Homeless in Skid Row

Blade suspected in crash

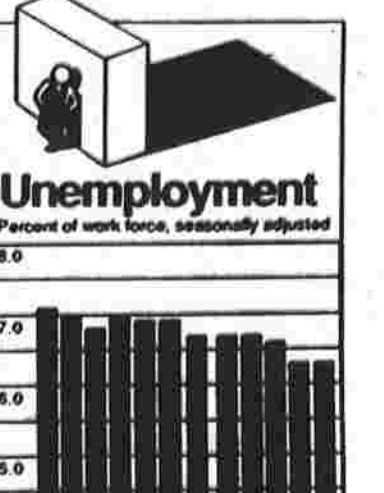

SOUTH WINDSOR - Federal investigators still have not determined the cause of Wednesday's helicopter crash off Buckland Road, but the president of the school that leased the helicopter said this morning a stalled main rotor blade cut into the aircraft's tail section.

Steve Davis, 30, homeless for three months in downtown Los Angeles, displays a banner that emphasizes his feelings about the planned sweep of the Skid Row area Thursday by police.

Jobless rate holds steady at 6.3 percent

WASHINGTON - The nation posted a decade-low jobless rate of 6.3 percent for the second straight month in May despite an increase of 46,000 in the rolls of the jobless, the government said today.

L.A. police serve homeless on Skid Row eviction notice

LOS ANGELES - Hundreds of homeless people abandoned their makeshift shelters as a line of about 40 police officers swept through Skid Row, tossing belongings into the street and threatening to arrest those who refused to move.

Panel vice chairman says investigation hindered

WASHINGTON (AP) - The vice chairman of the Senate investigating committee charged today that unknown people were orchestrating efforts to block crucial information from reaching congressional panels trying to unravel the Iran-Contra affair.

Coventry, state step up patrols at lake

COVENTRY - Boaters beware. Boosted-up supervision at Coventry Lake by state and local officials has begun and will continue through the summer, according to Town Manager Harold Hodge.

Court frees assets

A federal appeals court has lifted a freeze on $1.5 billion in assets of Ferdinand and Imelda Marcos, saying the matter raises political and foreign policy questions outside the scope of U.S. courts.

Necessity questioned

Democratic legislative leaders say they're not convinced a special session is needed to resolve controversial business tax bills. But they quickly add that it's what the governor wants, that's what they'll do.

Showers in East, Texas Southwest and Northwest

Thunderstorms and showers fell today from New England and the Carolinas to Texas, causing flash floods in waterlogged Texas, and storms dampened the Northwest and desert Southwest. Flash floods were reported in Atascosa and Frio counties just south of San Antonio, Texas, and a flash flood watch was in effect for the southern and southwestern sections of the state.

Weather Trivia

Which is heavier, warm moist air or cold dry air? ... Scattered showers and thunderstorms fell today in parts of Washington, Oregon and Idaho. Thunderstorms spawned winds gusting to 76 mph in Dusty, Wash., on Thursday night.

Today's weather picture was drawn by Theresa Tripler of East Hartford, 9, a fourth-grader at St. James School.

FOCUS

A Day in The Life

In a single day, Americans watch a total of about 630 million hours of television, but they still find time to make 998,178,710 local phone calls. They smoke more than 1.3 billion cigarettes each day, guzzle almost 16 million gallons of beer, and eat 75 acres of pizza. Americans read 67 million newspapers while drinking some of the 348 million cups of coffee they consume daily. It's no wonder we generate more than 602,700 tons of garbage per day.

Cassano, Naab join the race

Add Republican Geoffrey Naab and Democrat Stephen F. Cassano, both incumbents, to the list of those who are definitely running in this November's election for the Board of Directors.

Naab, who had indicated he probably would be a candidate, said this week he will seek his first, full two-year term. Naab was appointed to the board last year to fill a vacancy.

Cassano said this week he enjoys serving as a director, and needs to remain an elected official to remain as president of the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities.

They join Democratic Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg in seeking re-election to the board. Two of the seven other directors—Republican Thomas H. Ferguson and Democrat Stephen F. Penny—have said they probably will not seek re-election.

Democrat Peter P. DiRosa Jr. said Thursday he will make a final decision in a matter of days, but he is leaning heavily toward running again.

Republican William J. Diana has not announced his intentions. He could not be reached for comment. Each party will field six-member slates, with the top nine voters winning seats. Town committees for both parties will endorse candidates next month.

On the Democratic side, four people have said they want to run for the opening that would be created by Penny's retirement. They are Joseph V. Camposco, a retiring school board member; Joseph Howroyd, an alternate Planning and Zoning Commission member; Mary Ann Handley, a Cheney National Historic District Commission member; and Joan Lingard, a former town director who said she definitely will seek a seat.

Human Relations Commission Chairman Robert Faucher, who last year considered a run for the state Legislature, said Tuesday he will not run for the Board of Directors. He said he is too busy with his business.

For the Republicans, the possible list includes former Director John Garside, HRC member Ronald Oesella, and Eighth Utilities District activist Wallace Irby Jr.

Samuel Chorchos, owner of Chorchos Motors Inc., tests the sturdiness of the jail before being locked up. Chorchos was incarcerated as part of the American Cancer Society's Jail & Bail fund-raiser, which was held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the Marshall's mall in the Manchester Parkade.

Set me free

Chorchos had to raise bail by calling friends and associates to make pledges to the cancer society. "Some of my employees who didn't know about it looked shocked when they saw me being led away in handcuffs," said Chorchos, who raised $300.

Legislators angry that phase-in died

He attributed the bill's defeat to lack of strong direction from legislative leaders.

MANCHESTER OFFICIALS said Thursday they were disappointed and angry that the General Assembly failed to pass a phase-in legislation Wednesday. The legislation would have helped the town lessen the financial burden on property owners when next year's revaluation takes effect.

"I'm being paid $10 for good advice and $5 for bad advice. Naturally, I'll try to give more good than bad," said Jeffrey Zaasov, who with Diana Crowley is replacing Ann Landers as advice columnist at the Chicago Sun-Times, when asked about his pay.

Lawyer says town unlikely to be liable

Manchester Town Attorney John W. Cooney said this morning he does not think the town will be found liable in a lawsuit filed by a South Windsor man seeking more than $10 million in damages for a 1985 accident on Slater Street.

G. Scott MacLachlan claimed in the lawsuit that the town was liable because the accident occurred when MacLachlan's vehicle hit a pothole and swerved into a tree and then a boulevard.

Town receives Foulds grant

The town of Manchester has been awarded $1,878 from the Mr. and Mrs. William Foulds Foundation for use in the town's swimming program, town Treasurer Roger M. Negro has announced.

Since 1984, the town has received a total of $13,388 from the foundation, which is advised by John F. Magree, vice president of the Connecticut Bank and Trust Co. trust department, Negro said.

The town Board of Directors will consider formal acceptance of the grant at its meeting next week.

Manchester student gets award

Ann M. Wardenburg of Manchester has been chosen one of 31 outstanding vocational-technical school students by the Connecticut Business and Industry Association's Education Foundation, CBIA has announced.

Wardenburg, who attends Hartford State Technical College, will receive $100. The winners were chosen from each of the state's vocational-technical schools after being nominated by their instructors for academic excellence and leadership ability.

Managers to meet with public

The Board of Directors will conduct a public session June 18 from 8:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the directors' office in the Municipal Building.

Manchester/Area Towns in Brief

Temple school honors student

Michael Jordan Snider of Hebron has received the Marsha and Samuel Yale Memorial Scholarship Award from Temple Beth Shalom in Manchester, the temple has announced.

The scholarship is presented to the senior attending the Rabbi Leon Wind Religious School with an outstanding academic record.

Snider, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Henry I. Snider, is a senior at RHAM High School in Hebron. He is a member of the National Honor Society, the wind ensemble, and teams in varsity wrestling, cross-country and track and field.

He plans to attend Pennsylvania State University School of Engineering in the fall.

Hickey joins gambling panel

William V. Hickey of Manchester has begun his duties on the state Gaming Policy Board, which oversees the Division of Special Revenue.

He was sworn in last Friday, and his first official act will come today when he nominates William Ferris of Glastonbury for a position with the Division of Special Revenue.

Hickey, a retired state police sergeant, serves as a labor agent for the Connecticut State Police Union. He had been nominated for a four-year term on the Gaming Policy Board in April, and the nomination was approved by the General Assembly.

Hickey, a Parker Street resident, has lived in Manchester for the past 21 years.

Ferris currently works for the state Department of Motor Vehicles. He is Glastonbury's Democratic town chairman, and he had been a candidate last year for the 4th Senatorial District seat.

Jury to decide if Ross victim or calculating killer

By Linda Stowell
The Associated Press

BRIDGEPORT — The jury in the trial of Michael B. Ross is going to have to decide whether they believe the defendant's claim that Ross was sexually ill when he raped and killed four teen-agers, or the prosecution's claim that he was a calculating killer.

The case is expected to go to the jury today after Judge G. Sarrafello gave the charge.

On Thursday the jury listened to more than four hours of closing arguments from both sides in Bridgeport Superior Court.

"If you decide he's mentally ill because he killed girls after he raped them, then you're encouraging people. Don't do it once, do it a lot, because then they'll say you're sane," New London State Attorney C. Robert Sattl Jr. said.

After the defense presented its case, the prosecution argued, in his rebuttal, that Ross was not sexually ill when he raped and killed four teen-agers, or the prosecution's claim that he was a calculating killer.

Even one mitigating factor, such as insanity at the time of the crime or extreme emotional disturbance, would automatically rule out the death penalty.

Ross is charged with six counts of capital felony in the slayings of four young southeastern Connecticut women during rape or kidnapping.

