 in the first two months and even more since. I'm 67 and get upset about the way the value goes down.

This fund's sales literature headlines "A high current return portfolio of U.S. government securities — the investment safety standard of the world."

I don't think companies should be allowed to advertise like this. Do you?

ANSWER: No. But the Securities and Exchange Commission, which has the say-so on the matter, thinks otherwise. As a result, some mutual fund organizations have been getting away with pie-in-the-sky promotional literature and advertising.

Things used to be different. From 1950 until early 1979, the SEC enforced a "statement of policy," which drastically restricted what mutual funds, their sales organizations and brokers could say in advertising and sales literature. Advertising was strictly the "lomb-stone" type, giving a fund's name, address and a request for a prospectus. Sales literature could go into details, but make no outlandish statements.

In March 1979, the SEC scrapped that statement of policy and adopted a rule supposedly barring "false and misleading" fund sales literature. That was followed by a rule allowing funds to run ads containing any material, the substance of which is in the prospectus.

That opened the floodgates to the type of promotional literature such as you so rightfully gripe about. It also has brought on an increasing number of complaints from investors.

Recently, the SEC has been making noises about cracking down. Staff employees of the SEC have been pushing for a strict mutual fund advertising code. But the five-member SEC hasn't revised the basic rules which have been in effect since 1979.

to blame but yourself.

QUESTION: Where can I obtain a list of true no-load mutual funds, those with no commission at the time of purchase, no charge when shares are cashed in and no 12(b)1 plan as a constant added expense?

ANSWER: Send a $5 check or money order to No-Load Mutual Fund Association, Investor's Directory, P.O. Box 2004, Dept. D, JAF Building, New York, N.Y. 10116.

The association's 1987 directory has the list you're looking for, plus reasonably detailed information about no-load mutual funds.

The director does include some low-load funds with commissions of up to 3.5 percent at the time of purchase, some funds with redemption fees or contingent deferred sales charges — both of which are rear-end loads on investors who cash in — as well as some funds with infamous 12(b)1 plans.

However, the low-load funds and those with rear-end loads and 12(b)1 plans are identified in the directory. Assuming you want to avoid such charges, you can steer clear of the mutual funds levying them and invest only in true no-load funds.

by the statement — usually in very small type — in their advertisements to "read the prospectus before investing." Should we take this as a warning?

ANSWER: "Warning" might be too strong a word. Statements such as you mention are required in all mutual fund ads. The SEC hasn't caved in on that requirement.

A prospectus is a disclosure document, containing all pertinent information about the mutual fund that printed it. Every mutual fund is required to update its prospectus annually.

If you buy shares of a mutual fund without studying its prospectus and have some unpleasant investment surprises later on, you have no one to blame but yourself.

Blacktop no answer for walks

Apparently some town officials haven't learned that you generally get what you pay for.

At Tuesday's meeting of the town Board of Directors, Public Works Director George Kandra suggested that blacktop be used instead of cement to repair the town's sidewalks. The blacktop would be cheaper and would allow town crews to better keep up with repairs because they could lay it themselves, he said.

Kandra's suggestion met with the support of at least one director.

Anyone who has spent much time in Manchester on foot knows that many of its sidewalks need repair badly. The town is constantly bombarded with lawsuits or the threat of litigation from pedestrians who claim to have fallen as a result of damaged sidewalks.

Something must be done soon to correct the problem, but blacktop is not the answer.

While blacktop might be suitable for very temporary repairs, it could very well end up causing more trouble than it saves. The material is far from durable and unless town crews are prepared to spend a good part of their time keeping up with the deterioration, use of blacktop will probably only ensure that the town's sidewalks will be even more dilapidated for years to come.

It makes no sense for a town that requires granite curbing along its streets to blacktop its sidewalks. The reason blacktop is not considered suitable for curbing is its lack of durability and short lifespan — characteristics that would be just as pronounced were it to be used for sidewalks.

Kandra suggested that unless the town expands its sidewalk-repair program and uses blacktop instead of cement, it would take years before the sidewalks are brought up to par.

Waiting and doing the job right is preferable to hastily repairing sidewalks with a material that is bound to increase the work now facing maintenance crews.

Memorial Day is a proud day

To the Editor:

As we pause this Memorial Day and listen to the sound of taps, we can reflect on the many memories of our beloved war veterans of all wars. 'Tis but a beauty of a sight as we pass through our cemeteries and see the little Stars and Stripes waving in the breeze, "row upon row."

Memorial Day is a proud day as we remember those who gave their very all. It is a day for all Americans to find time to share these moments of reflection. Another small symbol of memoriam is the little American Legion red poppy. These little paper flowers are made by hand by the veterans in the Veterans Administration hospitals.

Let us, too, remember those who don the uniforms of our armed services and serve this nation in many parts of the world today. God bless America and those who care.

Latin in Bolton should be bigger

To the Editor:

Of course the Latin Club is bigger than athletics — and it should be. Our young people are attending school to learn, to be prepared to go out into the world with knowledge that will help them throughout their lives. Playing sports is just one small part of life and even though some people (hopefully a minority) want the youngsters to win at all costs (including lack of family life) I believe the majority of people of Bolton realize that the sports are games, physical releases, enjoyable competitions where trying your best should be the goal of the players and coaches alike. Too much is made of the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat.

I would also question Len Auster for glorifying a coach who would abuse his players either verbally or physically. I'm sure his research is a bit lacking in this particular time.

Bolton would love a bigger and better field, more gyms, and if we had a few million to spare I'd love to see a pool at both the high school and middle school, but we have to face reality. The school is the fifth smallest in the state and may not be athletically the top of its class, but academically we are one of the best. We can thank the teachers, administrators and, yes, the people of Bolton for putting priorities where they should be. The youngsters we educate now are our best hope for the future.

Laserquest could be healthy game

To the Editor:

I have watched with great interest the creation of what seems to me to be a tempest in a teapot: the Laserquest controversy.

I have used a laser for treatment of an animal infirmity and know that lasers have many applications in human and veterinary medicine. The very weak laser devices used in the arcade-like games of the proposed Laserquest facility are not devices that would condition our youth to become Star Wars- or any other kind of war-oriented. As a pacifist I prefer to see our youth have a supervised purging of the aggression which the great social scientist Lorenz says is inherent in all animals, rather than have them beat each other up in such areas as a boxing ring or a hockey rink.

As a writer and teacher of social science, I see no logical nexus between an individual using a laser for fun and his becoming a proponent of war and a user of high-powered arms. I would rather see our youth in a supervised Disney-like environment, zapping giant insects and imaginary demons out of flying saucers, than running amok in our beautiful Connecticut fields and woods and shooting down the innocent, living, God-created creatures whose natural habitat we constantly invade.

Perhaps the people who oppose Laserquest should ponder the above before they reject out of hand a project which may be an honest attempt at providing a healthy catharsis and recreation for folks.

Ex-Nixon counselor now a Reagan man

WASHINGTON — David Abshire, the special counselor brought aboard to navigate President Reagan's leaking, creaking ship of state through the Iran/contra shoals, is no stranger to White House scandals. As an assistant secretary of state several years ago, Abshire was assigned to bail the Nixon administration out of a pre-Watergate political mess.

Documents on the case were recently released as part of Richard Nixon's voluminous Watergate files. The documents included memos between Abshire and White House counsel John Dean, the baritone canary with the steel-trap memory whose singing would be hit of the Watergate hearings a few years later.

Here are the details of Abshire's earlier salvage mission: In 1968, Greek exile journalist Elias Demetracopoulos came across information suggesting that CIA money was ending up in the presidential campaign of Nixon and Spiro Agnew that year. Demetracopoulos learned that the Greek military junta's intelligence service, the KYP, subsidized by the CIA, was secretly contributing money to the Nixon-Agnew campaign through Greek-American businessman Thomas Pappas.

AS WE REPORTED in 1983, sources speculated that Demetracopoulos' evidence of indirect funding for Nixon-Agnew, which the journalist turned over to Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien, might have been one reason the Watergate burglary was authorized.

The story about Pappas and the CIA-KYP connection was essentially confirmed years later by a former U.S. ambassador to Greece, Henry Tasea. But in 1968, when Demetracopoulos took his evidence to O'Brien and later to a House subcommittee, the Nixon administration went after him with a vengeance.

Attorney General John Mitchell threatened to have the Greek deported, and both the State Department and the CIA leaked false information on Demetracopoulos in an attempt to discredit him.

Part of this disinformation campaign was an anonymous State Department memo, given to House Speaker Carl Albert, accusing Demetracopoulos of printing classified documents that hurt U.S.-Greek relations. The memo, which was fabricated with the CIA's help, also included a barrage of false charges attacking the Greek journalist's character.

When Demetracopoulos learned of the memo and demanded a retraction, the State Department assigned Abshire to mediate. In a memo to White House counsel Dean, Abshire wrote: "I have attempted to mollify him (Demetracopoulos) with a letter which explained that the paper was being withdrawn, and that I personally would not have approved the distribution of such information in this form."

IN HIS NOTE TO Dean, Abshire admitted that the charges in the State Department memo were "based on raw and unevaluated reports," and said Demetracopoulos might have a legal case against the department. Abshire's memo closed by saying he would write again to Demetracopoulos and offer a complete apology. This was done; Abshire had gotten the State Department off the hook.

Footnote: The CIA persisted in its disinformation campaign against Demetracopoulos. It slipped a similar derogatory memo to the authors of a book called "The Power Peddlers," published in 1977, and to a New York Times writer later that year for a profile on Demetracopoulos. Both stories were subsequently investigated by Congress. In 1968, the Times retracted its story; in 1968, the CIA acknowledged in writing that it had no derogatory information on Demetracopoulos.

Back from the grave

The Social Security Administration erroneously declared a Medicare recipient dead last year, and it took the poor man five months of living, breathing and complaining to convince that bureaucrats that he should get his medical benefits restored.

According to General Accounting Office auditors, the man's efforts were aided by Social Security employees in one office, but they couldn't make headway against employees in the office that had made the original error and declared him dead. The auditors cited the case as an extreme example of the lack of communication they said exists between agency offices, and frequently inconveniences beneficiaries.

According to the auditors' report, obtained by our reporter Karen Talley, the man didn't know he had been declared dead until a Social Security employee called to confirm the information. The phone call was followed up by a visit from field office employees, who reported back that "he was still living."

That was in April 1988. The field office employees reported that their visit and the earlier death notification had left the man "greatly upset" — and without his Medicare benefits. It was months before the office in charge of his benefits — which had issued the false declaration of his death — admitted its information was wrong and restored his medical benefits.

Absent-minded Bureaucrat

Congressional investigators stumbled onto a scene from an old Peter Sellers movie recently: an office in the International Trade Commission piled high with about 100 boxes and stacks of documents. The director said the stuff had been there for months, and probably contained classified data mixed in with unclassified documents. As it turned out, the papers were historical records, some apparently dating back to 1920 — and some in fact bearing security classifications. The trade commission said it would find out how to declassify documents and go to work on the stacks. But a few weeks later, the boxes were still sitting there.

Reagan is living a lily-white lie

By Chuck Stone

Until President Reagan recently spoke at Tuskegee University's commencement, the word "chutpah" was adequately explained by an ancient Hebrew definition: A boy kills his parents, then asks the court for mercy because he's an orphan.

Leave it to our ingenious president to Americanize the definition of chutpah: His policies cause a decline in the enrollment of black college students and the shrinking of finances at black colleges, then he exhorts black college graduates to "be part of the great technological and scientific changes sweeping our country and the world."

If you give Ronald Reagan an appropriately docile black audience, he can do a pretty good impersonation of an NAACP official.

But his policies toward minorities are still flagrantly hypocritical. A case in point is the Foreign Service.

Under the Reagan administration, the Foreign Service has moved with quiet inexcusable toward a policy of lily-white representation.

THE NUMBER of black ambassadors has declined from a high of 17 during the Carter administration to five in the Reagan administration.

Most of those are assigned to what the State Department calls "class three embassies."

At the present time, there are only three blacks among the State Department's 200 executive directors and only 12 blacks among the 670 members of the senior Foreign Service. The latter number represents 1.8 percent, which is just about the percentage of blacks President Reagan feels comfortable with in his administration. (According to one informed wag, every time Reagan sees five young black men together, he hands them a basketball.)

Reagan has been moving with no fanfare to return the State Department to its pre-Kennedy posture — a white male bastion.

Kennedy was the first president in American history to begin dismantling that citadel of white male exclusivity.

For the first time in history, three blacks served at the same time as ambassadors, three as deputy assistant secretaries of state, and one as a special assistant to the deputy under-secretary for administration.

WHEN I STARTED attending President Kennedy's White House press conferences in 1962 (held in the State Department auditorium), one of the first questions I asked him was whether he thought there should be more black ambassadors.

Indeed, a smiling Kennedy replied with a quick firmness. Not only as ambassadors, but all through the top echelons of the State Department and the Agency for International Development.

Since taking office in 1980, Reagan has reversed the Kennedy-Johnson-Nixon-Ford-Carter policy of trying to increase racial equality in the State Department.

Recently, a group of black Foreign Service officers were so alienated by Secretary of State George Shultz's refusal to upgrade black representation through hiring and promotion that they filed a class-action suit charging the State Department with systematic racial discrimination.

They won't win. A Reaganized majority Supreme Court has proved itself unresponsive to class action suits for minorities.

But the lawsuit dimly verifies that, under President Reagan, the U.S. Foreign Service has become an un-American representation of this nation's population.

Such chutpah is not lost on a world that's three fourths colored.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Construction of a new headquarters of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and of their action arm, the U.S. Catholic Conference, is under way on a five-acre site. Work was started last month by the Turner Construction Co. of New York at the site near the Catholic University of America and the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

Clothing bank needs discards

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

By Nancy Carr
MACC Director

Are you still spring housecleaning your drawers and closets? If you are, we want to remind you that the MACC Clothing Bank will make available free of charge the clothing you offer to share with your neighbors.

Last year, thanks to your generosity, 443 Manchester families used the Clothing Bank 1,315 times. Some 734 donors contributed clothing with a total value of $69,000. Many clients are low-income mothers attempting to raise children on limited income. Some of our homeless are frequent clothing bank users, particularly in cold weather. Social workers from local convalescent homes are welcome to take clients to the bank outside the regular hour, if necessary.

