Missile proposal could bring accord

MOSCOW (AP) - The Kremlin's chief arms negotiator said today a Soviet proposal for a global ban on medium- and shorter-range nuclear missiles could bring an arms accord within 60 days and a superpower summit this year.

Yuli M. Vorontsov, the first deputy foreign minister who heads the Soviet team at the superpower arms talks in Geneva, said today the Kremlin's offer should give a "new impulse" to the negotiations, which have been bogged down for months.

Manchester Country Club gripes get aired tonight

Manchester residents and members of the Manchester Country Club will have an opportunity to voice their complaints about the club in an open hearing tonight at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln Center hearing room.

senior citizens, can play. Former country club member William Ogden of Branford Street, and William Hooker of Erie Street, have led a petition drive since last year, calling for the Manchester Board of Directors to not renew the town's lease with the country club in 1991, when the current lease expires.

Tonight's meeting was called by a subcommittee that was established several years ago to act as a liaison between the club's board of directors and the town Board of Selectmen.

According to Pickens, the Manchester Country Club was established as a private club by the Cheney Bros. in 1916. When Cheney Bros. sold out to a textile company, that company subsequently sold the club land to the town in the mid-1960s.

Ogden and Hooker claimed that the country club was discriminating against non-members. Before then there had been a dispute between male and female members over equal starting times on weekends.

In June 1986, the club's board of directors voted to allow equal access on weekends, but reversed its decision in August after male members complained. After an investigation by the town Board of Selectmen, the decision was reversed a second time.

BOLTON - Representatives of the Board of Education and the Board of Selectmen met Wednesday night to discuss the formation of the Town and School Athletics Study Committee.

Coventry chooses GOP slate

COVENTRY - Despite concern that the Republicans might be without representation on various boards because of a lack of candidates for the November election, a party loyalist came through Wednesday night at the GOP caucus to ensure a full slate.

John Spence, director of Tygerberg Zoo in Cape Town, South Africa, gets to know Wally, a 2-month-old wallaby who was dumped from his mother's pouch at the zoo.

Councilman Phillip Bouchard said this morning, referring to the caucus held at the Town Office Building Wednesday night.

Bouchard was elected to the council in 1985. However, he has served the town continuously since 1983, also as a member of the Board of Tax Review. He now wants to devote more time to his business and family.

Blanche Strater, the other Republican on the 5-2 Democratic majority council, had said she had not planned to run. However, both she and her husband, Edward, agreed to be candidates. He now serves on the Planning and Zoning Commission. Two new names will be on the ticket: Jane Ferry and James Sullivan.

The Democrats currently have a 4-3 majority on the board.

Those who are reluctant to run appear to be concerned with the amount of time needed to serve and the political climate in town.

Manchestra doctor's license pulled by state review board

The state Medical Examining Board voted earlier this week to revoke the license of Dr. Nelson N. Chang, a Manchester acupuncture specialist, for sexually abusing a patient in 1985.

Chang was found guilty of conducting an improper vaginal examination, improperly touching a patient's breasts, administering and prescribing improper drugs, improperly applying a vibrating massage device, and inappropriately kissing and hugging a patient, the spokeswoman said.

The woman filed a complaint against Chang in 1985 with the Manchester Police Department, but the case was dropped when police could not determine specific charges, a department spokeswoman said.

Chang was not available for comment this morning.

Legislators close loopholes in smoke detector law

By John Gustafson
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — A loophole in the state's smoke detector law has been closed and mechanics will be paid for property tax relief as a result of votes in the General Assembly's special session.

Also in the daylong session Wednesday, the House and Senate passed a bill that forgives a debt of $633 million in corporate service taxes for services to wholly-owned subsidiaries.

Earlier Wednesday, the chambers let stand Gov. William O'Neill's veto of two bills from the regular session — one on a local traffic issue in Hartford and another expanding protection for renters.

O'Neill had noted an urgent need for the smoke detector bill, declaring possible "tragic consequences if the law is not immediately changed to require smoke detectors in all multifamily buildings no matter when they were built."

The push for a bill was prompted by a ruling last week by the state Supreme Court, which threw out the negligent homicide convictions of two landlords who, after fatal fires, had been found not to have installed the devices in their buildings.

Eleven people died in the fires — three

In New Britain in 1982 and eight in Waterbury in 1984.

The court said the smoke detector law for multifamily dwellings applied only to those buildings for which building permits were issued after Oct. 1, 1978, the effective date of a smoke detector statute passed that year.

The measure passed unanimously in the Senate after the House had approved it, 140-1. The lone dissenter, Rep. Richard DiStasio, R-Cheshire, had wanted it to take effect on Aug. 21 in order to give landlords more time to comply. As signed, the bill will take effect once emergency regulations are written in 15 days.

The state fire marshal's office said it had already been enforcing the installation of smoke detectors in all multifamily buildings since 1981, but the new law will prevent rulings such as the recent one by the Supreme Court.

The tax bill passed on a 120-7 vote in the House after the senate passed it 28-5. Rep. Philip Robertson, R-Cheshire, had argued that the bill represents a windfall of $633 million to insurance, bank and utility companies that never paid taxes for services they provided their wholly-owned subsidiaries from July 1, 1982 to June 30, 1987.

Five companies have actually paid the business services tax, which the state tax department says is called for under state law but which many legislators said was not the intent of past legislation. Those who have paid it would be eligible for a refund.

The bill also establishes a task force to study the applicability and administration of the state's 7.5 percent sales tax on business services.

In addition, it allows municipalities to adopt a five-year phase-in of new property tax assessments. In the next three years, 111 of the state's 169 municipalities will undergo property revaluation, with increases in annual property taxes expected in the range of 30 percent to 50 percent and more.

To ease the upheaval such increases invariably bring, the bill further establishes a Residential Property Tax Revaluation Relief Fund, to be financed with up to $155 million over a period of five years.

The financing will come from the state's general fund and will be used to counter the effect of revaluation on homeowners, renters and businesses.

Toward this end, a task force must study the possible establishment of a tax abatement program, a property tax circuit breaker program and a homestead exemption.

Manchester favors law

By Andrew J. Davis
Herold Reporter

Fire officials and property owners in Manchester favor a law that requires smoke detectors in all multi-family dwellings, no matter when they were built, according to an informal survey by the Herald.

The General Assembly passed a law Wednesday specifying that the devices be installed in all multi-family buildings. Previously, the law only dealt with buildings in which permits were issued after Oct. 1, 1978.

"Smoke detectors save lives," said Eighth District Fire Inspector Thomas R. O'Mara. "It's not a major imposition, considering the degree of life-saving they provide. A $10 unit can have a payback in life savings that's phenomenal."

The new law, signed by one of its strongest supporters, Gov. William A. O'Neill, goes into effect immediately. However, fire chiefs will have 10 to 15 days to publicize the passage.

The governor took this action after a July 15 decision by the state Supreme Court to throw out the negligent homicide convictions of two landlords who, after fatal fires, had been sent to jail for not installing the devices. Eleven people died in the two fires — eight in a 1984 Waterbury fire and three in a blaze in New Britain five years ago.

The Supreme Court ruling disappointed many people, including Manchester Fire Chief John C. Rivosa.

"I thought we had it before, but it was struck down," he said. "It should be mandated. They're a terrific thing, and I think we should have them."

Managers of local apartment complexes also expressed their support for the law.

"All our buildings have them, and all others should have them," said Elizabeth Dent, manager of Falconridge Apartments in Manchester. "They can save lives at a minimal cost. It should be a law."

C. Arthur Boothby, president of Housing Services Corp., which manages Beechwood Apartments in Manchester, said the proposed law should go even further. He said the law should not only require the devices, but specify that the detectors not be tampered with.

"Tenants that tamper with them ought to be prosecuted," he said. "It's a safety feature that's needed."

Reagan organizes team to lobby for contra aid

By George Geddo
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The administration is forming a lobbying team to urge congressional approval of what is expected to be President Reagan's last request for contra aid, U.S. officials say.

Two Central American experts from the State Department moved to the White House this week to join the Reagan team, officials say.

More than a third of the House of Representatives has called on Reagan to resign, contending he has outlived his usefulness by misleading the Congress in testimony last fall about the U.S. role in the rebellion against Nicaragua's leftist government.

The officials, insisting on anonymity, said the appointment of the new team does not imply any reduction in the role of Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams on the Nicaraguan issue.

"Abrams is still the point man on Nicaragua," said one official. "The Reagan's last request for contra aid, U.S. officials say."

Book publishers sell Ollie North

NEW YORK (AP) — Had enough of Ollie North yet? America's book publishers are betting you haven't.

One of the most publicized members of the National Security Council staff, North is on bookstore shelves already and others are in the works.

"Taking the Stand: The Testimony of Lt. Col. Oliver L. North" is selling briskly. Pocket Books Vice President Anne Maitland said Wednesday.

The 753-page compilation of North's testimony before the Congressional committee investigating the Iran-contra affair rolled off the press at 2:20 p.m. Friday, two days, 22 hours and 14 minutes after North completed his appearance before Congress.