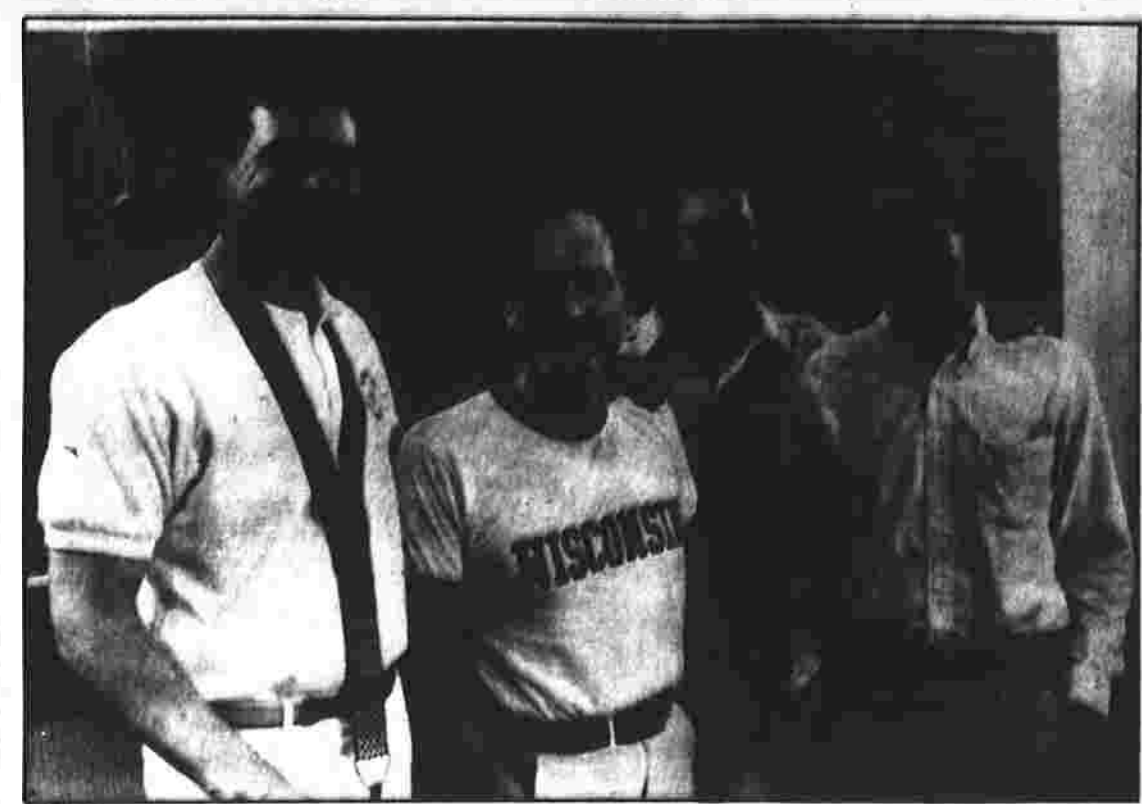

He is currently serving two consecutive life prison terms after pleading no contest in the murders of two other young women in Windham County.

Democrats say special session not necessary

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Democratic legislative leaders say they're not convinced a special session is needed to resolve a controversial business tax bill. But they quickly said that if that's what the governor wants, that's what they'll do.

Senate Democrats favored it. Some administration officials said after the talks broke down that there was really no urgency and that they may be able to wait until the 1988 General Assembly.

The Highwaymen, an early 1960s folk group best known for their No. 1 hit "Michael," are back together again for their 25th reunion at Wesleyan University in Middletown. The group will perform two concerts this weekend on campus.

Reunion a harmonious affair for top folk group of 1960s

By Susan Okita
The Associated Press

MIDDLETOWN — The Highwaymen, a clean-cut college folk group that made it all the way to the top in the early '60s, are harmonizing again at their 25th class reunion.

It is real fun and we're really close and we're just having a great time," said David Fisher, the only surviving member of the group who has stayed in the music business.

The Highwaymen are best known for their No. 1 1961 hit, "Michael," and better known by his lyrics "Michael, row the boat ashore."

They were planning to perform mostly old, familiar songs, but Fisher said he had written two new songs, one called "No. 1" that is "about a group that is no longer No. 1."

Gejdenson wants witnesses to take oath

By Christopher Colloren
The Associated Press

A Connecticut congressman apparently duped by a contra supporter posing as a Roman Catholic priest during congressional testimony has asked House lawyers to look into possible criminal charges against the witness.

Rep. Sam Gejdenson on Thursday also asked the chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee to impose a new policy requiring witnesses to take an oath before testifying.

Thomas Dowling testified two years ago before the Western Hemisphere subcommittee, contradicting testimony that the rebel forces in Nicaragua were committing human rights violations.

Gejdenson said congressional investigators have learned that Dowling is a member of the Latin American Strategic Studies, a pro-contra group, and has received money from Lt. Col. Oliver Contra under Adolfo Calero and Richard Miller, the president of International Business Communications who recently pleaded guilty to conspiracy in the Iran-contra scandal.

Reagan lays groundwork for pact support

VENICE, Italy (AP) — President Reagan is laying the groundwork for a summit endorsement next week of a superpower pact to dismantle hundreds of American and Soviet nuclear missiles in Europe and Asia.

The arms proposal will be raised initially at the summit and later in the week at the NATO foreign ministers conference in Reykjavik, Iceland.

Reagan, the first leader to arrive here for the seven-nation meeting, released with his wife at a 20-room villa outside Venice, studying briefing papers.

In other developments, administration sources said Reagan, lacking compelling evidence that Japan is complying with a computer chip agreement, is getting conflicting advice from his cabinet on whether to lift $300 million in sanctions.

Legislators' failures are disappointing

It is unfortunate that Connecticut's legislators may well be remembered for what they killed, rather than what they created, in the 1987 session of the General Assembly. Rarely have so many important bills made it almost all of the way through the complicated legislative process, only to die on the floor of the House or the Senate.

Among the casualties: a bill banning "happy hours," a bill prohibiting discrimination against homosexuals, a bill banning discrimination against victims of AIDS, a bill to abolish the death penalty and a bill banning smoking in restaurants.

Probably the bill that attracted more emotion than any other was the one to prohibit discrimination in housing and employment against homosexuals. On Monday, hundreds of gay-rights activists turned out to protest its defeat and to vow that the bill would be brought back next year.

Another defeated bill, fast becoming a perennial, would have banned happy hours. It is puzzling that a bill that makes so much sense cannot make it into law.

But many bills did not die because anyone disagreed over their merits, but because legislators could not agree on last-minute modifications.

A case in point was the happy-hour bill, which failed because a conference committee couldn't agree on a minor difference between the House and Senate versions of the measure.

The Senate attached an amendment to the happy-hour bill that would have allowed wineries to sell wine wholesale to out-of-state residents. The House rejected the amendment.

One would think that the Democrats, who last year criticized Republicans for not getting things done, would have been able to conduct business more effectively.

Who does want it? Why do they want it? Happily, the town zoning regulations prohibit such facilities as shooting galleries. Granted, the word "laser" is not used. Can there really be such a lack of integrity in the reading of the regulations that such an unwanted intruder as "laser games" can crawl in?

According to a May 20, 1987, Manchester Herald article, the developers need a building permit from the town, which has not been granted. Keep it that way.

Evidently, one permit for interior demolition was issued by Zoning Enforcement Officer Thomas R. O'Marra—an unfortunate mistake. It would seem unacceptable for the Board of Directors to further compound the error and subject the townspeople to the ill effects of an unwelcome outsider.

Let's maintain ideals, integrity

To the Editor: A few thoughts on the proposed laser business in Manchester:

There is certainly reason to wonder why it is so difficult to prohibit an enterprise which has met with such overwhelming opposition from so many of the townspeople.

The aforementioned have been forthright and articulate in setting forth the reasons for their concern.

Time to outlaw leg-hold traps

To the Editor: I am a strong believer in animal rights and I am writing to you about leg-hold traps. They are cruel and immoral. I propose the outlawing of these traps for the cause of humane suffering to the animal.

Man often forgets that animals feel pain just as we do and it's a shame that they should be subjected to this terrible form of hunting.

Although I despise hunting of any sort, I would say that at least gun hunting leads to a quick death. Traps, however, lead to a slow, agonizing death. Often, in complete desperation, the animal will chew off its own leg.

I don't think hunting is a necessary part of our society. There are supermarkets just around the corner to suit everyone's needs without disrupting the balance of nature.

There is absolutely no need for trapping. It is an act of extreme cruelty and should be done away with.

Tests are needed to control AIDS

To the Editor: I noted with interest the editorial "Stupidity and genius over AIDS." Having treated patients with far advanced civilian TB in 1946 when streptomycin was being introduced, and more recently performing open lung biopsies on patients with AIDS, my perspective is perhaps somewhat different from that of the editor.

In previous years, hospital tests for TB were done for early treatment of patients and also for protection of hospital personnel. Even before cures were available, patients with active TB were coerced into hospitals for a year or more of treatment to control the

Mexico could not handle public unrest

WASHINGTON — Mexico's military, which has been the unspoken guarantor of the dominant political party's power for the last 60 years, will be unable to cope with widespread public disorder that might arise in the next decade, according to a secret CIA report we've obtained.

On the eve of the white paper mapping out defense strategy for the next 10 years, an opinion poll in the Veracruz state showed 16 percent of Canadians agreed that the purchase of nuclear subs.

The result of the Mexican general's inability to keep the lid on could well be a bloody revolution and civil war south of the border, with serious ramifications for the United States. The CIA offers scant hope that the Mexican armed forces would be able to pull their socks up in time to deal with anything more serious than sporadic, isolated outbreaks of urban terrorism.

"Mexico: Growing Challenge to Current Stability," is a 72-page litany of the seriously divisive influences that are wracking Mexico today. One section, with the ominous heading, "Cataclysm: Problem of Widespread Disorders," focuses directly on the military's inability to guarantee the power of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI.

"AS LONG AS incidents remain scattered," the CIA observes, "we expect the Mexican military's reputation for strong action, its recent upgrading through intensified training and its demonstrated ability to move units quickly to trouble spots will enable the government to retain control."

The report, "is a 72-page litany of the seriously divisive influences that are wracking Mexico today. One section, with the ominous heading, 'Cataclysm: Problem of Widespread Disorders,' focuses directly on the military's inability to guarantee the power of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI.

Mexico's total military establishment numbers roughly 124,000 — the smallest percentage of any Latin American population in uniform except for Costa Rica, which has no army at all. The Mexican army makes up the great bulk of the armed forces, with a strength of about 88,000.

The military is not prepared to handle a wide variety of simultaneous threats, each requiring tailored tactical planning, training and equipment," the report continues. "Even with good training and discipline, the relatively small military forces would be stretched too thin."