An in most of our service programs, we are able to make clothing available free of charge because you donate the clothing, the town Housing Authority (bless them) provides free space and a group of wonderful volunteers donate their labor.

THE CLOTHING BANK, located in the basement of the dining hall at Mayfair Gardens, on the corner of North Main and North School streets, is open to clients and donors throughout the year on Mondays from 1 to 3 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to noon. In addition to Monday and Saturday, volunteers are available to receive donations and restock shelves and racks on Wednesday between 1 and 3 p.m.

Among the volunteers who staff the bank so faithfully are our weekend crews: Flo Curtis, Donna Bautwin, Ruth Brayer, Stella Fyler, Blanche Brown, Julia Vendrillo, Helene Hill, Johanna Pelletier, Donna Motulski and Joe Mader. Three church related groups have committed themselves to keeping the clothing bank open on Saturdays. Volunteers from Daughters of Isabella, (coordinator Anna Mae Potocki) include Rose Sobelo, Catherine Tuskay, Yvonne Lemire and Lynn Stratton. Volunteers from St. Bridget Rosary Society (coordinator Edith Sirian) include Mary Culleton, Freya Parcelak, Lillian Amadas and Mary Young. Community Baptist Church coordinators Bruce and Laurie Green.

MACC News

receive, sort, evaluate, and prepare all your donations for racking. They also help clients find needed items, and in cases of particular urgency, scan donations for special needs. Just a reminder that we would be happy to provide an in-kind voucher which you can use if you itemize your deduction. To receive a voucher you may either itemize your donation (in which case volunteers will assign a value to each item) or simply ask us to assign a value to your donation based on its weight.

Clothing in good to excellent condition is given a value of 50 cents a pound, clothing in good to fair condition is valued at 25 cents a pound. We particularly appreciate those thoughtful donors who provide a self-addressed, stamped envelope with their clothing donation. Preparation of the vouchers and keeping of our in-kind ledgers is the special task and volunteer gift of Jane Galeucia. You can imagine the paper work involved in recording $67,000 and mailing vouchers to over 730 donors.

ONE MORE KINDNESS — Before you bring us your clothing, please remember that many of our families do not have washing machines and very few have sewing machines. So please, my friends, remember to make sure that all clothing is in good condition, clean and mended before you drop it off.

Right now we are looking for summer clothing, particularly for children. Thanks to the good folks at Second Congregational Church, we can store some of the best of the off-season clothes, but for the most part, we must depend on you to store your fall and winter clothing donations for us over the summer. Celebrate — Wonderful family picnic and Pentecost celebration coming up. We are celebrating our birthday as the Church of Christ on Friday, June 5. We're all bringing a picnic basket, chairs, blankets and high spirits to the Band Shell at Manchester Community College to celebrate Pentecost with worship and breaking bread together. The celebration starts at 8 p.m. so mark your calendars now. Please relay on special invitation to your children and grandmas and grandpas.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS by Eugene Brower

Peter R. Drucker wrote: "Efficiency is concerned with doing things right. Effectiveness is doing the right things." Let me add: Efficacy is doing the right things right.

Many are so concerned with efficiency they fail to consider whether the thing being done is right in that situation. Others show little regard for how a task is performed so long as it is the appropriate task.

Can we ignore either the legitimacy of the proposed act or the methods used? It seems to me that such a choice is neither necessary nor justifiable. To be truly successful, we must be equally concerned about both, whether in the secular or the spiritual realm. In the religious world, the liberal seeks for efficiency, whereas the legalist stresses the act. But the Christian is careful for both that he may glorify God, 1 Cor. 10:31.

Is sitter supposed to do more than sit?

DEAR ABBY: Last night, my husband and I went out and left our two children with a baby sitter who arrived as I was dishing up dinner. We returned to find leftover food still on the stove and dirty dishes on the table. I didn't say anything because the girl did perform the job she was paid to do — baby-sit the children.

We've had some sitters who take advantage of the quiet hours after the children are in bed to do the dishes, or at least clear the table and tidy up the toy room. I always thank them and pay them a little extra.

It seems to me that these jobs are an opportunity to develop the good work habits that will carry throughout a career. Rather than just fulfilling the minimum requirements, some young people really make an extra effort.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Am I wrong to expect more from sitters? I feel it's not my place to suggest that they do more than just sit, but it would be great if their parents would! Your comments, please.

SUE

DEAR SUE: A sitter should not be expected to do anything more than just "sit." Further, the sitter who cleans up the kitchen, folds the laundry or does anything besides "sit" should be paid accordingly.

When a sitter is engaged, the ground rules should be established. Some guidelines: What precisely are the sitter's responsibilities? Feed the children? Bathe them, put them to bed? Is the sitter allowed to have company? If so, how many friends? Is the sitter allowed to eat and drink whatever she finds in the fridge, or do you set out the "snack"? May the sitter pass the time talking on the telephone after the children are asleep? If so, how much time? Do you leave a number where you can be reached in case of an emergency? And does the sitter have the name of your physician or someone to call in case you can't be reached in an emergency? Also, do you tell the sitter what time you will be home? And are you as good as your word?

DEAR ABBY: I have never smoked, and I am very sensitive to cigarette smoke. Many of my friends are smokers, but I don't allow anyone to smoke in my car or house.

I'm planning a party in my home for about 30 people. It will be wintertime, and I do not have a separate room that could be set aside for smoking. Abby, I cannot bear the thought of my house, draperies, rugs and furniture smelling of smoke for days afterward!

Some of my friends have indicated that they would not attend my party if they weren't permitted to smoke.

Is it unreasonable of me to maintain my long-standing no-smoking rule?

RED-EYED IN INDIANA

DEAR READ-EYED: No, it's unreasonable of them to refuse to attend unless they are permitted to smoke. Your objections are valid. Accept their regrets and tell them you'll miss them.

Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 6040, Los Angeles, Calif. 90060. All correspondence is confidential.

Thoughts

The call to become a disciple of Jesus Christ demands total commitment. In his book, "The Cost of Discipleship," the great German theologian and martyr Dietrich Bonhoeffer said, "When Christ calls a man, He bids him to come and die." Bonhoeffer's words are a reflection on the words of our Lord Jesus Christ, "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me. For whoever would save his life will lose it; and whoever loses his life for my sake and the gospel's will save it." (Mk. 8:34-35) These are difficult words and undoubtedly elicited feelings of anxiety from those who sought to be disciples of our Lord.

These words of Jesus and Bonhoeffer remind me of the story of the hen and the hog. A hen and a hog, traveling together, passed a church that displayed next Sunday's sermon topic, "How Can We Help the Poor?"

After a moment's meditation, the hen suggested, "I know what we can do. Why don't we give them a ham-and-egg breakfast?"

"That's easy for you to say," replied the hog. "For you that's just a contribution, but for me it would demand total commitment."

That is just what Jesus demands — total commitment.

Help available for genital warts

DEAR DR. GOTT: What can be done about genital warts? I am male, 34, and single, and have refrained from sex to hide my problem. Should I see a general practitioner or a specialist? What procedure should I expect?

DEAR READER: Genital warts are skin eruptions caused by a type of virus that multiplies within the outer skin layer and is spread by sexual contact. Genital warts can be surgically removed, frozen or burned off. There are several compounds, including salicylic acid, that can be applied to warts to cause them to disappear or drop off. In my opinion, genital warts should be removed by urologists, gynecologists, dermatologists or surgeons, depending on the sex of the patient and the number (and location) of the warts.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Every time I get a cold, it ends up as a sinus infection. I'm afraid to go out in public and breathe the air, since I fear I'll catch another cold or flu. Could something else be causing this?

DEAR READER: The sinuses are a series of paired chambers that communicate with the area behind the nose by means of small channels in the moist skin (mucous membranes) of the upper airway. Sinusitis (sinus infection) results when one or more of these channels becomes blocked and the sinus cavities are unable to drain properly.

The blockage is usually caused by a condition called turbidity: a swelling of the mucous membranes that obstructs the flow of mucus from the sinuses. This is why colds and allergies, which cause turbidity, make people more susceptible to sinusitis.

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

In addition, all of us have nasal septums: skin-covered cartilage that separates our nostrils from each other inside the nose. Many people have deviated septums, in which the tissue is pushed to one side or the other, rather than being in the middle. Under these circumstances, swelling of the septal covering also can block a sinus opening.

If you have repeated sinus infections, you should be examined by an ear, nose and throat specialist to determine if there is some anatomical reason for these infections, such as a deviated septum. Surgery may be necessary to repair the septum so that it no longer slants to one side. The specialist also will be able to tell whether the covering of your sinus opening is unusually turbid; in that case, the use of decongestants would help to prevent sinus infections.

Finally, the ENT doctor may discover that you are sensitive to something in your environment — such as dust, pollen or tobacco smoke. He or she might then refer you to an allergist for specific treatment of the allergy.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Where does the palsy that causes headshaking come from? Will a person eventually become bedridden by it?

DEAR READER: The headshaking or senile palsy that affects some elderly people is probably due to the aging of nerve tissue. Although this nerve malfunction can progress to involve the hands and arms, it rarely causes patients to become seriously handicapped or bedridden.

However, headshaking and tremor also occur in several neurological disorders, so patients with this condition should be examined by a neurologist.

Weekly Health Tip

COLD FOOD — HOT CAR

When frozen or "cold" food is purchased, make a beeline for the freezer. Don't cart around frozen food for hours while you do other errands — food poisoning might be the result. Harmful organisms present in minute numbers can reproduce rapidly in food left in a hot auto and can reach critical levels. Subsequent freezing of food does not destroy these poisonous organisms.

Central and Southern hand out diplomas

By The Associated Press

Central Connecticut State University bid farewell to its president while Southern Connecticut State University honored a former Yale president Friday to launch a weekend full of commencements.

President F. Don James presided over his final commencement at Central Connecticut in New Britain, where 1,000 students received degrees. The 55-year-old James, who will retire Oct. 1 after 10 years at the university, told the graduates that they face a critical time in their lives.

"More important than looking back, we can look ahead to the opportunities that lie before us, opportunities made possible because of the accomplishments of the past," he said. "How we regard this change that will occur and what we do with our new opportunities will determine much of the rest of our lives."

At Southern Connecticut in New Haven, baseball's National League President A. Bartlett Giamatti received the university's first honorary doctorate. Giamatti is a former president of Yale.

About 1,000 students listened as SCSU President Michael J. Adanti told Giamatti, "You have been a good neighbor, a brilliant colleague and an inspiring advocate of higher education."

Yale will conduct its commencement ceremonies on Sunday and Monday in New Haven.

Gilligan-Law

Cynthia Elaine Law, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn R. Law of 37 Baldwin Road, and Paul Edward Gilligan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell T. Gilligan of Vernon, were married May 15 at South United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Dr. Shephard S. Johnson of South United Methodist Church and the Rev. Richard Carr, chaplain, major general U.S.A.F., retired, officiated at the candlelight service.

Shelley Dandanel was matron of honor and Jacqueline Dimmock was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kathi Cook, Rhonda Villanova, and Jennifer White. Karen Gorman was junior bridesmaid and Kristina White was flower girl.

John Villanova was best man. Ushers were Russell Gilligan Jr. and John Gilligan, brothers of the groom, Bruce Law, brother of the bride, and Richard White Sr. Richard White Jr. was ringbearer.

After a reception at Vito's Birch Mountain Inn, Bolton, the couple left on a wedding trip to Florida. They will make their home in Manchester.

The bride is a member of Connecticut Association for Therapeutic Recreation Directors and is employed by St. Elizabeth Health Center of East Hartford.

The groom is a police officer with the Town of Manchester.

Cancer treatment promising

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Doctors at the Yale Comprehensive Cancer Center say they have developed a promising new treatment for head and neck cancer that combines drug and radiation therapy.

The physicians say a randomized clinical trial of 120 head- and neck-cancer patients show that the combined therapy yielded statistically significant results in long-term, disease-free remission.

Dr. Alan C. Sartorelli, director of the cancer center, said Thursday that the trial began in 1982 among patients with cancers of the oral cavity, larynx and nasopharynx.

About half of the patients, who were mostly middle-aged or elderly men, received only radiation therapy while the others received a combination of radiation and the antibiotic mitomycin C, the physicians said.

Some patients also had surgery. Sartorelli said there was no difference in the five-year survival rate between the two groups. However, 87 percent of those receiving radiation and the drug were recurrence-free at the cancer's primary site, as compared to 67 percent of those receiving only radiation.

Side effects of the combined treatment were minimal, they said.

Researchers say they are investigating another antibiotic that is less toxic to normal cells than mitomycin C and results on animal tests are encouraging.

Sartorelli is a professor of pharmacology at Yale and president of the American Association for Cancer Research Inc.

Thanks to 'Greenhouse Gang' and others for the 'Big Week'

Editor's note: This column is prepared by the staff of the Manchester Senior Citizens' Center.

By Joe Diminico Activities Director

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the "Greenhouse Gang" for all their efforts in making this year's plant sale a huge success. The gang's members are Joe Roginka, Tom Wright, George Palisne, Len Rollins, John Kravonka, Carl Swanson, Cyrus Cajar, Henry Bartlett, John Schelbenflug, Bill Hansen, Adolf Yeaki, Wen Johnson, Bob Taylor, Bill Valente, Ted Krysiak, Russ Irwin and John Dahm. In addition, I would like to thank all our customers. It's the efforts of all the above that help defray the cost of the meals program and make the meals affordable.

Belated thanks to the following for "Big Week" — Terry Parla, president of the Manchester Land Conservation Trust, for the use of Salter's Pond for our fishing derby; Bill Johnson, president of the Savings Bank of Manchester, for the $8000 donation toward the fishing derby; Edith Olinyk, accordionist for Las Vegas Day; Bill Cooper, dealer for Las Vegas Day; Cy Tompkins, Ed Troutman and Russ Nettleton as ballcerins at the dinner-dance. Also, a big thanks to state Rep. Jack Thompson for arranging the tour at the Capitol for the seniors.

