Directors postpone decision

By George Loyne
Herald Reporter

Laser-game opponents argued their case in front of the town Board of Directors Tuesday night. So did the game's backers.

During a packed public hearing which lasted four hours, opponents listed study after study which, they claimed, was hard evidence that the proposed game center would be detrimental to the nearby neighborhood and Manchester in general.

Representatives from Laser Games of Hartford, the firm planning to build Laserquest in the former Mott's Shop Rite building on East Middle Turnpike, countered that those who spoke didn't have the facts to support their arguments.

The hearing in Lincoln Center lasted two hours longer than scheduled, and the Laser Games representatives were the only ones to speak in favor of the business. Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg occasionally had to bang her gavel to stop laughter and murmuring that erupted when a spokesman for the firm gave testimony.

"It's our game, so let us describe our game," responded spokesman Sherman Tarr at one point when laughter broke out while he was answering a question.

THE DIRECTORS now have to decide if they will take action to prohibit or restrict the business, and if so, what type of action will be taken. A decision was scheduled to be made at a special Thursday meeting of the board, but Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg said Tuesday it is unlikely that will occur.

Instead, she said, board members will probably discuss what questions they still want answered, and ask the town administration to help supply the answers. Director Geoffrey Naab has proposed an ordinance that would prohibit the business from opening.

Director Stephen T. Penny said during the hearing that the board has three options. It can take no action, pass an ordinance regulating a certain type of activity, or pass a more sweeping ordinance based on the moral issues raised by the matter, he said.

In his ordinance, Naab proposes the prohibition of any business that involves the shooting of a real or simulated weapon at a real or simulated being, because it is

Just a sprinkling

Elizabeth Nash, 2, spends Tuesday afternoon at Globe Hollow swimming pool, methodically filling her bucket with a sprinkling can, then pouring out the water and starting again. Tuesday's heat broke late in the afternoon as thunderstorms moved through the area. Today's forecast called for a 40 percent chance of showers, and a high of around 80.

Company officials reveal laser plans

Officials from Laser Games of Hartford Inc. have been tight-lipped about the specifics of their proposed Laserquest game center in the former Mott's Shop Rite building on East Middle Turnpike.

They have also been absent from public hearings and meetings of the town Board of Directors when the matter was discussed.

But at Tuesday's public hearing, company officials revealed more details about the controversial game. While they stopped short of disclosing everything because they said they wanted to protect trade secrets, they said later that they told too much.

The device used to play the game would emit an invisible, infrared laser beam that company officials said is powered by a hearing-aid battery and is harmless. Laserquest would be the only laser game business in the country to use an actual laser beam, officials said.

The device would not have a trigger or a barrel like a gun, but a beam would be directed at three-dimensional images of outer-space aliens as players walk through different rooms and hallways that simulate an alien spacecraft. The game would last about 10 minutes and cost $4.

Aliens would not be killed, although points would be scored by a master computer based on how the beam is used to interact with the alien, the game's promoters said.

"It is not a war, it is not a weapon," said Michael P. Price of Plainville, the firm's vice president of design and development. Officials have said the purpose of the game is to challenge a player's reaction to different situations.

Players would earn points in some instances for using the beam to disable the alien's mechanical equipment, and in other instances earn points for communicating and negotiating with the alien, according to Price. The communication could take the form of printed words on a screen, Price said.

The aliens would also direct laser beams at players, who would wear light sensitive vests.

Players would be given computer printouts of their scores and ranks. They would also be issued special identification cards that would record how they did on their previous games. The computer would then make their next play more difficult, said spokesman Sherman Tarr.

The game would be restricted to those over 10 years old. Those younger than 18 years old would be required to have their parents' written permission to play.

Beware bogus $$ circulating here

Three counterfeit $20 bills have been circulated in the Manchester area in the past week, police spokesman Gary J. Wood said this morning.

The bills are printed on cheap paper and the picture of the White House on the back of the bill does not include the American flag, as it should, he said.

In addition, one of the trees on the back of the bill is half-missing, Wood said.

Wood said police have no suspects in the passing of the counterfeit bills. He said all information collected by Manchester police is being turned over to the U.S. Department of the Treasury.

A Main Street merchant reported this morning that a counterfeit $10 bill his store received Tuesday was confiscated this morning by a local bank. Wood said he did not know of any counterfeit $10 bills circulating in the area.

Tom Healy, a special agent of the U.S. Secret Service's New Haven office, said this morning that the office has a number of investigations going on in connection with the passing of $20 bills in Hartford and Middlesex counties.

On May 15, two Hartford men were arrested after officials bought counterfeit bills from the men, but investigators have not determined who is printing the bills, Healy said.

Some businesses stay open on Fourth of July holiday

By Bruce Matzkin
Herald Reporter

Not everybody will be enjoying the Fourth of July Saturday.

While most businesses in the Manchester area will be closed for the holiday, there are quite a few that will remain open. Most of the large stores will be open for at least part of the day, including Sears, Bradlees, Stop & Shop, and Shop Rite.

Jeff Jacobs, whose promotional company handles advertising for the Manchester Parkade, said that because the large Parkade stores are going to be open Saturday, most of the smaller outlets will follow their lead.

"I would say that about 70 percent of the Parkade stores will be open," he said.

No Herald Saturday

The Manchester Herald will publish a morning edition on Friday, which will be observed as the legal Independence Day holiday. There will be no Saturday edition on July 4. The Herald's offices will be closed both Friday and Saturday.

Harvest Hill Package Store in the Parkade, feels it is pointless to be open. "I don't even think people are going to be aware that we're open," she said.

Margie Sabia, a D&L area manager who will be working in the Parkade, D&L Saturday, didn't mind. "It's something the front office has decided and we have to try and see how well it goes," she said. "We're hoping the day goes well." The Diamond Showcase is one Parkade store that will close for the traditional holiday. "We consider it a family day," said manager Jim Keenan. "It's not really fair to have employees work."

A worker at the Parkade Health Shoppe, which will be closed, said, "I think it's wonderful to have the day off. I'm going to the River Festival."

Main Street stores, unlike most of the Parkade stores, will have the holiday off. "Most of Main Street will be pretty consistent — open on Friday, closed on Saturday," said Al Cashman, owner of J. Garman Clothier.

Also closed, both Friday and Saturday, will be the J.C. Penney Catalog Distribution Center. Said operator Seth English of his weekend off, "It's great!"

Educators ask public schools to end the silence on religion

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of educators today called for an end to "the curricular silence on religion" that has permeated public school classrooms since the Supreme Court banished organized prayer a quarter-century ago.

In a report commissioned by the 80,000-member Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, the educators decried schools' "benign neglect" of the role religion has played in shaping both U.S. and world history.

It attacked "bland" textbooks that "virtually ignore religion," and said educators must get over the mistaken notion "that matters of religion are simply too hot to handle in public schools."

The Alexandria, Va.-based association is a non-partisan professional organization of principals, teachers, office personnel and college professors involved in deciding what is taught in public schools.

The report was released by O.L. Davis, a University of Texas at Austin education professor who chaired the panel. It is the latest in a series of critiques from liberals and conservatives alike criticizing public schools and their textbooks for downplaying the significance of religion.

People for the American Way, the liberal anti-censorship lobby, as well as Americans United for Separation of Church and State have issued reports recently faulting history texts for slighting religion. U.S. Secretary of Education William J. Bennett also has criticized schools on that score.

The report by the Davis panel says: "The quest for religious freedom that fueled the establishment of this nation receives scant treatment at best in many textbooks. ... (They) have even less to say about the profound part religious belief has played in more recent U.S. history," from the abolitionist and temperance movements of the 19th century to the civil rights movement of the 20th.

"The problem rests not just with texts on American history. The impact of religion on world history and culture is 'slighted in texts on political science, sociology, literature and world history,'" the report said.

It said students should know "the basic tenets of the world's major religions."

Storm moves slowly in Mississippi Valley

A cold front sent thunderstorms through the Midwest today while rain was widely scattered elsewhere. Showers and thunderstorms ranged along the slow-moving front in the middle Mississippi Valley and lower Ohio Valley. Showers and thunderstorms also spread from Missouri to Ohio and Kentucky. Thunderstorms were widely scattered across the Atlantic Coast region and Gulf Coast states.

In the West, isolated showers and thundershowers lingered in the Rocky Mountain region and northern Plains. Fair skies prevailed over southwestern deserts and from the central Plains to the upper Great Lakes region.

Today's forecast called for showers and thundershowers to the lower Mississippi Valley to the southern and middle Atlantic Coast; showers and thundershowers scattered across southern New England, southern New York and the northern Plains; and widely scattered thundershowers from the southern Plains to Oregon and northern Nevada. Highs will be in the 60s to 70s along the Pacific Coast; 70s from northeast Montana through the Great Lakes region and northern Ohio Valley to northern New England; 80s to 100 or higher in southwest Texas and the desert Southwest; and 80s to 90s across most of the rest of the nation. Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 44 degrees at Marquette, Mich., to 88 at Phoenix, Ariz.

Today's weather picture is by Greco Nicolais, 10, of Lincoln Street, a student at Veiplanck School.

Mourning Gifts

Funeral customs and memorial ceremonies differ drastically from one era to the next. In the 17th and 18th centuries, it was customary to provide guests at funerals with such gifts as a black scarf, a pair of black gloves, and a mourning ring. Ministers often accumulated hundreds of these items. Later, only plain bearers and clergy were allowed to receive these gifts. During the Revolution, the custom was abandoned altogether because the gifts could no longer be imported. DO YOU KNOW - In what state is the Arlington National Cemetery located? TUESDAY'S ANSWER - Seven months has 31 days. 7-1-87

Re-Entry director calls it quits

By George Layno, Herald Reporter

For the second time in less than a year, the coordinator of a Manchester program to help ex-convicts readjust to society has resigned. John Omokeye, hired in March to head the Manchester Area Conference of Churches Project Re-Entry, resigned Tuesday to take another job, according to Nancy Carr, executive director of MACC.

Carr said MACC will use staff from other programs to continue to provide the services to the eight or so clients helped by Project Re-Entry each month. However, Carr said it will probably be difficult to find a replacement for the $10,000 a year job. "It's a real intense position," she said.

The program had been closed from December to March, when Omokeye was hired, after the last coordinator resigned. "We just don't want there to be another gap like that," Carr said today.

She noted that MACC has staff to spare because all its positions at the homeless shelter are filled. In addition, the shelter's director, Connie Scott, has a degree in criminal justice, Carr said. "It's going to be no big deal because I've been doing the work anyway," Carr added.

Omokeye could not be reached for comment. Carr said he might have already left Manchester. She did not know where he had found another job. His wife recently gave birth to twins, and that might have been a factor in his decision to leave, Carr said.

"He was a caring man and he certainly was intelligent," Carr said.

Omokeye was from Nigeria, and came to the United States to study criminal justice. In an interview with the Manchester Herald in March, he said he decided to enter the field after witnessing horrible prison conditions in his home country.

Omokeye had lived in the United States for nine years, studying in criminal justice at schools in Boston and Buffalo. He had counseled former prisoners in Buffalo at a halfway house.

When he was hired, Carr admitted Omokeye did not have much experience, but he had received a strong recommendation from his supervisors in Buffalo. Omokeye was still considered a temporary MACC employee, Carr said, because his six-month probationary period was not set to expire until September.

All MACC employees are placed on similar probationary periods, she said.

The Re-Entry program has been in operation for about the past seven years. James Foley, the coordinator before Omokeye, left to accept a job with the state Department of Corrections after becoming "burned out," Carr said.

Hot stuff

By Andrew Yurkovsky, Herald Reporter

Even seemingly harmless fireworks, such as sparklers, can cause serious eye injury. Portions of the sparkler can break off, causing burns to the eyes and other parts of the body, said Joel Reich, medical director of the MMH emergency department.

"Those things are real hot at the tip," he said, noting that fragments may still be burning when they hit the eye.

Determining the actual incidence of fireworks-related injuries is difficult, according to Sarah Hall, public affairs director for the Connecticut Society to Prevent Blindness. Many victims are treated by private physicians, and some injuries are not classified according to cause, she said.

Hall said that about 12,000 people in the United States were injured in fireworks-related accidents in 1986. That figure, from the Consumer Product Safety Commission, is based on a sampling of hospitals nationwide and is probably a conservative one, she said.

According to the commission's survey, 15 percent of those injuries were eye-related.