TODAY MANY units might be tied down defending oilfields, refineries and other industrial targets, the report explains, adding: "(The government) might be reluctant to spare reinforcements for outlying states if unrest threatened the capital. Efforts to call up individual reserves trained each year... would be seriously slowed, we judge, by inaction about using such troops to quell domestic unrest..."

The CIA points out that Mexico's national military command is too centralized to be flexible, and is reluctant to delegate authority. In addition, the report notes, "few local commanders have the operational experience or sufficient resources on hand to manage extended military actions on their own."

EQUIPMENT shortages would be another problem, the CIA concludes, and would be exacerbated if the armed forces were engaged in action lasting more than several days. Requisitioning civilian vehicles and other necessary equipment might help, but there has been no advance planning for this contingency, the report states. "Spreading violence would also probably prevent the military from acquiring food and fuel through traditional commercial channels."

The secret report weighs all the problems and concludes that the Mexican government "could find it very difficult to quell widespread, intense disorders in major Mexican urban areas," particularly if it were faced at the same time with "rural unrest and the need to protect its economic infrastructure from sabotage."

Mini-editorial
No one, it seems, will ever go broke overestimating the gullibility of museum directors. The latest suspicion of fakery has attached to great quantities of "pre-Columbian" ceramic figurines — those comical little dolls that are perhaps best known as eye-catchers for Kahlué turquoise ads. A Mexican sculptor-restorer stunned the art world when he said he had made figurines for years in pre-Columbian style for sale to tourists — and maybe some had been resold as authentic.

Archaeologists have now cast doubt on hundreds of other dolls accepted as genuine. What did P.T. Barnum say? "There's an expert born every minute." Something like that.

Canada unveils plan to purchase subs

OTTAWA — Defense Minister Parris Beatty today unveiled a new defense policy expected to include spending more on the current national military budget on Canada's first nuclear-powered submarine.

Women's AIDS odds put at 1 in 1,000

WASHINGTON — A woman's odds of catching an AIDS infection from a single sexual encounter with an infected man are about one in 1,000, a new report estimates.

Researchers at the Pasteur Institute in Paris said the virus, called HIV-2, originated in Africa and has been detected in about 100 people in Europe. He said it causes a disease identical to AIDS, although some U.S. experts contend it rarely triggers illness.

A dentist has gotten an AIDS infection from apparent on-the-job contact with infected patients. Dr. Robert S. Klein of Montefiore Medical Center in New York said the man claimed he had engaged in none of the risky behavior usually associated with acquired immune deficiency syndrome, such as intravenous drug abuse or homosexual activity.

The study, directed by Dr. Nancy Padian, was presented by Winkles at the Third International Conference on AIDS. It was one of several clues presented at the meeting to help answer questions about whether — and how fast — the lethal disease will spread into heterosexual America.

Chicago — Dear Puzled: Two heads are better than one. In the nappy style typical of advice columnist Ann Landers, that's the Chicago Sun-Times might say about her replacements.

The newspaper on Thursday announced that it had selected a 28-year-old Wall Street Journal feature writer and the 47-year-old daughter of the original Ann Landers to replace her.

"The simplest way to explain this is for the job to give a fresh angle to his Journal story on the Sun-Times three-month search for a columnist to replace Ann Landers, who moved to the rival Chicago Tribune.

She is Diane Crowley, a Longmeadow, Mass., lawyer and former teacher.

After surviving three cuts that reduced a field of 11,000 applicants to seven finalists, Zaslav sought advice about the job from — who else? — Eppie Lederer, who was a homemaker when she won a Sun-Times contest to find a new Ann Landers after the death in 1953 of Crowley's mother, Ruth Crowley.

"I've told me to be careful what you pray for because you just might get it," said Zaslav. "Well, now I've got it, so either the other entrants were more careful with their prayers, or I was more reckless with mine."

Crowley, asked what she planned to do, said she would write on the subject of women's rights and more serious and traditional, his more off-the-wall.

Sun-Times Editor Matthew Steiner said she would be the first columnist to debut in early July, although the formal and possible syndication arrangements are uncertain.

Under the False Claims Act, which allows private parties to sue on behalf of the government, the Justice Department could have taken over the suit, sought to have it dismissed or allowed Bojoly to proceed.

Joe Hunt is handcuffed by a bailiff Thursday after a jury in Santa Monica, Calif., recommended he receive a life sentence for the murder of Ronald Levin. Hunt was the 27-year-old leader of the Billionaire Boys Club.

Boys club leader expected to get life

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — A jury has recommended life in prison without parole for Joe Hunt, the convicted murderer and charismatic leader of a group of wealthy scions called the Billionaire Boys Club.

Two members of the Los Angeles County Superior Court jury, which convicted Hunt of murder on April 22, said at an impromptu news conference Thursday that they chose a life sentence for the 27-year-old because the death penalty was too quick.

"Joe Hunt needs time to sit and think about the things he did," said Dean Rutherford, a 41-year-old truck driver from Lawndale.

Hunt, a tall, dark-haired and somber man, had attended his trial dressed in expensive suits. But he wore a blue jail uniform for Thursday's session.

His lawyer, Arthur Barona, said Hunt was extremely relieved the jury did not recommend the death sentence and is hoping for a new trial.

The judge is expected to act on the jury's recommendation at a formal sentencing set for June 25. Hunt was found guilty of shooting Beverly Hills con man Ronald Levin to death on June 8, 1984, disfiguring his face with shotgun blasts, Hunt burying him in a remote section of Soledad Canyon. Levin's body was never found.

During the penalty phase, the prosecution produced evidence supporting a separate allegation that Hunt murdered a northern California man. He is awaiting trial in that case.

The prosecutor, Deputy District Attorney Fred Warner, told reporters, "I think Mr. Hunt is an evil person."

Rutherford, who agreed to speak with reporters along with Juror Pat Robles, 45, a telephone repair supervisor from Santa Monica, said jurors had seriously considered giving Hunt the death penalty but finally settled on life, believing they had stopped him from committing more murders.

"Once he got started, he wouldn't stop until someone stopped him," said Rutherford. "We had to stop him."

Engineer to press suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — An engineer who says his former employer committed fraud in building rocket boosters for the Challenger space shuttle will press his $2 billion lawsuit against the company despite the government's refusal to join it.

Under the False Claims Act, which allows private parties to sue on behalf of the government, the Justice Department could have taken over the suit, sought to have it dismissed or allowed Bojoly to proceed.

Study reveals impairment trends

CHICAGO (AP) — Anesthesiologists have the highest reported rate of narcotics abuse among doctors, while general and family practitioners are more likely to be alcohol-dependent, new studies show.

A study of 1,000 physicians with drug or alcohol problems nationwide indicated that a disproportionate number of them are specialists in anesthesia.

Japanese ball player set to break Gehrig's mark

By Steven K. Paulson
The Associated Press

TAKARAZUKA, Japan — Next week, barring rain, injury or disaster, Seisaku Kinugasa will play his 5,500th consecutive game, one more than the record string put together by Lou Gehrig 64 years ago.

Kinugasa, a 49-year-old third baseman, has never missed a game since joining the Hiroshima Toyo Carp full time on Oct. 19, 1979. His streak has survived broken bones, the flu and a major stomp.

"I just wanted to play baseball," Kinugasa said in an interview Wednesday at an Osaka hotel, waiting for game No. 2,134 against the Hamelin Tigers in Osaka. "For me, baseball is my life. Baseball is everything."

He has needed 17 seasons to do what Gehrig did for the New York Yankees in 16 years. The Japanese will play 159 games a year, while the major leagues played 154 games in 1986.

On Tuesday, Kinugasa expects to tie Gehrig's record of 1,195 consecutive games, set on May 3, 1939, on Wednesday. He hopes to break it before his honeymoon in Hawaii.

Kinugasa, who is half American, said he knows more about Babe Ruth than Gehrig.

"Actually, Babe Ruth is an American dream," he said. "All Japanese players would like to be able to hit like him."

This current favorite is Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox. "I like powerful hitters, because I can't do it," he said.

Not since Gehrig replaced Wally Pipp at first base for the Yankees has any player proved so durable. Gehrig batted injuries and illness before he finally gave up after 18 years. He died just two years later, on June 2, 1953, his muscles so weakened by amyotrophic lateral sclerosis that he could no longer breathe.

When Kinugasa begins the world's most durable play, it will be the third time that a Japanese athlete has broken a significant

U.S. major league record. In 1977, Sadaharu Oh beat Hank Aaron's record of 755 career home runs on the CMA Metropolitan Life Youth Cup semifinal Saturday at 9 a.m. against Fairfield at Watertown High School.

"It was even more painful for me to stay home," Kinugasa said. "I'm 41 to the ballpark and hit, then I just have to wait for an instant. If I had to watch the game on television, I'd ache for three hours. I chose to go to the ballpark," he said.

During his career, Kinugasa has been hit 166 times, six by the record held by Masashi Takedauchi, the Hamelin Tigers coach.

Japan, 5-foot-9 and 160 pounds, has nearly 800 home runs and more than 1,000 hits during his career. He was named most valuable player in 1984. He reportedly earned the equivalent of $600,000 a year.

During the time he has been with the team, the Carp have won five league pennants, and three championships.

In 1990, Kinugasa watched a movie, "Pride of the Yankees," on Gehrig's life. However, he said he hasn't watched it since then.

"I wish when I'm ready to retire," he said.

Asked when that will be, he replied, "Not for a long time, I hope."

Sports In Brief

Manchester clubs in state play

Two Manchester soccer clubs will see action in State Cup semifinal round Saturday. The "MBC girls" under 19 squad will be in the CMA Metropolitan Life Youth Cup semifinal Saturday at 9 a.m. against Fairfield at Watertown High School. The boys' under 14 squad will be in a State Cup semifinal against Watlington Saturday at Curtis Park in Simsbury at 2:30 p.m. The girls' final will be Saturday, June 20, at Wilton High School at 9 a.m., while the boys' final will be Friday, June 12, at Fairfield University at 8 p.m.

Select Soccer Academy Aug. 24-28

The Select Soccer Academy, out of Oakwood Sports and Fitness Center in Glastenbury, will conduct a five-day high school preparation session Aug. 24-28 at East Catholic High School. The camp is to enhance physical performance and confidence in preparation for the fall academic season.