We would also like to thank our singing waiters at the Mother's Day Tea. They were Russ Nettleton, Jim Rizzi, Al Surprenant, Bill Valenti, Joe Vallee, Mike Habern, Larry Lombardi and Wen Johnson.

Band of '80s is camera shy

By Walter Berry
The Associated Press

TEMPE, Ariz. — They've been dubbed the "Band of '80s" by Rolling Stone magazine and are on one of the music's most anticipated world tours. But for the Irish quartet, U.S. publicity is the last thing they're actively seeking.

"We've heard all the talk and we really don't take it heart. I know I don't want to think about it at all," said drummer Larry Mullen Jr., 29. "When you're in fashion, you're usually out of fashion real fast."

"We never wanted to be a cult group. Or, if we were a cult group, we wanted to be a cult group for a long time," said guitarist-keyboardist Dave Evans, more commonly known by his childhood nickname, The Edge. "We're not embarrassed by all the attention. I think we're taking it very well, actually. It's just that the kind of goals are critical-success kind of questions."

Bono, U2's lead singer, performs in Tempe, Ariz., recently.

Most critics are raving about U2's fifth and latest studio album, "The Joshua Tree," which shipped platinum (more than 1 million copies) on its March 17 national release. It's the band's first Top 10 entry on the pop charts and is considered their moody masterpiece in the haunting hit single, "With or Without You."

Other songs deal with American violence overseas (bullet the Blue Sky"), the fate of the world's forgotten prisoners ("Mothers of the Disappeared"), lament of unemployed British miners ("Red Hill Mining Town") and Christian mysticism ("I Still Haven't Found What I'm Looking For," "In God's Country," "Running to Stand Still" and "Where the Streets Have No Name").

"I think it's the most articulate record we've ever made," said bassist Adam Clayton, 27. "This record has opened so many doors for us. I'm looking forward to making an even better record now."

The group, always known for its fierce social conscience, had its biggest-selling single in 1984 with "Ride (In the Name of Love)," a tribute to slain civil rights leader and Nobelist the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

With "The Unforgettable Fire" LP, the band ditched producers from Steve Lillywhite to Brian Eno and Daniel Lanois.

"It was a very necessary record for us to make," Clayton said in a backstage interview at Arizona State University's Activity Center. "We wanted to work in different circles and not get into a familiarized situation again. After three albums (with Lillywhite), everybody wanted to change and move toward thinking different ground."

"The Unforgettable Fire" — named after the series of paintings done by the survivors of Hiroshima and Nagasaki — was a contemplative look back at world history and dealt with topics ranging from Elvis Presley to an Irish friend who died of a heroin overdose ("Bad") to the works of the late Romanian poet Paul Celan ("A Sort of Homecoming").

Mullen, Clayton and the 25-year-old Evans write the band's music with the lyrics handled by 27-year-old singer Bono, who said he instinctively scribbles down words and only discovers later what his songs really are about.

Bono was introduced to American folk music two years ago and it introduced the group to a whole new world. "I found we had a lot of things in common because behind a lot of American folk music is a lot of Irish folk music," he said.

U2's strong bond with its audience also is easy to pinpoint.

"I think we've put spirituality into rock'n'roll," said Bono. "I'm a believer but I don't push my beliefs on anyone. I've seen religion tear my own country in two."

The group took shape in 1976 when Mullen, then 14, posted a notice at Dublin's Mount Temple School looking for bandmates. He found Clayton and Evans — two self-taught musicians — and Bono, who was born Paul Hewson but nicknamed "Bono Vox" by his boyhood gang members because of his "gift for gab."

The story about Pappas and the CIA-KYP connection was essentially confirmed years later by a former U.S. ambassador to Greece, Henry Tasso. But in 1985, when Demetracopoulos took his evidence to O'Brien and later to a House subcommittee, the Nixon administration went after him with a vengeance.

Attorney General John Mitchell threatened to have the Greek deported, and both the State Department and the CIA leaked false information on Demetracopoulos in an attempt to discredit him.

Part of this disinformation campaign was an anonymous State Department memo, given to House Speaker Carl Albert, accusing Demetracopoulos of printing classified documents that hurt U.S.-Greek relations. The memo, which was fabricated with the CIA's help, also included a barrage of false charges attacking the Greek journalist's character.

When Demetracopoulos learned of the memo and demanded a retraction, the State Department assigned Abshire to mediate. In a memo to White House counsel Dean Abshire wrote: "I have attempted to mollify him (Demetracopoulos) with a letter

Reagan is I a lily-white

By Chuck Stone

Until President Reagan recently spoke at Tuskegee University's commencement, the word "chutzpah" was adequately explained by an ancient Hebrew definition: A boy kills his parents, then asks the court for mercy because he's an orphan.

Leave it to our ingenious president to Americanize the definition of chutzpah: His policies cause a decline in the enrollment of black college students and the shrinking of finances at black colleges, then he exhorts black college graduates to "be part of the great technological and scientific changes sweeping our country and the world."

If you give Ronald Reagan an appropriately docile black audience, he can do a pretty good impersonation of an NAACP official.

But his policies toward minorities are still flagrantly hypocritical. A case in point is the Foreign Service.

Under the Reagan administration, the Foreign Service has moved with quiet inexorability toward a policy of lily-white representation.

Between the Lines

The story behind the story

By Josie

Q. I have been a fan of Al Pacino for many years, but I know very little about him. Please tell me about his background, if he's been married, if he's planning any new movies, etc. E. Walters, Arlington Heights, Ill.

A. Alfredo James Pacino is 47 (born April 25, 1940), from the Bronx and was raised by his protective mother and grandparents after his father deserted the family when he was 2. (His mother took such pride in him and dressed him so carefully, in fact, that one of his childhood nicknames in the neighborhood was The Little Dude.)

He became interested in acting while in grade school, and although introverted and shy, he pulled out all the stops in school productions (earning him another nickname, The Actor). He decided to go to the High School of Performing Arts (the school in "Fame"), but dropped out before graduation and drifted between jobs, working as a messenger, a shoe salesman, a supermarket checker, a newsboy and a theater usher (which at least gave him a chance to watch other actors).

The theater owner realized that he wanted to act, however, so he urged him to try it. By the mid-'60s, he and a friend were writing comedy revues and performing them in Greenwich Village coffeehouses, and he began to appear in off-off Broadway plays. A turning point was his acceptance in 1966 into the famed Actors Studio; two years later, he won an Obie for his performance in the play "The Indian Wants the Bronx" off-Broadway, and the next year he won a Tony for "Does a Tiger Wear a Necktie?" on Broadway. That led to a small role in the movie "Me, Natalie" and, two years later, to his first starring film role in "Panic in Needle Park."

His second film, "The Godfather," obviously did quite a lot for his career. He followed it with others to mixed success: "Scarecrow," "The Godfather, Part II," "Serpico," "Cruising," "And Justice for All," "Bobby Deerfield," "Author! Author!" "Scarface" and the recent disaster "Revolution." He currently has a couple of projects in the air: the one that may land first is a remake of the Italian film "Riffifi."

Regarding his personal life: He hasn't been married but has had a lot of girlfriends, among them Jill Clayburgh, Tuesday Weld, Marthe Keller and Debra Winger.

Al Pacino

Edward G. Robinson

Q. I've been trying to get an answer to this question for a year: When did Edward G. Robinson change his name from Edmund and why? M. Parlo, Scranton, Pa.

A. He changed his name from Emmanuel Goldenberg while he was a student at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, just before World War I. He liked the character Robinson in the play "The Passerby" so he took the name, changed Emmanuel to Edward and added the G. for his original, Goldenberg.

Bobby Vinton

Q. Could you please tell me what Bobby Vinton will be doing in the near future? James H. Short, Sandy Hook, Conn.

A. He just finished a stint in Atlantic City, is currently in a recording studio working on a new single and is also working on a TV pilot for a musical/variety hour to air in syndication. He's doing some international touring, too: next stop, Japan in July.

Tracy Pollan

Q. I thought Tracy Pollan did a very fine acting job in the recent TV movie "The Abduction of Kari Swenson." Why did she leave "Family Ties," and does she have any other plans? Linda Rice, Fresno, Calif.

A. She left "Family Ties" because, as many actors find, doing a series can be restrictive; she wanted to be free to do other projects. One was "Kari Swenson." Another, "A Special Friendship," recently aired on CBS. She also has a film, "The Promised Land," which was produced by Robert Redford and in which she co-stars with Kiefer Sutherland, due out in October.

Ari Meyers

Q. I would like to know all about Ari Meyers from "Kate and Allie." J.C., Trenton, N.J.

A. She's 17, from New York, the daughter of an actress, Taro Meyers, and her musician husband; the two were divorced not long after Ari was born. Having show biz parents apparently inspired her early. At the age of 4, she dictated her first play, "The Super Magic Show," to her mother, then directed, choreographed and designed all the costumes for the nursery-school production.

She was also discovered by an agent while in nursery school and began modeling and doing commercials: At 5, though, she decided to be a normal kid and play after school, so she quit the business. At 11, she decided to return as a serious actress — and did. Her first role was as one of Al Pacino's children in a movie "Author! Author!" followed by the TV movies "Kids Don't Tell," "Running Out," "License to Kill" and "Haunted."

She was living in California with her manager and his wife, actress Deborah Raffin, when she heard about the role in "Kate and Allie," taped an audition, got the part and came back to New York. Obviously, the show became a hit. She begins taping the new season's episodes this month. She's also looking at area colleges — she's intent on doing the series and going to school at the same time.

The courage of his convictions

Ed Asner is a survivor who knows what he's about — in his life and work

By Jane Ardmore

He arrived in Wisconsin on a Sunday morning, rehearsed with the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra for the evening performance — it was to be a concert devoted to "Poetry in Motion," music inspired by poetry which Ed Asner with his resonant voice had been chosen to read.

Oh, and it was a magnificent concert, including Mendelssohn's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," Prokofiev's "Romeo and Juliet," the poetry and music of Charles Ives, Debussy's "L'Après Midi d'un Faune," Tchaikovsky's "Francesca da Rimini." "Very sensuous, very thrilling; it was gorgeous to be in the midst of such music," as Asner describes it.

But between rehearsal and the evening's performance, he found himself in the midst of something equally thrilling in a totally different context. As former president of the Screen Actors Guild, he loaned his presence and conviction to a benefit being staged by other unions to raise money for the families of Members of the United Food and Commercial Workers' Union Local P-40 (the meatcutters) who have been on strike for seven weeks against the Cudahy Meat Packing Company.

"These workers took a wage cut in '82," Asner explains. "They took another cut in '84. Now, in '87, with prices of everything even higher, they were given another $2 rollback. It's like being shoved into the Dark Ages. Unbelievable. The rollback would bring them down to about $2 over the minimum wage!"

The Cudahy plant also wants to end pensions for new hirings. They want to operate the two-scale wage system so many employers (including the airlines) are trying to establish these days: one pay system for older employees and a lesser pay system for new employees. And one ridiculous inclusion: any time over 20 minutes per week spent on personal pursuits (such as visiting the washroom) to be deducted from the number of hours worked. That's the kind of a company they're dealing with."

When local unions sponsoring the benefit heard that Ed Asner was to be in Milwaukee, they phoned L.A. to ask if he'd lend his presence to bring in a much-needed crowd. Would he? When his own union (SAG) was on strike in 1980, he was on the strike line every day.

With the same sort of passion he'd bring to the poetry reading, he told the meatcutters, "The decline of the labor movement has ceased. You've seen the worst days. Labor is starting to rise again. You're just in your demands. You have an excellent record of peace in your union. Other unions in neighboring communities are highly supportive and reflect the justification of your involvement. If these are the best wages and conditions Cudahy can offer, they shouldn't be in business!" He banged his fist on the podium.

Talking about it, his own eyes are moist. He's a sincere man, Ed Asner, and in a business where one is usually using all one's energy to pursue a career, worrying about getting a job or parlaying that job into the next job, he hasn't committed the easy oversight of forgetting society as a whole.

"Well," he says, "I have a big mouth." And even the fact that his successful "Lou Grant" TV series got canceled because some of the powers-that-be didn't like what issued from that mouth, Ed is not chastened and not about to shut up.

"Unbelievable," he says, "I was with people last night who are progressive and sympathetic and yet were overwhelmingly shocked when I told them that labor — organized labor — represents only 17 percent of the work force. It used to represent somewhere between 25 percent and 35 percent."

Arch-conservatives love to use unions as the scapegoat for this country's economic ills and most people tend to believe them. They don't realize that the standards of living they have achieved were possible because they pegged their aspirations and goals to union aspirations and goals.

"Unions established the wage rate, the possibility of salary negotiations, the eight-hour day, the 40-hour week, the health benefits, and all the rest of American working man came to enjoy the same benefits because of union leadership." Doesn't sound like a movie star, does he?

When Ed Asner was a kid, just out of the University of Chicago where he participated in numerous theater presentations ("Murder in the Cathedral," Shaw's "Man of Destiny," Yeats' "Purgatory," directed by Mike Nichols) and determined that acting was to be his life, he had a number of experiences in the working world outside theater.

"I worked first in the Ford auto plant in Chicago," he remembers. "I was a metal finisher on the assembly line and the black workers on my particular section evidently came to respect me or trust me enough that they wanted me to run for union office; they thought they had a chance at a square shake from having me in the union. And much as I felt honored, I had to tell them, 'Look, I'm about to go into the Army. I'm not making this my career. Your confidence would be misplaced.'"

He did go into the Army for two years and when he came out, joined the Playwrights' Theater Club in Chicago, headed by David Shepard and Paul Sills (who eventually folded that group into the famed Second City).

"I was still thinking maybe it was too fanciful for me to try for the theater. Most of the time, even now, I think I'm too ugly" — which of course is nonsense.

Part of Ed Asner's charm as an actor derives from his no-nonsense strength and the face with its mobile mouth, deep-set eyes and wondrous brows.

He obviously loves acting, and an experience he had during the time he was with the Playwrights' group served to firm his decision. During that time, there was a production in which he didn't have a part and one of the fellows at the theater knew someone who ran a packaging plant and took Asner and another fellow along with him to get day work and earn some extra money.