The first paperback printing is 775,000 copies, and Maitland said sales are very good. At Barnes & Noble on Fifth Avenue, the book is selling at the rate of 60 copies a day, she said.

"If one of our authors like Jackie Collins sold 24 copies a day, we would say it was a very respectable number," Ms. Maitland said.

At least two other North books are in the works. Karen Mender, a spokeswoman for St. Martin's Press, said "Defiant Patriot: The Life and Exploits of Lt. Colonel Oliver North" is being published "as fast as we can" and should arrive in bookstores by Sept. 1.

Journalist Peter Meyer has "just a few pages to go" before finishing the book, which will be published simultaneously in paperback and hardcover, she said.

Truglia remembered as dedicated

HARTFORD (AP) — Anthony D. Truglia, the state Senate's assistant majority leader who died of "sudden complications" stemming from injuries sustained in an auto crash last week, was remembered as a dedicated legislator.

Gov. Joseph E. Bludd said Truglia "served with distinction and dedication in local government, in the House of Representatives, and in the Senate."

Truglia, 60, died at 1:25 p.m. Wednesday at Hartford Hospital, hospital spokesman James Battaglia said. He gave no further details.

Truglia, a Stamford Democrat, had been reported in stable condition since Saturday in the hospital's intensive care unit.

Glastonbury police said Truglia was driving his car at 11 a.m. Friday on Route 2 eastbound, just before the Glastonbury Main Street exit ramp, when his car collided with a platform truck loaded with cinder blocks.

The truck driver, Steven Scarmella, 24, was not hurt, police said.

A passenger in Truglia's car, Elmer Koczanaki, 60, also of Stamford, was treated and released. Koczanaki is a member of the Stamford Democratic Town Committee.

Police said Wednesday an investigation into the accident was continuing.

Gov. William A. O'Neill said he was saddened to hear of the death of Truglia, whom he had known since 1973 when Truglia first was elected to the state House.

"He served his constituents and the state well," O'Neill said. "But more importantly, it was Tony's friend. I will not forget everything we have done together."

The governor also ordered flags flown at half staff in the state until Truglia's burial.

Sen. John B. Larson, D-East Hartford, announced to a hushed Senate meeting in special session at 2:50 p.m. that Truglia had died.

"We extend special prayers to his wife Christel, who had been with him since the accident on Friday," Larson said.

Sen. John Atkin, D-Norwalk, said Truglia was "loved by everybody and will be missed in the circle."

"This morning in the (Senate Democratic) caucus they were saying he looked better," Atkin said. "It was real shock."

Truglia chaired a special select committee on housing looking into legislative proposals for affordable and available housing.

"The Housing Committee will miss his guidance trying to solve some of these problems," Atkin said.

Truglia, born in Stamford, was a graduate of the Juillard School of Music and the University of former teacher and state representative, he was the 27th Senate Democratic race in 1984 in the Stamford District, filling the seat vacated by Tom Serrani, a Democrat, after Serrani was elected mayor of Stamford. Truglia had been a state representative since 1973.

He was chairman of the Housing Committee, ranking member of the Transportation Committee and a member of the Stamford Board of Representatives for two years.

He is survived by his wife; two daughters, Penny and Sallyanne; and a son, Anthony Jr. Funeral arrangements were still incomplete.

Millstone 2 automatically shut down

WATERFORD — The Millstone 2 nuclear power plant automatically shut down early today while workers were reducing power to repair a valve, Northeast Utilities reported.

NU spokesman Clifford Hill said the shutdown was triggered at about 8 a.m. by a low level of water in the plant's steam generator.

The plant is expected to return to service this weekend, he said. There was no danger of radioactive leakage, he said.

Historic mansion demolished

BRIDGEPORT — A 78-year-old historic mansion on the city's shoreline has been demolished to make way for a condominium project.

The Curtis Mansion was leveled Wednesday, while Waldemere Associates, the owners of the property, said it is unclear when construction of the 12-story, luxury condominium will begin.

The 20-room, Mediterranean-style mansion was located in a National Register Historic District at Seaside Park on Long Island Sound. It was originally the home of Lewis Beers Curtis, president of People's Savings Bank, and was constructed in 1909.

In March, Superior Court Judge Burton J. Jacobson rejected a bid by Attorney General Joseph I. Lieberman, who filed a lawsuit seeking to block the destruction of the mansion.

Residents on the city's South End and preservationists protested the proposed demolition. Lieberman intervened at the request of the State Historic Commission.

More airports could be sold

WATERFORD — The recent sale of the Waterford Airport to developers who will use the land to build an office park could mark the beginning of a trend in Connecticut, says an official of the state Bureau of Aeronautics.

William A. Colacari, the bureau's aviation coordinator, said increasing pressure from developers interested in valuable airport properties could result in the sale of more airports.

"You could be talking about 150 or 200 acres of prime property," Colacari said of the state's 17 privately-owned commercial airports. "The pressures are ever increasing to develop."

Of the state's 27 commercial airports, he said, six are state-owned and four are owned by municipalities.

A subsidiary of Reynolds Metals Corp. of Richmond, Va., Tuesday bought the 180-acre Waterford Airport from New England Savings Bank for $3.5 million. The closing should take place in September.

Foreign family can stay in state

WASHINGTON — A brother and sister from Ridgefield, Conn., have cleared a major obstacle in their quest to win a special congressional exemption that would allow them to stay with their family instead of being deported back to Hong Kong.

On Wednesday, the House Judiciary subcommittee on Immigration approved a measure by Rep. John G. Rowland, R-Conn., that would allow Maria Helena Vas and her brother, Jose Vas, to remain in Ridgefield.

Rowland called the Vas case "a classic situation of a family falling between the cracks of the law."

Maria, 24, and Jose, 23, are the oldest of five children of two Portuguese natives who moved their family to Connecticut from Hong Kong in 1983 on a temporary work assignment. The father, Marcus, is a planning manager at Union Carbide.

Theater delays filing for bankruptcy

STAMFORD — The American Shakespeare Theatre's board of directors has agreed to delay a decision to file for Chapter 7 bankruptcy until Gov. William A. O'Neill announces his plans to save the state landmark.

Len Alexander, a consultant hired by the board, said the members Wednesday discussed filing for Chapter 7 status, which would allow the theater to divide its assets among its creditors and bring an end to the corporation.

In 1982, the board of directors filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code and a reorganization plan was set up, outlining payments through 1991 totaling more than $36,000.

"They are reluctant to take a stand until they have a reason to do it," Alexander said. "They want some idea of what will take the board's place before they do anything. They feel a fiduciary responsibility to the institution and don't want to just walk away from it."

New twist added to gambling case

WATERBURY — A few new twists have been added to the Thomas Speers gambling trial, including talk of a plea bargain, the intervention of Chief State's Attorney John J. Kelly and criticism from the trial judge.

Kelly surprised the prosecution in the case Wednesday when he attempted to intercede in the case to request that a defense witness be granted immunity for testifying. Kelly's action came under the objections of State's Attorney John A. Connolly who is prosecuting the case.

Superior Court Judge Joseph P. Flynn rejected a move to extend immunity for the defense witness, Robert "Gus" Fennessy, of Waterbury, who had been granted immunity for grand jury testimony. At that point, Assistant State's Attorney Domenico J. Galluzzo, who was authorized to represent Kelly, presented a letter from Kelly requesting a new grant of immunity for Fennessy "... or any other witness who may be called to testify by the state ..."

L'Ambiance report nears completion

But what caused building to collapse not 100 percent certain

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — The chief investigator looking into the cause of the collapse of the L'Ambiance Plaza says that although the team is close to finishing its report, its conclusions won't necessarily be accepted by all.

"We come up with the most probable cause. There's no 100 percent certainty and certainly other people will have other views," said Charles G. Culver, who is heading the investigation.

Culver, who is in Bridgeport this week to do more testing, would not discuss details of the investigation on Wednesday.

"We never really rule any one thing out until we know what the bottom line is," Culver said. "One thing that is together with this is it was a complete collapse."

"We need to find out what started the failure, but equally important is why did the whole building come down," Culver said in an interview.

"This failure points to a need to look at the safety of buildings during construction."

Culver is spending his time at a landfill where the rubble from the L'Ambiance collapse is being kept under tight security. Twenty-eight men were killed in the collapse.

Culver works for the National Bureau of Standards, which was hired by the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration to investigate the April 23 collapse of the half-finished apartment building. The cost of the investigation is about $500,000 Culver said.

Culver, 48, has a doctorate in civil engineering from Lehigh University in Pennsylvania. He has been with the National Bureau of Standards in Gaithersburg, Md. for 15 years.

Currently Culver is chief of the structures division on the Center for Building Technology in the National Bureau of Standards, which is funded by the U.S. Department of Commerce and other federal agencies, has 12 centers which specialize in measurement technology. The bureau also develops ways to build safer buildings and is doing disaster research, and studies on how buildings hold up during earthquakes and fires.

Founded in 1901, the National Bureau of Standards has been investigating numerous well-known disasters including the collapse of the Empire State Building in New York City in 1945, the Hotel in Kansas City, Mo. in 1981, and the condominium collapse in Cocoa Beach, Fla. in 1981.