Rick Derella and Dave Farrell will direct the program. Fee is $65 and enrollment is limited. For application, information, call 885-9898.

Starling faces crucial bout tonight

HARTFORD — Welterweight Marion Starling, with a possible title fight with Lloyd Honeyghan on the line, will meet Roberto Bruno tonight at the Civic Center's Assembly Hall in a scheduled 10-round main event. The card starts at 7:30 p.m.

Starling is 4-4 with 20 knockouts while Bruno, 26, has a 21-0 record including 15 KOs.

A Starling victory could move him into a title bout with Honeyghan, who holds the IBF and World Boxing Council welterweight titles. Starling is currently ranked No. 1 by the IBF.

Staub to appear at Westfarms Mall

WEST HARTFORD — Rusty Staub, former New York Met and currently a broadcaster for the team, will appear at the He Man Shop at Westfarms Mall on Wednesday, June 17, from noon to 2 p.m. Staub, a size 48 extra long, will be on hand to meet fans.

Harris takes over as Bucks' coach

MILWAUKEE — Del Harris says his new role as coach of the Milwaukee Bucks has been made easier because he inherits the momentum of Don Nelson, who handled the NBA club for 11 seasons.

"I would rather follow where success has been established and it can be more easily maintained than trying to get some dog to do the things that we have done," Harris said. "It's familiar and comfortable with our players, with our system."

Harris signed a three-year contract Thursday, just over a week after Nelson formally resigned because of what he called differences with club owner Herbert Kohl.

Harris, 49, a former Houston Rockets coach, became an assistant coach last season under Nelson. He was a Milwaukee scout for three years.

MacLeod rebounds as Mavs' coach

DALLAS — Just 14 weeks after being fired by the Phoenix Suns, John MacLeod has rebounded to win one of the NBA's plum jobs — head coach of the Dallas Mavericks.

MacLeod, who took his team to the NBA playoffs nine times but never won the title, was named Tuesday night to replace Dick Motta as coach of the seven-year-old Mavericks franchise, owner Don Carter said.

Terms of the contract between MacLeod and Carter were not announced, although general manager Norm Sonja said it "is a similar ongoing handshake contract like the one that Motta had with Mr. Carter."

Under MacLeod, the Suns went to the playoffs nine times and made it to the finals in 1976, when they lost to the Boston Celtics.

MacLeod, 49, said he was "thrilled" to get the Mavericks job.

Penguins name Creamer coach

PITTSBURGH — Pierre Creamer, the new coach of the Pittsburgh Penguins, doesn't want to hear about the team's prior failings. He wants to talk about the future.

"That's the past," Creamer said Thursday after being named coach of the Penguins, a team that has finished over .500 only four times in its 20 NHL seasons. Their last winning season came in 1979-78, when they were 36-31-13 under Johnny Wilson.

Creamer, 42, succeeded Bob Berry, who was fired in April after the Penguins failed to reach the Stanley Cup playoffs for the fifth straight season.

Ventura hit streak comes to a close

OMAHA, Neb. — Robin Ventura's NCAA record 38-game hitting streak came to an end when he went 0-for-2 Thursday night in Oklahoma State's 6-3 victory over Stanford in the College World Series.

Ventura was 0-for-4 entering the ninth inning, but got an additional chance to extend his mark when Ray Ortis singled with two outs.

Hextall wins Seagram rookie award

NEW YORK — Goaltender Ron Hextall, who led the Philadelphia Flyers to the Stanley Cup finals, was named Seagram Sports award rookie of the year in the NHL Thursday.

Hextall had a 37-31-8 record during the regular season, and won another 15 games during the Stanley Cup playoffs. Although the Flyers lost to the Edmonton Oilers in the seventh game of the finals, Hextall won the Conn Smythe trophy as the most valuable player in the playoffs.

Pittino inks new five-year contract

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Rick Pittino, who led Providence College to the NCAA Final Four this spring, signed a five-year contract with the school Thursday.

No monetary terms were disclosed.

Pittino, who came to Providence in 1985, was courted by the NBA's New York Knicks after the Friars' success this spring, but announced May 1 that he would remain at the school.

He said then that the timing was wrong for him to join the professional ranks and that he already had a great job with Providence, where he had two years remaining on his original four-year contract.

"I'm both excited and eager for the challenge that lies ahead both this season and in the years to come," said Pittino in a prepared statement Thursday.

Pittino has denied published reports that his new contract with Providence would be worth $200,000. He was believed to be making $90,000 under his former four-year contract with Providence. That figure includes a summer camp and his meeker-endorsement contract.

John Marinato, sports information director, could supply no details of the new contract.

Pittino took a team that finished 11-20 in 1984-85 and made the quarterfinals of the National Invitation Tournament in his first season.

In 1985-87, the Friars finished 25-8, beating Big East rival Georgetown to win the Southeastern Regional and advance to the Final Four for only the second time in the school's history.

Saberhagen gains 10th win

By Ben Walker
The Associated Press

Everyone wondered which Bret Saberhagen would pitch for the Kansas City Royals this season. So far, the answer is clear. He's the flashy guy who won the Cy Young Award in 1985, not the impetuous who flopped through 1986.

Saberhagen became the first 10-game winner in the major leagues this year, allowing seven singles Thursday night as the Kansas City Royals beat the Seattle Mariners 6-1.

Saberhagen, 16-1, overcame a shaky start by giving up a run on two hits and a walk in the first inning and went on to pitch a wonderful game at the Kingdoms, a hitter's paradise.

"I'm staying healthy this year, that's the big thing," Saberhagen said. "My foot and shoulder were hurting all last year and I never got started."

AL Roundup

Saberhagen burst on the baseball scene in 1985 when he went 28-4 with a 2.97 earned run average and led the Royals to the World Series championship. Last year, plagued by injuries, he went 7-12 with a 4.15 ERA.

"This is the best start for a Royal pitcher I've ever seen," said veteran Kansas City catcher Jamie Quirk. "I don't see any chance of him slowing down."

Saberhagen struck out five, walked four and lowered his ERA to 2.29.

In another American League game, California got past Chicago 7-3.

Danny Tartabull, Steve Balboni and Kevin Seitzer hit two-run homers that backed Saberhagen. Tartabull scored on a sacrifice bunt.

The Mariners, who have lost three in a row, are 2 1/2 games behind the West by Royals after Minnesota. The Mariners, who have lost three in a row, are 2 1/2 games behind the West by Royals after Minnesota.

A single by Phil Bradley, a walk to Scott Bradley and Alvin Davis' two-out single put Seattle ahead in the first inning. Balboni tied the score in the fifth with his eighth homer.

An run-scoring single by Balboni and Frank White's RBI grounder made it 8-1 in the eighth. Seitzer hit his third homer in the ninth off reliever Jerry Roenigk.

Wally Joyner's RBI single capped a 2-0 inning in the eighth and lifted California over Chicago. Jose DeLeon, 4-4, checked the Angels on just one hit for seven innings before Gary Pettit led off the eighth with an infield single. Pettit scored, took third on an infield hit by Devon White and scored on Joyner's sharp single off reliever Ray Searage.

Jack LaRoche, 1-2, won his first major-league game. He pitched a six-inning shutout in his first complete game, which came in his fifth big-league start.

The Angels scored twice in the first inning. Balboni tied the score in the fifth with his eighth homer.

Dave Murphy got the Atlanta Braves out of their scoring slump in a four-run win over the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3.

Murphy and Andres Thomas homered during a four-run first inning Thursday and the Braves worked the final two innings for his third save.

"It just happened to get some runs early and then he had a shaky start after his two-run homer, his last of the season."

The Braves had totaled just four runs in their first seven games since moving from the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3.

"It was just a matter of time until the guys broke out," said winning pitcher Zane Smith. "I'm still confident."

Smith, 6-3, gave up three runs on six hits in seven innings. Jeff Beaton worked the final two innings for his third save.

John Ortis singled home Pittsburgh's first run in the second and Morrison had an RBI groundout in the third and Mike Diaz hit his seventh homer in the fifth.

Tom Wallace hit a three-run homer and Hubie Brooks connected for a two-run shot that helped Montreal sweep a three-game series from San Diego and win for the ninth time in its last 11 games.

The host Expos broke a 4-4 tie in the eighth by scoring two runs on sacrifice fly Wallace hit his seventh homer in the seventh against Storm Davis, 1-6.

Jack Clark hit a two-run homer and St. Louis' Danny Cox and Todd Worrell combined to cool off Chicago.

Cox, 6-2, gave up six hits in 7 1/3 innings and allowed only one run. The Cubs had scored 38 runs in their last two games.

Chicago Cubs' shortstop Shawn Dunston is airborne during a force play at second base involving St. Louis Cardinals' Curt Ford. Ford was forced on the play. The Cardinals went on to defeat the Cubs, 3-1, Thursday afternoon at Wrigley Field.

NEW YORK — Woody Stephens has the "fresh" horse in Gene West, Jack Van Berg, bred by Dan Patch, who appears none the worse after winning the Kentucky Derby and Preakness.

The possibility of a Triple Crown is enough to spark interest in Saturday's 11th Belmont Stakes, which caps the series for 3-year-olds. But the presence of the 7-year-old Stephens, who is bidding for his sixth consecutive Belmont, adds to the intrigue.

If Alysheba wins, and he's the 8 1/2-year-old, he will earn the big prize in the toughest racing history — $5 million.

Stephens' entry of Gene West and Quietante is the early third choice at 4-1 behind the LeRoy Jolley-trained entry of Gulch, the Metropolitan Handicap winner, and the 1985 Triple Crown winner, Peter Pan Stakes, which is 5-2.

"It's only because of Woody that the odds on his entry are that low," said Stephens, who was in the Belmont with the 1977 Triple Crown winner, Secretariat.

Stephens said he is impressed by Gene West, who didn't go in the Derby and Preakness, has four victories in eight starts this year. He finished second (Peter Pan) and first (Whisper) in his last two outings, both at Belmont Park.

It rained Thursday, but the forecast called for sunny, warm weather today and Saturday.

"I'll bet the exacta (1-2 finishers) will be good," Stephens said.

