Directors to restrict laser games

Board tells lawyer to draft ordinance; hearing set July 20

Responding to concerns over the proposed opening of the controversial Lasequest game center on East Middle Turnpike, the town Board of Directors today decided to draft an ordinance that would restrict the business and others like it. Under a resolution approved unanimously by six of the nine board members who attended a special meeting this morning, the ordinance would be based on the noise and safety concerns expressed Tuesday by residents and property owners near the site.

Police hunt son in Darien murders

DARIEN (AP) — Police said they obtained a warrant today for the arrest of a man whose parents' bloodstained bodies were set on fire and dumped in the backyard of their home. He said the daughter, Jill, 23, picked up a hose to douse the bodies, which were at the edge of the woods about 25 feet behind the house, then called the fire department.

At work or actively seeking a job — was expected following a May gain of 612,000, which analysts had said was "probably somewhat exaggerated." The number of people listed as officially unemployed also fell last month, down 286,000 to 7,266,000, the lowest since March 1986.

Unemployment at lowest rate of decade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment fell to 8.1 percent last month, the lowest rate of the decade as fewer teen-agers than expected sought summer jobs, the government said today. Total employment actually fell by 198,000 last month, the Labor Department said, but the losses were more than offset by a seasonally adjusted decline of nearly 500,000 in the labor force.

slight gain in the unemployment rate last month following a 6.3 percent jobless rate in April and May. Further drops are predicted later in the year. The department attributed virtually all of June's 0.2 percent percentage point drop to the relatively low number of teen-agers entering the job market at the end of the school year.

Bork's opponents pull out all stops

WASHINGTON (AP) — In nominating conservative Judge Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court, President Reagan ignored warnings of a political firestorm and a key Senate ally's plea for a Southern, while assuring himself of an intense confirmation battle, congressional and administration officials say.

Thunderstorms rumble through the Midwest

High-water alerts were in effect in three states today as showers and thunderstorms ranged across the Southeast and from Ohio into southwestern New England.

A flood warning was issued for sections of north central and northeastern Ohio while flood watches were in effect for most of western Pennsylvania and the northern Panhandle of West Virginia.

Heavy rain hit the Midwest on Wednesday and was blamed for the deaths of two teenagers in Indiana.

Thunderstorms also spread through the Texas Panhandle, northwestern Oklahoma and western Kansas, and a severe thunderstorm watch was in effect early today in northwest Oklahoma and southwest and south central Kansas.

Thunderstorms rumbled along a warm front in Minnesota and northwest Wisconsin and were widely scattered across the central and northern Rockies and the Northwest.

A storm dumped more than 4 inches of rain on central Indiana on Wednesday, and tornadoes touched down in northwestern Minnesota, causing debris over farmland but spewing no injuries or damage.

In Indianapolis, Brad Wright, 14, drowned after he was pulled underwater in a rain-swollen driveway culvert as he and three other youngsters were climbing off a raft they had been riding, officials said. Charles F. Huffman, 15, was killed when a car driven by his mother hydroplaned out of control and struck a tree.

Stinging trip

Rock star Sting planned to be recording on the Caribbean island of Montserrat during his mother's funeral in England today.

The 36-year-old singer and actor was "naturally very upset" over the death of his mother, Audrey Sumner, but he would not say why he was missing the funeral, said spokesman Keith Aitman.

Mrs. Sumner, 56, died of cancer at her home in Tyne and Wear this week.

Sting's real name is Gordon Sumner.

Essay ruling

Former Chief Justice Warren Burger is returning to the bench this time as a judge in a student essay contest on the Constitution.

"We are particularly flattered by his interest in our program since he has been forced to turn down hundreds of similar requests from across the country," City Councilman Peter Vallone said Wednesday in New York.

Burger is head of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

A total of $4,000 in college scholarships will be presented to the six winners in the Council-sponsored contest on Sept. 17, the anniversary of the signing of the Constitution.

The contest is open to junior high and high school students in the city's public schools.

Miss Mormon

Miss America 1985, Shariette Wells, plans to marry a fellow Brigham Young University student Monday at the Mormon Temple in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Wells, 23, will wed Robert Allen Hawkes, a 25-year-old physical therapy student, her family announced Tuesday. The couple met in a Mormon Church congregation at BYU, family members said.

Wells was crowned Miss America in one of the pageant's most controversial years. Miss America 1984, Vanessa Williams, had been dehonored after nude pictures of her appeared in Penthouse.

Some felt Wells' selection was at least partially due to her Mormon background.

Cutting loose

Tom Hanks says "Dragnet" gave him a chance to "absolutely get loose" after two films in which he had to compete with lowbrow gags and special effects.

"It was going back to working on my comic chops, which I haven't been able to do for a long, long time," said Hanks, who stars with Dan Aykroyd in the hit movie based on the TV series.

"Bachelor Party" was nothing more than a rock 'n' roll sex comedy," Hanks said recently. "It was gonky, gonky — dead donkey, agh! — that kind of stuff."

The Money Pit was essentially a special-effects, wiggly-wogga kind of movie. So when the line, I had been voluntarily restrained.

"So when this came along, it was like, 'Look, Don's going to do this thing, so that means I'm really going to be able to make up this guy and absolutely cut loose.'"

Jamming

The country music group Alabama says it raised more than $1 million at its sixth annual June Jam concert in Fort Payne, Ala. More than 56,000 attended the 11-hour outdoor show June 13, with proceeds going to various charities in Alabama.

The concert lineup also included the Oak Ridge Boys, Restless Heart, Sawyer Brown, John Schneider, Carl Perkins, the Shooters, Percy Sledge and George "Goober" Lindsey.

Living Off The Land

Agriculture is generally regarded as a great milestone in human history. But some hunter-gatherer tribes might not agree. The Bushmen of Africa, for example, spend an average working week of 12 to 19 hours gathering all they need to eat. They live off wild animals and plants. The Hadza tribe of Tanzania has it even better. Experts say the Hadza spend less than two hours a day finding food. The men use up much of their leisure time gambling.

DO YOU KNOW - Who is Secretary of Agriculture? WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER - The Arlington National Cemetery is in Virginia.

Local man lets Lutz set sights on outer space

By Maureen Leavitt Herald Intern

The Lutz Children's Museum is joining the Space Age.

An exhibit with almost 300 pictures, a space suit and helmet, many patches and models covering the history of the American space program will be on display at the museum at 247 S. Main St. through September.

The display covers the history of rockets in the early 1920s up to Skylab in the mid-70s. The display's owner, Manchester resident Timothy Gagnon, said he'll be at the museum at times during the exhibit to explain and answer questions.

An avid space enthusiast and historian, he assembled the display from several scrapbooks he had been making since his childhood. The white space suit standing in front of the display is a training suit worn by astronaut Bill Lenoir during the Skylab period. It is on loan from Hamilton Standard, which presently makes space suits for the astronauts.