"The boss put me to work and I did my best," Asner says, shaking his head. "I am not manually facile by any stretch of the imagination, but I tried, and this guy, the boss, kept coming back to me, complaining. 'Is that the best you can do? No, that's not the way. Look, any baby can do it. What's wrong with you? A baby can do this.'"

"Well, you should hire a baby," I told him. Finally, at the end of the day, he paid us off and said to the friend who'd brought me, "What's wrong with your friend? A baby could do this!" "I've always been glad to be an actor," I told myself, "that's all I'm going to do. I'm not going to take another kind of job, if it kills me." And, interestingly enough, that's all I've ever done since. ■

Outlook

What I did for love

By Rachel Cope Goldfarb

Listen to Shakespeare recited through braces and sprinkled with "uh, y'know" in a high-school production and then witness the enraptured standing "bravos" of those in the audience whose kids are on stage. That's love.

I've had my share of those times, although I never realize that what I'm doing is out of the ordinary until the whole thing is viewed in retrospect, through the kaleidoscope of reality.

Toilet training, lost teeth, chicken pox and ear infections are early tests of parental love. If one passes these initial rigors, trials of increased complexity will follow.

Last Christmas found my daughter, the first-year trombone student, performing a variation on "Twinkle, Twinkle" in her school's winter program. She blew well-practiced, though often unrecognizable, tones from the back row of the cramped stage. The glow of our young prodigy's potential seemed to overshadow other novices struggling with their brass, woodwinds and strings. It is only now, in audible memory, that I realize how extraordinarily my husband and I must love the child. Each time she reviews her first performance with a blast from the past, I am reminded of the power of parental love.

While she vibrated the chime, our son practiced for the role of an elf in his class play. He projected lines in his sleep and swiped costume parts and props from my wardrobe. He experienced not butterflies but, in his words, "one giant, gross moth in my stomach," making human behavior impossible for a month. We both beamed as he pulled off the elf part, despite being the largest child in his fourth-grade class. It left the family (and my closet) altered permanently.

Other times try parents' love, too. Science-fair project season requires cancellation of social engagements, new traffic patterns in our house to avoid walking on vital debris, and trailer rental for transporting it all.

My husband and I tasted instant vs. brewed coffee until it became injurious to our health, purchased and painted "white-out" in gallon containers, rolled rubber cement balls off charts to the point of developing callouses and soothed young gardeners' hurt away when their crop of bean sprouts was discovered deceased two weeks before the project due date.

I clearly remember the rush of exhilaration and relief I felt the morning the projects were delivered to school. It's only when the structures, poster, dead plants and little grade slips were returned home, that I marveled at the magnitude of the family effort.

How many times have I purchased tickets to a Disney movie when what I really wanted was Richard Gere? How often have macaroni and cheese been our supper when I craved a vegetable medley? And how did I learn every "Sesame Street" character and all the colors of Mister Rogers' sweaters when my mind was experiencing the documented hibernation period of a pre-school parent?

The answer to all of the above is the same. I did it, as every parent does, in response to the upward glance, the trusting request and whopping love I give to my children.

The giving isn't all one-way, though. Our kids listen politely, though somewhat crouched in the back seat, as my husband and I sing along when Four Tops' tunes play on the car radio. They howl at jokes we retell in our youth because they were just too worn out to tell one more time. And on rare but really special occasions, they tell us, "Thanks for all your help."

Insights into Childhood

Battling first-born blues

By Fred Rogers with Hedda Sharapan

"You like my sister better. I can tell. You spend a lot more time with her and you hardly ever get mad at her." That's a common lament of a first-born, and often the lament has at least some ring of truth — but for different reasons, probably, than the older child surmises.

It's not necessarily that a parent likes a particular child in the family better, but rather that parents' relationships with their first-born are different from those with any of their subsequent children. That difference can sometimes make a parent feel guilty, but for all parents such a difference is natural and, most likely, unfavorable.

The birth of a first child is the birth of parenthood for that child's mother and father. As new parents, they suddenly open the door for all kinds of new learning — not only about their baby, but also about parts of themselves they thought were long forgotten. At particular times in our childhood, for example, all of us confronted certain tasks such as balancing dependence with independence, coping when people we care about go away, controlling our destructive urges. Even though we find our own resolutions to those kinds of struggles, there's always unfinished business even as we move on to the next level of development.

Later on, something we're experiencing can trigger the release of those dormant issues, and then the old struggles surface once again. Each time we rework those issues, we're older, we've had more experiences and we bring a different perspective. Each time, we have a chance to deepen our understandings of our old struggles and of ourselves.

Parenthood triggers many such things. Of course, that's true in raising all our children, but it's that first-born who unexpectedly brings us face-to-face with our own childhood as only our own children can do.

One mother told us about the first time she scolded her first-born. Her infant son had just learned to reach out to grab and went for her eyeglasses. With a harsh "no," she startled not only the baby, but also herself. What surprised her most was that her voice sounded like an echo of her own mother's scoldings.

She could almost hear herself pleading, "I'm not a bad girl. Mommy," and she recalled the feeling of anxiously wondering whether or not she dared to do something she wanted to do but knew she shouldn't. Now that it was her turn to be the disciplinarian, she found herself reliving what discipline had meant to her when she was little.

By the time her second child reached for her eyeglasses, that mother had been through many limit-setting experiences with the first child. ■

Sexuality
Ex-Navy man worries about his wife
Extra-long pregnancy makes him wonder about faithfulness

By Dr. June Reinisch

The Kinsey Repo.

DEAR DR. REINISCH: What is the normal length of time for a woman to be pregnant? I had always thought it was 280 days. However, many years ago, when my now-grown daughter was born, I had been away in the Navy for 10 months, or at least 318 days. Is there any record of a woman being pregnant for 318 days? I do not intend to let my wife know, nor do I intend to get a divorce, but for my own information, I just have to know.

only when it is fully developed. This may add several days to the pregnancy.

Your primary question seems to be whether you fathered that child based on the length of time between conception and birth. An answer based on the medical formula would require that you recall the exact date of your last intercourse before leaving, and then count the number of days between then and the day the child was born. Even if this totals 294 days, it still could be considered a normal pregnancy. Research has also shown that sperm can live for as long as four days in a woman's reproductive tract, so 296 days might also be thought of as a normal pregnancy, although it certainly would not be the usual or average length of time between conception and birth. Adding several days for prolonged fetal development brings the number of days close to the length of time you said you were away. It might interest you to know that in a 1949 paternity case, an English court accepted, for legal fatherhood, a pregnancy of 349 days. More current legal questions of paternity usually are decided by evidence from blood tests of the parents and the child.

Because this happened so many years ago, you may never have a definitive answer to your question. If it continues to bother you, it would be a good idea to consult a counselor or a psychotherapist who could help you to deal with your concerns.

Blondes & sex

DEAR DR. REINISCH: We

Your primary question seems to be whether you fathered that child based on the length of time between conception and birth. always hear that "blondes have more fun" and that "gentlemen prefer blondes." Why is that? It seems to me that dark-haired women are preferable and sexier.

DEAR READER: There is no research linking any particular physical characteristic to greater sexual capacity in either men or women. However, individuals do have preferences about what physical characteristics they desire in a sexual partner. One such preference is hair color.

Needs a check

DEAR DR. REINISCH: My husband is 66 and in good health. However, he has been diagnosed as having a testicular mass. This has been confirmed by a second urologist. He does not want to have the surgery, but I hope that once he reads your reply, he will change his mind. What is involved in the surgery? What complications are possible? How will his activity be restricted after surgery? Will blood be needed for surgery?

DEAR READER: It's extremely important to find out what the mass is and to do this as quickly as possible. If your husband is concerned about losing sexual capacity, he should know that erection and orgasm can continue after many procedures or be restored after treatment of a more serious condition.

Because in or near the testicles can be related to a number of different conditions, some of which can be corrected without surgery on the testicle itself. However, if a mass is a tumor in the testicle, surgery may be needed to permit a thorough examination.

If a tumor is found, the cells will be examined to determine if the tumor is benign (non-cancerous) or cancerous. The idea of cancer is frightening, and many people delay any type of surgery because they don't want to have their worst fears verified. However, delay in the worst case of action. If a mass is not cancerous, the person and his family suffer needless prolonged worry. If it is a form of cancer, every day of delay reduces the chances for a complete cure.

I can't speculate about your husband's particular case or what will be involved in the surgery or the treatment. However, both of you should know that even if cancer is found, recent advances in radiation therapy and chemotherapy have

It might interest you to know that in a 1949 paternity case, an English court accepted, for legal fatherhood, a pregnancy of 349 days. More current legal questions of paternity usually are decided by evidence from blood tests of the parents and the child.

Accurate scale

DEAR DR. REINISCH: Do you agree with Masters and Johnson that heterosexuals and homosexuals can be rated using a scale that runs from 0 to 6 (with 0 being completely heterosexual, 3 being bisexual and 6 being completely homosexual)? And if so, does the scale relate only to behavior or does it include sexual attraction and fantasy?

DEAR READER: The scale you refer to was devised by Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey and has been widely used by sex researchers for 40 years. The scale classified persons with only heterosexual behavior as 0 and those with only homosexual behavior as 6; mixtures of sexual activity were rated as 2, 3, 4 or 5.

We also wondered if the scale continued to be useful for current research purposes. Therefore, in 1986, the Kinsey Institute hosted a symposium of 80 of the world's most prominent researchers from many disciplines (including anthropology, history, psychiatry, medicine, biology, sociology and psychology) and asked them if they felt that the scale was still a valid measurement. Their opinions have been compiled as chapters in "Homosexuality/Heterosexuality," Volume 2 in The Kinsey Institute Series. This series is published by Oxford University Press, and this volume is scheduled for release early in 1988.

There was general agreement that while the scale still is useful for some purposes, it is improved when it is modified according to the purpose of each scientific study that employs it. Concepts frequently mentioned as improvements were the addition of such factors as love, sexual attraction, fantasies and self-identification.

Another major point in "Homosexuality/Heterosexuality" will be that any individual's rating can and does change over time. In other words, the Kinsey scale should not be seen as a series of rigid, fixed descriptions that predict future behavior.

Medicine

When your get up and go has gone

By Frances Sheridan Goufart

In 500 B.C., the seer Suttapitaka said, "Better to live one day of steadfast energy than a hundred years idle, without it..." Centuries later, Sir Thomas Powell Buxton, the English social reformer, remarked, "The longer I live, the more deeply I am convinced that that which makes the difference between one man and another — between the weak and the powerful, the great and the insignificant — is energy."

So what's wrong when yours disappears faster than a flying kick? Take a look at your bad habits. According to Dr. Harry Johnson of Houston's Life Extension Foundation, only 5 percent (of individuals) examined for chronic fatigue require physical treatment. "The rest of the tired people we treat are usually suffering from a combination of bad habits, inferior menus and poor mental attitudes."

The first step with the help of your M.D. is to rule out fatigue culprits such as infection, anemia, allergy and hormonal matters such as thyroid imbalances. After that, here are the reasons that remain — one of which may be the reason your wagon's draggin'.

1. Nutrition. If you feel like a member of the ungrateful dead, tell the milkman to keep those bottles quiet. Despite their reputation for helping us get our athletic acts together, sugar, grains, all sweet foods and, yes, even milk can be downers for millions who have carbohydrate or glucose intolerance, says psychiatrist-allergist Dr. H.L. Newbold.

What to do for hunger? Eat a vegetable. All vegetables — especially green and root types — contain calcium, a mineral that stabilizes nerve cell membranes and makes the body less excitable. It also keeps the heart rhythms normal and helps lower blood pressure, say herbal nutritionists. Collard greens, for example, have nine times more nice-for-your-nerve calcium than cream cheese and only a fraction of the calories.

But don't wash it down with tap water if it's chlorinated. Chlorine is a chemical that makes millions of people depressed and nervous, say clinical ecology researchers. Drink bottled spring water or diluted fresh fruit and vegetable juices instead.

2. Sugar down, chromium up. Keep your sugar down and your chromium up, advises nutritionist and gerontologist Dr. Richard Passwater. Chromium is a trace mineral that keeps insulin levels normal, and it is the hormone that actually feeds the sugar in foods into your cells to be used for energy. Without sufficient chromium, insulin can't do its job and body cells go hungry and fatigue sets in. It can be followed by weight loss, general weakness and then total exhaustion, says Passwater.

If you find yourself generally worn out with only a few real energy highs during the day, chromium supplementation could be the answer. Brewer's yeast, shellfish, corn oil, chicken and meat are all good sources.

3. Vitamins and minerals. "Magnesium and potassium are the two most important minerals in combating most forms of fatigue," says Dr. Howard Lutz, nutritionist and director of the Institute of Preventive Medicine.

"If you have a deficiency in these two minerals, you'll experience tremendous fatigue. You may wake up in the morning and feel so tired that you want to go back to bed. At the end of the day, you feel washed up. Your muscles feel soft, flabby and drained of energy. Sometimes your reactions will be poor," according to Dr. Lutz.

Best sources of these minerals are seafood, sea vegetables, dark green salad-bowl vegetables and raw nuts, according to the Vitamin Information Service. Increasing these two minerals in your diet by way of supplements often results in new energy in less than 10 days. (Try 400 to 800 milligrams of magnesium and about 1 gram of potassium daily.) Vitamins B and C are also essential for extra energy.

To get enough, boost your protein intake and eat more high-C fruit (citrus, kiwi, berries, melon).

4. Exercise. Don't take fatigue sitting down. According to Swedish fitness authority Per-Olof Astrand, continual inactivity can produce muscular atrophy and a person can become under-muscled for his weight and lack the strength and endurance to do his daily work in no time. Exercising regularly within your limits has the effect of pushing back fatigue limits.

Exercise is an instant high because, vigorously performed, it produces a "training effect" that lasts as long as six to seven hours in the well-conditioned body (30 minutes even if it's not). Your brain gets a fresh supply of oxygen, stored calories are burned, waste products that make you feel sluggish are removed from the system.

A mini exercise that performs that magic act is rope-jumping. One five-minute workout a day is the equivalent of one set of tennis or nine holes of golf. Just remember to rest when you need it, breathe through your nose, and as lightly as possible on the balls of your feet and work your rope from your wrists for best results.