"Eye injuries from fireworks tend to be very serious. And the question is, is it worth risking blindness for a two-second bang?" Hall said.

Hall said that comprehensive statistics by the state are not available. To meet that need, the society, like the state fire marshal's office, plans to survey Connecticut hospitals this year during the period from June 26 to July 6.

Health-care workers postpone strike

By Bruce Motzkin, Herald Reporter

Members of the New England Health Care Employees Union District 1199, who had set a deadline for 6 a.m. today in their contract negotiations with management of five private hospitals, voted Tuesday to postpone a strike for 30 days.

Employees of New Seasons Inc. and Connecticut Community Services, both with facilities in Manchester, Allison Memorial Manor in Woodbury, United Social and Mental Health Services in Danielson, and the Connecticut Institute for the Blind, which operates the Oak Hill School in Hartford, had threatened strike if their wages were not increased to a level equal to their counterparts in state-run facilities.

The postponement, which was requested by Gov. William A. O'Neill, is supposed to serve as a "cooling off period" during which it is hoped an agreement can be reached, according to union vice president Kevin Doyle.

Doyle said that the postponement was recommended by union officers to the negotiating committees of all the facilities, who then voted on it. According to Doyle, the recommendation to accept the governor's request was made "because the governor, in his request, had made a commitment to assist in avoiding a strike."

William Myerson, a spokesman for District 1199, said the governor made a commitment "to get his state commissioners who are involved in the funding of the privately run centers to become involved in the negotiations."

However, Lensink has refused, contending that his department could not fund the increase in wages being demanded. Some officials involved have said the department is afraid an increase would lead to other requests for more money by the other private facilities in Connecticut funded through the department.

Despite the governor's promise to get his commissioners involved, Lensink stated, "I am not going to become involved in the negotiations between the employees and management."

He just wanted to talk

A man who told police he only wanted to talk to his wife tried to ram into a car in which she was a passenger during an incident on Hartford Road early Tuesday morning, police said.

Eugene N. Donor, 42, of Lebanon, was charged with reckless endangerment and breach of peace.

Dennis Kosinski, 42, of 447 Hackmatack St., was stopped at the Whole Donut on Hartford Road, where he was calling police on an earlier incident, when Donor drove his flatbed truck over the parking lot curb and headed toward Kosinski's car, police said. Kosinski told police he had to put his car into reverse to avoid being hit by Donor.

Earlier, at about 6 a.m., Kosinski was turning from Hackmatack Street to Keeney Street when Donor ran from behind some bushes on the side of the road and jumped on the hood of his car. Kosinski told police. Donor slid from the hood as the car turned the corner, Kosinski said.

Donor's wife, Denise Donor, 39, of 447 Hackmatack St., was the passenger in Kosinski's car. The Donors have been living apart for the past two weeks, police said. Donor been chasing Kosinski down Hackmatack Street, but no fighting took place when the two came to a stop at Primer Road, police said. Donor told police he did not intend to hurt anyone and only wanted to speak with his wife.

Donor was released on $500 non-surety bond. He is to appear Monday in Manchester Superior Court.

Coventry marks 275th anniversary with dance, tours

COVENTRY - The town will be celebrating its 275th anniversary July 10 to 19 with a series of special events.

These include "Ye Olde Show" on July 11, 12, 18 and 19 at Coventry High School. This show will include crafts, residential antique dealers, hobby craft dealers and displays. Show hours will be from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. with no hours during the period was not set to expire until September.

All MACC employees are placed on similar probationary periods, she said.

The Re-Entry program has been in operation for about the past seven years. James Foley, the coordinator before Omokeye, left to accept a job with the state Department of Corrections after becoming "burned out," Carr said.

July 12: "Ye Olde Show" at Coventry High School at 2 p.m. House and garden tour, noon to 6 p.m. Refurbishments at First Congregational and Second Congregational churches. Pancake breakfast, 7:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the North Coventry firehouse, Main Street, sponsored by the North Coventry Fire Auxiliary.

All-day demonstrations at Patriot's Park by Boy Scout Troop 65.

Dedication of First Congregational Church addition, followed by reception and refreshments, starting at 7 p.m.

July 16: Concert at the new band shell, Patriot's Park, at 7 p.m., with the Coventry High School Band and the Coundon Court High School Choir from Coventry, England.

July 18: Parade starting at 10 a.m. at Robertson School and ending at the Nathan Hale Homestead. Festivities will follow the parade at the Homestead.

"Coventry Great Salad Toss" at 1 p.m. on the grounds of the Nathan Hale Homestead, sponsored by Democratic Town Committee.

Roast beef dinner at the Grange Hall on Boston Turnpike, sittings at 5 p.m. and 6:30 p.m.

Concert at the band shell at 7 p.m., sponsored by the Recreation Commission.

Anniversary ball at 8 p.m. at the roller rink on Stonehouse Road. Colonial dress welcome.

"Ye Olde Show," 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Robertson School.

July 19: Family picnic on the Coventry High School grounds from 10 to 6 p.m. Games, balloon release and special birthday cake. The high school dance band and the Coundon Court High School Choir will perform at 4 p.m.

Nathan Hale Cemetery tour at noon with Janet Aronson and guest, James Slater, board member of the National Association for Grave Stone Studies.

"Ye Olde Show," 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Robertson School.

All-day Boy Scout Troop 65 demonstrations at Patriot's Park.

Connecticut In Brief

Man in truck falls to his death

THOMASTON — As his father watched, a Waterbury man was killed when a truck he was operating toppled off a bridge at the Thomaston Dam and plunged 90 feet onto a cement spillway, police said.

Nicholas Mancini, 26, was inside the extension basket of a "snoper" — machine and used to lower workers over the sides of bridges — when the machinery tipped, broke through steel railing and fell.

Mancini, who was pronounced dead at the scene, was an employee of A. Daugen & Son Inc., a New-Haven-based bridge painting and maintenance company. The company was on the second day of a bridge-maintenance project for the Army Corps of Engineers, which built and runs the dam.

Police said the victim's father, Robert Mancini, was on the bridge and saw the machine fall. The federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration, Thomaston police and the Corps of Engineers are investigating.

New Jersey girl wins Yale poet

NEW HAVEN — Brigit Pegeen Kelly of Blairstown, N.J., has won the 1987 Yale Series of Younger Poets competition.

Kelly, 36, was selected from 650 entrants by the competition's judge, poet James Merrill, said John G. Ryden, director of Yale University Press.

Kelly's winning manuscript, "The Place of Trumpets," will be published by Yale University Press in the spring of 1988, becoming the 33rd volume in the Yale Series of Younger Poets.

The competition is open to any American writer under the age of 50 who has not previously published a volume of poetry.

A Palo Alto, Calif., native, Kelly grew up in Bloomington, Ind., where she was a licensed practical nurse. She also holds master's degrees in fine arts and counseling from the University of Oregon.

She is the recipient of several awards, including a National Endowment for the Arts creative writing fellowship in 1985.

Conflicting testimony heard

HARTFORD — Conflicting testimony has been offered about whether or not authorities planted a bomb to obtain a search warrant in the investigation of the West Hartford Wells Fargo robbery case.

Miguel Elvira Santana, a promoter of artists in Puerto Rico, testified in U.S. District Court Tuesday that he never saw the bomb that authorities say they discovered in an April 2, 1984 search of the offices of Filiberto Ojeda Rico, one of the defendants in the case.

However, Eugenio Colon-Carrasquillo, a police officer in Puerto Rico, testified he discovered a bomb and told Elvira about it.

The defense contends that either Puerto Rico authorities or the FBI planted the bomb in Ojeda's offices and then used its discovery to obtain a search warrant where authorities discovered thousands of documents and other evidence. The incident also was used as the basis for permission to conduct electronic surveillance in the case.

"It's simple," defense lawyer Leonard Weinglass of New York City said of the matter. "No bomb, no case."

Waterbury law violates regulations

WATERBURY — The city's policy that would have required people to live in Waterbury one year before becoming eligible for low-income public housing violates federal regulations, the Department of Housing and Urban Development ruled.

The policy, adopted June 15 by the housing authority's governing commission, cannot be approved because federal regulations prohibit placing a time requirement on residency in such cases, said John Lindell, a housing-management specialist in HUD's Hartford office.

Lindell said Tuesday local housing authorities may require applicants for low-income public housing to live in the area that the housing authority serves, or to give area residents preference over outsiders.

He said, once people move into the service area, it is not permissible to force them to live there for a certain period before becoming eligible to apply.

Did Ross kill 16-year-old in N.Y.?

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y. — New York state police investigators will go to Connecticut to question convicted serial killer Michael Ross about the unsolved rape-murder of a 16-year-old girl in 1982, an officer said.

Ross, a 1981 Cornell graduate and former insurance salesman from Griswold, Conn., was convicted June 5 of murdering four teen-age girls. On Friday, he became the first person condemned to die in Connecticut's electric chair since the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the death penalty in 1976.

During Ross' trial, a psychiatric witness hired by the defense disclosed that during one of many psychiatric interviews, Ross told him of two New York slayings.

One slaying took place in 1982 in Orange County, said Sgt. Alfred Dorer, of the state police barracks in Middletown, N.Y. The second death was that of a young woman in 1981 near the campus of Cornell University in Ithaca.

NU crews try to restore power

Northeast Utilities repair crews worked late into the night to restore electrical service to tens of thousands of Connecticut residents who lost power when thunderstorms struck parts of the state.

Emmanuel Forde, a spokesman for Northeastern Utilities, said about 30,000 customers in northeastern Connecticut lost power about 6:30 p.m. Tuesday when lightning struck a 115,000-volts transmission line.

Electrical service was restored within a half hour, he said. "That was a mercifully brief outage for them," he said, adding that the affected customers lived in and around Killingly.

Forde said fewer than 10,000 customers elsewhere in the state lost power for an extended period of time after the early-evening storms.

"Some severe weather including high winds and lightning ... brought down some trees," Forde said.

Jamming problem found with building

NEW HAVEN — Investigators of the L'Ambiance Plaza building collapse are focusing on a jamming problem between a floor and a column that happened hours before the accident, the New Haven Register reported today.

Workers halted the process of hoisting floor slabs into place about two hours before the April 23 collapse because a slab was jammed on the southwest corner of the building's western segment, the report said.

Workers were operating hydraulic jacks manually in an attempt to free the slab, investigators told the newspaper.

The Register cited as sources engineers and others familiar with the probe but did not name them.

Teen pleads innocent to murder

NEW HAVEN — An 18-year-old man has pleaded innocent to a charge of murder in connection with the May 18 shooting of a city firefighter.

Scott Northrup of East Haven entered his plea Tuesday in New Haven Superior Court.

Report to criticize tax collectors

Outgoing inspector says his study will be 'a killer'

By Brent Lovmon
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Inspector General Henri F. Erkelens, who has been criticized for the quality of his investigations, apparently plans to show what he can do before leaving the job.

Erkelens revealed Tuesday that he will soon release a blistering report on the tax collection policies of the already beleaguered state tax department.

"It'll be a killer," Erkelens promised during a news conference called hours after Gov. William A. O'Neill's office announced, the governor had signed legislation eliminating the Office of Inspector General as of Sept. 1.

Erkelens also took a verbal swipe at the Democrats who control the General Assembly, saying their decision to eliminate the office after only a year in operation makes them responsible for "future cover-ups and scandals in government."

"They voted on abolishment of the office on party lines and will have to bear direct responsibility," he said.

Erkelens indicated that his three-month investigation will show the tax department has not aggressively pursued tax cheats.

"You've got people who are evading and escaping their taxes and if that's not picked up, the rest of us pay the difference," Erkelens said.

The report on the tax department, to be released in "a matter of days," is one of about 20 pending, Erkelens said. He predicted a "handful" will remain unfinished on Sept. 1, when the agency's responsibilities will be divided between the attorney general's office and state auditors.

Erkelens, 53, said he will leave the $54,000 job before it ceases to exist, although he said he has no career plans.

The tax department investigation could add approved the enterprise zone concept for nationwide application, it is one of the president's major initiatives, and New Britain shows it works," Johnson said in a prepared statement.

New Britain prepares for Reagan visit

NEW BRITAIN (AP) — This industrial city is already busy preparing to host President Reagan despite White House officials' refusal to confirm reports that the president will make a speech here next week, the mayor says.