Culver led an investigation into the 1977 earthquake in Romania, which killed several thousand people. His first investigation was in 1975 when he investigated a fire in a military records center in St. Louis.

Culver has a field of three full-time investigators, several part-time workers and a Norway engineering firm working with him.

"We try to put the building back together and look at how it collapsed," Culver said. "We do the same thing the police do when they investigate an accident. They look at where the skid marks are."

The team, which was called to the disaster the day after it happened, is studying videotapes and photographs, interviewing witnesses and survivors and testing materials.

Then, it goes through a number of scenarios and "tries to put the pieces together like a jigsaw puzzle," Culver said.

Commenting on a published report in the Hartford Courant recently that an automobile Jack was used to straighten one tower of the building, Culver said, "A car jack is not the common practice. He said that is one of the things the team is looking at."

Culver also said his team is concerned only with the technical aspect and will not place blame.

4th candidates look to D.C. for support

By Linda Stowell
Herold Reporter

STAMFORD — The Republican and Democratic candidates trying for the 4th Congressional District seat say they'll spend the short time before the election urging supporters to vote, and they're banking on support from the top guns in Washington to help get their message out.

Christine Niedermeier, 35, an attorney and former Democratic state representative from Fairfield, and Christopher Shays, 41, a Republican state representative and real estate agent from Stamford, both easily won their primaries Tuesday.

They will face each other and possibly two other candidates in an Aug. 18 special election to fill the 4th District seat left vacant since May by the AIDS-related death of moderate Republican Rep. Stewart McKinney.

Gov. William A. O'Neill, a Democrat, said he would campaign in the district to support Niedermeier.

"I think she'll run very well there," O'Neill said. "I believe she'll be able to win this election handsily."

Shays, speaking at a state Capitol news conference, said he expects the support of top Republican officials and campaign appearances by Vice President George Bush and U.S. Sen. Robert Dole.

"The Republicans want me to win this race ... and they're going to do everything they can to help me out," Shays said. "I expect to see all the Republican presidential candidates in the 4th District."

Sen. Byrd calls for presidential restraints on covert action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, in one of the first legislative measures to arise from the Iran-contra affair, is proposing closer controls on a president's ability to carry out covert activities.

"Informal or gentlemanly arrangements" between the president and Congress concerning covert activities are insufficient, the West Virginia Democrat said Wednesday in a speech on the Senate floor.

"Where flexibility is granted to the executive branch it seems to have simply been taken advantage of," Byrd also complained there has "apparently been an epidemic of amnesia" on the part of key Iran-contra figures who have testified at the congressional hearings.

He charged that some of the witnesses "seem intent on attacking" the committees for their search for the truth.

In a separate development, Sen.

Arlen Specter, R-Pa., urged passage of legislation he has introduced to bar active duty military officers such as Rear Adm. John M. Poindester from serving as national security adviser without first resigning their commissions.

The presence of active duty officers in such key posts usually held by civilians presents a clear case of divided loyalties and "undermines the principle of civilian control of the military," Specter said.

Byrd proposed several steps that would preclude a recurrence of the events of the Iran-contra affair, in which President Reagan authorized secret arms sales to Iran without notifying Congress, and in which the National Security Council helped provide aid to the contra rebels while U.S. government aid was banned.

"A clear need for improvements in the laws which govern these covert operations has already been demonstrated by the hearings to date," Byrd said in making five steps in his proposals.

Requiring a president to notify Congress in writing as a condition for the conduct of a covert operation "The whole idea of 'oral findings' should be abandoned," said Byrd, challenging a contention made by several former administration officials.

Placing all agencies of the government under the rules governing covert operations, including the National Security Council,

Independent counsels ruled constitutional

WASHINGTON (AP) — A ruling upholding the constitutionality of court-appointed independent counsels investigating Reagan administration officials clears the way for legislation reauthorizing such appointments.

Chief U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson on Wednesday ruled in favor of the independent counsel provisions of the Ethics in Government Act which have been challenged separately by former White House aides Lt. Col. Oliver North and Michael Deaver.

Robinson issued the 13-page ruling on three sealed cases filed last month that presumably involved grand jury subpoenas obtained by independent counsels. There was no indication of who the defendants were in the cases.

As chief district judge, Robinson overrules the work of grand juries and considers all motions to quash subpoenas for testimony or documents.

There are currently four public investigations being conducted by court-appointed independent counsels, or special prosecutors, including the Iran-contra probe being run by counsel Lawrence E. Walsh.

Two other prosecutors were secretly named by the special court to investigate charges of criminal wrongdoing by former officials — alleged misconduct that was unrelated to their public duties.

The judge's opinion did not indicate whether the cases arose from Walsh's investigation or those of others.

The judge's ruling is likely to be appealed, as have been previous rulings and challenges to the independent counsel law by North and Deaver.

The ruling was hailed by Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., who has introduced legislation to reauthorize the independent counsel provisions, which are scheduled to expire next year.

Levin said Robinson's ruling is the first time a federal judge has "squarely" and unequivocally found that the independent counsel law is constitutional.

Town must act to solve water crisis

Citizens are quite accustomed to curtailing their use of water when long dry spells lower the level of reservoirs to the point of an overall water shortage. Everyone willingly accepts the responsibility for conserving water so that it will be available to everyone for its most vital uses.

But to have to face a mandatory restriction on water use in one part of the town while the town has a relatively adequate supply of water, is quite another thing.

An order issued Wednesday by the town water department to curtail outdoor use of water applies only to Glastonbury customers and those in the eastern fringe of Manchester where, because the land is high, pumping is needed to get the water to the taps in houses.

Town officials have no choice but to impose the limitation now, but steps should be considered to keep the same thing from happening next year.

The two pumps at the Highland Street pumping station, with a capacity of 350 gallons a minute each, cannot keep up with the high demand being placed on the system in this drought. As a result, water in storage tanks is being drawn off, even at night, when the demand for water is normally much lower. The pumps cannot refill the tanks fast enough to keep sufficient water on hand in case of a serious fire.

It is not at all clear why this problem should arise now when it has not surfaced before, but one possible explanation is residential growth in the area.

The increase in water use is no greater in the eastern area than it is in the rest of Manchester, but the pump problem makes it potentially dangerous.

There are plans to replace one of pumps soon with a new pump that will have twice the capacity, and to replace the other existing pump later. The current crisis should prompt town officials to take a close look at those plans to be sure they are adequate, and to carry them out as soon as possible.

In the meantime, of course, water users who live in the crucial area should cooperate by observing the limitation on outdoor use of water.

Thanks to three from downtown

To the Editor:

The Downtown Manchester Association would like to commend the Junior Women's League, Instructors of the Handicapped and Big Brothers and Big Sisters for participating in our recent Sidewalk Sale Days.

Although many other charitable and civic organizations had committed their support to our efforts to make the downtown area a community center during this time, only these three organizations backed up their commitment with participation.

Therefore, the Downtown Manchester Association would like to pledge our support to their efforts in any future endeavors.

Hemlock walks a superb job

To the Editor:

The sidewalks on Hemlock Street in Manchester have long been in need of repair.

Last month, the Ansaldi company and S. Aleria and Sons started the much-needed replacement of these sidewalks. I must say that they have done a terrific job. The cement provided by Ansaldi is of superb quality. The workmanship of both corporations is of superior quality.

All of the men worked continuously. There was not one of any of the group seen standing around and shooting the breeze and Canada and Massachusetts have pioneered the best response.

Plant closings or layoffs must be announced 16 weeks in advance in Canada. Within a day of the news, the Industrial Adjustment Service (IAS) comes to set up an in-plant labor-management committee to direct job finding and training efforts. It may stay in business for a year, providing a one-stop center for employment and training says a Senate Labor Committee report prepared by the Office of Technology Assessment.

The range of IAS work is remarkable: assessing the skills and aptitude of every worker; counseling them on their options for retraining, reemployment, or retirement; helping them write resumes; finding training opportunities and funds to pay for them; starting the training before the layoff; and even seeking jobs for the workers with area employers.

"The functioning plant itself is a very considerable resource in these pre-layoff activities, providing both staff and space," it said.

One result: laid off workers get jobs five weeks sooner than if they had not been helped. If that could be achieved in the U.S., it would save $300 million in Unemployment Insurance.

Sadly, few states respond as quickly or as thoroughly. In part because they have "not yet organized their displaced worker program," which wasting time. They utilized their work loads and tackled them with great effort.

These employees must be commended for the fact that not one of the neighborhood families heard one bit of foul language. This is not usually the case when a construction crew is at work.

S. Aleria and Sons did a marvelous job replacing the soil and also landscaping it with grass seed.

The driveway tar replacement was done to perfection.

I would like to thank both of these companies on behalf of all the residents on Hemlock Street for a job superbly done. Hopefully, they will continue to serve Manchester in this capacity for many more years to come.

We urge a visit to fire museum

To the Editor:

Recently my children, nephew and I had a delightful, illuminating and interesting experience touring the fire museum at Hartford Road and Pine Street.