The exhibit is meant not only to get children interested in the space program, but to get them interested in school, Gagnon said.

"I'm trying to get across to kids if they can do good in school, they can do anything, like become an astronaut or doctor or lawyer," he said Wednesday.

Lutz Director Steven Ling said it difficult to find such a comprehensive view of the space program in one area.

"It fits in well with what we try to do here at the museum," Ling said. He said the staff tries to provide some history, natural history and science, adding that the space display has a bit of everything.

"The pictures set an excellent tone, a good view of early space history," he said.

Gagnon is well versed in all areas of space history, from the Mercury, Gemini, Apollo and Skylab phases to the present-day happenings of the shuttle. He can whip significant as well as not-so-well-known dates and facts off the top of his head. He can explain in detail what all the pictures and memorabilia represent. He can also name the astronauts who flew on each mission. Gagnon, who works for the state, said he can remember wanting to be an astronaut when he was young, but his poor eyesight kept him from joining NASA.

With his space program collection, Gagnon hopes to tour the state.

Manchester resident Timothy Gagnon stands in front of a collection of photos of the space program that he's loaned to the Lutz Children's Museum. The exhibit, which will be at the museum through September, also includes space gear, patches and other memorabilia.

The nine-house tour includes the capes and colonials built in the 1700s as well as modern homes. Also included is a tour of the Second Congregational Church, the Strong Museum and the Nathan Hale Homestead.

Fewer dogs licensed this year

The number of Manchester residents who have registered their dogs this year is down by about 1,200 from last year, Town Clerk Edward J. Tomkiel said this week.

Tomkiel said last year, about 3,400 licenses were issued compared to about 2,200 this year. He said the shortfall is due to a number of factors.

For one thing, school was closed for the summer later this year. In addition, he said, a notice was not included on the town's tax bills, and the bills were sent out later this year than last.

Owners face a $40 fine for unlicensed dogs.

Bolton tax bills are sent out

BOLTON - The town Tuesday mailed about 7,000 tax bills to property owners that are payable by Aug. 3, Tax Collector Elaine R. Potterton said today.

Those who pay after the deadline will be charged 1.5 percent interest from the July 1 effective date, she said. The tax office at the Community Hall will be open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Monday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Property owners who have not received a tax bill should call 649-9056, Potterton said.

Convention goes will spend billions

NEW YORK (AP) - Convention goers are expected to spend $30.3 billion this year at meetings in American cities, reports Travel Agent magazine.

The travel industry journal says more than 65 million delegates will attend more than 135,000 meetings, up nearly 10 percent over 1985 when 59.6 million attended. The number of meetings is up from 128,888 last year.

Hotel accommodations represent about 48 percent of the total spent, restaurants 24.1 percent and retail shopping 13 percent. The remaining is divided among admission, sightseeing, local transportation and hospitality suites.

Dairy Mart suspect charged

A Hartford man was arrested Tuesday in connection with a robbery last January of the Dairy Mart at 653 Center St.

Robert Hadley, 31, was charged with first-degree robbery, second-degree larceny, and possession of a sawed-off shotgun, police said. He will appear Monday in Manchester Superior Court.

Another man, Melvin Baskerville, 23, of Hartford, was arrested in May on the same charges, police said.

Town's bank book is rosy, league says

By George Lovyn Herald Reporter

"It's no secret that the Connecticut economy is booming. A low unemployment rate, new home construction and a high rate of consumer buying are all signs of prosperity. Another could be a larger-than-expected surplus for Manchester's government. According to a survey of 545 municipalities across the country conducted by the National League of Cities, Manchester is one of a fortunate minority that will probably not have to use its own surplus funds to cover expenses for the fiscal year that ended June 30.

That is because the town's revenues from a number of different sources are greater than anticipated, said town budget analyst Robert Heustis. When added to the fact that the town usually does not spend all the money it appropriates for a fiscal year, the town's surplus will probably increase by about $200,000, the league said.

The group said, Manchester is among 38 percent of the cities it surveyed that would have a larger fund balance on June 30, 1987, than it did on June 30, 1986. Of the remaining municipalities, 20 percent showed no difference, and 42 percent had a lower fund balance.

While the league cautioned that its figures were based on data gathered in April, Heustis said the Manchester estimate is probably accurate.

"My intuition tells me they're probably correct," he said Wednesday.

The final figures will not be known until November, when the annual audit results are available. However, the survey indicated that Manchester's reserve fund balance will probably grow from $1.9 million to $2.1 million.

Heustis explained that to keep a good credit rating, towns should keep a fund balance to cover any unforeseen expenditures or emergencies. He said the recommended amount is between 3.5 and 4 percent of the amount appropriated in a fiscal year.

When a municipality begins to borrow from its fund balance without replenishing it, the credit rating could fall.

The sources of the higher revenues collected in Manchester are tipping fees charged on the town's landfill, fees collected in the town clerk's office, and more supplemental motor vehicle taxes collected from people who wanted to take advantage of the new federal tax law by buying a new car before 1987, Heustis said.

The reverse is true in the Northeast. "New England is an exceptionally good ground (has) good economic stability," Heustis said.

The cutback in federal revenue sharing was a major reason many towns and cities have had to dip into their fund balances, according to the league.

Heustis said the loss of revenue sharing did not hurt Manchester as much as other towns because it did not receive much money. He explained that the formula used for awarding the funds favored larger cities because it is based on such factors as per-capita income and population.

In addition, municipalities in the South and West are hurt by the decline in oil and farm prices, he said. This has resulted in less tax revenue being taken in by governments.

The reverse is true in the Northeast. "New England is an exceptionally good ground (has) good economic stability," Heustis said.

E. Hartford firm to manage rifle range

A revised plan under which an East Hartford firm will manage a town of Manchester's rifle range and pay for some of the cost to renovate the facility should be drafted by Friday or early next week, the town's president said Wednesday.

Under the proposal being prepared by Wilderness Sports Inc., the firm would pay up front a portion of the estimated $75,000 to $80,000 repair cost, according to Wilderness President Peter K. Emmelmann. He declined Wednesday to disclose how much the group will pay, except to say it would be substantial.

In addition, Metropollan Shooters Inc., another firm that had been competing with Wilderness for the opportunity to manage the range, has agreed to withdraw its offer and work with Wilderness, said Emmelmann and Robert Dennis, president of Metropollan.

"They have the finances and we have the experience," Dennis said earlier this week. Under the arrangement, Metropollan would give time for its members, which number between 100 and 125, to shoot three nights a week.

Emmelmann added that the Manchester Revolver Club and the Manchester Rifle Club will also give preferential times. The clubs will not be using the facility until after 8 p.m., Emmelmann said, so that non-club members can use it in the morning, afternoon and evening.

Emmelmann said Wilderness is willing to run the facility at maximum capacity to accommodate everybody.