"We're all very excited," said Democratic Mayor William McNamara.

He said the city officials planned to meet tonight to begin plans for a presidential visit, but added, "We need final confirmation from the White House."

Rep. Nancy L. Johnson, R-Conn. said Tuesday that the White House is strongly considering a Reagan visit to New Britain on July 8 for a speech on the administration's successes in economic redevelopment.

The congressman said the president's speech would focus on how the use of enterprise zones, a concept long advocated by Reagan to stimulate the economy, has improved the city's economic base and created jobs.

Enterprise zones were established by state government in Connecticut in 1982 to attract developers to economically distressed areas.

New Britain was one of six cities to be granted a zone.

Among the incentives to lure developers to enterprise zones are property tax abatements, state corporate income tax abatements, and low-interest loans.

"While the Congress has never approved the enterprise zone concept for nationwide application, it is one of the president's major initiatives, and New Britain shows it works," Johnson said in a prepared statement.

During the past nine months, the state has approved New Britain's application to expand its enterprise zone from 320 acres to 498 acres. Officials said the zone has generated 2,500 jobs in the city and led to nearly $45 million in investment.

4th District candidates hit the campaign trail

By Linda Stowell
The Associated Press

FAIRFIELD — Three Democrats and four Republicans hit the campaign trails today in support for July 21 primaries in which the parties' candidates for the 4th District congressional seat will be elected.

The Democrats convened Tuesday night at Fairfield University and, after many speeches and much hoopla, cast just one ballot to qualify all three candidates for the primary.

The candidates are: attorney and former state Rep. Christine M. Neidermeier of Fairfield, who narrowly lost last year's election; Stewart B. McKinney, whose death in May created the vacancy; state Sen. Margaret E. Morton of Bridgeport; and Stamford banker and Finance Board Chairman Michael Morgan.

Lt. Gov. Joseph Faullo withheld the delegates up by noting that this was the first time in 18 years the Democrats have had an opportunity to represent Fairfield County in Congress.

McKinney, who died of an AIDS-related illness, was a nine-term Republican congressman.

The delegates were undaunted by the sweltering heat and boosted dozens of signs, hats, a rock band and baggage players. After each candidate spoke, delegates rose to cheer.

"We came within 10 inches of winning just eight months ago," said Neidermeier, whose race against McKinney last November was the congressman's closest since he first ran for the House.

"Tonight, with your help and support, we will carry that vision to Washington."

Morton, who would be the state's first black representative in Congress if elected, said she planned to do some "heavy campaigning."

"I have to go in areas where I'm not known. Most areas I go people like me and I speak their language," Morton said after the convention.

Morgan said his major challenge was acquiring some name recognition.

The candidates each needed 42 votes from the 207 delegates to qualify for a primary and 108 to win the party's endorsement.

Delegates gave Morton 60 votes, Neidermeier 71, and Morgan 56.

All three candidates said drugs and affordable housing were two key issues.

The affordable election will be on Aug. 18.

After three ballots of delegates at a special convention Monday night, all four Republican candidates qualified for the party's primary.

The candidates are: Stamford developer Frank D. Rich Jr., businessman John T. Becker of Greenwich, and state Reps. Christopher Shays of Stamford and John G. Metropolitano of Fairfield.

Also in the congressional race is independent candidate Nicholas J. Tarzia, a Stamford plumber running under his own party called War Against AIDS party. Another candidate is Alan Abel, a Westport author and movie producer who is mounting a write-in campaign.

Fund raising begins for food bank HQ

By Susan Okula
The Associated Press

NEW HAVEN — The Connecticut Food Bank, which helps feed the state's poor, is planning a fund-raising campaign to build a $1 million headquarters.

The organization has promised $650,000 in state bonding money and will look for donations to meet its goal, said Robert Betts, the executive director of the food bank.

"I think it can be done," Betts said. "There's a lot of good will out there."

The food bank distributes about 2.5 million pounds of food per year to non-profit agencies that serve the poor, Betts said. It has been growing rapidly since its founding in 1982, he said.

The food bank's annual budget is $322,000 and it has nine employees. It has not previously received state funds.

The organization is negotiating with the city of New Haven for a 44,000 square-foot parcel of land, Betts said he is concerned about the $30,000 price.

"I'm hoping that the price can come down," he said.

In order to get the state money, the food bank must find a site for the building first, he said. The organization is planning to take its fund raising statewide after that, he said.

City officials have been "very cooperative" in the land acquisition process, Betts said. However, he said, "they are working with some limitations."

Gena Davis, director of the city Office of Housing and Neighborhood Development, said New Haven government is looking for ways to sell the land to the food bank using revenue from the sale.

Betts said the food bank needs the new space for two reasons — the organization's growth and economic development.

"We've never had enough space. We have grown rapidly," he said.

Petitions fight jail in Windsor

Outgoing inspector says his study will be 'a killer'

By Brent Lovmon
The Associated Press

HARTFORD (AP) — The chairman of the state Commission on Prison and Jail Overcrowding wasn't surprised to get petitions from 4,000 people opposed to locating a medium-security state prison in Windsor, but he said protests don't diminish the need for the new facility.

Commission Chairman William H. Carbone was presented with the petitions during a demonstration Tuesday by about 100 people outside the state Capitol.

"Wherever you go, it's possible to get signatures against a jail," said Carbone, who promised to give them to Gov. William A. O'Neill.

"There is not a town in Connecticut that's going to willingly accept it," Carbone said. "Yet, it is in everybody's best interest that we have more prison space. It's in the interest of public safety, so it's got to be somewhere."

The Windsor site, one of four under consideration, consists of 125 privately owned acres in the town's southeast corner, near the Hartford and Bloomfield lines.

Other possible sites for the 800-bed medium-security prison are state-owned parcels in Torrington and Middletown and private land in Suffield. Consultants are reviewing each of the sites and a decision is expected by August, Carbone said.

He warned that inmates could have to be released under provisions of the state's prison overcrowding law if construction of a new facility is delayed very long.

"The cap on the system for males is 6,345 and we're almost there right now as we speak," Carbone said.

Residents of Windsor, Bloomfield and Hartford have formed a coalition known as TRAP — Tri-Town Residents Against the Prison — to battle construction of the prison in Windsor.

The group argues the prison would ruin a middle-class neighborhood near the proposed site and have an adverse environmental impact.

"Nearly all of the concerns are not founded in fact," Carbone said. "It (to jail) does not threaten public safety, it doesn't cause property values to go down."

William E. Proffitt Jr. of Hartford, a member of the group, said the Windsor area "has been a good neighbor, losing 83 homes to the widening of Interstate 91. The state shouldn't keep asking the town to make sacrifices, he said.

"I think that's part of our frustration," Proffitt said. Residents of Suffield have also petitioned against the medium-security prison. In Middletown, home of the Connecticut Valley Hospital, officials said the town already has its share of state buildings.

The state is also looking at six sites for a 400-bed jail, including land in Southbury, Newtown and Torrington and private parcels in Watertown and Bristol.

Residents of Hartford, Windsor and Bloomfield protest outside the state Capitol Tuesday to oppose a proposal to build a new prison in their area.

Legislators, O'Neill agree on taxes

HARTFORD (AP) — Members of the General Assembly will be asked to consider later this month proposals for a business tax change and for $150 million in state aid to "trailer" session, when members of the General Assembly return to consider overriding any gubernatorial vetoes.

Democratic legislative leaders and representatives of Gov. William A. O'Neill announced Tuesday that they had reached tentative agreement on the two issues, which weren't resolved by the legislature in its regular session ended on June 3.

Senate President Pro Tem John B. Larson, an East Hartford Democrat, said a special legislative session to take up the issues will likely be held July 20 or July 22.

The special session will be held in conjunction with the annual "trailer" session, when members of the General Assembly return to consider overriding any gubernatorial vetoes.

"I think we have an agreement, tentatively based on how well it's received by our caucuses," Larson said.

During the regular session, Gov. William A. O'Neill had threatened to veto a bill dealing with two tax issues.

One provision in the bill would have exempted parent companies from the sales tax on payroll and other services they provide to wholly owned subsidiaries. O'Neill supported that idea.

But the other provision, which sought for what is known as tax classification, was unacceptable to the governor. Tax classification permits towns to tax commercial property at higher rates than residential property.

Larson said the compromise worked out between legislative leaders and the governor's office calls for about $150 million in additional state money over five years to towns facing property revaluation.

The extra money would be available only to those towns where the total property tax burden shifts from commercial to residential property owners by 10 percent or more, Larson said.

Under the proposal, about $20 million to $30 million could come from the state budget surplus from the fiscal year that ended Tuesday.

The remainder of the money — enough to fund the program in its second through fifth years — would come from a portion of the revenue from the state's 11.5 percent corporations tax on the incomes of businesses.

They also wanted the hospital to provide compensation should they become infected with AIDS, the lawsuit says.

All four nurses were dismissed June 23, 1986, according to their suits.

One of the nurses in the second lawsuit, Rachelle Brittain of East Longmeadow, Mass., alleges that her cut finger was exposed to excretions of an AIDS patient.

More nurses file lawsuits over firings

HARTFORD (AP) — Three more kidney dialysis nurses have filed lawsuits against Hartford Hospital joining a fellow nurse in challenging their firings last year for refusing to provide care for AIDS patients.

The first lawsuit stemming from the firings was filed in Hartford Superior Court on June 19.

In all the cases, the nurses say they had provided care to kidney failure patients with AIDS, but didn't know until April 1986 they were treating patients infected by the AIDS virus.

The nurses also say the hospital didn't take adequate precautions or offer adequate training for dealing with those patients.

Hospital spokesman James Battaglia said there would be no comment on the lawsuits. Peter G. Perakos, the attorney for the four nurses, has stated in the past that he would have no comment.

Kidney dialysis is a process in which a machine cleanses wastes from blood normally removed by kidneys.

AIDS, acquired immune deficiency syndrome, is a fatal disease transmitted by exchange of semen and blood or blood products through intimate sexual contact, transfusions of contaminated blood, or sharing of contaminated needles.

Once the nurses discovered they were treating an AIDS patient, they refused to treat patients until the hospital provided appropriate training and took precautions, according to the latest lawsuit filed in Hartford Superior Court.

They also wanted the hospital to provide compensation should they become infected with AIDS, the lawsuit says.

All four nurses were dismissed June 23, 1986, according to their suits.

One of the nurses in the second lawsuit, Rachelle Brittain of East Longmeadow, Mass., alleges that her cut finger was exposed to excretions of an AIDS patient.

Regulators reject gas price rollback

Outgoing inspector says his study will be 'a killer'

By Brent Lovmon
The Associated Press

NEW BRITAIN (AP) — Connecticut Natural Gas Co. customers already receive the benefits of lower gas costs through credits in their bills and so a $9.3 million reduction in rates requested by a consumer watchdog isn't necessary, state regulators say.

The Department of Public Utility Control on Tuesday denied Consumer Counsel James Meehan's request to reduce rates charged by the gas company, which has seen an 11 percent drop in its cost for fuel since 1984.

The reduction Meehan sought would have meant about $5 a month for people who use gas for heating, he said.

The DPUC decided that a reduction in rates was "really not necessary ... because there is a mechanism whereby the company's lowered cost of gas is passed on to customers," said the department's spokesman, Toni Blood.

"You don't have to change the rate. You just give them a credit when the bills have gone down," she said.

In another matter, the DPUC levied a $10,000 fine against United Cable Co. for past poor service to its 142,000 customers in the Hartford region.

Meehan said he asked the DPUC to impose a $75,000 fine, which he said would have been the equivalent of about 53 cents for each of the company's customers in 21 towns.

United Cable President William Lucas said he did not know whether there would be an appeal, but he added the company would probably want to "get the matter behind us."

The department's commissioners also decided to require the company to submit monthly reports on its finances.

Meehan, the prosecutorial division of the DPUC and the state attorney general's office all petitioned the DPUC commissioners in October to order a rate rollback for CNG, although the levels of the requests differed.

"The problems that led up to the case were short-term problems that fall as a result of some improvements we were making to the system," Lucas said. "I see it as pretty much a symbolic slip on the wrist. ... We didn't really anticipate a fine."

In the Connecticut Natural Gas matter, Meehan agreed that consumers' bills are lower due to falling natural gas prices "over which the department has no control."

Blood said she doesn't know how much rates had been affected by the company's lower costs since 1984.