There also is the controversial Lasix factor surrounding the Belmont.

Alysheba ran on the anti-bleeding medication in his past four races, but the drug is not permitted in New York.

Van Berg said the medication was used as a precautionary measure after his colt underwent throat surgery March 24 to correct a breathing problem. On the other hand, other main challengers to Alysheba's bid to become the 12th Triple Crown winner in history include Bet Twice, 5-1 and Cryptoclearance, 6-1.

Bet Twice finished second to Alysheba in the Derby, by three-quarters of a length, and in the Preakness, by a half-length. The colt's erratic stretch run almost caused Alysheba to fall in the Derby, but he had no problems in the Belmont.

Bet Twice has trained at Monmouth Park in Oceanport, N.J. Plans call for him to arrive at Belmont Park on race day.

Cryptoclearance, the Florida Derby winner, ran third in the Preakness after a fourth in the Derby.

Gooden, Mets reunited tonight

By Ben Walker
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Tonight, Dwight Gooden returns to the New York Mets. Only time will tell what they get.

"I don't matter what he does," said Darryl Strawberry, his best friend on the team. "The good thing is that we're getting him back. I'm going to tell him to have fun and not think about anything else but the game."

A quiet crowd at Shea Stadium on a clear evening was expected for Gooden's first major-league start since cocaine rehabilitation. He will face the Pittsburgh Pirates on April 29 after a 28-day stay. He did not speak to reporters after any of his five minor-league starts.

Gooden went through a 30-minute workout at Shea on Thursday, struck out 11, threw two innings, and scattered seven hits to down No. 2 Stanford, 6-2, in the winners bracket finals.

And, a six-run sixth inning proved to be the Ottobello Oklahoma State game.

The only Cottonwood and Stanford pitcher was a former first baseman downed by All-American third baseman Robin Ventura. Ventura's NCAA record 38-game hitting streak was snapped by a 6-inning game on Sunday night.

Former New York Yankee catcher Frank "Spec" Shea, of Naugatuck, will be on hand Sunday to sign autographs at a baseball card show to be held at Illing Junior High School. The show runs from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. with Shea signing autographs between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for students. Proceeds go to help defray the cost of the illing cross country and basketball invitational. A 1987 complete set of Topps cards and a complete set of Topps Red Sox and Yankees cards will be among the door prizes.

Martina has mixed feelings after semi win over Evert

By Andrew Worslow
The Associated Press

PARIS — Martina Navratilova had just won her way into her 54th Grand Slam singles championship match, yet she felt a little sad. Because the player she beat 6-2, 6-4 in the semifinals of the French Open, Thursday was her long-time rival and friend Chris Evert.

"I felt bad even before we started because I knew I would feel sorry for her if she lost," Navratilova said.

"Of course, I'd have felt sorrier for myself. But I'll be back next year and I don't know if she will."

Evert has hinted this week that she may soon retire.

"When I was about to win the match, it was ridiculous," Navratilova said. "I was asking myself whether Chris would be here again. We've both been there and back and there again so many times. It made me think."

Victory was nevertheless sweet for Navratilova, the world's No. 1 player, who has won the French Open four times. Evert, who has won it six times, was her opponent in the final.

The Swede's only victory over Evert in five meetings was in the second round of 1968 French Open when he was an enthusiastic 6-3, 6-2, 6-1 winner.

Navratilova's victory over Evert was her 19th in 75 meetings between the American rivals, and one of the most one-sided, lasting just one hour, 14 minutes.

Evert, who had won her last three tournaments, took too many risks as she tried to play deep and keep Navratilova in the backcourt.

She missed a stream of groundstrokes and netted countless approach shots as Navratilova pressed her and gave nothing away.

Trying for her third consecutive French title and her eighth overall, Evert could not hold serve until the sixth game of the second set. By then, Navratilova had opened up a 6-2, 6-0 lead.

In that game, Evert saved two match points and a second set whitewash and managed to break Navratilova for 6-2. But the next game produced two more match points and only one was needed as Evert put a cross-court backhand narrowly wide.

Evert now has only two tournaments left, Wimbledon and the U.S. Open, to extend her record of winning at least one Grand Slam title every year since 1974. Clay is her favorite surface but she said: "Maybe this will take the pressure off Wimbledon. In previous years, I've won here and lost there."

Evert said she was beaten "fair and square" but added: "I've had bigger letdowns. Perhaps Martina had more to prove than I did. She was really pumped up."

Evert said she probably made the mistake of going for too many winners.

"That's not the smartest thing to do on clay. She just ran down every ball," Evert said. "She's definitely more eager than I've seen her in a long time."

Saturday's championship match will be worth $100,000 to the winner, but Graf very nearly blew her chance in a rain-interrupted, tense struggle against Sabatini.

The teen-agers split the first two sets and after a lengthy rain delay, it was Sabatini who played the steadier, more aggressive tennis.

Only when she was in danger of losing did Graf turn on the style that has won 38 successive matches and six tournaments.

"I thought I still had a chance to win," Graf said. "I tried to hit harder and take more risks. I think I was a little bit lucky to win."

Morse laughs into the lead

By Ralph Bernstein
The Associated Press

WILMINGTON, Del. — Cathy Morse says her new caddy not only hands her a lot of clubs, but a barrel of laughs.

She credited the course jester with helping her shoot a 6-under-par 66 Thursday for a one-stroke lead over Eberri Turner in the first round of the $500,000 LPGA McDonald's Championship.

The first round was suspended at 5:20 p.m. when rain drenched the course and lightning flashed across the sky.

An hour later, play was called off for the 48 players still on the course until 7 a.m. today before the start of Round 2 in the 72-hole tournament over the 4,287-yard Du Pont Country Club course.

Morse said her new caddy, Alex Lawes, "helps a lot. He's really funny. He laughs. We just kid about everything and laugh all the way around the golf course."

"It's nice to have somebody to joke with. I think it helps me. It's been a big help as far as my mental outlook. He has helped me to accept what happens and just try to make the next one."

Turner, who hasn't won in her four years on the tour, carded a 67 on the strength of five birdies against one bogey. Like Morse, she started on the back nine, where she managed four birdies. Another stroke back at 68 were Amy Alcott, Patti Rizzo, Patty Sheehan, Marcel Bonart and Lauri Peterson.

Cindy Barick, the tour's fifth-leading money winner, Alice Ritman and Barbro Miralhe were at 69.

Asako Okamoto, who had a hole-in-one at the par-3, 183-yard eighth hole, finished at 70 with six others, including defending champion Juli Inkster and Kathy Postlewait.

Assault halted
POTOMAC, Md. (AP) — It took a violent rainstorm to stop Greg Norman's assault on the new home of the $700,000 Kemper Open.

Norman, the defending champion, shot a 7-under-par 64 Thursday to share the lead with Tom Kite in the rain-shortened first round of the tournament. Scott Hoch finished at 65 and No. 2 money-winner Payne Stewart was among a group of four players at 68.

Showers suspended play with exactly half the 156-man field still on the 6,864-yard Tournament Players Club at Avenet course. Of the 78 # players who completed the round, 31 broke par and nine finished even.

The tournament was to resume today with the completion of the opening round. Officials hoped to beat the darkness and complete most of the second round before Saturday.

Low scores were common as rain from Wednesday night left the course in ideal condition. The group at 64 included Chris Perry, Howard Twitty and Charles Bolling, while Larry Mize, Mike Bender and Sandy Lyle all had 65.

U.S. Open champion Ray Floyd, Curtis Strange and Mark Brooks finished at 68.

New champ assured
DALLAS (AP) — Before a single shot had been struck in the $200,000 PGA Seniors ReUnion Pro-Am golf tournament, a new champion had been guaranteed.

Defending champion Don January withdrew from the 54-hole tournament Thursday because of the death of his father-in-law, Herman Rushing. January was replaced by alternate Dan Baranich.

Chi Chi Rodriguez, fresh from a week's rest after winning three consecutive tournaments, was the favorite when the event began today. January won with a 12-under-par 263 total last year, besting Rodriguez by two shots.

after Prince George's County District Court Judge Sylvia Woods refused to set bond for the Tar Heels tailback, who holds the Atlantic Coast Conference rushing record for a single game.

"I don't think there's any reason to hold Derrick. No bond is cruel, it's just cruel," Worshil said.

Fenner, 30, of Oxon Hill, Md., was charged Tuesday with first-degree murder in what police said was the drug-related shooting death of Marcellus Leach, 19.

Leach was gunned down May 23 in the courtyard of the Kirkwood apartment, according to Hyattsville City police Tuesday, would not appear at his court hearings.

The band shell — built on cans, comedy, cookbooks and cast-offs

By Nancy Pappas
Herald Reporter

On the outside, the Manchester Bicentennial Band Shell appears to be built of cinder blocks, shingles and poured concrete.

But before the cinder blocks were stacked or the concrete was poured a decade ago, Manchester residents were building the band shell from cans and cookbooks, comedy routines and cast-off furniture.

To raise money for the band shell, Manchester children collected aluminum cans for recycling, while their mothers worked on "Tasting Treats," a cookbook put together by the Women's Club of Manchester.

Some Manchester families gave their cast-off furnishings to a fund-raising tag sale, while others contributed their talents — comedy or musical — to town-wide variety shows.

Commemorative medals were sold, raffles and bake sales were held, all because town residents believe that Manchester needed a focal point for summer activities, according to Katherine Giblin, who served as the original "Build the Band Shell" committee.

And ran many of the fund-raising events.

"Many people don't realize at all, that this was a grass-roots effort," said Ralph Maccarone, the band shell coordinator. "There was no tax money involved in building this facility."

Senior citizens always admitted FREE. No one under 18 admitted.

IT WAS THE WINTER OF 1974 when a local musician and band leader, Kenneth Morgester, suggested that the town build a band shell as a project for the U.S. Bicentennial.

The idea was met with enthusiasm from the town's Bicentennial Committee, led by Nathan Agostinelli and Francis Mahony.

But four years and four months were to elapse before the Al Gentle Orchestra opened the first official season of concerts at the new shell on the campus of Manchester Community College. In between, hundreds of people worked to make the band shell a reality, according to Maccarone.

"It did take longer than we expected it would," Agostinelli said this week. "But we knew this was a major undertaking. It was the most challenging project of the bicentennial year, because it was the one that involved the most money."