He said he is confident the group will be able to attract enough users to recoup its investment over a 15- to 20-year period. Emmelmann said he hopes a contract negotiated with the town would give Wilderness the right to continue to manage the facility once its contract expires.

Town administrators decided to solicit offers for a private club to manage the range, located at the former Nike site, after the town Board of Directors and the Advisory Park and Recreation Commission said the renovation costs would be too high for the town to pay by itself.

Under a proposal first submitted in May, Wilderness planned to renovate the range for use by Dec. 15 of this year.

The range has been closed since February 1986, when safety and building code violations were discovered.

Truck rule disappoints road officials in state

HARTFORD - State transportation officials say they're disappointed with the Federal Highway Administration's denial of their request to ban tandem trucks on a stretch of highways during rush hours, but concede they didn't build a very strong case.

The state had asked the FHA to ban the double-trailer rigs from heavily traveled sections of Interstates 95, 84 and 91 between the hours of 7 and 10 a.m. and 4 and 7 p.m.

"Naturally we're disappointed," Deputy Transportation Commissioner William A. Lazarek said after the FHA's decision was announced Wednesday. "We have a serious traffic problem during rush hours here in Connecticut, and we have accidents with trucks, not only tandems but with semi's as well."

But, Lazarek acknowledged, "The accident records we have on tandems here in Connecticut really don't indicate that they are any more unsafe than regular truck traffic."

It's a dirty job - and we like it.

Dairy Mart suspect charged

A Hartford man was arrested Tuesday in connection with a robbery last January of the Dairy Mart at 653 Center St.

Robert Hadley, 31, was charged with first-degree robbery, second-degree larceny, and possession of a sawed-off shotgun, police said. He will appear Monday in Manchester Superior Court.

Another man, Melvin Baskerville, 23, of Hartford, was arrested in May on the same charges, police said.

Faithfuls are out in front in national fidelity derby

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I sent a postcard in response to your survey asking, "Have you ever cheated on your mate?" Please tell us how that survey is coming. BOOTH

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

FAITHFUL IN JUNEAU, ALASKA
DEAR FAITHFUL: The response has been overwhelming! So far the results show that not everybody is cheating. Far from it! The scales are tipped in favor of the "faithfuls." Most "faithfuls" are over 40, and have been together for 25 years or longer. The eldest couple has been married for 72 years. He's 91 and she's 88. The youngest have been married 3 months. He's 21, she's 19. More men than women admitted to cheating. It's been asked, "Can it be that women are lying and the men are bragging?" To which I respond: It's doubtful; there's no reason to lie in an anonymous voluntary survey. Last chance for those who would like to be a part of this survey. Send a letter or postcard to Abby's Survey, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61053. Please indicate whether you are male or female, your age, and how long you've been together. You need not sign your name.

to war and we went our separate ways. I never forgot him. I married someone else and had two children. He married and had four. Although we lived in the same town, we never saw each other until three years ago when we met by chance in a drugstore. We spoke briefly at the time, but I had no idea that it was he. We had been going on for nine months - at least one a month. (No sex involved.) I've never done anything like this before and he said he never had either. We can't believe this is happening to us after 45 years. We've both been married for 41 years. I would never leave my husband for him and he would never leave his wife. All we want to do is meet occasionally and hold each other in our arms and experience that old feeling again. I am 53 and he is 66.

DEAR TRUE STORY: Write again in a year and let me know if you're still in "holding patterns." Personally, I think you're heading for trouble. But since you asked for no advice, I shall offer none.

DEAR ABBY: I have kept a diary - never missed a day - since Jan. 1, 1983. I'll be 69 this year and have been sorting my belongings and dividing them for my three children. My problem is what to do with all these diaries. There are some things I wrote that could hurt some feelings, but it is a record of my life and the lives of family members. Much of it could even be boring to them. Should I burn them all? Or give them to my eldest? I am still writing every day - it's a habit. Now, what should be done with more than 50 diaries?

MRS. G. IN ST. JOSEPH, MO.

DEAR MRS. G.: Don't burn them. Regardless of what they contain, they are a part of history. But why should the eldest inherit them all? Perhaps the youngest or middle child would have more interest in them. Discuss it with all your children, and then decide.

Fiberglass can enter body, causing rash, severe itching

DEAR DR. GOTT: If fiberglass gets into the body, is it excreted or does it cause a case of problems?

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR READER: When men become more stout with age, fat deposits can appear in the ears and nose causing irritation. Some nose growth is the result of rhinophyma, a form of middle-age acne. Certain men also may have an increased tendency to ear and nose growth. However, fat does not enter the nose and ears, the cause is simply being overweight.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In a nutrition catalogue I read that zinc is "found in every cell of the body and it is necessary for the formation of the cells nuclei." What does this mean in layman's language?

DEAR DR. GOTT: My grandson constantly grinds his teeth while sleeping. The dentist says not to worry. Aren't teeth guards available for this situation?

DEAR READER: Zinc is an incredibly versatile element in the body. It is part of more than 70 enzyme systems that control a wide variety of human functions. In essence, zinc is vital because it participates in many chemical reactions, including the formation of cells' communication centers: the nuclei. It is required for the synthesis and repair of key proteins, the nucleic acids RNA and DNA. The recommended allowance of zinc is 15 milligrams for adults. The mineral is found in meat, eggs, seafood and grains.

Thoughts

As human beings, it seems that no matter how many blessings we have, we are never really satisfied. Our nature seems to want more and more.

Let's learn how to be grateful and be thankful that we do not all really get what we truly deserve at times.

Study finds starch is as bad as sugar

NEW YORK (AP) - A new study of measuring the effects of foods on tooth enamel shows starch is just as harmful to teeth as sugar, according to Aimpus magazine. Starch turns into sugar because of an enzyme called amylase in the saliva, according to researcher Dr. Shelby Kashket at the Forsythe Center in Boston. And, since high starch foods, such as bread and crackers, tend to stick to the teeth, the enzyme has plenty of time to do its work. Bacteria then feed on the sugar, producing an acid which slowly dissolves enamel. Kashket hopes researchers will help discover why certain foods are harmful - at which point they can work with the food industry to help come up with alternatives.