"It'd be interesting to see when gas prices go up if they take credit for the customer's rate increase," Meehan said.

CNG sells natural gas to 132,000 customers in 21 towns in Greenwich and the greater Hartford-New Britain area.

In its decision Tuesday, the DPUC lowered the company's level of profit from 15.9 percent — where has been since 1984 — to 12.6 percent, citing the lower cost of operating. The level of profit is the maximum profit the company is allowed to make.

The department's commissioners also decided to require the company to submit monthly reports on its finances.

Bill-paying in Bolton irresponsible

It's been almost a year since Bolton lost the services of Cal Hutchinson, but the effects of his departure are still being felt even though the town has made a little progress in filling his shoes.

The latest fallout involves the Board of Finance, which this week demonstrated a level of fiscal irresponsibility that is unusual even for Bolton.

Even though Board of Finance Chairman Raymond Ursin noted that things were not in order, the finance board went ahead and paid a $2,500 bill from Philip Dooley, chairman of the Zoning Commission. Dooley said he was owed the money for providing zoning enforcement services for the last 12 months.

Dooley may well have done $2,500 worth of work. Ursin himself said there was no question about it. But paying the bill was improper because Dooley gave no details of the services rendered and because there was no account to cover such expenses, justified or unjustified. The finance board had to tap surplus funds for the $2,500.

Bolton's approved budget for 1986-87 included no funds for zoning enforcement, probably because that job was one of many handled by Hutchinson. A year after Hutchinson left because his pleas for help went unanswered, the 1987-88 budget includes just $10,000 for zoning work. And town officials say they're not sure what to do with it.

Paying Dooley's irregular bill wasn't the only Board of Finance gaffe this week. At the last minute (the fiscal year ended Tuesday), the board learned there wasn't enough money in the assessor's account to cover the salary. So the financiers dipped into an engineering account to cover the shortfall.

Such surprises raise serious questions about whether any of Bolton's officials are minding the town's pocketbook, and whether there is any financial accountability in the municipal government.

"In the big city this just wouldn't fly," Ursin said about paying Dooley's bill. It shouldn't fly in Bolton, either.

Dark horse would be ideal for FBI chief

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration's search for a politically and professionally acceptable nominee for FBI director is proving to be as difficult and time-consuming as many of the bureau's celebrated manhunt. There are simply too few candidates possessing the necessary integrity and experience — and suitably Republican credentials.

President Reagan has had poor luck with his first three choices, Justice Department sources told associate Michael Binstein. Former Pennsylvania Gov. Richard Thornburgh turned down the job; Associate Attorney General Stephen Trott would prefer a federal judgeship; and Lowell Jensen, a former Justice Department official, is a federal judge and "happy in San Francisco," the sources said.

There's another problem besides the reluctance of those in counterespionage. Catching spies is not the FBI's main preoccupation, and every sign is that the "Me Decade" of espionage-for-profit will continue to demand a large share of the bureau's time and energy. This special requirement makes one particular dark horse an ideal choice for the job. He is John L. Martin, chief of the Justice Department's internal security section since 1980.

MARTIN IS PROBABLY Washington's best-kept secret, though his exploits have been behind many cloak-and-dagger headlines in recent years. In fact, the guilty parties Martin has put behind bars — like American traitor John Walker — and the innocents he has freed from prison — like Russian dissident Anatoly Shcharansky — are more famous than he is. What's more, Martin likes it that way. (He tried to talk us out of writing this column.)

Martin has the requisite background: one-time G-man, lawyer, counterintelligence expert and behind-the-scenes diplomat experienced in dealing with foreign intelligence services. At 49, the 10-year FBI appointment would coincide with the peak of his professional life.

Martin is not a Republican — but he's not a Democrat, either. In fact, political considerations have never deterred him from pursuing his targets. It was Martin who went to the mat with Justice Department higher-ups in 1980 and insisted on an investigation into an alleged $200,000 payment by Libya to President Carter's brother, Billy. And it was Martin who withstood Navy Secretary John Lehman's petulant demand for "no deal" with John Walker — and won Walker's cooperation against fellow spy Jerry Whitworth, who might have otherwise gone free with vital information on the spy ring.

MARTIN JOINED THE FBI as a special agent in 1962, and was on the front lines of the bureau's difficult civil-rights role in the South over the next few years. From 1968 to 1971 he was in private legal practice. The money was good, but he preferred public service and returned to the Justice Department.

By 1975, Martin was deputy chief of the internal security section, and he turned it around dramatically. From 1966 to 1975, only two espionage cases had been successfully prosecuted; in the 12 years since, Martin has supervised the indictment of 50 individuals for espionage, and the successful prosecution of almost all that went to trial.

Most lawmen are proud of the crooks they have put in prison: Martin is proud of the prisoners' conscience he has sprung from the Soviet gulag and other political prisons. From June 1985 to February 1986, Martin and others negotiated the release of 28 such prisoners, as well as their headquarters in Hartford. Martin is definitely a long shot for the FBI job. But whether he gets it or not, he'll remain a kind of national treasure: a dedicated, a political servant who stays on the job in the full knowledge that he could make twice as much in the business world.

Mini-editorial

Much has already been said about the unique talent of Fred Astaire, and a lot of it was pretty pompous stuff. How did this slim, elegant man, usually sporting a top hat, white tie and tails, bring such delight to millions of Americans struggling through the Great Depression? Why didn't men resent this guy who made it look so easy to do what their wives were always begging them to make fools of themselves by trying? How did he get away with it? We don't pretend to have the answers, and frankly, we're just as soon not have so many deep thinkers try to analyze Astaire. Let's just call it magic and let it go that.

U.S./World In Brief

Haiti leader appeals to protesters

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Haiti's military leader appealed for negotiations to end two days of protest that, according to witnesses, led seven people killed by police gunfire.

The demonstrations came in response to a June 23 decree taking control of upcoming elections away from a constitutionally established independent committee and transferring it to the government.

Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy, head of the provisional government, said Tuesday night in a televised speech that "the tolerance of the government has been pushed to a limit, but we will not let ourselves be radicalized. The return to democracy requires a dialogue, a national consensus."

It was the first official comment about the protests, during which demonstrators erected flaming barricades throughout the country. Piles of smoldering debris still choked many intersections this morning.

Pro-choice group fights legislature

MASON, Mich. — A pro-choice coalition vowed to "undo what the Legislature has done," and lawyers began preparing an appeal after a judge ruled valid a cutoff of state funding for most abortions for poor women.

People's Campaign for Choice attorney John Pirich said he would petition the Michigan Court of Appeals and the state Supreme Court today to block the ruling Tuesday saying a ban on Medicaid abortions take immediate effect.

The pro-choice coalition contends the law shouldn't go into effect until 1988. Such a delay would let tax-funded abortions continue until petitions are circulated to force a statewide referendum on the issue.

"I hope we can undo what the Legislature has done," said coalition spokeswoman Judith Frey. "We will have this on the ballot in 1988. Within two weeks we will be starting. The petitions are at the printer's now."

Florida residents dump tea over tax

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Florida's sales tax on services went into effect today as opponents planned to protest by dumping coffee and instant tea into Miami's Biscayne Bay and holding other "tea parties" around the state.

The measure, signed April 23 by Gov. Bob Martinez to help state government keep up with Florida's burgeoning growth, extends the 5 percent general sales tax to services such as advertising, construction and attorneys' fees.

The levy has provoked a spate of lawsuits and advertising cutbacks by such corporations as Procter & Gamble and Lever Brothers Co.

Hundreds of Miami-area professionals were expected to dump tea and coffee in Biscayne Bay to promote a ban on the tax through a constitutional amendment, said Richard Friedman, head of Sales Taxes Opposing People, or STOP.

Rallies patterned on the Boston Tea Party, the 1773 protest sparked by a British duty on tea imported by the American colonies, were also scheduled in Tampa, Canaveral, Pensacola, Fort Myers, Tampa and Jacksonville.

Artist: more freedom in U.S.S.R.

WASHINGTON — Artist Jamie Wyeth, back from the Soviet Union, says he found astounding signs of artistic freedom under Mikhail Gorbachev but underlying fears that the Soviet leader might be pushing social reform too rapidly.

During his first visit to Moscow in a decade, Wyeth said, he sensed apprehension among the Soviet people that Gorbachev may be risking a reform backlash in his headlong pursuit of "glasnost," or an open society.

"They fear that Gorbachev is moving so rapidly that his reforms will be clamped down and restrictions will be tighter than ever," said Wyeth, noting that the late Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev suffered the same fate when he tried to reverse Stalinist curbs in the early 1960s.

Bush, Dole reach agreement

WASHINGTON — Saying the campaign staffs were "getting out of hand," Vice President George Bush and Sen. Bob Dole called a truce to stop charges and countercharges that Dole's campaign was spreading rumors about Bush's private life.

Bush and Dole, the top contenders for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination, reached their peace agreement in a telephone conversation last week and then issued marching orders to their staffs, aides said Tuesday.

At issue was a spate of rumors that Bush had a long-term affair with a female aide and with the wife of a supporter and allegations by the Bush campaign that Dole supporters were spreading the rumors.

"The vice president and Senator Dole have talked and have decided just to forget about all that, keep campaigning and stick to the 11th Commandment," Bush campaign manager Lee Atwater said.

Many people earn just $1 a day

WASHINGTON — Nearly half the people in the world live in countries where the average person earns a dollar a day or less, but the World Bank says life in many of them is getting better in ways that bankers often ignore.

In some ways, life for the world's poor is getting richer. People have more to eat, better medical care and longer average lifespans. More children are going to school and to college, more help is coming from richer countries, and there is more trade, so shops have a bigger variety of goods.

The 1987 edition of the bank's annual "World Development Report" includes 33 tables summing up aspects of life in 128 countries. The statistics cover many amenities that cannot be measured in money, though money is needed for improvements.

Blind trust didn't go to Wedtech

WASHINGTON — Edwin Meese III's lawyer says none of the attorney general's money in blind trust was invested in scandal-plagued Wedtech Corp., but the head of a congressional subcommittee says the entire arrangement was "outside the law."

"Just because Ed Meese said that his arrangements with Wedtech officials were blind trust didn't make them so," said Rep. Gerry Sikorski, D-Minn., who plans to conduct a hearing on the matter later this month.

Sikorski on Tuesday released a letter from the Office of Government Ethics, in which ethics chief David Martin said blind trusts must be approved by the office but Meese's was not. Since Meese did not have the approval of the ethics office, Martin said, the attorney general was required to list the investments made with the money on his financial disclosure form.

Unknown group says it took Glass

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A previously unknown group today claimed responsibility for the kidnapping of American journalist Charles Glass, a radio station said.

Congressmen prepare for North

Marine faces investigators for private questioning

By Lawrence L. Knutson The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congressional investigators, poring over seven notebooks of subpoenaed documents, prepared today for private questioning of the key witness of the Iran-contra affair, Lt. Col. Oliver L. North.

At the same time, North is pressing his challenge to the authority of independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh to investigate his actions before he was fired last fall as an official on the staff of the National Security Council.

North was formally granted limited immunity from prosecution Tuesday after invoking his Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination eight times.

The immunity grant provides that nothing North says or provides to the congressional investigators can be used against him in criminal proceedings unless the same information is obtained independently.

The Marine officer, wearing his uniform and six rows of decorations, was brought into the meeting room in the basement of the Rayburn House Office Building under tight police security.

The session was private but a transcript was made available. Arthur Liman, chief counsel of the Senate committee, repeating the questions North had initially refused to answer, asked: "Do you have any knowledge regarding the efforts of the United States government to secure the release of American hostages in Lebanon?"

Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North is all smiles as he leaves his home in Great Falls, Va., Tuesday enroute to Capitol Hill, where he turned over documents to staff members of the Iran-contra committee.

"Yes, I do," North replied. Responding to the other queries, North said he is aware of the sale of U.S. military equipment to Iran in exchange for U.S. hostages in Lebanon, knows about the use of the proceeds from those sales and knows about support by U.S. government officials for Nicaragua's contra rebels.

Additionally, he said he prepared documents relating to those issues and has custody of them.

North said: "I have copies of the following: calendars that were my personal calendars; correspondence; handwritten notes, code book; photos and miscellaneous items; telephone logs, and (edited) copies of 21 spiral notebooks containing day-to-day notations of some of my conversations and activities which may relate to the subject matter of your inquiry."