Energy begets energy. It also depresses snack attacks. According to psychophysiology Dr. Jean Mayer, "When physical activity drops to a certain low level the brain's automatic appetite regulators go out of whack... and the less you exercise, the more you want to eat."

5. Miscellaneous. Energize with acupressure. Hold your right ear lobe between your thumb and forefinger. Now very gently tug downward, then upward and then sideways. Just tug gently in all directions for a few moments. Then repeat this with your left ear lobe. This helps stimulate improved circulation.

What you see is what you get. If you want a lift, look to yellow, orange and red in that order, says Henry Wohlfarth, professor at the University of Alberta and president of the German Academy of Color Sciences in Bonn. Seventy-five percent of the sense stimuli you receive is visual, and black, blue and green are sure-fire downers.

You've heard about Mohammed Ali's great secret formula power punch? Next time you're faced with a bodily power failure, drink this. It's the next best thing:

- ENERGY-ADE
 2 cups unsweetened pineapple or orange juice
 1/2 cup diced or shredded carrots
 1 tablespoon lemon or lime juice
 1 tablespoon brewer's yeast or protein powder
 1 tablespoon alfalfa sprouts
 2 tablespoons calcium
 1 tablespoon lecithin granules
 1 tablespoon honey, optional

Combine and process all ingredients in blender. Sip throughout the day. ■

Iron-rich spinach is simply nutra-bull

By Ted Larsen

Remember all that stuff about spinach, iron and Popeye? Well it was pure "nutri-bull," another vicious falsehood designed to trick children into eating terrible-tasting stuff. Well they got me good, real good. In fact, I actually grew up liking spinach. Talk about perfect brainwashing.

The history and folklore of spinach is strange indeed, filled with some ironic twists and turns that make musclebound Popeye a very wimpy player. We begin with the Chinese warlord, brought to his knees over spinach.

In the year 647 A.D., the great Tang Emperor T'ai Tsung gave word to all his tributary rulers, "Send me samples of your very best food plants." From lofty Nepal came a package of green leafy edibles called, "poh ts' ai," for "Persian vegetables." The mighty Tsung fell in love as he tasted the first dish of spinach ever served in China.

Spinach must have been a big hit back in Nepal if deemed special enough to send for the emperor's culinary competition. When you consider it wasn't native to the Himalayas, and only recently arrived from Persia, you get some idea of the stir it made.

Spinach would not make its appearance in Europe for about 500 more years, when the same Persian gardeners trucked (or cameled) it across North Africa to Spain. By the end of the 11th century, "espinaca" was being widely cultivated around Seville.

One thing is for certain, spinach has never been an overnight miracle, which may explain the need for Popeye-like promotion tricks. It took another 400 years for the green leaves to immigrate to England, where a mid-16th century food writer called it "an herbe lately found and not long in use." By 1600, spinach was as common as carrots.

Spinach created a minor sensation in 16th-century medicine. Being so new, no one seemed to know what to do with it. The herbalists of the time usually followed the classic dictates of early Greek physicians, who prescribed plants for all kinds of human ailments. However, this recent arrival was unknown way back then, so it carried no history of medical virtues, and a lot of suspicion.

While modern science has discovered the virtues of spinach, something Galen and Dioscorides couldn't in old Athens, they have also found something spinach isn't.

Spinach is an excellent source of vitamin A, has significant quantities of sodium and derives its bitterness from oxalic acid. However, despite parents, Popeye and Brutus, spinach is not especially rich in iron. The sorry, deceitful truth is finally out.

Want a sure-fire, simple way of tying three great flavors together? Try this salad.

- SPINACH, APPLE AND POTATO SALAD
 1 pound spinach, washed
 1/2 pound red-skinned potatoes
 1/2 pound McIntosh or Cortland apples
 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
 1/2 cup blue cheese
 1/2 cup sour cream
 1/2 cup mayonnaise
 1/2 cup yogurt
 salt and pepper, to taste

Heat 2 tablespoons of water in a heavy saucepan to steaming and add spinach. Cook covered for 4 minutes. Chop spinach coarsely. Boil potatoes, without peeling, until tender, and drain. Allow to cool and then cut into cubes.

Peel and core apple and cut into dice. Toss with lemon juice to prevent browning. Toss together spinach, apple and potatoes. Mash the blue cheese with sour cream until lumpy but well blended. Add the mayonnaise and yogurt and mix well. Season with salt and pepper. Chill before serving. Serves 4.

HINTS

You can substitute blanched cauliflower for the potatoes. It becomes a low-starch salad. It's worth the expense and trouble to use real imported Roquefort cheese.

For a low-calorie dressing, use all yogurt, but whisk in 2 egg yolks to give the yogurt additional body.

These elegant little dumplings are a staple of Northern Italian cooking. They will be one of your favorites to accompany a beautiful dinner. A food processor makes them a snap.

- SPINACH GNOCCHI
 1 pound Idaho baking potatoes, peeled
 1 pound fresh spinach, washed

Spinach is rich in vitamins but not in iron.

- 2 eggs
 1/2 pound ricotta cheese
 1/2 cup unsalted butter
 2 tablespoons Parmesan cheese, grated
 4 tablespoons flour
 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg, grated
 salt and pepper, to taste

Cook potatoes in boiling water until tender. When done, place them in a food processor fitted with a steel blade. Heat 2 tablespoons water in a heavy saucepan until steaming, and add spinach. Cover and cook 4 minutes. Drain in a salad spinner, squeezing out as much water as possible.

Place spinach in the food processor. To the food processor, add the eggs, ricotta, 1/2 cup butter, 1 tablespoon Parmesan and all seasonings. Process until mixture is just smooth. Place container in refrigerator for 45 minutes.

Preheat oven to 400F and bring a large kettle of water to a boil. To cook gnocchi, drop teaspoonfuls of the potato/spinach mixture into boiling water, a few at a time. Gnocchi are cooked when they rise to the surface and should be removed with a slotted spoon. Repeat until all of the dough is cooked. Place gnocchi into a greased oven dish and sprinkle with remaining butter, melted, and rest of Parmesan cheese. Bake 10 minutes, or until browned.

HINTS

Do not overmix dough or gnocchi will be heavy. If you like goat cheese, substitute it for ricotta.

To make this a complete vegetable dish, blanch another pound of washed spinach. Drain, chop and line bottom of oven dish before adding gnocchi. Cook uncovered as above.

This delicious appetizer brings together the delightful tastes of spinach, ricotta cheese and flaky phyllo pastry.

- SPINACH RICOTTA PUFFS
 1 pound fresh spinach, cleaned and cooked
 1 cup ricotta cheese
 1/2 cup fresh Parmesan cheese, grated
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
 1/2 teaspoon white pepper
 1 egg
 16 sheets phyllo
 2 tablespoons unsalted butter

Preheat oven to 350F. In a blender or food processor mix together spinach, ricotta, Parmesan, salt, nutmeg, pepper and egg, until smooth. Cut each sheet of phyllo crosswise into 4 strips, 3" wide. Cover each strip with plastic wrap while assembling puffs.

For each, stack two phyllo strips together. Place a teaspoonful of spinach filling at one end of the strip. Fold over each long side of phyllo and roll up, in the manner of a jelly-roll. Brush each puff with melted butter. Place puffs seam side down on a well greased baking sheet. Cook 25 minutes or until lightly browned. Serve immediately. Makes 2 1/2 dozen.

HINTS

Phyllo pastry is available, frozen, at many major supermarkets. Read and follow makers directions carefully, and you can't go wrong.

After making puffs, freeze them for later cooking. Baking directions remain the same.

Try substituting cottage cheese for ricotta. It's still delicious, but lighter with less fat. ■

Letter (PG-13) This long-awaited $40 million comedy, written and directed by Elaine May, may not be the "Heaven's Gate" fiasco it was rumored to be, but, at best, it's a moderately amusing and inconsequential entertainment.

If you took "Some Like It Hot," "The Road to Morocco," "Holders of the Lost Arts" and put them in a blender, you might end up with this farcical tale of two aspiring songwriters (Dustin Hoffman and Warren Beatty) who get caught in the middle of a Middle Eastern CIA scam.

Cast against type, Hoffman plays the ladies' man, and he has most of the good lines, fun bits and comic energy. Beatty, meanwhile, attempts to play a guy who can't attract women: not surprisingly, he gives a blutzy, unconvincing performance. The early scenes in New York are best, while the slapstick action sequences in Morocco and environs are flat and derivative. There are too many musical numbers designed to show how terrible Hoffman and Beatty are. They really are terrible — but not always funny. Grade: ****

River's Edge (R) Here's a picture about teenagers that no one should go to mistakenly expecting a "Breakfast Club"-type romp. Based on an actual incident that occurred in northern California, this Tim Hunter-directed film studies a small, tightly knit co-ed group of disaffected, purposeless teens who close ranks to protect one of their own.

The teen in question — a fat, mean loser — has quite casually strangled his girlfriend, and yet his friends, who were also the dead girl's friends, feel loyal to him. It's the only bond they recognize. These kids can be seen as the nightmare side of American prosperity and permissiveness: the tract home-bred, post-Vietnam War offspring of a wildly materialistic and morally confused society.

Yet "River's Edge" doesn't editorialize in a "what's-happening-to-the-kids?" manner. No wholesome alternative to the teens' behavior is offered. The script by Neal Jimenez finds perverse humor and, eventually, resilience in the often cretinous teenagers' bonding.

The movie has a sensual, surreal pull that undercuts the bleakness, the occasional lapses into exploitation-movie clumsiness and the over-wrought central performance by Crispin Glover as the psychopathic leader of the group. There's also a haunting performance by Dennis Hopper as a wild-eyed biker who lives with a stuffed-doll version of the girlfriend he once murdered. "River's Edge" is sometimes appallingly funny — a savage view of adolescence akin to Luis Babenco's "Pixote," but more shocking because it is set in a contemporary American community. Grade: ****½

New home video

The Color of Money (R) Touchstone, $89.95. Paul Newman won an Oscar for his return to the role of Fast Eddie Felson, the pool shark he first played to perfection in the 1961 movie "The Hustler." Now, 25 years older and a Chicago liquor salesman who stakes pool on the side, Eddie is cynical and gleefully corrupt.

As acted by Newman — and idiomatic pool-hall talk — the snaky, unrepentant Eddie is someone we can't get enough of. It's fun to see him try to corrupt a young pool hustler (Tom Cruise) and his girlfriend (Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio). Eventually, though, Eddie seeks salvation by returning to pool as a player, and the last third of this atmospheric movie loses its edge and flavor — turning Rocky-esque. Grade: **½

Mona Lisa (R) CBS/Fox, $89.95. The Irish novelist-turned-director Neil Jordan gave us this compelling film noir about a pugnacious ex-con (Bob Hoskins) who falls for the black whore (Cathy Tyson) he has been hired to chauffeur around London.

A little self-conscious for its own good, the movie doesn't quite pay off emotionally. But it's still suggestive, casting a poet's eye on the vital yet sleazy underworld and porno scene. And we are held by Bob Hoskins' memorably brutish and touching performance as well as by Cathy Tyson's tantalizing statuesque presence. Grade: **½

Jumpin' Jack Flash (R) CBS/Fox, $89.95. This 1986 release marked the movie comedy debut of Whoopi Goldberg — an event that turned out to be a bit of a bust. There are some laughs, though, as Whoopi plays a bank computer operator whose terminal is "invaded" by an operative from British Intelligence. Grade: ****

Sid & Nancy (R) Embassy, 79.95. Director Alex Cox's superlatively grungy re-creation of the dead-end affair between English punk rocker Sid Vicious (Gary Oldman) and American junkie-groove-manager Nancy Spungen (Chloe Webb). You must have a tolerance for lots of depressive disintegration to appreciate this movie, which overdoes on blank-eyed junkies shooting up in filthy hotel rooms. Gary Oldman is a revelation as Sid, while Chloe Webb makes Nancy a whining, twisted-faced wreck. The movie is well-done, but repellent and somehow pointless. Grade: **½

Taverns on exhibit

NEW YORK (AP) — An exhibition of images and artifacts depicting entertainment in 18th-century taverns is on view at Frances Tavern Museum through Nov. 30.

The exhibit, "Tavern Revels," includes a variety of prints portraying various tavern scenes, such as dancing and card playing, and illustrating the ways in which 18th-century taverns provided entertainment within their communities.

A highly informative bid
By James Jacoby

The unusual two no-trump jump overall showing the two lower unbid suits is a fine bid. It crowds the opponents' bidding, allows the side using the method to quickly reach their top limit in the auction, and can really be an effective irritant to the opposition. But it can also backfire by helping declarer play the hand.

South overbid a trifle when he finally went on to five diamonds. After the king of hearts lead, West switched to his singleton spade. (Yes, it would have been better to continue with a low heart.) Declarer won with dummy's queen and took a successful diamond finesse. He then played two more diamonds, ending in his hand, and played a low club to dummy's queen. West would have made life easy for declarer by taking the king at that time. Declarer then took his A-K of spades, throwing a heart from dummy, and played his last spade. At this point West was reduced to the K-10-9 of clubs and the A-9 of hearts. If he threw a club, declarer would simply give up a club and make the contract, so he let go the ace of hearts and declarer ruffed the spade in dummy. Declarer, who knew the defenders' bidding methods, simply ruffed a heart back and got off lead with a low club. West had to win and lead into the A-J of clubs, giving South his five-diamond contract.

I'm not criticizing the two no-trump jump, but does anyone think South would have made five diamonds if West's first bid had been a simple one-heart overall?

Ignition wiring
Spark plug wires deteriorate from heat. They should be checked and replaced as needed when the engine is tuned.

Spark plugs
Even in cars that operate on unleaded gas, spark plugs are vulnerable to fouling deposits from fuel additives. They're also subject to firing tip "wear" or erosion that leads to misfiring. This is especially critical in cars with catalytic converters and/or oxygen sensors, both of which can be damaged by spark plug misfiring.

Distributor
Components like the rotor and cap are subject to corrosion and contamination and should be checked as part of a tune-up. Also, older cars with points and condensers require special attention to these parts. Failure of these parts will cause poor performance and starting trouble.

Is Your Vehicle Prepared For Vacation Motoring?