My 8-year-old son had been begging me for years to go in. We happened to be driving by, the "open" sign was out, and my son got his wish. As soon as we walked through the door and beheld the old-fashioned men-drawn fire engines we were impressed.

The guides spent over an hour explaining so many interesting and ingenious things to us that we never heard of or never realized helped put out fires.

My children were most impressed with the tower on the side of the building. I never even

Workers need notice before shutdown has small federal funding from Job Training Partnership Act, said the report.

An exception is Massachusetts. Gov. Michael Dukakis named a Commission on the Future of Mature Industries that inspired a law in 1984 that said employers who get financial assistance from state agencies must "agree to accept" certain "voluntary standards of corporate behavior."

Specifically, they must make "a good faith effort" to provide employees with the "maximum practicable combination" of advanced notice and maintenance of income and health insurance for "at least 90 days."

In exchange, the state will provide consulting, loans, and venture capital to help troubled firms make it. If that fails, the state helps displaced workers find other jobs, relocate or begin retraining. New York, California, Michigan and Illinois hope to emulate the Massachusetts model.

Yet the National Association of Manufacturers fights plant closing legislation as "anti-competitive." It bragged about "watering down" the early Senate bill from six months to 60 days. However, NAM will try to kill the provision this week. Why? "It will lead to more and more plant shutdowns and job losses by restricting management flexibility."

Horsefeathers. Look at what's happened in Canada and Massachusetts.

Canada has had a higher job growth rate than the U.S. for three years, growing 8.3 percent since 1983 compared to 5.3 percent here. U.S. firms in Canada don't call the nation's plant closing law "anti-competitive."

And unemployment in Massachusetts is 3.9 percent, one of the nation's lowest rates — as presidential candidate Michael Dukakis reminds us.

Another bit of good news for those who might lose jobs in the future is a nearly $1 billion provision to job counseling in a Canada.

Mint gets into the ring with subcommittee

WASHINGTON — In this corner, wearing green, the United States Mint. In that corner, wearing red, white and blue, the staff of the House Banking subcommittee on consumer affairs and coinage, which has oversight of Mint business. We're in the middle, holding the coats.

The donnybrook began when we reported the subcommittee staff's charges that the Mint had tailored specifications for millions of dollars' worth of new coin presses so that only foreign manufacturers could fill the order. What with the enormous U.S. trade deficits, this was a serious charge to make against a federal agency.

To be fair to the Mint, our reporter Lisa Sylvester tried repeatedly to get comment from Mint Director Donna Pope's office before we sent the column out. The calls were unanswered.

Since then, however, apparently stung by publication of the subcommittee staff's accusations, Pope's office has put together a 10-page rebuttal and sent it to Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., the subcommittee chairman and Rep. Fernand St. Germain, D-R.I., chairman of the Banking Committee. The Mint denies it tried to cut U.S. companies out of the contract bidding, and charges that the subcommittee staff had reached "a fallacious conclusion."

"The Mint has an obligation to taxpayers to keep abreast of changing and improved technology for better productivity," the Mint rebuttal stated. It suggested that U.S. manufacturers had failed to keep abreast, while foreign companies had.

The subcommittee staff didn't throw in the towel in the face of the Mint's counterattack. Here are the highlights of the huffing and puffing between the subcommittee staff and the Mint:

"As evidence of the Mint's 'tailoring' of the specifications, the subcommittee staff pointed out that one bid solicitation went so far as to specify the exact color the coin press should be. 'With that to do with performance beats me,'" snapped a staffer.

"Just because you want a blue car, it doesn't restrict you to one automobile manufacturer," the Mint responded. Spokesman Michael Brown said a color requirement was uncommon, because some presses are in areas of the Mint visited by tourists, so the agency "wants to have a unified look."

Responding to the charge that only 10 firms out of 70 potential bidders solicited sent in replies, the Mint said only a handful of companies in the world can produce coin presses that meet its exacting standards. The Mint response added that its list of potential bidders is not highly specialized, since the Mint makes no attempt to police or qualify the names on the list; this would help account for the low response rate.

The subcommittee, however, cited a letter from Brown last January that stated: "We develop a list of firms capable of furnishing that particular piece of equipment and mail them a copy of the solicitation." Brown pointed out that the letter also stated that "any firm that requests will be sent a solicitation and added to the list."

In a flurry of jobs and roundhouse swings at the subcommittee staff, the Mint declared: "Through the use of crafty statistics and the anonymous comments of disappointed bidders, the report alleges that the Mint rigged the procurement process for pre-selected foreign equipment. This is a fallacious conclusion. The Mint adhered to the Federal Acquisition Regulations."

The subcommittee staff riposted: "We promised the (bidders) up-front anonymity, so they could respond freely and frankly. The statistics spoke for themselves. The Mint's response doesn't address the central thesis that specifications were written for particular bidders. They may have complied with the regulations, but that was in form, not substance. Maybe by the letter, but hardly by the spirit."

A final rebuttal from the Mint spokesman: "They do not have an understanding of Mint production needs."

Mini-editorial

One depressing legacy of Ollie North's testimony on Capitol Hill wasn't his fault at all. We refer to the impudent grandstanding of his lawyer, loudly berating those who failed to show the proper degree of reverence for his client. His example was quickly followed by John Podrester's attorney, and we fear this may portend a deplorable trend towards hodgepodge by attorneys at congressional hearings. They won't dare misbehave in such a fashion before the Supreme Court, Congress deserves equal respect. Let congressional witnesses' lawyers buy television time to advertise their professional skills like any other attorney.

PTL outlines recovery plan at hearing

COLUMBIA, S.C. — A bankruptcy hearing in a movie theater answered some questions about PTL's plans for recovery, but thousands of people who gave the TV ministry $1,000 to become "lifetime" partners must wait the sequel.

Some of the negotiators who attended Wednesday's creditors committee meeting came away unsatisfied with the answers PTL chief operating officer Harry Hargrave, and the ministry's debt down $4 million to $68 million and rejected selling PTL land or other assets to repay that.

"He didn't tell us anything," said Barbara Zanecky, a contributor whose husband, Bob, is an attorney representing 250 big-money contributors whose donations helped build some of the evangelical empire's biggest holdings.

The six-hour meeting marked the first time creditors had a chance to question PTL ministry officials. The normally routine court procedure was moved to a theater to handle the crowd of some 150 creditors and spectators.

PTL filed June 12 for protection from some 1,400 people or businesses it owed money.

Deficit below 1986 record level

WASHINGTON — The federal deficit is running 28 percent below the record level set in 1986, with just three months to go in the current budget year, the Treasury Department says.

The department said Wednesday the June deficit shrank to $420 million and for the first time since fiscal year it totaled $1.9 billion, compared with a deficit of $16.8 billion run up during the same period in 1986.

For all of 1986, the imbalance between government revenues and government spending hit a record $220.7 billion.

The Reagan administration said it expected the 1987 deficit would fall to around $155 billion. This is almost $20 billion below an earlier estimate, with the improvement coming from a surge in tax revenues resulting from sales of assets at the end of provisions before the profits were taxed at higher rates under the new tax law.

U.S. halts $26 million from Panama

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration has halted $26 million in assistance to Panama and is limiting contact with Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, the defense chief, to register U.S. dissatisfaction with an expanded military role in governing the country, State Department officials said today.

The administration also turned down a request for the purchase of tear gas to be used to control demonstrators who last month poured into the streets to oppose Noriega, said officials, who insisted on anonymity.

The general, who took power as commander of the Panamanian armed forces in August 1983, is widely regarded as the country's most powerful leader, although President Eric Arturo Delvalle has been Panama's civilian government.

Panama was to receive $20 million in economic aid and $6 million in military assistance. All new contracts have been suspended, officials said.

Military asked to help after floods

SEOUL, South Korea — The defense minister called out the 600,000-man military today to help in rescue and rebuilding efforts following widespread flooding and mudslides that left at least 95 people dead.

Defense Minister Chung Ho-yong, issuing the unprecedented order, said, "All units are urged for some essential manpower needed for basic military operations and security, should assist in the rehabilitation work."

Thirty-two people were reported missing after Wednesday's fierce storm, the country's second weather disaster in a week. Temples and schools were turned into temporary shelters for some of the 60,000 people left homeless by the tempest. The national disaster center in Seoul said 170 people were injured when the record downpour set off flooding and landslides in the central part of the country.

Lonetree guilty only of love

QUANTICO, Va. — A Marine sergeant accused of giving U.S. secrets to a Soviet woman is guilty only of falling in love with the wrong person, says the father of Clayton Lonetree.

"He was just a victim of being a human being," Spencer G. Lonetree said Wednesday during a preliminary hearing proceedings for his son's court-martial at Quantico Marine Corps Base. "He fell in love with a woman."

Lonetree, 25, of St. Paul, Minn., a former embassy guard in Moscow and Vienna, is the first Marine ever tried on espionage charges.

He is accused of providing Soviet agents with classified embassy documents, identifying American intelligence officers assigned to the Moscow embassy, and fraternizing with a Soviet woman. The espionage charge carries a life sentence.

Former aide pleads innocent

WASHINGTON — Former White House political director Lyn Nofziger pleaded innocent today to charges he violated federal conflict-of-interest laws by lobbying his former Reagan administration colleagues on behalf of Wedtech Corp. and other private firms.