Adopt a pet
Lady Liberty a cute hound

By Barbara Richmond
Special to the Herald

This week's featured pet is a cute little basset hound. It's a female tri-color, about 1 year old. She was found on Lakewood Circle last Friday and if she isn't claimed by her owner she'll be ready for adoption early next week. Dan Fuller, the assistant dog warden, said she's a very nice dog and appears to have been well taken care of. He also said she thinks she may have been spayed. In honor of the July 4 holiday she's been named Lady Liberty - Lady for short. The only other new dog at the pound, as of Tuesday, was a handsome male Labrador retriever cross. He's all black and was found roaming on Main Street on June 21. He's ready for adoption and a couple of people have already expressed interest in him. Snoopy, last week's featured pet, a 6-week-old terrier cross, has been adopted. Fuller said he had several people who wanted to take him home. He was found roaming on Woodland Street. The male terrier cross featured two weeks ago has also been adopted. He was picked up on Parker Street near his former home. His owners had moved. The Lhasa-poodle cross, left tied to a door at a Sheldon Road dog-grooming parlor with a note saying the owner would return, has also been adopted by a Manchester family. The owner never showed up. The dog's name was Buddy, as indicated on the note. Fuller reminds dog owners that Tuesday was the last day to license dogs without a penalty. All dogs 6 months or older should have been licensed by July 1 or the owners face $40 fines. The regular dog warden, Richard Rand, will be checking up on delinquents. The dog pound is located off Olcott Street near the town's refuse area. Rand is on vacation for a couple of weeks. If there is no answer at the dog pound, call the pound at 643-6642 and at the police department, 646-4555. There is a $5 fee to adopt a dog and the new owner must have the dog licensed. Before being licensed a dog must have its rabies shot. Another hot weather reminder: Be sure dogs that are left outside have a shady place to go and be sure they have plenty of water. Also, the dog warden reminds people not to leave animals in cars, even if windows are left open. It's not enough.

Aid to Helpless Animals Inc. is desperately seeking homes for cats and kittens. Members take in animals that have been abandoned or abused and need people to adopt them. This week's featured cat is a sad-eyed tiger named Sam. Members of the organization say he is the saddest cat they have ever seen and he is extremely desperate for a good home. He's presently housed at a veterinary clinic and is a very handsome cat. He's been neutered and has had his shots. There are many other cats and kittens begging for good homes. All are given their shots and are neutered before they leave, unless they are too young. To adopt a cat or kitten, call 466-5351, 522-8317, 629-0489 or 242-2156.

Canine bloat can be a killer

Veterinary gastro-enterologists agree that modern processed dog foods do not contain enough roughage. One even suggests pressure cooking an entire dressed chicken until the bones are softened, and feeding that once or twice a week to provide the necessary roughage to keep the stomach moving. Surprisingly, cold meals eat the stomach faster than warm ones. Low-fat meals exit the stomach faster than high-fat meals. Longer food lingers in the stomach, the more fermentation can occur. In the wild, dogs are nocturnal eaters. This is usually when they get their prey. Often dining several times a night. Likewise, pet dogs should eat at least twice daily, the main meal perhaps at night but a light feeding in the morning. Once-a-day feeders literally fast 23 hours and 55 minutes before eating their single meal. This limiting water consumption for several hours after meals. Many gastro-enterologists feel that the refined popular pet foods don't come close to stimulating a natural canine diet. Therefore, they recommend precautions such as smaller multiple feedings, soaking dry foods before feeding so they won't swell in the stomach, and limiting water consumption for several hours after meals. Exercise, other than walking, after feeding can cause the stomach to twist and bloat. Some dogs have difficulty digesting certain brands of foods, and these, of course, should be avoided. Occasional medication may upset the stomach's status quo and cause problems. Changes in feeding schedules, routines or environment can also cause indigestion and bloat. Sometimes the cause of dilatation is unknown. Prevention is of utmost importance. So is early care if your dog is stricken with acute gastric dilatation. Allan Leventhal is a Bolton veterinarian. Two gun-control groups merge

BOSTON (AP) - A national gun-control group and one based in Massachusetts will merge, says the wife of James Brady, the White House press secretary wounded in the attempt on President Reagan's life. The merger of Handgun Control Inc. of Washington and Massachusetts Citizens for Handgun Control will provide "a more united front against the handgun" and help make the world "a safer, saner place," Sarah Brady said. Mrs. Brady, vice chairwoman of Handgun Control, also praised a new federal law requiring a seven-day waiting period and background check for handgun purchases. Had there been such a law in 1981, Mrs. Brady said, "John Hinckley would not have purchased the gun to shoot the president, my husband and two officers."

Tax law: Different aspects are popping up almost daily

The new tax law - and it is new, with different aspects popping up almost daily - both maximizes the tax breaks and minimizes the effect of the crackdowns. The new gross income test for dependency deductions in 1987, for instance, is $1,900. That's good for you if you support dependents. The dependents can earn 76 percent more in 1987 than in 1986 and still qualify. (In 1986, if your dependents earned $1,000, they generally wouldn't qualify as deductible dependents.) So the new gross income limit is good news.

THE NEW LAW raises the medical expense floor 50 percent higher. Eli J. Warach, chief tax consulting editor of Prentice Hall, stressed to me. It had been 5 percent and is now 7 1/2 percent of adjusted gross income. That is bad news. Under both the new and old law, if your relative's income exceeded the gross income limit, you generally could not claim the dependency exemption. But if you provide more than half the support, you still can get credit for the medical expenses you pay for the dependent. Now, let's put it all together - bad and good - and see how to make the most of it. Some taxpayers, probably including you, assume that if you can't take the dependency exemption for a relative, neither can you get any deduction for that person. Fortunately, that is just not the case. There are always medical expenses.

LET'S SAY THAT your mother has interest income of $2,500, plus another $3,000 in Social Security. You can't take the $1,900 dependency exemption for her - she's too much gross income. Let's also assume that you actually pay the expenses of your mother's medical care. In addition, you contribute more than half her support. The good news here is that you are entitled to the deduction for medical expenses. There's an even bigger incentive to do this. The medical expenses you pay for your mother may help you get over the new, higher threshold. You add mother's medical expenses to yours to see if they reach the 7 1/2 percent floor.

HERE'S ONE TYPICAL situation: Daniel gives his mother $6,500 in support payments each year. She also gets roughly $3,000 from Social Security and 21 one of the main reasons that she uses to support herself. His mother's yearly medical expenses run about $2,000 more than what Medicare covers. Even though Daniel provides more than half of his mother's support ($6,500 vs. $5,500), he cannot claim a dependency deduction for her. She does have $2,500 of income subject to tax. That knocks out the dependency deduction. But Daniel depends to get as much tax benefit as possible out of an otherwise tax-losing position. And his mother doesn't lose a thing. (She won't pay any tax.) Instead of giving his mother $6,500 in general support, Daniel pays the $2,000 in medical bills and provides $4,500 in general support payments. DANIEL STILL DOESN'T get a dependency exemption deduction for his mother. But now, for tax purposes, her medical expenses are his medical expenses. Reason: For someone to qualify as a "medical dependent," the taxpayer only has to provide more than half of his or her support. There's no income test here. The big tax-saving payoff: Daniel now adds his mother's expenses to his own (and those of his wife and children) when figuring up his medical deduction. Her expenses may well get Daniel over the hump of the 7 1/2 percent-of-adjusted-gross-income mark and qualify him for a tax deduction - or increase his deduction if he already qualifies. "WAIT A MINUTE," you may be saying. "How about the Medicare benefits that his mother gets? Don't they count as her support?" The surprise answer is "No - they don't." Medicare benefits are ignored where the support test is involved. Suppose your father, who has $3,000 a year in taxable income, is in an expensive nursing home. You pay the cost. Here's the tax pay benefit: In most cases, those costs are deductible. The costs are medical deductible expenses if 1) the institution provides medical care, and 2) one of the main reasons your relative is in the institution is to receive medical care for a physical condition. THIS IS IMPORTANT: You must provide more than half of your father's total support. And your combined medical expenses must exceed 7 1/2 percent of your adjusted gross income. No one wants to be constantly reminded of sickness, but it does happen. And from a tax viewpoint, you must know the rules.