As originally envisioned, the band shell might have cost as much as $100,000. It would have had a fully rounded top, and it would have been equipped with a movie screen, curtains which closed across the front of the stage, and fairly complete dressing rooms.

But as the band shell committee visited a number of other facilities in Connecticut and Massachusetts, they devised a plan for a simpler shell which would meet all of the town's requirements, according to Maccarone.

"We needed to be realistic," he said this week. "There's no point in pricing yourself right out of the market. We just wanted to be sure that there was going to be a shell at all."

The crowds were tremendous for the Independence Day concert and fireworks in 1986.

Two members of Puppets Unlimited show children how their stick puppets operate.

BETWEEN THE PUBLIC fund-raising projects, corporate sponsors and a $20,000 gift from the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving, the Bicentennial Band Shell Project raised the funds needed for the scaled-down shell. Eventually between $45,000 and $50,000 was spent on the facility, including the sound system and the rudiments of landscaping, Maccarone said.

Although Manchester Community College held its commencement exercises at the band shell in 1977, the first summer season of performances was in 1978. In that year, there were 13 shows, and the total number of people in the audiences came to about 8,000.

Last summer, more than 30,000 people attended the 43 scheduled performances. This figure does not include the thousands who came to hear a concert and watch the Fourth of July fireworks. "We probably had as many for the fireworks as we had in our entire first season," Maccarone said.

Over the years, landscaping and bathroom facilities have been improved, and the space for audience to dance has been enlarged. Even so, dancers spill out onto the grass on nights when polka orchestras and oldies bands occupy the stage.

THE ANNUAL BUDGET for the Manchester Bicentennial Band Shell Corp. hovers around $30,000 a year. This includes about $14,000 given by corporations, merchants, local clubs and unions to cover the costs of specific performances.

What's in store at the band shell over the next 10 years? "More money, I hope," said Maccarone, who oversees the entire operation. "I'd like to start booking some other groups, who have higher fees or who travel from farther away."

In addition, the band shell needs more active, working volunteers, said Maccarone. He and a dedicated few are on hand for each performance, setting up sound equipment, working with performers, greeting the audience. "Maybe we should publish a help-wanted ad," he said.

Favorites are back for 1987

Fans of the Manchester Bicentennial Band Shell will be glad to hear that many of their favorites are back for 1987. From country and western singer Tex Favel and the children's duo of Peanut-butterjam, to the 76th Division, U.S. Army Reserve Band, many of the most popular concerts are, once again, on the agenda.

In its first decade, the band shell has attracted tens of thousands to the grassy slope on the Manchester Community College campus. They have come for more than 300 performances by folk, classical and jazz musicians, ethnic dancers, bagpipers and puppeteers.

This weekend, a concert by popular singer Peter Harvey will open the 10th anniversary season of the band shell.

New this season will be a jazz ensemble called Dan-sa-tion, scheduled for June 14, and Burgundy, on June 26, which does music from the 1800s and '90s. Caribou, a progressive country band, will play the band shell for the first time on June 29 and City Lights, a swing band, will play on July 17.

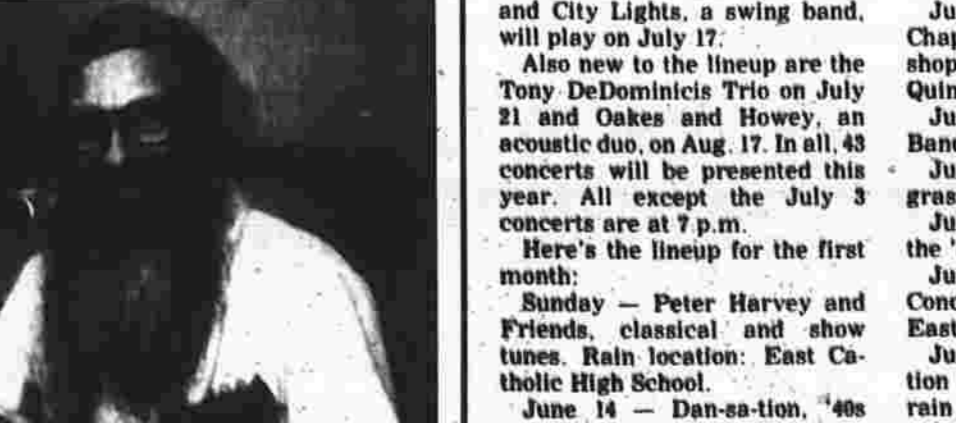

Also new to the lineup are the Tony DeDominicis Trio on July 21 and Oakes and Howe, an acoustic duo, on Aug. 17. In all, 43 concerts will be presented this year. All except the July 3 concert are at 7 p.m.

Here's the lineup for the first month:

- Sunday — Peter Harvey and Friends, classical and show tunes. Rain location: East Catholic High School.
- June 14 — Dan-sa-tion, '40s through '60s jazz. Rain date, June 18.
- June 16 — The Cridders, mime, songs, dancing, singing for the hearing and the hearing-impaired; the Powdermill Stompers, clog dancing; and the Burton Dancers. Rain date, June 18.
- June 21 — Farmington Valley Chapter Sweet Adelines, barbershop harmonies; Clarion Brass Quintet. Rain date, June 22.
- June 23 — Johnny T's Super Big Band. Rain date, June 25.
- June 24 — Grass Roots bluegrass. No rain date.
- June 26 — Burgundy, sounds of the '80s and '90s. No rain date.
- June 27 — U.S. Coast Guard Concert Band. Rain location, East Catholic High School.
- June 28 — Manchester Association of Pipe Bands Festival. No rain date.
- June 29 — Caribou, progressive country. Rain date, June 30.

The Clarion Brass Quintet is one of the few classical music groups coming back to the band shell this year.

Weekenders

Beware of flea bites

The first computer and electronic flea market, sponsored by the Connecticut Computer Society, will be held Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Rocky Hill Volunteer Fire Department, 3600 Main St., Rocky Hill. Individuals and dealers will sell new and used computers, printers, disc drives, software and more. Admission is $2, which covers the day's seminars, as well.

But is it art?

Some might question the propriety of an art institution showing a Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis comedy. But the Wednesday Athenaeum will screen "The Caddy" at 8 p.m. Saturday and Sunday as part of the Take Another Look at the Fab '60s Film Festival. The show, preceded by a vintage cartoon, costs $5, and is in the Avery Theatre of the museum, 600 Main St., Hartford.

With 76 trombones

There may not be 76 trombones in the big Glastonbury parade on Sunday, but there will be plenty of other instruments to celebrate the 60th anniversary of the founding of the town's fire department. The parade starts at 2 p.m. from St. Paul Church, corner of Main and Welles streets, and ends at Glastonbury High School on Hubbard Street. A chicken barbecue will be served at 4:15 and 6:15 p.m., for $6.50 per person.

Party on the river

A floating concert by the American Waterways Wind Orchestra, which uses a boat as its stage, will cap Sunday's dedication of the new riverfront park in East Hartford. The 48-member orchestra, based on a boat called the Point-Counterpoint II, will perform at 8:15 p.m. The celebration for the Great River Park begins at 10 a.m., however, with a full-dress Continental encampment, showing life of the Revolutionary War era.

A one-mile fun run for all age groups starts at 8 p.m., and an old-fashioned New England clam bake will get under way at 8. The formal ceremonies are at 7:30 p.m. To get to the park, head west on Pitkin Street, turn left onto East River Drive, and follow until the end.

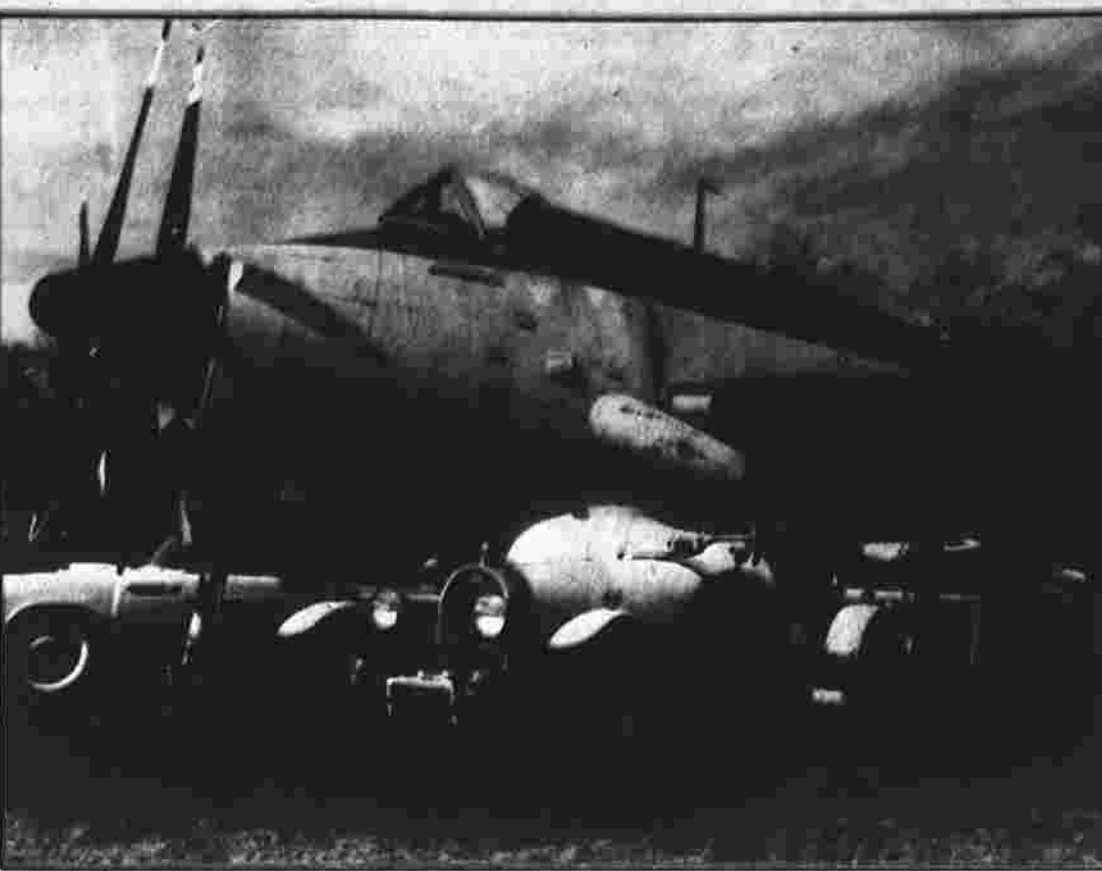

Fishing's free

Fishing is free on Saturday throughout the state of Connecticut. No fishing license will be required anywhere in the state. It's all part of National Fishing Week. This year's slogan is "Take a kid fishing, even if the kid is old enough to be a grandparent."