Nofziger's business partner, Mark Bragg, also pleaded innocent to the only charge contained in the indictment against him, of aiding and abetting Nofziger's alleged violations of the Ethics in Government Act.

Flannery, who released both men on their personal recognizances, scheduled a trial for both defendants on Nov. 16. Independent counsel James McKay estimated it would take several weeks to present the prosecution's case.

Tax corrections could help coaches

WASHINGTON — As many as 20 million investors, 130,000 Alaska children and a handful of college football coaches stand to benefit from amendments Congress is considering as "technical corrections" to last year's tax overhaul.

The proposals — dozens of them — are a long way from becoming law, and some may not get beyond the public hearing stage in the House and Senate. But a Senate Finance subcommittee is gathering testimony in anticipation that Congress will act later this year to correct some of the scores of mistakes that ended up in the new tax law.

Any time Congress passes a major tax bill, it is a good bet that several months later the lawmakers will come back with new legislation to correct mistakes. The 1986 law, for example, has a lot of unclear provisions, some typographical errors, the wrong cities and states listed to receive some tax benefits, and even a provision that Congress specifically rejected.

Soldiers attack crowd, reporters

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Soldiers shot tear gas into a crowd of about 1,500 anti-government demonstrators, then turned on reporters, striking two with rifle butts and firing shotguns at others, witnesses said.

No serious injuries were reported. Thirty to 40 people were arrested at the demonstration Wednesday, including a stringer for the Voice of America, said the incident marked the fourth time soldiers shot at reporters since anti-government strikes broke out in this poor Caribbean nation a month ago.

The demonstrators gathered outside city hall near the waterfront and denounced Port-au-Prince Mayor Franck Paul.

Kuwaiti ships reach midway point

MANAMA, Bahrain — U.S. warships today escorted two reflagged Kuwaiti tankers past Bahrain, the midway point of their voyage to Kuwait through the perilous Persian Gulf.

Gulf shipping sources said the convoy steamed past the island state, roughly 250 miles south of Kuwait's al-Ahmedi oil terminal, at midmorning. It was expected to complete its 500-mile trip Friday.

The convoy, which originally included three U.S. warships, traveled without incident in the Persian Gulf, considered the most potentially dangerous leg of the trip. It linked up with a fourth Navy warship, the cruiser Reeves, late Wednesday, maintaining top alert until 10 p.m. local time.

Iran issued a fresh threat to Washington late Wednesday, saying the United States was "preparing itself for a clash with Iran and the expansion of tension." Tehran radio, monitored in London, said Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati made the comment in a letter to U.N. Secretary-General Javier Peres de Cuellar.

The convoy was to sail later today past Iran's Farafar Island, 120 miles north of Bahrain Revolutionary Guards, zealous followers of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, have made the island a base for the first time since Iraq warplanes raided Farafar Island at least twice in recent weeks in an apparent attempt to destroy the base before the American warships began their escort of 11 reflagged Kuwaiti vessels.

Running the Gauntlet

The attack, which Iraq said was a mistake. The warships accompanied the supertanker Bridgeton and the smaller oil products carrier sunrise today, maritime salvage experts said.

The narrow, shallow curve of Shah Allum, 70 miles northeast of the Qatar peninsula, was a favorite hunting ground of the Iranian air force in the early stages of the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war. Shipping sources said the region was quiet this morning.

Several F-4 warplanes took off early Wednesday afternoon from Iran's base at Bandar Abbas, according to reconnaissance aircraft. They were warned by the U.S. ships to stay clear of the convoy, which they did.

On the second part of the operation, the convoy is expected to skirt the Saudi coastline, where Kuwaiti-bound ships have recently been raided by Iranian gunboats darting out from Farafar.

Two jets from the aircraft carrier Constellation provided air cover for the convoy today, while Saudi Arabian-based Airborne Warning and Control System, or AWACS, aircraft monitored the gulf airspace.

Since last year, Iran has attacked vessels traveling to Kuwait, charging that the emirate serves as an arms conduit to Iraq, whose ports are closed. Hundreds of ships have been attacked or damaged by both combatants in a "tanker war" aimed at crippling one another's economies.

The Reagan administration has pledged to escort the Kuwaiti vessels to protect the supply of oil traveling the gulf.

If you owe the feds money, watch out

By Tom Roun

WASHINGTON — Still haven't paid off that student loan? The federal government may be coming to get your car.

Or if you're a federal employee, you could have your salary garnished to pay off that debt. The government has collected some $471 million in delinquent debts by subtracting money from income tax refunds, budget officials said.

That program is being expanded to include other methods of getting the funds, with an eye to collecting $5 billion over the next two years, the officials said.

If all else fails, Miller told a news conference, "I will personally ask the attorney general to seize cars, homes, any assets."

"These will be last-ditch efforts," he added. "If people refuse to pay up, then we will go after these things. We're not going to just give up."

Actually, the federal government itself doesn't have the power to seize property to satisfy loans. Director Joseph Wright of the Office of Management and Budget and the Justice Department will work with state and local authorities in filing lawsuits to seek court judgments against delinquent debtors to seize cars, homes, any assets."

Wright said the program would build on an experiment conducted in Philadelphia in 1983, in which 35 cars belonging to individuals who had not repaid their student loans were seized. The loans were paid so that 33 of the cars could be reclaimed, Wright said.

How to earn today's interest rate at next year's lower tax rate.

Remember the 1986 Tax Reform Act? It's still unfolding and you may well end up being taxed at an even lower rate next year. In other words, it may still pay to defer.

The 6-month tax-deferred CD from Connecticut National lets you take advantage of the changing law. It gives you the special option to defer interest payments on your certificate until it matures in 1988. That makes it next year's income, taxed at next year's rate.

Which makes it a smarter choice than ever.

Rates subject to change. The six-month yield assumes principal and interest remain on deposit for a full year at the current rate. There is a $250 minimum deposit for new deposits. Rates effective through July 28, 1987.

Come in and talk over your options — you'll probably do better than you'd think. You see, at Connecticut National, we know it takes more than high interest rates to get high returns. It takes know-how.

Shultz says officials kept him in the dark

Continued from page 1 Shultz said he was disgusted when he learned many months after the fact that key Iran-contra middlemen had discussed efforts to release terrorists being held in a Kuwaiti prison as part of a complicated deal that would send arms to Iran and win the freedom of American hostages in Lebanon.

Shultz said "I made me sick to my stomach that anybody would talk about that as something we would consider doing." The list of details that Shultz said he didn't know about was a long one.

Bannon is next tax chief

Continued from page 1 Jake him the perfect choice to fill this sensitive post. Groppo resigned June 9 after being criticized over an incident in March in which he confronted Senate Minority Leader Reginald Smith, R-New Hartford, with tax files purportedly showing that proper sales tax had not been paid on a car purchased by Smith's son.

Such tax information to be kept strictly confidential. Although no one was able to conclude that Groppo broke any law by showing it to Smith, Attorney General Joseph Lieberman said the act violated tax agency regulations and an ethics and appeared to be an attempt to threaten Smith. Groppo had been appointed in 1985. Bannon served for two years as an aide to O'Neill before moving to Travelers. He said O'Neill first discussed the tax job with him about a week ago and he accepted it on Tuesday. "I had a great job at Travelers," he said. "An opportunity like this doesn't come along very often. It's an opportunity I'd be foolish to forgo." He said he would be taking a pay cut. Groppo has been receiving an annual salary of $56,162.

"I think we have six candidates who will win, and when they win, they will do a better job than the Democratic Board of Directors," he said.

Proposal could bring accord

Continued from page 1 President Reagan and Gorbachev agreed during their first meeting in Geneva in 1985 that Gorbachev would visit the United States in 1987, but the Soviet leader has indicated he will not go to Washington unless the superpowers have made concrete progress in arms control. Superpower negotiators were to meet in Geneva today to study the latest Soviet proposal. Marshal Sergei F. U.S. Navy takes back submarine GROTON (AP) — The U.S. Navy is repossessing a decommissioned World War II submarine that has been a tourist attraction for 10 years, saying its private operator neglected it. Navy officials in Washington said the contract with the non-profit Submarine Memorial Association terminated today. Navy officials were unsure when the sub would be towed back to the submarine base. Frank Scheetz of Groton, president of the association, said the Navy gave just two days notice that it was repossessing the USS Croaker, but a dispute over the handling of repairs to the sub had been going on for months.

The submarine was built at Electric Boat in Groton in 1943, was commissioned in April 1944 and made six patrols of the Pacific Ocean during World War II, sinking 11 enemy ships. The Croaker was decommissioned in 1963 and returned to Groton in May 1977, when it was dedicated as a museum. The submarine was on permanent loan to the association, which was responsible for maintenance and repairs. In a letter to the association last fall, the Navy said the Croaker's condition must be improved so as not to "cast discredit on the Navy." Scheetz said visitors to the Croaker had declined since the opening of the USS Nautilus museum in 1986 and that it had become more difficult to finance repairs to the ship. While visiting the Nautilus, he was free, admission to the Croaker was $3.