He then turned over two sets of given, black-bound notebooks, one set for each committee. According to correspondence made available by the panels, the subpoenaed documents were modified in negotiations with North's lawyers.

Sections of his notes, for example, have been blacked out to protect allegedly irrelevant or purely personal material. The committees did retain the right to examine the entire uncensored notations if that proves essential to the investigation.

The Senate panel dropped a paragraph from its subpoena which required the production of North's financial records, including canceled checks, and bank statements.

Another deleted section required the production of documents in North's possession which were "prepared, written or typed at the National Security Council, the White House or the Central Intelligence Agency."

Committee spokesmen said investigators will rely instead on the subpoena's more narrowly focused first paragraph, which requires North to produce "all materials relating directly or indirectly to the sale of United States manufactured military equipment to Iran or support for the anti-government forces in Nicaragua."

The panels also agreed not to seek correspondence or other documents generated by North's lawyers and for which the attorney-client privilege is claimed.

Chun announces S. Korean reforms

By Barry Renfrew The Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea — Bowing to the will of the people, President Chun Doo-hwan today announced his agreement to approach demands for direct presidential elections, curbing of political prisoners, curbing of central government power and other measures.

The changes are intended to end decades of authoritarian government. Chun, looking tired and grim, went on national television to make the announcement, which came three days after the end of 2 1/2 weeks of daily, often violent anti-government demonstrations.

"Because social stability and national harmony were being undermined by the recent continuing demonstrations and strife ... I believe that you, my fellow countrymen, not only experienced serious inconvenience and anxiety but were also worried that catastrophe might befall the nation," Chun said. The president and former army general, who said he had "spent many sleepless nights," announced he would accept demands for direct presidential elections, electoral reform, press freedom, release of political prisoners, curbing of central government power and other measures.

Now is a crucial moment in the destiny of the nation," he said. Chun repeated his pledge to step down when his seven-year term expires Feb. 25 and transfer power to a president elected by direct popular vote. The electoral college system he scrapped had virtually guaranteed victory for the ruling party.

He promised an extensive amnesty for political prisoners, but did not mention specifically Kim Dae-jung, a veteran dissident under a suspended 23-year prison sentence from a 1980 sedition conviction that stripped him of his civil rights and barred him from politics. Roh Tae-woon, the head of the ruling party, on Monday cited Kim Dae-jung's case as one for amnesty.

Koreans greeted Chun's announcement with happiness, excitedly discussing the impending changes. Groups of people gathered in shops, tea houses and other places to hear the speech on televisions and radios. Extra editions of newspapers were published.

"It's sure to be such a change that the nation is at the threshold of realizing a genuine democracy," said Lee Jung-soon, a Seoul resident after hearing the speech.

Government officials indicated today they wanted to revise the constitution by August to clear the way for November elections. They said the revisions would probably be put to the nation in an October referendum.

Superpowers reach tentative agreement

By Barry Schweld The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States and the Soviet Union have reached an agreement in principle to eliminate all Soviet medium-range nuclear missiles from Europe and Asia, but a senator said today that verification procedures have yet to be determined.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said he is encouraged by reports that an arms pact could be sealed when Secretary of State George P. Shultz meets in mid-July with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze.

"But the protocol for that destruction and the verification of how that is to be done, the phasing of how rapidly and how we are to know, are the major points of negotiation," Lugar said on NBC-TV's "Today" program.

The Shultz-Shevardnadze meeting is intended to remove major obstacles to an accord and could set the stage for a third superpower summit meeting later this year.

A Reagan administration official, who spoke Tuesday night only on condition of anonymity, said Col. Gen. Nikolai Chervov, a senior adviser to the Soviet general staff, had proposed the compromise two weeks ago in Geneva to U.S. negotiator Maynard Gitman.

It was designed to overcome obstacles to a treaty on medium-range missiles and subsequently was approved by the Reagan administration, the official said. A key provision calls for the Soviets to dismantle their 462 missiles in Europe with a range of 315 miles to 3,125 miles and 221 identical missiles in their Asian territory.

In return, the United States would remove 316 missiles from Europe, agree not to deploy shorter-range rockets and accept two basic restraints. The 208 ground-launched cruise missiles to be converted into sea-launched missiles, and the 100 Pershing II rockets could not be modified into shorter-range Pershing II weapons.

Until now, the Soviets had insisted on retaining 33 SS-20 launchers, with a range of up to 3,125 miles that are targeted on China and Japan, and were ambiguous about giving up some 40 shorter-range missiles also in Asia with a range of 565 miles.

President Reagan had set as a goal the elimination of the two types of Soviet rockets. It is known in arms control parlance as the "zero-zero option."

In another development, a senior administration official said the Soviets were expected to present shortly to U.S. negotiators in Geneva their version of a proposed treaty to reduce the superpowers' strategic nuclear weapons arsenals by about 50 percent.

Democrats beginning to sweat about '88

Connecticut Democrats are trying not to show it, but they are beginning to sweat a little about their party's chances in a couple of big ones next year.

The race for the White House, which a Democrat has won only once in the last 20 years, is a growing concern. But they are more nervous about the home-grown contest in 1988 — the one for the U.S. Senate seat.

"We still have nobody to take on (U.S. Sen. Lowell) Weicker," said a Democratic insider at the state Capitol one recent day.

Weicker, the tall Republican from Greenwich, is expected to run for a fourth term in 1988 although he has said nothing to give away his plans, one way or the other. Democrats talk bravely about knocking him off this time, then in the next breath they repeat the old line that "you can't beat somebody with nobody."

A few obvious names are in circulation, more because of their prominence in the Democratic sun than because of anything they've said or done about 1988. They are U.S. Reps. Sam Gejdenson of Bozrah, Bruce Morrison of Hamden and Barbara Kennelly of Hartford. All of them, doing nicely in the House, know that running against Weicker could be hazardous to their political health.

THEN THERE IS Attorney General Joe Lieberman of New Haven, mentioned by some as just fine for the run against Weicker. "I'd like to see Joe do it," says Senate President Pro Tem John Larson of East Hartford.

Lieberman's situation differs importantly from that of the congressional trio. He could lose to Weicker and still be attorney general. Democrats like that safety-net feature involving Joe.

Capitol Comments

Bob Conrad

But Democrats and a few writers who have watched Lieberman for years believe he shares with Kennedy a deep personal desire to be governor one day. A shot at the Senate would be great for Lieberman if he made it. If he lost, however, he would suffer a needless debit as a loser — something he would not want if he were to try for governor.

As for challenging Weicker, Democrats have refused to learn over the years that running a liberal against the liberal Republican senator simply doesn't work out. Joe Duffey, chief guru of a massive liberal movement within the Democratic Party 20 years ago, lost to him in 1970. The very popular Gloria Schaffer was buried by Weicker in 1978, and Toby Moffett was his victim in 1982 despite a high-level and interesting campaign.

NOW, IN THEIR TORMENT over finding a worthy opponent in 1988, Democrats are again sorting over a field of rather liberal possibilities. The answer is obvious. If Weicker is to be toppled, Democrats ought to stand aside and let the Republicans do it. Play all the liberal, etc., games they wish in intramural fashion, but cheer the GOP conservatives on. If there was ever a year to hope for the best in that endeavor, 1988 should be it. The Republican conservatives are restless. They want his hide, too.

Would the prospect of a challenge be worrisome to Lowell Weicker? Not on your life. This enormously self-confident GOP maverick thrives on political combat, especially when it comes from within his party. "Be my guest," is one of his favorite lines.

Democrats have been slow learners at opposing Weicker. This time, their tack seems to be that he is finally vulnerable, all by himself.

AS FOR THE WHITE HOUSE, Democrats hope someone breaks out of a rather so-so pack pretty soon. "They're just milling around," says state Rep. Jon Felto of Mansfield, political director at state party headquarters in Hartford.

Felto, no fan of Massachusetts Gov. Mike Dukakis ("He's got to show something west of the Hudson River"), says the party must avoid regionalism in choosing a presidential candidate. But Deputy State Comptroller Larry Caccola of Middletown says Democrats must have the South if they are to win in 1988. That is part of the appeal State Chairman John Doney of West Hartford sees in Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore. Ditto National Committeeman Peter Kelly of Hartford.

There is always 1976 for Democrats to remember, if they are depressed about the field shaping up for 1988. That was the year they ran "Jimmy Who?" from Georgia. And Carter's victory was the only one for Democrats in the last 20 years.

Carolina, left, ranking Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee on Capitol Hill Tuesday. The group met to discuss Supreme Court candidates.

Byrd, D-W.Va.

Clearly, there are some on here who believe would go through like a hot knife through butter." Biden told reporters after the 45-minute meeting.

And they got it, Biden said. Biden flew to the meeting from Chicago, where he briefly interrupted his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination. The other Democratic participants were Senate Majority Leader Robert leader Bob Dole of Kansas and Strom Thurmond, ranking Republican on the Judiciary Committee.

A congressional source, speaking only on condition he not be identified, said the list included at least six federal appellate judges and two senators.

The names included Bork, a judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia and a leading advocate of judicial restraint.

Against the grain by James Jacoby

The standard way to develop a trick with an honor/combination is to lead up to it. If the defenders' cards are situated well for you, you will take the tricks you need. I like a deal in which you win by doing just the opposite, playing against the grain and hoping the bat doesn't break.

South had a huge no-trump holding spots. He showed that strength by opening two clubs (artificial) and rebidding two no-trump over North's negative diamond response. Three diamonds was a Jacoby transfer bid showing at least five hearts, and three no-trump by North simply denoted enough to play game.

Declarer has many choices after the club lead. Because of the heart-suit blockage, there is no certain way to take nine tricks. So South took the bold approach. He banded down the queen of spades. West won the king and led a heart, knowing declarer had no more than two cards in that suit. South won the heart ace, cashed his top diamonds and played the 10 of spades. East won his jack and played another heart. Declarer won and played stiff another spade. On this card West let go a heart and East won his ace. East now returned a club and declarer ducked. That was the fourth trick for the defense as West now won the nine, but West had to give up, either leading into the heart jack into the dummy's king.

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is "Jacoby on Card Games," published by Pharo Books.

DEAR POLLY - You've printed salt-substitute recipes in the past, but they all have garlic powder in them. I can't stand garlic. Do you have a salt substitute herb mixture without garlic? - JANET

DEAR JANET - Of course, garlic or any other seasoning may be omitted from any of these salt substitute recipes, but here is one that is flavorful without any garlic or onion.

Mix 3 teaspoons dried basil, 2 teaspoons dried summer savory, 2 teaspoons celery seed, 2 teaspoons ground cumin, 2 teaspoons dried sage,

1 teaspoon dried thyme and 2 teaspoons dried marjoram. Crush to a powder with a mortar and pestle or in a spice or coffee grinder. Use in cooking or at the table as a salt replacement.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Cooking for Health," which has this recipe plus another salt substitute formula and other recipes to substitute herb mixture without garlic.

In Memoriam

In sad and loving memory of Craig Francis Flynn, 1961-1987.
We think of you everyday
And make no outward show
But what it's meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
You wished to one heaven,
Or even said goodbye,
You were gone before we knew it,
And only God knows why.
Your golden heart stopped beating
With tender hands at rest,
God broke our hearts,
That he only take the best.
Sadly missed by

Brain graft may relieve Parkinson's

NEW YORK (AP) — Eleven Parkinson's disease sufferers in Mexico and two in Tennessee showed improvement after gland tissue was grafted onto their brains, but U.S. researchers say their patients need more study.
"It is too early to conclude whether the cause of the change is a placebo (psychological) effect, the natural fluctuations of the disease or a result of the transplant," said Dr. George Allen of Vanderbilt University Medical Center in Nashville, Tenn.
The Mexican patients showed easing of tremor, rigidity and other symptoms following the experimental treatment, said Dr. Rene Drucker-Colin of the National Autonomous University of Mexico in Mexico City.
Two patients at Vanderbilt "have shown changes in the direction of improvement," especially in gait and facial animation, Allen said, while no judgment can be made about four other Vanderbilt patients because their medication dosages were changed in the course of the study.
The two researchers were interviewed by telephone before speaking Tuesday at a meeting sponsored by the University of Rochester on transplants to the central nervous system.
Parkinson's disease, often characterized by tremors, rigidity or loss of balance, afflicts 350,000 or more Americans. Drugs can control symptoms, but their effect can be sporadic and side effects can include psychological disturbances and impairment of movement.
The disease is caused by the death of brain cells that produce dopamine, which brain cells use to communicate.
Dopamine is also produced by the adrenal glands, which lie above the kidneys, said Drucker-Colin and others who tried transplanting tissue from a patient's adrenal glands to the brain.
Other researchers have reported success in transplanting dopamine-producing brain cells from human or animal fetuses into animal brains.