Cinema

HARTFORD Cinema City - Rivers Edge (R) Fri 7:00, 9:30, Sat and Sun 1:30, 3:30, 7:05, 9:35. - Prices: Low Youth (R) Fri-Sat 5.50, Sun 4.50; Adults 7.00. - Showtimes: Sun 1:40, 3:30, 6:30, 9:35. - Running Partners (PG) Fri-Sat 7:00, 9:15; Sat and Sun 3:45, 6:45, 9:15. - National Geographic (G) Fri 7:15, 9:45; Sat and Sun 1:30, 2:40, 7:15, 9:45.

The sounds of music

The centennial celebration of the Manchester Citadel Corps of the Salvation Army starts with a concert and low cream social tonight at 7. The young people's musical groups from the Citadel will present the concert, which costs $3 for adults and $2 for children 6 and over. A full buffet dinner, including seafood newburg and more, will be included in Saturday's Centennial Supper Soiree. The after-dinner entertainment includes concert selections by all adult groups from the Citadel, and a multi-media look at 100 years of Salvation Army history in Manchester. Tickets to the dinner cost $7.50, and reservations are suggested. Call 646-7707 or 646-8149 during the day Saturday.

Dance around the world

Middle Eastern performers, ballerinas, Brazilian dancers and drummers and Afro-Caribbean entertainers will be among the features of a delectable celebration called Let's Dance, on South Green in Middletown. The free festival is from 2 to 6 p.m. Sunday, with a rain date of Monday. The event will end with dancing to the music of The Starlighters.

South of the border

You'll hear a potpourri of music from the Caribbean nations if you attend Saturday's free concert on the grounds of the Mary Hooker School, 269 Sherbrooke Ave., Hartford. The day starts at 11 a.m. with the Virgilio Cruz Ensemble from Puerto Rico, and ends at 4:15 p.m. with the Ray Gonzalez & Orquestra Veracruz, playing tropical salsa.

A musical interlude

Some of Kenneth E. Woods' music students will present a free concert called "Musical Showcases" tonight at 7:30 at Emmanuel Lutheran Church. Guest artists will be Ronald Erickson, tenor, and Peter LaBombard, flutist, doing works of Bach, Grieg and Bizet. Woods will do organ works of Bach and Guilmer. A reception will follow.

Tea by LTM

"Teahouse of the August Moon" by John Patrick will have its final performances tonight and Saturday night at East Catholic High School.

In the lead roles of the Little Theatre of Manchester's production is Fred S. Bligh as Colonel Purdy, who is in charge of bringing American democracy to the people of Okinawa after World War II. His man-in-Tobiki, Captain Flaby, is played by Ron Roy, Sakini, the local native interpreter, is played by Mike Ziska, and Daniel Coyie is Mr. Beiko. Other roles are played by Dorothy Herold as a geisha, and Ron Abrahams as Captain McLean.

Horses at the moose

The Marlborough Moose Grounds on Old Colchester Road, Marlborough, will be the site for a horse show to benefit the Hemlock Outdoor Education Center of Hebron. The center is operated by the Easter Seal Society of Connecticut. The show starts at 9 a.m. Sunday, and will feature 25 classes of competition. Spectators are free, competitors pay $6 per entry.

Which is older?

Classic planes and antique autos like these are going to be featured Sunday at the New England Air Museum, Bradley International Airport, Windsor Locks.

A crafty adventure

St. Mary's Episcopal Church will have a crafts fair Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Craftsmen from many surrounding towns will participate. If you don't find what you need there, more than 125 craftspeople will display wares at the Spring Crafts Festival on the Berlin Fairgrounds on Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. There will be traditional American crafts as well as Oriental-style rugs and bonnet. The Wright Brothers will present mime, dance, juggling and storytelling throughout the day. Admission is $3.50 general, $2.50 senior citizens, and free to children 14 and under.

Those airy dare-devils

More than 40 aircraft on the ground and dozens more in the air will be featured at the Westover Air Force Base air show this weekend. The base, in Chicopee, Mass., is the nation's largest Air Force Reserve base. The two-day show is the largest planned in more than 50 years. The Army Golden Knights demonstration parachute team will perform twice daily, and helicopters, jet fighters and air racers will perform sky maneuvers. The free shows are from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Victorian tea helps women

Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," will be one of the "ghosts of honor" at a Victorian Summer Tea, to benefit a Hartford shelter for homeless women and their children. The party will be Sunday at 4 p.m. in the Katharine Day House, corner of Forest Street and Farmington Avenue.

Vintage music, dances and refreshments will set the tone for the tea, which benefits My Sisters' Place Inc. Besides Stowe, other 19th century characters expected to attend include early feminist Isabella Beecher Hooker and Hartford poet Lydia Huntley Sigourney. Guests may wear Victorian costumes, if they wish. The Day House was built in 1888, and features ornate paneling, a grand staircase and stained glass. Tickets are $12. Free parking is available at Hartford Public High School and the Connecticut Valley Girl Scout headquarters, both on Forest Street.

These children describe their families in an exhibit celebrating the diversity of contemporary American life. The exhibit, which includes drawings and photos, is at the Lutz Children's Museum through Aug. 16.

Celebrating diversity

Exhibit at Lutz explores family

By Maureen Lovitt Herold Intern

A photo exhibit which portrays various family groupings that children identify as their own families today will be on display this summer at the Lutz Children's Museum.

The exhibit, "Families: A Celebration of Love, Diversity and Commitment," opens Saturday and runs through Aug. 16. The Boston Children's Museum created the exhibit. Museum staff asked children, "Who is your family?" and recorded their responses in words and pictures.

"It's very atypical for what children's museums generally show," Ling said. "We've crossed the fine line of learning by trying to look at feelings kids have about families."

Ling said the exhibit is important because there is a strong belief among children today that only the traditional, nuclear family is "normal."

"Kids need to know that if they don't have 13 brothers or sisters or two parents, they still are quite normal," Ling added. Children who visit the display will have the chance to participate by leaving their own comments about families.

The museum's public hours are Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday from 2 to 5 p.m.; Thursday from 2 to 4 p.m.; and Saturday and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Museum admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. On Thursday evenings, admission is free after 5 p.m. For more information, call the museum at 643-9949.

The Faker makes phony appear real all over the place

By Peter Pogam The Associated Press

TUCSON, Ariz. - Mervin W. Larson has been deceiving people all over the country for years. He's outfitted them in such places as the San Diego Zoo, Brooklyn Botanic Gardens, Coyote Point Museum in San Francisco and Tucson's planetarium. He'll hoodwink them at offices, malls, golf courses, restaurants, even hospitals.

He boasts about it - it's his business. He designs authentic-looking exhibits and environments, simulating rocks, trees, vines, coral - anything, all seemingly astonishingly real.

Larson, 57, began faking things when he joined the staff of the Arizona-Sonoran Desert Museum in 1958. A zoologist with a master's degree in herpetology (reptiles), he started because he wanted to show living animals in their natural environment.

It's educational for people and "it's also nice for animals to have more in a cage than a square box," he said in a recent interview.

Thanks to Larson, museum visitors soon were looking at desert rodents at home inside replicas of their underground burrows. Later came a natural habitat enclosure for the mountain lion. A prehistoric cave and other exhibits eventually swayed visitors.

As the projects increased, Larson became recognized as one of the people instrumental in building the museum into an internationally known facility. After resigning as museum director in 1976, he started The Larson Co., designer and builder of exhibit

He also simulated environments for an impressive list of clients to North America and beyond. Why don't they use the real thing? Well, you can't grow a jungle habitat in the Bronx, or move Antarctic cliffs and snow to San Diego, or wait for Mother Nature to grow a 30-foot tree just where you want it, so you fake it.

During a recent tour of his 6,000-square-foot facility here, Larson listed the merits of one particular fake rock. "Hrr-um... one of his workers interrupted. 'That's the real one,' he whispered to the boss.

The phony rock was there, too, beside the real one, which served as a model. There was no visual difference. The master forger was fooled by his own work. Such realism does not come easily. Even today, with his years of experience, getting just the right result is by trial and error. Larson said. He showed a model of a frozen waterfall under construction. Not a drop of water had yet been poured. Larson said he didn't build a waterfall until four years ago. Now his list includes a date palm and 10 queen palms up to 33 feet tall inside the Marriott Hotel in Palm Springs, Calif.

Fake trees aren't cheap. They cost $40 a square foot - about $15,000 for a modest one. Some trees are made in pieces, with the limbs plugged into sockets in the trunk. Limbs are made of plastic. They are heated until they bend and look like the real thing. They are painted and varnished. Larson displays root hair that is made from rope.

By Martin Sloane United Feature Syndicate

DEAR MARTIN: Along with their regular coupons, the Dracrett Co. included a special coupon for an additional $2 off with the purchase of Vanish, Behold and Windex in their advertisement.

When I went through the checkout counter at a local supermarket, the cashier refused to redeem the $2 coupon along with the coupons on the individual products. It was a double-coupon day, and she offered to double the value of the 50-cent coupon on Windex, 50-cent coupon on Behold and 50-cent coupon on Vanish.

I couldn't understand this and called the store manager. He, too, refused to accept the $2 coupon in addition to the coupons on the individual products. Finally, I told them I was going to write to Dracrett, and they reluctantly gave me a note saying that they had refused to honor the $2 coupon.

Do you think I should send the note to Dracrett? MILLIE TOTH, AMHERST, OHIO

DEAR MILLIE: Since all of these coupons were in the same advertisement, there is no doubt that Dracrett wanted them to be used in combination, but the $2 coupon should have clearly stated this. If it had, you wouldn't have experienced this problem. The fault rests with Dracrett. Send them the coupon and a letter telling them how you feel about this situation.