Social Security Mailbox
Apply without office visit

QUESTION: My mother is about to retire and apply for Social Security retirement benefits. She is not well. Can she apply for her retirement without having to visit the Social Security office?

QUESTION: My 16-year-old daughter was in a car accident and probably will be disabled for the rest of her life. Will she be able to get Supplemental Security Income?

ANSWER: Yes. People who find it difficult to visit a Social Security office to apply for their Social Security benefit, may do so by telephone. Social Security personnel will take the entire application by phone. They will obtain the necessary information and then arrange to complete the application by mail.

ANSWER: My husband was injured at work about 6 months ago. He just recently filed for Social Security disability benefits. How long will it take before we are notified his application for benefits is approved?

ANSWER: Allow 2-3 months. You'll be notified by mail. The actual time it takes to process his claim depends, for the most part, on how long it takes to get medical reports and other information. And if special tests or examinations are required, his claim could take longer.

ANSWER: Generally, Medicare can pay for physical therapy services at home if all the following conditions are met: (1) the patient is confined to home, (2) the patient's doctor certifies that the physical therapy is needed and sets up a treatment plan for the therapy at home, and (3) the agency receiving the therapy participates in the Medicare program. Check with the organization that handles Medicare hospital insurance claims in your area if you would like more information about Medicare coverage of physical therapy at home.

QUESTION: My neighbor gets SSI payments because he's disabled. He recently went to work part-time and told me he is getting his checks even though he is working. Is that possible?

ANSWER: Yes, it's possible. Under SSI, there are special rules to encourage disabled people to try to work. Their SSI checks may continue while they test their ability to work. If their earnings increase, their SSI checks will decrease or stop, depending on earnings.

Spurning the obvious

By James Jacoby

It's old hat to set a contract by giving partner a ruff after he has led a singleton. But it's a new/spring outfit because you can foresee that the declarer will then surely make his contract. Ira Chorus held the East cards at the recent spring North American Championships in St. Louis and made the right play by refusing to give the ruff.

Declarer was faced with losers in both spades and clubs, and his trump suit had some obvious holes. But he knew that West not only would be trumping a loser if he ruffed a spade, but would be helping to make dummy's trumps more manageable for a club ruff. So at trick two he led a low heart to dummy's nine. Chorus knew declarer was void in diamonds (West would hardly make a pre-emptive jump overall on only a five-card suit) and therefore probably held four spades and four clubs. He had an eventual spade loser anyway. Unless his clubs were A-K-Q-10, the defense could also come to at least one club trick. But Ira had to make the right play. He won the king of hearts, and continued with the ace and another. Declarer lost only two trump tricks, but he had to lose a trick in each black suit for down one.

See what happens if East gives partner a spade ruff. Now declarer can play A-K of clubs and ruff a club, and then play a second heart. That will be 10 tricks, and nothing for us to write about.

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is "Jacoby on Card Games," published by Pharos Books.

Get a dehumidifier to suit your needs

By Polly Flaher

DEAR POLLY — We live in an area that is fairly humid during the summer, and we would like to install a dehumidifier in our home. How do we determine how large a unit to purchase? — F.B.

DEAR F.B. — A dehumidifier can improve the comfort of your home and help preserve your house and furnishings from moisture damage.

The various capacities of dehumidifiers are measured in the number of pints of water that the machine can remove from the air in 24 hours. The Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers has provided some guidelines to help you determine what capacity of dehumidifier you need to achieve an optimum humidity level, based on the dampness of the area and the square footage of the room to be dehumidified.

First, determine your humidity condition. "Moderately damp" has a musty odor only in humid weather; "Very damp" is damp at all times with a musty odor, damp spots show on the walls and floor; "Wet" smells and feels wet and walls or floor sweat, seepage may be present; "Extremely wet" would be an area where laundry is drying, the floor is wet, etc. Then, line up your humidity condition on the chart with the square footage of the room. The corresponding number represents the number of pints of water the dehumidifier should remove from the air in 24 hours — the rating that every dehumidifier carries as its water-removal capacity.

Look for the water-removal capacity rating on the dehumidifiers as you shop, and assess the humidity in your home before you buy. A unit that's too small won't do the job, while a unit that's too big will cost more than you need to spend. — POLLY

By James Jacoby

It's old hat to set a contract by giving partner a ruff after he has led a singleton. But it's a new spring outfit if you refuse to give partner that ruff because you can foresee that the declarer will then surely make his contract.

Declarer was faced with losers in both spades and clubs, and his trump suit had some obvious holes. But he knew that West not only would be trumping a loser if he ruffed a spade, but would be helping to make dummy's trumps more manageable for a club ruff.

declarer was void in diamonds (West would hardly make a pre-emptive jump overcall on only a five-card suit) and therefore probably held four spades and four clubs. He had an eventual spade loser anyway. Unless his clubs were A-K-Q-10, the defense could also come to at least one club trick. But Ira had to make the right play. He won the ace of hearts, and continued with the ace and another. Declarer lost only two trump tricks, but had to lose a trick in each black suit for down one.

See what happens if East gives partner a spade ruff. Now declarer can play A-K of clubs and ruff a club, and then play a second heart. That will be 10 tricks, and nothing for us to write about.

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is 'Jacoby on Card Games,' published by Pharos Books.

Should Bryan Farms be annexed to the Eighth District?

Robert Hills, 8 Baldwin Road: "Definitely not. I want to stay with the town. I think that the town provides better fire coverage. You don't have to worry about whether they're going to be there... I think the district has short-changed the people in Buckland for 11 years. The district didn't drop a thing in Buckland all these years."

Annette Gerber, 46 Cornwall Drive: "I voted to keep the Eighth Utilities District going, so I guess I'd be happy. But my husband feels differently, so I guess we cancel each other out. I'm pleased if we're going to be moved to the Eighth."

Sydney Elliott, 611 Tolland Turnpike: "I'm already in the Eighth District. I've been here for nine years. I'm pleased that I'll be staying in the district, whatever happens."

William Smith, 59 McIntosh Drive: "I'd like to stay with trained firemen from the town. You take a person who's trained around, they're full time, they're around the clock. You've got to get better coverage that way. I've got nothing against Eighth District firemen. I know some of them personally. I'd just rather have town firemen protecting me."