The answer will likely be a confident "Yes," if all the items on this list are checked and necessary maintenance performed. Some of the items listed below will require assistance from a professional mechanic, although many may easily be performed by car owners themselves. A few other service items may require a more experienced do-it-yourselfer.

Will it overheat?
 Check hoses. They should be firm, but flexible with no cracks, bulges or soft spots. Check connections for leaks.
 Check belts. When pushed with a finger, they should not "give" more than one-half inch. They should show no signs of fraying, wear or age.
 Check radiator coolant. (Do not remove radiator cap.) The recovery tank should be filled to "cold" mark.
 Check pressure. Test cooling system with pressure to determine if there are any leaks.
 Check radiator cap. It must hold pressure.

Will it keep you cool?
 Check air conditioner. If it is not working effectively, it may need a shot of freon.
Will its tires survive?
 Check tire pressure. Owner's manual will give proper tire pressure for your car.
 Check condition of all tires. There should be no excessive wear, cuts or other abrasions.
 Check spare tire. Its pressure and condition are important too.

Is it wasting fuel?
 Check spark plugs. If they are worn or have dirty deposits on firing end, replace them. Check gap on each to determine if it meets your car's specifications.
 Check air filter and PCV valve. Hold filter up to sunlight; if light can't be seen through, replace it; PCV valve also requires periodic replacement.
 Clean and adjust the automatic choke, if equipped.
 Tune up the engine. This includes inspection of points (if equipped), ignition wires, and distributor cap and adjustment of timing and carburetor idle settings.

Will it start?
 Check oil. Examine dipstick and fill if necessary. Change oil at mileage listed in owner's manual.
 Replace oil filter, when recommended in owner's manual.
 Check transmission fluid. Check level when engine is running and warm and gearshift is in park.
Is it safe?
 Check brake fluid. Fluid should be 1/4-inch from top of reservoir.
 Check brakes. Examine brake linings, pads, drums, discs, etc., for wear or degradation.
 Check all lights. Headlights (low and high beam), tail lights, brake lights, parking lights, instrument panel lights and all turn signal lights must be functioning.
 Check exhaust system for leaks.
 Check windshield wipers. They should be working and able to clear moisture without streaking, skipping or smearing. If not, replace them.
 Check windshield washer system. Washer pump should be working and reservoir filled with fluid.
 Check power steering fluid. Examine dipstick when engine is warm.
 Clean windows and mirrors. Visibility is essential for safe driving.

 Tune engine. Ignition systems, including spark plugs, wires, timing distributor and coil must be functioning properly for sure starts.
 Check the battery. If it is not a maintenance-free battery, check the fluid level and fill if necessary. Clean any corrosion from battery terminals. Test battery for charge; winter may have eroded some of its power.

 Check shock absorbers or struts. Worn shocks alter a car's handling characteristics, make the ride less comfortable and increase tire wear.
 Check universal joints, tie rod ends, ball joints and steering linkage. Failure of any of these can lead to an accident.
 Check wheel alignment. Problems can lead to steering difficulty and prematurely worn tires. Many newer cars require alignment service on all four wheels.

To help reduce family vacation costs, AAA suggests that vacationers:

- Put the car in top mechanical condition to prevent costly breakdowns and delay.
- Make advance lodging reservations, or arrive early in the day to allow for a wider selection of reasonably priced accommodations.
- Reduce meal costs by eating at fast-food restaurants or by picnicking along the way.
- Plan sightseeing carefully and visit travel attractions that offer something worthwhile.

Start of Indy 500 can be most crucial

By Mike Harris
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indianapolis 500 lasts about three hours. The first 45 seconds can be the most crucial.

A 45-second lap on the 2½-mile oval translates to 200 mph, about the speed the 33 starters in Sunday's race will reach on the first lap — if nothing goes wrong.

Those first 45 seconds provide the most dangerous moments and create enormous tension. This year, with 23 crashes during practice and qualifications, the anxiety level will be even higher.

"What has happened during the month really doesn't mean anything in the race," defending champion Bobby Rahal said. "On race day, the track is different, you're not trying for all-out speed like in qualifying and, hopefully, everybody is mentally ready. But it's important to keep the start in some kind of perspective."

"When you come off the fourth turn and head toward the start-finish line, the adrenaline is pumping like crazy, you're feeling all the electricity from that big crowd and all the anticipation. If you don't keep your head and stay cool, you can get in big trouble in a hurry."

"The problem is that some guys act like the first turn is the end of the race," said Michael Andretti, who will be in the third row starting his fourth Indy 500. "The way to go into it is that you don't even start racing until you get through the first two turns and onto the backstretch. By then, the cars are strung out and you can race."

Over the years, the start has triggered some of the worst accidents.

In 1982, Kevin Cogan, starting in the middle of the front row, went out of control as the field moved toward the starting line. His car veered right, hit the car driven by A.J. Foyt, then slid sharply across the track, sending Mario Andretti's second-row racer to the pit wall.

The dust and debris from the accident clouded everyone's vision, scattering cars wildly, and two cars in the rear of the field collided.

There were no injuries, but the incident eliminated four cars from the race, including those of Cogan and Andretti. And that was before the green flag had fallen.

Some drivers, including Andretti and Foyt, said Cogan's problem was driver error. Cogan, the 1980 runner-up, has insisted that a part in the rear wheel assembly broke.

Whatever caused it, the incident proved again that the start — with three cars in each of 11 rows about 100 yards apart suddenly hitting the throttle of their 700-horsepower turbocharged engines — can quickly become chaos.

"I guess it's a cliché, but everybody has to keep in mind that this is a 500-mile race and you don't win it in the first turn," said Cogan, who has had four uneventful starts since. He will start Sunday from the outside of row eight.

Roberto Guerrero of Colombia, who will be in the middle of the second row, said, "I just try to stay out of trouble. I've learned that in a 500-mile race, it doesn't make much difference even if I lose a couple of places at the start. It won't make any difference at 400 miles."

"You may take a few more chances on the start at a place like Phoenix, where the race is a lot shorter."

"Another thing is that here there's a lot of adrenaline and excitement. It's important not to let that overwhelm you."

The driver who starts from the pole is in charge of the field once the pace car pulls away and the racers glide along the backstretch at about 80 mph.

"I want the pace car to just get out of the way as soon as possible," Mario Andretti, this year's pole-winner, said. "I'll bring the field up to about 110 for the start and that should let everybody get a nice even start."

"The idea is to pick up speed in a nice gradual flow and not speed up and slow down and wind up with an accordion effect. That's when you have trouble."

Andretti, the 1989 Indy winner, said the record nine former champions in the lineup should help keep the start calm.

Rahal and two-time winner Rick Mears will join Andretti in the front row, with four-time winner A.J. Foyt in the second row, three-time winner Johnny Rutherford in the third row, Danny Sullivan and two-time winner Gordon Johncock in row six, three-time winner Al Unser and Tom Sneva in the seventh row.

"These guys aren't going to do anything foolish," Mario Andretti said. "Some of the younger guys might feel like they have to start racing right away, but if they see guys like Unser and

Mario Andretti out to end years of frustration

By Mike Harris
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — "Here he is, ladies and gentlemen, 1989 Indianapolis 500 winner Mario Andretti."

Andretti has heard that introduction for 18 years. That's how long he has tried for a second victory in the world's greatest auto race, and at age 47 the driving future belongs more to his 24-year-old son, Michael.

"If somebody told me then that I'd still be racing here in 1987 and not have another win, I would have thought they were crazy," he said.

On Sunday, Andretti will start from the pole — the first time he has started from the front in 20 years. And, as in numerous years before, he is considered the man to beat.

"To win again here and to do it at this stage of my career would totally rejuvenate me in every way, and I think it would do wonders for my head," he said last week. That's because, for Andretti, the checkered flag at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway represents a long series of frustrations.

Since 1969, he has won 98 races in Indy-cars, sports cars and on the Formula One circuit, where he was world champion in 1978.

He has been national driving champion four times. But he has not won even a second time at Indy.

Andretti came to Indy in 1969, a rookie from Nazareth, Pa., and graduate of rough-and-tumble dirt tracks.

He started fourth and finished third that year, winning Rookie of the Year. In each of the next two years, he was the pole winner, setting one- and four-lap qualifying records each time.

But engine problems forced him out early in 1966, and he completed only 59 of 200 laps in 1967 due to clutch problems and a lost wheel.

Even when he won in 1969, the month of May was not problem free.

Andretti crashed his new Lotus during the final day of practice before qualifications and had to switch to a year-old Brawner Hawk. It took him to Victory Lane. In 1981, Andretti was the Indy winner — for a while.

That year, he missed qualifying due to a rainout the first weekend and a Formula One commitment the second. He started from the last row in a car qualified by former teammate Wally Dallenbach, charged to the front, led 18 laps and finished second to Bobby Unser.

Unser, however, was penalized that night for a caution-period infraction and Andretti was named the winner the following morning. It was bittersweet triumph — no Victory Lane, no cheers, no banquet, only a title. And nearly five months later, after a series of appeals, the title was gone, too, when Unser was reinstated as the winner.

"For me to do the best job, I've got to get on the optimistic side. I've been the eternal optimist. I just detest dwelling on the negatives that have happened to me because I think this is the real downer of this game," he said.

"This game is so volatile," he added. "You'll bounce from every direction here. If you let the downside get to you, you'll never pick yourself up. I know the best way I can function is to think positive in every respect. If you get a lick, well, you'll be down momentarily and bounce right back. It's the only way you can do it."

Love III at home on Atlanta course

By Ed Shearer

ATLANTA — Davis Love III, playing on the same course where he learned the game as a youngster, shot his second consecutive 7-under-par 65 Friday to build a three-shot lead after two rounds of the $600,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I'm comfortable here," Love said of the 7,007-yard, par 72 Atlanta Country Club course, which yielded a profusion of low scores for the second straight day. "I probably know where all the trouble is better than anybody."

Love, a 23-year-old PGA Tour sophomore, played the hilly Atlanta layout for several years when his father was the club professional, a position the elder Love held until 10 years ago.

Love's 36-hole total was 14-under-par 130, lowest on the tour this season.

The biggest moves of the day came from Richard Zokol, who shot a 9-under 63, and 64s by Masters champion Larry Mize and Ken Green.

Love held his three-shot lead over four golfers — Steve Pate, Gary Koch and Jack Renner, who had 67s, and George Burns, the first-round leader, who shot a 69.

Burns aced the 190-yard No. 6 hole with a 5-iron two holes after taking a double-bogey 6.

"The ace got me rolling again, and I'm in good position," Burns said.

Asked if playing a familiar course gave him an advantage, Love said, "A little maybe, but I play a lot different than when I was 13."

Love, who posted his only tour victory at the Heritage Classic last month and finished second in the Colonial National Invitation last week, continued to batter the par 5.

He birdied three of the par-5s Friday and eagled the other, bringing his two-day total on those four holes to 16-under-par.

"I played a lot like I did yesterday," he said. "I didn't hit the ball superbly, but I saved par four times."

He used only 84 putts in his round, only 10 on the front side, which he played last.

Love had seven birdies, one eagle and two bogeys. His eagle came on the 550-yard No. 8 when he chipped in from 40-45 feet. Three of his birdies came on tap-ins from less than one foot.

"I'm very lucky to have gotten out of the day with only two bogeys," said Love, who got his saving pars on Nos. 4, 5, 6 and 15.

Koch's round was highlighted by a 46-foot birdie putt on No. 7.

Rinker tops LPGA Championship

By Rusty Miller

MASON, Ohio — Laurie Rinker shot a 5-under-par 67 Friday to take a 1-stroke lead after two rounds of the LPGA Championship at the Jack Nicklaus Golf Center.

Rinker, who has been in the top 10 in only one of her 11 starts this season, shot a first-round 69 for a 36-hole total of 8-under-par 136 over the 6,202-yard, par-72 Grizzly Course.

Deb Richard followed a first-round 68 with a 69 that she completed just as darkness fell to move into second place at 137.

Five players — Ayako Okamoto of Japan, Lori Garbarz, Patty Sheehan, Rosie Jones and first-round leader Patti Rizzo — were tied at 6-under-par 138 midway through the second leg of the women's tour's grand slam.

Rinker, 24, completed her first round before heavy rain suspended play Thursday. She made the turn in the second round with eight pars and a birdie to go to 4-under, then made four birdies on the back nine for her lowest competitive round of the year.

Rinker has won two tournaments in her five years on the LPGA Tour including the 1986 Corning Classic.

The 36-year-old Okamoto had to play 24 holes Friday, completing her rain-shortened first round prior to the second round. The native of Japan, a winner in two of her last three U.S. starts with a tie for second in-between, recorded back-to-back rounds of 69.

Sheehan, who won the LPGA in 1983 and 1984 and finished second behind Pat Bradley last year, birdied two of her four remaining holes Friday morning to complete her first round with a 68. She came back with a 70 in the afternoon.

At 5-under 138 came 1980 LPGA champion Sally Little, Cathy Morse, Cathy Gerring and Jane Crafter, while Betsy King, winner of the year's first major, the Nabisco Dinah Shore, was joined by Hollis Stacy, Cindy Rarick and Judy Rosenthal at 4-under 140.

Two-time LPGA winner Nancy Lopez followed a 72 with a second-round 71 and was at 1-under 143. Defending champion Pat Bradley was at 144 after rounds of 73 and 71. First-prize of $22,500 goes to the winner out of a purse of $350,000. The field was cut to the low 70 scores plus ties at the conclusion of 36 holes.

Lendl and McEnroe wind up in same draw

PARIS (AP) — Ivan Lendl, the top seed and defending champion, Friday landed in the same bracket as John McEnroe in the draw for the French Open tennis tournament.

Among the women, two seeds were late withdrawals, while the draw put top-seeded Martina Navratilova in the same bracket as defending champion Chris Evert.

The two-week Grand Slam tournament begins Monday at Roland Garros.

Lendl, of Czechoslovakia, and McEnroe, of the United States, could meet in the quarterfinals.

Lendl drew Ronald Agener of Haiti in the first round, while McEnroe, the seventh seed, will meet Horacio de la Pena of Argentina.

Zina Garrison of the United States and Bettina Bunge of West Germany withdrew because of injuries. Garrison, originally seeded sixth, dropped out after suffering a stress fracture of the right foot in the Geneva Open this week.