DEAR MARTIN: Here in the Kansas City area, many of the supermarkets double coupons up to, but not including, 40 cents. So 40-cent, 45-cent, and 49-cent coupons are worth a lot more than 50-cent coupons. Someone should alert the manufacturers to print up more coupons with slightly lower values, rather than 50-cent coupons.

HOWARD SELLS, PRAIRIE VILLAGE, KAN.

DEAR HOWARD: I wish I had thought of that. But I suggest it. I am sure to receive a basket full of letters from readers who live in areas in which double coupons are not offered.

I can see those letters now: "Martin, why did you tell the manufacturers to print 40-cent coupons instead of 50-cent ones? Your advice may cost me a dime!"

Since these readers are in the majority (only about 10 percent of the nation's shoppers are being offered double coupons), most of us would prefer to stick with those good old 50-cent coupons and keep our fingers crossed that when double coupons come to our town, they will at least be unlimited for the first week!

Claims of timing services dubious

QUESTION: I've seen a number of articles dealing with "market timing" and "switching" of mutual funds, either by subscribing to newsletters or by paying fees to "manage accounts." I doubt there is any merit to claims that market timing will outperform an investment in mutual fund shares held through the ups and downs of market cycles.

Investors' Guide

William A. Doyle

Some funds, however, have annual operating expenses in excess of 2 percent, usually because of infamous 12(b)1 plans, which permit management to dip into fund assets to pay the cost of selling new shares.

QUESTION: I placed my shares of a growth stock mutual fund in a timing service's hands last year. First, 14,774 shares were redeemed for $29.98 to pay the service's fee. In September, my remaining 1,017,750 shares were redeemed for $10.684 and the proceeds were put in a money market mutual fund.

ANSWER: Absolutely! Both of those redemptions were sales, for tax purposes. The profit or loss on each transaction had to be reported on your Schedule D, Form 1040.

Virginia shipbuilder delays decision

WASHINGTON (AP) - Newport News and Drydock Co. has delayed a decision on whether it will try to compete with Electric Boat for Navy contracts to build the Trident submarine.

Electric Boat, the shipbuilding division of General Dynamics Corp., that employs 18,000 workers at its main plant in Groton, Conn., and another 6,000 in Quonset Point, R.I., has been the sole builder of the giant nuclear-powered subs since the Navy awarded the first contract in 1974.

practices. The timers' big pitch is that most mutual funds are too big to sell all the securities they hold when the market goes against them and if funds do sell, they depress the market further. Timers claim they can move their clients' accounts efficiently, beating the market and the fund.

Like you, I doubt that timers' managed accounts are worth the fees they charge. Subscribe to a timing newsletter, if you're so inclined. That will cost less and you'll learn what switches the timer recommends.

ANSWER: Yes, indeed. That would be a sale and a new purchase. It makes no difference that your money would stay with the same mutual fund organization.

mean a cut of 10,000 jobs. Many Electric Boat supporters believe of our investment from a growth stock mutual fund to an international bond fund managed by the same organization. Won't there be a period after it was taken out, you're paying for some very bad advice.

QUESTION: My husband and I are considering transferring some of our investment from a growth stock mutual fund to an international bond fund managed by the same organization. Won't there be a period after it was taken out, you're paying for some very bad advice.

ANSWER: Absolutely! Both of those redemptions were sales, for tax purposes. The profit or loss on each transaction had to be reported on your Schedule D, Form 1040.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Newport News and Drydock Co. has delayed a decision on whether it will try to compete with Electric Boat for Navy contracts to build the Trident submarine.

Electric Boat, the shipbuilding division of General Dynamics Corp., that employs 18,000 workers at its main plant in Groton, Conn., and another 6,000 in Quonset Point, R.I., has been the sole builder of the giant nuclear-powered subs since the Navy awarded the first contract in 1974.

But Navy officials have urged Newport News to fight for the new contract in the hopes that competition between the two defense contractors would bring down costs.

Newport News officials had said they would announce a decision by June 1, but that deadline went without word from Virginia.

"I'm not sure what the delay is, but the word is we'll make the decision in the near future," Schneider said. "I'm hopeful it will be sometime this month."

The decision could have a major impact on employment in Connecticut and Rhode Island. The Pentagon, which has been awarding an average of one contract per year, last month announced the 14th Trident contract for Electric Boat. The contract is worth $615 million.

Electric Boat officials told Congress 14 years ago that the loss of three Trident contracts would mean a cut of 10,000 jobs. Many Electric Boat supporters believe of our investment from a growth stock mutual fund to an international bond fund managed by the same organization. Won't there be a period after it was taken out, you're paying for some very bad advice.

A Tokyo clinic uses acupuncture to promote weight loss

By Hiroshi Tsuna Shimo The Associated Press

TOKYO - The ancient Oriental medical practice of acupuncture is helping health-conscious modern Japanese to shed unwanted weight. Kotae Takahashi, a 52-year-old Tokyo housewife, says the thin stainless-steel needles inserted into her ears and stomach helped her reduce her appetite and lose nearly 25 pounds in two months - from 178 pounds to 150 pounds.

Some fret as pets in quarantine

CHINGFORD, England (AP) - Saturday is the big vetting day at Chingford. Dozens of visitors - mostly foreigners - make the hour-long trip from central London to visit their loved ones.

They troop past the heavy wire gate that seals off the big house. They go through three secured doors, signing in along the way. Once locked inside the proper cell, many of them collapse into urgent hugging and kissing. They have two hours, at the most.

The dogs and cats are serving a minimum sentence of six months - a maximum sentence of death - not because they have committed a crime, but because they might be carrying rabies.

Britain is fanatical about keeping rabies out. So fanatical, in fact, that some Britons oppose building a tunnel under the English Channel on the ground that rabid animals might scurry through.

"We're strict with our own," Thompson said. About 4,500 dogs and 2,500 cats, all of whom also must be vaccinated against rabies, are brought into the United Kingdom every year, the ministry said.

There's just no getting around the quarantine. Well, you can if you're extremely wealthy and an actress Elizabeth Taylor did in 1968 - can rent a yacht and turn it into a personal quarantine kennel and by the Philippines.

The program that resulted in the P-3 began in the days after the Korean War when the Navy "People in England are aware of quarantine. Anybody will shop (turn on the River Thames. Smuggling is not really an option. The penalty is up to a year in prison and an unlimited fine. In) anybody if they find they are threatening the barrier we've got," said Alan Peake, manager of the Chingford kennel.

Since an outbreak in the 1930s, only 30 animals are known to have died of rabies in this country, the ministry said. The last, an imported dog, was in 1963, it said.

effectiveness. Considering the success I've had, I feel very good about myself," she said. "Even though the cost was high, it helped me resist the temptation to eat an extra bowl of rice or my favorite sweets," she added. Takahashi, a diabetic, said hospital staff had suggested she lose weight but she failed in repeated attempts to slim down. Then an aunt referred her to the East-West Acupuncture Clinic.

She visits the clinic twice a week for treatments featuring a combination of acupuncture, weight-poyaku" or Oriental medication, and enzyme beverages and creams. The clinic also provides advice on diet.

Osamu Nagura, one of four acupuncturists at the clinic, says Oriental medicine is best for general health problems and persisting diseases such as diabetes, high blood pressure and liver problems, while Western medicine works best against virus-related ailments.

Acupuncturists in countries including France, West Germany, China and Korea have increasingly used the treatment for weight problems over the past decade, said

Osamu Nagura of the East-West clinic. About 30 percent of the clinic's patients come for weight problems and the rest for a range of other ailments. Takahashi's treatment program starts with a 20-minute sauna and 15 minutes of stationary bicycle pedaling. An acupuncturist and nutritionist, Maria Kuwabara, then inserts eight needles into Takahashi's lower stomach to melt fat by applying low-level electricity for 15 minutes.

"Acupuncture activates the process of metabolism, inducing the body to clean itself through the expulsion of sweat and poisonous substances," said Kuwabara, who was raised in Brazil. The goal is to eliminate strains caused by internal and outside stresses, she said, and acupuncture has long been used in Asia as an anesthetic as well as a general health treatment.

In Japan, about 800 students are currently studying at six public technical schools that teach the traditional medical skills of acupuncture and massage. Japan has 83,000 registered acupuncturists, the Ministry of Health and Welfare says.

Advocates say the acupuncture needles control a range of body functions by stimulating nerves, glands and the blood system. Some skeptics question the scientific value of acupuncture, while ac-knowing that many patients claim it works for them. Japanese acupuncturists usually use very fine gold, silver or stainless steel needles. Their Chinese counterparts prefer thicker needles and insert them directly by hand rather than by machine.

High-tech tape

Motohiko Uezumi, left, section manager of Sumitomo 3M Limited of Japan, and Bob Burnett, 3M's U.S. marketing director, inspect the new super-VHS videotape at the Consumer Electronics Show in Chicago recently. The tape, which is compatible with the current VHS systems, produces a 70 percent improved picture quality when used with the new S-VHS video recorders.

DEAR MARTIN: Here in the Kansas City area, many of the supermarkets double coupons up to, but not including, 40 cents. So 40-cent, 45-cent, and 49-cent coupons are worth a lot more than 50-cent coupons. Someone should alert the manufacturers to print up more coupons with slightly lower values, rather than 50-cent coupons.

HOWARD SELLS, PRAIRIE VILLAGE, KAN.

DEAR HOWARD: I wish I had thought of that. But I suggest it. I am sure to receive a basket full of letters from readers who live in areas in which double coupons are not offered.

I can see those letters now: "Martin, why did you tell the manufacturers to print 40-cent coupons instead of 50-cent ones? Your advice may cost me a dime!"

Since these readers are in the majority (only about 10 percent of the nation's shoppers are being offered double coupons), most of us would prefer to stick with those good old 50-cent coupons and keep our fingers crossed that when double coupons come to our town, they will at least be unlimited for the first week!

THE SMART SHOPPER AWARD goes to Florence Wolgram of Gillett, Wis., who proves that it isn't only the national brands that give smart shoppers "home run" savings. "Our local store advertised Flanagan sausage at five cans for $1. I had four 25-cent coupons and got all five cans free. That's not a bad way to shop!"