The issue reached a head over whether the association would replace the Croaker's aging wood deck with fiberglass or teak. Scheetz said the association had set aside $50,000 to replace the deck in fiberglass and estimated it would cost about $500,000 to use teak. He also said he has argued with the Navy that the original deck was composed mostly of less expensive fir and oak. "The association and the Navy disagree over whether to allow the University of Connecticut's Marine Science Institute to convert the Croaker into a laboratory during the winter when few tourists visit," he said. William Scott, congressional affairs officer with the Naval Sea Systems Command in Washington, said Navy inspectors had found many deficiencies in the maintenance of the ship. "Our inspections revealed that the ship was deteriorating at such a rate that it was becoming unsafe," Scott said.

SPORTS Puckett stands tall for wins

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota Twins outfielder Kirby Puckett, who stands only 5-foot-8, says, "I can dunk a basketball, but a lot of people don't believe it." He won new believers Wednesday night with a leaping catch that robbed the New York Yankees of a homerun and helped seal Minnesota's 3-1 American League baseball victory. "I'm going to kill Puckett," Cotto said every game. "That could have turned the whole game around. He plays deep and knows his field. It was a great catch."

the year and his first since June 30. "It's been a long time coming," Puckett said. "... I've been working hard to keep my confidence up. I'm grateful it happened." Viola gave up only four hits in eight innings to boost his record to 10-4. In his last 12 starts, Viola is 8-1 with a stingy 1.85 ERA. "The bottom line is confidence," Viola said. "You don't care who is up there. You just feel you can do it. This is what I've been looking for the last few years." Puckett also showed signs of rising out of a recent offensive slump by hitting a solo homerun to right-center in the fifth, boosting the lead to 3-0 for Twins' lefthander Frank Viola.

Two-run homer in the first inning, said he has never seen him pitch better. "There is no way you can't play behind pitching like that," said Hrbeck. "I've never seen him pitch so well. I think it's confidence in all of his pitches." Jeff Reardon pitched the ninth inning for the Twins to earn his 20th save. Meanwhile, New York Manager Lou Piniella held a closed-door session in the Yankee clubhouse. "We talked baseball," Piniella said. "That's all I'm going to say. It takes 24 players. We're all drawing a paycheck here." The Yankees' Claudell Washington, who homered off Viola for the second time in two games, felt the move was justified. "We need an attitude adjustment," Washington said.

Hungry Athletics rout Detroit

By Ken Roppoport The Associated Press The Oakland Athletics took a night off from batting practice, but once the game started it was another story.

"Today we came out with a hungry attitude and everybody hit the ball," said Mark McGwire, who had four hits Wednesday night, including his major league-leading 36th home run. He led the Athletics to a 10-1 rout of the Detroit Tigers.

Mariners 2, Brewers 1 Mark Langston pitched a four-hitter and Rey Quinones singled in the go-ahead run in the seventh inning to lead Seattle over Milwaukee.

Langston, 11-9, struck out seven to increase his American League-leading total to 159. Ken Phelps began the seventh with a walk off Bill Wegman, 8-9. Jim Presley's single moved Phelps to second and pinch-runner John Moses scored when Quinones dropped a single in front of right fielder Glenn Braggs.

Wegman went all the way, allowing eight hits. He struck out one and walked one.

Orleans 10, White Sox 5 Larry Sheets hit a pair of two-run singles and Ken Gerhart hit two solo homers as Baltimore beat Chicago for the Orioles' eighth straight victory. McEnroe is looking for return to form

By Chris Dahl The Associated Press HARTFORD — John McEnroe, idle from competitive tennis for six weeks, is hoping to return to form in Davis Cup competition.

McEnroe has declared himself sound, enhancing the United States' chances of defeating West Germany in the relegation round being played Friday through Sunday at the Hartford Civic Center. "John has had great workouts. He's been working extremely hard and is raring to go," U.S. Captain Tom Gorman said Wednesday. "He was sharp from the moment he got here, and after seeing him play for three days I'm happy he's where he is."

"I felt it would be a good time to come back, and I think it will work out good for the U.S.," said McEnroe, who has retested a bruised back for six weeks. Participating in Davis Cup competition since 1978, McEnroe has played in 57 matches overall and 41 times in singles — both American records. His 35-6 record in singles competition is unsurpassed in U.S. annals. "It means a lot," said Mayotte, who has a 1-2 record in the international competition. "It's nice to have someone on the team who has extensive Davis Cup experience. He knows what it's all about and, let's face it, he's one of the greatest tennis players ever."

Gorman said that McEnroe's playing back, which kept him out of Wimbledon, had been a major source of concern. "John was fully aware that if he came in here and played awful that it would be a difficult decision for me to maybe not pick him," he said. But McEnroe's strong practice sessions have put that particular fear to rest.

Witt, bullpen lead the Angels to win over Bosox

By Dove O'Hara The Associated Press BOSTON — California ace Mike Witt is struggling. So are the Angels' other starting pitchers. They haven't pitched a complete game this month. The relievers, though, are carrying the load. The bullpen has not lost a game since June 15.

Witt, 12-8, allowed only one run for six innings, then needed relief help Wednesday night as the Angels built a 5-0 lead and hung on for a 6-5 victory over the Boston Red Sox. "We've got a bunch of rejects out there in the bullpen," said reliever Greg Minton, who picked up his eighth save as the third California pitcher in the ninth. "We're all just flipping a coin to see who's going to be that night."

With one out in the seventh, Rich Gedman doubled and scored on a single by Ellis Burks, pulling Boston to within 5-2. Another single by Ed Romero finished Witt. "He's struggling all the way," California Manager Gene Mauch said. "It used to be that when you got Witt a four or five run lead you'd sit back and say it's all over. Not any more."

DeWayne Buice, established as a reliever after 10 years in the minors, replaced Witt and gave up an RBI single to Rice, who had four hits, and a run-scoring double to Dwight Evans before ending the rally. After California padded its lead and walked three, throwing a whopping 123 pitches. "Gardner looked tremendous," Witt said. "If he had started the game, I might be sitting here hanging my head." Witt, 3-0 against Boston this year, said he "kind of backed into the win tonight, but I'll take it." "I love to see DeWayne Buice follow me, and Lucas and Minton, too," the lanky right-hander said. "There were some scary moments, but they did the job." He said that getting "five, six or seven innings is not my type of game," and added that he and other starters are going to have to pitch

Helin tosses a no-hitter in Legion victory

By Jim Tierney Herald Sports Writer ROCKVILLE — Pitching is supposedly 80 percent of any baseball game. Manchester Legion southpaw Chris Helin didn't do anything which might obscure that point Wednesday night in a Zone Eight encounter with Rockville.

Helin hurled a no-hitter while Post 102 walked away with an easy 11-0 victory in a game called after five innings due to darkness. Manchester's second 11-1 (second place) and 18-15 (overall). Post 102 will play Willimantic on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in a non-league game in Willimantic.

Witt, 3-0 against Boston this year, said he "kind of backed into the win tonight, but I'll take it." "I love to see DeWayne Buice follow me, and Lucas and Minton, too," the lanky right-hander said. "There were some scary moments, but they did the job." He said that getting "five, six or seven innings is not my type of game," and added that he and other starters are going to have to pitch

By Jim Tierney Herald Sports Writer ROCKVILLE — Pitching is supposedly 80 percent of any baseball game. Manchester Legion southpaw Chris Helin didn't do anything which might obscure that point Wednesday night in a Zone Eight encounter with Rockville.

Helin hurled a no-hitter while Post 102 walked away with an easy 11-0 victory in a game called after five innings due to darkness. Manchester's second 11-1 (second place) and 18-15 (overall). Post 102 will play Willimantic on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in a non-league game in Willimantic.

With one out in the seventh, Rich Gedman doubled and scored on a single by Ellis Burks, pulling Boston to within 5-2. Another single by Ed Romero finished Witt. "He's struggling all the way," California Manager Gene Mauch said. "It used to be that when you got Witt a four or five run lead you'd sit back and say it's all over. Not any more."

Thank A Million Percy Ross

AIDS volunteer asks for a bed for his guests

Minneapolis millionaire Percy Ross is internationally known for his philanthropic works and likes to encourage others to help solve problems for those in need.

DEAR MR. ROSS: I'm a volunteer with the Philadelphia AIDS Task Force. We provide direct care to those people who have the dreaded disease and to their families.

DEAR MR. S.: It's been estimated that in the future no household will go without being affected by the "dreaded disease" AIDS.

DEAR MR. ROSS: Sometimes there's one little thing which others take for granted, that can make life easier.

DEAR MRS. O.: Love your gutsy spirit! Tackle on down to the local hardware store and purchase a good sturdy wagon.

You may write to Percy Ross, the Manchester Herald, P.O. Box 35006, Minneapolis, Minn. 55435.

Minis are back!

Women in U.S. enjoy bare legs

By Vera Haller The Associated Press

NEW YORK — From designer boutiques to department store windows, everything's showing up short.

But raising hemlines again is also raising questions. "There's been to Florida, Maine, Ohio, Tennessee and Washington, D.C., within the last six or so weeks," said Wendy Reid Crisp, director of the National Association of Female Executives.