Democrats continue to seek legislation to stop gulf plan

By Tim Ahern
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Democrats will continue to seek legislation opposing U.S. Persian Gulf policy, with one lawmaker saying today that President Reagan had his mind made up before meeting with congressional leaders to push ahead with protecting Kuwaiti tankers.
"The Democratic leadership of the House and Senate went down... and talked to the administration, found they listened for you know, a few minutes," Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., said on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" today. "Then the press secretary went out and read an announcement already written about the decision."
"They weren't consulting. This is a problem they have and will continue to have."
Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., was not optimistic about the ability of Congress to derail the administration's plans.
"Our choices are really very limited at this point," Nunn said Tuesday. "We're rushing ahead and Congress can't really stop it now."
Nunn, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, spoke after he and other congressional leaders met with Reagan at the White House. His comments were echoed by other Democrats who attended the meeting.
The Democratic-run House will vote July 8 on a proposal that would request a 90-day delay in the White House plan to have U.S. ships protect Kuwaiti oil tankers. A vote had been scheduled today, but was postponed after GOP threats to use delaying tactics and after the White House said the plan would not take effect until mid-July.
Rep. Mike Lowry, D-Wash., chief author of the House measure, said, "We still don't believe it's too late. But in any case, the fact is that foreign policy won't work unless it's supported by the American people and by Congress. It's important for us to act."
In the Senate, also controlled by Democrats, floor action is possible today on a pair of measures approved Tuesday by the Foreign Relations Committee, which split largely along party lines. One bill would block the U.S. policy and the second would invoke the 1973 War Powers Act.
In other developments:
• Seventy-nine percent of Americans questioned in an ABC-Washington Post poll favored keeping U.S. military forces in the Persian Gulf region to keep Middle East oil flowing and 67 percent said the United States should be there to curb Soviet influence in the region.
But the 1,506 adults surveyed by telephone from June 25-29 split 49 percent to 49 percent on President Reagan's proposal to reflag and escort U.S. Kuwaiti oil tankers, and only a third think U.S. presence in the region is important enough to risk going to war to defend it.
• Pentagon officials said Arab states on the Persian Gulf have agreed to provide more logistical support for U.S. naval forces. Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, appearing at a White House news conference, said Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Oman had agreed to help U.S. efforts to protect gulf shipping, but he and other Pen-

NEW YORK (AP) — The Bolshoi Ballet kicked off its first U.S. performance in eight years to cheers and thunderous applause despite tight security and a bomb hoax.
Tuesday evening's performance was delayed nearly an hour after the harmless, outer shell of a grenade, wrapped in aluminum foil and rigged to four batteries and a clock, was removed from a trash can outside the Metropolitan Opera House.

detrimental to the morals of residents and participants.
Former town Director Joseph T. Sweeney proposed a similar ordinance Tuesday. He based it, he said, on the "evil which I find to be inherent in that type of activity."

HOWEVER, PENNY said that if the board were to legislate on the basis of morality, it could prompt other groups in town to ask the board to act on such matters as abortion or gay rights.

In addition, the board takes action to prevent Laserquest on the finding that it is immoral because it promotes violence, directors might also be compelled to regulate the sale of violent videos and games, drink alcohol and cause vandalism.

Some clergy members in the audience, however, told Penny that wasn't necessary.
"You don't need the big guns of theology to kill the laser fly — you can use the fly swatters you got," responded Shephard Johnson, pastor of South United Methodist Church.

Johnson argued that since the board can regulate matters affecting the health and welfare of residents, it can regulate Laserquest because of noise, traffic and other problems Johnson and residents have argued would occur.
Town Attorney John W. Cooney has said that the board can take action in these areas if it gathers evidence that the business would be detrimental to the health and welfare of residents. Naab's proposal also cites these as reasons to take action.

TO DOCUMENT that evidence, opponents of Laserquest presented information Tuesday covering a number of areas. These included:
• Psychological and sociological studies that opponents said established a link between aggressive behavior and violence witnessed on television. While no studies have reported no major crime problems.

Panel recommends town sell landfill

By George Lovvo
Herald Reporter

It would be cost-effective for Manchester to sell its landfill for use by a regional trash-to-energy plant, and use the sale money to offset the fee charged to have its waste disposed of at the facility, a member of a state advisory council said this week.
"It's worth more than beachfront property," Edward D. Crosby, a member of the Solid Waste Management Advisory Council, said of the town's Olcott Street landfill.

The town, though, does not want to sell. Public Works Director George A. Kandras said Tuesday the town still has 20 years worth of space left at its dump.
Kandras and Crosby did agree that, with landfill space running out, the issue of how to dispose of solid waste is something that needs to be considered.

"Twenty years, while it may seem down the road, is not that far," Kandras said.
Crosby said that there is not enough suitable space anywhere in Connecticut to build another landfill. He was in town Monday to drop off pamphlets — printed on recycled paper — at the Mary Cheney Library that advocate the use of regional trash-to-energy plants.

The main benefit of using those facilities is environmental, Crosby said. Poisonous liquids, called leachate, can filter from landfills and contaminate water supplies.
According to the council, the amount of solid waste being disposed of by bottles, cans and paper are recycled, and such things as leaves and grass clippings are not put into the trash.

Last year, Manchester stepped up its recycling efforts in order to lengthen the life of its landfill by encouraging residents to separate their glass, metal, paper and oil.
"If trash-to-energy plants are used, the group said in the pamphlet, the life of landfills can be extended between 10 to 20 years. This is based on a plan in which only the ash from the burned garbage — which can be as little as five percent of the original volume — is dumped at landfills.

Manchester energy is generated from the disposal plants that can be sold to help lower operating costs.
The longer a town continues to dispose solid waste at its landfill, the lower its sale price will fall.

In the 1987-88 fiscal year budget passed by the town Board of Directors, the town agreed to put some of the surplus revenues it collects from the disposal fee it charges to use the dump into a fund to cover the future costs of participating in a regional disposal system.

Manchester Mayor Barbara B. Weinberg said Wednesday the town may not have much say in how long it continues to use its dump. She noted that officials in other towns and the state have been looking at Manchester's dump for use by a regional facility.

Barbecue sparks bang-up holiday

By Aileen Cloire
Newspaper Enterprise Association

Every summer, the Fourth of July is a favorite party day, an all-out national festival. This year, Independence Day marks the 211th birthday of the United States, and festivities will be more patriotic because 1987 is also the bicentennial celebration of our Constitution.

The Constitution was actually signed on Sept. 17, 1787, but the birthday of the nation is a great day to toast that historic document.
What better way to say happy anniversary than to gather with family and friends for an outdoor barbecue with such traditional fare as colorful drinks, burgers, bean salad, potato salad, pecan pie and homemade ice cream? All foods may be ready in advance — everyone will have time to enjoy the day's events.

Sparkling blueberry-lemon punch

1 cup (24 ounces) blueberry-cranberry drink, chilled
1/2 cup (2 ounces) frozen lemonade concentrate, undiluted
1/4 cup (6 ounces) club soda, chilled
Lemon slices, for garnish (optional)
Four blueberry-cranberry drink and lemonade concentrate into a 1/2-quart pitcher. Stir until lemonade melts. Add club soda. If desired, garnish with lemon slices. Add ice as needed. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings, about 5 ounces each.

Fruiti blender drink

1 bottle (32 ounces) cranberry juice cocktail, chilled
1 small ripe banana, peeled and cut into chunks, chilled
1 cup fresh or drained canned peaches, sliced, peeled, chilled
2 cups watermelon, seeds removed, diced, chilled
6 ice cubes, crushed
Fresh peach slices or mint sprigs for garnish
Place half of all ingredients, except garnish, in container of electric blender; whirl until smooth. Pour into 3 tall glasses. Repeat with remaining ingredients. Garnish each drink with a fresh peach slice or mint sprig. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 tall drinks.

Spiced pita chips

1 package (8) whole-wheat pita bread (4-inch diameter)
6 tablespoons safflower oil
Select as desired: chili powder, dill weed, Italian seasoning, garlic powder, sesame and/or poppy seed
Preheat oven to 300 degrees. Using a paring knife to cut around the edges, separate each pita bread into 2 layers. Brush the rough sides of each pita round well with safflower oil, about 1 teaspoon. Sprinkle with desired spice. Cut each round into 6 triangles. Place in a single layer on 2 baking sheets. Bake until crisp, about 10 minutes. Cool. Refrigerate in a tightly covered container until ready to serve with cheese or dips. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 96 triangles.

Cool-as-a-cucumber dip

1 cup cottage cheese
1/2 medium cucumber, unpeeled, cut in pieces
4 radishes, chopped
2 scallions, including green tops, sliced thinly
1 tablespoon freshly squeezed lemon juice
1 teaspoon chopped fresh dill, or 1/4 teaspoon dried dill
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
Dash hot pepper sauce
Assorted fresh vegetables: carrot strips, celery strips, zucchini rounds, broccoli flowerets, cherry tomatoes, etc.
In container of electric blender, combine cottage cheese, cucumber, radishes, scallions, lemon juice, dill, seasoned salt and hot pepper sauce. Process until smooth. Cover. Chill. Serve with fresh cut-up vegetables. Double or triple recipe as desired. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 1 1/2 cups dip.

Burgers are a great way to celebrate the Fourth of July. Make them with fresh ingredients on a barbecue.

Seasoned hamburger rolls
3 cups bleached baking mix
Seasoning, as indicated below
1 cup milk

1 egg, lightly beaten
Preheat oven to 450 degrees. Mix baking mix and seasonings; stir in milk. Mix until a soft dough forms; beat vigorously for about 30 seconds. If dough is too sticky, gradually add enough baking mix to make dough easy to handle. Form dough into ball.
Dust large board with flour. Knead dough about 12 times on board. Roll to 1/4 inch thickness. Cut with 3/4- or 4-inch cookie cutter dipped in flour. Brush tops of rolls with beaten egg; sprinkle with desired toppings.
Bake rolls on ungreased baking sheet, until golden brown. 10 to 12 minutes. Cool at least 5 minutes on wire racks before serving. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 rolls.

Seasonings
For turkey burger rolls: Use 1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning. Top with 2 tablespoons sesame seeds.
For veal burger rolls: Use 1/2 teaspoon ground mustard and 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder.
For beef burger rolls: Use 1/2 teaspoon mixed herb leaves and 1/2 teaspoon onion powder. Top with 2 tablespoons poppy seeds.

Stuffed barbecued burgers

2 pounds ground chuck
2 eggs
1/2 cup packaged, seasoned bread crumbs
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, chopped
1 large onion, chopped
1 tablespoon butter
1/2 cup cranberry-orange sauce
1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
1/3 cup chopped parsley
2 small oranges, cut into 4 thick slices
1/4 cup cranberry juice cocktail
In a large bowl, combine beef, eggs, bread crumbs, salt and pepper; blend well. Divide into 8 thin patties. In a pan, saute mushrooms and onions in butter until golden brown. Stir in cranberry-orange sauce until well blended. Spoon mixture on center of patties; top each with 2 tablespoons shredded cheese. Top patties with remaining 4 patties and press edges together to seal.
Grill 5 inches from source of heat for about 15 minutes for medium burgers, turning once or twice. Place orange slices on grill, about 5 inches from source of heat; brush with cranberry juice cocktail. Grill on both sides, about 5 to 8 minutes, turning and basting with cranberry juice cocktail. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and top with grilled burgers. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 burgers. Double or triple recipe as needed.