Tom Haddock, 180 Bryan Drive: "I haven't really thought that much about it. I've been happy with the town coverage. If the vote had been up to me, I would have stayed with the town. But if we go with the Eighth, that's OK, also."

Rita Oshinsky, 117 Pond Lane: "I remember a couple of years ago there was a controversy, and at that time I figured out, no, I didn't want to be a part of the Eighth District. But now, it will probably be OK. I think it will work out fine either way."

MR. AND MRS. FRANK MORDAVSKY celebrate 50th anniversary

THE MORDAVSKYS ON JUNE 12, 1937 married at St. Bridget Church

Party surprises Mordavskys on 50th

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Mordavsky of 35 Sherwood Circle were honored recently with a surprise 50th anniversary celebration at the Colony restaurant in Vernon. The party was arranged by their children, David Mordavsky of Manchester, Dr. Donald Mordavsky of South Windsor and Donna Johnson of Enfield. The arrangements were supervised by Gall Mordavsky, the couple's daughter-in-law.

About 100 friends and relatives attended the party. Several members of the original wedding party attended, including Stephanie Mihalk of Willington and John Mordavsky of Manchester, John Klawnski, Ann Gutt, Ann Havelak, Stella Parciak and Victoria Roharski, all of Manchester.

The couple was married on June 12, 1937, at St. Bridget Church. The wedding was performed by the Rev. James Timmins. Mrs. Mordavsky worked at the Cheney Bros. in the early 1930s, and at King's Department Store in the 1960s. She was an original member of the North Manchester Sewing Circle.

Mr. Mordavsky is assistant fire chief with the Eighth District Volunteer Fire Department. He has been a fire fighter for 50 years, originally working with Company 4 of the South Manchester Fire Department. He was employed by Cheney Bros., and by St. Bridget Church.

The couple has three children and five grandchildren.

Kansas toasts the end of prohibition

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Liquor glasses were held aloft as public drinking became legal for the first time in 106 years in Kansas, where temperance crusader Carry Nation once tried to put saloons out of business with an ax.

"People are drinking today," said Michele Foley-Harpool, co-owner of Le Beaujolais, a restaurant in Wichita. "They're sort of celebrating. It's like they're finally out of jail or something."

Restaurant owners and patrons said Wednesday's end to prohibition, brought about by a constitutional amendment approved by voters in November, will attract conventions, tourists and better eating establishments.

People in 36 of the state's 105 counties can now sit at a public bar and drink. Previously, wine or cocktails could be served only at establishments designated as private clubs, and patrons needed 10 plastic membership cards.

The amendment gave counties the option of being "wet" or "dry." Private clubs remain the rule in the 69 counties that voted against repeal.

Wet areas include all three major metropolitan areas — Wichita, Kansas City and Topeka — and smaller cities such as Lawrence, Hutchinson, Emporia, Hays, City, Dodge City, Atchison and Leavenworth.

The change leaves Utah and West Virginia as the only states that permit alcoholic drinks to be sold only in private clubs.

Many restaurants planned miniature buffets of the membership cards that were needed even to buy a drink with dinner under the system of private clubs authorized by the Legislature in 1985.

A Wichita restaurant pledged 25 cents to charity for each card turned in, and placed a brass champagne bucket by the front door as a receptacle.

Sears recalls bike carriers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Certain bicycle carriers sold nationally by Sears, Roebuck and Co. are being recalled because children could fall out of the carriers if the shoulder harness buckle disengages.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission on Wednesday announced the recall of the Championship Deluxe Bicycle Child Carriers, which were made by D & R Industries, Inc., of Lincolnwood, Ill.

The recall involves carriers sold for about $40 between February and July 1986. They carried the stock number 82595 on the outside of the box.

Parents were urged not to use the child carriers until the shoulder harness buckle is replaced. They can obtain a new harness, at no charge, by writing D & R Industries, Inc., 7111 Capitol Drive, Lincolnwood, Ill., 60465, or calling 800-323-2852. Residents of Illinois, Alaska and Hawaii may call 312-677-3200 collect.

Consumers who need more information can contact the safety commission at 800-633-CPSC.

Stand your ground when seeking raise

NEW YORK (AP) — Asking for a pay raise is always tough, but stand your ground when the boss says, "No." It's never too late.

Take the confident, positive approach, says Janice LaRouche in Family Circle magazine. You say, "Yes, I know we're in trouble. I understand it's impossible to give raises to everyone, but I think the company would want to use its resources in the areas that count and motivate the people who can really produce."

Fallen trader hides millions from confiscators

BOSTON (AP) — Fallen Wall Street trader Ivan Boesky has shielded more than $160 million of his wealth from government confiscation by a series of legal and financial maneuvers, a newspaper reported today.

Some of Boesky's money now beyond the reach of the prosecution in Wall Street's insider trading scandal may include profits that came from his illegal trading activities, according to The Boston Globe, which quoted SEC officials it did not identify.

About $65 million, now held in the name of his wife and children, were stock profits Boesky made before he was implicated in the scandal, the Globe reported.

According to the newspaper, the Securities and Exchange Commission acknowledged that some of the $65 million may have resulted from insider tips from Martin Siegel, the investment banker who pleaded guilty to providing Boesky with information on takeovers he handled.

The Globe said Boesky's ability to shield some of his wealth appears to stem from the agreement he made in September 1986 with the SEC and the U.S. attorney that the government would not seek cash penalties from his wife, his children or companies he controlled.

But the newspaper said it had not been made public that Boesky, while negotiating that agreement with the government, was shifting assets to his wife and children.

In one instance, just two weeks before Boesky's involvement in the insider trading case was made public last November, his wife, Seema, purchased her husband's interest in an Oklahoma City television station and his 4 percent interest in the Beverly Hills Hotel, which sold last year for about $135 million.

Mr. Boesky also set in motion a plan to transfer control of Northern view Corp., a chain of Southern California motels, to a trust she dominates.

SEC director of enforcement Gary Lynch has said the government's deal with Boesky required that he "disengage" $50 million in illegal profits he made from insider tips from another investment banker and pay another $50 million in fines.

That $50 million in illegal profits was all the SEC knew about at the time the government and Boesky signed the agreement not to take action against his family.

It was not until after he signed the settlement that Boesky disclosed that he made illegal profits from other, the Globe reported.

Lynch, who has been criticized by Congress for being too lenient with Boesky, said the agreement does not preclude private lawsuits against Boesky. But the Globe reported that none of the 11 civil suits pending against Boesky name other family members.

The Wall Street insider trading scandal was first revealed in May 1986 when the SEC discovered that Dennis Levine, a managing director of Drexel Burnham Lambert, had amassed $12 million in illegal trading profits from takeovers he helped arrange.