SEVENTH AVENUE designers unveiled their fall collections in April, and the models sometimes appeared to show more leg than fabric.

WORD BUZZED in the fashion world that some of the women attending the fall showings were rolling up the waistbands of their skirts to mirror the shorter lengths on the runways.

FASHION EDITORS from magazines and newsmen across the country also featured the mini and other media soon picked up on the trend.

SOME WOMEN are having plastic surgery to remove unsightly surface blood vessels from their legs so they can wear the shorter skirts, the Wall Street Journal noted.

Vanity Fair featured feminist Gloria Steinem in an article, "Smart Women Wear Short Skirts."

Erma Bombeck counseled fellow minihaters to "close ranks and hang tough."

THE STORES are fairly confident that it's going to work," said Monroe Greenstein, a retail industry analyst with Bear Stearns & Co.

are having them re-cut their orders to a shorter hemline. "We will be carrying all lengths of skirts in a variety of fabrications."

SHE SAID the shorter hemlines won't entirely replace longer lengths, a view held by many in and out of the fashion world.

THE RETURN to minis is good news to some women who wore the short skirts in the 1960s, including Ms. Steinem.

"I think the added choice is good," she said. "I think it's a new mood in clothing. It's time for a change and the proportions look better, newer and more current," said Ms. Brady.

But is it playing in Manchester?

By Anita M. Coldwell Herald Reporter

Miniskirts are gracing women's hips again, but what's the bottom line in Manchester? Though not everyone will rise to the occasion, a few women think it's not such a bad idea.

Another businesswoman who prefers to leave the legacy look in a casual setting is Ann Miller of Miller Real Estate.

"Miniskirts are like shorts," said Miller. "The only thing I don't like about them is that I can't wear them" she said. She said her age was "between 20 and 51."

Junior high school when I was only 13, but I don't think I could get into it now," said the 31-year-old Manchester resident.

DeCobert's doubts about wearing miniskirts is shared by Mary Ann Handley, professor of history at Manchester Community College.

Handley, 51, said she never wore them when she was 30 and can't imagine wearing them at 50.

Your neighbors' views: What do you think of the game-center ordinance?

Norbert Otte: "I'm against the game center going in."

Jim Bagge: "No, I don't think it should be passed."

Marie Mallette: "I wouldn't want one in my neighborhood, but as long as it's in a commercial zone, kids need some place to go."

Chris Schoombs: "The town shouldn't interfere."

M. Moretti: "It should be left up to the individual business."

Al Brandish: "I don't think there should be an ordinance that restricts the businesses."

Videos show similarity of steelhead, Atlantic salmon

I don't know if any of you missed this column, but Joyce and I have been off gallivanting on Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward Island. We had ourselves a really great time. But more about that in a later column. I have something else I want to write about while it's still fresh in my mind, and before I have to return the films which are the subject of this column.

Joe's World

Joe Garman

I have used myself, or have been using for a long time. Well, from previous columns, you know I have been interested in videotapes that can be played on home TVs relating to outdoor subjects. Some of the reviews were fairly good, but the tapes I am going to tell you about today are some of the best I have ever seen.

variety of outdoor subjects. For some reason or other, I have never written for a long copy of any of these to review. However, they recently forwarded a blurb on fly fishing for Pacific Coast steelhead. Because of my love for Atlantic salmon fishing, and understanding that the fishing for steelhead and salmon were quite similar, I sent off to 3M, and asked for a "loaner." Before I go any further, let me explain that steelhead are rainbow trout that go to sea, and come back up their rivers of birth to spawn. These fish after a couple of winters can return weighing anywhere from 6 pounds to 30 pounds. Hence, the similarity to Atlantic salmon.

Waller dwells more on how to cope with water conditions that affect steelhead behavior: high water, low water, different temperature, and that condition, plus the different techniques, and flies used to cope with these situations. While the first tape is basics, the second gets into mastery. "Fly Fishing for Trophy Steelhead," is the most exciting. In this tape, Waller goes after catches, and releases fish in the 15- to over-20-pound range. For any angler, this is a most interesting, exciting and educational film. In fact, the whole series is all of that.

The Doberman pinscher featured last week was claimed by her owner. She was named Heidi for the story, but her real name is Sheba.

Injury to dog's knee joint is common

QUESTION: Last week our 6-year-old dog was playing in the yard, chasing a ball, when we heard her yelp in pain and then hold her rear leg up in the air and refuse to put it down. By the way she acted we thought she had broken her leg, but our veterinarian said that she may have torn a ligament in her knee. It can happen much in the same way that a person may sprain an ankle, but with a dog, it is usually much more serious than that because the ligaments frequently rupture rather than stretch.

ments can rupture. When this happens, the stability of the joint is lost, which results in a stretching and occasional tearing of the joint capsule. This causes the intense pain that you described.

Vaccine may destroy AIDS-infected cells

NEW YORK — An effective AIDS vaccine would help the body fight AIDS virus, says a researcher who reported today that the body's immune system "luncheon" such attacks.

The killer cells, called cytotoxic T lymphocytes, appear to help fight some viral diseases such as influenza, Walker said in a recent television interview.

Teasing husband's wife says oldies aren't always goodies

Advice

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband loves to tease me. He uses all the time I know he's teasing, and he assures me that every time I know he's teasing, but I still feel uncomfortable when he repeats these old "standards." Furthermore, I dislike the implications in his statements.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Your response to "I'll Never Smile Again," who opted for extensive cosmetic dental work as opposed to having all her teeth extracted for dentures, was correct but incomplete.

DEAR ABBY: Today it happened again: The phone rang just as I was about to go to bed. I picked up the phone, and there it was. "Are you trying to steal my wife, you horse thief?"

Heart failure isn't hereditary

DEAR DR. GOTT: My mother died recently of congestive heart failure. What is hereditary about heart failure? Is it hereditary? Is it hereditary? Is it hereditary?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was wounded in Vietnam and had shell fragments in the abdomen. I had a repair of the small intestine and sigmoid colon. My weight climbed 50 pounds. Is the weight gain related to my injury?

DEAR READER: When the heart beats ineffectively, excess fluid is trapped in the body and builds up in tissues. This causes lung congestion, liver enlargement, ankle and leg edema (swelling) and general fluid overload. Most people who die of congestive heart failure die because lung fluid replaces air and they cannot breathe.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My son, 2, had two febrile seizures, both due to ear infections. The doctors say that if he gets another seizure, they will put him on phenobarbital until he's 5. Is this necessary?

Bridge The right time for an overbid by James Jacoby. How in the world can you know when the time is ripe to bid a contract on sparse values? South had an easy pass in first position with his slight high-card points. He had a fair chance to bid, but it was not an easy pass to make. It's not good to let the opponents make one no-trump when your side can make two of a major! So our intrepid South stepped up to the plate and bid two spades. Lo and behold, North raised to three spades, inviting game. Now what? It's true South had little enough in high cards, but he did have good shape. It's also true that North heard his partner pass originally, so North had to have quite a good hand to invite game. Finally, whenever you have a distributional hand with a void and your partner has a fit in your suit, you will take a lot of tricks. So South bid the game. Because of the favorable location of the A-Q of hearts, declarer made his contract with an overtrick. He didn't even need dummy's king of diamonds. Lesson: The right time to overbid is when you have a good suit fit and either you or your partner has a freakish distributional hand. Here, if North had more strength in diamonds and weak-er hearts, South might have no play at all for game. Since there was no way of determining exactly where North had his values, South was right to go to game. A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is 'Jacoby on Card Games,' published by Pharos Books.

'Head-of-household' policy offers special tax breaks

If you are a married couple, you can use the lowest tax rates to cut your tax bills: just file a joint return. If you are a single person, you can qualify for low rates, too, for you, if you are considered what the tax calls a "head-of-household" and are entitled to special tax breaks, too.

Sylvia Porter

To illustrate, a taxpayer can qualify as a head-of-household if his or her child resides with an ex-spouse for less than half of the year. While in 1987 (in an attempt to remain revenue neutral), the standard deduction for heads-of-households and singles is the same, look at 1988. Next year, the standard deduction for a head-of-household becomes $4,400 and for a single person only $3,000. Not only is that $1,400 less in taxable income, it's also a 47 percent higher standard deduction than that for singles.

'Big-ticket' orders up 1.4 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Orders for "big ticket" durable goods, bolstered by a sharp rise in demand for military hardware, climbed 1.4 percent in June, the biggest increase in three months, the government reported Tuesday. The Commerce Department said orders for durable goods, items expected to last three or more years, rose to a seasonally adjusted $18.4 billion last month following no change in May.

Auto dealers award grants

The Greater Hartford Automobile Association Foundation has awarded its first grants to provide for arts and cultural programs and for the needy and homeless in the Hartford area. Funds have been awarded to three non-profit organizations: Child and Family Services — $5,865 to expand services to Hartford residents, primarily urban, low income, minority children, adolescents and their families.