Oriental veal burgers

BASTING SAUCE:
1 jar (14 ounces) cranberry-orange sauce
1/2 cup dry white wine or apple juice
1/2 cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 cup (1 large) onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 teaspoons ground ginger
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
VEAL BURGERS:
2 pounds ground veal
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
GARNISH:
1 fresh pineapple, pared and cut into 1/2-inch slices
Lettuce
Onion slices

Sammartino cooks for crowds

By Anita M. Caldwell
Herald Reporter

ANDOVER — When Chris Sammartino's son, Leo, was 2 years old, he opened the refrigerator and saw something colorful.
"Like any inquisitive child, he started to grab hold of the jiggling gelatin mold, and before his mother could spell J-e-l-l-o, it slid shelf by shelf onto the floor."
Twelve years later, Leo still likes to get his hands on desserts. His mother said his specialty is preparing a chocolate layer cake from scratch.
She and her husband, Gene, originally from New Jersey, own Tiger Lee Construction. Between work and family, she leans toward quick but tasty meals. Her favorite meals are soups, and she doesn't mind cooking for crowds.
Sammartino said her husband's business often requires that clients come to their home. Often, they drop in around dinnertime. She said she just keeps adding to adjust to the numbers. "I don't think I could cook for only the three of us," she joked.

Her chicken and linguine is a crowd-pleaser. Though a pasta dish on a summer day may seem heavy, hers is light and flavorful.

Sammartino likes to try unusual combinations, including mint with peas, and lemon with rosemary on lamb.
Sammartino prefers to rely on conventional cooking methods, rather than preparing foods in the microwave.
"The first time I used a microwave, the potatoes came out like walnuts," she recalled. "I didn't think it cooked so fast."
Though she might not be fond of the microwave, Sammartino does find a food processor helpful, especially to prepare her husband's favorite dish of ravioli.

"It's a group project," Sammartino said. Her husband kneads the dough and she takes care of the filling. "He's a good pizza maker, too," she added.
Her advice for the busy working couple?
"Prepare ahead, pre-cut the evening before, so you can sit and enjoy yourself."

Baked chicken with linguine
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 medium onion, sliced thin
4 cloves garlic, minced
1-1/4 tablespoons dry basil
1/2 teaspoon crushed red pepper
8 chicken legs, rinsed, patted dry
2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen chopped spinach
8 ounces linguine
Boiling water
1 to 1 1/4 cups grated Parmesan cheese
1/4 cup pignoli (pine nuts)
1/4 cup olives, pitted
Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Melt butter in 12-inch-by-15-inch baking pan; remove pan from oven. Stir onion, garlic, basil and pepper into butter. Place chicken skin side down in butter mixture; then turn over. Bake, uncovered, about 45 minutes.
Thaw spinach in microwave or conventional oven for about 30 minutes, covered. When thawed, squeeze out the liquid.
When chicken is done, remove from pan; keep warm. Add spinach to pan and stir to scrape browned bits free. Add pasta, cheese, pignoli and olives and mix well.
Mound linguine on large serving dish and surround with chicken legs. Makes 8 servings, depending on your appetite.

French apple crumb pie
Pastry for 1-crust 9-inch pie (or a prepared pie shell)
7 baking apples peeled, cored and sliced
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
6 tablespoons butter
1 prepare pastry. Combine sliced apples, 1/2 cup sugar and 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon. Arrange apples in pie shell.
Topping: mix flour with one-third cup sugar; cut in butter until crumbly. Sprinkle over apples. Bake at 400 degrees for 45 minutes. Place tin foil on top of pie if pie begins to brown too quickly. Cool, top with sifted powder sugar.

Pepper saute
1 each red and yellow bell pepper
1/2 cup extra-virgin olive oil

To make cranberry-basting sauce: In large bowl, combine cranberry-orange sauce, white wine, soy sauce, oil, onion, garlic, ginger and dry mustard. Blend well.

Place veal in large bowl; sprinkle with salt and pepper and work in lightly. Shape mixture into 6 equal burgers. Grill over charcoal, until delicately brown on both sides, 10 to 15 minutes. Brush with cranberry-basting sauce.

Grill pineapple slices just until tender. Place burgers on grill; place cranberry-basting sauce on remaining heated basting sauce and top with chopped peanuts. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 burgers.

Turkey burgers

CRANBERRY CHUTNEY BASTE:
 1/2 cup chutney
 1/2 cup chili sauce
 1 tablespoon soy sauce
 4 drops Tabasco pepper sauce
 1 cup whole berry cranberry sauce

TURKEY BURGERS:
 2 pounds frozen ground turkey, thawed
 1/2 cup heavy cream
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 1/2 teaspoon curry powder
 1/2 cup raisins

GARNISH:
 6 (1/4-inch thick) tomato slices
 1/2 cup chopped salted peanuts
 To make cranberry chutney baste: Combine in an electric blender the chutney, chili sauce, soy sauce and pepper sauce; whirl until smooth. Stir in whole berry cranberry sauce; set aside.

Place turkey in large bowl; blend in cream, salt, pepper, curry and raisins until well mixed. Shape mixture into 6 equal burgers. Grill over charcoal, until delicately browned, about 15 minutes. Brush with cranberry chutney baste and turn frequently. Grill tomato slices until just tender. Place burgers on grill; top tomato slices; spoon on remaining heated basting sauce and top with chopped peanuts. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 burgers.

Magic Valley potato salad

1 package (5.5 ounces) dehydrated au gratin potatoes with sauce mix
 3 2/3 cups water, divided
 3 tablespoons cider vinegar
 1 teaspoon chili powder
 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
 1 medium tomato, coarsely chopped
 1 avocado, seeded and coarsely chopped
 In medium saucepan, combine potatoes and 3 cups of water; heat to boiling. Reduce heat and cover. Simmer 15 minutes until tender. Drain. Cool. Meanwhile, in small saucepan, combine sauce mix, remaining 2/3 cup water, vinegar, chili powder and cumin. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and thickens. Cool to room temperature.

In large bowl combine potatoes, tomato, avocado and sauce mixture; toss lightly. Cover. Chill. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings. Double or triple as needed.

Pickled kidney bean salad

1 can (1 pound) kidney beans, drained
 1 cup diced celery
 1/4 cup sweet fresh cucumber pickles, drained, chopped
 1/4 cup diced pickled peppers
 2 tablespoons chopped scallions
 2 tablespoons chutney
 1 cup diced Monterey Jack cheese
 1/2 cup mayonnaise
 1/2 cup crushed tortilla chips
 Toss together beans, celery, pickles, peppers and scallions. Gently fold in chutney, cheese and mayonnaise until ingredients are blended. Chill several hours. Sprinkle with chips before serving. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings.

Vanilla ice cream

1/2 cup sugar
 2 tablespoons cornstarch
 3 cups milk
 1/2 cup light corn syrup
 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
 2 teaspoons pure vanilla
 1 cup heavy cream
 In 2-quart saucepan combine sugar, cornstarch and salt. Gradually stir in milk until smooth. Stir in corn syrup and egg yolks. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla. Pour into large bowl. Cover surface with plastic wrap. Refrigerate at least 2 hours or until chilled. Stir in cream. Freeze in quart electric or hand freezer following manufacturer's directions. Spoon into freezer containers; cover and freeze several hours or until firm. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 2 quarts.

Blueberry Ice Cream: Follow recipe for vanilla ice cream. Reduce vanilla to 1 teaspoon. Stir 1 cup pureed blueberries into cream. Freeze as directed.

Chocolate Ice Cream: Follow recipe for vanilla ice cream. Add 2/3 cup unsweetened cocoa to dry ingredients. Reduce vanilla to 1/2 teaspoons. Freeze as directed.

Peach Ice Cream: Follow recipe for vanilla ice cream. Reduce vanilla to 1 teaspoon. In blender or food processor, finely chop 2 cups peeled, sliced peaches with 1/3 cup light corn syrup and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Add to chilled mixture with cream. Stir until well blended. Freeze as directed.

Peach praline pie

6 cups (about 12) peaches, sliced, peeled
 2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
 1/4 cup packed light brown sugar
 2 tablespoons flour
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 cup chopped pecans
Pastry for a double-crust, 9-inch pie
 Peel peaches, slice thinly and place in large bowl. Sprinkle with lemon juice, add brown sugar, flour, salt and pecans; mix gently.

Roll out half of pastry and line a 9-inch pie plate; trim overhanging 1/2 inch. Turn fruit into pie. Roll out remaining half of pastry and place it over fruit; seal and flute edge. Make 3 or 4 small slits in top crust. Bake in 425-degree oven for 40 minutes, until pastry is browned and peaches are tender. Serve warm or cool. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 to 8 servings.

Time for the three P's of summer

Microwave Kitchen
 Marge Churchill

Summer weather is here and it's time for the three P's: Plan, Prepare, and Pack the Perfect Picnic. Oh, Dear! What a lot of work you think! No sense! The menu we have designed for you is not the usual hamburger and hot dogs. The preparation will be made easy with your microwave, a cool summer companion.

The packing is a breeze with the help of a large thermos and a camping-size cooler. The result—a perfect picnic to be enjoyed by your family and friends.

This includes: Chilled avocado soup, cold poached salmon steaks with dill sauce, artichoke hearts, salad rolls, marinated vegetables, assorted rolls, Devonshire cheese-cake cups with green grapes and chilled white wine or iced tea.

Preparation for this picnic can start the day ahead. Artichoke salad, marinated vegetables, and the cheese cake cups can all be made the day before and refrigerated. Early in the morning of the picnic, make the soup, poach the salmon steaks, and make the dill sauce. Fresh crisp rolls can be purchased from a local bakery.

Have plenty of ice ready in the cooler chest to keep the foods cold until serving time. This cool summer picnic will defeat the hottest summer and bring you rave reviews from the lucky people who are invited to share it with you!

Chilled avocado soup

1/2 cup butter
 1 small clove garlic, crushed
 1/4 teaspoon chili powder
 1/2 teaspoon dried lime peel
 1/2 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
 1 quart milk
 3 ripe medium avocados (1 1/2 pounds)
 3 tablespoons fresh lime juice
 2 tablespoons mild taco sauce
 In a microwave-safe 2-quart casserole, place butter, garlic, chili powder and lime peel. Microwave on high 1 1/2 minutes, stirring after 1 minute. Stir in flour until smooth; gradually blend in milk. Cover with plastic wrap, turning back a corner to vent. Microwave on high 7 minutes, stirring after every 2 minutes.

Remove and discard peel and pit from avocados; coarsely chop avocados. In a food processor or blender puree avocado with 1/4 cups milk mixture. Stir avocado puree, lime juice and taco sauce into milk mixture in casserole. Microwave on high for 3 minutes, or until soup is heated through. Chill.

Four chilled soup into thermos. When ready to serve, garnish with thin slices of fresh lime.

Cold poached salmon steaks with dill sauce

1/2 cup dry white wine
 2 peppercorns
 1 bay leaf
 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
 1 lemon, thinly sliced
 1 tablespoon instant minced onion
 1 1/2 cups hot water
 6 salmon steaks (1 1/4 pounds)
 1/2 cup sour cream
 1 teaspoon lemon juice
 1 tablespoon parsley
 1 teaspoon dill weed

For lunch, a snack, and even breakfast, a peanut butter sandwich is tops. One of our food editors, who claims that peanut butter was her first solid food, developed a dozen variations on the basic peanut butter sandwich. These five are our favorites.

Peanut butter sandwiches: Spread the filling of your choice on 4 slices of whole wheat bread. Top with 4 more slices of bread. Seal, label and freeze individually. Store the sandwiches up to 1 month in the freezer. In the morning, pack 1 frozen sandwich in a brown bag or lunch box. The sandwich will thaw in about 2 hours.

Spicy Apple Peanut Butter: Stir together 1/4 cup peanut butter, 1-3rd cup unsweetened applesauce, 1/4 cup raisins and a dash ground cinnamon.

Banana Peanut Butter: Stir together 1/4 cup peanut butter and 1 small banana, chopped.

Crunchy Peanut Butter: Stir together 1/4 cup peanut butter and 1/4 cup finely chopped celery.

Tropical Peanut Butter: Stir together 2-3rds cup peanut butter, one 8-ounce can drained crushed pineapple and 1/4 cup coconut.

Apple Peanut Butter: Stir together 1/4 cup peanut butter, 1 chopped apple and 1/2 cup shredded colby cheese.