Boesky is scheduled to be sentenced in federal court in New York in August. He could be sentenced to a maximum five-year prison term and a $250,000 fine for pleading guilty to one count of conspiracy to make false statements to the SEC.

Toshiba ban could hurt America

By Peter Coy
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — America may be shooting itself in the foot by banning imports by Toshiba Corp., according to some analysts who say such a move could mean thousands of U.S. layoffs and loss of the most modern computer technology.

Toshiba employs nearly 4,000 people in the United States, only 150 of whom are Japanese nationals, and is the leading supplier of the most advanced computer memory chip, capable of storing 1 million bits of information.

The Senate voted 92-5 on Tuesday in favor of banning Toshiba and a Norwegian company, Kongsberg Vaapenfabrik, from selling nearly any product in the United States for two to five years. The proposed sanctions would become law unless they are accepted by the House and signed by President Reagan.

Toshiba Corp. Chairman Shoichi Saba and President Sugichiro Watari resigned Wednesday, hours after the Senate action, which was prompted by sales by Kongsberg and Toshiba Machine Co., a Toshiba subsidiary, to the Soviet Union of propeller-milling equipment that would help Soviet submarines run quieter and be harder to detect.

U.S. companies that do business with Toshiba were scrambling Wednesday to find language in the legislation that would let them maintain their business relationships.

Among other things, the Senate proposal would exempt products that are deemed critical to defense, as well as spare parts and components essential to United States production.

Two key, unanswered questions are what goods would receive exemptions and whether import of other manufacturers' goods that include Toshiba parts would be banned.

"It will cut both ways. The blanket ban may turn out to be too excessive. However, some signal to be sent to warn Toshiba that what it did is simply unacceptable," said Richard Fisher, a policy analyst for the conservative Heritage Foundation.

Kongsberg, the Norwegian military equipment manufacturer, hopes that the proposed ban would not kill the planned sale of its Penguin anti-sub missile to the U.S. Navy.

Toshiba is Japan's third biggest electronics manufacturing company. Officials in Tokyo said Toshiba sold $2.76 billion worth of goods in the United States last year. Officials at Toshiba America Inc. in New York put the figure higher, saying exports to this country totaled $3.4 billion in the year ended March 31.

Toshiba's U.S. subsidiaries employ 1,200 people in California, 520 in Tennessee, 520 in Texas, 260 in New Jersey and 200 in Illinois, according to Takao Hayashita, vice president and secretary of Toshiba America Inc.

Only 150 U.S. employees of Toshiba are Japanese nationals, Hayashita said.

Among the company's major operations are a plant in Lebanon, Tenn., where 600 employees make televisions and microwave ovens; a plant in Houston with 400 employees who make industrial equipment and a combination sales office and factory in Irvine, Calif., with 500 people, Hayashita said.

A joint venture between Toshiba and Westinghouse Electric Corp. in Elmira, N.Y., has 725 employees and produces nuclear power tubes. All of Toshiba's U.S. operations rely heavily on parts imported from Japan and thus would appear to be endangered by the legislation.

Business In Brief

New Haven plans redevelopment
NEW HAVEN — City officials have unveiled what they say is the largest redevelopment plan ever for New Haven, a $360 million plan for housing and commercial development.

The project is planned for a 30-acre area that would link the downtown, Yale-New Haven Medical Center and a low-income area known as the Hill.

The project, involving Schnip Development Corp. of Norwich and a local partnership called Washington Center Associates, includes 400 units of housing, a 250-room hotel and conference center, retail space and office buildings.

Mayor Biagio DiIorio said Wednesday that the city will apply for a federal Urban Development Action Grant of up to $10 million to help with the financing.

Bill would ease utility-rate cuts
WASHINGTON — Two House Democrats have introduced legislation that said will make lowering electric rates of wholesale suppliers just as easy as increasing power rates.

Reps. Terry Bruce, D-Ill., and Sam Gejdenson, D-Conn., said Wednesday that the bill corrects a "gross unfairness" in the Federal Power Act.

Under the law, a wholesale supplier may petition the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for a rate increase. The increase goes into effect no less than five months following a 60-day waiver period.

Consumers can appeal the increase if they feel it is unreasonable and, if FERC agrees, it is repealed retroactively. But consumer requests for lower rates brought on by declining fuel costs are met with a web of bureaucracy, the congressmen said.

Legislation advances to aid FSLIC
WASHINGTON — The insolvent Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp. would be allowed to borrow $8.5 billion under legislation that is being sent to the full House and Senate after winning approval from congressional negotiators.

A House-Senate conference committee on Wednesday approved the compromise legislation. Earlier, the House had passed legislation giving FSLIC borrowing authority of $5 billion while the Senate's version would have allowed $7.5 billion.

Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, the ranking Republican on the Senate Banking Committee, warned that the compromise bill could be vetoed by President Reagan because the White House had proposed a $15 billion bailout.

Honda to import cycles from Ohio
TOKYO — Honda Motor Co. Ltd. said today it will import motorcycles made by its U.S. subsidiary and sell them in Japan, talking advantage of price differences resulting from the yen's rise against the dollar.

The company, the world's largest producer of motorcycles, said it would begin late this year to import 1988 models of the Honda Gold Wing, made in Marysville, Ohio.

On Wednesday, Honda put on sale in Japan the NS 125R motorcycles made by Honda's Italian subsidiary. It was the first time a Japanese motor vehicle maker imported finished vehicles from a foreign subsidiary, the parent company said.

Honda spokesman Hideo Niimi said his company believes the moves will help expand Japan's imports.

GE Credit to buy D&K stock
STAMFORD — GE Credit Corp. says it has agreed to buy all of the capital stock of D&K Financial Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of Kraft Inc.

D&K, based in Lincolnshire, Ill., is one of the country's leading fleet leasing companies with assets of more than $1 billion.

The value of the transaction was not disclosed.

"This transaction will position GE Credit as one of the nation's leading lessors of automobiles and light trucks in the nation," GE Credit said in a statement on Tuesday.

The deal "substantially increases our commitment to financial and other services for automobile fleet owners," said Stamford-based GE Credit, one of the nation's biggest diversified financial services companies with more than $26 billion in assets.

Dollar higher, gold up in Europe
LONDON — The dollar hit a three-month high against the Japanese yen and edged up against all major currencies except the British pound in early trading today. Gold bullion rose in Europe after edging lower in Hong Kong.

Currency traders in Frankfurt and Rome said European exchange markets were thinly traded ahead of the Independence Day weekend in the United States.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose to 146.93 Japanese yen, from 146.42 yen Wednesday. It was the dollar's highest level in Tokyo since April 2, when it was 147.05 yen.

Helicopters can still find Soviet subs

By Christopher Callahan
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A new generation of submarine-hunting Navy helicopters will not be hindered by sophisticated technology the Soviet Union obtained from Toshiba to "make its subs quieter, officials say.