SNET earnings slip in 2nd quarter

NEW HAVEN — Southern New England Telecommunications Corp. has reported its earnings slipped 9 percent to $32.2 million, or $1.05 a share, during the second quarter compared to $35.7 million, or $1.13 a share, during the same period last year. Revenues and sales were $353.1 million in the period about 1 percent less than the $356 million reported last year, the company said Wednesday.

Stanley earnings at record levels

NEW BRITAIN — The Stanley Works has reported that its second quarter earnings soared to record levels, or $23.2 million, up 17 percent from the 19.9 million earned during the same period last year. Earnings increased from 47 cents a share in the 1986 second quarter to 54 cents a share this year, the company announced Wednesday.

Husbands aren't very happy if wives make more money

CINCINNATI — Some married couples are finding a new challenge in the era of two-income marriages: coping with a situation where wives earn more money than their husbands. For those who cannot adjust, the result could be divorce. In some cases, the women choose to quit their jobs to take lower-paying jobs to remove the source of conflict, say sociologists who are studying the phenomenon. Sociologists say couples are encountering new, and occasionally threatening, pressures in situations where women in professional careers earn more than their spouses.

The challenge is one of the latest during the 30 years in which American couples have had to adjust to the growing absorption of women into the work force, according to sociologists. Marriages get into trouble when the spouses decide to become competitive about their salaries and careers, Ms. Vannoy-Hiller says. "That doesn't have a place in that kind of relationship. That's a downer," she says. "The real upper... is for the male who is supportive and caring in the relationship."

GE swaps consumer biz for medical operation

By Peter Coy
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — General Electric Co. says it is swapping its huge consumer electronics business for a French company's medical equipment operations as part of its strategy to focus on high-growth, high-profit businesses.

The trans-Atlantic swap with Thomson S.A. will turn both companies into world leaders in their respective markets, John Welch, GE's hard-driving chairman and chief executive, said Wednesday.

Thomson will get GE's huge but slow-growing consumer electronics business, while GE will fold Thomson's medical equipment business into its own healthy medical equipment operations.

In addition, GE will receive "significantly more than half a billion dollars and less than a billion" in cash from Thomson, Welch said. Analysis estimated Thomson's payment at about $500 million.

The deal marked another step in Welch's campaign to focus on becoming first or second in the world in each of its mainstay businesses and to shed operations that don't fit the long-term strategy of the 109-year-old giant.

"Consumer Electronics, although a large business in terms of sales, has not been central to GE's strategic plan," Welch said in a prepared statement.

"Welch is a very direct guy," said Gail Landis, an analyst for Sanford C. Bernstein & Co. She said that although Welch seems to be following a sensible strategy, she does not expect GE's stock to do any better than the market average in coming years.

Thomson will become one of the world's three biggest consumer electronics companies along with Japan's Matsushita when it swallows GE's $3 billion-a-year operation, headquartered in Indianapolis.

GE will become one of the two or three largest medical equipment companies with the acquisition of Thomson's business, which does about $700 million in sales and is a market leader in X-ray machines.

GE has made 14 major acquisitions during the last six years, including its $6.4 billion acquisition of RCA in December 1985. But since 1981 it has also disposed of 11 major businesses and at least 222 smaller ones.

Although a favorite with investors, Welch is known to his opponents, including workers now on strike against NBC, as "Neutron Jack."

GE's consumer electronics business employs 31,000 employees worldwide — including 10,600 in the United States — and owns 17 manufacturing sites worldwide, six of them in the United States.

The business includes television sets, videocassette recorders and audio products. Thomson will continue to market the products under the GE and RCA labels.

GE's consumer electronics employees will be better off under Thomson, GE said.

"They've now got the chance of their lifetime. They're no longer a stepchild. I was in Indianapolis last night and the mood is upbeat," Welch said.

The transaction will help GE's earnings in the first year, Bunch said. He said it was too soon to make longer-term forecasts.

The announcement came about an hour before the close of the New York Stock Exchange. GE's stock rose 55 1/2 cents a share to $56.12 1/2 a share in consolidated NYSE trading.

GE will initially retain the rights to licensing and fee income amounting to about $150 million a year before taxes. Altogether, GE will receive compensation worth about $2 billion, amounting to more than three times the book value of the consumer electronics division, said Nicholas Heymann, an analyst for Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., a former GE employee.

"I would say it's a great deal," Heymann said. "You're getting out of a low-margin, low-growth business. You're expanding your almost dominant position in a high-margin, high-growth business," namely medical equipment, he said.

Thomson, which is owned by the French government, is the world's 50th largest industrial company outside the United States, with interests in consumer electronics, defense electronics and components. It made a profit of $265 million last year on revenue of $9 billion.

GE, based in Fairfield, Conn., has interests in technology, services and manufacturing. It made a profit of $2.5 billion last year on revenue of $37 billion.

The sale of consumer electronics heightened already-prevalent speculation that GE was poised to make a major acquisition. Names that circulated earlier this year in the investment community included such giants as United Technologies Corp., Raytheon Co., Honeywell Inc., Xerox Corp. and Eastman Kodak Co.

Both GE and Thomson will retain a 19.9 percent interest in the businesses they are selling as a means to assure a smooth transition and integration of the two businesses, the companies said.

SEC accuses Pennzoil of violating federal securities law

HOUSTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission has accused Pennzoil Co. of violating the federal securities law in its attempt to acquire Getty Oil Co. and urged the Texas Supreme Court to hear Texaco's appeal on the matter.

Texas Inc. is challenging a Texas jury's order that it pay $10.35 billions in damages to Pennzoil for wrongly interfering in Pennzoil's attempted merger with Getty Oil.

The SEC brief submitted late Wednesday supports a key point of Texaco's defense, although the SEC stressed it was not siding with Texaco.

The brief did not address any other issue "and takes no position as to the outcome of the case," the SEC said in a statement from its Washington, D.C. office.

Texasco in April filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection from creditors to void a state requirement that it post a potential bond of $12 billion to secure Pennzoil's tender offer for Getty shares, it also would have been invalidated by Pennzoil's violation of Rule 10b-13.

The Texas appeals court in rejecting Texaco's argument found that Pennzoil could have obtained an exemption from the rule, but the SEC noted Pennzoil never sought an exemption.

Toshiba may be banned

By Dave Skidmore
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House is moving to ban Toshiba Corp. products from U.S. military exchange stores despite a national advertising campaign in which the Japanese manufacturer apologizes for selling secret submarine technology to the Soviet Union.

"To put it bluntly, many of our military personnel do not want these products in their stores," said Rep. Dan Daniel, D-Va., sponsor of the measure.

The House Armed Services Committee voted 310 to 100 on Wednesday in the latest in a series of angry congressional responses to Toshiba and Norway's state-owned arms manufacturer, Kongberg Vaapenfabrik.

Subsidiaries of Toshiba and Kongberg sold computerized propeller milling machines to the Soviets, enabling them to bring their submarines quieter and more difficult to track.

Toshiba's action has directly placed our military personnel in more risk around the world and has also made their jobs more complex, tedious and stressful," Daniel said.

Armed Services Chairman Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., plans to bring the measure to the House floor early next week and hopes it will pass before Congress recesses for its summer vacation next month, according to a committee aide.

Another House measure would ban all Toshiba and Kongberg sales in the United States. A provision of the giant trade bill passed by the Senate on Tuesday would ban Toshiba exports to the United States for two years to five years.

In full-page advertisements published in major U.S. newspapers this week, the company said it "profoundly apologizes" and "extends its deepest regrets to the American people."

But Rep. John Rowland, R-Conn., noted that one of the Toshiba Corp. executives who resigned in the aftermath of the scandal has been hired by the company as a consultant.

"We still need to send a stronger message," he said.

Service members and their dependents bought $23 million worth of Toshiba consumer electronics, housewares and small appliances last year at 411 military post exchanges. Kongberg does not manufacture consumer products.

Rep. Duncan Hunter, R-Calif., proposed an amendment that would have broadened the sales ban to include all Defense Department contracts with the giant Japanese electronics company and with the Norwegian concern.

Hunter complained that Daniel's bill would hardly dent Toshiba's annual sales of about $3 billion in the United States. But committee members, citing possible procedural delays that would snag the PX measure if the two proposals were combined, declined to go along.

Aspin promised a "more deliberate" look at Hunter's proposal later and agreed to insert language in the committee report on the PX bill that would direct Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger to postpone any new contracts with Toshiba and Kongberg.

TOWN OF MANCHESTER, CONNECTICUT

NOTICE OF ADOPTION OF ORDINANCE

In accordance with the provisions of Chapter 3, Section 1 and 2 of the Town Charter, notice is hereby given of the adoption by the Board of Directors of the Town of Manchester, Connecticut on July 20, 1987.

PROPOSED ORDINANCE

WHEREAS, the Town of Manchester Charter in Section 3.1, Corporate Powers, and more specifically in Sections 3.1(7), 3.1(17), 3.1(18), 3.1(20), 3.1(21) and 3.1(27), provides that the Town may exercise its powers to secure the preservation of good order, peace, health and safety of the Town and its inhabitants "to make all lawful regulations, ordinances, bylaws, and orders in furtherance of any such powers"; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Directors, after receipt of petitions, and