Bunge has been bothered by tendonitis in a shoulder. She was originally seeded 11th.

With Garrison and Bunge dropping out, Sylvia Hanika of West Germany and Melissa Gurney of the United States moved into the last two seeded spots.

Two men's seeds, Sweden Stefan Edberg, No. 3, and Mikael Pernfors, No. 13, requested Tuesday starts for their first-round matches. Edberg has a groin injury, while Pernfors, a finalist last year, is undergoing treatment in Sweden for a foot injury.

No. 2 men's seed Boris Becker of West Germany drew Diego Peres of Uruguay in the first round. Becker could meet Jimmy Connors of the United States in the quarterfinals. Connors, the No. 8 seed, faces fellow American Todd Nelson in the first round.

Fourth-seeded Mats Wilander of Sweden, fresh from two clay court victories, will play Italian Simone Colombo in the first round. Wilander won the 1982 and 1985 French Opens and is considered the favorite this year.

The women's favorite has to be West German Steffi Graf. The 17-year-old, No. 2 seed has won six straight tournaments and 32 straight matches. She meets Cailia Caerepy of Switzerland in the first round.

Graf has a possible semifinal matchup with seventh-seeded Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina. They have played three times this year, the last times in the Italian Open final.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Buffalo Sabres left wing Paul Cyr will be released from a Dominican Republic hospital in four days after treatment for a gunshot wound he suffered in a robbery, the NHL team said Friday.

It was expected that Cyr would need two weeks to fully recuperate, but he should not suffer any physical after-effects, team spokesman Budd Bailey said.

Sonics respect talented Lakers

By Jim Cour
The Associated Press

SEATTLE — Coach Bernie Bickerstaff of the SuperSonics does not hide his admiration for the Los Angeles Lakers, who lead Seattle 2-0 in their NBA Western Conference final.

"They are a much better basketball team than we are," said Bickerstaff, who believes his SuperSonics have no need to be embarrassed by their showing in Los Angeles.

"I think we still have to keep this thing in perspective," he said. "This team has taken the greatest basketball team in the league down to the wire in two games."

"I don't want to get all hung up on people expecting this, people expecting that. We are still playing the Lakers."

Game 3 of the best-of-seven series will be played Saturday at 7 p.m. EDT at the Seattle Coliseum. The Lakers won the first two games in Los Angeles 112-104 and 92-87. Game 4 is scheduled in Seattle Monday at 3 p.m. EDT.

The Lakers may be headed for a championship series match with the defending champion Boston Celtics. The Celtics lead Detroit 2-0 in the Eastern Conference finals.

Los Angeles had a 65-17 regular-season record, the best in the league, and has won nine of 10 playoff games, beating Denver 3-0 and Golden State 4-1. In contrast, the Sonics were only 39-43 during the regular season, the 15th best record in the NBA.

James Worthy and A.C. Green, the Lakers' starting forwards, have hurt the Sonics in the first two games. Worthy has scored 57 points in those games and is averaging 23.6 points in the playoffs. Green scored 15 points and had 14 rebounds in Game 2.

"I think the playoffs pretty much bring out the best in everybody," Worthy said. "Every game is so crucial."

Lakers Coach Pat Riley hopes Green will take greater advantage of his scoring opportunities. Green had only three points in Game 1.

"When you have a guy who is shooting over 50 percent from the floor, you want him to take some shots," Riley said.

The Lakers also have done an outstanding job defending Sonics playboy hero Dale Ellis. Ellis was held to 11 points in Game 1 and scored 22 in Game 2 after averaging 28.9 points in the Sonics' first two series: a 3-1 victory over Dallas and a 4-2 win over Houston. Ellis led the Sonics in scoring during the regular season with a 24.9 average.

Ellis admits a double teaming strategy against him by the Lakers has worked.

"They did a good job of taking me out of the offense in Game 1, plus I was a little fatigued," he said. "In Game 2, I got some shots that I like to get but I wasn't able to get as many."

The Lakers dominated the Sonics on the boards in Game 2, outrebounding them 42-29. Los Angeles had 16 offensive rebounds in the second game. The Sonics had a 40-34 rebounding edge in Game 1.

"We just have to play better," Ellis said. "We are letting them beat us on the boards and that's not characteristic of us. We beat Dallas and Houston on the boards and we can do better than we have."

Alton Lister, Seattle's 7-foot starting center, had just three rebounds in Game 2. He said things will be different Saturday.

Pistons' Coach Chuck Daly gestures in frustration during Game 2 of the Eastern Conference final series with the Celtics in Boston. The clubs meet today in Game 3 at the Silverdome.

Celtics have history on their side

By Harry Atkins
The Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich. — The Detroit Pistons have a shot at NBA history, but first Isiah Thomas and his teammates must overcome some Boston Celtics history.

The Celtics hold a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final series which resumes at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Silverdome.

And that's where the history part comes in.

Only four teams have ever come back to win after losing the first two games of a seven-game playoff series. And the Celtics have never lost such a series after grabbing a 2-0 lead.

"Nobody's ever had Isiah on their team before," Thomas said after the Celtics 116-101 victory in Game 2 at Boston.

Detroit Coach Chuck Daly hopes his perpetually smiling guard is correct.

"This team has done strange things," Daly said. "Ever since I've been here they've done strange things. We had the long losing stretch last year and I thought, 'There goes Charles down the river.' Then we came back with the long winning streak."

"We scored 108 points one year in a game in Denver. Strange things just happen with this team."

"I'm very happy and proud of the way our guys are playing now. Our record is not bad in the Silverdome, but Boston is a proud team, and they'll come in looking to end it."

Because the Celtics are still trying to nurse some aches and pains, the Boston team flew into Detroit late Friday afternoon and didn't bother to practice. The Pistons went through a light workout at the Silverdome.

"It was very important that we won those first two games at home," Bird said. "If you lose one, then the team coming in got exactly what it wanted, a split. Game 2 was very important."

It was Bird's work on Pistons' forward Bill Laimbeer that helped turn around Game 2. The Pistons led by nine points in the third quarter when Bird, who had held Adrian Dantley to a standoff, was assigned to guard Laimbeer.

"Adrian was getting to me early and I was getting to him," Bird said. "We tried to switch it up and stay with Bill."

"If he hits three or four jumpers, it just opens things up for Isiah, and we'd had enough of him already."

Indeed, Thomas scored 25 of his game-high 36 points in the first half but was only 2-of-7 from the field in the second half while being guarded by Jerry Sichting and Sam Vincent, both playing in place of injured Danny Ainge.

"I don't know if he got tired of scoring or what," Vincent said. "But that was a big win. It puts us in the driver's seat."

Jury quickly finds ex-Packer James Lofton innocent

By Robert O'Meara
The Associated Press

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Football star James Lofton was found innocent Friday on a charge he forced a 30-year-old Michigan woman to commit oral sex in a stairwell near the Green Bay nightclub where they met.

A Brown County Circuit Court jury reached the verdict after deliberating about two hours.

The verdict came after the jurors heard closing arguments from defense attorney Stephen Glynn and prosecutor Lawrence Laasee.

Glynn argued the state failed to prove its case and that the former Green Bay Packer, recently traded to the Los Angeles Raiders, should be acquitted.

Laasee told the jury that Lofton assaulted the woman and deserved to be punished.

Lofton had been charged with one count of second-degree sexual assault.

Laasee opened final arguments by saying the woman who accused the 30-year-old wide receiver had lived in emotional pain since Dec. 18, 1986. That was the date the Upper Michigan woman claimed that Lofton forced her into an act of oral sex in the stairwell adjacent to the top shelf nightclub.

"But ladies and gentlemen, she accepted that pain and came here (as a witness). The pain did not come from any of those bogus explanations that Mr. Glynn gave you."

Glynn told the jury that "this case has to turn on one thing and one thing only: that is the testimony of (the woman). That testimony is uncorroborated, inconsistent, and contradictory."

Glynn said corroborating testimony is important, "especially when you have a witness whose story is changing all the time."

Glynn said there was reasonable doubt that the woman had been forced into and then out an elevator and pushed or pulled up two flights of stairs to the stairwell.

"You can have a reasonable doubt from the lack of evidence: there was no hair, or screaming or evidence of pushing to the elevator," he said.

The woman claimed that Lofton held her head by the hair during the incident.

Dodgers error gives Mets win

NL Roundup

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Reliever Matt Young's throwing error enabled New York to score the tiebreaking run in the seventh inning Friday night as the Mets beat Los Angeles 6-4, the Dodgers' sixth straight loss.

Home runs by Darryl Strawberry, Kevin McReynolds and Mookie Wilson off Fernando Valenzuela helped New York overcome a three-run homer by Los Angeles' Pedro Guerrero in the first inning.

With the score 4-4, pinch-hitter Lee Mazzilli opened the Mets' seventh with a single off Young. Mookie Wilson followed with a tapper in front of the plate for an infield single, but Young, 1-5, threw the ball into the right-field corner. Mazzilli scored on the play and Wilson reached third, and McReynolds hit an RBI grounder.

Terry Letch, who entered the game in the seventh and got pinch-hitter Bill Madlock to ground into an inning-ending double play, won his first decision of the season. Roger McDowell, the Mets' fourth pitcher, pitched two innings of hitless relief for his third save.

Guerrero put Los Angeles ahead with his 11th homer against David Cone. Wilson pulled New York within 3-1 with a homer in third inning.

Strawberry made it 3-3 in the fourth with his 11th home run. It was the 119th homer of Strawberry's career, moving him past Ed Kranepool into second place on the Mets' all-time list. Dave Kingman ranks No. 1 with 154.

Giants 2, Phillies 1

At Philadelphia, Atlee Hammaker, making just his second start since October 1985, scattered three hits over six innings and singled home a run Friday night as the San Francisco Giants beat the Philadelphia Phillies 2-1.

Hammaker, who missed the entire 1986 season with shoulder and knee injuries, struck out three and walked one in winning his second game against one loss. Scott Garretts pitched the final three innings, allowing two hits, for his sixth save as San Francisco won its third straight game.

Pirates 4, Reds 1

At Cincinnati, Rick Reuschel pitched five-hit ball for seven innings and hit a tiebreaking solo home run in the eighth Friday night, giving the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Reuschel broke a 1-1 tie with two outs in the eighth with his fourth career homer, his first of the season. Reuschel connected off Ron Robinson, 1-1, and sent the Reds to their sixth loss in nine games.

After batting for himself in the top of the eighth, Reuschel, 3-2, was relieved in the bottom of the inning by John Smiley, who earned his second save. Reuschel struck out five and walked two.

The Pirates added two runs in the ninth when Johnny Ray hit an RBI triple and scored on a sacrifice fly by Mike Diaz.

Jerry Reuss allowed just three hits over the first seven innings for the Reds — his first good performance in three starts for Cincinnati since signing May 12 as a free agent. He lasted a total of just six innings in his previous two starts, giving up 12 earned runs.

Braves 9, Cubs 5

At Chicago, Dale Murphy hit two home runs and Dion James and Gerald Perry hit one each Friday, leading the Atlanta Braves to a 9-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Atlanta starter David Palmer, 4-4, allowed three runs over 5 1-3 innings for his fourth consecutive victory. Jim Acker pitched the final 3 2-3 innings for his fourth save.

Murphy hit his 12th home run of the year to right field in the fourth inning off loser Scott Sanderson, 3-1, giving the Braves a 1-0 lead.

James hit a three-run homer in the fifth after Andres Thomas doubled and Palmer singled. Ken Oberkfell singled and one out later Murphy homered into the left-field bleachers to give Atlanta a 6-0 advantage.

The Braves scored three more runs in the sixth on a sacrifice fly by Oberkfell and Perry's two-run homer.

Boston shortstop Glenn Hoffman and Chicago's Gary Redus look for the call during third-inning play Friday night at Fenway Park.

Fisk's HR beats Red Sox

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — Carlton Fisk hit his third home run of the season high into the screen above the 379-foot mark in left-center field with one out in the top of the ninth inning Friday night, giving the Chicago White Sox a 4-3 victory over Roger Clemens and the Boston Red Sox.

Fisk's homer came after the Red Sox left the bases loaded and failed to score in the eighth inning.

Clemens, 3-4, struck out 10 for the second time this season and the 14th in his career and pitched his third consecutive complete game, allowing six hits. But the setback gave him the same number of losses as last year when he was 24-4 and won the American League's Most Valuable Player and Cy Young Awards.

Chicago starter Richard Dotson allowed three hits and three runs in seven innings before needing help from Ray Searage and Jim Winn in the eighth.

Winn, 1-1, put down the Boston rally by retiring Mike Greenwell on a grounder after hitting Don Baylor with a pitch to load the bases. Bob James pitched the ninth for his fourth save.

Clemens and Dotson settled down after rocky starts, each giving up a two-run homer in the first inning.

Tigers 3, Twins 2

At Minneapolis, Jack Morris boosted his record to 11-0 in his home state Friday night as the Detroit Tigers beat the Minnesota Twins 3-2 for their eighth triumph in nine games.

Larry Herndon opened the Tigers' seventh with a double to left-center off Frank Viola, 2-5, and one out later Chet Lemon hit an opposite-field double off the right-field wall for the winning run.

Morris, 5-2, a St. Paul, Minn., native, is 8-0 in the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome after going 3-0 at old Metropolitan Stadium.

Eamonn Coghlan Joins field In McCormick/ComFed Mile

By Jim Tierney
Herald Sports Writer

A touch of world class has been added to the Christie McCormick/ComFed Mile, the highlighted event of the 12th annual MCC New England Relays on June 20 at Manchester High School — Ireland's Eamonn Coghlan.

In an attempt to produce the first ever sub four-minute mile run in the state of Connecticut, the Relays committee, headed by Jim Balcome and George Sutor, has assembled a highly competitive field which should set history at Pete Wigren Track.

Coghlan, 34, the world record-holder of the indoor mile and three-time winner of the Manchester Road Race, tops a fine list of milers which includes fellow countryman Gerry O'Reilly (a 3:54 miler), and Ross Donoghue (who has run a 3:55 mile). All three runners are graduates of Villanova University.