The sonar system being installed on the Sikorsky CV Helo anti-submarine helicopters, unlike many U.S. sonar defense systems, does not rely on picking up sounds from an enemy sub, officials at the Pentagon and Sikorsky said Wednesday.

Sikorsky, a division of United Technologies Corp., delivered the first of 175 CV Helo crafts Tuesday in Stratford, Conn. The Navy plans to spend $3.1 billion on the new helicopters, designed to replace the Sikorsky SH-3H Sea King.

The Bendix sonar system installed on the CV Helo can dip more than one-quarter mile below the ocean's surface and send out noise signals, said Michael Moran, manager of Navy and Coast Guard marketing at Sikorsky.

A computer determines if an enemy sub is in the area by reading the signals that bounce back.

Moran said the Sea King, which entered service in 1961 and has been out of production for several years, used a similar "active" sonar system that does not depend on picking up sounds from a sub.

A Navy official who spoke on the condition of anonymity agreed that the Toshiba technology to build the CV Helo subs is "not even a factor" for the U.S. sub-hunting helicopters.

But many other sub-detecting devices used by U.S. forces are the passive type, which simply listen for sounds. "These systems are expected to be severely impacted by the technology acquired from the Japan-based Toshiba and Kongsberg Vaapenfabrik, a government-owned Norwegian company."

The companies' sale of eight high-technology machine tools to the Soviets has triggered intense criticism in Capitol Hill.

The Senate voted Tuesday to ban

Toshiba and Kongsberg sales in the United States for two to five years. On Wednesday, members of Congress smashed a Toshiba radio-cassette recorder to kick off a consumer boycott of the company's products.

The CV Helo, an aircraft carrier-based craft, is designed to track down and attack submarines that may escape long-range detection and penetrate inner zone defenses within 30 to 50 nautical miles of the Navy's carrier battle groups.

Within the inner zone, ship-based sonar depends on listening for enemy submarine sounds that are difficult to detect because of the noise from the surface fleet's engines.

Pay mortgage off as early as possible

QUESTION: I have had a 30-year, $60,000 mortgage at a fixed rate of 9.75 percent on my home for about one year. I would like to pay off the mortgage early by sending additional money to the bank each month, thereby reducing the mortgage principal. I would hope to retire the mortgage in five years.

Many people tell me this is not a good idea. They say I should borrow as much as I can for as long as I can in order to have a tax shelter. I don't understand why I should pay the bank almost $6,000 per year interest just to save $3,000 per year on my income tax. What is your feeling about this?

ANSWER: You and I are in absolute agreement. If you can pay off your mortgage early, do it. You'll save a bundle of interest. Just make sure the bank applies the extra money you send toward reducing the mortgage principal and that there is no prepayment penalty clause in your mortgage contract.

Actually, if you pay $6,000 a year in mortgage interest, you won't save even $3,000 in income taxes.

Investors' Guide
William A. Doyle

Of course, if your available money earns less than the interest rate on your mortgage or any other debt, you should reduce your debts. Here, again, we're back to basics. Nonetheless, some people continue to perpetuate the myth that it's smart to be up to your eyeballs in debt. More often than not, it's dumb.

QUESTION: Under the new federal tax law, interest on a second mortgage is deductible if the total mortgage debt is no more than the purchase price of the home plus cost of improvements.

If I have a first and second mortgage totaling more than that, does this disqualify me from deducting all the interest on the portion of the second mortgage which make the total debt equal to the purchase price of the home plus cost of improvements.

ANSWER: The quickest answer is "yes" to your second question.

Let's say you paid $80,000 for the house some years ago and have made $20,000 in improvements. Let's say your first mortgage is for $40,000 and you can obtain an $80,000 second mortgage because the house now has a market value of $160,000.

You can continue to deduct all the interest on the $40,000 first mortgage and the interest on $60,000 of the second mortgage. The $40,000 plus $60,000 equals $100,000 — your $80,000 home purchase price plus $20,000 cost of improvements.

Japanese refine computer to break the language barrier

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese are refining technology they hope will bring faster, more accurate computer translation systems to help them bridge a formidable language barrier that impedes their communication with the rest of the world.

They also have set their sights on multilingual telephones — an automatic translation telephone system that would recognize and translate the human voice.

Building on breakthroughs in artificial intelligence, Japanese firms developed and marketed the first generation of Japanese-to-English translation machines about two years ago.

Since then, researchers have gradually been working the kinks out of them.

Although machines that translate from English to French or other Romance languages are not uncommon, the gulf between English and Japanese was long considered too wide for computers to handle.

"As a translation specialist, five years ago I would not have thought (computer translation) possible. But now in another five years, it may even be economically practical," said John Mackin, an American who works for Fujitsu Ltd.

Technological snags as well as the complex and often vague nature of the Japanese language require considerable editing by professionals before and after translations. But Mackin said Fujitsu's computer-aided translation system "can now compute time-wise with human translators."

Fujitsu's system runs on large mainframe computers and can translate a page of text in about 40 to 50 minutes, including the time it takes to put the text into the computer and to edit the human re-editing. A year ago, the same process took 90 minutes, Mackin said.

The company leases the system for about $4,000 a month.

Mackin said he expects major improvements this year as software designers "start to implement what translators knew all along" — the way languages work.

"The people who built the system were not translators or linguists so they never built the practical (grammar) rules into them. Now we're getting updates monthly. It's slow but sure progress."

Two years ago, for example, a researcher asked the computer to translate the English "I am feeling fine." It came back in Japanese: "I am very sensitive to blue skies."

The technology has come a long way since then and more than a dozen Japanese computer and telecommunication companies, including NEC, Hitachi and Toshiba, are producing the systems, hoping to capture part of the roughly $1.8 billion translation market in Japan, most of it still handled by people.

The government sees the technology as a means of strengthening ties with Japan's neighbors. The Ministry of Trade, Industry and Commerce is conducting joint research in machine translation with China, Thailand and others to develop a computerized "lingua franca."

The goal is to form an "intermediate language" into which all other languages can be rendered, and develop software to translate languages into the intermediate language, said the ministry's Seiji Hagiwara.

Hagiwara said such a system could "expand technological and cultural exchange and mutual development."

Given Japan's increasing worldwide role and its linguistic weaknesses, businessmen relish the thought of improved translation machines.

"Anything that can bridge the great wall of China that stands between Japanese and English has got to be good news for them," said IBM Japan's spokesman, Mac Jeffrey.

In February, IBM Japan began a two-year joint study on machine translation with Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh.

Jeffrey said IBM Japan will initially focus on machine translation of computer manuals "because they are more structured than Shakespeare."

Bravise International, the first company to market Japanese-to-English translation machines two years ago, has so far sold 2,900 systems, according to the company's managing director, Keizo Kuwahara. Bravise, which started out as a translation company, purchased the Weidner Communication Corp. of Chicago three years ago and developed its machine translation system for the Japanese language.