Strawberry-walnut bread

2 cups finely chopped walnuts
 3 cups all-purpose flour
 1 teaspoon baking soda
 1 1/2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
 1 teaspoon ground cardamom
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
 4 beaten eggs
 2 cups sugar
 1 1/2 cups mashed strawberries (about 3 cups whole berries)
 1 cup mashed banana
 1 cup cooking oil
 1 tablespoon finely shredded orange peel

Grease and flour two 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pans; sprinkle 1/4 cup nuts in the bottom of each pan. In a large bowl stir together flour, soda, cinnamon, cardamom, salt and nutmeg. In a bowl combine eggs, sugar, strawberries, banana, oil and orange peel; add to dry ingredients. Stir just until moistened. Stir in remaining nuts. Spoon batter into prepared pans. Bake in 350-degree oven for 1 hour. Let cool in pans 10 minutes. Remove to rack to cool. Makes 36 slices.

Nutrition analysis per slice: 294 cal., 4 g pro., 34 g carbo., 17 g fat, 46 mg chol., 103 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 14 percent vit. C, 10 percent thiamine.

Banana-sprout salad

1 large banana, sliced
 1/2 of a medium avocado, chopped
 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 1/2 cup crushed pineapple, well drained
 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts
 2/3 cup alfalfa sprouts
 2 tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing
 2 tablespoons plain yogurt
 1 tablespoon wheat germ

In a medium bowl toss banana and avocado with lemon juice. Add pineapple and walnuts. Arrange sprouts on 2 individual serving plates. Top with fruit mixture. Stir together mayonnaise, yogurt and wheat germ; spoon on top of the fruit mixture. Makes 2 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 255 cal., 5 g pro., 30 g carbo., 15 g fat, 1 mg chol., 102 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 29 percent vit. C, 12 percent thiamine, 11 percent riboflavin, 13 percent phosphorus.

Gala punch

4 medium grapefruit, peeled and cut up
 One 67.8-ounce-bottle lemon-lime carbonated beverage
 1/2 cup sugar (optional)
 1 pint lime sherbet
 1 pint pineapple sherbet

In a blender container or food processor bowl place half the cut-up grapefruit. Cover and blend or process until nearly smooth. Strain into a large bowl. Discard pulp. Repeat with remaining grapefruit. Add half the carbonated beverage (about 4 cups) to grapefruit juice. Stir in sugar until dissolved. Pour into a 9 by 9 by 2-inch pan. Cover and freeze 4 to 5 hours or until nearly firm, stirring 3 times.

At serving time, spoon sherbet into punch bowl. Spoon grapefruit mixture into punch bowl. Pour in remaining carbonated beverage. Stir gently. Serve immediately. Makes 16 cups, 32 (4-ounce) servings.

Nutrition analysis per serving: 146 cal., 1 g pro., 35 g carbo., 1 g fat, 3 mg chol., 22 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 36 percent vit. C.

Lemon-sesame asparagus

12 ounces fresh asparagus spears or one 8-ounce package frozen asparagus spears
 1 tablespoon margarine or butter
 2 teaspoons sesame seeds
 2 teaspoons lemon juice
 1/2 teaspoon salt

Wash and trim fresh asparagus. Cook, covered, in boiling lightly salted water 10 to 12 minutes or until crisp-tender. (Or cook frozen asparagus spears according to package directions.) Meanwhile, in a small saucepan heat and stir margarine and sesame seeds over low heat about 5 minutes or until seeds are golden brown. Add lemon juice and salt. Drain asparagus; place in heated serving dish. Pour lemon mixture over hot asparagus. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 51 cal., 3 g pro., 3 g carbo., 4 g fat, 160 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 16 percent vit. A, 45 percent vit. C.

Supermarket Shopper

'CRT' means 'cash-register tape'

By Martin Sloane
 United Feature Syndicate

DEAR MARTIN: I recently saw a manufacturer's refund offer that asked for a UPC, plus a CRT. What is a CRT?

REGINA WINBURGH
 ORANGEVILLE, PA.

DEAR REGINA: CRT stands for cash-register tape. This is a proof of purchase that is rarely abbreviated, so I can understand why you and others might not recognize it. UPC, of course, stands for the Universal Product Code. The Universal Product Code is the thick-and-thin black lines with the numbers below it, which is found on all grocery-product packages.

DEAR MARTIN: My husband and I are both on low-salt diets and find it very difficult to find much variety in the prepared foods we buy. What is the best way to inform manufacturers that we need more no-salt and low-sodium products?

MRS NELSON COOPER
 CULVER, IND.

DEAR MRS. COOPER: Low-salt products were big news in 1985 and 1986, and manufacturers responded by introducing new varieties of low-salt products at a record pace. These products were enthusiastically received by many consumers, but sales did not reach the level manufacturers had anticipated, so many have disappeared from the supermarket shelves.

There's a lesson here for all of us. If we want to keep a new product on the shelves, we must support its of each package. Kroger has been offering double coupons, so on my next shopping trip, I took both coupons. To my surprise, the rolls had been reduced to two packages for $1, and with the coupons doubled I got both free. I found two more coupons on the packages, of course, and repeated this bargain many times over the course of several months. Last week, I found the clerk marking down the rolls again. This time to three packages for $1. My freezer stays full of rolls — and so does my husband's!

Advice

Harsh words can hurt child as much as sticks & stones

DEAR READER: Have you ever abused your child? Perhaps without realizing it, you have. Words can hit as hard as a fist. For example: "You disgust me. Just shut up!"
"Get out of here. I'm sick of looking at your face!"
"Isn't it more trouble than you're worth?"
"Why don't you go and find some other place to live?"
"Clash you were never born."

DEAR TORN: Tell the gentleman if he wants to marry you, it's a package deal - triple or nothing. If he says, "Nothing," don't eat your heart out. Would you really want a man who asked you to abandon your children?
DEAR ABBY: Does the American Cancer Society have a hot line where a person can call and ask questions concerning cancer and cancer treatment?
DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were divorced many years ago and I was left to raise our two children with no help from him. They are now 11 and 13 years old. My mom took care of my kids all the years I worked.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Our son, 30, takes medication for Wolff-Parkinson-White syndrome. Is it hereditary?
DEAR READER: The wife of a 15-year-old boy who was killed in a car accident...
DEAR DR. GOTT: My grandson is recovering from Kawasaki's disease. What is this disease?
DEAR READER: Kawasaki's disease (mucocutaneous lymph node syndrome) is an infectious disease of children. It causes sudden illness with fever, inflamed membranes of the mouth ("strawberry tongue"), joint pain, diarrhea, pneumonia and swollen lymph glands.

Pathway causes heart problem more than 80 percent of children develop cardiac complications of Kawasaki disease, sometimes as long as several years after the acute illness.

W.P.W. is associated with attacks of palpitations and rapid heart rate. Most are innocuous, but one type of attack has potentially serious consequences: atrial fibrillation with rapid ventricular response.
Treatment is directed toward slowing the speed with which electrical impulses travel through the heart's conduction system. Digitalis and betablockers are commonly used for this purpose.

Vintage Guidry shoots down the Blue Jays

The Yankees' Wayne Tolleson lands on the head and shoulders of Toronto's Garth Iorg as the former turns a double play in their game Tuesday night in Toronto. The Yanks won, 4-0.

AL Roundup

At the age of 36, Ron Guidry still is trying to make lightning strike twice.
"One good game doesn't make a season, but I feel good," Guidry said Tuesday night after winning his first game of the year in the New York Yankees' 4-0 decision over the Toronto Blue Jays.
Guidry signed late with the Yankees after failing to attract any offers as a free agent during the offseason. So far, he hasn't been close to the pitcher who won the Cy Young Award in 1978, when he was known as "Louisiana Lightning."

Boggs continuing his assault on the .400 mark

By Dove O'Hara The Associated Press
BOSTON - After hitting a whopper, 465 in the month of June, Wade Boggs has the baseball world asking a familiar question.
"Can the Boston Red Sox' hitting machine become the first 400 hitter since Hall of Famer Ted Williams batted .406 in 1941?"
" I think Wade Boggs can do anything he wants to do," teammate Dwight Evans said Tuesday night after Boggs pushed his average to .391 in the Red Sox' 13-0 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.
" The more I see him play the better he gets," Evans said. " You can talk about him going for .400, but I don't think you should set any limits."

patient and pick your spots."
With a slight grin, the third baseman added:
" The only thing I can do is hit the ball. I can't steer it - except sometimes."
Of his 29 multihit games, Boggs said: " It's a snailball effect."
" When you get one, you want two, when you get two, you want three, when you get three you want four," he said. " That's the only attitude you can have."

Johnson's turn to the right difference in Mets' victory

By Ben Walker The Associated Press
NEW YORK - What St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog did not know about Howard Johnson did hurt him.
Johnson, a switch-hitter who was dismal batting right in the past, lined a game-winning single in the ninth inning as a right-hander that Dwight Gooden and the New York Mets over the Cardinals 3-2 Tuesday night.
The Mets beat St. Louis for just the second time in eight games this year. The victory, before 48,000 fans, prevented New York from falling further behind the National League East leaders, who are still 6 1/2 games ahead.
Pitch-runner Len Dykstra was on second base with one out in the ninth when Herzog removed right-hander reliever Bill Dawley and brought in Johnson. Johnson, who had been batting left, stepped into an intentional walk to Lee Mazzilli. Johnson singled into the left-field corner.
" This year, they just don't respect me from the right side, I've feasted on that. They've been turning me around, and I've been beating them," Johnson said.
" If they would look at my stats, they would see I'm a much better hitter from the right side this year," he said. " They're going on my past performance. Coming into this season, I was a .199 career hitter right-handed."

" They think I can just hit fastballs. That isn't true either," Gooden, 5-1, allowed eight hits, struck out nine and walked two. He has won five straight decisions against the Cardinals since April 24, 1985.
St. Louis starter Greg Mathews, 5-4, walked Gary Carter to start the ninth and was relieved by Dawley.
Mathews had shut out New York on both single and double plays in 13 straight batters before Mazzilli singled and Johnson doubled with two outs in the seventh. Santana, the eighth batter in the lineup, grounded a single into left field to tie the score.
The Mets rallied to tie after catching the Cardinals in a bizarre double play in the top of the seventh. Johnson led off with a single and took second when Tony Pena followed with a single.
Mathews missed a sacrifice attempt at second base. Catcher Tom Horstrop, Santana, trapping Ford off second, Santana's throw to Johnson caught Ford at third base, and Johnson spun and threw out Pena at second.

Reds steal a win on hustle by Stillwell and Jones

By The Associated Press
For 24 seasons, Pete Rose used hustle to amass 4,256 hits. Kurt Stillwell and Tracy Jones used it to give their manager an important victory.
Stillwell scored from second base on Jones' infield single in the 10th inning Tuesday night as Cincinnati beat Houston 5-4 in a showdown for first place in the National League West.
Jones beat out a grounder to shortstop Dickie Thon and Stillwell kept running, easily beating the relay home with a head-first slide, lifting Cincinnati's 14th game ahead of second-place Houston.
" We stole the game," Rose said. " You don't see many games end that way. It's a great way to win a game - two walks and an infield hit. It was just good, aggressive play."
Stillwell and Kal Daniels drew one-out walks from Larry Anderson, 5-4. Terry Francona fouled out before Jones hit his high-grounder. Thon, who had a 4-0 record, said: " That's the name of the game." Stillwell said: " When you're slumping like he (Jones) is and like I am, you've just got to keep running and see what happens."

NL Roundup

New York edged St. Louis 3-2; Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 4-0; San Angeles blanked San Diego 4-0; San Francisco beat Atlanta 4-2.
Chicago reliever Dickie Noles hit Andres Galarraga with a pitch in the eighth; Galarraga charged the mound and took a swing at Noles and players from both benches charged onto the field. Both Noles and Galarraga were ejected.
The Expos snapped a 1-1 tie when they scored four runs in the third off Steve Trout, 4-3.
Phillies 6, Pirates 4
Steve Bedrosian extended his major-league record with his 13th save in 13 straight appearances by getting pinch-hitter Sid Bream to tie in a double play and end the game.
The visiting Pirates scored two runs in the ninth on R.J. Reynolds' RBI double and a run-scoring single by Mike LaValliere off reliever Kent Tekulve. Bedrosian came on to get his 20th save.
Juan Samuel's leadoff home run and Von Hayes' RBI triple keyed a three-run first inning.
Eddie Milner and Joel Youngblood homered at Candlestick Park as the Giants beat the Braves.
Right-hander Jeff Robinson, 5-6, pitched two innings in relief of starter Mike Krukow and Scott Garretlin got his ninth save. Krukow, who had been hampered by arm problems this year after winning 20 games in 1986, left after five innings, with a "tired shoulder."