Aiming for the 10,000 meters title at the World Track and Field championships in September in Rome, and, ultimately the gold medal in the event at the 1988 Summer Olympics to be held in Seoul, South Korea, Coghlan sees the McCormick/ComFed Mile as a test of his training tactics.

"I'll know I'm really going strong if I run a fast time off the 10k training," Coghlan said in a phone interview from his home in Rye, N.Y. "I think four minutes will be broken."

Coghlan plans to run the Buick 10K in San Diego on June 7 and hadn't foreseen another race until he leaves for Europe in August. He had planned a mile time trial for the weekend of the Relays. With Donoghue and O'Reilly, who defeated Coghlan in the Jumbo Elliott Mile last summer at Villanova, Coghlan feels the McCormick/ComFed Mile will fit into his schedule nicely.

"I can now motivate myself," Coghlan said. "The adrenalin will be flowing now that it's a race situation."

Two other sub-four minute milers, Jim Norris and Steve Ave, both graduates of St.

Eamonn Coghlan, three-time winner of the Manchester Road Race, will enter the Christie McCormick/ComFed Mile on June 20 at Manchester High's Pete Wigren Track.

Joseph's University in Pennsylvania have been invited for the McCormick/ComFed Mile. Norris, sponsored by New Balance Track Club, and Ave have both run 3:59 miles.

The former world champion at 8000 meters, Coghlan is excited about the possibility of being the first person to break four minutes in the mile in the state. "It will be great, especially in Manchester, having competed there before," the Dublin native said.

The winner, if he breaks four minutes, will receive a TAC trust award of $1,000.

Mets see improvement in Gooden

By Ben Walker
The Associated Press

NORFOLK, Va. — Dwight Gooden still has not shown any consistency or an overpowering fastball, yet the New York Mets insist they see improvement.

Enough progress, they say, that he is right on schedule to resume pitching in the major leagues during the first week of June. Gooden left the Mets near the end of spring training for treatment to overcome a cocaine problem.

In his third start since undergoing rehabilitation, Gooden gave up nine hits in six innings Thursday night for Class AAA Tidewater in an 8-5 victory over Maine.

"Early on, he didn't have his usual pop on the fastball," said Tidewater catcher Greg Olson. "But his curveball was good."

Gooden, in previous starts with Tidewater and Class A Lynchburg, had not been able to throw his curve or off-speed pitches for strikes. He did that against Maine, recording several of his seven strikeouts with a sharp curve.

But Gooden's fastball, the pitch that sets up the rest of his repertoire, is not so hot. Almost every ball Maine hit hard — and there were a lot of them — came off Gooden's fastball.

"He's a power pitcher, so we were waiting on his fastball," said Maine's Kevin Ward, who hit one of three doubles against Gooden.

Only once in a while has Gooden's fastball resembled the dominating pitch that enabled him to win 58 games for the Mets in three seasons, even though he has yielded just one earned run in 13 innings for Tidewater and Lynchburg.

East faces ND in ACC action

East Catholic's baseball team will be in action on Monday, Memorial Day, at 11 a.m. against Notre Dame of West Haven at Quigley Stadium in West Haven in the opening round of the ACC Championship.

The winner faces top-seeded St. Bernard's Wednesday night at 7 at Quigley Stadium for the title.

East and ND split during the season, the Eagles winning by a 9-5 count and ND winning the return engagement, 7-2.

St. Bernard's and East each went 13-3 in ACC play but the Saints got the top ranking for taking two from the Eagles during the regular season.

Rain dates are Wednesday and Thursday.

MHS boys tennis still on hot streak

STORRS — The Manchester High boys' tennis team defeated E. O. Smith, 5-2, for its eighth victory in a row. The Indians are 10-9 and its next match is Tuesday at South Windsor High. Singles winners for Manchester were Gregg Horowitz, Jay Snyder and Matt Clough. Doubles winners were Sam Henderson and Lou Jaffe, and Bill Kennard and Craig Phillips.

Results: Horowitz (M) def. Hall 6-3, 6-3; Snyder (M) def. Lindquist 7-5, 7-6; Clough (M) def. Kourouzes 6-7, 6-1, 7-3; Sethy (ED) def. Gary Tucker 3-6, 6-2, 6-4; Henderson-Jaffe (M) def. Bolton gets one hit EAST HAMPTON — Behind the one-hit, 15-strikeout pitching of Michelle Dominicki, East Hampton High topped Bolton High, 6-3, in COC girls' softball action Friday.

The loss drops the Bulldogs to 3-13 for the season. Denise Welch had the lone hit for Bolton. Lee Brendle was the losing pitcher while Donna LaChapelle played well defensively at third base for Bolton.

Bolton's next game is Tuesday at Cromwell High.

Track

MHS girls in split

HARTFORD — Manchester High girls' track team came home with a split Friday afternoon. The Indians topped Windham High, 81-45, but were nipped by host Hartford Public, 64-63.

Manchester is now 3-2 for the dual meet season. Kim Jarvis was a double winner for Manchester, taking the 1000- and 3200-meter runs. Alexia Cruz won the long jump and took seconds in the 100- and 300-meter dashes. Val Holden won the 100-meter hurdles while Chris Nielsen and Stephanie Garrepy also did well for Manchester, Nielsen in the 400 and Garrepy in the 800.

Manchester finds magic to beat the Bobcats

H.S. Roundup

SOUTH WINDSOR — It's magic.

Whatever the Manchester High baseball team touches nowadays, it turns to gold. The Indians fell behind 2-0 to host South Windsor High Friday afternoon at Larry Duprey Field but rallied to go ahead in the fifth and scored four times in the seventh for a 7-3 victory in CCC East Division play for their eighth victory in succession.

The winning streak is the longest in Coach Don Race's seven-year tenure as varsity coach. Manchester has won 12 of its last 13 outings. The Indians are now 13-6 overall and firmly entrenched in second place in the CCC East at 10-3 overall. Manchester gets a shot at conference leader East Hartford High Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Moriarty Field in the regular season finale for both clubs. The Hornets have lost only one and were the last club to beat the Indians, 4-1 back on May 4.

"Everything is clicking now," Race said. "We pull a kid (Keith DiYesso) off the bench and he hits a double. We have some magic going for us now. They're doing whatever they need to win. We needed two runs the other night to win and we got it. And today..."

The Bobcats, 4-9 in the CCC East and 9-9 overall, scored twice in the third against Manchester starter Scott Aronson. He exited in the fourth after suffering a case of wildness. He walked six while striking out three in three innings. The Indians took the lead in the fifth.

Freshman Aris Leonard tripled and Jon Roe reached safely on a passed ball after striking out. Leonard and Roe pulled off a double steal. Leonard scoring. John Zak and Karl Neone then slugged RBI singles for the lead.

South Windsor tied it in the sixth on Rick Sartor's solo homer off Casey. The Indians, though, came through in the seventh. Mike Charter walked, Neil Schackner singled and Neone walked to jam the sacks. DiYesso, pinch hitting for Joe Leonard, cleared the bases with a drive up the gap in left center field and he scored on an RBI double to left by Aris Leonard.

Neil Archambault came on in the seventh to earn a save. He struck out one and induced two groundouts sandwiched around a lone Bobcat safety. Casey was credited with the victory. He went three innings, striking out three and walking two.

Neone, Zak, Schackner and Aris Leonard each collected two hits for Manchester.

Cheney outlasts Portland

It wasn't the prettiest of games, but Cheney Tech Coach Bill Baccaro will take it.

The homestanding Beavers came up with two runs with two outs in the bottom of the seventh inning to come away with a 12-12 victory over Portland High Friday afternoon. Cheney's record is now 11-7 and its next game is Tuesday at home against RHAM of Hebron.

Portland had taken a 12-11 lead in the top of the seventh largely due to two Cheney miscues. With no outs and men on first and second, Cheney turned a double play with the lead runner advancing to third. A wild pitch allowed Portland to score the go-ahead run.

Cheney began its half of the seventh with a double by winning pitcher Jim Krone. Krone stole third and Mike Senrth struck out. Rich Aspid popped to shortstop for the second out. Don Sauer came up and drove an RBI-single to center field to tie the game. The ball was misplayed by the Portland center fielder and it rolled by him, allowing Sauer to come around with the running run.

"Both teams pounded the ball," Baccaro said. "Krone and Sauer deserve a lot of credit. They came through under a lot of pressure."

Glenn Parent led Cheney with two hits and four RBIs while Mark Pelletier, Tom Dowd and Mike Main each added two hits. Parent and Brian Martin clubbed home runs for Cheney.

Coventry wins wild one

COVENTRY — Wild. A pair of seven-run innings highlighted Coventry High's offense but it was a two-run fifth inning that was the difference as the Patriots outlasted Bacon Academy, 18-10, in COC action Friday.

The Patriots are now 12-4 in the COC, 19-5 overall, and will set their sights on conference-leading Vinal Tech Tuesday in Middletown at 2:30 p.m. Vinal, with three losses in conference play, leads the COC.

Bacon goes to 8-7 with the loss. Kevin Banks started for Coventry but didn't finish. He secured the first two outs in the second, third and fourth innings, but didn't escape unscathed. "We fell apart on him and let them back in the game," said Coventry Coach Bob Plaster.

"The ball was really hopping today. Everything was taking off. The ball was just being jacked," Plaster exclaimed.

John Andriani scored on a passed ball and Robb Berkowitz tallied on an error in the fifth for the deciding runs. Coventry led, 7-1, before Bacon tied it at 9-9-piece on a three-run fourth inning and four-run fifth frame.

Coventry iced it with a seven-run sixth stanza. Rhett Gibbs in relief was the winning pitcher. Berkowitz was 2-for-3 with a triple and three RBIs. Matt Paton 2-for-5 with 2 RBIs, Larry Walsh 2-for-4 with a triple and homer and two RBIs, Jack Ayer 3-for-5 and two RBIs and Andriani was 2-for-3 for the Patriots.

MHS streak ends

The only team that is happy at the end of the season is the one that goes through the state tournament unbeaten. That club is the state champ. The Manchester High girls' softball team was riding high with a six-game winning streak but the Indians came back down to earth Friday as they fumbled away a 12-11 decision to visiting South Windsor High in CCC East Division play at Fitzgerald Field.

The Indians committed 10 errors along with a couple of costly passed balls. The loss drops Manchester to 11-6 overall. Manchester winds up its regular season Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. at East Hartford High.

"We didn't play well defensively," understated Manchester Coach Dave Frost, filling in for Mary Faignant who is out for the rest of the season following surgery on Thursday. "We played well offensively, had some key hits, but our defense wasn't strong today."

South Windsor took the lead with three runs in the first inning and led throughout. The Indians rallied with four runs in the sixth and two more in the seventh but fell short. Manchester had the bases loaded with one out in the seventh with the two runs across but Tammy Snellenberg lined sharply into a pitcher-to-home-to-first base game-ending double play.

Erin Prescott and Snellenberger each had three hits and Kris Cool two for Manchester. Losing pitcher was sophomore Lisa Moriconi. She worked four innings before giving way to Prescott in the fifth.

Janet Bersinger, Jean Moriarty, Jen Andriani and Kathy Pessley each had two hits for South Windsor.

East wins one, loses two

NORWICH — The East Catholic High golf team won one match and lost two Friday afternoon at the Norwich Country Club. The Eagles beat Fitch Groton, 7-0, while bowing to St. Bernard's, 6-1, and South Catholic, 4-3.

East is now 9-8 overall and 4-3 in the All Connecticut Conference. The Eagles were led by Chris Aiello, who shot a 39 and won all three of his matches. Reid Gorman fired a 40 and won two of his three matches for East. The Eagles next match is Tuesday against Xavier High of Middletown at Tallwood Country Club.

FLYERS RALLY FOR WIN

Melanby leads Philly comeback

By Ken Rappoport
The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Scott Melanby scored the tying goal early in the third period and set up Brad McCrimmon's game-winner 17 seconds later as the Philadelphia Flyers rallied from a three-goal deficit to beat the Edmonton Oilers 5-3 Friday night in Game 3 of the Stanley Cup final.

The Oilers still hold a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series, which resumes Sunday night at the Spectrum, where the Flyers are 11-2-1 in the Oilers' last 14 visits. Edmonton led 3-0 less than two minutes into the second period and appeared to have the game wrapped up before the Flyers rallied to hand the Oilers their first road loss in seven playoff games this year.

Melanby tied the game at 3-3 when he beat Edmonton goaltender Grant Fuhr on a 40-foot slapshot from beyond the right circle at 4:37 of the third period.

On the Flyers' next rush, the rookie right wing fed a perfect pass to McCrimmon, who finished off a 3-on-2 by beating Fuhr from just outside the crease at 4:54.

It was the first time in his last 12 games that Fuhr had surrendered more than three goals.

Mark Messier and Paul Coffey scored first-period goals to give the Oilers a 2-0 lead. Glenn Anderson made it 3-0 with a power-play goal at 1:49 of the second period before the Flyers began their comeback.

The Flyers, 0-for-12 with the man advantage, got power-play goals from Murray Craven and Peter Zazel in the second period to cut the Oilers' lead to 3-2.

Craig MacTavish blocked McCrimmon's weak shot and fed Messier a short lead pass in the neutral zone. Messier raced in alone from the red line and beat Flyers' goaltender Ron Hextall between his legs for his 11th goal of the playoffs.

The Oilers made it 2-0 on Coffey's goal with nine seconds to play in the period.

Only moments before, it appeared that the puck had been knocked over the goal line by Oilers right wing Jari Kurri after a shot by Esa Tikkanen. On the television replay, the puck seemed to go over the line, but the red light did not go on and Hextall swept the puck out to the left faceoff circle.

However, Edmonton's Wayne Gretzky picked up the loose puck and quickly fed Coffey, who drove a 15-foot slapshot past a defenseless Hextall.

The Oilers made it 3-0 on Anderson's fluke power-play goal 1:49 into the second period.

Anderson took a pass from Messier at the blue line, skated in and tipped the puck past Hextall, who tried to swat the puck away, only to see it roll through his legs. It was Anderson's 15th playoffs, tops among all playoff scorers.

The Flyers finally brought their fans to life when Craven scored at 9:04 on a power play — their first goal in 13 man-advantage situations in this series.
